

THE MASSORAH

TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH
WITH A CRITICAL AND EXEGETICAL COMMENTARY

BY CHRISTIAN D. GINSBURG LL. D.

BEING
VOL. IV
OF THE ENTIRE WORK.

נדפס מחדש ע"י הוצאת מקור ירושלים תשל"א

TO EMILIE
WHOSE SELF-DENIAL AND SYMPATHY AND NEVER-FAILING HELP
IN MY BIBLICAL LABOURS HAVE FOR MORE THAN THIRTY-SIX YEARS BEEN OF UNSPEAKABLE COMFORT
I DEDICATE THIS BOOK WITH A HUSBAND'S DEEPEST AFFECTION.

PREFACE.

The labour involved in the critical and exegetical commentary of about 12,000 Rubrics which are comprised in my edition of the Massorah has proved far more difficult and tedious than I anticipated. The different MSS. of the Bible with the Massorah give different Lists of the same Rubric. As these Rubrics not infrequently are in conflict with regard to the readings of the passages which they respectively safeguard, it involved both a careful comparison of the several registers which record the same Rubrics and a re-collation in each case of the sundry passages in the text itself in the Standard MSS. of the Bible. The recollation disclosed that the Massorah is not homogeneous, that the conflicting Lists are based upon rival recensions of the text which obtained in the different Massoretic Schools, and that the vicious attempts to harmonise these differences so as to reduce them to one uniform standard is not only against the contents of the Massorah but against its testimony that many of its component parts have preserved genuine various readings.

For this purpose it was necessary (1) to collate the several Massoretic Lists in the MS. Bibles which exhibit the earliest forms of this corpus with Orient. 4445 and Add. 21,161 which are the oldest undated Codices; the fac-simile of the St. Petersburg Codex dated A. D. 916 edited by the erudite Professor Strack; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,260; Add. 15,461 &c. as these belong to different Schools and countries far apart.¹ (2) to compare with these MSS. the editio princeps of Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah and with the small portion preserved in the Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal so ably and conscientiously edited by Frensdorff, as well as with the larger recension of this independent Treatise still in MS. in the Halle Library.

In my endeavour to record under each Rubric whether and how often it occurs in the printed Massorahs of Jacob b. Chayim and Frensdorff, and at the same time to specify the corresponding Rubric in the principal MSS. I was obliged to restrict the number to seven. When, therefore, I give this number it is to be understood that this is my limit and that the Rubric occurs more times, and when I give less than this number it is because I have found no more. The first List is always the one which I have printed. I have invariably given not only the passages of the Bible on which the respective Rubrics occur, but the folios of the MSS. so that the student may easily compare the relationship of the different Massorahs.

As each Rubric is independent and complete in itself, and as the alphabetical order of this corpus is my arrangement and is designed to facilitate reference, I was obliged not infrequently to repeat similar statements to avoid inconvenient cross-references. The references to the numerous passages I have given in full, because there is not as yet a Concordance which can absolutely be relied upon, especially in the case of combinations of particles and with proper names. I do not presume to imply that the numbers which I give are always correct, but they do not affect my argument. I have endeavoured in my explanations to avoid technicalities, and to be as elementary as possible, so that the inexperienced may understand the mystery of the Massorah. The expert will readily forgive this treatment for the sake of the uninitiated. Having translated and explained the mnemonic sign in letter κ , § 16 c. (p. 7), and with a view to saving space, I have not deemed it necessary to repeat the process in other instances where such a sign occurs. The typical example thus given will enable the student to work it out for himself.

I cannot too emphatically repeat that the Massorah is not a Concordance, that the unique forms of words, the exceptional phrases, the peculiar combinations, &c. which it ranges together under the separate and independent Rubrics are designed to safeguard these and other readings against the variations which obtained in rival recensions, and some of which have survived in the ancient versions. The Massorah is a controversial Corpus. As the Massorites themselves have only very rarely indicated the militant design of the respective Rubrics I have tried to trace it in this critical explanation. Far be it from me to think that I have always succeeded in the thousands of Rubrics. אֵל לֵאמֹר

It is due to the student to state that working at the MSS., many of which are partially defaced, for more than forty-five years and having reached the age of seventy-three years, my sight has been greatly impaired. When I add to this that my Wife is the only one who has helped me in reading the proofs, he will generously forgive the mistakes which have escaped our observation.

To my old and valued friend, William Aldis Wright of Trinity College, Cambridge I am practically indebted for being able to bring my life-work to completion. The original subscription for the work has not sufficed to cover the expense of printing the three volumes of the Hebrew original. Nothing therefore remained for the English fourth volume, the printing of which is far more costly than its predecessors, and very few and in sufficient donations have been made. Under these circumstances I did not feel justified in proceeding with the work to which I have not only devoted the labour of my life gratuitously but for which I have incurred great expense. When Mr. Aldis Wright was made aware of this, he nobly promised to make good any deficiency in the cost of printing the English volume. Moreover, he acquired the whole of my collections of (1) the Hebrew MSS. both of Bibles and general literature (2) the Venice printed books and (3) all the MS. concordances which I have compiled, as well as all the Massoretic materials and apparatus from which my editions both of the Massorah and the Hebrew Bible have been elaborated. These collections, the use of which he has generously put at my disposal, as well as his own valuable collection of Bibles, he will ultimately bequeath to Trinity College Library, where the Biblical student will be able to verify and test my work.

¹ These MSS. I have minutely described in my Introduction to the Massoretic-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, London 1897.

Letter Aleph.

The words: The order or arrangement of letter Aleph, which stand at the head of this letter, are my own. The Massorites themselves never arranged the accumulated Massoretic corpus alphabetically. Even the sundry Massoretic materials, which in some MSS. of the Bible are appended to each book or to one of the three great divisions of the Hebrew Scriptures, viz. to the Pentateuch, the Prophets, or the Hagiographa — a plan followed in Bomberg's first edition of the Rabbinic Bible edited by Felix Pratensis (Venice 1516-17) — are not alphabetically arranged, but are grouped together according to subjects. This is also the case in the two independent Massoretic works called Oehlak Ve-Oehlak, viz. the Paris recension edited by Frensdorff, Hanover 1864, and the Halle recension, which is still in MS. It was Jacob b. Chayim Ibn Adonijah, the first editor of Bomberg's Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah (Venice 1524-25), who arranged the Massorah alphabetically so far as he was able to collect it. This he distinctly declares in the prefatory note with which the so-called Massorah Finalis begins and which is as follows:

אמר יעקב בן חיים בן יצחק ׀ אדונינו ישי עמ'ן הנה זהו שינוי מה שיצדו בהקדמתו להקדים ולחבר הספרה גדולה והבטלה גדולה על פי סדר האלפא ביתא לשישים ובקורות, ללולל במספיקי ים הספרה, להגלות' בתורה ברת, האסדרת בחולה לא אהמול על מיטב הדין והכ'שני, השכנו בחורו קטר זכמם: כי ידתי פתחתי והנה סעלה הפתחי והכן ספנות שלחתי, והנה זה כל ההתנה אשר פתחתי:

Thus saith Jacob b. Chayim b. Isaac Ibn Adonijah „he entered into peace, they shall rest in their beds, each one walking in his uprightness" [Isa. 57 2], behold, the following is the arrangement, which we have designed as stated in the Introduction. We have copied, compiled and arranged alphabetically the Massorahs Magna and Parva according to the roots and order. Having dived into the deep sea of the Massorah to bring it up as clear as the sun, I tremble with fear since I have not spared the signs and the marks which lie hid in the holes of the earth and in the rocks, for I have removed the redundant letters and blown away from it the superfluous letters, and eliminated from it the erroneous Makephs, and behold, the following is the array which I have encountered.

It was he, therefore, who prefixed the heading and appended the last line to each letter, and I have followed his example.

* = § 1.

N. — The first part of this Rubric, which registers the number of times Aleph occurs in the Bible, is taken from the Poem ascribed to Saadia Gaon. The Poem in question is given below, letter * , § 224. Whatever may be the dispute about the authorship of this Poem, there can be no doubt that the letters were counted at a very early date, as is evident from the statement in the Talmud, where we are positively assured that the Vav in וַיִּבְרָא (Levit. II 42) is the middle letter of the Pentateuch (vide infra § 224). The second part of this Rubric, which registers the number of times that Aleph occurs in the Pentateuch, is from a MS. in my own possession. In this MS. every two pages are followed by a page containing two tables, which register line for line the number of times each letter of the Alphabet occurs in the two pages in question. At the end of every thirty-two pages another table is given, stating the number of times each letter occurs in those pages, and at the end of each book again a general table is given summing up the contents of both the special tables for each page and the general tables for every thirty-two pages, and exhibiting the sum total of times that each letter occurs in the book in question. Accordingly there can be no mistake here in the statement that the letter Aleph occurs 27,055 times in the Pentateuch, though it is difficult to test the first part of this Rubric, where it is stated that Aleph occurs 42,377 times in the whole Bible.

To convey a proper idea of the minuteness and accuracy with which this plan is worked out throughout the entire Pentateuch, I reproduced the first page of the MS. containing Gen. I 1—16 with the table belonging to it in my Introduction to the Massoretico-critical edition of the Hebrew Bible.'

' Comp. Part I, chap. VII, pp. 110, 111, London 1897.

י = § 2.

N. — The two instances in which the letter Aleph has one Tag or Tittle and which constitute the contents of this Rubric, are from Harley 5710—11, British Museum. The Massorah Parva repeats the Aleph with the Tag in the margin against וַיִּבְרָא Exod. 13 5 and וַיִּבְרָא verse 15. The heading to this Rubric, viz. Aleph with one tittle, there are two instances in the Pentateuch, I have supplied in harmony with the heading of the following Rubric, which the MS. gives. The Treatises on the Tagin do not give this Rubric.

י = § 3.

י. — This Rubric, which states that there are seven Alephs in the Pentateuch, which respectively have seven Tagin, is taken from the Sepher Tagin, p. 2, ed. Barges, Paris 1866. Misled by Dr. Baer, who positively declares that the List in question is corrupt and that this phenomenon occurs in the word יִשְׂרָאֵל Israel, in all the seven instances (Tikun Ha-Sepher, p. 19, Rödelheim 1875), I have so printed the text as to indicate it to the reader. But since the publication of this Rubric I have found the Treatise on the Tagin in the so-called Vitry Machsor (Add. 27,021, Vol. II, fols. 209 a—215 a), which I printed in letter Tav, § 25, Vol. II, pp. 680—701. From §§ 8, 12, 16, 33 and 41 of this Treatise it will be seen that according to this recension the titted Aleph occurs only three times in the word יִשְׂרָאֵל Israel and four times in the word יְשׁוּעָה princes of, and that the Rubric is as I have given it in the Additions, Vol. III, p. 1, § 3*. According to a second recension, however, which is exhibited in the text of the Yemen Scrolls of the Pentateuch (Oriental 1463 and Oriental 1465), the seven instances are as follows. The titted Aleph occurs five times in the word יִשְׂרָאֵל Israel (Gen. 32 29, 47 31; Exod. 13 19; Numb. 10 4, 36) and twice in the word יְשׁוּעָה princes of (Numb. 10 4, 36). It is remarkable that in these Scrolls the Aleph in יְשׁוּעָה has in both instances seven Tagin as depicted under letter Tav, 25, Vol. II, p. 685, § 8, whilst the Aleph in יִשְׂרָאֵל has in these two instances only five Tagin, the two Tagin at the bottom on the left of the Aleph being absent. According to a third recension exhibited in the text of the splendid MS. of the Bible (Add. 15,451, fols. 98 b, 99 a), there are only four instances which have this titted Aleph, two in יִשְׂרָאֵל (Numb. 10 4, 36) and two in יְשׁוּעָה (Numb. 10 4, 36). According to a fourth recension exhibited in Harley 5710—11 which not only has the Tagin on the letters in the text, but repeats them in the margin as part of the Massorah Parva, it follows that the titted Aleph occurs six times in יִשְׂרָאֵל Israel (Gen. 47 31; Exod. 13 8; Numb. 1 16; 10 14; 31 5; 34 12) and once in the word יְרֵחַ the earth (Gen. 7 23). When it is borne in mind that this collation is from the respective texts of the Pentateuch itself where the Alephs are thus titted, no doubt will be entertained that these MSS. exhibit different traditions about the words which were to be thus distinguished by these tittles, and that these different traditions were preserved by different Massoretic Schools. The existence of such variations in Massoretic Rubrics, arising from the fact that different Massoretic Schools possessed various recensions of the text, will be evident to anyone who carefully examines the Massorahs of the MSS. written by scribes of countries far apart as exhibited in numerous Rubrics of our edition of the Massorah. Ignorance of this fact has led Dr. Baer to pronounce every such variation as corrupt, and accordingly

... after it, when it differed from a Massorah in a MS. which he happened to have collated. It was before I discovered Dr. Baer's mode of manipulating MSS. that I printed the Rubric before us according to his alteration.

א — § 4.

א. — The four Yemen Codices of the Pentateuch, viz. the three in the British Museum, Oriental 1379 (fol. 103a), Oriental 2349 (fol. 52b), Oriental 2850 (fol. 98a) and the one in the Cambridge University Library, Add. 1174, remark in the Massorah Parva against אֵל Gen. 42 12 אֵלֵּם = the Aleph in this negative particle is curved below. As there is no other Aleph in the Pentateuch thus distinguished, I have added אֵלֵּם to the heading in harmony with the heading of the preceding Rubric.

א — § 5.

א. — Three times the letter Aleph has a Dagesh in words of the same root (viz. derived from אָבָה to come) and once it has a Dagesh in a word of another root, i. e. אָרָא to see. This Rubric is from Harley 1528, on Levit. 23 17 (fol. 70a). It will be seen that of the three instances from the root אָבָה two are אָבָה (Gen. 43 26; Ezra 8 18) and one is אָבָה (Levit. 23 17). This accounts for the different forms of this Rubric, which obtained in the different Massoretic Schools, and which are to be found in the different MSS. Thus (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 28b, on Gen. 43 26, has in the Massorah Magna אָבָה בְּלִישׁוֹ simply registering the two instances of אָבָה, where the Aleph has Dagesh. (II) The same MS. which gives this Rubric a second time, fol. 69a, heads it on Levit. 23 17 as follows אָבָה בְּרִישׁוֹ אָבָה, which might imply that in this form, viz. future second person plural masculine, the Aleph has three times a Dagesh, whereas the word בְּלִישׁוֹ in the same root, is simply omitted after the numeral 3 = 3, which is often the case. In this recension, therefore, all the three instances belonging to the same root are registered. (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 291a, on Ezra 8 18, has it as follows:

Gen. 43 26	אָבָה בְּרִישׁוֹ אָבָה
Ezra 8 18	אָבָה
Gen. 43 19; Jerem. 27 12; Mal. 3 10	אָבָה
" 43 24; Exod. 23 2; Amos 4 4;	אָבָה
Neh. 8 15; 1 Chron. 21 2;	אָבָה
2 Chron. 29 31	אָבָה
Levit. 23 17	אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה

It will thus be seen that this Massorah groups together in a separate Massoretic Rubric no less than twelve instances of the different forms of the root אָבָה alone, which have a Dageshed Aleph. There can, therefore, be no doubt that the Dageshed Alephs of other roots, not comprised in this Rubric, were also catalogued separately according to the respective forms of the verbs, thus showing that some Massoretic Schools recognised only four Dageshed Alephs in the Hebrew Bible, whilst other Schools, from which this Rubric proceeds, had Dageshed the Aleph in numerous instances. To this School belongs the Karlsruhe Hebrew MS. of the Former and Latter Prophets (Grosch. Hof- und Landesbibl. Durlach Hs. 55), which is dated A. D. 1106—6. The single page of this MS. which is published by the Palaeographical Society (Plate LXXVII, Oriental Series), and which has only six verses of the Hebrew text, viz. Malachi 3 19—24, exhibits no less than eleven Alephs with Dagesh, though the total number of Alephs in these six verses is only thirty. Thus אָבָה, which occurs twice in these six verses (vv. 19, 21), has both times Dagesh in the Aleph, אָבָה, which occurs three times (vv. 19, 21, 22), has it only in the first and second instances, and אָבָה, which occurs twice (vv. 19, 21), has it in both instances. It is remarkable that the Aleph of אָבָה has also Dagesh in the Targum, which follows every Hebrew verse in this MS. The fact that different Massoretic Schools had different Lists of Dageshed Alephs explains the apparent discrepancies in the instances of this phenomenon adduced by the old grammarians. Thus Ibn Ezra, who speaks of this phenomenon (Zachuth 24a, ed. Fürth 1827), gives it as follows:

Levit. 23 17	אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה	אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה
Job 33 21	אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה	אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה
	Gen. 43 1	אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה

It will be seen that Ibn Ezra not only gives three instances, but that one of them (Gen. 43 1) is not contained in the Massoretic Lists, whilst he omits two instances (Gen. 43 26; Ezra 8 18), which are given in all the recensions we have adduced. Ibn Ezra, therefore, had a recension before him, which differed from those in the MSS. to which I have hitherto had access. The same is the case with the recension of this Rubric, given by De Balme, which is as follows:

Deut. 12 11	אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה
Job 33 21	אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה
Ezra 8 18	אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה
Gen. 43 26	אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה

(MSS. Milne Abraham, fol. 9a, Hebrew ed., and fol. 19a, Hebrew and Latin, Venice 1523.) He, therefore, gives אָבָה Deut. 12 11 instead of Levit. 23 17.

(IV) The printed Massorah Magna, which has this Rubric four times, has it only in two recensions. The first recension, which is given on Gen. 43 26, consists of the two instances in which אָבָה has the Dagesh. Here אָבָה is not unto us (Pa. 115 1), which in sound resembles the two catchwords of the two passages where the phenomenon occurs, is given as a mnemonic sign. The second recension which is given on Levit. 23 17; Job 33 21; Ezra 8 18, heads it אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה אָבָה, thus grouping all the four instances under one Rubric. The form, therefore, of this Rubric exhibited under No. II, which registers the three instances of the same root wherein the Aleph has Dagesh, is not given in the printed Massorah. The theory of Ewald (Lehrbuch § 21, 2) and of Gesenius (Grammar § 14) about the import of these Dageshed Alephs is based upon the existence of the only four instances given in the printed Massorah, and must now be set aside in the face of the Rubric here adduced. (See also below § 17.) It is also to be remarked that though the Aleph has the Dagesh in the upper part of its body in the printed editions (a), the Dagesh is in the lower part (b) in the MSS.

א — § 6.

א. — This List of words beginning with Aleph, which respectively occur only once, is from Arundel Oriental 16, on Ezek. 32 4 (fol. 187), where the word אָבָה occurs. It will be seen that these unique forms are here grouped together without any regard to alphabetical order or to the sequence of the books in the Bible. It is the first attempt to register the hapax legomena. When they had thus been collected by earlier Massorites, later critics arranged them alphabetically and furnished them with headings. The number of words which are thus brought together frequently depends on the space which has to be filled. Thus in the MS. in question (Arundel Oriental 16, fol. 194a) on Ezek. 41 8, where the unique form אָבָה occurs, the Massorah gives the following four words:

Deut. 17 14	אָבָה	Ezek. 41 8	אָבָה
Job 1 4	אָבָה	2 Sam. 20 14	אָבָה

It will be seen that, with the exception of the last word, none of these are contained in the first List.

The earliest Massorah known at present which is exhibited in Oriental 4445, fol. 38b, on the unique form אָבָה Gen. 43 9, tabulates the following seventeen words beginning with Aleph which respectively occur once: none of these are contained in the other Lists.

Numb. 23 38	אָבָה	Gen. 43 9	אָבָה
Gen. 3 17	אָבָה	Job 31 36	אָבָה
Isa. 38 14	אָבָה	Hosea 13 8	אָבָה
Ps. 132 14	אָבָה	1 Sam. 27 1	אָבָה
Cant. 3 9	אָבָה	Gen. 37 7	אָבָה
Job. 13 3	אָבָה	Ps. 55 7	אָבָה
Cant. 7 3	אָבָה	Cant. 8 2	אָבָה
Exod. 21 32	אָבָה	Prov. 30 31	אָבָה
		Cant. 8 2	אָבָה

The List moreover illustrates some of the difficulties in the deciphering of the Massorah. No fewer than five of the expressions here recorded may severally be read differently since they are without the vowel-points. Thus אָבָה which I have pointed אָבָה may also be pointed אָבָה Numb. 11 18, אָבָה Deut. 32 28, אָבָה Isa. 24 22 or אָבָה Micah 4 6; אָבָה may either be אָבָה Cant. 8 2 or אָבָה Cant. 8 1. אָבָה may either be אָבָה Numb. 22 38 or אָבָה Exod. 29 35. אָבָה may be אָבָה Gen. 3 17, אָבָה Exod. 33 8 or אָבָה Levit. 25 37, and אָבָה may be אָבָה Exod. 21 32 or אָבָה Dan. 3 29, as all these forms are unique. אָבָה too which is here given as unique occurs twice in the textus receptus, viz. Isa. 38 14 and Ps. 63 7.

A further development of this Massorah is the Rubric, also contained in this ancient Codex which tabulates the following: Words beginning with Aleph and are defective

1 Sam. 18 29	אֵב ל' חס'	מלן מחרן חסרן וזו דרשיתן א
2 Sam. 14 19	אֵש ל' חס'	Exod. 36 21 אַבֵּה ל' חס'
1 Kings 4 19	אָר ל' חס'	Gen. 24 39 אָל ל' חס'
Ps. 18 80	אָרָן ל' חס'	2 Sam. 19 38 אָבֵה ל' חס'
1 Kings 22 26	אָנָן ל' חס'	1 Chron. 5 6 אָשֵׁר ל' חס'
Job 13 4	אָלֵל ל' חס'	„ 3 17 אָסֵר ל' חס'

Comp. Orient. 4445 Exod. 36 21, fol. 97b.

† = § 7.

‡. — The following words beginning with Aleph He respectively occur only once. This Rubric is from Orient. 1471, fol. 118a. It occurs in the Massorah on אֶבְרָהָהּ 1 Sam. 18 28. On referring to § 12 אַ, Vol. I, p. 3, it will be seen that there are no less than thirty-six words beginning with Aleph He, which respectively occur only once. Though twenty-three of these are of the root אַבֵּה alone, and though the Rubric before us has only eight of them, the most cursory inspection of it will show that it is designed simply to register the unique forms of this root. The fuller references, which follow the ל' = ל' = unique, show beyond doubt that they have been added by a later Massorite, who wished to facilitate the identification of the passages. The same writer also added the heading, which is rather misleading, for, though all the words begin with Aleph He, they are manifestly designed to give the unique forms of אַבֵּה. The proper heading is אֵלֶּן בְּלִישׁ אֶבְרָהָהּ וְלִיהָ בִּוְרָהּ. No other MS. known to me at present has this Rubric.

From this Massorah and §§ 8, 9 and 10 it is evident that the Massorites began to arrange alphabetically the 1137 unique words in the Hebrew Bible which severally begin with Aleph. Though I have as yet only been able to find incipient Lists of Aleph He (אֵ), Aleph Cheth (אָ), Aleph Shin (אָש) and Aleph Tav (אָב) there can hardly be any doubt that the remaining portions of this Alphabet are still dispersed in MSS. to which I have not had access.

‡ = § 8.

§. — This list without any heading, but registering the words beginning with Aleph Cheth, which respectively occur only once, is from the same MS., viz. Orient. 1471. It is given in the Massorah on 1 Kings 6 6, fol. 178a, where אָרָה occurs, which heads the Rubric. Though it only registers nine words, a reference to אַ § 12, Vol. I, p. 4, will show that there are no fewer than eighty-seven unique forms beginning with Aleph Cheth. The fact, however, that the Massorites neither prefixed a heading nor specified any number, but simply remarked ל' = unique, shows that the List exhibits the first attempt at collecting the words in question, and that they meant other Massorites to complete the List. I have not found the Rubric in any other MS. to which I have had access.

‡ = § 9.

¶. — This Rubric, which registers the unique forms beginning with Aleph Shin, is also to be found in Orient. 1471. It is given in the Massorah on the word אָשָׁהּ 1 Sam. 26 8 (fol. 128a). In copying this List, I omitted by an oversight the following three instances, which occur in the upper margin —

Ezek. 27 15	בְּגֵדֵי דָבָר	1 Sam. 26 8	אָשָׁהּ ל' וְאִסְרֵי אִשְׁוִישׁ
		1 Chron. 4 11	אָשָׁתוֹן ל' וְגִלְבֹּם אִשְׁוִי שֹׁמֵה

It will be seen that this Rubric registers altogether twenty-eight forms, whereas a reference to אַ § 12, Vol. I, pp. 8—9, will show that there are one hundred and forty words beginning with Aleph Shin. Like the other Rubrics, therefore, it simply contains the beginning of a collection of these words, and hence its incompleteness. The passages added after the ל' = unique are, as usual in such cases, by later Massorites. The List is not to be found in other MSS. The six instances which constitute § 9b, are given in Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 231a, on the word אָשָׁהּ 1 Kings 16 9, at the end of the Alphabetical List, numbered § 11, Vol. I, p. 2, as if they were a continuation of this Rubric.

¶ = § 10.

§. — This Rubric as well as letter b of the former Rubric (viz. § 9b), though registering words beginning with Aleph Shin and Aleph Tav, only give the forms with Segol under the Aleph. In the Vienna Codex No. 86, on Dan. 7 15, where the same peculiarity is noticed, with the same letters beginning the respective words, Aleph Shin and Aleph Tav are mixed up, as will be seen from the following, which is given in the Massorah Magna without any heading:

אָשָׁתוֹן ל'	Dan. 7 8	אָבֵה ל'	Dan. 7 15
אָשָׁתוֹן ל'	„ 3 10	אָשָׁתוֹן ל'	„ 4 16
אָשָׁתוֹן ל'	Ps. 128 3	אָשָׁתוֹן ל'	„ 6 8
אָשָׁתוֹן ל'	2 Chron. 20 35	אָשָׁתוֹן ל'	Deut. 32 32
אָשָׁתוֹן ל'	Lament. 2 17	אָשָׁתוֹן ל'	Gen. 33 14

Though this List only gives four words beginning with אַ and five with אָ, a reference to אַ and אָ § 12, Vol. I, pp. 8—9, will show that there are forty-one of the former and nineteen of the latter. As in the other Rubrics, therefore, these instances are simply the beginning of a collection, which was intended to be gradually completed.

¶ = § 11.

¶. — An alphabet of unique words which respectively begin with Aleph. This List is so arranged that the second letter of each word exhibits the alphabetical order. It is one of the most ancient constituent parts of the Massorah, as is evident from the fact that it is given in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, fol. 179b on Hos. 2 14. On referring to § 12, Vol. I, pp. 2—9, it will be seen that there are no less than 1137 words beginning with Aleph, which only occur once. Innumerable alphabets might, therefore, be compiled by taking different combinations. Hence it is difficult to divine why the Massorites simply selected one of the many instances from every letter and arranged them in this manner. Of this Massorah I collated eight different Lists, six in MSS. and two printed, viz. (I) Harley, 5710—11, on Gen. 12 3; (II) the same MS., on 1 Kings 6 19; (III) Add. 15,250, on Job 16 4; (IV) Add. 15,451 on Ps. 61 5; (V) the Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I § 36; (VI) the Paris Ochlah Ve Ochlah § 35; (VII) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Hos. 2 14, and (VIII) the printed Massorah, § 8. From an analysis of them it will be seen that they are different recensions, and proceed from different Massoretic Schools. As here given, the List is printed from the Harley MS. 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 7a, on אָרָה Gen. 12 3. In the same MS. (fol. 231a) this Rubric is given again on the word אָשָׁהּ 1 Kings 16 9. Here not only is the heading different, viz. אֵלֶּן בְּלִישׁ אֶבְרָהָהּ = an alphabet of single words which have no parallel, but אָרָה, אָרָה, which may either be אָרָה, Micah 6 6, or אָרָה Prov. 16 26, is given for אָ instead of אָשָׁהּ, which is the word both in the other recension of this List in this very MS. and in the other MSS. and editions. These two recensions, however, exhibit the oldest form of this Rubric. For, though their respective headings differ from the one in the St. Petersburg Codex which is as follows אֵלֶּן בְּלִישׁ אֶבְרָהָהּ = an alphabet of single words the beginning of which is Aleph, they are exactly as brief and as simple as the List in this ancient MS. A remarkable feature occurs in this Rubric as given in the second instance, which must be noticed here, inasmuch as it will explain constant difficulties connected with these Massoretic Lists. At the end of this List, viz. No. II in Harley 5710—11, the Massorah on 1 Kings 6 19 adds six instances beginning with Aleph Shin which constitute Rubric 9b. Though they are manifestly a different Massorah, yet they continue the Rubric without any break. Far more developed are the other five recensions. Thus the one in Add. MS. 15,451 (fol. 412b) has, after the simple ל' = unique of the earlier Lists, the later addition of catchwords. In this recension, where the heading is exactly the same as in the one printed in our text, we moreover, meet with a circumstance which explains some of the greatest difficulties to be encountered in deciphering the Massorah. In enumerating the words, the scribe omitted the word which represents letter שׁ. This omission he discovered when he finished the Rubric. He then not only supplied it, but repeated with the catchwords the word which represents the letter שׁ, so that this List ends as follows:

1 Kings 16 9	אָרָה ל' וְהַקֶּשֶׁר עֵלְיוֹ עֵבֶר
Hos. 2 14	אָרָה ל' וְהַשְׁמֵטִי נִגְמַת וְהַמַּחֲתָה
Ezek. 23 44	אָרָה ל' וְהָיָה אִלֶּיהָ כְּבָהּ אֵל אִשָּׁה
Hos. 2 14	אָרָה ל' וְהַשְׁמֵטִי נִגְמַת וְהַמַּחֲתָה

If the same catchwords had not accompanied the repeated אָרָה, we might have thought that two examples of אָרָה were intended, since there are three written with exactly the same letters, viz. אָרָה Exod. 35 26; אָרָה Ezek. 13 20; and אָרָה Hos. 2 14, which is here adduced. Indeed it may be that the earlier writer of this Rubric intended to give another example of א, to complete the sequence, after he discovered that he had omitted the Shin or placed the Tav before the Shin, and that the later Massorites (who thought it inconsistent with the heading and with the import of this Massorah, which only enumerates single words, to represent each letter of the Alphabet), attached to it the same catchwords, in order that the two lines might yield the same word. It will also be seen that the later Massorite, who added the catchwords after א, in this recension made a mistake in his reference to 1 Kings 16 9, giving א instead of א. These blunders on the part of later scribes are of frequent occurrence. We shall see that the mistake is not always confined to one word, but sometimes extends to the whole part of the verse which constitutes the catchwords. To a different School and a later recension also belongs the List given in Add. MS. 15,250, fol. 351a. Not only is the heading here different, viz. אלפביתא מן הר אא אב ג an alphabet of single words beginning with Aleph Aleph, Aleph Beth, Aleph Gimel, but it gives Job 16 4 for the letter ה, instead of א 2 Kings 5 3, which the other MSS. and the editions have, and breaks off with א Cant. 3 9, so that ז-ח are not represented. Such unfinished Lists, however, are of common occurrence. When the scribe found himself at the end of a line and had no more space, he would not exceed either the two or the three lines of the Massorah which are the rule of the special Codex. This is the reason why he left off in the middle, just as he not unfrequently added a few words from a different Rubric, when the line had to be filled out. Still later and more developed are the Lists in the Ochlah Ve-Ochlah and in the printed text of Jacob b. Chayim. Though the headings in the two recensions of the Ochlah Ve-Ochlah and in Jacob b. Chayim's edition differ — in the Halle MS. I, § 36, it is אב מן הר אא בריש חיבורא, in the Paris MS. (§ 35) אב מן הר אא בריש חיבורא ולי וסימנא, and in Jacob b. Chayim's text אב מן הר אא וסימנא — they have all alike dropped the simple א = unique, which in the original Lists follows each word, and have substituted in its stead the lengthy and far more easy catchwords. In the Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah the later redactor, who mistook the import of this Massorah, added another example, viz. א (Deut. 32 26), to represent letter א. The remark in Jacob b. Chayim's edition on Cant. 3 9, viz. עשר המלך, שמה מנצח ודוא הר מן אב מן הר אא בריש חיבורא ולי וסימנא אחי בספרות אחי — it does not occur again and it is one of an alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Aleph, and the List is given in the Great Massorah under letter Aleph with the help of Heaven, is not a part of the Massorah, where such language never occurs, but is Jacob b. Chayim's own statement. More unwarrantable is the heading, which the editors of the second and third editions of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible (Venice 1548 and 1568) and Buxford have attached to this Rubric, viz. אב מן הר אא בריש חיבורא ולי וסימנא since this is an arbitrary alteration of the language of the Massorah. Frensdorff (Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 35, Nachweise etc., p. 13), who did not know that this alteration occurs already in the second and third editions of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible (Venice 1548, 1568), wrongly ascribes it to Buxtorf, whose edition appeared in 1618—19.

The statement that the concise Lists tabulating in alphabetical order a certain number of unique forms of words which begin with Aleph are of the most ancient constituent parts of the Massorah, is now strikingly confirmed by the two Lists in the important Codex Orient. 4445 which has come to light since I printed the text of the Massorah. The first List is on Exod. 5 13 and is as follows:

Jerem. 51 13	אב	2 Kings 5 8	אב	Gen. 41 43	אב
Cant. 8 2	אב	Prov. 7 16	אב	Cant. 7 3	אב
Ps. 139 8	אב	Gen. 3 9	אב	1 Kings 11 17	אב
Exod. 5 13	אב	Prov. 32 17	אב	Ps. 142 1	אב
		Prov. 30 31	אב	Josh. 19 34	אב

It will be seen that this alphabet is incomplete since five letters are not represented, viz. Aleph (א), Coph (כ), Resh (ח), Shin (ש) and Tav (ת) and that six only of the fourteen correspond to those in the List which I have printed in the Massorah.

The second List which is given on Exod. 21 13, fol. 62b, represents all the alphabet with the exception of one letter and is as follows:

Isa. 14 14	אב	Job 9 16	אב
2 Sam. 1 26	אב	Deut. 12 2	אב
Isa. 26 10	אב	Ps. 61 5	אב

Job 31 36	אב	Deut. 23 14	אב
Hos. 13 8	אב	Josh. 2 18	אב
1 Kings 11 38	אב	Prov. 7 16	אב
Exod. 7 38	אב	1 Kings 20 20	אב
Gen. 5 29	אב	Prov. 16 26	אב
Deut. 32 42	אב	Gen. 37 7	אב
Hos. 2 14	אב	Exod. 21 13	אב
		1 Sam. 27 1	אב

It will be seen that Mem (מ) is the only letter not represented unless אב is taken to represent both Lamed and Mem, and that four only of the twenty-one letters in this alphabet correspond to those in the alphabetical List which I have printed in the Massorah.

י"ב = § 12.

§. — In Rubrics 6, 7, 8 and 9 Lists are given of words beginning with Aleph. Besides these we frequently find up and down in the Massorahs of the different MSS. groups of words beginning with Aleph Beth, Aleph Gimel, etc. without any fixed heading or number. The Massorah Parva too, constantly remarks on these words א = that they only occur once. I have, therefore, collected all the words in the Hebrew Scriptures, which respectively occur only once, and have arranged them alphabetically. In the List before us I have arranged those beginning with Aleph of which there are no less than 1137 unique forms. The List is essential, inasmuch as it enables us to test the different Rubrics in the Massorah. I have always given the form of the Kethiv or the textual reading, though I am well aware that the Massorah registers the Keri or the official marginal reading. Those who have ever attempted similar work will understand the enormous labour connected with the finding, collecting, and arranging upwards of forty thousand forms, which respectively occur only once, and how absolutely impossible it is to be always correct. To these students I need not apologise for mistakes which have crept into the List. The following are those which I have been able to detect since this Rubric has been printed:

Omissions:

Zech. 3 2	אב	Deut. 1 11	אב
Jerem. 15 8	אב	Dan. 5 13	אב
Dan. 3 29	אב	2 Chron. 11 18	אב
Josh. 12 18	אב	1 Chron. 2 29	אב
		Ezra 4 8	אב

The following 16 words occur more than once:

אב	Ps. 77 12; Exod. 20 21
אב	Job 28 7; 2 Sam. 3 7 etc.
אב	41 17; Numb. 23 1 etc.
אב	1 Chron. 11 31; Dan. 2 10 etc.
אב	1 Sam. 1 9; " 7 7 etc.
אב	Deut. 12 20; 4 24 etc.
אב	1 Kings 13 23; Exod. 12 4 etc.
אב	Ezek. 6 13; Gen. 36 41 etc.
אב	Job 42 8; Ps. 29 1 etc.
אב	Ezek. 19 7; Isa. 9 16
אב	Prov. 8 30; 2 Kings 21 18 etc.
אב	Ps. 6 8; Joel 1 10 etc.
אב	1 Sam. 15 6; 2 Kings 22 20
אב	Ps. 119 67; Isa. 65 24 etc.
אב	Isa. 49 14; 80 6 etc.
אב	Dan. 2 39, 35 etc.

The following are typographical errors:

אב	Ezra 7 18	אב	Deut. 22 3
אב	Dan. 7 10	אב	" 1 11
אב	Isa. 27 8	אב	1 Kings 11 17
אב	Ezek. 13 20	אב	occurs many times

י"ג = § 13.

§. — The following are written with Aleph, but are read without it. This Rubric is taken from Harley 5710—11. The List occurs in the Massorah Magna (Vol. II, fol. 206a) on אב Ps. 104 12. What this Massorah means is, that wherever one of these four words occurs and is written in the text with Aleph, it must be read without Aleph. That is (I) אב is to be read אב, (II) אב is to be read אב, (III) אב is to be read אב, and (IV) אב is to be read אב. Now on referring to אב, the first of these four words, it will be seen that the plural of

it, which occurs eight times, is written in the present text five times שמעם (Jerem. 3 2; 4 11; 7 29; 12 12; 14 6) and three times שמעם with two Yods (Isa. 41 18; 49 9; Jerem. 3 21), and that there is, therefore, not a single instance of שמעם to be found in the present text to which this is applicable. This difficulty, however, is solved by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 and Harl. MS. 5720. Thus, on all the three passages in which it is with two Yods, the St. Petersburg Codex has in the margin שמעם, Isa. 41 18; שמעם יבדו 49 9, and שמעם יאזח Jerem. 3 21, whilst Harley 5720 has actually in the text שמעם in Jerem. 4 11 and in the margin against it שמעם, thus showing that the preponderance of ancient recensions was in favour of שמעם, and that its displacement from the present recensions is due to this Massorah. Equally important is the light which this Massorah throws upon the second word. The plural of שמעם occurs eleven times, and is written in the present text seven times שמעם with Aleph (Ps. 116 6; Prov. 1 4; 7 7; 8 5; 9 6; 14 18; 27 12) and four times without it, twice with one Yod שמעם (Prov. 1 22, 32) and twice with two Yods שמעם (Ps. 119 130; Prov. 22 3). According to this Massorah, therefore, the Codices of the School from which it proceeds, uniformly read it שמעם, and according to the directions here given the Keri on all the seven passages in question must be שמעם. Indeed on the third word in this List, viz. שמעם, which only occurs once (Ps. 104 12), where this Massorah is given, and on which there is no Keri in the present text, the Massorah Parva of this MS. remarks in the margin שמעם אל תרד אל ליהי א the Aleph is not to be read, the Aleph is redundant; whilst Add. 15,251 remarks against it שמעם יכח ילמא קרי three [words] are written with Aleph, but not read, where שמעם words, is to be supplied, since שמעם only occurs once. The plural of שמעם with Mem occurs twice, once it is שמעם 2 Sam. 2 18 and once שמעם 1 Chron. 12 9. According to this Massorah, therefore, it must be read in the second passage שמעם without Aleph, just as in the former passage. Hence the recensions of this School of Massorites must have had on it קרי. It will thus be seen that the Massorah before us and the one in the St. Petersburg Codex proceeded from two different Schools of textual critics. The former wrote these words without Aleph and expressly put a Keri in the margin to this effect, whilst the latter on the contrary, wrote them with Aleph, and hence put a Keri in the margin directing that they should be read without Aleph. The writing of שמעם שמעם and שמעם with Chirek under the Yod leaving the Aleph without any vowel-point, which is to be found in some MSS. and editions is, therefore, derived from the School of textual critics who in the Keri cancelled the Aleph.

ו"י = § 14a.

§. — The following words want Aleph in the Pentateuch. This Rubric is given in the printed Massorah on Levit. 11 43. On comparing it with the other three recensions of this Massorah (viz. § 14b-d), which catalogue the words throughout the Hebrew Scriptures exhibiting the same phenomena, it will be seen that the Massorites began first of all to collect the anomalies in the Pentateuch alone, and that it was only in process of time, as the work developed itself, that these labours were gradually extended to the other books, and at last to the whole Bible. We shall find numerous illustrations of this fact in the course of the work. The Massorah Parva in the MSS. of the Bible and in the editions has against each of these words שמעם אל תרד אל ליהי א — it does not occur again with Aleph defective. This exhibits the Massoretic work in its still more incipient form, since it is from these separate remarks that the Lists were ultimately made up for the Massorah Magna. As a further development of the Massoretic work must be regarded the remark in the Massorah Parva of the Yemen Codices against several of the seven instances in this Rubric, viz. שמעם אל תרד אל ליהי א — fifty-one such instances with Aleph defective, as this already premises the existence of the Massorah Magna. This List, containing the instances of the Pentateuch alone, I have at present not been able to find in any MS.

ו"י = § 14b-c.

§. — The three Lists marked respectively § 14b, c and d, register words in the whole Bible which exhibit the same phenomenon as is recorded in the preceding Rubric with regard to the Pentateuch alone. Though Jacob b. Chayim remarks in the printed Massorah on Levit. Numb. 15 24 that this form without Aleph is unique and that it is one of fifty-eight words in the Bible which are defective of Aleph and refers to the Massorah

Magna at the end of Vol. IV for the List, this Rubric is neither to be found there nor in any other part of the printed Massorah.

(I) The first List marked B, which is headed The following are defective of Aleph, is from the Vienna Codex No. 85, fol. 83b, on Numb. 11 11. (II) The second List marked C, which is headed Fifty-one words are defective of Aleph and are as follows, is from Orient. 1379 British Museum, fol. 371a. Precisely the same List is in Orient. 2349, fol. 142b, and Add. 1147, Cambridge University Library. These three MSS. are Pentateuchs from Yemen and as is often the case in South Arabian Codices the Lists are identical. I have, therefore, treated them as one Rubric. (III) The third List marked D, which is headed Fifty-four words are defective of Aleph and are as follows, is from Add. 1524 in the Cambridge University Library on the third leaf from the end. To these three Lists I have now to add a fourth which I found in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, British Museum, on Levit. Numb. 15 24, fol. 134a, and which is represented in the Table by the letter E. The relationship which these Lists sustain to each other and the instances which they severally register will best be seen from the following Table:

Table with columns E, D, C, B, A and rows listing Bible books, verses, and counts of defective Aleph instances. Includes entries for Ezechiel, Micah, Zechariah, Malachi, Psalms, Job, Isaiah, Jeremiah, etc.

On comparing these Lists as represented by the respective columns, it will be seen (1) that there are altogether sixty-five such anomalies; (2) that B which tabulates fifty-three only omits the following twelve Nos. 4, 8, 16, 17, 27, 32, 34, 44, 54, 56, 57 and 59; (3) that C which records fifty-one omits fourteen, viz. Nos. 8, 16, 19, 33, 38, 41, 54, 55, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62 and 65; (4) that D which registers fifty-five omits the following ten Nos. 4, 8, 14, 23, 27, 32, 34, 41, 56 and 57; (5) that E records only twenty-two instances altogether and thus omits no fewer than forty-three of these anomalies, and (6) that no two Lists follow the same order in the enumeration of these phenomena, as is shown by the numerals in the respective columns which indicate the sequence in the several Lists as compared with the order of the books, chapter and verse in the Bible. There can, therefore, be no doubt that these Massorahs proceed from different Schools of textual critics and that they are based upon different recensions of the Hebrew text which were Model Codices of the respective Schools of Massorites. This is, moreover, confirmed by the fact that Lists A, B and E do not specify the number of these anomalies, thus showing that the collection of them had not as yet been completed in the several Schools and that the Lists were still open for additions.

1 On Levit. Numb. 15 24 in the printed Massorah Jacob b. Chayim remarks שמעם אל תרד אל ליהי א. 2 The heading of List E in Orient. 4445 is as follows שמעם אל תרד אל ליהי א. Words which are defective of Aleph in the middle of the verse. This is very remarkable, since five of the twenty-two instances registered in this List are not in the middle of the verse, viz. Levit. 11 43; Deut. 28 57; 2 Sam. 19 14; Mal. 1 14; Ps. 139 20; in one instance the word begins the verse, viz. Ruth 1 14 and in two it actually ends the verse, viz. Numb. 15 24; Deut. 32 32. This shows beyond doubt that the heading was originally absent altogether and that it was added by a later Nakdan who misunderstood the import of this Massorah.

But these by no means exhaust all the instances in the Bible. For, apart from these Lists, which give the anomalies in question more or less according to the order of the books in the Bible, the Massorah registers those which belong to the same root in separate Rubrics, and also catalogues those separately which respectively occur twice, once without Aleph and once with it, as will be seen from the following Lists. The materials, therefore, for a complete List must be gathered from the different Massoretic Rubrics. Thus for instance

Table listing instances of anomalies with Hebrew letters and their corresponding section numbers (e.g., letter ה § 19, letter מ § 712).

These orthographical features, which are not considered anomalies in the Massoretic text, unquestionably exhibit the residue of a mode of spelling which was normal in olden times. This is attested by the Septuagint, which shows that the Aleph was frequently absent from the text from which this version was made, as will be seen from the following examples:

Table comparing MASSORETIC TEXT and SEPTUAGINT for various instances (e.g., Hos. 4 2, Hos. 4 18, Micah 7 2).

We must now advert to the manner in which these words are treated in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916. The List itself does not occur, nor indeed is its existence referred to in this MS. The same is the case with Harley MS. 5710—11, the Massorah of which is in many respects more like that in the St. Petersburg MS. than any other Massorah. It will be seen that no less than twelve words, registered in this Rubric as wanting Aleph, occur in the Latter Prophets of which this MS. consists. On two of the twelve, viz. בְּרָחֵשׁ Isa. 37 12 and נָזַל Mal. 1 14, there is no Massoretic remark whatever in the Massorah Parva of this Codex, two of them, viz. וְהִשְׁתַּחֲוּהוּ Zech. 5 9 and וְהִלָּחֲטוּ Ezek. 11 6, are here written with Aleph, whilst the remaining nine are variously treated, as will be seen from the following List:

Table listing instances of anomalies with Hebrew letters and their corresponding section numbers (e.g., Jerem. 32 35, Jerem. 9 17).

Ps. 139 20, which is given in all the three Lists, constitutes one of the differences between the Easterns and Westerns. The former have יִצְרֵךְ with Aleph in the text. The Quinta, which follows the Western recension, reads it παραταραξαν σε have provoked thee = יִצְרֵךְ, thus showing that the difference originally was not simply orthographical but radical. יִצְרֵךְ too (Ruth 1 14) constitutes one of the differences between the Easterns and Westerns. It is remarkable that, though this anomaly also occurs Jerem. 9 17, the latter does not constitute a difference between these two Schools of textual critics. The treatment of this anomaly in the Massorah Parva is very various. Sometimes it is simply remarked in the margin against the word exhibiting this exception אֵלֶּיּוֹ לֹא יֵצֵא בְּלִי אֶלֶף it does not occur again without Aleph; sometimes בִּי גַּם חֲמִישׁ, twice, thrice, or four times without Aleph, if the word in question exhibiting this anomaly occurs more than once; sometimes חֲמִישׁ אֶלֶף חֲמִישׁ אֶלֶף one of the fifty-one, fifty-four, or fifty-eight words in the Scriptures, which want Aleph; and sometimes there is a Keri on it substituting in the margin the word in question with the Aleph, as will be seen from a reference to the List of the Kethiv and Keri under letter ב, § 480 &c., The Massorah, Vol. II, pp. 65—93.

1 Comp. Vollers, Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft III, 226, Giessen 1883.
2 Comp. The Massorah, letter ח, § 630, Vol. I, p. 697.
3 Comp. The Massorah, letter ח, § 634, Vol. I, p. 697.

§ 15.

Seventeen words have no audible Aleph and are as follows. This List is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 246b, on 1 Chron. 12 38. Of this Rubric I collated fourteen Lists, twelve in MSS, and two printed, as follows: six in Arund. Orient. 16; (I) on שְׁלֵחָה

1 Sam. 1 17, fol. 35a; (II) on עָשָׂה Ezek. 39 26, fol. 192b; (III) on אָמַר Amos 4 10, fol. 206a, where it is given as a contrast to the Rubric tabulating the opposite phenomena; (IV) on שָׁרְיָה 1 Chron. 12 39, fol. 246b; (V) on מְלָצְחוֹת 1 Chron. 28 19, fol. 256a, where it is again given as a contrast to the List registering the phenomena of an opposite nature; (VI) on הִשְׁפִּיחַהּ Neh. 3 13, fol. 380b; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 180a, on שְׁלֵחָה 1 Sam. 1 17; (VIII) Vienna MS. No. 35 on הִשְׁפִּיחַהּ Neh. 3 13; (IX) Cambridge Add. 465 on שְׁלֵחָה 1 Sam. 1 17; (X) the same MS. on שָׁרְיָה 1 Chron. 12 39; (XI) Orient. 2371, fol. 202a, on מְלָצְחוֹת 2 Kings 16 7; (XII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 153, fol. 116a; (XIII) the printed Massorah on מְלָצְחוֹת 2 Kings 16 7, and (XIV) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 199. Though differently headed in the language of the Massorah, yet this Rubric is closely connected with the preceding one, inasmuch as the words herein registered want Aleph. The reason why these instances are grouped together separately is that the words in question only occur once in this anomalous form, and that in all other passages they have respectively an audible Aleph, as will be seen from the following Table:

Table listing instances of anomalies with Hebrew letters and their corresponding section numbers (e.g., שְׁלֵחָה is written שְׁלֵחָה Esther 5 6; 7 2; 9 12).

Two things are evident from the above analysis of these thirteen instances, viz. (1) that each of the words in question is unique in this abnormal form. Hence the heading of this Rubric in the Vienna MS. No. 35 יי בדרין לא מפקין א = sixteen words are unique in not having an audible Aleph, and in Orient. 2371 יי בלין = sixteen words in the Scriptures have no audible Aleph and are without parallel. And (2) that in its normal form each of these words occurs again more than once. Bearing in mind these facts, it will be seen that the other four words, which are given in this Rubric to make up the seventeen, do not belong to this Massorah and have been added by later Massorites, who ignored its proper import. וְהִשְׁתַּחֲוּהוּ (1 Sam. 14 33) the first of these four is indeed written וְהִשְׁתַּחֲוּהוּ without Aleph in List I (Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 35a, 1 Sam. 1 17) and in List IX (Cambridge Add. 465 on 1 Chron. 12 38). In that case it might be loosely contrasted with וְהִשְׁתַּחֲוּהוּ Prov. 8 36, which is also the Kal participle and has audible Aleph. But as all the other thirteen instances are exactly alike in prefixes and suffixes both in the abnormal and normal forms, it can hardly be conceded that the original compiler of this Rubric would here make a solitary exception and contrast the plural form וְהִשְׁתַּחֲוּהוּ with the singular וְהִשְׁתַּחֲוּהוּ, which besides has also Vav conjunctive. Moreover, if this were its contrast, it would not belong to this List, but to the one which registers pairs (see below § 16). This is probably the reason why וְהִשְׁתַּחֲוּהוּ is omitted altogether in the List here marked No. VI. Still more objectionable is יִצְרֵךְ (Ps. 139 20), which is the second of the four words. This abnormal form has no normal parallel at all, and though it is given in Lists Nos. IV, V and IX, it is rightly excluded from the other eleven recensions of this Rubric. It has evidently been inserted in those three Lists to make up the number יי = 17, which some of the headings have. As to the third of the four words, viz. קָרָא Esther 5 12, it is difficult to conceive that the original Massorites, who have collated and registered such minute and exact contrasts in all the other thirteen instances should here contrast this Kal participle passive with קָרָא preterite, third person plural, unless they found the former written without Aleph in their MSS. The fourth word, viz. קָרָא (Ps. 99 6), even if it had been written without Aleph, does not belong to this Massorah, since this form does not occur again with an audible Aleph, and hence is outside the scope of this Rubric. Accordingly there are really only thirteen words which properly belong to this Massorah, the other four words, as is often the case, having been added by later Massorites, who did not comprehend the real import of it. This will also explain the altered heading of this Rubric in the List No. IX which is וְהִשְׁתַּחֲוּהוּ וְהִלָּחֲטוּ וְהִשְׁתַּחֲוּהוּ וְהִלָּחֲטוּ יי בלין לא מפקין א וְהִשְׁתַּחֲוּהוּ וְהִלָּחֲטוּ וְהִשְׁתַּחֲוּהוּ וְהִלָּחֲטוּ

= sixteen words do not sound the Aleph, some of them are written without it and some are written with it. It, moreover, supplies the reason why we find the following addition at the end of this recension of the List ואי האמספח הוא בבלין אמרין and one is of the words in the List. Several of the Lists omit either בבלין (Numb. 11 4), but there is a difference of opinion about some of the words in the List. Several of the Lists omit either בבלין 2 Kings 16 7 or בבלין 1 Chron. 5 26. This is frequently the case in the Massorah when two examples follow each other, which are either alike or resemble one another. In the Massorah Magna \aleph § 5 this Rubric is mentioned as exhibiting the opposite phenomena to the Lists in which the words with audible Aleph are registered, in the following words ולא יתקן א ולי ליתקן on the contrary sixteen words have no audible Aleph, and are unique, the passages are enumerated in 2 Kings chap. 16. The latter part of this sentence is Jacob b. Chayim Ibn Adonijah's own invention, and it hardly needs to be added that the Massorah neither divides Kings into two separate books nor recognizes the divisions into chapters.

ז"ז = § 16a.

\aleph . — Eight words respectively occur twice, the first being without Aleph and the second with Aleph. This List is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 26a, on קמט Gen. 38 27. Hitherto the Massoretic Lists have registered the abnormal forms with Aleph defective without any direct mention of the normal forms, though their occurrence is distinctly implied in the preceding Rubric. Now in the List before us the Massorah restricts itself to words which not only exhibit the same phenomenon of being without Aleph, but which respectively are unique in this abnormal form and have severally a unique companion in the normal form. It will, therefore, be seen that לחט 2 Kings 19 25, which is given both in the former List and in this List, is wrongly put in the former one, since the Massorah registers words which, though unique in their abnormal form, are not unique in their normal form, whereas לחט with Aleph is as much an hapax legomenon as לחט, and hence can properly only belong to this Massorah, the design of which is to register pairs. It is important to note that in the heading בבלין and בבלין in the heading denote the first of the pair and the second of the pair here adduced. This is evident from the import of this Massorah as well as from the order in which these pairs are ranged. In this recension this Massorah occurs nowhere else. In looking at the Rubric it will be seen that the first seven lines only have לי = unique. The reason for this is that in the MS., where they form the first line of the Massorah in the lower margin, the לי in question, as is frequently the case, is placed above each word exhibiting this phenomenon. The close proximity of the remaining lines does not admit of the לי with its long head being placed above the words of this Rubric, which extend to the second and part of the third lines. Hence the peculiar appearance of a part of this Massorah with the Lamed and a part without it. I call attention to this peculiarity here because it is of frequent occurrence, and because the presence of this letter in one part of a Rubric and its absence in the other part of the same Rubric might be interpreted to imply some emphasis.

ז"ח = § 16b.

\aleph . — Four groups of two words each respectively occur twice, the first time without audible Aleph and the second time with audible Aleph. Of this Massorah I collated eleven Lists, eight in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 263b, on לחט 2 Kings 19 25, which is the one I printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 242a, on לחט 1 Chron. 7 1, where it is given as a contrast to the following Rubric; (III) Orient. 2365, fol. 23b, on לחט Gen. 25 24; (IV) Orient. 2375 on לחט 1 Chron. 6 59, where it is likewise given as a contrast to the following Rubric; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 28b, on לחט Gen. 38 27; (VI) the same MS., fol. 261b, on לחט 2 Kings 19 25; (VII) the same MS., fol. 470a, on לחט 1 Chron. 7 1; (VIII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 155; (IX) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 201; (X) the printed Massorah on לחט Gen. 25 24; and (XI) the printed Massorah on לחט 1 Chron. 7 1. In List III the heading is בבלין לחט and בבלין לחט. That בבלין לחט is a clerical error for בבלין לחט is evident from the fact that on לחט Gen. 38 27 the Massorah Parva in the same MS. remarks לחט לחט and לחט לחט respectively § 16b and c with the former one marked § 16a, it will be seen that they are simply different recensions of the same Massorah. It so happens that of the eight pairs which exhibit the phenomenon under discussion, the word without Aleph occurs first, according to sequence of the chapters and the order of the Biblical books, in four of the pairs, whilst in the other four pairs the one with Aleph occurs first. Now it is this principle which guided the Massorites in the division of the List into two Rubrics. As each one of the two members of the respective pairs is spelt differently from its fellow member, the heading of this Massorah in many of the MSS. is four pairs vary in their spelling. Thus for instance in Orient. 2363, Orient. 2350, fol. 60a; Orient. 2365, fol. 23b; Orient. 2348, fol. 52a; Orient. 2349, fol. 42a; on the word לחט Gen. 35 24, the Massorah Parva heads it לחט לחט, whilst Orient. 2365, fol. 46b, on לחט Gen. 46 13, heads it לחט לחט. Though the List exhibited in § 16a is the more simple and hence the older form of this Massorah, yet it is by no means the oldest. From the fact that the Massorah Parva in MS. Orient. 2364, fol. 50b, on לחט Gen. 38 27, remarks לחט לחט two pairs the first member of which has no audible Aleph and the second has audible Aleph, it is evident that originally each pair was respectively made the subject of the Massorah, and that they were afterwards collected and formed into one Rubric.

ז"ט = § 16c.

\aleph . — Four groups of two words each respectively occur twice, the first time with audible Aleph and the second without audible Aleph. As has already been remarked, this Massorah gives the four pairs in which the word with Aleph occurs according to the sequence of the chapters and the order of the books in the Hebrew Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated twenty-three Lists, twenty in MSS. and three printed — (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 152a, on לחט Josh. 21 30; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on לחט Gen. 42 38; (III) Orient. 1379, fol. 104b, on לחט Gen. 42 38; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 53a, also on Gen. 42 38; (V) Orient. 2348, fol. 63a, on the same passage; (VI) Orient. 2363 on the same word; (VII) Orient. 2365, fol. 43a, on the same word; (VIII) Orient. 2350, fol. 94b, on the same word; (IX) Orient. 2212, fol. 166b; (X) Orient. 2375, fol. 274a, where the preceding Rubric, viz. § 16b, is given as a contrast to this one; (XI) Orient. 2376, fol. 117a, all on the word לחט 1 Chron. 6 59; (XII) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 15a, on לחט Josh. 21 30; (XIII) the same MS., fol. 152b, on לחט Jerem. 8 11; (XIV) the same MS., fol. 442b, on לחט 1 Chron. 6 59, where the preceding Rubric, viz. § 16b, is given as the contrast to this Rubric; (XV) Orient. 1471, fol. 167b, on לחט 2 Sam. 23 37; (XVI) Add. 15,451, fol. 159b, on לחט Josh. 21 30; (XVII) Add. 15,451, fol. 470a, on לחט 1 Chron. 7 1, where it is given as a contrast to the former Rubric, viz. § 16b; (XVIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 136a, on לחט Josh. 21 30; (XIX) Add. 15,251, fol. 443a; (XX) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 154; (XXI) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 200; (XXII) the printed Massorah on לחט Gen. 42 38, and (XXIII) the printed Massorah on 1 Chron. 7 1 on לחט, where it is given as a contrast to the preceding Massorah. The headings in the different MSS. of this Massorah greatly differ. Thus for instance: (1) as the phraseology of this Rubric is the same, List XVII heads it לחט לחט four pairs are alike. (2) But though alike in phraseology yet as the members of these pairs differ in spelling, the heading in the same MS. here marked List XVI and List X, has לחט לחט four pairs vary. (3) Moreover, as the variety in spelling of one and the same phrase is a source of misleading to the scribes, who would naturally make them uniform, the Massorah Parva in Orient. 1379, fol. 104b, Orient. 2348, fol. 63a, and Orient. 2349, fol. 53a, on לחט Gen. 42 38, remarks לחט לחט four pairs are misleading. It is to be remarked that this Massorah has a unemnemonic sign. I have found it in the following three different forms:

א. שאל וקרי לחט

Enquire after and call Nahavi the physician.

The four Chaldee words which constitute this sign are a rendering of the four words which exhibit this phenomenon, as will be seen from the following:

3	לחט =	{	לחט	2 Sam. 23 37	לחט	Josh. 21 30
		{	לחט	1 Chron. 11 39	לחט	1 Chron. 6 59
		{	לחט	Jerem. 6 14	לחט	Gen. 42 38
4	אטא =	{	לחט	„ 8 11	לחט	„ 44 29

To give point to the sentence, the Massorites did not reproduce the third instance of this anomaly, but took the proper name לחט Nahavi, which occurs in 1 Chron. 11 39, where the instance לחט without Aleph occurs. This form of the sign, which I have inserted in the text, is the most common. I have found it in ten MSS. and no less than eleven times, (I) and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 15a, on מִשְׁאֵל Josh. 21 30, and fol. 152b on נְהַרְוֹ Jerem. 8 11; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 33a; (IV) Orient. 1379, fol. 104b; (V) Orient. 2348, fol. 63a; (VI) Orient. 2650, fol. 94b; (VII) Vienna MS. No. 25, all on נְהַרְוֹ Gen. 42 38; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 159b, on מִשְׁאֵל Josh. 21 30; (IX) Orient. 2212, fol. 166b; (X) Orient. 2375, fol. 271a; and (XI) Orient. 2376, fol. 117a, all on הַבְּרִיָּה 1 Chron. 11 39.

II. שָׂאֵל יִקְרָא לְחַרְוִים אִשָּׁא

Saul will call in the physician to the sneezers.

This sentence is obtained in the same way as the former, only that the Massoretic School from which it proceeds have translated the proper name in accordance with the meaning of the root. When it is borne in mind that the Hebrews exclaim אִשָּׁא when one sneezes in their presence, the play upon the import of the proper name נְהַרְוֹ will be appreciated. Indeed we should have assigned the same sense to the former recension of this mnemonic sign, but for the fact that לְחַרְוִי is expressly pointed with Pathach in some of the MSS., thus showing that those who made the sign did not intend it as the plural, but as a proper name. Two MSS. have this recension, (I) Orient. 2363, fol. 43a, and (II) Orient. 2365, fol. 43a, both on נְהַרְוֹ Gen. 42 38. And

III. קָרָא מִיִּשְׁאֵל לְחַרְוִי אִשָּׁא

Mishael called Nahari the physician.

This recension I have only found in the printed Massorah, where it occurs twice, once in the Massorah Parva on נְהַרְוֹ Gen. 42 38 and once in the Massorah Magna on נְהַרְוֹ 1 Chron. 7 1.

§ 17a.

§. — The following words are unique with audible Aleph. To understand the import of this Massorah it is necessary to exhibit in parallel columns the abnormal words which constitute it, with the same words in their normal state:

- | | | | | |
|----|-----------------|------------------------|-----------------|--|
| 1 | עֲנֵאֵכֶם | is | עֲנֵיכֶם | Exod. 10 24; Deut. 12 6 etc. with ם and ם transposed |
| 2 | אֲבִינֵאֵכֶם | „ | אֲבִינֵיכֶם | 1 Chron. 6 8, 22; 9 19 |
| 3 | הַקְּבִיאֵי | „ | הַקְּבִיאֵי | Gen. 42 20; Numb. 20 12 etc. without Dagesh in א. |
| 4 | וַיִּזְרְעֵהוּ | „ | וַיִּזְרְעֵהוּ | Deut. 4 34; 5 15 etc. |
| 5 | בְּלוֹאֵי | „ | בְּלוֹי | Jerom. 38 11, 11 |
| 6 | בָּאֵשׁ | „ | בָּאֵשׁ | Isa. 34 3; Joel 2 20 |
| 7 | בְּבִלְאֵבוֹת | „ | בְּבִלְבוֹת | Dan. 11 9; Ezra 7 1; 8 1. |
| 8 | אִשִּׁי | „ | אִשִּׁי | 1 Chron. 2 12; 2 Chron. 11 18 etc. |
| 9 | בְּבִלְאֵבוֹת | has no proper parallel | | |
| 10 | הַתְּקַבִּימִים | is | הַתְּקַבִּימִים | Neh. 4 1; 2 Chron. 21 16 etc. |
| 11 | נִאֲחֵה | „ | נִאֲחֵה | Ps. 33 1; 147 1 etc. |
| 12 | אֲרִיִּי | „ | אֲרִיִּי | Isa. 51 5; 63 5; Ps. 89 22 |
| 13 | בְּמֵאוֹת | „ | בְּמֵאוֹת | Neh. 12 47; 13 10 |
| 14 | בְּמֵאוֹת | „ | בְּמֵאוֹת | 2 Sam. 18 22 |
| 15 | אֲשִׁינִים | „ | אֲשִׁנִּים | Jerem. 25 4; 29 19 etc. |

To this we must add the two additional instances from the second recension of this List marked § 17b, viz.

- | | | | | |
|----|----------|----|----------|----------------------------|
| 16 | הַרְרִי | is | הַרְרִי | 1 Kings 11 14, 19, 21 etc. |
| 17 | רְבֵמוֹת | „ | רְבֵמוֹת | Ezra 2 69; Neh. 7 71. |

Now on comparing the abnormal forms with the normal ones, it will be seen that the contrast is not between an audible and silent Aleph, since the words in question exhibit in their normal form no less than seven different features. Thus eight of the words, here marked Nos. 2, 4, 5, 7, 8, 10, 12 and 17, are regularly written without Aleph altogether; two marked Nos. 15 and 16 are regularly written with He, one marked No. 13 is normally written with Yod, one marked No. 1 has the Aleph and Nun transposed, and one (viz. No. 8) has in its normal form no Dagesh in the Aleph, one (viz. No. 9) has no proper parallel. Hence there are only three words out of the whole List, viz. those marked Nos. 6, 11 and 14, which have an inaudible Aleph in their regular forms, and of which it can be said that the contrast is between an audible and inaudible Aleph. The meaning of the Massorah, therefore, is that fifteen words according to the one recension, or seventeen according to the other, are severally written in one instance with audible Aleph, while in all other instances they have no Aleph at all, or are written with He or Yod instead of Aleph, or, in the few cases where they have the Aleph, it is inaudible. Hence the different Massoretic remarks in the Massorah Parva on the respective words. Thus the Massorah Parva in Orient. 2365, fol. 117a, on

בְּרֵאשִׁי Levit. 23 17, remarks רֵישׁ בְּרֵישׁ it is four times with Dagesh; Orient. 2365, fol. 161a, on לְנִאֲחֵה, remarks מִן קָרִים לְנִאֲחֵה Nun and Aleph are transposed; Orient. 2210, fol. 140a; Orient. 2369, fol. 141a, on אֲרִי 1 Kings 11 17, remark לִי יִחַד unique and with Pathach. This recension, which is manifestly old, since it does not as yet fix the number of these instances, is to be found in the MSS. from Yemen. As here printed, it is taken from Orient. 1379, fol. 306a, on לְנִאֲחֵה Numb. 32 24. Exactly the same List is to be found in Orient. 2348, fol. 180b, and Orient. 2349, fol. 120b, on the same word. The absence of catchwords and the remark לִי מִיָּקִים אֵלֶיךָ unique with audible Aleph after each word show that the Rubric is compiled from the Massorah Parva on the respective passages.

§ 17b.

§. — Seventeen words have audible Aleph. The difference between this recension and the former consists not only in the fact that it gives two more instances, viz. אֲרִי 1 Kings 11 17 and רְבֵמוֹת Dan. 11 12, but in definitely fixing the number of these anomalies at seventeen. Of this recension I collated seventeen Lists, fourteen in MSS. and three printed — (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 116b, on בָּאֵשׁ Amos 4 10 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 47b, on אֲבִינֵיכֶם Exod. 6 24; (III) Arund. Orient., fol. 206a, on אֲרִי Amos 4 10; (IV) the same MS., fol. 256a, on בְּבִלְאֵבוֹת 1 Chron. 28 19; (V) the same MS., fol. 308a, on אֲרִי Ps. 93 5; (VI) the same MS., fol. 380b, on הַקְּבִיאֵי Neh. 3 13, where it is given as a contrast to § 15; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on אֲבִינֵיכֶם Exod. 6 24; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 144, on the same word; (IX) Add. 21,161, fol. 65b, on אֲרִי 1 Kings 11 17; (X) Add. 15,451, fol. 47b, on אֲבִינֵיכֶם Exod. VI 24; (XI) the same MS., fol. 116a, on לְנִאֲחֵה Numb. 32 24; (XII) the same MS., fol. 469a, on אֲרִי 1 Chron. 2 13; (XIII) Orient. 2376, fol. 113b, on the same word; (XIV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 152; (XV) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 198; (XVI) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, fol. 210a, on אֲרִי Hag. 1 13, and (XVII) the printed Massorah Finalis letter א § 4. But though this Rubric is one of the most ancient constituent parts of the Massorah, as is seen from the fact that it is to be found both in Orient. 4445 and in the St. Petersburg Codex, it simply represents a certain class of textual critics who founded it upon the Model Codices of their respective School. This is evident from the fact that certain MSS., which have this Massoretic Rubric, not only write the very words in question differently from the Rule, but have different Massoretic canons, thus showing the traces of two or more different recensions of the text. Thus Add. 21,161, one of the most ancient and most valuable MSS. in the British Museum, which gives this Rubric (see No. IX), nevertheless reads in Jerem. 25 3 הַקְּבִיאֵי, and though the scribe who annotated this Codex put a Yod over the word between the Caph and Mem, viz. הַקְּבִיאֵי, the Massorah Parva simply remarks against it " the Yod is redundant and no attempt was made to correct the He into an Aleph in harmony with this Massoretic Rule. In Jerem. 32 21 the original reading here exhibited is בְּמֵאוֹת, but a later scribe who followed the Rubric before us put the Aleph above the word and made it בְּמֵאוֹת. In Jerem. 38 12 the reading is בְּמֵאוֹת as in verse 11, and the Massorah Parva remarks against both passages וּבְרֵאשִׁי read וּבְרֵאשִׁי with two Yods at the end, which is quite at variance with our Massoretic Rubric. The St. Petersburg Codex too has בְּלוֹי in the text, and the Massorah Parva remarks against it לִי בְּלוֹי unique it is written בְּלוֹי. It is also to be remarked that the Massorah Parva of the St. Petersburg Codex on בְּבִלְאֵבוֹת Hag. 1 13 has it מִן יוֹמֵי בְּרֵאשִׁי unique with audible Aleph, it is of the seventeen words which have Dagesh in the Aleph, and not only has the Aleph actually Dagesh in the text, viz. בְּבִלְאֵבוֹת, but in the Massorah Magna, where the Rubric is given, every one of the seventeen words which constitute it has Dagesh in the Aleph, thus affording another proof that the different Massoretic Schools had different rules for Dageshing this letter (see above § 5). I must add that Ps. 93 5 is pointed אֲרִי with Pathach under the Nun in Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 21,161, Add. 15,451, Orient. 2201, Orient. 2374, Orient. 2375, Orient. 2376; whilst Harley 5710—11, Add. 15,260 and Orient. 1475 have it אֲרִי, and no Chataph Pathach under the Aleph. The addition of אֲרִי Job. 33 21 to this Massorah, which is to be found in the Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal introduced with the remark וְלִבְרַת מַסְמְרָתָא and apart from this Massorah, proceeds from a later editor who mistook the import of this Rubric.

§ 18a.

§. — Eight words in the book of Samuel are written in the text with Aleph in the middle, but are read without it. Though these eight words are thus included under the same heading as having severally a superfluous Aleph, it must not be understood that the Massorah Parva in the different MSS. has the same remark against each of them. In some MSS. it is remarked against these words לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ the Aleph is superfluous, in some לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ the Aleph is not to be read, and in some the word is repeated in the spelling as it should be read. Thus for instance on וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה 1 Sam. 18 29, Add. 465 Cambridge University Library; Add. 15,250 British Museum have לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ unique in this spelling; Arund. Orient. 16, Harley 5710—11, Harley 5720 and Add. 15,251 have לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ read לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ, they thus not only cancel the Aleph, but substitute Vav for it, whilst the printed Massorah Parva makes no remark whatever on this word. The same is the case with וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה. Here there is not only a Keri against all the three passages where it occurs, but the Keri substitutes Vav for the Aleph, viz. וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה. Those three instances are also the subject of a special Massorah. Add. 21,161, which is one of the oldest and most valuable MSS. in the British Museum reads וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה in 2 Sam. 11 1. The scribe, however, who supplied it with the Massorah, put an Aleph on the top of the word וַיִּשְׁמַע, and remarked against it לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ the Aleph is superfluous, unique. That this Rubric exhibits the earliest attempt to catalogue these anomalies, is evident from the fact that the Massorites have here restricted themselves to one book. In this original form I have only been able to find this List in the Yemen MSS. I collated five Lists of it: (I) Orient. 1471, fol. 117b, which is here printed; (II) Orient. 2210, fol. 77b; (III) Orient. 2869, fol. 70a; (IV) Orient. 2870, fol. 85a, and (V) Orient. 2871, fol. 90b, all on וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה 1 Sam. 18 29. It is very remarkable that they all give וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה as the reading in 2 Sam. 23 20, whereas the text is here וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה. The five MSS., however, really amount only to one, since these Yemen MSS. are exact copies of each other.

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ו, § 81, Vol. I, p. 165.

§ 18b.

N. — Forty-eight words have Aleph in the middle, but are read without it. This List is an expansion of the former Rubric. It registers the same anomalies throughout the whole Hebrew Bible. Though I have hitherto only been able to find a separate List for the books of Samuel, there can hardly be any doubt that the Massorites at first sought out and catalogued these abnormal forms in each book separately, and that the fusion of all the separate Lists into one Rubric is a later development. We have already noticed this plan, upon which the Massorites originally worked, in § 14. The conversion, however, of the different Lists into one general Rubric must have been effected at an early period, since it is already given both in Orient. 4445, fols. 45b—46a and in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, fol. 218a, and is mentioned in Add. 21,161, fol. 177a, on וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה Ps. 89 11.

Of this Massorah I collated fourteen Lists, eight in MSS. and five printed as follows: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 87a, on וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה Exod. 5 7, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 128a, on וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה Isa. 10 13; (III) the same MS., fol. 218a, on וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה Nah. 2 11; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 210a, on וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה 2 Sam. 10 17; (V) the same MS., fol. 886b, on וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה Ezek. 43 27; (VI) the same MS., fol. 478a, on וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה 1 Chron. 11 22; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 441b, at the end; (VIII) Halle Oehlsh Ve-Oehlsh I, § 86; (IX) Paris Oehlsh Ve-Oehlsh, § 108; (X) St. Petersburg Codex, fol. 218a, on וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה Zech. 11 5; (XI) Orient. 4445, fols. 45b—46a, on וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה Exod. 5 7; (XII) the printed Massorah in the square enclosing the word וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה Ezek. 1 1; (XIII) the same in the square surrounding the word וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה Job. 1 1, and (XIV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 7.

To show how the words constituting this Rubric are treated in the MSS., I cannot do better than exhibit in parallel columns the Massorah Parva of the two oldest Codices against each of them. As no less than twenty out of the forty-eight anomalies occur in the Latter Prophets, I give the text of the St. Petersburg Codex which embraces this portion of the Hebrew Scriptures. The blank against the words in this Codex indicates that it has no Massoretic remark against them, whilst the dots in Add. 21,161 show that the text here is wanting.

	H. M. ADD. 21,161	ST. PETERSBURG CODEX
Jerem. 30 16	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	7
" 51 9	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	8
Ezek. 9 4	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	9
" 16 57	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	10
" 23 6	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	11
" 24 24	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	12
" 39 2	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	13
" 43 27	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	14
" 47 8	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	15
IIos. 4 6	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	16
" 10 14	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	17
" 14	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	18
Jool. 2 6	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	19
Zech. 11 5	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	20

It will be seen from the above Table (1) that all the twenty words have Aleph in the text of the oldest dated Codex; (2) that fourteen out of these twenty anomalies are treated as Kethiv and Keri, which are here indicated in two ways, one by giving the variant in the margin with the remark ק = read so, which is the usual way, and the other by simply giving the questionable letter with the remark לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ = not read. That these two modes of expression mean identically the same thing, both indicating a Keri, is evident from Nos. 7 and 9, where, as will be seen from the Table, they are interchangeably used in the two Codices; and (3) that five words with this anomaly have not the redundant letter marked, but are simply described as unique (לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ), whilst one word (No. 11) is not noticed by the Massorites at all. In Codex 21,161, however, the whole treatment is different. Out of the ten instances, which this important fragment contains, three are written in the text without the redundant letter (Nos. 7, 9, 16), which, however, the Massorites placed in each case above the word with the remark in the margin that it is not to be read. No. 7 again, which is simply marked as unique (לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ) in the St. Petersburg Codex, has here against it a Keri (לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ), whilst exactly the reverse is the case in No. 19. There can, therefore, be no doubt that these two recensions proceed from two different Schools as the two Massorahs cannot be fused.

The design of this Rubric is to catalogue the words which have inadvertently received Aleph when the Scribes gradually inserted this letter in certain expressions in harmony with the later development of Hebrew orthography (see above § 15). The List is, therefore, by no means to be regarded as exhaustive and the statement in the heading that there are forty-eight examples must be taken as simply referring to the number given in this Rubric. That this Massorah is only an attempt to register the anomalies in question and that it was intended to be gradually completed by successive Massorites as is often the case, is evident both from its arrangement and the subsequent additions contained in the different recensions of it. The form in which I have printed it exhibits the oldest recension. This is evident both from its order and catchwords, which are identical with the recension of this Massorah in the St. Petersburg Codex dated A. D. 916 as far as the passages are here enumerated. After stating that this Rubric contains forty-eight such instances, this Codex simply gives the first twenty-three, skips over twenty-two, and concludes by giving the three instances at the end with the remark עַד סוּף = etc. Now the order in which these twenty-three instances are enumerated is exactly the same as that of the Massorah which I have printed. Moreover, in eighteen out of the twenty-three instances the St. Petersburg Codex gives the anomalous expressions by themselves without any catchword to indicate the passages in which they occur, whilst in five instances (2 Sam. 23 15, 16, 20; Jerem. 2 13, 13) it gives catchwords of single expressions and omits the anomalies themselves. This is exactly the case in the Rubric which I have printed, but not in any of the other eleven Lists which I have collated. There can, therefore, be no doubt that the Rubric, as I have printed it, exhibits the oldest recension of this Massorah. Now on carefully examining the order in which the anomalies are enumerated it will be seen that this Massorah originally concluded with וַיִּשְׁמַע יְהוָה (Neh. 13 16), and that the ten instances which follow are out of their regular order and hence are additions by later Massorites, who tried gradually to develop the List. This is, moreover, confirmed by the fact that in seven out of the ten Lists which

	H. M. ADD. 21,161	ST. PETERSBURG CODEX
Isa. 10 13	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	1
" 38	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	2
" 30 5	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	3
" 41 25	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	4
Jerem. 2 13	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	5
" 13	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	לֹא יִרְדּוּ הַיְיָ	6

contain it, concludes the Rubric (Nos. II, III, IV, VIII, IX, XI, XII).

It is this unfinished state of this Massorah which accounts for the circumstance that some Lists omit instances which the other Lists have, whilst some Lists have appended to them words which are not to be found in other recensions. Thus Table listing omissions and additions for Lists No. II through XIII, with columns for List No., Hebrew text, and reference (e.g., Ezek. 28 26, 2 Sam. 23 15).

In the second edition of the Rabbinic Bible (Venice 1548-49) the editor of Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah has wrongly omitted...

§ 19.

§ 19. — An alphabetical List of words ending in Aleph which respectively occur only once. This List, which contains 628 words...

Omissions:

Table of omissions with columns for Hebrew text, reference (e.g., Ezra 4 13, 1 Chron. 11 2), and another reference.

The following 6 words occur more than once:

Table of words occurring more than once, with columns for Hebrew text and reference (e.g., 2 Kings 12 21, 2 Sam. 17 27).

The following are typographical errors:

Table of typographical errors with columns for Hebrew text, reference (e.g., Dan. 7 19, 3 Sam. 2 Sam.), and correction.

Table comparing Hebrew text with English translation (e.g., 'should be' and 'should be') and references (e.g., 3 Sam., Judg. 19 25).

§ 20.

§ 20. — Twelve words have a superfluous Aleph at the end. Of this Massorah I collated twenty-five different Lists, eighteen in MSS. and seven printed, viz. (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 144a...

Though all the twenty-five Massorahs catalogue the same phenomenon, yet the headings which describe it exhibit no less than eight different forms of describing it.

- List of headings for No. XVIII to No. XXV, describing various forms of the superfluous Aleph phenomenon.

Equally divergent is the manner in which the twelve words constituting this Rubric are treated in the Massorah Parva.

At the end of the List here marked No. XII a later editor, who mistook the import of this Massorah, added יבכתי רבקה...

According to Ewald (Lehrbuch, § 16, 3), the Aleph is designedly added at the end of these words to the final ʾ, ʔ and ʿ in order to impart special emphasis to the final syllable...

1 See The Massorah, letter ʿ, § 50, Vol. II, p. 106. 2 See The Massorah, letter ʿ, § 358, Vol. II, p. 285.

them are to be found in the very books which contain these isolated phenomena. Thus for instance קָלַבּ the Kal preterite third person plural not only occurs thirty-nine times without an Aleph at the end, but has not this supposed emphatic Aleph in the other two passages in Joshua (2 5; 5 6). The same is the case with קָלַי which besides the passage in question occurs five times, of which no less than three instances are in this very book (1 Sam. 25 18; 2 Sam. 17 28, 28) without the Aleph. This is also the case with קָלַי the Kal preterite third person plural which is not only without the Aleph at the end in all the other passages where it occurs (Judg. 19 25; 20 13; 1 Sam. 15 9; 22 17; Ezek. 20 8; Prov. 1 30), but is written without it in this very book (Isa. 30 9; 42 24). Still more remarkable is the case with the word קָלַי. This expression is only to be found in Daniel, where besides the anomaly in question it occurs thirteen times (Dan. 1 7; 2 49; 3 12, 13, 14, 16, 19, 20, 22, 28, 26, 26, 30) and no less than eleven times in the very chapter where this abnormal form occurs. Is it conceivable that the final Aleph which is to impart this 'emphasis should have been omitted in all other instances, that it should not even have been appended to these self-same words when they occur in the same books, and that a solitary instance should have been selected from twelve passages in the very same chapter to exhibit the supposed emphasis?

A careful examination of the facts will show that the Aleph in all these twelve passages been introduced into the text has inadvertently, and that the Massorah rightly indicates it by the remark אַל־פִּי הַיָּדָא the Aleph is superfluous and is to be cancelled. In Numb. 13 9 the word קָמַח which does not occur again in the Bible as we are here assured, was written without Aleph. The word now ends the verse and there can hardly be any doubt that it originally also stood at the end of the line. This was also the case with the other eleven words. An examination of the MSS. will show that Aleph is one of the letters frequently employed by the Scribes to fill out the line when the last word in it does not come up evenly to the margin. It is this Aleph, therefore, used for spacing out the line which a later Scribe joined to the words in question. This is confirmed by the fact that many MSS. have not the Aleph in these twelve words. Those Massoretic Schools, however, who in their recensions found the Aleph at the end of the words in question were too scrupulous to remove it and they satisfied themselves by simply remarking that it is superfluous or that, though in the text, it is not to be read as part of the text, and is to be cancelled.¹

¹ Hence Professor Kautsch in his last edition of Gesenius (Grammar § 23, 3, Note 3, p. 78) rightly regards the Aleph in these words as exhibiting an old scribal error.

⌘ — § 21.

⌘. — Ten words are written with Aleph at the end of the word and they have no parallel; or, as the recension of Rubric 21b heads it, The following words have no parallel being written with

List II.

	Gen.	36 41; 1 Kings 16 6 etc.	אָלַי (I)
	"	11 31; 12 6; 20 1; 24 62 etc.	אָרְצָא (II)
	"	12 10; Exod. 25 36 etc.	קָמַח (III)
	Ps.	90 5; Prov. 6 4 etc.	אָרְצָא (IV)
	Gen.	24 5, 8; Deut. 13 9 etc.	אָרְצָא (V)
	2 Kings	19 32; Isa. 28 9 etc.	אָרְצָא (VI)
	Gen.	18 33; 24 15 etc.	אָרְצָא (VII)
	2 Sam.	2 26; Ezek. 27 30	אָרְצָא (VIII)
	2 Kings	5 12; Isa. 66 16 etc.	אָרְצָא (IX)
	Ezra	4 22; 7 23	אָרְצָא (X)
	Josh.	15 57; 18 29 etc.	אָרְצָא (XI)
	2 Kings	12 2; 2 Chron. 24 1	אָרְצָא (XII)
	2 Kings	15 30; Hos. 1 1 etc.	אָרְצָא (XIII)

Aleph at the end of the word. The design of this Massorah is to catalogue those words which respectively occur only once with Aleph at the end and which in all other passages where they occur are severally written with He at the end. That this is the import of the Massorah before us and that it is not designed merely to give the unique words ending with Aleph is evident from the fact that there are no less than 628 words which end with Aleph (see above Rubric 19), whilst all the combined six recensions of the Rubric before us only yield twenty-two words. It is equally certain that this Massorah restricts itself to those words which occur in the other parts of the Bible more than once with He at the end. For those which severally occur only once again ending with He belong to the List of words which constitute pairs, once with Aleph at the end and once with He at the end. Hence these words not only form a separate Massorah (see below ⌘, § 23), but are not given in the List before us.

This Massorah is of rarer occurrence than the one constituting Rubric 20. For whilst there are twenty-five Lists of Rubric 20 in the MSS. and in the printed Massorah, there are only six Lists of this Massorah in the same Codices and printed editions, viz. (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 89b, on אָרְצָא Ezek. 31 5 which I have printed as No. 21a; (II) Orient. 1379, fol. 269a, on אָרְצָא Numb. 12 13 which I have also printed as No. 21b; (III) Orient. 2848, fol. 118a, also on אָרְצָא Numb. 12 3; (IV) Orient. 2365, fol. 137b, on אָרְצָא Numb. 11 20; (V) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah, fol. 51b, in the upper margin, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis letter ⌘, § 9. The six Lists, however, exhibit different recensions and proceed from different Massoretic Schools, as will be seen both from the wording of the several headings and the variations in the contents.

No. I י' מלין בדי א' בבו תיב' ול' כוחה (1)
Ten words are written with Aleph at the end of the word and have no parallel;

Nos. II and III אַל־פִּי ליה בדי א' אלא בבו חבה (2)
The following words have no parallel being written with Aleph at the end of the word;

No. IV אַל־פִּי בדי א' אלא בבו חבה ליה בדי (3)
The following are written with Aleph at the end of the word having no parallel;

No. V י"ג מלין בדי א' חמה ה' (4)
Thirteen words are written with Aleph instead of He;

No. VI אַל־פִּי דמשמש א' בבו חבה וכל חר' ליה רבי' (6)
The following words which take Aleph at the end of the word have each one of them no parallel.

Still more varied are the contents of these Lists, as will be seen from the following table. The numbers in each column show the order in which the respective instances are enumerated in the several Lists, whilst the asterisks indicate that the word in question is not given in it.

List I.

	No. VI	No. V	No. IV	No. III	No. II	No. I
Numb. 11 20	1	1	1	6	5	1	אָרְצָא	1
" 12 13	*	*	2	1	1	*	רָמַח	2
" 32 37	2	2	7	7	6	2	אָרְצָא	3
1 Kings 4 18	4	3	8	8	7	4	אָרְצָא	4
" 18 9	3	12	*	*	*	*	אָרְצָא	5
Ezek. 31 5	5	4	6	5	4	5	אָרְצָא	6
" 36 5	13	*	*	*	*	*	אָרְצָא	7
" 41 15	*	*	5	4	3	*	אָרְצָא	8
Ps. 127 2	7	7	11	10	9	7	אָרְצָא	9
Prov. 1 10	15	*	*	*	*	*	אָרְצָא	10
" 11 23	14	*	*	*	*	*	אָרְצָא	11
" 16 30	17	*	*	*	*	*	אָרְצָא	12
Job 38 11	6	6	12	13	12	10	אָרְצָא	13
Ruth 1 20	12	13	4	3	*	*	אָרְצָא	14
Lament. 3 12	10	10	10	12	11	9	אָרְצָא	15
Dan. 11 44	9	9	*	11	10	8	אָרְצָא	16
Ezra 3 11	*	*	*	*	13	*	אָרְצָא	17
" 6 8	8	8	13	14	*	11	אָרְצָא	18
1 Chron. 3 49	11	11	*	*	*	3	אָרְצָא	19
" 5 26	16	*	*	*	*	*	אָרְצָא	20
" 8 9	*	*	3	2	2	*	אָרְצָא	21
" 11 44	*	5	9	9	8	6	אָרְצָא	22

By comparing the two tables marked Nos. I and II it will be seen that there are properly only thirteen words which occur once with Aleph at the end which in all other passages of the Bible end with He, and that the heading in List No. IV is perfectly correct in fixing this number though some of the instances adduced are incorrect. Of the remaining nine words three, viz. וְהָיָה and וְהָיָה have no parallel at all ending with ה and have manifestly been added by later redactors who mistook the import of this Massorah. Two, viz. לִקְרָא contrasted with וְהָיָה (Exod. 30 9; Lévit. 10 1 etc.) and וְהָיָה with וְהָיָה (Jerem. 32 2, 8, 12 etc.) and לִקְרָא (1 Sam. 20 30; Job 16 12), would exhibit too forced a parallel since the expressions which are here compared are those that are spelled exactly alike. Whilst the remaining four words, viz. וְהָיָה which only occurs once with ה at the end (Ps. 60 4, see letter ה, § 427), וְהָיָה which only occurs once with ה at the end (Jerem. 48 34) the other instances being וְהָיָה with Vav conjunctive (Numb. 32 3; Isa. 15 4; 16 9), וְהָיָה which also occurs only once with ה at the end (Josh. 18 8, see letter ז, § 47), and וְהָיָה which likewise only occurs once ending with ה (Ps. 8 5, see letter ה, § 356), belong to another Massorah which catalogues these pairs once with Aleph and once with He and which gives three out of the four instances in question (see below מ, § 23). We have only to add that וְהָיָה in Rubric 21a can only refer to 2 Chron. 13 2 which is the sole passage where וְהָיָה is preceded by וְהָיָה. As it is, however, here written with ה at the end and, moreover, as 1 Chron. 2 49 is the single instance where it occurs with מ, it is evident that the Massorite copyist has attached to it a wrong catchword. This is frequently the case, as will be seen in the course of this Volume. A similar mistake occurs in this List in the printed Massorah where the catchword for וְהָיָה is given וְהָיָה (Ezra 4 22) whereas it should be וְהָיָה (ibid. 6 8) as the MSS. rightly have it.

כי"ב - § 22a.

X. — Words which end with Aleph. This Massorah which catalogues the Chaldee words in Daniel, Ezra and Nehemiah written with Aleph or He at the end and have There, I have printed from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 364b, on וְהָיָה Dan. 2 9. The heading which is in brackets I have added in accordance with the remark at the end to indicate its position here. Of all the MSS. I have collated it is the only one in which this Rubric occurs. It will be seen that whilst וְהָיָה is repeated twice in this List, וְהָיָה which belongs to it is entirely omitted. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that the one here marked Dan. 2 2 is a clerical error for וְהָיָה Ezra 6 11. The word here printed וְהָיָה does not occur in the Bible. The MS., however, may be read וְהָיָה as the ב and ; are so much alike. But as this expression also does not occur it is probably a clerical error for וְהָיָה Dan. 7 15. The Massoretic Rule in the printed Massorah on Dan. 2 9 which corresponds to the Rubric is as follows:

Ezra 5 2, 17; 6 8	וְהָיָה	Dan. 2 21	וְהָיָה
" 5 15; 6 3	וְהָיָה	" 2 9	וְהָיָה
" 5 8, 16	וְהָיָה	" 6 18; 7 23	וְהָיָה
" 4 13, 16, 21	וְהָיָה	Ezra 5 3	וְהָיָה

כלתון כתיב מ' בסוף חזיונות

As the word וְהָיָה with which this List begins in the printed Massorah of Jacob b. Chayim does not occur, and as the word with which it begins in the MS. is וְהָיָה which does occur and belongs to this Rubric, the former is manifestly a clerical error for the latter. It will be seen that in the printed Massorah וְהָיָה Dan. 7 24 and וְהָיָה Ezra 6 11 are omitted. Dr. Baer in his edition of Daniel, Ezra and Nehemiah remarks on וְהָיָה Dan. 2 21 "Cum Zere et Baer, auctore Masora quae praecipit: וְהָיָה ענה בנה. ישאג חשוא לבנא למבנא. יתבא. מתבא. חתבא. כלתון א כתיב וקצן (ארי): ענה בנה. וְהָיָה חשוא לבנא למבנא. יתבא. מתבא. חתבא. כלתון א כתיב. (Appendices criticae et massoreticae, p. 65, Leipzig 1882)." This recension not only contains two instances more of words ending with He (וְהָיָה), but makes the import of the Rubric more plain by the addition of the expression וְהָיָה. But as Dr. Baer does not state where he found this Massorah, it is difficult to say whether he compiled it himself or found it so in a MS.

כי"ב - § 22b.

X. — This Rubric treats of Chaldee words which end with Aleph or He and have Kametz. I have only found one List of it in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 366b, on וְהָיָה Dan. 3 24 which I have printed. The word here printed וְהָיָה ought to be וְהָיָה with the accent Zakeph Katon which is not only the reading in the text of this Codex (Arund. Orient. 16), but of the following MSS. Harley 5710-11; Add. 21,161 one of the oldest and most important Codices; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; Orient. 2212; Bomberg ed. 1524-25. The two Codices in the British Museum which have the accent (Orient. 2201, Orient. 2376) also point it וְהָיָה Infinitive Pael. וְהָיָה Dan. 7 16 which is here omitted may be included under וְהָיָה. The Massoretic Rule in the printed Massorah on Dan. 3 29 which corresponds to it is as follows:

Ezra 5 14	וְהָיָה כתיב די בית	Dan. 3 26	וְהָיָה
" 6 5	וְהָיָה כתיב בית אלהא	" 3 6, 11, 15, 21, 23, 24	וְהָיָה
" 7 18	וְהָיָה די עלך ועל אחר	" 3 25; 4 7	וְהָיָה
	וכל עשבו	" 3 24; 6 18	וְהָיָה
	כתבא כתיב מ' במ"ב כתיב ה' וספי	" 7 19	וְהָיָה
Dan. 5 7	די יקרה כתבא	" 6 18, 24, 25	וְהָיָה
" 5 15	די כתבא רנה יקרה	" 6 17, 20, 21	וְהָיָה
" 2 9	קרה	" 3 22	וְהָיָה
" 2 6	הקנה	Ezra 6 8	וְהָיָה
" 4 8, 17, 30	קרה		כלתון כתיב מ' בסוף
	כלתון כתיב ה'		וְהָיָה כתיב מ' בסוף כתיב ה' וספי

It will be seen that the two Massorahs, though treating of the same phenomenon, exhibit two distinct recensions and have been formulated in different Massoretic Schools. The portion of this Massorah which embraces וְהָיָה gold, also constitutes a separate Rubric.¹ As a specimen how the printed Massorah of Jacob b. Chayim suffered through successive editors we refer to the fact that in the second (Venice 1548) and third editions (Venice 1568) the two catchwords which indicate the word וְהָיָה and which are correctly given in the first edition (Venice 1524-25) are erroneously curtailed and fused into one וְהָיָה רנה יקרה. This mistake is not only reproduced in Buxtorf's edition (Basel 1618-19), but another is added to it, viz. וְהָיָה Dan. 2 9 is altered into וְהָיָה (Jerem. 10 11; Dan. 2 10; 3 29).

¹ See The Massorah, letter ו, § 118, Vol. I, p. 227.

כי"ב - § 22c.

X. — Of this Massorah I have only been able to find one List in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 367b, on וְהָיָה Dan. 4 15. With the exception of וְהָיָה (Dan. 2 37) and וְהָיָה (Dan. 7 2; Ezra 4 10; 5 8) this Rubric catalogues those words ending with Aleph or He which are preceded by Resh. The word וְהָיָה which I have printed without vowel-points and with a mark of interrogation is probably designed to give the second instance of וְהָיָה (Dan. 5 18) which occurs twice, the first instance (Dan. 2 37) having already been adduced in this List. וְהָיָה which is here an integral part of the List is also the subject of a separate Massorah.¹ Baer's declaration with regard to וְהָיָה that I have mistaken its import since I pointed it וְהָיָה, whereas it ought to be וְהָיָה as this Massorah treats of Aramaic expressions is unjust. This quadriliteral with He at the end occurs only once in the Bible where it is pointed וְהָיָה (Prov. 6 8), as I give it, whereas וְהָיָה as it is printed by Baer it occurs neither in the Hebrew nor in the Chaldee of the Massoretic text. Absolutely incorrect is his statement that I have taken this Massorah from Codex Erfurt No. 1.² The Massorah in question, as I have already stated, is from Arund. Orient. 16 on Dan. 4 15, fol. 367b.

To this Massorah I have now to add the following Rubric from Codex Erfurt No. 1:

Dan. 6 4	וְהָיָה רעשה	Dan. 3 5	וְהָיָה קרשא
" 7 21	וְהָיָה קרב	" 3 13	וְהָיָה
"	אלף לחדראו אלה לטורא הוי	" 4 11	וְהָיָה קרשא
		" 4 23	וְהָיָה

The same Codex:³

Ezra 5 16	כתרעין אנהת	כל אנהת דיקא כלתון כתיב אלה
" 7 26	רנה לחא כתעבר מנה	בר מ' ב' וספינתון

¹ See The Massorah, letter ב, § 335, Vol. II, p. 461.

² Comp. Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morgenländischen Gesellschaft, Vol. XI, p. 745, Leipzig 1886.

³ Comp. Baer, Appendices criticae, A. Über Daniels etc. Dan. 3 18; Ezra 5 11, pp. 69, 104.

כי"ב - § 23.

X. — Eleven words which respectively occur twice, once written with Aleph at the end and once written with He. Whilst Rubric 21 catalogues those words which occur only once with Aleph at the end and which in all other instances are written with He, the Massorah before us simply registers the words which altogether only occur twice, once with Aleph and once with He at the end. Of this Rubric I collated twenty-one Lists, sixteen in MSS. and five printed. As these Lists exhibit three distinct recensions I shall enumerate them according to the recensions to which they respectively belong.

I. The oldest form of this Rubric is the one which I have printed. It is taken from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 93a, on Num. 12 13. With the exception of אָפּ being at the head because the Rubric is given on this word in the MS. before us, the St. Petersburg Codex, fol. 120a, on אָפּ Jerem. 52 33 not only states that there are eleven such pairs (אָפּ וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא), but gives the same eleven instances in exactly the same order. The similarity of the Massorah in these two Codices is not only to be seen in the Rubric before us, but extends to nearly all the parallel Rubrics which are to be found in them.

II. The second recension of this Rubric is by far the most common both in the MSS. and in the printed editions. Thirteen out of the twenty-one Lists exhibit it and one MS. alone (Arund. Orient. 16) has it no less than six times as will be seen from the following enumeration: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 13a, on Josh. 18 8; (II) ibid. fol. 286a, on אָפּ Ps. 10 12; (III) ibid. fol. 298a on אָפּ Ps. 60 4; (IV) ibid. fol. 356a, on אָפּ Lament. 1 15; (V) ibid. fol. 388b, on אָפּ Neh. 7 48, and (VI) ibid. fol. 248a, on אָפּ 1 Chron. 15 22; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 157a, on אָפּ Josh. 18 8; (VIII) Add. 15,261, fol. 209b, on אָפּ 2 Kings 15 33; (IX) the same MS. fol. 439b at the end in the Appendix; (X) Halle Oehlach Ve-Oehlach, fol. 51a, l. § 78; (XI) Felix Pratensis' edition of the Rabbinic Bible 1517, where it was first printed; (XII) Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah (Venice 1524—25) on Pa. 10 12, and (XIII) Paris Oehlach Ve-Oehlach, § 96. In the heading of all these thirteen Lists it is distinctly stated that there are twelve such pairs (אָפּ וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא), they all give the same eleven pairs which constitute the first recension and add as the twelfth pair אָפּ Prov. 7 20 and אָפּ Ps. 81 4 though List No. V is on אָפּ which, however, is not included in it, and though List No. XII enumerates thirteen by adding at the end the pair אָפּ Esther 1 10; and the pair אָפּ Esther 7 9. It is to be remarked that in the first edition of this List (Venice 1517, here marked No. XI) the catchword for אָפּ is wrongly given אָפּ which is, however, properly stated in Jacob b. Chayim's edition (Venice 1524—25) to be אָפּ. The catchwords are additions by later Massorites to facilitate reference and as we have seen are frequently wrong.

III. The third recension is the one given in Rubric 23b. It is at least as old as the first since it is from the St. Petersburg Codex, fol. 22b, where it is given on אָפּ Isa. 29 14. It will be seen that it has no heading and fixes no number, but has at the end the following remark: These words which respectively occur twice, are written once with Aleph at the end and once are written with He. On comparing this recension with the first, which as we have seen also occurs in this Codex, we observe that in addition to the eleven pairs which constitute that Rubric there are here five pairs more, thus making in all sixteen such pairs. That the two Rubrics are perfectly distinct and proceed from two different Massoretic Schools is evident since the same Massorites would not put the heading to the Rubric stating emphatically that there are only eleven or twelve such pairs with the Rubric before them, which enumerates sixteen pairs and which fixes no number at all. This recension, moreover, explains the fact that the printed Massorah both on Jerem. 52 33 and in the Massorah Finalis x, § 10 in referring to this Rubric distinctly says that there are sixteen such pairs. Thus in the first instance it says אָפּ וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא one of sixteen words which respectively occur twice, once written with Aleph and once written with He; the List is given in the Massorah Magna under letter Aleph, and in the second instance to which we are here referred it is as follows: אָפּ וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא sixteen pairs of words are respectively written once with Aleph and once with He; they are enumerated in the Massorah on Pa. 10. It is to the third recension, therefore, that the reference is here made in the headings of the printed Massorah, though the List itself which gives this Rubric on Pa. 10, exhibits the second recensions. Such confusion of different recensions in the headings and in the body of the Rubrics is of common occurrence in the Massorah.

We have still to consider the three recensions of this Rubric which occur in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445. The most developed form of it is given on Num. 12 13, fol. 131a. The heading here is simply אָפּ וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא וְהֵא the following pairs are severally written once with He and once with Aleph; and though no number is fixed, it enumerates sixteen pairs. It, however, excludes two pairs given in the List which I have printed, viz. אָפּ וְהֵא and אָפּ וְהֵא, whilst it includes the following two pairs which are not in our List:

Dan. 2 35	אָפּ וְהֵא	Esther 1 10	אָפּ וְהֵא
Jerem. 52 23	אָפּ וְהֵא	" 7 9	אָפּ וְהֵא

The other two Lists are given on Exod. 9 4, fol. 49b, and Numb. 12 13. They have no heading. One List has eight instances only and the other six. Their chief interest consists in the fact that they exhibit the incipient state of this Rubric. It is to be remarked that whilst the outer margin of fol. 131a gives its inception, the Massorah Magna, in the lower margin of the same folio gives it in its developed state.

The Rubrics which respectively give eleven and twelve such pairs, probably owe their origin to the fact that the Massorites only found this limited number exposed to the process of orthographical uniformity on the part of the Scribes in their district. Hence they not only remarked in the margin against each of the words in question that it occurs twice, once with Aleph and once with He, but collected them into one Rubric. A similar cause underlies the more extended recensions. The Massorites of the School from which they proceed found a larger number of instances peculiarly liable to this process. Hence their Lists are larger. But neither of these Schools imply that they meant their Lists to be exhaustive.

No less than eighteen of these pairs form separate Rubrics, though as we have seen only sixteen are contained in the largest Lists. They are as follows:

(X) אָפּ	"	"	"	185	(I) אָפּ	"	"	102
(XI) אָפּ	"	"	"	188	(II) אָפּ	"	"	356
(XII) אָפּ	"	"	"	146	(III) אָפּ	"	"	70
(XIII) אָפּ	"	"	"	47	(IV) אָפּ	"	"	86
(XIV) אָפּ	"	"	"	98	(V) אָפּ	"	"	41
(XV) אָפּ	"	"	"	91	(VI) אָפּ	"	"	452
(XVI) אָפּ	"	"	"	250	(VII) אָפּ	"	"	614
(XVII) אָפּ	"	"	"	427	(VIII) אָפּ	"	"	755
(XVIII) אָפּ	"	"	"	605	(IX) אָפּ	"	"	587

§ 24a.

An alphabetical List of hapax legomena which respectively begin with two letters in alphabetical order. That is, the first word representing Aleph begins with Aleph Beth, the second word exhibiting Beth begins with Beth Gimel, the third word, which according to its initial is the third in the alphabetical List, begins with Gimel Daleth &c. &c. The design of this Massorah is simply to catalogue in one way some of the thousands of words which respectively occur only once and which are distributed over sundry Rubrics adapted by their various arrangements to embrace the whole range of these hapax legomena. It will be seen that this and the following Rubric marked 24b, though exhibiting entirely different words, are identical in their plan inasmuch as they both embrace those expressions only which begin with two letters in alphabetical order. The alphabetical order, however, which these two Rubrics exhibit, is of a double nature. Thus the twenty-two words of which these two Rubrics consist exhibit in the first place the alphabet vertically in the first initial letter beginning with Aleph the first letter; and secondly they also exhibit the alphabetical order in the second letter, only that in the second sequence the first word begins with Beth the second letter, the Aleph not being represented. By this means each of the two Rubrics not only exhibits two alphabets vertically, the second line minus the Aleph, but the order Aleph Beth, Beth Gimel, Gimel Daleth &c. &c. is obtained horizontally.

This Rubric has hitherto been unknown. I have only found it in Add. 15,451, fol. 30a, where it is given on אָפּ Gen. 41 43, and its discovery enables us to explain the otherwise difficult question why there should only be these two alphabets of forty-two words (viz. Rubrics 24a and 24b) out of the thousands of hapax legomena. The explanation of this question will be best understood by exhibiting in a tabular form the whole range of materials out of which the two Rubrics in question are made up, or rather all those hapax legomena which respectively begin with two letters in alphabetical order.

Hapax legomena beginning with				Hapax legomena beginning with
	Times				Times
1	אמ	96	I, 2-3; § 12	12	לכ	282	II, 102-3; § 14
2	בב	92	" 144-5; § 5	13	כב	94	" 159; § 13
3	גג	40	" 199; § 4	14	גכ	43	" 265 7; § 11
4	דד	5	" 216; § 6	15	סע	9	" 320; § 9
5	הה	111	" 242-3; § 7	16	עפ	14	" 364; § 16
6	וו	98	" 355; § 28	17	זח	17	" 486; § 18
7	ממ	2	" 457; § 8	18	קק	3	" 506; § 12
8	חח	27	" 469; § 13	19	קי	79	" 523-4; § 8
9	טט	4	" 614; § 6	20	רש	7	" 549; § 10
10	יי	76	" 608-9; § 10	21	שת	18	" 597; § 11
11	ככ	79	II, 9; § 19	22	תת	76	" 661; § 12
						1262

Now in examining the several links out of which the two chains exhibited in the two Rubrics in question are formed, it would be misleading to conclude that because there are no less than 1262 words, therefore they ought to yield 57 such alphabets. Regard must be had to that letter which furnishes the smallest number of distinctive links and not to the one which supplies the largest number. Thus for instance we must not consider No. 12, viz. לכ, which could furnish 282 distinct members for 282 such alphabets, but No. 7, viz. ממ, which can only supply representatives for two separate alphabets. Now it is because the two Lists before us exhaust the letter מ that no more alphabets could be made up. This new Rubric, therefore, shows us that the only two representatives of מ have been used up. The catchwords after the י = unique, in each line have as usual been added by later Massorites to facilitate reference. Originally the form of this Rubric was simply like that exhibited in § 24b. The absence of י after ten of the instances is due to a want of space in the margin of the MS.

כיד = § 24b.

אבבא. An alphabetical List of hapax legomena which respectively begin with two letters in alphabetical order. Literally the heading denotes an alphabet of words which respectively take Aleph Beth Gimel, Beth Gimel Daleth and which have no parallel. By Aleph Beth Gimel and Beth Gimel Daleth this heading indicates the first letter of the word in the first line and the two letters at the beginning of the word in the next line. The unpointed letters at the end of the Rubric are intended to explain fully the import of this Rubric and are simply an expansion of אבבב given in the heading. Of this Rubric I have collated six Lists, three in MSS. and three printed: (I) the St. Petersburg Codex, fol. 20a, on פקא Isa. 26 16 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5720-11, Vol. I, fol. 182b, on אבבב 1 Sam 14 50; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 297a, on אבבב Jerem. 41 17; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, fol. 86a, I, § 38; (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 7, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis *, § 20. All these Lists have exactly the same twenty-two instances, though they vary in the heading. Thus for instance No. I, Harley 5710-11, as usual has the same heading as the St. Petersburg Codex, whilst the other four Lists have the heading of the former List, viz. § 24a.

כיה = § 25a-c.

אככא. An alphabetical List of hapax legomena, the first and last letters of which correspond in sequence to the order of the alphabetical permutation Athbash. To obtain this permutation the alphabet is bent exactly in the middle and the second half is turned over under the first where it is placed in a reverse order as follows:

א ב ג ד ה ו ז ח ט י כ ל מ נ ס ע פ צ ק ר ש ת

The name Athbash is derived from the first two specimen pairs of letters which indicate the interchange. To the Biblical student this anagrammatic alphabet is of the utmost interest since it is now generally acknowledged that it was used as cipher-writing in the Hebrew Scriptures. Thus for instance Sheshach (Jerem. 25 26) is in accordance with this alphabet used for Babel, viz.:

ב א ג ד ה ו ז ח ט י כ ל מ נ ס ע פ צ ק ר ש ת

It is already so explained by St. Jerome. According to this alphabet, moreover, we see that the otherwise unintelligible words בלשן in the midst of them that rise up against me (Jerem. 51 1) denote the Chaldeans, i. e.:

ב א ג ד ה ו ז ח ט י כ ל מ נ ס ע פ צ ק ר ש ת

Hence the rendering of this passage in the Septuagint and the Massorah (see § 261, Vol. II, p. 139). In the Rubric before us the first and the last letters of each word which constitute it, exhibit the pairs of this permutation, viz.:

ב א ג ד ה ו ז ח ט י כ ל מ נ ס ע פ צ ק ר ש ת

It will be seen that this anagrammatic chain consists of eleven specific links, and that like Rubric 23 the link which yields the fewest representatives limits the representation of each of the more distinctive links, as the following table will show:

Hapax legomena beginning with
	Times				Times
1	אמ	78	I, 2-9; § 12	II, 603-80; § 21
2	כש	27	" 143-157; § 5	" 597-601; § 13
3	גז	12	" 198-201; § 4	" 549-57; § 14
4	קז	3	" 215-217; § 6	" 524-27; § 10
5	חז	17	" 289-256; § 7	" 506-8; § 14
6	קז	92	" 338-391; § 28	" 488-40; § 20
7	זע	6	" 456-58; § 8	" 366-68; § 19
8	חח	4	" 468-72; § 13	" 321-2; § 7
9	טט	3	" 614-15; § 6	" 261-69; § 25
10	יי	119	" 664-76; § 10	" 172-96; § 42
11	ככ	40	II, 6-12; § 19	" 118 19; § 28
		401

Numbers 4 and 9, therefore, which respectively have only three specimens, limit the representation of the nine remaining links to three each. But though this is the number which we should expect to find in the Rubric before us, i. e. three examples of each, or a List of eleven triads, a careful examination of it will show that this recension was originally designed to exhibit two examples only of each link. This is evident from the fact that only two out of the eleven links, viz. Nos. 3 and 4, have respectively three words, and that these two links had originally also only two examples, as will be seen from the explanation of the following recension, viz. Rubric 25b. This, however, is not the only blemish from which the Rubric before us suffers. Nos. 9 and 10 respectively exhibit only one example, and there can hardly be any doubt that they have originally had each two examples like the other links in this chain and that one has been accidentally omitted. The reason why it is a duplicate and not a triplicate alphabet most probably is that the compiler of this Rubric could not find the third example of קז for link No. 9. It may, however, also be that as a List of a single anagrammatic alphabet of אבבא only yields eleven words, the Massorite made it a duplicate in order to obtain the number twenty-two answering to the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet.

When later researches on the part of some Massoretic Schools showed that the hapax legomena, beginning and ending with the requisite letters, would yield materials for an additional alphabet, the transition from the duplicate to the triplicate alphabet produced the variations in the Rubric which are to be seen in the Lists of this Massorah in the different MSS., since some Scribes only partially filled up the third examples. Hence the fourteen Lists of this Massorah which I have collated, nine in MSS. and five printed, exhibit three stages or different recensions, which I have tried to indicate by printing the three forms of it in Rubrics 25a, 25b and 25c.

(I) The Rubric printed first which is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 282b, on אבבב (Dan. 7 9) exhibits the oldest form, suffering, however, as we have seen, from two additions in Nos. 3 and 4 and two omissions in Nos. 9 and 10. As it has the heading I shall here enumerate the other Lists which have also the heading.

(II) Add. 15,260, fol. 381a, on אבבב (Dan. 7 15). Here two links are respectively represented by one example each, viz. Nos. 2 and 10, so that אבבב (Isa. 40 12), which is the second example in List No. I, is omitted, whilst link No. 10 which has only אבבב (Hos. 14 4) is like List No. I. Six links have respectively two examples each, viz. Nos. 1, 4, 5, 7, 8 and 11, five of which exactly correspond to those in List No. I, whilst one of them, viz. link No. 4, which has three representatives in List No. I, has only two here, אבבב being absent, thus corroborating our remark that this link was originally only represented by two examples in the former List. The remaining three links, viz. No. 3, 6 and 9, have respectively three examples each. On comparing these three links with the corresponding three in List No. I it will be seen that it is only link No. 3 which is alike in both Rubrics, and that link No. 6 has אבבב (Exod. 4 26) besides, whilst in link No. 9 the List before us has two instances more, viz. אבבב

That is, אָ has always Kametz throughout the Scriptures except once where it has Pathach. אָ has always Pathach and has never Kametz. Hence the separate remarks in the Massorah Parva in the MSS. on Gen. 17 4 לִי אָבִי, i. e. אָבִי does not occur again with Pathach, and on verse 5 לִי אָבִי, i. e. אָבִי does not occur again with Pathach, and the joint remark לִי אָבִי אָבִי. These two words also represent the two letters, viz. א and ב in the alphabetical List of words with Pathach which respectively occur only once.¹ Moreover, as the phrase אָבִי אָבִי only occurs once (Gen. 17 4), and אָבִי אָבִי without the Lamed also occurs only once (verse 5), these two words with their companions constitute a pair in the Massoretic List of phrases which respectively occur twice, once with Lamed at the beginning and once without it.²

¹ See The Massorah, letter א, § 584, Vol. II, p. 297.
² See The Massorah, letter ב, § 25, Vol. II, p. 11.

כִּיח - § 28.

אָבִי אִמִּי. Father and mother occur twice combined in the Scriptures. This Rubric is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 84a, on this phrase in Ezek. 22 7. The same MS. has it again Vol. II, fol. 271b, on Esther 2 7 where this phrase is to be found the second time. Here, however, the heading is somewhat different, viz. בִּי בְּקִרְיָהּ וּבְמִתְּרָהּ וּבְמִתְּרָהּ. The Rubric also occurs in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 180b, on Ezek. 22 7 and in the same MS., fol. 359a, on Esther 2 7. This Rubric, though not found in the printed Massorah, is a very old one, since it already occurs in the St. Petersburg Codex, fol. 144a, on Ezek. 22 7. Hence the Massorah Parva both in the MSS. and in Jacob b. Chayim's edition has against each of the two passages בִּי דָבָר twice together, בִּי twice.

כִּיט - § 29.

אָבִי אָבִי. My father, my father! occurs twice. This Rubric is from Add. 15,251, fol. 208a, on 2 Kings 13 14. It does not occur in the printed Massorah and I have not found it in any other MS. The MSS., however, have in the Massorah Parva on 2 Kings 13 4 in the margin בִּי = twice.

ל - § 30.

אָבִי. And my father occurs twice. This Massorah is most probably designed to show that though the expression אָבִי my father occurs upwards of one hundred and twenty times without the Vav conjunctive it is only to be found twice with it. The List is printed from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 218a, on 1 Kings 2 32. It is also to be found in the Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage and in the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 24 11.

ל"א - § 31.

