THE SOUTHERN MAIL, came through yesterday with the latest dates.

ORLEANS THEATRE.

The opening of this elegant Temple of the Muses last evening attracted an immense audience; and under the brilliant illumination of the gas light, the Theatre presented a splendid appearance. During the past summer the interior has undergone extensive changes and repairs, by which material space has been added, and increased and far more agreeable accommodations secured. The decorations are part entirely light and tasteful, and one was glad to perceive, that no tawdriness of painting had been allowed to mar the general effect. Among the improvements that merit praise, we notice the establishment of a refreshment saloon for ladies, which takes the place of the unsightly bar room of last year. The parquette is provided with arm chairs, and the boxes, amphitheatre &c. have been remodelled and refurnished. The Orleans Theatre is now one of the most beautiful and finished resorts of taste and fashion to be found in our country.

The theatrical season was ushered in by the representation of ROSSINI's sparkling, yet fresh and charming opera "The Barber of Seville", and the circumstances served as an introduction to the debut of the theatre, of Mr. LACROIX, Du Barytes, Mr. HOLTZEIM, the Second Tenor, Mr. BECKERS, Second Bass, and Mlle MARTIAL, the Dorpina. Mr. LACROIX personated the Barber, and achieved a complete triumph. His voice is remarkably rich and sonorous, admirably cultivated, flexible and under entire control. He vocalizes without the slightest effort, identifies himself thoroughly with his part, and not only sings con amore, but plays with marked spirit and vigor. We have seldom heard the Largo al Factotum better given even by Italians. Mr. LACROIX is a valuable acquisition to the operatic corps of the Theatre.

Mr. HOLTZEIM who assumed the role of Count ALMAVIVA, possesses a voice of moderate volume and compass, tolerably well disciplined, and trained in a good school. He sings with taste and feeling, and with more finesse and power would take high rank as an artist.

Mr BECKERS possesses talents superior to the position assigned him in the operatic distribution. He has a fine voice and uses it skillfully. He personated Don Basilio and sang the music in the most satisfactory manner. The grand aria "La Calomnie" was executed in masterly style, and richly deserved the salvo of applause which followed it. Mr. BECKERS is likewise an excellent actor, and lavishes life and animation into his performances. We were greatly pleased with him, and we have no doubt he will become an established favorite.

Of Mlle MARTIAL, who played and sang Rosina, we may observe that the part is entirely out of her line, and though laboring under the disadvantage referred to, she was received with special kindness and indulgence, and manifested a talent which cultivation and stage will here after improve. Her voice is deficient in volume, and its range is limited, but its quality is highly agreeable and its intonation nearly faultless.

We need hardly state that the Orchestra was perfect, as it always is under the artistic direction of PERCOT; and that the scenes, in general, as well as in particular, went off admirably.

To morrow evening, the grand opera of Othello will be given, when Mlle BORGHESE, contralto, and BETOUT, tenor, will make their first appearance. The lovers of fine music will be delighted to greet Mr. BURNAS, whose exquisite voice and consummate taste commanded last winter their enthusiastic admiration.

THE TRUE DELTA.—We perceive that our friends of the True Delta have donned a new typographical dress, and while we hail it as a cautious evidence of their prosperity, we must say it it renders their journal one of the neatest and handsomest in our city. We trust that the True Delta may continue to flourish. If we cannot always agree with the opinions put forth in our contemporary, at least we respect them as honorable and honest convictions. There are few journals in the South more thoroughly independent and untrammelled on all subjects, and none which better deserve a liberal share of public favor.

DR WILKINSON.—At the recent election for Representatives in the Parish of Plaquemine, Dr WILKINSON received a clear majority of the votes polled, but the vote in one precinct which had given him 24 majority, was thrown out by the Sheriff because the returns had not been made within the 48 hours after the election. In consequence of this abstracy set there is a tie between Dr WILKINSON and his opponent, and a new election will have to take place. The friends of Plaquemine will, we trust, manifest the strongest respect for their original design, by conferring their suffrages in favor of Dr. WILKINSON, who is an able, intelligent and high minded gentleman.

RIO GRANDE.

By the arrival of the Fashion we have receiv ed the Brownsville Flag of the 5th inst. It contained a notice of the death of Lieut. Col. L. B. WEBSTER, U. S. A., at Fort Brown on the 4th, w. ase little of interest in it.

Dr Nathaniel T. Sutherland, a member elect of the Texas House of Representatives, died at the ranchos of Las Animas, eight miles from Brownsville, on the 27th ult., also of yellow fever. Dr S. was on his way to Austin when the disease attacked him.

