WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCT. 19.

REPORT ON THE HOUSES OF REFUGE.

We have before us the annual report of the Board of Commissioners and officers of the Houses of Refuge of New Orleans. We learn from this document that on the 30th June there were eighty-five boys and ten girls in the Refuge. The total number received since its establishment is nine hundred and sixty-six. The total expenses during the year, including salaries, were $20,276 91. Revenue from labor of boys, $5,583 99. Net expenses, $14,692 92.

The accommodation of the Boys' Refuge is too limited, and the inmates cannot be divided into classes as they should be. The location of the Refuge is unsuitable, and its capacity entirely too restricted for proper comfort. Its obscure position renders it little known out of the Courts and Recorders' offices, and even those who reside in the neighborhood are apt to mistake the Refuge for an extension of the Workhouse. The report maintains that if sufficient ground and buildings are provided, there is every reason to believe that the House of Refuge could be made a self sustaining institution by the labor of the inmates. An appeal is made to the Council to take the necessary steps for securing this object.

The health of the children has been very good, and but two deaths have occurred during the year. The expenses of the Refuge have been about the same as formerly, while the receipts from the sale of articles manufactured have greatly increased. Idleness is sedulously avoided, and the boys are accustomed to habits of industry, without, however, neglecting a common, useful education. A library is greatly needed, and a warm appeal is made to the citizens for private contributions. The Girls' Refuge is under the humane and judicious supervision of a Ladies' Committee.

The report of Mrs. RANDALL, Principal of the Ladies' Committee, states that during the year eight girls were committed for the first time, and three were recommitted. Seven have been indentured out of the State, and one in Louisiana. The latter has since returned to the city, and become again an inmate of the Refuge. Two were sent to the Poydras Asylum, on account of extreme youth, and one died. The expenses of the House, including every thing, were $2,283 63. There are now ten girls in the Refuge. The establishment is kept clean and neat, and the girls make and mend their own clothes, cook, wash and iron, and make shirts for the Boys' Refuge. The girls still require prolonged discipline, and the suggestion is made that none of them should be given out for some months at least.

The Superintendent's report presents a number of tabular statements of interest, exhibiting the number of admissions, discharges, escapes, indentures and transfers during the year; the ages of the boys, from two to twenty-one years; their nationality, much the larger proportion hailing from Ireland and Louisiana, and more than one half being foreigners; the employments of the boys, comprising six or eight different trades; the amount of work done by them; details of the expenditures, and of receipts from the labor of the boys, &c., &c. The discipline is gentle, but firm, corporal punishment being seldom resorted to, and then only in extreme cases. The inmates are strictly prohibited from swearing, from the use of indecent language, exhibitions of temper, or gambling. They are employed seven and a half hours per day, and in school four hours per day. Sleep, nine hours per day. The general health of the boys has been good. The Sabbath school has been regularly conducted. The shoe shop employs twenty-three boys, and has made 2000 pairs of shoes; the tin shop has been but a few months in operation, yet it promises to be highly profitable; the bakery supplies the City Workhouse, and employs three boys, baking 47,217 loaves of the best quality; the cooper's shop employs seven boys, has been only recently opened and not yet productive of much profit; the tailor's shop is getting along finely. The school is under the successful management of Mr. Sears, whose report proves that infinite good has been effected in this department.

We cannot close this synopsis without recommending the Houses of Refuge to the active sympathies of all benevolent persons desirous of cooperating in the promotion of juvenile reform. Individual contributions will materially aid in extending the resources of this most valuable institution, and will be thankfully received by the Directors. The city appropriation affords but the bare means of support.

Later news from Dr. Livingstone's expedition is received by the Canada. A letter from the Doctor's companion, Mr. Kirk, states that a trip had been made to a lake elevated considerably above the Zambesi. Mr. Kirk adds: "During our walk, which took us three days, going about twenty miles a day, we met some curious people, but were glad to find all friendly. I returned thus quickly, as I expected the Doctor back from Teto, whither he had gone on his first trip with the powder, which it would have been unsafe to have left in a country at present at war. I received, however, instead, a letter from him, stating that the water is so low at places where the river spreads to an excessive width, that the pinnace could not be taken up at once, until the channel had been previously surveyed by the launch; that the pinnace was left somewhat a little beyond Sonna, in charge of Baloss; that the launch would proceed to Tete, return, pick up the pinnace, and afterwards return to Chupanga."

A London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian says: "There is not a bit of truth in the rumor that the poet laureate intends making a show of himself to Brother Jonathan. Those who know Alfred Tennyson's almost morbid horror of being licensed can best appreciate a priori the improbability of his venturing into such a land of free hunters as the United States. But I can assure you, on the very best authority, that he never had any intention of the kind. Nor is it more true that Mr. Tom Taylor, the dramatist, contemplates paying his "American cousins" a visit."

MURDER AT MOUND CITY.—The Murderer Lynched.—A special correspondent sends us partial details of a double tragedy which occurred at Mound City, Illinois, a short time since. Our informant states that a man named Vaughan, in company with a young man employed in James Goodloe's foundery, at that place, was on a "bender" one Saturday night, and a quarrel occurred between the foundery man and a carpenter (name unknown) of the same place, in which the latter was shot dead by Vaughan, who thought his friend was getting the worst of the combat, and, without provocation, shot the other through the heart with a pistol. Vaughan escaped to Kentucky, but was pursued, taken, and brought back to Mound City, where he was lodged in jail on the following evening. On the same night, a crowd of the citizens, numbering about 200, broke open the jail, took out Vaughan, and hung him, after giving him a few minutes to see the part of his misdeeds. The affair created great excitement, and the foundery man and the friend of Vaughan allegedly changed the place. Cincinnati Gazette.

The arsenal town is in the possession of 5000 or 7000 men, a portion of whom are drunk.

It was first alleged to be an abolition movement, but it is now supposed to have been instigated and organized by employés in the Government dam at that place, in consequence of their having been cheated out of a portion of their wages recently by an absconding contractor, and that they have taken this method of getting at the funds in the Government paybooks.