אִבְדָּהּ. His father occurs seven times and the sign for them in the Chaldee language is A woman angrily rushed from the house, the king saw her and pierced her head. This is all that three out of the nineteen Lists which I have collated of this Rubric state, and it is this enigmatical language which makes it so difficult for the uninitiated to understand the import of the Massorah. What this Massorah designs to tell us is, that the noun אָבִי father, which occurs 197 times with the suffix third person masculine, has only in seven instances the lengthened suffix וּ, whilst in 190 instances it has simply the י, i. e. אָבִי. To indicate the seven passages which exhibit this phenomenon, as well as to facilitate their being remembered by heart by the Scribes who are engaged in multiplying Codices, the Massorites translated into Chaldee the catchword of each of the seven passages, thus yielding the Aramaic mnemonic sign, as will be seen from the following comparison:

1	אִבְדָּהּ = אִבְדָּהּ	Judg.	14 10	5	סִלְכָה = לִסְכָּה	1 Kings	5 15
2	רָתַת = רָתַת	"	" 10	6	הִקְרַת = הִקְרַת	Zech.	13 3
3	כִּן כִּתַּת = כִּן כִּתַּת	"	16 31	7	בִּירַשָּׁה = בִּירַשָּׁה	1 Chron.	26 10
4	חִתָּה = חִתָּה	2 Chron.	3 1

Of this Rubric I collated nineteen Lists, sixteen in MSS. and four printed. (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 166b, on Judg. 14 10, where the mnemonic sign is simply given, which I have printed at the end of the Rubric; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 125b, on Zech. 13 3 where too the mnemonic sign alone is given; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 29a, on Judg. 14 10 which I have printed; (IV) the same MS., fol. 79b, on 1 Kings 5 15; (V) the same MS., fol. 221b, on Zech. 13 3; (VI) the same MS., fol. 254a, on 1 Chron. 26 10; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Kings 5 15; (VIII) the same MS. on Zech. 13 3; (IX) Orient. 1471, fol. 81a, on Judg. 14 10 where the mnemonic sign alone is given; (X) Add. 15,250, fol. 315b, on Zech. 13 3; (XI) Add. 15,251, fol. 147a, on Judg. 14 10 which gives both the List and the mnemonic sign; (XII) Add. 15,451, fol. 173b, on Judg. 14 10; (XIII) the same MS., fol. 482b, on 1 Chron. 26 10; (XIV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, fol. 120b, II, § 228; (XV) St. Petersburg Codex, fol. 219b, on Zech. 13 3; (XVI) Orient. 2626-28, Vol. II, fol. 90a, on 1 Kings 5 15; (XVII) the printed Massorah on Judg. 14 19; (XVIII) the same on Zech. 13 3 which gives both the List and the mnemonic sign, and (XIX) the same on 1 Chron. 26 10 which also gives both the List and the mnemonic sign. The mnemonic sign by itself is also given in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 38 where Jacob b. Chayim adds וְהוֹרֵת בְּכָתוּבֵי סוּף סוּף וְהוֹרֵת בְּכָתוּבֵי סוּף וְהוֹרֵת בְּכָתוּבֵי סוּף and the List is given in Judges at the end of chapter 14, and in Zechariah chapter 13. It will thus be seen that Jacob b. Chayim has forgotten that he also gives it on 1 Chron. 26 10.

ל"ב - § 32.

וְאָבִי. And his father occurs nine times. Of this Rubric I collated thirteen Lists, eleven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 150a, on 2 Chron. 2 13, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 29a, on Judg. 14 4; (III) the same MS., fol. 81a, on 1 Kings 7 14; (IV) the same MS., fol. 205b, on Amos 2 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 288a, on 2 Chron. 2 13; (VI) Orient. 1474, fol. 235b, on Amos 2 7; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 140b, on Judg. 14 4; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 26a, on Gen. 35 18; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 38a, on Gen. 37 11; (X) the same MS., fol. 52a, on Gen. 44 20; (XI) the same MS., fol. 167a, on Levit. 19 3; (XII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 35 18, and (XIII) the same on Judg. 14 4.

ל"ג - § 33.

וְאָבִי. And to his father occurs three times in the Pentateuch. This is to distinguish it from the fifteen instances where this expression occurs, and where it is simply אָבִי without the Vav conjunctive. Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 31a, on Gen. 45 28 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 77b, on Levit. 21 2; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 181b, on 1 Sam. 14 1; (IV) Orient. 1879, fol. 110a, on Gen. 45 28; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 43a, on 1 Sam. 14 1; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 152b, on 1 Sam. 14 1; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 157b, on 1 Sam. 14 1; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 34a, on Gen. 45 28; (IX) the same MS., fol. 188a, on 1 Sam. 14 1; (X) the printed Massorah on Gen. 45 28, and (XI) the same on 1 Sam. 14 1.

ל"ד - § 34.

אִבְדָּהּ. Their father (masculine) occurs three times as feminine. The design of this Massorah is to show that the form אִבְדָּהּ with the suffix third person masculine plural which occurs no less than thirty-six times in the Bible is used as feminine in the three passages which constitute this Rubric, and that אִבְדָּהּ with the suffix second person plural masculine which occurs twelve times is in one instance used as feminine, though both the nouns occur with the feminine termination when the feminine gender is referred to in other passages. Thus for instance the Massorah itself shows that אִבְדָּהּ with the feminine termination occurs seven times (see below § 36), אִבְדָּהּ occurs twice (Gen. 31 5, 6), whilst with the Vav conjunctive this form occurs also twice (see § 35). The anomaly pointed out in this Rubric appears all the more striking when Gen. 31 7 and 9 are compared, and more especially Numb. 27 7 where the two forms אִבְדָּהּ the masculine and אִבְדָּהּ the feminine are used promiscuously in the same verse, which a copyist would be most liable to make uniform. Hence the Massoretic remark against these anomalies to prevent the Scribe altering them. Yet notwithstanding this Massoretic caution, not only does the Samaritan read אִבְדָּהּ in Gen. 31 9, but many MSS. exhibit this form. The same is the case in Numb. 27 7 and 36 6 where both the Samaritan and many Hebrew MSS. have אִבְדָּהּ. This is also the reading of some MSS. in Job 42 15. Of this Rubric I collated fourteen Lists, twelve in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 296a, on Numb. 27 7 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 127a; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 117a; (IV) Orient. 2350, fol. 241b, all on Numb. 27 7; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 336a, on Job 42 15; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 104a, on Numb. 36 6; (VII) the same MS., fol. 385b, on Job 42 15; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 111b, on Numb. 27 7; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 236a, on Numb. 27 7; (X) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Numb. 36 6; (XI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Additions fol 130b; (XII) Orient. 2626-28, Vol. I, fol 45a, on Gen. 31 9; (XIII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 27 7, and (XIV) the same on Numb. 36 6.

לי"י - § 35.

ואבייך. And your (feminine) father occurs twice. This List only occurs in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176b, where it is remarked on תפקן in the Massorah Parva ב"י הרל ב"י it occurs twice, the second place is Gen. 31 7, and in the printed Massorah on the same passage which I have printed. On Gen. 31 7 the printed Massorah Parva wrongly states י = 3 times. This mistake has been perpetuated in all the printed editions of the Rabbinic Bibles though on Ezek. 16 45 the Massorah Parva has it correctly ב = twice.

לי"י - § 36.

אביהן. Their father (feminine) occurs seven times. The design of this Massorah is to show that though the suffix third person plural refers in ten instances to the feminine, it is only in these seven instances where it is with י, since in the other three instances it has ב which is the masculine termination (see above § 34). Of this Rubric I collated seventeen Lists, sixteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 110b, on Numb. 36 12 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 1379, fol. 60a, on Gen. 19 33; (III) the same MS., fol. 313a, on Numb. 36 12; (IV) Orient. 1471, fol. 48b, on Josh. 17 4; (V) Orient. 2348, fol. 48a on Gen. 19 33; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 38a, on Gen. 19 33; (VII) the same MS., fol. 122b, on Numb. 36 12; (VIII) Orient. 2350, fol. 81a, on Gen. 19 33; (IX) the same MS., fol. 254b, on Numb. 36 12; (X) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 12b, on Josh. 17 4; (XI) Add. 15,251, fol. 104a, on Numb. 36 12; (XII) Add. 15,451, fol. 38b, on Exod. 2 16; (XIII) the same MS., fol. 118b on Numb. 36 12; (XIV) Add. 21,160, fol. 7a, on Gen. 19 33; (XV) the same MS., fol. 253a, on Numb. 36 12; (XVI) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach II, fol. 100a, in the margin and (XVII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 19 33.

לי"י - § 37.

אבות. Fathers occurs twice defective in the Pentateuch. The design of this Massorah is to point out the fact that אבות fathers, which besides the two passages before us occurs six times in the Pentateuch (Exod. 34 7; Numb. 14 18; 36 1; Deut. 5 9; 24 16, 16) and twenty-three times in the Prophets and Hagiographa (2 Kings 14 6, 6; Jerem. 6 21; 31 29; 32 18; 47 8; Ezek. 5 10; 18 2; Mal. 3 24; Prov. 19 14; Neh. 12 22; 1 Chron. 7 7; 8 6, 10, 28; 9 9, 33; 24 4, 31; 2 Chron. 25 4, 4, 5; 35 12), is in all the twenty-nine passages written with Vav plene, and that Exod. 12 3; 20 5 are the only two instances in which it is written אָבָה without Vav. From the heading, viz. ב"י ה"י ב"י twice defective in the Pentateuch, it might at first sight appear that this Massorah only applies to the Pentateuch, and that there may be other instances of this defective form apart from the Pentateuch. This interpretation, however, is precluded by the Massorah Parva in the Cambridge MS. Add. 465 where on 2 Kings 14 6 it is distinctly declared כלה חטא במ"י it is always plene except in two instances, and again the same MS. on Jerem. 32 18 כלה ב"י מ"י ב"י ח"י it is always written plene except twice where it is defective. Accordingly the heading before us has the import of אָבָה ב"י ה"י ב"י fathers occurs twice defective and both times in the Pentateuch. The caution which this Massorah gives to the Scribes is all the more needed, since in all the three passages in the Pentateuch where this identical phrase occurs the noun in question is plene (Exod. 34 7; Numb. 14 18; Deut. 5 9). It has to be remarked that in 1 Chron. 24 31 אָבָה is a proper name. Hence the Massorah Parva against it is ל"י ש"י אָבָה unique as a proper name. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 41b, on Exod. 12 3 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 97a, on Exod. 20 5; (III) Vienna Codex No. 85 on Deut. 5 9; (IV) Orient. 1379, fol. 151a; (V) Orient. 2348, fol. 79a; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 69a; (VII) Orient. 2350, fol. 129b, all the four in the Massorah Parva on Exod. 20 5; (VIII) Orient. 4445, fol. 52b, on Exod. 12 3 and (IX) the printed Massorah on Exod. 20 5. This Rubric is one of the oldest portions of the Massorah since it is already given in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445.

לי"י - § 38.

ואבותיהם. And the fathers occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to show that in both these passages the noun in question has the Vav conjunctive which is apparently not required, especially in the second passage, where indeed some MSS. have not got it. The Sept. has in both passages καὶ οἱ πατέρες αὐτῶν and their fathers, by which it renders אָבוֹתָם Jerem. 9 15. This Rubric I have only found in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 152a, on Jerem. 7 18.

לי"י - § 39.

אבותי. My fathers occurs seven times plene. As this plural noun with the suffix first person singular occurs fifteen times, and as it is defective in the majority of cases, viz. Gen. 47, 9, 30; 48 15, 16; 49 29; 1 Kings 21 3; Neh. 2 3, 5, the Massorah registers the fewer instances in which it is plene. In thus cataloguing the passages in which it is written plene the Massorah takes no notice of the fact that three instances out of the seven which constitute this Rubric are in pause and have Kametz, viz. אָבוֹתַי 1 Kings 21 4; Ps. 39 13; 2 Chron. 32 15. This is frequently the case when the design of a Rubric is to register the variations in spelling. The differences in the vowel points are under such circumstances not noticed. Strictly the heading of this Rubric ought to be אָבוֹתַי מ"י או אָבוֹתַי מ"י אָבוֹתַי מ"י, since in one of the instances it is אָבוֹתַי with Vav conjunctive (2 Chron. 32 18). Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 95b, on 1 Kings 21 4 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 113a, on 2 Kings 19 12; (III) the same MS., fol. 293b, on Ps. 39 13; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 85 on 1 Kings 21 4; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 196b, on 1 Kings 21 4; (VI) the same MS., fol. 326a, on Ps. 39 13; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 212a, on 2 Kings 19 12; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 353b, on Ps. 39 13; (IX) Orient. 1474, fol. 180a, on Isa. 37 12; (X) Add. 15,451, fol. 243a, on 1 Kings 21 4; (XI) the same MS., fol. 357a, on Isa. 37 12, and (XII) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 21 4. These twelve Lists exhibit two recensions of this Massorah. The first recension contained in Nos. I, IV, V, VII, IX, X, XI and XII exhibits the recension which I have printed, whilst the second recension contained in Nos. II, III, VI and VIII gives אָבוֹתַי מ"י אָבוֹתַי מ"י אָבוֹתַי מ"י = 1 Kings 21 3 as the first of the seven passages where this plene spelling occurs and omits 1 Kings 21 4, which is the first instance in the first recension. It is also to be noticed that all the Lists which give the lengthy catchwords for 2 Chron. 32 14, viz. Nos. I, II, III, IV, V and X, distinctly read אָבוֹתַי מ"י אָבוֹתַי מ"י אָבוֹתַי מ"י as it is in 2 Kings 18 25, and not אָבוֹתַי מ"י אָבוֹתַי מ"י as the present printed text has it. Though the printed Massorah (List No. XII) also exhibits this reading in the catchword, Frensdorff has taken no notice of it in his Massorah Magna, p. 2. Hanover 1876.

לי"י - § 40.

אבותיך. Thy fathers occurs three times with Vav plene, once in the Pentateuch, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa, and the sign for them in the Chaldee language is the king returns to the world. Though אָבוֹתַיך occurs no less than twenty-six times, it is in all the other twenty-three instances written without Vav (Gen. 15 15; Exod. 10 6, 6; Deut. 1 21; 4 31, 37; 6 3; 8 3, 16; 10 22; 12 1; 27 3; 30 5, 9; 31 16; 2 Sam. 7 12; 1 Kings 13 22; 2 Kings 20 17; 22 20; Isa. 39 6; Ps. 45 17; 1 Chron. 17 11; 2 Chron. 34 28). The Massorah, therefore, registers the three instances which constitute the exception to the uniform orthography of this form of the noun, and which the Scribe might be liable to make conformable to the general rule. The necessity for this Massorah is still more apparent when it is borne in mind that the form in question only occurs twice in Genesis, and that it is defective in the first instance (Gen. 15 15). Of this Rubric I collated sixteen Lists, thirteen in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 55b, on Jerem. 34 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 20b, on Gen. 31 3; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 253a, on Prov. 22 28; (IV) Orient. 1379, fol. 81b, on Gen. 31 3; (V) Orient. 1474, fol. 44a, on Jerem. 34 5; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 344b, on Prov. 22 28; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 85 also on Prov. 22 28; (VIII) Add. 15,250, fol. 20b, on Gen. 31 3; (IX) the same MS. fol. 258b, on Jerem. 34 5; (X) the same MS., fol. 364a, on Prov. 22 28; (XI) Add. 15,251, fol. 392a, also on Prov. 22 28; (XII) Add. 15,451, fol. 22b, on Gen. 31 3; (XIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 27a, also on Gen. 31 3; (XIV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 31 3; (XV) the same on Jerem. 34 5, and (XVI) the same on Prov. 22 28; These Lists exhibit several recensions of the Massorah before us, as will be seen from the different ways in which it is formulated. Thus for instance Lists Nos. VIII, XII and XIV have not the addition מ"י אָבוֹתַיךְ מ"י אָבוֹתַיךְ מ"י אָבוֹתַיךְ once in the Pentateuch, once in the Prophets, and once in the Hagiographa. List No. XIII which also has not this addition gives the mnemonic sign at the end, whilst List No. X is simply as follows מ"י אָבוֹתַיךְ מ"י אָבוֹתַיךְ מ"י אָבוֹתַיךְ ל"י אָבוֹתַיךְ מ"י אָבוֹתַיךְ מ"י אָבוֹתַיךְ. The mnemonic sign too which besides in this Codex and in Add. 21,160 or List No. XIII is also to be found in the printed Massorah parva on Gen. 31 8, exhibits variations. Thus for instance in List No. X the verb is וָרַר, in List No. XIII it is וָרַר, whilst in the printed Massorah Parva it is וָרַר, though all the three verbs have the same sense. The sign is obtained as usual by translating a word into Chaldee from each of the three passages in which the anomaly in question occurs. Thus

- 1 וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר = שָׁבָה Gen. 31 8
- 2 וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר = חָלַטְתִּים Jerem. 34 5
- 3 וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר = עָלַם Prov. 22 28

ס"א - § 41.

אבותיו. Wherever his fathers occurs in the Scriptures it is defective except in three instances where it is plene. The design of this Massorah is to point out the fact that though this form of the noun in question occurs no less than seventy-six times in the Hebrew Scriptures it is only plene in the three passages registered in this Rubric. Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 156b, on Judg. 2 10 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 188a, on Ps. 49 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 19b, on Judg. 2 10; (IV) the same MS., fol. 296a, on Ps. 49 20; (V) the same MS., fol. 276a, on 2 Chron. 30 19; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 85 on Judg. 2 10; (VII) Orient. 1471, fol. 62a, also on Judg. 2 10; (VIII) Add. 15,250, fol. 132b, on Judg. 2 10; (IX) the same MS., fol. 328a, on Ps. 49 20; (X) Add. 15,251, fol. 139b, on Judg. 2 10; (XI) the printed Massorah on Judg. 2 10, and (XII) the same on Ps. 49 20. The fact that the heading of List No. II which occurs in the same MS., viz. List No. I, as here printed, has simply the heading וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר it occurs three times plene in the Scriptures, shows that the two recensions of this Massorah proceed from two different Massoretic Schools which formulated this Rubric differently.

ס"ב - § 42.

אבותיו. His fathers occurs three times in this section. The design of this Massorah is to register the fact that in the section extending from Numb. 1 1 to 2 84 there are three exceptions to the general phrase used in the description of the different tribes. Whilst the expression אבותם their fathers with the suffix third person plural is used with לְבֵיתָא to the house of, no less than seventeen times in this description (Numb. 1 2, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 45; 2 2, 32), in the three instances in question it is אביו his fathers, with the suffix third person singular. Hence the third catchword וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר - Numb. 13 2 is manifestly a clerical error for וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר Numb. 1 4. This is, moreover, confirmed by the declaration in the heading of this Rubric, viz. וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר in this section, which cannot be chapter 13 2, since this is found so many sections later on. This Rubric I have only found in Add. 15,250, fol. 72b, on Numb. 1 44. The importance of this Rubric as a guide to the copyist, will be all the more apparent when it is borne in mind that variations existed with regard to these passages. Thus is Numb. 1 4 the Sept. exhibits אבות without any suffix, in Numb. 1 44 it exhibits אבות, which reading is also to be found in several MSS. as well as in the Samaritan, whilst in 2 34 the Sept. has also אבות.

ס"ג - § 43.

אבותיו. His fathers occurs seven times defective (in the Pentateuch). From Rubric 41 we have seen that the Massorah catalogues the three instances in which this form of the noun is by way of exception written plene in contradistinction to the seventy-three passages in which it is defective. Now in the Rubric before us the Massorah registers the instances in which it occurs altogether in the Pentateuch. It will be seen that though the heading of this Rubric simply says that וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר occurs seven times defective, it ought properly to be וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר it is seven times defective in this form in the Pentateuch, and that the words וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר are omitted, which is not unfrequently the case. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 82a, on Numb. 1 44 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 252b, on Numb. 36 7, and (III) the printed Massorah on Numb. 1 4. The words וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר in this form in the Pentateuch, which are absent in List No. I are supplied by the other two Lists. Thus for instance, Lists No. II heads it וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר, whilst List No. III heads it וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר. It will thus be seen that all the three Lists distinctly declare that including וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר which occurs twice (Numb. 11 12; Deut. 31 20), there are seven instances in the Pentateuch where this form is defective. This is confirmed both by the MS. Massorah Parva of Add. 21,160 which remarks in the margin on three of the instances, Numb. 1 4; 2 34; 36 7) וָרַר וָרַר seven times defective, and by the printed Massorah which makes a similar remark in five out of the seven instances. Thus on Numb. 1 4 the Massorah Parva has וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר. On verse 44 of the same chapter it has וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר seven times with Vav defective in this Pericope, where וָרַר is evidently a mistake for וָרַר Pentateuch, as the seven instances are not in the same Pericope nor even in the same book. On Numb. 2 34 and 13 2 it has simply וָרַר וָרַר, whilst on 36 7 it has וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר seven times defective in the Pentateuch. But though the printed Massorah like the MS. Lists distinctly declares that there are only seven such instances it enumerates eight by inserting וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר Levit. 25 41 between Numb. 11 12 and 36 7. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that it is an insertion by a later writer, since it is not only against the sequence of the books, but against the heading. Accordingly the three Lists before us are based upon a recension of the Hebrew text in which the form וָרַר only occurred seven times defective, i. e. וָרַר five times (Numb. 1 4, 44; 2 34; 13 2; 36 7) and וָרַר twice (Numb. 11 12; Deut. 31 20). There is, however, another recension of this Rubric exhibited in the Massorah Parva of the Yemen Codices and of Harley 5710-11. Thus for instance the Yemen MSS. Orient. 1879, fol. 237b; Orient. 2348, fol. 107b; Orient. 2349, fol. 97b, remark against וָרַר וָרַר Levit. 25 41, וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר nine times in the Pentateuch and defective, and Harley 5710-11, Vol. I has against it in Levit. 25 41 וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר, against Numb. 13 2 וָרַר וָרַר, against Numb. 36 7 and against verse 8 וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר. These nine instances are made up by seven times וָרַר וָרַר (Levit. 25 41; Numb. 1 4, 44; 2 34; 13 2; 36 7, 8) and twice וָרַר וָרַר (Numb. 11 12; Deut. 31 20). The two instances, therefore, contained in the recension of the text upon which this Massorah is based and which are not contained in the other Lists are Levit. 25 41 and Numb. 36 8.

ס"ד - § 44.

אבותיו. Our fathers occurs eight times plene throughout the whole Scriptures... and throughout Joshua, Judges and Psalms it is likewise so except in one instance. To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that the form וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר occurs forty-four times in the Bible, that it is sixteen times plene with Vav after the Beth and defective in twenty-eight passages.

When, therefore, the Massorah catalogues eight instances of plene and confines itself to three books, viz. Genesis, Jeremiah and Chronicles, the arrangement is most artificial and is palpably designed to exhibit the three divisions of the Old Testament, viz. the Law, the Prophets, and the Hagiographa. Still more artificial is the heading of this Rubric in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445 where it is stated that וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר is eleven times plene (אבותיו) and where the number eleven is obtained by taking the three books Joshua, Judges and Psalms as representing three instances. From the fact that the instance in Jerem. 3 25 is וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר it is evident that this Rubric includes this form with the Vav conjunctive. Accordingly Ps. 78 8 which is plene in the printed editions must be defective. Of this Rubric I collated twenty-three Lists, twenty-one in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 188b, on 1 Chron. 12 17 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 166a, on 2 Chron. 29 9; (III) Orient. 1879, fol. 112a; (IV) Orient. 2348, fol. 65b; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 58b; (VI) Orient. 2350, fol. 100a, all on Gen. 47 8; (VII) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 149b, on Jerem. 3 24; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 156b, on Jerem. 14 20; (IX) the same MS., fol. 157b, on Jerem. 16 19; (X) the same MS., fol. 246a, on 1 Chron. 12 17; (XI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Gen. 47 8; (XII) the same MS. on Jerem. 14 20; (XIII) Add. 15,250, fol. 30b, on Gen. 47 8; (XIV) the same MS., fol. 246b, on Jerem. 14 20; (XV) Add. 15,251, fol. 89a, on Gen. 47 8; (XVI) the same MS., fol. 246b, on Jerem. 14 20; (XVII) Add. 15,451, fol. 35a, on Gen. 47 8; (XVIII) the same MS., fol. 377a, on Jerem. 14 20; (XIX) Add. 21,160, fol. 56b, on Gen. 47 8; (XX) Orient. 4445, fol. 37b, on Gen. 47 8; (XXI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, fol. 181a; (XXII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 47 8, and (XXIII) the same on Jerem. 14 20. Lists VII, XX and XXII omit the addition וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר, which makes the Rubric unintelligible, whilst List XI has only וָרַר וָרַר וָרַר, omitting the word וָרַר and וָרַר. The List in the Halle Codex, viz. List XX only gives seven instances omitting Jerem. 14 20.

ס"ה - § 45a.

אבותיו. Your fathers occurs only once, entirely plene in the Pentateuch. This expression which occurs ten times in the not the two passages. The Rubric, however, may be due to the fact that the same examples form part of the general List of plenes and defectives catalogued in the preceding Rubric. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190a, on Ezek. 36 28, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 1174, fol. 113b, also on Ezek. 36 28.

כי = § 47a.

אבותם. Their fathers occurs four times plene [in this form] in the Prophets. To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that אבותם with suffix third person plural masculine (אָבֹתָם) which without and with prefixes occurs thirty-three times, is restricted to four books in the Bible, viz. Kings, Jeremiah, Ezra-Nehemiah and Chronicles. Now in the books which here represent the Prophets, i. e. Kings and Jeremiah this expression is only to be found four times altogether, once without any prefix (אָבֹתָם Jerom. 50 7), once with Vav conjunctive (אָבֹתָם ibid. 19 4), once with the prefix Lamed (אָבֹתָם 1 Kings 14 15) and once with the same prefix as well as with Vav conjunctive (אָבֹתָם Jerem. 24 10). In all these four instances the Massorah tells us it is written plene with Vav after the Beth. Accordingly the heading ought strictly to be וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' this form only occurs four times in the Prophets and is always plene. The word בְּבֵית בְּנֵי which is in brackets I have supplied. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 47a, on Jeremiah 24 10 which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 14 15.

כי = § 47b.

אבותם. Their fathers occurs nine times defective in Chronicles. Deducting the four instances which constitute the preceding Rubric there are still twenty-nine passages left where this form is to be found in the remaining two books, viz. Ezra-Nehemiah and Chronicles. Of these twenty-nine instances only three are to be found in Ezra-Nehemiah and no less than twenty-six occur in Chronicles alone. As seventeen are plene (1 Chron. 4 38; 5 13; 23 24; 2 Chron. 11 16; 13 18; 14 3; 15 12; 17 14; 19 4; 24 18, 24; 30 7, 22; 31 17; 34 32, 33; 36 15), the Massorah registers the twelve defectives which are the exception. Whilst in the seventeen instances it is the simple form אָבֹתָם without any prefix, the twelve instances exhibit no less than four forms: a) אָבֹתָם without any prefix eight times (Ezra 8 1; Neh. 9 2; 1 Chron. 5 25; 9 9; 24 30; 29 20; 2 Chron. 7 22; 20 33); b) אָבֹתָם with Vav conjunctive once (1 Chron. 9 19); c) אָבֹתָם with Lamed prefix twice (Neh. 9 28; 1 Chron. 6 4), and d) אָבֹתָם with the same prefix as well as with Vav conjunctive once (2 Chron. 6 25). The second part of this Massorah which is headed וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' and throughout the Prophets and Ezra it is likewise so except in four places where it is plene, gives the same four instances which constitute the preceding Rubric. This artificial arrangement, however, which links the several Rubrics together is, as usual, at the expense of strict accuracy, since the word in question does not occur as defective in the Prophets, whilst in Ezra where it is to be found three times (Ezra 8 1; Neh. 9 2, 28) it is defective in all the three passages and hence cannot be cited as exhibiting an exception. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 269b, on 2 Chron. 20 33 which I have printed. Here, however, the heading is וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' nine times defective in the Hagiographa. The expression אָבֹתָם I altered in to אָבֹתָם in the book; (II) the same MS., fol. 260b, on 2 Chron. 6 25 where the heading is וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' ten times defective in the Hagiographa, though it only enumerates the same nine passages and finishes with the same second part as the first List; (III) Vienna Codex No. 85 on 2 Chron. 20 33. This List has the heading וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' nine times defective in this book, i. e. Chronicles, and simply adds at the end וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' and throughout Ezra it is likewise defective, without mentioning the Prophets which obviates the difficulty pointed out above; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 414b, on 1 Chron. 24 30. This List has also the heading וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' though it only gives nine instances which are exactly the same as those contained in the Rubric which I have printed. It will be seen that here too it is וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' in this book, i. e. Chronicles. In this recension there is no addition whatever at the end of the Rubric; (V) Orient. 2375, fol. 288b, on 1 Chron. 29 20. Here the heading is also וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' though the same nine instances only are adduced. The addition at the end differs somewhat from the one I have printed, viz. וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' and throughout the Prophets which this List duly enumerates are the same as those printed in § 47a-b; and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter w, § 40. Here the List begins with the four plene instances in the Prophets which form the second part of the Rubric I have printed and which, as we have seen, are also a separate Massorah, i. e. § 47a. The editor, however, does not enumerate the passages, but refers to 1 Kings 14 15 (וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' and the passages are duly given. It will be seen that like Lists Nos. II, IV and V the heading here states that there are ten such instances, though only nine are enumerated. In this enumeration, however, וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' (Jerem. 50 7) is given which is contrary to the import of this Rubric, since the passages are distinctly declared to be from the Hagiographa and Jeremiah belongs to the Prophets. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that it is a clerical error for אָבֹתָם (2 Chron. 20 33) which belongs to this List, but which is here omitted. The succeeding editions of the Rabbinic Bibles published at Venice by Bomberg reproduce this Massorah as it is printed in Jacob b. Chayim's editio princeps (1524-35). Buxtorf, however, has altered it in his edition, since he not only puts the heading וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' which, as we shall presently see, is wrong, but omits וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' and adds וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' (2 Chron. 20 33).

Now in examining these six Lists it will be seen that they exhibit two different recensions of the Massorah before us, viz. one which restricts itself to Chronicles and hence heads the Rubric וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' nine times defective in this book, and the second which takes in Ezra-Nehemiah and hence heads it וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' ten times defective in the Hagiographa. The ten are made up by the nine instances in Chronicles and counting by Ezra-Nehemiah as one, a mode of reckoning which is very common in the Massorah, especially when the book in question exhibits orthographic uniformity in all the instances. In such a case all the instances are described as one. This is what is meant by the phrase וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' and all Ezra is so. Accordingly those Lists which give the number as nine in the heading ought to be וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' nine times defective in the book of Chronicles, as it is in List No. III, whilst those Lists which give it as ten must be וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' ten times defective in the Hagiographa, as it is in Lists Nos. II, V and VI. Hence List No. I which has וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' and List No. IV which has וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' have mixed up the two recensions. For this reason I corrected וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' in the heading of the List which I have printed into וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר', and for the same reason Buxtorf's alteration of וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' into וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' is wrong.

כי = § 48a.

אבותם. Their fathers is twice plene in the Pentateuch. Besides the termination אָבֹתָם attached to אָבֹתָם fathers, to express the suffix third person plural masculine, which has been discussed in the preceding Rubric and the use of which, as we have seen, is restricted to three books, viz. Kings, Jeremiah and Ezra-Nehemiah, there is also the more frequent termination אָבֹתָם as the suffix third person plural masculine for this noun. This form of the noun, even omitting the instances with the different prefixes, occurs no fewer than eighty-six times. It is defective, i. e. without Vav after the Beth in forty-eight passages and plene in thirty-eight. As the defectives are the rule and the plenes the exception in some parts, and as the reverse is the case in other parts of the Bible, the Massorites register the use of the one or the other form under the three groups into which the Hebrew Scriptures are divided, viz. the Law, the Prophets and the Hagiographa.

In the Pentateuch where אָבֹתָם their fathers, occurs forty-two times, it is only twice plene and defective in forty passages. Hence the Massorah registers the exception to guard the Scribes against making these two passages uniform with the others. For this reason Add. 21,160, fol. 218a, on Numb. 17 18 makes a separate Rubric of these two instances without noticing the other portions of the Bible, and for the same reason the Massorah Parva in the MSS. and in the printed text has against each of these two passages the simple remark וְאָבֹתָם בְּבֵית בְּנֵי ר' twice plene in the Pentateuch.

In the Prophets where אָבֹתָם their fathers, occurs twenty-six times it is plene in twenty-three instances (Josh. 4 21; 22 14; Judg. 2 12, 17, 20, 22; 3 4; 21 22; 2 Kings 17 14, 15; 21 15; Isa. 14 21; Jerem. 9 13; 11 10, 10; 16 3; 23 27; 31 32; Ezek. 5 10; 20 4, 24; Amos 2 4; Mal. 3 24) and is defective in only three passages. Hence the Massorah registers them separately. Of this Rubric, however, registering the Prophets separately I have found one List only in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 84b, on 1 Kings 9 9, which I have printed and which is marked § 48b. In this List the third instance, viz. 2 Kings 17 41 has been omitted by a clerical error. But the Massorah Parva in the MSS. duly remarks against each of these three passages three times defective in the Prophets. It will be seen that the three instances are described as occurring in the Prophets, though they are all to be found in Kings. But the styling of one portion of the division by the name which belongs to the whole division is of common occurrence in the Massorah. The fact that these three exceptions are in this division restricted to Kings explains the remark of the Massorah Parva in the printed edition against 1 Kings 14 22 three times defective in this book.

In the Hagiographa, where אבות their fathers occurs eighteen times, it is in sixteen passages plene (Ps. 78 12; Prov. 17 6; Job 8 8; 30 1; Ezra 2 59; 1 Chron. 5 15, 24, 24; 7 2, 4, 9; 9 13; 12 30; 24 4; 26 13; 2 Chron. 29 6) and only in two instances defective. Hence the Massorah registers the exceptions.

The grouping together into one List of the different Massorahs registering the orthography of אבות as exhibited in § 48a is as usual a later development of the Massoretic labours. Of this Rubric marked § 48a I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 48b, on Numb. 1 16, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 109b; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 99b; (IV) Orient. 2350, fol. 200a; (V) Orient. 4445, fol. 115b, all on Numb. 1 16. These four Yemen MSS. have exactly the same wording, i. e. have no defective after אבות and the other instances in the Pentateuch, nor do they give the number of the instances in which it is defective in the Prophets and Hagiographa, but simply enumerate the five passages and add at the end these are defective and the others in the Scriptures are plene, thus affording additional evidence that the Rubric in these MSS. proceeds from the same Massoretic School; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 81a; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 90a; Add. 21,160, fol. 184b; (VIII) Orient. 2626-28, Vol. I, fol. 117a; (IX) the printed Massorah, all on Numb. 1 16, and (X) the printed Massorah on Neh. 7 61.

אבות - § 48b.

Of this Rubric I found two separate Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 84b, on 1 Kings 9 9, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 237a, on 2 Kings 14 22. It will be seen that though the heading states that there are three instances in the Prophets where אבות is defective, the Rubric adduces two only and that 2 Kings 17 41 is omitted, as is evident both from the preceding and the following recensions of this Rubric, viz. § 48a and § 48c. In accordance, however, with the principle which I have stated in the Preface to Vol. II of the Massorah, I have faithfully reproduced the MS., especially as the Rubric occurs in the superb Model Codex Arund. Orient. 16.

אבות - § 49.

אבות. She perished occurs twice in pause. The Kal preterite third person singular feminine, which occurs seven times, precedes the subject in five instances and has Sheva under the Beth אבות (Exod. 10 7; Jerem. 7 28; 9 11; 49 7; Ezek. 19 5), whilst in two instances it follows the subject and being in pause has Kametz under the Beth. Hence the Massorah registers the exception. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 340a, on Prov. 11 7 which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Eccl. 9 6. The heading in the printed Massorah indicates the import of this Massorah more distinctly by expressing it twice with Kametz. The Massorah Parva, too, both in the MSS. and in the printed edition on Eccl. 9 6 expresses this by the remark אבות with the vowel sign under the Beth.

אבות - § 50.

אבות which is here registered as occurring three times, is probably designed to show that this is the reading in Ezek. 37 11, where the Vav seems to be superfluous. It may also be intended to indicate thereby that אבות in Prov. 27 20 is not to be read with the same vowel points as it is in these three instances. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 130b, on Isa. 29 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 190a; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 290a; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 280b, all on Ezek. 37 11, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 44.

אבות - § 51.

אבות the Kal future third person singular masculine occurs five times. In the two instances before us it is in the middle of the sentence and hence has the normal Pathach under the Beth (אבות), whilst in the other three instances it is in pause and the Pathach is changed into Tzere (אבות Prov. 19 9; 21 28; Job 20 7). The Massorah, therefore, registers the minority. Add. 21,161, fol. 174b, on Job 3 3 describes in the Massorah Parva these two instances as forming part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice with Pathach. On referring to this List, however, it will be seen that it is not contained in the Massorah in question. As in Job 3 3 the accent is on the penultima (אבות), whilst it is on the ultima (אבות) in Jerem. 4 9 the Massorah calls the former אבות and the latter אבות. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 592b, on Job 3 3 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 223a, also on Job 3 3, and (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 149b, on Jerem. 4 9. The printed Massorah Magna has not this Rubric, but the import of it is referred to in the Massorah Parva both on Jerem. 4 9 and Job 3 3.

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter א, § 539, Vol. II 299.

אבות - § 52.

אבות occurs twice. אבות which occurs six times exhibits three distinct pairs, each having different vowel-points. Thus in two instances it is אבות the normal Kal future with Vav conjunctive and Sheva under the Beth; in two passages it is the same tense with Vav conjunctive, but is in pause and has, therefore, Tzere under the Beth אבות, whilst in two instances it is אבות with Vav conversive. This is the reason why the Massorah so carefully registers the respective forms in the different passages. In the Rubric before us, i. e. § 52 the two passages are given where it is with Sheva under the Beth. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 187a, on Isa. 41 11, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

אבות - § 52.

אבות occurs twice. This Rubric which registers the two passages in which this form is in pause with Tzere under the Beth I have only found in the Halle Oehliah Ve-Oehliah, fol. 125b, II, § 338. I have given it in the Appendix, letter א, § 52.

אבות - § 53.

אבות occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 165a, on 2 Sam. 1 27 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 84a, on Numb. 16 33, and (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 216b, on the same passage. Though this Rubric is not to be found in the printed Massorah Magna yet as in the MSS. it is indicated in the Massorah Parva on both passages.

אבות - § 54.

אבות. Ye shall perish occurs four times, i. e. Kal future second person plural masculine with paragogic א and in pause for אבות or אבות. Strictly the heading should be אבות four times and in this book, since the form in question not only occurs four times, but is restricted to Deuteronomy. But this more minute description is often omitted in the Massoretic headings. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 321b, on Deut. 4 26 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 329b, on Deut. 8 20; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 128a, on Deut. 8 19; (IV) Orient. 2350, fol. 268b, also on Deut. 8 19; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 261b on Deut. 4 26, and (VI) the printed Massorah also on Deut. 4 26. It is to be remarked that List No. V heads this Rubric as follows: אבות ye shall surely perish occurs four times. Accordingly the reading in Deut. 8 20 should be אבות in harmony not only with the immediately preceding verse, but with the other two passages. This reading, however, is not supported by the other five headings of this Rubric, though it may have belonged to a particular Massoretic School. It must also be borne in mind that Lists I-IV are not four independent witnesses, but belong to the Yemen School and are copies from the same Model Codex.

אבות - § 55.

אבות is twice plene in this form, i. e. as participle, once as the simple participle אבות and once with the prefix א which is expressed by the term אבות. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 118a, on Deut. 26 5; (II) Vienna Codex No. 85 on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2376, fol. 58b, on Job 31 19, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. There is, however, another recension of this Massorah in Add. 21,160, fol. 329a, on Job. 29 13, which is exhibited in the following Rubric.

יָדָה = § 55*.

יָדָה is twice plene. This is another recension of the preceding Rubric. It registers the fact that יָדָה which occurs eight times is in these two instances only plene, whilst it is defective in the other passages (Deut. 26 5; Ps. 31 13; 119 176; Prov. 31 6; Job 4 11; Eccl. 7 15). Accordingly it is Job 29 13 which is plene and Prov. 31 6 is defective. The Massorah in this MS. as we have already seen in the preceding Rubric often proceeds from a different Massoretic School and is based upon a different recension of the text.

יָדָה = § 56.

יָדָה. He has destroyed, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to distinguish the Piel preterite third person singular from the Kal preterite (יָדָה), the infinitive (יָדָה) and the participle (יָדָה) as well as from the Piel infinitive (יָדָה) etc. all of which are written with the same three letters, but are differently pointed. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 114b, on 2 Kings 21 3 which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 269a, on Jerem. 51 55, and (IV) Orient. 1474, fol. 68b, also on Jerem. 51 55. The heading in this List is יָדָה נִרְקָה דָּשׁ וְיִשְׁמְרֵה including the instance with Var prefix in Jerem. 51 55. In the text of this Rubric it is wrongly printed יָדָה with Tzere under the Beth instead of Pathach.

יָדָה = § 57.

יָדָה occurs twice. The design of this Rubric is to distinguish this Piel preterite second person plural masculine from the Kal preterite second plural which is written with the same letters, but is differently pointed (comp. Levit. 26 38; Deut. 11 17; Josh. 23 16; Jerem. 27 10, 15). Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists all in MSS.: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 109a, on Numb. 33 52 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 94a, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 140b, on Deut. 12 8; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 52a, on Numb. 33 52; (V) the same MS., fol. 130a, on Deut. 12 3; (VI) Orient. 2350, fol. 251b, on Numb. 33 52, and (VII) the same MS., fol. 273b, on Deut. 12 3.

יָדָה = § 58.

יָדָה occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists both in MSS.: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 215b, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 307a, both on Zeph. 2 13.

יָדָה = § 59.

יָדָה occurs three times in the Pentateuch. This expression is only to be found once more besides the Pentateuch, viz. 1 Kings 20 8 and is in two instances Kal future second person singular masculine (Deut. 13 9; 1 Kings 20 8), and in two instances third person singular feminine. The Massorah, however, makes no difference in the gender &c., but registers the words spelled and pointed alike, under the same Rubric. I have only found this Rubric in Add. 15,251, fol. 23b, on Gen. 24 5.

יָדָה = § 60.

יָדָה. Crib occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is (I) to distinguish this noun from the participle passive יָדָה with Kametz (Prov. 15 17), from יָדָה, as well as from the Kal future first person singular with Var conjunctive יָדָה (Isa. 63 6), from יָדָה to tread down, both of which also occur in the same two books. This is evident from the recension of this Rubric in the ancient Codex Add. 21,161, fol. 196a, on Prov. 14 4 where it is as follows:

Prov. 15 17	יָדָה	יָדָה	יָדָה
Isa. 63 6	יָדָה	יָדָה	יָדָה

And (II) it shows that this expression only occurs in the two passages in question in the MSS. recognized as authoritative by the Massorites, and that other Codexes had it also in some other passages. This is evident from the fact that both the Septuagint and the Vulgate have in Job 6 5 ἐπὶ φάτνης ἐξωπ τὰ βρόματα at the crib having fodder and ante praesepie plenum steterit volens in mandeth before a full crib = יָדָה בְּלִי יָדָה and praesepie are the very expressions by which the Sept. and Vulgate render יָדָה in Isa. 1 3; Prov. 14 4 and Job 39 9. Besides the recension in Codex Add. 21,161 I have only found one other List of this Rubric in Harley 5710—11, fol. 1a, on Isa. 1 3 which I have printed. From the fact, however, that it is to be found in the ancient Codex, viz. Add. 21,161, and that it is mentioned in the Massorah Parva of the St. Petersburg Codex on Isa. 1 8 it is evident that it is one of the oldest portions of the Massorah. It is also referred to in the Massorah Parva of most of the Biblical MSS. as well as in the printed Massorah Parva on Isa. 1 3.

יָדָה = § 61.

יָדָה. Abiyah is twice the name of a woman. Besides these two passages this form of the proper name occurs no less than twenty-one times, seventeen times without any prefix, viz. יָדָה 1 Sam. 8 2; 1 Kings 14 1; Neh. 10 8; 12 4; 1 Chron. 3 10; 2 Chron. 11 20, 22; 12 16; 13 1, 2, 3, 4, 15, 17, 19, 22, 23; twice with Var conjunctive, viz. יָדָה 1 Chron. 6 13; 7 8 and twice with prefix Lamed יָדָה Neh. 12 17; 1 Chron. 24 10. As it is the name of a man in all these passages and as it is only in the two instances in question that it is the name of a woman, the Massorah registers the exception. Of this Rubric I found three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 131a, on 1 Chron. 2 24 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 315a, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 2626—28, Vol. III, fol. 2b, also on the same passage. It is referred to in the Massorah Parva in the MSS. of the Bible and in the printed edition on both passages. In the MSS. the reference is under the following three forms: (I) יָדָה בִּישָׁר נִקְבָּה twice a feminine expression; (II) יָדָה בִּישָׁר נִקְבָּה the feminine, and (III) יָדָה בִּישָׁר נִקְבָּה twice the name of a female. On 1 Chron. 2 24 the printed Massorah Parva has the third of these forms, whilst on 2 Chron. 29 1 it has יָדָה בִּישָׁר נִקְבָּה the same form in Chaldee.

יָדָה = § 62.

יָדָה. Abiyahu occurs twice. To understand the import of this Massorah it is necessary to remark that of the twenty-three instances in which the name Abiyah occurs, as shown in the preceding Rubric it is the name of the son of Rehoboam no less than twelve times, viz. 2 Chron. 11 20, 22; 12 16, 13 1, 2, 3, 4, 15, 17, 19, 22, 23. In 2 Chron. 13, however, where nine of the twelve instances occur, he is also called twice יָדָה Abiyahu (verses 20, 21). Hence the remark at the end of the first part of this Rubric יָדָה אֲבִיחֻי in the other parts of the Hagiographa this name (i. e. Abiyahu) is written Abiah.

It will also be seen that out of the twenty-three times in which the name Abiah occurs, twenty-one are to be found in Nehemiah and Chronicles which belong to the third division of the Hebrew Scriptures called the Hagiographa, whilst only two instances occur in Samuel and Kings which belong to the second division called the Prophets. The name of the son of Rehoboam, however, occurs no less than five times in Kings; but here it is invariably written יָדָה Abiyam (1 Kings 14 31; 15 1, 7, 7, 8), and it is only twice that Abiah occurs in the Prophets, once as the name of the second son of the Prophet Samuel (1 Sam. 8 2) and once as the name of the son of Jeroboam (1 Kings 14 1). Hence the remark which forms the heading of the second part of this Massorah יָדָה אֲבִיחֻי בְּכָל מְסָרֵי הַנְּבִיאִים throughout the Prophets the name is Abiyam except in two instances in which it is written Abiyah. The necessity for this Massorah defining the several passages in which these three different forms, Abiyah, Abiyahu and Abiyam are respectively used to denote the same person, arose from the fact that the MSS. greatly varied. Thus for instance the Sept. has in all passages יָדָה Abiyah in which the present text has יָדָה Abiyam. The same is the case in many Hebrew MSS., whilst Add. 15,250, fol. 192a, has one more instance of יָדָה Abiyam than the Massorah recognizes, inasmuch as this Codex reads in 1 Kings 15 6 בִּן יָדָה בֶּן יָדָה as in verse 7. This was also the original reading in Orient. 2626—28, Vol. II, fol. 102a. Add. 15,250 also points this name in two different ways; in four passages the Yod has Kametz and in three it has Pathach, viz. יָדָה and the Massorah Parva remarks against it; three times so. Moreover, יָדָה, whether written with Kametz or with Pathach, has no Dagesh in the Yod. I have only found this Rubric in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 265b, on 2 Chron. 13 19. It is, however, referred to in the Massorah Parva on 1 Kings 14 1; 2 Chron. 13 19 both in the MSS. and in Jacob b. Chayim's edition.

יָדָה = § 63.

יָדָה occurs three times in the Scriptures. This expression which occurs nine times altogether, has in six instances the article and is preceded by the word יָדָה, viz. יָדָה denoting the month Abib (Exod. 13 4; 23 15; 34 18, 18; Deut. 16 1, 1), i. e. the month of green ears, or when the barley was in ear, afterwards called Nisan, and it is only in the three instances in question that it is without the article and without וְ preceding it. Hence the Massorah as usual registers the exceptions. This was all the more necessary since in two out of the three passages the readings varied. Thus one of Kennicott's MSS. reads אֲבִיגַיִל strong, in Exod. 9 31. In Ezek. 3 15 the ancient Codices varied still more. Thus the recension from which the Septuagint was made does not seem to have exhibited it at all, whilst the Syriac which renders it וְאֲבִיגַיִל sorrow, grief (אֲבִיגַיִל) reads אֲבִיגַיִל. The Massorites, therefore, attest that in the Codices which they regarded as authoritative, the reading in these three passages was אֲבִיגַיִל. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 72a, on Ezek. 3 15, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis א, § 47.

ד"ס - § 64.

אֲבִיגַיִל. Abigail which occurs seventeen times is written in four different ways: (I) in twelve instances it has two Yods, i. e. one after the Beth and one after the Gimel (1 Sam. 25 14, 25, 36, 39, 40, 42; 27 3; 30 5; 2 Sam. 2 2; 1 Chron. 2 16, 17; 3 1); (II) once it is with the first Yod defective (viz. אֲבִיגַיִל 1 Sam. 25 8); (III) in three instances the second Yod is defective and it is pointed אֲבִיגַיִל (1 Sam. 25 32; 2 Sam. 3 3; 17 25); and (IV) in one instance it is written אֲבִיגַיִל Abugail, with Vav after the Beth instead of Yod, but is read אֲבִיגַיִל with Yod (1 Sam. 25 18). Though in two instances out of the three where it is without the second Yod it is pointed אֲבִיגַיִל by or ב; (1 Sam. 25 32; 2 Sam. 17 25), yet in one instance the Massorah substitutes אֲבִיגַיִל Abigail, with Yod in the Keri (2 Sam. 3 3). Moreover אֲבִיגַיִל which occurs six times without a prefix (1 Sam. 25 3, 18, 23, 36, 40, 42), is as we have seen in one instance written אֲבִיגַיִל with one Yod and with Kametz under the Gimel being in pause (viz. 1 Sam. 25 3), whilst the form אֲבִיגַיִל which occurs twice (1 Sam. 25 32; 2 Sam. 3 3), is in one instance only אֲבִיגַיִל in the Keri (2 Sam. 3 3), whilst in the other it is both written and read אֲבִיגַיִל (1 Sam. 25 32). Hence the Massorah registers in the first line of the Rubric before us the single instance in which it is written with the first Yod defective. In the second line it gives the one instance in which the textual reading אֲבִיגַיִל has the marginal reading אֲבִיגַיִל. In the third line the Massorah informs us that in all other passages where this name occurs besides the one mentioned in the first line (1 Sam. 25 3), it is written with two Yods; whilst in the fourth line it states that 1 Sam. 25 32 which is the only other instance where the form אֲבִיגַיִל occurs, both the textual and marginal readings are alike, thus differing from 2 Sam. 3 3.

As this name has furnished materials to no less than five different Massorahs I subjoin the ten different forms in which it occurs, as well as references to the Rubrics to which it has contributed.

1. אֲבִיגַיִל 1 Sam. 25 3
2. אֲבִיגַיִל " " 25, 36, 40, 42
3. אֲבִיגַיִל " " 27 3; 30 5; letter ב, § 148, Vol. I, p. 424
4. אֲבִיגַיִל 2 Sam. 17 25; letter ב, § 15, Vol. II, p. 108
5. אֲבִיגַיִל 1 Sam. 25 32; letter ב, § 5, Vol. I, p. 143
6. אֲבִיגַיִל " " 27 3; 30 5; 2 Sam. 2 2; 1 Chron. 2 16, 17
7. אֲבִיגַיִל " " 25 32; letter ב, § 15, Vol. II, p. 108; letter ב, § 559, Vol. II, p. 306
8. אֲבִיגַיִל 2 Sam. 3 3; letter ב, § 485, Vol. II, p. 58
9. אֲבִיגַיִל 1 Chron. 3 1
10. אֲבִיגַיִל 1 Sam. 25 14; letter ב, § 179, Vol. I, p. 329

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 58b, on 2 Sam. 3 2; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on 2 Sam. 3 3, and (III) the printed Massorah, also on 2 Sam. 3 3. In the text of this Rubric אֲבִיגַיִל (1 Sam. 25 32) is by mistake printed with Kametz under the Gimel instead of Pathach.

ד"ס - § 65.

אֲבִיגַיִל. The poor occurs three times defective in the Scriptures. The singular אֲבִיגַיִל which without and with prefixes occurs no less than forty-one times is invariably written with Vav plene, whilst the plural אֲבִיגַיִל which occurs eight times, is in six instances plene (Jerem. 2 34; 5 28; Amos 4 1; Ps. 12 6; 60 34; 79 13) and is only in two instances defective (Ps. 140 18; Job. 24 4), and אֲבִיגַיִל which occurs three times, is in two passages plene (Ps. 112 9; Job 29 16) and is only in one passage defective (Esther 9 22). This is the reason why the Massorah in the Vienna Codex No. 35 remarks on Deut. 15 4 אֲבִיגַיִל that אֲבִיגַיִל is invariably plene, and why the Massorah before us registers the three passages out of the eleven in which the plural is exceptionally written defective. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 275b, on Esther 9 22 which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Ps. 140 13, and (III) the same on Job 24 4. As one of the three instances is אֲבִיגַיִל with Lamed prefix the heading of this Rubric ought strictly speaking to be אֲבִיגַיִל three times defective in this form, i. e. in the plural whether with or without the prefix. But this is implied in the Massoretic language. Hence the expression אֲבִיגַיִל is frequently omitted from the headings of the Rubrics. Its presence or absence is quite arbitrary. Thus in the printed Massorah on Ps. 140 13 and Job 24 4 the heading is אֲבִיגַיִל, whilst in the printed Massorah Finalis א, § 49 where this Rubric is referred to, the heading is simply אֲבִיגַיִל. The same is the case in the Massorah Parva both in the MSS. and in the printed edition. Thus Harley 5710-11 has on Ps. 140 13 and Job 24 4 אֲבִיגַיִל, whilst on Esther 9 22 the same MS. has אֲבִיגַיִל. Arund. Orient. 16 has on all the three passages simply אֲבִיגַיִל, whilst the printed Massorah has on Job 24 4, Esther 9 22 simply אֲבִיגַיִל, and on Ps. 140 13 אֲבִיגַיִל.

ד"ס - § 66.

אֲבִיגַיִל. The poor of occurs twice, once defective and once plene. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 49a, on Exod. 23 11, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 102a, on the same passage. Here too the heading ought strictly to be אֲבִיגַיִל twice in the construct form, since one of the two has Vav conjunctive. The Rubric before us is according to one School of Massorites who registered the orthography of the Codices which they regarded as authoritative. According to another Massoretic School, however, both these instances were written defective. Hence Cambridge Add. 465 has in Isa. 29 19 not only אֲבִיגַיִל defective, but remarks in the Massorah Parva against it אֲבִיגַיִל. This is corroborated by the St. Petersburg Codex which also reads אֲבִיגַיִל defective in Isa. 29 19. It is this School which the printed Massorah Parva follows in Exod. 23 11 where it remarks אֲבִיגַיִל, whilst on Isa. 29 19 where the printed Massorah Parva has אֲבִיגַיִל unique and plene, it is no contradiction, but it simply follows the first recension of this Rubric.

ד"ס - § 67.

אֲבִיגַיִל. Abichail occurs four times in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to distinguish the four passages in which this name is masculine and is written with Cheth from the two instances in which it is feminine and is written with He. Of this Rubric I collated thirteen Lists, twelve in MSS. and one printed. As these Lists exhibit two distinct recensions I shall divide them accordingly.

RECENSION ONE is as follows: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 275b, on Esther 9 29 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. fol. 240b, on 1 Chron. 5 14; (III) the same MS., fol. 359b, on Esther 2 16; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 404b, on 1 Chron. 5 14; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 190a, on Numb. 3 35; (VI) Orient. 2626-28, Vol. I, fol. 120a, also on Numb. 3 35; (VII) the same MS., Vol. III, fol. 4b, on 1 Chron. 5 14, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis letter א, § 48. With the exception of the printed Massorah which adds at the end the two instances that form the next Rubric, all the MSS. simply say that this name occurs four times and enumerate the instances as given in the Rubric.

RECENSION TWO which occurs in five MSS., viz. Orient. 1379, fol. 249a; Orient. 2348, fol. 111b; Orient. 2849, fol. 101b; Orient. 2350, fol. 205a; Orient. 2365, fol. 127a, all on Numb. 3 35 is as follows:

1 Chron. 5 14	אֲבִיגַיִל בְּנֵי חֵת	Numb. 3 35	אֲבִיגַיִל בְּנֵי חֵת
	וְשֵׁם כְּתִיב	Esther 2 15; 9 29	בְּנֵי חֵת

It will be seen that the apparent discrepancy between this recension which states that there are three such instances and the former one which states that there are four is due to the peculiar manner in which this Rubric is formulated by the two Massoretic Schools. The former School records the instances separately and hence gives the number as four, whilst the latter has regard to the three books in which they occur, viz. the Law, Esther and Chronicles and hence gives the number as three, since the two passages in Esther are according to this artificial arrangement counted as one.

ח"ס = § 68.

אֲבִיחַיִל Abihail occurs twice. Though both the Authorised Version and the Revised Version make no distinction in the transliteration of the two instances before us and the four recorded in the preceding Rubric, yet the Massorah calls special attention to the fact that in the two passages where it is the name of a woman it is written Abihail with He (ה), whilst in the four passages which constitute the preceding Rubric and where it is the name of a man, it is Abichail with Cheth (ח). The absence of any distinction in the A. V. may be due to the fact that in some MSS. and in most of the early printed editions of the Hebrew Scriptures both names are with Cheth as may be seen in the notes to my edition of the Hebrew Bible. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 181a, on 1 Chron. 2 29 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 156a, on 2 Chron. 11 18; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 146, fol. 115a, and the printed Massorah Finalis letter א, § 48. The concluding part of this Rubric which refers to the vowel-points and in which it is stated that "in the Prophets it is with Pathach and in Chronicles it is with Kametz" must be a clerical error, since both instances occur in Chronicles. In the second instance where this Rubric occurs again in this very MS. this addition is omitted.

The apparently conflicting remark in the Massorah Parva of some MSS. against 1 Chron. 2 29 that it is unique (א) or does not occur again, whilst in other MSS. it is stated against it that it occurs twice (ב) is due to the fact that the former refers to its pausal form with Kametz under the He (אֲבִיחַיִל), whilst the latter has regard to the spelling with the He.

ח"ס = § 69.

אֲבִיר Strong, mighty, occurs twice. The design of this Rubric is both to guard the reading and to distinguish between the two instances before us where these four letters are with Pathach under the Aleph and Dagesh in the Beth from the four instances where the same letters are with Chateph-Pathach under the Aleph and the Beth is Raphe (Gen. 49 24; Isa. 1 24; 49 26; 60 16). 1 Sam. 21 8 shows that the Codices from which the Sept. was made read אֲבִירִי אֲבִירִי instead of אֲבִירִי אֲבִירִי, whilst in Job 34 20 אֲבִיר was altogether absent. Moreover, in some of the MSS. אֲבִיר is pointed in 1 Sam. 21 8 and this pointing is followed in the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488. The Rubric is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 338a, on Job 34 20 and though I have not found it in the Massorah Magna of any other MS. the existence of these two instances is mentioned in the Massorah Parva both in the MSS. and in the editio princeps of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible 1524—25.

ח"ס = § 70.

אֲבִישַׁי Abishai is the spelling throughout the book of Samuel except in one instance where it is Abshai (אֲבִשַׁי). To understand this Massorah which I have printed from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 202b, on 2 Sam. 10 10 it is necessary to remark that Abishai, one of the sons of Zeruiah the sister of David and one of David's generals occurs twenty-five times and always in Samuel and Chronicles. In Samuel, where it occurs twenty times, it is spelled אֲבִישַׁי Abishai, except in one solitary instance, viz. 2 Sam. 10 10, whilst in Chronicles, where it occurs five times (1 Chron. 2 16; 11 20; 18 12; 19 11, 15), it is without exception spelled אֲבִישַׁי. Hence the recension of this Rubric in the Massorah Parva in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 62b, on 2 Sam. 10 10 אֲבִישַׁי לִי וְבִלְיָ דָוִד רֵעִי אֲבִישַׁי Abishai does not occur again except in Chronicles where it is always so.

The variation in the orthography of this name is due to the primitive manner in which it was written. Originally it was אֲבִישַׁי without Yod, but pronounced אֲבִישַׁי in three syllables as is attested by the transliteration of the Sept. and Vulg. in Chronicles. When in the course of time the Yod was inserted after the Chirek by the earlier Massorites in accordance with their principles of orthography, the process of uniformity did not extend to the last book of the Bible. Hence the later Massorites pronounced and pointed the primitive form אֲבִישַׁי Abishai in those passages where it survived.

The Authorised Version has uniformly discarded the Massoretic vowel-points in all the six instances where it is אֲבִישַׁי Abishai and made it אֲבִישַׁי Abishai. In one instance only did the translators indicate that they have altered the Hebrew text, viz. 1 Chron. 19 11, by placing in the margin against it "Heb. Abishai". In the Revised Version, which also discards the Massoretic vowel-points, the Revisers have this margin against every passage except one, viz. 1 Chron. 19 15.

ח"ס = § 71.

אֲבִישַׁלֹּם Abishalom, occurs twice. This is to distinguish it from אֲבִישַׁלֹּם Abshalom which occurs often (comp. § 91). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 90a, on 1 Kings 15 2 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2626—28, Vol. II, fol. 102a, on the same passage. In the editio princeps of the Massorah Parva, where this Rubric is mentioned on 1 Kings 15 10, the catchwords for the two passages are Abigam and Asa,¹ the names of the two Kings in whose reign Abishalom is mentioned.

אֲבִישַׁלֹּם בִּי אֲבִישַׁלֹּם

ח"ס = § 72.

אֲבִי to mourn, which always takes the preposition עַל has in three instances אֲבִי. The third instance, viz. Amos 5 16, cannot properly be said to belong to this category since the preposition אֲבִי is here governed by the verb וְקָרָא and not by אֲבִי. Still more objectionable is this Rubric in the printed Massorah on Eccl. 7 2 which catalogues five instances adding Gen. 37 35 and Eccl. 7 2. In the first of the two passages אֲבִי belongs to וְקָרָא and in the second to לִלְבָּתָה. They have evidently been added by a later Massorite who has been misled by the instance from Amos 5 16. The Rubric as I have printed it is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 45a, on 1 Sam. 15 35 and though I have not found the List in any other MS., yet the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710—11; Harley 5720, Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250, and Add. 15,251, on 1 Sam. 16 35 distinctly declares that there are three instances only in this Rubric.

ח"ס = § 73.

אֲבִל with Pathach [under the Beth] occurs three times. That is the Kal third person, masculine preterite to distinguish it from the adjective אֲבִל mourning which has Tzere under the Beth. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 128a, on Isa. 24 7 which I printed; (II) Orient. 1474, fol. 174a, on Isa. 33 9; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 224a, on Isa. 24 7; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VI) the same on Hos. 10 5. As this masculine preterite also occurs once with Vav conjunctive, viz. אֲבִיל Amos 8 8, later Massorites have included this Rubric in the large List which they compiled of all the words which severally occur four times, three times without Vav conjunctive and once with it.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter י, § 73, Vol. I, p. 405.

ח"ס = § 74.

אֲבִיל occurs twice. This Rubric which is given both in the Massorah Parva and Magna in the splendid and most carefully written Model Codex Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 207a, on Amos 5 16 I cannot explain, since אֲבִיל occurs no fewer than thirteen times. Besides the two passages in question it is to be found in Gen. 27 41; 50 11; Deut. 34 8; 2 Sam. 14 2; Isa. 61 3; Jerem. 6 26; 16 7; Ezek. 24 17; Eccl. 7 2, 4 and Esther 4 3.

ח"ס = § 75.

אֲבִילָהּ she mourned (Kal preterite third person feminine) occurs five times. This Rubric I have found only in the printed Massorah Finalis letter א, § 51.

ח"ס = § 76.

וְהִתְאֲבִילָהּ and her mourned (Hithpael future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive) occurs four times. This Rubric too I have found only in the printed Massorah where it occurs twice, once on Gen. 37 34 which I have printed and once in the Massorah Finalis letter א, § 52, where it is incorrectly printed. The second וְהִתְאֲבִילָהּ 2 Sam. 13 37 is omitted and the catchwords from 1 Chron. 7 22 are wrongly divided into two separate passages to obtain the requisite four instances.

ח"ס = § 77.

וְהִתְאֲבִילוּ הָעָם and the people mourned occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 38b, on 1 Sam. 6 19.

ח"ס = § 78.

בְּאֶבֶן with a stone occurs three times in the Scriptures. This is to distinguish it from אֲבִיבִי with Kametz under the Beth

[= or] which also occurs three times in the Bible (Levit. 20 27; Judg. 20 16; Ps. 91 12). Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 206a, on 2 Sam. 14 26, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 1879, fol. 158a, on Exod. 21 18; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 66a, on 2 Sam. 14 26; (IV) Add. 15,450, fol. 44a, on Exod. 21 18; (V) the same MS. fol. 95a, on Numb. 35 17; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 176a, on 2 Sam. 14 26; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 118a, on Numb. 35 17; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 251a, on Numb. 35 17; (IX) the printed Massorah on Exod. 21 18 and (X) the same on Numb. 35 17. In the first of the two places the printed Massorah gives the two instances only which occur in the Pentateuch. As also occurs once with Vav conjunctive, viz. Dan. 11 88 later Massorites have included this Rubric in the large List which they compiled of the words which severally occur four times, three times without Vav and once with it.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ν , § 73, Vol. I, p. 405.

ש"פ - § 79.

and the stone occurs twice. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Gen. 29 2; Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 186, has it in the Massorah Parva on Gen. 28 22.

ד - § 80.

for a stone occurs twice with Kametz under the Aleph. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 192b, on 1 Sam. 25 37 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 58b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 9b, on Gen. 11 3, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ד"ד - § 81.

Stone precedes wood in four instances. The normal phrase in the Bible when these two materials are mentioned in conjunction is "wood and stone" except in the passages before us where they are inverted. The Massorites, therefore, guarded the scribes against making this anomalous phrase conformable to the regular order. When it is borne in mind that some ancient Codices had the normal order in Levit. 14 45 as is evident from the Septuagint, the necessity for this Massoretic caution is apparent. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists: (I) Orient. 1879, fol. 217a, on Levit. 14 45 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 90b; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 179b; (IV) Orient. 2345, fol. 108a; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 160a, all on Levit. 14 45; (VI) Oohlah Ve-Oohlah Paris recension § 285 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 14 45. The compiler of the Oohlah Ve-Oohlah adds a fifth instance, viz. Jerem. 3 9 which he says is outside the Massorah.¹

¹ Comp. Deut. 28 86, 84; 29 16; 2 Sam. 5 11; 2 Kings 19 18; Isa. 37 19; Ezek. 20 32 etc.

² Comp. § 283, p. 162.

ד"ב - § 82.

Two verses are alike, they have severally twice stones of, the first is without Vav conjunctive and the second is with it. The design of this Massorah is to guard against making Exod. 25 7 conformable to the parallel passage in 35 9 where also occurs twice, but where it has Vav conjunctive in both instances. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists: (I) Orient. 1879, fol. 158b, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 81a; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 171b, and (IV) Orient. 2350, fol. 136b, all on Exod. 25 7.

ד"ג - § 83.

the stool, the wheel occurs twice. Of this Rubric I have found one List only in Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 35a, on Exod. 1 16 which I have printed.

ד"ד - § 84.

Ibsan occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 28a, on Judg. 12 8.

ד"ה - § 85.

Abraham, Abraham occurs twice in this reduplicated form. It will be seen that the two instances are not exactly parallel, since in Gen. 25 19 the second Abraham begins a new sentence. As it is Gen. 22 11 only which properly exhibits an emphatic iteration it is included in the separate Massorah which records this special class.¹ This Rubric I have found only in the printed Massorah on Gen. 25 19.

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter א , §§ 686, 687, Vol. II, p. 685.

ד"ו - § 86.

Abraham, Isaac and Jacob occurs twice. This Rubric records the two exceptional passages where the three patriarchs occur conjointly and where the third patriarch is called by his original name Jacob. It is to be remarked that when (Exod. 6 8) (Exod. 6 8; 33 1; Numb. 32 11; Deut. 1 8; 6 10; 9 5, 27; 29 12; 30 20; 34 4) (Exod. 2 24) or (Exod. 3 6, 15; 4 6) precedes each of the three names of the patriarchs the phrase is not included in this Rubric. Equally excluded is the triplet in which the second patriarch is called (Jerem. 33 26). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 1879, fol. 122a; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 69a, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 59a, all on Exod. 3 16 and all Yemen MSS.

ד"ז - § 87.

Abraham, Isaac and Israel occurs four times. In this Rubric are registered the four instances of this triplet in which the third patriarch is by way of exception called Israel, the name given to him by the angel with whom he wrestled at Penuel. It is remarkable that whilst all the instances in which the Lamed is prefixed to each of the patriarchs are carefully excluded from the former Rubric, yet Exod. 32 13 which has the Lamed before all these names is here included. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 56a, on Exod. 32 13 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. Vol. I, fol. 233a, on 1 Kings 18 36; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 93a, on 1 Kings 18 36; (IV) the same MS. fol. 256b, on 1 Chron. 29 18; (V) the same MS. fol. 276a, on 2 Chron. 30 6; (VI) Orient. 1879, fol. 173a; (VII) Orient. 2348, fol. 86b; (VIII) Orient. 2349, fol. 76b, all on Exod. 32 13 and (IX) the printed Massorah also on Exod. 32 13.

ד"ח - § 88.

And Abraham begins a verse five times. With Vav conjunctive the name of this patriarch occurs only eight times altogether and this Rubric shows that in five out of the eight passages it begins a verse. As all the instances occur in Genesis, the heading of this Rubric ought properly to be אברהם five times at the beginning of a verse and in this book, i. e. Genesis. But the qualifying expressions are often omitted. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Gen. 18 15 as I have not found it in any MS.

ד"ט - § 89.

Abram begins a verse twice. Though Abraham the trisyllabic name occurs no fewer than one hundred and thirty eight times it never begins a verse, whilst Abram the bisyllabic form which occurs fifty times only begins a verse twice. This Rubric I have printed from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 180a, on 1 Chron. 1 26. As these two instances constitute one of the pairs without Vav prefix at the beginning of the verse whilst they have it in all other passages, they are included in the separate Massoretic List which enumerates these phenomena.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter א , § 62, Vol. I, p. 595.

ד"י - § 90a-b.

Abram occurs twice: Abram occurs three times. These two Rubrics are simply two different forms of recording the same fact. Though the shorter name Abram, occurs altogether sixty-one times, fifty times without prefixes and eleven times with prefixes, yet in two instances only is this bisyllabic name to be found outside Genesis. It is this fact which the two Rubrics before us record in two different ways. The first states that it occurs twice only, i. e. outside Genesis and that every where from Gen. 11 26 to 17 5 it is also Abram. The second Rubric which states that this bisyllabic name occurs three times in the Scriptures obtains this number in artificially regarding the portion from Gen. 11 26 to 17 5 as exhibiting one example. The Rubrics are from Orient. 1879, fol. 48b; Orient. 2348, fol. 44a, and Orient. 2349, fol. 34a, all on Gen. 11 26. After אברהם these MSS. have אברם one, i. e. from Gen. 11 26 to 17 5 is one instance, which I have inadvertently omitted. In § 90a Gen. 11 26-17 5 should be 11 26-17 5 and in § 90b, Gen. 10 26 should be 11 26-17 5.

אֲבִשָׁלֹם = § 91.

אֲבִשָׁלֹם Absalom is thirteen times defective. Out of the one hundred and nine times in which this name occurs, eighty-six times without and twenty-three times with suffixes, it has retained its primitive orthography in thirteen instances only. This is the number given both in the heading of the Rubric and in the detailed enumeration of the passages in the Model Codex Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 205b, on 2 Sam. 13 4 which I have printed. The other five Lists, however, which I have collated, four in MSS, and one printed give the number as fourteen, though they differ in some instances as to the precise passages which make up the requisite number. List II is in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 66b, on 2 Sam. 16 14; List III is in the same MS., fol. 67b, on 2 Sam. 16 13; List IV is in the Vienna Codex No. 85 on 2 Sam. 15 14; List V is in Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah, fol. 98b note and List VI is in the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 17 18. The following Table exhibits the points of agreement and difference in the six Massoretic Lists; the numbers indicate the order in which the passages are given in the several Lists:

VI	V	III	II	I		VI	V	III	II	I
3	4	8	8	"	2 Sam. 17 15	*	1	1	1	1
12	12	12	11	9	" 18	1	2	2	2	3
8	9	10	10	6	" 24	6	3	3	3	8
10	10	11	12	10	" 25	7	8	4	4	4
11	11	9	9	" 13	" 26	4	6	5	5	5
18	13	13	18	11	" 18	10	9	5	"	6
14	14	14	14	12	" 18	5	7	6	6	2
						2	3	7	7	7

It will be seen that there are altogether fifteen such instances and that these six Lists exhibit two distinct recensions which proceed from two different Schools of Massorites. The first recension is given in List I and the second is contained in the remaining five Lists.

אֲנִי = § 92.

אֲנִי This expression occurs twice; it is both times plene and denotes two different things. In the first instance it is Kal future first person singular from אָנָה and in the second it is the proper name Agur. This Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 257a, on Prov. 30 1. In Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 347b, where this Massorah is also given on the same passage, the heading is simply אָנָה which is not so distinct. As the homonyms have been arranged alphabetically by the Massorites, this pair is included in the alphabetical List which records these expressions.

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter א, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217.

אֲנָם = § 93.

אֲנָם to a pool, or a pool of occurs three times. This Rubric is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 205b, on Ps. 107 85. In Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 130b, where this Massorah is given on Isa. 41 18 this extremely correct Codex has it אֲנָם אֲנָם אֲנָם in all the three instances with Pathach, i. e. אָנָם though it is in the absolute in Isa. 35 7. The printing has with Kametz in the editio princeps of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible (Venice 1524-25) in Isa. 35 7 is not only against the Model Codex, but against Jacob b. Chayim's own Massorah on this very passage which expressly says אֲנָם אֲנָם אֲנָם.

אֲבִי = § 94.

אֲבִי a boiling caldron, a rush or bulrush is three times defective in this sense. Altogether this expression occurs five times with and without prefixes, and it is in these three instances in which it has retained its primitive orthography, having escaped the insertion of the mater lectionis. In some Massoretic Schools the process of uniformity was more successful since several MSS, as well as the editio princeps of the Prophets, Naples 1486-87 and the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488 have plene plene in Isa. 58 5. The Rubric which I have printed is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 325b, on Job 40 26. This List is also given in the printed Massorah on the same passage.

אֲדָרְכֶיךָ = § 95.

אֲדָרְכֶיךָ with the Alef occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to show that in both these instances the expression in question is without the mater lectionis. This is attested by the best Codices and the early printed editions where it is defective. The insertion of Vav, i. e. אָדָרְכֶיךָ in Isa. 58 4 in the first edition of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible is, therefore, incorrect. This Rubric I have printed from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 27a, on Isa. 58 4. It is also given in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 43b, on the same passage. The Rubric does not occur in the printed Massorah though it is noticed in the Massorah Parva on Exod. 21 18.

אָרָר = § 96.

אָרָר. The expression אָרָר occurs twice and in two different senses. That is, it denotes both vapour and calamity. Each of the three Lists which I have collated of this Massorah has a different heading: (I) the one which I have printed and which is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 2a, on Gen. 2 6 emphasises the fact that it has two different meanings; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage heads it אָרָר בֵּרַח אָרָר בֵּרַח אָרָר, simply points out that it is defective, i. e. without Yoð in the first instance and plene in the second and says nothing about its different senses, whilst (III) the printed Massorah Parva on Job 18 12 heads it אָרָר בֵּרַח אָרָר בֵּרַח אָרָר which lays stress upon its denoting two different things without any reference to its being defective in one passage and plene in the second. This pair is included in the alphabetical List of homonyms.

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter א, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217.

אָרָרִים = § 97.

אָרָרִים Edonites occurs twice. That is the plural of אָרָר only occurs twice. This Rubric is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 164d, on 2 Chron. 25 14.

אָרָרָה = § 98.

אָרָרָה the Lord occurs twice. That is in this primitive orthography without the mater lectionis this expression occurs twice, whilst in the other six instances, where it occurs, (Isa. 1 24; 3 1; 10 16, 33; 19 4; Mal. 3 1) it has the Vav. This Rubric is from Add. 1174, Cambridge University Library, on Exod. 23 17. The printed Massorah Parva on this passage makes the import of this Rubric much clearer, viz. אָרָרָה אָרָרָה אָרָרָה אָרָרָה אָרָרָה אָרָרָה אָרָרָה it is twice defective and has Pasek.

אָרָרָהוּ = § 99.

אָרָרָהוּ the Lord Jehovah of Hosts is one of five instances in this book. This Rubric which I have printed from the St. Petersburg Codex A. D. 916 is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah. It is given on Isa. 10 16 and hence the heading describes it as "one of the five" instances in which this phrase occurs in this book, i. e. Isaiah. As this phrase does not occur apart from Isaiah אָרָרָהוּ ought properly to be אָרָרָהוּ אֲדָרְכֶיךָ in this book. This Rubric is also given in the printed Massorah on Isa. 3 1 where the heading is אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ these three expressions occur five times in combination in the Scriptures.

אָרָרָהוּ = § 100.

אָרָרָהוּ. The expression אָרָרָהוּ with different suffixes occurs six times plene in this sense. It will be seen that among the six instances constituting this Rubric is the proper name אָרָרָהוּ 2 Chron. 17 3. This is due to the fact that like the other forms of this root it has the Vav abnormally inserted. The insertion, however, of the mater lectionis in this proper name is in accordance with the Palestinian recension. The Babylonians read it אָרָרָהוּ defective. Those Massorahs, therefore, which assign five instances only to this Rubric are based upon the Eastern recension of the text. Of this uncommon Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 316b, on Ps. 123 2 and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter is manifestly corrupt, it not only states in the heading that there are seven plene instances (אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ), but gives 1 Sam. 16 16 as one of the seven; though in quoting this passage it distinctly declares that אָרָרָהוּ here is doubly defective (אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ אָרָרָהוּ), i. e. without Vav and without Yoð.

אָרָרָהוּ = § 101.

אָרָרָהוּ my lord is twice with the accent on the penultima. This illustrates the extreme minuteness of the Massorah extending even to the accents. Though the expression אָרָרָהוּ occurs fewer than one hundred and sixty times in the Bible the Massorah definitely states that it is Miqel in these two instances only where the Dagesh has Munach. I have verified every passage and found the statement absolutely correct. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 18b, on Judg. 1 6, which I have printed and (II) Vienna Codex No. 85 on Dan. 10 17.

ק"ב = § 102.

ה' the lord or master of occurs four times in the Scriptures. Though plural construct, this form is used in all the four instances as plur. excellentias and is translated by the singular. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 4445, fol. 88a, on Gen. 42 80 which shows that it is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 232, on 1 Kings 16 24; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 91a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 48b, on Gen. 42 30; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VI) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 16 24. As this plural construct also occurs once with Vav conjunctive it is included in the alphabetical List of words which severally occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ך, § 76, Vol. I, p. 407 etc.

ק"ג = § 103a.

ל' מפקדי בל אדנות. In seven instances is the Aleph sounded in the expression lord. That is though preceded by the prefixes Beth, Vav, Caph and Lamed this expression has abnormally-Chateph-Patach under the Aleph. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 26b, on Gen. 40 1 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 76a, on 1 Kings 1 2; (III) the same MS. fol. 206a, on Amos 4 1; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 42b, on Gen. 40 1 which gives the mnemonic sign; (V) Vienna Codex No. 85 on Amos 4 1; (VI) the same MS. on Pa. 136 3; (VII) the same MS. on Neh. 8 10; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 40 1 and (IX) the same on Pa. 136 3. The mnemonic sign King David said to God, the Lord, the Holy one Give ye thanks, which is given in List IV and which consists of seven words, is as usual obtained by translating a word into Chaldee from each of the seven passages in which this anomaly occurs. In the printed Massorah Parva by Jacob b. Chayim Venice 1524-25 where this sign is given on Gen. 40 1 it is as follows: מלכא דבאר שבע רבא דבאר שבע לללא מורו לקדשא the King, the Lord of David said to all Give thanks to the Holy One.

ק"ד = § 103b.

סימן בוכל. Sign for the prefixes Beth, Vav, Caph and Lamed. This Rubric not only records the instances contained in § 103a, but lays down the rule from which the instances in question depart. In giving this rule, however, the Massorah mentions the fact (I) that in אלהים God, when it is preceded by one of these four serviles the Aleph is also Rophe, or has no vowel-points and (II) that in יהוה the Yod loses its Sheva when the Tetragrammaton has one of these prefixes. This Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 217b, on Pa. 136 3. The seventh instance, i. e. Neh. 8 10 is here omitted. This is manifestly due to an oversight on the part of the Scribe as is attested by the heading. The omission of the last line is by no means of uncommon occurrence.

ק"ה = § 103c.

ל' Lord has in nine instances an audible Aleph. This recension of Rubric 103 which is from the Model Codex Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 318a, on Pa. 136 3 is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, since it is also given in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 29a, on Gen. 40 1. It will be seen that whilst all the nine Lists, recorded in § 103a, as well as the most elaborate recension in § 103b, emphatically state that there are seven instances only which constitute this exception and accordingly enumerate only seven, this recension, as emphatically states that there are nine instances and records the nine exceptions. The two instances according to this recension are אלהים which occurs twice, viz. Deut. 10 17 and Pa. 136 3. It is, therefore, evident that the ancient School of Massorites from which this Massorah proceeds did not limit the effect of the prefixes upon the vowel-points of the Aleph in יהוה lord to בל, since in these two instances it is אלהים with the prefix He (ה).

ק"ו = § 104.

ה' thy lord occurs twice. That is with the suffix second person singular feminine. In all the other instance where this expression has the suffix second person singular it is masculine, viz. יהוה. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 25a, on Isa. 51 22; which I have printed; (II) Arund.

Orient. 16, fol. 295a, on Pa. 45 12 and (III) the printed Massorah on Isa. 51 22. This Rubric forms one of the pairs in the alphabetical List of words which severally occur twice with Patach.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ך, § 589, Vol. II, p. 290.

ק"ז = § 105.

ואדנינו and our lord occurs twice. That is with Vav prefix, to distinguish it from the other seven instances where it is without this Vav. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 217b, on Ps. 135 5 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 76a, on 1 Kings 1 2 and (III) Vienna Codex No. 85 on Pa. 135 5.

ק"ח = § 106.

לאדניהם to their lord occurs twice. That is with the prefix Lamed to distinguish it from the other nine passages where it is without this prefix. This Rubric is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 110a, on Amos 4 1.

ק"ט = § 107.

יהוה Lord occurs twelve times in the Pentateuch. That is this expression standing by itself is used in twelve instances in the Pentateuch for the Tetragrammaton. It indeed occurs sixteen times in this division of the Hebrew Bible, but in the other four instances it is in combination with the Tetragrammaton, viz. יהוה יהוה (Gen. 15 2, 8; Deut. 3 24; 9 26). As there can be no doubt about its import in these passage they are excluded from this List. The two instances where it has the prefix Lamed and where it stands for the Tetragrammaton in the Pentateuch, viz. יהוה יהוה Gen. 18 30, 32 are according to this Massoretic School, also excluded from this List because they are part of a separate Rubric which registers the passage where this expression with Lamed occurs in the whole Bible.¹ Of this separate Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 57b, on Exod. 24 9, which I have printed and (II) Orient. 1379, fol. 57b, on Gen. 18 32. In the printed Massorah Parva on Gen. 18 27, reference is made to this separate Rubric stating that there are fourteen such instances in the Pentateuch, but this manifestly includes the two passages with the prefix Lamed, viz. יהוה יהוה.

¹ Vide infra, § 118, p. 27.

ק"י = § 108.

יהוה Lord is five times so written in Kings. In Joshua יהוה occurs once only by itself, viz. 7 8, in the other passage (7 7) it is combined with Jehovah, viz. יהוה יהוה. Of Judges where it occurs twice by itself (6 15; 13 8) and twice in combination with Jehovah (6 22; 16 28) I have found no separate List. The six instances in Samuel are all combined with Jehovah (2 Sam. 7 18, 19, 19, 20, 28, 29) and hence do not belong to this category. It is only when we come to Kings where it occurs five times that we have again, a separate List. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 98a, on 1 Kings 22 6 which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 197a, on the same passage. It will be seen that whilst the passages where this expression has the prefix Lamed are excluded from the List on the Pentateuch the instance in which it has Vav prefix (יהוה 2 Kings 7 6) is here given as one of the five. It is important to remark that this Massorah proceeds from a School of textual redactors which read יהוה in these passages instead of יהוה and that the recension which obtained in other Schools had יהוה in at least three out of the five passages as will be seen from the notes to my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

ק"יא = § 109.

יהוה Lord is twenty-three times written so in Isaiah. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 120b, on Isa. 4 4 and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 217b, on the same passage. The heading in the second List distinctly states that there are twenty-two such instances only in Isaiah. But as it enumerates twenty-one passages only and omits two, viz. Isa. 9 7, and 38 16 it is difficult to say which of these is meant to be excluded according to this recension. The important features of this Massorah, however, which are common to both recensions are that (1) they both read יהוה in Isa. 38 14 which is the Palestinian reading, whilst the Babylonians and the Hellali Codex read here יהו ;¹ (II) they both read יהוה in Isa. 49 14a instead of יהו which is the reading in the textus receptus and (III) that in no fewer than thirteen out of the twenty-three passages which are here recorded as reading יהוה some of the Codices and the early printed editions read יהו , as will be seen from the notes in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

¹ It is to be remarked that the so-called Babylonian Codex of A. D. 916 reads here יהוה in accordance with the Palestinian recension.

יהוה - § 110.

יהוה . Lord is six [five] times so written in Ezekiel. In Jeremiah where יהוה without any prefix occurs eleven times¹ and with the prefix Lamed three times² it is invariably in combination with יהוה and hence does not belong to this category. It is remarkable that in Ezekiel, where יהוה occurs no fewer than two hundred and twenty-two times, it is combined with יהוה in two hundred and seventeen instances and in five passages only does it stand by itself for Jehovah. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 175a, on Ezek. 18 25 which I have printed and (II) Cambridge Add. 1174 on the same passages. Both these Lists state in the heading that there are six such instances in Ezekiel and both enumerate five only which is in accordance with the textus receptus and with the statement of the Massorah Parva in Arund. Orient. 16, on Ezek. 21 14 and the printed Massorah Parva on Ezek. 18 25. Such discrepancies between the number stated in the heading of a Rubric and the actual number of passages given in the Rubric itself are not uncommon in the Massorah.

¹ Comp. Jerem. 1 6; 2 19, 22; 4 10; 7 20; 14 18; 22 17, 25; 44 26; 49 6; 50 31.

² Comp. Jerem. 46 10, 10; 50 25.

יהוה - § 111.

יהוה . Lord occurs seven times in the book of the twelve Minor Prophets. Though יהוה without any prefix occurs thirty-three times in the Minor Prophets it is in seven instances only that it stands by itself. In all the other twenty-four passages it is combined with יהוה . The single instance where it has the prefix Lamed (יהוה Mal. 1 14) the Massorah does not include in this List though it stands by itself. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) the Vienna Codex No. 85 on Zech. 9 4 which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 314b, on the same passage.

יהוה - § 112.

יהוה . Lord written with Aleph occurs thirty-four times in the Prophets and has here a Pasek. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 11 11. It is of great importance inasmuch as it shows that the record of the divine name Adonai in the several books of the Hebrew Scriptures is one of the earliest portions of the Massorah. The expression written with Aleph is meant to distinguish it from the Tetragrammaton which is also pronounced Adonai, but is written with Yod at the beginning. The expression יהוה does not mean the Prophets generally, i. e. the Former and Latter which is its usual sense, but is here restricted to the Latter Prophets since the instances from the Former Prophets, viz. Joshua, Judges, Samuel and Kings are excluded from this List. Nor does יהוה denote that Adonai is followed by a Pasek in all the thirty-four instances, a sense which might apparently be assigned to it, but simply means that in the passage on which this Massorah is given, viz. Isa. 11 11 Adonai is followed by this accent.

On comparing this ancient general List of the Latter Prophets with the several Rubrics on each individual Prophet which I have given from other MSS. it will be seen that with the exception of Isa. 49 14a they harmonise absolutely. With regard to the relation of this Massorah to the text of the St. Petersburg Codex itself, however, it is to be remarked that in Isa. 6 8 and 9 7 this Codex originally read יהוה instead of יהוה whilst in Ezek. 21 14 it reads יהוה .

יהוה - § 113.

יהוה . Lord is so written forty-six times in the Psalter. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from the Model Codex Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 800a, on Pa. 68 12.

יהוה in the heading is a mistake for יהוה = 46. The forty-six instances are made up by the inclusion of יהוה with the prefix Vav Pa. 35 23. The two instances where it has the prefix Lamed, viz. יהוה Pa. 22 31 and 130 6 are excluded though Adonai in these passages stands by itself. This is in accordance with the principle of the Massoretic School which included in this reckoning the prefix Vav and excludes the prefix Lamed. (Comp. § 108.) On referring to the notes in my edition of the Hebrew Bible it will be seen that in no fewer than seven instances some of the MSS. and early edition read יהוה instead of יהוה .¹ It is also important to notice that in quoting the passage from Pa. 16 2 the Massorah before us substitutes יהוה for יהוה , thus giving the pronunciation of the Tetragrammaton instead of the letters of the Tetragrammaton.

¹ Comp. Pa. 20 9; 28 10; 39 8; 40 18; 44 24; 86 3, 4.

יהוה - § 114.

יהוה . Lord is fourteen times so written in Lamentations. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 357a, on Lament. § 31 which I have printed, and (II) Cambridge Add. 468 on Lament. § 20. The two instances which I give in the notes to my edition of the Hebrew Bible where some MSS. and early editions read יהוה instead of יהוה (Lament. § 19; § 31) are supported by considerable authority. It is, however, important to remark that several MSS. read יהוה in other passages and that the superb Codex of the Pentateuch with the Megilloth Add. 21,160 originally read יהוה in no fewer than thirteen out of the fourteen passages. The Psalter and Lamentations are the only two books in the Hagiographa of which I have found separate Lists recording the instances in which Adonai occurs by itself instead of the Tetragrammaton.

יהוה - § 115.

יהוה . Lord is one hundred and thirty-four times written so. This Rubric distinguishes the one hundred and thirty-four passages where Adonai stands by itself from the three hundred and four instances in which it is combined with Jehovah. Of this Rubric which records all the instances in the Bible where Adonai stands by itself for the Tetragrammaton I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 57b, on Exod. 34 9 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251 in the Massoretic Appendix fol. 483a; (III) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah I, § 161, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis letter a, § 85. The heading in Lists I and II is as I have printed it. In the Oohlah Ve-Oohlah, however, as well as in Jacob b. Chaylm's Massorah the expression יהוה and יהוה follow the word יהוה , i. e. יהוה and יהוה i. e. Adonai entirely or Adonai by itself. List I is complete having the seven instances in which Adonai has the prefix Lamed at the end of the Rubric. List II gives two instances only of יהוה , viz. Isa. 28 2; Mal. 1 14, and omits five, viz. Gen. 18 30, 32; Pa. 23 31; 130 6; Dan. 9 9. List III gives one instance only of Adonai with the prefix Lamed and omits all the others. It also omits Exod. 5 22 and Job 28 28. List IV apart from separating the seven instances of יהוה is also complete. It will thus be seen that all the four Lists include the one instance in which Adonai has the prefix Beth, the three instances in which it has the prefix Vav and the seven with the prefix *Lamed*¹ in the one hundred and thirty-four passages. According to this computation, therefore, the Pentateuch has fourteen instances and not twelve (comp. § 107), Isaiah has twenty-three and not twenty-two (comp. § 109); the Minor Prophets have eight and not seven (comp. § 111); the Latter Prophets have thirty-six and not thirty-four (comp. § 112) and the Psalter has forty-eight and not forty-six (comp. § 113).

We have seen that in many of these one hundred and thirty-four instances in which the present received text reads Adonai in accordance with this Massorah, some of the best MSS. and early editions read the Tetragrammaton, and the question arises how did this variation obtain? The explanation is not far to seek. From time immemorial the Jewish canons decreed that the incommunicable name is to be pronounced Adonai as if it were written יהוה instead of יהוה . Nothing was, therefore, more natural for the copyists than to substitute the expression which exhibited the pronunciation for the Tetragrammaton which they were forbidden to pronounce. This is confirmed by the fact that the Massorah itself in giving the catchword of a passage substitutes אָדֹנָי for יהוה (vide supra, § 113) and that the Easterns read אָדֹנָי where the Westerns have יהוה and vice versa.¹ Hence we may safely assume that though the Scribe wrote Adonai for יהוה he would not insert the incommunicable name instead of אָדֹנָי. The reading, therefore, in the conflicting passages is in favour of the Tetragrammaton.

¹ Comp. יהוה Pa. 73 28; יהוה 2 Kings 7 6; Isa. 49 14; Pa. 25 23; יהוה Gen. 18 30, 32; Isa. 28 2; Mal. 1 14; Pa. 23 31; 130 6; Dan. 9 9.

¹ Comp. Isa. 38 14; Mal. 1 14; Lament. 5 21 and the notes in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

קָדָשׁ = § 116a-c.

Adonai Jehovah is four times so written in the Pentateuch. In the Pentateuch there are two different combinations of the Tetragrammaton with another Divine Name, viz. Jehovah Elohim which is the more common and which occurs no fewer than twenty times¹ and the uncommon combination Adonai Jehovah which occurs four times only. The Massorah, therefore, in the Rubric before us records the less usual combination. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 58a, on Gen. 15 2 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 46a; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 85a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 16,251, fol. 110a, on Deut. 9 26 and (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 15 2. List I states at the end that all the four instances occur in the Pentateuch, whilst the other three Lists record this fact in the heading of the Rubric.

¹ Comp. Gen. 2 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 15, 16, 18, 19, 21, 22; 3 1, 8, 9, 15, 14, 21 22, 23; Exod. 9 30.

קָדָשׁ = § 116b.

Adonai Jehovah occurs four times in the Hagiographa. It will be seen that the heading describes these four instances as occurring in the Hagiographa though the instances adduced are all from the Psalms. This is due to the fact that there are no other passages in the Hagiographa where this combination occurs. The Psalms, therefore, represent the whole of this division of the Bible. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 194b, Pa. 71 5 which I have printed and (II) Add. 16,251, fol. 359b, on the same passage.

קָדָשׁ = § 116c.

Throughout the Pentateuch &c. — This Massorah summarises the various combinations of the two Divine names in the three divisions of the Scriptures. In the Pentateuch it is always אָדֹנָי יהוה with the exception of four passages where it is אָדֹנָי יהוה. In the Prophets it is always אָדֹנָי יהוה with the exception of five passages where it is יהוה אֱלֹהִים, whilst in the Hagiographa it is always אֱלֹהִים אָדֹנָי with the exception of four passages where it is אָדֹנָי יהוה. Moreover, in the Prophets and Hagiographa there are five instances in which יהוה precedes אָדֹנָי. It will be seen that in these passages the Tetragrammaton has the vowel-points of Elohim in accordance with the Massoretic rule. Hence the heading אֱלֹהִים אָדֹנָי instead of אָדֹנָי יהוה, substituting the expression which represents the pronunciation of the Tetragrammaton for the Tetragrammaton itself. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 351b, on Deut. 9 26 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 9a, on Gen. 15 2; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 113a, on Deut. 3 24; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 210a, on Jonah 4 6; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 152, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 69 7.

קָדָשׁ = § 117.

Adonai with Vav prefix (אָדֹנָי) occurs three times. These three instances are included in the one hundred and thirty-four passages where Adonai by itself stands for the Tetragrammaton. (Vide supra, § 115.)

קָדָשׁ = § 118.

Adonai with Lamed prefix (אָדֹנָי) occurs seven times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 179b, on Ps. 22 21; which I have printed (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 284b, on Dan. 9 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 129b, on Isa. 28 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 222b, on Mal. 1 14; (V) the same MS., fol. 371b, on Dan. 9 9 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Isa. 28 2. The mnemonic sign at the end of the Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Parva only on Gen. 18 30. Though these seven instances are an integral part of the one hundred and thirty-four passages where Adonai by itself is equivalent to the Tetragrammaton yet they not only form a separate Rubric which is of frequent occurrence in the Massorah, but they are guarded by a mnemonic sign. This is due to the fact that the Easterns read אָדֹנָי in Mal. 1 14, and this reading is exhibited in most of the early printed editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. It is to exclude the Eastern reading, therefore, that the Westerns formulated this separate Rubric.

קָדָשׁ = § 119a.

אָדֹנָי then, the adverb, begins a verse thirteen times in Daniel . . . So it is also from Dan. 5 30 to 6 12 and throughout Ezra except in three instances . . . Every where else it is with the prefix Beth (בְּאָדֹנָי).

קָדָשׁ = § 119b.

אָדֹנָי then, the adverb, begins a verse eighteen times in Daniel . . . So it is also throughout Ezra except in the three instances where it is with the prefix Beth.

In order to understand these two apparently conflicting recensions of the same Massorah it is necessary to remark: (I) that אָדֹנָי which occurs twenty times in Daniel begins a verse in eighteen instances; (II) that בְּאָדֹנָי which occurs twenty-five times in Daniel begins a verse in twenty-two instances and that (III) this Massorah is designed to guard against the interchanging of these two forms on the part of the Scribes. To effect this the Massorites as usual tabulate the fewer instances and thereby indicate that in all the other passages which constitute the majority אָדֹנָי begins the verse. As the part of Daniel from 6 4 to verse 12 is the only section where אָדֹנָי and בְּאָדֹנָי do not interchangeably begin a verse, the first recension of this Massorah states that in this portion which exhibits five instances, it is always אָדֹנָי. This leaves thirteen instances where אָדֹנָי begins a verse and where it has to be safeguarded against its rival בְּאָדֹנָי. The second recension gives the eighteen instances in their natural order with their separate catchwords. In Ezra where אָדֹנָי occurs seven times and where it begins a verse six times, whilst בְּאָדֹנָי only occurs three times, the latter is the exception. Hence the minority of instances are recorded for safeguarding.

The first recension of this Massorah which is more artificial is more popular in the MSS. Of it I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 277a, on Dan. 2 17 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. Vol. II, fol. 278a, on Dan. 2 48; (III) the same MS. Vol. II, fol. 278b, on Dan. 3 24; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 364b, on Dan. 2 17; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 99 and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis letter א, § 64. Of the second recension I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 368a, on Dan. 5 6; (II) the same MS., fol. 369b, on Dan. 6 15 and (III) the same MS., fol. 374b, on Ezra 4 24.

קָדָשׁ = § 120.

אָדֹנָי אֱלֹהֵינוּ. That is, this adverb without and with the prefix Beth occurs nine times at the beginning of the verse with the accent Telisha-gedola. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, two in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 281a, on Dan. 6 7 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 375b, on Ezra 6 13; (III) the printed Massorah on Dan. 6 6; (IV) the same on Ezra 6 13 and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 63. The first of the three printed Lists alone is complete, the other two are defective.

קָדָשׁ = § 121.

אָדֹנָי. This adverb with the prefix Beth occurs three times at the beginning of a verse in Ezra. In the other six instances where it begins a verse in this book it is without the prefix Beth.¹ This separate Rubric which is of frequent occurrence in the MSS. I have printed from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 289a, on Ezra 5 2. It is also a part of Rubric 119a.

¹ Comp. Ezra 4 9, 23; 5 4, 9, 16; 6 13.

קָדָשׁ = § 122.

אָדֹנָי occurs five times with the accent Gershah. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 278b, on Dan. 3 21; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 279a, on Dan. 3 26; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 368b, on Dan. 5 17 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Dan. 3 26.

קָדָשׁ = § 123.

אָדֹנָי the mighty, the noble in Ezek. 32 18 is defective of both Yods and in Zech. 11 2 it is defective of the first Yod, whilst in all the other instances both without and with the prefixes it is entirely plene. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Orient 1474, fol. 108a, on Ezek. 32 18. The orthography in Ezek. as here set forth is that of the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491—93; the Latter Prophets, Pesaro 1515; the fourth edition of the Bible, Pesaro 1511—17, the Complutensian, the first edition of Bomberg's Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and Jacob b. Chayim's edition of the Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25. But in the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86, the first edition, of the entire Bible, Soncino 1488 and in the third edition, Brescia 1494, it is entirely plene. The same diversity of orthography also obtains with regard to Zech. 2 2. The second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491—93 and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible 1517 are the only two editions which follow this Massoretic precept here. The editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86, the first and third editions of the Bible, the Pesaro edition of the Latter Prophets, the fourth edition of the Bible, the Complutensian and the first Rabbinic Bible in the margin, read entirely plene, whilst the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah by Jacob b. Chayim has with the second Yod defective and a Massorah against it קכד unique in this spelling.

קכד = § 124.

אֲדָמָה and their nobles occurs twice in the Scriptures once plene and once defective. According to this Massorah which I have printed from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 40a, on Jerem. 14 3 the plene instance is in Jeremiah, whilst in Neh. 3 5 it is with the second Yod defective. On Nehemiah 3 5, however, where the same MS. gives this Rubric a second time (Vol. II, fol. 294a) it simply states that אֲדָמָה occurs twice and in the text itself this Codex has both instances plene. This coincides with the Massoretic Rubric given in the printed Massorah by Jacob b. Chayim where it is expressly stated that both are plene though in the text Jacob b. Chayim has with the first Yod defective in Jerem. 14 3. This spelling which I adopted in my edition of the Bible is supported by the important Codex Harley 5720, which has a Massorah on it, Cambridge Add. 465, the carefully printed Lisbon edition of Jeremiah 1492, and the Complutensian. The plene reading, however, is in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, Arund. Orient. 16, the editio princeps of the Prophets, the first, second and third editions of the Bible (1488, 1491—93; 1494) the first Rabbinic Bible (1517) and the Bomberg quarto of 1521. It is, therefore, evident that there were different Massorahs with regard to the orthography of this expression which were based upon the different recensions of the text preserved in the several Massoretic Schools. As this expression also occurs once without the prefix Vav, it is included in the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice with Vav and once without it.³

1 וְאֲדָמָהּ בְּיָמֵי אֲדָמָהּ Comp. the printed Massorah on Neh. 3 5.
2 וְאֲדָמָהּ בְּיָמֵי אֲדָמָהּ.
3 Comp. The Massorah, letter ו, § 71, Vol. I, p. 404.

קכ"ה = § 125.

אָדָם a man occurs ten times at the beginning of a verse. It will be seen that Adam in 1 Chron. 1 1 which is a proper name is here included in the ten instances. This Rubric I have not found anywhere except in the printed Massorah of Jacob b. Chayim on Levit. 13 2.

קכ"ו = § 126.

בְּאָדָם in a man occurs four times in the Scriptures... and once it is with Vav prefix. The design of this Massorah is to distinguish between the five instances where the Bath has Sheva and the twenty passages in which it has Kametz. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 253b, on Prov. 23 28 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 107b, on Levit. 22 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 345a, on Prov. 23 28; (IV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah fol. 120b note; (V) the printed Massorah on Levit. 13 9 and (VI) the same on Prov. 23 28. The fact that this Rubric occurs in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445 shows that it is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah. It also forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it.¹

1 Comp. The Massorah, letter ב, § 75, Vol. I, p. 407.

קכ"ז = § 127.

בְּאָדָם and man occurs nine times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, eight in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 242b, on Prov. 3 4 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 124b, on Isa. 13 12; (III) the same MS., fol. 138b, on Isa. 45 12; (IV) the same MS. fol. 195b, on Ps. 49 13; (V) the same MS. fol. 333a, on Job 34 15; (VI) the same MS., fol. 337a, on Prov. 3 4; (VII) the same MS., fol. 344a, on Prov. 20 24; (VIII) Cambridge Add. 465, on Isa. 13 12 which alone has the mnemonic sign; (IX) the printed Massorah on Prov. 3 4; (X) the same on Prov. 20 24 and (XI) the same on Job 34 15.

קכ"ח = § 128.

כְּאָדָם like man occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 105a, on Hos. 6 7 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 199b, on Ps. 82 7; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 235b, on Job 31 33; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 305a, on Ps. 82 7 and (V) the printed Massorah on Hos. 6 7.

קכ"ט = § 129.

לְאָדָם with Sheva under the Lamed without and with Vav prefix occurs thirteen times. This Rubric which I have printed from Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah on Job 33 23 is incorrect. There are altogether fifteen such instances. The editor had either an imperfect List before him or by oversight omitted Isa. 44 15, and Job 33 23 and altered the heading in harmony with the recorded instances.

קל = § 130.

לְאָדָם occurs three times. That is with Sheva under the Lamed and the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 264a, on Eccl. 2 21 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 351b, on the same passage; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah fol. 120b note and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Eccl. 2 21. This Rubric forms part of the preceding List in Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah.

קל"א = § 131.

לְאָדָם occurs five times in the Scriptures... Throughout Ecclesiastes it is likewise so except in one instance where it is with Kametz. As לְאָדָם with Sheva under the Lamed is the normal form and לְאָדָם with Kametz under the Lamed is of less frequent occurrence, the exceptions are safeguarded in this Rubric. In Ecclesiastes, however, לְאָדָם with Kametz under the Lamed is the rule and לְאָדָם with Sheva under the Lamed is the exception, hence the single instance is recorded. Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, nine in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 38a, on Jerem. 10 23 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 119a, on Zeph. 1 17; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 234a, on Job 28 28; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 255b, on Prov. 27 19; (V) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Zeph. 1 17; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 154a, on Jerem. 10 23; (VII) the same MS., fol. 215a, on Zeph. 1 17; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 346b, on Prov. 27 19; (IX) Cambridge Add. 465, on Zeph. 1 17 from which I have printed the second mnemonic sign; (X) the printed Massorah on Exod. 4 11; (XI) the same on Jerem. 10 23 which gives the first mnemonic sign and (XII) the same on Zeph. 1 17 where this mnemonic sign is given again. The mnemonic sign by itself is also repeated in the printed Massorah Finalis letter א § 68.

It is remarkable that the St. Petersburg Codex gives Eccl. 2 18 as the first instance instead of Job 28 28. But as לְאָדָם occurs no fewer than seven times in Ecclesiastes and moreover, as the addition of this single instance is contrary to the structure of this Massorah, there can hardly be any doubt that the catchword לְאָדָם = Eccl. 2 8 is a mistake for לְאָדָם or לְאָדָם = Job 28 28.

In the printed Massorah by Jacob b. Chayim where as we have seen, this Rubric occurs three times, it has a different heading in each instance. The first heading is especially noticeable. In Exod. it is לְאָדָם in five times Milel. Here the Kametz is called Milel in contradistinction to the Sheva, i. e. לְאָדָם which accordingly is Milra. Hence in the second instance where this Massorah is repeated in Jeremiah the heading is קצק and the expression קצק is used for its equivalent קליב = § 132a.

1 Comp. Eccl. 1 3; 2 18, 22; 6 11, 12, 12; 8 16.

Sign: In Genesis &c. As the phrase from man unto beasts, occurs in five books only and as the preposition is without the prefix Vav in three books and with it in two, this Rubric simply specifies the three books in which it is וְ and the two in which it is וְ. This Massorah is far more correctly given in Orient. 2349, fol. 62b, on Exod. 9 25 where it is as follows: כל כראש ודבר: במדבר בני והולדת מאדם עד בהמה וכל האלה שומות ורמזיהו מאדם ועד בהמה ודבר משה קליב = § 132b.

From man unto beast occurs four times in combination in the Scriptures. Whilst the preceding Rubric simply specifies the books in which the two phrases occur, this Massorah fixes the four instances where וְ is without the prefix. It, moreover, adds at the end that throughout Exodus it is וְ with the prefix (comp. Exod. 9 25; 12 12). With this prefix, however, it also occurs once in Jerem. (50 3). Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174 on Gen. 7 23 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 217b, on Ps. 135 8; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Numb. 3 13 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קליב = § 133.

קליב ground, soil occurs eleven times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 242b, on 2 Kings 5 17 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. Vol. II, fol. 11, fol. 164b, on 2 Chron. 26 10; (III) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 229; (IV) Cambridge Add. 465 on Exod. 20 24 which alone gives the mnemonic sign; (V) the same MS. on Isa. 15 9, where the mnemonic sign is repeated; (VI) the printed Massorah on Joel 2 21; (VII) the same on 2 Chron. 26 10.

קליב = § 134.

This good land occurs three times. As this phrase is preceded by קצק from off, in all the three instances Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 17a, on Josh. 23 13 heads this Rubric קצק קצק קצק from off this good land occurs three times.

קליב = § 135.

קליב and the land occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 32a, on Gen. 47 19 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 38b, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 121a, on Isa. 6 11; (IV) Cambridge Add. 465 on Deut. 11 17 which alone gives the mnemonic sign; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 47 19 and (VI) the same on Deut. 11 17. The fact that this Rubric occurs in Orient. 4445 shows that it is one of the oldest portions of the Massorah.

קליב = § 136.

The land of the priests occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from 15,251, fol. 39b, on Gen. 47 22.

קליב = § 137.

קליב my land occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 114a, on Jonah 4 2; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 235b, on Job 31 38; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 261b, on 2 Chron. 7 20; (IV) the same MS., fol. 232a, on Job 31 38; (V) the printed Massorah on Jonah 4 2 and (VI) the same on Job 31 38.

קליב = § 138.

קליב thy land occurs five times. That is with Segol under the Tav to distinguish it from the seven instances in which it has Sheva under the Tav. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 116b, on Deut. 7 13.

קליב = § 139.

קליב our land (without and with the prefix Vav) is according to the Surai always defective and according to the Nehardai always plene (i. e. קליב). Both the second and the first are defective till Ezra cometh. The terms Surai and Nehardai denote two subordinate Schools of Massorites so called after the names of the cities in Babylon where the respective academies flourished. The famous principal School of textual critics in that country is quoted by the general name of Madinchai or Easterns. From this important Rubric we see that even the Babylonians were not unanimous in their readings. The Massorite who compiled the Rubric before us declares in favour of the Sarai reading which he says is so certain that it could only be altered by Ezra the great Scribe himself when he comes again. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 32b, on Gen. 47 19.

קליב occurs four times (Gen. 47 19, 19; Neh. 10 36, 38) and קליב twice (Gen. 47 18, 19).

קליב = § 140.

קליב red, ruddy, occurs twice in the Scriptures and is plene. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 184a, on 1 Sam. 16 12, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 45b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 17a, on Gen. 25 25; (IV) the same MS., fol. 154b, on 1 Sam. 16 12, and (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 25 25. Both Add. 15,250 in the second instance and the printed Massorah add וְ קליב and once it is with Vav prefix, i. e. 1 Sam. 17 42. In this passage, however, it is קליב defective.

קליב = § 141.

קליב Adonijah, occurs eight times defective in the Scriptures. Of this complicated Massorah I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 198a, on 2 Sam. 3 4 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 215b, on 1 Kings 1 5; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 299a, on Neh. 10 17; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 58b, on 2 Sam. 3 4; (V) the same MS., fol. 75b, on 1 Kings 1 5; (VI) the same MS., fol. 239a, on 1 Chron. 3 2; (VII) the same MS., fol. 386a, on Neh. 10 17; (VIII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 46, and (IX) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 1 5.

To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that (I) the name Adonijah occurs altogether twenty-seven times, that in nineteen instances it has the Vav appended to it or is קליב and in eight only is it קליב and that (II) a difference obtained in the Massoretic Schools with regard to its orthography in one of the eight passages. The Easterns read it קליב defective in 2 Chron. 17 8, whilst the Westerns read it קליב plene. It is also to be added that in one of the eight instances if not in two passages Adonijah has the prefix Vav, i. e. קליב. With these facts before us we shall be able to explain the various headings of the different Lists as well as the apparently divergent statements about their contents.

When List I which I have printed heads this Massorah, Adonai is eight times defective, it is due to its being based upon the Eastern recension of the text which does not admit of the plene reading in 2 Chron. 17 8. It will also be seen that this List reads קליב the shorter form in the first part of this verse and omits Neh. 10 7. This divergence must presumably also be due to the Eastern recension.

List II also states that 2 Chron. 17 8 contains two of the eight instances in which the shorter form occurs, i. e. that the reading here is קליב and not קליב. It, therefore, also proceeds from the Eastern School. Here, however, a later editor added the instance from Neh. 10 17 so that the Rubric has actually nine instances though the heading expressly states that there are eight only. The heading of this Rubric, moreover, is קליב, thus recognising the two instances in which this name has the prefix Vav according to this recension.

List III is based upon the Western recension and hence omits the phrase קליב in 2 Chron. 17 8, and gives Neh. 10 17 as the eighth instance.

The remaining six Lists uniformly exhibit the eight instances of the Western recension. For the origin of the two forms of this name see the Introduction to my edition of the Massoretico-Critical Text of the Hebrew Bible, p. 386 etc.

1 Comp. Exod. 23 19; 34 26; Deut. 21 23; 28 4, 33, 51; 30 9.

קטב - § 142.

he loved occurs four times in the Scriptures with Pathach under the He. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 226b, on 1 Kings 11 1 which gives the mnemonic sign; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 24b, on Gen. 37 3 where the heading is אהב ד' את בקר' אהב without the mnemonic sign; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 86a, on 1 Kings 11 1; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 43a, on Gen. 37 3 which gives the same mnemonic sign; (V) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah II, § 272, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 37 3 where the Massorah Parva gives the following mnemonic sign ישראל באהב which I have found nowhere else.

קטג - § 143.

he loved occurs nine times, with Tzerē under the He. Of this Rubric I collated thirteen Lists, twelve in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 178a, on 1 Sam. 1 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 176b, on Ps. 11 7; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 187b, on Pa. 47 5; (IV) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 918 on Hosea 12 8; (V) the same MS. on Mal. 2 11; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 35a, on 1 Sam. 1 5; (VII) the same MS., fol. 202b, on Hos. 12 8; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 223a, on Mal. 2 11; (IX) the same MS., fol. 286a, on Pa. 11 7; (X) the same MS. fol. 804a, on Pa. 78 68; (XI) the same MS. fol. 308b, on Pa. 99 4; (XII) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah II, § 273, and (XIII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 1 5.

קטד - § 144.

he loved him occurs four times. The design of this Massorah is to distinguish between this Kal preterite third person singular masculine with the suffix third person masculine from the words consisting of the same four letters which are pointed differently, viz. אהב אהב אהב אהב. Of this Rubric I have collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 30a, on Gen. 44 20; which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 188a, on 1 Sam. 20 17; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 23a, on Isa. 48 14; (IV) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah II, p. 123a note; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 44 20, and (VI) the same on 1 Sam. 20 17.

קטה - § 145.

he loved her occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 316a, on Ps. 119 140 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 342b on the same passage; (III) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah Supplement fol. 132b and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 119 140.

קטז - § 146.

thou lovest occurs twice, i. e. Kal preterite second person feminine. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 143a, on Isa. 57 8.

קטז - § 147.

I loved. Kal preterite first person singular has always Pathach under the He except in Pa. 119 48. That is, in all the passages where אהב is not in pause with Athnach or Soph-Pasuk the He has always Pathach except in this single instance where it has Kametz with the accent Rebia. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 212b, on Ps. 119 48.

קטח - § 148.

I loved thee occurs twice. That is with the suffix second person feminine in contradistinction to the single instance where it is אהבתי suffix second person masculine (Isa. 43 4). This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 30a, on Judg. 16 15.

קטט - § 149.

they love thee occurs three times plene. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 186b, on 1 Sam. 18 22 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 260b, on Cant. 1 3 where the heading is more correctly given אהבתי אהבתי אהבתי, since it does not occur in any other form; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 48a; (IV) the same MS., fol. 348a, on the same two passages and (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 18 22.

קי - § 150.

love ye occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric which I have found in the printed Massorah only on Pa. 31 24 is incorrect, since אהבתי with Chataph-Segol under the He occurs only once. In the first instance which this Rubric gives it is אהבתי with Vav prefix. This imperative plural, however, without the prefix occurs a second time in pause with Kametz under the He, viz. אהבתי Zech. 8 13. Accordingly the heading should either be אהבתי אהבתי or אהבתי אהבתי and the reference should be to Zech.

קי"א - § 151.

and he loved occurs six times in the Scriptures and they are unique. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 156a, on 2 Chron. 11 21 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 42a, on Gen. 25 28 and (III) the same MS., fol. 44b, on Gen. 29 18. Orient. 2349, however, not only states in the heading of both Lists that it occurs five times only, but enumerates the five passages and omits Gen. 34 8¹ which is given in List I. But this does not solve the difficulty since there are nine instances in which אהבתי occurs. List I omits three, viz. Gen. 29 30; Judg. 16 4, and Esther 2 17, whilst Lists II and III omit four, these three and Gen. 34 8. The solution seems to lie in the fact that though אהבתי occurs altogether nine times it is in six instances only that it begins a verse and the Massorah before us, as is often the case, catalogues these alone. This seems to derive support from Lists I and II in which all the five instances begin a verse though these Lists omit Esther 2 17 which is the sixth instance. Accepting this as the explanation of the difficulty we have to take the catchword אהבתי in List I to stand for אהבתי who is so called in Esther 2 7, 9, which yields the sixth passage where אהבתי begins a verse. The addition אהבתי at the end of the Rubric, the Scribe simply added to fill up the line.

Comp. Orient. 2349, fol. 42a.

קי"ב - § 152.

and he loved him occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Cambridge Add. 465 on 1 Sam. 16 21.

קי"ג - § 153.

and he loved her occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 205b, on 2 Sam. 13 1 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 64b, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 51b, on Gen. 24 67 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קי"ד - § 154.

occurs twice in the Scriptures, once with Kametz and once with Pathach. That is, once it is Kal future first person singular in pause, and once Kal imperative singular masculine. It is to be remarked that the Massorah takes no notice of the Aleph having Tzerē in one instance and Chataph-Segol in the other. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 245b, on Prov. 8 17.

קי"ה - § 155.

occurs twice. That is, the participle active singular masculine with Vav prefix to distinguish it from אהבתי the future first person singular with Vav conversive in Mal. 1 2. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 286b, on Ps. 11 5 and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 110b, on Deut. 10 18.

קי"ו - § 156.

occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, this participle plural construct occurs four times with the prefix Vav to distinguish it from the five passages in which it is without this prefix.¹ Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 115a, on Micah 3 2 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 194b, on Pa. 69 37; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 200b, on Hos. 3 1; (IV) the same MS. fol. 301a, on Pa. 69 37 and (V) the printed Massorah on Hos. 3 1.

¹ Comp. Isa. 56 10; Ps. 5 12; 40 17; 70 5; 97 10.

קניז - § 157.

אֲדוּבָהּ. The Kal participle passive in all its forms whether masculine or feminine, with or without the prefix He is with *Vav plene*¹ except in one instance where it is defective. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Cambridge Add. 1174 on Deut. 21 15.

¹ Comp. אֲדוּבָהּ Neh. 13 26; אֲדוּבָהּ Deut. 21 15; אֲדוּבָהּ Deut. 21 15, 16.

קניח - § 158.

אֲהַבָהּ than the love, occurs twice. This Rubric I have found only in the printed Massorah on Prov. 27 5.

קניש - § 159 a.

