TURKISH TREATY.

Extract of a letter dated SMYRNA, Oct. 18. I have been favoured with a sight of the trenty between the United States and the Porte, now on its way to America. Its exterior, all of course that is visible, is in the usual style of oriental magnificence. - The delays which have attended its ratification, are understood to be another illustration of the bad policy of employing any but our own citizens, in such important try is the imperial city, or rather its now deso-late suburb of Pera. Reasoning a priority however, we might expect them to be of the character which I have described. In the present instance we are assured, that as soon as American agency came immediately in contact with Turkish, the difficulties vanished, which had been long accumulating. Much credit is due to the able oriental scholar attached to the embassy, for the part which he sustained in this transaction. It is also with much satisfaction we learn it that is the purpose of the Ambassador to adhere to the American system, in the appointment or nomination of Dragomen, councilors, vice consuls &c.