The Fashion reports that the schooner Talla Mosse, while at anchor off the Rio Grande, in a norther, lost her deck load. She was still afloat when the Fashion left, there not being water enough on the bar to permit her to go in.

The schooner Star arrived at Brazos on the night of the 10th, and the towboat Grampus had her in tow going in when the Fashion left on the 11th.

The schooner Jane Elizabeth was off the bar when the Fashion left.

The Fashion brought a mail and the following passengers:

Mr J J Wellman, lady, children and servants; Mr Manuel Tarry and lady, Miss Louisa Martin, Mr Manuel Robles Francis and servant, Mr Leon Noincourt, J B Brean, F de la Rua, P Dubreuil, Dr Ballerie, P Perigan, A Alvarez, J Natus, Alice Finnigan, and seven on deck.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE CAMPBELLS at Odd Fellows' Hall drew another crowded house last evening, and were greeted with shouts of applause. MAX ZOEBE's imitations of Jenny Lind are inimitable, and Newcomb's genuine Ethiopian Breakdown is the very perfection of a gro dancing.

ARMORY HALL.—In spite of the rival Company at Odd Fellows' Hall, Murphy, West & Price's troupe at Armory Hall continue in the tide of successful operation. Their ministrelsy is very fine, and their instrumental music particularly delightful. In fact, the two companies differ in so many respects, and yet are so equally deserving of patronage, that one cannot be said to have heard the Campbells, until he has visited both.

ST. CHARLES THEATRE.—The bill to night is very attractive. Mr. GEO JAMISON an actor of merited reputation, appears in the fine drama of Lucretia. Mr. JAMISON returns to us with a cultivated talent and finished histrionic skill—We doubt not he will be welcomed by hosts of admirers. The entertainments conclude with the farce of the Middy Ashore, in which Mrs. Howard personates the character of Harry Halyon.

GRIFFIN.—The official vote for Governor of Louisiana stands—Johnson 47,638, Jenkins 47,128. Majority 510. Bertrand 1. Governor Johnson was inaugurated at Milledgeville on Wednesday, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators.

THE COTTON CROP.—The Concordia Intelligencer of Saturday says "Upon the authority of some of our most intelligent planters we can state that it is fully ascertained that there will be less than two thirds of an average crop of cotton made the season, throughout the Parish of our few planters, however, will have full crops, whilst that of many others will scarcely be a home half.

TYPES OF MANKIND.—George R. Gliddon's great Ethnographical work on the Types of Mankind, in the production of which Dr. J. C. NOTT, of Mobile, has been associated with him, we understand, nearly ready, and will be published sometime in December, by Lippincott, Grambo & Co. It will be probably the most interesting and any other work which a scientific publishing ever issued from the American press. The volume will be richly illustrated, and will contain a Impressive essay but one from Professor Agassiz, and Dr. Usher.

FATAL AFFRAY.—An affray occurred at Clarksville, Va., a few days since, between George B Ellicott and Edward Gillespie, in which the latter was killed, and the former mortally wounded. Both held positions of respectability in the community.

LIEUTENANT VERAMENDI.—It will be seen by a communication sent to us by an Espiritu, that Juan B. VERAMENDI has just taken out filed up a magnificent saloon room, fronting the Canal street Verandah. He will be well supplied with all the delicacies of the season, and his wines are all of the choicest brands.

☞ The remainder of purchased, without reserve at auction THIS DAY, by E. R. Ryan, commence at 9 A. M., on the Levee, opposite the Public market, 34 dozen, of the following wines, viz: 10 Bern Jacob, 12 Lafite, consisting of Medoc, Rosine, Alemada, Lagrange, Margaux, &c. The wines of this cargo is very superior.

☞ We are requested to call the attention of buyers to the auction sale of the wines of the Ocean Queen, which takes place THIS DAY, at No. 36 Old Levee street, by Messrs. Hernandez.

The Eastern Question.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.

The papers by the Baltic contains various reports of the armaments said to have been agreed upon between Russia and Turkey. A despatch from Vienna states that the armaments are for an indefinite period, and on the contrary that the French and English fleets advanced unexpectedly. Another despatch says the Turkish armament is intended in order to give time for the new proposition of the four powers to reach Constantinople. This further strengthened the Turks—Another account states that the Sultan is very conditional—to have effect only in case Omer Pacha had not already commenced hostilities, and he entered on the 1st of November. This report depressed the stock market.

"RUPE" IS FORGED.—Terrible riots had taken place at Wigan, in Lancashire, by the operatives and colliers. Much property was destroyed, and the military was called out.