אֲהַבָהּ. Throughout the Minor Prophets it is אֲהַבָהּ, אֲהַבָהּ with Cheth in the middle and He at the end, whilst throughout Ezra it is אֲהַבָהּ with He in the middle and Aleph at the end. To understand this artificial Massorah it is necessary to remark that the contrast here is between the orthography of two apparent homonyms, since אֲהַבָהּ denotes brotherhood whilst אֲהַבָהּ is the proper name of a river. It is also to be remarked that the expression כל throughout, in these artificial contrasts, is not to be taken literally, but simply means in, since אֲהַבָהּ occurs only once in the Minor Prophets, viz. Zech. 11 14 and אֲהַבָהּ without the prefix does not occur at all. Throughout Ezra, however, where the name of the river occurs, it is always with He in the middle and Aleph at the end. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 291 a, on Ezra 8 31. The instance from Zehariah is incorporated in the List of words which severally occur once only with Cheth.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ה, § 14, Vol. I, p. 472.

קניז - § 159 b.

אֲהַבָהּ Ahava, occurs three times. The heading ought properly to be אֲהַבָהּ אֲהַבָהּ אֲהַבָהּ Ahava occurs three times and in this book, since it does not occur outside Ezra. This Rubric I found only in the printed Massorah on Ezra 8 15.

קיס - § 160.

אֲהַבָהּ and the love of, occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Add. 15,251, fol. 254 b, on Jerem. 31 3.

קיסא - § 161.

אֲהַבָהּ love, occurs three times in the Scriptures. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 105 b, on Hos. 8 9. The heading ought properly to be אֲהַבָהּ אֲהַבָהּ אֲהַבָהּ, since in Prov. 7 18 it is אֲהַבָהּ with the prefix Beth.

קיסב - § 162.

אֲהַבָהּ occurs twice, once with Pathach under the Yod and once with Kametz. That is, once it is Piel future third person singular masculine and stands for אֲהַבָהּ from אֲהַבָהּ and once it is Hiphil future third person singular masculine from אֲהַבָהּ. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174, on Job 31 26, which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. These two expressions form part of the Alphabetical Lists of words which respectively occur twice, once with Pathach and once with Kametz.¹ They also form part of the Massoretic List of words which severally occur once only with He whilst in all other passages they are with Cheth.²

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter י, § 600, Vol. II, p. 308.

² Comp. The Massorah, letter ה, § 31, Vol. I, p. 269.

קיסג - § 163.

אֲהַבָהּ tent, without or with a prefix is always defective. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Orient. 2349, fol. 63 b, on Levit. 4 18.

קיסד - § 164.

אֲהַבָהּ in the tent of, occurs eight times with Sheva under the Beth. This Rubric which I have found in the printed Massorah only on Numb. 19 14 is at first very difficult to understand, since אֲהַבָהּ with Sheva under the Beth occurs no fewer than forty-one times. On examining, however, the thirty-three instances which are not included in this Rubric it will be found that אֲהַבָהּ in all these passages is followed by אֲהַבָהּ congregation or meeting¹ and that it is in these eight passages alone that it is without אֲהַבָהּ. Accordingly this Massorah ought properly to be אֲהַבָהּ אֲהַבָהּ אֲהַבָהּ and wherever אֲהַבָהּ is followed by אֲהַבָהּ, or where the phrase is אֲהַבָהּ אֲהַבָהּ in the tent of meeting the Beth has likewise Sheva.

¹ Exod. 27 21; 30 36; 40 22, 24, 26; Levit. 4 7, 18; 16 17; 24 3; Numb. 1 1; 3 26; 4 3, 4, 15, 23, 28, 31, 33, 35, 37, 39, 41, 43, 47; 8 19, 22, 26; 14 10; 17 19, 22; 18 31; Deut. 31 14, 14.

קיסה - § 165.

אֲהַבָהּ in the tent, occurs six times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, three in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 223 a, on 1 Kings 8 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 82 b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS. fol. 259 b, on 2 Chron. 5 5; (IV) the printed Massorah on Numb. 19 14; (V) the same on Judg. 5 24 and (VI) the same on 2 Chron. 5 5 where the mnemonic sign is given which I have printed. It is remarkable that this mnemonic sign which I have not found in the MSS. Jacob b. Chayim gives three times more in the printed Massorah without the catchwords for the six passages, viz. once in the Massorah Magna once in the Massorah Parva on 1 Kings 8 4 and once in the Massorah Finalis letter א, § 203.

קיסז - § 166.

אֲהַבָהּ for the tent, occurs five times in the Scriptures. That is without being followed by אֲהַבָהּ. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 46 a, on Exod. 26 7; which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Both these Lists distinctly state that there are five such instances and give 2 Chron. 1 6 as one of the five passages; the catchword אֲהַבָהּ in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah is manifestly a misprint for אֲהַבָהּ, as is evident from the MS. which I have printed. Moreover the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,250 and Add. 15,251, on Exod. 36 14, as well as in Add. 15,250 and in Add. 21,160, on Numb. 9 15 state that it occurs five (ה) times. Yet it occurs four times only without אֲהַבָהּ in the present recension of the text, since in 2 Chron. 1 6 it is followed by אֲהַבָהּ and is given as such in the next Rubric. Can this be due to a different recension? That the import of this Rubric is as stated, viz. אֲהַבָהּ not being followed by אֲהַבָהּ, is evident from the List in the printed Massorah which says אֲהַבָהּ אֲהַבָהּ אֲהַבָהּ.

קיסח - § 167.

אֲהַבָהּ for the tent of meeting, occurs five times in the Scriptures. Though אֲהַבָהּ with Sheva under the Lamed, occurs nine times, it is in five instances only that it is followed by אֲהַבָהּ. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 149 b, on 2 Chron. 1 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. Vol. I, fol. 74 a, on Levit. 16 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 244 a, on 1 Chron. 9 21; (IV) the same MS. fol. 257 a, on 2 Chron. 1 6; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 92 a, on Levit. 16 16; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 418 a, on 2 Chron. 1 6 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 16 16. All the seven Lists include 2 Chron. 1 6 in this Rubric, though it is given in the preceding Rubric as one of the instances where אֲהַבָהּ is not followed by אֲהַבָהּ and three of the seven Lists are on 2 Chron. 1 6. There can, therefore, be no doubt that these different Massoretic Lists are based upon Codices which read אֲהַבָהּ אֲהַבָהּ in the passage in question.

קיסט - § 168.

אֲהַבָהּ for the tent, occurs three times with Kametz under the Lamed. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 244 b, on 1 Chron. 9 19 which I have printed; (II) the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 79 b, on Exod. 36 19; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 62 a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 128 a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 46 a, on Exod. 26 14 and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קיסז - § 169.

אֲהַבָהּ from the tent, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 189 a, on Ps. 52 7; which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 28 b, on Gen. 31 33; (III) the same MS. fol. 137 a, on Levit. 1 1; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 65 b, on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קעז = § 170.

into the tent, occurs eight times. That is with the local He. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 10a, on Gen. 18 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 142a, on Josh. 7 22; (III) the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 59b, on Exod. 18 7; (IV) the same Codex fol. 76a, on Exod. 33 8; (V) the same Codex fol. 130b, on Numb. 11 26; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 5b, on Josh. 7 22; (VII) the same MS. fol. 21a, on Judg. 4 18; (VIII) Cambridge Add. 465, on Exod. 33 9 which alone has the mnemonic sign; (IX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 84, and (X) the printed Massorah on Judg. 4 18.

קעיא = § 171.

his tent, is four times written with He and read with Vav. That is, the suffix third person singular masculine exhibits the archaic termination He instead of the normal Vav which the Keri directs to be substituted for the textual orthography. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 44b, on Gen. 12 8 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 34b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 18b, on the same passage; (IV) Cambridge Add. 465 on the same passage which alone has the mnemonic sign and (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 9 21. It is remarkable that though all these Lists state that there are four only of these instances which they duly enumerate, yet Jacob b. Chayim in the editio princeps of this Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah (Venice 1524-25) not only reads with He in Gen. 26 25, but in the heading of this Rubric in the Massorah Finalis letter מ, § 206 declares that there are five such instances. This statement is confirmed by Harley 5710-11. Though the List itself does not occur in it, yet in the Massorah Parva both on Gen. 9 21 and 13 3 this Model Codex distinctly declares that it is so written in five instances. There can, therefore, be no doubt that some Massoretic Schools had preserved more instances of this archaic form.

Comp. Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fols. 65, 85.

קעיב = § 172.

they tents, with Cholem on the Aleph, with or without the prefix Lamed is always written with Yol except in one instance. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from the Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb. 24 5.

קעיג § 173.

in tents, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 56a, on Jerem. 35 7 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 24a, on Judg. 8 11; (III) the same MS., fol. 170b, on Jerem. 35 7; (IV) the printed Massorah on Judg. 8 11 and (V) the same on Hos. 12 10. List II has at the end א, בא כהלים נעז, i. e. Numb. 24 6.

קעיד = § 174.

in thy tents, occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the Printed Massorah is from Add. 15,251, fol. 124a, on Deut. 33 18.

קעיה = § 175.

to his tents, is twice defective. That is in two instances the textual reading is לשהו = לשהו noun singular with suffix third person singular for which the official Keri substitutes לשהו noun plural. This substitution of the plural for the singular the Massorah supports by referring to the parallel passage in 2 Chron. 25 22. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only on 2 Kings 14 12.

קעיו = § 176.

Aaron and Hur, occurs twice. This is intended to fix the reading of אהרן without the prefix Vav in Exod. 17 10 and to safeguard against its being made conformable to verse 12 where the two names occur in conjunction with the prefix Vav. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 50a, on Exod. 24 14.

קעיז = § 177.

Aaron precedes Moses five times. That is against the normal combination which is Moses and Aaron. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 70b, on Exod. 6 26 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 60b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 73a, on the same passage; (IV) (Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, p. 57b, margin and (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 6 26. These five Lists exhibit two recensions of this Massorah. The one which is given in Lists I and II states that there are five such instances, giving the whole of the Hagiographa as containing the fifth instance. The other recension states in the heading that there are four instances and throughout Chronicles it is likewise so. The two different treatments of this anomaly is due to the fact that apart from the Pentateuch this combination occurs in Chronicles only, viz. 1 Chron. 5 29; 23 13. Hence the first recension which takes Chronicles to represent the Hagiographa counts the whole of this division of the Hebrew Bible as exhibiting the fifth instance. The second recension counts the four instances from the Pentateuch and adds that throughout Chronicles it is likewise so. The Rubric as given in Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah List V is misleading, since it simply enumerates the four instances and omits the qualifying clause with regard to Chronicles.

אמר ויספר ר . . . וכל דברי חכמים דמותיה.

קעיה = § 178.

and Aaron and his sons, occurs three times. Usually it is Aaron and his sons without the prefix before Aaron. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 316b, on 1 Chron. 6 34 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 136b, on Exod. 40 31; (III) the same MS., fol. 190a, on Numb. 3 38; (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 40 31 and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis letter מ, § 206.

קעיש = § 179.

— Nineteen verses which have severally three times the conjunction ו or. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 71b, on Levit. 13 56. There are, however, eighteen such verses since in Levit. 20 27 ו occurs twice only.

קעים = § 180.

— Eight verses have severally four times the conjunction ו. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 95a, on Numb. 15 3.

קעיא = § 181.

— Three verses have severally five times ו. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 89b, on Levit. 13 59 and (II) the same MS. fol. 95a, on Levit. 22 22.

קעיה = § 182.

occurs six times defective with the prefaces. It is to be remarked that the Massorah in registering the orthography of this term takes no notice of the fact that in these six instances the expression denotes two different things. In the first two passages where it is with the prefix He it denotes familiar spirits, necromancers, and though it occurs altogether seven times with the prefix He it is only in these two instances where it is entirely defective. In the other four passages it is Oboth, the proper name of a station of the Israelites in the desert and in this sense it is always defective. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 93b, on Levit. 19 31 which I have printed (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 76a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 248a, on Numb. 33 43 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

For the five instances with the second Vav plene see 1 Sam. 28 3, 9; 2 Kings 23 24; Isa. 8 19; 19 8.

קעיו = § 183.

because of, on account of, is so written in three instances. It occurs altogether nine times and is spelled in two different ways; in six instances it is ממה without the first Vav and with the second, whilst in three instances it is ממה with the first Vav and without the second. The Massorah, therefore, registers the exceptional orthography. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) the Vienna Codex No. 35, on Gen. 21 11 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. on Exod. 18 8; (III) Add.

Comp. Gen. 21 25; 26 32; Numb. 12 1; 13 24; Judg. 6 7; Jerem. 3 8.

16,250, fol. 14a, on Gen. 21 11 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah which states that there are four such instances and gives Gen. 26 32 as one of the four is against the MSS.

קס"ד = § 184.

רָצְוָה she desired, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 116a, on Micah 7 1 which I have printed; (II) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 212a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 329b, on Job. 23 13; (V) the same MS., fol. 344a, on Prov. 21 10 and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis letter מ, § 219. It is remarkable that the St. Petersburg Codex distinctly declares that there are two instances only and omits Job 23 13.

קס"ה = § 185.

רָצְוָה she desireth, occurs three times. This Rubric which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter מ, § 220 is incorrect since this expression occurs five times, 1 Sam. 2 16, 1 Kings 11 37 being omitted. It is not unfrequently the case that a Rubric is imperfect when it is only to be found in the printed Massorah.

קס"ו = § 186.

רָצְוָה they that desireth, or lusteth, occurs twice. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 3a, on Amos 5 8; which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 80b, on Numb. 11 34 and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 300a, on Amos 5 8. List II has the heading רָצְוָה בְּבָקָר וּבְעֵזִים.

קס"ז = § 187.

וָאוּ אֵלַי wee unto us, occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Add. 15,250, fol. 241a, on Jerem. 4 13. The word וָאוּ in this book as is often the case has been omitted from the heading, since it also occurs twice in 1 Sam. (4 7, 8). The design of this Massorah is to distinguish between this phrase and וָאוּ אֵלַי wee now unto us which also occurs twice, once in the very chapter where the first phrase occurs, i. e. Jerem. 4 13 and once Lament. 4 6.

קס"ח = § 188.

וָאוּ אֵלַי wee to the city, occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 182b, on Ezek. 24 6. The heading ought properly to be וָאוּ אֵלַי twice and in this book since this phrase occurs only in Ezekiel. But, as we have seen, the qualifying expressions וָאוּ אֵלַי and וָאוּ אֵלַי are frequently omitted.

קס"ט = § 189.

וָאוּ אֵלַי fools, occurs five times in this form. That is, with the first Yod defective. In all other instances where this expression occurs whether with or without the prefixes, in the singular or plural it has Yod after the Vav. The addition וָאוּ אֵלַי in this form is to indicate that the instance in Zech. 11 15 is וָאוּ אֵלַי the adjective singular. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 208b, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 126b, on Isa. 19 11; (III) the same MS. fol. 342a, on Prov. 16 22; (IV) the printed Massorah on Zech. 11 15 and (V) the same on Ps. 107 17.

קצ"א = § 190.

וָאוּ אֵלַי it may be, unless, is always plene except in one instance where it is defective. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 5. וָאוּ אֵלַי is one of the alphabetical List of words which severally occur once defective.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ו, §§ 129, 131, Vol. I, p. 419.

קצ"ב = § 191a.

וָאוּ אֵלַי but, nevertheless, occurs three times at the beginning of a verse. That is in Job, the qualifying expression וָאוּ אֵלַי, as is often the case, is omitted. The heading ought properly to be וָאוּ אֵלַי וָאוּ אֵלַי it occurs three times and at the beginning of a verse in Job, since it only occurs three times altogether and begins a verse in every instance. וָאוּ אֵלַי without and with the prefix Vav occurs altogether ten times in Job and always begins a verse.

As it is in seven instances וָאוּ אֵלַי with the prefix Vav¹ and in three instances only וָאוּ אֵלַי without it, this Massorah safeguards the exception against being made conformable to the general rule. Of this Massorah I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 322a, on Job 2 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. fol. 223a, on Job 5 8; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 375b, on Job 2 5, and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Job 5 8.

¹ Comp. Job 1 11; 11 5; 12 7; 13 4; 14 18; 17 10; 33 1.

קצ"ג = § 191b.

וָאוּ אֵלַי occurs three times at the beginning of a verse in Job and in all the rest of the Scriptures it is likewise so, with the exception of five instances where it is with the prefix Vav, i. e. וָאוּ אֵלַי. This is an expansion of the preceding Massorah and its design is to register those instances in the Bible apart from Job, where וָאוּ אֵלַי begins a verse. In so doing, however, the Massorah uses the phrase "and in all the rest of the Scriptures וָאוּ אֵלַי likewise begins a verse except in five instances" which would be unintelligible unless it is borne in mind that it is simply an artificial expression used to connect Rubrics which bear on the same subject. In the instance before us this is manifest from the fact that in all the rest of the Scriptures וָאוּ אֵלַי does not occur at all and hence cannot begin a verse. Of this Massorah I collated two Rubrics: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 319b, on Job 2 5 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Job 1 11.

קצ"ד = 192.

וָאוּ אֵלַי a porch, occurs three times defective and throughout the description of the temple it is likewise so except in five instances where it is plene. To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark (1) that apart from Chronicles, where וָאוּ אֵלַי without and with the prefixes occurs six times and where it is uniformly plene,¹ this expression occurs in Kings and Ezekiel only; (2) that even in Ezekiel with one exception, viz. 8 16 the use of וָאוּ אֵלַי is restricted to the portion technically called וָאוּ אֵלַי the description of the Temple (XL-XLVI), that (3) in these two books its orthography varies being sometimes plene and sometimes defective and that (4) the variations in these two books alone form the subject of this Rubric. It is, moreover, to be added that this Rubric includes וָאוּ אֵלַי without and with the prefixes and that the expression וָאוּ אֵלַי ought properly to have been in the headings. In Kings, where it occurs altogether ten times, seven times plene² and three times defective, the minority are safeguarded, whilst in Ezekiel or rather in the description of the Temple, where it occurs fifteen times and where it is ten times defective³ and five times only plene, the plenes are recorded. It will be seen that Ezek. 8 16 which is also plene is excluded from this Rubric because it is outside the description of the Temple. As וָאוּ אֵלַי 44 25 is not one of the five plene instances, it must be defective according to this Massorah. This Rubric is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 81a, on 1 Kings 7 7. The printed Massorah on the same passage gives the first part only of this Rubric.

¹ Comp. 1 Chron. 28 11; 2 Chron. 3 4; 8 12; 15 8; 29 7, 17.

² Comp. 1 Kings 6 3; 7 6, 6, 7, 8, 8, 19.

³ Comp. Ezek. 40 8, 9, 9, 15, 39, 40, 48, 48, 49; 41 25.

קצ"ה = 193a.

וָאוּ אֵלַי occurs five times at the beginning of a verse and throughout Job it is likewise so except in three instances. This Rubric which is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 221b, on 1 Kings 7 7, forms the second part of § 191b and shows how these Massorahs were originally compiled separately and how they were afterwards linked together.

קצ"ו = § 193b.

וָאוּ אֵלַי occurs five times at the beginning of a verse and throughout Job it is likewise so except in three instances where it is וָאוּ אֵלַי without the prefix Vav. This Rubric is identical in its import with § 191b and is simply reversed in its order. It is important, inasmuch as it shows that the two modes of treating the same materials must have proceeded from different Schools of Massorites. It is both the most ancient in form and the most popular in the MSS. Of it I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 77b, on Exod. 9 16 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 132b, on Numb. 14 21; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 53b, on 1 Sam. 25 34; (IV) the same MS. fol. 81a, on 1 Kings 7 7; (V) the same MS. fol. 211a, on Micah 3 8; (VI) the Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Supplement No. 101, fol. 131a, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 9 16. It is remarkable that all these Lists as well as the recension of this Rubric given in § 190b include the noun 1 Kings 7 7a in the five instances where this adverb with prefix Vav begins a verse.

קצ"ד - § 194.

קצ"ד and Omar, occurs twice with Kametz. According to this Massorah which is from the Vienna Codex No. 35, on 1 Chron. 1 86 with Vav conjunctive and Kametz under the Mem occurs twice. Hence in both passages the identical phrase is Teman Omar and Omar, and not Teman Omar as it is in Gen. 36 11 in the textus receptus. That this Rubric refers primarily to the Vav copulative and only secondarily to the Kametz under the Mem appears certain from the fact that Omar with Kametz also occurs in Gen. 36 15 and is excluded from this Rubric because it is without the copulative Vav. This conclusion is fully confirmed by the recension of this Rubric which is given in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah and which is as follows: occurs three times, twice with Kametz and once with Pathach, viz. Gen. 36 11; 1 Chron. 1 86 and Ezek. 13 15. Here too the presence of the copulative is emphasised and forms the connecting link between the three words which constitute this Massorah. The variation in the vowel-points and the fact that it is a verb (Kal future first person singular) and defective in the third instance are quite subordinate. The Massorites who compiled the two recensions of this Rubric must, therefore, have worked on Standard Codices which read קצ"ד in Gen. 36 11. When the vowel-points and not the presence of the Vav copulative is emphasised קצ"ד forms the subject of a separate Massorah which is also preserved in Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah and which is as follows: Omar, occurs three times with Kametz, viz. Gen. 36 11, 15 and 1 Chron. 1 86. As there is no question here about the copulative, Gen. 36 11 is rightly included and no notice is taken of the fact that even in the textus receptus 1 Chron. 1 86 it is קצ"ד. The Massorah Parva in Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 180a, and the printed Massorah Parva on 1 Chron. 1 86 which remark that Teman and Omar with the copulative does not occur again, as well as the List of Variations in the parallel passages which states that in Gen. 36 11 it is קצ"ד and in 1 Chron. 1 86 קצ"ד proceed from Massorites who worked on Standard Codices in which this reading was preserved and which is followed in the textus receptus.

1 Comp. Isa. 13 12; Ps. 45 10; Job 21 24; 28 16; 1 Chron. 1 28; 29 4. 2 Massorah Parva 1 Kings 10 11a; 2 Chron. 9 10 and קצ"ד 1 Kings 10 11b.

3 Comp. The Massorah, letter מ, § 227.

4 Comp. The Massorah, letter פ, § 464, Vol. I, fol. 504.

קצ"ה - § 195.

קצ"ה is three times plene in this form. The addition בליש indicates that in Hos. 12 9 it is with the prefix Vav. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this orthography against being made conformable to Gen. 41 45; 46 20 where ק is defective. It will be seen that in Hos. 12 9 ק denotes substance whilst in the other two passages it is a proper name. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 106b, on Hos. 12 9 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 208a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,100, fol. 46b, on Gen. 41 50; (IV) Add. 2348, fol. 62a; (V) Add. 2349, fol. 52a, and (VI) the printed Massorah all on Gen. 41 50.

קצ"ו - § 196.

קצ"ו is three times defective. In the other four instances where this form occurs it is plene, viz. Job 18 7; 20 10; 21 19; 40 16. In the first two passages which constitute this Rubric it is a noun with suffix third person masculine and denotes his strength, whilst in the third instance it is a proper name Ono with Vav prefix. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 145a, on Deut. 21 17 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 116a, on the same passage; (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 296b, on Neh. 7 37; (IV) the printed Massorah on Deut. 21 17 and (V) the same on Neh. 7 37.

קצ"ז - § 197.

קצ"ז force, nothingness, is three times plene. This Rubric which I have only found in the printed Massorah Finalis מ, § 224, is wrong, since this expression occurs five times and is always plene. Ps. 78 51 and Prov. 11 7 are here omitted.

קצ"ח - § 198.

קצ"ח Ophir, with Yod defective is unique in its spelling, and in two instances it is קצ"ח with Vav defective. In this Rubric the Massorah includes both Ophir as the name of a person and a place in all its forms. It altogether occurs thirteen times and varies in its orthography. Without the prefix and the He local it occurs seven times and is doubly plene, i. e. קצ"ח both with Vav and Yod in six instances¹ and is defective of Yod in this single instance only. With the prefix Mem it occurs three times and is in one instance with Vav defective.² The same is the case when Ophir has the paragogic He of which there are also three instances and one of which is likewise with Vav defective (comp. the next Rubric). Hence the Massorah records these two exceptional instances which are defective of Vav, i. e. קצ"ח and קצ"ח. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 44a, on Gen. 10 29 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2849, fol. 34a, on the same passage.

1 Comp. Isa. 13 12; Ps. 45 10; Job 21 24; 28 16; 1 Chron. 1 28; 29 4. 2 Massorah Parva 1 Kings 10 11a; 2 Chron. 9 10 and קצ"ח 1 Kings 10 11b.

קצ"ט - § 199a.

קצ"ט to Ophir, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 261a, on 2 Chron. 8 16 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 442a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 200a, on 1 Kings 22 49; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 85 on 2 Chron. 8 18; (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 22 49 and (VI) the same on 2 Chron. 8 18. With the exception of the printed Massorah, all the MS. Lists emphatically state that two of the instances are plene and that in 1 Kings 22 49 it is קצ"ט with Vav defective and this is the textual reading in these MSS. in accordance with this Massorah.

קצ"י - § 199b-c.

קצ"י he hastened, occurs six times with and without the prefix Vav. In the four instances where it is without the prefix, two are the preterite (Josh. 10 13; 17 15) and two the participle (Prov. 21 5; 29 20). Following the example of Jacob b. Chayim in the printed Massorah Finalis, I have erroneously put this Massorah under קצ"י instead of קצ"י. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 247b, on Prov. 29 20 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 261a, on Prov. 19 20; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 863a, on Prov. 19 2 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Josh. 17 15.

קצ"י - § 199c.

קצ"י occurs twice in the Scriptures. Though the two instances of קצ"י are part of the preceding Rubric they are also recorded as a Rubric by themselves. It will be seen that in both passages קצ"י is the participle. This Massorah is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 256a, on Prov. 28 20.

ק - § 200.

ק. — All the forms of ק treasure are construed with the preposition קל upon with the exception of two instances where they are combined with קל. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from the Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 50 37. It also forms part of the lengthy Massoretic List which records the exceptional constructions with קל and קל throughout the Bible, given below under letter מ, § 523, p. 60.

ק - § 201.

ק in treasures, occurs four times. That is, the plural absolute with and without prefixes occurs four times entirely plene, i. e. with both the Vavs. To understand this Massorah, it is necessary to remark that this noun plural absolute occurs altogether ten times without and with prefixes, that it is entirely plene in these four instances only, that in five other passages it is defective of the first Vav¹ and that in one instance it is defective of the second Vav. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the orthography of the four passages as well as the single exception. Hence ק 2 Chron. 32 27 which is entirely plene in my edition of the Hebrew Bible and which is so in Add. 15,451, in the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486—87, the first, third and fourth editions of the entire Bible, Soncino 1488; Brescia 1494, Pesaro 1511-17; the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the editio princeps of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-25 must be without the first Vav in accordance with this Massorah and with Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Orient. 2201; Add. 9398; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491-93 and the Complutensian. Of this Massorah I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 291a, on Ps. 33 7 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 404b, on Ps. 33 7 and (III) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 51 13.

1 Comp. ק Joel 1 17; Prov. 21 6; ק 1 Chron. 26 24; ק 2 Chron. 32 27; ק 2 Chron. 8 15.

רִיב = § 202.

רִיב the treasures of, is eleven times plene. That is the plural construct without and with the prefixes Beth and Vav is plene in eleven passages. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 117b, on 2 Kings 24 13 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. fol. 138b, on Isa. 45 3; (III) the same MS. fol. 159b, on Jerem. 20 5; (IV) the same MS. fol. 254b, on 1 Chron. 26 20; (V) the same MS. fol. 334b, on Job 38 22; (VI) the same MS. fol. 389b, on Prov. 10 2; (VII) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 230b, on 1 Kings 14 26; (VIII) the Vienna Codex No. 35 on Job 38 22, and (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

The eleven plene instances consist of (a) eight without prefixes, (b) one with the prefix Beth and (c) two with the prefix Vav. As these three forms also occur fifteen times with the first Vav defective, viz. מִצְרַיִם nine times, מִצְרַיִם three times and מִצְרַיִם three times,¹ this Massorah safeguards the minority against being made conformable to the orthography of the majority of instances. This is all the more necessary, since in several passages where this expression occurs twice in one and the same verse it is defective in the first part of the verse and plene in the second (comp. 1 Kings 14 26; Job 38 22). Though this Rubric consist of forms with the prefixes Beth and Vav, none of the Lists have the expression בְּלִישׁ in the heading. The attempt in the printed Massorah to indicate it by stating מִצְרַיִם is misleading since the Rubric also contains מִצְרַיִם. Moreover, מִצְרַיִם in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah is a mistake for מִצְרַיִם 2 Kings 24 13.

¹ Comp. מִצְרַיִם 1 Kings 14 26a; Micah 6 10; Job 38 22a; 1 Chron. 26 22-26; 27, 28, 28; 2 Chron. 12 9, 9; מִצְרַיִם 1 Kings 7 51; 2 Kings 12 19; 2 Chron. 5 1; מִצְרַיִם 2 Chron. 11 11; 36 18, 18.

רִיג = § 203.

רִיג the treasures of the house of God, occurs four times. To distinguish it from the nine passages where this phrase is מִצְרַיִם the treasures of the house of Jehovih comp. 1 Kings 7 51; 14 26; 15 18; 2 Kings 12 19; 24 13; 1 Chron. 26 22; 2 Chron. 12 9; 16 2; 36 18. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 186b, on 1 Chron. 9 26.

רִיד = § 204.

רִיד in my treasures, in my stores, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 18b, on Isa. 39 4 which I have printed; (II) the Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah on Deut. 32 34 and (IV) the same on 2 Kings 20 15. The two MS. Lists say nothing about any one of these instances being plene or defective, whilst the two printed Lists emphatically state in the headings that all the three instances are defective. This, however, is against some of the best and most ancient MSS. as well as against the early printed editions, as will be seen from the following analysis.

In Deut. 32 34 the reading is מִצְרַיִם with the first Vav plene in Orient. 2201 which is one of the oldest dated MSS.; in Harley 5710-11 which is a Model Codex; in Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Orient. 2348; Orient. 2349 as well as in the editio princeps of the Pentateuch Bologna 1482, the third edition of the Pentateuch Ixar 1490, the fourth edition of the Pentateuch Lisbon 1491, the Complutensian and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible Venice 1517. מִצְרַיִם entirely plene is exhibited in the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488. The defective form מִצְרַיִם I have only found in Add. 15,451, in the second edition of the Pentateuch, Fara 1487, the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491-93, the fifth edition of the Pentateuch Brescia 1492 and in Jacob b. Chayim's edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-25.

2 Kings 20 15. — With the exception of the Pesaro edition of the Earlier Prophets and the fourth edition of the Bible, Pesaro 1511-17 all the MSS. which I have collated and the early editions read here מִצְרַיִם entirely defective. It is important to notice that whilst the printed Massorah Magna on this passage states that it is so in all the three instances, the printed Massorah Parva on this very passage has the conflicting remark that in this defective form it is unique (לִישׁ) which clearly implies that it is plene in the other two instances.

Isa. 39 4. — Here מִצְרַיִם plene is the reading in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Add. 15,451; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; the carefully printed Lisbon edition of Isa. 1492; the Pesaro edition of the Latter Prophets 1515; the fourth edition of the Bible, Pesaro 1511-17 and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible Venice 1517; whilst Harley 5710-11 and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah Venice 1524-25, exhibit מִצְרַיִם with the first Vav defective and the second plene. Jacob b. Chayim's textual reading is, therefore, in conflict here with his Massorah. The reading מִצְרַיִם defective is exhibited in Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 9398; as well as in the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485-86; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491-93; the third edition, Brescia 1494 and the Complutensian.

From this analysis it is clear that מִצְרַיִם plene is the proper orthography in two passages, viz. Deut. 32 34 and Isa. 39 4, whilst in 2 Kings 20 15 it is מִצְרַיִם defective as I have given them in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. Accordingly the heading of the MS. Lists, if it is filled up at all, ought to be מִצְרַיִם. The heading מִצְרַיִם in Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah proceeds from a School of Massorites who worked on Codices which exhibited a different recension.

רִיה = § 205.

רִיה her treasures, occurs twice . . . in the first instance it is entirely defective in the second it is entirely plene. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Orient. 1474, fol. 61b, on Jerem. 49 4. It is not quite correct since in the second instance, i. e. Jerem. 50 37 it is מִצְרַיִם plene with the first Vav only. This is the orthography not only of the best Codices and editions, but in this very MS. Strictly the heading ought to be מִצְרַיִם, since in one instance (Jerem. 49 4) it is מִצְרַיִם with the prefix Beth.

רִיו = § 206.

רִיו occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 182a, on 1 Sam. 14 29 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 45b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis letter א, § 230. The first and second instances in this Rubric are the imperative plural from רָאָה to curse, whilst the third expression is the preterite third person plural from רָאָה to be light, to shine. As usual the Massorah simply records the homonyms in the same Rubric without any regard to the different roots and significations. Though none of the three Lists states whether any of the instances are plene or defective yet the printed Massorah Parva on Judg. 5 23a is perfectly correct in stating that of the three instances this one alone is plene and that the other two are defective.¹ This is confirmed by the best MSS. and early editions. Thus Judg. 5 23a is רָאָה plene in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11, Add. 9398; Add. 15,451; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 as well as in the editio princeps of the Prophets, the first, second and third edition of the Bible (1488, 1491-93, 1494) the Pesaro edition of the Earlier Prophets; the Complutensian; the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, 1517 and the first edition of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah 1524-25. רָאָה defective I have found only in Arund. Orient. 16. The same is the case with רָאָה in the second clause of Judg. 5 23. It is defective in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 9298; Add. 15,251; as well as in the second and third editions of the Bible (1491-93, 1494) and in Jacob b. Chayim's edition with the Massorah 1524-25. It is, however, to be stated that Add. 15,451; Add. 15,250; as well as the editio princeps of the Prophets 1485-86; the first edition of the Bible, 1488; the Pesaro edition of the earlier Prophets 1515; the Complutensian and the first Rabbinic Bible 1517 read it רָאָה plene in the second clause too. As regards the third instance, i. e. 1 Sam. 14 29 רָאָה defective is the reading in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,451; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 and in the following early editions; the Bible of 1491—93; the Pesaro edition of the Earlier Prophets 1515; the Complutensian; the first Rabbinic Bible 1517 and the first edition of Jacob b. Chayim's Bible with the Massorah 1524—25. The plene I have found only in Add. 9398 as well as in the editio princeps of the Prophets and in the first and third editions of the Bible 1488, 1494.

¹ Comp. מִצְרַיִם 1 Sam. 14 29 Judg. 5 23a.

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 207.

וַיִּזְרֹק and cause to shine, occurs three times. That is the imperative Hiphil with the Vav prefix, to guard Ps. 80 4 against being made conformable to verse 20 of this very Psalm where the identical phrase occurs with the prefix Vav. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710—11, Vgl. II, fol. 198b, on Ps. 80 4.

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 208.

וַיִּזְרֹק cause to shine, occurs twice. That is the imperative with paragogic He to guard the phrase in Ps. 81 17 against being made conformable to Ps. 80 20. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 286b, on Pa. 13 4.

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 209.

וַיִּזְרֹק occurs twice. The apocapeted future Hiphil occurs twice, since in the five instances where the Hiphil future occurs it is יִזְרֹק. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb. 6 23 which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (III) the same on Ps. 67 2. The two instances form part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Yod which respectively occur twice.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter י, § 11, Vol. I, p. 676.

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 210.

וַיִּזְרֹק and he gave light, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 314a, on Ps. 118 27 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 43b, on Exod. 14 20; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 118 27 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The two instances also form part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Yod which respectively occur twice.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ו, § 69, Vol. I, p. 402

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 211.

וַיִּזְרֹק the morning light, occurs six times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 80a, on Judg. 16 2 which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Sam. 25 36; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 161a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 166a, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Judg. 16 2 and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis letter ו, § 232. These six Lists give three different headings to this Massorah. List I has it simply וַיִּזְרֹק until light occurs six times, List V has וַיִּזְרֹק until the morning light occurs six times, whilst Lists II, III and IV have וַיִּזְרֹק the morning light occurs six times. It will thus be seen that the printed Massorah, viz. Lists V and VI, exhibits two of the three different headings. But though the heading in the majority of the Rubrics is as I have given it, the design of this Massorah is unquestionably more apparent if the preposition וַיִּזְרֹק is included in this phrase, i. e. וַיִּזְרֹק until the morning light, since it is intended to include the passage in 1 Sam. 25 22 where some MSS. and all the early editions with the exception of two, viz. the Pesaro edition of the Earlier Prophets 1515 and Jacob b. Chayim's first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, also read וַיִּזְרֹק. The Massorah before us, however, is supported by Orient. 2201 second hand, Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 9398; Add. 15,451, first hand, Add. 15,260, Add. 15,251.

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 212.

וַיִּזְרֹק in the light of, occurs seven times plene. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Add. 15,251, fol. 364a, on Ps. 89 16. The heading וַיִּזְרֹק is manifestly a clerical error since there are not only seven such instances, but the Rubric itself records seven. In accordance, however, with my principle to reproduce the MSS. as they are, I have printed the Vav; though I correct it in the translation by giving it seven. וַיִּזְרֹק plene ought properly to be וַיִּזְרֹק and plene since there are no defective instances.

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 213.

וַיִּזְרֹק occurs twice. It will be seen that the two instances simply exhibit homonyms, since in the first passage it is a noun denoting light with the prefix Vav and in the second it is the Kal preterite third singular signifying and he shineth. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 3b, on Isa. 5 30 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 337b, on Prov. 4 18; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 387a, on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 231 which erroneously states that there are three such instances. All the MS. List, state that there are two only and record two. The catchword וַיִּזְרֹק which the printed Massorah gives for the third passage is absolutely meaningless.

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 214.

וַיִּזְרֹק unto light, occurs thirteen times Raphe, i. e. with Sheva under the Lamed. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah though it is one of the most ancient parts of it, I collated four Lists all in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916: (I) Isa. 49 6; (II) ibid 60 19; (III) Jerem. 13 16 and (IV) ibid. 31 35.

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 215.

וַיִּזְרֹק to the light, occurs seven times with Kametz in the Scriptures. That is with Kametz under the Lamed in contradistinction to the thirteen passages where it has Sheva under the Lamed. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 20a, on Isa. 42 16 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. Vol. II, fol. 119b, on Zeph. 3 5; (III) the same MS. Vol. II, fol. 232b, on Job 24 14; (IV) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 42 16; (V) the same Codex on Micah 7 9; (VI) the Vienna Codex No. 35 on Isa. 42 16; (VII) the same Codex on Micah 7 9; (VIII) Halle Oehliah Ve-Oehliah II, § 238; (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 1 6 and (X) the same on Micah 7 9. The mnemonic sign is given with Lists VII and X only. It is, however, also given in Cambridge Add. 465, both on Isa. 42 16 and Job 12 22, in the printed Massorah on the same passage without the List and in the printed Massorah Parva on Gen. 1 5.

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 216.

וַיִּזְרֹק their light, occurs three times. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 150a, on Jerem. 4 23 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 7a, on Isa. 13 10; and (III) the same MS. Vol. II, fol. 34a, on Jerem. 4 23. The heading of Lists II and III וַיִּזְרֹק it occurs three times and plene is more precise and is better.

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 217.

וַיִּזְרֹק always denotes light fire or is וַיִּזְרֹק Ur of the Chaldees except in one instance where it is the proper name of a man. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 138a, on 1 Chron. 11 35.

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 217*.

וַיִּזְרֹק occurs twice once defective and once plene . . . and it is used in two different senses. Of this Rubric which has been accidentally omitted in my edition of the Massorah and which I printed in Vol. III, ו, § 217* I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 128b, on Isa. 24 15 which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 28 6 and (III) the same on Isa. 24 15. The two instances form part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ז, § 248, Vol. II, p. 217.

וַיִּזְרֹק = § 218.

וַיִּזְרֹק occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 129a, on Isa. 26 19. It occurs a second time in the same MS. fol. 100b, on 2 Kings 4 39 where the heading properly is וַיִּזְרֹק twice in two different senses. These two instances also form part of the same alphabetical List as the preceding Rubric.

ר"ב = § 219.

אורייה Urijahū, occurs three times. This name which is compounded with the Divine name יה' jah, occurs altogether no fewer than thirty-nine times, and it is in these three instances only that the Vav is appended to it. This Massorah, therefore, safeguards the peculiar orthography in these exceptional instances. This separate Rubric I have found only in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 233. As these three instances are restricted to one book in the Bible, they form part of the List of words which respectively occur in one form in one book of the Scriptures, whilst they occur in a different form in all other books.

1 For the cause of this lengthened form of names compounded with יה' see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, Part II, chap. XI, p. 386 &c.
2 Comp. The Massorah, letter מ, § 447, Vol. II, pp. 225, 226.

ר"ב = § 220.

האמן the sign, occurs three times defective In the other nine instances where it occurs it is invariably האמן plene. Hence the Massorah safeguards the three exceptional instances. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 39b, on Exod. 8 19 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 69b, on Exod. 4 8; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 69b, on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 234.

ר"ב"א = § 221.

האמן the signs, is defective throughout the Pentateuch except in three passages where it is האמן and once it is האמן. This Rubric which is from the printed Massorah on Exod. 4 9 is inexact and will best be understood from the following analysis. האמן the plural with the prefix He occurs altogether seven times in the Pentateuch. In five instances it is entirely defective and in two passages it has the second Vav. In one instance where this noun plural is with the prefixes הו' it has also the second Vav, whilst in another instance where it is without the prefix it has the first Vav. The design of this Rubric, therefore, is to safeguard the exceptional plene orthography in the Pentateuch, viz. the two instances where it is האמן, the one האמן and one האמן. Hence the declaration of the printed Massorah that it is always האמן in the Pentateuch except in three passages where it is האמן is incorrect, since this plural without prefixes occurs once only in the Pentateuch. The two Lists of this Rubric in Add. 21,160, viz. (I) fol. 68b, on Exod. 4 9 and (II) fol. 210a, on Numb. 14 11 correctly state the import of this Massorah on Numb. 14 11, viz. [Exod. 4 9] האמן [Deut. 26 8] האמן [Numb. 14 11] האמן [Deut. 6 22].

1 Comp. האמן Exod. 4 17, 28, 30; Deut. 29 2; 34 11; האמן Exod. 4 9; Numb. 14 11.

ר"ב"ב = § 222.

האמן his signs, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 139b, on Deut. 11 3 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 303b, on Ps. 78 43; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 367a, on Ps. 105 27, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. List II rightly has in the heading האמן one is defective, List III has at the end אורייה the first is defective, whilst the printed List adds אורייה in the Pentateuch it is אורייה defective, whilst in the other instances it is אורייה with the second Vav plene.

ר"ב"ב = § 223a.

האמן ר"ב"ב ר"ב"ב ר"ב"ב ר"ב"ב. Five parallel sentences respectively occur twice [in the same book] have in one passage a letter more and a word less and in the other, a letter less and a word more. This artificial grouping together of parallel passages with slight variations in the phraseology will best be understood by exhibiting the phrases themselves indicated by the catchwords.

Table with 2 columns: Hebrew text and Bible reference. Includes entries like 'לא אבוא שטות תורתך' (Isa. 28 12) and 'גד בחר יהוה אלקינו' (Deut. 7 6).

This Rubric is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 121a, on Deut. 14 2.

ר"ב"ב = 223b.

האמן ר"ב"ב ר"ב"ב ר"ב"ב ר"ב"ב. Six parallel sentences &c. This recension of the Rubric which is from Orient. 2348, fol. 141b, also on Deut. 14 2 contains an additional pair, viz. Ezek. 34 7 which is לכן ירעים ששע רבר יהוה and Ezek. 34 9 לכן ירעים ששע אורייה יהוה. It will be seen that in this recension the variations in the phrases are given. The recension in the printed Massorah on Ezek. 11 13 which gives six instances omits the pair in Ezek. 34 7, 9 and substitutes Ps. 24 7, 9. There are also other recensions of this Massorah which record the following four instances only, viz. Deut. 6 13, 10 20; Deut. 17 6, 19 15; Isa. 28 12, 30 9; Ezek. 9 8, 11 13, as well as the pair in Deut. 7 6, 14 2 which exhibit a reverse instance. This recension is given in (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 270b, on Deut. 10 20; (II) the Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 131; (III) the Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh §§ 234, 235, where however additional instances are given outside the Massorah, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 1 1. On Deut. 14 2 the printed Massorah simply gives the one pair exhibited in Deut. 7 6; 14 2. On comparing the Lists of variations in the parallel passages throughout the Bible given in letter מ, §§ 452-587, pp. 500-568, it will be seen that the number of these pairs might be considerably increased.

ר"ב"ב = § 224.

מנין האותיות. The number of letters. This Poem which gives the number of times each letter of the alphabet occurs in the Bible I have printed from Orient. 1379, fol. 21b-30a. It is also to be found in Orient. 2348, fol. 35a-37a, and Orient. 2349, fol. 21b-22b, which I collated. As I have fully explained it in my edition of the Massoreth Ha-Massoreth I must refer to that explanation. The Massoretico-Grammatical Treatise which is prefixed to the Yemen MSS. of the Pentateuch and of which this Poem forms a part has been ably edited by Professor Derenbourg.

1 Comp. The Massoreth Ha-Massoreth of Elias Levita, pp. 269-278, London 1867.
2 Comp. Manuel du Lecteur, pp. 139-148, 234-241, Paris 1871.

ר"ב"ב = § 225.

אותיות גדולות שבתורה. An alphabetical List of the majuscular letters in the Pentateuch. Of this separate Rubric which is not in the printed Massorah I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Machsor Vitry, Add. 27,200-1, Vol. II, fol. 215a, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Deut. 6 4 and (III) the Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh, § 82. In List I the final Caph (ך) is not represented which is given in List III; in List II the following ten letters only are represented ב ג ד ה ו ז ט י כ ל מ נ ס ע פ צ and ר whilst in List III the two instances which give the second ב, viz. ליללללם Numb. 1 2 and the second ל, viz. ליללללם Numb. 1 22 are omitted.

1 Comp. the printed edition, p. 683, edited by S. Hurwitz, and published by the Mekitze Nirdamim, Berlin 1893.

ר"ב"ב = § 226.

אותיות גדולות בנביאים וכתובים. An alphabetical List of the majuscular letters in the Prophets and Hagiographa. This separate List which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from the Machsor Vitry, Add. 27,200-1, Vol. II, fol. 215a, and in the printed edition, p. 683.

ר"ב"ב = § 227.

אותיות גדולות שבקריא. An alphabetical List of the majuscular letters throughout the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Add. 15,251 in the supplement fol. 439b-441a which I have printed; (II) the same MS. fol. 98b, on Numb. 27 5; (III) the same MS. fol. 108a, on Deut. 6 4; (IV) the same MS. fol. 313b, on 1 Chron. 1 1; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 52a, on Exod. 34 14; (VI) the same MS. fol. 100a, on Deut. 6 4; (VII) the Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Chron. 1 1; (VIII) the Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh § 83; (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 1 1; and (X) the same on 1 Chron. 1 1.

The following Tables exhibit the contents of the several Lists both in the MSS. and the printed editions. The comparison is between the Rubric which I have printed and the other nine Lists. The numerals show the order in which the words occur in the respective Lists. The second Table shows the words which exhibit this phenomenon in any of the nine Lists and which are not given in the first List.

Table I.

Table I: A large grid with columns labeled X, IX, VIII, VII, VI, V, IV, III, II, I and rows of numbers and Hebrew text. It includes references to biblical books like Deut., 1 Chron., Gen., Levit., Exod., Pa., Dan., Mal., Esther, Numb., and Prov.

Table II.

Table II: A smaller grid with columns labeled X, IX, VIII, VII, VI, V, IV, III, II, I and rows of numbers and Hebrew text. It includes references to Ruth., Isa., and Prov.

The above collation of the ten Lists discloses the following facts: (I) That List I is the most complete, it gives no fewer than fifty-two majuscular letters, it always has two instances for each letter in the alphabet, it sometimes gives three and in one instance four words which are thus distinguished. (II) None of the remaining alphabetical Lists which record between twenty-two and twenty-five of these phenomena, give two words exhibiting the same majuscular letter. (III) Though these alphabetical Lists record single instances for each majuscular letter in the alphabet, yet in some instances they give words thus distinguished which are not contained in the extensive List No. 1, although the latter, as we have seen, gives two or more examples for each majuscular letter.

It has also to be remarked that List VI has at the end a note to the effect that according to some סגב in Eccl. 7 1 has a majuscular ס and that לאסיה Prov. 31 27 has a majuscular ז. List VIII originally omitted both the medial and final Nuns which have been added by a later hand with the remark other Codices have (רמ).²

1. אית דאמרי ט רבתי סגב סגב סגב סגב. ל רבתי צמיה חלכות בותח.

2. Comp. the Paris Oehlsh Ve-Oehlsh § 83, ed. Frensdorff, Hanover 1864.

רכיז - § 228.

אחיות כפולות. The five double or final letters. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Orient. 2349, fol. 46b, on Gen. 32 12. It is also to be found in Cambridge Add. 1174 on the same passage.

רכיז - § 229.

אחיות כפולות. An alphabetical List of the minuscular letters. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 173b, on Jerem. 39 13 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 13b, on Gen. 23 2; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 123a, on Deut. 32 18; (IV) the same MS. fol. 160a, on 1 Sam. 17 7; (V) the same MS. supplement fol. 141a-142a; (VI) Machsor Vitry Add. 27,200-1, Vol. II, fol. 215a and the printed edition p. 684; (VII) Paris Oehlsh Ve-Oehlsh § 84; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 1 1 and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 2. The following Tables will show at a glance the contents of the several Lists both in the MSS. and editions. The comparison is between the Rubric which I have printed and which is the most complete, occupying the first column, and the other eight Lists. The numerals as usual show the order in which the words occur in the respective Lists, whilst the asterisk against any word indicates that there is a division of opinion in the Massorah with regard to the phenomenon in question. The second Table shows the words which exhibit this phenomenon in any of the eight Lists and which are not given in the first List.

Table I.

Table I: A grid with columns labeled IX, VIII, VII, VI, V, IV, III, II, I and rows of numbers and Hebrew text. It includes references to Levit., Numb., Pa., Gen., Esther, and Pa.

IX	VIII	VII	VI	V	IV	III	II	I			IX	VIII	VII	VI	V	IV	III	II	I
.	28	סוד	ם	Isa.	30	11	16	החל	ח	Ezek.	30	21
25	19	17	.	28	.	.	17	29	קטנה	ם	Pa.	27	5	11	9	9	8	10	8	8	8	16	הח	ח	Job	33	9
26	21	18	20	24	.	16	18	30	לעות	ע	Lament.	3	86	12	10	10	9	11	9	9	9	17	קטש	ש	Lament.	3	9
.	22	19	21	25	.	.	17	19	31	משתקרא	ם	Dan.	6	20	13	11	.	.	.	10	18	השקלים	ט	Neh.	13	30
.	32	קטנה	ף	Isa.	54	8	14	12	11	10	12	10	11	10	19	קש	י	Deut.	33	18
.	33	יקרני	צ	Job	16	14	15	13	12	11	13	11	12	11	20	ולקמה	כ	Gen.	23	2
.	34	קט	צ	"	27	9	14	21	קט	כ	"	9	20
29	25	23	25	28	.	20	22	35	קטני	ק	Gen.	27	46	16	14	13	.	14	.	18	12	22	לוא	ל	Lament.	1	12
.	36	רש	ר	Pa.	119	160	14	23	קט	ם	Pa.	27	5
31	27	24	28	32	.	22	24	37	פרשתא	ש	Ester	9	9	24	לני	נ	Ruth	3	13
.	38	הקנה	ת	"	"	29	28	17	.	17	21	.	.	.	16	25	אין	ן	Isa.	44	14
.	39	אשכנז	ש	Prov.	7	6	21	.	.	18	19	26	וקרן	ן	Prov.	16	28
.	40	קט	ת	Lament.	4	22	22	18	.	.	20	27	קבועין	ן	Jerem.	39	13

Table II.

IX	VIII	VII	VI	V	IV	III	II	I			IX	VIII	VII	VI	V	IV	III	II	I
20	וקטרה	ם	Nah.	1	3	7	קלים	ו	Gen.	41	16
.	23	20	22	26	.	18	20	.	תחת	צ	Jerem.	14	2	9	7	קטא	ו	Pa.	24	4
.	.	.	23	וקטנה	צ	"	7	17	7	.	7	6	6	6	.	.	.	וקטש	ו	Job	23	13
27	24	21	24	27	.	19	21	.	קין	ץ	Job	16	14	.	.	12	קלקט	ל	Lament.	1	13
.	.	22	קח	ץ	1 Sam.	17	7	7	.	7	6	6	6	.	.	.	קטרים	ם	Deut.	9	24
28	.	.	.	29	קטפים	ק	Exod.	32	25	18	16	.	.	.	14	.	.	14	קטרה	ם	Levit.	6	3
.	.	.	26	31	קטני	ר	1 Sam.	17	7	19	.	15	14	16	.	.	15	.	וקטרים	ם	Neh.	13	30
.	26	.	27	.	.	21	.	.	קט	ר	2 Sam.	21	19	20	.	.	15	17	קט	נ	Lament.	4	14
30	.	.	.	30	קטני	ר	Exod.	23	19	.	.	16	קטני	נ	Pa.	27	5
.	23	.	.	קט	ש	2 Kings	17	81	.	.	16	18	קטן	ן	Prov.	15	8
32	28	25	29	33	.	.	23	.	קטנה	ת	Ester	9	7	24	.	.	19	22	.	.	15	.	קטוקה	ם	Nah.	1	3

§ 230. - ריל

אותיות תלויות. Four words have respectively a suspended letter. Of this Rubric I have collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32a, on Judg. 18 30 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. fol. 334b, on Job 38 13; (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 169b, on Judg. 18 30; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 239a, on Job 38 13; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 176b, on Judg. 18 30; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 146; (VII) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 160; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Judg. 18 30 and (IX) the same on Job. 38 13. For the import of this Massorah see the Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of my Hebrew Bible p. 334 &c.

§ 231. - רליא

א.כ.ב. מ.נ. ב. ב. אתון. An alphabetical List of biliteral words which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 281b, on Dan. 6 15 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 78b, on Exod. 35 22; (III) the same MS. fol. 110b, on Levit. 15 3; (IV) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 9 4; (V) the same Codex on Ezek. 30 2; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 41; (VII) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 40 and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ק, § 100.

A collation of these different Lists discloses the following facts: (I) the early recensions strictly confine themselves to giving a single instance for each letter and now and then even leave a letter unrepresented, whilst the later recensions sometimes give several words which exhibit the same peculiarity and (II) the design of the early recensions is simply to catalogue the biliteral words which occur once only whether they are with Kametz or Pathach. The later recensions and notably the List in the printed Massorah of Jacob b. Chayim have confused the issue by insisting that these biliterals have Kamets¹ which is incorrect since some of these have Pathach. Thus for instance, List II omits קך Pa. 74 21, קך Levit. 27 8 and קש Job 9 9. List III also omits קך as well as לק Gen. 32 22 and קש and gives לק Exod. 35 24 instead of קפ Isa. 44 18 which the second List gives. List IV omits קך and קש. List V like List I is the most complete. With List VI begin the later recensions. This List has קך 1 Chron. 21 20 for קך which is also given in List I and which is entirely omitted in Lists II and III. Like List IV it omits קך. It moreover, gives two examples for letter ט, viz. קפ Isa. 44 18 and קל Cant. 5 2, two for ט, viz. טפ Ps. 53 4 and טף Hos. 2 8, two for ק, viz. קט Isa. 7 16 and קט Ezek. 16 47 as well as two for ר, viz. רך Hos. 12 1 and רך Levit. 15 8. List VII gives the same two examples for ט, for ט, for ק and for ר as List VI and gives three for ט, viz. טפ Numb. 7 3; טפ 2 Kings 4 41 and טפ Ezek. 7 10. List VIII gives the same two examples for ט, for ט and for ק as Lists VI and VII. It moreover, gives three examples for ט, viz. טף Levit. 27 8; טפ Ps. 61 8 where the catchword should be טפ לטא אלהים instead of טפ לטא אלהים, and טפ Jerem. 4 18.

§ 232. - רליב

ט. זונין מן ב' ב' תיבותא סמיכין להדדי מן ב' ב' אתון. In nine instances are two biliteral words combined in a unique manner. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 57 6.

§ 233. - רלינ

אלפבית מן תרין תרין מן נ' אתון. An alphabetical List of trilateral words which respectively occur twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 22b, on Gen. 34 19 which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 42; (III) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 41 and (IV) the printed Massorah, letter ט, § 29. Here too the design of the Massorah is simply to give a word for each pair in the alphabet and not to record all the instances of the duplicate trilaterals.

§ 234. - רליד

ק. מלתי מן נ' אתון רעופין. Seven words in which the same letter follows three times. Of this Rubric which does not occur in Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 121b, on Zech. 2 12 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 363a, on Isa. 48 14 and (III) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 267. These three Lists exhibit two different recensions. List I gives קקקקקק Ps. 17 7 as the sixth instance which accordingly is defective of the Yod and hence is so written in this Massorah. Lists II and III not only omit this instance altogether, but give קקקק 2 Chron. 15 6 in its place. The ק in the heading of the printed List should be ק.

§ 235. - רליה

נ'. מלתי בקרתי מן י"א אתון. Three words in the Scriptures have respectively eleven letters. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 79b, on Ezek. 16 47 which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on the same passage; (III) the same Codex on Ezek. 20 44; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 362b, on Esther 9 3; (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 192 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 20 44.

¹ Jacob b. Chayim's heading which is טפ לטא אלהים is incorrect since the List includes קך and קש and none of the other Lists has קך in the headings.

רל"ו - § 236a-b.

ג' פסוקים רמין מן ערב אתח. Three verses are alike in having each seventy-two words... yielding the Ineffable Name. That is the seventy-two letters in each of these three verses severally correspond to the numerical value of the Tetragrammaton when the four letters of the Ineffable name are fully written out, viz. 72 = 15 + 22 + 15 + 20. Comp. Ibn Ezra's Commentary with the super Commentary on Exod. 14 19 &c. Vienna ed. 1859. For the important part which these three verses played in Jewish mysticism see Ginsburg, The Kabbalah &c., p. 132 &c., and the authorities there quoted. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 43b, on Exod. 14 19.

רל"ז - § 237.

ג' פס' בקר' מן תמנין אתח. Three verses in the Scriptures have respectively eighty letters. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 110b, on Numb. 36 8 which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 316 and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 221. As each of these three verses begins with וכל Lists II and III have in the heading וכל and it is due to this that the printed Massorah places this Rubric under letter ב. The printed Massorah, however, incorrectly states that each of these verses has twenty letters (מן כ טלי).

רל"ח - § 238.

שש פס' בהון ה מלך רצפון מן ב' אתח. Six verses have severally five words following one another of two letters each, but about one of them R. Nachman differs. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 188b, on 1 Sam. 20 29 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 49b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS. fol. 379b on Neh. 2 2; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 24a, on Gen. 25 17; (V) the same MS. fol. 158a, on 1 Sam. 20 29; (VI) Add. 15,251, Supplement fol. 443a; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 455a, on Neh. 2 2; (VIII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Exod. 17 16; (IX) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 3 26; and (X) the same on Neh. 2 2.

Though all the other Lists state in the heading that there are five only of these verses which exhibit this peculiarity, yet List IV adds that according to some, Exod. 17 16 is another of these verses. Lists VI and VII too which specify five in the heading enumerate six, whilst List VI remarks against the catchwords for Exod. 17 16 that there is a difference of opinion about this passage among the Massoretic Schools. The Massorah Parva in the MSS. has alternately against some of these verses one of six and one of five. This is due to כחה in Exod. 17 16 which the Westerns read כחה as one word and the Easterns read it כ חה in two words. Those, therefore, who follow the Madinchat recension count six such verses, whilst R. Nachman who disputes the Eastern reading and the textual critics who follow the same recension count only five such verses. It is remarkable that the printed Massorah which as we have seen, gives this Rubric twice and which in each case specifies in the heading that there are five such verses only, without referring to any variation, gives in List IX, Gen. 17 16, as one of the five verses and omits 1 Kings 3 26.

1 רש אור' כי יד על כס' ה
2 כי יד על כס' חל' ה

רל"ט - § 239.

ב' פס' כאר' מן ו מלך וכח אתח. Two verses in the Pentateuch have severally seven words and twenty-eight letters. I have mislaid the reference to the MS. from which this Rubric is taken.

ר"מ - § 240.

אז לשד then sang, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb. 21 17, which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 15 1.

רמ"א - § 241.

אז and then, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11,

Vol. I, fol. 137a, on Josh. 1 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. Vol. II, fol. 53a, on Jerem. 32 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 1b, on Josh. 1 8; (IV) the same MS. fol. 167b, on Jerem. 32 2; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement fol. 181a; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 12 49; (VII) the same on Josh. 1 8 and (VIII) the same on Jerem. 32 2. The addition of קח in the heading of the printed Massorah on Exod. 12 48 is misleading, since this expression has always Kametz with or without the prefixes. It does not occur in the MSS. nor in the headings of the other two Lists in the printed Massorah.

רמ"ב - § 242.

אזחזח occurs three times plene in the Pentateuch. That is without and with the prefixes this noun occurs eight times in the Pentateuch. As it is defective in five instances¹ and plene in three only the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. Outside the Pentateuch this expression occurs only twice (1 Kings 5 13; Pa. 51 9) and is in both instances plene.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 42a, on Exod. 12 22 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 38b, on the same passage; (III) Cambridge Add. 465 on Numb. 19 18; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Exod. 12 22; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VI) the same on Numb. 19 18. The mnemonic sign is given in List III only.

¹ Comp. Levit. 14 4, 6, 49, 51, 52.

רמ"ג - § 243.

אזח then, occurs three times. This Rubric is from Cambridge Add. 465, on Pa. 124 4.

רמ"ד - § 244.

אזח they have heard, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, this preterite third person plural is to be distinguished from אזח the Imperative plural which though written with the same six letters is differently pointed. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 298b, on Neh. 9 30 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 385b; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35; (IV) the printed Massorah, all on Neh. 9 30 and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 255.

רמ"ה - § 245.

אזח give ear, hearken, occurs sixteen times. That is the imperative singular masculine with paragogic He. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 101b, on Numb. 23 18 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 310b, on Pa. 64 4; (III) the printed Massorah on Pa. 78 1 and (IV) the same on Job 33 1.

רמ"ו - § 246.

אזח give ye ear, hearken ye, occurs eight times, i. e. the imperative plural masculine. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 201a, on Hos. 5 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 180a, on Isa. 28 23; (III) the same MS., fol. 141a, on Isa. 51 4; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 142b, on Deut. 32 1; (V) the printed Massorah on Isa. 28 23; (VI) the same on Hos. 5 1, and (VII) the same on Job 34 2. It is remarkable that though all the Lists state in the heading that there are eight such instances Lists II, III and V, enumerate seven only and leave out Hos. 5 1.

רמ"ז - § 247.

אזח hearken ye, occurs twice, i. e. the imperative plural feminine. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 3b, on Gen. 4 23 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 132a, on Isa. 32 a, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 4 23. These two instances form part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with He which respectively occur twice.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ה, § 10, Vol. I, p. 261 &c.

רמ"ח - § 248.

אזח the ear, occurs twenty-five times. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 72a, on Levit. 14 28 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 99a, on Levit. 14 14. The latter enumerates twenty-three instances only though it distinctly states in the heading that there are twenty-five, the catchwords for Job 29 11 and 34 3 are omitted.

רַנִּיט = § 249.

רַנִּיט mine ear, occurs eight times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 188a, on Ps. 49 5 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Job 13 1.

רַנִּי = § 250.

רַנִּי thine ear, is three times defective in the Prophets... and it is likewise so in the Hagiographa except in two instances where it is plene. Though §§ 250, 262 and 263, are given in the MSS. and accordingly are printed here as distinct Massorahs yet they are properly three different forms of the same import and will be best understood by treating them collectively. They simply exhibit different treatment of the orthography of the same noun. רַנִּי defective, as the Massorah calls it, with the suffix second person masculine occurs nine times, eight times without and once with the prefix (vide infra, § 263). These nine instances are confined to the Prophets and the Hagiographa. רַנִּי plene, with and without the prefixes occurs eight times, also in the Prophets and in the Hagiographa, viz. six times in the Prophets and twice in the Hagiographa. As there are three instances only in the Prophets which are defective and six plene, the Massorah in Rubric 250 safeguards the exceptional orthography. In the Hagiographa, however, where there are altogether eight instances and where six are defective and two only plene, the Massorah safeguards the two exceptional passages. This explains both § 250 and § 262 since the latter simply reverses the order giving the two exceptions in the Hagiographa first and the three in the Prophets second. In § 263 all the nine defective instances are given without the artificial division into Prophets and Hagiographa exhibited in §§ 250, 262.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 49a, on 1 Sam. 20 12 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 139b, on Isa. 48 8; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 195a, on 1 Sam. 20 12 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

Comp. 1 Sam. 25 24; Isa. 30 21; Jerom. 28 7; Ezek. 3 10; 40 4; 44 5; Pa. 130 2; 2 Chron. 6 40.

רַנִּיא = § 251.

רַנִּיא his ear, occurs seven times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 48a, on Exod. 21 6 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 79b; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 69b, and (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 98b, all on the same passage. List IV states in the heading that it occurs eight times which is manifestly a clerical error since the Rubric itself carefully gives the seven instances. It is remarkable that both in the printed Massorah on Exod. 21 6 and in the Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 246, where Jacob b. Chayim mentions this Rubric, he states that he has given it on Ps. 116, but on referring to this Psalm it will be seen that he takes no notice of its existence.

רַנִּיב = § 252.

רַנִּיב your ear, occurs five times. This Rubric I printed from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 247, as I have not found it in any MS.

רַנִּיג = 253.

רַנִּיג their ear, occurs eight times. This Rubric which I have not found in the MSS. is from the printed Massorah on Job 36 10. As is often the case with the Rubrics in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah it is incorrect, since רַנִּיג occurs ten times. Two instances, viz. Jerem. 11 8 and 44 5 are omitted. In the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 241, where Jacob b. Chayim gives the heading of this Rubric and where he refers to Job 36 10 for the enumeration of the passages, it is also stated erroneously that it occurs eight times only.

רַנִּיז = § 254.

רַנִּיז ears, occurs seven times. This Rubric too I have not found in the MSS. and have, therefore, printed it from the printed Massorah on Ps. 115 6.

רַנִּיח = § 255.

רַנִּיח and ears, occurs three times. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Add. 15,250, fol. 112b, on Deut. 29 3. It will be seen that Ezek. 12 2 is here given as one of the three instances where רַנִּיח has the prefix Vav, i. e. רַנִּיח. According to our recension of the Massoretic text, however, which is in harmony with the preceding Rubric, the reading in the passage before us is רַנִּיח without the prefix.

רַנִּיז = § 256.

רַנִּיז in the ears of, occurs thirty-seven times. This Rubric which I have printed from Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 251, I have since found in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 35a, on Gen. 44 18. Though the two Lists perfectly agree with regard to the number of instances, yet the enumeration of the passages follows more strictly the order of the Biblical books in the MS. List than in the printed Massorah, nor are the catchwords so lengthy.

רַנִּיח = § 257.

רַנִּיח in the ears of Jehovah, occurs three times. That is in contradistinction to the phrase רַנִּיח in mine ears Jehovah, which occurs twice (Isa. 5 9; 22 14) where it is with the suffix first person. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 120. I have since found it in Add. 15,451, fol. 184b, on 1 Sam. 8 21.

רַנִּיט = § 258.

רַנִּיט and in the ears of, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 50a, on Jerem. 28 7 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 248. The latter states that it occurs four times and gives the catchword רַנִּיט = Ezra 4 7 for the fourth instance. This is incorrect, since this expression does not occur in the passage in question.

רַנִּיט = § 259.

רַנִּיט and the ears of, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 16a, on Isa. 35 5 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

רַנִּיט = § 260.

רַנִּיט in mine ears, occurs twelve times. This Rubric makes no distinction between the eight instances in which it is רַנִּיט with Kametz under the Nun and the four passages where it is רַנִּיט with Pathach under the Nun. This recension of which I have found one List only, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 133a, on Ezek. 10 13. The four instances in which it is with Pathach (רַנִּיט) I have indicated by asterisks.

Of the recension which catalogues the eight instances in which it is רַנִּיט with Kametz I collated two Lists, one in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 133a, on Numb. 14 28, and one in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 242.

רַנִּיט = § 261.

רַנִּיט in mine ears, occurs twice with Kametz. That is twice with the accent Tarcha or Typha as in all the other six instances where the Nun has Kametz it is either with Athnach or Soph-Passuk. Of this Rubric which is not in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists, both in Arund. Orient. 16, fols. 120b, 127b; on Isa. 5 9 and 22 14.

רַנִּיט = § 262.

רַנִּיט thine ears, is twice plene in the Hagiographa... and it is likewise so in the Prophets except in three instances where it is defective. This recension is simply § 250 reversed, putting the Hagiographa before the Prophets. Of this recension I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 317b, on Ps. 130 2 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

רַנִּיט = § 263.

רַנִּיט thine ear, occurs nine times. Here the nine defective instances of this noun are catalogued without the artificial division into Prophets and Hagiographa which is exhibited in §§ 250 and 262. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 336b, on Prov. 2 2 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. In List I the expression רַנִּיט = and immediately after it, i. e. 1 Sam. 20 13, is manifestly a clerical omission which is rightly supplied in List II.

Both these Lists, however, are in conflict with the recension of this Massorah which is given in §§ 250 and 262. According to all the Lists of the latter Rubrics Pa. 130 2 is one of the two plene instances in the Hagiographa, whereas in the Rubric before us it is given in both Lists as one of the nine defectives. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that the two recensions, as is often the case, emanate from two different Schools of Massorites in which different traditions were preserved with respect to the orthography of this expression.

רסד - § 264.

רסד and thine ears, occurs three times. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 131a, on Isa. 30 21 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 281a, on 2 Chron. 6 40 and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 331, on the same passage. List II, distinctly states in the heading that it is plene in two instances and defective in one passage (רסד) and though it does not specify in the List itself which of the three instances is defective, some of the MSS. and early editions exhibit it beyond the shadow of a doubt. Thus Prov. 23 12 is רסד in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 15,251; the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491-93; the Leira edition of the Proverbs 1492; the fourth edition of the Bible, Pesaro 1511-17; the Salonica edition of the Hagiographa 1515; the Complutensian and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-26. But רסד plene is the reading in the following MSS. and editions. Add. 21,161; Add. 15,260; the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486-87; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the third edition Brescia 1494; and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible by Felix Pratensis, Venice 1517. This variation is again due to the differences which obtained in the Standard Codices preserved by the different Massoretic Schools and accounts for the conflicting Massorahs. Thus the defective reading is against § 263 since it is not included in the nine defective instances, whilst the plene reading is against §§ 250 and 262, according to which there are only two plene instances in the Hagiographa and since Prov. 23 12 is not one of the two.

רסה - § 265.

רסה with our ears, occurs six times. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 248, as I have not found it in the MSS. In my edition Pa. 64 2 should be 44 2.

רסז - § 266.

רסז in your ears, occurs four times. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 136a, on Deut. 5 1 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 126a, on the same passage.

רסח - § 267.

רסח in their ears, occurs six times. Of this Massorah I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 116a, on 2 Kings 23 2 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 171b, on Jerem. 36 15; (III) Add. 21,100, fol. 7b, on Gen. 20 8; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 141b, on Deut. 32 11; (V) the same MS., fol. 264a, on 2 Kings 23 2; (VI) the same MS., fol. 298a, on Jerem. 36 15; (VII) the same MS., fol. 507a, on 2 Chron. 34 30; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 32 3 and (IX) the same on 2 Kings 23 2.

Both Lists I and II distinctly state that רסח occurs six times and enumerate six passages leaving out 2 Kings 23 2 and Jerem. 36 15, whilst the other seven Lists not only state as emphatically that it occurs eight times, but catalogue all the eight instances. There can, therefore, be no doubt that the omission of the two instances in Lists I and II is due to a clerical error and that the alteration in the heading was made by the Scribe who found that the Lists recorded six passages only. This is confirmed by the fact that the two Massoretic Lists in this very MS. are given on the two passages which are omitted in the Lists, thus recognising their existence in the text.

רסח - § 268.

רסח and thou hast girded me, occurs twice. This is to distinguish it from the third instance (2 Sam. 22 40) where it is רסח without the Aleph. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 290b, on Pa. 30 12.

רסח - § 269.

רסח as one born in the country, occurs three times with Kametz and once with Pathach. That is, in three instances where the Caph has Sheva the Resh has Kametz or is the absolute and once the Resh has Pathach or the word is in the construct. The design of this Massorah is to distinguish this form from רסח with Kametz under the Caph which also occurs three times, viz. Levit. 24 16, 22; Josh. 8 33.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 102a, on Ezek. 47 22 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 198a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 298a, on Pa. 37 35; (IV) the printed Massorah on Levit. 19 34 and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 257. List III simply gives the three instances with Kametz and adds at the end of the Rubric רסח רסח רסח one occurs in the Pentateuch, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa. List IV also does not mention the one instance with Pathach, but has not the supplement of List III, whilst List V not only notices the Pathach instance, but gives the catchword for it in a separate line.

רסע - § 270.

רסע the Esrahite, occurs twice. This Rubric which I have not found in the MSS. is from the printed Massorah on Pa. 89 1 and as is frequently the case it is incorrect since this patronymic occurs three times, 1 Kings 5 11 is the third passage.

רסא - § 271.

רסא as brother, occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Add. 15,251, fol. 362b, on Pa. 35 14.

רסב - § 272.

רסב כל קרי אחיך במא. Throughout the Scriptures it is רסב with the exception of one instance where it is רסב, viz. Gen. 20 16 whilst throughout Samuel it is רסב with the exception of one instance where it is רסב, viz. 2 Sam. 2 22. To understand this artificial and complicated Massorah it is necessary to remark: (I) that רסב thy brother, with the suffix second person singular masculine, without and with the prefixes occurs no fewer than fifty-nine times in the Bible, and that (II) one only of the fifty-nine instances occurs in Samuel, that (III) רסב thy brother, with the suffix second person singular feminine, without and with the prefixes occurs four times in the Bible, that (IV) three out of the four are in Samuel, and that (V) one instance only occurs outside this book. Hence the Massorah contrasts the usage in all the other books of the Scriptures with that in Samuel. In all the Bible apart from Samuel רסב is the rule and רסב forms a solitary exception, whilst in Samuel רסב is the rule and רסב the solitary exception.

Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 179b, on 2 Sam. 2 22 which I have printed and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 58a, on the same passage.

¹ Comp. רסב Gen. 4 9, 10, 11; 22 20; 27 6, 35, 40, 42, 44, 45; 33 7; 35 1; 38 8; Exod. 4 14; 7 1, 2; 28 1, 2, 4, 41; Levit. 16 2; 18 16, 16; 19 17; 25 25, 35, 36, 39, 47; Numb. 20 8, 14; 27 8; Deut. 13 7; 15 8, 12; 17 15; 23 1, 2, 2, 3, 4; 28 8; 29 8; 33 50; 2 Sam. 2 22; 1 Kings 2 7, 21; 20 38; Obad. 10, 12; Prov. 27 10; רסב Deut. 15 9; Pa. 50 20; רסב Gen. 28 8; Deut. 15 11; 22 1; 23 10; רסב Deut. 23 21; רסב Deut. 15 7.

² Comp. רסב 2 Sam. 13 7, 20, 20; רסב Gen. 20 16.

רסג - § 273.

רסג his brother, occurs four times in the Scriptures. As the normal suffix third person singular masculine of רסג is רסג, which is of very frequent occurrence, the Massorah here safeguards these four abnormal forms. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 55b, on Jerem. 34 9 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 168a, on 2 Chron. 31 12; (III) the same MS. Vol. II, fol. 240b, on Job 41 9; (IV) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 34 9; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 170b, on the same passage; (VI) the same MS., fol. 212a, on Micah 7 2; (VII) the same MS., fol. 277a, on 2 Chron. 31 12; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 335b, on Job 41 9; (IX) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 224, and (X) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 34 9.

רסד - § 274.

רסד their brother, occurs four times . . . and once it is with Vav conjunctive. That is with Chirek under the Aeth, i. e. noun singular with suffix third person plural in contradistinction to וְהָיָה with Tzere under the Cheth, i. e. noun plural which occurs thirty-seven times without the prefix Vav and sixteen times with it. The safeguarding of these five exceptional instances was all the more necessary since some MSS., all the early editions and the Septuagint read וְהָיָה the plural in 1 Chron. 9 17. This is the reading in Harley 5710-11 which is a Model Codex, the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486-87; the first, second, third and fourth editions of the Bible, Soncino 1488; Naples 1491-93; Brescia 1494; Pesaro 1511-17; the Complutensian; the Rabbinic Bible by Felix Pratensis 1517 and the first edition of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah 1524-25. The reading וְהָיָה the singular, however, is not only enjoined in the Rubric before us, but in the long Massoretic List of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it.¹ It is moreover, supported by the Chaldee, the Syriac and the Vulgate.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 199a, on 2 Sam. 3 30 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 222a, on Job 1 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59a, on 2 Sam. 3 30; (IV) Add. 21,161, fol. 261a, on 1 Chron. 9 17, and (V) the printed Massorah on Judg. 9 24.

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ו, § 75, Vol. I, p. 407 &c.

רע"ה = § 275.

וְהָיָה אֲנִי we are brethren, occurs twice with Kametz. This Rubric which I have only found in the printed Massorah on Gen. 42 13 is incorrect, since it is in Gen. 13 8 where this phrase occurs, that אֲנִי is with the pausal Kametz. בְּבִקְצֵי is most probably a clerical error for בְּבִקְצֵי it occurs twice in the Scriptures.

רע"ו = § 276.

יְדוּאֵי אֶרֶץ. Ten words are respectively combined once with one, and they have no parallel. This Rubric which is from the printed Massorah, as is often the case, is both incorrect and misleading: (I) Though the heading distinctly states that there are ten such unique combinations with אֶרֶץ, nine only are enumerated; (II) the remark בְּבִבְיָה, i. e. that Numb. 34 18 contains two such instances is incorrect, since the second instance וְיָשָׁב אֶרֶץ also occurs in Numb. 7 11, and Josh. 22 14, and (III) the declaration that there are ten such instances only is inaccurate, since there are many more unique combinations with אֶרֶץ, viz.:

אֶרֶץ אֲרָם 1 Kings 4 19	אֶרֶץ אֲרָם Gen. 42 19
אֶרֶץ אֲרָם 2 Kings 7 8	אֶרֶץ אֲרָם Exod. 10 19
אֶרֶץ אֲרָם Ezek. 8 7	אֶרֶץ אֲרָם Numb. 28 4
אֶרֶץ אֲרָם Neh. 5 18	אֶרֶץ אֲרָם „ 35 30

This is apart from such passages as וְיָשָׁב אֶרֶץ 2 Kings 4 39, וְיָשָׁב אֶרֶץ Ezek. 37 19 &c. since the design of this Massorah may be to register the unique combination with אֶרֶץ of nouns and particles only and not of verbs.

The incorrectness of this Rubric is due to a later Scribe who finding a number of examples of this combination, supplied the heading which was not given with the instances in their original form. This is evident from the earliest registers in their original form. Since printing the above Massorah I found two Lists of it in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, both are without headings, without fixing the number of instances and without the catchwords as is often the case in the earliest recensions of Massoretic Rubrics. The first List is on Exod. 10 19, fol. 51b. It registers eleven instances, containing all of the printed Massorah with the exception of the incorrect בְּבִבְיָה and three new ones, viz. Exod. 10 19; Numb. 28 4; 35 30. The second List is on Numb. 28 4, fol. 148b. It registers eight instances only, omitting Gen. 22 2; 32 28 and Exod. 10 19 which are given in the first List. The omission of the first two instances is due to the fact that in these passages it is not with אֶרֶץ, but with אֶרֶץ the construct. This recension, therefore, strictly confines itself to the combination with the absolute. Like the first List, this Register omits the vicious בְּבִבְיָה of Numb. 34 18 which is given in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah and which I have printed. It contains Numb. 28 4 and 35 30 which are given in List I, but which are omitted from the printed Rubric.

רע"ז = § 277.

אֶתְּמַר מִמֶּנּוּ one of them, occurs four times . . . and twice it is אֶתְּמַר one from them. That is in four instances in which this phrase occurs it is אֶתְּמַר in the construct, whilst in the other two passages (Numb. 16 15a; Ps. 106 11) it is אֶתְּמַר the absolute. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 96a; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 120b; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 110b, all on Numb. 16 15.

רע"ח = § 278.

וְהָיָה and the one, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is with the Vav prefix and followed by the He. This Massorah is specially designed both to safeguard the two instances where וְהָיָה is followed by וְהָיָה (Levit. 14 22; 15 15) since the normal phrase in all other passages is וְהָיָה... without the He,¹ and the single instance in 1 Sam. 14 5 where it is preceded by וְהָיָה, i. e. וְהָיָה... וְהָיָה. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 181b, on 1 Sam. 14 5 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 43a; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

¹ Comp. Levit. 5 7; 12 8; Numb. 6 11; Judg. 16 20; 2 Sam. 12 1; Ezek. 40 26, 49; 2 Chron. 3 17.

רע"ט = § 279.

כָּאֵלֶּם as one, together, occurs seven times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 30b, on Isa. 65 25 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 146a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 259b, on 2 Chron. 5 13 which also gives the mnemonic sign; (IV) the same MS., fol. 355a, on Eccl. 11 6 with the mnemonic sign; (V) the same MS., fol. 373b, on Ezra 2 64; (VI) the same MS., fol. 376a, on Ezra 6 20 with the sign; (VII) the same MS., fol. 384a, on Neh. 7 66; (VIII) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, § 17, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Isa. 65 25 with the sign.

Besides Lists III, IV, VI and IX which have the mnemonic sign with the register of the passages, the following Rubrics give the heading alone with the mnemonic sign: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 151b, on 2 Chron. 5 13; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 267b, on Eccl. 11 6; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 287b, on Ezra 2 64; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 288a, on Ezra 3 9 and (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 374b, on the same passage.

ר"ס = § 280.

לְכָל־אֶחָד for every one, occurs twice in the Pentateuch. This Massorah is designed to safeguard the vowel-points of these two exceptional instances, in all the other eight passages where this numeral with the same prefix occurs the Lamed has Sheva, viz. לְכָל־אֶחָד. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 45b, on Exod. 16 22 which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, fol. 88a, and (III) the printed Massorah on Numb. 15 12. The heading of List I which I have printed is not precise. It ought properly to be בְּבִבְיָה it occurs twice until in the Pentateuch, but the Vav, as we have seen, is often omitted in such cases. Lists II and III simply state that it occurs twice. These two instances form part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Lamed which respectively occur twice.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ל, § 17, Vol. II, p. 109.

רפ"א = § 281.

אֶתְּמַר one of, occurs twenty-five times with Pathach in the Scriptures, i. e. is in the construct. Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 284b, on Dan. 10 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 12b, on Gen. 21 15; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 178a, on 1 Sam. 9 3; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 135b, on Numb. 16 15; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 68b, on 2 Sam. 17 22; (VI) the same MS., fol. 112b, on 2 Kings 18 24; (VII) the same MS., fol. 133b, on Isa. 36 9; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 249a, on 1 Chron. 17 6; (IX) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, § 17; (X) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 6 12 and (XI) the same on 1 Chron. 17 6. All these Lists include אֶתְּמַר Gen. 37 9 in the twenty-five instances.

רפ"ב = § 282.

אֶתְּמַר הָעָם one of the people, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 25b, on Gen. 26 10 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 52a, on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Sam. 26 15 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 26 10.

רפ"ג = § 283.

אָדער אָדער eleven, occurs twice in the Pentateuch. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this exceptional phrase since the normal expression for eleven is either עָשְׂרִי עָשְׂרִי (Numb. 7 72; 29 20; 1 Chron. 12 13; 24 12; 25 18; 27 14) or עָשְׂרִי עָשְׂרִי (Exod. 26 7; 36 14; 2 Kings 25 2; Jerem. 1 8; 52 5; Ezek. 40 49). This Rubric which I have found in the printed Massorah only on Deut. 1 2 is ambiguous. It ought properly to be בי יבחרהּ it occurs twice and in the Pentateuch, since it occurs nowhere else. But the Vav in these cases is often omitted.

רפ"ד = § 284.

אָדער as one of, occurs twelve times with Pathach in the Scriptures, i. e. in the construct, in contradistinction to אָדער which occurs seven times and which is registered in Rubric 279. Of this Rubric which is not only one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, but is of very frequent occurrence I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 103a, on Ezek. 48 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 33b, on Gen. 49 16; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 168a, on Judg. 16 7; (IV) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 202a, on 2 Sam. 9 11; (V) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 48 8; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 17; (VII) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 48 8 and (VIII) the same on 2 Chron. 18 12.

רפ"ה = § 285.

אָדער to one of, occurs six times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. That is the construct in contradistinction to אָדער the absolute which occurs twice and which has already been noticed (vide supra, § 280). This Rubric too is one of the most ancient constituent parts of the Massorah and occurs frequently in the MSS. Of it I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 130a, on Deut. 28 55 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 12b, on Isa. 27 12; (III) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 46 17; (IV) the same Codex on Zech. 11 7; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 17, and (VI) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 9 1.

רפ"ו = § 286.

אָדער a few, occurs four times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Lamed. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 286a, on Dan. 11 20 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 191a, on Ezek. 37 17; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement, fol. 129b, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 11 1.

רפ"ז = § 287.

אָדער has in six passages Pathach and the accent Zakeph Katon . . . And whenever it is combined with one of the four words represented by the initials אָדער, i. e. אָדער ordinance, אָדער measure, אָדער year, and אָדער law, it is likewise אָדער with Pathach except in one instance where it is אָדער with Segol and Kametz [Deut. 24 5]. And whenever it has the pausal accents Athnach Soph-Pasuk and Zakeph it is likewise אָדער with Kametz.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 45b, on Exod. 16 38 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 200b, on 2 Sam. 6 19 where the mnemonic sign alone is given for the six passages; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 221a, on 1 Kings 7 16; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 122b, on Zech. 5 7; (V) Orient. 4445, fol. 58b, on Exod. 16 33; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 54a, on 1 Sam. 26 8, which also gives the mnemonic sign; (VII) the same MS., fol. 218b, on Zech. 5 7; (VIII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 16; (IX) the printed Massorah on Exod. 16 33 which has the mnemonic sign and (X) the same on Josh. 6 14 which also gives the mnemonic sign.

It is important to notice (I) that אָדער is here used to denote Pathach or is a clerical error for אָדער, as is evident from the fact that in the headings of all the other nine Lists including the three in this very MS. it is אָדער and (II) that אָדער after the expression אָדער in the last line of this Rubric is manifestly a mistake for אָדער, since אָדער does not occur with the accent Zarka and Lists VI and VIII have actually אָדער and Zakeph. Indeed the whole of the last line, viz. וְכִלְיָהוּ אָדְרִי קָטָן is a later development. This is attested by the fact that six out of the ten Lists, viz. II, III, V, VII, IX and X have not got it, and that amongst them is Orient. 4445 which exhibits the oldest form of the Massorah. It will be seen that whilst this Massorah includes אָדער 1 Kings § 25 with the prefix Lamed, it excludes אָדער 1 Sam. 6 7.

¹ Comp. אָדער Numb. § 14; 15 16; אָדער Exod. 26 2, 8; 36 9, 16; 1 Kings 6 26; 7 37; Ezek. 40 10, 10; 46 22; אָדער 2 Kings 8 26; Dan. 11 1; 2 Chron. 22 2; אָדער Exod. 12 49; Levit. 7 7; Numb. 15 16, 29. In the case of these combinations the reference is simply to the vowel-points of אָדער and not to the accent on it, since in these phrases it is sometimes with Zakeph and sometimes with another accent.

רפ"ח = § 288.

אָדער אָדער one to another, occurs twice in this combination. That is with Pathach under the second אָדער. As this phrase occurs six times, and as it is אָדער אָדער in the other four instances in this very chapter (comp. Exod. 36 10, 10, 12, 22), the Massorah safeguards the vowel-points of the two exceptional instances. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2343, fol. 79a, on Exod. 36 10 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 89a; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 79b, and (IV) the printed Massorah all on the same passage.

רפ"ט = § 289.

אָדער occurs twice with the accent Zakeph and Pathach. In the other eleven instances where אָדער has Zakeph it is pointed אָדער. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 82a, on 1 Kings 7 38 which I have printed and (II) the Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 17.

¹ Comp. Exod. 25 12; 26 4, 10; 36 11; 37 3; 1 Kings 6 24; 7 16, 17, 27, 42; 2 Chron. 4 13.

רפ"י = § 290.

אָדער as one, occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 7b, on Josh. 10 2.

רפ"יא = § 291.

אָדער the one, occurs three times with Kametz . . . and wherever it is with the pausal accents Athnach and Soph-Pasuk it is likewise with Kametz except in two instances. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 51b, on Exod. 26 5 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 67b; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 82a, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

To understand this Massorah as well as the various Massoretic remarks which accompany the several recensions of it, it is necessary to state that אָדער which occurs altogether thirty-one times, has in these three instances only the non-pausal accents Segol (Exod. 26 5; 36 12) and Itebia (1 Kings 7 18), whilst in all the other twenty-eight passages it is with the pausal accents. Thus in eleven instances it has Zakeph (vide supra, § 289, note); in twelve it is with Athnach¹ and in five it is with Soph-Pasuk.² Accordingly the last line of this Rubric ought to be וְכִלְיָהוּ אָדְרִי קָטָן and wherever it is with Zakeph etc. List II which exhibits the oldest form of the Massorah rightly has it so. Still more indistinct is the heading in List III, viz. אָדְרִי קָטָן wherever it has the accent Zarka it is אָדְרִי קָטָן except in these three passages where it is with Kametz, i. e. אָדְרִי קָטָן, since this implies that the three passages in question are by way of exception אָדְרִי קָטָן, with Zarka instead of אָדְרִי קָטָן (vide supra, §§ 287, 289).

¹ Comp. אָדְרִי קָטָן Exod. 26 2, 8, 24; 28 10; 36 9, 16, 29; Levit. 14 5, 50; 1 Kings 7 34; 10 17; 2 Chron. 9 16.

² Comp. אָדְרִי קָטָן Exod. 27 9; 36 31; Levit. 24 5; 1 Kings 10 16; 2 Chron. 19 15.

רפ"יב = § 292.

אָדְרִי קָטָן their hinder parts, occurs three times in the Scriptures and is defective. In the singular and without the suffix אָדְרִי קָטָן, without and with the prefixes is always plene. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 74b, on Ezek. 8 16 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 81b, on 1 Kings 7 25; (III) the same MS. fol. 269a, on 2 Chron. 4 4; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Kings 7 25; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VI) the same on Ezek. 8 16.

רפ"יג = § 293.

אָדְרִי קָטָן a sister, occurs three times. That is with Kametz under the Aleph as some of the Lists have it - the absolute to distinguish it from אָדְרִי קָטָן the construct. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 204b, on 2 Sam. 13 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 262b, on Cant. 8 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 65a, on 2 Sam. 13 1 which adds קָמַרְתָּ וְחָרַרְתָּ; (IV) the same MS., fol. 160b, on Jerem. 22 8, with the heading וְחָרַרְתָּ וְקָמַרְתָּ; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 60a, on Exod. 6 23 with the heading וְחָרַרְתָּ בְּפִי מִצְרַיִם לְבָנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל; (VI) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 13 1 and (VII) the same on Cant. 8 8.

רָצִיָּה = § 294.

רָצִיָּה my sister, occurs three times plene. This noun with the suffix first person singular occurs altogether eighteen times. It is defective in fifteen instances¹ and plene in these three instances only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional passages. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 65a, on 2 Sam. 13 5 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,261, fol. 74b, and (III) the printed Massorah all on the same passage.

¹ Comp. Gen. 13 13, 19; 20 2, 5, 12; 26 7, 9; 30 8; 2 Sam. 13 6; Prov. 7 4; Cant. 4 9, 10, 12; 5 1, 2.

רָצִיָּה = § 295.

רָצִיָּה thou art my sister, occurs twice in this combination in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 245a, on Prov. 7 4 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 34b, on Gen. 12 13 and (III) the printed Massorah on Prov. 7 4.

רָצִיָּה = § 296.

רָצִיָּה our sister, occurs three times, twice defective and once plene, . . . all the three instances are in the Pentateuch . . . and once it is קָמַרְתָּ. That is, in two instances it is without the Vav and in one instance it has the Vav. In the passage where it is with the prefix Lamed it has also the Vav and in all the four instances it is without the Yod after the Tzere. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 57b, on Gen. 34 14 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 47b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 15b, on Gen. 24 60; (IV) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Supplement, fol. 130b; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 34 60 and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter \aleph , § 265. List III has at the end of the Rubric \aleph בְּרִי בְּלִי וְיִלְכֶנּוּ אִתְּךָ הַיּוֹם וְיִלְכֶנּוּ אִתְּךָ הַיּוֹם the last instance [Gen. 34 31] has Vav plene and all the others are entirely defective, i. e. are defective of both Vav and Yod. The heading of the printed List VI \aleph בְּרִי בְּלִי וְיִלְכֶנּוּ אִתְּךָ הַיּוֹם is incorrect as is attested, not only by all the MSS., but by the printed List V.

רָצִיָּה = § 297.

רָצִיָּה thy sisters, occurs three times. The word בְּלִיָּה in this form as is often the case is here omitted from the heading, since in one of the three instances it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 288, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 79b, on Ezek. 16 55 and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. All these Lists give the official reading or the Keri \aleph בְּלִיָּה in Ezek. 16 51 as one of the three instances. These three instances form part of the alphabetical Lists of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter \aleph , § 70, Vol. I, p. 403 &c.

רָצִיָּה = § 298.

רָצִיָּה sisters, occurs five times in this form. That is, the plural of \aleph בְּלִיָּה or the form \aleph בְּלִיָּה, as the Massorah expresses it, occurs five times. The term בְּלִיָּה in this form embraces the one instance in which it has the prefix Vav and covers the fact that it is with different suffixes. It, however, does not notice that it is with Vav plene after the Yod in two instances (Josh. 2 13; Ezek. 16 52). Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 2a, on Josh. 2 13 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. fol. 176b, on Ezek. 16 52; (III) the same MS., fol. 238a, on 1 Chron. 2 16; (IV) the same MS., fol. 836a, on Job 42 11; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 847a, on Job 1 4; (VI) the printed Massorah on Josh. 2 13; (VII) the same on Ezek. 16 52 and (VIII) the same on Job 1 4. The heading in printed Massorah on Josh. 2 13 or in List VI, viz. \aleph בְּלִיָּה הַיּוֹם it is five times defective of Yod is manifestly a corruption of \aleph בְּלִיָּה בְּקִרְיָה.

רָצִיָּה = § 299.

רָצִיָּה. For the import of this Rubric see, § 159.

רָצִיָּה = § 300.

רָצִיָּה the Ahohite, occurs four times, three times plene and once defective . . . and once it is without the prefix He. I have mislaid the reference to the MS. where this Rubric is to be found. It does not occur in the printed Massorah.

רָצִיָּה = § 301.

רָצִיָּה occurs three times . . . and once with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 217a, on 1 Kings 1 51 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 77a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 181a, on the same passage; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 66b, on Exod. 15 14; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (VI) the same on 1 Kings 1 51 and (VII) the same on Job 23 9. Though the Rubric which I have printed simply states that this word occurs three times, yet it belongs to two different roots and has two different meanings. In Exod. 15 14 and 1 Kings 1 51 it is the preterite third person singular from \aleph to seize, with the accent on the ultimate, whilst in Job 23 9 it is the apocapated future first person singular from \aleph to see, with the accent on the penultimate. This explains the different headings of this Rubric in the MSS. and in the printed Massorah. Thus Lists II and IV have it \aleph בְּלִיָּה מִלֵּיל it occurs three times twice Milra and once Milal; List V has \aleph בְּלִיָּה מִלֵּיל it occurs twice, counting the two instances only in which it is the preterite, whilst List III like List I only notices the fact that the Cheth has Pothack in contradistinction to the instances where this trilateral has Komets under the Cheth and where it is a proper name. Hence also the addition in List VII \aleph בְּלִיָּה מִלֵּיל וְיִלְכֶנּוּ אִתְּךָ הַיּוֹם. As the three instances occur respectively in each of the three divisions of the Scriptures, List III has at the end of the Rubric \aleph בְּלִיָּה מִלֵּיל וְיִלְכֶנּוּ אִתְּךָ הַיּוֹם. The addition at the end of the Rubric which I have printed is either a clerical error since it also occurs in Job 21 6, or is due to a recension of the text where it occurred only once.

רָצִיָּה = § 302.

רָצִיָּה and lay hold, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish this imperative singular with the prefix Vav from the same quadrilateral which is pointed \aleph בְּלִיָּה Judg. 20 6 and \aleph בְּלִיָּה 1 Chron. 24 6. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 58a, on 2 Sam. 2 21 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 4 4.

רָצִיָּה = § 303.

רָצִיָּה and he shall lay hold, occurs twice. To distinguish it from the same quadrilateral which is pointed \aleph בְּלִיָּה 2 Sam. 6 6 and \aleph בְּלִיָּה Judg. 6 13; 1 Kings 6 10.

רָצִיָּה = § 304.

רָצִיָּה occurs four times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the Vav prefix. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 270b, on Esther 1 6 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 253a, on 1 Chron. 24 6; (III) the same MS., fol. 358b, on Esther 1 6; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 243a, on Numb. 31 30; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Numb. 31 30; (VI) the same Codex on 1 Chron. 24 6 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 31 30.

The conflicting Massorahs on this expression are due to the different ways in which the several Schools of Massorites treated this Rubric. Thus Lists I, II, III and IV simply catalogue the four passages in which \aleph without any prefix occurs. They make no reference to its being plene or defective. List V which states in the heading that it occurs four times, mentions that it is plene in one instance and defective in three passages. It however, enumerates the three defectives only, viz. Numb. 31 10; 1 Chron. 24 6, 6 finishing the enumeration with \aleph בְּלִיָּה הַיּוֹם these are the defectives. List VI states that it occurs five times, four times defective (Numb. 31 30; 1 Chron. 24 6, 6b) and once plene (Esther 1 6), thus including the instance in which it has the prefix Vav; whilst List VII which also states in the heading that it occurs four times defective and once plene, obtains the four defectives by including \aleph בְּלִיָּה Numb. 31 47 and excludes from this Number the one with the prefix Vav which it adds at the end as \aleph בְּלִיָּה. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ו, § 75, Vol. I, p. 407 &c.

ש"ה = § 305.

וְיִתְּנֶנּוּ and ye shall take possession, occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 22b, on Gen. 34 10.

ש"ו = § 306.

וְיִתְּנֶנּוּ possession of, is always combined with וְיִתְּנֶנּוּ with the exception of one instance where it is וְיִתְּנֶנּוּ. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Orient. 2349, fol. 97b, on Levit. 25 34. It is very artificial and implies that apart from the passage in question וְיִתְּנֶנּוּ occurs often with וְיִתְּנֶנּוּ, whereas Ezek. 46 16 is the only instance where it is followed by וְיִתְּנֶנּוּ and even here it is with the suffix third person plural, viz. וְיִתְּנֶנּוּ.

ש"ז = § 307.

אֲחַזְיָה Ahazjah, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs seven times. That is, to distinguish it from the lengthier form אֲחַזְיָהּ Ahazjahū which occurs no fewer than thirty times. For the reason which underlies this duplicate form see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, Part II, chap. XI, p. 387 &c. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 244b, on 2 Kings 9 16 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 97b, on 2 Kings 1 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 104b, on 2 Kings 9 23; (IV) the same MS., fol. 269b, on 2 Chron. 20 35; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on 2 Kings 1 2; Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 47, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 299.

ש"ח = § 308.

אֲחִיזָה Ahizah, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs five times. That is, in this lengthened form it is the exception, its normal form is אֲחִיזָה which occurs no fewer than nineteen times.¹ Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 229b, on 1 Kings 14 5, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 263b, on 2 Chron. 10 15; (III) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 252; (IV) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 14 5, and (V) the same on 2 Chron. 10 15.

¹ For the import of this duplicate form see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible Part II, chap. XI, p. 387 &c.

ש"ט = § 309.

אֲחִיזָה Ahizub, occurs three times defective. This proper name which occurs fifteen times, thirteen times without the prefix Vav and twice with it, is in these three instances exceptionally written without the Yod after the Cheth. Hence the Massorah safeguards the abnormal orthography. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 48a, on 1 Sam. 14 3 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 50b, on 1 Sam. 22 9; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 158a, on 1 Sam. 14 3; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 196b, on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 281. The printed Massorah Parva on 1 Sam. 14 3 which states that this name occurs four times defective (אֲחִיזָה) must be based upon a different recension in which there was another defective instance.

ש"י = § 310.

אֲחִילֵי Ahilai, or Achlai, occurs twice. This Massorah is designed to safeguard this proper name, since the adverb which consists of the same four letters, but differently pointed also occurs twice, once it is אֲחִילֵי Ps. 119 5 and once אֲחִילֵי 2 Kings 5 3. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Cambridge Add. 465 on 1 Chron. 2 31.

ש"יא = § 311.

תְּדַלְּגִי thou shalt delay or she shall delay, occurs four times. That is the Piel future second person singular masculine or third person feminine, occurs four times with Tzerē under the Cheth. It will be seen that the Massorah catalogues the expression with the same vowel-points under the same Rubric irrespective of the fact that it is both second person masculine and third person feminine. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 49a, on Exod. 22 28 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 22b, on Isa.

46 13; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 265a, on Eccl. 5 3; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 139a, on Isa. 46 13; (V) the same MS., fol. 352b, on Eccl. 5 3; (VI) the printed Massorah Exod. 22 28; (VII) the same on Isa. 46 13 and (VIII) the same on Eccl. 5 3.

ש"יב = § 312.

תְּדַלְּגִי thou shalt delay, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is the Piel future second person singular masculine with Pathach under the Cheth in contradistinction to the former which has Tzerē. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 185b, on Pa. 40 18 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 194b, on Pa. 70 6; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 331b; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, both on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah on Pa. 40 18.

ש"יג = § 313.

שֶׁבַע Sheva occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is with Sheva under the Mem or the Piel participle plural construct in contradistinction to שֶׁבַע with Tzerē under the Mem or the preposition which occurs twenty-six times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 216a, on Pa. 127 2 which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 15 1. It is remarkable that the printed Massorah both in the heading and in the Massorah Parva states that it occurs three times and gives 2 Sam. 15 1 as one of the three instances. As it is pointed שֶׁבַע in the received text and is so even in Jacob b. Chayim's edition, the Rubric in the printed Massorah is either based upon a recension which reads שֶׁבַע in 2 Sam. 15 1 or, which is more probable, the Scribe confused the two expressions. These two expressions form part of the alphabetical Lists of words beginning with Mem which respectively occur twice.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ב, § 14, Vol. II, p. 165 &c.

ש"יד = § 314.

אֲחֵרֵי דְבָרִים אַחֵרֵי דְבָרִים after these things, occurs three times at the beginning of a verse. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 271a, on Esther 2 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 272a, on Esther 3 1; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 35b, on Gen. 15 1; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 359a, on Esther 2 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 359b, on Esther 3 1 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 15 1. The expression אֲחֵרֵי דְבָרִים אַחֵרֵי דְבָרִים occurs three times at the beginning of the verse which also occurs in List III and in the printed Massorah Parva on Gen. 15 1 is inexact, inasmuch as it might imply that it occurs in other passages where it does not begin a verse, whereas this phrase only occurs three times altogether and at the beginning of a verse. Properly therefore, it ought to be אֲחֵרֵי דְבָרִים אַחֵרֵי דְבָרִים three times and at the beginning of a verse, but the Vav, as is frequently the case, is omitted. Lists II, IV, V and VI rightly omit אֲחֵרֵי דְבָרִים altogether. The Massorah Parva on Esther 3 1 in Harley 5710—11 adds אֲחֵרֵי דְבָרִים אַחֵרֵי דְבָרִים and once it is and after these things with the prefix Vav (Ezra 7 1). The design of this Massorah is to distinguish this phrase from the five instances where it is preceded by וְיָבֵא and it came to pass. Comp. Gen. 22 1; 39 7; 40 1; 1 Kings 17 17; 21 1.

ש"טו = § 315.

אֲחֵרֵי יְהוָה after Jehovah, occurs twice. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 116a, on 2 Kings 23 3. As the normal phrase is אֲחֵרֵי יְהוָה which occurs no fewer than ten times¹ the Massorah safeguards the two abnormal passages.

¹ Comp. Numb. 32 12; Deut. 1 36; 13 5; Josh. 14 8, 9, 14; 1 Sam. 7 2; 1 Kings 11 6; Hos. 11 10; 2 Chron. 34 31.

ש"טז = § 316.

אֲחֵרֵי אֲחֵרֵי and afterward, occurs twice. The normal phrase is אֲחֵרֵי אֲחֵרֵי which occurs twenty-two times.¹ Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 72b, on Levit. 14 36 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 63b; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 73a, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. List III states in the heading that this phrase occurs three times and gives 1 Sam. 10 5 as the third passage. The Rubric, therefore, in this recension of the Massorah must have been based upon Codices which read here אֲחֵרֵי אֲחֵרֵי with the prefix Vav.

¹ Comp. Gen. 15 14; 23 19; 23 26; 32 21; 45 13; Exod. 3 20; 11 6; 34 32; Levit. 16 26, 28; Numb. 4 15; 8 15, 27; 9 17; Josh. 8 34; Jerem. 16 16; 21 7; 46 26; 49 6; Ezra 3 5; 2 Chron. 20 35; 33 14.

שיי = § 317.

The expression שיי without and with suffices is always construed with בל except in two instances where it is with בל. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 194a, on Ezek. 41 15 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

שיח = § 318.

In two passages of the Scriptures the textual reading or the Kethiv is שייח after, and the official reading or Keri is שייח after him. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 294b, on Neh. 3 80 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The recension of this Rubric printed by Jacob b. Chayim is somewhat lengthier, but not quite exact, since the statement in the heading is שייח ב' פעמים in this section which ought to be שייח ב' פעמים in this section for it occurs nowhere else in the Scriptures. The Vav, as is frequently the case, is omitted. It moreover, concludes with וחי בשטאל סוכו אחרו וקרי אחרו אלעזר בן רודו ושמואל אחרו סוכו אחרו and once in Samuel, the Kethiv is שייח and the Keri שייח (2 Sam. 23 9) and in all the other passages שייח is both the Kethiv and the Keri. This is contradicted both by Jacob b. Chayim's own text and Massorah, since he has שייח as the Kethiv also in 2 Sam. 23 11 and gives the Massoretic Keri שייח in the margin.

שיש = § 319.

אחר יהוה יידיה אחר after Jehovah my God, occurs twice. That is to distinguish it from verse 14 of this very chapter (i. e. 14) where it is אחר יהוה אלהי ישראל after Jehovah the God of Israel, as well as from the normal phrase which is simply אחר יידיה (comp. Numb. 33 12; Deut. 1 36; 1 Sam. 7 2; 1 Kings 11 6; Hos. 11 10; 2 Chron. 34 31). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 10b, on Josh. 14 8.

שיב = § 320.

אחר that, occurs three times in the middle of the verse. This Rubric which I have found in the printed Massorah only on Gen. 6 4 is absolutely incorrect, since this phrase occurs no fewer than six times in the middle of the verse. Besides the three passages given in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah it also occurs in the middle of the verse in Gen. 41 31; Josh. 10 26 and Isa. 1 26. Altogether this phrase occurs twenty-four times in the Bible and the position of the remaining eighteen instances in the respective verses is as follows: once it is at the beginning of the verse, thirteen times it is preceded by ו, once by ו, once by ו, and once by ו, always at the beginning of the verse and once it stands at the end of the verse.

1 Comp. אחר Job 3 1; אחר Judg. 16 4; 1 Sam. 24 6; 2 Sam. 3 1; 8 1; 10 1; 13 1; 21 18; 2 Kings 6 24; 1 Chron. 18 1; 19 1; 20 4; 2 Chron. 20 1; 24 4; אחר Joel 3 1; 1 Sam. 24 8; אחר Jerem. 34 11; אחר 2 Sam. 21 14.

שיב = § 321.

אחר after the death, occurs three times in this conjunction with the accent. That is, in these three instances it is with Munach and Zakeph Katon. In the other six instances where this phrase occurs it has different accents.1 Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 248b, on 2 Kings 14 17 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 208b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah on Levit. 16 1.

1 Comp. אחר Gen. 25 11; Judg. 1 1; אחר Gen. 26 18; Ruth 2 11; אחר Josh. 1 1; 2 Chron. 22 4; אחר 2 Kings 1 1.

שיב = § 322.

אחר and after, occurs seven times at the beginning of a verse in the Scriptures. That is שייח without being followed by ב, since with this combination, i. e. שייח it also begins a verse eleven times, viz. Gen. 23 19; 25 26; Levit. 34 32; Numb. 8 15, 22; Josh. 8 34; Jerem. 21 7; 49 6; Ezra 3 5; 2 Chron. 20 35; 33 14. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 284b, on Dan. 9 26.

שיב = § 323.

אחר and after the death of, occurs twice in the Scriptures in this combination. In the other ten passages where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah I collated four Lists:

(I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 163a, on 2 Chron. 24 17 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 132b, on Numb. 35 28; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 122b, on the same passage and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Chron. 24 17.

שכך = § 324.

אחר after this, occurs three times. As the normal phrase is אחר (vide supra, § 320), the Massorah safeguards these three exceptional instances with the prefix Mem. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 66b, on 2 Sam. 15 1 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 287.

שכיה = § 325.

אחר and after him, occurs twice in this section. In the part of the memorial which extends from Neh. 3 16 to 31 the successive individuals who took part in the building are introduced with the expression אחר after him. It occurs in this connection no fewer than sixteen times. As it is without the prefix Vav fourteen times (comp. Neh. 3 16, 17, 18, 20, 21, 23, 23, 24, 25b, 27, 29a, 30, 30, 31) and with the prefix Vav twice (§ 22, 29b), the Massorah safeguards the exceptional use of the conjunctive. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 294b, on Neh. 3 22 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 294b, on Neh. 3 29; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 380b, and (IV) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage. The heading in the printed Massorah (List IV) שייח ב' אחריהם sign; throughout this section שייח begins the verse with the exception of two instances where it is שייח, is incorrect, since in the second instance, viz. 3 29 שייח is in the middle of the verse. The MS. Lists have not the objectionable שייח.

שכין = § 326.

אחר the next, the other, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 258b, on 2 Chron. 3 11 which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 and (III) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage.

שכין = § 327.

אחר the last, is seven times plene in the Scriptures. The heading ought properly to be שייח ב' seven times plene in this form, since two only are without the prefix Vav (Eccl. 4 16; 1 Chron. 23 27), whilst the other five instances have the prefix Vav, but this term is often omitted in such cases. Apart from the two instances, viz. the one in 2 Sam. 23 1 where it is defective and in Eccl. 4 16 where it is plene, שייח occurs ten times. These are all in Chronicles where it is defective in four passages (1 Chron. 29 29; 2 Chron. 20 34; 26 22; 35 27) and plene in six. It will be seen that in this Rubric, the Massorah safeguards the majority which is very unusual. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 166b, on 2 Chron. 12 15 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 164a, on 2 Chron. 25 26; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 166a, on 2 Chron. 28 26; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 274b, on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 290. In the printed Massorah, four out of the seven catchwords are wrong: (1) ויחי רבי = 2 Chron. 9 29 ought to be ויחי רבי; (2) ויחי רבי = 2 Chron. 12 15 should be ויחי רבי; (3) ויחי רבי = 2 Chron. 16 11 should be ויחי רבי and (4) ויחי רבי = 2 Chron. 28 26 should be ויחי רבי.

שכין = § 328.

אחר in the latter, is twice plene. This feminine adjective with the prefix Beth occurs six times, and once with the prefixes Vav Caph. It is defective in five instances (Deut. 13 10; 17 7; 1 Sam. 29 2; 1 Kings 17 13; Dan. 8 3) and plene in these two passages only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 58a, on 2 Sam. 2 26. As it is אחר in Dan. 11 29, the heading of this Rubric ought properly to be שייח ב'.

שכין = § 329.

אחר at the last, occurs twice in the Scriptures . . . once in the Pentateuch and once in the Hagiographa. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 263a, on Eccl. 1 11 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 351a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 188^a, on Num. 2 81; (IV) the same MS., fol. 302^a, on Eccl. 1 11 and (V) the printed Massorah on Num. 2 81. These two instances form part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Lamed which respectively occur twice.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ל, § 17, Vol. II, p. 109.

שׁיל - § 330.

ל backward, occurs seven times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 37^b, on 1 Sam. 4 18 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 98^a, on 1 Kings 18 37; (III) the same MS., fol. 114^a, on 2 Kings 20 10; (IV) the same MS., fol. 135^a, on Isa. 38 8; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 153^a, on 1 Sam. 4 18; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Supplement, fol. 129^b, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 20 10.

שׁליא - § 331.

אחשׁרושׁ Ahashverosh, is four times so written according to the Westerns . . . and once it is אחשׁרשׁ Ahashrosh. That is, this name which occurs thirty times, is in these four instances without the second Vav according to the Palestinians and once entirely defective, whilst according to the Babylonians they form no exception, but are plene as in all the other passages. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 272^b, on Esther 8 12 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 362^a, on Esther 8 7; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 810^b, on Esther 3 12; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 408^a, on Esther 10 1 and (V) the printed Massorah on Esther 2 21.

שׁליב - § 332.

מלשׁתת the mules, occurs twice in this book. That is, in Esther. As it occurs no where else in the Bible, the heading ought properly to be מלשׁתת twice used in this book. But the Vav, as we have seen, is frequently omitted in these cases. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 274^b, on Esther 8 10.

שׁליט - § 333.

ל quietly, occurs twice. That is, this adverb with the prefix Lamed. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 122^a, on Isa. 8 6. These two instances form part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Lamed which respectively occur twice with Sheva under the Lamed.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ל, § 18, Vol. II, p. 109.

שׁליד - § 334.

ל shut up, impeded, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 171^a, on Judg. 20 16 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 20^a, on Judg. 3 15; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 150^a, on Judg. 20 16 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. It is remarkable that all the four Lists omit from the heading ל twice and in this book, though the two instances are restricted to Judges.

שׁליה - § 335.

ל where, occurs three times in the Pentateuch. In all other passages it is ל with paragogic He. The interest which attaches to this Rubric is due to the fact that it shows how the Massorites elaborated the Massorah. They began to register the peculiarities of the text by counting at first the expressions in the separate books and divisions of the Bible. Hence in the Rubric before us we have the first attempt to register the instances in the Pentateuch alone, whilst in the following Rubric which contains the full development we have the catalogue of this adverb in the whole Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 134^a, on Deut. 32 87.

שׁליו - § 336.

ל where, occurs thirty-one times in the Scriptures. The heading ought more properly to be ל ל, i. e. this adverb without and with the prefix Vav occurs thirty-one times, since in six instances it is ל (1 Sam. 30 13; Isa. 66 1; Jonah 1 2; Job 28 12, 20; Esther 7 6). It will be seen that this Rubric does not recognise the Kethiv in Prov. 31 4 which is ל, but includes the official reading or Keri in this Rubric. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, fol. 30^b, on Isa. 66 1.

שׁליו - § 337.

ל occurs five times . . . and wherever it is combined with ל or with ל it is likewise ל. This complicated Massorah is a later development of the preceding Rubric and it purports to catalogue those passages only where ל is not followed by ל or ל. Hence the thirteen instances where it is ל, the four ל, the seven ל and the two ל are excluded,¹ whilst the combination ל is strangely included. As is usually the case, this artificial development is the more popular one. Whilst I have found one List only of the simple catalogue, I have collated no fewer than six Lists of this intricate Massorah, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 54^a, on 1 Sam. 26 16 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 12^a, on Gen. 16 8; (III) the same MS., fol. 162^a, on 1 Sam. 26 16; (IV) the same MS., fol. 367^a, on Prov. 31 4; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 241^b, on Jerem. 5 7, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 4 9. ל in the heading is a mistake, since this combination does not occur in the Bible. It is manifestly intended for ל. The mistakes to which these complicated and artificial Massorahs have given rise are, moreover, to be seen in Lists II and V.²

¹ Comp. The Massorah, 1 Sam. 9 18; 1 Kings 13 12; 22 24; 2 Kings 3 8; Isa. 50 1; 56 1; Jerem. 6 16; Job 38 19, 19, 24; Eccl. 2 3; 11 6; 2 Chron. 18 23; ל see § 339; ל Gen. 16 8; Judg. 13 6; 1 Sam. 25 11; 2 Sam. 1 3, 13; 15 2; Job 2 2; 2 Kings 30 13; Jonah 1 8.

² List II is as follows: ל וְכַתְּבוּ אֶת-חֶלְקֵי מִסְכְּבָה אֶת-חֶלְקֵי מִסְכְּבָה אֶת-חֶלְקֵי מִסְכְּבָה אֶת-חֶלְקֵי מִסְכְּבָה אֶת-חֶלְקֵי מִסְכְּבָה which is hopelessly corrupt.

List V which is ל וְכַתְּבוּ אֶת-חֶלְקֵי מִסְכְּבָה אֶת-חֶלְקֵי מִסְכְּבָה אֶת-חֶלְקֵי מִסְכְּבָה אֶת-חֶלְקֵי מִסְכְּבָה אֶת-חֶלְקֵי מִסְכְּבָה is inexplicable.

שׁליח - § 338.

ל from whence comest thou, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 57^a, on 2 Sam. 1 3. It is designed to distinguish this phrase from the one in 2 Sam. 1 13; 15 2 which also occurs twice.

שׁליט - § 339.

ל and where, occurs four times, i. e. in contradistinction to ל without the prefix Vav which occurs thirteen times (vide supra, § 337). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 146^b, on Isa. 66 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. 361^a on Esther 7 5 and (III) the printed Massorah on Job 28 12.

שׁלי - § 340.

ל and where, occurs three times at the beginning of a verse. In all the other five instances where this interrogative begins a verse it is without the prefix Vav (comp. 2 Kings 18 34; Isa. 36 19; 37 13; Nah. 2 12; Ps. 89 50). It will be seen that the Massorah includes here the Keri in Jerem. 37 19 and ignores the Kethiv. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 32^b, on Jerem. 2 28 which I have printed; (II) the same MSS., Vol. II, fol. 58^b, on Jerem. 37 19; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 229^b, on Job 17 15; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 327^b, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 37 19 and (VI) the same on Job 17 15. These three instances form part of the List of twelve words beginning with Vav which respectively begin a verse.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ו, § 72, Vol. I, p. 405.

שׁליא - § 341.

ל where is he, occurs five times in the Scriptures without and with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 25^b, on Exod. 2 20 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 253^a, on 2 Kings 19 13; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 116^b, on Micah 7 10 where the mnemonic sign alone is given; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 113^a, on 2 Kings 19 13 where both the List and the sign are given; (V) the same MS., fol. 328^a, on Job 20 7 also with the sign and (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 2 20 also with the sign. The sign by itself is also given in the printed Massorah Finalia, letter א, § 297.

