MOBILE ELECTION.

WHIG VICTORY.

The Mobile Advertiser of Tuesday, announces in joyous strains, a complete victory achieved by the gallant whigs of Mobile at the municipal election on Monday last. The nominees of the City Club have swept every thing before them, by majorities that astonish the whigs themselves. CHARLES A. HOSKINS is elected mayor by over four hundred majority—the largest whig majority ever given in Mobile. The whigs have elected the entire common council ticket—six-sixths of the board of aldermen, and all the other city officers. Locofocoism, says the Advertiser, is used up—dead and buried. We presume they will never make another effort in Mobile. The Clay whigs cannot be beaten here. The Clay banner was gallantly flung to the breeze in this contest, and most noble did our friends rally under it—bravely did they fight and most splendid is their triumph. They have proved themselves invincible, and shown to the world, that though others may fail, they are true to the whig cause—unconquered and unconquerable.

The Locofocos of Mobile, in anticipation of a victory in the city at the recent elections, procured a "live coon" for the purpose of skinning him in the public square, after the closing of the polls. But unfortunately, when the time for this interesting fête arrived, the "old coon" it appears, had devoured so many of the opossums, that there were not enough left to render the operation

CLAY PAPERS.—Sixteen papers friendly to the election of Mr. Clay are published in North Carolina, and twenty-eight in Virginia. To which we may add every whig paper in New York, in Louisiana, in Maryland, Ohio and indeed all over the country except in Pennsylvania, and were there three-fourth's of the whig press support Mr. CLAY.

FRENCH ENTERPRISE.—French papers say that the celebrated Mr. Castelnau is about to make, under the auspices of the French government, an expedition to the central regions of South America. This great exploring journey extends across the continent from Rio Janeiro to Lima, a line of no less than 1600 leagues, never yet visited by any Europeans. This enterprise was planned under the auspices of the Duke of Orleans, and is now carried out by the Duke de Nemours.

EL WO.—We learn from the Little Rock Gazette, of the 27th inst. that Nicholas Keys has been arrested on an accusation of the counterfeiters and gamblers Trowbridge, Hunt, Stewart, Caldwell, &c., and remanded to prison after an investigation of his case. The following paragraph from the Gazette, in reference to this subject, is of some importance.

There is considerable apprehension among the citizens of this place, that the friends of the prisoners, both here and at a distance, are determined to rescue them from prison, as there is no longer room to doubt, that there are scores, if not hundreds, of the villians lurking about in the neighboring counties, with more common and deeply felonious purpose. These villians are doubtless connected with an organized band resulting from the northern states to the remote borders of Texas. It is believed, that they contained a large force, at any given rallying point, and that, from recent developments, they may be feel hardy enough to subject the citizens of this place to the dreadful necessity of disposing of them in a summary manner more tragical than the bloody affair at Vicksburg in 1836. If any of them should parchance read this article we advise them to betake themselves to the middle of Texas, for if they ever attempt to rescue their comrades from their just punishment, their security can only be secured for with their lives. We do not invoke upon them the vengeful punishment of a lynch tribunal, but wish to give them timely warning that an armed force of the highest authority is ready with laws, in readiness for the bold outlaws they tender either by night or by day

NEW-ORLEANS BEE.

BY BULLITT, MAGINE & CO.

FOR PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES,

HENRY CLAY

(Subject to the decision of the American People.)

NEW-ORLEANS

THURSDAY MORNING, NOV. 10, 1842.

THE MAIL filled yesterday from beyond Mobile, but good news nevertheless.

It is supposed that the Ohio river, which is now at a very low stage of water, will temporarily close before it rises. This would have been a serious misfortune to Mississippi some years ago, when all planters were cultivating nothing but cotton, and purchasing their provisions from the "up country"—but as our agriculturalists have pretty generally adopted a better system since then, and now supply their own "hog and hominy," the absence of foreign supplies will be of little consequence.

The above extract from the Vicksburg Sentinel is worthy of serious consideration as exhibiting in an isolated state, and upon a small scale, the advantages that a tariff is destined to operate in the whole Union. We marvel much that the editor in discounting upon the benefits arising from the system, adopted by the agriculturalists of Mississippi, of raising their own articles of consumption, did not give a wider scope to his vision, and comprehend the Union of States in his philosophy.

The Sentinel also alludes to the productions of the western states as "foreign supplies," in a too sectional spirit, it seems to us; but with this we make no cavil, though if articles of sub-tenance derived from Kentucky, come under the head of foreign supply, we think the argument more forcible as applied to the products of countries separated from us in a political sense as well as by the intervening ocean.

Amongst the first articles written by us, upon assuming the conduct of this journal, were a series in which we attempted to impress the planters of the south with the necessity of producing within themselves, every article of domestic consumption that could be raised upon their estates. To the extent that his policy has been put in execution have the planters put an end to a serious drain upon their resources; and we are glad to learn from the Sentinel that Mississippi is quite independent now of "foreign supply," in the sense the term is used by that journal; our happiness would know no bounds if the same could be said of her, in respect to those "foreign supplies" that do not happen to be produced by our own people, our neighbors and our countrymen.

