NEW ORLEANS FEMALE INSTITUTE, ON DAY AND BOARDING SCHOOL, For young Ladies, 232 Camp st., CONDUCTED BY MRS. MACALLAY.

THIS Institution is under the personal supervision of Mrs. MACALLAY, and the classes will commence [illegible] Pupils will be received at any period of the year, and instruction in the French, Spanish, and other languages, in Drawing, Painting, Embroidery, and Music, will be given by the most competent teachers. The Piano, Harp, and Guitar will be taught by the most eminent professors in the city.

Mrs. Macallay, in her instruction, will pay particular attention to the principles of morality, as it respects a good education, and will endeavor to make her pupils sensible of the great importance of good manners and polished habits of intercourse with the world, which can only be acquired by a lady who has had the advantage of a good school, and intercourse with the world. Her pupils will be taught to read the Scriptures, and to be well versed in the principles of the Christian religion, as the only foundation of all true virtue and happiness.

The Academy consists of a large and well ventilated school room, and a large and well ventilated dormitory, with every convenience for the accommodation of pupils at large with the utmost facility of judgment, and the strictest attention to their health, comfort, and improvement, and to their morals, manners, and habits, as well as their progress in literature and science. Mrs. Macallay, in the course of her long and extensive experience, has found that the best results are produced by a system of mild and affectionate discipline, and of rewarding the good, rather than punishing the bad. Her pupils will be taught to read the Scriptures, and to be well versed in the principles of the Christian religion, as the only foundation of all true virtue and happiness.