The earlier Massorahs have a separate catalogue for the two out of the five passages where it is ל with the prefix Vav. Thus Orient. 4445, fol. 57^a, on Exod. 2 20 has a Rubric consisting of these two instances alone. It is remarkable that Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 326^a, on Job 14 10 which has also a separate Rubric for ל states that it occurs three times and gives Job 20 7 as one of the three passages. All the Lists exclude the Kethiv אֵי Jerem. 37 19 from this Rubric.

אֵי = § 342.

אֵי where are they, occurs twice in the Scriptures . . . once at the beginning of a verse and once at the end of a verse. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 126b, on Isa. 19 12. These two words form part of the List of words which respectively occur twice, once at the beginning and once at the end of the verse.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter א, § 264, Vol. II, p. 215 &c.

אֵי = § 343.

אֵי Ichabod, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 37b, on 1 Sam. 4 21 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 43a, on 1 Sam. 14 3 and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 153b, on 1 Sam. 4 21.

אֵי = § 344.

אֵי to the islands, occurs twice, i. e. to distinguish it from אֵי Dan. II 18 with Sheva under the Lamed. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 144b, on Isa. 59 18 which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 296b, on the same passage: List II has in the heading אֵי u occurs twice with Kamets, i. e. under the Lamed to distinguish it from the one instance where it is with Sheva.

אֵי = § 345.

אֵי enemy, occurs three times defective in this form. That is with and without prefixes, but without suffixes. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 187a, on 1 Sam. 18 29 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 41a, on Jerem. 15 11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 48a, on 1 Sam. 18 29; (IV) the same MS., fol. 152a, on Jerem. 6 25 and (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 18 29.

אֵי = § 346.

אֵי the enemy and the avenger, occurs twice. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only on Ps. 44 17.

אֵי = § 347.

אֵי the enemy, occurs five times . . . four times plene and once defective. Normally it is אֵי without the article. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 244a, on 1 Kings 8 46 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 93a, on Ezek. 36 2; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 164b, on 2 Chron. 26 13; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 175b, on Ps. 9 7; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 83a, on 1 Kings 8 46; (VI) the same MS., fol. 189b, on Ezek. 36 2; (VII) the same MS., fol. 273b, on 2 Chron. 26 13 and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 303. The instance in which it is defective (Jerem. 15 11) is one of the three passages catalogued in § 345.

אֵי = § 348.

אֵי mine enemy, occurs seven times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 176b, on Ps. 13 3 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 48a, on 1 Sam. 19 17; (III) the same MS., fol. 96a, on 1 Kings 21 20; (IV) the same MS., fol. 330a, on Job 27 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 357a, on Lament. 2 22; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Kings 21 20 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 13 3. None of these Lists state that there is a plene instance among the seven passages. This shows that 1 Kings 21 20 is defective as all the others are.

אֵי = § 349.

אֵי thine enemy, occurs seven times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 191a, on 1 Sam. 24 5. It will be seen that this List includes two Keris, viz. 1 Sam. 26 8 and Prov. 24 17.

אֵי = § 350.

אֵי thine enemies, is twice defective. That is the Yod is absent after the Beth. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 1174, on Deut. 20 1.

אֵי = § 351.

אֵי his enemy, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 63b, on Jerem. 44 30 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 52b, on 1 Sam. 24 20; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 265a, on Jerem. 44 30 and (IV) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 24 20.

אֵי = § 352a.

אֵי our enemy, is twice so written. That is with Vav plene after the Aleph. This simple Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 80a, on Judg. 16 23.

אֵי = § 352b.

אֵי our enemy is in two instances so written . . . and throughout Ezra it is also אֵי except in one instance [Neh. 6 1] where it is אֵי and in all the other Scriptures it is also אֵי. This complicated Massorah is a development of the preceding simple Rubric and records the plene and defective orthography of this expression both in the singular and plural. אֵי the singular, as we have seen, is twice written with Vav after the Aleph. To this is artificially added the plural form which occurs three times plene in Ezra-Nehemiah (Neh. 4 9; 5 9; 6 16) and once defective (Neh. 6 1). Hence the remark "and throughout Ezra &c.". Outside Ezra-Nehemiah where it also occurs four times it is invariably written אֵי without the Vav (1 Sam. 4 3; 12 10; 2 Sam. 19 10; Lament. 3 46). This explains the remark in the last line of this Rubric. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Judg. 16 23, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 148a, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 806. In the heading of List I which I printed, the MS. states אֵי as I have given it, but this is manifestly a clerical mistake for אֵי with Vav.

אֵי = § 353.

אֵי enemies, occurs four times, twice defective and twice plene. Three of these four instances are with the prefixes Lamed and Mem. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 193b, on Ps. 68 24 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 317a, on Ps. 127 5 and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 307. Lists I and II neither indicate that three out of the four have prefixes nor show which two are defective. List III is more explicit, it not only states in the heading אֵי but adds at the end אֵי the two last instances, viz. Ps. 139 22; Lament. 1 2 are defective.

אֵי = § 354.

אֵי enemies of, occurs twice. That is with Vav after the Aleph. As this plural construct occurs nine times and is defective in two instances only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 296a, on Ps. 45 6. In our editions 2 Chron. 20 29 and not Micah 7 6 is one of the two plene instances.

אֵי = § 355.

אֵי mine enemies, is eleven times plene. That is, this plural with the suffix first person singular, whereas in all the other twenty-two instances where it occurs it is defective.¹ Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 55b, on 1 Sam. 2 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 119a, on Isa. 1 24; (III) the same MS., fol. 247b, on 1 Chron. 14 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 285b, on Ps. 9 4; (V) the same MS., fol. 287b, on Ps. 18 38; (VI) the same MS., fol. 294a, on Ps. 41 6; (VII) the same MS., fol. 297b, on Ps. 56 10; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 359b, on Ps. 71 10; (IX) the printed Massorah, on Sam. 2 1 and (X) the same on Ps. 9 4. In the List which I have printed, ten instances only are catalogued, though the heading distinctly says that there are eleven such instances. The Scribe by mistake omitted Ps. 71 10. This is evident from the fact that the other Lists include it, and that List VIII has this Massorah on this very passage. As these eleven instances include אֵי (Isa. 1 24) with the prefix Mem, List II rightly heads it אֵי.

¹ Comp. אֵי Numb. 23 11; 24 10; 2 Sam. 5 20; 22 38; Ps. 3 8; 17 9; 18 4; 25 19; 27 6; 30 2; 35 19; 69 5, 19; 138 7; Lament. 1 21; 3 52; אֵי 1 Sam. 14 24; 2 Sam. 22 40; Ps. 18 40; 59 2; 119 98; 143 3.

שני = § 356.

אויבך thine enemies, is seven times plene in the Scriptures. In all the other thirty-one passages where it occurs, it is אויבך without the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 159a, on Judg. 5 31 which I have printed; (II) the same MSS., Vol. II, fol. 141b, on 1 Chron. 17 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 305a, on Ps. 83 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 307a, on Ps. 89 52; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 364a, on the same passage and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 83 3.

שני = § 357.

אויבך his enemies, is five times plene in the Scriptures. In all the other nineteen passages where it occurs it is אויבך defective. The Massorah, therefore, guards these exceptions. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 193a, on Ps. 68 2 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 299b, on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ps. 132 18; (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 68 2 and (V) the same on Prov. 16 7.

שני = § 358.

אויבך her enemies, occurs twice and is defective. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 355b, on Lament. 1 5 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 315a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 208.

שני = § 359.

אויבך their enemies, is seven times plene. In the other twenty-nine passages where it occurs it is defective.¹ Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 156b, on Judg. 2 14 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 311b, on Ps. 106 42; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 81 15. It will be seen that according to List I which I have printed, Ezek. 39 27 is one of the seven plene instances. According to the other three Lists, however, there are only six plene instances and Ezek. 39 27 is omitted. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that the two conflicting Massorahs proceed from two different Schools of Massorites who worked on different recensions of the text. Though all the Lists include אויבך with the prefix Mem, none of the headings have the expression אויבך.

¹ Comp. אויבך Levit. 26 36, 41, 44; Josh. 7 12, 12; 21 42, 42; 23 1; Judg. 2 18; 8 34; 2 Sam. 3 18; 1 Kings 8 48; 2 Kings 21 14, 14; Jerem. 15 9; 19 7; 9; 20 4, 5; 31 7; 34 20, 21; 49 37; Amos 9 4; Esther 9 5; Neh. 9 28; אויבך Esther 8 18; 9 16, 22.

שני = § 360.

אויבך their enemies, occurs three times in this Section. That is, in Pericope אויבך = Levit. 26 3-27 34 it occurs three times and is defective in all the three passages. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 82a, on Levit. 26 36.

שני = § 361.

אויבך mine enemy, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 212a, on Mich. 7 8.

שני = § 362.

אויבך hatred of, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 183b, on Ezek. 25 15 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 189a, on Ezek. 35 5 and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. List III heads it more precisely אויבך it occurs twice and in the same book.

שני = § 363.

אויבך occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 327b, on Job 18 12 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 2b, on Gen. 2 6 and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The heading in List II is far more correct, viz. אויבך it occurs twice and in two different senses, since it denotes mist in the first instance and calamity in the second. At the end of this List the Massorite, moreover, adds אויבך it is defective in the first passage.

This pair form part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter א, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217 &c.

שני = § 364.

אויבך and Job, occurs four times. That is, the name of this patriarch has in four instances the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 78a, on Ezek. 14 20 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 241a, on Job 42 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 333b, on Job 35 16; (IV) the same MS., fol. 336a, on Job 42 8; (V) the printed Massorah on Job 35 16 and (VI) the same on Job 42 8.

שני = § 365.

אויבך and how, occurs three times at the beginning of a verse. In all the other fourteen instances where this interrogative adverb begins a verse it is without the prefix Vav.¹ Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 16b, on Isa. 36 9 which I printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 231b, on Job 21 34; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 112b, on 2 Kings 18 24; (IV) the same MS., fol. 133b, on Isa. 36 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 328b, on Job 21 34 and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

¹ Comp. 2 Sam. 1 25, 27; Isa. 14 12; Jerem. 2 28; 47 7; 48 14, 30; 49 25; 50 28; 51 41; Hos. 11 8; Obad. 6; Ps. 73 19; 137 4.

שני = § 366.

אויבך how, occurs seventeen times. That is to safeguard this interrogative adverb against the shorter form אויבך which occurs no fewer than forty-three times.¹ Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, ten in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 37a, on Jerem. 8 8 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 33b, on Judg. 20 3; (III) the same MS. fol. 109a, on Isa. 1 21; (IV) the same MS., fol. 348b, on Cant. 1 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 355b, on Lament. 1 1; (VI) Add. 21,160 fol. 254a, on Deut. 1 12; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Kings 6 15; (VIII) the same Codex on Isa. 1 21; (IX) the same Codex on Cant. 1 1; (X) Halle Oehlsh Ve-Oehlsh, Supplement, fol. 131b, and (XI) the printed Massorah on Lament. 1 1.

¹ Comp. Gen. 41 34; Judg. 16 15; 1 Sam. 16 2; 2 Sam. 1 5, 14, 19, 25, 27; 6 9; 1 Kings 12 6; 2 Kings 17 28; Isa. 14 4 12; 19 11; 48 11; Jerem. 2 23; 3 19; 9 6, 18; 36 17; 47 7; 48 14, 39, 39; 49 25; 50 23, 23; 51 41, 41; Ezek. 26 17; Hos. 11 8, 8; Obad. 5, 6; Micah 2 4; Zeph. 2 15; Ps. 11 1; 73 19; 137 4; Prov. 5 12; Ruth 3 18; Eccl. 4 11; 2 Chron. 10 6.

שני = § 367.

אויבך how, occurs four times, twice with the accent on the penultimate and twice on the ultimate. It is אויבך in Canticles and אויבך in Esther. In the fourth instance (Esther 8 6b) it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 262a, on Cant. 5 3 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 350a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS. fol. 362a, on Esther 8 6; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 337b, on Cant. 5 3; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 313a, on Esther 8 6 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Cant. 5 3.

שני = § 368.

אויבך and one ram, occurs twice in this section the sign thereof is innocent. That is, in the Section teating on the sacrifices to be offered on the respective festivals (Numb. 28 1 &c.) the phrase in question occurs twice, once with the sacrifices for the New Moon and once with the Passover. Hence the mnemonic sign אויבך innocent in which א is the initial of אויבך and נ of נאם. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 117b, on Numb. 28 11.

שני = § 369 a-c.

אויבך rams, is throughout the Pentateuch written without the second Yod, except in four instances where it is entirely plene In the Prophets and in the Hagiographa it is also entirely plene except in six passages where it is defective of the first Yod, and in three where it is defective of the second Yod and in one instance it is entirely defective, i. e. it is without both Yods.

To understand the import of these three Massorahs which simply exhibit three different recensions of the same Rubric, it is necessary to remark that the plural אויבך, without and with the prefixes occurs altogether seventy-five times in the Bible and that it is defective in fifty instances and plene in twenty-five. In the Pentateuch, where it occurs forty-three times, it is defective in no fewer than thirty-nine times and plene in four passages only.¹ Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional or plene orthography. In the Prophets and the Hagiographa, however, where it occurs thirty-one times, it is plene in twenty instances and defective in eleven.² Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the defective spelling which is the minority. It is also necessary to notice that the Massorah includes in the defectives in which the Yod is absent after the Aleph, five instances where according to our recension it is the plural of God.

Of Rubric 369a I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 67a, on Levit. 8 2; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 30b, on Gen. 32 15 and (III) the same MS., fol. 198a, on Numb. 7 17. Of Rubric 369b I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 257a, on 1 Chron. 29 21 which I have printed and (II) the same MS., fol. 265a, on 2 Chron. 13 9. Rubric 369a I have printed from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 89b, on Numb. 7 17.

These three recensions, however, exhibit a later development in which the originally separate and simple Rubrics are artificially combined. There is no doubt that at first the exceptional orthography in the Pentateuch formed a Rubric by itself. In this form of it we have four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 21a, on Gen. 32 15; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 96b, on Numb. 23 1; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 228b, on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 32 15. We have also the following six Lists which catalogue the exceptional orthography in the Prophets and Hagiographa: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 290a, on Ps. 29 1; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 363b, on Ps. 89 7; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Chron. 29 21; (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 29 1; (V) the same on Ps. 89 7 and (VI) the same on Job 41 17.

¹ For the defectives comp. Exod. 15 11; 25 5; 26 14; 29 1, 3; 35 7, 23; 36 19; 39 34; Levit. 23 18; Numb. 7 17, 23, 29, 36, 41, 47, 53, 59, 65, 71, 77, 83, 87, 88; 23 29; 29 13, 14, 17, 18, 20, 21, 23, 24, 26, 27, 29, 30, 32, 33.

² For the twenty plenes see 1 Sam. 15 22; 2 Kings 3 4; Isa. 1 11; 34 6; Jerem. 51 40; Ezek. 34 17; 39 18; 40 14, 38, 49; 41 1; 45 23; Micah 6 7; Ps. 66 16; 114 3, 6; Ezra 8 35; 1 Chron. 15 26; 2 Chron. 17 11; 29 32. It is to be remarked that though recensions § 363a and § 363b omit Ezek. 40 10 from the defectives it is not only included in § 363c, but is given in § 370 as one of the two instances where it is without the second Yod. I have, therefore, excluded it from the number of plenes.

שֵׁעַ = § 370.

שֵׁעַ is twice written שֵׁעַ without the second Yod in the Prophets. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 192b, on Ezek. 40 10. In the ancient Codex Orient. 4445 this Rubric occurs twice, once fol. 91a, on Levit. 8 2, and once fol. 143a, on Numb. 23 1. Here it is in both instances connected with the catalogue of the four plene passages in the Pentateuch and records all the three instances in which שֵׁעַ is without the second Yod.

שֵׁעַ = § 371.

שֵׁעַ among the gods, occurs twice once plene and once defective. That is in Exod. 15 11 it is without the Yod. Of this Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 143a, on Isa. 57 5 which I have printed and (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 27a, on the same passage. These two expressions form part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ט, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217 etc.

שֵׁעַ = § 372.

שֵׁעַ and rams, occurs seven times [four are] plene. That is with the prefix Vav and preceding the numeral to distinguish it from the instances where it is preceded by the numeral and is without the Vav (comp. 2 Chron. 29 21 with 1 Chron. 15 26). Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 157a, on 2 Chron. 13 9 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 166b, on 2 Chron. 29 21; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 71a, on Exod. 29 1; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 78a, on Levit. 23 18; (V) the same MS., fol. 342a, on 2 Chron. 29 21; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 118a, on Exod. 29 1 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 32 15.

שֵׁעַ = § 373.

שֵׁעַ like hinds, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 314b, on Habak. 3 19, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 306a, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 319.

שֵׁעַ = § 374.

שֵׁעַ by the hinds of, occurs twice and is plene. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 372a, on Cant. 3 5.

שֵׁעַ = § 375.

שֵׁעַ Ajalon, occurs nine times in the whole Scriptures. That is without and with the prefixes, since it is in two instances שֵׁעַ (Judg. 1 35; 12 12) and in one passage שֵׁעַ (Josh. 19 42). The word שֵׁעַ is as usual omitted in the heading. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 134b, on 1 Chron. 6 54 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 14a, on Josh. 19 42; (III) the same MS., fol. 15a, on Josh. 21 24; (IV) the same MS., fol. 28a, on Judg. 12 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 264a, on 2 Chron. 11 10; (VI) the same MS., fol. 274b, on 2 Chron. 28 18; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 133b, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 316.

שֵׁעַ = § 376—c.

שֵׁעַ Elon, plain, oak, is four times so written in the Prophets . . . and throughout the Pentateuch it is likewise so except in two instances . . . and in the other Scriptures it is שֵׁעַ. That is, in the Prophets it is in four instances without the Yod after the Aleph, in the Pentateuch it has Yod after the Aleph, but is without Vav after the Lamed, whilst in the other Scriptures it is entirely plene, having both Yod after the Aleph and Vav after the Lamed. The difficulty in explaining the import of these three recensions of the same Rubric is due to the fact that the Massorah in fixing the orthography of this expression, groups together the proper name Elon with the noun denoting oak and that it ignores the prefixes. It will, therefore, facilitate the deciphering of the several forms of this Rubric if we state that שֵׁעַ in its three different spellings without and with the prefixes, occurs altogether fourteen times in the Bible.¹ In the Pentateuch, where it occurs five times, it is once שֵׁעַ entirely plene (Gen. 36 2), three times שֵׁעַ without the Yod after the Lamed (Gen. 12 6; 46 14; Numb. 26 26) and once שֵׁעַ with the Yod, but without the Vav (Gen. 26 34). In the Prophets, however, where it occurs nine times, it is four times שֵׁעַ entirely plene (Josh. 19 43; Judg. 12 11, 12; 2 Kings 4 9) and five times שֵׁעַ without the Yod (Josh. 19 33; Judg. 4 11; 9 6, 37; 1 Sam. 10 3). In the Hagiographa the expression does not occur at all.

Accordingly § 376a of which I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 162b, on Judg. 9 6 which I have printed and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 25a, on the same passage wrongly omit Judg. 4 11. This omission is both against the orthography in the text of these very MSS. and against the early editions, as may be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. Moreover the remark וְלֹא אָרַי בְּרִי בְּמִיב is not quite correct, since one of the two instances in the Pentateuch is שֵׁעַ with Vav defective (Gen. 26 34) and the other is שֵׁעַ entirely plene. The last line which states that it is entirely plene refers to Josh. 19 43; Judg. 12 11, 12; 2 Kings 4 9.

Rubric 376b is from Add. 15,250, fol. 137a. The ב = 2 in the heading is a mistake for ב = 4. It simply catalogues the orthography of שֵׁעַ in the Prophets and also omits Judg. 4 11.

Of § 376c I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2343, fol. 58b, on Gen. 36 2 which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2343, fol. 43b, on the same passage. It will be seen that this List, too, omits Judg. 4 11. The last line וְלֹא אָרַי בְּרִי בְּמִיב is incorrect, since this expression does not occur in the Hagiographa. Judg. 9 66 should be 9 6. There are still two recensions of this Rubric to be noticed, inasmuch as they show most conclusively that the Massorah is not uniform, but that the different Schools of Massorites elaborated the same materials differently. The first List is from Add. 21,160, fol. 19b, on Gen. 36 34 and is as follows:

¹ Comp. Gen. 12 6; 26 34; 36 2; 46 14; Numb. 26 26; Josh. 19 33, 43; Judg. 4 11; 9 6, 37; 12 11, 12; 1 Sam. 10 3; 1 Kings 4 9.

Gen.	26 34	סיבן: ויהי עשו בן ארבעים אילן כתי'
"	36 2	עשו לקח את נשיו אילן כתי' לית כל בחודה
		שאר אורחי
Josh.	19 33	יהי נבולם כחלף
Judg.	9 6	עם אלק מצב
"	4 11	עד אלק בעצנים
1 Sam.	10 3	עד אלק תבו
		הלך אילן כתי' וכל שאר קריה אילן כתי'

It will be seen that this List includes Judg. 4 11 and omits Judg. 9 37, which is given in the three recensions which I have printed. The omission of either the one or the other instance is undoubtedly due to the similarity of the catchwords בצענים = Judg. 4 11 and פצנינו = Judg. 9 37. The second List is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 315, and is as follows:

		אילן כל וחס' סיכנתה
Gen.	26 34	יהי עשו בן ארבעים שנה אילן כתי'
Josh.	24 16	אז אילן וחת
Gen.	36 2	עשו לקח את נשיו אילן כתי' כל רבלי
Josh.	19 33	יהי נבולם כחלף
Judg.	9 6	אלק מצב
"	" 37	אלק בעצנים
1 Sam.	10 3	אלק תבו
		אלק נתבן חסי' י' לחוד
		ושאר אורי' וכל אילן כתי' חסי' דחסי'

This Rubric, which is manifestly a recension of the former one, is very corrupt as is often the case in Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah: (1) The catchwords אז אילן וחת which can only refer to Josh. 24 24 or to 1 Chron. 6 54 are incorrect, since the reading here is אילן and not אילן וחת and these passages are duly given in § 375 as exhibiting two of the nine instances where the Massoretic text reads אילן; (2) from the instances which are אילן entirely plene, are omitted Josh. 19 33; Judg. 12 11, 12; 2 Kings 4 9; (3) from those where it is אלק and where the Yod alone is absent Judg. 4 11 is omitted and (4) the concluding words ושאר אורי' וכל אילן כתי' חסי' דחסי' are hopelessly corrupt, for not only does this expression not occur in the Prophets, but אילן entirely defective is not to be found in the whole Bible.

שעין - § 377.

אילין Elim, is twice written so with Yod after the Aleph. In this form with the local He this proper name only occurs twice, but it is not quite correct as far as the Yod after the Aleph is concerned, since this is the orthography of אילת without and with the prefixes in all the other four passages where it occurs (comp. Exod. 16 1, 1; Numb. 33 9, 10) and it is only in the compound אילין Beer-Elim (Isa. 15 8) that it is without the Yod after the Aleph. This Rubric I have found only in the printed Massorah on Numb. 33 9.

שעיה - § 378.

אילת Eluth, occurs four times in this form. That is without and with the prefix it is four times with Pathach under the Lamed in contradistinction to אילת Eloth which also occurs four times (1 Kings 9 26; 2 Kings 16 6; 2 Chron. 8 17; 26 2) and which according to the primitive orthography was originally written אילת with Cholem over the Lamed. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed; (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 134a, on Deut. 2 8 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 124a, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 318.

שעית - § 379.

אילת hind, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 40b, on Jerem. 14 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 179a, on Ps. 22 1; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 244a, on Prov. 5 19; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 156a, on Jerem. 14 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 338a, on Prov. 5 19; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 350a, on Ps. 22 1; (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VIII) the same on Prov. 5 19.

ש"ט - § 380.

אילת terror, is in four instances defective of Yod in this form. That is, this noun with and without prefixes, but with suffixes is in four passages without the radical Yod. This Rubric I have found only in the printed Massorah on Job 9 34. It is remarkable that אילת Job 20 25 which is also defective is here omitted. For the variations in the orthography of this expression see the notes to my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

שפ"א - § 381.

אילת is twice plene. This Rubric which I have found in the printed Massorah only on Gen. 14 5 mixes up two different expressions, viz. אילת Emim the proper name of an ancient people and אילת which denotes terror. As the design of this Massorah is to fix the presence of the two Yods so as to guard it against the instances where it has one Yod only (comp. Deut. 2 10, 11) irrespective of the signification, the heading ought properly to be אילת, since in one instance it is אילת and in the other אילת, but as we have seen, אילת is often omitted. The printed Massorah has also another Rubric on this expression which is apparently in conflict with this Rubric. On Deut. 2 10 it states אילת that it occurs twice, that it is here defective and that the other instance is plene. Here however, the Massorah is strictly confined to the expression with the prefix He which really occurs twice, once with the two Yods or entirely plene (Gen. 14 5) and once without the first Yod or defective (Deut. 2 10) and which this Rubric catalogues.

שפ"ב - § 382.

אילת nothing, occurs twice once with Kametz and once with Pathach . . . and wherever it has the pausal accent Athnach or Soph-Pasuk it is likewise with Pathach [= Kametz]. This Rubric which only occurs in Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 264a, on Eccl. 3 19, I cannot explain. From the last line it manifestly refers to the exceptional vowel-point Kametz in אילת without its having the pausal accent Athnach or Soph-Pasuk. With this, however, neither the heading nor the expression אילת after the first catchword agrees, and indeed there is no second instance in the present Massoretic text where the adverb in question has Kametz without the pausal accent. Even if we took it to refer to the accent it would not explain the difficulty, since אילת which occurs five times has Tipcha in two passages (אילת Gen. 30 1; 2 Kings 2 10) and Sakeph-Gadol in three (אילת Exod. 32 32; Judg. 9 15, 20), whereas the companion accent in Eccl. 3 19 is אילת with Sakeph-Katon. I must, therefore, leave the explanation of this Rubric to other Massoretic experts.

שפ"ג - § 383.

אילת no, no. Two verses respectively begin with no and this adverb is repeated in the middle of the verse. That is, the adverb is repeated without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11 on Levit. 13 31 which I have printed and (II) the Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 327.

שפ"ד - § 384.

אילת no, no. Sixteen verses in which this adverb occurs twice in the middle of the verse. This distinguishes this Rubric from the former one where the first אילת begins the verse. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 71a, on Levit. 13 31 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 152a, on Jerem. 8 19; (III) the same MS., fol. 286b, on Ps. 14 1; (IV) the same MS., fol. 296b, on Ps. 53 2; (V) the same MS., fol. 324b, on Job 9 10; (VI) the same MS., fol. 346b, on Prov. 25 28; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 134a; (VIII) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 326; (IX) the printed Massorah on Isa. 40 16 and (X) the same on Jerem. 8 19.

It is remarkable that List I which I have printed omits Levit. 13 31, the very passage on which this Massorah is recorded and wrongly states in the heading that there are seventeen such instances. But אילת = 17 is manifestly a clerical error for אילת = 16. The last line of this Rubric catalogues the two instances which form a separate Rubric and constitute § 383. List II omits Ps. 53 4; List VI omits Ps. 14 3; List VII omits Jerem. 8 22, and Ps. 14 1, and List IX omits אילת = Ps. 53 2.

שפ"ה - § 385.

אילת no, no, no. In one verse this adverb occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 93a, on 1 Kings 18 26 and (II) the Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 330.

שפ"ו - § 386.

אילת no, no, and no. In one verse this adverb occurs three times, the first and second time it is without the prefix Vav and has it the third time. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 137a, on Isa. 42 22 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 145b, on Isa. 63 5 and (III) Paris Ochl. Ve-Ochl. § 329.

וְעַד - § 387.

וְעַד no, and no. In ten verses this adverb occurs first in the middle of the verse without the prefix Vav (וְ) and then again with it (וְ) and wherever it begins a verse it is likewise so. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 76b, on Exod. 32 18 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2343, fol. 86b, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 75a, on the same passage; (IV) Paris Ochl. Ve-Ochl. § 325 and (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 32 18. As is often the case, the printed Massorah is incorrect. It leaves out 2 Sam. 7 22 and erroneously gives as the ninth instance עַד וְעַד - Job 5 9 where it is וְעַד וְעַד which forms one of the passages in § 390. The remark at the end of this Rubric that it exclusively refers to the passages where the two adverbs occur in the middle of the verse and that in the passages where וְ begins a verse and is followed by this adverb it is also וְ is important, since there are no fewer than six such instances; comp. Isa. 5 27; 51 18; 59 4; Ps. 19 4; 86 8; Job 34 22. The two exceptional instances here referred to constitute § 383.

וְעַד - § 388a.

וְעַד. Five words respectively occur only once preceded by וְ not. That is, with this negative without the prefix Vav; in all other passages where words are combined with this negative it has not only the prefix Vav, but they occur more than once in this combination. Hence this Rubric excludes those words which respectively occur twice, once with וְ and once only with וְ. These are registered in the next Rubric. This Rubric I have only found in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 321, and as usual it is incorrect, since it includes וְעַד, as וְעַד occurs once only with וְ 1 Sam. 26 12 and, therefore, belongs to the List of words which severally occur twice, once combined with וְ and once with וְ. Accordingly there are four such instances only and the heading of this Rubric ought properly to be וְעַד וְעַד. The position of the fifth instance which is contrary to the order of the books, confirms the view that it is an addition by a later Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah and altered the number in the heading.

וְעַד - § 388b.

וְעַד no, and not. Thirteen words are severally preceded once by וְ and once by וְ. This Rubric I have only found in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 324 and it is as usual corrupt: (1) וְעַד precedes וְעַד; (2) וְעַד precedes וְעַד though the catchwords are correct; (3) וְעַד is omitted though the catchword is given, whilst וְעַד has no catchword, and (4) וְעַד 1 Kings 22 17 ought to be וְעַד 2 Chron. 18 16. With the exception of the last mistake I corrected the text. Since I printed it I found this Rubric in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 29a, on Gen. 39 23. In this early form the same thirteen pairs are given, but without any heading, without catchwords and without fixing the number of the pairs. Though the mistakes in the order which are found in the printed Massorah do not occur in this List, yet וְעַד is here too a clerical error for וְעַד, and the pair וְעַד Exod. 22 9 and וְעַד 1 Sam. 26 12 which are wanted in Jacob b. Obayim's Rubric are omitted.

וְעַד - § 389.

וְעַד is there not? occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, and which is from Add. 15,250, fol. 140b, on Judg. 14 8 is incorrect. This interrogative adverb occurs five times, and 2 Kings 3 11; Jerem. 49 7 are omitted.

וְעַד - § 390.

וְעַד and not, not. Six verses wherein וְעַד with the prefix Vav occurs first and then וְעַד without this prefix. As the reverse is normally the case (vide supra, § 387) the Massorah safeguards the exceptional instances. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 135b, on Isa. 45 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 319b, on Ps. 142 5; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 75a, on Exod. 32 18 where it is contrasted with the normal passages in § 387; (IV) Paris Ochl. Ve-Ochl. § 333 and (V) the printed Massorah on Judg. 18 28. In my printed text Judg. 8 7 should be 18 7.

וְעַד - § 391.

וְעַד and not, not and not. In one verse where this adverb occurs three times it is first with the prefix Vav, then without it and then again with it. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 93a, on 1 Kings 18 26.

וְעַד - § 392.

וְעַד and not, and not. Thirteen verses in which וְעַד with the prefix Vav occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 50b, on 1 Sam. 22 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 98a, on 1 Kings 18 26; (III) the same MS., fol. 137a, on Isa. 42 22; (IV) the same MS., fol. 145b, on Isa. 63 5; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 196b, on 1 Kings 18 26; (VI) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl., Supplement, fol. 131a; (VII) Paris Ochl. Ve-Ochl. § 323 and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 327.

וְעַד - § 393.

וְעַד and not, and not, not. In one verse where this negative occurs three times it is with the prefix Vav the first and second time and without it the third time. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 98a, on 1 Kings 18 26 which I have printed and (II) Paris Ochl. Ve-Ochl. § 331.

וְעַד - § 394.

וְעַד and not, and not, and not. Three verses in which this negative with the prefix Vav occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 60b, on 1 Sam. 22 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 54a, on 1 Sam. 26 12; (III) the same MS., fol. 93a, on 1 Kings 18 29; (IV) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 193a, on 1 Sam. 26 12; (V) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 233a, on 1 Kings 18 29; (VI) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 120a, on Hag. 1 6; (VII) Paris Ochl. Ve-Ochl. § 332 and (VIII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 26 12.

וְעַד - § 395.

וְעַד and not. Eight words respectively occur only once preceded by וְ. That is, with this negative with the prefix Vav; in all other passages where they occur and are preceded by this negative it is וְ without the prefix Vav. This Massorah, therefore, differs from § 388 and registers the reverse instances of those catalogued in § 387. This Rubric I have only found in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 322, and as usual it is incorrect. וְעַד which is unique (Ps. 142 5) and which in all other passages is combined with וְ (comp. 1 Sam. 28 1; 2 Sam. 18 18; 21 4; Isa. 27 4; Mal. 1 10; Eccl. 12 1) is omitted, whilst וְעַד (Hos. 4 1) is inserted, though וְעַד without the prefix Vav does not occur.

וְעַד - § 396.

וְעַד and not. Sixteen words are severally always preceded by וְ and never by וְ. The design of this Rubric is to tabulate those words only which respectively occur more than once in combination with this negative with the prefix Vav, but never with this negative without the Vav. This is evident from the fact that there are no fewer than seventy-one words which severally occur once preceded by וְ, and though they are never in combination with וְ they are excluded from this Rubric.

This Rubric I have only found in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 331, and as usual it is corrupt: (1) It states in the heading that there are seventeen (יז) such instances and only enumerates sixteen; (2) it includes וְעַד contrary to the definition in the heading, since וְעַד occurs in Exod. 33 18; (3) it omits five instances which belong to it, viz. וְעַד Deut. 28 32; Neh. 5 5; וְעַד Isa. 13 14; Jerem. 49 5; Nah. 3 18; וְעַד Isa. 22 22; Jerem. 13 19; וְעַד 1 Sam. 2 2; Isa. 44 8, and וְעַד Isa. 2 7, 7; Nah. 2 10; 3 4, 9 which never occur in combination with וְ and (4) it includes three instances which do not belong to this Rubric, viz. וְעַד Jerem. 9 21; וְעַד Hos. 3 4, and וְעַד Jerem. 14 16 which severally occur once only and hence are against the import of this Massorah. Accordingly if the four incorrect instances are cancelled and the five right passages are substituted, we obtain sixteen such combinations which undoubtedly was stated in the original heading and before an ignorant scribe who found that this Rubric wanted five instances inserted passages which are in conflict with the import of this Massorah.

וְאִין שָׁוִי = § 397.

וְאִין אִישׁ and no man, occurs seven times. That is to distinguish it from אִישׁ without the prefix Vav which occurs six times (comp. Gen. 31 50; Exod. 2 12; Isa. 59 16; 63 3; Jerem. 8 6; 12 11). Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 170a, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 92b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 140b, on Isa. 50 2; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 41b, on Gen. 39 11; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 356, which omits Isa. 57 1. In the heading ו is a misprint for י in the Rubric which I have printed.

וְאִין לֹאֵל = § 398.

וְאִין לֹאֵל and there is no power, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 423a, on Neh. 5 5.

וְאִין שָׁמַיִם = § 399.

וְאִין אֱלֹהִים and no God, occurs three times. That is, with the Vav prefix before the negative to distinguish it from the other nine passages where this combination occurs and where the negative is without the prefix Vav (comp. 2 Kings 1 3, 6, 16; 5 15; Isa. 44 6; 45 5; Ps. 10 4; 14 1; 53 2). Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 134a, on Deut. 32 39 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 141b, on 1 Chron. 17 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 61b, on 2 Sam. 7 22; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 123b, on Deut. 32 39; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 153, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 446.

וְאִין תָּה = § 400.

וְאִין בָּרֵם and not in them, occurs twice. In the other seven passages where this combination occurs, the negative is without the prefix Vav (comp. 1 Sam. 30 4; Jerem. 5 13; Ezek. 37 8; Prov. 8 8; Cant. 4 2; 6 6; Dan. 1 4). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 298a, on Jerem. 42 2 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 44 2.

וְאִין כֹּל = § 401.

וְאִין כֹּל and not all or and nothing at all, occurs twice in this combination in the Scriptures. In the other two instances where it occurs, the negative is without the prefix Vav (comp. Numb. 11 6; 2 Sam. 12 3). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 263a, on Eccl. 1 9 and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 302a, on the same passage.

וְאִין תִּיב = § 402.

וְאִין פְּסוּם and no covering, occurs twice. This is one of the expressions which severally are combined with וְאִין and never with אִין (vide supra, § 396). The Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 331b, on Job 26 6.

וְאִין תִּינ = § 403.

וְאִין לוֹ and not to him, occurs twice. That is to distinguish it from the twenty-one instances where this combination occurs and where the negative is without the prefix Vav (comp. Exod. 22 1, 2; Levit. 11 10, 12; Numb. 27 4, 8, 9, 10; 35 27; Deut. 12 12; 14 10, 27, 29; 25 5; Judg. 11 34; Isa. 8 20; 55 1; Jerem. 49 1; Hos. 8 7; Amos 3 4; Eccl. 4 8). This Rubric I have only found in the printed Massorah on Dan. 9 26.

וְאִין לָנוּ = § 404.

וְאִין לָנוּ and not for us, occurs twice. In the third passage where this combination occurs, the negative is without the prefix Vav (comp. 2 Sam. 20 1). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 71b, on 2 Sam. 21 4.

וְאִין לָהֶם = § 405.

וְאִין לָהֶם and not to them, occurs three times in this combination in the Scriptures. In the other eleven passages where this combination occurs, the negative is without the prefix Vav (comp. Levit. 25 31; Numb. 27 17; Judg. 18 7, 28; 1 Kings 22 17; Jerem. 8 17; 39 10; Ezek. 38 11; Lament. 4 4; Eccl. 9 6; 2 Chron. 35 15). Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 63b, on Jerem. 46 23 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 399b, on Eccl. 1 1; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 303b, on the same passage;

(IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 46 23.

וְאִין חֵסֶד = § 406.

וְאִין חֵסֶד and no number, occurs four times. In the other eleven passages where this combination occurs the negative is without the prefix Vav (comp. Gen. 41 49; Judg. 6 5; 7 12; Jerem. 2 32; Ps. 40 13; 147 5; Job 5 9; 9 10; 21 33; Cant. 6 8; 1 Chron. 22 16). Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 107b, on Joel 1 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 207b, on Ps. 105 34; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 297b, on Joel 1 6; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ps. 104 23; (V) the same Codex on Ps. 105 34; (VI) the printed Massorah on Joel 1 6 and (VII) the same on Ps. 105 34.

וְאִין שֶׁר = § 407.

וְאִין שֶׁר and no more, occurs twice . . . and throughout Isaiah it is likewise so. The design of this Rubric is twofold. It records the fact that this combination is to be found twice only in the Scriptures outside Isaiah, and to safeguard it against the six instances in the Bible where this combination occurs without the prefix Vav (comp. Deut. 4 35, 39; 1 Kings 8 60; 2 Kings 4 6; Jerem. 48 2; Ps. 74 9). The remark at the end of this Rubric that it occurs likewise throughout Isaiah is due to the artificial construction of this Massorah and must not be understood that the instances in question are to be found in sundry parts of this book. This combination, which occurs seven times in Isaiah, is restricted to the narrow limit of two chapters (comp. 45 5, 6, 14, 18, 21, 22; 46 9). This Rubric only occurs in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ש, § 66.

וְאִין שֶׁר = § 408.

וְאִין שֶׁר and no helper, occurs six times in the Scriptures. That is with the prefix Vav, the only other instance where this combination occurs it is without the prefix (comp. Ps. 22 12). Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, fol. 268a, on Lament. 1 7 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 108b, on 2 Kings 14 26; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 402a, on Lament. 1 7 and (IV) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 14 26.

וְאִין שָׁוִי = § 409.

וְאִין שָׁוִי and none answered, occurs five times. As this combination does not occur without the prefix Vav it is part of § 396 which catalogues the words which are always preceded by וְאִין and never by אִין. This Rubric I have only found in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ש, § 288.

וְאִין תִּי = § 410.

וְאִין קֵץ and no end, occurs five times in this combination in the Scriptures. As it never occurs without the prefix Vav, this combination should be part of § 396 which enumerates the words which are always preceded by וְאִין and never by אִין. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 117b, on Nah. 2 10 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 213a, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah on Isa. 2 7.

וְאִין שְׁלוֹם = § 411.

וְאִין שְׁלוֹם and no peace, occurs five times in the Scriptures. In the other six passages where this combination occurs the negative has the prefix Vav (comp. Isa. 48 22; 57 21; Jerem. 12 12; Zech. 8 10; Ps. 38 4; 2 Chron. 15 5). Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 35b, on Jerem. 6 14 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 151a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 152b, on Jerem. 8 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 166a, on Jerem. 30 5 and (V) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 8 11.

וְאִין לֹא = § 412.

וְאִין לֹא to no, occurs eight times. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 144a, on 1 Chron. 22 4 which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 134a, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ל, § 332.

וְאִין אֲנִי = § 413.

וְאִין אֲנִי and I am not, occurs three times. In the other nine passages where this adverb with the suffix first person singular occurs it is without the prefix Vav (comp. Exod. 5 10; Deut. 1 43; 4 22; Isa. 1 15; Jerem. 7 16; 11 14; 12 12, 12; 37 14). The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptions. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. 185a, on Ps. 39 14 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 324a, on Job 7 21 and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

וְיִיָּד = § 414.

וְיִיָּד and he is not, occurs twelve times. As this negative with the suffix third person singular occurs no fewer than thirty-six times without the prefix Vav, the Massorah here safeguards the instances in which it is with the prefix. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 4b, on Gen. 5 24 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 66a, on Jerem. 50 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 126a, on Isa. 19 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 322b, on Job 3 21; (V) the same MS., fol. 329a, on Job 23 8; (VI) the same MS., fol. 344b, on Prov. 23 5; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 222b, on Isa. 19 7; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 327a, on Job 23 8; (IX) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Supplement, fol. 131b, and (X) the printed Massorah on Job 27 19. List I which I have printed omits Ps. 103 16 though it distinctly states in the heading that it occurs twelve times. List II, however, which is in the same MS. correctly gives all the twelve instances and this is confirmed by all the other Lists of this Rubric.

1 Comp. Gen. 30 33; 31 2, 5; 37 30; 39 9; 42 18, 32, 36, 36; 44 26, 30, 34; Exod. 3 2; Levit. 11 4; 13 34; Deut. 21 18, 20; 29 14; Judg. 3 23; 1 Sam. 11 7; 2 Sam. 3 22; 1 Kings 20 40; Isa. 17 14; Jerem. 31 15; 38 4; 44 16; Ps. 37 36; Job 8 22; Eccl. 1 7; 5 11; 8 7, 18, 16; 9 2; Esther 5 13; 2 Chron. 18 7.

וְיִיָּד = § 415.

וְיִיָּד and from whence, occurs five times. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 148b, on Josh. 9 8 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 7a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 114b, on 2 Kings 20 14 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Josh. 9 8.

וְיִיָּד = § 416.

וְיִיָּד the Ephah, is twice defective. This expression which occurs fifteen times is defective in these two instances only. Hence the Massorah here safeguards the abnormal orthography. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 142b, on Levit. 5 11; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (III) the same Codex on Levit. 6 18; (IV) Cambridge Add. 465 on Levit. 5 11 and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

וְיִיָּד = § 417.

וְיִיָּד where, what or how, is ten times so written. That is, according to the Massorah with He at the end. Of this Rubric I collated sixteen Lists, thirteen in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 187b, on 1 Sam. 19 22 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 259b, on Ruth 2 19; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 24b, on Judg. 8 18; (IV) the same MS., fol. 48b, on 1 Sam. 19 22; (V) the same MS., fol. 62a, on 2 Sam. 9 4; (VI) the same MS., fol. 171b, on Jerem. 36 19; (VII) the same MS., fol. 283a, on Ruth 2 19; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 334a, on Job 38 4; (IX) Add. 15,251, fol. 32b, on Gen. 37 16; (X) the same MS., fol. 162b, on 1 Sam. 19 22; (XI) the same MS., fol. 173a, on 2 Sam. 9 4; (XII) Add. 21,160, fol. 38a, on Gen. 37 16; (XIII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Supplement, fol. 130b; (XIV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 37 16; (XV) the same on 2 Sam. 9 4 and (XVI) the same on Job 38 4.

To understand this Rubric both in its simple form and in its developments which some of the Lists disclose, it is necessary to remark that later Massorites grouped together וְיִיָּד the interrogative and וְיִיָּד the adverb with its defective spelling וְיִיָּד. Hence the sixteen Lists exhibit two recensions of this Massorah. Lists I, II, VII, XIII and XV give the original recension which simply catalogues the ten passages where the interrogative וְיִיָּד occurs, whilst Lists III, IV, V, VI, VIII, IX, XI and XIV not only append to it the four passages in which the adverb וְיִיָּד is defective and which in some MSS. rightly form a separate Rubric (vide infra, § 1033), but add that in all the other parts of the Scriptures it is spelled וְיִיָּד with an Alaph at the end.

In Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah List XVI, only three passages are given where it is וְיִיָּד; Job 24 25 is omitted though the heading correctly states that there are four such instances.

וְיִיָּד = § 418.

וְיִיָּד a man, begins a verse twelve times in the Scriptures, twice in Job and ten times in the Pentateuch. To understand this Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only on Job 1 1, it is necessary to remark that where this expression begins a verse it has in the majority of cases the prefix Vav. In the Pentateuch, where it occurs thirty-nine times, it is with Vav in twenty-nine instances¹ and in ten only is it without this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. Joshua, Isaiah, Ecclesiastes and Esther wherein it severally occurs once at the beginning of a verse, as well as the Psalter in which it occurs twice and Proverbs where it occurs eleven times at the beginning of a verse, require no safeguarding since וְיִיָּד never begins a verse in these books. In Job, however, where it occurs five times, it is twice only without the prefix and three times with it. Hence the minority is recorded. The heading of this Rubric in my edition should be וְיִיָּד יִיָּד בְּרִשְׁתּוֹ וְיִיָּד וְיִיָּד as it is in the editio princeps. The two instances in Job are given in a separate Rubric in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 335b, on Job 41 9.

¹ Comp. וְיִיָּד at the beginning a verse in Exod. 34 3; Levit. 13 29, 38, 40; 15 5, 16; 17 10, 13; 19 20; 20 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 17, 18, 20, 21, 27; 22 14, 21; 24 17, 19; 25 26, 29; 27 14; Numb. 5 10; 19 20. The instances in which וְיִיָּד begins a verse apart from the Pentateuch and Job are Josh. 23 10; Isa. 41 6; Jerem. 9 3; Ps. 92 7; 140 12; Prov. 15 18; 16 27, 28, 29; 18 24; 21 17; 28 20; 29 1, 3, 9, 22; Eccl. 6 2; Esther 2 5.

וְיִיָּד = § 419.

וְיִיָּד is in two instances in the Pentateuch rendered by וְיִיָּד. This Rubric, which is from Cambridge Add. 1174, on Gen. 13 16 I cannot explain.

וְיִיָּד = § 420.

וְיִיָּד a man. Five words respectively occur twice followed by וְיִיָּד a man. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, one in MSS. and three printed: (I) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 31, which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 243; (III) the printed Massorah on Exod. 34 3 and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalia, letter א, § 344. The printed Massorah as usual is corrupt and misleading. List III states in the heading that there are six such pairs and enumerates four and a half. It omits the fellow to the second pair, viz. וְיִיָּד Jerem. 26 20 and places the fellow of the first pair, viz. וְיִיָּד Ruth 1 1 after the half of the second pair. List IV contains three additional pairs by a later Massorite which are against the scope of this Rubric. The first pair are וְיִיָּד וְיִיָּד which occurs twice (Levit. 17 10, 13), but as וְיִיָּד is the same as וְיִיָּד it cannot properly be reckoned among the words which are followed by וְיִיָּד. The second pair which consist of וְיִיָּד Prov. 22 24 and וְיִיָּד Deut. 22 24 cannot be admitted as a proper pair, since the fellow is וְיִיָּד with the article, whilst the third pair which consist of וְיִיָּד Deut. 20 6, 7 is against the import of this Rubric, the design of which is to tabulate וְיִיָּד with the article. Lists I and II, therefore, exhibit the original and correct form of this Massorah.

וְיִיָּד = § 421.

וְיִיָּד a man's brother, occurs times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 9 5.

וְיִיָּד = § 422.

וְיִיָּד a man as his brother [or one as the other], occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 198a, on Ezek. 47 14 which I have printed and (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 102a, on the same passage.

וְיִיָּד = § 423.

וְיִיָּד a man and a man, occurs twice. That is, וְיִיָּד followed by this expression with the prefix Vav. In 2 Sam. 10 6 the Authorised Version takes וְיִיָּד as part of a proper name, i. e. Ish tob, whilst the Revised Version renders it and the man of Tob. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 62b, on 2 Sam. 10 6 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

וְיִיָּד = § 424.

וְיִיָּד a man of God, occurs six times in this combination in the Scriptures [the mnemonic sign for these six passages is] and an honourable man came from Judah and he the holy one answered truthfully. As normally אֱלֹהִים has the article in this combination, which occurs no fewer than sixty-one times,¹ the Massorah here safeguards the six abnormal passages. The necessity for safeguarding these abnormal passages is due to the variations which obtained in the different Codices as will be seen from the notes on 1 Sam. 2 27; 1 Kings 13 14 &c. in my edition of the Bible. The sign is as usual made up of six words which severally occur in the respective six passages where this phrase is to be found. The unusual part about it is that it is in Hebrew. These signs as a rule are in Chaldee. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 174 a, on 1 Sam. 2 27 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 88 a, on 1 Kings 13 1; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 155 a, on 1 Sam. 9 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 193 b, on 1 Kings 13 1; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 153, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 388.

¹ Comp. אֱלֹהִים Deut. 23 1; Josh. 14 6; Judg. 13 6, 9; 1 Sam. 9 10; 1 Kings 12 22; 13 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 11, 12, 14, 14, 21, 26, 29, 31; 17 18; 20 28; 2 Kings 1 9, 11, 12, 13; 4 16, 21, 22, 25, 27, 27, 40; 5 8, 14, 15, 20; 6 6, 9, 10, 16; 7 2, 17, 18, 19; 8 2, 4, 7, 8, 11; 13 19; 23 16, 17; Jerem. 25 4; Ps. 90 1; Ezra 3 2; Neh. 12 24, 36; 1 Chron. 23 14; 2 Chron. 8 14; 11 2; 25 9; 30 16. Once אֱלֹהִים 1 Chron. 25 7, and five times אֱלֹהִים 1 Sam. 9 7 8; 2 Kings 4 7, 42; 2 Chron. 25 9.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה = § 425 a.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה Eleven persons are respectively called man of God. With the exception of about twenty passages where the name of the person thus distinguished is not quite certain, all the instances in which this appellation occurs are distributed very unevenly between the eleven patriarchs and prophets specified in this Rubric. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 229 a, on 1 Kings 13 21 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 500 b, on 2 Chron. 25 7; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 152, fol. 62 a; (IV) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 13 22 and (V) Yalkut Shimoni on 1 Sam. 2 27, § א x Vol. II, fol. 14 b, Frankfurt 1709. List V is the only one which gives some catchwords to the passages where they are so designated.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה = § 425 b.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה Eight men are called men of God. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 307 a, on Ps. 90 1. It is another recension of the preceding Rubric and evidently proceeds from a Massoretic School which registered eight such honoured men, omitting Elijah, Eliab and Micah.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה = § 426.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה every man and his household, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 54 a, on 1 Sam. 27 3 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 68 a, on Exod. 1 1, and (III) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 27 3.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה = § 427.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה footmen, occurs four times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 142 b, on 1 Chron. 19 18.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה = § 428.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה man with him, occurs four times. The third passage, viz. אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה - 1 Sam. 27 2 is incorrect since it is here אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה. The design of this Rubric is probably to guard this phrase against the construction אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה (Gen. 45 1). I have mislaid the reference to the MS. from which this Rubric is taken.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה = § 429.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה every man under his vine, occurs three times. That is to guard this phrase against the one which is without אֵשׁ after אֵשׁ which also occurs twice (2 Kings 18 31; Isa. 36 16). The second line is manifestly a corrupt repetition of the third since the phrase occurs twice only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 226 b, on 1 Kings 5 5.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה = § 430.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה in or against a man, occurs thirteen times. That is, with Sheva under the prefix Beth in contradistinction to אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה with Kametz which is tabulated in the next Rubric. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 134 a, on Deut. 19 15.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה = § 431.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה occurs eight times. That is, with Kametz under the Beth. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 16 a, on Gen. 26 11 which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, II, § 81, and (III) the printed Massorah on Levit. 20 3. It will be seen that whilst one School of Massorites safeguarded the instances in which אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה is with Sheva, the other School fixed the passages in which it is with Kametz.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה = § 432.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה has twice Pathach in the Scriptures, once it is defective and once plene. There are no fewer than three different Massorahs on the orthography and import of the expression אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה with and without the prefix He. The first is in the Rubric before us. In it the Massorah emphasises the fact that in these two instances where אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה occurs with the interrogative He it is with Pathach instead of אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה with Chateph-Pathach. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 296 a, on Neh. 6 11 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 206 a, on 2 Sam. 14 19 where this Massorah is not only wrongly placed, but the heading אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה is a clerical error for אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה, as is evident from the mnemonic sign אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה = Micah 6 10; Neh. 6 11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 382 b, on Neh. 6 11; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 424 a, on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 350.

As אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה is defective in one only of the two passages which constitute the former Massorah and as it occurs again in this abnormal form in Samuel, the second Massorah deals exclusively with the defective orthography and is as follows:

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה ב' ה' ה' ה' ה' ה'
2 Sam. 14 19
Micah 6 10

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 66 a, on 2 Sam. 14 19 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 116 b, on Micah 6 10 and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 172 a, on 2 Sam. 14 49.

The third Massorah, which is as follows, is the most important:

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה ב' ה' ה' ה' ה' ה'
Micah 6 10
Prov. 14 19
2 Sam. 14 19

This Rubric, therefore, which is preserved in the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 14 19 emphatically declares that the two abnormal forms אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה as well as the normal אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה in Prov. 14 19 are simply the textual reading or Kethiv and that the Sevir or alternative reading in all these three passages is אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה = § 433.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה and the man, occurs three times. This Rubric, which is from Add. 15,251, fol. 117 b, on Deut. 24 11 is perfectly unintelligible since אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה occurs no fewer than seventeen times. The printed Massorah Finalis which has also this Rubric under letter א, § 341, heads it אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה it occurs three times with the accent and gives the same three passages. But this is equally inexplicable since it has a different accent in each of three passages, and though אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה (Numb. 9 13) with Telisha Ketanah does not occur again אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה (Deut. 24 11) with Rebia occurs also in 1 Sam. 4 13; 2 Kings 5 1, and אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה (Judg. 17 5) is also to be found in 1 Sam. 4 14; 9 6; Dan. 9 21. It may be that the design of this Massorah is to register the three instances in which the combination אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה occurs in the Bible and that the catchwords אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה (Judg. 17 5) are a clerical error for אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה Deut. 17 12 which is the third passage where this phrase occurs.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה = § 434.

אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה and a man man [i. e. whatsoever man], occurs twice in this combination. That is אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה with the prefix Vav followed by this expression without it, being the reverse of the three instances registered in § 428. The normal combination in these phrases is simply אֵשׁ תְּהִיָּה without the prefix Vav (comp. Levit. 17 3, 8; 20 2, 2; 22 4, 18 &c.). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174, on Levit. 17 10 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 75a; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 102b; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 92b, and (V) Orient. 4445, fol. 103a, all on the same passage. With the exception of the first List, all the others have in the heading וְיָשָׁב בְּאֶרֶץ מִצְרָיִם it occurs twice in this combination and with the same accents.

תָּלִיָּה = § 435.

וְיָשָׁב אִישׁ אֶל אֶרֶץ מִצְרָיִם and every man to his own country, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 219b, on Isa. 13 14.

תָּלִיָּה = § 436.

וְיָשָׁב אִישׁ יְהוּדָה and the man of Judah, occurs in this combination six times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 215a, on 2 Sam. 24 9 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 41b, on 1 Sam. 11 8; (III) the same MS., fol. 74a, on 2 Sam. 24 9; (IV) the same MS., fol. 168b, on Jerem. 32 32; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 156a, on 1 Sam. 11 8 and (VI) the printed Massorah Jerem. 32 32.

תָּלִיָּה = § 437.

וְיָשָׁב אִישׁ מִלְחָמָה and a man of war, occurs twice in this combination. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 184a, on 1 Sam. 16 18.

תָּלִיָּה = § 438.

כָּאִישׁ as a man, occurs twenty times with Sheva. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated twenty-one Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 184b, on Pa. 38 15 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 170b, on Judg. 20 11; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 297a, on Neh. 8 1; (IV) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 14 9; (V) the same Codex on Zech. 4 1; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 142a, on Judg. 6 16; (VII) the same MS., fol. 242a, on Jerem. 6 23; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 293a, on Prov. 24 34; (IX) the same MS., fol. 416b, on Ezra 3 1; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 210b, on Numb. 14 15; (XI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah 11, § 31, and no fewer than ten Lists in Arund. Orient. 16, viz. fol. 22b, on Judg. 6 16; fol. 137a, on Isa. 42 18; fol. 147a, on Isa. 66 13; fol. 156a, on Jerem. 14 9; fol. 161a, on Jerem. 23 9; fol. 218a, on Zech. 4 1; fol. 293a, on Pa. 38 15; fol. 338a, on Prov. 6 11; fol. 373b, on Ezra 3 1 and fol. 384a, on Neh. 8 1.

There are several points of interest attached to this Rubric: (I) the Sheva under the Caph is called in the heading of List I חֶטֶף Chateph; (II) in List V which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah it is called רֶמֶי רֶמֶי Rophi and (III) List I describes the reading כָּאִישׁ in Judg. 20 11 as that of certain Codices. What the alternative was here it is impossible to say as none of the other Lists remark upon it. It is remarkable that the printed Massorah on Pa. 38 15 refers to Pericope בְּרֵעֵתְךָ for this Rubric¹ and the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 342, to Pericope שָׁמָּה where they say this Rubric is given,² but it occurs nowhere in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah.

1 כָּאִישׁ כִּי בִקְרָא וְשֵׁם בְּנֵסֵר בְּמִדְרַת בְּרֵעֵתְךָ.
2 כָּאִישׁ כִּי וְשֵׁם בְּנֵסֵר בְּמִדְרַת שָׁמָּה לָךְ.

תָּלִיָּה = § 439.

כָּאִישׁ אֶחָד as one man, occurs nine times in the Scriptures. I have mislaid the reference to the MS. from which this Rubric is taken. The note which I find is on Add. 15,250, fol. 81b, on Numb. 14 15. But the Rubric here is as follows: אֶחָד אֶחָד בִּי בִקְרָא and the first two instances alone are given. In the printed Massorah this Rubric does not occur.

תָּלִיָּה = § 440.

וְיָשָׁב לְאִישׁ to the man, occurs thirty-two times and once it is with the prefix Vav. The design of this Rubric is to safeguard these thirty-two instances as well as the one instance with the prefix Vav with Kametz under the Lamed so as not to be confused with וְיָשָׁב with Sheva under the Lamed which occurs no fewer than sixty times.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated eleven Lists, ten in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 29a, on Gen. 43 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 48a, on Jerem. 26 11; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 33b, on Gen. 43 11; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 26 11; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 30b, on Judg. 16 19; (VI) the same MS., fol. 40a, on 1 Sam. 9 7; (VII) the same MS., fol. 63b, on 2 Sam. 12 4; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 283b, on Ruth. 3 3; (IX) the same MS., fol. 343b, on Prov. 20 8; (X) Halle Ochliah Ye-Ochliah II, § 31, and (XI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 340.

The statement in the heading of List III that there are thirty-three such instances with Kametz under the Lamed includes the passage in Judg. 19 24 where it is וְיָשָׁב the one instance with the prefix Vav. List IV notices the thirty-two instances without וְיָשָׁב, but omits by a clerical oversight Jerem. 26 16.

תָּלִיָּה = § 441.

וְיָשָׁב לְאִישׁ and to a man, occurs three times. That is, to distinguish it from וְיָשָׁב which occurs once (comp. § 400). Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 74a, on Levit. 15 33 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 197b, on 2 Sam. 2 15; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 70b, on Ezek. 1 23; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 58a, on 2 Sam. 2 15; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 74a, on Levit. 15 33; (VI) the same MS., fol. 268b, on Ezek. 1 23; (VII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 15 33 and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 353. All these Lists include 2 Sam. 2 15 though it is here part of the proper name Ish-boisheth.

תָּלִיָּה = § 442a-b.

וְיָשָׁב לְאִישׁ from man, occurs three times according to the Westerns. . . . according to the Easterns it is וְיָשָׁב in Samuel both in the Kethiv and Keri. This Rubric I have found only in Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 41b, on Exod. 11 7. Of the second recension I have collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 200b, on 2 Sam. 6 19 where alone the mnemonic sign occurs; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 158a, on 2 Chron. 15 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 60b, on 2 Sam. 6 19; (IV) Orient. 2348, fol. 73b; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 64a; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 47a, and (VII) the printed Massorah, all on Exod. 11 7.

תָּלִיָּה = § 443.

וְיָשָׁב לְאִישׁ my husband, occurs eight times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 65b, on 2 Sam. 14 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 99b, on 2 Kings 4 1; (III) the same MS., fol. 200a, on Hos. 2 9; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 175b, on 2 Sam. 14 5; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, fol. 95a, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 29 32.

תָּלִיָּה = § 444.

וְיָשָׁב לְאִישׁ thy husband, occurs six times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 87b, on Numb. 5 20 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Judg. 14 15. The latter states at the end of the List that it occurs once with the prefix Lamed (2 Kings 4 26).

תָּלִיָּה = § 445.

וְיָשָׁב לְאִישׁ her husband, occurs twenty-five times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 9b, on Gen. 16 3 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 160a, on Numb. 30 11; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 210b, on 2 Sam. 11 26 and (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 241a, on the same passage.

תָּלִיָּה = § 446.

וְיָשָׁב לְאִישׁ and her husband, occurs four times. This Rubric I have found only in the printed Massorah on Numb. 30 14.

תָּלִיָּה = § 447.

אִישִׁים men, occurs three times. That is the plural of אִישׁ. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 25b, on Isa. 53 3 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 219b, on Ps. 141 4; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 245a, on Prov. 8 4; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 141b, on Isa. 53 3; (V) the same MS., fol. 319b, on Ps. 141 4; (VI) the printed Massorah on Isa. 53 3 and (VII) the same on Prov. 8 4 which List alone has the mnemonic sign. Most of the Lists have in the heading וְיָשָׁב אִישׁ אִישׁ occurs three times and plene.

תָּלִיָּה = § 448.

וְיָשָׁב לְאִישׁ as the manikin, or apple [i. e. of the eye], occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 177b, on Pa. 17 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 245a, on Prov. 7 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 287a, on Ps. 17 8; (IV) the same MS., fol. 338b, on Prov. 7 2; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 349a, on

Ps. 17 8 and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Most of the Lists have in the heading 'three times and plene.

חמ"ט = § 449.

חמ"ט Ithiel without and with the prefix Lamed, occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 386b, on Neh. 11 7. The printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 360, refers to the Massorah on Neh. 11 7 where it states that this Rubric is given, but as it is not unfrequently the case in such references, the Rubric is not to be found.

Comp. איתחאל ב' וספי' בפר' בנחמיה סימן יא.

ח"י = § 450.

ח"י Wherever Etham occurs it is always without Yod except in one instance. This is one of those artificial Massorahs which group together homonyms for the purpose of pointing out variations in their orthography. ח"י with Yod which is here given as an exception to the regular spelling without Yod (ח"י), is the Kal future first person singular from ח"י, whereas ח"י without Yod which in this Rubric is stated to be its normal spelling and which without and with the prefix occurs four times (Exod. 13 20; Numb. 33 6, 7, 8) is the proper name of a city. The wording of this Rubric, which is from the printed Massorah on Numb. 33 6, does not make this import quite clear. The Rubric, however, also occurs in Orient. 2348, fol. 131a, and Orient. 2349, fol. 121a, both on the same passage where the sense is perfectly plain. In these two MSS. it is as follows: 'Wherever ח"י without and with the prefix occurs it is the proper name of a city and is defective except in one instance where it is used in a different sense and is plene, viz. Ps. 19 14.'

כל ליש' איהם באהם שום באהא הם בלחר בליש אחרי וכל אל יספלו בו אז איהם.

ח"י"א = § 451.

ח"י"א strong, strength, occurs four times. This Rubric which is from Add. 15,251, fol. 383a, Job 33 19 is incorrect since it occurs no fewer than nine times, and five instances are omitted, viz. Jerem. 49 19; 50 44; Amos 5 24; Ps. 74 15; Prov. 13 15. The Rubric also occurs in Add. 21,160, fol. 281b, and in the printed Massorah, both on Numb. 24 21 in a still more inexplicable form since it states that ח"י"א occurs three times only, omitting not only the five passages in question, but also Jerem. 5 15. It will also be seen that this Rubric excludes ח"י"א the proper name which without the prefix occurs four times (1 Chron. 2 8; 6 27, 29; 15 17) and which is generally included where the orthography is identical.

ח"י"ב = § 452.

ח"י"ב only, occurs eight times at the beginning of a verse in the Scriptures. This Rubric which is to be found in the printed Massorah only, on Levit. 23 27, is hopelessly incorrect, since this adverb begins a verse a great many more times. It cannot possibly denote that ח"י"ב with a certain accent begins the verse this number of times, for these eight instances have no fewer than three different accents and in one passage it is with Makkeph. Each of these accents ח"י"ב has repeatedly in other passages where it occurs at the beginning of a verse. As it occurs altogether sixty-eight times at the beginning of a verse, the Nakdam probably found the full List too long for the margin and may have intended simply to give the beginning of it as is not unfrequently the case with lengthy catalogues. A later Nakdam, however, who did not understand the import of this Massorah, finding eight instances only enumerated, dropped מ [= 60] and left the מ [= 8] to make the heading conformable to the enumerated passages.

Comp. Gen. 9 4; 34 15, 22; Exod. 21 21; Levit. 11 4, 21, 36; 21 23; 23 27, 39; 27 26, 28; Numb. 1 49; 14 9; 18 17; 26 55; 31 22; Deut. 12 22; 14 7; 18 20; Josh. 3 4; 1 Sam. 12 24; 1 Kings 9 24; 11 12; 22 44; 2 Kings 12 14; 13 6; 22 7; 23 9, 26; 24 3; Isa. 14 15; 19 11; 45 24; Jerem. 3 18; 26 15 24; 28 7; 34 4; Hos. 4 4; Zech. 1 6; Ps. 23 6; 39 7; 49 16; 62 2, 8, 5, 6, 7, 10; 68 22; 73 13, 18; 85 10; 140 14; Prov. 17 11; Job 13 20; 14 22; 16 7; 18 21; 30 24; 33 8; 35 13; Lament. 3 3; Ezra 10 15; 1 Chron. 22 12; 2 Chron. 20 33; 30 11.

ח"י"ג = § 453.

ח"י"ג only, occurs five times with the accent Mehupach. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 70b, on Levit. 11 4 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 94b, on the same passage.

ח"י"ד = § 454.

ח"י"ד For the various accents which this adverb takes, see letter מ under קממ"ט.

ח"י"ה = § 455.

ח"י"ה only the firstling, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 1174 on Levit. 27 26.

ח"י"ו = § 456.

ח"י"ו only or but the high places, occurs twice... whilst in all other instances it is ח"י"ו save that, or except the high places. This Massorah, therefore, is designed to safeguard these exceptional instances against being made conformable to the more common combination ח"י"ו. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Kings 22 44. The last line ח"י"ו is incorrect since ח"י"ו in this connection occurs twice, viz. 1 Kings 15 14 and 2 Chron. 15 17.

In Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 161a, where this Massorah occurs on 2 Chron. 20 33, the variation in these phrases which record the same event is more strikingly pointed out and is as follows: 'By Asa in Kings and Chronicles it is ח"י"ו and the high places they did not remove [1 Kings 15 14; 2 Chron. 15 17]; by Jehoshaphat in Kings and Chronicles it is ח"י"ו only the high places they did not remove [1 Kings 22 44; 2 Chron. 20 33] and in all other passages it is ח"י"ו, but the high places they did not remove [2 Kings 12 4; 14 4; 15 4, 35].'

אמא ומלכים דרבי חיימא ונחמיה לא סרו דיהושפט ומלכים דרבי חיימא אך הנבטות לא סרו ויש' רק הנבטות לא סרו.

ח"י"ז = § 457.

ח"י"ז and but, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 100b, on Numb. 22 20 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 142a, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 16a, on Josh. 22 19; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 33a, on Gen. 9 6 and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Lists II and IV respectively add, one at the end of the Rubric and the other in the heading, that it begins a verse in two instances and is in the middle of the verse in one passage. The printed Massorah which simply states that it occurs twice at the beginning of a verse and catalogues the two instances only, is misleading inasmuch as it may imply that apart from the beginning of the verse it occurs frequently. The two instances which begin a verse form part of the words which respectively occur twice with the prefix Vav commencing a verse.

Comp. The Massorah, letter ו, § 63, Vol. I, p. 399.

ח"י"ח = § 458.

ח"י"ח A List of unique words [chiefly from the root וכל]. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 40 12. Its design is to catalogue hapax legomena of expressions with Caph Lamed (כל). As thirteen out of the five-and-twenty words are from וכל, and seven only from בלה, two from בלל, two from ביל and one from יכל I have added in the heading in brackets בלשן to indicate the root of by far the larger number of the forms tabulated in the List. Why the twelve words of the four different roots are here mixed up with the thirteen forms from וכל when there are nearly ninety other hapax legomena from this root which could have easily filled up the List, it is difficult to say. It may be that the Massorites deemed it necessary to fix the reading of these expressions because they were exposed to variations in the MSS. or because some Hagadic import was attached to them.

ח"י"ט = § 459.

ח"י"ט he hath devoured him, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 78b, on Ezek. 15 5 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 59b; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 49b; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 39b; (V) the printed Massorah, all on Gen. 37 33, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 15 5. Lists II and III have in the heading ח"י"ט קמ"ט it occurs four times three times with Kametz and once with Pathach, which is more precise, since in Ezek. 15 5 the Lamed has Pathach.

ת"ם = § 460.

ואכלתם and he shall devour them, occurs twice. That is in both instances the Tav is with Pathach and the accent is on the penultima. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 200a, on Hos. 2 14 which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 5 14 which rightly has in the heading ת"ם; (III) the same Codex on Hos. 2 14 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 5 14.

ת"ם" = § 461.

אכלתי I have eaten, occurs twice at the end of a verse, once with Kametz and once with Pathach. That is, this preterite first person singular, which occurs altogether ten times, ends a verse in two instances, once it has the normal pausal Kametz under the Caph (comp. Ps. 102 10) and once it is abnormally with Pathach. This Rubric is from the Vienna Codex No. 35 on Neh. 5 14. The printed Massorah Finalis which gives this Rubric in letter א, § 375, is hopelessly corrupt.

The heading in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah אכלתי ב' פתח בנבחרת is which Heidenheim has exposed both in פ"ן הקדמ' and פ"ן סוף on Gen. 31 38.

ת"ם" = § 462.

ואכלו and they shall eat it, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 79b, on Levit. 24 9 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 38b, on Jerem. 10 25; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 154a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 180b, on Levit. 26 16; (V) the printed Massorah on Levit. 24 9 and (VI) the same on Jerem. 10 25. Lists II, III, IV, V and VI have in the heading ת"ם" or ת"ם" which refers to the absence of Vav after the Lamed. It will be seen that ת"ם" and ת"ם" are used promiscuously, a fact to which we have often adverted, though the former is the more correct way of stating it since it occurs three times only and is defective in all the three passages.

ת"ם" = § 463.

אכל eating, devouring, is ten times plene. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 69a, on Levit. 10 18 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 168a, on 2 Chron. 31 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 71a, on 2 Sam. 19 43; (IV) the same MS., fol. 113b, on 2 Kings 19 29; (V) the same MS., fol. 204b, on Joel 2 26; (VI) the same MS., fol. 277a, on 2 Chron. 31 10; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 27b, on Gen. 31 15; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 151a, on Levit. 10 18; (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (X) the same on Joel 2 26. It is to be remarked that though one of the instances is תאכל (2 Sam. 19 43) none of the MS. Lists state in the heading ת"ם" and it is only in the heading of the two Lists in the printed Massorah that it is so stated. The heading, however, in the first of Jacob b. Chayim's List which has it ת"ם" is wrong, since there is no plene instance of this infinitive absolute with the prefix Vav which the Massorah recognises. The Kethiv in Isa. 37 30 is excluded from this List. It is, moreover, to be noticed that though the plene form of this infinitive is the normal orthography and the defective the abnormal since it occurs five times only (Gen. 2 16; 1 Sam. 14 30; 2 Kings 4 43; Isa. 22 13; Prov. 25 27), the Massorah here, contrary to its usual practice, safeguards the normal spelling.

ת"ם" = § 464.

אכל to eat, is thirteen times plene and the mnemonic sign thereof in Chaldee is, the man killed sheep, and the eagle took bread in a good month, and the princes finished the cluster and tarried in the field. As this infinitive occurs fifty-three times and is plene in thirteen instances only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176a, on Ezek. 16 20 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 353a, on Eccl. 5 17; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 275a, on Ezek. 16 20; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Eccl. 5 17; (V) Cambridge Add. 465 on Levit. 25 7 from which I printed the mnemonic sign and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 16 20. It is remarkable that all these Lists, contrary to the usual practice of the Massorah, include the Kethiv in Ezek. 44 3 in the thirteen plene instances since the Massorah as a rule recognises only the Keri.

There is another recension of this Rubric in Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 187b, on 1 Sam. 20 5 which is of great importance for the orthography of this infinitive. It is as follows: תאכל is seven times plene, viz. 1 Sam. 20 5, 24; 2 Sam. 13 9; 16 2; 17 29; 2 Kings 4 40; Eccl. 6 2; and it is likewise so in the Twelve [Minor Prophets] except in one instance, viz. Hab. 3 14. It will be seen that this Rubric not only excludes Ezek. 16 20; 44 3, and 2 Chron. 7 13, but gives Eccl. 6 2 instead of Eccl. 5 17 as one of the plene instances.

למנוח' כל ומנוח' ישוב אשכ עם חמך למנוח, ופתח, המשרת וזולתם, ודבש, וצק, וישליכנו, וכל יז דכו בלא נקבת בספרי רמח פריי.

ת"ם" = § 465.

אכל to eat, occurs twice. That is, this infinitive construct occurs twice, once with Kametz under the Caph and once with Cholem over it. This Rubric is from the Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 33. The heading in the printed Massorah on Gen. 3 11 which this Rubric has, viz. ת"ם" ב' א' ב' חתך פת' ופתח קלף is unintelligible.

ת"ם" = § 466.

אכלם when they eat, occurs twice. . . . That is, with the prefix Beth and once this infinitive with the suffix third person plural has the prefix Caph. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 4a, on Josh. 5 12 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2449, fol. 95a, on Levit. 22 16; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 374.

ת"ם" = § 467.

אכל eat, is five times plene. Without and with the prefix Vav this imperative occurs altogether twelve times. It is defective in seven instances and plene in these five passages only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. C' this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 93b, on 1 Kings 19 6 which I have printed, but from which I omitted by an oversight (ת"ם") the second instance in Ezek. 3 1; (II) the same MS., fol. 345a, on Prov. 23 7 and (III) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 3 1. It is to be noticed that though in 1 Sam. 28 22 this imperative has the prefix Vav, none of the Lists state in the heading ת"ם" ב' א' ב' חתך פת' ופתח קלף.

1 Comp. ת"ם" 1 Sam. 9 24; 1 Kings 18 41; 19 7; Prov. 25 16; Eccl. 9 7; ת"ם" 1 Kings 13 16; Ezek. 2 8.

ת"ם" = § 468.

אכל and he shall eat, occurs five times in the Scriptures and the mnemonic sign thereof is in Chaldee, the grass of the bread stood up and denied its garden. In all the other twenty-one instances where this future third person singular occurs, the prefix Vav has Pathach and the Yod is with Dagesh (תאכל). Hence the Massorah safeguards these five instances where it has Sheva, and hence also some of the headings have ת"ם" ב' א' ב' חתך פת' ופתח קלף = five times with Sheva. Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, ten in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 35b, on Exod. 2 20 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 229a, on 1 Kings 13 18; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 261a, on Cant. 4 16; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 88b, on 1 Kings 13 18; (V) the same MS., fol. 349b, on Cant. 4 16; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 21a, on Gen. 27 31; (VII) the same MS., fol. 66a, on Exod. 2 20; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 80a, on Exod. 10 12; (IX) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Cant. 4 16; (X) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 33, and (XI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 27 31. Lists V, VI, VII, IX and X have the mnemonic sign. The mnemonic sign without the List is given in the printed Massorah on Exod. 10 12; 1 Kings 13 18; Cant. 4 16, and in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 366.

ת"ם" = § 469.

אכל and he ate, has twice the accent Zakeph with Pathach. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 66a, on 1 Sam. 30 11. See, however, Gen. 27 25 where תאכל is also with Zakeph.

ת"ם" = § 470.

אכל he shall eat, occurs thirteen times. That is, with a pausal accent and Tzere to distinguish it from the forty-one passages where it has a non-pausal accent and is with Pathach (תאכל). Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 138a, on Isa. 44 16 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 122a, on Isa. 7 22; (III) the same MS., fol. 146b, on Isa. 65 22; (IV) the same MS., fol. 323a, Job 5 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 331b, on Job 31 8; (VI) the same MS., fol. 335a, on Job 40 15; (VII) the same MS., fol. 352b, on Eccl. 5 11; (VIII) Orient. 4445, fol. 122b, on Numb. 6 3; (IX) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 65 22; (X) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 78a, on Levit. 21 22; (XI) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 33, and (XII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 21 22.

תע"א = § 471.

תאכל thou shalt, or she shall eat, occurs seven times, and the sign thereof is in Chaldee: the priest commanded the widow, thy toil and thy bread into the city of the king. His companions came and removed death from the house of destruction and burnt his blood and flesh with fire.

It is to be remarked: (1) That this Rubric groups together the nine instances where this form is the second person masculine (Gen. 2 16; Deut. 12 27; 15 23; 20 19; 2 Kings 7 12, 19; Ezek. 12 18; 24 17; Ps. 128 2) and the eight instances where it is third person feminine (Levit. 22 12, 18; 2 Sam. 22 9; Isa. 9 17; Ps. 18 9; 50 3; Prov. 31 27; Job 31 12) and (2) that it safeguards alike these pausal instances with Tzere against the thirty-six non-pausal passages with Patach, including both the second person masculine and the third person feminine. This Rubric too is an ancient part of the Massorah. Of it I collated fourteen Lists, thirteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 77a, on Ezek. 12 18 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 177b, on Ps. 18 9; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 108a, on Levit. 22 12; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 9 17; (V) the same Codex on Ezek. 12 18; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 72b, on 2 Sam. 22 9; (VII) the same MS., fol. 123a, on Isa. 9 17; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 182b, on Ezek. 24 17; (IX) the same MS., fol. 287b, on Ps. 18 9; (X) the same MS., fol. 317a, on Ps. 128 2; (XII) Cambridge Add. 465 on Levit. 22 12, where the mnemonic sign is given; (XIII) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 33, and (XIV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 363.

תע"ב = § 472.

תאכל and it shall devour, occurs six times in the Scriptures.

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these instances with Sheva against any of them being made conformable to the twenty-one passages wherein the Vav which precedes this future second person masculine or third person feminine has Patach. Hence some of the Lists head this Rubric תע"ב it occurs six times with Sheva. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 162b, on Judg. 9 15 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 238b, on 2 Kings 1 12; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 25a, on Judg. 9 15; (IV) the same MS., fol. 97b, on 2 Kings 1 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 220b, on Zech. 11 1; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 144a, on Judg. 9 15 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Zech. 11 1.

תע"ג = § 473.

אכל the future first person singular has once the prefix Vav with Kametz and once Vav with Sheva. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Gen. 27 33. These two expressions form part of the List of words beginning with Vav Aleph which respectively occur twice, once with Sheva and once with Kametz.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter א, § 11, Vol. I, p. 322 &c.

תע"ד = § 474.

תאכלה or תאכלנה thou shalt eat it, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 3a, on Gen. 3 17. Both the MSS. and the early editions differ as to the pointing of this word Orient. 4445; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Orient. 2348; Orient. 2349; Orient. 2350; Orient. 2365; Orient. 2451; Orient. 2629; Orient. 4227; the editio princeps of the Pentateuch 1482; the first edition of the Bible 1488; the third edition 1494; the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible 1517 have it תאכלה with Sheva under the Caph, whilst Add. 9401; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,252; Add. 15,282; Add. 15,451; Orient. 2365; the second edition of the Bible 1491-93; the Lisbon edition of the Pentateuch 1491; the Complutensian and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah 1524-25 have it תאכלה with Chateph-Patach under the Caph. Orient. 2201; Add. 15,251 and one of my MSS. say that the latter is the reading of Ben-Asher and the former is that of Ben-Naphtali.

תע"ה = § 475.

תאכלו and they shall eat, occurs twice. That is with Sheva under the Caph. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 102a, on 2 Kings 6 22 which I have printed and (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 242b, on the same passage. The latter heads it תע"ה it is twice Raphe that is with Sheva under the Caph in contradistinction to the twenty-five instances in which it has Patach under the Vav. But this is not very precise, since the instances which constitute the next Rubric have also Sheva under the Caph.

תע"ו = § 476.

תאכלו *and they shall eat, occurs three times and the mnemonic sign thereof is, one pursues after his neighbour = they follow each other in consecutive verses. That is with Tzere under the Caph in consequence of its having a pausal accent. Of this Massorah I collated two Lists: (I) Cambridge Add. 465 on 2 Kings 4 41 which has the mnemonic sign, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage which heads it תע"ו it is three times Raphe and which for the reason stated in the preceding Rubric is inexact.*

תע"ז = § 477.

תאכלנה they shall eat it, occurs four times and is defective in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 42a, on Exod. 12 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 29a, on Isa. 62 9; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 92b, Levit. 8 31; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 88a, on Numb. 9 11; (V) the same MS., fol. 237a, on Isa. 62 9; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 202a, on Numb. 9 11; (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 12 8, and (VIII) the same on Isa. 62 9. It is remarkable that List III, which represents the oldest Massorah, gives Levit. 6 9 as one of the four instances where the present text has תאכלנה and omits Exod. 12 8 which is תאכלנה in the textus receptus. This Rubric occurs again in this ancient Codex on Numb. 9 11, fol. 127b, but the leaf is unfortunately defective so that it is impossible to say whether the four instances given in this Rubric are the same as those recorded in the first instance.

תע"ח = § 478.

נאכל occurs three times, twice it is with Aleph and denotes eating and once it is written with Vav and denotes low, deceiving. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 2b, on Isa. 4 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 127a, on Mal. 1 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 120b, on Isa. 4 1; (IV) the same MS., fol. 223a, on Mal. 1 14; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 313a, on the same passage; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VII) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 33, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 3 2.

תע"ט = § 479.

ונאכלנו and we shall eat him, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 102a, on 2 Kings 6 28 which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 203b, on the same passage. The latter rightly has in the heading תע"ט twice and in the same section.

ת"ס = § 480.

אכל eating, is four times plene. As this participle which occurs thirteen times, is defective in nine instances¹ and plene in these four passages only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 118a, on Nah. 3 12 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 185b, on Ps. 41 10; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 50b, on Gen. 39 6; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 38b; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 41b; (VI) the printed Massorah, all on Gen. 39 6, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 41 10.

¹ Comp. אכל Gen. 40 17; Exod. 12 15, 19; Levit. 7 25; 2 Sam. 9 11, 13; 1 Kings 21 5; Ps. 106 20; Prov. 13 25.

ת"ס"א = § 481.

אכלו eaters of, or that eat of, occurs four times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. I have mislaid the reference to the MS. from which this Rubric is taken. This participle plural construct also occurs a fifth time in the textus receptus, viz. Ps. 127 2.

ת"ס"ב = § 482.

אכלתי consuming, or I will eat, occurs five times. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 39b, on Jerem. 12 12 which I have printed;

(II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Joel. 2 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 155a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 204a, on Joel 2 5; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 245b, on Jerem. 12 12; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 261b, on Deut. 4 24; (VII) Orient. 2349, fol. 125b, on the same passage; (VIII) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach II, § 83, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Deut. 4 24.

As usual, the Massorah here groups together homonyms or words which are spelled and pointed alike. Hence four of the instances (Deut. 4 24; 9 8; Jerem. 12 12; Joel 2 5) are the participle feminine of אכל, whilst Deut. 12 20 is the first person future with paragogic He.

חָסַיִם - § 488.

אָכַל shall be eaten, occurs twenty-two [-three] times. It is designed to safeguard this Niphal future third person singular against the Kal future third person singular which is written with the same four letters, but differently pointed (vide supra § 470). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, 120a, on Deut. 12 22 which I have printed. The heading חָסַיִם = 22 is a clerical error since there are twenty-three such instances and the List correctly enumerates them; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 145b, on Levit. 7 19 and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 885. It will be seen that apart from the Pentateuch, this Niphal future first person singular occurs once only.

חָסַיִם - § 484.

אָכַל it shall be eaten, occurs nine times. That is, the Niphal future third person singular feminine to distinguish it from the Kal future third person singular feminine which is written with the same four letters, but pointed differently (vide supra § 471). Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 84b, on Ezek. 23 25 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 215a, on Zeph. 1 18; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 68a, on Levit. 6 9; (IV) the same MS., fol. 279b, on Ezek. 23 25; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 144a, on Levit. 6 9; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Zeph. 3 8.

חָסַיִם - § 485.

אָכַל they shall be eaten, occurs twice in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to distinguish these two instances from the same Niphal future third person plural in Levit. 11 13 where it is pointed אָכַל with Sheva because of its non-pausal accent, as well as to safeguard them against the Kal future third person plural which is written with the same four letters, but is pointed differently (אָכַל). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, fol. 82a, on Jerem. 30 16 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 131a, on Deut. 14 19.

חָסַיִם - § 486.

אָכַל they shall be eaten, occurs four times. That is, to distinguish this Niphal future third person plural feminine from the Kal future third person plural feminine which is written with the same six letters, but is pointed differently. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 162a, on Jerem. 24 2 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 165b, on Jerem. 29 17; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 253b, on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 24 2; (V) the same Codex on Jerem. 29 17 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 24 2.

חָסַיִם - § 487.

אָכַל they have been consumed, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 1710-15, Vol. II, fol. 293b, on Neh. 2 3 which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Nah. 1 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 379b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 308b, on Nah. 1 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 394b, on Neh. 2 3, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 886.

חָסַיִם-חָסַיִם - § 488-490.

אָכַל. To understand these three Rubrics which catalogue the same phenomena in differently worded Massorahs, it is necessary to remark that the Hiphil אָכַל occurs fourteen times with prefixes and suffixes, and that it is plene in seven instances and defective in seven. In the Pentateuch, where it occurs four times, it is always defective (Numb. 11 4, 18; Deut. 8 8, 16); in the Prophets, where it occurs six times, it is four times plene (Jerem. 9 14; 23 15; Ezek. 21 33; Hos. 11 4) and twice defective (1 Kings 22 27; Ezek. 3 2), and in the Hagiographa where it occurs four times it is plene in three instances (Ps. 81 17; Prov. 25 21; 2 Chron. 18 26) and once defective (2 Chron. 28 15).

Accordingly § 488 which is from Add. 21,160, fol. 206a, on Numb. 11 18 and which states that it is plene once only in the Hagiographa (Ps. 81 17) and once defective in the Prophets (1 Kings 22 27) must be based upon a recension which differed in its orthography from the textus receptus.

Equally at variance with the textus receptus is § 489 inasmuch as it fully supports § 488 in more artificial language. It makes up the three instances in which this Hiphil is defective by counting the whole Pentateuch as one, and by counting each of the two other divisions of the Hebrew Scriptures as one. § 490 which is from Add. 15,250, fol. 197b, on 1 Kings 22 27 is corrupt. In the heading, this Rubric states חָסַיִם חָסַיִם it is twice defective in this book, i. e. Kings and yet gives 2 Chronicles 18 26. Besides in Chronicles it is חָסַיִם plene.

חָסַיִם - § 491.

אָכַל surely, occurs eighteen times. The necessity for safeguarding this adverb is manifest from the fact that in the recension from which the Septuagint was made, some of the instances recorded in this Rubric were omitted altogether (comp. Gen. 28 16; Isa. 53 4; Jerem. 8 8) and in some instances the translators read לָקָם (comp. Isa. 49 4; Ps. 31 23; 66 19). Traces of the uncertainty about the number of passages in which this adverb occurs are still preserved in the Massorah itself.

Of this Rubric I collated fifteen Lists, fourteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 86a on 1 Kings 11 2 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 180a, on Isa. 49 4; (III) the same MS., fol. 141b, on Isa. 53 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 149a, on Jerem. 3 20; (V) the same MS., fol. 291a, on Ps. 31 23; (VI) the same MS., fol. 300a, on Ps. 66 19; (VII) the same MS., fol. 305a, on Ps. 82 7; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 382a, on Job 32 8; (IX) Orient. 4445, fol. 43a, on Exod. 2 14; (X) Add. 15,250, fol. 188b, on 1 Kings 11 2; (XI) Add. 15,251, fol. 282a, on Isa. 45 15; (XII) the same MS., fol. 358b, on Ps. 66 19; (XIII) the same MS., fol. 382b, on Job 32 8; (XIV) Add. 21,160, fol. 65b, on Exod. 2 14 and (XV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 888.

That the Massorah itself has preserved traces of ancient variations as to the number of instances in which this adverb occurs, is evident both from the MSS. and the printed Massorah. List III states in the heading that there are nineteen such instances though it enumerates seventeen only, omitting Jerem. 3 23b. The Massorah Parva in Cambridge Add. 465 on Gen. 28 16 also states that there are 19. This is not only distinctly stated in the printed Massorah Parva both on Gen. 28 16, and Exod. 2 14, but in the Massorah Magna on the latter passage. When we come to the printed Massorah Finalis, to which the Massorahs Magna and Parva refer for the Rubric, the heading here states that there are nineteen and actually enumerates nineteen giving לָקָם as the catchword for one of them. And though this passage is nowhere to be found in the textus receptus it distinctly recognises a variation. The nineteenth instance is manifestly Jerem. 5 2 where the Sevir is לָקָם instead of לָקָם as may be seen in the note on this passage in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. Another ancient record seems to be preserved in the printed Massorah Parva on Zeph. 3 7 where it states (אָכַל) that it occurs sixteen times only.

חָסַיִם - § 492.

אָכַל a ploughman, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 300a, on Amos 5 16 and (II) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 51 23 which I have printed.

חָסַיִם - § 493.

אָכַל not not. Twenty-three verses both begin with אָכַל and have this adverb of negation in the middle of the verse. Most of these instances exhibit the abnormal absence of the prefix Vav in the second part of the verse. The Massorah, therefore, guards them against the insertion of the Vav on the part of the Scribes. This applies also to a large extent to the twenty-nine passages where this negative occurs twice in the middle of the verse without the Vav before the second אָכַל and though I have not been able to find a Massoretic List of these instances, it is more than probable that some MSS. may yet come to light containing this Rubric.

¹ Comp. Gen. 37 22; 49 6; Exod. 34 3; Josh. 7 3; 10 19; 22 19; Judg. 13 14; 1 Sam. 12 20; 2 Sam. 13 25; 2 Kings 4 16; Isa. 7 4; 51 7; Jerem. 10 2; 18 23; Ezek. 7 12; Micah 1 10; Zeph. 3 16; Zech. 7 10; 8 17; Ps. 25 2; 36 22; 37 1; 75 5; Prov. 24 17; 27 10; Job 3 6; Lament. 2 18; Eccl. 10 20; Ezra 9 12.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 292b, on Pa. 36 12 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 345a, on Prov. 23 10; (III) the same MS., fol. 345b, on Prov. 24 15; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 105a, on Levit. 19 31; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 186b, on the same passage; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 42 11; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 129a; (VIII) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 320, and (IX) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 1 20.

It is important to remark that eight out of the nine Lists expressly state in their respective headings that there are twenty-three such verses, though four only catalogue this number and through the received text has twenty-six verses in which this phenomenon occurs. To show the relationship of these Lists to each other as well as to the textus receptus, I subjoin the following Table in which the first column exhibits the Massoretic text. The numbers in the several columns indicate the order in which these instances are given in the respective Lists:

Table with columns IX, VIII, VII, VI, V, IV, III, II, I, M. T. and rows of numerical data and Hebrew text references.

The explanation of the discrepancies in these Lists is supplied by List IV which is from the oldest MS. The heading here is simply, the following verses have abnormally in the beginning and in the middle. In this original form of the Massorah we see the first attempt to collect these passages and hence so many only are enumerated as the compiler was able to find. He, therefore, left the List open without fixing the number, as he expected other Massorites would complete it. But instead of doing so, a later Nakdan counted the instances thus catalogued and as is often the case supplied it with the numeral heading. In Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah אל חירא מני חיל הכשרים אל חירא מני סלך בבל אל חירא מני סלך בבל (Jerem. 42 11) and אל חירא מני סלך בבל (Ps. 35 25).

אלן סוקים ראש הכניעה אל סוחר

תציר = § 494.

אל אל אל. Two verses respectively begin with אל and have this negative twice in the middle. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 156b, on Jerem. 14 21 which I have printed and (II) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 319.

תציה = § 495.

אל אל אל. In five verses the negative אל occurs three times. That is, in all these passages the repetition of it is abnormally without the prefix Vav. Whilst the preceding Rubric registers the two instances only where the first of the three negatives begins the verse, this Massorah professes to catalogue all the verses in the Bible which exhibit this phenomenon including the two which constitute § 494. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 407. As there are eight such instances in the textus receptus, the Massorite must have based this Massorah on Codices in which the second or third אל had the prefix in the three passages here omitted (Judg. 19 23; Jerem. 22 8; Ezek. 20 18). The supposition that the MSS. varied with regard to the presence or absence of this prefix in the recurrence of אל in the same verse is confirmed by Add. 21,160, fol. 292b. Not only does the Massorah here positively state that there are altogether three verses only which exhibit this phenomenon, viz. 2 Sam. 13 12; Jerem. 14 21; Jonah 3 7, but the verse on which this Massorah is given actually reads אל ילירע (Jonah 3 7).

תציר = § 496.

אל. Five words respectively occur once only combined with אל. That is, these words do either not occur again in combination with this adverb of negation or where combined with it this negative is אל with Vav prefix. This Rubric, which is from the printed Massorah on Prov. 24 1, is perfectly unintelligible since there are about one hundred and sixty words which occur once only combined with אל. There can be no doubt that it is simply a small part of a long alphabetical List which catalogued the unique combination of words with this adverb of negation and that it represents one instance of letter Pe and a portion of letter Tav. This is fully confirmed by the partially illegible fragment in the Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, fol. 66b, margin, which registers some of the words representing letters Aleph and Beth in combination with אל and which is another piece of this alphabetical List. That small portions of long alphabetical Lists exhibiting different letters of the Alphabet are of frequent occurrence in the Massorah may be seen in a very cursory examination of the MSS.

תציר = § 497.

אל יחסר let it not lack, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish it from the combination אל יחסר לא יחסר (Prov. 31 11). This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Eccl. 9 8. In registering such combinations, the Massorah takes no notice of the fact that in one of the two instances the verb is in pause and hence the Samech has Kametz (יחסר).

תציר = § 498.

אל יצא let him not go out, occurs three times in this combination in the Scriptures. In the other four instances where this future is combined with the negative, it is אל יצא (Levit. 21 12; 25 30; Deut. 24 5; Job 5 6). Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 264b, on 2 Kings 9 15 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 205b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 92a, on Exod. 16 29; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on 2 Kings 9 15; (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 16 29; (VI) the same on 2 Kings 9 15 and (VII) the same on 2 Kings 10 25.

תציר = § 499.

אל יתירא מפניהם be not afraid of them, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this phrase against the similar combination אל יתירא מפניהם be not dismayed at them, which occurs in close proximity with the second instance. Indeed the Massorah Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 9a, on Josh. 11 6, from which this Rubric is taken, actually gives Jerem. 1 17 instead of Jerem. 1 8 as the second instance. As this Model Codex contains the most accurate redaction of the Massorah, it is evident that the Massorites worked upon a recension of the text in which the verbs יתירא and יתירא in Jerem. 1 8, 17 were reversed in these two verses.

תיק = § 500.

אל תתם put not away, occurs twice. That is, it is designed to safeguard this apocopated Hiphil future second person singular masculine from אל תתם against אל תתם turn not, the apocopated Kal future second person singular from תתם which occurs once (Prov. 4 27). It is also designed to distinguish it from the normal future with the negative, i. e. אל תתם which occurs three times (Exod. 23 6; Deut. 16 19; 24 17). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 180b, on Ps. 27 9 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 290a, and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 351a, all on the same passage.

תקיא = § 501.

אל תעשה do ye not, occurs three times. That is, to distinguish it from the normal phrase אל תעשה ye shall not do which occurs no fewer than thirty times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 150a, on Jerem. 5 10 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 21a, on Gen. 19 8 and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

תקיב = § 502.

אל תהפך do not regard, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 215b; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 93a; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 110b, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on Numb. 16 15.

תקיע = § 503.

אל תרעו let them not feed, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 113b, on Jonah 3 7.

תקיד = § 504.

אל תרף do not slack, or desist, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 218b, on Ps. 138 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. Vol. II, fol. 243b, on Prov. 4 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 7b, on Josh. 10 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 337b, on Prov. 4 13; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 387a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Supplement fol. 133b; (VII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 138 8 and (VIII) the same on Prov. 4 13.

תקיה = § 505.

אל and not, occurs five times at the beginning of a verse. This is the natural import of the heading of this Rubric, which occurs in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter מ, § 411. The design of this Massorah, which is here given in its incipient form, is manifestly to catalogue the passages throughout the Bible in which אל begins a verse, as the three instances in which it begins a verse in Isaiah are mentioned separately,¹ and the three passages in which it commences a verse in the Psalms are given in a special Rubric.² No question has been raised about the meaning אל וראי בו where it refers to Isaiah and the Psalms, simply because the heading in these cases coincides with the instances enumerated in the Rubrics. The artificial attempt to explain away the obvious sense of the heading in the Rubric before us³ is entirely due to the fact that אל begins a verse in no fewer than fifteen instances in the Bible,⁴ whereas the heading here states that it occurs five times only. The real explanation, however, is to be found in the fact that the five passages simply exhibit the first attempt of the original Massorite to collect these instances and that a later Nakdan, as usual, mistook the import of this Rubric and supplied the heading in accordance with the enumerated instances. Similar cases will be seen in the next two Rubrics.

¹ Comp. the Massorah in Arund. Orient. 16 נ'ראי בו on Isa. 36 15 and the printed Massorah Parva פ'ראי בו on the same passage. The three instances are Isa. 36 15; 56 3; 62 7.

² This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I have given in The Massorah, Vol. III, p. I, § 505, from Orient. 2375, fol. 74a, on Ps. 119 48.

³ Comp. Frensdorff, Massoretisches Wörterbuch, p. 212, note 5. Hannover 1876.

⁴ Comp. 2 Kings 18 30; Isa. 36 15; 56 3; 62 7; Jerem. 25 6; 27 14; Amos 5 6; Obad. 12, 14; Ps. 69 18; 119 43; 143 2; Neh. 3 87; 2 Chron. 23 6; 30 7.

תקיו = § 506.

אל and not. Words preceded by אל which respectively occur once only in this combination. In all other instances where this adverb of negation is combined with the same words it is אל without the prefix Vav. This Rubric is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 14 17. The heading, which is in brackets, I have supplied. This List affords a convincing proof of the oft-made statement that Rubrics frequently contain only the first attempt of the original Massorite who collated instances which exhibit the same phenomenon and who left the completion of the Lists to his fellow-members of the guild. For this reason the first Massorite who designed this Rubric did not supply it with the heading, since he could not as yet fix the exact number of passages which contained this unique combination. The List, however, was never completed, or if completed has not come to light. For though this incipient form of it catalogues twenty-four instances only, there are about thirty-six throughout the Bible, so that no fewer than twelve are here omitted.¹ But even this incipient List has been added to by a later Nakdan who mistook its import. This is evident from the fact that there are three instances in it which do not occur again with אל and hence are contrary to the design of the original Massorite. He catalogued only those unique combinations with אל which in other passages have אל, since without this contrast there are no fewer than ninety-nine words preceded by אל which do not occur again.

The only other List of this Rubric which I have been able to find is in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 408. Not only does it give two instances less, viz. אל וראי Ps. 69 28 which according to the original design of this Massorah is rightly omitted and אל וראי Ps. 27 9 which is wrongly left out (comp. אל וראי Ps. 38 22; 71 9, 18; 119 8), but it has already added to it the pernicious heading by a later Nakdan which erroneously states that there are twenty-two instances only of this unique combination with אל.

¹ Comp. (1) אל וראי Jerem. 46 6; אל וראי 1 Kings 18 40; (2) אל וראי 2 Chron. 15 7; אל וראי Zeph. 3 16; (3) אל וראי 2 Chron. 32 15; אל וראי Micah 7 6; (4) אל וראי Jerem. 51 3; אל וראי Prov. 4 5; (5) אל וראי Prov. 4 27; (6) אל וראי Josh. 10 25; אל וראי Isa. 51 7; Jerem. 10 2; (7) אל וראי Prov. 5 7; אל וראי 1 Sam. 12 20; (8) אל וראי Prov. 8 33; אל וראי Levit. 10 6; (9) אל וראי Prov. 5 8; אל וראי Exod. 3 6; (10) אל וראי Jerem. 17 21, Ezra 9 12; (11) אל וראי 1 Kings 13 22; אל וראי Levit. 10 9; Judg. 13 14; (12) אל וראי Judg. 13 4; אל וראי Judg. 13 7.

² Comp. אל וראי Jerem. 14 17; אל וראי Ps. 69 28; אל וראי Esther 4 16.

תקיו = § 507.

אל וראי. Seven words respectively occur twice combined with אל. This List I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter מ, § 410. It has suffered at the hands of later Nakdanim in exactly the same way as the preceding Rubric. As there are no fewer than fifteen such pairs, it is evident that the seven here given simply represent the first attempt of the original Massorite to collect the instances which exhibit this peculiarity. A later Nakdan, however, mistook the List as final and hence added the heading which erroneously fixes the number at seven. The following eight pairs are omitted:

אל וראי Neh. 8 10, 11	אל וראי given in § 508
אל וראי Deut. 20 3; 31 6	אל וראי 2 Kings 18 26; Isa. 36 11
אל וראי given in § 511	אל וראי Prov. 1 8; 6 20
אל וראי Deut. 2 9, 19	אל וראי Jerem. 25 6; 35 15

Most of the respective pairs which are catalogued in the incipient List as well as of those which are omitted from it, are given as separate Rubrics on the respective passages in the MS. Massorahs.

תקיה = § 508.

אל וראי and let not him make trust, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, but which constitutes one of the omitted pairs in § 507, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 136b, on Isa. 36 15 which I have printed and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Kings 18 30.

תקיע = § 509.

אל וראי and do not give, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 135a, on Deut. 21 8, which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Joel 2 17.

תקיע = § 510.

אל וראי and do not stay, occurs twice. This forms the seventh pair in § 507.

תקיע = § 511.

אל וראי and do not desire, occurs twice . . . and once it is אל without the Vav prefix. This pair, which is omitted in § 507, is from the printed Massorah on Prov. 24 1.

תקיע = § 512.

אל occurs twice in a secular sense in the Scriptures. That is, this expression which normally denotes the divine name God, is in these two instances abnormally the shortened form of the secular pronoun אלה these. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 289b, on Ezra 5 15. It will be seen that the Kethiv in Ezra 5 15 has the normal pronoun אלה. It is the Keri which is אל and the Massorah as usual does not recognise the textual reading.

§ 518. - תקיז

תקיז is in eight passages used for תקיז these. That is, this triliteral with exactly the same vowel-points, which in all the other nineteen instances where it occurs, denotes God, is in these eight passages used as the pronoun תקיז these. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 11a, on Gen. 19 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 16a, on Gen. 26 3; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 75b, on Levit. 18 27; (IV) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 117a, on Deut. 7 22; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 17b, on Gen. 26 8; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 134a, on Deut. 19 11; (VII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 88, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 26 3.

Though the heading of this Rubric is in most of the Lists either תי לטח תול or תי לטח תול yet at the end of Lists I and II where the Massorite refers to the two instances without the prefix He (§ 512) he states that the Sevir is תקיז. The printed Massorah, too, on Gen. 19 25, where it simply gives the heading of this Rubric and refers to Gen. 26 3 for the Lists, emphatically states that the Sevir is תקיז in all these instances. The same fact the printed Massorah repeats on Gen. 26 3 where the List is duly given.

§ 514a. - תקיז

תקיז to, or against. For both תקיז and תקיז in this Verse the Sevir is תקיז against her and תקיז and against her. This Rubric, which I have printed in the Massorah, Vol. III, p. 1, § 514, is from my own MS. on Jerem. 51 3. For other variations on this passage see the Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, pp. 317, 529.

§ 514b. - תקיז

תקיז. In seven instances the textual reading or Kethiv is תקיז unto, and the official reading or Keri is תקיז upon. About all of them, however, there is a difference of opinion, but the last two are so read by the Suras. This Rubric, which is of supreme importance to textual criticism, I have found only in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 13 2. It discloses the following facts: (1) In four of the seven passages, where this Rubric states that the textual reading is תקיז, viz. 1 Kings 20 43; Cant. 2 17; Dan. 9 17; Neh. 3 37, it is תקיז in the textus receptus; (2) three of these seven passages, which are described as having a Keri תקיז, viz. Ezek. 13 2; Dan. 9 17; Neh. 3 37, have no such official marginal reading in the textus receptus; but in all these three passages תקיז is the substantive reading according to the Eastern recension without the textual reading or Kethiv תקיז; (3) in the two passages where the Westerns read תקיז and the Easterns תקיז (Ezek. 13 17; Neh. 3 37) neither of these Schools according to the official List exhibits an alternative reading or Kethiv and Keri and (4) the printed Massorah Parva on Ezek. 13 2 which refers to the existence of these variations, but does not enumerate them, not only states that there are five, but what is more important calls these Keris by the interchangeable name Sevirin (תקיז-תקיז). That these simply represent the few instances which were preserved in one School of textual redactors, and that there are many more instances where the Sevir on תקיז must have been תקיז is evident from Josh. 15 13; 17 4; 1 Sam. 24 7; 2 Sam. 1 24; Jerem. 30 4; 33 14; 35 15, 17; Ezek. 12 19; 17 2; 21 7 &c. In several of these instances some MSS. and editions read תקיז as may be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Another important Rubric, recording the variations which were preserved in the different Massoretic Schools with regard to תקיז and תקיז, I found in the splendid Codex marked No. 1-3 of A. D. 1286 in the National Library, Paris on Josh. 5 14. It is as follows:

תקיז ויול למוצי קרי תקיז ותי 2 Sam. 14 22 ויול ותי
תקיז ויול למוצי קרי תקיז ותי Josh. 5 14 ויול ותי

The latter is תקיז in the textus receptus and תקיז according to the Easterns.

1 Besides the official List, we have the following interesting Rubric in the printed Massorah on Neh. 3 37. למוצי קרי תקיז, למוצי קרי תקיז. Here, therefore, no mention is made of a Kethiv and Keri.

§ 515. - תקיז

תקיז. In three passages in the Pentateuch תקיז is taken to denote תקיז. The Suras add a fourth, viz. Gen. 41 55. I have mislaid the reference to the MS. from which this Rubric is taken.

§ 516. - תקיז

תקיז. In four verses the preposition תקיז occurs first three times and is followed by תקיז. That is, the prepositions follow this order and no regard is had to the fact that two instances only are strictly in accordance with the heading (2 Sam. 14 38; Ezek. 10 2), and that in the third passage (Jerem. 48 21) the third תקיז and תקיז have both the prefix Vav, whilst in the fourth passage (Neh. 4 8) the second תקיז is with this prefix. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 423a, on Neh. 4 8 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 381b, on the same passage; (III) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 354 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 10 2. With the exception of List III all the other Lists state in the heading that there are four verses only which exhibit this peculiarity. Lists II and IV, however, give the catchwords for the fourth verses ואל הנהגה ואל הנהגה. As these words represent two distinct verses of the same chapter, viz. Neh. 4 8 and 13, List III states more correctly that there are five such verses and properly separates the catchwords into two instances. The heading in List II, viz. ואל ואל ואל ואל which is also given in the Massorah Parva of the same MS. is manifestly due to a clerical error.

§ 517. - תקיז

תקיז. In three verses the preposition תקיז is followed four times by this preposition with the prefix, i. e. by תקיז. Here too the sequence of four times תקיז with the prefix after תקיז, is emphasised though in one verse (Jerem. 27 3) תקיז without the prefix occurs again after the four instances with the prefix. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 355; (II) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 27 3 and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 894. Not only is the heading in List III wrong ואל ואל ואל ואל, but the catchword ואל ואל is a clerical error for ואל ואל - Jerem. 27 3. The Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 391, also mentions this Rubric and refers to the Massorah on Jerem. 27 3 for the List. But here too the heading in the Massorah Finalis ואל ואל ואל ואל is incorrect, since it is in one passage only (Jerem. 27 3) that ואל follows the four instances of ואל and the manifest design of the Massorah is to catalogue the four instances of ואל after ואל. It is evident that Jacob b. Chayim did not see that Rubrics 91 and 94 in his Massorah Finalis and the Massorah on Jerem. 27 3 are identical.

§ 518. - תקיז

תקיז. In seven verses the preposition תקיז occurs first, then תקיז and then תקיז again. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 5a, on Gen. 8 9 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 203a, on 2 Sam. 11 11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 18a, on Josh. 18 16; (IV) the same MS., fol. 80b, on 1 Kings 6 8; (V) the same MS., fol. 95a, on 1 Kings 20 30; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Gen. 8 9; (VII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 158; (VIII) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 353; (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 8 9 and (X) the same on Josh. 18 16.

§ 519. - תקיז

תקיז. In eighteen verses the preposition תקיז occurs first and is then followed twice by תקיז. Of this Rubric I collated thirteen Lists, ten in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 28b, on Gen. 42 21 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 62b, on Exod. 40 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 41b, on 1 Sam. 15 1; (IV) the same MS., fol. 90b, on 1 Kings 15 20; (V) the same MS., fol. 127b, on Isa. 22 15; (VI) the same MS., fol. 379b, on Neh. 1 6; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 48a, on Gen. 42 21; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 112a, on Exod. 28 30; (IX) the same MS., fol. 272b, on Deut. 11 29; (X) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 158; (XI) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 351; (XII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 40 20; and (XIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 171.

Lists II, IV, VI, XI and XIII head this Rubric יטעטט - nineteen verses and give Ezek. 48 21 as one of the verses.

§ 520. - תקיז

תקיז. Four verses in this book [i. e. Jeremiah] are alike in that the preposition תקיז occurs first and is then followed several times by תקיז by the first without the prefix Vav and the others are with it. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 11b, on Jerem. 7 20. One instance only, viz. Jerem. 44 20, exactly answers to the heading. In the first and second passages וְ is followed once by וְ and three times by וְ , whilst in the fourth passage it is followed six times by וְ . The design of the Massorah is simply to emphasise the uniform sequence of וְ after the solitary וְ .

תקניא = § 521a-d.

וְ . Words which respectively occur once only preceded by this preposition. That is, in the exceptional instances where these words occur again in combination with this preposition, it is וְ with the prefix Vav.

The four Rubrics which are here marked §§ 521a, 521b, 521c and 521d show in a striking manner the gradual development of the Massorah. The first fragment, which catalogues twelve instances only, discloses the fact that the original Massorite collated the words in this combination which begin with He and that he designed it as a part of an alphabetical List. But in the Massorah of the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 137a, on Numb. 17 28, where fourteen instances exhibiting this peculiarity are given, they are still without alphabetical order nor are they arranged according to the sequence of the books. In Rubric 521b, however, we have already the instances which the compiler of this List collated, arranged in a limited alphabet. But he too, like the compilers of the fragments, furnished no heading nor does he give the catchwords for the respective passages. It will be seen that he gives two words only to represent letter He and that neither is among the twelve given in § 521a as representing combinations with words which begin with this letter.

The most developed form of this Massorah is exhibited in § 521c. Not only are the different letters which compose the alphabet increased in number, but the List is supplied with a heading and catchwords are given in each instance to facilitate the identification of the respective passages. Because letter Vav is not represented, this alphabetical List is described in the heading as וְ = incomplete, i. e. wanting this letter. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, one, in MS. and three printed: (I) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah I, § 156, which I have printed; (II) Paris Oohlah Ve-Oohlah § 77; (III) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 17 4 and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter וְ , § 412.

Rubric 521d which is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 17a, on Gen. 27 9 is remarkable. This List does not record the instances which exhibit this combination alphabetically as is the case in the former recensions, but according to the order of the books. It is, therefore, evident that the two different recensions do not emanate from one and the same School of Massorites.

It will be seen that the two recensions of the Lists, viz. the alphabetical and the book sequence vary in the number of instances which they respectively record as exhibiting this combination. List 521b gives thirty-two, List 521c gives sixty, whilst List 521d gives fifty-seven. When it is stated that there are nearly five hundred such unique combinations with וְ it will readily be conceded that even the longest List gives simply a fragment of the actual number, and that the original Massorites left it to their colleagues gradually to complete the Rubric.

In 521d Judg. 7 17 should be Judg. 7 6.

תקניב = § 522a-b.

וְ . The following words throughout the Scriptures are always combined with וְ , but never with וְ . Though § 522a, which is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 196b, on Ezek. 44 30, has no heading in the MS. the heading of the identical Rubric 522b, which is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter וְ , § 402, emphatically states that this Massorah records words which occur several times in combination with וְ , but never with וְ . It is, therefore, designed as a contrast to the preceding Rubric. That Rubric registers words which occur once only in combination with וְ , but when they occur again combined with this preposition, they are preceded by וְ with the prefix Vav.

Accordingly both recensions of this List which are arranged alphabetically, the one exhibiting an incomplete alphabet with nineteen instances, and the other a complete one with thirty instances, suffer from serious corruptions: (1) They contain six instances which severally occur once only and which, therefore, belong to the preceding Rubric, viz. וְ Exod. 36 2; וְ Judg. 19 22; וְ 1 Sam. 1 19; וְ Numb. 32 18; וְ Numb. 24 11 and וְ Neh. 8 13. This is evident from the fact that there are more than four hundred and seventy unique combinations with וְ which do not occur with וְ ; (2) though the heading distinctly declares that none of the words recorded in this Massorah occur with וְ , no fewer than six are combined with וְ , viz. וְ 1 Sam. 23 8, 26; וְ Josh. 21 1;

Hag. 1 1; 2 2; וְ Eccl. 1 5; וְ Isa. 51 2; וְ Jerem. 3 6; וְ Zech. 3 10; וְ Neh. 1 11 and (3) three combinations are recorded which do not occur in the textus receptus, viz. וְ and וְ in the received text we have once וְ (Exod. 36 2). It is more than probable that these corruptions are due to a later Nakdan who arranged the original materials alphabetically. Mistaking the import of this Massorah he added these instances in order to obtain a respectable alphabet.

תקניג = § 523.

וְ . Words which are exceptionally combined with וְ , but which are normally in construction with the preposition וְ . Of this Rubric I collated the following Lists: (I) In the Dikduke Ha-Teamim edited by Baer and Strack, § 74, pp. 68-71, which I have printed; (II) Bodl. MS. No. 179, fol. 5a, which I have printed in the Massorah Vol. III, p. 1, § 523; (III) Codex Tzufut-Kale No. 17 which I have printed in Vol. III, p. 292, § 93; (IV) Codex Tzufut-Kale No. 15 which I have printed in Vol. III, p. 305, § 45; (V) British Museum Orient. 4227, fol. 278b, where it forms part of the וְ and (VI) the separate portions of it in the Massorah in Orient. 4445; on Gen. 42 17, fol. 32a; on Numb. 4 12, fol. 120a; on Numb. 31 8, fol. 151a-b.

תקניד = § 524a-k.

וְ . An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once preceded by וְ and once by וְ . The earlier portions of this Rubric, viz. 524a-g, as is the case in Rubric 521, furnish again an illustration of the gradual manner in which the Massorah was developed. In Orient. 4445, fols. 83a, 151b, where the two primitive fragments of this Massorah are given on Gen. 39 17 and Numb. 31 8, the first recording nineteen pairs and the second nine pairs, the attempt to arrange the comparatively few instances in alphabetical order is still very irregular. More successful are the fragments consisting respectively of fourteen, three, four, seven, five and twenty pairs in § 524a-g which I have printed from Harley 5710-11, on Gen. 48 22; Exod. 2 15; Numb. 35 8; Exod. 9 14; 1 Chron. 13 7; Vol. I, fols. 38a, 36b, 40a, Vol. II, fol. 139a, as well as from Arund. Orient. 16, fols. 76b, 377a, on 1 Kings 1 23 and Ezra 8 17.

In §§ 524h and 524i we have already these pairs ranged in alphabetical order. But even here the Lists do not contain all the instances in the Bible. List 524h gives thirty-two pairs only, whilst List 524i, which is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 21 26 and which, therefore, exhibits the oldest alphabet, not only gives one example for each letter, but omits the pair for letter Ayin (ע) and as no instances exist to represent letter Vav (ו), records twenty pairs only.

The most complete Rubric is that given in § 524k and the extensive catchwords attached to each passage show that it is a later recension. Of it I collated three Lists: (I) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah I, § 2, which I have printed; (II) Paris Oohlah Ve-Oohlah § 2, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter וְ , § 413. Lists I and III are identical. They not only tabulate the same seventy-two pairs, but give the same catchwords, thus affording another conclusive proof that Jacob b. Chayim took the greater part of his Massoretic Lists from this recension of the Oohlah Ve-Oohlah as stated by Levita.