If it be a source of beatification to the Sentinel that Mississippi is independent of her western sisters for supplies, it might be inferred that the independence of the whole family would occasion our cotemporary a greater jubilation. What he contends has been the better system adopted by Mississippi in regard to the west, we urge would be the "better system" if put in practice by the Union towards foreign countries. If it be wise in one state to render herself as independent as possible of her neighbors, sisters though they be, is it not much more so for the nation at large to render itself independent of countries that have no sympathy in government with it, no identity of interest, no tie of common destiny! The argument, we contend, applies with infinitely more force in the latter supposition.

THE UNITED STATES SENATE consists of fifty two members; of these the whigs have at present the following:—Vermont 2, Massachusetts 2, Rhode Island 2, Connecticut 1, Maine 1, New York 1, Delaware 2, New Jersey 2, Maryland 2, Virginia 2, North Carolina 2, South Carolina 1, Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Mississippi 1, Kentucky 2, Indiana 2, Michigan 2—in all 30. After the present session of congress, three locofoco senators will be sent from Maryland, North Carolina and South Carolina, in place of whigs. That body will then stand whigs 27—locofocos 23. Indiana is doubtful with the chances in our favor. Tennessee has not yet chosen U. S. senators. Should Mr. Rives of Virginia, affiliate with locofocoism or resign, the whigs will still have 26 senators to 24 locos. We contend, therefore, perceive that in any contingency, the whigs will lose their ascendancy in the higher branch of the National Legislature. If New York goes for the whigs, we gain a senator—if for the locofocos, we lose nothing, as it is SILAS WRIGHT's term which expires on the 4th March, 1843.

The locofoco presses are extensively quoting the opinion of the Cincinnati Republican—that Mr. CLAY cannot carry Ohio, as the conclusion of a whig paper. It is an error, and we doubt not, an intentional. The Republican is a rabid Tyler organ, closely allied to locofocoism, and its opinion is not worth sixpence with the whigs.

WINTER.—If such we may term the genial and tractable temperature of New Orleans during the cool season, is stealing on us apace. The weather is beautiful, but we find just chilly enough to render artificial warmth comfortable in the mornings and at night, and to drive away the myriads of mosquitoes which cling to us while the sun retains its vivifying power.

MEXICO—SAN ANTONIO PRISONERS

We have been shown a letter from one of the captives, taken at San Antonio by the Mexicans, to his brother residing in this city, from which we publish a few extracts, that persons who have friends or relatives amongst them may learn the situation of the prisoners, their treatment and probable destination.

SAN FERNANDO, 9th October, 1842.

[About 30 miles from the Rio Grande and 200 above Matamoras.]

"I have an assurance that this will be forwarded to New Orleans by way of Matamoras, and could submit of the opportunity breathing you, under my own hands that, so far as health alone is concerned I am well, what our further destination is, or when we shall be sent from this, I cannot tell.

"I apprehend no violence to any of our party; on the contrary I feel sanguine, that, under the peculiar circumstances under which we were taken at San Antonio, we capitulating as most be very long.

"I should be more disposed to complain of my present disagreeable situation were it not that others are here whose lot is perhaps even harder than mine. They have families living on the Colorado and Guadalupe, and were in San Antonio only for a short time, attending court, when but a day or two before they were to have returned, they were captured. I, myself intended leaving in two days at furthest—the absence of Spottswood who held some papers, without which I could not conveniently leave, alone, detained me.

Yours, &c."

"P. S.—I have just learned officially, that on to-morrow morning we leave this place, directly for the city of Mexico—then thence we are to be allowed as best we can (I presume) to find our way to the United States—it will take from 25 to 40 days to go to the city—from thence to Vera Cruz 3 or 4 days.

"6 o'clock P. M."

The writer intimates in his letter that he cannot speak more fully as to his situation—doubtless fearing his letters will be opened by the authorities and subject him to harsh discipline. The letter was forwarded by the American consulate at Matamoras.

In another letter, from the same person, we learn that the prisoners, with the exception of being confined in a filthy room, too small for the numbers crowded into it, have met with tolerable treatment.

"I have spent the day," says the writer, "with Gen CELA, and taking every thing into consideration, passed a very agreeable time of it. We played chess during the afternoon, dined about 7 o'clock—the dinner excellent, coffee better, &c. &c. So far I have found the Mexican officers gentlemen, and the soldiers generally kind and disposed to make our situation as comfortable as possible."

We are inclined to think that this portion of the letter may have been written under the expectation of its being opened by the Mexican authorities before it reached the U. S. consulate at Matamoras. At all events there seems to be little reason to apprehend any extreme measures being taken in regard to the prisoners—their personal safety, it would appear, is beyond

MEXICO:

THE CAPTURE OF SAN ANTONIO.

