NEW ORLEANS BEE

J. MAGNE & WEISSE, PROPRIETORS. NO. 81 CHARTRES STREET.

Official Journal of the State

NEW-ORLEANS: MONDAY MORNING, NOV., 11, 1844.

A CARD.

With the present number of the New Orleans Bee, the connection of the undersigned with it, as one of its Editors and Proprietors, ceases. In withdrawing from the political press, it may be proper to remark, that he has not been induced to take that step, on account of any change of opinion in respect either to the measures or men that have been supported by the paper. Considerations altogether uninteresting to the public, have impelled him, after having devoted six years to the advocacy of what he regarded as the best interests or true policy of the country, to leave the field of politics to other and he trusts better husbandmen.

During his connection with the political press, he has had as little cause to complain of his professional brethren as might be hoped from the exciting nature of the contests in which he has been engaged. Claiming no exemption from the frailties of human nature, he may at times have allowed the suggestions of passion to embitter the columns of his press. He would fain ask the charity of oblivion for such faults, whilst he extends it to all that have been committed against himself: and he would add that he breaks off all relations, long subsisting, with peace and good will towards all with whom his position has brought him into collision.

For the Bee he would ask the continued support and confidence of his friends. He leaves it in hands that will, he hopes, make it more worthy of the patronage and esteem of the public, than he has been able to render it.

A large share of the regret he feels at leaving "The Bee," he ascribes to the necessity of parting with the gentlemen with whom he has been associated in its management, and with whom he has sustained unbroken relations of friendship and kindness, during the entire term of his connection with it.

A. C. BULLITT.

November 11th, 1844.

The foregoing card will have informed the public that our old associate and Senior Editor of the Bee, has withdrawn from the control of its columns, and from his interest in the establishment. He retires from the political arena, in which, during six years, he has boldly, ardently and ably combatted, and has ceased his connection with those with whom a sincere and constant friendship had, during the entire period, never suffered an instant's interruption.

The events of the last few months are unfortunately calculated to alienate and sever ranks from active political partizanship those, the sincerity of whose patriotism and the purity of whose purposes induce them to regard the press as an enlightened and truthful promulgator of knowledge—a shrine at which honor and loyalty should alone offer fitting incense.

Whatever may be the fate of our candidate and of the party, which we have faithfully supported, we have resolved hereafter, to devote a large space in our journal to other than purely political matters. We do not cease to be whigs, nor have we abandoned the field of politics; but we are desirous of rendering the Bee equally interesting in a commercial aspect, and as a vehicle of general intelligence. It shall be our aim to constitute our paper as far as possible a family journal. Should the public appreciate our efforts, and continue the liberal patronage heretofore bestowed upon us, our exertions to merit their favor will be commensurate with their kindness.

☞ We have never beheld such intense, unconceaded anxiety and excitement among politicians as now prevail. The presidential contest has undoubtedly been the severest through which the country has ever passed, and the number of states that will be carried by one or the other party, by comparatively meagre majorities, is very considerable. Every mail raises or depresses political stock. At this moment the result in the great state of Pennsylvania is involved in the most complete doubt and obscurity. From New York, the intelligence presages a struggle of unparalleled violence and fierceness. In our own state, conceding the Plaquemines vote, the issue is equally dubious. In brief at this moment, it is utterly impossible for the shrewdest calculators to form a confident conclusion as to the result of the Presidential Election. A day or two will, however, clear up all doubts and speculations. When Virginia and the Empire State speak, we shall know the result beyond a peradventure.

LOUISIANA.

We subjoin all the returns received since our last publication, and have corrected them in accordance with the most authentic reports. The vote in the Red River parishes leaves no doubt in our mind, that the State has gone for POLK and DALLAS:—

	CLAY.	POLK.

The remaining parishes are chiefly locofoco, and from the increased majorities in Caldwell and Catahoula lead us to apprehend that the State has been carried by the locofocos beyond a peradventure.

ELECTION RETURNS.

PENNSYLVANIA.

By the mail of yesterday we received reported returns from several counties in the Key Stone State. Their complexion does not authorize to express a confidence either as to the success or defeat of the Clay electoral ticket in Pennsylvania. The Whig gain over 1840 is thus far, considerable. We compare the returns with the Presidential election of that year.

