FRIDAY MORNING, OCT. 18, 1844.

The Mail failed yesterday from beyond Charleston. We are consequently without any election returns from Pennsylvania. Should it come through to-day, we shall have the city and county of Philadelphia complete, and several adjoining counties, such as Chester, Bucks, Berks, Lebanon, Dauphin, and probably York, Lancaster and Adams. The election in New Jersey lasted two days. We shall, therefore, receive returns from one half of the State. By way of Baltimore we shall probably receive the vote of Harrison, Guernsey and Belmont counties in Ohio.

CROAKING.

Some of our good whig friends, who are alike overelated at the slightest success and depressed and desponding at the smallest reverse, seem to imagine that the editors of this paper are somewhat disposed to "croak," and inclined to throw discouragement upon the glorious whig cause. Never was a grosser error committed. If to entertain a most abiding and unalterable conviction that HENRY CLAY will be triumphantly elected next month; if to believe that this event—the signal consummation of a most exciting and ardent canvass—is as certain as any human occurrence can possibly be—if such opinions can be legitimately considered "croaking," we plead guilty to the charge. The editors of the Bee have watched the signs of the times and the progress of events as sedulously and vigilantly as any member of the whig party, and though we are well aware of the super-human exertions made by locofocoism, and the barriers of prejudice, foul aspersion and unmitigated calumny which have been raised against the progress of whig principles and the success of our whig leader, we have no more misgivings as to the final result than we have as to the duration of the world, in spite of MILLER's theory, or the rising of the sun to-morrow morning.

There is one point upon which we beg our whig friends to understand us fully.—We have labored earnestly and faithfully in our vocation to establish for the paper an unvarying character for veracity. We never deceive either our friends or foes in political statistics or election returns. Such a course is injurious to any public journal, for it ultimately forfeits for it the respect of both parties. We say this much, because we have reason to believe that the charge of "croaking" has originated in our giving the returns from Georgia as they actually are, and in frankly acknowledging that so far as this local election is concerned, the locofoco party have gained considerably, and exhibit a majority of the popular vote. Dwight we to have done otherwise! Should we seek to deceive our whig associates, indicating them, perhaps, to venture their money on our assurance, and to lose? Not so. Let us leave this miserable game to locofocoism, which seeks to sustain a sinking cause by such wretched inventions as those put forth in regard to Delaware. Let them claim majorities in States which have gone decidedly against them.—Let them fabricate returns to suit their own purposed. The whige are strong enough and manful enough to tell the truth and to bear the truth. We do admit that Georgia, in October, has gone against us, and we firmly believe that Georgia, in November, will cast her electoral vote for HARRY CLAY.

It has been further alleged that such letters as the one recently published from New York are rather discouraging than otherwise, and ought not to be published. We can see in the correspondence in question, very thing to cheer and encourage and nothing to depress. Its author is the shrewdest calculator in the state of New York. His opinions have with an immense weight. He claims New York as certain in almost any event, and grounds an assertion of a strong 10,000 majority in the State—this, too, as the worst aspect of no case. Is there any thing discouraging in being told that the whigs are perfectly certain of New York? We ask if that our correspondent's letter is the best possible guarantee of our success, and we have no more doubt that Mr. CLAY will get the Empire State by a majority at least equal to, and probably far exceeding, the estimate, than we have that he will carry Vermont and Kentucky.

We again reiterate what has never for a moment ceased to be our opinion—that Mr. CLAY's election is, humanly speaking, certain; and if the whigs are hunting for "croakers," they most not come to our office—the pecies is unknown in this part of the city.

MASS MEETING OF THE JUNIOR CLAY CLUB

held at the St. Charles Theatre, Wednesday, Oct. 16.

The meeting was called to order at 7 o'clock, by PERRY S. WARFIELD, Esq., who proceeded to nominate the following gentlemen as officers of the meeting:

[COMMUNICATED.]

