GOVERNOR.
J. B. DAWSON.

Nothing the mail due Saturday or that of yesterday has arrived at a late hour last evening. This will, we fear, be a sufficient apology for the barrenness of our paper of to-day.

A meeting took place at Banker's, on Saturday evening, in pursuance of notice, on the subject of a separation of the upper faubourg from the city. The Hon. Samuel H. Harper was called to the chair, and Franklin W. Lee, esq. appointed secretary. Resolutions, approving of the proposed separation, were adopted; a committee was appointed to prepare a memorial to the legislature, on the subject; and an address to procure the signatures of those who are desirous of the separation, to the memorial. The assemblage was numerous and highly respectable. We shall recur to this subject, early.

"The Robber's Wife" gave great satisfaction to a respectable audience, on Saturday evening, at the American Theatre. We are sorry that we cannot say as much of "The Barber of Seville."

Our criticism of Mr. Burton's performance of Macbeth, is reluctantly put over until to-morrow, by circumstances over which we have no control.

We are pleased to observe the arrival of the splendid new schr. Mary & Frances, intended as a regular packet, between this port and Tampico. The owner of this superior vessel, will we trust, meet with adequate encouragement: She has been built in Baltimore, at a great expense, is constructed of the best materials and in the most substantial manner, and for sailing, is not we believe, surpassed by any vessel afloat. Her accommodation for passengers, are extensive, combining elegance with comfort. A visit on board, will confirm the superiority of the mechanic's naval architecture.

The Washington Globe contradicts the rumor of the concentration of a fleet of revenue cutters off the coast of Carolina. It also mentions that the military movements which have caused some speculation, were made from considerations, if not entirely independent of Carolina politics, at least not solely in consequence of any apprehended difficulties in Charleston. A new and extensive work, called Castle Pinckney, had just been finished—and it is to garrison this fortification that the two companies of Artillery have been detached from Fortress Monroe.

We have been favored with regular files of Port-au-Prince papers up to the 23d ult.—Their contents are uninteresting. The prices at that market are under the proper head.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

By the ship Cronsbrook, Captain Briscoe, from Belfast, which arrived on Sunday morning, from Belfast, whence she left on the 24th of October, we have papers from that city to the day of sailing inclusive, which contain London dates to the 20th, and Liverpool to the 22d.

Ireland, it will be seen, is still a prey to anarchy and oppression. From Portugal there is nothing newer: from the continent there is nothing of importance. Below we have extracted whatever we find interesting.

At the Assizes of Castlebar on Saturday, (14th October) Charles Fitzgerald, esq. magistrate, a sergeant of police and two others died of cholera. The town of Ballina is deserted. Fifty four deaths occurred during the past week.

DUBLIN, Oct. 20.

STATE OF THE COUNTRY.

Under this head there is no hope held out to the peace and happiness of Ireland; the dominion of the law or the security of property. The outcry against tythes, if encouraged or not promptly and decidedly resisted, must naturally have been expected to extend to every species of property; we regret to say that too many of land proprietors, looked with complacency and self interested feelings on the resistence to the payment of tythes; expecting, that what the clergymen were robbed of would be added to their rents. They deserve a retributive punishment, and they are likely to receive it. The system of resistence to lay rents, has commenced, in Clogher, and in the country of Kilkenny. When our neighbour's house is on fire, we should assist to quench the flame, least it should reach our own.

The Water Witch arrived off the Cowes on Monday, bringing despatches, for government, from Oporto. She brings to the 7th inst. a week later than those before received. The Miguelite troops have not made any further attack upon Oporto.

A report is spread about in the city that a battle had taken place near Oporto, in which Don Pedro was killed; we have not heard, however, of any arrivals from Portugal.

SPAIN.

LONDON, Oct. 18.

Accounts from Spain, present Madrid and the country as pretty tolerable since the change of ministry. The King is still in a precarious state, all the physicians speak confidently of his recovery. A party of Don Carlos have recourse to every source of intrigue to gain over the military, and the princess of Beira, sister of Don Miguel, uses all her exertions to gain partizans for him in the new cabinet.

From the London Standard of October 18.

The firm tone adopted by the king of Holland, in his speech, has made considerable impression here; and there seems a very general feeling that neither Prussia, nor Russia, will suffer Holland to be prostrated before the unequal force, about to be brought to bear against her.

The Dutch Mail brings us accounts of a decline of a half per cent, in the Dutch funds. Great anxiety, it stated, prevails in Holland, relative to the English and French fleets, making their appearance at that place; but the private letters state, that his Dutch Majesty's finances continues unshaken. Consols, for account, closed at 88¼ a ¾.

BELFAST.

From the Commercial Chronicel of the 24th October, 1832.

It is somewhat extraordinary, that three weeks there has been no intelligence from Portugal from the particular situation in which the opposing armies were left at the time of the last despatches great anxiety, for accounts from that quarter now prevails.

