

THE BEE.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED DAILY, BY JEROME BAYON.

STATE PRINTERS.

THE UNION.—IT MUST BE PRESERVED.

THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 27, 1834.

FOR GOVERNOR:

J. B. DAWSON.

SECOND SENATORIAL DISTRICT.

B. MARIGNY.

CANDIDATES FOR CONGRESS.

1st District.—CHARLES HAYAURE.

2d.—JAMES B. RAYDORF.

3d.—L. MOORE.

4th.—ALDERMAN.

1st District—G. SCHMIDT AND JAMES SAUL.

2d.—FELIX L. COOPER.

3d.—H. DEDESCLAUX.

4th.—J. BERNGEZ.

5th.—LEONARD MONTEGUT.

6th.—J. FREDERICK.

7th.—S. D. DIXON.

8th.—F. CLISSON.

The voter from the eastward failed yesterday beyond Molde.

A morning print quotes a British writer as authority to show that the people are incapable of retaining their liberties, they being ever disposed to yield them, or suffer them to be taken away. That a Baratarian writer, living under a despotic government, should entertain such an absurd and humiliating opinion strikes us with little astonishment; but for one living in a republic—the superiority of the people to govern themselves is palpably manifested in the superstructure of one of the happiest and at the same time most perfect systems of government that human ingenuity could devise, to give a nation no less fill with amazement, and make us feel pain for him whose judgment could be so warped by prejudices as to lead us such a libel upon the intelligence of mankind.

But probably after all, our surprise should cease, when we reflect that he who adopts the Englishman's remark, is a black-man, and that he is now, and has been, exclusively employed in the service of that corrupt and dangerous monopoly, and has been aiding and abetting, by his connection with the press, its diabolical designs upon those same liberties, which he pretends to think cannot be retained from a want of virtue or discretion. To exonerate himself for this charge, he will be compelled to admit that he would have done nothing in the integrity of the people, he would have done nothing.

The Military and Naval Magazine (or March), containing the third volume of that valuable and useful periodical, continues to exhibit the same indefatigable zeal on the part of the publisher that characterized his former efforts. He now plans, we are sorry to see, of a lack of patronage from those who should take the liveliest interest in the success of the work. The officers of the army and navy should throw off their supineness, and come forward liberally and patronize it.

The writers of the Paris Journal des Débats assert that French literature, at this time, has a determinate character, aspect, or drift; in manners that are observed—no limits as to absurdity or licentiousness. We are a Babel, says one—an it there is not merely a complete confusion of terms and style, but of ideas and types.

THR. LADIES IN THE FIELD!

The female engineers at Lowell and Dover manufacturing towns at the north, have passed resolutions declaring, "that they believe the unusual proses of the times, which is so much complained of, to have been caused by artful and designing men, to subserve party purposes, or more wickedly still, to promote their own interests; and that they will not submit to any reduction in their wages."

We thank you, and we admire their spirit.

The friends of popular rights are up and doing in Boston. The Commercial Gazette of the 12th inst., published in that city, promulgates the following notice:

TO THE OPPONENTS OF THE U. S. BANK.

The Friends of the National Administration, and all those opposed to the recharter of the U. S. Bank, and at the return of the Public Credit, will meet at the State of Massachusetts, on WEDNESDAY EVENING next, at 7 o'clock, for the purpose of taking such patriotic measures as they may deem proper, in opposition to the policy of the Administration toward that institution.

From the Massachusetts Whig.

THE WHOLE MALLIONCE.

The materials and the unities have confounded. The two parties which have been heretofore the determined advocates of doctrine entirely at variance with each other, have united themselves in the bonds of brotherhood. We all know what a wide difference there is between the two parties in their opinions on the subjects of the tariff, the military, and the like; but most of them become quite unsavory before they get back here in the course of time.

Under a kiosk, surrounded with magnificient columns, a large basin of white marble, in which are seen floating eight swans, the Seminarium. The water transparent and the basin polished, reflects every object around, while playfully swimming are seen above the surface. After a little time, the swans come out of the bath, dry themselves, and are dried by the maid-servants, and some of the students used to be present by the side of the basin.

What an effect such an exhibition must have on the virtue and morals of a people! Boston More.

KEN WEST.—Correspondent of the Naval and Military Magazine gives an account of the 1st of Key West, which was on that day so warm, so bright, and so clear, that the sun shone through the trees, and the birds sang with great clearness. The water transparent and the basin polished, reflects every object around, while playfully swimming are seen above the surface. After a little time, the swans come out of the bath, dry themselves, and are dried by the maid-servants, and some of the students used to be present by the side of the basin.

Under a kiosk, surrounded with magnificient columns, a large basin of white marble, in which are seen floating eight swans, the Seminarium. The water transparent and the basin polished, reflects every object around, while playfully swimming are seen above the surface. After a little time, the swans come out of the bath, dry themselves, and are dried by the maid-servants, and some of the students used to be present by the side of the basin.

These last days, it is said, are of a dangerous nature, dangerous for life. The too-proud officials, and for the time to come, at least, I expect, will be sent to the gallows.

They had to be sent to the gallows.

The school has been reorganized by a company of the old ones, who wished to furnish it with the best of officers and men, and are marched, "thus it is to be done."

The school has been reorganized by a company of the old ones, who wished to furnish it with the best of officers and men, and are marched, "thus it is to be done."

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

Neither is it to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of the old ones.

One party is to organize the school and teachers, and the other is to manage in passing the time up to the arrival of the new ones, and preparing for every emergency; now these opposites are locked up in each other's embraces, and are inseparably upon every question. This seems almost incredible, but it is true.

It is to be regretted that the school is not entirely independent of