The diagram illustrates the relationship between the width, height, and angle of a rotated text box. A blue rectangle is tilted at an angle. The width is labeled 'width' along the bottom edge, the height is labeled 'height' along the left edge, and the angle is labeled 'angle' at the bottom-left corner. The text inside the rectangle is the same as in the first block, rotated to match the rectangle's orientation. The starting point of the rectangle is labeled '(x1, y1)'.