	1844.		1840.
	CLAY.	POLK.	HARRISON.	V. BUREN
Philadelphia city and county,	4600	—	—	233
York,	—	590		580
Lancaster,	4311	—	6208	—

	12402	6727	9216	5457
	6725		5457
	5675		3759

The Whig gain since 1840 is 2916 votes. There is a loss of about 1090 since Shunk's election. The Whigs therefore, must gain in the remaining counties, or must not fall far short of their 1840 vote to carry the State.

GEORGIA.

The returns from Georgia are few and far between—What we have positive, however, is good. The papers yesterday furnished returns from the four following counties:

	CLAY.	POLK.	WHIG GAIN.	LOSS.
Muscogee,	210		54
Chatham,		18		8
Richmond,	961		53
Effingham,	192			7

The above counties exhibit a whig gain of 106 votes since the October elections.

The passengers by the mail report that returns were received from 11 counties, in which there is a whig gain of over 300 votes. At this rate, if it be true, the State has gone for CLAY and FRELINGHUYSEN.

TENNESSEE.

Up to this hour we have nothing from Tennessee save flying rumors, which are, however, extremely favorable. Five counties in the vicinity of Memphis are reported by the steamer Louisville, to have given increased whig majorities over the last election.

☞ BUILDING IN NEW YORK.—The Tribune gives a list of 9 67 new buildings now in course of erection, or not yet finished in the city of New York, exclusive of those on the 19th and a part of the 15th ward, which have not been counted. They comprise principally stores and dwellings, of which there are upwards of 900, besides churches.

OHIO.

☞ We are indebted to the politeness of the clerk of steamer Belle of the West, for a Cincinnati Gazette, of the 2d November, giving returns of the votes of the city and several townships.

From the Cincinnati Gazette, of 2d Nov., 4½ A. M.

PRESIDENTIAL—OHIO FOR CLAY.

The election of yesterday passed off quietly. The aggregate vote in the city is 9613, an increase upon the vote for Governor on the 8th of October of 146.

We have received the returns from all the townships except Miami, Crosby and Springfield, which will be founded below.

The Majority for Polk will be 1750.

We have reduced the October Locofoco majority 125 or 150 notwithstanding about 300 have been naturalized since the 8th of October. A desperate effort was made by the Locofocos to increase their majority in this county, but they have failed.

We have no doubt that the vote of Ohio has been given to Mr Clay, by several thousand majority beyond that received by Bartley for governor. Of this we think there can be no mistake. The vote for Birney has not been all returned. It will be about 300 in this county.

The Whigs of the city have done well. They had to contend against odds, yet they triumphed.—Our majority on the 8th October was 279 yesterday it was run up to 406. The five hundred votes increase pledged for Hamilton by the Locos, are missing. And the State is safe. Enough, this, to satisfy all!

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

THE AMERICAN THEATRE opened on Saturday evening, to a very fair audience considering the paucity of our "floating population" at present in the city, and the intense excitement existing amongst the "residents," who highly congregate around the bulletin of the St Charles, anxiously awaiting the election returns from the various States. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr MUELLER, with the powerful aid of Cioeri and Gabici, is full and effective. The comedy of the Englishman in India and the interpiece of Hunting a Turtle, went off with great eclat. The two debutants of the occasion, Mrs KENT and MR N. B. CLARK, were warmly received and deservedly applauded. Mrs Kent is a charming actress and made a decided hit. She is destined to become as great a favorite with our play going community, as was the popular and versatile Fanny Fitzwilliams. Mr Clarke, with his fine figure, excellent voice and reading, cannot fail to win for himself a prominent stand in the highest walks of the drama. The new and beautiful drop curtain designed and painted by Mondelli, excited enthusiastic applause. A view of this alone, is worth the price of admission to the theatre.

AMERICAN THEATRE.—The sterling comedy of She Stoops to Conquer, and for the first time in this city, a new interpiece entitled the Rum Old Commander, are announced for this evening, in both of which, Mrs Kent, will appear. During the evening, Mr W G Wells will make his first appearance at this Theatre, in one of his popular Medly dances.