The document respecting Holland and Belgium is of much importance, being a series of questions on the subjects in dispute, refered to the Dutch Plenipotentiary, by the conference of the Five Powers, with the replies of his excellency, officially communicated to the conference.

LONDON, Saturday, October 20.

Hamburg papers arrived this morning, to the 16th inst. inclusive and Frankfort Journals to the 13th. The merchants at Trieste had received notice from the government, that the blockade of the ports in Egypt and Syria, declared by the Porte, during the rebellion of Mahomed Ali, is recognized, and they are to act accordingly.

The intelligence of the victory obtained by the Egyptian fleet over that of the Porte, in the vicinity of Cyprus, has been confirmed by letters from Syria.

FUNDS.

City, 12 o'clock—Calcutta papers, to the 24th of April inclusive, have been received at the North and South American Coffee House. The fourth government sale of opium had taken place, 1500 chests of the honourable company's, and 68 chests of the French privil-ge had been sold.

We are without any regular arrivals, nor up to the present hour do the hour of any express having been received from Paris, with the prices of the French funds on Friday.

The general market opened at 88 2-4 7-8, both for money and for the account, but has since advanced and is now quoted at 89 buyers.

In the foreign market there is no variation.

Half past one o'clock.—The consol market is again at 88 3-8 7-8, both for money and for the account; exchequer bills remain at 21 2; and India bonds at 12, 13 premium.

The schooner Swell which put into this port a few days ago wind bound, from London, for Oporto, sailed for that port on Saturday last, with one hundred fine young men, volunteers for Don Pedro, several of whom went from this town; the King of the Netherlands steamer arrived here on Monday from London with about 120 more who were transhipped on board the Consord of this port, and the latter vessel sailed with them on Tuesday for the same destination.—Plymouth Journal.

The Journal of the two Sicilies gives an account of a most destructive whirlwind that passed over the province of Otranto on the 10th ult. It extended in length over a distance of fifteen or sixteen miles, but its fatal vehemence was confined to within 200 paces in breadth; in its course is tore up, broke to pieces, and scattered nearly all the Olives, which covered two thirds of the space within its range. Many houses in the little Commune were damaged; and almost the whole of those which composed the village of Dana, were destroyed.

Lord Goderich, Colonial secretary had addressed circulars to the governors of the British West India Colonies, suspending the celebrated order in council of Nov 2, 1831, the threat of the enforcement of which has excited so much contention and alarm in the colonies by order of government.

The first trial arising from the anti-tithe meeting result ed in the conviction of three out of the four persons put on their trial, not withstanding, who diserted himself to the utmost, for their acquittal, with great propriety, the punishment inflicted is very light, viz: Mr O'Connor and Mr. D. McCarthy to be imprisoned one month, and fined 100 each; D. O'Connor, 2 fortnights, imprisonment and 5 fine of £5. The Rev. Mr. Sullivan was acquitted.

Judge Clayton, of Georgia, has, it appears, at length fulfilled his promise, of replying to the separate report of Mr. Adams, from the committee charged with the duty of investigating the affairs of the United States Bank. We have not seen the performance of Judge Clayton. The National Intelligencer says, it fills nine columns of a Georgia paper, and is excessively acrimonious.

There was joy on earth—the twittering swallow, as it darted along in sunshine and shade, heeded not the bitter wailings of affliction and distress—the wild bird in its noiseless flight, softly silent as falls the snow flake, seemed unconscious of sin, as it flashed its wing across the vision, like a thought of a dream during the hushed hours of midnight, and vanished as suddenly. To me the sight of their joyous felicity brought no gladness—the sounds of their mirth fell cold upon the heart—it was but bitter mockery—and spoke of days departed. The bright and laughing skies seemed insensible that they were smiling over ruin and decay—the roses of hope's fairest, sweetest flowers, had died—and now—even now, was to be laid in the earth's cold bosom.

I had seen the child in its guileless beauty; when it was a thing all glowing with health, innocence and joy—I had seen it folded in the arms of her that bore it, in all the overwhelming fondness of a mother's love, but now her first-born—her last, her only one—slept, not on the soft bosom of a mother's tenderness—but with the quiet dead!——Death! death! how lovely canst thou be! Though pale and lifeless, it wore a smile pure and passionless as the cherub of immortality; it had nothing of the corpse about it, but its whiteness—nothing of the grave, but its stillness. I could fain have lain down by her side in the cold bosom of our common mother, in the dark and silent valley.

Thou weepest, childless mother—oh! well thou mayest; the son of God wept at the tomb of his friend, and thou mournest thy first-born. Hard is it for thee to lay thy loved one in the damp earth, beneath the cold clods of the valley; hard is it to reflect that this, thy child of peerless beauty, will never more lift its rosy lips to thine, in all the fondness of childhood's warm affection. Ah! these are the recollections that weigh upon the soul, even to overpowering. Memory tells thee thou art desolate. Now the foliage of the cypress will be its shelter, and the narrow house its abiding place; the nursery will no more resound with its mirth, the cradle in which it has so often reposed in quiet is now desolate. Thou weepest, childless mother.