This morning having occasion to make an entry of goods at the Custom-house, I was requested by the Deputy Collector to take off my hat. I told him I would not do it in obedience to any such order. Pointing to the written notice stuck up before me, he said there he could not attend to my business, for such were his orders, and requested me to speak to the collector. I replied that I respected very highly himself and every other gentleman in the Customhouse, but I could have no intercourse with the collector—that it I was into a gentleman's private office, I would take off my hat; but could not in obedience to such an order do it in a public place, where I was compelled to come and do business, and if such orders were attempted to be enforced there, the collector and citizens would come into conflict. I took my papers and left.

JOHN J. BROWER.

CHIVALROUS CONDUCT.—Last evening, about seven o'clock, several young boys were marching in St. Louis street, between Burgundy and Rampart streets, with a flag bearing the stripes and stars of the United States, when they were met by a young man who ordered them to cry out for "Polk and Dallas," which they answered by cheers for "Clay and Frelinghuysen," upon which he seized their flag and tore it to pieces, threatening to beat them if they persisted in shouting for Clay. Such conduct is beneath a man.

☞ The locofoco organs, beyond any question, are the most unscrupulous and corrupt that ever cursed a country. The moment that the Whigs fired the forgery of the Rorrback calumny upon a locofoco officeholder in the State of New York, the whole number, with almost one mind, swore right out that he was a whig, although but two years ago the locofoco party of Ithaca elected him a Justice of the peace, and a little over a year ago, Gov. Bouck, with the advice of the locofoco Senate, appointed him to the highly responsible office of Master in Chancery, in place of a Whig, removed. Falsehood and misrepresentation could hardly go be yond this.

LOOK OUT.

The Richmond Enquirer, under the head of "Tree in Bogatelle," publishes an imaginary correspondence between HENRY CLAY and C. M. CLAY—filled, of course, with vile falsehoods and slanders. Now, we have'nt a doubt that the locofocos will strip from the article in question the editorial statement that it is but "Fanny's sketch," and will circulate it as a genuine correspondence. Let our country friends be on the alert.

MURDERED MAN.—The body of a white man was picked up in the river, near Plaquemine, (Iberville,) on the 5th inst. It has received two back shot in the left side, and the left arm was badly broken near the elbow. Nothing whatever was found on his person, and no name marked on the clothes. His pockets had been cut out, and a rope was found upon his ankle.

FIRE IN ST. ANDREWS.—The house occupied by Mr. Andrew Depy, in St. Augustine, was consumed by fire a few nights since. The flames had made such progress when discovered, that the family had barely time to escape, without saving any thing.

MR CLAY'S LETTERS—LOCOFOCO MACHINATIONS LAID BARE.

We were reluctantly compelled yesterday by a press of other matter to omit the publication of the subjoined correspondence. It embraces the famous letters from Mr CLAY to F. P. BLAIR, of the Washington Globe, upon which locofocoism has rung so many changes, and established so much false capital. The correspondence by a statement from the pen of BENJAMIN WATKINS LEIGH, to which we invite particular attention, because it exposes the atrocious villainy of AMOS KENDALL, in garbling one of the letters, and making it bear an entirely different signification from that which was intended.

These letters are now before the country—they were of course a private correspondence—as such the style is occasionally playful and light, but we only are they totally destitute of a single syllable that can be tortured by malevolence into proof of the foul charge of "Bargain and Corruption;" but they do not contain a thought or sentiment which HENRY CLAY need be ashamed of expressing. These letters, indeed, will serve only to plunge locofocoism into a deeper abyss of infamy, than it has yet reached.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Some time during last summer Mr Clay sent me copies of his letters to Mr Blair, written in January, 1825, and authorized me to show them to any person who might wish to see them. Feeling that the charge of "bargain and corruption," which was made at the time and refuted, was revived and was now seriously urged against Mr Clay; that it was alledged to be susceptible of proof under his own hand, and that these letters were referred to as containing the proof, I caused a notice to be inserted in the "Whig," that copies of the letters were in my hands, and that they were open to the inspection of any gentleman of either party. I thought it impossible that any man could read the letters without seeing and admitting that they contain no evidence of bargain or corruption, but they yielded to the whiteness of these roses, and tell true for Mr Adams. My friends entertain the belief that their kind wishes made me will, in the end, be more likely to be accomplished by showing their votes. I have, however, not carelessly enforced them to throw out of their consideration, in bringing their judgments to a fond conviction, and to look and be guided solely by the public good.—I have myself, that alone has determined me. Your representative is inclined to concur with us in these sentiments and views, and if they should meet your approbation, as I have he has great respect for your opinion, I would be glad if you would, by the return mail, address a letter to him, to strengthen him in his inclination. Be pleased to show this letter to Crittenden alone.