NEW JERSEY.—The Presidential and Congressional elections in this State took place on Tuesday, Nov. 5th, and continued two days. The candidates for Congress are as follows:

Dist.	Whigs.	Locos.
1	James G Hampton,	Lucius Q C Elmer,
2	Samuel G Wright,	George Sykes,
3	John Runk,	Isaac L Ryerson,
4	Archibald Robertson,	Joseph E Edsall,
5	William Wright,	No candidate,

All the districts, except one, exhibit whig majorities at the late election.

MR. CLAY AND THE NATURALIZATION LAWS.—The N. Y. Journal of Commerce of the 2d says:—We learn that a letter has been received by a gentleman in this city, from Mr Clay, in which he says that his opinions relative to the naturalization laws ought not now to be asked from him, as he long since stated, that he was totally opposed to the naturalization laws, and thought that they should be repealed or essentially modified; and that he had never since seen any reason to alter that opinion. This is the substance of the letter as reported to us by a gentleman who has seen it.—The exact expressions we do not profess to give. We understand it has been in the city several days."

We know not how much faith to place in the above statement. The Journal of Commerce would scarcely announce Mr CLAY's opinions so broadly without tolerably good authority.

A MILLERITE OWNING IT.—The last number of the Midnight Cry contains a statement from "Brother Storrs," in which he says:

"I confess that I have been led into error, and thereby have led others astray, in advising advent believers to leave business entirely, and attend meetings only:—Doing so I have usually qualified that advice by excepting business "absolutely necessary for present necessity."

What compensation (pertinently asks the True Sun) is the confession to the hundreds who have been ruined in property and in mind by the delusive prophecies of Brother Storrs and his associates! Confession will not restore the dead who have perished from exposure—nor re-illume the spark of reason, the darkened intellect—nor clothe the naked and feed the hungry—nor relieve one jot or title of the misery, wretchedness and despair which Millerism has inflicted upon its victims. We marvel that the publishers of the Millerite prints have the impudence to continue their issues. Shame, repentance, and remorse should strike them dumb.

SIXTY BACHELORS ON HORSEBACK!—Remarking upon the grand Whig Procession, a correspondent at New York to the North American says:

"When all was elegant, to particularize would be running great risk; but the great hit was made by a club of sixty gentlemen from the Croton Hotel, all bachelors. They were splendidly mounted, the horses' heads decorated with American flags and rosettes, with saddle cloths made of United States flags. The standard bearer wore for a cap the skin of that same old coon, as large as life. The standard was of white linen trimmed with blue, surmounted by a gold eagle. Device:—"We're all Bachelors: when Hickory elected, we are ready to marry." The sight of this flag was greeted amid hearty laughter by the spectators, the ladies waving down handkerchiefs, and the cry was for the greatest liberality. And the first question with the ladies now is, 'Did you see the Bachelors from the Croton?'"

THE INQUEST OF THE DEAD.

The Coroner of the city of Buffalo has furnished for publication the following list of those whose lives were lost in the late disastrous gale at that city. It is a heart rending, melancholy picture.

In addition to the above it is stated that there are still some 25 persons missing, many of whom have been minutely described by their friends. Making in all a total of nearly sixty deaths, from drowning and exposure.

SENTENCE OF DAVID MILLER, THE LECOFOCO COUNTERFEITER.—This person found guilty a few days ago in Baltimore City Court, by a jury of his countrymen, for attempting to coin some counterfeit or more persons in the 2d, 6th and 14th wards of Baltimore, at the general election on the 3d ult. was brought into Court this morning, and sentenced to six months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of one hundred dollars.

The Court, in pronouncing the sentence, spoke in a Christian manner of the enormity of the crime and regretted their legal inability to send the accused to the penitentiary. Let this be a warning to illegal voters.

Baltimore Patriot, 2d.

NEW YORK.—We are indebted to J. S. HYZER, No. 14 Camp street, for several valuable publications.

Drama of Exile and other Poems, by E. B. Barrett, two vols. These volumes are a beautiful specimen of Typography. They contain a number of poems from the pen of Miss Barrett, one of the most powerful, bold and graphic writers of the day. Her style is remarkably forcible and majestic, having the very trick and accent of Milton. Miss Barrett's effusions are mostly of a religious character.