Outline of the President's Message.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald furnishes that journal with the annexed outline of the President's Message. We have of course no means of ascertaining the authenticity of the document, but give it for what it is worth:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7, 1853.

It is understood the President, in his message, will come out pretty definitely upon the subject of the Pacific railroad and in such a manner as to satisfy the strictest constructionist. He has declared that the project is proposed in the last Congress (Senator Gwin's bill) never could have his sanction; and he has intimated pretty clearly that if such a bill should be passed by Congress during his Presidency it will have to overcome a veto before it becomes the law of the land.

The President's feelings upon the subject of internal improvements by the general government may be gathered from the fact that he declares he sees no reason why Congress should be deterred by doubts on that question, and that his votes in Congress at the time show truly his present position. At the same time it is susceptible of proof that some months ago, before the Virginia resolutions, he was with regard to the Pacific railroad and Cushing's and Davis's opinion, that that particular kind of railroad stock was not below par at the White House.

The Gadsden Purchase treaty will be endorsed by the administration, and the treaty negotiated by Judge Conklin, recognizing the Rio grant, will not be sanctioned in any way, on the ground that there was no authority given to Conklin to negotiate a treaty; and that the Rio grant is a diplomatic fraud to get rid of the Garay grant.

The Garay people have been smart enough to secure the services of some of the President's intimate friends, which has only served the interest of Mr. Amasa Morris, one of the proprietors of the Tehuantepec stock is down.

The President will recommend a general system of reciprocal trade with the British Provinces, of all articles the growth and produce of each country and the admission of fish, duty free, upon our fishermen being permitted to fish unrestrictedly on the coasts of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. The proposition of the English gentlemen shall permit Colonial vessels to obtain American registers will not be opposed, but the suggestion to throw open the coasting trade of California will be rejected as unconstitutional.

A complete revision of the tariff will, it is confidently stated, be suggested; and with this view, the Secretary of the Treasury is busily engaged in preparing calculations daily, to show the consumption of the several articles of trade, and will suggest important modifications in all such articles as come under the head of necessities. It is yet doubtful whether any material modifications will be made in the duty on iron; but, notwithstanding the most urgent remonstrances of the manufacturers of railroad iron in the United States, it is believed a repeal of the duty on that particular article will be recommended.

The Secretary of the Navy will recommend an entire revision of the personnel and material of the navy, being fully impressed with the practicableness of the entire system. A Federal list and an increase of pay to the sailors, will form a prominent feature in his report.

Perhaps the most important feature of the message will be its allusion to the position of the Sandwich Islands, which has held several of the Important of their being annexed to the United States. Depend upon it, the President will take this ground, and it will, probably, be the immediate cause of parties receiving themselves back to their original element. The occupants and the abolitionists flying off again as they did in 1850.

News from the Territories.

The St. Louis Republican has received intelligence from Washington, Territory, Oregon, Salt Lake and the Plains, through Mr. Wisnevor, who has just returned from Puget's Sound, via Salt Lake and Independence.

Mr. Wisthrop left the Columbia River on the 2nd of September, and on his route east and passed a great many emigrants, with their flocks, stock, &c. He estimates the number of persons at six thousand. They were generally getting along well, in good health, and their stock, in the main, was in good condition. He thinks the most of them will reach the Columbia river before severe weather sets in. In the valley of the Columbia and its tributaries the crops were well good, and they agreed well in a sufficient supply of provisions upon their arrival.

There was a considerable influx of emigration into the Territory of Washington, in view of its organization. A large portion was directed to Puget's Sound, where the lumber trade is carried on very extensively. Along the Sound there is but little farming land, except in the Cowlitz Valley and upon Whidby's Island.—On this island a number of farmers have settled, and Mr. W. saw very fine wheat and other crops raised upon new and fresh broken lands.

The British Colony on Vancouver's Island was nothing but slow and doubtful progress.

Mr. W. describes the Territory of Washington, from Puget's Sound, across the Cascade Mountains, as a fine, rich, and healthy country, which with the Oregon 50, which is now in collision grows very large. There are scattered through it and some dry barrens between the Sound and mountains, the latter covered with fine patches of long rush, and usually wooded on the edge, forming the substratum, is an open, rolling prairie of Peats and Mulas—leaders in the late insurrectionary movement in Yucatan.

The representation of the drama entitled "The Yankees in the Land of the Montezumas" has been prohibited by the government.

The Star of the 9th furnishes the following:

WASHINGTON, WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Yesterday was Washington, in the fullest sense of the word, a city of the dead.