This extensive Rubric, however, contains passages some of which are erroneous and some which cannot be reconciled with the present textus receptus. There are also omissions in it which are manifestly due to the oversight of the compiler, as will be seen from the following analysis: (1) the combination וְ does not occur, וְ is twice preceded by the preposition, and in both instances it is וְ . Moreover it is וְ the singular in one passage (Gen. 42 21) and וְ the plural in the other (1 Chron. 13 2). Yet this pair is not only given in all the three Lists of 524k, but in § 524a; § 524g and § 524h; (2) וְ the second of the fifth pair does not occur, though it is not only given in all the three Lists of 521k, but in § 524a, and § 524g; (3) וְ which is the first of the thirteenth pair and in all the three Lists of 524k and in § 524h, occurs twice (Josh. 5 3; 1 Sam. 10 5) and hence does not belong to these unique combinations; (4) וְ which is given as the second of the twenty-seventh pair in Lists I and III of Rubric 524k as well as in § 524b, does not occur and is omitted in List II of Rubric 524k; (5) וְ which is given as the second of the thirty-ninth pair not only in all the three Lists of Rubric 524k, but in § 524h, does not occur. The pair to it, which is וְ (Zech. 12 10) with the prefix Vav does not belong to this Rubric; (6) וְ which is given as the first member of the fifty-third pair both in Lists I and III does not occur, whilst על-על the pair to it occurs three times (Ezra 3 8; 1 Chron. 9 19; 23 4); (7) the first member of the fifty-fourth pair is על-על with Vav prefix which is against the import of this Massorah and yet it is given in all the three Lists of Rubric 524k (8) על-על the second member of the sixteenth pair does not occur. The instance here given in all the three Lists of Rubric 524k is על-על with the prefix Vav which is contrary to the import of this Massorah, and (9) על-על the first member of the sixty-seventh pair which is given in Lists I and III of Rubric 524k does not occur and though it is omitted in List II of this Rubric it is given in the first fragment of the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 83a, on Exod. 39 17.

The following four pairs are omitted (1) על-על Levit. 13 2, Gen. 22 2; (2) על-על Isa. 17 8, 2 Kings 23 20; (3) על-על 1 Chron. 16 23, 2 Sam. 25 8 and (4) על-על Zech. 5 8, 1 Kings 7 31.

על-על = § 525.

על-על. Ten words [or twenty pairs] are twice preceded by על and twice by על. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 36b, on Exod. 4 18 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 313a, on Ps. 115 1; (III) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 156; (IV) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 88 and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 168.

על-על = § 526.

על-על. Six groups of words are respectively preceded once by על, once by על and once by על. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 41b, on Exod. 12 22 which I have printed; (II) the same MS. Vol. II, fol. 57b, on Jerem. 36 29; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 52b, on Exod. 12 22; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 34a, on Judg. 21 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 277b, on 2 Chron. 32 9; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, I § 156; (VII) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 89 and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 169.

על-על = § 527.

על-על to thy fathers, occurs twice combined in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the reading על-על in 2 Chron. 34 28, since both some MSS. and the editio princeps of the Hagiographa read it על-על in accordance with the parallel passage in 2 Kings 22 20. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 171a, on 2 Chron. 34 28 which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 19b, on Gen. 15 15.

על-על = § 528.

על-על into the land, occurs six times in this combination. The design of this Massorah is two-fold. It is to guard it against the normal expression על-על into the land or country, since this is the sense in five out of the six passages which constitute this Rubric. And in the second place it is to safeguard this exceptional combination of the preposition על with על, since in all the other twenty-two passages where על-על is preceded by the preposition it is על and not על.¹

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 56b, on Jerem. 35 15 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 83b, on 1 Kings 8 34; (III) the same MS., fol. 170b, on Jerem. 35 15; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 122a, on Deut. 31 20; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 159; (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter m, § 81 and (VII) the same letter m, § 422.

¹ Comp. Gen. 7 8; Exod. 10 6; 20 12; Numb. 11 12; Deut. 4 10, 40; 5 16; 7 13; 11 9, 21; 12 1; 25 15; 28 11; 30 18, 20; 31 13; 32 47; 1 Sam. 20 31; 2 Sam. 17 12; Isa. 24 21; Jerem. 25 5; Ezek. 38 20.

על-על = § 529.

על-על to the land of [Israel], occurs eight times in this combination [in Ezekiel]. The same two-fold reason which is at the basis of the preceding Massorah also underlies this Rubric. It is designed in the first place to safeguard this combination against the interchangeable phrase על-על. This is evident from the following Massorah in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 184a, on Ezek. 27 17 throughout this book [Ezekiel] it is על-על except in three instances where it is על-על, viz. Ezek. 27 17; 40 2; 47 18.¹

¹ כל ספרו אודות ישראל בלבד אנו יושבלי וסוים יזרחת וסוים ישראל, במראות אלהים הביאנו אל ארץ ישראל, ונחמת קרים סבון חזק.

In the second place it is to safeguard the combination על-על with על, since in the other six passages, where על-על is preceded by the preposition, it is על and not על.¹

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 77b, on Ezek. 12 19 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 179a, on Ezek. 20 42; (III) the same MS., fol. 183a, on Ezek. 37 12; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezek. 20 42; (V) the same Codex on Ezek. 37 12 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 12 19.

Lists III, IV, V and VI head the Rubric על-על which is more correct, since in three instances the preposition has the prefix Vav (Ezek. 13 9; 20 38; 25 3), whilst Lists II and VI have also על-על = eight times in this book because all the instances occur in Ezekiel.

¹ Comp. Ezek. 12 22; 18 2; 33 24; 36 6; 38 18, 19.

על-על = § 530.

על-על to God, occurs three times in the Pentateuch and in the Prophets . . . and three times in the Psalms. In all the other twenty instances where this combination occurs, it is על-על with the article. The three passages in the Psalms are 55 17; 62 2; 84 8. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is not quite correct since על-על occurs four times in the Pentateuch and the Prophets, Hos. 3 1 is here omitted. I mislaid the reference to the MS. from which it is taken.

על-על = § 531.

על-על to the four, occurs four times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 79b, on Ezek. 10 11. It is designed to exclude the Keri על-על in Ezek. 46 21 which is to be found in some MSS. and is given in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916.¹

על-על = § 532.

על-על to the ark, occurs three times. That is in three instances על-על is preceded by על without and with the prefix Vav. In the other eight passages, where it is in combination with the preposition, it is על and not על.¹ This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter m, § 710.

¹ Comp. Exod. 25 21; 40 8, 20, 20; Levit. 16 2; 1 Kings 8 7; 1 Chron. 13 10; 2 Chron. 5 8.

על-על = § 533.

על-על to the land, occurs four times in this combination . . . in the other passages in this book it is על-על. That is, in these four passages only is על-על preceded by על in Genesis, whilst in the thirty-one other instances where it is combined with the preposition it is על and not על. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Gen. 12 1 where it is given twice.

¹ Comp. Gen. 1 11, 16, 17, 20, 26, 28, 30; 2 5; 6 12, 17; 7 4, 6, 10, 12, 14, 17, 18, 19, 21, 21, 24; 8 1, 17, 17, 19; 9 14, 16, 17; 19 23; 41 34; 42 6.

על-על = § 534.

על-על. Throughout Leviticus it is על-על except in three instances where it is על-על. In Leviticus, where על-על is eleven times preceded by the preposition, it is in eight instances על-על and in three passages only is it combined with על. Hence the Massorah records the exceptional combination. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 76a, on Levit. 19 23.

¹ Comp. Levit. 11 2, 21, 29, 41, 42, 44, 46; 25 18.

על-על = § 535.

על-על occurs five times in this book, i. e. Ezekiel. In Ezekiel על-על is seven times preceded by על and six times by על. The Massorah, therefore, catalogues the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 83b, on Ezek. 14 19, and is designed to exclude the Eastern reading על-על in 14 19. It is remarkable that Ezek. 13 14 which is also על-על is omitted. The meaningless addition על-על at the end of the Rubric is simply intended to fill up the line in the MS.

¹ Comp. Ezek. 14 17; 24 7; 26 16; 28 18; 33 3; 36 18; 37 25.

תקליז = § 536a.

This Rubric, which records the instances in the Pentateuch where ... is preceded by the preposition ... and where it is combined with ... does not occur in the printed Massorah in this separate form. I have printed it from the Massorah in the Vienna Codex No. 35 on Exod. 16 14.

We have already seen that Rubrics 533 and 534 catalogue the instances in Genesis and Leviticus. These separate Lists exhibit the original form in which the Massorites laboured on the individual books of the Bible. The Rubric before us embraces the whole Pentateuch and shows the artificial manner in which the several Lists have been linked together at a later period.

Genesis. — In Genesis, where the combination ... is the rule and ... the exception, the Massorites record the exception. Vide supra, § 533.

Exodus. — In Exodus, where ... occurs three times (6 8; 12 25; 33 1) and ... once only, the exceptional instance is safeguarded.

Leviticus. — In Leviticus, where ... occurs eight times and ... three times only, the minority is registered. Vide supra, § 534.

Numbers and Deuteronomy are joined together. In these two books ... is the rule. It occurs no fewer than twenty-nine times, whilst the combination ... occurs eleven times only, the Massorah registers the minority.

1 Comp. ... Numb. 13 27; 14 3, 8, 16, 24, 30; 15 18; 20 12, 24; 32 7, 9; 34 2; Dent. 2 29; 4 21; 6 10; 7 1; 9 2; 11 29; 17 14; 18 9; 26 1, 3; 27 2, 3; 30 5; 31 7, 21, 23; 32 52.

תקליז = § 536b.

This Rubric is a still further development and records these combinations throughout the whole Bible. With the exception of the difference in the arrangement of the catchwords, the part which catalogues the instances in Genesis, Exodus and Leviticus is the same. The other two books, however, viz. Numbers and Deuteronomy, this Massorah combines with Joshua, Judges and Samuel. When it is borne in mind that ... occurs once only in Joshua (1 2) and once in Judges (2 1) and that it does not occur at all in Samuel, whilst ... does not occur at all in Joshua and Judges and only once in Samuel, it will be seen that the sentence and throughout the rest of the Pentateuch, Joshua, Judges and Samuel it is likewise ... except in twelve instances where it is ... which groups these books together, is not only highly artificial, but misleading to those who are not conversant with the language of the Massorah.

Kings. — In Kings, where ... occurs five times and ... once, the single instance is safeguarded.

Isaiah. — In Isaiah, where ... occurs twice (36 10; 51 6) and ... twice, the former is recorded.

Jeremiah. — In Jeremiah, where ... occurs eight times (3 18; 16 13; 22 26, 28; 24 6; 25 9, 13; 50 21) and ... twice only, the minority is given.

Ezekiel. — This book is artificially divided into two parts for the purpose of Massoretic annotation in connection with this Rubric. In the first part, which includes Ezek. 1-21 ... occurs five times (13 14; 14 19; 20 15, 28, 42) and ... only once, the single instance is recorded. In the second part of Ezekiel, however, where ... is the rule and where it occurs six times (24 7; 26 16; 28 18; 33 3; 36 18; 37 25) and ... the exception and where it occurs once only, the single instance is recorded.

In the rest of the Scriptures, where ... is the rule and where it occurs no fewer than fourteen times whilst ... occurs twice only, the exception is recorded.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 160 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ... § 748. The latter portion of this Rubric, which treats on the second part of Ezekiel and the rest of the Scriptures, is also given separately in the printed Massorah on Ezekiel 14 17. The catchwords ... = Ezek. 26 16, which are not only given in both the complete Lists, but also in the fragment, are manifestly a mistake for ... = 27 29.

1 Comp. ... 1 Kings 8 27; 2 Kings 11 3; 15 19; 18 26; 23 33.

2 Comp. ... Hag. 1 11; Pa. 103 11; 105 16; Eccl. 5 1; 8 14, 16; 10 7; 11 2, 3; 12 7; Esther 10 1; 1 Chron. 29 16; 2 Chron. 6 18; 22 12.

תקליז = § 537.

to his land, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 184a, on Isa. 37 7. As this phrase occurs four times in the textus receptus, it is remarkable that this Model Codex should omit 1 Kings 22 36 and Isa. 13 14. The omission of 1 Kings 22 36 may be due to the fact that some ancient Codices read it ... instead of the present reading ... This is attested not only by the Septuagint and Vulgate, but by the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485, and the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488. For the omission of Isaiah 13 14 I cannot account.

תקליח = § 538.

whither, occurs five times. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 57a, on Exod. 32 34 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 109a, on Numb. 33 54; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 70b, on Ezek. 1 12; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 98b, on Ezek. 42 14; (V) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 258b, on Ruth 1 16; (VI) Orient. 4445, fol. 75b, on Exod. 32 34; (VII) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 194b, on Ezek. 42 14; (VIII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 159; (IX) the printed Massorah on Exod. 32 34 and (X) the same on Ezek. 1 12.

תקליט = § 539.

to Babylon, occurs six times in this combination in the Scriptures. That is, to distinguish it from the ten instances where it is ... Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 69a, on Jerem. 51 60 which I have printed; (II) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 50 1; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 51 60; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 159, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ... § 423.

1 Comp. ... Jerem. 50 9, 13, 14; 51 1, 11, 29, 35, 42, 48, 56.

תקלס = § 540.

to the house. Throughout Isaiah and Kings it is always ... except in four instances in Kings. That is ... which is eighteen times combined with the preposition in Kings and Isaiah is in fourteen instances preceded by ... and in four passages only by ... Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority, and thereby excludes the Keri ... in 1 Kings 8 29 which was the official reading according to some Schools of textual redactors, as is evident from the important Codex Add. 21,161. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis letter ... § 158. It is also given in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 83a, on 1 Kings 8 29, where the heading is simply ... For a fuller development of this Rubric see letter ... § 406, Vol. II, p. 397.

1 Comp. ... 1 Kings 4 6; 8 43; 16 9; 18 3; 2 Kings 10 5; 12 13; 15 5; 18 18, 37; 19 2; Isa. 22 15; 36 3, 22; 37 2.

תקלמ = § 541.

to the house of, is twice taken in the sense of into the house of. That is, in these two passages, where ... is preceded by ... it ought to be ... and is so given in Onkelos, as it is in the second clauses of Gen. 39 20, in verse 23 and in Gen. 40 5.

תקלנ = § 542.

to the house of, occurs four times in Jeremiah. ... which is in six instances combined with the preposition in Jeremiah, is twice preceded by ... (3 18; 22 6) and four times by ... It is remarkable that the Massorah, contrary to its usual method, safeguards here the majority. This may be due to the fact that in Jeremiah 33 14 we should naturally expect ... as is evident from the next clause. It is, however, probable that the five passages, where ... is preceded by ... with the prefix Vav, are included (Jerem. 6 1; 33 14; 48 22, 23, 23). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 169a, on Jerem. 33 14 and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תקלס = § 543.

to the house of, occurs three times in the Minor Prophets. In the Minor Prophets, where ... is eleven times combined with the preposition without and with the prefix Vav, it is seven times preceded by ... and four times by ... without and with the prefix Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 218b, on Zech. 5 4. The omission

1 Comp. ... Hosea 1 4; 8 1; Amos 3 15; 7 9, 16; Zech. 12 10 and ... Zech. 12 4.

of Micah 4 2 is unaccountable, since this Rubric includes with the prefix Vav, as is evident from Zech. 5 4 which is counted twice and where the second instance in this verse is תקמ"ד = § 544.

על ביתי ועל בית upon the house of, and upon the house of. In thirteen passages of the Scriptures is preceded by without and with the prefix Vav In Kings, Isaiah, Jeremiah and in the Twelve Minor Prophets it is likewise so except in eleven instances where it is preceded by without and with the prefix Vav.

To understand this Rubric it is necessary to remark (1) that בית, which occurs ninety-five times in combination with the preposition, is in sixty-one instances preceded by without and with the prefix Vav and thirty-four times by without and with the prefix Vav; (2) that the combination with is the rule in all the books of the Bible with the exception of four; (3) that excepting these four, the combination with occurs fifty times and with thirteen times only and (4) that in these four books the combination with occurs twenty-one times and with eleven times only. Hence the Massorah divides the Bible into two parts, the first part embraces the books in which the combination with is the exception and the second part the books in which the combination with is the exception so as to safeguard the minority in each of the two divisions.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 77a, on Ezek. 13 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 197a, on 2 Sam. 1 12; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 34a, on Gen. 42 19; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 57a, on 2 Sam. 1 12; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 83a, on Numb. 2 34; (VI) the same MS., fol. 168b, on 2 Sam. 1 12; (VII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 159, and (VIII) the printed Massorah where this Rubric is divided into two, the first part is given on Numb. 2 34 and the second on 1 Kings 14 10.

1 Comp. Gen. 19 2; 24 38; 28 21; 39 20; 40 3; 46 31; 50 4; Levit. 22 18; Josh. 17 17; 21 48; Judg. 18 15; 19 2, 2; 1 Sam. 2 27; 7 1; 19 11; 2 Sam. 4 5; 7 19; 17 18; 21 1; Ezek. 3 1, 4, 5; 14 6; 17 2; 20 27, 30; 24 3; 25 3; 33 10; 44 6; Ps. 62 2; Cant. 2 4; 3 4; 8 2; Eccl. 4 7; 7 2, 2; 12 5; Esther 3 8, 14, 16; 7 8; Ezra 3 8; Neh. 6 10; 1 Chron. 13 13; 2 Chron. 7 2; 20 28; 35 21.

2 Comp. Gen. 1 Kings 2 27; 2 Kings 10 3, 10; 11 18; Isa. 7 17; 14 1; 31 2; 38 20; Jerem. 3 18; 22 6; 33 14; 49 23, 23, 23; Hos. 1 4; 8 1; Amos. 3 15; 7 9, 16; Zech. 12 4, 10.

3 The two instances, where is combined with בית (1 Kings 13 1, 10), are excluded because it is a proper name.

תקמ"ה = § 545.

אליהם to daughters of, occurs three times. That is, according to the Westerns whose recension we follow. According to the Easterns it occurs twice only, since they read עליהם in Ezek. 13 17. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 232a, on Numb. 25 1 and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 232.

תקמ"ו = § 546.

אלהם to the nations, occurs twice. That is, without the article before them, in the other passages where this combination occurs it is אליהם. These are given in the following Rubric.

תקמ"ז = § 547.

אלהם to the nations, occurs five times. In the other five instances, where הם is in combination with the preposition, it is אל and not אלי. The safeguarding of these five passages is due to the fact that in Zech. 2 12 some MSS. and the ancient Versions exhibit אל, and אל is naturally also expected in Ps. 79 6 as is evident from the next clause of the verse.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 31a, on Isa. 66 19 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 147a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 192b, on Ezek. 39 28; (IV) the same MS., fol. 217b, on Zech. 2 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 304a, on Ps. 79 6, where the five instances of the combination with אל are given as a contrast to this combination; (VI) the printed Massorah on Isa. 66 19 and (VII) the same on Ezek. 39 28.

תקמ"ח = § 548.

אל גלילות הירדן to the borders of Jordan, occurs twice. To safeguard it against Josh. 18 17 where it is simply אל גלילות without הירדן. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 136b, on Josh. 22 10.

תקמ"ט = § 549.

אלהם to the words of. Throughout the Pentateuch it is אל and throughout Chronicles it is אל with the exception of one instance where it is אל.

The wording of this Massorah would naturally mislead those who are not familiar with its artificial expressions, since it would apparently suggest that אל is of frequent occurrence in the Pentateuch, whereas this combination occurs only once in the whole Pentateuch (Deut. 13 4). What the Massorah really means is that אל is preceded by אל in the Pentateuch, but never by אל, whereas in Chronicles it is always preceded by אל (1 Chron. 29 29; 2 Chron. 9 29; 32 8; 33 18, 19; 34 21) and once only by אל. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 131a, on Deut. 13 4.

תק"ן = § 550.

אלהם to my words, occurs three times. In the only other instance where אל is preceded by the preposition, it is אל (Jerem. 6 19). Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 29 19 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 165b, on the same passage where the Scribe omitted the expression ואלהם and, therefore, some one ignorantly altered : in the heading into ב; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 138b, on Deut. 18 19 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 29 19.

תקנ"א = § 551.

אלהם to the way, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to אל which occurs five times (Gen. 38 21; Judg. 4 9; 1 Sam. 24 3; 26 8; Ezra 8 31). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 260b, on 2 Chron. 6 27 and Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

תקנ"ב = § 551 a-b.

אלהם. These two Rubrics, which I have printed in Volume III, p. 1, are respectively from Orient. 2349, fol. 50a, and the printed Massorah both on Gen. 38 16. אל without and with the prefixes and suffixes, which is twenty-four times combined with the preposition, is in seventeen instances preceded by אל and in seven instances only by אל. Hence the Massorah as usual safeguards the minority. Accordingly the first recension of this Rubric, which gives four instances only, is incorrect. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the Eastern reading אל in Judg. 20 42.

1 Comp. Gen. 38 14; Judg. 5 10; 1 Sam. 6 12; Hos. 13 7; Ps. 36 6; Jerem. 2 2; 6 16; Job 34 21; Hag. 1 5, 7; Job 24 23.

תקנ"ג = § 552.

אלהם to, or upon the mountain, occurs sixteen times. That is, to distinguish it from the eighteen instances in which אל is preceded by אל. This Rubric, therefore, safeguards the Western reading אל in Isa. 56 7 against the Eastern recension which reads אל.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 104a, on Numb. 27 12 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 149a, on Josh. 15 10; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 43a, on Exod. 3 1; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 56 7; (V) the same Codex on Ezek. 40 2; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 11a, on Josh. 15 10; (VII) the same MS., fol. 119a, on Isa. 2 3; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 211a, on Micah 4 2; (IX) the same MS., fol. 294b, on Ps. 43 3; (X) the same MS., fol. 349b, on Cant. 4 6; (XI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 159, and (XII) the printed Massorah on Isa. 56 7.

List I which I have printed omits Ps. 43 3. This is manifestly due to a clerical error, for not only does the heading state that there are sixteen such instances, but all the other Lists give the instance in question. The addition that wherever it is in connection with Carmel without or with the article it is likewise אל, which is also at the end of all the eleven Lists, refers to the four instances in Kings, viz. 1 Kings 18 19, 20; 2 Kings 2 25; 4 25, where this combination occurs.

1 Comp. Exod. 19 11, 20; 24 16; Deut. 11 29, 29; 27 12; Isa. 13 2; 29 8; 31 4; 40 9; 57 7; 66 20; Ezek. 17 22; 34 2; Obad. 16; Zech. 14 4; Lament. 5 18; Dan. 9 20.

It is to be remarked that not only do both the Lists in the St. Petersburg Codex, viz. Nos. IV and V give Isa. 56 7 as one of the sixteen instances, but that the text on which the first List is given reads ... This conclusively shows that neither the textual reading nor the Massorah exhibits the Babylonian recension.

תקניו = § 553.

to, or on the mountains, occurs twice in this combination ... and throughout Ezekiel it is likewise so except in two instances where it is ...

is twenty-two times combined with the preposition. In fifteen instances it is preceded by ' and in seven instances by . Outside Ezekiel is the exceptional combination whilst in Ezekiel is the exception. Hence the Massorah in each case safeguards the minority. This Massorah is designed to exclude the Keri in Isa. 65 7 which is the official reading in Standard Codices and is the textual reading in the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485-86; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488, and in the third edition, Brescia 1494.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 273a, on 1 Kings 22 17 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 215b, on Ps. 121 1; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 96b; (IV) the same MS., fol. 316a, on the same two passages; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 159, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 121 1.

The Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal in § 2 of the Supplement registers the two passages in Ezekiel where is followed by two different predicates with variations in the vowel-points of the same verb. The Rubric is as follows:

Ezek. 18 11 ופי רמבל מהו פוהי
אלהקרום אכל פהו וחר
אלהקרום לא אכל קבץ
ולא אכל קבץ פוהי

That is, in one instance is followed by Pathach under the Caph and in one by with Kametz under the Caph. And the mnemonic sign is at eating (the mouth is opened Pathach), and when not eating (the mouth is closed Kametz). The sign is based upon the double meaning of Pathach and Kametz.

1 Comp. Deut. 12 2; Judg. 11 37, 38; Isa. 52 7; 65 7; Jerem. 9 9; Ezek. 18 15; Joel 2 2; Nah. 2 1; 3 18; Cant. 2 8; Lament. 4 19; 1 Chron. 12 9; 2 Chron. 18 16.

2 Comp. Levita, Massoreth Ha-Massoreth, p. 266, ed. Ginsburg, London 1867.

תנסיו = § 554.

to, or on the mountains of, occurs five times. The construct plural is fourteen times combined with the preposition. In nine instances it is preceded by ' and in five only by . The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority and thereby excludes the reading Cant. 2 17 which is exhibited in the Eastern recension. Vide supra, § 514.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 178b, on Ezek. 19 9 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 188b, on Ezek. 34 13; (III) the same MS., fol. 189b, on Ezek. 36 1; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 6 2; (V) the same Codex on Ezek. 19 9; (VI) the same Codex on Ezek. 34 13; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 285b, on Ezek. 36 1; (VIII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 159; (IX) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 6 2 and (X) the same on Ezek. 34 13.

It is remarkable that List IV not only heads this Rubric but catalogues four instances only, omitting Ezek. 36 1 and in the text the in is underlined, thus showing that it is meant for . The Massorah on it, however, states that it is one of the five instances where it is and the other two Lists in this Codex, viz. Nos. V and VI, give both in the heading and in the Rubric five instances which fully coincide with all other Lists.

1 Comp. Gen. 8 4; Jerem. 13 16; Ezek. 35 12; 38 8; 39 4, 17; Amos 3 9; Cant. 2 17; 8 14.

תקניו = § 555.

unto Haggai, occurs twice ... all the others are by the hand of Haggai. The phrase which expresses the communication of the word of Jehovah to this prophet occurs five times in this book. In three instances it is followed by by the hand of Haggai (Hag. 1 1; 2 1) and twice by . Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority and thereby excludes the reading in 2 10 which obtained in some Schools of textual redactors and which is exhibited in the famous Codex Hellai, the Complutensian Polyglot, the editio princeps of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-25; the Syriac and the Chaldee. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 259a, on Hag. 2 10.

תקניו = § 556.

to the wall, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures ... and they are unique in this combination. occurs twelve times in combination with the preposition. In nine instances it is preceded by ' and in three instances only it is preceded by . The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 293a, on Neh. 4 9 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 68a, on 2 Sam. 11 21; (III) the same MS., fol. 381b, on Neh. 4 9; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 174a, on 2 Sam. 11 21; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VI) the same Codex on Neh. 4 9, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter n, § 27.

The tautological remark at the end of the Rubric has been added to fill up the line. I have printed it as it is in the MS. to show that unnecessary phrases are often used by Scribes as part of the Massorah which are simply intended to fill up a vacant space.

1 Comp. 2 Kings 3 27; 6 26, 30; 18 26, 27; Isa. 36 11, 12; Neh. 4 13; 2 Chron. 32 18.

תקניו = § 557.

to the court, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the construct which also occurs twice (Jerem. 32 8; Ezek. 8 16). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 193b, on Ezek. 40 28 which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 292b, on the same passage.

תקניו = § 558.

to the hand or side, occurs five times in the Scriptures ... and throughout the book of Esther it is likewise so except in one instance.

The expression is thirty-four times combined with the preposition. In twenty-five instances it is preceded by ' and in nine only by . Outside the book of Esther the combination occurs five times only and twenty-three times, whilst in Esther occurs four times (Esther 2 3, 8, 8, 14) and once only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority in each case. By fixing the number of at five, the Massorah defends the Western reading both in Zech. 14 13 and Esther 2 14 where the Easterns read .

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 215b, on Ps. 123 2 which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 48 1; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 198a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 316a, on Ps. 123 2; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 293b, on Ezek. 48 1; (VI) the same MS., fol. 372a, on Ps. 123 2; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 159, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 48 1.

The List from the St. Petersburg Codex, i. e. No. 11 affords another striking proof that this so-called Babylonian Codex exhibits the Western recension, since it excludes Zech. 14 13 which is according to the Babylonians.

1 Comp. Gen. 41 42; Exod. 2 5; Josh. 15 40; 1 Sam. 17 22; 2 Sam. 15 2; 1 Kings 14 27; 2 Kings 22 5, 9; Jerem. 22 24; 46 6; Zech. 14 13; Ps. 121 5; Prov. 13 11; Esther 6 9; Dan. 10 4; Ezra 1 8; 8 33; 1 Chron. 25 2; 26 28; 29 8; 2 Chron. 12 10; 21 16; 26 11; 34 10, 17. This is exclusive of 2 Kings 12 12 where the Kethib is for which the official reading is the plural.

תקניו = § 559.

to Judah, occurs six times in the Scriptures. In all the other nineteen instances where is combined with the preposition it is ' and not .

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 293b, on Neh. 2 5

1 Comp. 2 Sam. 5 5; 1 Kings 15 1, 17; 22 41; 2 Kings 9 29; Isa. 1 1; 2 1; 9 20; Zeph. 1 4; Zech. 12 2, 7; 2 Chron. 13 1; 16 1; 20 31; 24 18; 28 9; 29 8; 34 4, 10.

which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 272a, on 2 Chron. 24 23; (III) the same MS., fol. 380a, on Neh. 2 5; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 40b, on Gen. 38 22; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 50a, on the same passage; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Neh. 2 5; (VII) Halle Ochlak Ve-Ochlak I, § 159; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 38 22 and (IX) the same on Ezek. 48 1.

As one of the six instances is וְאֵלֶּיךָ with the prefix Vav (Jerem. 30 4) the headings in Lists II, IV and V which state (הוּא וְאֵלֶּיךָ הוּא) that it occurs five times and that once it is with the prefix is more correct. List VII heads it וְאֵלֶּיךָ הוּא it occurs four times, though it rightly registers all the five instances and omits the one with the prefix. The heading in List VIII which states that there are six such instances is incorrect, it ought to be five (הוּא) as is evident from the addition at the end הוּא וְאֵלֶּיךָ הוּא.

תקים = § 560.

אֶלְיָהוּ. Throughout Ezekiel and the Minor Prophets it is always אֶלְיָהוּ with the exception of two instances where it is אֶלְיָהוּ. In all the rest of the Scriptures it is likewise אֶלְיָהוּ with the exception of one instance.

הוּא is twenty-three times in combination with the preposition. In ten passages it is preceded by אֶל־ and in thirteen by אֶלְיָהוּ. As nine out of the ten passages, where it is אֶלְיָהוּ, occur in Ezekiel and the Minor Prophets, and moreover, as apart from the two instances in Ezekiel all the eleven passages, where it is אֶלְיָהוּ, occur outside Ezekiel and the Minor Prophets and one instance only of אֶלְיָהוּ is to be found in the other Scriptures, this Massorah safeguards the two exceptions of אֶלְיָהוּ in Ezekiel and the Minor Prophets and the solitary instance of אֶלְיָהוּ in the other parts of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 199a, on Ezek. 48 28 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 351a, on Eccl. 1 7; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 301b on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochlak Ve-Ochlak I, § 159, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 48 28.

1 Comp. אֶלְיָהוּ Ezek. 47 19; Joel 2 20, 20; Jonah 1 4, 5, 12, 16; Zech. 14 8, 8; Eccl. 1 7.

1 Comp. אֶלְיָהוּ Exod. 14 2, 16, 21, 26, 27; Numb. 13 29; Josh. 5 1; 2 Sam. 17 11; 1 Kings 4 20; Isa. 10 26; 23 11; Ezek. 47 18; 48 28.

תקס"א = § 561.

אֶלְיָהוּ לְיִשְׂרָאֵל to Jerusalem, occurs thirteen times in the Scriptures . . . and throughout Ezra it is likewise so except in one instance.

Apart from Ezra-Nehemiah אֶלְיָהוּ לְיִשְׂרָאֵל is forty-two times combined with the preposition. In twenty-nine instances it is preceded by אֶל־ and in thirteen instances only by אֶלְיָהוּ. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. In Ezra-Nehemiah, however, where אֶלְיָהוּ לְיִשְׂרָאֵל occurs five times in combination with the preposition and where it is in four instances preceded by אֶל־ (Ezra 3 1; 7 7, 9; Neh. 2 11) and once only by אֶלְיָהוּ, the Massorah safeguards the solitary instance. Ezra 4 8, 20 are excluded from this Rubric because they are both Chaldee. By fixing the number at thirteen, the Massorah designedly excludes Ezek. 14 22 where the Easterns read אֶלְיָהוּ לְיִשְׂרָאֵל.

Of this Rubric I collated sixteen Lists, fifteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 59b, on Jerem. 39 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 76b, on Ezek. 13 16; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 83a, on Ezek. 21 7; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 39 1; (V) the same Codex on Ezek. 14 22; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 173b, on Jerem. 39 1; (VII) the same MS., fol. 175b, on Ezek. 14 21; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 180a, on Ezek. 21 7; (IX) the same MS., fol. 182b, on Ezek. 24 2; (X) the same MS., fol. 221b, on Zech. 14 2; (XI) the same MS., fol. 247b, on 1 Chron. 15 3; (XII) the same MS., fol. 259b, on 2 Chron. 5 2; (XIII) the same MS., fol. 269a, on 2 Chron. 20 27; (XIV) the same MS., fol. 270b, on 2 Chron. 23 2; (XV) Halle Ochlak Ve-Ochlak I, § 159, and (XVI) the printed Massorah on Zech. 14 17.

In the List which I have printed, the order and the division of the catchwords in Chronicles should be

2 Chron. 5 2 ויקהל שלום 1 Chron. 16 3 ויקהל דוד
1 " 28 1 ויבירו

This yields the requisite thirteen instances instead of the twelve as printed. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, List XVI, also gives twelve instances only, though the heading correctly states that there are thirteen. This is due to the omission of ויבירו =

1 Chron. 28 1 after ויקהל דוד וְאֵלֶּיךָ לְיִשְׂרָאֵל = 1 Chron. 15 3. At the end of this, moreover, the essential words בְּנֵי אֲמָרָה אֲנִי הוּא are omitted after וְאֵלֶּיךָ לְיִשְׂרָאֵל.

As Lists IV and V are from the so-called Babylonian Codex, they afford additional materials for testing the relationship of the Massorah of this Codex to the Babylonian recension. The first of these two Lists gives identically the same thirteen passages as the Western Lists and like the Western Lists deliberately excludes the Eastern reading in Ezek. 14 22. It is the second List on Ezek. 14 22 which is very instructive. The text itself exhibits the Eastern reading and though the heading of the Massoretic List here also emphatically states that there are thirteen instances only, which is in accordance with the Western recension, fourteen are enumerated, the words הוּא וְאֵלֶּיךָ = Ezek. 14 22 being added at the end of the List. That this addition, however, is no part of the original List, is not only evident from the fact that it is in direct conflict with the heading, but from the position which these words occupy. The List itself is identical both in the catchwords and in the order of the books with the first List. It is at the end of the Rubric after Chronicles, and separated from the other instances in Ezekiel that these words have been added by a later Scribe who, for reasons best known to himself, has frequently attempted to make this Codex conformable to the Eastern recension.

1 Comp. 1 Kings 14 25; 2 Kings 12 18; 21 12, 13; 25 1; Isa. 31 5; Jerem. 4 16; 6 6; 32 2; 34 1, 7; 37 5; 44 2, 13; 52 4; Ezek. 9 8; 14 22; 26 2; Zech. 1 16; 12 2, 9; 14 12, 16; Ps. 68 30; Eccl. 1 16; 1 Chron. 21 16; 2 Chron. 12 2, 9; 32 2.

תקס"ב = § 562.

אֶלְיָהוּ לְיִשְׂרָאֵל to Israel, occurs three times at the end of a verse. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I mislaid the reference.

תקס"ג = § 563.

אֶלְיָהוּ לְיִשְׂרָאֵל to or over Israel, occurs seven times in this combination . . . and wherever it is preceded by, I have anointed the king, it is likewise so except in one instance.

אֶלְיָהוּ לְיִשְׂרָאֵל is combined with the preposition about one hundred times. In about ninety times it is preceded by אֶל־ and in ten instances only by אֶלְיָהוּ. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority and thereby excludes the Eastern reading אֶלְיָהוּ לְיִשְׂרָאֵל 1 Kings 21 7. As the phrase מְשַׁחֵם לְמֶלֶךְ precedes in four passages אֶלְיָהוּ לְיִשְׂרָאֵל with the preposition, and moreover, as in this construction the preposition is in three instances אֶל־ (2 Kings 9 3, 6, 12) and in one instance אֶל־ (2 Sam. 12 7), the Massorah treats these three instances separately so as to safeguard the solitary exception in this combination.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 177a, on 1 Sam. 7 7 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 153b, on Numb. 32 14; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Mal. 1 1; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 39a, on 1 Sam. 7 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 166a, on Jerem. 30 4; (VI) the same MS., fol. 222a, on Mal. 1 1; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 49b, on Gen. 43 8; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 60a, on Gen. 49 2; (IX) the same MS., fol. 245a, on Numb. 32 14; (X) Ochlak Ve-Ochlak I, § 159; (XI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 43 8 and (XII) the same on Jerem. 30 4.

תקס"ד = § 564.

אֶלְיָהוּ לְיִתְרוֹ to Jethro, to the residue of, occurs twice in this combination in the Scriptures. That is, to distinguish it from the two instances where אֶל־ is preceded by אֶלְיָהוּ. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 36b, on Exod. 4 18 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 45a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 253b, on Jerem. 29 1; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 69a, on Exod. 4 18; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VI) the same on Jerem. 29 1. Lists II, III, IV and VI give the two instances in which it is אֶלְיָהוּ לְיִתְרוֹ (see the Massorah, letter ע, § 441, Vol. II, p. 400). This Rubric is part of the lengthier Massorah recording the ten words or twenty pairs which are respectively preceded twice by אֶל־ and twice by אֶלְיָהוּ. Vide supra n, § 525.

תקס"ה = § 565.

אֶלְיָהוּ לְיִשְׂרָאֵל has five times the accent. That is, in five instances the preposition אֶל־ instead of having the usual Makkeph has the accent Mercha. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 119a, on Deut. 27 9.

תקס"ו = § 566.

אֶל־כָּל to all. Throughout the book of Kings קִל is always preceded by the preposition עַל except six times where it is preceded by אֶל.

עַל which is twenty-two times combined with the preposition in Kings, is in sixteen passages preceded by עַל without and with the prefix Vav and in six instances only by אֶל without and with the prefix Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 231b, on 1 Kings 16 13 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 91a, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2210, fol. 147a, on 1 Kings 15 20, and (IV) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 18 5. List II takes in the six passages in Samuel which are given in § 568; List III gives the mnemonic sign which I have printed in Volume III, § 566b, p. 2, and List IV includes Isaiah in the heading, viz. throughout Kings and Isaiah it is עַל קִל except in six instances. This, however, is not quite exact since all the six instances occur in Kings alone.

1 Comp. עַל קִל 1 Kings 4 1, 7; 6 10; 8 66; 11 42; 12 20; 14 23; 15 20, 33; 2 Kings 4 4; 15 20; 17 10; 18 13; 23 26; עַל קִל 1 Kings 13 32; 16 7.

תקס"ז = § 567.

אֶל־כָּל to all, occurs eleven times in the Hagiographa. In the Hagiographa, where as we shall see in the next Rubric קִל is eighty-two times combined with the preposition and where it is seventy-one times preceded by עַל and eleven times only by אֶל, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 272b, on Esther 3 13 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 291b, on Ps. 33 14; (III) the same MS., fol. 314a, on Ps. 119 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 342b, on Prov. 17 8; (V) the same MS., fol. 360a, on Esther 3 13 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Prov. 17 8.

In List I בְּיָדֵינוּ before בְּחַזְקָתָם in the heading is manifestly a clerical error and ought to be cancelled. In accordance with my principles not to alter the MSS. I have printed it as it is in the Codex. List VI combines with this Rubric the two instances of אֶל־כָּל in the Minor Prophets and hence heads it אֶל־כָּל חֵלֵל בְּיָדֵינוּ.

תקס"ח = 568.

אֶל־כָּל וְאֶל־כָּל, אֶל־כָּל וְעַל־כָּל. This Rubric exhibits a combination of the separate Massorahs which record the instances in the several books wherein קִל is either preceded by אֶל or עַל throughout the Bible. To understand this artificial concatenation it is necessary to treat each link of this chain separately. It will be seen that this lengthy List is divisible into fifteen groups, each one of which has a distinct heading.

I. Gen. 1 1-Ecod. 11 10. In this group which embraces the whole of Genesis and the first eleven chapters of Exodus עַל־כָּל without and with the prefix Vav occurs eleven times, viz. Gen. 9 2 2; 19 28; 39 5; 41 41, 43, 56; Exod. 7 19; 9 9, 22; 10 14; whilst אֶל־כָּל occurs twice only. Hence the Massorah in this group safeguards the exceptional instances.

II. Ecod. 12 1-40 38. In this portion the reverse is the case, אֶל־כָּל occurs seven times, viz. Exod. 12 3; 16 6, 9, 10; 28 3; 35 4; 36 2 and עַל־כָּל occurs four times only. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority. In the printed text of this group Exod. 9 9 is a misprint for 18 9.

III. Levit. 1 1-16 34. — In these sixteen chapters עַל־כָּל occurs seven times, viz. Levit. 2 2, 13, 16; 10 6; 11 37; 16 33; 21 11 whilst אֶל־כָּל occurs once only, and the Massorah, therefore, safeguards the solitary instance.

IV. Levit. 17 1-Josh. 24 33. — In this group which includes the rest of Leviticus and the whole of Numbers, Deuteronomy and Joshua where אֶל־כָּל occurs no fewer than thirty times, viz. Levit. 18 6; 19 2; 20 16; 21 24; 22 18; Numb. 13 26; 14 7, 10, 39; 15 33; 16 5, 19; 17 24; Deut. 1 1, 7; 5 1, 19; 27 9, 14; 29 1; 31 1, 9; 32 45; Josh. 1 16; 7, 23; 9 19; 10 24; 22 18; 24 2, 27 and where עַל־כָּל occurs fifteen times only, the Massorah records the minority.

V. Judges. — In Judges עַל־כָּל occurs five times, viz. 6 37, 39, 40; 9 44; 16 30; whilst אֶל־כָּל occurs twice only. Hence the minority is recorded. In Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah וְכָל־שָׂמַיִם וְרִבִּי בְּנֵי is a mistake for בְּנֵי בְּנֵי.

VI. Samuel. — In Samuel אֶל־כָּל occurs ten times, viz. 1 Sam. 7 3; 10 24; 12 1; 14 40; 19 1; 2 Sam. 3 29, 31; 16 11; 20 22, 23; whilst עַל־כָּל occurs six times only. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority.

VII. Kings and Isaiah. — In Kings and Isaiah עַל־כָּל occurs no fewer than forty-two times, viz. 1 Kings 4 1, 7; 6 10; 8 66; 11 42; 12 20; 13 32; 14 23; 15 20, 33; 16 7; 2 Kings 4 4; 15 20; 17 10; 18 13; 23 26; Isa. 2 12, 12, 13, 13, 14, 14, 15, 15, 16, 16; 4 5, 5; 8 7, 7; 14 26, 26; 25 7, 7; 28 22; 30 25, 25; 32 13, 20; 34 2, 2; 36 1; whilst אֶל־כָּל occurs six times only and, therefore, the minority is recorded.

VIII. Jerem. 1 1-25 38. — In this portion of Jeremiah עַל־כָּל occurs twenty-one times, viz. Jerem. 1 7, 14, 15, 15, 16, 18; 2 20, 34; 3 6, 8; 9 3, 24, 25; 16 17; 19 8, 15; 25 1, 2, 9, 13, 29; whilst אֶל־כָּל occurs four times only. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

IX. Jerem. 26 1-30 18. — In this second and small portion of Jeremiah אֶל־כָּל is the rule and עַל־כָּל the exception. The former occurs eleven times, viz. Jerem. 26 8, 11, 12, 12, 17, 18; 27 16; 29 1, 16, 25, 25 and the latter once only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the solitary instance.

X. Jerem. 30 19-36 8. — In the third portion of this Prophet עַל־כָּל is the rule and אֶל־כָּל the exception. The former occurs ten times, viz. Jerem. 30 20; 31 37; 32 19, 32; 33 5, 9, 9; 34 1, 7; 36 2 and the latter once only. The Massorah, therefore, again safeguards the solitary instance.

XI. Jerem. 36 9-52 34. — In the fourth portion אֶל־כָּל is the majority and עַל־כָּל the minority. The former occurs ten times, viz. Jerem. 38 1; 40 6; 42 8; 43 1; 44 1, 20, 24, 24; 48 8; 50 37 and the latter nine times. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

XII. Ezek. 1 1-9 3. — In this portion of Ezekiel it is always אֶל־כָּל without any exception, viz. Ezek. 5 4; 6 11, 13; 7 12, 13, 14, 18.

XIII. Ezek. 9 4-39 29. — In the second portion of Ezekiel עַל־כָּל is the rule and אֶל־כָּל the exception. The former occurs twelve times, viz. Ezek. 9 4, 6; 13 18; 16 15, 36, 37, 43; 21 20; 32 16, 31; 33 29; 34 6; whilst the latter occurs three times only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional instances.

XIV. Ezek. 40 1-48 35. — In the last portion of Ezekiel אֶל־כָּל is the rule and עַל־כָּל the exception. The former occurs four times, viz. Ezek. 41 17, 19; 44 7; 47 9; whilst the latter occurs once only. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the solitary instance.

XV. The Minor Prophets and the Hagiographa. — This link of the great chain has already been discussed in its separate form. (Vide supra n, § 567.)

Of this entire Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach I, § 161, which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter n, § 404.

תקס"ט = § 569.

אֶל־כָּל יְהוּדִים to all the Jews, occurs three times in this combination in the Scriptures. In the fourth instance where יְהוּדִים is preceded by אֶל it is without קִל (Esther 8 9). Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 275b, on Esther 9 20 which I have printed; (II) St Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 41 1; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 262a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 408a, on Esther 9 20; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 41 1 and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter y, § 120.

תק"ע = § 570.

אֶל־כָּל יְשׁוּבֵי אֶרֶץ to or against all the inhabitants, occurs twice. The full phrase here intended is properly אֶל־כָּל יְשׁוּבֵי הָאָרֶץ against all the inhabitants of the land. In the only two other passages where this phrase occurs it is עַל and not אֶל. (Comp. letter y, § 432, Vol. II, p. 400.) This List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 291b, on Ps. 33 14, where it is contrasted with the two instances of אֶל־כָּל יְשׁוּבֵי הָאָרֶץ.

תקע"א = § 571.

אֶל־כָּל יִשְׂרָאֵל to all Israel, occurs four times in this combination. This Rubric, which is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter y, § 438, is incorrect, since this combination occurs no fewer than eight times. The four instances omitted are Deut. 27 9; 29 1; 1 Sam. 12 1; 14 40. The incorrectness of this Rubric is due to a later Nakdan who mistook its import. The design of the Rubric is not to catalogue the passages where the phrase in question occurs, but the instances in which it is preceded by the verb רָבַד. This Massorah is correctly given under letter y § 28, p. 222.

תקע"ב = § 572.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם לְכָל עַדְוֹת בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל to all the congregation of the children of Israel, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient 2348, fol. 77a, which I have printed; (II) Orient 2349, fol. 67a and (III) the printed Massorah, all three on Exod. 16 9. It is remarkable that they all omit Exod. 35 4 and Numb. 14 7. As the manifest design of this Rubric is to guard the instances here recorded against being assimilated to the parallel phrase אֶלְלֵבְיָם לְכָל עַדְוֹת יִשְׂרָאֵל to all the congregation of Israel (Exod. 12 3; Josh. 22 18) without the expression לְכָל עַדְוֹת יִשְׂרָאֵל, this Massorah must proceed from a School of Massorites who worked on Codices which had not לְכָל עַדְוֹת יִשְׂרָאֵל in Exod. 35 4 and Numb. 14 7.

תקע"ג = § 573.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם to vessel, occurs twice and once it is with the article. That is, to distinguish it from אֶלְלֵבְיָם with Sheva under the Caph which also occurs twice (Levit. 14 5, 50). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 98b, on Numb. 19 17 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תקע"ד = § 574.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם to the vessels, occurs twice. אֶלְלֵבְיָם is six times combined with the preposition. In four instances it is preceded by אֶלְ (1 Sam. 25 13; 30 24; Jerem. 27 21; 1 Chron. 9 29) and twice only by אֶלְ. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 179a, on 1 Sam. 10 22 which I have printed and (II) Arund. Orient 16, fol. 283a, on Ruth. 2 9.

תקע"ה = § 575.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם. אֶלְלֵבְיָם. In thirteen instances אֶלְ is combined with the preposition. Four times it is preceded by אֶלְ (Exod. 28 29, 30; Jerem. 44 21; Dan. 1 8) and nine times by אֶלְ (Gen. 6 6; 8 21; 1 Sam. 27 1; 2 Sam. 13 33; 19 20; Isa. 44 19; Ezek. 14 4, 7; Eccl. 7 2). It will be seen that outside the Pentateuch אֶלְלֵבְיָם occurs twice only, whilst in the Pentateuch אֶלְלֵבְיָם occurs twice only. Hence the Massorah in each case safeguards the two instances. In fixing the number of אֶלְלֵבְיָם at two outside the Pentateuch, the Massorah excludes the Eastern recension which also reads אֶלְלֵבְיָם in 2 Sam. 13 33.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 276a, on Dan. 1 8 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 364b, on the same passage; (III) Orient 2348, fol. 43a, on Gen. 8 21; (IV) Orient 2349, fol. 38a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 408b, on Dan. 1 8; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Gen. 6 6; (VII) the same Codex on Dan. 1 8; (VIII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 159; (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 6 6 and (X) the same on Dan. 1 8.

תקע"ו = § 576.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם to, or in thy heart, occurs twice. As לֵבְיָם is twice preceded by אֶלְ and twice by אֶלְ, the Massorah safeguards each pair. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Deut. 4 39 which I have printed and (II) the same Codex on Deut. 30 1. List I also gives the two instances in which אֶלְלֵבְיָם is preceded by אֶלְ. (Comp. letter א, § 461, Vol. II, p. 401.)

תקע"ז = § 577.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם occurs twice. That is, this Niphal infinitive construct occurs twice and is in both instances preceded by אֶלְ. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 37b, on 1 Sam. 4 21.

תקע"ח = § 578.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם to the chambers, occurs twice. In the only other instance in which this combination occurs, it is אֶלְלֵבְיָם the construct (Ezek. 46 19). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Cambridge Add. 465 on Neh. 10 40 which I have printed and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

תקע"ט = § 579.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם unto the altar, occurs nine times. אֶלְלֵבְיָם is sixty times combined with the preposition. In fifty-one instances it is preceded by אֶלְ and in nine only by אֶלְ. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 55a, on Exod. 30 20 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 63b, on Levit. 2 8; (III) Orient 4445, fol. 78a, on Exod. 30 20; (IV) the same MS., fol. 92b, on Levit. 9 7; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 58a, on Exod. 28 43; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 113a, on the same passage; (VII) the same MS., fol. 138a, on Levit. 2 8; (VIII) Orient 2349, fol. 82a, on Exod. 30 20; (IX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 159, and (X) the printed Massorah on Levit. 1 15.

1 Comp. Gen. 22 9; Exod. 24 6; 29 16, 20, 21, 86, 37, 38; Levit. 1 5, 7, 8, 11, 12; 3 2, 8, 13; 6 2, 3, 5, 6; 7 2; 8 11, 19, 24, 30; 9 12, 13, 17, 18, 24; 17 11; 22 22; Numb. 18 17; Judg. 6 28; 1 Kings 3 4; 9 25; 13 32, 33, 33; 13 1, 2, 4, 32; 18 26; 2 Kings 16 12, 13, 15; 23 16, 17; Ezek. 43 27; Amos 9 1.

תק"ס = § 580.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם to the altar of, occurs twice in this combination. The construct אֶלְלֵבְיָם, which occurs fifteen times in combination with the preposition, is in thirteen instances preceded by אֶלְ and in two only by אֶלְ. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional occurrence. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 256a, on 2 Kings 23 9 which I have printed and (II) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 159.

1 Comp. Levit. 4 10; 17 6; Deut. 22 27, 27; Neh. 10 35; 1 Chron. 6 24; 16 40; 21 26; 2 Chron. 1 6; 8 12; 26 16; 29 21; 35 16.

תקס"א = § 581.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם to or against light, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient 16, fol. 81a, on 1 Kings 7 5.

תקס"ב = § 582.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם unto which, occurs three times. The interrogative אֶלְ is eleven times combined with the preposition, is in eight instances preceded by אֶלְ and in three by אֶלְ. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, two in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient 16, fol. 186b, on Ezek. 31 2 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 283b, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (IV) the same on Ezek. 31 18 and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 401, where it is given as a contrast to אֶלְלֵבְיָם. (Vide infra, § 623.)

1 Comp. אֶלְלֵבְיָם 2 Kings 18 20; Isa. 10 3; 36 5; 53 1; 57 4, 4; Jerem. 6 10; Nah. 3 19.

תקס"ג = § 583.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם by the waters, occurs three times. אֶלְ is ten times combined with the preposition. In seven instances it is preceded by אֶלְ (comp. letter א, § 468, Vol. II, p. 401) and in three instances only by אֶלְ. The Massorah, therefore, records here the minority. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 61b, on Jerem. 41 12 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 72a, on Levit. 14 5 where it is given as a contrast to אֶלְלֵבְיָם; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 41 12; (IV) the same Codex on Ezek. 17 8 and (V) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 41 12. As the expression אֶלְלֵבְיָם follows אֶלְלֵבְיָם in all the three instances Lists III and IV head this Rubric אֶלְלֵבְיָם אֶלְלֵבְיָם אֶלְלֵבְיָם.

תקס"ד = § 584.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם by or with the waters of, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. The construct אֶלְ is nine times combined with the preposition. In six instances it is preceded by אֶלְ (Deut. 33 8; Josh. 11 7; Judg. 5 19; Ps. 23 2; 81 8; 106 32) and in three instances only by אֶלְ. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 145a, on Josh. 11 5 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient 16, fol. 8b, on the same passage; (III) Orient 2349, fol. 103a, on Numb. 5 23; (IV) Orient 2210, fol. 13a, on Josh. 11 5 and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תקס"ה = § 585.

אֶלְלֵבְיָם, אֶלְלֵבְיָם, אֶלְלֵבְיָם. On or to the king, occurs eight times and wherever it is combined with אֶלְלֵבְיָם it is likewise preceded by אֶלְ except in three instances where it is preceded by אֶלְ.

The design of this somewhat complicated Massorah is to record the instances in which לְעֵבֶר without the adjective בְּ is preceded by לְ, and the passages in which though combined with this adjective לְעֵבֶר is preceded by לְ.

The phrase לְעֵבֶר occurs altogether eighteen times. In ten instances it is combined with בְּ and in eight passages only is it without this adjective. Hence the Massorah registers the minority. With בְּ the adjective לְעֵבֶר, as we have seen, is normally preceded by לְ, and it is in three instances only where it is abnormally preceded by לְ. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptions.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 162b, on 2 Chron. 23 10 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 247a, on 2 Kings 11 8; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 271a, on Esther 1 16; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 106a, on 2 Kings 11 8; (V) the same MS., fol. 115a, on 2 Kings 21 24; (VI) the same MS., fol. 271a, on 2 Chron. 23 10; (VII) the same MS., fol. 279a, on 2 Chron. 23 25; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 358b, on Esther 1 16; (IX) Add. 15,251, fol. 218b, on 2 Kings 21 24; (X) the same MS., fol. 388b, on 2 Chron. 23 10; (XI) Halle Ochl. I, § 159, and (XII) the printed Massorah on 2 Chron. 23 10. (Comp. also letter ו, § 34, Vol. I, p. 617.)

1 Comp. Esther 1 19; 3 9; 5 4, 8; 7 3, 9; 8 5; 9 18; Neh. 2 5, 7.

תְּקֵיפָה - § 586.

תְּקֵיפָה to Egypt, occurs twice. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, where it occurs twice: (I) Gen. 37 36 and (II) on Jerem. 26 22 which I have printed. In the other twelve instances where תְּקֵיפָה is preceded by the preposition it is לְ and not בְּ.

1 Comp. Exod. 1 8; 7 5; 14 26; 2 Kings 18 21, 24; Isa. 19 12; 20 3; 26 6, 9; Jerem. 9 26; Ezek. 30 11; 32 16.

תְּקֵיפָה - § 587.

תְּקֵיפָה to the place, occurs nine times. This Rubric, which is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 398, is incorrect, since there are eleven instances in the textus receptus. Though the heading distinctly states that there are nine instances only, the List itself records the catchwords for ten and the eleventh instance, viz. Numb. 23 27 is omitted altogether. It is remarkable that both the Massorah on Gen. 1 9 and the Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 87, where the heading only is given, the mistake ט = 9 is repeated.

תְּקֵיפָה - § 588.

תְּקֵיפָה to one place, occurs three times in this combination in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 265b, on Eccl. 6 6 which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochl. I, fol. 67b, note, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 88.

תְּקֵיפָה - § 589.

תְּקֵיפָה to their place, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 130a, on Numb. 32 17 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 120a, on the same passage.

תְּקֵיפָה - § 590.

תְּקֵיפָה to the tent, occurs three times in this form . . . in all the other instances תְּקֵיפָה is preceded by לְ. That is, without and with prefixes and suffixes it is in these three instances only combined with לְ or בְּ. It is in the first instance only where it is תְּקֵיפָה (Exod. 40 21), in the second instance it is תְּקֵיפָה the construct (Numb. 17 28), whilst in the third passage it is not only תְּקֵיפָה the plural with the suffix second person singular, but the preposition has the prefix Vav (Ps. 43 3). All these different forms are embraced in the expression בְּלִישָׁתָם in the heading. In all the other passages which are twelve in number, תְּקֵיפָה is preceded by לְ. This Rubric, which I have not found in any MS., is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 150.

1 Comp. תְּקֵיפָה Exod. 26 7; 26 14; 40 19, 28; Numb. 3 26; 9 15, 18, 19, 20, 22; תְּקֵיפָה Numb. 1 50; תְּקֵיפָה Cant. 1 8.

תְּקֵיפָה - § 591.

תְּקֵיפָה to Nebuchadnezzar, occurs twice. In the other two instances where תְּקֵיפָה is combined with the preposition it is לְ. This Rubric is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 387b, on Dan. 4 25 where it is contrasted with the two passages in which it is preceded by לְ. The same Rubric is given in the printed Massorah on the same passage. This Rubric constitutes one of the ten pairs which respectively occur twice, one pair with לְ and one with בְּ. (Vide supra, letter א, § 525, p. 64.)

תְּקֵיפָה - § 592.

תְּקֵיפָה to or by the river of, occurs three times. The construct תְּקֵיפָה is nine times combined with the preposition. In six instances it is preceded by לְ and in three by בְּ. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. In fixing the number at three, the Massorah excludes the Eastern reading לְ in Jerem. 46 2. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 195a, on Ezek. 43 3 which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 53.

1 Comp. 2 Kings 23 29; Jerem. 46 2; Ezek. 1 1, 3; 3 23; 10 22.

תְּקֵיפָה - § 593.

תְּקֵיפָה by the river of Chebar, occurs twice. In the other four passages where תְּקֵיפָה is preceded by the preposition it is לְ (Ezek. 1 1, 3; 3 23; 10 22). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 3 15.

תְּקֵיפָה - § 594.

תְּקֵיפָה. The form תְּקֵיפָה inheritance, with prefixes and suffixes, is three times preceded by לְ without and with the prefix Vav. In the other five instances where it occurs in combination with the preposition it is preceded by לְ (Numb. 36 3, 4; 1 Sam. 10 1; Ruth 4 5, 10).

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 172b, on Judg. 21 23 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 34b, on the same passage; (III) the same MSS., fol. 285a, on Ps. 5 1; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 278a, on Deut. 12 9; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 130b, on the same passage; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VIII) the same on Ps. 5 1. The heading in Lists II—VIII is בְּלִישָׁתָם, which makes the import of this Rubric more clear. The printed Massorah on Deut. 12 9 (List VII) states in the heading (בְּ) that there are four such instances which is manifestly an error, since it correctly enumerates the three passages only.

תְּקֵיפָה - § 595.

תְּקֵיפָה. The form תְּקֵיפָה horse, with prefixes and suffixes, is twice preceded by לְ without and with the prefix Vav. תְּקֵיפָה in its various forms is thirteen times combined with the preposition. In eleven instances it is preceded by לְ and in two only by בְּ. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. This Rubric, which I have not found in any MS., is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 20.

1 Comp. תְּקֵיפָה 1 Kings 20 20; Isa. 30 16; Hoe. 14 4; תְּקֵיפָה Esther 6 9; תְּקֵיפָה Eccl. 10 7; Isa. 31 1; תְּקֵיפָה Jerem. 6 23; 50 42; תְּקֵיפָה 2 Kings 14 20; 2 Chron. 25 28; תְּקֵיפָה Hab. 3 8.

תְּקֵיפָה - § 596.

תְּקֵיפָה to, or into a book, occurs three times in this combination in the Scriptures. As תְּקֵיפָה is fifty-three times in combination with the preposition and moreover as it is in no fewer than fifty times preceded by לְ and in these three instances only by בְּ, the Massorah safeguards the abnormal combination. By this Rubric the Massorah excludes the reading לְ in Jerem. 30 2 which is to be found in some MSS. as well as in the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86 and the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 68b, on Jerem. 51 60 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 197b, on Neh. 8 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 384a, on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 30 2 and (VI) the same of Neh. 8 3.

תְּקֵיפָה - § 597.

תְּקֵיפָה to the well, occurs twice. In the other two instances where תְּקֵיפָה is in combination with the preposition it is לְ

(Gen. 16 7; 24 30). These two instances form one of the pairs which are twice preceded by אֶל and twice by אֶל recorded in the Massorah. (Vide supra, letter א, § 525, p. 64.)

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 40b, on Gen. 24 29.

תְּקִיעָה = § 598.

עַל־עַמְּם אֶל־עַמְּם to, over, or against a people, occurs five times . . . and throughout Isaiah and the Psalms it is likewise so except in three instances. In these three instances עַמְּם is preceded by אֶל.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 31b, on Judg. 18 27 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 347a, on Prov. 28 15; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 393b, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 6 21 and (V) the same on Prov. 28 15.

The import of this artificial Massorah is very complicated, as will be seen from the following analysis. עַמְּם is combined with the preposition nineteen times. In ten instances it is preceded by אֶל (Judg. 18 10; 2 Kings 9 6; Isa. 18 2; 65 2; Ezek. 3 6; 12 19; 26 20; Ps. 105 13; Ruth 2 11; 1 Chron. 16 20) and in nine by אֶל (Judg. 18 27; 2 Sam. 6 21; 14 13; Isa. 30 5, 6; Zeph. 2 10; Prov. 28 15; 2 Chron. 1 9; 32 18). Accordingly the five instances of עַמְּם contained in the first part of this Rubric exclude four passages, two in Samuel and two in Isaiah. In the Psalms this combination does not occur at all. The heading, therefore, in the second part of this Rubric is doubly incorrect. It omits Samuel where עַמְּם occurs twice and specifies the Psalms where it does not occur at all. Lists IV and V, which as we have seen are in the printed Massorah, remove the first mistake, since the heading in the second part of the Rubric is here in Samuel וְעַל־עַמְּם וְעַל־עַמְּם וְעַל־עַמְּם וְעַל־עַמְּם and throughout Samuel, Isaiah and the Psalms it is likewise so except in three instances, but they leave the second, inasmuch as they include the Psalms among the books in which עַמְּם occurs.

List II exhibits another recension of this Massorah. It is as follows: 'עַמְּם occurs three times, viz. Judg. 18 27; Zeph. 2 10; Prov. 28 15 and throughout Samuel, Isaiah, Chronicles and the Psalms it is likewise so except in four instances where it is אֶל־עַמְּם, viz. Isa. 18 2; 65 2; Ps. 105 13; 1 Chron. 16 20. Though the first mistake is here removed, the second which states that עַמְּם occurs in the Psalms is left. This recension explains the otherwise inexplicable Massorah in Add. 15,251 (List III) where it simply states on Prov. 28 15 that עַמְּם occurs three times only. It is based upon this recension with the omission of the second part of this Rubric. Why the Massorah so artificially divides the occurrence of אֶל־עַמְּם and עַמְּם and does not plainly state that the former combination occurs ten times and the latter nine times it is difficult to divine.

י על יום נ' וסוף והכה לקחו את אשר קשה ביניהם וזה להם חתם נאומם, ארי נחם רוב שוקק וכל שמואל וישעיה ודני חזקו ודני נבדו וסוף השלה בים ציונים, פראשו ירו כל היום, והתלכו כמנו אל לו וחבלי.

תְּקִיעָה = § 599.

אֶל־עַמְּם to my people, occurs four times in this combination in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. עַמְּם is eighteen times in combination with the preposition. In fourteen instances it is preceded by אֶל and in four only by וְאֶל. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 77b, on Ezek. 13 19 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 3b, on Amos 7 15; (III) Add. 15, 15,251, fol. 40b, on Gen. 49 29; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 57a, on the same passage; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, fol. 67b note, (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 49 29 and (VIII) the same on Ezek. 13 19. List IV heads it אֶל־עַמְּם ר' - it occurs five times, but this is due to the fact that it includes the one instance with the prefix Vav (Joel 4 3).

1 Comp. אֶל־עַמְּם 1 Sam. 9 16; 2 Sam. 7 8, 11; 1 Kings 8 16; 14 7; 16 2; Isa. 47 6; Ezek. 38 16; Joel 4 2; 1 Chron. 11 2; 17 7, 10; 2 Chron. 6 5, 6.

תִּירָה = § 600.

אֶל־עַמְּם to peoples, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 269a, on Ezek. 3 6 which I have printed and (II) the same MS., fol. 307a, on Zeph. 3 9. It will be seen that though in one instance it is with prefix Vav (אֶל־עַמְּם Isa. 49 22), the heading makes no distinction. It ought properly to be ב' או' ואל עמם.

תִּירָה = § 601.

אֶל־עַמְּם to his bone, occurs twice in the Scriptures in this combination. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 222b, on Job 2 5 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190b, on Ezek. 37 7 and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 306. The heading of this Rubric in the printed Massorah אֶל־עַמְּם is not quite correct, since it is exactly the same form in both instances. The addition וְאֶל־עַמְּם refers to the two instances in which the form עַמְּם with suffixes is preceded by אֶל, viz. אֶל־עַמְּם Lament. 4 8 and אֶל־עַמְּם Ezek. 32 27. This addition ought properly to be worded וְאֶל־עַמְּם.

תִּירָה = § 602.

אֶל־עַמְּם to the mouth of, occurs five times in this combination . . . in all other instances it is אֶל־עַמְּם. The construct אֶל־עַמְּם is about fifty-five times combined with the preposition. In about fifty passages it is preceded by אֶל and in five only is it preceded by וְאֶל. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptions. By fixing the number at five this Massorah is against the Sevir אֶל־עַמְּם in Josh. 21 3.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 144a, on Josh. 10 18 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 148a, on Josh. 15 13; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 149a, on Josh. 17 4; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 284b, on Dan. 10 3; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 8a, on Josh. 10 18; (VI) the same MS., fol. 11b, on Josh. 15 13; (VII) the same MS., fol. 12b, on Josh. 17 4; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 14b, on Josh. 21 3; (IX) the same MS., fol. 372a, on Dan. 10 3; (X) Add. 15,251, fol. 130a, on Josh. 10 18; (XI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 159, and (XII) the printed Massorah on Josh. 17 4.

תִּירָה = § 603.

אֶל־עַמְּם to his mouth, occurs twice. This Rubric I have found only in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 14. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the longer form of the suffix third person singular masculine. In the other instances where this combination occurs it is with the shorter form which is recorded in the next Rubric.

תִּירָה = § 604.

אֶל־עַמְּם to his mouth, occurs three times. That is, in this combination with the shorter form of the suffix third person singular masculine. It was deemed all the more necessary to guard the orthography of these two different forms in this combination since they are used interchangeably in the same books, as will be seen from a comparison of the two Rubrics. This Massorah is, moreover, designed to safeguard these instances in which this shorter form is preceded by אֶל from those in which it is preceded by וְאֶל (Numb. 27 21; 2 Kings 4 34).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 43a, on 1 Sam. 14 26 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 364b, on Prov. 26 15; (III) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 279, and (IV) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 14 26.

תִּירָה = § 605.

אֶל־עַמְּם before the face of, i. e. before, occurs nine times . . . and from Ezek. 40 1-48 35 it is likewise so except in four instances where עַמְּם is preceded by אֶל without or with the prefix Vav.

To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that אֶל־עַמְּם is combined with the preposition no fewer than one hundred and twenty-nine times. In one hundred and seven instances it is preceded by אֶל and in twenty-two only by וְאֶל without and with the prefix Vav. It will be seen that not only do fourteen out of the twenty-three instances occur in Ezekiel, but that thirteen occur in the last seven chapters. The Massorah, therefore, for the purpose of recording the exceptional instances in which אֶל־עַמְּם occurs, divides Ezekiel into two; the first portion consisting of chapters 1-40 and the second comprising chapters 41-48. It shows that apart from Ezek. 40-48 אֶל־עַמְּם is the exception since it occurs nine times only, eight outside Ezekiel and once in the first part of this book. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional nine instances. In Ezek. 40-48 the case is different. Here אֶל־עַמְּם is the rule. It occurs

1 Comp. אֶל־עַמְּם Exod. 23 17; Levit. 6 7; 9 5; 14 53; 16 2; Numb. 17 8; 20 10; Ezek. 16 6; 41 4, 12, 16, 26; 42 2, 3, 7, 10, 13; 44 4; 48 21; אֶל־עַמְּם Ezek. 42 10; 45 7; Neh. 2 13.

2 For these fourteen instances see the preceding note.

no fewer than fourteen times and על־מַי which occurs four times only (Ezek. 40 15; 42 8; 48 15, 21) is the exception. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional four instances and militates against the Eastern recension which reads על־מַי in Ezek. 42 8. Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 78b, on Ezek. 16 5 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 89b, on Levit. 6 7; (III) the same MS., fol. 100a, on Levit. 14 53; (IV) the same MS., fol. 101b, on Levit. 16 2; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 175b, on Ezek. 16 5; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 160b, on Levit. 14 53; (VII) the same MS., fol. 162b, on Levit. 16 2; (VIII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Exod. 23 17; (IX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 159; (X) the printed Massorah on Exod. 23 17 and (XI) the same on Ezek. 16 5.

In printing, the words וְהָיָה כְּמִן דְּרַבִּי בְּמִן וְהָיָה הַמִּשְׁחָה הַזֹּאת have inadvertently dropped out of the text after וְהָיָה at the end of the Rubric. This part also forms a separate Rubric and is given under letter r, § 494, Vol. II, p. 403.

תרי"ז = § 606.

אֶל־פְּנֵי הַשָּׂדֶה to the face of the field or open field, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 101a, on Levit. 14 53 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 91a; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on Levit. 14 53. The printed Massorah states that this phrase occurs twice only and omits Ezek. 32 4. This is due to the fact that the Westerns read it here על־פְּנֵי הַשָּׂדֶה. The other three Lists of this Rubric emphatically adopt the Babylonian recension and this affords a striking proof that the Eastern Massorahs are not unfrequently embodied in the Western recension of this Corpus.

תרי"ח = § 607.

אֶל־פְּנֵי to, or on his face, is six times thus combined in the Scriptures. קָנִי occurs twenty times in combination with the preposition. In fourteen instances it is preceded by אֶל and in six only by אֶל־. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. The safeguarding of these instances is directed against the Surai a branch School of the Babylonian textual redactors who read אֶל־קָנִי both in Josh. 5 14 and 2 Sam. 14 22. The first of the two passages is also אֶל in the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86; the first and third editions of the entire Bible, Soncino 1488, Brescia 1494 and the Complutensian. (Vide supra, letter n, § 514b.)

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 227b, on Job 13 15 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 160a, on 2 Chron. 19 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 268a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 268b, on Deut. 7 10; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 127b, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 159; (VII) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 14 22 and (VIII) the same on 2 Chron. 19 2.

¹ Comp. על־פְּנֵי Gen. 17 3, 17; 32 22; Exod. 34 6, 33, 35; Numb. 16 4; Josh. 7 6; 1 Sam. 17 49; 2 Sam. 9 6; 1 Kings 18 7; 2 Kings 8 16; 13 14; Job 21 31.

תרי"ט = § 608.

אֶל־רֹבֵעַ unto, or upon the rock, occurs three times in this form. That is, without and with the prefix He. The expression בְּלִישׁ indicates that in 2 Sam. 21 10 where this combination occurs אֶל־ has the article.

אֶל־ is seven times in combination with the preposition (including the two instances without the article). In four passages it is preceded by אֶל (Exod. 17 6; 33 21; Judg. 13 19; 1 Chron. 11 15) and in three by אֶל־. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 213a, on 2 Sam. 21 10 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 72a, on the same passage and (III) the same MS., fol. 141a, on Isa. 51 1.

תרי"י = § 609.

אֶל־קִבְרֵי to or at the grave of, occurs three times. In the only other instance where קִבְרֵי is preceded by the preposition, it is אֶל־ (2 Kings 23 6). Here we have one of the few instances where the Massorah safeguards the majority. This Rubric I have only found in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter p, § 10.

תרי"א = § 610.

אֶל־הַקִּיר unto the wall, occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is incorrect since אֶל־הַקִּיר occurs five times. The two passages omitted are Numb. 22 26b and 2 Kings 9 33. As אֶל־הַקִּיר is eight times combined with the preposition and moreover, as it is in three instances preceded by אֶל־ (comp. letter r, § 499, Vol. II, p. 403), this Rubric is designed to record the passages in which it is preceded by אֶל־. We have thus here another of the uncommon instances in which the Massorah protects the majority. The minority, however, is safeguarded in a separate Rubric. (Comp. letter r, § 499, Vol. II, p. 403.)

תרי"ב = § 611.

אֶל־הַקֵּץ to the end or border of, occurs six times. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 23b, on Judg. 7 11 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 237b, on Isa. 62 11; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 92b, on Exod. 16 35; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (V) the same on Josh. 18 16.

תרי"ג = § 612.

אֶל־רֹאשׁ to the top of, occurs twice . . . and wherever it is combined with the mountain it is likewise so except in five instances.

The design of this Massorah is to record the instances in which אֶל־ without הַר is preceded by אֶל־ and the passages in which though combined with this noun it is preceded by אֶל־: (1) the phrase אֶל־רֹאשׁ occurs altogether eight times. In six instances it is combined with הַר and in two only is it without this noun. Hence the Massorah registers the exception, (2) The phrase אֶל־רֹאשׁ הַר which occurs altogether eleven times in combination with the preposition is in six instances preceded by אֶל־ and in five by אֶל־. The Massorah, therefore, in this case records the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 234a, on 1 Kings 18 42 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 143b, on Numb. 23 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 93b, on 1 Kings 18 42; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 115a, on Numb. 23 14; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 159, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter r, § 83. List IV gives the first part of this Rubric only.

¹ Comp. Exod. 19 20, 20; Numb. 14, 40, 44; Josh. 15 8; Judg. 16 8.

² Comp. The Massorah, letter r, § 500, Vol. II, p. 403.

תרי"ד = § 613.

אֶל־רֹאשׁ at or on his head, occurs twice in this combination in the Scriptures. אֶל־ occurs thirty times in combination with the preposition. In twenty-eight instances it is preceded by אֶל־ and in two only by אֶל־. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination, which excludes the ancient reading אֶל־ exhibited in some MSS. of the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 244b, on 2 Kings 9 6 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 80a, on Exod. 36 29; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 104a, on 2 Kings 9 6; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 62b, on Exod. 36 29; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 79b, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 159, note and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter r, § 85. List V adds at the end of the Rubric אֶל־רֹאשׁ (Neh. 3 36) to distinguish it from the seven instances where this noun with the suffix third person plural is preceded by אֶל־ (Josh. 7 6; Isa. 35 10; 51 11; Ezek. 1 25, 26; 44 18; Lament. 2 10).

¹ Comp. אֶל־רֹאשׁ Gen. 48 18; Exod. 26 24; 29 6, 7; Levit. 3 13; 4 11; 8 9; 21 10; 24 14; Numb. 6 5, 7; Judg. 13 5; 1 Sam. 1 11; 4 12; 10 1; 17 5, 38; 2 Sam. 1 2, 10; 15 32; 1 Kings 2 32; 2 Kings 9 3; Jonah 4 6; Zech. 3 6, 5; Prov. 25 22; Esther 9 26; 2 Chron. 3 16.

תרי"ה = § 614.

אֶל־שָׂדֶה to or into the field of, occurs twice. In the other two instances where this noun occurs in the construct, it is preceded by אֶל־ (Levit. 25 31; Prov. 24 30). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 38b, on 1 Sam. 6 14.

§ 615. תרי"ה =

to, or in heaven, occurs five times in the Scriptures. In the other seven instances where וְהָיָה is in combination with the preposition it is וְהָיָה (Exod. 9 22, 23; 10 21, 22; Ps. 8 2; 57 6; 113 4). Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 286a, on Dan. 12 7 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 10, fol. 296a, on Ps. 50 4; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 409b, on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage and (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 279.

§ 616. תרי"ז =

to, or upon two of, occurs three times. The sign thereof in Chaldee is and the Youth in the first shoulder. The construct וְעַל occurs nineteen times in combination with the preposition. In sixteen instances it is preceded by וְעַל and in three only by וְעַל. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. In this Rubric, therefore, the Massorah militates against the ancient recension which reads וְעַל in Exod. 28 7 as exhibited in the Samaritan text and in the Septuagint and which is confirmed by the parallel passage in Exod. 39 4.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 52a, on Exod. 28 7 which gives the mnemonic sign only and which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 83b; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 73b, both on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 348.

¹ Comp. וְעַל Gen. 40 2; Exod. 25 19; 28 28, 26; 30 4; 37 27; 39 4, 16, 19; Levit. 16 8; 23 20; Numb. 7 8; Deut. 4 18; 5 19; 1 Kings 7 20, 25.

§ 617a-d. תרי"י =

Words which respectively occur once only preceded by this preposition with the prefix Vav. That is, these combinations with וְעַל are either unique or when the words in question occur again with the preposition they are preceded by וְעַל without the prefix Vav.¹

The three Lists marked § 617b-d which respectively record four, twelve and thirteen instances of this combination again show the gradual manner in which the Massorah was developed. They are simply fragments intended to be completed by successive Massorites. Hence they are as yet without headings fixing the number of the passages where this combination occurs and without catchwords. Exactly the same is the case with the two fragments given in the ancient Codex Orient. 1445, fols. 65b, 138a, on Exod. 24 14 and Numb. 28 26, the one recording sixteen instances and the other fifteen. The most developed Lists of this Rubric are the following:

(I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 16a, on Gen. 18 7 which I have printed and which is marked § 617a. This List records thirty-one instances.

(II) Orient. 4445, fol. 65a, on Exod. 24 1 which records twenty-seven instances. Of these, twenty-five are identical with those in List I. Two are new, viz. וְעַל Gen. 34 11, וְעַל 1 Sam. 26 6, and the following six are omitted: וְעַל 1 Sam. 10 14; וְעַל Jerem. 25 9; וְעַל Jerem. 50 18; וְעַל Jerem. 30 4; וְעַל Ps. 50 4 and וְעַל Eccl. 1 5. Both these Lists have neither headings nor catchwords.

(III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 156. Like List I it gives thirty-one instances with this difference, that it has one instance (וְעַל 1 Sam. 26 6) which is not in List I, though it is in List II and it omits one (וְעַל Ps. 50 4) which is also omitted in List II. The essential difference between this List and the two preceding Lists consists in the addition of the heading which fixes the number at thirty-two,² though thirty-one only are catalogued and in adding the catchwords. That this is simply a later development of List I, is evident both from the fact that the passages are recorded in almost the same order of the books and from its giving וְעַל as one of the combinations though it does not occur in the textus receptus.

(IV) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 85. This List exhibits a still further development. A later reviser added no fewer than fourteen instances which do not occur in the previous

¹ In confirmation of this fact I simply adduce the few instances with which this Rubric begins. The combination וְעַל without the prefix Vav occurs in Gen. 4 6, 9; וְעַל Gen. 37 28, 26, 30 &c.; וְעַל Gen. 25 30; 27 6, 21 &c.
 ² דהר כן ר"ב סן דהר וכו'.

Lists¹ and prefixed to it the heading stating that there are forty-five such instances.² Apart from these additions and catchwords, this List is almost identical with List I. The reviser, however, omitted וְעַל which is given in the other Lists and which does not occur in the received text.

(V) The printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 403. Though this List like the former one catalogues forty-five instances of this combination, it differs in this essential point that it fixes no number in the heading which simply states: The following words respectively occur once only preceded by וְעַל. With the exception of וְעַל Numb. 31 12 and וְעַל Jerem. 27 12 it embodies all the additional instances which are given in List IV and makes up the forty-five by substituting two others, viz. וְעַל Jerem. 47 7 and וְעַל Ezek. 31 13. The pernicious addition to the heading of the words וְעַל which is against the import of this Massorah is due to the editor of the second edition of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1548-48 and not to Buxtorf, Basle 1618-19, as is stated by Frensdorff, Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, p. 26, notes.

That all the early Lists are simply fragments and that the later expansions with the headings fixing the number are due to revisers who mistook the import of this Massorah, is evident from the fact that there are no fewer than one hundred and forty-eight such unique combinations. The later Nakdanim simply shaped the different headings in accordance with the number of instances catalogued in the Lists, which they severally copied without investigating how many times the combination in question really occurs in the Bible.

¹ Viz. וְעַל Exod. 12 22; וְעַל Numb. 31 12; וְעַל Deut. 9 27; וְעַל Deut. 9 27; וְעַל 2 Kings 3 13; וְעַל Jerem. 27 12; וְעַל Ezek. 23 42; וְעַל Isa. 19 3; וְעַל Isa. 10 3; וְעַל Isa. 51 2; וְעַל Hos. 4 8; וְעַל Neh. 2 14; וְעַל Ezek. 11 21.
 ² ס'תן כן דהר וכו' דהר כן ר"ב סן דהר וכו'.

§ 618a-c. תרי"ח =

Nine words which respectively occur twice in combination with the preposition, are once preceded by וְעַל and once by וְעַל. The difference between this Rubric and the one recorded in א, § 524a-k, is that here the prepositions with which these words are severally combined have in both instances the Vav conjunctive, whilst there the same prepositions are without the Vav in both instances.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, nine in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 69a, on Levit. 10 16 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 95b, on Levit. 12 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 103a, on 2 Kings 8 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 232a, on Job 32 21; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 162b, on Numb. 4 49; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 76a, on Levit. 12 4; (VII) the same MS., fol. 285a, on Jerem. 26 15; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 193b, on Numb. 4 49; (IX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 156; (X) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 86; (XI) the printed Massorah on Numb. 4 49 and (XII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 166.

Though List I distinctly states that there are nine such pairs it enumerates eight only. I have, therefore, added the ninth pair from the other Lists, and indicated this addition by the Massoretic term דמיקון. List III not only states in the heading that there are ten pairs, but enumerates ten, giving במה as the first of these combinations.¹ But this pair does not occur in the textus receptus. As to the two fragmentary Lists, marked, § 618b and § 618c, the one is from Orient. 2349, fol. 88b, on Levit. 12 4 and the other from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 216a, on Hag. 1 1. They exhibit the first attempt to catalogue this phenomenon and are, therefore, as yet without headings. A third incipient List recording seven out of the nine pairs is given in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 121b, on Numb. 4 49.

¹ דהר כן ר' נתן דהר וכו' וכל ביהמ"ל וכל ביהמ"ל וכו'.

§ 619. תרי"ט =

and to a woman, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish it from the other two instances where this combination occurs and where the preposition is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 19 15; Ezek. 23 44). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 75b, on Levit. 18 19.

§ 620. תרי"י =

and to his house, occurs three times. In the other three instances where this combination with the preposition and the prefix Vav occurs it is וְקָל. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 14b, on Josh. 20 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 63a, on 2 Sam. 11 13; (III) the same MS., fol. 91a, on 1 Kings 16 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 161a, on Jerem. 23 34 where it is given as a contrast to וְקָלִי; (V) the same MS., fol. 249b, on 1 Chron. 17 23 where too it is given as contrast to safeguard it against the combination with וְקָל; (VI) Add. 154,51, fol. 158b, on Josh. 20 6; (VII) the same MS., fol. 328b, on 1 Kings 16 7; (VIII) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh I, § 159, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 426.

1 Comp. The Massorah, letter ז, § 514, Vol. II, p. 404.

תרכי"א - § 621.

וְאֶל־בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל וְהַדְּבָר לְאָמֹר and unto the children of Israel thou shalt speak saying, occurs four times thus combined. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these exceptional instances against being made conformable to the normal phrases וְאֶל־בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל (Levit. 4 2; 7 23, 29; 12 2; 23 24, 34) and וְאֶל־בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל (Levit. 18 2; 23 2, 10; 25 2; 27 2; Numb. 5 12; 6 2, 15 2, 18, 38; 33 51; 35 10) which are used in this connection, and which begin the verse. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 104a, on Numb. 27 8 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 73b, on Exod. 30 31; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 75b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 69b, on Levit. 9 8; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 117b, on Exod. 30 31; and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

As these four instances occur in the Pentateuch and always begin a verse, the heading in List IV is ד' בְּרִוּרֵי ד' = four times in the Pentateuch and in List V ד' רֵאשִׁי מְסֻקִּים ד' = four times at the beginning a verse, ought more correctly to be ד' בְּרִוּרֵי ד' four times and in the Pentateuch or ד' רֵאשִׁי מְסֻקִּים ד' = four times and at the beginning of a verse. But we have seen that the Vav is not unfrequently omitted in the headings.

תרכי"ב - § 622.

וְאֶל־הַיָּתִיד and to the rest of, occurs twice. In the other two instances where this combination occurs, the preposition is without the prefix Vav. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 564.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 381b, on Neh. 4 8.

תרכי"ג - § 623.

וְאֶל־מִי and to whom, occurs four times thus combined in the Scriptures. In the other three instances where מִי is preceded by this preposition it is without the prefix Vav. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 582.) The necessity for fixing the number at four is due to the fact that some Codices read וְאֶל־מִי instead of לְמִי in Isa. 46 5 in conformity with the parallel passage in Isa. 40 25.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 177a, on 1 Sam. 6 20 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 19b, on Isa. 40 25; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 223b, on Job 5 1; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 136a, on Isa. 40 25; (V) the same MS., fol. 323a, on Job 5 1; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 230a, on Isa. 40 25; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 320b, on Job 5 1; (VIII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 6 20; (IX) the same on Job 5 1 and (X) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 400.

It is important to remark that List VII not only states in the heading that there are five instances of this combination, but gives Isa. 46 5 as one, thus showing that the Massorites from whom this Rubric emanates worked upon Standard Codices which exhibited this reading.

תרכי"ד - § 624.

וְאֶל־הַמִּזְבֵּחַ and to, or upon the altar, occurs three times thus combined. In the other nine instances where הַמִּזְבֵּחַ is preceded by this preposition it is without the prefix Vav. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 579.)

Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 63b, on Levit. 2 12 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 77b, on Levit. 21 23; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 97b, on Numb. 18 3; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 86a, on Levit. 2 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 107a, on Levit. 21 23; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 77a, on the same passage; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 138b, on Levit. 2 12; (VIII) Orient. 2349, fol. 83a, on the same passage; (IX) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh I, § 159; (X) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 421, and (XI) the same letter י, § 21.

As all the three instances occur in the Pentateuch, List VIII heads this Rubric וְשָׁלֹשׁ נְיָ בְּהַר = three times in the Pentateuch, which ought more properly to be וְשָׁלֹשׁ נְיָ בְּהַר, but the Vav, as is often the case, is omitted.

תרכי"ה - § 625.

וְאֶל־עָפָר and into the dust, occurs twice. In all the other ten instances where עָפָר is preceded by the preposition it is וְאֶל־ without the prefix Vav or with it. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 8a, on Gen. 3 19 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 325a, on Job 10 9 and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 3 19.

1 Comp. וְאֶל־עָפָר Isa. 47 1; Job 17 16; 19 25; 20 11; 21 26; 22 24; 34 15; 41 25; 42 6; וְאֶל־עָפָר Job 39 14.

תרכי"ו - § 626.

וְאֶל־פָּנָי and to the face of, or before, occurs three times. In the other three instances where פָּנָי is preceded by the preposition with Vav conjunctive, it is וְאֶל־ (Gen. 16 12; Levit. 10 3; Ezek. 40 15). The import of this Rubric is discussed in letter מ, § 605. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 126b, on Ezek. 45 7.

תרכי"ז - § 627.

וְאֶל־שַׁעַר and to the gates of, occurs twice. In the other four instances, where this noun is preceded by the preposition with the prefix Vav it is וְאֶל־ (Neh. 12 37, 39, 39; 2 Chron. 26 9).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 380b, on Neh. 2 13 which I have printed and (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 125b, on Deut. 21 19.

תרכי"ח - § 628.

וְאֶל־יָמַי occurs four times. That is, this lengthened and poetical form of the preposition וְאֶל־. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this abnormal form which occurs in Job only against the various readings which obtained in the ancient Codices, as is evident from the Septuagint. Thus in Job 15 22 וְאֶל־ according to the reading exhibited in this ancient Version εἰς ἡμέρας μου is an abbreviation of וְאֶל־יָמַי which is now accepted by some of the best textual critics.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,260, fol. 354a, on Job 29 19, and (II) the printed Massorah on Job 5 26.

תרכי"ט - § 629.

וְאֶל־יָמַי and to or against me, occurs three times. That is, with the prefix Vav. In the numerous other instances where this preposition with the suffix first person occurs, it is without this prefix.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 105b, on Hos. 7 15 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 223b, on Job 4 12; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 201b, on Hos. 7 15; (IV) the same MS., fol. 378a, on Ezra 9 4; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah on Hos. 7 15 and (VII) the same on Job 4 12.

List II states in the heading (י' רֵאשִׁי מְסֻקִּים בְּקִרְיָה) that it occurs three times at the beginning of a verse in the Scriptures. As it begins a verse twice only in the textus receptus, the Massorah in this carefully written MS. probably proceeds from a School of Massorites in whose text וְאֶל־ also commenced the verse in Hos. 7 15.

תרכי"י - § 630.

וְאֶל־יָמַי and unto thee, occurs three times. In the numerous other instances where this preposition with the suffix second person occurs, it is without the prefix Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 260b, on 2 Kings 8 27.

תרכי"א - § 631a-b.

וְאֶל־יָמַי is the Kethiv or textual reading in three instances for which the Keri or the official reading, is וְאֶל־יָמַי. That is, the preposition וְאֶל־ with the suffix third person which has normally Yod before the Vav, is in these three instances without it. Hence the Massorah substitutes for it the ordinary orthography in the official Keri. In this form the first part of this Rubric is simple. It is from Orient. 2210, fol. 81b, on 1 Sam. 22 18. To the same effect are the two Rubrics in Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 189b, on the same passage, and Vol. II, fol. 121b, on Zech. 2 8. It is the addition at the end of the Rubric and throughout the Model of the Temple [= Ezek. 40 &c.] it is likewise so, which introduces a difficult element. Here יָא is not the preposition אַ without the Yod before the suffix Vav, but the noun אַ post, buttress, with or without the radical Yod after the Aleph and with or without the prefix Vav. The fact, however, that in all the eleven instances in which it occurs throughout this chapter it is without the Yod before the suffix Vav, that it is יָ instead of יַ, made the Massorites include this homonym in the same Rubric.

1 Comp. אַל עֶזְקֵי 40 36; אַל 40 24, 26, 31, 34, 37; אַל 40 29, 33; אַל 40 9, 21, 37.

תְּרִל"ב = § 631b.

אַל. Throughout the description of the Model of the Temple, אַל is written אַל, except in one instance . . . and throughout the Scriptures it is likewise אַל except in three instances. Whilst the preceding Rubric records the abnormal orthography outside Ezekiel chap. 40, this Massorah safeguards the single normal instance of אַל in this chapter. It will be seen that the solitary instance is the preposition אַ with the suffix third person, whilst in all the other passages with which it is contrasted it is the noun. Of this form of the Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 193b, on Ezek. 40 49 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage which enumerates the three exceptional instances in the Bible. (Vide supra, letter א, § 631a.)

תְּרִל"ג = § 632.

אַלְכֶם unto you, is six times defective in the Pentateuch. This determines the fact that in all the other twenty-one passages where the preposition אַל with the suffix second person plural masculine occurs, it is אַלְכֶם plene according to this Massorah. This is in harmony with the Jerusalem Codex. According to the Hellali Codex, however, and the School of textual redactors from which it proceeds, אַלְכֶם is also defective in Exod. 11 9 and thus exhibits another instance of the primitive orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 61a, on Exod. 7 4 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 119b, on Deut. 1 9; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 47b, on Gen. 42 14; (IV) the same MS., fol. 73a, on Exod. 7 4; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, supplement fol. 130b, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 42 14.

1 Comp. אַלְכֶם Gen. 19 8; 23 6; 42 22; 45 12; Exod. 3 13, 14, 16; 11 9; 12 26; 23 13; 24 14; Levit. 9 4, 6; 26 9; Numb. 15 23; 18 4; Deut. 1 43, 45; 4 12, 15; 10 4.

תְּרִל"ד = § 633.

אַלֵּיהֶם unto them, is in five instances misleading. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah nor in any other MS. which I have hitherto collated, is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 16 37.

Though this Massorah does not give the alternative reading to which the Massorite refers as misleading, two of the five instances indicate what it is. In Ezek. 16 37 some MSS. most probably read אַלֵּיהֶם in harmony with the preceding clause instead of אַלֵּיהֶם. That this was the reading in Esther 9 23 is attested by Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 275b, where this important Codex has it actually in the text. We may, therefore, reasonably conclude that in the other three passages some Codices also read אַלֵּיהֶם instead of אַלֵּיהֶם and that this is the import of the Rubric before us. רַמְשֵׁי is an abbreviation of רַמְשֵׁינָהּ which frequently occurs in the Massorah of the important MS. No. 1-3 in the Paris National Library both in its abbreviated form (רַמְשֵׁי) and fully written out. It is used interchangeably for רַמְשֵׁי and רַמְשֵׁינָהּ.

תְּרִל"ה = § 634.

אַלֵּיהֶם is seventeen times plene in the Pentateuch. Though the preposition אַל with the suffix third person plural masculine occurs no fewer than one hundred and one times in the Pentateuch, it is in these seventeen instances only where the later plene orthography has been introduced. In the other eighty-four passages it still exhibits the primitive spelling. The Massorah, therefore, records the exceptional orthography which is all the more necessary since some of the Standard

Codices of other Massoretic Schools have retained the primitive spelling in still more instances, as is attested by the Jerusalem Codex which reads אַלֵּיהֶם in Gen. 37 6; 42 7; Numb. 20 6 or in at least three of the seventeen passages catalogued in this Rubric as plene.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 87b, on Levit. 10 11 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 13b, on Gen. 19 10; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 21a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS. fol. 70a, on Levit. 10 11; (V) the same MS., fol. 94b, on Numb. 20 6; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 83a, on Gen. 34 14; (VII) the same MS., fol. 150b, on Levit. 10 11; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 242a, on Numb. 31 15; (IX) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 130b, and (X) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 515.

List I which I have printed omits Numb. 31 15 and hence enumerates sixteen only, but this is manifestly due to a clerical error, since it not only states in the heading that there are seventeen instances, but all the other Lists record seventeen and List VIII is on Numb. 31 15. List III concludes this Rubric with וְכִל יִרְשֶׁת וְשִׁמְלֵת רִמְשֵׁי רִמְשֵׁי בְּמִיָּה and gives the eight instances which constitute the two separate Rubrics, viz. §§ 635, 636.

תְּרִל"ו = § 635.

אַלְהֵם is in two instances defective in Joshua. In this book, where it occurs altogether fifteen times, the primitive orthography is retained in two passages only, whereas in thirteen instances the plene spelling prevails. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional spelling.

In Jeremiah [where this preposition with the suffix third person masculine plural occurs no fewer than forty times] and Isaiah [where it occurs five times] it is invariably plene in the correct Codices. Here, therefore, the later orthography uniformly prevails. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 516.

1 אַלְהֵם plene Josh. 4 12; 7 2; 9 8, 11, 21, 22; 10 9, 25; 17 15; 20 4; 21 2; 22 2, 8.

תְּרִל"ז = § 636.

אַלְהֵם is six times defective in Judges. In Judges, where it occurs sixteen times and is plene in ten passages and defective in six only, the Massorah records the minority. Accordingly the reading אַלְהֵם Judg. 19 25 which is to be found in some MSS. and editions is against this Massorah.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 157b, on Judg. 3 28 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 20b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 24b, on Judg. 8 23; (IV) the same MS., fol. 31a, on Judg. 18 2; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 140a, on Judg. 3 28; (VI) the same MS., fol. 148a, on Judg. 18 2; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Judg. 3 28 and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Judg. 18 2.

1 Comp. אַלְהֵם plene Judg. 7 17; 8 2, 9; 9 1, 57; 12 2; 16 18; 19 23, 25; 21 22.

תְּרִל"ח = § 637.

אַלְהֵם is thirteen times defective in Kings. In Kings, where it occurs altogether thirty-three times, it is plene in no fewer than twenty instances and defective in thirteen. Hence the Massorah records the minority. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 88b, on 1 Kings 13 12 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 97b, on 2 Kings 1 7; (III) the same MS., fol. 105b, on 2 Kings 10 18; (IV) the same MS., fol. 112a, on 2 Kings 18 18; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 193a, on 1 Kings 13 12; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

It will be seen that though the heading of the List which I printed, distinctly states that there are thirteen plene instances, it enumerates twelve only. The passage omitted is 2 Kings 10 18, but this is manifestly due to a clerical error, since this very Codex not only gives it in the other Lists, but one of the Rubrics, viz. List IV is on this very passage.

1 Comp. אַלְהֵם plene 1 Kings 6 52; 12 5, 7, 9, 10, 14; 21 11, 11; 2 Kings 1 5, 12; 6 11; 9 11, 20; 10 6, 7; 11 15; 13 23; 18 19, 27; 23 15.

תְּרִל"ט = § 638.

אַלְהֵם is seven times defective in Ezekiel. In Ezekiel, where it occurs altogether forty-one times, it is plene in thirty-four instances' and defective in these seven passages only. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176b, on Ezek. 16 37 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 178b, on Ezek. 20 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 188a, on Ezek. 33 27; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ezek. 16 37; (V) the same Codex on Ezek. 20 3 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 16 37.

¹ Comp. אֱלֹהִים plene Ezek. 2 4, 4, 7; 3 6, 11, 11, 27; 6 2; 9 7; 12 10, 23, 28, 28; 14 4; 16 37; 20 5, 9, 27; 23 16, 27, 40; 24 3, 20; 33 2, 11; 34 2, 20; 37 4, 12, 21; 40 39, 41, 42.

תְּרִיבִים = § 639.

אֲלֵהֶם is twice defective in Ecclesiastes. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Eccl. 8 14. As there are two instances only where this preposition with the suffix third person plural masculine occurs in Ecclesiastes and, moreover, as they are both defective the heading ought more properly to be בִּי הַמֶּלֶךְ בְּשֵׁנִי יֵצֵא יָדָיו וְיִשְׁפֹּט אֶת הָאָרֶץ וְיִשְׁפֹּט אֶת הָאָרֶץ it occurs twice in Ecclesiastes and both times defective.

תְּרִיבִים = § 640.

אֲלֵהֶם is fifteen times defective, seven of which occur in this book [i. e. Chronicles] and eight in the rest of the Hagiographa and the others are plene.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 159a, on 2 Chron. 18 5 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 263b, on 2 Chron. 10 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 267b, on 2 Chron. 18 5; (IV) the same MS., fol. 271a, on 2 Chron. 23 14; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 333a, on 2 Chron. 10 5; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 516.

As is frequently the case, these Lists emanate from different Massoretic Schools where they were compiled from the Standard Codices which were preserved by the respective custodians of the text. Hence the conflicting headings and the variations in the contents of the several Rubrics. Thus (1) Lists I, V and VI emphatically state that there are fifteen instances only of the defective orthography in the Hagiographa though it is Lists I and VI alone which give this number. List V omits the second instance in 2 Chron. 10 7, which is often the case when two instances occur in the same verse, and 2 Chron. 18 5. The heading of List I which I have printed is incorrect and is manifestly due to a clerical error מִן מִטְקָן בְּשֵׁנִי הָיָה בְּתַרְבִּיבִים ought to be מִן מִטְקָן בְּשֵׁנִי הָיָה בְּתַרְבִּיבִים as is evident from the contrast. (2) Lists IV and VII state as clearly in the heading that there are sixteen such instances. These sixteen instances are made up in List VII by the addition of Ezra 6 21 and Neh. 13 21 and the omission of one of the two instances in 2 Chron. 10 7. List IV, which belongs to the same School, is incomplete. It enumerates thirteen passages only, though it states in the heading that there are sixteen. It omits Eccl. 8 4, 4; Ezra 6 21; Neh. 13 21. (3) Lists II and III state as emphatically in the heading that there are seventeen instances of defective orthography in the Hagiographa. Like List IV, however, they enumerate the same thirteen passages only. Now if we add the two instances in List VII (Ezra 6 21; Neh. 13 21) to the fifteen in Lists I and IV we actually obtain the seventeen passages which are mentioned in the headings of Lists II and III.

It is to be remarked that this preposition with the suffix third person plural masculine occurs altogether twenty-seven times in the Hagiographa. According to the School, therefore, which acknowledges fifteen defectives only, there are twelve plenes.¹ According to those which register sixteen there are eleven, whilst according to those which catalogue seventeen there are ten only of the plene orthography. It will, therefore, be seen that the defectives constitute the larger number and that the Massorah here, contrary to its usual practice safeguards the majority.

¹ Comp. Ps. 119 7; Job 42 9; Esther 3 4; 9 23, 26; Ezra 6 21; Neh. 6 17; 13 21; 1 Chron. 13 40; 2 Chron. 8 11; 14 8; 24 17.

תְּרִיבִים = § 641.

וְאֵלֵיהֶם and unto them, occurs twice once plene and once defective. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the abnormal use of the suffix third person plural masculine in construction with the feminine noun in 2 Sam. 20 3 against the School of textual redactors which read וְאֵלֵיהֶם with the feminine suffix. Not only is the feminine suffix exhibited in some MSS. (comp. Add. 21,161), but it is the reading in the editio princeps, Soncino 1485-1486, as well as in the first and third editions of the Bible, Soncino 1488, Brescia 1494.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 71a, on 2 Sam. 20 3 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 165b, on Levit. 17 8; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 92b, on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (V) the same Codex on 2 Sam. 20 3 and (VI) the printed Massorah Parva on the same passage.

תְּרִיבִים = § 642.

אֲלֵיהֶם unto them [feminine], occurs five times. It is a remarkable feature of the Hebrew Scriptures that whilst the masculine form אֵלֵיהֶם occurs more than two hundred and ninety times, the feminine אֲלֵיהֶם occurs five times only.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 35a, on Exod. 1 17 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 98a, on Ezek. 41 25; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 194b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 119b, on Deut. 1 22; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 64b, on Exod. 1 17; (VI) the same MS., fol. 254b, on Deut. 1 22; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 289b, on Ezek. 41 25; (VIII) Orient. 2349, fol. 58a, on Exod. 1 17; (IX) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, § 68, and (X) the printed Massorah on Exod. 1 17.

With the exception of two Lists (I VII) all the others properly head this Rubric אֵלֵי הַיְיָ אֵלֵי הַיְיָ it occurs five times, four plene and one defective, since it is אֲלֵיהֶם defective in Exod. 1 18.

תְּרִיבִים = § 643.

אֵלֵי God, is twice with the accent Zakeph-Gadol. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Numb. 16 22.

תְּרִיבִים = § 644a-d.

אֵלֵי. The following proper names compounded with אֵלֵי God, respectively occur once only. This heading, which is in brackets, I have affixed. In these four incipient Lists we have the first attempts on the part of the Massorites to collect the proper names which are not only compounded with, but end in אֵלֵי.

The first List marked § 644a which gives twenty-four names is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 248a, on 2 Kings 14 7. The second marked § 644b which gives ten only is from Orient. 2349, fol. 60b, on Exod. 6 25. The third marked § 644c which records eight is from the printed Massorah also on Exod. 6 25. By an oversight I omitted אֲרִיָּאֵל which is the first name in this fragment. The fourth, viz. § 644e which gives four instances only is also from the printed Massorah on Joel 1 1.

It is necessary to remark that these fragmentary Lists not only register the names which occur once only in this composition, but the forms with a prefix which are unique. Hence אֲרִיָּאֵל, Jothael (2 Kings 14 7) is given as unique though this name occurs again with the prefix Vav אֲרִיָּאֵל (Josh. 15 38). אֲזַרְיָאֵל and Azriel occurs only once with the prefix Vav (Numb. 26 31), whilst it occurs twice more without the prefix (Josh. 17 2; 1 Chron. 7 14). The same is the case with אֲשַׁבְּנָאֵל and Shebuel (1 Chron. 26 24) which is described as unique though it is to be found twice more without the prefix Vav (1 Chron. 23 16; 25 4) and several other names. As the design of this Rubric is to catalogue the proper names in composition with אֵלֵי the solitary instance of אֲרִיָּאֵל (Isa. 5 16), which is not a compound name, has manifestly been added in § 644a, by a later Massorite who mistook the import of this Rubric. The List was left open for other Massorites to complete and hence the first compilers of it affixed to it neither heading nor number. Hitherto I have not been able to find a complete List in any MS. I have, therefore, tried to complete it in § 644e and as usual have indicated my additions by the Massoretic phrase לְבַר מַסְסוֹרָה = apart from the Massorah.

תְּרִיבִים = § 645.

אֵל אֱלֹהִים יְהוָה God, God, Jehovah, occurs three times. That is this triple name. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 188a, on Ps. 50 1 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 296a, on the same passage; (III) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. I, § 153 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 50 1.

תְּרִיבִים = § 646.

וְאֵל שֵׁדִי and God Almighty, occurs twice. In the other four instances where this combination occurs, it is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 17 1; 35 11; 48 3; Ezek. 10 5). This Massorah is designed to exclude the reading וְאֵל שֵׁדִי in Gen. 49 25 which obtained in some Schools of textual redactors and which is exhibited in some MSS. as well as in the Samaritan, the Septuagint and the Syriac. Hence the addition at the end of this Rubric and in one passage it is אֱלֹהִים. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 22a, on Gen. 28 3.

תְּרִינִי - § 647.

אֱלֹהִים like God, occurs twice. In the other three instances where the Caph comparison is prefixed to the Divine name it is the longer form אֱלֹהִים (Gen. 3 5; Zech. 12 8; Ps. 77 14). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 835a, on Job 40 9.

תְּרִמִּיה - § 648.

אֱלֹהִים unto God, occurs eleven times. That is, with Kametz under the Lamed to distinguish it from אֱלֹהִים with Sheva under the Lamed which occurs fifteen times.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 85a, on Numb. 3 24 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 23a, on Gen. 35 1; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 297b, on Ps. 57 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 325b, on Job 13 8; (V) the same MS., fol. 328b, on Job 21 14; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 31a, on Gen. 35 1; (VII) the same MS., fol. 357a, on Ps. 57 3; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 378b, on Job 13 8; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 34a, on Gen. 35 1; (X) the same MS., fol. 323a, on Job 13 8; (XI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah Supplement, fol. 130b, and (XII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 57 3.

It will be seen that אֱלֹהִים in Numb. 3 24 is a proper name Lael, but, as we have already remarked, the Massorah includes homonyms in the same Rubric or words which are spelled alike and have the same vowel-points irrespective of their difference in sense. This explains the brief form of this Rubric אֱלֹהִים in Orient. 2349, fol. 48a, on Gen. 35 1, viz. אֱלֹהִים אֱלֹהִים אֱלֹהִים it occurs eleven times in the Scriptures and is always the Divine name except in one instance where it is the name of a human being Numb. 3 24.

תְּרִמִּיש - § 649.

אֱלֹהִים my God, occurs twice. That is, this Chaldee form with the suffix first person singular. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Dan. 6 28.

תְּרִינִי - § 650.

אֱלֹהִים God, begins a verse thirty-one times. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, as is evident from the fact that it is given in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 800b, on Ps. 69 6, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 64a, on Exod. 22 27; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 101b, on the same passage; (IV) Orient. 2348, fol. 135b, on Deut. 4 21; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 125b, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement, fol. 133a, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 431.

The design of this Massorah is to distinguish between and thus to safeguard, the verses which begin with this Divine name and those which commence with the Tetragrammaton. This is set forth in the headings of Lists IV and V which are on a verse beginning with Jehovah, viz. Deut. 4 21. These headings are as follows: אֱלֹהִים throughout the Law, the Prophets and the Hagiographa Jehovah begins a verse except in thirty-one instances where it is Elohim.

On looking at Hab. 3 19 and Ps. 140 8 it will be seen that though these two verses begin with the Tetragrammaton they are reckoned among the thirty-one verses which begin with Elohim. This is due to the fact that in both these passages the Ineffable name is followed by אֱדֹנָי Adonai, and that in such combinations אֱדֹנָי is simply the Kethiv with the vowel-points of אֱלֹהִים which is the Keri or the official reading. (Vide supra, letter א, § 107, p. 27.) In the List which I have printed thirty instances only are catalogued though the heading gives it as thirty-one. The omission, viz. Ps. 71 17, which is manifestly due to a clerical error, is supplied in the other Lists.

תְּרִינִי - § 651.

אֱלֹהִים God, has in seven instances the accent [Dechi] at the beginning of the verse. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 175a, on Ps. 7 12. Though the heading distinctly states that there are seven instances, six only are enumerated. The seventh which is in Ps. 54 4, has manifestly been omitted by an oversight because of its close proximity to verse 3. It is to be remarked that one of the instances is אֱלֹהִים with the prefix Vav (Ps. 74 12) and that the expression אֱלֹהִים = in the book of Psalms has been omitted from the heading which is frequently the case, since אֱלֹהִים with the accent at the beginning of the verse also occurs in Job 28 23.

תְּרִינִי - § 652.

אֱלֹהִים. Forms of the Divine names אֱלֹהִים God and אֱלֹהִים which respectively occur once only. The six words which constitute this Rubric are from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 48b, on Exod. 22 19. The heading I have added. It will be seen that it simply exhibits the first attempt to collect the forms of אֱלֹהִים and אֱלֹהִים which are unique and that the Massorite had not as yet affixed any number because the List was still open for additions. This explains the fact that אֱלֹהִים Exod. 6 3; אֱלֹהִים Isa. 5 16; אֱלֹהִים Pa. 146 5; אֱלֹהִים Isa. 48 1; אֱלֹהִים 2 Chron. 32 17 which are also unique forms are not as yet included. Later Massorites, however, instead of completing the incipient List regarded it as final and hence put a heading to it fixing the number of instances at six. This is the case in the three Lists which I have found of this Rubric, viz. (I) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 153; (II) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 190, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 489. In the List which I have printed אֱלֹהִים is with a query and without a reference. It is a mistake for אֱלֹהִים Pa. 86 8.

תְּרִינִי - § 653a.

אֱלֹהִים. In nine groups which respectively consist of two words the second word is in a unique manner אֱלֹהִים without the article. That is, in all other instances where these words are combined with this Divine name it is invariably אֱלֹהִים with the article. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 23a, on Gen. 35 5 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 74a, on Exod. 32 16; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 18a, on Josh. 24 26 and (IV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 153.

It is remarkable that whilst אֱלֹהִים (1 Sam. 4 7) and אֱלֹהִים (Jonah 4 8) which strictly belong to this Rubric since we have אֱלֹהִים in Exod. 20 20 and אֱלֹהִים in Jonah 4 7 are here omitted, all the Lists give אֱלֹהִים as one of the nine instances of this exceptional combination without the article though it is the only phrase which does not occur again with the article. It was most probably added by a later Massorite as it does not belong to this category. That later Massorites were not always careful in handling this Rubric is, moreover, evident from List II which records ten instances of this unique combination giving אֱלֹהִים as one, though this phrase occurs twice, viz. Exod. 31 18 and Deut. 9 10. This List, however, has not as yet any heading and gives no fixed number of passages in which words are thus combined with אֱלֹהִים in an exceptional manner.

תְּרִינִי - § 653b.

אֱלֹהִים. The following words are combined with אֱלֹהִים and have no parallel. The difference between this Rubric and the former one is that here the Massorah catalogues: (1) the words which respectively occur once only in combination with אֱלֹהִים and which in all other passages are combined with אֱלֹהִים; (2) words combined with אֱלֹהִים and which in all other passages are combined with אֱלֹהִים and (3) words combined with אֱלֹהִים which are never again combined with either אֱלֹהִים or with אֱלֹהִים. Hence this Rubric not only includes all the nine instances which are given in the former Rubric, but registers seven words which in all other passages are combined with the Tetragrammaton and four which also do not occur again either in combination with אֱלֹהִים or with אֱלֹהִים. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 489. The heading does not specify the number of instances in which this combination occurs, as the List was left open to be completed by other Massorites. This accounts for the omission of אֱלֹהִים Pa. 66 5 which is unique (in the only other instance where this noun is combined with the Divine name it is אֱלֹהִים Pa. 45 9) and of אֱלֹהִים Ps. 46 5 which is also unique. The other combinations are אֱלֹהִים Pa. 87 3 and אֱלֹהִים Isa. 60 14.

תְּרִינִי - § 654.

אֱלֹהִים. Nine groups which respectively consist of the same three words and in which the second word is אֱלֹהִים. Stripped of its artificial language the import of this heading is that nine words respectively occur three times combined with this Divine name. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 188a, on Pa. 50 1 which I have printed and (II) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 153.

It will be seen that, though the heading of both Lists distinctly says that there are nine such groups, the Rubric itself records ten. List I, moreover, gives at the end two groups which respectively consist of two instances where a word occurs twice in combination with this Divine name, whilst List II gives one only of these two groups. The conflict between the statement of the heading and the contents of the Lists, is manifestly due to later Massorites, who mistook the import of this Rubric and appended the tenth (באלהים), as well as the two pairs which are in manifest conflict with the original design.

Each of these nine groups is the subject of a separate Rubric: (1) אלהים letter ב, § 455; (2) יהוה letter י, § 576; (3) דבר letter ד, § 87; (4) ויבדל letter ו, § 60; (5) ויבדל letter ב, § 498; (6) כי letter כ, § 139; (7) אל letter א, § 645; (8) ויאן letter א, § 399 and (9) ויבדל letter ש, § 715.

These however, by no means exhaust these triplet groups, as is evident from the fact that יהוה אלהים also occurs three times (comp. letter ה, § 320), so also does אלהים אלהים (comp. letter ט, § 636). It is, therefore, more than probable that the original compilation simply exhibited the first attempt to collect these instances and that, as is usual with these incipient Lists, the Massorite left it open for other Massorites to complete it. Instead, however, of completing they not only affixed a heading to it, but supplemented it with groups which do not belong to this Rubric.

תריניח = § 655.

אלהים האלהים. Words which respectively occur twice once combined with אלהים without the prefix He and once with it. This heading I have added to this incipient Rubric which is as yet without any heading and without catchwords. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three fragments: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 31b, on Gen. 5 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 69a, on Exod. 20 20 and (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 41b, on Gen. 5 1.

With the exception of omitting the companion to the first pair, viz. אלהים אלהים which does not occur in the textus receptus Lists I and III are exactly alike. List II, however, consists of a smaller fragment. It simply gives three pairs of which two are not in the other Lists, viz.:

Ps. 46 5	אלהים ל	יהוה אלהים ל	Jonah 4 8
" 87 3	אלהים ל	"	" 7

These fragmentary Lists, however, do not seem to have been completed. Hence the omission of אלהים אלהים (1 Sam. 29 9) אלהים אלהים (2 Sam. 19 28).

תריניח = § 656.

אלהים יהוה. Three pairs of verses which severally contain the same two words in the same connection and in which this word is followed in the first instance by God and in the second by the Tetragrammaton. That is, in each pair of verses or in each of the three groups there is a word which in the first instance is in combination with the Divine name Elohim and in the second instance it is in combination with the Ineffable name. This Rubric is designed to safeguard these passages against the variations which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors, as will be seen from the notes in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 71a, on Exod. 5 17 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 46a, on Exod. 5 8 and (III) the printed Massorah on Exod. 5 17.

Though the wording of the heading in List II is somewhat different, viz. יהוה אלהים ויהוה אלהים, yet the List itself gives the same three pairs only. As this List is from the oldest Codex extant, it is evident that the original Massorites catalogued three such pairs only. As List III, gives five pairs, there can hardly be any doubt that they are the addition of later Massorites who completed the Rubric and altered the heading from יהוה אלהים = five. I have, therefore, added these two pairs to the original Rubric with the usual term יהוה אלהים. It is to be remarked that the heading in List II as well as in List III which is יהוה אלהים is more correct, since in two only of the three pairs or in three of the five pairs does אלהים occur first, whilst in one pair according to Lists I and II and in two pairs according to List III (Ps. 14 7; 53 7 and Ps. 35 27 and 70 5) יהוה occurs first and אלהים second.

תריניח = § 657.

אלהים אתהוארם. God with men, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 152a, on 2 Chron. 6 18 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 126b, on Deut. 5 21.

תריניח = § 658.

אלהים אתם ye are gods, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 187b, on Isa. 41 23.

תריניח = § 659.

אלהים ונהחתי. God has cast us off, occurs three times in this combination in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 191a, on Ps. 60 12 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 298b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 60 3. As this phrase not only occurs three times in the Bible, but as all the three instances are confined to the Psalms, the heading of this Rubric in the printed Massorah (List III) is אלהים ונהחתי three times and in this book, i. e. the Psalter.

תריניח = § 660.

אלהים לישראל. God unto Israel, occurs three times thus combined in the Scriptures. On referring to the notes in my edition of the Hebrew Bible it will be seen that in 1 Sam. 17 46 both MSS. and early editions read it אלהים לישראל. Hence this Massorah militates against the School of redactors which have preserved this reading.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 185b, on 1 Sam. 17 46 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 47a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 54b, on Gen. 46 2 and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 548. As one of the three instances occurs in each of the three divisions of the Bible, List III has at the end of the Rubric אלהים לישראל אלהים לישראל אלהים לישראל one occurs in the Law, one in the Prophets, one in the Hagiographa.

תריניח = § 661.

אלהים עמכם. God with you, occurs twice. In all the other eleven instances where the Divine name precedes this preposition with suffix second person plural masculine it is יהוה and not אלהים. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 56b, on Gen. 48 21 which I have printed and (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 124b, on Zech. 8 23.

1 Comp. יהוה עמכם Exod. 10 10; 24 8; Numb. 14 43; Deut. 5 4; 9 9, 10; 2 Sam. 2 6; Ruth. 1 8; 2 4; 2 Chron. 15 2; 20 17.

תריניח = § 662.