The Comic Blackstone, by Gilbert Abbott à Beckett. A most amusing and humorous satire, compiled chiefly from the columns of the London Punch.

Cyclopedia of Practical Medicine, part IX. We have so frequently referred to this useful work, that further comment is superfluous.

A REVOLTING MURDER IN THE EASTERN PENITENTIARY.

Yesterday morning, about ten o'clock, one of the nurses at the Eastern Penitentiary, named James Gaston, about forty years of age, was violently put to death by John Bilman, an insane convict, who in aged twenty-three years, under the following revolting circumstances:—At the above time, Mr Gaston entered the cell of the prisoner, which he is the range of cells in the upper tier of cells, and had just entered when the prisoner demanded to be immediately enlarged, which was of course, peremptorily refused. He then became furious, and here up a brick from the floor, with which he struck the nurse over the head, cutting his left ear in two, and inflicting a wound on either side of it. Finding that he had killed the nurse, the prisoner stripped him of his clothing and put on his vest, pants and hat with the view of effecting his escape. He then proceeded down stairs and crossed the yard, but at the gate Mr Hallowell, the clerk recognized him and was taking him back to the stairs, where they were met by two officers, who had been informed of the circumstance by two prisoners whose cells adjoined that of the prisoner, and who heard all that occurred.

The prisoner was sentenced to two years imprisonment for horse stealing in Lycoming Co., he had served out fourteen months, having become insane shortly after, he had been taken to Cherry Hill.

Before he was arrested for the above offence, he was charged with the murder of his own father, who had died in a mysterious manner; but there being a want of proof he was discharged.

Since his incarceration he confessed to the Moral Instructor of the prison, and Mr Thompson the Warden, his guilt of that horrid deed.

Mr Gaston was a quiet and exemplary character, and was remarkable for his mildness and attention to those under his charge. He has left a wife and two small children. The Coroner held an inquest on the body, and the jury, after obtaining the above facts, partially detailed by the prisoner himself, returned a verdict accordingly.—Phil. U. S. Gazette.

A WHIG WORTHY TO BE CALLED A WHIG.—Mr. S. Parmel, of Sumter county, Georgia, who was on his return home, yesterday rode eighty miles on horseback to reach the State to vote, and was so gratified to state that he arrived in this city in time to deposite his vote for the Whig ticket. Pass his name around.

The above is from the Augusta Chronicle. We agree perfectly with the editor, Pass Mr. Parmalt's name around.

A MAN TORN TO PIECES BY A HORSE.—A man named Murphy, on Monday, was killed by a stallion near Kill County, Wisconsin. The man was turning off the high road into the field, to make a short cut, though asked to turn back, or else he might be killed by a wild horse he was about to pass. Partly for himself, he trod the "forbidden ground." In four hours after, his body was found torn to pieces. The horse's hoofs and mouth were encrusted with the blood of his victim.—Philadelphia Times.

SERIOUS RIOTS AT MONTREAL—Four men killed.—During the election at Montreal on Tuesday and Wednesday, the city was under great excitement in consequence of the numerous riots that took place. Seven hundred extra police were unable to keep order, and some 600 regular troops were called into requisition. Heads were broken—limbs fractured and four deaths occurred. Nearly all the stores in the city were closed. It is rumored in the course of some forty of the leaders, by the troops, who charged bayonets and thus dispersed them.

THE KING OF THE FRENCH.

The London Times, in a pithy article, noticing the visit of Louis Philippe to England, says:

"But this is the first time in the history of our relations with France, that we receive the Sovereign of that nation on our soil of Britain, not because he is a fugitive, not because he has sunk under the reverses of immense relations or foreign war, but because he is the successful, the triumphant King of the French—successful, in his long struggle over the dangers of anarchy and rebellion, aimed repeatedly even against his life—triumphant, in the maintenance of the policy of peace, which is the most characteristic and not the least praiseworthy element of his power. King Louis Philippe comes to England because he has successfully held throughout the vicissitudes and dangers of the last fourteen years, the great principle that the prosperity and liberty of France required peace, and that peace for France and for Europe, means amity with England. Never as it will be seen by the eye of history, when the minor differences of the day have sunk into appropriate insignificance, this is the general effect—this the great and significant result of the reign of Louis Philippe; and when we add it to home in mind from what exile the policy has saved the world, there is no one of us who has a grasp of mind, or so distempered a state of feeling, as not to forget the petty irritations of the moment in grateful acknowledgment of that good understanding which has been preserved by the blessings of Providence, between the two greatest nations of modern Europe."