The last look! The time is come when she may gaze once more upon her sleeping boy, ere the pall is fixed upon his lifeless form. Oh! the bitter agony of that moment—one long lingering kiss upon his marble forehead, and he is shut from her view. In the fulness of her grief, she says,

No more, my baby, shalt thou lie
With drowsy smile and half shut eye—
Pillowed upon thy mother's breast,
Serenely sinking into rest;
For God hath laid thee down to sleep,
Like a pure pearl beneath the deep.

* * * * * * *

The long train of weeping friends gathered round a fresh dug grave; the coffin was lowered into its final resting place, in the vale of solitude and silence—the spirit of him who was so lovely and so fair long ere this crossed the dark waters—and is safely landed upon the flowery coast of a world of never fading bloom!

CLEARFIELD, Penn. Nov. 1.

A land "flowing with honey."—As regards the truth of the following, we have testimony from the best authority.

Week before last, a gentleman living in Bradford township, Clearfield county, proceeded to cut down a large pine tree, in which he had previously discovered a number of bees. All things in readiness, and this lord of the forest laid prostrate before his assailants—without, however, receiving much injury except the loss of his understanding, they proceeded to investigate his physiognomy more closely, applying the axe to his trunk in several places, and nothing but honey! honey! honey! meeting their astonished observation, they determined to find the alpha and omega of this treasure. Numerous incisions were again made, when a space of 24 feet was found interlarded with combs, not more than one inch of a shell remaining in many places.

Judgmatically he was now split open, and the combs taken out and secured. The next morning they proceeded to ascertain the quantity of honey, which they discovered to be of the liquid, which had left the combs, eleven gallons, and the remaining combs to weigh better than two hundred pounds! The tree was about two feet and a half in diameter, and no doubt was in the possession of the bees 20 or 30 years ago.—Banner.

A PROJECT.

It may be within the recollection of the reader, that on the 15th inst. we published an article from Charleston papers, containing an extract of a letter from Mr. Littel, of Philadelphia, to Gen. Hayne, under date of the 23d October. It seems that Mr. L. who is a strong advocate of Free Trade, repaired to Washington, "as soon as the President returned from his journey, to ascertain from himself and the Secretary of the Treasury, whether there was in reality a hope for the redress of the grievances which are there strongly re-sented by the south, but which press with equal weight upon us." Mr. L. says he found the President fully with the south upon the general principle, and ready and willing to carry it into effect with as little delay as a prudent caution against precipitate changes will admitt.

Anxious to know upon what terms this vexed question might be settled in the opinion of Mr. L., and particularly amidst the storm which is gathering from South Carolina, we took the liberty of addressing a line to him, requesting some information on the project he had submitted. He has been kind enough to make the following reply, which we lay before our readers for their consideration.

To the Editors of the Inquirer.

Dear Sirs—I have received your notes of the 6th, and gladly avail myself of the opportunity of offering to the public, under such favorable auspices, a plan for settling the controversy which has led so many good men, in all parts of the country, into the sin of despairing of the Republic.

The friends of Free Trade and the true American System, in the middle and eastern states, have, through the long storm, looked to the south for their ablest pilots. Surely these will not desert their posts, now that the clouds are breaking and the wind changing. The good ship, the Constitution, is sound yet, and will carry us all safe into port, and although we cannot sail as fast as we wish, we shall get into smooth water sooner if we "don't give up the ship" than by taking to the long boat.

The following is a sketch of the project alluded to in my letter to Gen. Hayne, through the Charleston Patriot:

To reconcile, if it be possible, the contradictory difficulties—to avoid giving up the principle for which the south contends, and yet to avoid sudden change, it is proposed to enact.

That on the first of January, 1833, all duties over 15 per cent. ad valorem, be reduced by one sixth of the excess over 15 per cent.

That on the first of January, 1834, they be reduced by the same amount, and be reduced from year to year, till at the end of five years there shall be no duty higher than 15 per cent.

Provided, That this reduction shall not take effect as the produce or manufacture of any nation that will not admit the produce or manufacture of the United States at corresponding duties.

That the President be requested to send a copy of this act to all ministers of the United States, with instructions to lay them before the people or court to whom they are sent.

Advantages of this plan:

It will restore peace to the south, for there is no constitutional objection to it.

It puts the true American System forth to the world, suspended in its full operation, only by the refusal of other nations to reciprocate with us.

It cannot be long now before the full policy of the administration upon the subject will be officially declared; and in the mean time I congratulate you upon the report, confidently reported here, that any nullifying act by our friends in South Carolina, will be the signal for the action of Congress.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

E. LITTEL.