אלהים שופט. God is judge, or judgeth, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these three passages against being made conformable to the instance in which אלהים is followed by שופט the participle plural (Ps. 58 12).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 188b, on Ps. 50 6 which I have printed and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 7 12. As all the three instances occur in the Psalms, the heading ought more properly to be יהוה שופט three times and in the same book, i. e. the Psalter, but this more precise description is often omitted.

תריניח = § 663.

אלהים באלהים. in God, begins a verse six times. As all the six instances are in the Psalms, the heading ought properly to be אלהים באלהים six times at the beginning of a verse and in this book, i. e. the Psalter, but as we have seen, this expression is not unfrequently omitted. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 329a, on Ps. 56 5 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 411a, on Ps. 56 5 and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. It will be seen that the Vav which expresses the number is closely united with the abbreviation י"ם thus making of it as it were one word. This is often the case.

§ 664. תרס"ד

אלהים and God, occurs seven times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, I collated eleven Lists, eight in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 13a, on Gen. 22 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 157b, on 2 Chron. 13 15; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 255b, on 1 Chron. 28 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 265a, on 2 Chron. 13 15; (V) the same MS., fol. 352a, on Eccl. 3 14; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 22b, on Gen. 22 1; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 9b, on the same passage; (VIII) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah I, § 153; (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 22 1; (X) the same on Eccl. 3 14 and (XI) the same on 1 Chron. 28 3.

§ 665. תרס"ה

אלהים and God, occurs five times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 34b, on Gen. 50 24 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 194b, on 1 Sam. 28 15; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 107a, on Hos. 13 4; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 171b, on 2 Chron. 35 21; (V) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 196a, on Ps. 74 12; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 55a, on 1 Sam. 28 15; (VII) the same MS., fol. 203a, on Hos. 13 4; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 280b, on 2 Chron. 35 21; (IX) the same MS., fol. 302a, on Ps. 74 12; (X) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah I, § 153; (XI) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 50 24 and (XII) the same on 1 Sam. 28 15.

From the remark at the end of List IV וַיִּשָׁאֵר אֱלֹהִים and in all the other instances it is evident that the design of this Massorah is to safeguard these exceptional five instances where this Divine name has the prefix Vav, from the numerous instances in which it is without this prefix.

§ 666. תרס"ו

באלהים as God, occurs three times in the Scriptures once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 126b, on Zech. 12 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 197a, on Ps. 77 14; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Zech. 12 8; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 221a, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 303a, on Ps. 77 14; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 311b, on Zech. 12 8; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 77 14; (VIII) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah I, § 153; (IX) the printed Massorah, on Zech. 12 8 and (X) the same on Ps. 77 14.

§ 667. תרס"ז

מאֵלֵהֶם from God, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 133a, on 1 Chron. 5 22 which I have printed and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 164a, on 2 Chron. 25 20.

§ 668. תרס"ח

אלהי the God of, has three times the accent on the penultimate in the Pentateuch, and the mnemonic sign thereof is, the name of silver is from of old, i. e. is mentioned very early in the Bible.

Of this Rubric, I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 47b, on Exod. 20 23 [- 20] which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 135a, on Deut. 33 27; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 9a, on Gen. 9 26; (IV) the same MS., fol. 116b, on Deut. 33 27; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 33b, on Gen. 9 26; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (VII) the same on Exod. 20 23 [- 20] and (VIII) the same on Deut. 33 27. The mnemonic sign I have found in the printed Massorah only where it is given twice, once on Deut. 33 27 and once without the record of the passages in the Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 478.

§ 669. תרס"ט

אלהי אבתם God of their fathers, occurs four times. That is, the combination of this Divine name with the shorter form אבתם with the suffix third person plural masculine instead of the longer form אבותיהם with which it is normally combined and which occurs no fewer than fourteen times.¹

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 165b, on 2 Chron. 28 6, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 19b, on ¹ Comp. אֱלֹהֵי אֲבוֹתֵינוּ 1 Chron. 29 20; 2 Chron. 7 22; 11 10; 13 18; 14 3; 15 12; 19 4; 24 18, 24; 30 7, 22; 34 32, 33; 36 15.

Judg. 2 12; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 132b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 139b, on the same passage; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 59a, on Exod. 4 5; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Deut. 29 24; (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VIII) the same on Judg. 2 12.

As the Tetragrammaton precedes אֱלֹהֵי in all the four instances, List VIII heads it דָּוָד אֱלֹהֵי אֲבוֹתָם רַי. (Vide infra, letter מ, § 183.)

§ 670. תר"ע

אלהי ישראל the God of Israel, occurs twenty-eight times in an exceptional manner That is, without being preceded by the Tetragrammaton or by דָּוָד אֱלֹהֵי אֲבוֹתָם with which it is normally combined.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed, apart from the one which I have printed and the reference to which I have mislaid: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 120a; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 110a, both on Numb. 16 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 136b, on Isa. 41 17; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 104a, on Exod. 24 10 and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

These five Lists together yield no fewer than thirty-six passages in which this phrase occurs without being preceded by either דָּוָד אֱלֹהֵי אֲבוֹתָם or דָּוָד אֱלֹהֵי אֲבוֹתָם, since some give instances which the others omit and vice versa. These exclusions and inclusions, however, are by no means arbitrary; they are based upon definite systems which obtained in the several Massoretic Schools and indicate two distinct recensions. Among the thirty-six passages there are four in which אֱלֹהֵי has the prefix Lamed, viz. לֵאלֹהֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל. These constitute a separate Rubric. (Vide infra, letter מ, § 675.) There are, moreover, seven instances in which the phrase אֱלֹהֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל is preceded by אֱרֶן and these too are the subject of a separate Massorah. (Vide infra, letter מ, § 1070.) This fact supplies the clue to the two recensions as will be seen from the following Table:

V	IV	III	II	I
1	*	1	1	1	רַיב אֱלֹהֵי	Gen.	33 20 1
2	1	2	2	2	וַיִּרְאוּ	Exod.	24 10 2
3	2	3	3	3	הַמַּעַס	Numb.	16 9 3
4	*	4	4	4	מַעֲלָתָם בְּאֵלֹהֵי	Josh.	22 16 4
10)	28	*	*	*	שִׁלְחֵךְ וְאֵלֹהֵי	1 Sam.	1 17 5
31)	4	3	*	*	וַיִּרְאוּ אֶרֶן	"	5 7 6
5	4	*	*	*	נִקְשָׁה לְאֶרֶן	"	" 8 7
6	5	*	*	*	וַיִּסַּב אֶרֶן	"	" 8 8
7	6	*	*	*	וַיִּסְבּוּ אֶרֶן	"	" 8 9
11	7	*	*	*	וַיִּסְבּוּ אֶרֶן	"	" 10 10
8	8	*	*	*	וַיִּסְבּוּ אֶרֶן	"	" 11 11
12	9	*	26	26	מִשְׁלַחֵי אֶרֶן	"	6 3 12
4	*	5	6	6	וַתִּתְּנֵם לְאֵלֹהֵי	"	" 5 13
13	10	6	7	7	אֲשֶׁר שִׁלְחֵךְ	"	25 32 14
14	11	7	8	8	אֲמַר	2 Sam.	23 8 15
15	12	8	9	9	וַתִּהְיֶה אֱלֹהֵי	1 Kings	8 26 16
16	13	9	10	10	כִּי בִרְאִיתִי	Isa.	29 23 17
17	14	10	11	11	הַקִּנּוּיִם	"	41 17 18
18	15	11	12	12	הַקִּרְאוֹת	"	45 3 19
19	16	12	13	13	אֲבָן אֶתֶּן	"	" 15 20
*	*	16	13	13	הַנִּשְׁבָּעִים וּבְאֵלֵי	"	48 1 21
19	16	*	14	14	כִּי מִיָּד	"	" 2 22
20	17	17	15	15	וּבְהַסְתֵּכֶם	"	52 12 23
21	18	8	16	16	וַתִּגַּד שֶׁם	Ezek.	9 4 24
22	19	9	17	17	וַיִּכְבַּד אֱלֹהֵי	"	9 8 25
23	20	10	18	18	וַיִּשְׁאוּ חֲכָרִים	"	10 19 26
24	20	11	20	20	הַיָּהוּה	"	" 20 27
25	22	*	19	19	וַיִּשְׁאוּ חֲכָרִים	"	11 22 28
26	23	12	21	21	וַתִּגַּד כְּבוֹד	"	43 2 29
28	25	18	25	25	אֵל יִבְשׁוּ	Ps.	69 7 30
29	26	19	*	*	וַיִּקַּח יִשְׁרָעֵל	Ezra	3 2 31
*	*	28	27	27	הַבָּאִים לְאֵלֵי	"	8 36 32
30	27	20	28	28	וְהָלַךְ יִשְׁרָעֵל	"	9 4 33
*	*	21	22	22	וַיִּקְרָא לְאֵלֵי	1 Chron.	4 10 34
27	24	*	23	23	וַיִּזְכֹּר	"	5 26 35
*	*	22	24	24	גַּם מִבְּרֹא אֱלֹהֵי	2 Chron.	29 7 36
31	28	23	28	28

To facilitate the deciphering of the two recensions, I have put the expression אֱלֹהֵי with the prefixes as well as the word אֶרֶן against the catchword of the respective passages where they occur. By this means it becomes apparent that Lists I, II and III proceed from a Massoretic School which excluded the passages in combination with אלהי ישראל, viz. אלהי ישראל, whilst Lists IV and V represent a recension which includes these passages, but excludes the instances in which אלהי is with the prefixes, viz. אלהי ישראל &c.

We have still to consider some of the peculiarities in each of the five Lists. The headings in Lists I and II differ. The first has אלהי ישראל בן מדרד בן מדרד and the second אלהי ישראל בן מדרד בן מדרד. But they both agree in making up the twenty-eight instances by giving 1 Sam. 25 32 as the fifth passage and omitting Ezra 3 2. As the Tetragrammaton precedes אלהי ישראל in 1 Sam. 25 32 in the textus receptus, these Lists must be based upon a textual recension which had not יהוה in this passage, but had it in Ezra 3 2. That the passages which constitute this Rubric exhibited various readings in the Codices and that this gave rise to the Massorah before us, will be seen from the notes on 1 Kings 8 26 in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

List III which exhibits the same recension heads it אלהי ישראל and though it thus states that there are twenty-four instances, it enumerates twenty-three only, the omission of 1 Sam. 6 8 being manifestly due to the Scribe. It gives, however, Ezra 3 2 and not 1 Sam. 25 32.

List IV which exhibits the second recension is by far the most complete. The omission of Gen. 33 20, which is given in all the other four Lists, is due to the fact that the phrase אלהי ישראל is here preceded by another Divine name, viz. אלהי ישראל and is, therefore, put in the same category with אלהי ישראל (Ps. 68 9) and האלהים אלהי ישראל (Ezra 6 23) which are excluded from this Rubric.

List V, which also exhibits the second recension, has inadvertently inserted אלהי (1 Sam. 6 5) against the principle upon which it is based and gives 1 Sam. 1 17 twice as Nos. 10 and 31.

תרע"א = § 671.

אלהי נקוד strange gods, occurs three times, twice with Kametz and once with Patach. That is, in two instances the noun is נקוד the absolute and in one instance it is נקוד the construct. This phrase, which occurs altogether nine times, has in six instances the prefix He before the noun, i. e. הנהיך¹ and it is in these three passages only that נקוד is without the article. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional usage. In the only other instance where this phrase occurs נקוד is in combination with אלהי the singular, viz. אלהי נקוד Dan. 11 39 for which reason it is excluded from this Rubric. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 151a, on Deut. 31 16 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 141a, on the same passage.

¹ Comp. אלהי הנקוד Gen. 35 2, 4; Josh. 24 23; Judg. 10 16; 1 Sam. 7 3; 2 Chron. 33 16.

תרע"ב = § 672.

אלהי העברים God of the Hebrews, occurs five times . . . and once it is העבריים. That is with two Yods. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 62a, on Exod. 9 13 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 77b, on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 85 on the same passage; (IV) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach, fol. 60a, margin and (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 5 3. Though all these instances are restricted to Exodus, the expression ובכח and in this book is omitted from the headings in all the five Lists.

תרע"ג = § 673.

אלהי הנבואות the God of hosts, occurs four times. That is, in these four instances only has הנבואות the prefix He in combination with the construct אלהי נבואות. Normally it is אלהי נבואות without the article.¹

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 106b, on Hos. 12 6 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 803a, on Amos 3 13 and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 299b, on the same passage.

It will be seen that List I not only states emphatically in the heading that this combination occurs four times, but gives Amos 9 5 as one of the four instances. The Codices, therefore, from which the Massorite compiled this Rubric read it here

¹ Comp. אלהי הנבואות 2 Sam. 5 10; 1 Kings 19 10, 14; Jerem. 35 17; 38 17; 44 7; Amos 4 13; 5 14, 15, 16, 27; 6 8; Ps. 89 9.

אלהי הנבואות as it is given in the catchword. The other two Lists state in the heading that there are three such instances only and omit Amos 9 5. Their Massorah, therefore, is based upon a recension which exhibited the present textus receptus.

תרע"ד = § 674a-b.

אלהי השמים the God of heaven, occurs three times in an exceptional manner. That is, without being preceded by the Tetragrammaton. Normally the phrase is יהוה אלהי השמים. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 381b, on Jonah 1 9 and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 480.

Rubric 674b which is so given in some MSS. properly belongs to the combination יהוה אלהי השמים Jehovah the God of hosts and I have, therefore, printed it with its correct heading under letter א. (Vide infra, § 186, p. 711.)

תרע"ה = § 675.

אלהי ישראל to the God of Israel, occurs four times in this combination in the Scriptures. In all other instances where the prefix Lamed precedes the Divine name in connection with Israel it is the double union, viz. יהוה אלהי ישראל to Jehovah the God of Israel.¹

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 291b, on Ezra 8 35 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 192a, on 1 Chron. 4 10; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 166a, on 2 Chron. 29 7; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 289b, on 1 Chron. 4 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 275a, on 2 Chron. 29 7; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 315b, on 1 Chron. 4 10 and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 499.

The four instances which constitute this Rubric are according to one recension included in the Massorah given in § 670.

¹ Comp. Josh. 7 19, 20; 8 30; Judg. 5 8; Ezra 4 1, 3; 6 21; 1 Chron. 22 6; 2 Chron. 15 18; 30 1, 5; 32 17.

תרע"ו = § 676.

אלהי the God of, is in one instance plene. As this plural construct of the Divine name which occurs in numerous passages without the Vav is plene in this single instance, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional orthography. This Rubric is from Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach I, § 162.

תרע"ז = § 677.

אלהי my God, is twice plene. As this Divine name with the suffix first person singular occurs no fewer than sixty-two times, and as it is plene in these two instances only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 320a, on Ps. 143 10 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 220a, on Ps. 145 1; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 374a, on the same passage; (IV) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach I, § 152 and (V) the printed Massorah on Ps. 143 10. The heading in List III is מלכי בלישׁ it occurs three times plene in this form, i. e. including the single instance which constitutes the preceding Rubric, whilst List V adds this third passage at the end, viz. אלהי מלכי.

תרע"ח = § 678.

אלהי my God, is in eight instances with Kametz under the He. That is, apart from those passages in which this Divine name with the same suffix first person singular has the pausal accent.

Of this Rubric, I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 218b, on 1 Kings 3 7 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 100b, on Num. 22 18; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 150a, on 2 Chron. 2 3; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 78b, on 1 Kings 3 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 92a, on 1 Kings 17 21; (VI) the same MS., fol. 257b, on 2 Chron. 2 3; (VII) the same MS., fol. 292a, on Ps. 35 24; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 227a, on Num. 22 18; (IX) Orient. 2349, fol. 137b, on Deut. 26 14 and (X) the printed Massorah on Num. 22 18.

As eight out of the ten Lists have not וקם-וקם in the heading and, moreover, as in two instances אלהי is in all the MSS. with Revia or Revia Mugrash (Ps. 35 24; 2 Chron. 2 3) there can hardly be any doubt that this expression has been added by a later Scribe. He was manifestly misled by the fact that in six instances אלהי has actually Zakeph, just as another Scribe has added in the heading of one of two Lists in question (List II) because in all the eight passages which constitute this Rubric אלהי is preceded by the Tetragrammaton. (Vide infra, letter ' , § 187.)

And wherever this Divine name with the said suffix has the accent Athnach or Soph-Pasuk it is likewise with Kametz (אלהי) except in two instances where it has Pathach. That is, normally it is אלהי with Kametz only where it has the pausal accent Athnach which occurs eleven times¹ or Soph-Pasuk which occurs twenty times.² As the two instances form a rare exception to the rule they are thus safeguarded. These two exceptions are also given in a separate Massoretic Rubric in: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 305a, on Ps. 84 11; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 86 2.

¹ Comp. אלהי Deut. 4 5; 1 Kings 5 19; 8 28; Hos. 9 8; Joel 1 13; Zech. 11 4; Ps. 13 4; 30 3; 59 2; 109 26; Neh. 13 29; 2 Chron. 6 19.
² Comp. אלהי Gen. 31 36; Josh. 9 23; 14 8, 9; Isa. 7 13; 49 4; Jerem. 31 18; Hos. 2 26; 9 8; Jonah 2 7; Micah 7 7; Zech. 13 9; Ps. 38 10; 43 4; 119 116; Prov. 30 9; Ruth. 1 16; Dan. 9 20; Ezra 9 6; 1 Chron. 22 7.

§ 679. תרע"ט

אלהי my God, occurs thirteen times by itself or in an exceptional manner. It is very difficult to say with certainty what the import of this Massorah is. Apparently it is designed to catalogue the instances in which אלהי is not preceded by יהוה. But as this Divine name with the suffix first person singular occurs about one hundred times, and is preceded by the Tetragrammaton about thirty-seven times only and stands by itself in about sixty-three passages, the record of these thirteen instances alone can be explained on no other hypothesis than that it exhibits the first attempt to register this phenomenon, that the incipient List, as is not unfrequently the case, has not been completed by later Massorites, and that a Nakdan who mistook its import added the number in the heading.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter מ, § 466. As is usually the case in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, the Rubric contains several blunders: (1) This heading states that there are fourteen such instances (יד) and enumerates thirteen only; (2) the catchwords אלהי שם = Ps. 45 18 which are apparently designed to give the fourth instance are wrong, since אלהי does not occur at all in the verse in question and (3) אלהי ברוך which is given as representing one passage does not occur and these catchwords are manifestly a fusion of two passages. I have, therefore, divided them and altered יד in the heading into יג.

§ 680. תר"ם

אלהי עמו his God is with him, occurs five times thus combined. Of this Rubric, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 101b, on Numb. 23 21 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 158a, on 2 Chron. 15 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 257a, on 2 Chron. 1 1; (IV) the same MS., fol. 281b, on 2 Chron. 36 23; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 230a, on Numb. 23 21; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 115a, on the same passage and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

Lists IV and V have in the heading יהוה אלהי עמו which confuses this Massorah with the one given in letter ' , § 189.

§ 681. תרפ"א

אלהיהם their God, occurs seven [six] times in the Pentateuch. This form with the suffix third person plural masculine occurs thirteen times in the Pentateuch, but it is in these six instances only that it denotes the true God, (יהוה), in the other seven passages it denotes false gods (אלילים) or idols,¹ and hence they are excluded from this Rubric. This List I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter מ, § 465. The numeral י = 7 in the heading is manifestly a mistake for ו = 6.

¹ Comp. Exod. 23 33; 34 15; Deut. 7 16, 25; 12 2, 3, 30.

§ 682. תרפ"ב

אלהיהן their Gods, occurs five times. That is, with suffix third person plural feminine without and with the prefix Lamed. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 86a, on 1 Kings 11 8 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 77a, on Exod. 34 16; (III) the same MS., fol. 145a, on Numb. 25 2; (IV) Add. 16,451, fol. 233b, on 1 Kings 11 8; (V) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach II, § 69; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 34 16 and (VII) the same on Numb. 25 2. Though two of the instances are with the prefix Lamed yet List V alone has the expression בלשון in the heading.

§ 683. תרפ"ג

אלהיהם the curses, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 170b, on 2 Chron. 34 24 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 279b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah on Deut. 30 7. Though none of the three Lists states where the defective orthography occurs, yet the Massorah Parva as well as the MSS. give Numb. 5 23 as being without the Vav.

The ancient Codex Orient. 4445, has also the following Massorah on the singular form of this expression:

לאלהי בקרב עמה Numb. 5 27
לאלהי ב' וסופנות
לאלהי ולשבעה בתוך Numb. 5 21

As this singular with the prefix Lamed also occurs three times in Jeremiah (29 18; 42 18; 44 12), it is evident that the expression אלהי ב' in the Pentateuch has been omitted in the heading. I have not found this Rubric in any other MS.¹

¹ Comp. Orient. 4445, fol. 122b, on Numb. 5 21.

§ 684. תרפ"ד

אלהי these, occurs seven times at the beginning of a verse in the Prophets. This pronoun without and with the prefix Vav begins a verse in the Prophets twenty-four times. As it has the prefix Vav in seventeen instances¹ and is without it in seven only, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this separate Rubric I collated five Lists, all in MSS.: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 147b, on Josh. 13 32 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 214b, on 2 Sam. 23 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 14a, on Josh. 19 51; (IV) the same MS., fol. 73b, on 2 Sam. 23 22 and (V) the same MS., fol. 85a, on 1 Kings 9 23.

¹ Comp. אלהי Josh. 8 22; 9 13; 12 1, 7; 14 1; Judg. 3 1; 18 18; 1 Sam. 6 17; 2 Sam. 5 14; 23 1; 1 Kings 4 2; 20 19; Jerom. 29 1; 30 4; Ezek. 43 13; 48 16, 30.

§ 685. תרפ"ה

אלהי Throughout Ezra אלהי begins a verse except in four instances where it is אלהי. In Ezra-Nehemiah this pronoun begins a verse altogether twelve times. In eight instances it is with the prefix Vav¹ and in four only is it without the Vav. Hence the Massorah records the minority. This separate Rubric I have found in Arund. Orient. 16, only fol. 273b, on Ezra 2 62.

¹ Comp. אלהי Ezra 1 9; 2 1, 69; 8 1; Neh. 7 61; 11 3, 7; 12 1.

§ 686a. תרפ"ו

אלהי occurs ten times at the beginning of a verse in this section. That is, in 1 Chron. 1-22. As this pronoun without and with the prefix Vav occurs altogether thirty-five times at the beginning of a verse in Chronicles and, moreover, as it is in one part only of this book that אלהי prevails and in the other part the two forms, viz. אלהי and אלהי are of equal occurrence, the Massorah divides Chronicles into two Sections to register this fact. In the first Section which consists of 1 Chron. 1-22, where this pronoun begins a verse twenty-seven times, it has the prefix Vav in seventeen instances¹ and is without it ten times only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. In the second Section, however, which consists of 1 Chron. 23-2 Chron. 36 these two forms respectively occur four times.²

For the instances in Ezra-Nehemiah which form the second link in this Massoretic Rubric see the preceding Rubric, viz. § 685. In the rest of the Hagiographa which the third link of this Rubric registers, this pronoun begins a verse five times only. In three instances it is without the prefix Vav³ and in two with it. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

¹ Comp. אלהי 1 Chron. 1 43; 3 1, 5; 4 3; 5 24; 6 2, 16, 18, 35, 39; 8 6; 9 33; 11 10, 11; 12 1, 23; 14 4.

² Comp. אלהי 1 Chron. 23 24; 24 19; 26 19; 2 Chron. 17 19.

³ Comp. אלהי Ps. 20 8; 42 8; 50 21.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 240a, on 1 Chron. 4 38 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on 1 Chron. 1 29. In Jacob b. Chayim's edition 1524-25, the first part of this Rubric has manifestly dropped out of the text, since the List is without heading and begins with the words מבדיל בין יאד, the missing portion is מן ראש רמט ער אליהו וקן ואלה רא' פס' במי' אלה וימי' אלה בני ישראל ראובן, אלה חלודים בנה, אלה בני דוד בני שלום, אלה בני שלום, אלה בני שלום, אלה בני שלום. The first link of this Rubric is given as a separate Massorah in (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 237, on 1 Chron. 1 29 and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 402b, on the same passage. Another recension of this Rubric combines it with the two preceding Lists making §§ 684, 685 and 686 links of the same chain. In this form of it I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 383a; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 424b, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 all on Neh. 7 6.

תרפ"ז = § 686b.

אֱלֹהֵי יְאֵלֶּהוּ. The separate Rubrics which record the instances wherein this pronoun without and with the prefix Vav begins a verse in each book or section of a book, are here combined into a List of seven members so as to exhibit a conspectus of the entire Bible. It is to be remarked at the outset that without and with the prefix Vav this pronoun begins a verse no fewer than one hundred and seventy-two times. According to the artificial concatenation of the seven links they are distributed as follows:

The Pentateuch. — In the Pentateuch where this pronoun begins a verse ninety-seven times, it is in sixty-three instances without the prefix Vav, viz. אֱלֹהֵי and in thirty-four with it, viz. וְאֱלֹהֵי. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. Owing, however, to its artificial arrangement this part of the Rubric excludes the seven passages in which אֱלֹהֵי at the beginning of a verse is followed by וְאֱלֹהֵי and the nine in which it is followed by וְאֱלֹהֵי and, therefore, catalogues seventeen instances. This is due to the fact that in these combinations אֱלֹהֵי is more numerous and וְאֱלֹהֵי is the minority and hence in accordance with the general practice of the Massorites the majority is excluded and the lesser number is recorded.

The Prophets. — In the Prophets, where this pronoun occurs twenty-four times at the beginning of a verse and where it is seventeen times with the prefix Vav and seven times only without it, the Massorah safeguards the minority. (Vide supra, letter א, § 684.)

The Hagiographa. — In the Hagiographa, where this pronoun begins a verse fifty-two times, it is in twenty-one instances without the prefix Vav and in thirty-one with it. Instead, however, of allocating these instances to the several books which constitute this division of the Bible, the Massorites artificially divide the Hagiographa into four sections. Chronicles which heads the Hagiographa and which exhibits thirty-five instances, occupies two of the sections (vide supra, § 686a), Ezra-Nehemiah which has twelve instances forms the third section (vide supra, § 685), whilst to the rest of the Hagiographa is assigned the fourth section. The artificial heading of the fourth section, however, is misleading, since it implies that in Psalms, Proverbs, Job, the Five Megilloth and Daniel which are comprised in all the rest of the Hagiographa (כל שאר סדריא) the pronoun אֱלֹהֵי without the prefix is of frequent occurrence at the beginning of a verse and that וְאֱלֹהֵי is the rare exception. Whereas אֱלֹהֵי does not occur at all at the beginning of a verse in any of these books except the Psalter. Three instances only of אֱלֹהֵי still remain and these are restricted to the Psalms (20 8; 42 5; 50 21).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah II, § 94 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 284b, on Num. 26 36 and (III) the printed Massorah which forms the square of three lines enclosing the wood-cut border within which אֱלֹהֵי Exod. 1 1 is contained. Lists I and II omit after the second section which records the four instances of אֱלֹהֵי the third section, viz. וְאֱלֹהֵי and the four instances of אֱלֹהֵי the third section, viz. וְאֱלֹהֵי (Vide infra, letter א, § 694.) List II which has this section wrongly, gives five instances though it distinctly states that there are four only in the Pentateuch. The fifth instance

¹ Comp. אֱלֹהֵי Gen. 2 4; 6 9; 10 20, 31, 32; 11 10; 25 16; 36 10, 16, 19, 20, 27, 28, 29; 37 2; 46 16, 18, 22, 25; Exod. 6 14; 38 21; Levit. 11 31; 23 4, 37; 26 46; 27 34; Num. 1 16, 44; 2 32; 3 3; 4 37, 41, 46; 10 28; 13 16; 26 7, 14, 18, 22, 25, 27, 30, 34, 36, 37, 41, 42, 47, 50, 51, 58, 63; 29 39; 30 17; 33 1; 34 17, 29; 36 13; Deut. 1 1; 4 45; 12 1; 27 12; 28 69.
² Comp. אֱלֹהֵי Gen. 10 1; 11 27; 25 12, 19; 36 1, 9; Num. 3 1. The eighth instance in which this combination occurs (Ruth. 4 18) does not begin the verse. For אֱלֹהֵי and אֱלֹהֵי see below, letter א, §§ 694, 702.

2 Sam. 23 8 is against the import of this Rubric which catalogues the instances in the Pentateuch.

תרפ"ז = § 687.

אֱלֹהֵי these, has four times the accent Tipecha in this section. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 116a, on Num. 26 7 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 233b; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. List II adds at the end אֱלֹהֵי and the sign is Rash Mash. אֱלֹהֵי represents ראובן and שטען, whilst אֱלֹהֵי is formed of the initials אֱלֹהֵי and שטען, the four names in connection with which אֱלֹהֵי has this accent.

תרפ"ח = § 688a-b.

אֱלֹהֵי has six times the accent Tevir at the beginning of the verse in the same section. List 688a is from the printed Massorah on Num. 26 22. The mnemonic sign is אֱלֹהֵי and not אֱלֹהֵי; they are the initials of אֱלֹהֵי and אֱלֹהֵי the six names of the tribes which are in combination with אֱלֹהֵי. Rubric 688b is from Add. 15,451, fol. 110b, on Num. 26 27. It will be seen that the six instances are here made up by the omission of Num. 26 25 and substituting for it Num. 26 37.

תרפ"ט = § 689.

אֱלֹהֵי בְנֵי לְמִשְׁפְּחֹתָם these are the sons of . . . according to their families, occurs four times. In the description of the descendants of the eleven tribes in Num. 26 10-48 two different phrases are used. In the case of seven the formula is simply אֱלֹהֵי בְנֵי לְמִשְׁפְּחֹתָם . . . the sons of so and so, after their families (Num. 26 12, 23, 26, 28, 38, 44, 48), whilst in four instances only is this formula preceded by the pronoun אֱלֹהֵי these. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional phrase. The mnemonic sign אֱלֹהֵי consists of the abbreviation of the names of the four tribes in connection with which this exceptional phrase is used, אֱלֹהֵי are the middle letters of אֱלֹהֵי Ephraim אֱלֹהֵי Joseph, whilst אֱלֹהֵי are the initials of אֱלֹהֵי Benjamin and אֱלֹהֵי Dan. After the sign the Massorite added אֱלֹהֵי = אֱלֹהֵי so it appears to me, since there are other recensions of this Rubric which I have printed from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 103a, on Num. 26 35. The same recension is also given in Orient. 2349, fol. 116a, on the same passage.

תר"צ = § 690.

אֱלֹהֵי הַדְּבָרִים these words, occur five times thus combined . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, six in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 58a, on Exod. 35 1 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 77b, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 137a, on Isa. 42 16; (IV) the same MS., fol. 219b, on Zech. 8 16; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 130b, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 253b, on Deut. 1 1; (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 35 1; (VIII) the same on Deut. 1 1; (IX) the same on Zech. 8 16, and (X) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 505.

תרצ"א = § 691.

אֱלֹהֵי מַסְעֵי בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל these are the journeyings of the children of Israel, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 80a, on Num. 10 28 which I have printed and (II) the same MS., fol. 93b, on Num. 33 1.

תרצ"ב = § 692a.

אֱלֹהֵי מִשְׁפְּחֹתָם these are the families of [so and so], occurs twice thus combined in this section. That is, in these two instances this phrase though followed by אֱלֹהֵי after their families, is not combined with אֱלֹהֵי the sons of. The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to safeguard these exceptional instances against being made conformable to the phrase recorded in § 689. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 116b, on Num. 26 42.

תרצ"ג = § 692b.

In the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 146b, on Num. 26 18 there is the following Rubric:

אֱלֹהֵי מִשְׁפְּחֹתָם	אֱלֹהֵי	אֱלֹהֵי
אֱלֹהֵי	אֱלֹהֵי	אֱלֹהֵי
אֱלֹהֵי	אֱלֹהֵי	אֱלֹהֵי

This Massorah is designed to safeguard these three instances against the phrase recorded in § 693, where אֱלֹהֵי sons of, does not occur in this combination.

§ 693. הרצין

אֵלֶּה מְשֻׁחָת... לפקודים these are the families of... according to those that were numbered of them, occurs three times. That is, though combined with לפקודים according to those that were numbered of them, the expression בְּנֵי sons of is absent from this phrase. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards these passages against being made conformable to those which are recorded in § 692b where בְּנֵי sons of, occurs in exactly the same phrase. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Cambridge University Library. Add. 465, on Numb. 26 25, which I have printed and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 233b, on the same passage. The mnemonic sign הוּזוּ is composed of the ה in יהודה Judah, the ש in יששכר Issachar and the initial letter in זבולון Zebulun, being the names of the three tribes in connection with which this phrase is used.

§ 694. תרציד

אֵלֶּה שְׁמוֹת these are the names, occurs five times at the beginning of a verse in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 506, which I have printed and (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 156b, on Numb. 34 17. In all the other ten instances where this pronoun is followed by שְׁמוֹת the names of, it has the prefix Vav. (Vide infra, letter מ, § 702.) The necessity for safeguarding these instances will be seen from the notes on Numb. 3 3 in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. The four instances in which this phrase occurs in the Pentateuch are included in Rubric 688b.

§ 695. תרציה

אֵלֶּה תְּלִידוֹת these are the generations of, occurs four times thus combined. In all the other eight instances in which תְּלִידוֹת is preceded by this pronoun, it is אֵלֶּה with the prefix Vav.¹ Of this separate Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 7a, on Gen. 11 10, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 30a, on Gen. 2 4; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 8b, on Gen. 11 10 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The mnemonic sign הַנְּשִׁי הַפְּרִינִי is composed of the initials of the initials of הַנְּשִׁי הַפְּרִינִי, in connection with which the phrase occurs. As all the four instances begin a verse, List II properly heads the Rubric ר. רמב"ן י"ש. This Rubric is part of the lengthy Massorah given above, viz. § 686b.

¹ For the instances in which the combination תְּלִידוֹת with the prefix Vav occurs, see § 686b note.

§ 696. תרציו

אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה. The expression שְׁמוֹת names, is always preceded by אֵלֶּה except in five instances (vide § 694) and the expression תְּלִידוֹת generation, is also always preceded by אֵלֶּה except in three instances. This is incorrect as will be seen in § 695, where four instances are given. במ"ד must, therefore, be a clerical error for במ"י. The expression בְּנֵי the numbered of, is always preceded by אֵלֶּה with the exception where it is אֵלֶּה with the prefix Vav (Numb. 26 57).

¹ Comp. אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה Exod. 39 21; Numb. 2 32; 4 37, 41, 45; 26 51, 63.

§ 697. תרצין

אֵלֶּה. For the seventeen instances in which this pronoun occurs with the prefix Vav in the Pentateuch as well as for the four instances in which תְּלִידוֹת is preceded by אֵלֶּה see §§ 686b and 693.

§ 698. תרציה

אֵלֶּה. Seven words respectively occur once only in combination with אֵלֶּה. The design of this Massorah is to record the words which are once only preceded by this pronoun with the prefix Vav, whilst in all other passages where they occur in this combination they are severally preceded more than once by this pronoun without the prefix Vav. That this is the import of this Massorah is evident from the fact that there are altogether no fewer than forty-five words which respectively occur once only in combination with אֵלֶּה. If the Massorah, therefore, had simply designed to catalogue the unique instances of this combination the List before us would contain this number and not merely six or seven instances. Equally certain it is that the original design of the Massorah is to exclude from this Rubric the unique combinations with אֵלֶּה which are also unique with אֵלֶּה. This is evident from the fact that the six instances in which the same word is once preceded by אֵלֶּה and once by אֵלֶּה are not given.¹ These facts show that five only of the instances recorded in this Rubric properly belong to it, since neither אֵלֶּה nor אֵלֶּה occurs in combination with אֵלֶּה.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two printed and one in MS.: (I) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 260, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 147a, on Numb. 26 57 and (III) the printed Massorah on Exod. 28 4. List II which exhibits the oldest Massorah extant, states in the heading that there are six such instances only, and though it contains אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה (Exod. 28 4) which shows that this erroneous addition has been made by a Scribe at an early period, it rightly omits אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה (Judg. 3 1). It, moreover, has at the end of the Rubric אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה דְּרַבִּי הַבְּרִית וְאֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה in one instance the contrary is the case, viz. אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה. That is, אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה in combination with אֵלֶּה is unique (Deut. 28 69), but in combination with אֵלֶּה it is not unique. (Vide infra, letter מ, § 700.) List III not only contains both the erroneous instances, but omits the correct passage אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה Numb. 26 57 and gives 1 Chron. 6 4 twice, thus apparently exhibiting seven instances, though in the heading it states that there are six only. The real sixth instance, however, which all three Lists omit is אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה 2 Sam. 2 13 which is unique, whilst in all other instances it is אֵלֶּה without the prefix Vav. (Comp. Deut. 11 18; 2 Sam. 2 13; Isa. 47 7; 1 Chron. 25 6.)

¹ אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה 1 Chron. 12 1 and אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה 1 Chron. 4 38; אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה Neh. 12 1 and אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה Neh. 10 9; אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה Deut. 27 13 and אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה Deut. 27 12; אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה Josh. 8 22; אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה 2 Chron. 17 14 and אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה 1 Chron. 24 19; אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה Gen. 25 17 and אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה Zech. 4 14.

§ 699. תרצט

אֵלֶּה בְּנֵי and these are the sons of, occurs thirteen times thus combined in the Scriptures. אֵלֶּה which is fifty-seven times preceded by this pronoun, is in forty-four instances combined with אֵלֶּה without the prefix Vav and in thirteen instances only is it with אֵלֶּה with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. The necessity for safeguarding these instances will be seen by referring to the notes on Gen. 36 10, 20 &c. in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 299b, on Neh. 11 7 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 239b, on 1 Chron. 4 18; (III) the same MS., fol. 241b, on 1 Chron. 6 35; (IV) the same MS., fol. 386b, on Neh. 11 7; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 48b, on Gen. 36 13 and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 215. The catchword אֵלֶּה אֵלֶּה אֵלֶּה = 1 Chron. 4 3 in Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah (List VI), is incorrect; it should be אֵלֶּה אֵלֶּה אֵלֶּה = 1 Chron. 8 6 as the MS. Lists have it.

§ 700. תיש

אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה and these are the words of, occurs twice. In the third instance where this combination occurs the pronoun is without the prefix Vav (Deut. 28 69). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 165a, on Jerem. 29 1 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 253b, and (III) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. As both these instances begin a verse, List II heads this Rubric אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה which should properly be אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה, but as we have seen, the Vav is often omitted in such cases.

§ 701. תשיא

אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה and these were, occurs twice. In the other four instances where אֵלֶּה is preceded by this pronoun it is without the prefix Vav.¹ The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 131b, on 1 Chron. 3 1. As both these instances begin a verse, the heading ought properly to be אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה.

¹ Comp. אֵלֶּה וְאֵלֶּה Gen. 36 13; Josh. 20 9; 1 Chron. 2 33, 50.

§ 702. תש"ב

אֵלֶּה שְׁמוֹת and these are the names, occurs ten times in the Pentateuch. This combination with the prefix Vav occurs altogether fourteen times in the Scriptures. (Comp. 2 Sam. 5 14; Ezek. 48 1; 1 Chron. 6 2; 14 4.) The reason why the instances in the Pentateuch alone are recorded is to exclude the variations which are exhibited in the different Codices with regard to this phrase as may be seen from the notes on Numb. 3 3 in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. This Rubric I have found only in the printed Massorah on Numb. 1 5.

השנ = § 703.

השנ in these, occurs twice. In the other six instances where this pronoun has the prefix Beth it is השנ with Sheva.¹ Hence the Massorah records the exceptions. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 45b, on 1 Sam. 16 10 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 47a, on 1 Sam. 17 39; (III) the same MS., fol. 327a, on Job 16 2; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 147a, on Numb. 26 53; (V) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 38, and (VI) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 17 39. List II has at the end וכל השנ דבני בנין but does not give the instances. (Comp. § 704.) List III gives it as the second part of what is here § 704. List IV joins §§ 703, 704 and 705 into one Rubric, whilst List V. is headed בני יבסטר which is more precise, since both instances occur in the same book.

¹ Comp. השנ Levit. 23 54; 26 23; 1 Kings 22 11; Jerem. 9 23; 1 Chron. 7 29; 2 Chron. 18 10.

השנ = § 704.

השנ like these, occurs three times. That is, with Sheva under the Caph. In the other six instances where this pronoun has the prefix Caph it is with Kametz.¹ The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 68a, on Jerem. 51 19 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 228b, on Job 16 2; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 147a, on Numb. 26 53 where it is part of the preceding Rubric; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 327a, on Job 16 2; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 324a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 38; (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 51 19 and (VIII) the same on Job 16 2.

¹ Comp. השנ Gen. 27 46; Levit. 10 19; Numb. 28 24; Isa. 66 8; Jerem. 18 13; Ezek. 45 25.

השנ = § 705.

השנ to these, occurs five times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, eight in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 237a, on 1 Kings 22 17 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 103b, on Numb. 26 53; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 159b, on 2 Chron. 18 16; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 147a, on Numb. 26 53; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 96b, on 1 Kings 22 17; (VI) the same MS., fol. 210b, on Micah 2 6; (VII) the same MS., fol. 267b, on 2 Chron. 18 16; (VIII) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 38; (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 31 43; (X) the same on Numb. 26 53; (XI) the same on 1 Kings 22 17 and (XII) the same on 2 Chron. 18 16.

השנ = § 706.

השנ and to these, occurs three times at the beginning of a verse. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 69b, on Levit. 11 24 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 74b, on Ezek. 9 5; (III) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on the same passage; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 198b, on Ezek. 48 10; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 152a, on Levit. 11 24; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezek. 9 5; (VII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 11 24 and (VIII) the same on Ezek. 9 5. The heading ought properly to be השנ three times and at the beginning of a verse, since it occurs nowhere else, but at the beginning of the verse. The qualifying Vav, however, is often omitted in these cases.

השנ = § 707.

השנ and from these, occurs three times. In all the other thirteen passages in which this pronoun with the prefix Mem occurs it is without the conjunctive Vav.¹ The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptions. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 6b, on Gen. 10 32 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 20a, on Isa. 41 28; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 136b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 17a, on Gen. 10 32; (V) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 38, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 9 19. List IV gives the catchwords for the third passage וכל השנ בני דרברי המים which do not occur in the textus receptus.

¹ Comp. השנ Gen. 10 5; Levit. 2 8; 5 4, 5, 13; Numb. 22 15; Jerem. 4 12; Ezek. 8 16; 16 5; 18 10; Eccl. 7 10; 1 Chron. 2 53; 23 4.

השנ = § 708.

השנ and if, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 353a, on Eccl. 6 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 361b, on Esther 7 4; (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 265b, and (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 274a, on the same two passages. From the fact that this Rubric is headed in both Lists III and IV השנ = it occurs twice and is defective it would seem that the Massorah takes this participle as a contraction of השנ analogous to השנ Eccl. 4 10.

השנ = § 709.

השנ leader, guide, is five times defective in this form. That is, the noun השנ leader, both in the singular and plural, without and with prefixes and suffixes is written without Vav in five instances.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 125b, on Zech. 12 6 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 221a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 32a; (IV) Add. 21,160 fol. 36b; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 49a, all on Gen. 36 30; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage; (VII) the same on Jerem. 13 21 and (VIII) the same on Zech. 12 6. List II heads this List השנ בני השנ and gives the two instances only in which this noun plural construct is defective (Zech. 12 5, 6), thus safeguarding this exceptional orthography against being made conformable to the ordinary spelling השנ which occurs no fewer than twelve times.¹

The necessity for the Massoretic declaration that these five instances exhibit the defective spelling of השנ leader will be seen by a reference to the Septuagint, of Gen. 36 30. It is evident from the passage that the School of textual redactors which this ancient version followed did not take it as the plural with suffix from השנ, but from השנ. They read it השנ and not השנ and this reading is supported by the fact that השנ which occurs no fewer than nine times in this chapter is uniformly plene.

¹ Comp. השנ Gen. 36 15, 16, 17, 18, 21, 29, 30, 40, 43; Exod. 15 15; 1 Chron. 1 51, 54.

השנ = § 710.

השנ idols, occurs twice defective. That is, without and with the prefix He this plural noun is without the second Yod. This expression, which is not unfrequently found in the Prophets and Hagiographa and is uniformly plene, occurs only twice in the Pentateuch and is defective in both instances. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 98a, on Levit. 19 4.

השנ = § 711.

השנ Elijah, occurs five times . . . once it is with the prefix Vav and so it is throughout Ezra. That is, in Ezra where it occurs twice (10 21 26) it is also in this shorter form. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 238a, on 2 Kings 1 12 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 97b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 224a, on Mal. 3 24; (IV) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 55; (V) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 1 12 and (VI) the same on Mal. 3 23. The words וכל השנ רבי עזרא at the end of this Rubric, which include the two instances in Ezra where this shorter form of the name occurs and which are essential, are to be found only in Lists I and V and their omission in Lists II and III is misleading. In List IV the whole of this Rubric is simply as follows: השנ is five times so written, and throughout the Hagiographa it is likewise so except once where it is השנ. And the Rubric is perfectly correct as far as it goes; it does not give the catchwords for the identification of the passages. List VI, which has substantially the same words at the end of the Rubric, gives the catchword for the single exception, viz. 2 Chron. 21 12.¹

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the few instances in which the primitive orthography of this name has survived in the text. In all the other sixty-three passages where it occurs the longer form השנ Elijah has been substituted for it. The reasons for this change are given in my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, p. 386 &c.

¹ וכל השנ רבי עזרא וכל השנ רבי עזרא בר סן חר אליהו
וכל השנ רבי עזרא במסכת סוטה

חשיב = § 712.

אליהו Elisha is four times defective of Aleph. This name, which occurs nine times, is in five instances spelled אֱלִיָּהוּ¹ and in four without the Aleph. The Massorah, therefore, protects the minority. The necessity for safeguarding this orthography will be seen in the notes on these passages in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. These instances are part of the Massoretic List of words which are written without Aleph, but read with it. (Vide supra, letter א, § 14a-d.)

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 225b, on Job 32 4 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 237b, on Job 35 1; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 146a, on 1 Chron. 26 7; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 147a, on 1 Chron. 27 18; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 255a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochlach Ye-Ochlach II, fol. 99b, margin and (VII) the printed Massorah on Job 32 4.

¹ Comp. אֱלִיָּהוּ 1 Sam. 1 1; Job 32 2; 34 1; 36 1; 1 Chron. 12 21.

חשיי = § 713.

אליעזר Elioenai, occurs five times . . . In Ezra 10 27 it is defective, in the other four instances it is plene. That is, in these five instances it is without the prefix Vav, in the other two passages where this proper name occurs (1 Chron. 4 36; 7 8) it is with the prefix.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient 16, fol. 239b, on 1 Chron. 3 23 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 240a, on 1 Chron. 4 36; (III) Add. 15,450, fol. 403b, on 1 Chron. 3 23 and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 519. At the end of List II a later editor has added one of the two instances in which this name has the prefix Vav.¹ Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List IV) is corrupt. Not only has וְאֵלִיעֶזֶר = Ezra 10 27 dropped out of the text, but the remark that it is defective in this instance is joined to the third instance.² Hence, though the heading distinctly states that this name occurs five times, four instances only are recorded. In List IV, moreover, a later editor has not only given the second instance in which this name has the prefix Vav (1 Chron. 7 8), erroneously describing it as unique,³ but added the single passage in which the form אֱלִיעֶזֶר occurs (1 Chron. 8 20).

There can hardly be any doubt that originally this name was written Eljehoenaï = towards Jehovah are mine eyes and that the He (ה) has been omitted to avoid the pronunciation הֵיךָ = הֵיךָ, a process which was adopted by a certain School of textual redactors, but which was only partially carried out. This is attested by the fact that in two instances the primitive orthography of this name has still been preserved, viz. Ezra 8 4 and 1 Chron. 26 3. (Comp. my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.) In the Rubric before us, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the instances in which the He has been eliminated.

¹ אֱלִיעֶזֶר עֵינַי עַל יְהוָה = 1 Chron. 4 36.

² וְאֵלִיעֶזֶר וְדָבָר רַחֵם אֵת חַסְדֵי הַיְהוָה should be וְאֵלִיעֶזֶר רַחֵם אֵת חַסְדֵי הַיְהוָה.

³ וְאֵלִיעֶזֶר הַיְהוָה בְּכָר = 1 Chron. 7 8.

חשיי = § 714.

אֵלִיעֶזֶר these, occurs five times, it is twice defective and three times plene. . . . the first and second time it is defective and the others are plene. That is in Dan. 2 40; 6 7 it is אֵלִיעֶזֶר without the Yod and in Dan. 2 44; 6 8; 7 17 it is אֵלִיעֶזֶר with the Yod. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 377b, on Dan. 2 40 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 369a, on Dan. 6 3 and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Though all the three Lists distinctly state in the heading that this pronoun is three times plene and twice defective, it is List I alone which fixes the passages where the two different spellings occur. Accordingly אֵלִיעֶזֶר plene (Dan. 2 40) in my edition of the Hebrew Bible should be אֵלִיעֶזֶר defective.

חשזי = § 715.

אליהא Elishaph, occurs six times. Since the publication of Vol. I, of the Massorah I found the following Rubric in the ancient Codex Orient 4445, fol. 129a, on Numb. 10 20.

אליהא	לתי אליהא
ביום חשזי נשיא	1 14
זה קרבן אליהא	2 14
תל צבא חשזי	3 21
7 42
47
10 20

The heading ought properly to be חשזי six times and in this book since all the six instances occur in Numbers.

חשזי = § 715.

אֱלִיפְלֵחָה and Eliphlekhā, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 140a, on 1 Chron. 15 18.

חשזי = § 716.

אלישה Elisha, occurs three times . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 87a, on Ezek. 27 7 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 130a, on 1 Chron. 1 7; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 184a, on Ezek. 27 7; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 33b, on Gen. 10 4; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VI) the same on Ezek. 27 7.

חשיז = § 717.

אלישע Elisha, begins a verse three times. This Rubric, which I have found in the Vienna Codex No. 35 only, on 2 Kings 8 1 is incorrect since this name with the prefix Vav which occurs altogether seven times, begins a verse six times. Three instances are omitted (2 Kings 2 12; 6 32; 9 1).

חשיח = § 718.

אליה ווע, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 212a, on Micah 7 1.

חשיט = § 719.

אלים dumbness, silence, occurs twice. That is, so pointed to distinguish it from the trilateral אָלִים dumb, silent, which also occurs twice (Exod. 4 11; Isa. 35 6), but differently pointed. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 297b, on Ps. 56 1 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

חשיב = § 720.

אלימנותיה and his widows, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. That is, in Ps. 78 64 it is without the Vav after the Nun and in Job 27 15 it is with it. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ps. 78 64 is against the oldest and best Codices. Orient. 2201, Harley 5710-11, Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 21,161, &c. have it defective in both instances.

In Orient. 2201 which is one of the oldest dated MSS. where the Scribe wrote it plene in Job 27 15, the Massorite erased the Vav and Jacob b. Chayim himself contradicts this Rubric, since he not only has אֱלִיעֶזֶר defective in Job 27 15, but states in the Massorah Parva against it בִּי חָסִי = it occurs twice defective.

חשזי = § 721.

אליעזר בן אהרן and Eleazar the son of Aaron, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 155a, on Josh. 24 33. As אֱלִיעֶזֶר followed by בֶּן אַהֲרֹן occurs only twice and in both instances begins a verse, the heading ought properly to be בִּי חָסִי = twice and at the beginning of a verse, but as we have seen, the Vav is often omitted in such cases. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this exceptional phrase since in the other passages where Eleazar with the prefix Vav occurs it is simply אֱלִיעֶזֶר and Eleazar the priest (Numb. 26 3, 63; 31 13, 26, 31, 51, 54) and not אֱלִיעֶזֶר בֶּן אַהֲרֹן and Eleazar the son of Aaron. Even in the passages where the name is without the prefix Vav and where Eleazar is called the son of Aaron, it is always followed by the expression priest, viz. אֱלִיעֶזֶר בֶּן אַהֲרֹן הַכֹּהֵן (Numb. 3 32; 4 16; 17 2; 26 1). This of course does not apply to the instances where Phinehas is the subject of description (Judg. 20 28).

חשזי = § 722.

אליה כסף a thousand silver-pieces, occurs three times . . . once in the Pentateuch, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 69a, on 2 Sam. 18 12 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 8a, on Gen. 20 16; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 38b, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

תשכ"ג = § 723.

אלף קמטץ a thousand two hundred, occurs seven times. That is, without the prefix Vav; in all other passages where this combination occurs it is אלף קמטץ. This Rubric I have found only in Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 287a, on Ezra 2 31. As Dan. 12 11 is not included in this List, it is probable that this Massorah is based upon a recension which read אלף קמטץ in Daniel.

תשכ"ד = § 724.

אלף the thousand, occurs three times [twice] with Pathach and once with Kametz. That is, in two instances the Aleph has Pathach, i. e. Segol (Exod. 38 28; Cant. 8 12) and once it has Kametz (1 Sam. 17 18).

Of this Rubric, which exhibits two recensions, I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 61a, on Exod. 38 28 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 150a, on Josh. 18 28; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 263a, on Cant. 8 12; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 82a, on Exod. 38 28; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 350b, on Cant. 8 12; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 134b, on Josh. 18 28; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 132a, on Exod. 38 28; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 301b, on Cant. 8 12; (IX) Orient. 2349, fol. 80b, on Exod. 38 28 and (X) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

To understand the different recensions of this Massorah it is necessary to remark: (1) that אלף occurs three times as a numeral, (2) that as such it is twice with Segol under the Aleph (אלף) and once it is in pause and is, therefore, with Kametz under the Aleph (אלף) and (3) that it also occurs once as a proper name with Segol under the Aleph (אלף) Josh. 18 28). Hence the different Massorahs on this quadrilateral. List I, which I have printed, strictly records the three instances in which it denotes the numeral and, therefore, notices that as such it is twice with Segol and once with Kametz under the Aleph, ב after ב in the heading having manifestly dropped out. Lists II, III, VI, VII, VIII and IX have regard to the vowel-points alone and hence head it אלף with Segol under the Aleph occurs three times, excluding the numeral in pause with Kametz under the Aleph and including the proper name, whilst Lists IV, V and X give all the four instances. This explains the apparently conflicting remarks in the MSS. against each of these passages: (1) ב ב חט; (2) ב א ב חט; (3) ב א ב חט; or (4) simply ב as it is in the heading of List IV which represents the oldest form of this Massorah.

תשכ"ה = § 725.

אלף and a thousand, occurs four times, twice with Kametz and twice with Pathach. That is, in the four instances where the prefix Vav has Kametz in contradistinction to the eight passages in which this prefix has Sheva, the Aleph is twice with Kametz and twice with Segol.

Of this entire Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 116b, on Numb. 26 51 which I have printed and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 373b, on Ezra 2 69. The two instances with Kametz are given in a separate Rubric in Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 103b, on Numb. 26 51 and in Add. 15,251, fol. 98a, on the same passage, whilst the two instances with Segol constitute a separate Rubric in the printed Massorah on Numb. 3 50.

1 Comp. אלף Exod. 38 26; Judg. 20 10; 1 Sam. 13 2; 25 2; 2 Sam. 19 18; Job 42 12, 12; Neh. 3 13.

תשכ"ו = § 726.

אלף to a thousand, occurs twice. In the other three instances where this numeral has the prefix Lamed is with Sheva. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 150a, on Judg. 20 10 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Isa. 60 22.

תשכ"ז = § 727.

אלף יהו to a thousand generations, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, 116b, on Deut. 7 9 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 140b, 1 Chron. 16 15; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 310b, on Ps. 105 8; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 268b, on Deut. 7 9; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 526.

תשכ"ח = § 728.

אלפים for thousands. In Exod. 34 7 the prefix Lamed has Kametz and in Deut. 5 10 it has Pathach. This Rubric is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 57b, on Exod. 34 7. Though this is expressly stated in the Massorah, yet in the text itself the Lamed has Kametz in both instances alike in this most carefully written Model Codex.

תשכ"ט = § 729.

אלפי. For this plural construct of אלף the Sevir or the marginal reading is in four instances אלפים the plural absolute. That the Sevir or the reading preserved in the margin is the proper reading is evident from the normal use of this phrase. The abnormal construction exhibited in the text is due to the primitive orthography which was simply אלפי or אלפי. This, one School of textual redactors resolved into אלפי and the other School into אלפים.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 60a, on Exod. 32 28 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. It is important to notice that in the heading of the MS. List as well as in the margin of this Codex the alternative readings are described as דרוי, whilst in the heading of Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah they are called ברוי. These two technical expressions, therefore, are used interchangeably. In the margin of Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah Parva against Exod. 32 28 they are called אלפי ברוי אלפי. On Judg. 4 10 the same Massorah simply states דר דרבי אלפי, whilst on Job 1 3 Jacob b. Chayim has no remark at all. For the importance of this class of various readings see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 187 &c.

1 Comp. עשרת אלפים איש Josh. 7 3, 4; Judg. 16 27 &c.; עשרת אלפים איש Judg. 1 4; 3 29; 4 6, 14; 20 34; שבעת אלפים זמן 2 Chron. 30 24.

תש"ל = § 730.

אלפאל Elpaal, occurs three times and in the same section. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 135b, on 1 Chron. 8 11 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 243a, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 523.

תש"א = § 731.

אלתקה Etekeh, occurs twice once it has Aleph at the end and once He. As this name, which occurs twice only, is differently spelled, the Massorah safeguards the variations. It is remarkable that in almost the same connection the א and ה are used interchangeably. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 14a, on Josh. 19 44 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 15a, on Josh. 21 23 and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 128b, on the same passage.

תש"ב = § 732.

אמו דקדים לאביו. Mother precedes father three times. The normal phrase throughout the Scriptures is father and mother whether with or without prefixes and suffixes. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards this abnormal order in these three passages. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 54a, on Gen. 44 20 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 52a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 167b, on Levit. 19 3; (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 44 20 and (V) the same on Levit. 19 3.

תש"ג = § 733.

אם ערבנים the mother upon, or with the children, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 21b, on Gen. 32 12 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תש"ד = § 734.

אמום their mothers, occurs three times . . . and once it is with the prefix Lamed. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter א, § 547 is incorrect. The heading ought to be ב = twice and not ג = three times, since it occurs in the two passages only which are duly recorded. The addition at the end of the Rubric precludes the alteration of the heading into ג בלש.

חשלה = § 735.

if, begins a verse seventeen times in the book of Exodus . . . and throughout Genesis it is also without the prefix Vav except in three instances. This conjunctive begins a verse in Exodus thirty times. In seventeen instances according to this Rubric it is without the prefix Vav and is with it in thirteen instances. Conary to its usual practice the Massorah records here the majority.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 79b, on Exod. 21 10 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 69b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 535. All the three Lists distinctly state that there are seventeen such instances and all the three Lists omit Exod. 21 4. The MSS., therefore, from which this Rubric was made read אָמָּן (Exod. 21 4) with the prefix Vav. List III has not the addition at the end וְכֵן כָּתוּב בְּמִנְיַן הַיּוֹם.

1 Comp. אָמָּן Exod. 7 27; 12 4; 20 22; 21 5, 9, 11, 23, 27, 29; 22 11; 29 34; 40 37. As Exod. 21 4 is omitted from the List of verses which begin with אָמָּן in the textus receptus this instance according to this Rubric has to be added to the verses which begin with אָמָּן.

2 Accordingly there are thirteen instances in Exod. where אָמָּן begins a verse, viz. 7 27; 12 4; 20 22; 21 4, 5, 9, 11, 23, 27, 29; 22 11; 29 34; 40 37.

חשלו = § 736.

Throughout the book of Leviticus אָמָּן begins a verse except in seven instances where it is אָמָּן. In Leviticus where this conjunctive begins a verse no fewer than seventy-four times, it is with the prefix Vav in sixty-seven instances and in seven only is it without the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 99a, on Levit. 27 17 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 86a, on Levit. 3 7; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 65b, on Levit. 1 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 80a, on Levit. 26 3; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 139a, on Levit. 3 7; (VI) the same MS., fol. 179b, on Levit. 26 3 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 3 7. At the end of List IV is the addition וְכֵן כָּתוּב בְּמִנְיַן הַיּוֹם אָמָּן אָמָּן which is to be found at the end of Lists II and III of the preceding Rubric.

1 Comp. אָמָּן Levit. 1 10, 14; 2 5, 7, 14; 3 1, 6, 12; 4 13, 27, 32; 5 7, 11, 17; 7 16, 18; 12 5, 8; 13 4, 7, 12, 21, 22, 23, 26, 28, 35, 37, 41, 53, 56, 57; 14 21, 43, 48; 15 23, 24, 28; 17 16; 19 7; 20 4; 25 28, 30, 52, 54; 26 14, 16, 18, 21, 23, 27; 27 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 13, 15, 16, 18, 19, 20, 22, 27, 31.

חשלו = § 737.

begins a verse six times in the book of Numbers. In Numbers where this conjunctive begins a verse thirty-one times it is with the prefix Vav in twenty-five instances and in six only is it without the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 107b, on Numb. 32 11 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 101b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 220a, on Numb. 14 8 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Both Lists III and IV distinctly state in the heading that there are five instances only in Numb. where אָמָּן begins a verse and both record five, duly omitting Numb. 32 11. The Massorites, therefore, who compiled this Rubric must have worked on recensions of the text which read אָמָּן in Numb. 32 21.

1 Comp. אָמָּן Numb. 5 8, 28; 10 4; 11 15; 15 27; 16 30; 27 9, 10, 11, 30, 6, 7, 9, 11, 13, 15, 16; 32 23, 30; 33 55; 35 16, 17, 20, 22, 26; 36 4.

חשלה = § 738a.

begins a verse four times in the book of Deuteronomy. In Deuteronomy where this conjunctive begins a verse twelve times it is with the prefix Vav in eight instances and without it in four only. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 139a, on Deut. 28 58 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Deut. 1 35.

1 Comp. אָמָּן Deut. 19 8; 20 12; 22 2, 20, 25; 24 12; 25 7; 30 17.

חשלה = § 738b.

Throughout Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy אָמָּן begins a verse except in seventeen [sixteen] instances where it is אָמָּן. This Massorah which simply combines Rubrics 736, 737 and 738a into one List I have found only in Orient. 2349, fol. 89a, on Levit. 13 26. It will be seen that the heading states that there are seventeen instances in these three books where אָמָּן begins a verse and that sixteen only are given. The conflict between the statement in the heading and the contents of the Rubric is due to the fact that the instances in Numbers are here based upon the recension which recognises five only in this book (vide supra § 737), whilst the heading is according to the recension which has six such passages.

חשלה = § 739.

begins a verse six times in the book of Samuel. In Samuel where this conjunctive begins a verse thirteen times it is with the prefix Vav in seven instances and in six without it. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 36a, on 1 Sam. 2 25 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 42a, on 1 Sam. 12 14; (III) the same MS., fol. 43a, on 1 Sam. 14 9; (IV) the same MS., fol. 46a, on 1 Sam. 17 9 and (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 12 14.

1 Comp. אָמָּן 1 Sam. 12 15, 25; 14 10; 20 22; 2 Sam. 15 26, 34; 17 13.

חשלה = § 740.

begins a verse eight times in the book of Jeremiah. In Jeremiah where this conjunctive begins a verse twenty times it is with the prefix Vav in twelve instances and eight only without it. The Massorah, therefore, catalogues the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 156a, on Jerem. 14 18 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 167b, on Jerem. 31 36; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 14 18; (IV) the same Codex on Jerem. 42 6; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (VI) the combined List of Samuel and Jeremiah in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 149b, on Jerem. 4 1 and (VII) in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 4 1.

1 Comp. אָמָּן Jerem. 5 2; 12 17; 13 17; 17 27; 22 5; 23 22, 38; 27 18; 38 18, 21; 42 13; 48 27.

חשלה = § 741.

For the combined List recording the instances in which אָמָּן and אָמָּן respectively begin a verse throughout the Bible see below, § 746.

חשלה = § 742.

Five verses are alike misleading, the conjunctive אָמָּן being absent in them. That is, according to the recension on which this Rubric is based the text in these five instances is without this conjunctive, though according to other recensions it is given as a Sevir or alternative marginal reading or as the textual reading.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 70a, on 2 Sam. 19 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 160b, on Jerem. 22 12; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 12b, on Gen. 24 4; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Jerem. 22 12 and (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 4.

As the treatment of this Rubric and its contents both in the Massorah and in the text of the MSS. yield the clue to the import of the terms Sevir and Sevir I shall here give the different headings of this Rubric from the Massorahs, Magna and Parva and then show how the several passages which constitute this Rubric are indicated in the margin as well as in the text itself. The headings of Lists I, II, III and V state two things with regard to these five verses (1) that they are misleading (מִשְׁתָּהוּ) and (2) that they have not the conjunctive אָמָּן, whilst the heading of List IV simply says that they have not the required אָמָּן.

The several passages which constitute this Rubric are treated as follows:

Gen. 24 4. — The Samaritan recension has אָמָּן in the text, whilst Add. 19,776, which omits it has in the margin against the passage that it is one of the instances where the Sevir is אָמָּן and is misleading (מִשְׁתָּהוּ אָמָּן יִשְׂרָאֵל).

1 Sam. 18 25. — Here the Eastern recension reads אָמָּן and this reading constitutes one of the differences between the Easterns and Westerns.

2 Sam. 19 8. — The Model Codex Harley 5710—11, has אַם in the text, but omits וְ, whilst Cambridge Add. 465 which omits אַם states in the margin that this is on the authority of the Codex Mughah (מנהג מוגה).

Jerem. 22 12. — The St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 has אַם in the text which the Nakdan struck out and remarked against it that this combination is unique and that it is one of the four instances where אַם is absent (לֹא הָיָה אַם). But אַם here is also the reading in the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the third edition, Brescia 1494, and is exhibited in the margin in the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible by Felix Pratensis, Venice 1517. It is to be remarked that in Arund. Orient. 16, and in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah Parva it is remarked against this passage that it is one of the four or five passages which are misleading (רַב פְּסָרֵי בְּמַטְרָא וְרַב פְּסָרֵי בְּמַטְרָא וְרַב פְּסָרֵי בְּמַטְרָא וְרַב פְּסָרֵי בְּמַטְרָא).

2 Chron. 6 9. — אַם is here the textual reading both in Orient. 4227 and in several MSS. of de Rossi; and this reading is confirmed by the parallel passage in 1 Kings 8 19. The Massorah Parva, however, in Jacob b. Chayim's edition states that it is one of the five passages which are misleading and that they are without אַם.¹

From this analysis we see: (1) that this conjunctive was originally in the text of certain redactors; (2) that other textual critics relegated it into the margin because the Standard Codices which they followed had it not and they, therefore, gave it as an alternative marginal reading or Sevir; and (3) that later Nakdanim rejected this Sevir, condemning it as misleading and not only dropped the extra-official term בְּמַטְרָא, but in many instances substituted for it simply the condemnatory expression מַטְרָא מִשְׁמַרְבֵּי.

וְרַב פְּסָרֵי בְּמַטְרָא וְרַב פְּסָרֵי בְּמַטְרָא וְרַב פְּסָרֵי בְּמַטְרָא וְרַב פְּסָרֵי בְּמַטְרָא

¹ Comp. my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible Part I, chap. VIII, p. 187 &c.

תַּשְׁמִי"ו = § 743.

אַם ד' כַּת' וְלֹא קָרָא. In four passages the textual reading is אַם which is officially cancelled in the margin . . . They are of the eight words which are written in the text, but are directed in the margin to be omitted. This Rubric I have found only in the printed Massorah on Ruth 3 12. For the full List see letter ב, § 486, Vol. II, p. 54.

תַּשְׁמִי"ד = § 744.

אַם is in two instances taken in the Targum to denote when. That is, in these two passages the so-called Onkelos Targum renders this conjunctive as if it were אַתְּ. I have mislaid the reference to the MS. from which this Rubric is taken.

תַּשְׁמִי"ה = § 745.

אַם אַם. Twelve verses in the Scriptures respectively begin with אַם and also have it in the middle of the verse. That is, this conjunctive is repeated without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 65a, on Jerem. 49 9 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 48b, on Exod. 22 2; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 63a, on the same passage; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 70a, also on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage; (VI) the same on Ps. 27 3 and (VII) the same on Job 6 12. The catchwords אַם בְּנִימֵי בְּנֵי לֵךְ to which I have affixed Obad 5 is a mistake for the parallel passage Jerem. 49 9. The safeguarding of these verses is due to the variations which obtained in the different Codices, as will be seen from the notes in my edition of the Bible on Exod. 22 2, 7 &c.

תַּשְׁמִי"ז = § 746a.

אַם אַם. Eighteen verses have respectively twice אַם in the middle of the verse. That is, apart from the Pentateuch and Jeremiah where the same phenomenon occurs no less than twelve times.¹ It will be seen that 2 Sam. 15 21, in which אַם occurs three times according to the textual reading (כַּרְבֵּי), is included in this Massorah. This is due to the fact that the official קָרָא cancels one of the three conjunctives in this verse. (Vide supra, § 743.) This separate Rubric I have found in Arund. Orient. 16 only, fol. 92a, on 1 Kings 17 12. The reason for safeguarding these instances is to be found in 2 Sam. 19 36; Isa. 1 18 &c. as will be seen in the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

¹ Comp. Gen. 42 16; 47 18; Exod. 19 13; Numb. 13 19, 20; 32 20; Deut. 18 3; Jerem. 5 1; 7 5; 15 11; 49 20; 56 45.

תַּשְׁמִי"ח = § 746b.

אַם אַם אַם אַם. Throughout the Pentateuch and Jeremiah where this conjunctive occurs twice in the middle of a verse it is without the prefix Vav except in ten instances.

To indicate the instances in which אַם occurs twice in the middle of the same verse, the Massorah divides the Scriptures into two sections in accordance with the predominance of the respective verses in which the second אַם is without or with the prefix Vav. In the Pentateuch and Jeremiah where there are altogether twenty-two such verses with the duplicate conjunctive, the second אַם is without the Vav in twelve instances (vide supra, § 746 note) and in ten with it. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

And throughout all the rest of the Scriptures where this conjunctive occurs twice in the middle of a verse the second אַם is likewise without the prefix Vav except in eighteen instances where it is אַם.

In this second division, where there are altogether no fewer than fifty-five such verses with the duplicate conjunctive, the second אַם is with the prefix Vav (אַם) in thirty-seven instances¹ and without it in eighteen only. The Massorah, therefore, catalogues the exceptions.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, §§ 90, 91 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 238a, on Hab. 3 8 in which the second part of this Rubric is given first; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 122a, on Numb. 5 19 which simply gives the first part of the Rubric; (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 530, and (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 346.

¹ Comp. Josh. 22 19; Judg. 4 8; 9 15; 13 16; 1 Sam. 6 9; 24 21; 26 19; 30 15; 2 Sam. 10 11; 18 3; 20 12; 1 Kings 1 52; 18 21; 20 18; 2 Kings 2 10; 3 14; Isa. 62 8; Ezek. 2 5, 7; 3 11; 14 16; Zech. 3 7; 11 12; Cant. 2 7; 3 5; Ruth 3 10, 13; 4 4; Eccl. 5 11; 12 14; Esther 7 3; 9 5; Neh. 2 5; 13 25; 1 Chron. 12 18; 19 12; 28 9.

תַּשְׁמִי"ט = § 747.

אַם אַם אַם. This conjunctive which begins a verse in two instances is followed twice by the same conjunctive in the middle of the verse in a unique manner . . . And in three verses which begin with this conjunctive with the prefix Vav it is repeated in the middle of the verse without the prefix. That is, אַם in these instances is exceptionally without the Vav. This Rubric is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 334a, on Job 37 13. In other MSS. and in the printed Massorah this Massorah is divided into two distinct Rubrics. Thus the first part is given as a separate Rubric in the printed Massorah on Obad. 5; Job 37 13 and in Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 345, whilst the second part is given in Add. 21,160, fol. 182b, on Levit. 27 7, the Printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 533, and Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 343. In the printed Massorah by Jacob b. Chayim the heading אַם אַם אַם אַם is a mistake for אַם אַם אַם אַם.

תַּשְׁמִי"ח = § 748a—c.

אַם אַם אַם. Words which respectively occur twice, once preceded by אַם and once by אַם. The three Lists, marked §§ 748a—c, again illustrate the gradual development of the Massoretic Rubrics. Though the first List, which is from Add. 15,451, fol. 88b, on Levit. 26 27, catalogues twelve such pairs the original Massorites affixed as yet no heading, specifying the number of these instances, because they did not regard it as final and because they left it open for other Massorites to complete it in the course of time. The Massorites who compiled the second List, which is from Orient. 2349, fol. 90b, on Levit. 14 48, were less successful since they record five pairs only, but in accordance with the later practice they supplied these pairs with catchwords. The editors, however, of the third List which is from Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 541, mistook the Rubric as final. Following the example indicated in the Massorah Parva of some MSS., they supplied it with the heading stating that there are twelve such pairs only, whereas there are no fewer than seventeen.¹ The carelessness, moreover, with which later Nakdanim handled these Massorahs is to be seen from the fact that though in the heading it is distinctly stated in Jacob b. Chayim's printed List that there are twelve such pairs only, the List itself records thirteen pairs. Some ignorant editor added the fifth pair, consisting of אַם אַם which occurs no fewer than eleven times¹ and וְאֵלֶיךָ which occurs three times. (Vide infra, letter א, § 765.)

¹ Comp. אַם אַם אַם אַם Levit. 26 3, אַם אַם אַם אַם Levit. 26 15; אַם אַם אַם אַם Gen. 28 17, אַם אַם אַם אַם Numb. 30 11; אַם אַם אַם אַם Esther 4 14, אַם אַם אַם אַם Numb. 30 15; אַם אַם אַם אַם Jerem. 33 17, אַם אַם אַם אַם Numb. 33 26; אַם אַם אַם אַם Prov. 2 1, אַם אַם אַם אַם Gen. 31 60.

The great importance of this Rubric is due to the fact that it is based upon Codices which read וְאֵלֶיךָ אֵלֶיךָ in Jerem. 8 4 in accordance with the official Keri exhibited in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916. This is attested by Lists I and III which state that וְאֵלֶיךָ אֵלֶיךָ occurs once only, whereas in the Kethiv or in the received text it occurs twice, viz. 2 Kings 20 9 and Jerem. 8 4. Now the Massoretic Rubrics, as is generally the case, follow the Keri. This leaves 2 Kings 20 9 with the unique combination which this Massorah requires. The misleading catchword in Jacob b. Chayim's List gives the reference to Jerem. 8 4 whereas in the original List there is no catchword. By this official reading we obtain the following beautiful sense in Jerem. 8 4.

Shall they [i. e. Israel] fall and not arise?
Shall they return [i. e. to God] and he not return [i. e. to them]!

This not only agrees with the context, but is in harmony with Mal. 3 7. The reference 2 Chron. 20 9 against וְאֵלֶיךָ the second member of the third pair in § 748 a is a mistake for 2 Kings and belongs to וְאֵלֶיךָ in the next line.

¹ Comp. Gen. 23 8; 44 26; 1 Kings 17 12; 2 Kings 9 15; Jerem. 5 1; Ps. 7 4; Prov. 23 18; Job 6 6; 33 23, 32; Lament. 1 12.

וְאֵלֶיךָ = § 749.

וְאֵלֶיךָ if not, occurs four times in this combination in the Scriptures. Both in the other five instances where וְאֵלֶיךָ is preceded by this conjunctive and in the six instances where this adverb is in the construct and is in combination with this conjunctive it has the prefix Vav.¹

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 208b, on 2 Sam. 17 6 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 63a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 332b, on Job 33 33; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 216a, on 2 Sam. 17 6; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 93a, on Exod. 17 7; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VII) the same on Job 33 33.

¹ Comp. וְאֵלֶיךָ Gen. 30 1; Exod. 32 32; Judg. 9 15, 20; 2 Kings 2 10; וְאֵלֶיךָ Numb. 5 8; 27 9, 10, 11; 1 Sam. 11 3; Isa. 50 2. (Vide infra, letter א, § 764.)

וְאֵלֶיךָ = § 750.

וְאֵלֶיךָ if not, begins a verse eight times . . . and in Job it is likewise so at the beginning of a verse with the exception of two instances where it has the prefix Vav.

Outside the book of Job this combination occurs thirty-six times at the beginning of a verse. In twenty-eight instances it is with the prefix Vav and in eight only is it without it. Here, therefore, וְאֵלֶיךָ is the rule and וְאֵלֶיךָ the exception. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions.

In Job, however, the reverse is the case. In this book, where the phrase begins a verse eight times, וְאֵלֶיךָ without the prefix Vav is the rule, since it is so in six passages² and וְאֵלֶיךָ which occurs twice only is the exception. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the instances with the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated fourteen Lists, eleven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 245a, on 2 Kings 9 26 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 63b, on Exod. 22 7; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 139b, on Deut. 28 58; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 14a, on Gen. 24 38; (V) the same MS., fol. 100b, on Exod. 22 7; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 104b, on 2 Kings 9 26; (VII) the same MS., fol. 222b, on Mal. 2 2; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 285b, on Ps. 7 13; (IX) the same MS., fol. 317b, on Ps. 131 2; (X) the same MS., fol. 348b, on Cant. 1 8; (XI) Halle Oehlrah Ve-Oehlrah II, § 90; (XII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 38; (XIII) the same on Mal. 2 2 and (XIV) the same on Cant. 1 8.

Lists VIII, IX, XI and XII head this Rubric וְאֵלֶיךָ which is more precise since this Massorah contrasts the exceptional occurrence of וְאֵלֶיךָ with the normal וְאֵלֶיךָ. Lists III, VIII and X omit the second part of this Rubric which makes it unintelligible.

¹ Comp. וְאֵלֶיךָ Gen. 24 8; 34 17; Exod. 40 37; Levit. 5 7, 11; 12 8; 17 10; 25 28, 30, 54; 26 14; 27 20; Numb. 5 28; 32 23, 30; 33 55; Deut. 20 12; 22 2; 25 7; Josh. 22 24; Judg. 14 13; 1 Sam. 12 15; Jerem. 12 17; 13 17; 17 27; 22 5; 38 18; 48 27.
² Comp. וְאֵלֶיךָ Job 17 2; 22 20; 30 2; 31 20, 31, 36.

וְאֵלֶיךָ = § 751.

וְאֵלֶיךָ if not, occurs seven times at the end of a verse. This is the contrast to the preceding Massorah. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 157a, on Judg. 2 22 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,261, fol. 24a, on Gen. 24 21; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 48b, on Exod. 16 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 125b, on Deut. 8 2; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 20b, on Gen. 27 21; (VI) the same MS., fol. 90a, on Exod. 16 4; (VII) the same MS., fol. 269b, on Deut. 8 2; (VIII) Orient. 2349, fol. 40b, on Gen. 24 21; (IX) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Judg. 2 22 and (X) the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 21. Lists II and VI give this Rubric as a contrasting part of Rubric 750.

וְאֵלֶיךָ = § 752.

וְאֵלֶיךָ if or when he washes, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 95a, on Levit. 22 6.

וְאֵלֶיךָ = § 753.

וְאֵלֶיךָ if he return, occurs twice . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 114a, on 2 Kings 9 9. It will be seen that this Massorah emanates from a School of Massorites in which the reading וְאֵלֶיךָ was preserved in their Codices in Jerem. 8 4 without the Keri. (Vide supra, § 748.)

וְאֵלֶיךָ = § 754.

וְאֵלֶיךָ whether ox or sheep, occurs twice in this combination. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 133b, on Deut. 18 3.

וְאֵלֶיךָ = § 755.

וְאֵלֶיךָ occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, the conjunctive with the interrogative He. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 84a; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 218b, and (III) the printed Massorah, all on Numb. 17 28. This Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice beginning with He with Pathach or Chateph-Pathach.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ה, § 19, Vol. I, p. 261 &c.

וְאֵלֶיךָ = § 756.

וְאֵלֶיךָ and if, begins a verse six times [in Job]. In Job, where this conjunctive begins a verse sixty-seven times, it is in sixty-one instances without the prefix Vav and in six only with it. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. Of this separate Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 335a, on Job 40 9 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Job 36 8.

¹ Comp. וְאֵלֶיךָ Job 6 12; 7 4; 8 4, 5, 6, 18; 9 3, 16, 19, 20, 23, 27, 30; 10 14, 15; 11 10, 13, 14; 14 5, 8, 14; 16 6; 17 2, 13; 19 5; 20 6, 12; 22 20, 23; 27 4, 10, 14, 16; 30 25; 31 5, 7, 9, 13, 16, 19, 20, 21, 24, 25, 26, 29, 31, 33, 36, 38, 39; 33 5, 23, 32, 33; 34 14; 35 6, 7; 36 11; 37 13; 39 27.

וְאֵלֶיךָ = § 757.

וְאֵלֶיךָ. This Massorah not only connects into one chain the several Rubrics which catalogue the instances where this conjunctive with and without the prefix Vav begins a verse in some of the books, but indicates the preponderance of וְאֵלֶיךָ and וְאֵלֶיךָ respectively in all the books of the Scriptures. This conjunctive begins a verse about three hundred and thirty-five times. In some books the form with the prefix Vav preponderates, whilst in others the simple conjunctive without the Vav prevails. A reference to the notes in my edition of the Bible discloses the fact that the Codices which were preserved by the different textual redactors exhibited considerable variations. Hence the Massorites in the compilation of this Rubric not only record the readings which obtained in their Standard Codices, but exclude by implication the readings in the Codices of other Schools. According to the seven links which constitute this Massoretic concatenation, the use of this conjunctive with and without the prefix Vav in the several books is as follows:

(A) Throughout Genesis and Exod. chaps. 21 and 22 this conjunctive without the prefix Vav begins a verse except in ten instances where it is with it.

Genesis 1—50; Exod. chaps. 21 and 22. — In Gen. and in the two chapters of Exodus technically called (פרק) on Damoges, where this particle occurs altogether thirty-four times at the beginning of a verse, it is in twenty-four instances without the prefix Vav¹ and in ten only with it. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. The reason why chapters 21 and 22 are separated from the rest of Exodus is that in these two chapters alone this particle begins a verse no fewer than twenty-four times. Here וְ occurs seventeen times in this distinguished position and וַ seven times only. Hence this portion is Massoretically combined with Genesis for safeguarding the minority.

(B) And in all the rest of the Pentateuch, too, this particle with the prefix Vav begins a verse except in eighteen instances where it begins a Verse without the Vav.

Exod. without chaps. 21, 22, Levit., Numb. and Deut. — In these four books apart from Exod. 21 and 22 where this particle begins a verse one hundred and twelve times, it is וַ in ninety-four² instances and וְ in eighteen only. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional passages. It will be seen that though the heading here distinctly states that there are eighteen instances, this part of the Rubric enumerates seventeen only. Numb. 32 11 is omitted. This is manifestly due to a clerical error caused by the same catchword וַי which preceded it. The omission is supplied in Jacob b. Chayim's List.

(C) Throughout Joshua and Judges this particle with the prefix Vav always begins a verse and there is no instance of its beginning a verse without this prefix.

Joshua and Judges. — In these two books, where this conjunctive begins a verse seven times, it is always וַ.

(D) Throughout Esther and Proverbs the reverse is the case, this particle without the prefix Vav always begins a verse and there is no instance of its beginning a verse with this prefix.

Esther and Proverbs. — In these two books, where this particle begins a verse thirteen times, it is in every instance without the prefix Vav.⁴

(E) In Kings, Isaiah, Ezekiel, Psalms and Ecclesiastes וְ always begins a verse except in five instances where it is וַ.

In these five books, where this particle begins a verse thirty-nine times it is in thirty-four instances without the prefix Vav⁵ and in five only is it with the Vav. Hence the Massorah protects the minority. Owing to the artificial way in which these links are joined together the heading here is misleading, since it implies that וְ always begins a verse in Ezekiel, whereas it never occurs at the beginning of a verse in this book.

(F) Throughout Samuel and Jeremiah this particle with the prefix Vav likewise begins a verse except in fourteen instances where it is without this prefix. (Vide supra, letter ו, §§ 39, 40.)

(G) In all the rest of the Scriptures, too, this conjunctive without the prefix Vav begins a verse except in eleven instances where it is with this prefix.

The rest of the Scriptures here grouped together are the Minor Prophets, the Five Megilloth with the exception of Ecclesiastes and Esther, Chronicles and Job. In these books this particle begins a verse altogether eighty-five times. As it is without the prefix Vav in seventy-three instances⁶ and with it in twelve instances only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. It will be seen that Obad. 4 which makes up the twelve passages is here omitted, since eleven only are given.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 90, which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 528.

¹ Comp. וְ Gen. 14 23; 24 38; 26 20; 31 8, 50; 42 10; 43 4; Exod. 21 8, 4, 8, 10, 19, 30, 32; 22 1, 2, 3, 7, 12, 14, 16, 22, 24, 25.

² Comp. וְ Exod. 7 27; 12 4; 20 22; 29 34; 40 37; Levit. 1 10, 14; 2 5, 7, 14; 3 1, 6, 12; 4 13, 27, 32; 5 7, 11, 17; 7 16, 19; 12 5, 9; 13 7, 12, 21, 22, 23, 26, 28, 36, 37, 41, 53, 56, 57; 14 21, 43, 48; 15 23, 24, 28; 17 16; 19 7; 20 4; 25 28, 30, 52, 54; 26 14, 15, 18, 21, 23, 27; 27 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 13, 15, 16, 18, 19, 20, 22, 27, 31; Numb. 3 8, 28; 10 4; 11 15; 15 27; 16 30; 27 9, 10, 11; 30 6, 7, 9, 11, 13, 15, 16; 32 28, 30; 33 55; 35 16, 17, 20, 22, 26; 36 4; Deut. 19 8; 20 12; 22 2, 20, 25; 24 12; 25 7; 30 17.

³ Comp. וְ Josh. 2 20; 22 24; 24 15; Judg. 7 10; 9 19, 20; 14 18.

⁴ Comp. וְ Prov. 1 11; 2 4; 3 24, 34; 6 28; 9 12; 22 27; 25 21; 27 22; 30 32; Esther 1 10; 3 9; 5 8.

⁵ Comp. וְ 1 Kings 1 27; 9 6; 2 Kings 7 4; 9 26; Isa. 1 10; 4 4; 58 13; Ps. 7 5, 13; 27 3; 44 21; 50 12; 63 7; 68 14; 73 15; 78 54; 89 31, 32; 94 18; 130 3; 131 2; 132 3, 4, 12; 137 5; 138 7; 139 8, 19; Eccl. 5 7; 6 3; 10 4, 10, 11; 11 8.

⁶ For the sixty-one instances in which וְ begins a verse in Job see ו, § 756, note. The other twelve instances are Hos. 4 15; 12 12; Amos. 3 6; 9 2; Obad. 4 6; Mal. 2 2; Cant. 1 1; 8 9; 1 Chron. 21 12; 2 Chron. 6 22; 20 9.

וְ חַשְׁבִּי = § 758.

וְ חַשְׁבִּי and if, has twice the accent Zarka and in the same section. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 157a, on Levit. 13 56 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

וְ חַשְׁבִּי = § 759.

וְ חַשְׁבִּי. Throughout this Section this conjunctive, with and without the prefix Vav, is always with Makeph except in this instance. That is, in Pericope וְ חַשְׁבִּי [= Exod. 21 1—24 18] this particle is once only with the accent and the mnemonic sign thereof is that in combination with וְ az it has these horns, viz. is with Pazer which is indicated by the phrase in the said Psalm. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Exod. 21 29.

וְ חַשִּׁי = § 760.

וְ חַשִּׁי. For this Rubric see ו, § 747.

וְ חַשְׁבִּי = § 761.

וְ חַשְׁבִּי. Eight verses in which this conjunctive with the prefix Vav occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 153a, on Josh. 22 23 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 81b, on Levit. 27 20; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 126b, on Mal. 1 6; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 157a, on 2 Chron. 15 2; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 16a, on Josh. 22 23; (VI) the same MS., fol. 164b, on Jerem. 27 18; (VII) the same MS., fol. 266a, on 2 Chron. 15 2; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 88a, on Levit. 27 20; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 180b, on Levit. 26 15; (X) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 92; (XI) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 344, and (XII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 27 20.

The heading in Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah (List XII) וְ חַשְׁבִּי שְׁנַיִם בְּרֵאשִׁית וּבְתוֹכָהּ = eight verses in which וְ חַשְׁבִּי occurs both at the beginning and middle of the verse is incorrect, since in Josh. 22 23 and Mal. 1 6 this conjunctive does not begin the verse. Moreover, the catchwords וְ חַשְׁבִּי שְׁנַיִם = 1 Chron. 28 9 are a mistake and ought to be וְ חַשְׁבִּי שְׁנַיִם = 2 Chron. 15 2 as all the MS. Lists have it.

וְ חַשְׁבִּי = § 762.

וְ חַשְׁבִּי. Seventeen words respectively occur once only preceded by this conjunctive with the prefix Vav. In all other instances where these words are combined with this conjunctive it is without the prefix Vav. The design of this Massorah is not only to catalogue the words which are unique in this combination, but which occur again more than once combined with וְ. In this respect, therefore, the import of this Rubric differs from that of § 750, which registers the pairs of words once combined with וְ and once with וְ.

This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Esther 8 5. I have since found three other Lists, in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445: (I) fol. 63a, on Exod. 21 29; (II) fol. 101a, on Levit. 15 28 and (III) fol. 151a, on Numb. 30 7. All the three Lists, which exhibit the first attempt to collect these unique combinations, are still without any headings and without catchwords. They simply have after each instance לִי חַשְׁבִּי = unique. The first List gives twelve passages only and omits Numb. 36 4; Ezek. 14 16; Obad. 4; Eccl. 11 3 and Esther 8 5. The second List records properly ten instances only. It omits Numb. 36 4; 1 Sam. 17 9; 2 Sam. 17 13; Ezek. 14 16; Obad. 4; Eccl. 11 3 and Esther 8 5. It gives Judg. 13 6 twice and adds one new instance, viz. וְ חַשְׁבִּי לִי חַשְׁבִּי Levit. 15 28 which does not belong to this Rubric, since the combination וְ חַשְׁבִּי לִי חַשְׁבִּי without the prefix Vav does not occur. The third List, which gives eleven instances omits Numb. 36 4; 1 Kings 3 14; Jerem. 5 2, 9; Ezek. 14 16; Eccl. 11 3 and Esther 8 5 and contains one instance, viz. וְ חַשְׁבִּי לִי חַשְׁבִּי Numb. 30 7 which does not belong to this category, since the combination וְ חַשְׁבִּי לִי חַשְׁבִּי without the prefix Vav does not occur. The remarkable feature of these three Lists, however, is the fact that like the printed Massorah they give the two instances וְ חַשְׁבִּי Deut. 22 20 and וְ חַשְׁבִּי Judg. 9 16 though neither of these expressions occurs in combination with וְ in the textus receptus.

וְ חַשְׁבִּי = § 763.

וְ חַשְׁבִּי and if a man, occurs three times thus combined once in the Pentateuch, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. In the other four instances where וְ חַשְׁבִּי is preceded by this conjunctive it is without the prefix Vav. (Exod. 19 13; Judg. 4 20; 1 Sam. 30 22; 2 Kings 1 12.) The notes on 2 Kings 1 10 in my edition of the Bible will show the reason why these three instances are thus safeguarded.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 238b, on 2 Kings 1 10 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 97b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 325a, on Job 11 2; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 136a, on Deut. 24 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 245b, on 2 Kings 1 10; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 322a, on Job 11 2 and (VII) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 1 10.

תססד = § 764.

ואסא and if not, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, the construct פק preceded by אר to distinguish it from פק the absolute which is also preceded by אר in five instances.¹ This Rubric which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on 1 Sam. 11 3 is incorrect. In the first place ארפא occurs six times and Numb. 27 9, 10, 11; Isa. 50 2 are omitted and in the second place Prov. 22 27 which is here given as the third instance is ארפא without the prefix Var in the textus receptus.

¹ Comp. ארפא Gen. 30 1; Exod. 32 32; Judg. 9 15, 20; 2 Kings 2 10.

תססו = § 765.

ואסיש and if there be, occurs three times. That is, with the prefix Var. In all the other eleven instances where א is preceded by this conjunctive it is without this prefix.¹ Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 66a, on 2 Sam. 14 32 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 253a, on Jerem. 27 18 and (III) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 14 32.

¹ Comp. אסיש Gen. 23 8; 44 26; 1 Kings 17 12; 2 Kings 9 15; Jerem. 5 1; Ps. 7 4; Prov. 23 18; Job 6 6; 33 23, 32; Lament. 1 12.

תססז = § 766.

ואסלא and if not, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse in Job. (Vide supra, letter א, § 750.)

תססח = § 767.

ואסלא and if not, occurs seventeen times in the middle of a verse. This combination occurs altogether forty-seven times. As it begins a verse in thirty instances¹ and is in the middle of the verse in seventeen passages only the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 83a, on Levit. 27 27 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 77a, on Exod. 34 20 and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 537. Jacob b. Chayim's Rubric (List III) is incorrect. Though it states in the heading that there are seventeen such instances it enumerates sixteen only. And as one of the passages, viz. יאמר נבל בלבו does not occur in the Bible it gives fifteen only. The two omitted are Judg. 4 8 and 1 Sam. 2 16.

¹ Comp. Gen. 24 8; 34 17; Exod. 40 37; Levit. 5 7, 11; 12 8; 17 16; 25 28, 30, 54; 26 14; 27 20; Numb. 5 28; 32 23, 30; 33 55; Deut. 20 12; 22 2; 25 7; Josh. 22 24; Judg. 14 13; 1 Sam. 12 15; Jerem. 12 17; 13 17; 17 27; 22 5; 38 18; 48 27; Job 24 25; 36 12.

תססח = § 768.

ואסמא and if refusing, occurs twice. In the other three passages where this phrase occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 9 2; 10 4; 22 16). In fixing this number at three this Massorah militates against the Codices which read אר in Exod. 22 16 as will be seen in the note on this passage in my edition of the Bible. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 173a, on Jerem. 38 21 which I have printed and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 74b, on Exod. 7 27.

תססט = § 769.

ואם יראנה הכהן and if the priest look on it, occurs twice with the accent and in the same Section. That is, with Munach Legarmeh and Munach Revia. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Levit. 13 21.

תש" = § 770.

ואם פשה and if it spread, occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 89a, on Levit. 13 22.

תשע"א = § 771.

ואם תחתיה and if in its place, occurs twice and in the same Section. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Levit. 13 23.

תשע"ב = § 772.

אזנים two cubits and a half, occurs twice with the accents Kadma Ve-Azla. This phrase occurs four times and as it is with accents Mehapach Pashta in the other two instances (Exod. 25 17; 37 6) the Massorah safeguards the peculiar accents in these parallel passages. It will be seen that the conjunctive accents usually called Kadma Ve-Azla are here Massoretically called איל איל. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 79b, on Exod. 37 1.

תשע"ג = § 773.

אמת cubits, without and with the prefixes, is always plene except in one instance. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 79a, on Exod. 36 21.

תשע"ד = § 774.

אמת cubits, stands six times at the end of a verse in the description of the Temple. In the Plan of the Temple given in Ezekiel (40-43) where the expression אמת occurs thirty-eight times, it is in six instances the last word of the verse. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the peculiar position of it. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 193a, on Ezek. 40 27 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תשע"ה = § 775.

האמהות the maidservants, occurs twice, once it is defective and once plene. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 200b, on 2 Sam. 6 22 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 46a, on Gen. 31 33 and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. List III has at the end בריא בלי = the second is plene, i. e. 2 Sam. 6 2. It also adds ויהי אמהה עבריו and once it is אמהה the construct 2 Sam. 6 20.

תשע"ו = § 776.

אמהו peoples, is unique &c. In this attempt to catalogue the forms of אמהו people which occur once only, the Massorites mixed up the two expressions, viz. אמהו and אמהו. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174 on Numb. 25 15 which I have printed and (II) British Museum Orient. 2349, fol. 115b, on the same passage. Both are Yemen MSS.

תשע"ז = § 777.

אמתה faithfulness, is six times defective in this form. In this form are included the masculine noun אמת which furnishes two instances (Deut. 32 20; Isa. 26 2), the feminine noun אמתה which exhibits three instances (1 Sam. 26 23; 2 Kings 12 16; Ps. 143 1) and the participle plural of the verb אמת which yields one instance (Lament. 4 5). Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 320a, on Ps. 143 1 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 375a, on Lament. 4 5; (III) Halle Oehlrah Ve-Oehlrah, Supplement, fol. 133b, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 119 190. Though all the MS. Lists state in the heading that there are seven such instances, they enumerate six only. Jacob b. Chayim's List gives seven, but makes it up by the addition of אמתה Numb. 12 8 which is of quite a different root and is not contained in any of the MS. Lists. It is, therefore, more natural to assume that the ך is a clerical error for ך which is not unfrequently the case.

תשע"ח = § 778.

ואמית and strong, occurs four times; it is plene three times and once defective. That is, in Amos 2 16 it is without the Yod. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 129b, on Isa. 28 2 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 205b, on Amos 2 16; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 299a, on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah on Job 9 4. Both Lists I and IV distinctly state that Isa. 28 2 exhibits the only instance where it is defective. The expression אמת against Amos 2 16 in the List which I have printed has inadvertently crept into the line.

תשע"ט = § 779.

ואמית and strong, is twice defective. This Rubric is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 12b, on Isa. 28 2. The conflict between this Massorah and the preceding one is due to the fact that the two Schools of textual redactors from which these Rubrics proceed had different traditions with regard to the orthography of this expression.

תשי"ב = § 780.

תשי"ב occurs twice and in two different senses. That is, in Isa. 17 6 it denotes bough and in Hos. 4 7 it is the Hiphil future first person singular from שי"ב and denotes I will change. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 125b, on Isa. 17 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 200b, on Hos. 4 7 and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 298a, on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ט, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217 &c.

תשפ"א = § 781.

תשפ"א she languished, occurs twice. This Pual preterite third person singular feminine occurs altogether six times. In four instances it has the regular Sheva under the second Lamed (comp. תשפ"א Isa. 24 4, 7; 33 9; Jerem. 15 9) and it is in these two passages where it has Kametz because of its pausal accent. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 203b, on Joel 1 12.

תשפ"ב = § 782.

תשפ"ב nursingfather, occurs twice and is defective in this form. That is, in both instances, the one with the prefix He and the other without it, this participle is without the Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 107a, on Numb. 11 12. It is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once without the prefix He and once with it. (Vide infra, letter ה, §§ 16, 17.)

תשפ"ג = § 783.

תשפ"ג has twice Pathach. The design of this Massorah is to register the fact that in these two instances the Mem is with Pathach. Though in one instance it is the Niphal preterite and in one the participle construct, the Massorah groups them into one Rubric because of the identity of the spelling. This identity is still more striking in some of the best Codices which read it in both instances תשפ"ג with Chateph-Segol under the Aleph as is the case in Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,451; Add. 21,161 &c. and the early editions given in the notes on 2 Sam. 7 16 in my edition of the Bible. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 201a, on 2 Sam. 7 16 which I have printed and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 247a, on Prov. 11 13.

תשפ"ד = § 784.

תשפ"ד occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the construction of תשפ"ד with טי so as not to be made conformable to תשפ"ד in Exod. 4 1; as well as to protect תשפ"ד since in the only other passage where this Hiphil future second person masculine occurs it is construed with וי and not with תו (Deut. 9 23). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 108b, on Numb. 14 11.

תשפ"ה = § 785.

תשפ"ה and he believed, occurs twice in the Scriptures. These two instances are safeguarded because in Exod. 4 31 where it is followed by the plural verb תשפ"ה the Scribe would be liable to write it תשפ"ה. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 37a, on Exod. 4 31 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 34b; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 70a, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. As both these instances begin a verse, List II rightly heads this Rubric בראש פסוק.

תשפ"ו = § 786.

תשפ"ו and they believed, occurs three times in the Scriptures . . . once in the Pentateuch, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 113b, on Jonah 3 5 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 209a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 311a, on Ps. 106 12; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 49a, on Exod. 14 31 and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage. It is remarkable that Lists II and IV not only state emphatically in the heading that it occurs twice, but give two instances only. The Massorah Parva too, in Arund. Orient. 16 remarks against it ב"י. As these two MSS. belong to different countries it shows that this List proceeds from Massorite Schools which did not read תשפ"ו in Ps. 106 12.

תשפ"ז = § 787.

תשפ"ז Amen, amen, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, without the prefix Vav before the second adverb. In the other three passages where this reduplicate phrase occurs it has the prefix Vav. (Ps. 41 14; 72 19; 89 53.) Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 297b, on Neh. 8 6 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 85b, on Numb. 5 22 and (III) the printed Massorah on Neh. 8 6.

תשפ"ח = § 788.

תשפ"ח occurs three times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. The four instances here grouped together exhibit homonyms. In the first two passages this quadriliteral is a proper name of a mountainous chain; in the third instance it is a noun denoting covenant, surety, whilst in the fourth it signifies allowance, portion. The Massorah, however, as we have often seen, has regard simply to the identity of the orthography and for this reason includes all the four instances in the same Rubric. It will be seen that in 2 Kings 5 12 the textual reading or Kethiv is תשפ"ח = Abana, which is followed in the text of both the Authorised and Revised Versions. But the Massorah does not recognise the Kethiv. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 241b, on 2 Kings 5 12 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 261b, on Cant. 4 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 386a, on Neh. 10 1; (IV) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 298, and (V) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 5 12. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter א, § 73, p. 405 &c.)

תשפ"ט = § 789.

תשפ"ט occurs three times in this form. That is, without and with the prefix Beth. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 38b, on Gen. 20 12 which I have printed and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 5b, on Josh. 7 20. The second List heads it simply ב"י - it occurs twice and gives the two instances only without the prefix Beth.

תשצ"א = § 790.

תשצ"א indeed, occurs four times and is defective . . . and once it is without the prefix He. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 101a, on Numb. 22 37 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 223b, on 1 Kings 8 27; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 152a, on 2 Chron. 6 18; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 143a, on Numb. 22 37; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 83a, on 1 Kings 8 27; (VI) the same MS., fol. 260a, on 2 Chron. 6 18; (VII) the same MS., fol. 297b, on Ps. 58 2; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 228b, on Numb. 22 37; (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (X) the same on Ps. 58 2.

תשצ"ב = § 791.

תשצ"ב and be courageous, is twice with Pathach. This Kal imperative singular masculine with the prefix Vav occurs altogether eight times. In six instances it has Kametz under the Mem and in two passages only is it with Pathach. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This Rubric, which is from the printed Massorah on 1 Chron. 28 20, is incorrect. The catchwords וקום וקום אל תירא אל = 1 Chron. 22 13 ought to be וקום וקום מאד = Josh. 1 7 and I have indicated this mistake in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah by an asterisk against the passage. The Massorah Parva against 1 Chron. 28 20 both in Arund. Orient. 16 and in the printed Massorah correctly indicates the two instances. These two instances form part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice with Pathach.²

¹ In these six instances the Kametz is due to the pausal accent, viz. וקום וקום Deut. 31 7, 23; וקום וקום Josh. 1 9; וקום וקום 1 Chron. 22 13; וקום וקום Josh. 1 6; וקום וקום Josh. 1 18.
² Comp. The Massorah, letter צ, § 659, Vol. II, p. 299.

(List VII) misunderstood this import. He, therefore, added the three instances from the Psalms because they exhibit the combination אמר קללה and what is worse still inserted the two passages which have אמר קללה (Gen. 8 21; 1 Sam. 28 1) and omitted Ps. 53 2 which is one of the six original passages. As this yielded ten instances he altered the $\nu = 6$ into $\nu = 10$. The editor of the second List of Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah (List VIII) has not treated this Rubric quite so barbarously. Though he too states in the heading that there are ten such instances combined with קללה he gives the six correct passages first in their proper order and adds the four incorrect ones at the end. By this making up the ten he avoids the two passages with the combination אמר קללה. From their position, however, and absence of proper sequence it is evident that he regarded them as out of place.

We have still to consider the recension of this Rubric exhibited in List VI which is as follows:

1 Kings 13 26	יבועם החמישי	ויאמר פלוגי בלבו נ דסמי וסיבחהו
Ezther 6 6	הפך החלה	עשו הישע
		חרב בת חר בני' חר בבח',

It will be seen that in this Model Codex, which gives the Massorah in its earliest form, the Rubric consists of three instances only and is strictly confined to the passages which not only begin with אמר, but which are immediately followed by the name of the person. Moreover in all the three instances the identical phrase is used of three wicked persons and the Massorah notices the fact that one occurs in the Law, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa. We thus see how the Rubric of three was expanded into six, ten, and ultimately into thirty-three passages. Against אמר in the Rubric which I have printed (§ 802) should be Ps. 53 2 and not 10 6.

תתי = § 803.

אמר he said, is three times with Kametz. That is, in these three instances only has this preterite third person singular masculine, which occurs upwards of five hundred and eighty times, Kametz under the Mem which is due to two having the pausal accent Athnach (Gen. 18 17; 21 1) and one having Soph Pasuk (Exod. 18 24).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 1879, fol. 57a, on Gen. 18 17 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 20b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 95a, on Exod. 18 24; (IV) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah II, § 9, margin and (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 18 17.

תתי = § 804.

אמר אלהים God said, occurs six times in this combination in the Scriptures. Normally when אמר is the predicate of the Divine Being it is followed by Jehovah and it is in these six instances only that it is combined with אלהים. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 188b, on Ps. 50 16 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 169b, on 2 Chron. 33 7; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 278b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 296a, on Ps. 50 16; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 29a, on Gen. 31 16; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Chron. 33 7; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 3 1 and (VIII) the same on Exod. 13 17.

תתי = § 805.

אמר יהוה Jehovah said, begins a verse three times. Normally when this formula begins a verse it is אמר יהוה thus says Jehovah or אמר יהוה. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards these exceptional instances. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 46 25 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 1474, fol. 58b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 68 23. It is remarkable that both Lists give Ps. 68 23 which is אמר in the received text as one of the three verses beginning with אמר יהוה.

Comp. אמר יהוה Jerem. 2 5; 6 16 22; 7 3, 21; 9 22; 10 2 &c. אמר יהוה Jerem. 4 3, 27; 6 6; 10 18; 16 3, 6, 9; 20 4 &c.

תתי = § 806.

אמר יהוה saith Jehovah, occurs ten times at the end of a verse in this book. That is, in Jeremiah. This Rubric, which I have found only in Orient. 1474, fol. 12b, on Jerem. 8 12, does not agree with the received text: (1) Jerem. 15 11 which is here given as one of the instances where אמר יהוה ends the verse is in the preceding Rubric registered as one of the three instances where it begins the verse. And (2) Jerem. 30 3; 44 26 and 49 18 are in the textus receptus in the middle of the verse. Can it be that this Yemenite Massorah is based upon a recension of the text in which the verses were differently divided?

תתי = § 807.

אמר יהוה saith Jehovah, occurs eight times at the end of a verse in this book. That is, in the twelve Minor Prophets which are treated as one book in the Massorah. The design of this Massorah is to protect this formula against the longer phrase אמר יהוה צבאות saith Jehovah of hosts, which ends the verse in the majority of passages¹ and to militate against those recensions which exhibited variations, as will be seen from the notes on Amos 7 3 and Mal. 1 13 in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. This Rubric too I have found in Orient. 1474, fol. 234b only, on Amos 1 6.

Comp. אמר יהוה צבאות Hag. 2 7; Zech. 1 3; 7 13; Mal. 1 3, 9, 11; 2 4, 8; 3 1, 6, 11, 12, 21.

תתי = § 808.

אמר יהוה saith Jehovah, occurs twenty times at the end of a verse. This Massorah combines into one Rubric and completes the instances which the different Lists tabulated on the several books. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 205a, on Amos 1 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 205b, on Amos 1 15; (III) the same MS., fol. 216a, on Zeph. 3 20; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 264a, on Jerem. 48 8; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Amos 1 5 and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Isa. 11 9 in my Rubric should be Isa. 65 25.

תתי = § 809.

אמר יהוה אלהיך saith Jehovah thy God, occurs once only at the end of the verse. That is, with the suffix second person masculine. In the other two passages where this formula ends the verse it is אמר יהוה אלהיך with the suffix second person feminine (Isa. 64 6; 66 9). The Massorah, therefore, safeguards this unique occurrence. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Amos 9 15.

תתי = § 810.

אמר יהוה להם Jehovah said to them, occurs four times in this combination in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 251a, on 2 Kings 17 12 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 47b, on Numb. 26 65; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 259a, on 2 Kings 17 12; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 110b, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 311a, on Ps. 106 34; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 73a, on Exod. 6 26; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 367b, on Ps. 106 34; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 6 26 and (IX) the same on Ps. 106 34.

תתי = § 811.

אמר לי he said to me, occurs five times thus combined in the Scriptures and in two instances it is with the prefix Vav. Normally אמר לי is followed by אמר לי; hence the Massorah safeguards this abnormal combination.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 147b, on 1 Chron. 28 3 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 108b, on 2 Kings 8 14; (III) the same MS., fol. 185a, on Ezek. 29 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 255a, on 1 Chron. 28 3; (V) the same MS., fol. 380a, on Neh. 2 18; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 328a, on 1 Chron. 28 3; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 7a, on Gen. 20 5 and (VIII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

Comp. אמר לי Deut. 31 2; 1 Sam. 19 17; 23 22; 2 Kings 18 25; Isa. 36 10; Jerem. 28 1; Ps. 2 7; Ruth. 2 21.

תתי = § 812.

אמר and he said, occurs eight times in this book. That is, in the Minor Prophets which are Massoretically treated as one book. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I have found only in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Amos 6 10.

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the instances in which this preterite with the Vav conjunctive occurs in the Minor Prophets in accordance with the recension of the text preserved in the Massoretic School whence this Rubric proceeds. It will be seen that according to this School of Massorites the reading in Zech. 3 6 is וְאָמַר and this reading is also exhibited in the Syriac and Vulgate. Other Codices, however, read it וְאָמַר Kal future first person singular with Vav conversive, and this reading is supported by the School of Massorites who compiled the present textus receptus.

תְּחִיבִי = § 813.

וְאָמַרְתָּ thou didst say, begins a verse three times . . . they are all outside the Pentateuch. The Kal preterite second person singular masculine which begins a verse upwards of fifty times, has in forty-eight instances the prefix Vav¹ and is without it in these three passages only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 252a, on 2 Kings 18 20 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 112b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 272b, on 2 Chron. 25 19; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Kings 18 20; (V) the same Codex on Jerem. 45 3; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 9, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 45 3.

¹ Comp. וְאָמַרְתָּ at beginning of a verse Gen. 32 19; Exod. 4 22; Numb. 28 3; Deut. 6 21; 8 17; 26 18; 1 Kings 22 27; Isa. 7 4; 12 1; Jerem. 7 28; 8 4; 11 3; 13 12, 13; 14 17; 16 11; 17 20; 19 8, 11; 22 2; 25 27; 26 4; 38 26; 43 10; 41 62, 64; Ezek. 6 3; 12 10; 13 18; 16 3; 17 8; 19 2; 20 5; 21 3, 8; 22 3; 25 3; 27 3; 28 22; 35 3; 38 3, 11; 44 6; Zech. 1 3; 6 12; Prov. 5 12; Job 22 13.

תְּחִיבִי = § 814.

וְאָמַרְתָּ and thou shalt say, occurs five [four] times with the accent in this book. That is, in Ezekiel this expression has in five instances the accent Gershaim. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ezek. 17 3 is incorrect, as is frequently the case in Jacob b. Chayim's edition. There are four instances only. The expression דָּבַר which is given in this List as the fifth instance is manifestly a corruption of יָדַבַּר and belongs to the catchword גִּבְעֵי = Ezek. 13 18 as I have printed it. It has indeed been supposed that it refers to Ezek. 29 3. (Comp. Heidenheim, in משנתו השנייה, p. 20 b &c.) But in this passage גִּבְעֵי has one Gershaim only, after Azla as it is in 37 12. Besides all the instances where וְאָמַרְתָּ has Gershaim begin a verse, whereas in 29 3 this is not the case. The heading הִיא = יָדַבַּר occurs five times, has been altered by a later Nakdan from יָדַבַּר = דָּבַר, who mistook the import of this Massorah and who did not see that דָּבַר is a clerical error for יָדַבַּר and that it belongs to גִּבְעֵי, as I have printed it.

תְּחִיבִי = § 815.

וְאָמַרְתָּ and thou shalt say, occurs three times with the accent. That is, this Kal preterite second person singular masculine with Vav conversive has the accent Pazer. This Rubric, which is from the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 23 17, is incorrect: (1) there are four such instances, Ezek. 21 12 being omitted and (2) וְאָמַרְתָּ with which the catchwords in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah ends, viz. Ezek. 36 6, is a clerical error for וְאָמַרְתָּ as I have printed it. (Vide infra, letter א, § 846.)

תְּחִיבִי = § 816.

וְאָמַרְתָּ אֲלֵיהֶם and thou shalt say unto them, occurs three times with the accent in this book. That is, this phrase has in these three passages Kadma Ve-Azla. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 25a, on Jerem. 19 11 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 597. Though the headings in both Lists state that there are three such instances only, List II rightly gives four passages as אָמַרְתָּ לָמָּה לָמָּה = Jerem. 15 2 has been added by a later Nakdan. The heading, moreover, in Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah אָמַרְתָּ לָמָּה לָמָּה אָמַרְתָּ לָמָּה it occurs three times with the accents Kadma Ve-Azla in Jeremiah, is more explicit.

תְּחִיבִי = § 817.

וְאָמַרְתָּ אֲלֵיהֶם כְּדֹאמַר יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל and thou shalt say unto them thus saith Jehovah of hosts the God of Israel, occurs twice in this combination.

Besides the formula in question, there are no fewer than four different ways in which the Divine message is delivered to the people whom the Prophet is commanded to address (אָמַרְתָּ אֲלֵיהֶם) in the name of Jehovah. But as all these formulæ are shorter¹ the design of the Massorah here is to safeguard the two exceptionally long combinations.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 31b, on Jerem. 25 27.

¹ Comp. (I) וְאָמַרְתָּ אֲלֵיהֶם בְּהַאזְנֵי יְהוָה Jerem. 8 4; 13 13; 15 2; 26 4; (II) וְאָמַרְתָּ אֲלֵיהֶם בְּהַאזְנֵי יְהוָה זְכַרְיָהוּ Jerem. 19 11; 25 27; Zech. 1 3; (III) וְאָמַרְתָּ אֲלֵיהֶם בְּהַאזְנֵי יְהוָה Jerem. 11 3 and (IV) וְאָמַרְתָּ אֲלֵיהֶם בְּהַאזְנֵי יְהוָה which is used exclusively in Ezekiel, viz. 2 4; 3 11, 27; 13 18; 14 4; 16 3; 20 3, 5, 27; 24 3; 37 12.

תְּחִיבִי = § 818.

וְאָמַרְתָּ thou saidst, occurs seven times . . . and they have no parallel in all the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the Eastern textual reading or Kethiv which is אָמַרְתָּ both in Isa. 47 10 and 57 10. It is, moreover, intended to indicate that though it is אָמַרְתָּ in Ps. 16 2, which is normally the preterite second person singular feminine, it is in this passage abnormally the masculine and that there is, therefore, no necessity to alter it into אָמַרְתָּ.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 177a, on Ps. 16 2 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 61a, on 2 Sam. 6 22; (III) the same MS., fol. 139b, on Isa. 47 10; (IV) the same MS., fol. 160b, on Jerem. 22 21; (V) the same MS., fol. 287a, on Ps. 16 2; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 207b, on 2 Sam. 6 22 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 16 2. In List V where the instance from Ps. 16 2 is the last in the enumeration, the Massorite remarks בְּרִי לֵשׁוֹב in this last passage it is masculine. To the same effect is the Massorah Parva in this Standard Codex against Ps. 16 2.

תְּחִיבִי = § 819.

וְאָמַרְתָּ and thou shalt say, occurs three times. That is, the second person singular feminine with the prefix Vav to distinguish it from the numerous instances in which it is אָמַרְתָּ the masculine.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 158a, on Judg. 4 20, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 21a, on 1 Kings 1 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 21a on Judg. 4 20; (IV) the same MS., fol. 76a, on 1 Kings 1 13; (V) the same MS., fol. 140b, on Isa. 49 21; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 165b, on Judg. 4 20 and (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 1 13.

תְּחִיבִי = § 820.

וְאָמַרְתָּ I said, begins a verse twice. The reason for safeguarding these instances is due to the fact that some MSS. read אָמַרְתָּ, the second person singular in Isa. 36 5, which is in accordance with the parallel passage in 2 Kings 18 20, but which the redactors of this Massorah reject. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 133a, on Isa. 36 5.

תְּחִיבִי = § 821.

וְאָמַרְתָּ they said, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse. The heading of this Rubric ought properly to be בִּי וּבְכֶם = it occurs twice and in this book, since both instances occur in the Psalms; but as we have seen, this qualifying expression is often omitted. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 302a, on Ps. 74 8 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 362b, on Ps. 83 5 and (III) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 9.

תְּחִיבִי = § 822.

וְאָמַרְתָּ אֲלֵיהֶם and ye shall say unto them, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish it from the two instances in which אָמַרְתָּ is followed by לָהֶם, as is indicated in the next Rubric where the two phrases are contrasted. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 73a, on Levit. 15 2 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תְּחִיבִי = § 823.

וְאָמַרְתָּ אֲלֵיהֶם and ye shall say to them, occurs twice . . . and in two instances it is אֲלֵיהֶם. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2210, fol. 70a, on 1 Sam. 14 31.

תתכ"ד = § 824.

אָמַר to say, occurs six times in the Scriptures, three times plene and three defective. As this Kal infinitive absolute, which occurs six times, is spelled in two different ways and in one instance in the same book, with and without the Vav, the Massorah safeguards its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 47*b*, on Exod. 21 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 174*b*, on 1 Sam. 2 30; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 29*b*, on Judg. 15 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 36*a*, on 1 Sam. 2 30; (V) the same MS., fol. 49*b*, on 1 Sam. 20 21; (VI) the same MS., fol. 161*b*, on Jerem. 23 17; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 95*a*, on Exod. 21 5; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 173*b*, on Judg. 15 2; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 98*b*, on Exod. 21 5; (X) the same MS., fol. 197*a*, on Numb. 6 23; (XI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 9 and (XII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 21 5. Lists II and VI simply record the three plene instances.

תתכ"ה = § 825.

בְּאָמַר. This Kal infinitive construct with the prefix Beth, occurs three times in the Scriptures . . . once in the Pentateuch, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 93*b*, on Ezek. 36 20 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 186*a*, on Ps. 42 4; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 36 20; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190*a*, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 122*a*, on Deut. 4 10; (VI) the same MS., fol. 407*b*, on Ps. 42 4; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 260*b*, on Deut. 4 10; (VIII) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (IX) the same on Ps. 42 4.