A London letter, noticing the disembarkation, says: "There was no mistaking King Louis Philippe, even by those who were familiar with his features only through the medium of engravings. There was the stuff, pretty figure, strongly marked and expressive countenance, and large grey whiskers. As he appeared at the gangway, a loud cheer broke forth—it was a hearty, ringing hurrah; and his Majesty appeared to feel and appreciate its cordiality. He bowed long and low, turning in every direction, and then stepped firmly down the ladder, followed by Prince Albert, the Duc de Montpensier, and the Duke of Wellington."

The last time that Louis Philippe visited London was in 1815, during the hundred days. When Louis XVII went to Ghent, the Duke of Orleans took refuge in England, where he remained until the battle of Waterloo enabled him once more to return to the Palais Royal. Louis Philippe has entered the 72d year of his age, including the last, having been born on the 7th October, 1773.—Phil. Herald.

A CROW'S COURT.—Dr. Edmondston, in his "View of the Zetland Islands," thus describes these singular congregations: "The crows generally appear in pairs, even during winter, except when attracted in a joint search of food, or when they assemble for the purpose of holding what is called a crow's court. This latter institution exists in every island of the group. Numbers are seen to assemble on a particular hill or field from many different parts. On some occasions the meeting does not appear complete before the expiration of a day or two. As soon as all the deputies have arrived, a very general noise and croaking ensue, and shortly after, the whole fall upon one or two individuals, whom they persecute and beat until they kill them. When this has been accomplished they quietly disperse.

(CONDUCTED.)

Since some months the attention of Americans as well as Europeans has been directed to the subject of emigration to Texas, as undertaken by an association of German princes, formed solely with the view of its promotion and deeming the same as beneficial, under existing circumstances, to Germany, as it undoubtedly must be to the above named republic.

It is from the interest manifested every where to the cause that we purpose giving a sketch of the progress of colonization in Texas through the instrumentality of the association, and of the Cosmopolitan character, as the falsity of certain malevolent statements that have been made upon to the subject.

An agreement had been entered into between the association and Monsieur Bourgeois D'Orvanne, by which the latter ceded his grant to the former, for a liberal consideration, and which was to take effect after the necessary inspection of the lands and the proper investigation into the validity of his titles. As is known His Highness the Prince of Solms, the representative of the association, repaired to Texas for these purposes, together with Monsieur Bourgeois d'Orvanne—making there trips to San Antonio de Bexar, the Medina, Cibolo and Aptonio rivers, where he contracted himself, it is true, of the excellent quality of the soil along the banks; but the best lands were already occupied and owned by individuals, whilst the remainder consisting of prairies and barrens, were of no value for extensive colonization. Moreover the grant itself having expired since the last session of Congress, has to be renewed by legislative enactment, in the meantime it is just as doubtful as it may be reasonable to suppose that a petition, on the part of the association, for a grant would be favorably acted upon.

All obligations entered into with Mr Bourgeois d'Orvanne became, of course, null and void. The association offered him, however, such a sum as he himself might state, out of the 100,000 acres of land besides, for his big part under the Prince of Solms, in the direction of a colonization by virtue of another grant—which he declined, preferring to return to Paris, and being allowed to that end a considerable sum of money.

Is it after this possible, that Mr Bourgeois should complain of injustice? In the case not just the reverse, as he ceded lands the grant of which was about to expire on account of the conditions not having been complied with?

The association has since made the acquisition of Mr H. Fischer's extensive grant, infinitely preferable to the one in question and the reports from Germany in relation to the project are very satisfactory. The applicants there, every one of them in easy circumstances, are already so numerous that it will require a good many years to bring them over, and at an early date we shall be apprized of the successive arrivals of those hardy emigrants destined to contribute a considerable share to the population and greatness of Texas.

All this will be owing to the exertions of the said association, whose motives of action are to be found in the desire to see German subjects happy and not in a base calculating spirit of self interest.