I remain faithfully your friend,

H. CLAY.

F. P. BLAIR, Esq.

WASHINGTON, 29th January, 1825.

My Dear Blair:

I received this morning your very agreeable favor of the 17th instant. A letter from you is always refreshing, and I wish that I could entitle myself to expect them more frequently, by more punctuality and diligence on my part in our correspondence. My last letter informed you of the question that was unexpectedly applied to me by all the returned candidates for the President—or rather their friends. Since then I have avowed my intention to support Mr. Adams, under actual circumstances; and thereupon the oil has been instantly transformed into vinegar. The friends of [illegible] (and the devil knows who else, for I think if he does not preside in their councils, he must be quite conversant with them,) have turned upon me, and with the most amiable unanimity, agree to vituperate me. I am a deserter from Democracy; a fiamet at intrigue; have sold the West—and myself—delesting General Jackson's election to leave open the Western pretensions that I may hereafter fill them myself—blasting all my fair prospects for ever, etc. etc. To this and a thousand other of the most gentle, and kind, and agreeable epithets and things in the world.

Those, who are the most free in straining every nerve to elect Jackson, that the claims of the West may be satisfied, and I be thereby preterminated, are accusing me of acting on their own principles. The known rascals conspirated how a man can be honest.—They cannot conceive that I should have solemnly interrogated my conscience and asked it to tell me seriously what I ought to do! That it should have suggested me not to establish the dangerous precedent of electing, in that early stage of the Republic, a military chieftain, merely because he has won a great victory! that it should have told me that a public man is endangering his station, who will not, regardless of aspersion and calumnies, risk himself for his country! I am afraid you will think me moved by these abuses. Be not deceived. I assure you that I move, in my whole life, felt more perfect composure, more entire confidence in the rectitude of my judgment, and a more unshaken determination to march up to my duty. And, my dear sir, is there an intelligent and unbiased man who must not, sooner or later, concur with me? Mr. Adams, you know well, I should never have selected, if at liberty to draw from the whole mass of our citizens for a President. But there is no danger in his elevation now, or in time to come. Not the only competitor, of whom I cannot believe that killing 2500 Englishmen at New Orleans, qualifies for the various, difficult and complicated duties of the Chief Magistracy. I perceive that I am unconsciously writing a sort of defence, which you may probably think implies guilt. What will be the result I know not, and, consequently, I feel not with anxiety. I think Mr. Adams must be elected, such is the prevailing opinion. Still I should not consider the matter as certain until the election is over. With my best respects to Mrs. Blair, and to Mr. Crittenden,

I remain truly,
Your friend,
H. CLAY.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

☞ Michael Cooley and James McGinnes, were yesterday sentenced by Recorder Baldwin, to thirty days imprisonment in the workhouse as dangerous and suspicious characters.

☞ Andrew Vaughan, was yesterday arrested by the police of the Second Municipality, charged with having in his possession a quantity of sheet copper stolen from the store of Messrs Lyall and Davidson, on Camp street. He will be examined this morning before Recorder Baldwin.

☞ We understand that Coroner Ramos held two inquests yesterday. We are unable, although we made diligent enquiry, to give the names of the deceased or the cause of their death.