With the exception of Lists VII and VIII none of the other nine Lists state in the headings whether any of the instances are plene or defective, though all the three instances are defective in the textus receptus. List VII, however, emphatically heads the Rubric בְּאָמַר it occurs three times, twice plene and once defective, and gives Ps. 42 4 as the plene passage, whilst List VIII as emphatically heads it it occurs three times and is defective. The two conflicting Massorahs, therefore, must be based upon two different recensions of the text which were preserved in the several Massoretic Schools.

תתכ"ו = § 826.

לְאָמַר saying, begins a verse nine times in the Scriptures. The sign thereof in Chaldee is, the captives forsook their wives in Egypt and the priests returned and passed their friends from Canaan

Owing to the abnormal position of this infinitive construct at the beginning of the verse, which might easily mislead the Scribes who would in some of the instances naturally join it to the end of the preceding verse, the Massorites carefully safeguard these passages. This accounts for this Rubric being not only one of the earliest constituent parts of the Massorah, but of such frequent occurrence in the MSS.

Of this Rubric I collated seventeen Lists, fifteen in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 33*a*, on Jerem. 3 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 47*b*, on Jerem. 25 5; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 140*b*, on 1 Chron. 16 18; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 206*b*, on Ps. 105 11; (V) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 25 5; (VI) the same Codex on Jerem. 42 14; (VII) the same Codex on Zech. 7 3; (VIII) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 140*a*, on Isa. 49 9; (IX) the same MS., fol. 162*b*, on Jerem. 25 5; (X) the same MS., fol. 219*a*, on Zech. 7 3; (XI) the same MS., fol. 301*a*, on Ps. 71 11; (XII) the same MS., fol. 310*b*, on Ps. 105 11; (XIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 297*a*, on Jerem. 42 14; (XIV) the same MS., fol. 380*a*, on Amos 8 5; (XV) Cambridge Add. 465 on Jerem. 3 1, which alone has the mnemonic sign; (XVI) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 25 5 and (XVII) the same on Ps. 105 11.

תתכ"ז = § 827.

לְאָמַר saying, is three times plene in the Scriptures. As this Kal infinitive construct which occurs no fewer than nine hundred and thirty-six times in the Scriptures, is plene in these three instances only, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional orthography. In these three instances we have a striking illustration of the attempt to introduce the later plene orthography which in the case of this infinitive, has almost entirely failed. It is remarkable that in these two books alone in which this abnormal spelling occurs, the primitive orthography (לְאָמַר) is to be found about one hundred and ninety-two times, viz. eighty times in Genesis and one hundred and twelve times in Jeremiah.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 33*a*, on Gen. 48 20 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 158*a*, on Jerem. 18 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 196*b*, on Jerem. 33 20; (IV) Add. 15,261, fol. 40*a*, on Gen. 48 20; (V) the same MS., fol. 256*b*, on Jerem. 33 20; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 291*a*, on the same passage; (VII) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 48 20 and (VIII) the same on Jerem. 18 5.

תתכ"ח = § 828.

וְלְאָמַר and saying, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, of the hundreds of times this infinitive occurs in the Bible it is with the prefix Vav in these three instances only. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 25*a*, on Isa. 51 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 141*a*, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 277*b*; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 434*a*; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, all on 2 Chron. 32 17; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 9, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 565.

תתכ"ט = § 829.

אָמַרְי. This infinitive with the suffix first person singular occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 465 on Josh. 6 10.

תתל" = § 830.

אָמַרְתְּ. This infinitive second person singular feminine occurs twice only. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 183*a*, on Ezek. 25 3 which I have printed and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

תתל"א = § 831.

אָמַר אֲלֵיהֶם כֹּה אָמַר אֲדֹנָי יְהוִה say unto them thus saith the Lord Jehovah, occurs four times . . . in the first instance it is not preceded by לְקֹחַ.

The design of this Massorah is not to register the instances in which אָמַרְי precedes the Tetragrammaton in combination with the phrase כֹּה אָמַר, but the passages in which this phrase itself is preceded by אָמַר אֲלֵיהֶם. This is evident from the fact that when the verb is preceded by the preterite is with Vav conversive, or when even אָמַר the imperative is not followed by אֲלֵיהֶם, the combination אָמַר אֲלֵיהֶם occurs frequently after the formula כֹּה אָמַר יְהוִה.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 12 10.

¹ For the instances in which אָמַר אֲלֵיהֶם כֹּה אָמַר יְהוִה is followed by אָמַרְי יְהוִה, see א, § 817, note, and for אָמַר which are followed by אָמַרְי יְהוִה without אֲלֵיהֶם, see Ezek. 11 16, 17; 17 9; 24 21.

תתל"ב = § 832.

אָמַר כֹּה אָמַר יְהוִה say thus saith Jehovah, occurs four times in this book, i. e. Ezekiel. This Rubric, which is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 11 5, is misleading, since it is in the first passage only where the imperative אָמַר precedes this formula. It is manifestly identical with the Rubric which registers simply the four instances in which the shorter form כֹּה אָמַר יְהוִה occurs in Ezekiel, and which is given in the Massorah, letter ב, § 72, Vol. II, p. 26.

תתל"ג = § 833.

אָמַר לָהֶם say to them, occurs twice thus combined . . . and once it is with the prefix Beth. That is, to distinguish it from the seven instances where this imperative is followed by אֲלֵיהֶם.¹ It is remarkable that this shorter form is to be found in Deuteronomy only. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 115*b*, on Deut. 5 27 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 606. With the prefix it is the infinitive construct, but the Massorah makes no distinction when the punctuation is the same.

¹ Comp. אָמַר אֲלֵיהֶם Levit. 22 3; Numb. 14 28; Ezek. 12 10, 23, 28; 33 11, 25.

תחליד = § 834.

אמר למלך say unto the king, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 40a, on Jerem. 13 18.

תחליה = § 835.

אמרתי say now, or I pray thee, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish it from the other four instances where this imperative singular feminine is used without being followed by ו (Gen. 20 13; 1 Kings 14 7; Isa. 40 9; Jerem. 48 19) so as to guard against Gen. 12 13 and 20 13 being made conformable. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Gen. 12 18.

תחליז = § 836.

אמר and say ye, occurs six times. In the other eighteen instances where this imperative plural occurs, it is without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 149b, on Jerem. 4 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 206a, on Amos 3 9; (III) the same MS., fol. 248b, on 1 Chron. 16 35; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 288a, on Jerem. 31 7; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 290a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Oehlrah Ve-Ochlah II, § 9, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Chron. 16 35. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List VII) omits Amos 3 9 though it states in the heading that there are six instances.

תחליז = § 837.

אמר דוד. For the textual reading Kal future third person which is in six instances combined with the Tetragrammaton with the pausal accent, the proper reading appears to be אָמַר, the preterite third person. That is, the Sevir is אָמַר. It is the preterite and not the future which is the normal form in this formula.¹

Of this important Rubric I have found two Lists only: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 132b, on Isa. 1 11 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 187. The Nakdan after whom Jacob b. Chayim printed this List mistook the import of this Massorah. Its design is not to register all the instances in which אָמַר is preceded by אָמַר. This is evident from the fact that in this combination it occurs altogether no fewer than eleven times and that five instances are excluded because אָמַר has not the pausal accent, but is combined with another Divine name.² The omission, therefore, of two instances in Jacob b. Chayim's List (Isa. 33 10; 41 21) and the insertion of other two passages (1 Kings 1 36; 22 14) are against the scope of this Massorah. For אָמַר אָמַר which is equivalent to אָמַר אָמַר, see letter א, § 272.

¹ Comp. אָמַר אָמַר Isa. 59 21, 21; 65 7; Jerem. 44 26; אָמַר אָמַר Isa. 66 20; Jerem. 49 18; אָמַר אָמַר Isa. 39 6; 65 26; 66 21, 23 &c.

² Comp. אָמַר אָמַר Deut. 5 24; אָמַר אָמַר Jerem. 42 20; אָמַר אָמַר 1 Kings 1 36, where though with Zakeph it is followed by another Divine name.

תחליה = § 838.

אמר and he shall say, is six times Raphe in the Scriptures. That is, it has in six instances Sheva under the Vav in contradistinction to the many instances in which it has Pathach and which are recorded in the following Rubrics. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, Vol. II, fol. 190b, on Pa. 58 12 which I have printed; (II) St Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Hab. 2 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 138a, on Isa. 44 16; (IV) the same MS., fol. 143b, on Isa. 58 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 214a, on Hab. 2 6; (VI) the same MS., fol. 298a, on Pa. 58 12; (VII) Halle Oehlrah Ve-Ochlah II, § 9, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 9 17. It will be seen that the printed Massorah alone has this Rubric on 2 Kings 9 17 and it is most probable that Jacob b. Chayim followed some MS. in which it was placed on this verse to safeguard it against being made conformable to אָמַר by which it is twice preceded. In the List I have printed, this instance is omitted which is manifestly due to a clerical error.

תחליה = § 839.

אמר and he said, occurs ninety-one times with Pathach, forty of them are in the Pentateuch. That is, with Pathach under the Mem.

This Kal future third person singular with Vav conversive occurs altogether six hundred and thirty-three times in the Pentateuch. As it has Segol under the Mem in no less than five hundred and ninety-three instances and is with Pathach in forty passages only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional vowel-points. The Pathach in these instances is due to the accent being on the ultimate. It is, however, to be remarked that these forty instances exhibit no fewer than six different accents which are more or less pausal.¹

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 123a, on Numb. 21 2 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 118a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 26a, on Gen. 30 28 and (IV) the same MS., fol. 229b, on Numb. 23 12. Lists I and II omit Gen. 37 80 which is manifestly due to a clerical error since the heading distinctly states that there are forty such instances in the Pentateuch. They, moreover, give וְיָרַד יַעֲקֹב as the catchwords for Numb. 21 2 instead of וְיָרַד יַעֲקֹב which is due to the same cause. List III omits Gen. 47 30, whilst List IV, which gives this instance, omits Gen. 43 29. The heading of this List, viz. וְיָרַד יַעֲקֹב מִן הַבְּרִיחַ exhibits a scribal mistake.

¹ In twenty-five instances it is אָמַר with Athnach (Gen. 14 19; 15 8; 18 3, 23, 27; 19 7; 24 34; 30 28; 37 30; 48 15; Exod. 5 22; 32 81; 33 14, 18; Numb. 11 27, 28; 21 2; 23 7, 12, 18; 24 3, 15, 20, 21, 23); in six it is אָמַר with Zakeph Gadol (Gen. 20 4; 27 36; 33 5; 43 29; 47 30; 48 9); in four it is אָמַר with Zakeph Katon (Gen. 18 29; 28 17; Exod. 2 14; 32 5); in two it is אָמַר with Rebia (Gen. 16 8; Deut. 33 2); in two it is אָמַר with Segolia (Gen. 28 18; Deut. 33 7); and in one instance it is אָמַר with Shaleheleth (Gen. 24 12).

תחמי = § 840.

אמר and he said, occurs six times in this book. That is, in Samuel. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 154b, on 1 Sam. 7 12. It is incorrect, since there are ten instances in which the Mem is with Pathach instead of the normal Segol. The four omitted instances are 2 Sam. 19 27; 20 20; 22 2 and 23 15. They are correctly given in the List which catalogues the instances in the whole Bible. (Vide infra, § 842.) The Rubric exhibits the first attempt by the original compiler to collect these phenomena who left the compilation of the List to his colleagues. Instead, however, of completing it a later Nakdan, as usual, regarded it as final and hence added the heading, fixing the number at six. As this future third person singular with Vav conversive occurs no less than four hundred and seventy times in Samuel and as it is with Pathach under the Mem (אָמַר) in these ten instances only the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. The ten instances exhibit two kinds of pausal accents. In seven passages it is אָמַר with Athnach (1 Sam. 22 9, 14; 2 Sam. 3 33; 15 21; 20 20; 22 2; 23 15) and in three it is אָמַר with Zakeph Gadol (1 Sam. 3 18; 7 12; 2 Sam. 19 27).

תחמיא = § 841.

אמר occurs thirteen times in this book. That is, in Kings. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Kings 8 23. It is defective, inasmuch as it leaves out two instances, viz. 1 Kings 17 11 and 2 Kings 19 15, which are correctly given in the List recording the instances of this phenomenon throughout the Bible. (Vide supra, § 842.) The heading, therefore, must be the addition of a later Nakdan if the original Massorite did not work upon Codices in which these two instances exhibited the normal vowel-points. As this Kal third person future with Vav conversive occurs no less than three hundred and forty-seven times in Kings and as it is אָמַר with Segol in three hundred and thirty-two passages and אָמַר with Pathach in fifteen only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. The fifteen instances exhibit no fewer than five different accents of a more or less pausal nature.¹

¹ In three instances it is אָמַר with Athnach (1 Kings 1 29; 17 20, 21); in two it is אָמַר with Zakeph Gadol (2 Kings 1 8; 2 14); in five it is אָמַר with Zakeph Katon (1 Kings 17 10, 11; 2 Kings 6 17, 18; 13 14); in one instance it is אָמַר with Revia (1 Kings 8 23); and in four instances it is אָמַר with Segolia (1 Kings 18 36; 2 Kings 7 2, 19; 19 15).

תחמיב = § 842.

אמר occurs ninety-one times... and wherever it is preceded by וְיָרַד or וְיָרַק in Job it is likewise so. The exceptional pointing of this expression which was originally recorded in each book separately, but for which we have as yet found three separate

Lists only, is here grouped together into one List extending over the whole Bible.¹ As the three separate Lists catalogue sixty-five instances in those special books (vide supra, §§ 839-841), there are twenty-six only left for the remaining Scriptures. The distribution of the instances in the sundry books, as well as the minute and extraordinary labours of the Massorites will best be seen when it is stated that apart from the thirty-two passages in Job to be mentioned hereafter, וַיֹּאמֶר occurs altogether two thousand and forty-two times and that it is pointed וַיֹּאמֶר in nineteen hundred and fifty-one instances, and וַיֹּאמֶר in ninety-one passages only. The relative number of each form in the several books is as follows:

The Pentateuch.		Earlier Prophets.
וַיֹּאמֶר 698	וַיֹּאמֶר 40	וַיֹּאמֶר 970	וַיֹּאמֶר 33
Gen. 827	21	Josh. 52	1
Exod. 150	6	Judg. 126	7
Levit. 10	.	Sam. 460	10
Numb. 34	11	Kings 332	16
Deut. 28	2

Later Prophets.		Hagiographa.
וַיֹּאמֶר 178	וַיֹּאמֶר 6	וַיֹּאמֶר 210	וַיֹּאמֶר 12
Isa. 32	1	Ps. 3	1
Jerem. 49	.	Prov. 1	.
Ezek. 41	.	Job 18	4
Minor Proph. 56	6	Megil. 43	1
		Dan. 16	2
		Extra-Neh. 16	.
		Chron. 120	4

Total וַיֹּאמֶר 698 + 970 + 178 + 210 = 1951.
 Total וַיֹּאמֶר 40 + 33 + 6 + 12 = 91.

As the different accents of וַיֹּאמֶר in the sixty-five instances recorded in the three separate Rubrics have already been given, we have only to remark that the remaining twenty-six exhibit a still greater variety than those in the Pentateuch.²

We have still to consider the import of the remark at the end of this Rubric that apart from the four instances in Job where it is וַיֹּאמֶר it is likewise so pointed in this book, wherever it is preceded in the same verse by וַיֹּאמֶר or וַיֹּאמֶר. There are twenty-nine instances in which וַיֹּאמֶר is preceded in the same verse by וַיֹּאמֶר in Job and three in which it is preceded by וַיֹּאמֶר.³ These thirty-two instances have, therefore, to be added to the ninety-one so that there are properly one hundred and twenty-three passages in which this future third person singular with Vav conversive is pointed וַיֹּאמֶר with Pathach under the Mem. Though in twenty-seven of these instances it is וַיֹּאמֶר with the Silluk on the penultimate,⁴ still it is in five instances with the accent on the ultimate.⁴ The Massorah, therefore, correctly indicates these instances by וַיֹּאמֶר and not by וַיֹּאמֶר.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 86, on Gen. 14 19 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 113a, on 2 Kings 19 15; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 9, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 558. It will be seen that List I which I have printed records eighty-nine instances only, but as it states in the heading that there are ninety-one it is evident that the omission of Gen. 48 15 and Exod. 2 14 is due to a clerical error. The mnemonic sign at the end, viz. אבב consists of the initials of the instances in Job and ought properly to be אבבב, since there are four catchwords. Though the heading of List II distinctly states that there are ninety-one such instances it practically records eighty-eight only, since it gives Gen. 27 36 and 2 Sam. 15 21 twice and omits 2 Kings 6 18; 7 19; 2 Chron. 20 6.

¹ But though there is no other separate List of the several books, there is a List grouping together all the Prophets which I have printed in Vol. III, p. 333, § 96 and there is another List which records the instances in the Prophets and in the Hagiographa and which is given in Add. 21,160, fol. 281a.

² In ten instances it is וַיֹּאמֶר with Athnach (Josh. 7 20; Judg. 11 30; 13 8; 16 26; 20 4; Zech. 1 10; Job 1 14, 18; Ruth 2 6; 1 Chron. 11 17); in three it is וַיֹּאמֶר with Zakeph Gadol (Judg. 6 18; 8 19; Dan. 9 22); in three it is וַיֹּאמֶר with Zakeph Katon (Judg. 15 18; Jonah 3 4; Dan. 8 16); in four it is וַיֹּאמֶר Revia (Isa. 33 8; Jonah 4 2; 2 Chron. 6 14; 20 6); in four it is וַיֹּאמֶר Segolta (Zech. 1 12; Job 1 16, 17; 2 Chron. 14 10); in one instance it is וַיֹּאמֶר Pazer (Ps. 18 2) and in one וַיֹּאמֶר Shaleleth (Amos 1 7).

³ Comp. וַיֹּאמֶר Job 1 7, 9; 2 2, 4; 3 2; 4 1; 6 1; 8 1; 9 1; 11 1; 12 1; 15 1; 16 1; 18 1; 19 1; 20 1; 21 1; 22 1; 23 1; 25 1; 26 1; 28 6; 34 1; 35 1; 36 1; 40 1, 3, 6; 42 1; וַיֹּאמֶר Job 27 1; 29 1; 36 1.

⁴ Comp. וַיֹּאמֶר Job 1 7; 2 2, 4; וַיֹּאמֶר Job 1 7; 2 2.

The catchwords for 2 Sam. 20 20 which are here וַיֹּאמֶר are a clerical error for וַיֹּאמֶר. The omission at the end of the Rubric, viz. וַיֹּאמֶר leaves the thirty-two instances in Job unexplained. List III omits five instances, viz. Exod. 32 31; Numb. 24 15, 23; 2 Kings 6 18 and 2 Chron. 20 6, whilst List IV, which is from Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, records ninety-two instances. But וַיֹּאמֶר which is here given as the seventeenth instance does not occur. It is evidently intended simply for 2 Kings 6 20 where, however, the textus receptus is rightly וַיֹּאמֶר with Segol. Moreover, the catchword וַיֹּאמֶר = Numb. 23 12 is a mistake for וַיֹּאמֶר = 2 Chron. 20 6 is a mistake for וַיֹּאמֶר.

On Exod. 33 14 the printed Massorah states that וַיֹּאמֶר occurs ninety-one times, that forty of these instances are in the Pentateuch, that ten of them begin a verse and that they are given in the Massorah Magna.¹ In the Massorah Finalis, however, the ten instances in which וַיֹּאמֶר begins a verse are not given, and as the language here is ambiguous and may suggest that these ten instances extend to the whole Bible, I have to add that they are restricted to the Pentateuch (Gen. 15 8; 16 8; 18 8; 19 7; 24 12, 34; 30 28; Exod. 33 14, 18; Deut. 33 2) and that outside the Pentateuch וַיֹּאמֶר also begins a verse seven times (2 Sam. 19 27; 22 2; 1 Kings 8 23; Amos 1 2; Ps. 18 2; 2 Chron. 6 14; 20 6). This notice is interesting inasmuch as it shows that this Rubric proceeds from a different School of Massorites.

וַיֹּאמֶר בְּתוֹרַת מֹשֶׁה בְּכָל סֵפֶר תּוֹרָה.

תּוֹרָה = § 843.

וַיֹּאמֶר. In four instances the Kethiv or textual reading is וַיֹּאמֶר and he said, and the Keri or official reading is וַיֹּאמֶר and I said. For the variations which obtained with regard to these readings see the notes on these passages in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 196b, on 2 Sam. 1 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 298b, on Neh. 5 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 218a, on Zech. 4 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 382b, on Neh. 5 9; (V) Add. 15,251, Supplement, fol. 488b; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 117; (VII) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 133, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Neh. 5 9.

תּוֹרָה = § 844.

וַיֹּאמֶר. In twelve instances the textual reading is וַיֹּאמֶר and he said, and the Sevir is וַיֹּאמֶר and they said. That the Sevir records the actual readings of important Codices will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible, as well as from the Introduction to it p. 187 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174, on Exod. 14 25 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 24a, on Judg. 8 6; (III) the same MS., fol. 104a, on 2 Kings 9 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 219a, on Zech. 6 7; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 49a, on Exod. 14 25; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 252b, on 1 Kings 20 3; (VII) the same MS., fol. 592a, on Zech. 6 7; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 246a, on Numb. 32 25; (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (X) the same on Judg. 11 15.

תּוֹרָה = § 845.

וַיֹּאמֶר has in three instances the accent Zakeph. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 158a, on 1 Sam. 20 37. It is very difficult to explain. Not only has וַיֹּאמֶר Zakeph Gadol in Gen. 24 17 which is of frequent occurrence, but with Zakeph Katon וַיֹּאמֶר it is to be found eight more times in the textus receptus.¹

¹ Comp. וַיֹּאמֶר Gen. 40 18; Exod. 4 1; 1 Sam. 19 22; 21 5; 25 10; 26 14, 22; 2 Sam. 19 22.

תּוֹרָה = § 846a.

וַיֹּאמֶר occurs four times at the beginning of a verse in the Pentateuch with the accent Zarka. That is, when it precedes a proper name. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Gen. 32 10. On Numb. 11 21 the printed Massorah gives it again, but here it registers the two instances only which occur in Numbers and the heading ought, therefore, to be בְּשֵׁם בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל. The expression בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל is properly given in the Massorah Parva where notice is also taken of the fact that it occurs altogether ten times with this accent in combination with a proper name (בְּשֵׁם בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל).

התמיז = § 846b.

וַיֹּאמֶר occurs nine times with this accent at the beginning of a verse. That is, when it precedes a proper name. In the preceding Rubric we have the first attempt of the Massorites to collate the accents connected with this expression in one of the books and then in one of the three great divisions of the Bible, whilst in the Rubric before us we have the result of their collation throughout the Scriptures.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 2b, on Gen. 2 23 which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 569. The two Rubrics, however, viz. § 846a and § 846b proceed from two different Schools of Massorites, as is evident from the fact that they are based upon two different principles. The compilers of the first Rubric regarded Gen. 2 23 in the light of a proper name and hence included it in this category, whilst the authors of the second Rubric took it as an ordinary appellative and hence excluded it. It will be seen that the Lists of Rubric 846b are in apparent conflict. The one which I have printed distinctly states in the heading that there are nine such instances and enumerates nine only, whilst Jacob b. Chayim's List as emphatically declares that there are ten and records ten passages. The clue to this discrepancy is to be found in the fact that the one is based upon the names of the persons and, therefore, regards Numb. 11 21, 16 28 and 1 Sam. 17 37, 23 10 each pair as one instance, since these four instances refer to two persons only, viz. Moses and David whilst the other has regard to the passages and hence gives these two instances separately, though in the case of David, it inconsistently omits one of the references. The only other three instances where this future third person singular with Vav converse has this accent, viz. is וַיֹּאמֶר (Gen. 44 18; Deut. 31 23; Ezek. 37 11) are omitted because they do not belong to this category. A part of this Rubric is given below § 877.

התמיז = § 846c.

וַיֹּאמֶר has in fourteen instances the accent Pazer. Of this Rubric, which I have printed in Vol. II, p. 2, § 846c, I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 13a, on Gen. 22 2 which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 34 9 and (III) the same on 2 Sam. 23 17. Though List I states in the heading that there are fourteen such instances, it enumerates thirteen only. In the textus receptus there are fifteen passages in which וַיֹּאמֶר occurs; the two passages which are omitted in this List are 1 Sam. 20 29 and Isa. 6 11. List II also states in the heading that there are fourteen instances only and records thirteen, since the catchwords וַיֹּאמֶר אליו דוד are not only a mistake for וַיֹּאמֶר אליו דוד = 1 Sam. 30 15, but are given twice and Gen. 27 33 and 2 Sam. 23 17 are omitted. List III states that there are seventeen instances. It omits 1 Chron. 11 19 and gives the three instances in which it is וַיֹּאמֶר with this accent and thus obtains the seventeen passages.

התמיז = § 847.

וַיֹּאמֶר, וַיֹּאמֶר. In seven verses וַיֹּאמֶר occurs twice, in the first instance it is וַיֹּאמֶר with Segol under the Mem and in the second וַיֹּאמֶר with Pathach. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the two different pointings of the same expression in one and the same verse.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 56b, on Gen. 43 9 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 39b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 43a, on Exod. 2 14; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 321b, on Job 1 7, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage. List II affords a striking illustration of the way in which Nakdanim through ignorance hopelessly corrupted the Massorah at the very earliest period. Not only does the Nakdan state in the Massorah Parva of this ancient Codex that there are nine such instances, but he mixes up the two opposite Rubrics, and gives inexplicable catchwords.¹ That this confusion is due to the ignorance of the Nakdan is evident from the fact that in List III which is from the same Codex, this Massorah is perfectly correct.

1 מ' פקוד אית בתק תרתין ותרתי קדמא ויאמר ובהר ויאמר וסוכנות ויאמר ווסף אל אביו ויבך עשר לדבר אליו ויאמר הכי קרא סמו אלתיס ויתק בני קת נסך תסליסו תסליסו ויאמר יהוה אל השם והבירו.

התמיז = § 848.

וַיֹּאמֶר, וַיֹּאמֶר. In three verses the reverse is the case. They respectively have וַיֹּאמֶר with Pathach first, and then וַיֹּאמֶר with Segol.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 56b; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 43a; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 321b, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Job 1 7, all as a contrast to the former Rubric and (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 18 29 where it is given as an independent Rubric.

התמיז = § 849.

וַיֹּאמֶר. In two verses this expression is repeated four times. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 235a, on 1 Kings 20 14 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 197b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 10a, on Gen. 22 7; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (V) the same on 1 Kings 20 14.

התמיז = § 850.

וַיֹּאמֶר האיש and the man said, occurs twice. This Rubric, which I have found in Arund. Orient. 16 only, fol. 32b, on Judg. 19 20, is incorrect since the phrase occurs at least in three other passages (Judg. 19 17; 1 Sam. 4 16; 2 Sam. 18 12).

התמיז = § 851.

וַיֹּאמֶר אלי and he said unto me, occurs seven times with the accent in this book. That is, in Ezekiel this phrase has seven times Tipcha Athnach. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these seven instances from the other twenty-eight instances in which it occurs in this book and where it has different accents. This Rubric I found in the printed Massorah only (Ezek. 46 24).

התמיז = § 852.

וַיֹּאמֶר אלי occurs ten times with the accent in this book. That is, with Munach Zakeph Katon in Ezekiel, to distinguish it from the different accents which this phrase has in the other passages where it occurs in this book. (Vide §§ 851, 853.) Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 94a, on Ezek. 37 3 which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 608. In both Lists = 10 in heading is a mistake for = 9 and in both = 9 = at the beginning of a verse, is omitted, as is evident from the fact that this phrase with the same accents occurs three times more in this book (Ezek. 3 22, 24; 41 4) and that they are excluded from the List because in these three instances it does not begin a verse. It is to be remarked that the Massorah expressly safeguards these nine instances because in the other eight passages where this phrase begins a verse in Ezekiel it is וַיֹּאמֶר אלי with Revia after the Munach (Ezek. 2 3; 3 3; 4 16; 9 9; 42 13; 43 7, 18; 47 8). The ninth instance in which it has the accent does not begin a verse (Ezek. 11 5).

התמיז = § 853.

וַיֹּאמֶר אלי occurs three times with these accents in this book. That is, in Ezekiel. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 74a, on Ezek. 8 12 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 271b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 37 11.

In the heading of List I בקרי = in the Scriptures, is manifestly a clerical error for בספר = in this book. More difficult is the third instance which this List gives, viz. אפרים = Ezek. 37 11, since it is here זרקא Segolta ויאמר אלי Zarka Segolta and not Munach Segolta as it is in the other two instances. List II aggravates the difficulty for it not only gives Ezek. 37 11 as the third passage, but has catchwords for the second instance which do not occur.¹ Jacob b. Chayim's Rubric (List III) is still more inexplicable. (1) It states in the heading that ויאמר by itself occurs three times with Zarka in Ezekiel which is incorrect since it occurs once only with this accent and (2) it gives catchwords for two passages only and the second is the same which is given in List II and which does not occur.²

1 ויאמר אלי ג בעש וסוכנותו הראיתו בן אים אשר זקני ביתו הראיתו את זקני יהודה, אכרם בן וכלו ביהוה אל.

2 ויאמר ג בעשם זקא נכפרא וסוכ' העמנות האלה, זקני יהודה ג. The printed Massorah Parva, too, against ויאמר Ezek. 37 11 remarks בני ג בעש' נבי = it occurs three times with this accent in this book.

התמיז = § 854.

וַיֹּאמֶר אלי הראית בן אדם and he said unto me Son of man hast thou seen, occurs four times in this combination in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 74a, on Ezek. 8 12. The heading ought properly to be ויאמר ויבט' כי it occurs four times and in this book, since all the four instances are restricted to Ezekiel.

§ 855. התניה

ויאמר אליהם and he said unto them, occurs five times thus combined and they are all in the Hagiographa. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these exceptional instances in the Hagiographa against being made conformable to the normal combination ויאמר להם which is recorded in § 874.

Of this Rubric I collated two separate Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 155a, on 2 Chron. 10 9 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The import of this Rubric is aptly expressed in the mnemonic sign of the heading in List II which is as follows: Throughout Chronicles, Daniel and Ezra the phrase is ויאמר להם except in five instances where it is ויאמר אליהם.

1 טיסן כל דיע ויאמר להם כפי ויאמר אליהם.

§ 856. התניו

ויאמר אליהם לאמר and he said unto them saying, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 5a, on Josh. 7 2.

§ 857. התניו

ויאמר אלהים and God said, occurs twenty-five times. In all other instances where ויאמר is followed by the Divine name it is יהוה Jehovah and not אלהים God. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 78b, on 1 Kings 3 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 257b, on 2 Chron. 1 11; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 114a, on Numb. 22 12; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 129b, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 463. List IV simply records the twenty instances in which this phrase occurs in the Pentateuch and is very faulty.

§ 858. התניח

ויאמר אלהים occurs three times with these accents. That is, Munach with Zakeph-Katon to safeguard it against being made conformable to the other seven instances in which the Munach is followed by Revia. (Comp. ויאמר אלהים Gen. 1 9, 11, 14, 24, 29; 9 12; 17 19.)

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 39b, on Gen. 1 6 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 29b, on the same passage; (III) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 296; (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 1 6 and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 481.

It is remarkable that all these Lists omit 1 Kings 3 5 where ויאמר אלהים has the same accents. This may be due to the design of the Massorah which is simply to contrast the different accents in the Pentateuch only, or to record the instances where this phrase begins a verse. In either case, however, the heading should properly be ויאמר אלהים or ויאמר אלהים.

§ 859. התניט

ויאמר יהוה ל and Jehovah said, in four instances ויאמר דהה and Jehovah said, is abnormally followed by the prefix Lamed attached to the individual thus addressed whereas in all other passages it is followed by אלהים.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 113b, on Jonah 2 11 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 226b, on 1 Kings 11 11 and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 6 13.

The printed Massorah (List III) is very corrupt. It begins by stating in the heading that ויאמר אלהים is four times followed by Lamed and after giving one instance in which this phrase is thus followed by the prefix it continues with the phrase ויאמר דהה of which it records three instances, omitting 1 Kings 11 11.

§ 860. התם

ויאמר יהוה is four times with Munach Zarka in this book. That is, in Exodus to distinguish it from the other accents which this phrase has in Exodus and which are recorded in the next Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 39a, on Exod. 8 1 which I have printed and which alone has the mnemonic sign; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 69b, on Exod. 4 21 and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

§ 861. התס"א

ויאמר יהוה has in twelve instances Kadma Ve-Azla in this book. That is, in Exodus in contradistinction to the accents which this phrase has in the passages recorded in § 860.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 68a, on Exod. 17 14 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 49a, on Exod. 8 16; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Exod. 10 12 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 4 11. The printed Massorah records ten passages only, though it correctly states in the heading that there are twelve such instances. It omits Exod. 8 16 and 17 5.

§ 862. התס"ב

ויאמר יהוה has in nine instances Kadma Ve-Azla in this book. That is, in Numbers where this phrase occurs twenty-four times with six different accents it has in nine passages Kadma Ve-Azla.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 107a, on Numb. 11 16 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 89b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 207a, on Numb. 12 4; (IV) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 97b, on Numb. 18 20 and (V) the printed Massorah on Numb. 3 40.

1 In five instances it is ויאמר יהוה with Mercha, Tipcha (Numb. 7 4, 11; 15 37; 27 6; 31 26); in six instances ויאמר יהוה with Mehupach Pashta (Numb. 11 23; 14 11; 15 35; 18 1; 26 1; 27 12); in one instance it is ויאמר יהוה with Munach, Zakeph-Katon (Numb. 14 20); in one instance ויאמר יהוה with Munach, Zarka (Numb. 20 12) in one instance ויאמר יהוה with Darga Tevir (Numb. 20 23) and in one instance ויאמר יהוה (Numb. 21 34).

§ 863. התס"ג

ויאמר יהוה has in five instances Kadma Ve-Azla in this book. In Deuteronomy where this phrase occurs fourteen times, it is with Kadma Ve-Azla five times, that is at the beginning of a verse. The sixth passage where it also has these accents is excluded because it does not begin a verse (Deut. 5 25). Its exclusion, however, may be due to the fact that the Codices are not agreed on its accents as may be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 111b, on Deut. 1 42 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 96b, on Deut. 2 9 and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 602.

1 In the other eight instances it is ויאמר יהוה three times (Deut. 2 2; 9 13; 18 17) and five times ויאמר יהוה (Deut. 2 31; 3 2, 26; 10 11; 31 16).

§ 864. התס"ד

ויאמר יהוה אלי אהרן and Jehovah said unto Aaron, occurs three times. That is, on three occasions the Lord addressed himself to Aaron alone not in conjunction with Moses, as is recorded in the next Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 59b, on Exod. 4 27 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 69b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 218b, on Numb. 18 1; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 154; (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 4 27 and (VI) the same on Numb. 18 20. The heading of List VI, viz. ויאמר יהוה אלי אהרן that this phrase occurs three times with the same accents is misleading, since the design of this Rubric is to record the event and not the accents. Besides the three passages exhibit two different accents. In Exod. 4 27; Numb. 18 1 this phrase is with Mehupach, Pashta, Zakeph-Katon, whilst in Numb. 18 20 it is Kadma Ve-Azla Revia.

§ 865. התס"ה

ויאמר יהוה אלי משה ואלי אהרן and Jehovah said unto Moses and unto Aaron, occurs seven times thus combined. That is, Jehovah addressed his communication to the two brothers together in contradistinction to the instances recorded in the preceding Rubric where the Lord spake to Aaron alone.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 64b, on Exod. 12 43 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 77a, on Exod. 9 8; (III) the same MS., fol. 223b, on Numb. 20 23; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 154, and (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 7 8. As this Massorah, which I have printed, is on Exod. 12 43 which exhibits the only instance where Aaron is with the prefix Vav (וְאֵלֶיךָ), the heading is "The other Lists, however, have it more correctly and List. III, in enumerating the seven passages, adds to the catchwords of the fourth instance (Exod. 12 43) that it is here with the prefix Yav, whilst List IV states that there are six such instances only and omits the passage with altogether.

זאת חקת הפסח בין אל כשנה אחת.

תתסז = § 866.

Jehovah said unto Moses and Jehovah spake unto Moses saying, occurs five times thus combined in the Pentateuch. As the normal phrase is and Jehovah spake unto Moses saying which occurs no fewer than seventy times in the Pentateuch, and as it is in these five passages only where it is and he said, the Massorah safeguards this abnormal phraseology.

Of this Rubric, which constitutes one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-12, Vol. I, fol. 88b, on Numb. 7 4 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 74a, on Numb. 31 25; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 92a, on Numb. 15 88; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 118b, on Exod. 31 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 197a, on Numb. 7 4; (VI) the same MS., fol. 236a, on Numb. 27 6; (VII) the same MS., fol. 243a, on Numb. 31 25; (VIII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Exod. 31 12; (IX) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 154, and (X) the printed Massorah on Numb. 31 25. List VIII adds at the end the mnemonic sign קב עבש which are the initial letters of the five verses in connection with which this phrase occurs, whilst List X, which is given in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, is as usual corrupt. Here this Rubric is headed יררם = it occurs six times at the beginning of a verse which is incorrect, since there are five such instances only, as all the other nine Lists correctly state. יררם = Exod. 4 11 which Jacob b. Chayim gives as the second instance, does not exhibit this phrase and belongs to § 869. Moreover, the expression יררם is incorrect since these instances do not begin a verse, but severally constitute the whole verse.

תתסח = § 867.

Jehovah said unto me, occurs four times with the accent in this book and the mnemonic sign thereof is A pious youth called to Samuel.

This phrase, which occurs thirteen times in Jeremiah, has four different accents. In one instance it is with Darga, Tevir, Tipcha; in three passages it is with Mercha, Tipcha, Athnachta; in four instances it is with Kadma Ve-Azla, Revia; whilst in five passages it is Mehupach, Pashta, Zakeph-Katon. Of these, however, the Rubric before us gives four only. It omits Jerem. 1 9 which is due to the fact that it does not begin a verse. The heading ought more properly to be יררם בשש בשש.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 154a, on Jerem. 11 6 which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 1 7. The mnemonic sign by itself is also given in the printed Massorah on Jerem. 11 6 and in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 599. Here, however, the heading יררם בשש בשש is wrong; it ought to be יררם בשש בשש.

Comp. Jerem. 1 12; Jerem. 1 14; 11 9; 14 11; Jerem. 3 6; 13 6; 14 14; 24 3.

תתסח = § 868.

Jehovah said unto me saying, occurs twice... and once it is and Jehovah spake unto me saying. The phrase followed by the preposition (אל) with suffix first person singular, which occurs upwards of thirty times in the Scriptures, is in these two instances only combined with לומר. Hence the Massorah safeguards the two exceptional phrases. This Massorah is, moreover, designed to guard Deut. 2 2 against being made conformable to verse 17 of the same chapter. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 112a, on Deut. 2 2.

Comp. Deut. 1 42; 2 9, 31; 3 2, 26; 5 25; 9 12; 10 11; 18 17; Isa. 8 1, 3; Jerem. 1 7, 9, 12, 14; 3 6, 11; 11 6, 9; 13 6; 14 11, 14; 15 1; 24 8; Ezek. 23 26; Hos. 3 1; Amos 7 8, 15; 8 2; Zech. 11 13, 15.

תתסז = § 869.

Jehovah said unto him, occurs six times thus combined at the beginning of a verse. In this combination this phrase occurs altogether ten times, but in the remaining four instances it does not begin the verse. (Comp. Josh. 13 1; 2 Sam. 2 1; 1 Kings 22 21; 2 Chron. 18 20.) As in the other six passages in which this phrase occurs the combination differs, inasmuch as יהוה and ויאמר are inverted (comp. Exod. 4 2; 19 24; Judg. 6 12, 16; 7 9; Jerem. 40 2) and, moreover, as in this inverted order it also begins a verse in three instances, the Massorah safeguards the normal order and protects the official reading in Ezek. 9 4.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 185a, on Deut. 34 4 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 84b, on 1 Kings 9 2; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 143b, on Deut. 34 4; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 297b, on Hos. 1 4; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 294a, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 232a, on 1 Kings 9 8; (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (VIII) the same on 1 Kings 19 15 and (IX) the same on Hos. 1 4.

תתסז = § 870.

and he said to me, occurs eight times. Normally יהוה is combined with ויאמר and it is in these eight instances only that it is followed by ויאמר. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 28a, on Judg. 13 7 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 57a, on 2 Sam. 1 8; (III) the same MS., fol. 140a, on Isa. 49 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 337b, on Prov. 4 4; (V) the same MS., fol. 255b, on 1 Chron. 28 6; (VI) the same MS., fol. 380a, on Neh. 2 4; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 172b, on Judg. 13 7; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 445b, on Neh. 2 2; (IX) the printed Massorah on Judg. 13 7 and (X) the same on Prov. 4 4.

תתסח = § 871.

Jehovah said to him, occurs four times in this combination. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these instances against being made conformable to the more general phrase יהוה ויאמר which occurs six times. (Vide supra, § 869.)

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 139b, on 1 Chron. 14 10 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 22b, on Judg. 6 23; (III) the same MS., fol. 247a, on 1 Chron. 14 10; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 135a, on Judg. 6 23; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 31a, on Gen. 4 15; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Chron. 14 10 and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 134. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List VII), as usual, is incorrect; יהוה אמר ought to be יהוה אמר (Judg. 6 23) and יהוה אמר should be יהוה אמר 1 Chron. 14 10.

תתסח = § 872.

Pharaoh said to him, occurs twice thus combined. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 41a, on Exod. 10 28 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 226b, on 1 Kings 11 22; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 86b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 81a, on Exod. 10 28; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 63b, on the same passage and (VI) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 11 22. List II adds in the heading that it occurs twice and begins a verse in both instances (יהוה אמר).

תתסח = § 873.

and the angel of Jehovah said to her, occurs three times in this combination. This Rubric I found in the printed Massorah on Gen. 16 9. The heading ought properly to be יהוה אמר, since in all the three instances this phrase begins the verse.

תתסח = § 874.

and he said to them, occurs twenty-three times. Throughout Chronicles, Daniel and Ezra it is likewise so except in five instances where it is ויאמר אליהם. To understand this artificial and complicated Massorah it is necessary to remark: (1) that in the Pentateuch and in the Prophets יהוה is followed by ויאמר plene or defective no less than eighty-seven times and by the shorter form לָקַח in thirty instances only and (2) that the Massorah obtains the twenty-three passages by artificially reckoning the seven instances which occur in the section recording the exploits of Samson (Judg. 14 12, 14, 18; 15 3, 7, 11, 12) as one. In these two divisions of the Bible, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the phrase וַיֹּאמֶר לָקַח which is in the minority against being made conformable to the more usual combination וַיֹּאמֶר וַיִּלְכֹּד.

In the Hagiographa, however, the reverse is the case; the normal phrase is וַיֹּאמֶר לָקַח and וַיֹּאמֶר וַיִּלְכֹּד is the exception. The former occurs fourteen times¹ and the latter five times only. Hence the Massorah safeguards in this division of the Bible the exceptional combination. (Vide supra, § 855.)

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 25a, on Judg. 9 7 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 22a, on Judg. 6 8; (III) the same MS., fol. 118b, on 2 Kings 25 24; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 191b, on 1 Sam. 17 8; (V) the same MS., fol. 206b, on 2 Sam. 4 9; (VI) the same MS., fol. 261a, on 2 Kings 19 6; (VII) the same MS., fol. 499a, on 2 Chron. 23 3; (VIII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Sam. 4 9; (IX) Halle Oehlrah Ve-Oehlrah II, § 9, and (X) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 559. Some of these Lists have at the end of the Rubric ויבטל ויבטל ויבטל, thus excluding the Samson Section from the reckoning altogether and hence only count twenty-two instances.

¹ Comp. וַיֹּאמֶר לָקַח Dan. 2 3; Ezra 2 63; 4 2, 3; Neh. 7 66; 8 10; 1 Chron. 12 18; 15 12; 2 Chron. 12 5; 23 3; 24 5, 20; 28 9; 29 6. This is apart from the Kethib Neh. 7 3.

תהפיק = § 875.

וַיֹּאמֶר לָקַח occurs three times with this accent in Judges. That is, with Mehupach Pashta at the beginning of a verse. This is evident from the fact that it occurs twice more with this accent (Judg. 9 9; 15 12) and that these two instances are excluded because they do not begin a verse. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these three instances against being made conformable to the other two passages where this phrase also begins the verse, but where it has different accents. Thus in Judg. 14 14 it has וַיֹּאמֶר לָקַח Munach Revia and in 18 6 וַיֹּאמֶר לָקַח Darga Tevir. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 607. Apart from Judges this phrase occurs five times at the beginning of a verse with the same accents (Gen. 29 4; 44 15; Josh. 4 5; 2 Kings 19 6; Jerem. 36 18) and once with the same accents, but not at the beginning of a verse (Exod. 17 2).

תתעז = § 876.

וַיֹּאמֶר פְּלוֹנִי בְלִבּוֹ and he said in his heart, occurs three times in this combination . . . once in the Pentateuch, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. That is, with the name of the person between וַיֹּאמֶר and בְּלִבּוֹ. Emphasis is laid upon this triplet because all the three individuals in this combination are described as wicked persons and as harbouring wicked thoughts. This explains the remark in the printed Massorah Parva on Esther 6 6 (וַיִּרְשַׁע וַיִּשְׂאֵר בָּלֵב). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 228a, on 1 Kings 12 26.

תתעז = § 877.

וַיֹּאמֶר מֹשֶׁה and Moses said, occurs twice with the accent Zarka. That is, in this combination. This Rubric, which is from the printed Massorah on Numb. 11 21, is part of Rubric 846.

תתעז = § 878.

וַיֹּאמֶר מֹשֶׁה אֱלֹהֵיהֶם and Moses said to Jehovah, occurs five times thus combined in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 36b, on Exod. 4 10 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 57a, on Exod. 33 12; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 35b, on Exod. 4 10; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 96b, on Exod. 19 23; (V) Halle Oehlrah Ve-Oehlrah I, § 154, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 4 10.

תתעז = § 879.

וַיֹּאמֶר מֹשֶׁה אֵלֵיהֶם and Moses said unto them, occurs three times. That is, to safeguard it against the three passages where this phrase occurs and where מֹשֶׁה and אֵלֵיהֶם are reversed (Numb. 9 8; 31 15; 32 20). This protection was deemed all the more necessary since the two different orders occur within the same chapter

(comp. Numb. 32 20, 29). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 91a, on Exod. 16 15 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תהפיק = § 880.

וַיֹּאמֶר לָפָנַי and he said before, or in the presence of, occurs five times. That is, this future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive which is normally followed by לָפָנַי is in these five passages construed with the more formal expression לָפָנַי. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) the printed Massorah on Exod. 6 30 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 47a, on the same passage. This ancient Codex gives the Rubric as follows: אמרה לפני ה' ויספרון משה רבו רוד מלכט ממוק ארבוני. Eccl. 5 5 is excluded because it is וַיֹּאמֶר the second person and not וַיֹּאמֶר.

תתעז = § 881.

וַיֹּאמֶר פַּרְעֹה and Pharaoh said, is three times with Zakeph-Katon. This phrase, which occurs fourteen times and which begins a verse in thirteen instances, has no fewer than seven different accents.¹ The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the accents in these three passages against being made conformable to those in the other passages.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 70a, on Exod. 5 2 which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 104.

¹ In one instance it is וַיֹּאמֶר פַּרְעֹה (Exod. 8 24); in one וַיֹּאמֶר פַּרְעֹה (Gen. 50 6); in two instances וַיֹּאמֶר פַּרְעֹה (Gen. 41 44; 47 3); in two וַיֹּאמֶר פַּרְעֹה (Gen. 41 58; 45 17); in two וַיֹּאמֶר פַּרְעֹה (Gen. 41 15, 39); in three וַיֹּאמֶר פַּרְעֹה (Gen. 41 38, 41; 47 8) and in three with Munach, Zakeph-Katon which constitute the Rubric before us.

תתעז = § 882.

וַיֹּאמֶר שְׁמוּאֵל and Samuel said, occurs six times with the accent in this book. That is, in Samuel where this phrase occurs twenty-eight times and where it has no fewer than nine different accents,¹ it has in these six instances Munach, Zakeph-Katon. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter א, § 608.

¹ In the other twenty-two instances it is as follows: once וַיֹּאמֶר שְׁמוּאֵל (1 Sam. 3 16); once וַיֹּאמֶר שְׁמוּאֵל (1 Sam. 10 24); once וַיֹּאמֶר שְׁמוּאֵל (1 Sam. 12 20); once וַיֹּאמֶר שְׁמוּאֵל (1 Sam. 13 13) once וַיֹּאמֶר שְׁמוּאֵל (1 Sam. 16 11); twice וַיֹּאמֶר שְׁמוּאֵל (1 Sam. 12 6; 13 11); three times וַיֹּאמֶר שְׁמוּאֵל (1 Sam. 7 3; 15 22, 32); twelve times וַיֹּאמֶר שְׁמוּאֵל (1 Sam. 3 10; 8 22; 9 28; 11 14; 12 1; 15 1, 16, 26; 16 2, 10, 11; 28 16) and the six instances with Munach, Zakeph-Katon which constitute this Rubric. In twenty-two instances out of the twenty-eight, this phrase begins the verse.

תתעז = § 883.

וַתֹּאמֶר and she said, has five times Pathach in the Scriptures. That is, this Kal future third person singular feminine with Vav conversive which is normally with Segol under the Mem, has Pathach in these five instances, which is more or less due to the pausal accent.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 245a, on Prov. 7 18 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 35a, on 1 Sam. 1 11; (III) the same MS., fol. 361a, on Esther 5 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 361b, on Esther 7 3; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 359b, on Prov. 7 13; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 406a, on Esther 5 7; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 180a, on 1 Sam. 2 1; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 290a, on the same passage; (IX) the same MS., fol. 311b, on Esther 5 7 and (X) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As in four instances וַתֹּאמֶר has the accent on the ultima and in one passage on the penultima (וַתֹּאמֶר Prov. 7 13) some of the Lists head this Rubric וַתֹּאמֶר וַתֹּאמֶר וַתֹּאמֶר.

תתעז = § 884.

וַתֹּאמֶר לָהֶם and she or thou hast said to them, occurs three times . . . and throughout the Prophets it is likewise so except once where it is followed by אֵלֵיהֶם.

To understand this artificial Massorah and the different headings which this Rubric exhibits in the MSS. it is necessary to remark: (I) that this phrase occurs altogether seven times and not only includes the six instances in which וַתֹּאמֶר is the future third person singular feminine with Vav conversive, but the single instance in which it is the second person singular masculine, viz. Neh. 9 15; (2) that three of the instances occur in the Pentateuch and the Hagiographa and (3) that in the Prophets where the remaining four occur¹ there is also one passage where וַיִּשְׁמַע is followed by אֶלֶּיָּהוּ instead of the normal לָהֶם. It will thus be seen that in the first and third divisions of the Bible וַיִּשְׁמַע לָהֶם is the invariable rule, whilst in the second division this rule has one exception. Hence the grouping together of the Pentateuch and Hagiographa and hence too the separation of the Prophets. This will also explain the different headings of this Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 279*b*, on 2 Chron. 34 23 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 25*b*, on Gen. 39 14; (III) the same MS., fol. 435*k*, on 2 Chron. 34 23; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 42*a*, on Gen. 39 14; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 51*a*, on the same passage in the central margin; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Neh. 9 15 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 39 14. For the reason also readily given List IV heads this Rubric וַיִּשְׁמַע לָהֶם בְּבִרְיֵיהֶם וּבְכַתְּבֵיהֶם.

¹ Comp. וַיִּשְׁמַע לָהֶם Josh. 2 16; Judg. 9 11, 13; 2 Sam. 17 20.

§ 885. תַּזְרֵה

וַיִּשְׁמַע occurs twice. That is, with Tzere under the Mem because of its pausal accent. It will be seen that in one instance it is the second person masculine and in the other the third person feminine. The Massorah, however, has regard to the identity of the consonants and vowel-points.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 79*a*, on 1 Kings 5 20 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 336*b*, on Prov. 1 21; (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 220*a*, on 1 Kings 5 20; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 227*a*, on the same passage and (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Prov. 1 21. This List heads it וַיִּשְׁמַע בִּי קָם thus calling the Tzere, Kamez.

§ 886. תַּזְרֵה

וַיִּשְׁמַע and I said, is three times plene in the Scriptures. As this Kal future first person singular which occurs upwards of ninety times, is plene in these three instances only, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional orthography. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 294*a*, on Neh. 2 20 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 293*b*, on Neh. 2 7; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 375*b*; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, both on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, fol. 83*a*, margin and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 576.

§ 887. תַּזְרֵה

וַיִּשְׁמַע לִי they shall say to me, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 26*a*, on Judg. 9 54.

§ 888. תַּזְרֵה

וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ and they shall say, is nine times Raphe. That is, with Sheva under the Vav to guard it against its being made conformable to the numerous instances in which it is וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ with Pathach under the Vav.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 20*b*, on Isa. 43 9 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 41*b*, on Jerem. 16 19; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 141*a*, on 1 Chron. 16 31; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 183*a*, on Ps. 35 27; (V) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 14 10; (VI) the same Codex on Jerem. 16 19; (VII) the same Codex on Joel 2 17; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 142*b*, on Deut. 32 7; (IX) the same MS., fol. 278*a*, on Jerem. 16 19; (X) the same MS., fol. 347*a*, on Isa. 14 10; (XI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 9 and (XII) the printed Massorah on Isa. 14 10. The addition at the end of List III, viz. וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ לִי וְשָׁמַע רַבִּי וְשָׁמַע בְּקִרְיֵי וְשָׁמַע plainly indicates the design of this Massorah.

§ 889. תַּזְרֵה

וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ. In three instances the textual reading or Kethiv is וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ and they said, and the official reading or Keri is וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ and he said.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 143*a*, on Josh. 9 7 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 7*a*, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 44*b*, on 1 Sam. 15 16; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 190*a*, on the same passage and (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Josh. 9 7. These three instances form part of the Rubric consisting of eleven words which have Vav at the end, but which are officially read without it. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 147, p. 423.)

§ 890. תַּזְרֵה

וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ and they said, has twice the accent Pazer. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 43 7.

§ 891. תַּזְרֵה

וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ has six times the accent Gershaim at the beginning of a verse. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 34*a*, on Gen. 11 3 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 32*b*, on Gen. 42 21; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 209*a*, on Jonah 1 7; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 18*a*, on Gen. 11 3; (V) the same MS., fol. 261*a*, on Jerem. 42 2; (VI) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 11 9 and (VII) the same on Jerem. 42 2. List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric, correctly enumerates seven such instances, adding at the end that one of them is in the middle of the verse (1 Kings 7 6) and that the others begin the verse וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ בְּמִצְרַיִם מִבְּרַחֲמֵי מֶלֶךְ מִצְרַיִם. List V not only states in the heading that there are five such instances only, but records five, omitting Gen. 11 3. But this is manifestly due to a later Nakdan who found the List in its incomplete state and adapted the heading to the contents as is evident from List IV which is given in the same MS. and which is perfectly correct.

§ 892. תַּזְרֵה

וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ has three times the accent Zavka at the beginning of the verse. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 293*a*, on Neh. 1 3 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 43*a*, on Exod. 14 11; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 55*b*, on the same passage; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 379*a*, on Neh. 1 3; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 421*b*, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 87*b*, on Exod. 14 11; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 29 8 and (VIII) the same on Neh. 1 3. As there are no other instances in which וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ has this accent, and as all the three instances begin a verse, the heading ought more properly to be וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ בְּתוֹכָא דְּפָסְקֵי it occurs three times with this accent and at the beginning of the verse, since the heading as it is might suggest that it has this accent apart from the beginning of a verse. But, as we have seen, the Vav is frequently omitted in these cases.

§ 893. תַּזְרֵה

וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ אֵלָיו and they said unto him, occurs twice at the beginning of the verse. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on 1 Kings 20 31, is as usual incorrect, since this phrase, which occurs altogether twenty-eight times, begins a verse in no less than twenty instances.¹ It cannot refer to the identity of the accents since this phrase has two different accents in the two passages. In Gen. 18 9 it has Munach, Zakeph-Katon וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ אֵלָיו which occurs four times more at the beginning of the verse (Gen. 40 8; 44 7; 2 Kings 19 3; Jerem. 36 15) and twice in the middle of the verse (2 Kings 2 3, 5), whilst in 1 Kings 20 31 it is with Munach Zavka (וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ אֵלָיו) which is unique. It is more than probable that this Rubric exhibits the first attempt to compile a List of the passages in which וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ אֵלָיו occurs, in order to safeguard this lengthier phrase against being made conformable to the shorter form וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ which, as is frequently the case, has never been finished.

¹ Comp. וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ אֵלָיו Gen. 18 9; 40 8; 42 10; 44 7; Numb. 20 19; Josh. 9 9; Judg. 8 1; 18 25; 1 Sam. 8 5; 11 3; 1 Kings 20 8, 31; 2 Kings 1 6, 8; 19 3; Isa. 37 3; Jerem. 36 15; 40 14; Jonah 1 8, 11.

² Comp. וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ אֵלָיו Gen. 26 32; 37 8; 47 18; Numb. 22 16; Judg. 1 24; 11 2; 12 5, 6; 14 13, 18; 15 12, 13; 18 3, 5, 19; 1 Sam. 29 4; 2 Sam. 21 4; 1 Kings 1 2; 2 Kings 2 23; Ruth. 2 4; Esther 6 13; 2 Chron. 26 18.

§ 894. תַּזְרֵה

וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ אֵלֶיהָ and they said unto her, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this lengthier phrase against being made conformable to the shorter form וַיִּשְׁמַעוּ which occurs three times (Gen. 24 60; Josh. 2 14; Judg. 16 6) especially as the two phrases are used promiscuously in close proximity.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 16b, on Gen. 24 58 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 146b, on Josh. 2 17 and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 58.

התציה = § 895a-b.

וַיֹּאמְרוּ אֲלֵהֶם and they said unto them, occurs three times. The conflicting statement between the two Rubrics, viz. § 895a, which emphatically declares that this phrase occurs three times only and simply records three instances, and § 895b, which as emphatically states that it occurs seven times and duly catalogues seven passages, is probably due to the fact that the compilers of the first recension artificially regarded the whole Pentateuch, in which it occurs five times, as representing one instance. The heading ought, therefore, more correctly to be וַיֹּאמְרוּ בל אריות Rubric 895a is from Orient. 2349, fol. 47b, on Gen. 24 14 and Rubric 895b from the printed Massorah on the same passages.

התציו = § 896.

וַיֹּאמְרוּ קְאוֹר and they said saying, occurs three times thus combined. That is, the infinitive following immediately after the future third person plural with Vav conversive. With intervening words וַיֹּאמְרוּ... occurs in Numb. 17 27; Judg. 19 22.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 112a, on Numb. 20 3 which I printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59b, on 2 Sam. 5 1; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 166b, on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 15 1. In List I, which I have printed, רַב־לֵב is a clerical error for רַשָּׁטָל which I have given in brackets.

התציו = § 897.

וַיֹּאמְרוּ כְלֵדָהִים and all the people said, occurs four times. That is, in contradistinction to this phrase without כָּל all, which occurs three times. (Vide infra, § 902.) Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 411a, on 1 Chron. 16 36 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 1 39.

התציה = § 898.

וַיֹּאמְרוּ כְלֵדִיקְהֶל and all the congregation said, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard Neh. 5 13 against being made conformable to the parallel passage in 1 Chron. 16 36. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No 35, on 1 Chron. 13 4 which I have printed and (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 139a, on the same passage.

התציו = § 899.

וַיֹּאמְרוּ לֹא and they said not, occurs twice with the accent. That is, in these two instances has this phrase, which occurs eleven times, the accents Munach, Zakeph-Katon. In the other nine passages it has no fewer than eight different accents.¹ As the adverb of negation has abnormally Dagesh in the Lamed, these two instances constitute part of the Rubric recording the eighteen words in the Bible with Dagesh in the first letter, although they are preceded by words ending in an open syllable.² Of this Rubric, which in this form does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 47b, on Gen. 19 2 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 37b, on the same passage. The printed Massorah on this passage simply notices the abnormal Dagesh in the Lamed.

¹ (1) וַיֹּאמְרוּ לֹא Gen. 29 8; (2) וַיֹּאמְרוּ לֹא Gen. 38 21; (3) וַיֹּאמְרוּ לֹא Numb. 16 12; (4) וַיֹּאמְרוּ לֹא 1 Sam. 12 4; (5) וַיֹּאמְרוּ לֹא Jerem. 6 16, 17; (6) וַיֹּאמְרוּ לֹא Jerem. 35 6; (7) וַיֹּאמְרוּ לֹא Hag. 2 12 and (8) וַיֹּאמְרוּ לֹא Pa. 94 7.

² Comp. The Massorah, letter נ, § 524, Vol. II, p. 296.

התיק = § 900.

וַיֹּאמְרוּ לִי and they said to me, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, in this shorter form; in the only other instance where the phrase occurs it is וַיֹּאמְרוּ אֵלַי (Ezek. 24 19). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 50b, on Exod. 32 23.

התקיא = § 901.

וַיֹּאמְרוּ עַבְדֵי הַמֶּלֶךְ and the kings young man said, occurs three times. As in the only other passage in which the phrase occurs in this book it is וַיֹּאמְרוּ עַבְדֵי הַמֶּלֶךְ (Esther 3 3) the Massorah safeguards the two different expressions against being made uniform. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 406b, on Esther 6 5. As all the three instances occur in Esther, the heading ought more properly to be וַיֹּאמְרוּ בְּשֵׁשׁ סְפָרִים = three times and in this book. The phrase which occurs in Esther 3 3 also occurs in 2 Sam. 15 15.

התיקב = § 902.

וַיֹּאמְרוּ הָעָם and the people said, occurs three times. That is, to safeguard this phrase against the one in which it has the expression כָּל־אֵל all, before הָעָם the people. (Vide supra, § 897.) Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 26b, on Judg. 10 18 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 188b, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, both on the same passage.

התיקג = § 903.

וַיֹּאמְרוּ הֵן they shall say, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, with Tzere under the Mem instead of Sheva which it has in all the other fifty instances where this Kal future third person plural masculine occurs. The Tzere is due to the pausal accent Athnach, which it has in these three passages. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 34a, on Jerem. 5 2 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 320a, on Ps. 145 6; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 374a, and (IV) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage.

התיקד = § 904.

וַיֹּאמְרוּ הֵן and they said, is plene once only in the Pentateuch, but it is always so in the Prophets and Hagiographa except once. That is, in the Pentateuch where this future third person plural feminine with Vav conversive occurs three times (Gen. 31 14 Exod. 1 19; 2 19) it is always without the paragogic He except in once instance only (Gen. 31 14), whilst on the contrary in the Prophets and Hagiographa where it occurs five times (1 Sam. 9 12; 18 7; Ruth 1 10, 19; 4 14) it has always the paragogic He except in one instance only (1 Sam. 18 7).

Of this artificial Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 55b, on Gen. 31 14 which I have printed; (II) Orient. fol. 45b; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 27b, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

התיקו = § 905.

וַיֹּאמְרוּ הֵן and they said, is three times so written. This is a more simple and probably the original recension of the former Rubric. As this future third person plural feminine with Vav conversive which occurs altogether eight times, is plene in five instances and defective in three only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. The necessity for this protection of the minority will be seen by referring to the notes on Exod. 2 19 in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 68b, on Exod. 2 19 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 58b, on the same passage.

התיקז = § 906.

וַיֹּאמְרוּ הֵן ye shall say, occurs nine times in the Scriptures. This Kal future second person plural masculine occurs altogether thirty times. As it is without the paragogic Nun in twenty-one instances and with it in nine passages only, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the earliest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated thirteen Lists, eleven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 253a, on 2 Kings 19 10 which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 37 6; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 21 3; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 41b, on 1 Sam. 11 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 122a, on Isa. 8 12; (VI) the same MS., fol. 134a, on Isa. 37 6; (VII) the same MS., fol. 159b, on Jerem. 21 3; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 280b, on the same passage; (IX) the same MS., fol. 344b, on Isa. 8 12; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 30a, on Gen. 32 5; (XI) Halle Ochlah II, § 9; (XII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 32 5 and (XIII) the same on 2 Kings 18 22.

Lists II and III which are literally identical, not only state emphatically in the headings that there are ten such instances, but record this number. This is, moreover, confirmed by the Massorah Parva of this ancient Codex which remarks against וַיֹּאמְרוּ both in Isa. 37 6 and 10 that it occurs ten times (י). The difficulty in deciphering the tenth instance is due to a manifest clerical error, in the catchword רַמְבֵּקֶלֶל which, as it now stands, can only refer to 1 Kings 6 29 where וַיֹּאמְרוּ does not only not occur, but where it is impossible. It is most probably a corruption of דבש בבל, viz. the parallel דבש בבל of this catchword = 2 Kings 22 18 where we now read אמרו without the paragogic Nun. That the Scribe was careless is evident from other mistakes in the catchwords of this Rubric, e. g. אמר for אמר Jerem. 21 3; אמר instead of אמר Isa. 8 12; אמר instead of אמר 2 Kings 19 10.

With the exception of List X none of the other twelve Lists notice that one of the nine instances is defective. This however, is plainly set forth in the heading where it is stated that אמר occurs nine times, that it is eight times plene and once defective (אמר אמר) and where it is added against the ninth catchword, viz. Jerem. 21 3 אמר. That some of the Codices had it here also plene is evident from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Add. 15,451, first hand, Add. 21,161 and the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488, which read אמר.

תקין = § 907.

אמר they saying to me, occurs three times in this form. That is, the Kal participle active masculine plural without and with prefixes, is in three instances followed by אמר to distinguish it from the instance where it is followed by אמר (Jerem. 17 15) and from the one where it is followed by אמר (Neh. 6 19). For the combination of אמר with אמר see also Rubrics 870, and 887.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 180a, on Ezek. 21 5 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 270a; (III) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage and (IV) the same on Ps. 122 1.

תקין = § 908.

אמר and they saying, occurs twice. That is, this participle plural masculine which occurs thirty-four times without the prefix Vav, is with this prefix in two instances only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional usage. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 160b, on 2 Chron. 20 21.

תקין = § 909.

אמר it is said, occurs three times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. That is, this Niphal future third person masculine which occurs altogether eighteen times, has in fifteen instances Tzere under the Mem and in three only is it with Pathach which is due to its distinctive accent. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, nine in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 99b, on Numb. 21 14 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 200b, on Ps. 87 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 306a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 95a, on Numb. 21 14; (V) the same MS., fol. 863a, on Ps. 87 5; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 107a, on Numb. 21 14; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 224b, on the same passage; (VIII) Orient. 2349, fol. 33b, on Gen. 10 9; (IX) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 9; (X) the printed Massorah on Gen. 10 9; (XI) the same on Numb. 21 14 and (XII) the same on Ps. 87 5. All these Lists give this Rubric as I have printed it. This Rubric, moreover, forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without and once with the prefix Vav.²

It is, therefore, inexplicable that the Massorah on Jerem. 7 32 in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 which correctly states in the heading that there are fifteen instances of this Niphal future third person masculine with Tzere under the Mem (אמר), though it catalogues fourteen only, includes in this List the three instances which are given in all the MSS. as constituting the exceptional orthography with Pathach. The St. Petersburg Massorah makes up its List by excluding four instances which are in our text with Tzere under the Mem, viz. Isa. 19 18; 61 6; Ezek. 13 12 and Zeph. 3 16. Taking, therefore, the omission of one of these four instances from the fifteen passages to be due to a clerical error, the other three which are excluded and which have Tzere under the Mem in the textus receptus, are here by implication taken to have Pathach under the Mem.³

¹ Comp. אמר Gen. 22 14; 32 29; Numb. 23 23; Isa. 19 18; 32 5; 61 6; 62 4, 4; Jerem. 4 11; 7 32; 16 14; Ezek. 13 12; Hos. 2 1, 1; Zeph. 3 16.
² Comp. The Massorah, letter א, § 70, Vol. I, p. 403 &c.
³ The List of the St. Petersburg Codex I have printed in The Massorah, Vol. III p. 2, § 909.

תקין = § 910.

אמר to speak, occurs twice, once it is written with Aleph and once without it. As this Chaldee Peal infinitive construct with the prefix Lamed which occurs twice, is in each instance written differently the Massorah safeguards the two several spellings. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 364b, on Dan. 2 9 which I have printed and (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 289a, on Ezra. 5 11. The latter is one of the three instances in which the verb אמר is defective of the radical Aleph. (Vide supra, letter א, § 796.)

תקין = § 911.

אמר tell, occurs three times. That is, the Chaldee Peal imperative singular masculine occurs three times and is with Pathach under the Mem in all the three instances as is attested by the best MSS., viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 15,251 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 367a, on Dan. 4 6 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 411a, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah on Dan. 4 15. The heading in List III אמר אמר = it occurs three times with Kametz in this book as well as the remark in the printed Massorah Parva against Dan. 4 6, 15 that אמר is three times with Kametz (אמר) is contrary to the best Codices and is probably due to Jacob b. Chayim himself.

תקין = § 912.

אמר words, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 9, which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Prov. 22 21.

תקין = § 913.

אמר thy word, occurs twelve times in this form in the Scriptures. That is, without and with prefixes this noun with the suffix second person singular masculine, has Segol under the Tav in these twelve instances which is due to its distinctive or pausal accent, in contradistinction to the other eight passages where it occurs and where it has the normal Sheva (Ps. 119 50, 67, 76, 116, 140, 154, 158, 170). The majority is here safeguarded because both the MSS. and some of the early editions exhibit variations in several of the instances which constitute this Rubric, as will be seen from the notes on Ps. 119 11, 103, 133, 162 in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 213b, on Ps. 119 82 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 314b, on Ps. 119 38; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 429b, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 119 82 and (V) the same on Ps. 138 2.

תקין = § 914.

אמר a word, occurs six times in the Scriptures. That is, this noun always occurs without prefixes and suffixes in contradistinction to the forms אמר and אמר a word, which never occur without a prefix or suffix.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 118b, on Habak. 3 9 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 193a, on Ps. 68 12; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 197a, on Ps. 77 9; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 232a, on Job 22 28; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 214b, on Habak. 3 9; (VI) the same MS., fol. 288a, on Ps. 19 3; (VII) the same MS., fol. 300a, on Ps. 68 12; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 303a, on Ps. 77 9; (IX) the same MS., fol. 329a, on Job 22 28; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 288a, on Habak. 3 9; (XI) the same MS., fol. 327a, on Job 22 28 and (XII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 77 9.

As all the six instances are defective and have the accent on the penultima the headings in the different MSS. vary: some notice one feature, some another and some both features. Thus the heading of List VII is אמר, of Lists VI, IX and X אמר and of Lists V, VIII and X אמר.

תקין = § 915.

אמר and the truth, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, to distinguish it from the twenty-two instances where it is without the article after the prefix Vav, viz. אמר.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 124a, on Zech. 8 19 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 168b, on 2 Chron. 31 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 277a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 310b, on Zech. 8 9; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VI) the same on 2 Chron. 31 20.

החקקי - § 916.

where, when, occurs twice. As in all the other twenty-eight instances where this adverb occurs it has the paragogic He (ה) the Massorah safeguards this exceptional orthography. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 324a, on Job 8 2 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The heading of this Rubric in the printed Massorah states (כי בחיי ליש) that it occurs twice in two different senses. This is also given against each of the two passages in the printed Massorah Parva, but it is not quite correct since the sense of this adverb in the two passages in question does not sustain this statement. The remark does not occur in the MS. Massorahs, nor is this pair included in the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Comp. The Massorah, letter ה, § 248, Vol. II, p. 217 &c.)

החקיי - § 917.

hither and thither, any whither, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 78a, on 1 Kings 2 36 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The printed Massorah (List II) distinctly states that this phrase occurs three times (כי בקרא) and gives 3 Kings 5 25 as the third instance. This is supported by the best MSS. and editions, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,451; the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491-98; the third and fourth editions, Brescia 1494, Pesaro 1511-17; the Complutensian, the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the editio princeps of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-25. List II, therefore, must be based upon MSS. which read קרא with Kametz under the Nun in 2 Kings 5 25. This is also the reading of the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488, and it is for this reason that it is excluded from this Rubric.

החקיי - § 918.

I pray, is in six instances written with He in the Scriptures. This interjection of entreaty occurs altogether thirteen times. In seven instances it is קא with Aleph at the end and in six with He. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority. On referring to the notes on Isa. 38 3; Jonah 1 14 and Ps. 116 4 in my edition of the Hebrew Bible it will be seen that both MSS. and early editions exhibit variations in the orthography of this expression and this Massorah is, therefore, designed to fix the spelling.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 18a, on Isa. 38 3 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 114a, on Jonah 4 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 114a, on 2 Kings 20 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 134b, on Isa. 38 3; (V) the same MS., fol. 209b, on Jonah 1 14; (VI) the same MS., fol. 313b, on Ps. 116 4; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 292a, on Jonah 1 14; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Isa. 38 3; (IX) the same on Jonah 4 2 and (X) the same on Ps. 116 4.

Apart from קא denoting request in Hebrew, this expression written with He is regularly used as an adverb in Hebrew and in the sense of entreaty in Chaldee. It is due to this fact that the headings of this Rubric as well as the additions to it vary in the different MSS. Thus List VII heads this Rubric ויחיי קא and adds at the end ויחיי קא רחמי רבתי and Lists IX and X head it ויחיי קא רחמי רבתי, whilst Lists III and IV have at the end ויחיי קא רחמי רבתי and List V ויחיי קא רחמי רבתי.

החקיי - § 919.

whither, has in two instances the accent on the Nun, on the ultima. That is, in one instance the Nun has Munach (Deut. 1 28) and in the other Mercha (Ps. 139 7). As in the other twenty-six instances where this adverb occurs, it has the accent on the penultima the Massorah safeguards the exceptional passages.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 218b, on Ps. 139 7 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 111b, on Deut. 1 28; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 319a, on Ps. 139 7; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 373a, on Deut. 1 28; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 119b, on the same passage; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VII) the same Codex on Ps. 139 7; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Deut. 1 28 and (IX) the same on Ps. 139 7.

Not only have the best Codices קא in Ps. 139 7, but Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251, and the editio princeps of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah have this Rubric on the Nun with the accent Mercha.

Comp. קא Gen. 27 30; Numb. 14 11; Josh. 2 5; Judg. 19 17; 2 Sam. 2 1; קא Exod. 16 28; Numb. 14 11; Josh. 18 3; קא 2 Sam. 13 13; Ps. 62 4; Job 18 2; קא 2 Kings 6 8; Jerem. 15 2; Ps. 13 2; Neh. 2 16; קא Jerem. 47 6; Ezek. 21 21; Zech. 2 8; Job 19 2; קא Habak. 1 2; קא Zech. 5 10; קא Ps. 13 2, 3; קא Ps. 13 3; קא Cant. 6 1, 1.

החקי - § 920.

and they shall lament, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 126a, on Isa. 19 8. The heading ought properly to be ויחיי - twice and in this book since both the instances occur in Isaiah.

החקי - § 921.

among men, occurs three times, once with Pathach and twice with Kametz. That is, in one instance the prefix Beth has Pathach and in the other two instances it is with Kametz.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 185a, on 1 Sam. 17 12 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 75a, on Ezek. 9 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 46a, on 1 Sam. 17 6; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 119b, on Deut. 1 35; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 105a, on the same passage; (VI) the same MS., fol. 160a, on 1 Sam. 17 12; (VII) the same MS., fol. 271b, on Ezek. 9 6; (VIII) Orient. 2349, fol. 123b, on Deut. 1 35; (IX) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Sam. 17 12 and (X) the printed Massorah on Deut. 1 35. List V adds at the end ויחיי קא רחמי רבתי that in the case of קא with the prefix Lamed the reverse is the case, the Pathach under the prefix is the rule and the Kametz constitutes a single exception, viz. Gen. 19 8. For these instances see below § 926.

By fixing the number at three, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the reading קא - קא which obtained in some ancient Codices, as is evident from the Septuagint and the Vulgate and which is now accepted by some of the best textual critics as the correct reading. Comp. Gen. 24 1; 1 Kings 1 1.

החקי - § 922.

and the men, begins a verse eight times. The sign thereof in Chaldee is The shepherds who went up to send good pursuers after the wizards died in faith. As this expression occurs altogether sixteen times and begins a verse in eight instances, the Massorah records these passages to distinguish them from those which occur in the middle of the verse.

Of this Rubric, which constitutes one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eleven Lists, ten in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 93b, on Numb. 13 81 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 170b, on 2 Chron. 34 12; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 37b, on Gen. 46 32; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 38a, on 1 Sam. 5 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 95a, on 1 Kings 20 33; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 198a, on the same passage; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 101a, on Gen. 46 32; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 506b, on 2 Chron. 34 12; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 56a, on Gen. 46 32; (X) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 80, margin and (XI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 46 32. The mnemonic sign is from the printed Massorah where it occurs twice without the List, once on Josh. 2 7 and once in the Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 656.

החקי - § 923.

and the men, occurs sixteen times in the Scriptures, eight times at the beginning of the verse and eight in the middle of the verse. In the preceding Rubric we have the record of one School of Massorites who safeguarded, the instances in which this expression begins a verse, whilst in the Rubric before us which emanates from another School of Massorites, the passages are catalogued in which it occurs in the middle of the verse. This was all the more necessary since some of the ancient Codices read אֲנָשִׁים in 2 Kings 25 23, as is attested by the Chaldee, the Septuagint and the Syriac in conformity with the parallel passage in Jerem. 40 7.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 109a, on Numb. 14 36 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 119a, on the same passage.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 924.

וְאֲנָשִׁים and the men, occurs sixteen times in the Scriptures. Whilst the preceding two Rubrics respectively recorded the eight instances in which this expression begins a verse and the eight in which it is in the middle of the verse, this Rubric catalogues all the passages of Scripture in which it occurs irrespective of its position, and thereby exclude the reading אֲנָשִׁים in 2 Kings 25 23. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 258b, on 2 Kings 25 25. The fact that it is on this passage shows its design.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 925.

וְאֲנָשִׁים and men, occurs ten times. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 96a, on Numb. 16 2 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 354b, on Eccl. 9 14; (III) the same MS., fol. 379a, on Neh. 1 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 380a, on Neh. 2 12; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 143b, on Judg. 9 9; (VI) the same MS., fol. 401a, on Eccl. 9 14; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 214b, on Numb. 16 2; (VIII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 7, margin; (IX) the printed Massorah on Judg. 9 9 and (X) the same on Neh. 2 12.

List V again affords a striking illustration of the misleading headings which later Nakdanim supplied to incipient Massorahs. As the Rubric now stands it declares that אֲנָשִׁים occurs four times only and records the following four instances Numb. 16 2; Judg. 9 9, 13; Ezek. 23 45. The explanation of this puzzling Massorah is not far to seek. It exhibits the first attempt of the Massorites to collect the passages wherein this expression occurs which was never completed by succeeding Massorites. The Nakdan who found this fragment mistook it for the final List and as is not unfrequently the case, supplied it with the heading in accordance with the instances before him. List VI, which is from the same MS., gives this Rubric in its complete state.

וְאֲנָשִׁים ד' וְסִמְנָתָן וְאֲנָשִׁים מִבְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל הַשְּׂמִימָה אֲשֶׁר בִּי יִבְרֹךְ הַסֵּפֶר אֵלֶּיךָ וְאֲנָשִׁים דְּזִקְיָם.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 926.

לְאֲנָשִׁים to the men, occurs seven times in the Scriptures... and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 50b, on Jerem. 29 6 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Ruth 1 11. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah heads this Rubric לְאֲנָשִׁים and gives Gen. 19 8 as the first of the eight instances. But this is wrong, since it is here אֲנָשִׁים with Kametz under the Lamed and the printed Massorah Parva itself on this passage remarks against it that it is unique with Kametz (־) and hence does not belong to this category. (Comp. the next Rubric.)

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 927.

לְאֲנָשִׁים does not occur again, in all other instances it is אֲנָשִׁים. That is, in this solitary instance the prefix Lamed has Kametz whilst in all the other passages where it occurs this prefix is with Pathach. (Vide supra, § 926.) The reverse is the case when the plural אֲנָשִׁים takes the prefix Beth. Here the normal vowel-point is Kametz and the unique exception is Pathach. (Vide supra, § 921.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Gen. 19 8.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 928.

אֲנָשִׁים the men of, occurs four times in the first Register. As the normal expression which begins the verse in Ezra 2 3—57 in the enumeration of the families who returned from the captivity, is בְּנֵי הַיְלָדִים, which occurs no less than forty-eight times, and as it is in four instances only where אֲנָשִׁים the men of, abnormally begins the verse, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional usage.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 287a, on Ezra 2 22 which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 389a, on the same passage. The heading of List II בְּנֵי הַיְלָדִים is more precise since the import of this Massorah is not simply to indicate that אֲנָשִׁים occurs four times in this Section, but that it begins a verse, whilst in the other forty-eight instances בְּנֵי begins the verse.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 929.

אֲנָשִׁים בְּנֵי. From Neh. 7 26 to 34 אֲנָשִׁים begins the verse, whilst in the rest of this Section בְּנֵי begins the verse. That is, in this second Record we have first בְּנֵי beginning a verse in seventeen instances (Neh. 7 8—25) then אֲנָשִׁים in eight instances (Neh. 7 26—33) and then again בְּנֵי twenty-one times (Neh. 7 34—60). The Massorah therefore, safeguards this remarkable variation. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 385b, on Neh. 7 8 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 930.

אֲנָשִׁים begins a verse eight times in this Section. That which is recorded in the preceding Rubric in an artificial sign is here given in its simple and primitive form, and it is evident that the recensions emanate from two different Schools of Massorites. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 296b, on Neh. 7 29.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 931.

אֲנָשִׁים דָּוִד the men of David, occurs four times. As in all other instances where the followers of David are mentioned, the phrase is either אֲנָשִׁים דָּוִד the young men of David, or אֲנָשִׁים עֲבָדֵי דָּוִד the servants of David, the Massorah safeguards these four passages against being made conformable to the more frequent combination.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 51a, on 1 Sam. 23 3 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 52a, on 1 Sam. 24 5; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 159b, on 1 Sam. 23 3; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ג, § 68. In List V the catchword נָבִיא is a mistake for נַבְיָא.

1 Comp. אֲנָשִׁים דָּוִד 1 Sam. 25 10, 40; 2 Sam. 2 17; 3 22; 10 2, 4; 12 17; 18 7, 9; 1 Chron. 19 4; אֲנָשִׁים דָּוִד 1 Sam. 25 9, 12.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 932.

אֲנָשִׁים and the men of, occurs four times at the beginning of a verse in the Scriptures. In the other eighteen instances where this noun plural construct begins a verse it is without the prefix Vav. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional passages.

Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 251a, on 2 Kings 17 30 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 96a, on Ezek. 39 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 111b, on 2 Kings 17 30; (IV) the same MS., fol. 192a, on Ezek. 39 14; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 11a, on Gen. 13 13; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 54a, on Exod. 22 30; (VII) the same MS., fol. 288a, on Ezek. 39 14; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 259b, on 2 Kings 17 30; (IX) Orient. 2349, fol. 35a, on Gen. 13 13; (X) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (XI) the same on 2 Kings 17 30.

1 Besides Ezra where אֲנָשִׁים begins a verse four times and Neh. where it begins a verse eight times (vide supra, §§ 928, 930) it occurs in the following six instances; Numb. 31 58; Ezek. 22 9; Prov. 23 5; 29 8, 10; Job 34 34.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 933.

אֲנָשִׁים from the men of, occurs four times in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 226a, on 1 Kings 10 15.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 934.

אֲנָשִׁים and his men, occurs twenty-five times. By fixing this number the Massorah excludes the textual reading אֲנָשִׁים in 1 Sam. 23 5 and adopts the official reading אֲנָשִׁים. It is to be noticed that with the exception of one solitary instance this expression is restricted to the books of Samuel. Of this Massorah,

I collated two Lists, one Add. 15,451, fol. 392a, on Zech. 7 2 and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 652, which I have printed.

תתקל"ה = § 935.

ואנשיהם and their men, occurs four times. This Massorah is designed to exclude the reading אנשיהם in the first clause of 2 Kings 25 23 which is still preserved in some MSS. and in the ancient Versions and which is corroborated by the parallel passage in Jerem. 40 7, as will be seen from the notes in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118b, on 2 Kings 25 23 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 214b; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 266b; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, all on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 18 21.

תתקל"ו = § 936.

ולאנשיהם and to their men, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118b, on 2 Kings 25 24 which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 266b, on the same passage.

תתקל"ז = § 937.

אנדריונים = ἀνδρογύνος androgynous. Three words respectively exhibit a twofold form, partly masculine and partly feminine, one is in the Pentateuch, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa. That is, יצחק Gen. 30 38; ישעיהו 1 Sam. 6 12 and יצחקיהו Dan. 8 22 the prefix Yod is masculine, and the suffix He is feminine. These, however, are not all the passages where such anomalies occur. The Minchath Shai on Gen. 30 38 refers also to Jerem. 39 11 and Ezek. 37 7 and suggests that the reason why the Massorites record these three instances in the Rubric before us is that they begin with Yod and end with Nun He.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 26b, on Gen. 30 38 which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 193, and (III) the printed Massorah Parva on Gen. 30 38. For אנדריונים in List I, Lists II and III have more correctly אנדריונים with Vav after the Resh, viz. אנדריונים.

תתקל"ח = § 938.

אנחה she groaned, occurs twice. This quadriliteral occurs altogether three times. In the two instances which constitute the Rubric before us, it is the Niphal preterite singular feminine and is pointed with Segol under the Aleph and with Sheva under the Nun (אנחה). This is attested by the Standard Codices and the early editions, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the second and third editions, Naples 1491-93; Brescia 1494; the Complutensian; the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517, and the editio princeps of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-25. The same authorities attest that in Lament. 1 21 where this quadriliteral occurs, and where it is the Niphal participle singular feminine, it is pointed with Chateph-Segol under the Aleph and with Kametz under the Nun, i. e. אנחה. The pointing, therefore, of the heading in the Rubric which I have printed must be altered accordingly, to agree with the text in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 268a, on Lament. 1 8 which I have printed and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 355b, on the same passage.

תתקל"ט = § 939.

אני I, occurs four times with this accent in this book. That is, of the ten instances in which this personal pronoun occurs in the Psalms with the distinctive accent and hence with Kametz under the Aleph, it is in these four passages with Dechi.

This Rubric, which I have found in Add. 21,161, fol. 144b, only, on Ps. 45 2, has this accent Dechi also in Ps. 119 125, and the Massorah remarks against it in בתי בתי. It is, therefore, clear that in the terminology of this ancient Codex בענין and בנטיא are interchangeable. In the heading of this Rubric the accent should be אני בתי בענין.

תתק"ם = § 940.

אני occurs six times in this book. That is, in Ecclesiastes where this personal pronoun occurs altogether twenty-eight times, it is in twenty-two instances with Chateph-Patach under the Aleph (אני) and in six only with Kametz (אני). Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 263b, on Eccl. 2 24 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The heading in the printed Massorah זכתי זכתי six times Zakeph Kametz in this book, is incorrect. In Eccl. 5 17 it is with Revia אנו not only in all the best MSS., but in Jacob b. Chayim's text.

1 Comp. אני Eccl. 1 12, 16, 16; 2 1, 11, 12, 15, 15, 15, 18, 20; 3 17, 18; 4 1, 2, 4, 7, 8; 7 25, 26; 8 2, 15.

תתקמ"א = § 941.

אני. In two verses I, is repeated . . . and in one verse it occurs four times, three times without and once with the prefix Var. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 47b, on Gen. 24 30. As it stands this Rubric is misleading, since it implies that there are two verses only in which this personal pronoun occurs twice, just as the same language states in the second part of this Rubric that there is one verse in the Bible where it occurs four times. The fact is, that there are no fewer than thirty verses in the Bible in which אני occurs twice. In spite, therefore, of the same language denoting in the second part of this Rubric that this pronoun occurs four times in one verse irrespective of its position, it denotes in the first part that it occurs twice in close proximity. But even this is not quite correct since in Deut. 32 39, which is here given as the verse in which it occurs four times, אני אני are also in close proximity.

1 Besides the two verses which constitute this Rubric אני occurs twice in the following twenty-four verses: Gen. 18 17; Exod. 6 29; 29 46; 33 16; Numb. 15 41; 35 34; 2 Sam. 12 23; Isa. 41 4, 13; Jerem. 45 4; Ezek. 2 8; 5 11; 16 62; 17 24; 21 22; 22 14; 36 36; 44 28; Hos. 5 14; 14 9; Zech. 1 5; Ps. 116 16; Eccl. 1 16; Neh. 2 12; in five verses it is אני אני, Levit. 11 44, 46; 26 24; Job 32 17; 33 6; in one verse it is אני אני and in three verses אני אני viz. Jerem. 17 18; Ezek. 17 22; Mal. 1 6.

תתקמ"ב = § 942a-c.

אני, אני. Words which respectively occur twice in combination with this pronoun, once they are preceded by אני without the prefix Vav and once by אני with the prefix Vav.

These three Lists again disclose the method which the Massorites adopted in developing the Massorah. List 942a, which is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 121a, on Hag. 2 21, records eight instances or pairs of this combination. These are all which the first compiler had been able to collect, and as he expected his fellow Massorites to continue the search, he left the List open and did not supply it with a heading.

In Orient. 4445, fol. 47b, on Exod. 6 12 where this Rubric is also given, this ancient Codex too, records eight pairs only. The compiler of this List, however, has אני אני (Ezek. 8 1) and אני אני (Ezra 9 4) which are not in List 942a, and omits אני אני (Isa. 46 4). But he too, regarded the List as incomplete and hence did not furnish it with a heading fixing the number of these pairs. Though List 942b, which is from Add. 15,451, fol. 362a, on Isa. 46 4 catalogues nine pairs its compiler also did not look upon it as final. He, therefore, also left it without a heading. A later Nakdan, however, as is often the case, took these as containing all the instances in the Bible and hence not only supplied the List with a heading fixing the number at nine in accordance with the pairs in the List, but furnished them with catchwords. But this heading in List 942a, which is also given in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 625, is incorrect, since there are at least twelve such pairs.1

1 Comp. אני אני Jerem. 4 12; ואני אני 1 Sam. 19 3; אני אני Ps. 56 4; אני אני Ps. 88 14; אני אני 1 Kings 20 4; אני אני Josh. 8 5.

תתקמ"ג = § 943.

אני ואתה I and thou, is three times thus combined. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 138b, on 1 Sam. 20 23 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As אתה by itself occurs three times only, it is also the subject of a separate Massorah. (Vide infra, letter א, § 1475.)

תתקמ"ד = § 944.

אני הולך I am going, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32b, on Judg. 19 18 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter \aleph , § 628. It is remarkable that both Lists include in this Rubric the instance where \aleph is preceded by \aleph with the prefix Vav, viz. 2 Sam. 15 20a.

התקמ"ד § 944.

\aleph I Jehovah, occurs twice with the accent. That is, in two instances in the Pentateuch where this pronoun begins a verse it has the accent Gershaim. Of this Rubric, which is omitted in the first Volume of the Massorah, but which is given in Volume III, p. 2, § 944*, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2365, fol. 142b, on Numb. 15 41 and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage which I have printed.

התקמ"ה - § 945.

\aleph I Jehovah, ends the verse in twenty instances. That is, in Leviticus alone, in contradistinction to those verses which end with the more lengthy formula recorded below in § 949. This is evident from the fact that this formula occurs six times in other parts of the Pentateuch at the end of a verse and no less than thirty-six times in the Prophets.¹

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 98b, on Levit. 26 45 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Levit. 18 5. List I gives the catchwords for the twelfth instance \aleph = Levit. 20 26. But here \aleph is in the middle of the verse. This recension of the Rubric must, therefore, be based upon Codices in which the formula here ended the verse or the catchwords are due to a clerical error. List II heads this Rubric \aleph which is more precise, since it makes it certain that the design of this Massorah is simply to catalogue the instances in Leviticus. It, moreover, gives \aleph Levit. 22 3 instead of \aleph Levit. 20 26 which is in harmony with the textus receptus.

¹ Comp. \aleph Exod. 6 2 8; 10 2; 12 12; Numb. 3 13, 46; 1 Kings 20 13, 28; Ezek. 6 7, 10, 14; 7 4, 27; 11 10; 12 16, 20; 13 14, 21, 28; 14 8; 16 62; 20 26; 38; 22 16; 24 27; 25 5, 7, 11; 26 6; 28 23; 29 21; 30 19, 26; 32 15; 35 4, 9, 15; 36 11, 38; 37 6; 38 23; 39 6.

התקמ"ו - § 946.

\aleph A Sign, indicating the passages in Leviticus where the phrases \aleph I Jehovah, and \aleph I Jehovah your God, respectively occur.

In Leviticus where, as we have seen, the shorter formula \aleph occurs twenty times at the end of the verse, the longer phrase \aleph occurs seventeen times, also at the end of a verse. The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to safeguard the respective verses in which these several phrases occur, so that they may not be interchanged. As one of the phrases occurs more frequently in one Section of Leviticus and the other in another Section, the Massorah divides the whole book into the following three Sections in accordance with the prevalence of either formula in the respective Sections:

(1.) The first Section consists of Levit. 1 1-19 10. Here the lengthier formula \aleph is the prevailing one. It occurs seven times, viz. Levit. 18 2, 4, 30; 19 2, 8, 4, 10, whilst the shorter form \aleph occurs three times only. Hence the Massorah in this Section safeguards the shorter phrase.

(2.) In the second Section, which extends from Levit. 19 11 to 23 20, the shorter form \aleph is more frequent. It occurs no fewer than fifteen times, viz. Levit. 19 12, 14, 16, 18, 28, 30, 32, 37; 21 12; 22 2, 3, 8, 30, 31, 33, whilst the longer phrase \aleph occurs four times only. The Massorah, therefore, in this Section safeguards the longer phrase.

(3.) In this Section, which extends from Levit. 23 21 to the end of the book, the longer formula \aleph is the rule. It occurs no less than six times, viz. Levit. 23 22, 43; 24 22; 25 17, 55; 26 1 and the shorter form \aleph is the exception. It occurs twice only and, therefore, in this Section the Massorah safeguards the shorter phrase.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 75b, on Levit. 18 5 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 104b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 169b, on Levit. 20 7; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 93a, on Levit. 18 5; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezek. 20 19; (VI) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach I, § 152, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 18 5.

התקמ"ז - § 947.

\aleph I am Jehovah the God of, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach I, § 152.

התקמ"ח - § 948.

\aleph I am Jehovah your God, begins a verse five times. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter \aleph , § 143 and as is frequently the case it is incorrect, since there are four instances only in which this phrase begins a verse. In reprinting it the fourth line, viz. \aleph has inadvertently dropped out of the text, whilst \aleph is manifestly a clerical error for \aleph and can only mean and the next verse. But in verse 20 this phrase is at the end of the verse and not at the beginning. The compiler who erroneously added this expression also altered the \aleph = four in the heading into \aleph = five.

התקמ"ט - § 949.

\aleph I am Jehovah your God, occurs twenty-four times at the end of a verse. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these instances against being made conformable to those verses which end with the shorter formula and which are recorded in § 945.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 189b, on Deut. 29 5 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 105b, on Levit. 19 2; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 75a, on Levit. 18 4; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 167a, on Levit. 18 30; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Levit. 19 34 and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter \aleph , § 166.

List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric, is the only correct one and shows how the Massorah was corrupted by copyists in the course of time. List I, which I have printed, though it states in the heading that there are twenty-four such instances omits two, viz. Levit. 24 22; Numb. 15 41 and gives one instance twice, viz. Levit. 26 1. List III heads this Rubric \aleph and omits three instances, viz. Exod. 16 12; Deut. 29 5; Ezek. 20 20. List IV which also states in the heading that there are twenty-two such instances only, omits four instances, viz. Exod. 16 12; Levit. 19 4 10; Deut. 29 5.

These omissions are evidently due to a confusion, on the part of later Nakdanim, of the two recensions of this Rubric which obtained in the different Massoretic Schools. The first recension is the one which is exhibited in Lists I and II. The second recension is given in List VI. It excludes the seven instances in which this phrase is preceded by the particle \aleph at the end of the verse, viz. Exod. 16 12; Levit. 20 7; 24 22; 25 17; 26 1; Deut. 29 5; Ezek. 20 10. Hence it not only heads this Rubric \aleph , but duly records the omissions in Lists III and IV with this recension, it will be seen that they wrongly omitted instances from the first recension which are rightly excluded from the second recension. Having thus confused the two recensions, the copyists also altered the headings. The Rubric in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 179a, on Ezek. 20 20 and in Add. 15,251, fol. 277b, on the same passage, which states that this phrase occurs ten times only (\aleph) refers to \aleph . (Comp. The Massorah, letter \aleph , § 141, Vol. II. p. 31.)

התקנ" - § 950.

\aleph I am Jehovah their God, occurs eight times.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, 54b, on Exod. 29 46 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 92b, on Ezek. 34 30; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 114a, on Levit. 26 44; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; on Ezek. 39 22; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 185b, on Ezek. 28 26; (VI) the same MS., fol. 189a, on Ezek. 34 30; (VII) the same MS., fol. 192b, on Ezek. 39 22; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 332b, on the same passage; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 115b, on Exod. 29 46 and (X) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

Lists II, VI and VII head this Rubric \aleph , but this is incorrect, since though in seven out of the eight instances this phrase is preceded by \aleph , it is without it in Exod. 29 46b. The oldest Lists, therefore, rightly omit this particle from the headings.

תתקנ"א = § 951.

אני יהוה דברתי I Jehovah have spoken, occurs twice. That is, at the beginning of a verse and in contradistinction to the lengthier formula which is the subject of the Massorah recorded in the next Rubric. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 182a, on Ezek. 24 14 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 109a, on Numb. 14 35; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ezek. 24 14 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As this phrase ends the verse in no fewer than seven instances (Ezek. 5 15, 17; 17 21; 21 22, 37; 30 12; 34 24) and as it is in these two passages only where it begins a verse, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional position of this formula. Lists II and IV, therefore, rightly add in the heading ב"ר"ם without which this Rubric is unintelligible.

תתקנ"ב = § 952.

אני יהוה דברתי ועשיתי I Jehovah have spoken and have done, occurs four times. That is, to distinguish it from the shorter phrase which ends the verse in seven instances and which is noticed in the preceding Rubric. It is, however, to be remarked that in one of the four instances which constitute this Rubric, this phrase does not stand at the end of the verse (Ezek. 37 14). Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 89a, on Ezek. 17 24 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 177b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 181a, on Ezek. 22 14; (IV) the same MS., fol. 190b, on Ezek. 36 36; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 277a, on the same passage and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 17 24. With the exception of List I, all the other Lists head this Rubric simply דברתי וקצתו without אני, but the heading in the List which I have printed is preferable, since this lengthier formula is manifestly contrasted with the shorter one recorded in the preceding Rubric.

תתקנ"ג = § 953.

אני יהוה מקדושכם I am Jehovah which sanctify you, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 94a, on Levit. 20 8 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 108a, on Levit. 22 32; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Levit. 20 8; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 152, margin and (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 31 13.

תתקנ"ד = § 954.

אני יהוה מקדושם I am Jehovah which sanctify them, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 78a, on Levit. 22 16 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 82a, on Ezek. 20 12; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 107a, on Levit. 22 9; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 77a, on Levit. 22 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 277a, on Ezek. 20 12; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 171a, on Levit. 21 23; (VII) Orient. 2349, fol. 95a, on Levit. 22 16; (VIII) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (IX) the same on Ezek. 20 12. The addition ח"י ח"י the second instance is without קי Levit. 22 19 is due to the fact that in all the other three passages this phrase is preceded by this particle.

תתקנ"ה = § 955.

אני ועמי I and my people, occurs three times in this form . . . once in the Pentateuch, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 139b, which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 9 27. The latter rightly heads it ב"ל"ש which denotes with or without the prefix Vav, since in Exod. 9 27 it is אני. The phrase with the prefix also constitutes one link in the long chain of pairs, both words of which are with Vav conjunctive and which are unique in this form.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter י, § 89, Vol. I, p. 413 &c.

תתקנ"ו = 956.

אני and I, begins a verse eleven times in the Pentateuch. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 101a, on Numb. 3 12, which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 3a, on the same passage.

תתקנ"ז = § 956*.

אני occurs four times with this accent at the beginning of the verse. That is, in the Psalter where it is generally with Dechi' at the beginning of the verse¹ this pronoun has in these four instances Revia. Hence the Massorah safeguards in these passages the exceptional accents. That this is the import of this Massorah and that the qualifying expression במסרה in this book which restricts it to the Psalter must be supplied, is not only evident from the instances recorded in the Rubric, but from the fact that it occurs no less than ten times with this accent at the beginning of a verse in other parts of the Bible.² This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2375, fol. 2a, on Ps. 5 8. I have printed it in Vol. III of the Massorah, letter א, § 956. As one of the instances is אני without the prefix Vav (Ps. 17 15) the heading ought properly to be אני ב"שע במס' יהוה אני.

¹ Comp. Ps. 2 6; 26 11; 30 7; 31 7; 69 30; 71 14; 73 23; 75 10.

² Comp. Gen. 6 17; Exod. 14 17; Levit. 20 3; Numb. 18 6; Josh. 8 5; 2 Sam. 13 13; Jerem. 23 8; 40 10; Ezek. 4 5; Jonah 2 10.

תתקנ"ח = § 957.

אני and I, begins a verse forty-three times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter א, § 626. It is simply a fragment, attempting to extend the record to the whole Bible which the preceding Rubric restricted to the Pentateuch. A later Nakdan who mistook this List for final supplied it with the heading fixing the number of instances at forty-three in accordance with the passages which the original compiler was able to bring together. There are no fewer than sixty-nine instances in the Bible where this pronoun begins a verse so that more than one third of the passages, which the first Massorite left to his colleagues to supply, are here omitted.¹ Originally each book was examined separately for this phenomenon, as is evident from the separate List on the Pentateuch. The first compiler of the List before us, therefore, brought together the instances of these books only which he found with these registers in a more or less complete state. This explains the fact that no fewer than four entire books are not represented in this Rubric, viz. Joshua, Isaiah, Jeremiah and Jonah. The catchwords אני במסך are a clerical error for אני ב"שע = Ps. 5 8. I have reproduced it as it is in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah

¹ Comp. Gen. 9 9; Exod. 14 17; Josh. 8 5; 1 Sam. 4 16; 2 Sam. 13 13; Isa. 49 4; 69 21; Jerem. 1 18; 5 4; 11 19; 17 16; 23 3; 26 14; 40 10; Ezek. 4 5; Hos. 5 12; Jonah 2 5, 10; 4 11; Ps. 30 7; 40 18; 70 6; Ruth. 4 4; Nch. 6 10; 2 Chron. 6 2.

תתקנ"ט = § 958.

אני, אני. Seven verses in which this pronoun occurs twice, the first time with and the second without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 47b, on Gen. 34 30 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 23 24. The printed Massorah (List II) has not the addition of the verse in which this pronoun occurs three times with the prefix Vav nor of the verse in which it occurs four times, three times without and once with the prefix Vav. As Ezek. 34 24 is the only one of the seven instances in which אני begins the verse, it also forms part of the Rubric recording the verses which begin with a word with Vav and in which the same word is repeated in the middle of the verse without the Var.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter י, § 97, Vol. I, p. 415.

תתקנ"י = § 959.

אני ואני and I whither, is twice thus combined in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 25a, on Gen. 37 30 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תתק"א = § 960.

אני ואני . . . לאלהים and I shall . . . God. Throughout the Scriptures אני precedes לאלהים except in one instance . . . whilst throughout Jeremiah it is preceded by אני except in one instance.

To understand this artificial Massorah, it is necessary to remark: (1) that as אני ואני does not occur the variation here recorded must refer to אני ואני . . . לאלהים and אני ואני . . . לאלהים without לקם and לקם; (2) that אני ואני . . . לאלהים occurs six times (Jerem. 32 38; Ezek. 11 20, 14 11; 34 24; 37 23; Zecl. 8 8) and (3) that אֶתְּךָ...אֶתְּךָ occurs four times (Jerem. 11 4; 24 7, 30 22; Ezek. 36 28). Apart from Jeremiah, therefore, אֶתְּךָ is the rule and אֶתְּךָ the solitary exception, whilst in Jeremiah אֶתְּךָ is the rule and אֶתְּךָ the solitary exception. Hence the Massorah safeguards in each case the exceptional use of the pronoun in this phrase. It is to be remarked that אֶתְּךָ the future first person singular when used by God is alternately preceded by אֶתְּךָ and אֶתְּךָ.¹

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 94a, on Ezek. 36 28 which I have printed and (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 152.

¹ Comp. אֶתְּךָ Exod. 4 12, 15; Deut. 31 23; אֶתְּךָ Zech. 2 9; 1 Chron. 28 6.

הַתְּקִיָּא = § 961.

וְאֶתְּךָ and I have given to thee, occurs twice. In the other three instances where וְאֶתְּךָ is combined with this pronoun at the beginning of a verse it is וְאֶתְּךָ and not וְאֶתְּךָ (Ezek. 20 25; Amos 4 6; Mal. 2 9). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ezek. 4 5. It is to be remarked that וְאֶתְּךָ by itself occurs twice only.

הַתְּקִיָּב = § 962.

וְאֶתְּךָ and I will give, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish it from the other two instances where this phrase occurs and where it is without the prefix וְאֶתְּךָ (2 Sam. 21 6; 1 Kings 21 7). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 76b, on Levit. 20 3 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

הַתְּקִיָּט = § 962*.

וְאֶתְּךָ and I have heard, occurs twice. וְאֶתְּךָ is five times combined with this pronoun, in three instances it is without the prefix וְאֶתְּךָ (Exod. 6 5; Ezek. 35 13; 2 Chron. 34 27) and in two with it. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I have printed in Vol. III, p. 2, § 962*, from Orient. 2451, fol. 49a, on Gen. 41 15.

הַתְּקִיָּז = § 963.

וְאֶתְּךָ because I, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 263b, on Eccl. 2 18.

הַתְּקִיָּח § 964.

בַּאֲבִיבִים in the ships, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 130b, on Deut. 28 68 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 238a, on 1 Kings 22 50; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 208b, on Ps. 107 23; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 97b, on 1 Kings 22 50; (V) the same MS., fol. 137b, on Isa. 43 14; (VI) the same MS., fol. 311b, on Ps. 107 23; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 245a, on 1 Kings 22 50; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 360b, on Isa. 43 14; (IX) the printed Massorah on Deut. 28 68 and (X) the same on Isa. 43 14. As this expression also occurs once with the prefix וְאֶתְּךָ (Dan. 11 46) five of the ten Lists, viz. Nos. VI—X add at the end וְאֶתְּךָ.

הַתְּקִיָּה = § 965.

אֶתְּךָ lead, plummet, occurs four times and in the same section. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the Cambridge University Library Add. 465 on Amos 7 7.

הַתְּקִיָּי = § 966.

אֶתְּךָ I, has in seven instances the accent on the Nun and wherever it is with Athnach, Soph-Pasuk, Zakeph or Zarka it is also on the Nun except in one instance. That is, the accent is on the penultima or is Milel in the language of the Massorah.

Of this Rubric I collated sixteen Lists, fifteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 260a, on Ruth 3 13 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 31a, on Judg. 17 9; (III) the same MS., fol. 40a, on 1 Sam. 9 21; (IV) the same MS., fol. 56a, on 1 Sam. 30 13; (V) the same MS., fol. 58a, on 2 Sam. 3 8; (VI) the same MS., fol. 207b, on Amos 7 14; (VII) the same MS., fol. 283b, on Ruth 3 13; (VIII) Orient. 2201, fol. 101a—b, in the Massoretic Appendix to the Pentateuch; (IX) Add. 15,251, fol. 14a, on Gen. 3 10; (X) the same MS., fol. 155b, on 1 Sam. 9 21; (XI) the same MS., fol. 395b, on Ruth 3 13; (XII) Add. 15,451, fol. 185a, on 1 Sam. 9 21; (XIII) Vienna Codex No. 85 on the same passage; (XIV) the same Codex on Amos 7 14; (XV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 103, margin and (XVI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 3 10.

The seven passages catalogued in this Rubric exhibit: (1) three instances in which the Revva is abnormally on the Nun (Exod. 4 10; Judg. 17 9; 1 Sam. 30 13) instead of its normal position on the Caph, as it is in the other twelve passages where it occurs with this accent;¹ (2) three instances in which the Typha is on the penultima (Gen. 3 10; Amos 7 14; Ruth 3 13) instead of the ultima as is the case in all the other forty-three times where this quadrilateral occurs with Typha;² and (3) one solitary instance where it has Pashta on the Nun (1 Sam. 9 21) instead of the Yod only, which is the case in the other thirty-seven passages.³ Thus far the import of this Rubric is simple. Not only do the other fifteen Lists record the same seven instances, but the Standard Codices exhibit the abnormal position of these accents in the text.

It is the second part of this Rubric which causes the difficulty. Here we are told that wherever וְאֶתְּךָ has one of four pausal or distinctive accents it is always Milel, that is, the accent is likewise on the Nun except in one solitary instance. This is perfectly correct with regard to three out of the four accents, viz. Athach,⁴ *Soph-Pasuk*⁵ and Zakeph,⁶ but it is not so in the case of Zarka. With Zarka וְאֶתְּךָ occurs four times (Gen. 50 5; Exod. 34 10; 2 Sam. 3 8; Job 16 4), and excepting one questionable instance, this accent is always on the ultima in all the Standard Codices and in the early editions. It is, therefore, more than probable that the expression וְאֶתְּךָ is due to a later Scribe who imported it here from another recension of this Massorah. I must add here that וְאֶתְּךָ Judg. 5 3 in the Rubric which I have printed is my mistake for וְאֶתְּךָ Judg. 17 9.

A second recension of this Massorah is exhibited in the other fifteen Lists which I have collated. In the heading of these Lists it is stated that there are eight instances in which this pronoun has the accent on the penultima (וְאֶתְּךָ) and 2 Sam. 3 8 is given as the eighth instance where it is taken to have two Zarkas, one on the Yod and one on the Nun (וְאֶתְּךָ). But though this is the more general form of the Rubric, the best MSS. (Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Orient. 4227; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 &c.) and all the editions exhibit one Zarka only on the ultima, exactly as it is in the other three passages where וְאֶתְּךָ has this accent, and I have found the two Zarkas in one MS. only (Add. 15,451).

The second part of this Rubric is differently stated in these fifteen Lists. Thus Lists II, VI, IX, X have it וְאֶתְּךָ and List VIII has it וְאֶתְּךָ; Lists IV, VII, XI, XII, XIII, XVI have it וְאֶתְּךָ; List XV simply has it וְאֶתְּךָ without stating what the accents are, whilst Lists III, V and XIV have not this second part at all. It will thus be seen that there is only one other MS. which has the vicious expression וְאֶתְּךָ in the second part of this Rubric.

¹ Comp. וְאֶתְּךָ Gen. 24 27; 46 4; Exod. 7 27; Deut. 29 13; Josh. 14 7; Judg. 5 3; 6 37; 1 Sam. 1 28; 12 23; 2 Sam. 2 6; Isa. 8 18; Jerem. 34 18.

² Comp. וְאֶתְּךָ Gen. 16 8; 21 24; 23 4; 24 3, 37, 42; 30 3, 30; 38 25; 47 30; 48 21; 50 24; Exod. 3 12; 4 11; 32 18; 34 11; Numb. 11 12, 21; Deut. 4 2; 12 11, 14, 28; 18 19; 32 40; Judg. 7 18; 11 37; 1 Sam. 15 14; 20 36; 2 Sam. 14 18; 24 12; 1 Kings 19 4; Isa. 6 6; 43 11; Jerem. 1 17; 3 14; 14 12; 26 5; 28 7; 32 42; 33 3; Jonah 3 2; Job 9 29; Ruth 4 4.

³ Comp. וְאֶתְּךָ Gen. 7 4; 15 1; 27 19; 31 5, 38; 32 12; 43 9; Exod. 3 6; 20 2; Numb. 11 14; 22 32; Deut. 4 2; 5 6; 13 1; 31 2; Josh. 13 6; 1 Sam. 1 8; 4 16; 10 8; 18 18; 2 Sam. 13 28; 1 Kings 2 18, 20; Isa. 45 12, 13; 64 16; 66 13; Jerem. 25 29; 27 6; 33 9; Hos. 2 10, 16; 11 9; Amos 6 8; 9 9; Mal. 3 23; Ruth. 3 9.

⁴ Comp. וְאֶתְּךָ Gen. 15 14; 24 24; 25 22, 30; Jerem. 1 7; Amos 7 14; Jonah 1 9; Zech. 13 5; Ps. 109 22; Ruth 3 12.

⁵ Comp. וְאֶתְּךָ Gen. 4 9; 24 34; 30 1; Exod. 4 10; 2 Sam. 1 8, 13; 2 20; 11 5; 20 17; Jerem. 1 6; Ps. 50 7.

⁶ Comp. וְאֶתְּךָ Gen. 26 24; 29 33; 30 2; Exod. 3 11; Judg. 19 18; 1 Sam. 1 16; 17 43; Isa. 6 6; Amos 7 14.

הַתְּקִיָּי = § 967.

אֶתְּךָ I, occurs three times thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, in this reduplicate form. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 20b, on Isa. 43 11 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 137b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 141a, on Isa. 51 12; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 234b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 360b, on Isa. 43 11; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Isa. 51 12 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Isa. 43 11. As all the three instances occur in Isaiah, the heading ought properly to be וְאֶתְּךָ it occurs three times and in the same book, though none of the Lists have it so.

תהקטיה = § 968.

אָנְכִי מְבִיא I am bringing, occurs four times in this book, i. e. in Jeremiah. The design of this Massorah is twofold: (1) It is to safeguard this exceptional phrase against being made conformable to אָנְכִי הֵנְנִי מְבִיא which is the normal combination used both in this book, where it occurs nine times, and in the other parts of the Bible,¹ and (2) it is to guard the Scribes against interchanging the pronouns, since in the other six passages where אָנְכִי is preceded by the pronoun it is אָנִי and not אָנְכִי.²

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists, both in the ancient St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916: (I) On Jerem. 4 6 which I have printed and (II) on Jerem. 6 19. As these four instances are restricted to Jeremiah, the heading ought more correctly to be אָנְכִי בְּיִרְמְיָהוּ.

¹ Comp. אָנְכִי הֵנְנִי מְבִיא Exod. 10 4; 1 Kings 14 10; 21 21; 22 16; Jerem. 5 15; 11 11; 19 3, 15; 31 8; 35 17; 39 16; 45 6; 49 5; Ezek. 26 7; 28 7; 29 8; Zech. 3 8; 2 Chron. 34 24.

² Comp. אָנִי מְבִיא Levit. 19 3; 20 22; Numb. 15 18; 2 Kings 10 24; 22 20; Jerem. 42 17; Ezek. 37 5; 2 Chron. 34 28.

תהקטיש = § 969.

אָנְכִי יֹדְעֵתִי I know, occurs three times in this combination. אָנְכִי is ten times preceded by the pronoun first person. In seven instances it is combined with אָנִי¹ and in three only by אָנְכִי. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional phrase.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 182b, on Deut. 31 27 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 165b; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 254b; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 253b; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, all on Jerem. 29 11; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 20 6 and (VII) the same on Jerem. 29 11. Lists I and IV head this Rubric בִּי אָנְכִי יֹדְעֵתִי which is incorrect, since in Gen. 20 6 אָנְכִי יֹדְעֵתִי is not preceded by בִּי, but by אָנִי.

¹ Comp. אָנִי יֹדְעֵתִי 1 Sam. 17 28; 2 Kings 2 3, 5; Jerem. 48 30; Hos. 5 3; Ps. 135 5; 2 Chron. 2 7.

תהקיע = § 970.

אָנְכִי יְהוָה I Jehovah, occurs twelve times in this combination. In the numerous instances in which the Tetragrammaton is preceded by the pronoun first person it is אָנִי and it is in these twelve passages only that it is combined with אָנְכִי. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 69a, on Exod. 20 2 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 79a, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 304b, on Ps. 81 11; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 362b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 97a, on Exod. 20 2; (VI) the same MS., fol. 268b, on Deut. 5 6; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Exod. 20 2; (VIII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 152, margin and (IX) the printed Massorah on Exod. 20 2.

It is to be remarked: (1) that all the nine Lists include the three instances in which the pronoun in this combination has the prefix Vav (Isa. 51 15; Hos. 12 10; 13 4) and (2) the instance in 2 Sam. 7 18 where the phrase is אָנְכִי אֲדֹנָי יְהוָה because in the combination of אֲדֹנָי יְהוָה Adonai has the vowel-points of יהוה and יהוה the vowel-points of אלהים. (Vide supra, §§ 107, 116.) The addition at the end of Jacob b. Chayim's (List IX), viz. אֲדֹנָי יְהוָה אֲדֹנָי יְהוָה is incorrect since אָנְכִי יְהוָה with the prefix Vav occurs three times only. It is due to a clerical error as it is not given in any of the other eight Lists.

תהקעא = § 971.

אָנְכִי יוֹשֵׁב I dwell, occurs five times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 61a, on 2 Sam. 7 2 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 121a, on Isa. 6 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 249a, on 1 Chron. 17 1; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 168a, on 2 Sam. 7 2; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 3; (VI) the same on 2 Sam. 7 2 and (VII) the same on 1 Chron. 17 1.

תהקעב = § 972.

אָנְכִי מֵת I die, occurs four times thus combined. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 114a, on Deut. 4 22 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 63b, on Gen. 50 24; (III) the same MS., fol. 261b, on Deut. 4 22; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 57b, on Gen. 50 24; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Deut. 4 22 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 48 21.

תהקעג = § 973.

אָנְכִי נָתַתִּי I have given, occurs three times. נָתַתִּי is eight times in combination with the pronoun; in five instances it is preceded by אָנִי without and with the prefix Vav¹ and in three only it is preceded by אָנְכִי. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 49a, on Jerem. 27 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 104a, on Hos. 2 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 200a, on the same passage; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 36a, on Gen. 16 5; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Hos. 2 10; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 16 5 and (VII) the same on Jerem. 27 6. That the number of these instances required fixing and safeguarding is evident from the Massorah on Gen. 16 5 in Add. 15,250, fol. 11b, where it is emphatically stated that this combination occurs four times (אָנְכִי נָתַתִּי רַב־רַב). Though the passages are not given, it is more than probable that the Massorites of this beautifully written Standard Codex must have compiled the Rubric from MSS. which exhibited this combination in their text four times.

