On motion, the Hon. O. P. Jackson was called to the Chair, and Michel Musson appointed Secretary.

On motion of Frederick Buisson, Esq. JAMES P. FRERET, Esq. was unanimously nominated as the whig candidate to fill the vacancy in the Legislature occasioned by the resignation of Mr. Felix Labatut.

On motion, resolved, That the proceedings be published in all the whig papers in the city.
O. P. JACKSON, President.
MICHEL MUSSON, Secretary.

NOMINATINON FOR THE LEGISLATURE.

By reference to the proceedings of the Municipality Delegates, it will be seen that JAMES P. FRERET was last evening, unanimously nominated to run upon the Whig Ticket to fill the vacancy in the Legislature occasioned by the resignation of Mr. LABATUT. This is an excellent selection and will no doubt meet the approbation of every whig in the city. We do not permit ourselves to doubt Mr. FRERET's triumphant election.

Within the time of the existence of our Constitution, —our "ancient institutions,"—the following States have adopted new constitutions; Maine, 1819; Connecticut, 1818; New York, 1821; Delaware, 1831; Virginia, 1829; North Carolina, 1835; Tennessee, 1834; Indiana, 1816; Mississippi, 1832; Illinois, 1818; Alabama, 1819; Missouri, 1820. Now we should like to know if the slave States have experienced, any of those disorganizing and demoralizing effects, which Mr. Rosetius harps upon, as the inevitable consequence of abolishing our "ancient institutions"—Herald.

We clip the above extract from a long article, which appeared in the Herald yesterday. It we bear in mind that the doctrine to which the circular of the Clay Club applied the epithets so distasteful to the Herald, was that of an elective judiciary, we may arrive at the value of the citation made of the States that have of late years formed or amended their constitutions, as an argument to disprove the position assumed by the circular.

In which of these States has this principle been incorporated into the organic law? In Mississippi alone. And how has it operated in that State? Has it not produced the very evils ascribed? Has not the effect of such a provision in the constitution been demoralizing and disorganizing? Have we not seen pledges exacted of their judges to decide certain points of law in a given way before they could be elected? Have we not seen sheriffs throw up their offices in order to obstruct the business of the courts? Have not these same sheriffs been re-elected to their offices as soon as the time for holding courts elapsed?

Are not these practices disorganizing? Are they not demoralizing? Do they not encourage official dereliction of duty? Are they not a fraud upon the citizen who has business before the courts? Do they not weaken the respect which ought to be entertained for the administration of justice? And have they not contributed largely to make the State openly repudiate her obligations and assisted in blunting the sensibilities of her citizens to the claims of national honor?

In applying the terms demoralizing and disorganizing to the doctrine of an elective judiciary, we do not mean to ascribe to those who advocate it a desire to degrade the State. We think, however, that they are greatly in error when they imagine that such would not be its inevitable effects. Honest men sometimes support monstrous measures from mistaken views of the wants of society. In the discussion of national politics it is usual for debaters to ascribe the worst consequences to the measures of the opposite party, without intending to disparage the patriotism of the masses. We think that the effects of the free trade doctrines, espoused by a portion of the locofoco party, would be disastrous in the extreme. Yet no one is farther from supposing that those who support them are anxious to compass the ruin of the people. The error is one of judgment. It would be just as unjustifiable to suppose that a merchant who loses his money in an adventurous venture, intended to effect his own bankruptcy, as to imagine that the people of this country, or any considerable portion of them, wish to bring blight upon it. Nevertheless, merchants do fail for the want of judgment, and the country has suffered from mistaken policy.

We are sometimes uncharitable enough to suspect the motives of party leaders, but never of the masses. Ambition may make a man callous to the necessities of the people, but the people themselves do for the best, even if they do ill. If our cotemporary would keep this in mind, he would not perceive any affront to the democracy in the language of the circular. If an objection, urged in strong language, to the principles of a party be a slur upon individual members, the Herald has much to answer for; because it occasionally gives offence in that way to about a million and a half of people who voted to make old Tippecanoe President. Now we cannot believe that it would give the Herald the slightest comfort to be convinced that these million and a half of citizens are enemies to their country, or were actuated by a willingness to overthrow her institutions or cripple her resources, in voting for HARRISON. But if the construction put upon the language of the circular be applied to some of the articles of the Herald, it has insinuated as much quite often.