☞ Last evening, about dusk, the two story brick building on Commerce street, between Julia and St. Joseph streets, occupied by Mr. Bossenot as a warehouse for pork and beef inspection, fell to the ground with a tremendous crash. No lives were lost. Amount of damage not ascertained.

We publish below the correspondence between the wing committee and Gov. GAYLE, from which it will be seen that the GREAT WHIG BALL will be placed on board the steamer L. Day this day, to be transferred to the shoge of Alabama, according to promise.

NEW ORLEANS, 15th October, 1844.

Dear Sir,—At a Mass Convention of the whigs of this State, held at Baton Rouge on the 7th inst, the undersigned were premoved by the "STREIGHT OUTS" of Natchez with a "Great Whig Ball," prepared by them and used at the convention recently held in this city.

The conditions of the presentation to us were, that it should be set in motion and rolled through the streets of New Orleans, after which we were to tender it to the whigs of Alabama.

If it is your wish to keep it moving, we are ready to deliver it up to a committee you may appoint to receive it and other whig paraphernalia. We will have much pleasure in receiving it to the best selected in our city to your benighted state.

Respectfully your obedient servants,

JOHN GRANT,
JULIAN NEVILLE.

To Hon. JOHN GAYLE,
President of the Clay Club, Mobile.

MOBILE, October 16th, 1844.

Gentlemen,—I have this moment had the honor to receive your favor of yesterday, tendering to the whigs of Alabama the Great Whig Ball, prepared and put in motion by the "STREIGHT OUTS" of Natchez.—On the part of the whigs of the city and of Alabama I receive with pleasure and gratitude the great emblem of the Great Whig Party, with the assurance that it will certainly be kept in active motion till the Presidential election. As we are desirous to set out with the ball in a very few days to Montgomery, be the particular place of meeting a State Meeting to be held at that place on the 25th inst.—where we will have time to appoint a committee to receive it at New Orleans, and I would be obliged to you to return it to be delivered on board the Cayuga. Capt. Fullerton will take all care to bring it over on Friday.

I am, with great respect,
Gentlemen, your obedient servt,

JOHN GAYLE,
President Clay Club at Mobile.

To Messrs JOS. GRANT and JULIAN NEVILLE.

NEW ORLEANS, 17th October, 1844.

Dear Sir,—We have had the pleasure to receive your favor of yesterday, and regret that the inclemency of the weather prevents our complying with your request to place the Great Whig Ball on board the Fashion tomorrow.

We have just seen ROBERT GEDDES, Esq., agent of the James L. Day, who has politely offered us a safe conveyance for it, on board that boat to-morrow. You may therefore expect to receive it early on Saturday morning.

We remain your obedient servts,

JOS. GRANT,
JULIAN NEVILLE.

To Hon. JOHN GAYLE,
President of the Clay Club Mobile.

MR. SATHER, who was accidentally wounded by the discharge of a cannon on board the steamboat Manic, while lying at Plaquemine, so, we are glad to hear, recovering.

GEORGIA.—The only additional returns from this State are from Forsythe, Floyd, Walker and Paulding, which give 717 locofoco majority.

DIED—At Nashville, Tenn. on the 24 inst, the Hon'ble THOS. NICHOL, on MONDAY, in the 54th year of his age. The deceased was a native of this city, and at the time of his death, held the office of Associate Judge of the City Court. He has left a large circle of relatives and friends to deplore his early loss.

DIED—On the 17th instant, at 7 o'clock A. M. Mr. Anthony ADE, of Philadelphia, aged 34 years. He friends of the deceased are invited to attend his funeral, (without further invitation) at 10 o'clock this morning, from the residence of Mrs Quirk, in Camp street, near Poydras.

COMMERCIAL.

NEW-ORLEANS, THURSDAY NIGHT, OCTOBER 17, 1844.

The transactions in Cotton to-day were on a limited scale—owing, perhaps, to the unfavorable state of the weather. The late advance in freights, however, tends likewise to check operations. We only heard of a few hundred bales sold at former prices. In addition to the business reported yesterday, a lot of 1,000 bales was taken for England at 5½c.