We lay before our readers, at the request of the Mexican Consul, the following official documents in relation to the recent incursion of the Mexicans in Texas, and capture of San Antonio. The Texan accounts of these transactions have been published heretofore.

Consulate of the Republic of Mexico.

NEW-ORLEANS, Nov. 9, 1842.

Messrs. Editors of the Bee,—

Trusting to your impartiality, I request you to republish an account of the late successes of the Mexican army at San Antonio de Bejar, which I have extracted from official documents, received per schrs. Emblem and Creole, and dated Matamoros, 20th October.

"On the 11th of September, early in the morning, General WOLL, with a force of six hundred cavalry and four hundred infantry, took possession of San Antonio de Bejar. One hundred and fifty Texans entrenched themselves within the houses of the public square; but upon learning that a part of the Mexican army was marching upon them, seventy-eight of their number made their escape, and seventy-two surrendered at discretion after half an hour's fruitless resistance. Those who fled will probably escape, as they were favored by a dense fog.

"On the 18th, three hundred Texians approached San Antonio. Gen. WOLL left the town with a part of his forces to give them battle, when the Texians commenced a retreat. After retiring about three and a half leagues, being overtaken by the Mexican troops, they formed behind an impenetrable copse upon the Arroyosalado, and prepared to defend themselves. General WOLL engaged them, and during the action perceived that a hundred and fifty Texians had attacked his rear. He immediately despatched Colonels MONTERO, RAMOS and CARRASCO, with two squadrons of the regiments of Santa Ana and a small field piece, who, after a quarter of an hour's action, killed one hundred and twenty Texians, took fifteen prisoners and wounded five.

"Those who were upon the Arroyosalado, after having suffered great loss, retreated, and were no pursued, as night intervened, and the Mexicans required rest, having eaten nothing during the whole day.

"In these short campaigns the Texians have lost their arms, ammunition, horses, and more than six hundred men, killed, wounded and prisoners—the latter being well treated."

I remain, Messrs. Editors,

Yours very respectfully,

F. DE ARRANGOIZ,

Mexican Consul.

The subjoined is the address of Gen. WOLL, to his soldiers, after the events above detailed:

THE GENERAL

In Chief of the Army of the North, and Commander of the 2nd division, to the troops under his command.

"SOLDIERS, this day completes a month since the period you left your quarters, and like the Romans, to reach the enemy you have opened a road, penetrated forests, constructed bridges and forced entrenchments in the midst of a desert of eighty leagues which you have twice traversed.

"You have supported with resolution and energy the fatigues of forced marches, and suffered with resignation privations of every kind—such as thirst and the rigors of the climate and the season.

"In one month you have fought three bloody battles, taken a city by assault, and disabled the enemy to the extent of six hundred men, killed wounded and prisoners. What is yet more worthy of praise, you have preserved your discipline, and while terrible in the combat and models of valor you have shown generosity and mercy to the vanquished after the victory.

"You have respected the property, the person, the opinions and sympathies of every individual; your noble conduct merits the admiration of the enemy himself, and all the inhabitants of Bejar who, without distinction of nation, have assembled en masse to congratulate your General as an evidence of their gratitude.

"SOLDIERS, you this day return to your quarters, without booty and poor as Spartans; but you return covered with glory and crowned with laurels; you have proved yourselves worthy children of Mexico.

"The country and the supreme Magistrate of the Republic, the immortal General SANTA ANA, will reward you and I shall ever be proud of having accompanied you."

From the Campo on the right bank of the Rio Bravo del Norte, Sept. 30th, 1842.

ADRIAN WOLL.

MR. CALHOUN.—The Charleston Mercury says:—"We have seen of late, in various papers, intimations that our Senator would retire, probably, from his seat, before the commencement of the present session. We have reason to believe that there is no foundation for these reports.

MOUNDS.—The Natchez Courier, of the 6th, says: "We learn from passengers, who arrived at our landing yesterday morning, on the Gen. Pike, that when a short distance below New Madrid, a most willful murder was committed by a person named Chappell, who was at work on the roads, on the body of a fellow-laborer, whose name was not known. Chappell stabbed him with a large knife, both of the right shoulder, which caused instant death. The murderer immediately fled, and the object of this notice is to place the police upon the look-out. He is a middle-sized man, about twenty-five years of age—with ruddy coloured hair, and scattered sandy whiskers."

The Richmond Whig proposes the formation of City Clubs in every county of Virginia, and makes the following remarks:

"It is said upon the whigs to take this matter into consideration, and go to work forthwith. The want of proper activity among leading whigs, and the consequent want of correct information among the personal prevalence of whig principles. Now is the so-called time to begin to operate. The people begin to taste the bitter fruits of the 12 years of locofoco misrule. They begin to be able to form no so just appreciation of the blessings of hard money and hard times. They are now that the hard money system and hard times make a season of rejoicing to office and place, who invoke upon their heads the vengeful punishment of a lynch tribunal, but wish to give them timely warning that an armed force of the highest authority is ready with laws, in readiness for the bold outlaws they tender either by night or by day