The proposition to run Mr. VAN BUREN and Mr. CALHOUN on the same ticket, was originally started in a communication that appeared in the columns of the New York Evening Post. In that article, it assumed a definite form. The correspondent of the Post suggested that Mr. VAN BUREN and Mr. CALHOUN should draw lots, leaving chance to be the arbiter of their respective claims. If Mr. V. B. drew the presidential ticket, Mr. C. was to become the candidate for the vice presidency, and vice versa. Even as the mere opinion of an anonymous correspondent, the Calhoun party considered the proposition as enveloping the germ of some disloyal procedure towards their favorite, and treated it with unconditional irreverence and scorn. Nevertheless, the growing feuds and jarring discords of the great "democratic family" seem to have directed the attention of the leading oracle of the party to this mode of compromising personal claims; and accordingly we find in an article in the November number of the Democratic Review, entitled the "Issue at Stake", that it is proposed, if the friends of VAN BUREN and CALHOUN cannot or will not unite upon either of the two to the exclusion of the other, that the names of both should be placed on one "splendid ticket". The weight of authority and grave dignity of the Democratic Review will tell to reconcile the party to the sacrifice which one of the two prominent aspirants must make, in assuming a secondary position on the ticket. The friends of Mr. CALHOUN regard it with suspicion, knowing it to emanate from an organ friendly to his competitors. The Herald (quasi Calhoun) which quotes the suggestion, looks upon it as an ingenious mode of securing the nomination of Mr. VAN BUREN—a conclusion which derives plausibility from the fact, that the proposition was first made in a Van Buren print, and has been approved by none other than Van Buren organs. This plank of safety, we are afraid, is about to slip from under the feet of the great democracy, and leaving them floundering in the ocean of uncertainty. Neither Major NOAH, nor the Evening Post, nor yet the Democratic Review, will be able to persuade Mr. CALHOUN to relinquish his claims to the presidency, and content himself with the vice presidency, and the highest honor in reversion. If the party are determined to nominate the Sage of Lindenwold, they will have to take him with all his imperfections on his head, and without farther hope of assistance from the chivalry than they may perchance extend as professed members of the locofoco party.

We perceive by the proceedings at the last sitting of the General Council that his honor the mayor returned to the council the ordinance establishing a uniform rate of taxes on coffee houses, cabarets, public houses, &c., with his reasons for disapproving some of its provisions, and we are happy to add that the council have reconsidered the ordinance and amended it in such a manner as to obviate the objections previously urged against it on the score of injustice an inequality. The article prohibiting in toto the sale of spirituous liquors in family groceries was stricken out.

THE AGE.—This is the title of a new paper about to be established in this city, by Messrs. DUNY & Co.—It will be democratic in politics. Mr. DUNY has long been connected with the city press, and has many warm supporters and admirers.

[CORRESPONDENCE OF THE BEE.]
NEW YORK, Nov. 18th, 1843.

The election in this State has gone for the locofocos and mainly by default. The whigs had nothing depending on the election of consequence sufficient to take them to the polls. There was no election for Governor, and the Senate was happily locofoco, and there was no wish to secure a whig majority in the lower house. The belief among the best informed and most reflecting whigs throughout the State was that it was much better for their success in '44, that their opponents, as they had the executive and one branch of the legislature, that they should also have the other, and thereby have the entire responsibility of legislation. The exact vote is not yet ascertained, but it is at least one hundred and fifty thousand short of a full vote. The total locofoco vote is much less than that of 1840, which we easily beat, and can do so to-morrow, or any time when it is necessary to make the effort. I have met no whig who has the least doubt of our success in '44.

The speech of Mr. Webster, at Andover, gives great satisfaction to all, and it is now difficult to hear a voice raised in reproof of the cause pursued by that eminent statesman.

The elections in Massachusetts have resulted as favorably to our cause as the most sanguine anticipated. Mr. Briggs has a very handsome plurality vote, and the political character of the members elected to the legislature, makes it certain that he will be their choice for Governor.

It is a fact of not much importance, that the collector and many other officers of the customs in this city, voted the whig ticket. It shows, however, that the bread and butter politicians look upon our cause as the strong one.

Exchange New Orleans, is dull at 1-4 prem. Mobile, 8@8 dis.

Exchange on London, on 106 6-m—Paris, 5.35, Amsterdam, 39 1-4@38; Hamburg, 34 7-8@35, Bremen, 77.

The cotton market is inactive, as shippers appear anxious to have further accounts from Europe, before they take hold; the sales average about 600 bales per day.—Upland, ordinary to middling, 7-4@— per lb.; fair, to good fair and good, 8 1-2@9 and 9c. Tennessee and Alabamas, 7@7—. Mobiles, Louisianas, &c., ordinary to middling, 7@7 1-2; fair, to good fair, 8@8 1-2c.; good and fine, 10@10 and 10 1-2c. per lb.; a few bales, however, were sold yesterday at a portion between these rates. The stock of western flour is unusually great, and the receipts coastwise are large; the sales of the week, 20,000 barrels, have been made at $4 62@4 75c.; for Ohio, Michigan, Genesee, Troutson, $4 62@4 75c.; Richmond city mills, $5 50. Pork is better demand, at 11 1-2 for mess, and 10 1-2 for prime. Beef, $6 7-8@7 1-2, for mess and prime. Lard, 6@6 1-2c., and on demand.

