Unequaled Artificial Teeth.

THE greatest triumph of art is its exact imitation of the perfection of nature, and this triumph the advertiser flatters himself he has accomplished in the production of his

NEW STYLE OF ENAMEL TEETH.

The principal difference, so far as the eye is concerned, between the teeth manufactured by him and those of many other dentists, is that instead of their concealment being desirable, the more they are seen the more agreeable will be the effect!

No lady wearing them need be afraid to laugh heartily, for a full display of the set will be the most effectual way of producing the impression that they are not artificial, so closely is nature counterfeited in their workmanship and finish.

EDWARD ING, Dentist.