THE 28TH CONGRESS.—The New-York Express publishes a table of the members, of the 28th Congress, which the Editor classifies as follows, viz.—Whigs, 62; Van Buren, 26; Independent, 32. There are 22 members yet to be elected. The four members from New Hampshire; seven from Georgia; and five from Missouri, were chosen by general ticket, and have therefore been illegally elected. The Express says—The Maryland members will not probably be chosen in time to be present at the election of Speaker. Without them, the Whigs may have, in all, about 70 members, and the Independents, or anti Van Buren men, 40.

Having thus classified the members, the correctness of which arrangement we cannot vouch for, the Express thus speculates respecting the organization of the House:—

The first great question that will come before the House, is the election of Speaker, on which, it is not improbable, Mr. Dromgoole will receive a block. Mr. Van Buren leaders for him, in Virginia, where "democracy," under the support of Mr Ritchie has become a word of opprobrium of the Allegany Regency; and there, he first presents to John W Jones, but as Mr. Bonnell occupies his seat, it is not improbable he will find Lucesty, he may pitch upon George C Dromgoole. Mr Calhoun and his friends too, will be content to surrender so important a post as the Speakership to a pledged and irreducible Van Buren man, will, no doubt, look to their south, and pitch upon one of his ablest friends, Dixon H Lewis, of Alabama. The Whigs, meanwhile look on. Circumstances must determine the course they will take after they have tried in vain to elect their men.

Another difficulty in the way of the Democracy is the occasional appearance, Bias and Knves (V. B.), the Democratic Expounder, state to be opposed to Van Buren, dall (V. B.) Wether the friends of Mr Calhoun and of other candidates will come into this arrangement, we know shall see. But very clear in our minds, that they will take care that Bias and Knves, shall not be the opening so hard for Mr Van Buren to the detriment of all other interests. There is a Calhoun paper named the Spectator, whose publishers may command the support of Mr Calhoun's friends.

In the organization of Committees, too, it is hardly to be supposed, that Mr Van Buren's friends will be allowed full sway. The Chairmanship of the Committee of Ways and Means, and the Committee of Foreign Affairs, important men. The Foreign Relations has its importance also in the eyes of ambitious men. All such matters will be the cause of difficulty with the Democracy in Congress, which they are to settle the best way they can.

Meanwhile the Senate Whig (29 Whigs and 23 Locos) where the Whig majority will be able to act, and prevent any measures being done. Of the 23 locofocos, 12 are believed, prefer, first themselves, and next, Mr Calhoun, to running Mr. Van Buren again.

SPLENDID WHIG TRIUMPH IN MAINE.

An election was held on the 13th inst., in the five districts of Maine which failed to make choice of members of Congress at the State election in September. The result is most cheering.

In the 3d (Kennebec and Franklin) Districts, LUTHER SEVERANCE, Editor of the Kennebec Journal, and a staunch and stirring whig, is elected by nearly 1600 majority. (He failed by over 200 in September.) Thirteen towns in Kennebeck gave the following result:—

	September.	November.
L. Severance, Whig,	2734	2,476
Wells, Loco,	1,576	1,062
May, Abol,	345	352
Scattering,	47	10
Severance over all,	495	1,125
Clear whig gain,		700.

But the most astounding result is that in the Lincoln and Oxford, (surnamed the "Cornet") district—forty-three towns which in September gave 1,348 majority against Morse (whig), now gave 157 in this favorite whig gain of 2,015! The votes stands 3,211 whig, 2,351 loco, 173 abolition, 500 scattering. The remaining sixteen towns gave in September, 43 whig, 827 loco, 231 scattering. Morse must have gained over 300 to be elected, which we can hardly hope for: but there can be no doubt that he now leads the poll in this hitherto strongly locofoco district. The whigs say that Maine is coming for HARRY CLAY.

Five more towns in the Cornet' district make the net whig gain TWO THOUSAND ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTEEN and renders Morse's election quite probable.

MASSACHUSETTS.

The returns from the Bay State are complete with the exception of a few small town, in which the votes are about equally divide I. For Governor, the vote stands—

Morton,	53,172
Scattering,	8,870