¹ Comp. אָנִי נָתַתִּי Ezek. 20 25; Amos 4 6; Mal. 2 9; אָנְכִי נָתַתִּי Gen. 48 22; Ezek. 4 5.

תהקעד = § 974.

אָנְכִי נָתַתִּי I am giving or I give, I set, occurs seven times. This participle active singular masculine occurs altogether eighteen times in combination with the pronoun first person. In eleven instances it is preceded by אָנִי¹ and in seven by אָנְכִי. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 130a, on Deut. 11 26 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 9a, on Josh. 11 6; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 260b, on Deut. 4 8 and (IV) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 24 4.

¹ Comp. אָנִי נָתַתִּי Gen. 9 12; Levit. 14 34; 23 10; 23 2; Numb. 13 2; 15 2; Deut. 32 49, 62; 1 Sam. 23 4; Ezek. 2 8; 3 3.

תהקעה = § 975.

אָנְכִי עִמָּךְ I am with thee, occurs three times . . . and in all other passages it is אָנְכִי עִמָּךְ. That is, in these three instances the preposition עִמָּךְ with the suffix second person singular masculine the Mem has Kametz and the Caph Sheva, i. e. עִמָּךְ, whereas in all other instances where this combination occurs it is עִמְךָ.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 17a, on Josh. 23 14 which I have printed and (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 185a, on Ps. 39 13. The addition at the end of the Rubric that in all other instances where this combination occurs it is עִמְךָ is inexplicable, since אָנְכִי עִמָּךְ does not occur in the textus receptus.¹ List II, therefore, is without this addition. It is also to be noticed that List I is on Josh. 23 14 where this phrase does not occur at all.

¹ It is remarkable that Heidenheim also found a MS. Massorah with this addition which is given in Frensdorff's Massoretisches Wörterbuch, p. 259, note 4.

תהקעו = § 976.

אָנְכִי עֹשֶׂה I am doing, or I will do, occurs three times. עֹשֶׂה occurs fifteen times in combination with the pronoun first person; in twelve instances it is preceded by אָנִי¹ and in three only by אָנְכִי. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional usage.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 36b, on 1 Sam. 3 11 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 147a; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 181b, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. Lists IV heads it אָנְכִי יְהוָה עֹשֶׂה and gives דְּרֹשׁוּ עֹשֶׂה Isa. 44 24 as the fourth instance, which is manifestly designed to safeguard this solitary passage, since in the other two instances where this phrase occurs it is אָנִי יְהוָה עֹשֶׂה (Isa. 45 7; Jerem. 9 23).

¹ Comp. אָנִי עֹשֶׂה Gen. 18 17; Exod. 34 10; Isa. 5 5; 66 22; Jerem. 29 32; Ezek. 22 14; 36 22, 32; Mal. 3 17, 21; Neh. 2 16; 6 3.

התקע"ז = § 977.

הַאֲנִי have I?, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, the pronoun אֲנִי with the prefix הַ interrogative to distinguish it from the only other instance where the pronoun first person with the interrogative He occurs and where it is אֲנִי (Isa. 66 9).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 231a, on Job 21 4 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4446, fol. 129b, on Numb. 11 12; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 228b, on Job 21 4; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 80a, on Numb. 11 12; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 205b; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 107a, and (VII) the printed Massorah, all on Numb. 11 12.

התקע"ח = § 978.

וְאֲנִי and I, begins a verse nine times. As this pronoun which, apart from the Minor Prophets, begins a verse twenty-six times and, moreover, as it is in seventeen instances without the prefix Vav¹ and with it in nine instances only, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

And throughout the Minor Prophets it is likewise so. That is, in this portion of the Scriptures where this pronoun begins a verse five times it is without exception with the prefix Vav. (Comp. Hos. 11 3; 12 10; 13 4; Amos. 2 9, 10.)

Of this Rubric I collated sixteen Lists, fourteen in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 146b, on Judg. 11 27 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 179a, on Ps. 22 7; (III) St. Petersburg-Codex A. D. 916, on Jerem. 3 19; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59b, on 2 Sam. 3 39; (V) the same MS., fol. 141a, on Isa. 51 15; (VI) the same MS., fol. 147a, on Isa. 66 18; (VII) the same MS., fol. 149a, on Jerem. 3 19; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 288b, on Ps. 22 7; (IX) Add. 15,461, fol. 142a, on Deut. 31 18; (X) the same MS., fol. 206a, on 2 Sam. 3 39; (XI) the same MS., fol. 269a, on Jerem. 2 21; (XII) the same MS., fol. 402a, on Ps. 22 7; (XIII) Cambridge University Library Add. 465, on Jerem. 2 21 which alone has the mnemonic sign; (XIV) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 104; (XV) the printed Massorah on Isa. 51 15, and (XVI) the same on Ps. 22 7.

The addition at the end of List II אשר קייה אנכי וליה דברחק explains the import of this Massorah. List III which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah omits Jerem. 2 21 which is manifestly due to a clerical error, since the heading distinctly states that there are nine such instances. Lists V, VI and XIII omit at the end וכל הרי אשר רבי which makes this Massorah in conflict with the text, inasmuch as, including the Minor Prophets, אֲנִי begins a verse no fewer than fourteen times.

¹ Comp. אֲנִי Gen. 31 13; 43 9; 46 4; Exod. 20 2; Deut. 5 6; 2 Sam. 20 19; 1 King 3 2; Isa. 43 11, 12, 25; 45 12, 13; 51 12; Jerem. 27 5; Ps. 81 11; Job 9 29.

התקע"ט = § 979.

וְאֲנֹכִי הוּאָ and I Jehovah, occurs four times. (Vide supra, § 970.)

התק"ס = § 980.

וְהִתְאַפַּי he was angry, occurs three times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter א, § 645. The heading ought properly to be ג' יבשמיא, since all the three instances are restricted to Deuteronomy.

התקס"א = § 981.

אִנְפוּהָ עִנְפוּהָ his face, is with Dagesh in Pe; his branches, is without it. These two Chaldee homonyms which respectively consist of three syllables with exactly the same vowel-points, severally occur twice in Daniel. As the former is with Dagesh in the Pe and the latter is without it, the Massorah safeguards this orthographical phenomenon. Accordingly the current editions of the Bible and the Lexicons which have it עִנְפוּהָ are against the Massorah. This Rubric is from Add. 465, Cambridge University Library on Dan. 4 11.

התקס"ב = § 982.

אִנְשֵׁי incurable, desperate, occurs four times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists, both in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916: (I) on Jerem. 17 16 which I have printed and (II) on Jerem. 30 12. Though this participle passive singular masculine occurs five times, both Lists state in the heading that it occurs four times only. The remarkable feature of these two Lists is that in the one which I have printed Job 34 6 is omitted, whilst List II includes this passage (הוא = Job 34 6) and omits הוּאָ. Jerem. 17 16. But these Lists, however, add at the end that it also occurs once with the prefix Vav. In List I this addition is וְאִנְשֵׁי and in List II וְאִנְשֵׁי הוּאָ = Jerem. 17 9. The two Lists, therefore, cannot emanate from the same Massorites.

התקס"ג = § 983.

אֲנָשִׁים man, is twice אֲנָשִׁים in the Kethiv. That is, in the Kethiv or textual reading the form is אֲנָשִׁים for which the Keri or official reading is אָנָשִׁים. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 279b, on Dan. 4 13 which I have printed and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 867a, on the same passage. The points of the Kethiv in the heading of the Rubric should be אֲנָשִׁים in accordance with the notes in my edition of the Bible, and not אָנָשִׁים.

התקס"ד = § 984.

וְאַתָּה and thou, begins a verse in two instances They constitute one of the fourteen groups of two words each which respectively have Vav at the beginning of the verse.

As this pronoun second person begins a verse altogether eight times and as it is without the prefix Vav in six instances¹ and in two only with it, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. For the fourteen groups of which this pair constitutes one, see below letter ו, § 63, p. 399.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Dan. 5 22.

¹ Comp. אָתָּה Dan. 2 29, 31, 37; 3 10; 4 19; 5 18. In these instances the Massorah as usual recognises the official Keri only.

התקס"ה = § 985.

וְהִאֲסִיף the ingathering, occurs twice, once it is defective and once plena. As the two instances occur in the same book and are differently spelled in each case, the Massorah safeguards the divergent orthography of the two passages. Of this Rubric, I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 49a, on Exod. 23 16 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 45a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah, on Exod. 34 22 and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 670.

התקס"ו = § 986.

אֲסִיר a prisoner, occurs twice with Kametz. As this expression occurs five times, and as it is in three passages with Pathach under the Aleph¹ and in these two instances only with Kametz, the Massorah safeguards the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 465 University Library Cambridge on Ps. 102 21.

¹ Comp. אֲסִיר a prisoner Isa. 10 4; 24 22; 42 7.

התקס"ז = § 987.

אֲסִירִים prisoners, occurs three times in this form. That is, twice without and once with the prefix He. By fixing the number at three, the Massorah militates against the textual reading or Kethiv אֲסִירִים in Judg. 16 21 and 25. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 50b, on Gen. 39 22 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 322a, on Job 3 18 and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ps. 68 7. The heading in List III is much simpler, viz. אֲסִירִים בִּי אִי אֲסִירִים.

התקס"ח = § 988.

אֲסִירִים they are bound, occurs three times in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah and which I have found in Harley 5710-11 only, Vol. I, fol. 26b, on Gen. 39 20, is incorrect, since this participle plural occurs six times. Comp. also Ps. 146 7; Job 36 8; Neh. 4 12. The heading was most probably added by a later Nakdan to an incipient List.

התקס"ט = § 989.

אֲסִיר occurs twice in two different senses. That is, in Isaiah it denotes a prisoner whilst in Exodus it is a proper name, Assir one of the sons of Korah. As both these expressions respectively occur several times it is evident that the design of this Massorah is not to record the number of instances, but to emphasize the fact that this word is used in two different senses, and the two passages adduced are simply designed to illustrate this statement. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Exod. 6 24.

Comp. אָסַף אַסִּיר also 1 Chron. 6 7, 22; once אָסַף אַסִּיר defective 1 Chron. 3 17; and אָסַף אַסִּיר a prisoner Isa. 10 4; 24 22.

הַתְּקִיץ = § 990.

אָסַף אָסַף. Wherever this trilateral is a proper name it is אָסַף with Kametz under the Samech and when it is the preterite third person singular masculine, denoting to gather &c. it is אָסַף with Pathach under the Samech. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 108b, on 1 Chron. 6 24.

הַתְּקִיץ = § 991.

אָסַף אָסַף. The verb אָסַף in all its forms is normally construed with the preposition אֶל except in three instances where it is combined with אֶל. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 255b, on 2 Kings 22 20. It will be seen that Jerem. 47 6 which is in the received text אָסַף אָסַף is given in this Rubric as the second instance where it is אָסַף אָסַף; whilst Amos 3 9 which is אָסַף אָסַף in the textus receptus is here omitted. In the printed Massorah on Amos 3 9 where this abnormal construction is mentioned, Jacob b. Chayim refers to the Massorah Finalis for the Rubric and in the Massorah Finalis he states that it is given in the Massorah on Amos, but it is not recorded in either place.

הַתְּקִיץ = § 992.

אָסַף אָסַף and he shall gather, occurs three times, That is, to distinguish it from the other four instances in which this trilateral occurs with the prefix Vav and where it is אָסַף אָסַף a proper name with Kametz under the Samech. (Comp. Neh. 12 46; 1 Chron. 16 5; 2 Chron. 29 30; 35 15.)

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 98a, on Numb. 19 9 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 138b, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 124a, on Isa. 11 12; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 221a, on Numb. 19 9; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 112a; (VI) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage and (VII) the printed Massorah on Isa. 11 12.

הַתְּקִיץ = § 993.

אָסַף אָסַף. Wherever this preterite second person singular with the prefix Vav, occurs in the Scriptures it is defective except in one instance where it is plene. As it occurs altogether six times and is in five instance without the He (אָסַף Gen. 6 21; Exod. 3 16; 23 10; Levit. 25 3; Deut. 11 14) and plene in one instance only (Judg. 18 25) the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge University Library Add. 465 on Exod. 23 10.

הַתְּקִיץ = § 994.

אָסַף אָסַף and thou shalt gather it, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 125b, on Deut. 22 2 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 241b, on 2 Kings 5 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 100b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 134b, on Deut. 22 2 and (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 135a, on the same passage. List I adds at the end that it denotes two different things in the two passages (ואֵתֵן בְּבִישָׁה).

הַתְּקִיץ = § 995.

אָסַף אָסַף to gather, occurs three times. The design of this Massorah is to distinguish between this Kal infinitive from אָסַף, and the Hiphil future first person singular from אָסַף, which also occurs three times (Zeph. 1 2, 3, 3) and in one passage is used in close proximity therewith. Of this Rubric, I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 152b, on Jerem. 8 13 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 214b, on Zeph. 1 2; (III) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 8 13 and (IV) the same on Micah 2 12. The printed Massorah heads both Lists אָסַף אָסַף.

הַתְּקִיץ = § 996.

אָסַף אָסַף to gather, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 368a, on Eccl. 2 26 which I have printed and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage. It is remarkable that both these Lists give the catchword אָסַף for the second instance, viz. 2 Kings 5 7, although Zeph. 3 8 and 2 Kings 5 7 are not parallel passages.

הַתְּקִיץ = § 997.

אָסַף אָסַף when thou hast gathered, occurs three times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter א, § 675, is incorrect, since this Kal infinitive with the suffix second person singular occurs twice only. In Levit. 23 39, here given as the first instance, it is אָסַף אָסַף with the suffix second person plural, which is unique and is so marked in the Massorah Parva of Harley 5710—11 (אָסַף אָסַף).

הַתְּקִיץ = § 998.

אָסַף אָסַף and he gathered, occurs twenty times. That is, this Kal future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, to distinguish it from the same quadriliteral which is the Niphal future third person singular masculine which is pointed אָסַף אָסַף and which is recorded below in § 1008.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 4445, fol. 41a, on Gen. 49 33; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 480a, on 2 Chron. 1 14; (III) the same MS., fol. 502a, on 2 Chron. 29 20 and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 669 which I have printed. Of the three MS. Lists which I have found since the publication of the first Volume of the Massorah, List I exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric. The sequence of the passages is more regular, and shows how the later Nakdanim mixed up the catchwords.

הַתְּקִיץ = § 999.

אָסַף אָסַף I gather thee, occurs three times and is defective. Though אָסַף אָסַף is in 1 Sam. 15 6 the Kal future first person singular masculine with suffix second person singular and the active participle with the suffix second person singular in the other two passages, yet the Massorah groups them together because this quadriliteral has identically the same vowel-points. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 115b, on 2 Kings 22 20 which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 212b, on the same passage.

הַתִּיר = § 1000.

אָסַף אָסַף thou shall gather, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish this Kal future second person singular masculine from the same quadriliteral which is pointed אָסַף אָסַף Niphal future third person singular feminine which occurs three times. (Vide infra, § 1009.) Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 180b, on Ps. 26 9 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Deut. 28 38.

הַתִּיר = § 1001.

אָסַף אָסַף and they gathered, occurs ten times, and the sign thereof in Chaldee is: The aged sent quails, the Philistines sent the bones of the King, and to their brethren silver and wine.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the most ancient and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty-two Lists, twenty in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 92b, on Numb. 11 32 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 130b, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 87b, on 1 Sam. 5 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 46a, on 1 Sam. 17 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 72a, on 2 Sam. 21 13; (VI) the same MS., fol. 116a, on 2 Kings 23 1; (VII) the same MS., fol. 174a, on Jerem. 40 12; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 271b, on 2 Chron. 24 11; (IX) the same MS., fol. 275a, on 2 Chron. 29 15; (X) Add. 15,251, fol. 43a, on Exod. 4 29; (XI) the same MS., fol. 181a, on 2 Sam. 21 13; (XII) the same MS., fol. 260b, on Jerem. 40 12; (XIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 102b, on 1 Sam. 5 8; (XIV) the same

MS., fol. 264a, on 2 Kings 23 1; (XV) the same MS., fol. 296a, on Jerem. 40 12; (XVI) the same MS., fol. 502b, on 2 Chron. 29 15; (XVII) Add. 21,160, fol. 70a, on Exod. 4 29; (XVIII) the same MS., fol. 207a, on Numb. 11 32; (XIX) the same MS., fol. 279a, on 2 Kings 23 1; (XX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 232; (XXI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 4 29 and (XXII) the same on 2 Chron. 29 15.

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this quinqueliteral with Pathach under the Yod, i. e. Kal future third person plural masculine against being made conformable to the same quinqueliteral with Tzere under the Yod, i. e. the Niphal future which occurs twelve times and which is recorded below § 1011. Hence List XXI, as well as the printed Massorah on Numb. 31 32; 1 Sam. 5 11; 17 1; 2 Chron. 29 15 where this Rubric is mentioned, heads it תרתינן it occurs ten times with Pathach. This explains the Massoretic term in the headings of Lists XIII, XIV, XV, XVII, XVIII and XIX, viz. תרתינן, thus showing that תרתינן and תרתינן are synonyms and are used interchangeably. No fewer than fourteen out of the twenty-two Lists have the mnemonic sign, viz. Lists III, IV, V, VI, VII, VIII, IX, XI, XIII, XIV, XV, XVI, XVIII and XX. Whilst the sign with the heading, but without the List is also given in seven instances: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 40 12; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 175b, on 1 Sam. 5 11; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 256a, on 2 Kings 23 1; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 60b, on Jerem. 40 12; (V) the printed Massorah on Numb. 11 32; (VI) the same on 1 Sam. 5 11 and (VII) the same on 17 1.

תתרי"ג = § 1002.

תתרי"ג he was gathered, occurs three times, twice with Pathach and once with Kametz . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. That is, in the two instances where it has Pathach under the Samech it is the Niphal preterite third person singular masculine, whilst in the one instance where it is with Kametz it is in the Niphal participle singular masculine. The Massorah, however, as usual groups them together and simply indicates the difference in the vowel-points. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 104a, on Numb. 27 13 which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 49 29, and (III) the same on Isa. 57 1.

תתרי"ד = § 1003.

תתרי"ד and thou shalt be gathered, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 104a, on Numb. 27 13 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 255b, on 2 Kings 22 20; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on 2 Chron. 34 28 and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, 677.

תתרי"ה = § 1004.

תתרי"ה they were gathered, occurs fourteen times. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 264b, on 2 Chron. 12 5 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 423b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 460b, on Neh. 8 13; (IV) the same MS., fol. 503a, on 2 Chron. 30 3 and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 665.

תתרי"ו = § 1005.

תתרי"ו and they were gathered, occurs four times. That is, this Niphal preterite third person plural which occurs fourteen times, as is recorded in the preceding Rubric, also occurs four times with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 18b, on Gen. 29 3 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Zech. 12 3.

תתרי"ז = § 1006.

תתרי"ז gather ye, occurs six times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 49 1. It is in conflict with the textus receptus in which there are five instances only of this imperative plural masculine and where we have קבצו or קבצו as the official reading in some MSS. in Isa. 43 6 and not קבצו as is stated in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah. It may be that this Massorah is based upon MSS. which read here קבצו just as other Codices read קבצו.

תתרי"ח = § 1007.

תתרי"ח he shall be gathered, occurs nine times. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the reading of this Niphal future third person singular masculine in these passages and thereby to exclude the variant יאסף = יאסף in Job 27 19 which obtained in the ancient Codices, as is evident from the Septuagint (προσθήσει) and the Syriac and which is accepted by many textual critics as preferable to the present Massoretic text.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 99a, on Numb. 20 26 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 140a, and (III) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage.

תתרי"ט = § 1008.

תתרי"ט and he was gathered, occurs seven times, four times it is Milal and three times Milra. That is, in four instances Samech has Segol and in three it has Tzere.

There are three recensions of this Massorah. The first groups all the seven instances together. In this form of it I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 155b, on Gen. 25 8 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 115b, on Deut. 32 50; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 16a, on Gen. 25 8; (IV) Orient. 2848, fol. 51b, and (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 41b, both on the same passage. From Lists II and III it is evident that the heading in List I as it is in the MS. and as I have printed it is incorrect, that it ought to be ה' מלעיל ו' מלר' and that Deut. 32 50 is omitted from the five instances in which this expression is used with Segol. Lists IV and V have this Rubric as follows: יאסף ו' וימטה אבריהם יאסף ו' וימטה אבריהם יאסף ו' וימטה אבריהם, thus making no distinction between the Milal and Milra.

The second recension heads this Rubric ה' מלעיל ו' מלר' and simply catalogues the five instances in which it is with Segol. In this form of it I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 62a, on Gen. 49 33; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Gen. 25 17; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, fol. 121a, margin and (IV) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 25 8.

The third recension heads it ו' מלר' and merely records the two instances in which the Samech is with Segol. Of it I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 33a, on Judg. 20 11; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 81a, on Numb. 11 30; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 177b, on Judg. 20 11, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Numb. 11 30. List III heads it ו' מלר' as in both these instances it begins the verse.

תתרי"י = § 1009.

תתרי"י thou shalt or she shall be gathered, occurs three times. The Massorah, as usual, groups here together the Niphal future second person singular masculine with the future third person singular feminine because it is the same form for both.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter א, § 678.

תתרי"יא = § 1010.

תתרי"יא they shall be gathered, occurs four times. This Niphal future third person plural masculine occurs altogether seventeen times. In thirteen instances it is with the prefix Vav (vide infra, § 1012) and in four only is it without the prefix. Hence the Massorah records these exceptional passages. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 29 8.

תתרי"יב = § 1011.

תתרי"יב and they were gathered, occurs twelve times. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this quinqueliteral with Tzere under the Yod, against the one with Pathach under the Yod as set forth in § 1001, that is to distinguish the Niphal ו' מלר' from the Kal ו' מלר'.

Of this Rubric I collated fifteen Lists, fourteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 56b, on Exod. 32 26 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 162a, on Judg. 9 6; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 75b, on Exod. 32 26; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 7b, on Josh. 10 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 25b, on Judg. 9 6; (VI) the same MS., fol. 26b, on Judg. 10 17; (VII) the same MS., fol. 33a, on Judg. 20 14; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 46a, on 1 Sam. 17 1; (IX) the same MS., fol. 73b, on 2 Sam. 23 11; (X) the same MS., fol. 373b, on Ezra 3 1; (XI) the same MS., fol. 387b, Neh. 12 28; (XII) Add. 15,451, fol. 178a, on Judg. 20 14; (XIII) the same MS., fol. 459b, on Neh. 8 1; (XIV) Add. 21,160, fol. 120b, on Exod. 32 26, and (XV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

It will be seen that in the Rubric which I have printed the catchwords for the twelfth instance, viz. 2 Chron. 30 18 are ו' מלר'. This is manifestly due to a clerical error, since they are a duplicate for Exod. 32 26 and ought to be ערוב as the other Lists have it. List II is of importance to textual criticism inasmuch as it gives מגיל שם as the catchwords for Judg. 9 6, thus reading here כל בעלי שם in harmony with verses 46 and 47 of this very chapter. This reading is not only supported by the Massorah of the most ancient Codex extant, Orient. 4445 (List III), but by Lists VII, XII and XIII which emanate from different Massoretic Schools and belong to countries far apart. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that the Codices on which these Lists are based read כל בעלי שם in Judg. 9 6.

תהרי"ב = § 1012.

נאספין they are being gathered, occurs three times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter מ, § 663.

תהרי"ג = § 1013.

נאסף gathering, occurs four times . . . and once it is gathered. That is, in four instances this quadriliteral is pointed נאָפֶּה, Piel participle singular masculine and in one instance it is pointed נאָפֶּה Pual participle masculine.

Of this Rubric, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 91b, on Numb. 10 25 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 129a; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 80a; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 204a; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 106b; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35, all on the same passage and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 9 21.

תהרי"ד = § 1014.

נאסף and it shall be gathered, occurs twice. That is, in these two instances this quadriliteral is pointed נאָפֶּה, Pual preterite, whilst in the other three instances where it occurs it is pointed נאָפֶּה Kal preterite (Numb. 19 9; 2 Kings 5 11; Isa. 11 12). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 222a, on Zech. 14 14.

תהרי"ה = § 1015.

נאספין and they shall be gathered, occurs twice. That is, Pual preterite third person plural, in the other two instances where this quinqueliteral occurs it is pointed נאָפֶּה Kal preterite third person plural (Josh. 20 4; Dan. 11 10). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 202b, on Hos. 10 10 which I have printed and (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 24 22.

תהרי"ו = § 1016.

אסף a gathering, occurs twice. That is, with Segol under the Samech to distinguish it from אָפֶּה with Tzere under the Samech which also occurs twice (Deut. 18 16; Ezek. 5 16) and which is the Hiphil future first person singular from אָפֶּה. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 172b, on Isa. 32 10.

תהרי"ז = § 1017.

אָפֶּר to bind, occurs twice, once it is defective and once plene. As the two instances of this Kal infinitive absolute not only occur in the same book, but within seventeen verses of each other and yet are differently spelled, the Massorah safeguards this peculiar phenomenon. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 29b, on Judg. 15 13 which I have printed and (II) the same MS., fol. 30a, on Judg. 16 11.

תהרי"ח = § 1018.

לִּאָפֶּר. Four forms of the verb אָפֶּר to bind, are plene. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 29b, on Judg. 15 10 and (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 174a, on the same passage. It will be seen that though the heading of the List which I have printed states that there are four such instances, three only are recorded. From List II we see that this discrepancy between the heading of the Rubric and its contents is due to the carelessness of the Scribe who omitted כי after the catchwords יאמרני which states that Judg. 16 11 contains two instances of this plene orthography.

תהרי"ט = § 1019.

אָפֶּר bind ye, occurs twice in the Scriptures. In the other instances where this quadriliteral occurs it is pointed אָפֶּר and אָפֶּר, being the Pual preterite third person plural (Isa. 22 3). Of this Rubric, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 63b, on Jerem. 46 4 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 314a, on Ps. 118 27; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 263a, on Jerem. 46 4; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 118 27 and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תהרי"י = § 1020.

וַיֹּאכֵר and he bound, occurs three times [in the Pentateuch] twice it is with Sheva and once with Chateph-Segol and throughout the record of the binding of Samson it is likewise with Chateph-Segol.

Of this important Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Halle Ochlath Ve-Ochlath, Supplement fol. 132a margin, which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 42 24. It is also to be remarked that on Gen. 42 24, which is the only instance where this quinqueliteral has Chateph-Segol under the Aleph, the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,160; Orient. 2349 and the printed Massorah state that this is unique and that in the record of Samson's binding the Aleph is also with Chateph-Segol (לֹא יִשָּׁר וְכָל כְּפִיּוֹת דִּשְׁמֹן רַבּוּי).

To understand this artificial Massorah it is necessary to remark that (1) the three instances which constitute this Rubric are restricted to the Pentateuch, the expression כְּפִיּוֹת as is frequently the case, has been omitted from the heading. (Vide infra, § 1025.) This is evident from the fact that וַיֹּאכֵר also occurs three times outside the Pentateuch (2 Kings 9 21; Job 12 18; 2 Chron. 13 3). That (2) the instances in connection with the history of Samson where the Aleph is also with Chateph-Segol are not the Kal future third person singular with the prefix Vav but three forms which have prefixes with Segol and that they too are followed by Chateph-Segol under the Aleph (Judg. 15 10, 12, 13), just as is the case in the unique וַיֹּאכֵר where the Segol under the Yod is followed by Chateph-Segol under the Aleph. And that (3) by the expression Dagesh the Massorah denotes the simple Sheva and by Raphe, Chateph-Segol or Chateph-Pathach.

¹ Comp. my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, p. 122 &c. To what I have here stated I will add the following important testimony of the Minchath Shai on Gen. 42 24 on the Massoretic terminology Raphe and Dagesh and Dagesh which he writes: "לפי שיהיה ה' פשוט ולא יתחיל ה' תורה ודגש קול וכן יודי המסורה לקרות ונס' לשונו שחתה את אחריו" והנה כשהוא בחפז כגון או כי ככלל רמז, וכן יודי המסורה לקרות ונס' לשונו שחתה את אחריו" והנה כשהוא בחפז כגון או כי ככלל רמז by Raphe the Massorah means that the Aleph is with Chateph-Segol and by Dagesh that the Aleph is with simple Sheva, and not that the Samech has Dagesh, for it is without Dagesh in all the instances. This is the manner of the Massorah to call the Sheva under the gutturals מורה' by the name Dagesh and Raphe where these gutturals have Chateph-Segol or Chateph-Pathach.

תהרי"א = § 1021.

וַיֹּאכֵר they shall bind me, occurs twice once it is defective and once plene. As the two instances of this Kal future third person singular masculine with suffix first person singular not only occur in the same book, but within four verses of each other and yet are differently spelled, the Massorah safeguards the variation in the orthography. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,266, fol. 147b, on Judg. 16 7.

תהרי"ב = § 1022.

וַיֹּאכֵר and they bound him, occurs three times, twice it is defective and once plene. It will be seen that one of the two defective instances occurs in Judg. 15 13, and as the single plene also occurs in this book (Judg. 16 21) the Massorah safeguards this diversity in the orthography which obtained within so short a space. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 278b, on 2 Chron. 33 11 which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlath Ve-Ochlath II, § 312, and (III) the printed Massorah on Judg. 16 21. At the end of this List (No. III) Jacob b. Chayim adds that he has also given it in Gen. 12 1—17 27 (נמנר בם בלך לך), but it is not to be found in this Pericope.

תהרי"ג = § 1023.

אֶסְתֵּר הַמַּלְכָּה Esther the queen, occurs fourteen times. Between the crowning of Esther as queen and the end of the book chap. 2 17—10 3 this name without and with prefixes occurs no less than forty-seven times. In thirty-three instances it is simply Esther and in fourteen only is the appellation הַמַּלְכָּה the queen added to it. Hence the Massorah records the exceptional phrase. The necessity for safeguarding these exceptions will be apparent when the irregularity of the presence and absence of this appellation is considered. In chap. 2, after the coronation, Esther's name is mentioned five times and it is in four instances without and in one instance only with the royal title. In chap. 4 where her name occurs ten times it is never accompanied by the queen. In chap. 5 where her name occurs eleven times it is Esther simply in eight instances and Father the queen, in three only. In chap. 6 where it occurs once only it is merely Esth-r. In chap. 7, however, where it occurs seven times it is Esther the queen in five instances and without the appellation in two only; whereas in chap. 8 where it occurs eight times it is in two instances only Esther the queen, and in six Esther alone; and in chap. 9 where she is mentioned five times, she is called Esther the queen in three instances and in two Esther without the royal title.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 272a, on Esther 2 22 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 273a, on Esther 5 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 360b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 363b, on Esther 9 29; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 406a, on Esther 5 3; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 311a, on the same passage; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Esther 7 1 and (VIII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תתרכ"ד = § 1024.

תתרכ"ד. The noun תתרכ"ד, with its various suffixes both singular and plural denoting nose, nostrils, face &c. when governed by an active verb, is always preceded by the preposition על except in one instance where it is combined with תתרכ"ד. This separate Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ezek. 8 17. It forms part of the lengthy Massoretic List of words which are exceptionally combined with תתרכ"ד, but which are normally in construction with תתרכ"ד. (Vide supra, § 523, p. 59 &c.)

¹ Comp. Gen. 24 47; 2 Sam. 14 4; 1 Kings 1 23; Ezek. 16 12; Ps. 138 7.

תתרכ"ה = § 1025.

תתרכ"ה whether also? is three times with Pathach. That is, the prefix He in the particle תתרכ"ה also, has Pathach (ח) because it is the interrogative and thus distinguishes it from the same trilateral in which the He is with Kametz (ק) because it is the article. (Vide infra, § 1030.)

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 18 24. As these three instances are in the Pentateuch and, moreover, as תתרכ"ה also occurs three times outside the Pentateuch (Amos 2 11; Job 34 17; 48/8) there can hardly be any doubt that this Rubric is restricted to this division of the Bible and that the expression תתרכ"ה, as is not unfrequently the case, has been omitted from the heading. (Vide supra, § 1020.)

תתרכ"ו = § 1026.

תתרכ"ו and also, begins a verse six times in the Scriptures and throughout Ezra it is likewise so except in one instance where it is without the prefix. As it is without the prefix Vav in twenty-eight instances¹ and with it in these six only, the Massorah safeguards the minority. In Ezra-Nehemiah, however, where it begins a verse four times, the reverse is the case תתרכ"ו is in the majority and תתרכ"ו in the minority, hence the Massorah safeguards the solitary instance.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this form in the printed Massorah, I collated seven Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 85a, on Ezek. 23 40 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 280a, on Job 19 4; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 114a, on Levit. 26 44; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 327b, on Job 19 4; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 379b, on the same passage; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 98b, on Levit. 26 44 and (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Job 19 4.

All the Lists give תתרכ"ו Ps. 78 31 as one of the six instances in which this trilateral begins a verse though it is here a noun with the prefix Vav denoting and the wrath of. This affords a striking illustration of the fact that the Massorah groups together under one Rubric, words which are totally different in sense provided they are spelled alike.

¹ Comp. תתרכ"ו Levit. 26 16, 41; Numb. 16 14; Deut. 33 3; 1 Sam. 14 30; 2 Sam. 4 11; Isa. 26 8; 40 24; 48 13; Ps. 44 10; 58 3; 89 28, 44; 119 3; Prov. 23 28; Job 4 19; 6 27; 9 14; 14 3; 15 4, 16; 25 6; 34 12; 35 14; 36 29; 37 1, 11; Neh. 9 18.

תתרכ"ז = § 1027.

תתרכ"ז and also, occurs three times at the beginning of a verse in Ezra. These three instances constitute a separate Rubric because they are Chaldee. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 375b, on Ezra 6 15 which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 418a, on Ezra 5 14. As this particule with the prefix Vav occurs altogether three times in Ezra and always begins a verse, the heading ought properly to be תתרכ"ז.

תתרכ"ח = § 1028.

תתרכ"ח and also, begins a verse nine times in the Scriptures. The six Hebrew instances and the three Chaldee which in one School of Massorites have been treated separately in §§ 1026 and 1027 because of their being two different languages, are here united into one Rubric, by another School of Massorites.

Of this recension of the Rubric, which occurs more generally, I collated eleven Lists, eight in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 289a, on Ezra 5 10 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 289b, on Ezra 5 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 182a, on Ezek. 23 40; (IV) the same MS., fol. 375a, on Ezra 5 10; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 280a, on Ezek. 23 40; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 182a, on Levit. 26 44; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ezek. 23 40; (VIII) the same Codex on Ezra 5 14; (IX) the printed Massorah on Job 19 4; (X) the same on Job 36 16 and (XI) the same on Ezra 5 14.

Like the first recension of this Massorah, this Rubric too gives Ps. 78 31 as one of the instances in which this trilateral begins a verse.

תתרכ"ט = § 1029.

תתרכ"ט and in anger, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is primarily to safeguard the reading in Jerem. 21 5 against being made conformable to Deut. 29 27, where identically the same phrase is used, but where תתרכ"ט is without the Vav conjunctive.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 44b, on Jerem. 21 5 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 160a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 297a, on Pa. 55 4 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תתרכ"י = § 1030.

תתרכ"י the anger, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, with Kametz under the He because it is here the article, to distinguish it from the same trilateral with Pathach under the He which also occurs three times. (Vide supra, § 1025.)

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 57a, on Jerem. 36 7 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 171a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 110a, on Deut. 9 19; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 140a, on Deut. 29 23; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 9 19; (VII) the same on Deut. 29 23 and (VIII) the same on Jerem. 36 7.

From the remark in the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,250, on Deut. 9 19 (תתרכ"י) it is evident that some Massorites grouped together § 1025 and this Rubric into one Massorah and headed it, It occurs six times, three with Kametz and three with Pathach. This supplies the clue to Jacob b. Chayim's incorrect Massorah Parva on the same passage which states תתרכ"י קצת הו' תתרכ"י and which ought to be תתרכ"י קצת הו' תתרכ"י.

תתרכ"יא = § 1031.

תתרכ"יא my wrath against them, is twice thus combined in the Scriptures. In the other two instances where this phrase occurs it is the shorter form תתרכ"יא (Ezek. 20 21; Hos. 8 5). As both the longer and shorter forms are used within a few verses of each other, the Massorah guards Ezek. 20 8 against being made conformable to verse 21 of the same chapter. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 81b, on Ezek. 20 8.

תתרכ"יב = § 1032.

תתרכ"יב thy face, thy nostrils, is twice plene. That is, in these two instances the Yod after the Pe with Segol (פ) to show that it is the plural, thus distinguishing it from the other nine instances where this noun occurs with Segol under the Pe and is pronounced in exactly the same way because of its distinctive or pausal accent, but where it is the singular.¹ The record of these two instances was deemed especially necessary, since in the passage in Psalm 18 16 which is identical with Exod. 15 18 the phrase is וְיָצֵא in the singular.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed; (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 3a, on Gen. 3 19 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 6b, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 76a, on Exod. 15 8 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 3 19. Lists II and III head this Rubric מַסֹּרֶת and give מַסֹּרֶת Lament. 4 20 as the third instance which is very artificial.

¹ Comp. מַסֹּרֶת Exod. 32 12; Hab. 3 8; Lament. 2 21; מַסֹּרֶת Ps. 18 16; 77 6; 85 4; מַסֹּרֶת Ps. 90 11; Job 14 13; 40 11.

תְּהַרְלִי = § 1033.

אָפֹד now, is four times without Aleph and they occur in the same book. In the other eleven instances where it occurs it is אָפֹד with Aleph paragogic.¹

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah in this separate form, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 230a, on Job 19 6 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 329b, on Job 24 25 and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 351b, on Job 19 6.

These four instances form part of the Massoretic Lists of words throughout the Bible which are defective of Aleph. (Vide supra, § 14a—d, p. 5 &c.) They also constitute part of the Massorah in some MSS. which record the orthography of the interrogative אִמָּה. (Vide supra, § 417, p. 57.)

¹ Comp. אָפֹד Gen. 27 33, 37; 43 11; Exod. 33 16; Judg. 9 38; 2 Kings 10 10; Isa. 19 12; 22 1; Hos. 13 10; Prov. 6 3; Job 9 24.

תְּהַרְלִי = § 1034.

אֵפֹד Ephod, is nine times plene in this form . . . and throughout the Prophets and Hagiographa it is likewise so. That is, this noun with the prefixes He, Vav and Lamed is with Vav plene in these nine instances. As this noun with the different prefixes occurs no fewer than thirty-one times in the Pentateuch and as it is defective in twenty-two instances¹ and plene in these nine only, the Massorah safeguards the orthography in the minority of cases. In the Prophets and Hagiographa, however, where this noun occurs eighteen times without and with the prefixes,² the later plene orthography has uniformly been adopted. And as there is not a single exception to this rule the Massorah simply records the fact.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 84a, on Exod. 28 27 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 74a; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 70a; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 47b; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 112a, all on the same passage and (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 28 4. All these Lists state that there are nine such instances only and omit Exod. 28 26. This, as is to be seen in the notes to my edition of the Hebrew Bible, is in accordance with the Jerusalem Codex. The Hellali Codex, however, has it plene.

¹ Comp. אֵפֹד Exod. 28 15; 29 8; אֵפֹד 28 6, 12, 25, 26; 29 5, 5, 5; 39 2, 7, 18, 19, 20, 21, 21, 21, 22; Levit. 8 7, 7; אֵפֹד Exod. 25 7.

² Comp. אֵפֹד Judg. 17 5; 18 14; 1 Sam. 2 18, 28; 14 3; 22 18; 23 6; 2 Sam. 6 14; Hos. 3 4; 1 Chron. 15 27; אֵפֹד Judg. 18 17, 18, 20; 1 Sam. 21 10; 23 9; 30 7, 7; אֵפֹד Judg. 8 27.

תְּהַרְלִי = § 1035.

לְאָפֹד for, or in the Ephod, occurs three times, it is twice plene and once defective. That is, in Exod. 35 9, 27, it is spelled with the Vav and in the first instance, viz. Exod. 25 7 it has retained its primitive orthography לְאָפֹד without the mater lectiones. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174 on Exod. 35 9 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4227, fol. 34b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah (List III) which states that the defective instance is in Exod. 35 27 (לְאָפֹד רִבְעָא בְּרִי' הוּא) is incorrect. The expression בְּרִי' = Exod. 35 27 is a mistake for קָרַי' = Exod. 25 7 as it is in List II and as is evident from the fact that Exod. 35 27 is given in the preceding Massorah, viz. § 1034 as one of the nine plenes.

תְּהַרְלִי = § 1036.

בְּחֹשֶׁךְ in darkness, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 29a, on Jerem. 23 12.

תְּהַרְלִי = § 1037.

עָמַד it ceased, is at an end, occurs four times . . . and once it is with the prefix He. That is, to distinguish this preterite third person singular with Tzere under the Pe from the two instances where this trilateral is with Segol under the Pe and where it is a noun with the pausal accent (Isa. 34 12; Amos 6 10).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 55b, on Gen. 47 15 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 125b, on Isa. 16 4; (III) the same MS., fol. 130b, on Isa. 29 20; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 39a, on Gen. 47 15; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 57a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 132a, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 47 15. In Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 32a, on Gen. 47 15 the parallel Rubric simply records the two instances in which עָמַד עָמַד occurs and hence the heading בְּבִגְדֵי.

תְּהַרְלִי = § 1038.

עָמַד an end, nothing, occurs twice with Kametz. That is, with Kametz under the Aleph instead of Segol as it is in all the other eleven instances where it occurs.¹ This is due to the pausal accent which is Soph-Pasuk in Isa. 34 12 and Atnach in Amos 6 10. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 238b, on Amos 6 10.

¹ Comp. עָמַד Numb. 13 28; 23 18; Deut. 15 4; Judg. 4 9; 2 Sam. 12 14; Isa. 5 8; 41 29; 45 6, 14; 64 15; Amos 9 8.

תְּהַרְלִי = § 1039.

וּבְאֵפֶסֶת and without, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 341b, on Prov. 14 28 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 371a, on Dan. 8 25 and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

תְּהַרְלִי = § 1040.

אֶפְסָנִי they compassed me, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 177b, on Ps. 18 5 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 287b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 314b, on Ps. 116 3 and (IV) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 22 5. Though none of these Lists state that it is defective in any of these passages, yet the Massorah Parva on 2 Sam. 22 5 emphatically notices that this is a unique instance in which this preterite third person plural with the suffix first person singular is defective (אֶפְסָנִי לִי). Comp. Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250 and the printed Massorah on this passage. Other MSS., however, read it plene here also.

תְּהַרְלִי = § 1041.

וַיִּתְאַפֵּק and he refrained himself, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 29b, on Gen. 43 31 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 273b, on Esther 5 10; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 34a, on Gen. 43 31; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 361a, on Esther 5 10; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 43 31 and (VI) the same on Esther 5 10.

תְּהַרְלִי = § 1042.

אֶפְקָה to Aphek, Apheka, occurs five times . . . and in one instance it is with the prefix Vav. That is, in four passages where it is without the prefix Vav it is the name of a city אֶפְקָה with the local He, whilst in Josh. 15 53 it is the proper name אֶפְקָה with the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 85a, on 1 Kings 20 26 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 690. The last line in List I ought properly to be אֶפְקָה since it is one of the five instances. List II does not refer at all to the fact that one of the instances is with the prefix Vav which is misleading.

תְּהַרְלִי = § 1043.

אֶפְרָיִם young birds, is always defective. That is, whether without or with prefixes and suffixes this plural noun is always without Vav after the Resh. (Comp. Deut. 22 6; Ps. 84 4; Job 39 30.)

תְּהַרְמִי = § 1044.

אֶפְרַיִם Ephraim, is in four instances with Kametz and the mnemonic sign thereof in Chaldee is, The staff of Micah is preceded and firmly established . . . and wherever it has the accent Athnach or Soph-Pasuk it is likewise so.

This proper name without the prefixes occurs altogether one hundred and forty-nine times, and when it is with a non-pausal or conjunctive accent, which is the case in one hundred and six instances, has the normal Pathach under the Resh, viz. אֶפְרַיִם. In four instances, however, it is abnormally with Kametz, viz. אֶפְרַיִם though it has not a pausal accent. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional vowel-points. But that which is the exception in these four instances is the uniform rule wherever this name has the pausal accent Athnach or Soph-Pasuk which is the case in thirty-nine passages.¹

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 30b, on Judg. 17 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 200b, on Hos. 4 17; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 90a, on Numb. 13 8; (IV) the same MS., fol. 295a, on Hos. 4 17; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 100b, on Numb. 13 8; (VI) the same MS., fol. 175b, on Judg. 17 1; (VII) the same MS., fol. 372b, on Hos. 4 17; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 208a, on Numb. 13 8; (IX) Orient. 2349, fol. 108a, on the same passage; (X) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 186; (XI) the printed Massorah, on Numb. 13 8 and (XII) the same on Hos. 4 17.

Lists III, VIII, IX and XI have the mnemonic sign which is also given without the record of the passages in Orient. 4445, fol. 181b, on Numb. 13 8 and in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Hos. 4 17 and Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 168b, which I have printed. Of these, four read חוּסְרָא דְמִיכָה (Nos. III, IX; Orient. 4445; Harley) and three חוּסְרָא דְנִבְיָא (Nos. VIII, XI, St. Petersburg Codex).

¹ Comp. the twenty-three instances of אֶפְרַיִם with Athnach Gen. 41 52; Numb. 1 33; 7 48; Josh. 19 50; 20 7; 21 21; 24 30; Judg. 2 9; 3 27; 4 5; 10 9; 13 4; 15 13; 1 Sam. 1 1; 2 Sam. 13 23; Isa. 7 2; Jerem. 31 6; Hos. 11 9; 1 Chron. 6 52; 27 10, 14; 2 Chron. 13 4; 15 8 and the sixteen with Soph-Pasuk Gen. 46 20; 48 1; Josh. 17 8, 15; 21 20; 24 33; Judg. 10 1; 2 Sam. 16 6; 1 Kings 4 8; Isa. 11 13; 28 3; Jerem. 4 15; 7 15; Neh. 8 16; 1 Chron. 6 51; 2 Chron. 25 7.

תְּהַרְמִיָּה = § 1045.

אֶפְרַיִם and Ephraim, occurs five times in the Scriptures . . . and whenever it is combined with Manasseh it is likewise so. With the prefix Vav this name occurs altogether thirteen times. As it is in eight instances preceded by Manasseh¹ and in these five only it is without the companion name, the Massorah safeguards the passages in which it is alone.

Of this Rubric I collated fourteen Lists, twelve in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 155b, on Judg. 1 29 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 104b, on Hos. 5 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 19a, on Judg. 1 29; (IV) the same MS., fol. 166b, on Jerem. 31 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 202a, on Hos. 9 13; (VI) the same MS., fol. 202b, on Hos. 10 11; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 255a, on Jerem. 31 9; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 296a, on Hos. 10 11; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 163a, on Judg. 1 29; (X) the same MS., fol. 372b, on Hos. 5 5; (XI) Add. 21,160, fol. 290b, on Jerem. 31 9; (XII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 172; (XIII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 26 28 and (XIV) the same on Jerem. 31 9.

List XII not only states in the heading that there are four instances only (אֶפְרַיִם ד'), but enumerates four and omits Hos. 10 11 which is due to a later Nakdan who found an incomplete Rubric and altered the heading in accordance with the number of instances contained in the List. This is evident from all the other thirteen Lists which duly give the five passages.

¹ Comp. מְנַשֶּׁה וְאֶפְרַיִם Numb. 26 28; Josh. 14 4; 16 4; Isa. 9 20; Ps. 60 9; 108 9; 2 Chron. 34 6, 9.

תְּהַרְמִי = § 1046.

אֶפְרַתָּה Ephratha, occurs twice with the accent Zakeph-Katon and Kametz. That is, in the only two instances in which it occurs it has this accent.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 238b, on 1 Chron. 2 19 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 131a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 59a, on Gen. 48 7; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 56b, and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

The heading in List I ought properly to be בִּזְהֵרָא קָמֶצֶת לִישׁ וְעִירָא לִישׁ occurs twice and with Zakeph-Kametz, since it only occurs twice altogether and has in both instances this accent with Kametz. To the fact that אֶפְרַתָּה in the first instance is the name of a place near which Rachel died (Gen. 48 7) and in the second passage the name of one of Caleb's wives (1 Chron. 2 19) are due the different headings in the other four Lists. Thus List II has it תִּירָן בְּהָרֵי לִישׁ: Lists III and IV בִּזְהֵרָא בְּהָרֵי לִישׁ and List V בִּזְהֵרָא לִישׁ. It will thus be seen that all the other Massorahs emphasise the fact that this expression is used in two different senses which is unnoticed in the Rubric I have printed. These two expressions form part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ז, § 248, Vol. II, p. 217 &c.

תְּהַרְמִיָּה = § 1047.

אֶפְרַתָּה Ephratha, occurs five times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 315a, on 1 Chron. 2 24 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 48 7. There are altogether seven instances in which this expression occurs and the Rubric which I have printed omits Micah 5 1 and 1 Chron. 2 50. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List II) which gives all the seven is corrupt. An ignorant Nakdan divided 1 Chron. 4 4 into two separate catchwords and hence another Nakdan altered the heading ז = 7 into ז = 8. Moreover, the catchword בְּעֵדֵי כְּבֹרָה אֶפְרַתָּה = Gen. 35 16 should be עֵדֵי כְּבֹרָה דְאֶפְרַתָּה.

This Rubric affords another example of the manner in which the Massorah groups together in one Rubric words which are spelled and pointed alike without any regard to their difference in sense. Thus this quinqueliteral is in three instances the name of the place אֶפְרַתָּה Ephrath, with the local He (Gen. 35 16, 19; 48 7), in two it is the name אֶפְרַתָּה Ephrata, with the He as part of the expression (Micah 5 1; 1 Chron. 2 24), whilst in two passages it is the name אֶפְרַתָּה Ephratha, the father of Hur (1 Chron. 2 50; 4 4). When the Massorah Parva both in the MSS. (Add. 15,250; Add. 21,160) and in Jacob b. Chayim's edition remarks against Gen. 35 16, 19; 48 7 that אֶפְרַתָּה occurs three times it refers to אֶפְרַתָּה with the local He which occurs three times in the Pentateuch. By fixing the number at three the Massorah militates against those Codices which read אֶפְרַתָּה without the local He in Gen. 35 19.

תְּהַרְמִיָּה = § 1048.

אֶפְרַתִּי an Ephrathite, occurs three times in the Scriptures. In the fourth instance where this gentile noun occurs it is with the prefix He (Judg. 12 5). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only on 1 Kings 11 26.

תְּהַרְמִיָּה-תְּהַרְמִיָּה = § 1049—1050.

אָזַל he hastened, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs six times. For this Rubric see above § 199a—b, p. 36.

תְּהַרְמִיָּה = § 1051.

אֶזְלָה Azal, Words derived from אָזַל which are unique. This List, consisting of seven expressions without any heading, does not occur in the printed Massorah. It is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 77b, on Ezek. 13 18, and exhibits the first attempt to collect the different forms of the root אָזַל which respectively occur once only, and hence is incomplete. It will be seen that three of the seven instances represent the verb אָזַל (Numb. 11 17; Ezek. 42 6; Eccl. 2 10), one the noun אֶזְלָה a noble (Isa. 41 9) and three the noun אֶזְלָה a juncture, a joint, (Jerem. 38 12; Ezek. 13 18; 41 8), whilst three are omitted, viz. אֶזְלָה (Gen. 27 36); אֶזְלָה (Numb. 11 25) and אֶזְלָה (Exod. 24 11).

תְּהַרְמִיָּה = § 1052.

אָזַל Azal, Azal, occurs three times. That is, with Pathach under the Tsadi. These three instances include the one where Azal is regarded as the name of a place near Jerusalem (Zech. 14 5) and the two passages in which it is the name of a Benjamite. As a proper name of the Benjamite it occurs four times, but two instances only are included in this Rubric because it is here with Pathach, which is due to its being in pause; in the other two passages it is אָזַל with There (1 Chron. 8 37; 9 48).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 136a, on 1 Chron. 8 38 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 244b, on 1 Chron. 9 44 and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter κ , § 696. Lists II and III head this Rubric $\text{בְּתַרְחֵם} = \text{ב}$ it occurs three times and with Pathach which is not quite correct since it ought properly to be $\text{בְּתַרְחֵם} = \text{ב}$ in contradistinction to the other two instances where it is with Tzere. The phrase וְלִיהִדְרֹתֶיךָ at the end of List I which I have printed has simply been added by the Scribe to fill up the line.

התרגום = § 1053.

וְלִאֲזֵל and to Azel, occurs twice. That is, the name of the same Benjamite with the prefixes. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 186a, on 1 Chron. 8 38.

התרגום = § 1054.

וְיָרֵב he lieth in wait, occurs three times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter κ , § 701, is incorrect since this Kal future third person singular masculine occurs twice only, and though the heading of the Rubric states that it occurs three times, the Rubric itself records two.

התרגום = § 1055.

וְאָרַב ambush, is three times plene in this form. That is, with the different prefixes. וְאָרַב with and without prefixes occurs altogether seventeen times. In fourteen instances it is defective¹ and plene in these three instances only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 291b, on Ezra 8 21 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 6a; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 150b, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on Josh. 8 19.

¹ Comp. וְאָרַב Josh. 8 2, 12, 14; Lament. 3 10; וְאָרַב Josh. 8 21; Judg. 20 36, 37, 38; וְאָרַב Judg. 16 9, 12; 20 37; וְאָרַב Judg. 20 33; וְאָרַב 1 Sam. 22 8, 13.

התרגום = § 1056.

וְלִאֲרָבָה to the locust, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 257b, on Prov. 30 27 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 394a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 78 46 and (IV) the same on Prov. 30 27.

התרגום = § 1057.

וּבְאַרְבוֹת in Aruboth, in the windows, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 335a, on Eccl. 12 8 which I have printed and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 307b, on the same passage. As this expression denotes two different things in the two passages, List II rightly heads this Rubric $\text{בְּתַרְחֵם} = \text{ב}$.

התרגום = § 1058.

$\text{וּבְאַרְבַּע עֶשְׂרֵה שָׁנָה}$ and in the fourteenth year, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 252a, on 2 Kings 18 13 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 11a, on Gen. 14 5 and (III) the same MS., fol. 209b, on 2 Kings 18 13. As this phrase, which occurs twice, begins a verse in both instances the heading in Lists I and II ought more properly to be $\text{בְּתַרְחֵם} = \text{ב}$. In List III the heading is simply $\text{וּבְאַרְבַּע עֶשְׂרֵה שָׁנָה}$ which is perfectly correct since $\text{וּבְאַרְבַּע עֶשְׂרֵה שָׁנָה}$ by itself occurs twice only, but here too it ought properly to be $\text{בְּתַרְחֵם} = \text{ב}$.

התרגום = § 1059.

וּבְאַרְבַּע and four, begins a verse in two instances. This numeral with the prefix Vav occurs altogether seven times at the beginning of a verse. In five instances it is the masculine וּבְאַרְבַּע and in two only the feminine וּבְאַרְבַּע . Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Dan. 7 3. The end of the Rubric states that these two instances form part of the Massorah which records fourteen expressions with the prefix Vav which respectively occur twice at the beginning of a verse. (Vide infra, letter ν , § 63, p. 399.)

¹ Comp. וּבְאַרְבַּע 1 Kings 7 30; 2 Kings 7 3; Ezek. 1 6; 10 14; 40 42.

התרגום = § 1060.

וּבְאַרְבַּע about four, occurs four times. This Massorah is designed to exclude the reading וּבְאַרְבַּע in Zech. 2 10 which is exhibited both in MSS. and early editions as well as in some of the ancient Versions and which is now accepted by textual critics as the original reading.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 192a, on 1 Sam. 25 13 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 121b, on Zech. 2 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 52b, on 1 Sam. 25 13; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 308b, on Zech. 2 10; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 198b, on 1 Sam. 22 2; (VI) the same MS., fol. 390b, on Zech. 2 10 and (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 22 2.

התרגום = § 1061.

וּבְאַרְבַּע מאות about four hundred, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 50b, on 1 Sam. 22 2 which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 159a, on the same passage.

התרגום = § 1062.

$\text{וּבְאַרְבַּע עָשָׂר}$ to the fourteen, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Chron. 25 21.

התרגום = § 1063.

וּבְאַרְבַּעָן to the four of them, is four times with Nun. That is, with the suffix third person plural feminine. This numeral with the prefix Lamed and with the suffix third person plural occurs altogether ten times, all restricted to Ezekiel. In six instances this suffix is the masculine¹ and in four only is it the feminine. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. In fixing the number at four, the Massorah militates against those Codices which read וּבְאַרְבַּעָם in all the three instances in Ezek. 1 10 and which is also exhibited in the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485-86.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 70b, on Ezek. 1 18 which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 129; (III) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 295, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 1 18. The heading of this Rubric in List II clearly indicates the design of this Massorah and is as follows: וּבְאַרְבַּעָן throughout Ezekiel it is וּבְאַרְבַּעָן except in four instances where it is וּבְאַרְבַּעָם and the mnemonic sign thereof is וּבְאַרְבַּעָן which are the initials of וּבְאַרְבַּעָן on (Ezek. 1 10) eagle (1 10) appearance of (ver. 16) and וּבְאַרְבַּעָן and their fellows (ver. 18) and in connection with which this form is used.

¹ Comp. וּבְאַרְבַּעָם Ezek. 1 8, 10; 10 10, 12; 46 22, 23.

התרגום = § 1064.

וּבְאַרְבַּעִים forty, begins a verse twice. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 204a, on Ps. 95 10 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 308a; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 365a, both on the same passage; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 137a, on Deut. 25 3; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ps. 95 10; (VI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 25 3 and (VII) the same on Ps. 95 10. These two instances constitute part of the List of words which respectively occur twice at the beginning of a verse without the prefix Vav whilst in all other instances they are with Vav. (Vide infra, letter ν , § 62, p. 398 &c.)

התרגום = § 1065.

וּבְאַרְבַּעִים in the fortieth, or in forty, occurs twice . . . and once it is with the prefix Caph. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 110b, on Deut. 1 3 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 123a, on the same passage.

התרגום = § 1066.

וּבְאַרְבַּעִים the forty, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, in these three instances only has it the prefix He. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 146b, on 1 Chron. 26 31 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 254b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 12b, on Gen. 18 29; (IV) the same MS., fol. 94b, on Numb. 33 38; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 247b, on the same passage; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 18 29 and (VIII) the same on Numb. 33 38. List III adds at the end בְּחַיִּי אֵל בְּחַיִּי אֵל one instance is in the Pentateuch, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa.

§ 1067. = התרס"ז

וְאֵל and lo! occurs five times in this Section. That is, to distinguish it from the other five passages, where the interjection is used and where it is אֵלִי (Dan. 2 31; 4 7, 10; 7 8, 8). As these two expressions are used interchangeably (comp. Dan. 7 6, 7, 8) the Massorah records the instances where they are to be kept distinct from each other.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 282a, on Dan. 7 2 which I have printed and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 370a, on the same passage. List II indicates the design of this Massorah by the addition at the end אֵלִי אֵלִי.

§ 1068. = התרס"ח

אֲרָכָה a healing, occurs four times in the Scriptures, twice it is defective and twice plene. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed; (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 52a, on Jerem. 30 17 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 54b, on Jerem. 33 6; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 163a, on 2 Chron. 24 13; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 166a, on Jerem. 30 17; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 422b, on Neh. 4 1; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Chron. 24 13 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 33 6.

The design of this Massorah is to distinguish between this feminine noun which is without Dagesh in the Caph and the feminine adjective אֲרָכָה long which occurs three times and is with Dagesh. (Vide infra, § 1092.) This is indicated in the heading of List IV which is דִּרְמֵן אֲרָכָה these four instances are Raphe. The two instances in which it is plene and the two defective which are partly indicated at the end of List I are better described by a mnemonic sign at the end of List III, viz. שִׁמְעוּ עִבְרִי מִלִּי עִבְרִי הַעֲבֵרִי with the verb in the past it is plene [Neh. 4 1; 2 Chron. 24 13] with the future it is defective [Jerem. 30 17; 33 6].

§ 1069. = התשס"ט

אֲרוֹן the ark of, is three times defective in the Pentateuch. In the Pentateuch, where this construct occurs altogether eighteen times, it is plene in fifteen instances and defective in these three passages only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions which in fact exhibit the original orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 101b, on Numb. 4 5 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 84a, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah, on Exod. 30 6. At the end of List III there is the following addition וְכֹל אֲרוֹן יְהוָה הָיוּ נֹבֵי וְחֲזֵי מִלֵּאִים יִכַּל בְּאֲרוֹן מִלֵּא בְּכֹל הַקִּיָּיִם and with the prefix He it is always defective (הַקִּיָּיִם) in the Pentateuch and plene (הַקִּיָּיִם) in the Prophets and Hagiographa, but with the prefix Beth it is uniformly plene (בְּאֲרוֹן) throughout the Scriptures. This indicates the portions of the Bible in which certain forms of this expression have retained their primitive orthography as well as those parts in which the later introduction of the mater lectionis has successfully been carried through.

§ 1070. = התרע"א

אֲרוֹן אֱלֹהֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל the ark of the God of Israel, occurs seven times. The ark, which is mentioned about fifty-two times in Samnel, is followed by six different epithets: (1) In twenty-two instances it is called the ark of God; (2) in eighteen the ark of Jehovah; (3) in two the ark of the covenant of God; (4) in two the ark of the covenant of Jehovah; (5) in one the ark of the covenant of Jehovah of hosts, and (6) in the seven passages before us the ark of the God of Israel. As the latter are restricted to one section and, moreover, as in this section some of the other epithets occur in the very same verses, the Massorah safeguards these seven instances against being interchanged with the other epithets.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 37b, on 1 Sam. 5 10 which I have printed; (II) Cambridge Add. 465; (III) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage and (IV) the printed

1 Comp. (I) אֲרוֹן אֱלֹהִים 1 Sam. 3 3; אֲרוֹן הָאֱלֹהִים 1 Sam. 4 13, 18, 19, 21, 22; 5 1, 2, 10, 10; 14 18, 18; 2 Sam. 6 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 12, 12; 15 24, 25, 29; אֲרוֹן יְהוָה 1 Sam. 4 8; 5 3, 4; 6 1, 8, 11, 16, 18, 21; 7 1, 1; 2 Sam. 6 9, 10, 11, 15, 16, 17; (II) אֲרוֹן בְּרִית הָאֱלֹהִים 1 Sam. 4 4; 2 Sam. 15 24; (IV) בְּרִית יְהוָה 1 Sam. 4 3, 5; (V) אֲרוֹן בְּרִית יְהוָה 1 Sam. 4 4.

Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 496. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah is incorrect. List III states that there are six instances only and omits 1 Sam. 5 11, whilst List IV which also states in the heading that there are six instances enumerates seven, but some of the catchwords are incorrect. וְיִשְׁלַח יְרָאֲמֹו = 1 Sam. 5 8 ought to be וְיִשְׁלַח יְרָאֲמֹו and וְיִשְׁלַח יְרָאֲמֹו = 1 Sam. 6 3 ought to be וְיִשְׁלַח יְרָאֲמֹו. As all the seven instances occur within a short space, i. e. 1 Sam. 5 7-6 3 and, moreover, as one of the instances is וְיִשְׁלַח יְרָאֲמֹו (1 Sam. 5 8) the heading of this Rubric should properly be וְיִשְׁלַח יְרָאֲמֹו.

§ 1071. = התרע"ב

אֲרוֹן בְּרִית הָאֱלֹהִים the ark of the covenant of God, occurs four times. As in all the other passages where the Divine name follows the combination אֲרוֹן בְּרִית it is the Tetragrammaton (vide infra, § 1072), the Massorah safeguards this exceptional phrase.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 140b, on 1 Chron. 16 6 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 248b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 150b, on Judg. 20 27 and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 485. The heading in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List IV) אֲרוֹן בְּרִית הָאֱלֹהִים is incorrect and should be אֲרוֹן בְּרִית הָאֱלֹהִים.

§ 1072. = התרע"ג

אֲרוֹן בְּרִית יְהוָה the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, occurs twenty-six times. That is, apart from Kings. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 248a, on 1 Chron. 15 26 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 3a, on Josh. 4 7; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 99a, on Numb. 10 33; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 204b, on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 173.

And throughout Kings it is likewise so except in two instances, viz. 1 Kings 2 26; 8 4. As the combination אֲרוֹן בְּרִית יְהוָה which is the exception in all the other books of the Bible is the normal one in Kings where it occurs four times (1 Kings 3 15; 6 19; 8 1, 6) and moreover, as in this book the phrase אֲרוֹן יְהוָה without בְּרִית is the exception, occurring twice only, the Massorah safeguards here the minority.

It is remarkable that all the Lists exclude Deut. 10 8 and include Josh. 3 17 where it is the absolute. As four of the instances are with the prefix Vav (אֲרוֹן) Numb. 10 33; 14 44; Josh. 6 8; 1 Chron. 17 1) and one is with the prefix Lamed (אֲרוֹן) (1 Chron. 28 2) the heading of this Rubric ought to be אֲרוֹן אֲרוֹן לְאֲרוֹן אֲרוֹן. The addition at the end of this Rubric in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah וְכֹל מִלְּבַיִת רִבְוֹא אֲרוֹן בְּרִית הָאֱלֹהִים is due to an ignorant Nakdan. This combination does not occur in Kings and the second part of this Rubric is correctly given in the other Lists.

§ 1073. = התרע"ד

אֲרוֹן יְהוָה the ark of Jehovah, occurs twenty-six times. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this phrase against being made conformable to the combination אֲרוֹן הָאֱלֹהִים which occurs thirty-three times.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 38b, on 1 Sam. 6 15 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 4b, on Josh. 6 13; (III) the same MS., fol. 262a, on 2 Chron. 8 11; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 118b, on Josh. 4 5; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 148b, on Josh. 6 13 and (VI) the printed Massorah, Finalis, letter א, § 174.

This Massorah is of importance to textual criticism. It discloses the fact that in 1 Kings 2 26a, the original reading was simply אֲרוֹן יְהוָה and that אֲרוֹן אֲרוֹן which is its traditional pronunciation, as is often the case, has been inserted into the text. (Vide supra, letter א, §§ 107-115, p. 27 &c.) It, moreover, shows that the reading in the second part of verse 2 in 1 Chron. 15 according to the Massorah, is אֲרוֹן יְהוָה and not אֲרוֹן הָאֱלֹהִים. This is confirmed by the Standard Codices (Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 21,161 &c.) and all the early editions except Jacob b. Chayim's, Venice 1524-25. This is the reading in the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486-87; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the second and third editions Naples 1491-93; Bresica 1494; the Complutensian, the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 &c. I have, therefore, adopted it in my edition of the Hebrew Bible where I give the alternate reading from the Codex Hellali in the margin.

1 Comp. אֲרוֹן הָאֱלֹהִים 1 Sam. 3 3; 4 13, 18, 19, 21, 22; 5 1, 2, 10, 10; 14 18, 18; 2 Sam. 6 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 12, 12; 15 24, 25, 29; 1 Chron. 13 5, 6, 7, 12, 14; 15 2, 2, 15, 24; 16 1; 2 Chron. 1 4. This is exclusive of the combination with the prefixes, viz. אֲרוֹן הָאֱלֹהִים 1 Sam. 4 11, 17; 2 Sam. 7 2 and אֲרוֹן הָאֱלֹהִים 1 Chron. 15 1.

And from 1 Sam. 6 1 to 7 2 it is likewise אָרֶן except in one instance, viz. 6 3. The promiscuous use of the two phrases אָרֶן and אָרֶן הַקָּדוֹשׁ does not obtain in 1 Sam. 6 1-7 1. In this portion אָרֶן is uniformly used. (Comp. 1 Sam. 6 1, 8, 11, 15, 18, 21; 7 1, 1.) The Massorah, therefore, in the second part of this Rubric, exempts this portion as requiring no protection and simply safeguards the solitary deviation in 1 Sam. 6 3.

In Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List VI) this Rubric is incorrect. It wrongly states in the heading that there are twenty-three instances of this phrase and records this number only, omitting 2 Sam. 6 11, 17; 2 Chron. 8 11. Like all the other Lists, however, it gives 1 Kings 2 26 as one of the instances and as explicitly states that in the second part of verse 2 in 1 Chron. 15 the reading is אָרֶן.

הַתְּרַעֵי = § 1074.

אָרֶן הַתְּרַעֵי the ark of the testimony, occurs twelve times. That is, in contradistinction to the other epithets which follow the expression אָרֶן and which are recorded in §§ 1070-73. It will be seen that with the exception of the solitary instance in Joshua, this phrase is restricted to Exodus and Numbers.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 139a, on Josh. 4 16 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 68a, on Exod. 26 33; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 3b, on Josh. 4 16; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 147b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 108b, on Exod. 26 33; (VI) the same MS., fol. 134b, on Exod. 39 35; (VII) Orient. 2349, fol. 73a, on Exod. 26 33; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 30 26 and (IX) the same on Numb. 7 89.

הַתְּרַעֵי = § 1075.

אָרֶן בְּרִית יְהוָה and the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 212a, on Numb. 14 44 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 107a, on Numb. 10 33; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (IV) the same on Numb. 14 44. Though all the four Lists state that there are two instances only of this combination, this phrase actually occurs four times and Joh. 6 8 and 1 Chron. 17 1 are omitted. It is, therefore, evident that the qualifying expression בְּסֵפֶר in this book, i. e. in Numbers, or בְּאֵרֶיזֵה in the Pentateuch has been omitted, as is often the case in such headings.

הַתְּרַעֵי = § 1076.

כְּאֲרִיזִים as cedars, occurs twice, once it is with Pathach and once with Kametz. That is, under the Caph; hence the Massorah safeguards the two different vowel-points. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 231a, on Numb. 24 6 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 262a, on Cant. 5 15 and (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 350a, on the same passage. These two instances form part of the alphabetical Lists of words beginning with Caph which respectively occur twice, once with Sheva or the feeble vowel which is its substitute and once with its normal vowel-point.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ט, § 18, Vol. II, p. 6.

הַתְּרַעֵי = § 1077.

אֶרְצִי my path, occurs twice. This Rubric I found in the printed Massorah only, on Ps. 139 3.

הַתְּרַעֵי = § 1078.

כְּאֲרִי as a lion, occurs twice with Kametz. That is, to distinguish it from the other two instances in which this quadriliteral occurs and where it is with Pathach. (Comp. the next Rubric.)

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 289a, on Ps. 22 17 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 135a, on Isa. 38 13; (III) the Leicester Codex on Ps. 22 17 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Numb. 24 9. These four Lists exhibit different recensions of this Rubric. According to Lists I and II the two instances here recorded are both with Kametz. According to List III Isa. 38 13 is with Pathach and Ps. 22 17 with Kametz,¹ whilst according to List IV Ps. 22 17 is one of the two instances in which this quadriliteral has Pathach and is the subject of a various reading.²

The Rubric in this magnificent Codex is as follow: 'כארי ב' חד קט וזר פח': וסימנחן שווינו עד בקר כארי, כארי ירי ורגלי קדמא פח' בדר' קט' כארי, ב' וזי' כרע ככארי, כארי ירי ורגלי כארי כתיב: ¹ This Rubric is as follows:

הַתְּרַעֵי = § 1079.

כְּאֲרִי as a lion, occurs four times, twice with Kametz and twice with Pathach. As this quadriliteral, which occurs altogether four times, has in two instances Kametz under the Caph and in two Pathach, this Massorah fixes the passages in which this difference obtains.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MSS. and one printed: (I) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement fol. 133a, which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 702. For the examination of the different recensions of this Massorah and the charges against Jacob b. Chayim in connection therewith I must refer to my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible p. 968 &c.

הַתְּרַעֵי = § 1080.

אֲרִיאֵל Ariel, occurs four times. That is, without the prefixes, as is evident from the fact that with prefixes this name occurs more times, as we shall see in the next Rubric. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter א, § 703, is incorrect since it occurs five times, 1 Chron. 11 22 is omitted. The addition at the end of the Rubric denotes that in 2 Sam. 23 20 it is אֲרִיאֵל with Yod defective.

הַתְּרַעֵי = § 1081.

אֲרִיאֵל Mnemonic sign for the orthography of Ariel. Whilst the preceding Massorah is restricted to the instances in which this name occurs without the prefixes, this Rubric records the proper orthography of it without and with the suffixes. This name, which occurs altogether nine times, is according to this Massorah, spelled in three different ways: (1) in 2 Sam. 23 20 it is אֲרִיאֵל without the Yod; (2) in Ezek. 43 15, 16 it is אֲרִיאֵל with the Yod after the Aleph and (3) in all the other six instances, viz. Isa. 29 1, 1, 2, 2, 7; 1 Chron. 11 22 it is אֲרִיאֵל with the Yod after the Resh. This Rubric, therefore, takes no notice of the Keri in Ezek. 43 15, 16. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 124a, on Ezek. 43 15. Two mistakes have crept into it in the printing; in the first line it should be אֲרִיאֵל and in the last line אֲרִיאֵל.

הַתְּרַעֵי = § 1082.

לְאֲרִיאֵל to Ariel, occurs twice in two different senses. That is, with the prefix Lamed it is once emblematically used for Jerusalem, and once it is the proper name of a chief. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 420a, on Ezra 8 16 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 1474, fol. 167b, on Isa. 29 2.

הַתְּרַעֵי = § 1083.

אֲרִיאֵל עַל נְבִי אֲרִיאֵל. For the import of this Rubric, which prescribes the arrangement of the poetical lines of Exod. 15 1-19, see letter ט, § 381, Vol. II, p. 620.

הַתְּרַעֵי = § 1084.

אֲרִיאֵל they may be lengthened, occurs three times in this form in Kings it is defective, in the other two instances it is plene. That is, this Hiphil future third person plural masculine, without and with the prefix Vav occurs three times in contradistinction to the other three instances in which it is with paragogic Nun and which are recorded in the following Rubric. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 137a, on Deut. 25 15.

הַתְּרַעֵי = § 1085.

אֲרִיאֵל they may lengthen, occurs three times. This Hiphil future third person plural masculine with paragogic Nun, which occurs three times, is differently spelled in every instance. The first time, which is in the Decalogue, it is אֲרִיאֵל without the Yod but with the Vav (Exod. 20 12); the second time, which is the parallel passage also in the Decalogue, it is אֲרִיאֵל with the Yod, but without the Vav (Deut. 5 16), whilst in the third instance it is אֲרִיאֵל without both Yod and Vav (Deut. 6 2). The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the striking phenomenon in the orthography of this expression.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 47b, on Exod. 20 12 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 69a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 264b, on Deut. 5 16 and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

תהרי"ב = § 1086.

וַיֵּצֵא and they drew out, occurs twice, once it is plene and once defective. This Hiphil future third person plural masculine with the prefix Vav which occurs twice, is in the first instance without the Yod after the Resh, whilst in the parallel passage which is the second instance, it is with it. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in the spelling. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 185b, on 1 Kings 8 8.

תהרי"ג = § 1087.

וַיִּפְרֹץ ye shall prolong, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the other two instances in which this Hiphil future second plural masculine occurs and where it is with paragodic Nun and with the Vav (Deut. 4 26; 30 18). As both these forms occur in the same book, the Massorah indicates the passages in which this variation in the orthography obtains. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 129b, on Deut. 11 9 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 139b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah on Deut. 32 47.

תהרי"ד = § 1088.

וְיִרְחַם אֱלֹהִים וְיִרְחַם אֱלֹהִים long-suffering and plenteous in mercy and in truth, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 57b, on Exod. 34 6. It will be seen that this careful Nakdan gives the catchwords for Ps. 86 15 וְיִרְחַם יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ, whereas the received text reads it וְיִרְחַם יְהוָה.

תהרי"ה = § 1089.

וְאֵלֶּיךָ in the length of, occurs three times and is defective in the Scriptures once in the Pentateuch, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. In the other two instances where it occurs it is with Kametz under the Beth (בְּאֵיךְ Exod. 27 11; Ezek. 48 18).

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 90a, on Ezek. 31 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 254b, on Prov. 25 15; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 67b, on Exod. 26 13; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 186b, on Ezek. 31 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 346a, on Prov. 25 15; (VI) Add. 15,260, fol. 46b, on Exod. 26 13; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 56b, on the same passage; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 326a, on Ezek. 31 7; (IX) Orient. 2349, fol. 72b, on Exod. 26 13 and (X) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 31 7.

The heading in List VI, viz. בְּאֵיךְ נִרְמֵי it occurs three times with Sheva shows that the design of this Massorah is to safeguard it against the instances in which it is with Kametz. It will be seen that רֵמֵי here denotes Sheva.

תהרי"ז = § 1090.

וְלֵאמֹר for length of days, occurs three times in the Scriptures thus combined. In the other four instances where this phrase occurs it is without the prefix Lamed (Ps. 21 5; 91 16; Prov. 3 2, 16) and once it is with the prefix Vav (Job 12 12).

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 203a, on Ps. 93 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 270b, on Lament. 5 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 307b, on Ps. 93 5; (IV) the same MS., fol. 358a, on Lament. 5 20; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 318a, on the same passage and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 93 5.

תהרי"ח = § 1091.

וְאֵיכָה the length thereof and the breadth, occurs three times. Normally when אֵיכָה with the suffix third person singular masculine, viz. אֵיכָה, is followed by אֵיכָה the latter is also with this suffix, i. e. אֵיכָה with or without the prefix Vav (Ezek. 40 20; 2 Chron. 3 8 &c.) The Massorah, therefore, records this abnormal combination. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 120a, on Ezek. 40 21.

תהרי"ט = § 1092.

וְאֵיכָה long, occurs three times and is defective. That is, this feminine adjective with Dagesh in the Caph in contradistinction to the feminine noun without Dagesh in the Caph and is plene. (Vide supra, § 1088.) The necessity for safeguarding these instances will be seen from the note on Jerem. 29 28 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, nine in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 198a, on 2 Sam. 3 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 51a, on Jerem. 29 28; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 226b, on Job 11 9; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 58a, on 2 Sam. 3 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 166a, on Jerem. 29 28; (VI) the same MS., fol. 325a, on Job 11 9; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 165b, on 2 Sam. 3 1; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 254a, on Jerem. 29 28; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 205a, on Jerem. 29 28; (X) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 3 1; (XI) the same on Jerem. 29 28 and (XII) the same on Job 11 9.

תהרי"י = § 1093.

וְאֵיכָה her palaces, is four times defective. This plural noun, without and with the prefixes, but with the suffix third person both feminine and masculine, which occurs altogether fourteen times, is plene in nine instances¹ and defective in five only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 205a, on Amos 1 7. As one of the instances is not only with the suffix third person singular masculine, but with the prefix Vav (וְאֵיכָה Amos 6 8) the heading ought properly to be וְאֵיכָה הַמִּצְדָּוֹת אוֹתָן אוֹתָן אוֹתָן אוֹתָן אוֹתָן.

¹ Comp. אֵיכָה Isa. 23 13; Jerem. 6 5; Amos 1 10, 14; Ps. 48 14; Lament. 2 5, 7; 2 Chron. 36 13; וְאֵיכָה Ps. 48 4.

תהרי"יב = § 1094.

וְאֵיכָה Arnon, is three times defective in the Pentateuch. With the exception of Numb. 21 24, which is excluded from this Rubric because it is here אֵיכָה with the prefix, the name of this river occurs twelve times in the Pentateuch. As it is defective in nine instances¹ and plene in three only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. The necessity for safeguarding these instances will be seen in the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Throughout the Prophets it is likewise plene except in one instance. In the Prophets, however, where it occurs altogether eight times without the prefixes the reverse is the case, the plene is the rule and the defective is the exception. Here it is plene in seven instances² and defective in one place only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 99b, on Numb. 21 13 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 86b; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 107a; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 224b; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 113b, and (VI) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

The different headings of these Lists are very instructive inasmuch as they show that they do not emanate from the same School of Massorites. Thus List II has it simply אֵיכָה it is three times defective, without the qualifying expression בְּרֵמֵי which is misleading since אֵיכָה is ten times plene. Lists III, V and VI have it אֵיכָה מִלֵּי בְּרֵמֵי taking no notice of the second part of this Rubric which treats of the Prophets, whilst List IV states at the end of the Rubric וְאֵיכָה בְּרֵמֵי וְאֵיכָה בְּרֵמֵי not admitting the single exception in this part of the Bible. The printed Massorah Parva on 2 Kings 10 33 אֵיכָה בְּרֵמֵי וְאֵיכָה בְּרֵמֵי this defective אֵיכָה is unique in the Prophets and Hagiographa, is incorrect since the name of this river does not occur at all in the Hagiographa.

¹ Comp. אֵיכָה Numb. 21 26, 28; 22 36; Deut. 2 24, 36; 3 8, 12, 16; 4 48.
² Comp. אֵיכָה Josh. 12 1, 2; 13 9, 16; Judg. 11 18, 18, 26. The four instances with prefixes which occur in this division of the Bible are also plene, viz. אֵיכָה Jerem. 48 20; אֵיכָה Isa. 16 2; אֵיכָה Judg. 11 13, 22.

תהרי"יג = § 1095.

וְאֵיכָה and Arpachshad, occurs three times at the beginning of a verse. In the other two instances where this name is with the prefix Vav it is in the middle of the verse (Gen. 10 22; 1 Chron. 1 17). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 18a, on Gen. 11 12.

תהרי"יד = § 1096.

וְאֵיכָה a land, begins a verse thirteen times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 117a, on Deut. 8 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 46a, on Jerem. 22 29; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 359a, on Ps. 67 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 368a, on Ps. 107 34; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, fol. 97a, margin and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 68 9. Though the heading of the List which I have printed distinctly states that there are thirteen such instances twelve only are recorded, as Job 10 22 is omitted. This, however, is manifestly due to a clerical error since all the other Lists give it.

תתרו"ז = § 1097.

land, is in fourteen instances with Kametz in the Scriptures. That is, this trilateral without the pausal accent is abnormally פָּרָא instead of פָּרָא with Segol under the Aleph. Hence the Massorah records the exceptions.

And wherever it is with the accent Athnach or Soph-Pasuk it is likewise so except in four instances. פָּרָא with Kametz occurs altogether about one hundred and eleven times. In forty-eight instances it is with the pausal accent Athnach¹ and in forty-nine with the pausal accent Soph-Pasuk.² As it is in these fourteen instances only where it is פָּרָא without the pausal accent, the Massorah records this phenomenon.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists, fourteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 37b, on Jerem. 9 18 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 186b, on Ps. 44 4; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 49 13; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 124b, on Isa. 14 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 132a, on Isa. 33 9; (VI) the same MS., fol. 158b, on Jerem. 9 18; (VII) the same MS., fol. 165b, on Jerem. 31 8; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 221a, on Zech. 12 1; (IX) the same MS., fol. 294b, on Ps. 44 4; (X) Add. 15,250, fol. 220a, on Isa. 14 9; (XI) Add. 15,251, fol. 311b, on Zech. 12 1; (XII) Add. 15,454, fol. 288a, on Jerem. 31 8; (XIII) the same MS., fol. 365a, on Isa. 49 13; (XIV) Halle Oehl. Ve-Oehl. II, § 36, and (XV) the printed Massorah on Isa. 14 9.

The heading in six of these Lists (III, VI, VII, X, XI, XV) states that it is in these fourteen instances with the accent Zakeph (זכ"ף קמץ) but this is incorrect, since it is in eleven instances פָּרָא with Zakeph (Deut. 32 13; Isa. 14 9, 21; 33 9; 44 28; 49 13; 51 16; 52 10; Jerem. 9 18; 16 19; Zech. 12 1); in two instances it is פָּרָא with Segoltha (Isa. 51 13; Jerem. 31 8), whilst in one instance it is פָּרָא with Reviv (Ps. 44 4). The other nine Lists simply and more correctly head it זכ"ף קמץ it is fourteen times with Kametz apart from where it is with the pausal accents Athnach and Soph-Pasuk. Against the thirteenth instance in the List which I have printed Zech. 9 1 is a mistake for Zech. 12 1.

The second part of this Rubric is also given as a separate Massorah. Of it I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 292a, on Ps. 35 20; (II) the same MS., fol. 295b, on Ps. 48 11; (III) the same MS., fol. 348a, on Prov. 30 14; (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 35 20 and (V) the same on Prov. 30 14.

¹ Comp. פָּרָא Deut. 33 17; 1 Sam. 2 10; 2 Sam. 3 12; 22 43; Isa. 8 9; 9 18; 11 4; 18 3; 45 22; 58 14; 60 21; Jerem. 10 13; 22 29; 51 16; Amos 4 13; Micah 6 2; Hab. 3 12; Ps. 22 28; 37 11, 22, 29, 34; 46 8; 50 1; 74 17; 89 12; 95 4; 98 8; 101 8; 114 7; 119 119; 138 4; 147 15; Prov. 2 21; 3 19; 29 4; 30 4, 24; Job 3 14; 5 10; 7 1; 14 19; 18 4, 17; 35 11; 38 4, 18; 39 24.

² Comp. פָּרָא Exod. 15 12; 1 Sam. 25 23; 2 Kings 5 19; Isa. 23 9, 9; 24 18, 19; 26 15; Jerem. 6 22; 25 32; 50 41; Ezek. 27 33; Hos. 6 3; Amos 8 4; 9 9; Obad. 3; Micah 1 3; 5 3; Hab. 3 9; Zech. 9 10; Ps. 2 8, 10; 25 13; 37 9; 46 7; 67 8; 72 6, 8; 75 9; 76 13; 79 2; 80 10; 82 5; 89 28; 133 15; 147 6; 148 11; Prov. 8 16, 29; 10 80; 17 24; 31 28; Job 8 9; 12 16; 20 4; 24 4; 38 24; Lament. 3 34.

תתרו"ח = § 1098.

In five instances the textual reading is פָּרָא land for which the Sevir is פָּרָא to the land. On referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that the Sevir is the textual reading in a number of MSS.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 65a, on Gen. 45 25; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 55a; (III) Orient. 2365, fol. 46a, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all the same passage.

תתרו"ט = § 1099.

the land of Gilead, occurs twice . . . and in two instances פָּרָא is with the prefix Beth and פָּרָא with the prefix He. As פָּרָא which is in eight instances preceded by פָּרָא, has the prefix He six times¹ and is without it in these two instances only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. In the second part of this Rubric the reverse is the case. Here the Massorah protects the two instances in which פָּרָא has the prefix He against being made conformable to the two passages where this combination is without it (1 Kings 4 19; 1 Chron. 5 9). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 107b, on Numb. 32 1.

¹ Comp. פָּרָא Numb. 32 29; Josh. 23 9, 18, 15; 2 Sam. 17 20; 2 Kings 10 33.

תת"ש = § 1100.

Throughout this book it is פָּרָא except in three instances where it is פָּרָא. The normal phrase throughout Ezekiel, when speaking of the land of Israel, is פָּרָא which occurs no fewer than seventeen times.¹ As it is in these three instances only where the synonym פָּרָא takes the place of פָּרָא the Massorah safeguards the abnormal combination.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 184a, on Ezek. 27 17 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 426.

¹ Comp. פָּרָא Ezek. 11 17; 12 19, 22; 13 9; 18 2; 20 38, 42; 21 7; 25 8, 6; 33 24; 36 6; 37 12; 38 18, 19; פָּרָא Ezek. 7 2; 21 8.

תת"א = § 1101.

the earth and the heavens, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this abnormal combination against being made conformable to the normal phrase פָּרָא which occurs seven times¹ and which was also the reading here, as is attested by the Samaritan text, the Septuagint and the Vulgate.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 30a, on Gen. 2 4 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

¹ Comp. פָּרָא Gen. 14 19, 22; Jerem. 33 25; 41 7; Joel 4 16; Ps. 69 85; 146 6.

תת"ב = § 1102.

in the land of Gilead. For this Rubric see § 1099.

תת"ג = § 1103.

in the land of the living, occurs three times in this combination. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this exceptional phrase against the normal combination which is פָּרָא without the prefix He and which occurs eight times (Ezek. 26 20; 32 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 32; Ps. 27 13).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 18a, on Isa. 38 11 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 135a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 319b, on Ps. 142 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 330b, on Job 28 13; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 229b, on Isa. 38 11; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VII) the same on Job 28 13.

תת"ד = § 1104.

in the land of Egypt, in Egypt. Four groups or phrases of the same import in which the first and fourth are the same and the second and third are the same.

Divested of its artificial language, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the variation in the expression used in connection with the identical admonition, And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman, reiterated in four passages. In the first and fourth instances this admonition is followed by the expression פָּרָא in the land of Egypt, whilst in the second and third passages it is followed by פָּרָא in Egypt.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, three in MSS. and three printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 186b, on Deut. 24 18 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 146b, on the same passage; (III) Halle Oehl. Ve-Oehl. II, § 120; (IV) Paris Oehl. Ve-Oehl., § 290; (V) the printed Massorah on Deut. 15 15 and (VI) the same on Deut. 16 12. The expression בְּעַבְדִּי in the heading must denote here in the same sense or of the same import, for it cannot possibly refer to the accents which are not the same in these four passages, unless it is a clerical error for בְּעַבְדִּי which is in the heading of List II. Both these Lists (I, II) emphatically state in the heading that there are four such instances only and record four, and though Lists III and IV have no headings they too catalogue the same four instances. Lists I and II omit Deut. 15 15 where the present Massoretic text has פָּרָא following the admonition וְזָכַרְתָּ כִּי עַבְדִּי הָיִיתָ, whilst Lists III, IV and V which give this passage, omit Deut. 5 15. List VI, which exhibits a different recension of this Massorah, gives three instances in which פָּרָא follows this admonition and says that in all the others it is פָּרָא. But the catchword פָּרָא for the first of the three instances does not occur in any verse in which פָּרָא follows the admonition, nor does this List specify the passages in which פָּרָא follows this admonition.

¹ טוכן איש, שכנה, לא תפת, כי עבד היית במצרים, ושואר בארץ מצרים.

The conflicting Massorahs are due to the variations which were preserved in the ancient Codices, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible, and to the fact that the different Massorites worked upon different recensions of the text.

תחשיב - § 1105.

וּבְמִדְבָר and in the land, occurs five times. That is, in contradistinction to וּבְמִדְבָר which occurs seven times (comp. Deut. 3 24; 1 Sam. 26 8; Joel 3 3; Ps. 113 6; 135 6; 1 Chron. 29 11; 2 Chron. 6 14).

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 169a, on Jerem. 33 13 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 366a, on Neh. 9 35; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 262b, on Jerem. 44 1; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 57a, on Gen. 47 14; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Neh. 9 35 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 47 14.

תחשיב - § 1106.

וּבְמִדְבָר. Sixteen words respectively occur once only in combination with וּבְמִדְבָר. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 1 18 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 47b, on Gen. 41 47 and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 754.

Though List I states in the heading that there are sixteen such combinations, it enumerates fifteen only and as one of these, i. e. No. 5, is wrong since וּבְמִדְבָר occurs about sixty times (vide supra, letter מ, §§ 533-536) it actually gives fourteen instances. List II, which exhibits the oldest extant form of this Massorah, has as yet no heading and simply records twelve instances of this unique combination. It gives two which are not in List I, viz. וּבְמִדְבָר Gen. 41 47 and וּבְמִדְבָר Ezek. 45 16. It not only omits the wrong instance וּבְמִדְבָר, but also four others, viz. וּבְמִדְבָר Jerem. 25 26; וּבְמִדְבָר Ps. 50 4; וּבְמִדְבָר Neh. 9 24 and וּבְמִדְבָר Neh. 10 32. Whilst List III, which is the latest development of this Rubric and which has already the catchwords, makes up the sixteen instances by giving the fifteen of List I and the addition וּבְמִדְבָר Ezek. 45 16 which, as we have seen, is already given in List II. It, moreover, substitutes וּבְמִדְבָר an equally wrong instance for the incorrect וּבְמִדְבָר. Besides Jacob b. Chayim's List in the printed Massorah suffers from the following serious blunders. It gives וּבְמִדְבָר רב טובים המלכות = 2 Kings 15 12 instead of וּבְמִדְבָר וּבְמִדְבָר = Jerem. 52 16; it has וּבְמִדְבָר instead of וּבְמִדְבָר Zeph. 2 3, as is evident from the catchwords, and וּבְמִדְבָר instead of וּבְמִדְבָר Ps. 50 4.

The difficulty, however, connected with this Massorah, arises from the heading in Lists I and III which states that there are sixteen such unique combinations, whereas there are about seventy. The explanation of this discrepancy, as is often the case, is to be sought in the fact that this Rubric exhibits the first attempt of the original Massorites to collect these unique combinations, leaving it to their colleagues and successors to complete the List. For this reason they did not supply it with a heading as it is in List II. Later Nakdanim, however, instead of completing the catalogue, mistook the fragment as containing all the passages and, therefore, affixed a heading to it corresponding to the number of instances recorded in the incipient Massorah.

תחשיב - § 1107.

וּבְמִדְבָר. Three verses respectively end with וּבְמִדְבָר and the next verse in each case begins with the same expression with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 11a, on Isa. 24 4 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 39b; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 29b, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on Gen. 1 1.

תחשיב - § 1108.

וּבְמִדְבָר this land, occurs three times. This Rubric, which I have found only in the Model Codex Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 269b, on 2 Chron. 20 7, is inexplicable, since this combination occurs more than thirty times.¹ I must leave the explanation of this enigmatic Rubric to those who are greater experts in Massoretic terminology.

¹ Comp. וּבְמִדְבָר Gen. 12 7; 15 7; 24 5, 7; 31 18; 50 24; Numb. 14 8, 14; 32 5, 22; Deut. 3 18; 9 4; 26 9; Josh. 1 18; 11 16; 13 7; 2 Kings 18 25; Isa. 36 10, 10; Jerem. 13 13; 16 18; 24 6; 25 9; 26 20; 32 22; 36 29; 37 19; Ezek. 47 21 &c.

תחשיב - § 1109.

וּבְמִדְבָר and the earth, begins a verse eight times and in one instance it is without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 11a, on Isa. 24 5 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 111b, on Levit. 25 23; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 24 5; (IV) the same Codex on Ezek. 36 34; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 10b, on Josh. 13 5; (VI) the same MS., fol. 128a, on Isa. 24 5; (VII) the same MS., fol. 190b, on Ezek. 36 34; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 200a, on Hos. 2 24; (IX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, fol. 97a, margin; (X) the printed Massorah on Gen. 1 2 and (XI) the same on Levit. 25 23.

תחשיב - § 1110.

וּבְמִדְבָר and the earth, is three times with Kametz in the Scriptures and whenever it is preceded by וּבְמִדְבָר heaven it is likewise so. Normally the prefix Vav is with Kametz in the phrase וּבְמִדְבָר which occurs eleven times.¹ As it is in these three instances only that it is with Kametz apart from this combination, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional vowel-points.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 12a, on Isa. 26 19 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 254b, on Prov. 25 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 129a, on Isa. 26 19; (IV) the same MS., fol. 146a, on Isa. 65 17; (V) the same MS., fol. 345b, on Prov. 25 3; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 392a, on the same passage; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 370b, on Isa. 65 17; (VIII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 86; (IX) the printed Massorah on Isa. 26 19 and (X) the same on Prov. 25 3.

As the three exceptions occur in the three divisions of the Bible, List IV adds וּבְמִדְבָר. The heading of List VI it occurs three times in an exceptional manner or by itself is due to the fact that in these three passages it is without וּבְמִדְבָר.

¹ Comp. וּבְמִדְבָר Gen. 14 19, 22; Jerem. 33 25; 51 48; Joel 4 16; Ps. 69 35; 115 16; 121 2; 124 8; 134 8; 146 6.

תחשיב - § 1111.

וּבְמִדְבָר as the land, occurs five times in the Scriptures. That is, with the prefix Caph with Sheva, to distinguish it from the numerous passages in which it is with the prefix Beth.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 103b, on Hos. 2 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 198a, on Ps. 78 69; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 200a, on Hos. 2 5; (IV) the same MS., fol. 320a, on Ps. 143 6; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 110b, on Deut. 11 10; (VI) the same MS., fol. 294b, on Hos. 2 5; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 271a, on Deut. 11 10; (VIII) Orient. 2349, fol. 35a, on Gen. 13 10; (IX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 86, and (X) the printed Massorah on Gen. 13 10.

The design of this Massorah is to exclude the reading וּבְמִדְבָר in Ps. 78 69 and 143 6, which is to be found in some MSS. and editions and which is exhibited in the ancient Versions, as may be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

תחשיב - § 1112.

וּבְמִדְבָר as the land, occurs twice. That is, with Kametz under the Caph in contradistinction to the five instances in which it is with Sheva and which are recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 141b, on Isa. 51 23 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 200a, where it is given as a contrast to the preceding Rubric and (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 271a where it is also given as a contrast to the preceding Rubric.

תחשיב - § 1113.

וּבְמִדְבָר from the land, or ground, occurs five times. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 98b, on Ezek. 41 20 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 54b, on 1 Sam. 28 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 64a, on 2 Sam. 12 20; (IV) the same MS., fol. 194a, on Ezek. 41 20; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 167a, on 1 Sam. 28 3; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 201a, on 1 Sam. 28 23; (VII) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 12 20 and (VIII) the same on Ezek. 41 20.

תהשי"ד = § 1114.

אֶרֶץ the land, or her land, occurs eight times in a unique combination. That is, eight words are severally preceded once only by this noun, with the paragogic He or with the suffix third person singular feminine. In all other instances these words are preceded by אֶרֶץ. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I have found in the Paris Ochlath Ve-Ochlath only, § 263.

תהשמי"ז = § 1115.

אֶרֶץ כְּנָעַן to the land of Canaan, occurs eight times. That is, in these eight instances אֶרֶץ כְּנָעַן with the local He is used instead of אֶרֶץ (comp. Levit. 14 34; Numb. 33 51; Josh. 22 32; Ezek. 16 29; 17 4 &c.) or simply for אֶרֶץ כְּנָעַן as the Samaritan recension has it in Gen. 12 5b. This Rubric is especially designed to guard the Scribe against making Numb. 33 51 conformable to 35 10 which is exhibited in some MSS. and in the Samaritan text.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 62b, on Gen. 50 13 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 250b, on Numb. 35 10; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 10a, on Gen. 11 31; (IV) Cambridge Add. 465, on Gen. 45 17 and (V) the same MS., on Numb. 35 10. As all these instances occur in the Pentateuch, List III heads this Rubric הוּ בְּחַיִּי. That Jacob b. Chayim must have had this Rubric is evident from the fact that in no fewer than three instances he mentions it and refers to the Massorah Finalis for the List, viz. Gen. 11 31; 45 17; Numb. 35 10 where, however, it is not to be found.

תהשמי"ז = § 1116.

הָאָרְצוֹת the lands or countries, in the Pentateuch is always defective except once. Considering that it occurs altogether three times only in the Pentateuch and that it is twice defective (Gen. 26 3, 4) and once plene, this Massorah would have been more simple and less artificial if it stated בִּי חֵסֵי אֵי מִלִּי. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 25a, on Gen. 26 3 which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (III) the same on Gen. 41 54. Lists II and III add at the end of this Rubric וְכֵן נִבְאָה וְהוֹחָזֵר דְּבִי בְּמִי הָמִי and throughout the Prophets and Hagiographa it is likewise plene except once, viz. Neh. 9 30. In these two divisions of the Scriptures, however, where it occurs no fewer than forty-four times, the later orthography with the mater lectionis is the rule and the original spelling without the Vav the rare exception. Hence the Massorah safeguards the solitary instance. On referring to the note on Gen. 26 3 it will be seen that the Standard Codices preserved different traditions about the orthography of this expression.

תהשי"ז = § 1117.

בְּאֶרְצוֹת in the lands of, is twice defective. As this plural construct with the prefix Beth occurs only three times altogether and is plene in the third instance (Ps. 116 9), the heading of this Rubric ought properly to be בִּי חֵסֵי אֵי מִלִּי. It will be seen that the Massorah here, contrary to its usual practice, safeguards the minority. Here too the primitive orthography is exhibited in the Pentateuch. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 98b, on Levit. 26 36 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 182a, and (III) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. As both these instances occur in the same section, List III heads this Rubric בִּי חֵסֵי אֵי מִלִּי.

תהשי"ח = § 1118.

תֵּאָרָה thou shalt curse, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 95b, on Numb. 22 6 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 142b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 108a, (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 226b, also on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 22 27 and (VI) the same on Numb. 22 6. As this expression is defective in all the three passages and, moreover, as all the three instances occur in the Pentateuch, some of the Lists head this Rubric בִּי חֵסֵי אֵי מִלִּי and some בְּחַיִּי. The proper heading, however, ought to be בְּחַיִּי חֵסֵי אֵי מִלִּי. The heading of List II which is the most ancient form extant of this Massorah, is בְּחַיִּי חֵסֵי אֵי מִלִּי which is due to the Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah. This is not only evident from the catchwords which refer to תֵּאָרָה, but from the fact that בְּחַיִּי חֵסֵי אֵי מִלִּי occurs once only (Numb. 22 11) and which from its proximity to תֵּאָרָה has misled the Nakdan. This affords a striking illustration of the difficulty in deciphering the Massorah.

תהשי"ט = § 1119.

אָרְרוּר cursed, occurs eight times with this accent, i. e. Zakeph-Gadol. To understand this Massorah it is necessary to state: (1) that this participle passive without and with the prefix Vav which occurs seventeen times in two parallel sections in Deut. 27—28, has three different accents; (2) that in Deut. 27 16—26 where it occurs eleven times it is not only with two distinctive accents, viz. Zakeph-Gadol and Revia, but they occur in almost alternate verses and (3) that in Deut. 28 16—19, where it occurs seven times, it has on the contrary the conjunctive accent Mercha.¹ Hence the Massorah records these exceptional accents and safeguards the passages in which they are used alternately.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 34b, on Judg. 21 18 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 145b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 119a, on Deut. 27 16 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 48 10.

The four Lists exhibit two recensions. One is exhibited in Lists I and IV and embraces all the eight instances, the six in the Pentateuch and the two outside this division of the Bible. Hence the heading here is הוּ בְּחַיִּי. The second recension is represented in Lists II and III. It is headed הוּ בְּחַיִּי and records the six instances only which occur in Deut. 27 16—34. The heading, however, in either is not quite correct. In the first recension it ought properly to be הוּ בְּחַיִּי בְּלִישִׁי since one of the instances is אָרְרוּר (Jerem. 48 10) with the prefix Vav; whilst in the second recension it should be הוּ בְּחַיִּי בְּחַיִּי since the instances recorded here are restricted to the Pentateuch and begin a verse.

¹ Comp. אָרְרוּר Deut. 28 16, 17, 18, 19; אָרְרוּר Deut. 28 16, 19.

תהשי"ב = § 1120.

אָרְרוּר cursed, occurs five times with the accent [Revia] in the same section and the sign thereof in Chaldee is The judgment of the sister was revealed and established by deceit.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 138a, on Deut. 27 19 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 148a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 266a, on Jerem. 48 10; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 119a, on Deut. 27 19; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VI) the same on Jerem. 48 10. Lists V and VI alone have the mnemonic sign. This sign is also given in the printed Massorah Parva on Deut. 27 19.

תהשכ"א = § 1121.

אָרְרוּר and cursed, occurs twice. That is, with the accent Mercha. In the other instances where this participle passive with the prefix Vav occurs it is in one instance אָרְרוּר with Zakeph-Gadol (Jerem. 48 10) and in the other אָרְרוּר with Munach (Mal. 1 14). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 266a, on Jerem. 48 10.

תהשכ"ב = § 1122.

אָרְרוּר ye are cursed, occurs three times and is plene. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 212a, on Ps. 119 21 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 7a, on Josh. 9 23; (III) the same MS., fol. 54a, on 1 Sam. 26 19; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 151b, on Josh. 9 23; (V) the same MS., fol. 200b, on 1 Sam. 26 19; (VI) the same MS., fol. 429a, on Ps. 119 21; (VII) the printed Massorah on Josh. 9 23 and (VIII) the same on Ps. 119 21.

תהשכ"ג = § 1123.

אָרְרוּר Ararat, occurs four times, three times it is with Kametz and once with Pathach. In two instances it is with the pausal accent Athnach (2 Kings 19 37; Isa. 37 38) and in one with Soph-Pasuk and hence the second Resh has Kametz, whilst in one instance it is with Tipcha (Jerem. 51 27) and, therefore, the Resh has Pathach.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 254a, on 2 Kings 19 37 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 68a, on Jerem. 51 27; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 37 38; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 134b, on Isa. 37 38; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 229a, on the same passage; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Kings 19 37; (VII) the same Codex on Jerem. 51 27; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 8 4 and (IX) the same on 2 Kings 19 37.

תתשנך = § 1124.

וארשתיה and I will betroth thee, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 200a, on Hos. 2 21 which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 298a, on the same passage.

תתשנה = § 1125.

ארתזשנא ארתזשנא Artazerxes. From the beginning of this book [Ezra-Nehemiah] to chap. 6 22 it is ארתזשנא and from Ezra 7 1 to the end of Nehemiah it is ארתזשנא.

This name without and with prefixes occurs altogether fifteen times and they are all restricted to Ezra-Nehemiah. In six instances it is written with (ש) Sin after the (ש) Shin (Ezra 4 7, 7, 8, 11, 23; 6 14) and in nine with (ס) Samech after the (ש) Shin (Ezra 7 1, 7, 11, 12, 21; 8 1; Neh. 2 1; 5, 14; 13 6). As the Sin instances are restricted to Ezra 4 7—6 14 and the Samech to Ezra 7 1—Neh. 13 6, the Massorah divides Ezra-Nehemiah into the two parts which respectively exhibit the two diverse orthographies.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 288a, on Ezra 4 7 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 290a, on Ezra 7 12; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 376b, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Ezra 4 7 and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 758. At the end of List V there is the following addition כולון ארתזשנא קרי במא ארתזשנא חב בשלם and they are all read ארתזשנא [with Sheva under the Tav] except the single instance in Ezra 4 7 where it is ארתזשנא with Kametz because of the distinctive accent Revia.

תתשנה = § 1126.

וא is twice defective. For this Rubric see letter א, § 432, p. 58.

תתשנה = § 1127.

אשאלהים the fire of God, occurs twice. In the other three instances where the Divine name is combined with fire it is אש יהוה the fire of Jehovah (Numb. 11 1, 3; 1 Kings 18 38) and not אלהים. The reason for safeguarding these two instances will be seen in the notes on 2 Kings 1 12 in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 321b, on Job 1 16.

תתשנה = § 1128.

אש ונפרייה fire and brimstone, occurs twice. In the only other instance where these two elements are in combination the order is reversed (Gen. 19 24). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 286b, on Ps. 11 6.

תתשנה = § 1129.

ואש and the fire, occurs three times in the Scriptures . . . once in the Pentateuch, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. Normally it is אש without the article. This Massorah is most probably designed to safeguard Levit. 6 5 and 6 against being made conformable to one another.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 78b, on Ezek. 15 7 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 261a, on 2 Chron. 7 1; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 274b, on Ezek. 15 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 331b, on 2 Chron. 7 1; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 143b, on Levit. 6 5 and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תתשנה = § 1180.

ואש and fire, occurs three times with this accent. This expression, which occurs altogether fifteen times, has no fewer than seven different accents.¹ As it is in these three instances where it has Zakeph-Gadol the Massorah safeguards this distinctive accent.

¹ Comp. אש Ezek. 1 4; אש Levit. 6 2; Numb. 16 36; 2 Sam. 22 9; אש 2 Kings 18 23, 25; אש Pa. 18 9; אש Pa. 78 21; אש Pa. 106 39; Prov. 30 16; Job 18 34.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 301a, on Joel 1 20 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 78b, on Exod. 9 24; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (IV) the same on Exod. 40 38.

תתשנה = § 1181.

ואש קולכה and a fire flashing continually, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 46a, on Exod. 9 24.

תתשנה = § 1182.

ואש for, or to a fire, occurs three times. אש with the prefix Lamed occurs seven times, in four instances the Lamed is with Kametz (אש Ezek. 1 13; 15 4, 6; 21 37) and in three it is with Sheva. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 145b, on Isa. 10 17.

תתשנה = § 1183.

אש his fire, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 136a, on Deut. 4 36 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 126a; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 262b, both on the same passage and (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 325a, on Job 18 5.

תתשנה = § 1184.

אש a fire-offering, occurs four times with three points . . . and wherever it is followed by Lamed it is likewise so.

This trilateral with Segol or with three points as the Massorah calls it, i. e. the noun absolute, occurs altogether thirty-one times. In twenty-seven instances it is followed by Lamed,¹ and in these four passages only, is followed by He and Ayin. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 96b, on Levit. 8 21 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 86a; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 92a; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 148a, all on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, fol. 79a, margin and (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 8 21. List VI heads this Rubric אש ה' תתשנה which is manifestly a clerical error since there are four such instances only, as all the MS. Lists state, and since this number is duly recorded in Jacob b. Chayim's List itself. It will be seen that the Segol which is called אש קריה in the MSS. is called אש in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah. The reference in the last line of the Rubric which I have printed should be Numb. 28 19 instead of Levit. 23 8.

¹ Comp. אש ליתחם Exod. 29 18, 41; 30 20; Levit. 2 11, 16; 3 9, 0, 11, 14; 7 5, 25; 22 27; 23 8, 13, 25, 27, 36, 36, 37; 24 7; Numb. 15 3, 25; 28 6, 15; 29 6; אש ליתחם Levit. 3 16; Numb. 18 17.

תתשנה = § 1185.

אש אש fire-offering, fire-offering of, throughout the Scriptures. Wherever it is followed by Lamed, He or Ayin it is אש . . . and wherever it is followed by any other letter it is אש with There . . . It is likewise with There when it is spelled with Yod, viz. אש except in one instance.

Divested of its artificial language, this Massorah lays down the rule for the vowel-points of this noun when it is in the absolute and when in the construct state. It is always אש in the absolute when it is followed by a word beginning with Lamed, He or Ayin and the construct אש when it is followed with a word which begins with any other letter. It is also with There when it is the plural construct אש with the exception of one solitary instance, viz. Levit. 10 15. It will thus be seen that whilst the preceding Massorah (§ 1184) which is restricted to this trilateral in the absolute state, treats the instances in which אש is combined with He and Ayin as exceptions, this Massorah includes them in the general rule. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 83a, on Levit. 3 14.

תתשנה = § 1186.

אש דוא ליהוה it is a fire-offering unto Jehovah, occurs three times in the Pentateuch . . . and in one instance the second and third words in this phrase are reversed.

As the normal phrase is simply אש ליהוה which occurs twenty-five times (vide supra, § 1184, note) and as it is in these four instances only where it has the additional אש, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 86a, on Levit. 8 21 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 74b, on Exod. 29 25; (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 54a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 48b, also on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 69a, on Levit. 8 21 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 29 25.

תתשליז - § 1137.

אשה לידה היא is the combination throughout the Scriptures except once. This is simply another form of the preceding Massorah and emanates from a different Massoretic School. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient 2349, fol. 74b, on Exod. 29 18.

תתשליח - § 1138.

אשה, אשה, Throughout Leviticus אשה is with Tevir except in two instances where it is with Mercha . . . and throughout Numbers it is also with Mercha except in two instances where it has Tevir.

The construct אשה a fire-offering of, occurs only in Leviticus and Numbers. In Leviticus, where it occurs seven times, it is five times with Tevir (אשה Levit. 1 13, 17; 2 2, 9; 3 5) and with Mercha in two instances only. Hence the Massorah in this book safeguards the exceptional accent. In Numbers, however, where it occurs six times, the reverse is the case. Here Mercha is the rule since it is אשה in four instances (Numb. 15 10, 13, 14; 28 24) and Tevir which occurs twice only, is the exception. Here therefore, the Massorah safeguards the Tevir.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 82b, on Levit. 1 9 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 85a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 138a, on Numb. 18 17; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 137a, on Levit. 1 9; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage and (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

As far as Leviticus is concerned the received text is in harmony with this Massorah. But the second part of this Rubric which refers to Numbers exhibits two difficulties: (1) it includes אשה (Numb. 18 17) which is a solitary instance of the absolute, whereas all the others are אשה the construct and (2) the heading which states that throughout Numbers it is also אשה with Mercha except in two instances where it has Tevir does not agree with our text since it is twice אשה (Numb. 29 13, 36). As a matter of course the accent in אשה is affected by the one under אשה. When אשה is with Tevir, אשה has Maqsha, viz. אשה אשה and when אשה is with Mercha אשה is joined to אשה by Makeph, viz. אשה אשה. This explains the different headings of this Rubric in the MSS. Some give the whole phrase with the two different accents and some simply give אשה or אשה alone. The additional words אשה אשה in the heading of Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah (Levit. VI) is due to a later Nakdan who mistook the import of this Rubric.

תתשליט - § 1139.

אשה fire-offerings of, is nine times with Yod . . . and wherever it is with the prefix Mem it is likewise so. That is, in nine instances it is the plural construct and is always so when it has the prefix Mem indicating thereby that אשה does not occur.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 78a, on Levit. 21 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 146b, on Josh. 13 14; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 88a, on Levit. 5 12; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 10a, on Josh. 13 14; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 67a, on Levit. 4 35; (VI) the same MS., fol. 182a, on Josh. 13 14; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 141b, on Levit. 4 35; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 171b, on Levit. 21 21; (IX) Orient. 2349, fol. 85b, on Levit. 7 30; (X) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Levit. 5 12; (XI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement, fol. 181b, and (XII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 7 30.

תתש"ט - § 1140.

אשה a wife, is in three instances the textual reading for which the Sevir is אשה to a wife. On referring to the notes on 2 Chron. 21 6 in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that the Sevir is the substantive reading in MSS. and editions. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 161b, on 2 Chron. 21 6 which I have printed and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

תתשמ"א - § 1141.

אשה and the woman, occurs five times. That is, to distinguish it from the twenty-two instances where it is simply אשה. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 126a, on Deut. 22 22 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 113a, on Numb. 5 31; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 103a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 116b, on Deut. 22 22 and (V) the printed Massorah on Numb. 5 31. List IV heads this Rubric אשה and records three instances only, viz. Numb. 5 31; Deut. 22 22; 1 Kings 3 17, omitting 1 Sam. 25 3 and 2 Sam. 11 2. This is probably due to a recension of this Massorah which recorded these three instances and which had at the end וכל שמואל רבותי but which ending the Scribe has here omitted.

תתשמ"ב - § 1142.

אשה as a woman, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 65b, on 2 Sam. 14 2 which I have printed and (II) the same MS., fol. 142a, on Isa. 54 6.

תתשמ"ג - § 1143.

אשה to the woman, occurs three times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. That is, with Kametz under the Lamed to distinguish it from the numerous instances in which it is with Sheva.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, ~~seven~~ in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 166b, on Judg. 14 7 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 202b, on 2 Sam. 11 3; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 122a, on Numb. 5 21; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 29a, on Judg. 14 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 63a, on 2 Sam. 11 3; (VI) the same MS., fol. 103a, on 2 Kings 8 6; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 173b, on Judg. 14 7; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 3 13; (IX) the same on 2 Sam. 11 3 and (X) the same on 2 Kings 8 6.

תתשמ"ד - § 1144.

אשה and the wife of, occurs six times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 142a, on Isa. 54 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 346b, on Prov. 27 15; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Mal. 2 14; (IV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement, fol. 129b; (V) the printed Massorah on Isa. 54 6 and (VI) the same on Prov. 27 15.

תתשמ"ה - § 1145.

אשה thy wife, occurs seven times . . . and once it is with Segol under the Aleph. The design of this Massorah is to distinguish between these instances in which the Tuv has Sheva and those in which it is with Segol (אשה Gen. 3 17; 18 9, 10; 26 10). In this Rubric, therefore, the Massorah, contrary to its usual method, safeguards the majority.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 11a, on Gen. 19 15 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 207b, on Amos 7 17; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 25b, on Gen. 26 9; (IV) the same MS., fol. 300b, on Amos 7 17; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 18a, on Gen. 26 9; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 42a, on the same passage; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 85 on Amos 7 17 and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 17 15.

It will be seen that the List which I have printed (List I) makes up the seven instances by giving Gen. 26 10 as one and omitting 17 19 and though the other Lists do not support it, it is difficult to suppose that this is due to a clerical error since the Massorah in this Model Codex is most carefully written.

תתשמ"ו - § 1146.

אשה to his wife, occurs three times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 42a, on Gen. 26 7 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 52a, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 769.

תתשמ"ז - § 1147.

אשה wives. See letter א, §§ 435—439, Vol. II, p. 291.

התשמיח = § 1148.

תשמיח Assyria, occurs six times. That is תשמיח Asshur, which occurs numerous times, is in these six instances only with the local He.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 156b, on Gen. 25 18 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 109b, on 2 Kings 15 29; (III) the same MS., fol. 110b, on 2 Kings 17 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 111a, on 2 Kings 17 23; (V) the same MS., fol. 112a, on 2 Kings 18 11; (VI) Add. 15451, fol. 260a, on 2 Kings 17 23; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 16b, on Gen. 25 18; (VIII) Orient. 2349, fol. 41b, on the same passage; (IX) Vienna Codex No. 35, on 2 Kings 15 29; (X) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach, Supplement fol. 130a; (XI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 25 18 and (XII) the same on 2 Kings 15 29.

התשמיח = § 1149.

תשמיח occurs three times in three different senses, each one of which is unique. In the first instance it is the gentilic noun plural of תשמיח and denotes Asshurim (Gen. 25 3) in the second it is תשמיח I will observe, Kal future first person singular from שמע (Hos. 13 7) and in the third instance it is noun masculine with suffix first person plural from תשמיח denoting our steps (Ps. 17 11).

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 25 3. It is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times in three different senses.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ט, § 429, Vol. II, p. 219.

התשיח = § 1150.

תשיח and a raisin-cake, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 140b, on 1 Chron. 16 3.

התשנא = § 1151.

תשנא Eshcol, is five times defective. Under this quadriliteral the Massorah groups together: (1) the proper name of the brother of Mamre Gen. 14 13, 24; (2) the name of the brook Numb. 13 23; Deut. 1 24 and (3) the noun denoting bunch, cluster Cant. 1 14. It is this fact which explains the headings of the different Lists in the MSS.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 349a, on Cant. 1 14 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 396b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 100b, on Numb. 13 23; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 1a, on Gen. 14 13; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 35b, on the same passage; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VII) the same Codex on Numb. 13 23; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 14 13; (IX) the same on Numb. 13 23 and (X) the same on Cant. 1 14.

The heading of this Rubric in List VII is as follows: *When it is the name of a man it is defective and when it is the name of a river it is plene except in three instances, viz. Numb. 13 23; Deut. 1 24 and Cant. 1 14.*¹ The instances in which it is plene as the name of the river are Numb. 13 24; 32 9. Still this classification is not quite correct since Cant. 1 14, where it denotes cluster, is given as one of the three passages. The heading in the printed Massorah (List VII), viz. כל לשון מלאים במה חס' it is plene in all its forms except five times, is due to the fact that it includes the three plene instances in which it denotes cluster and which are with prefixes (Numb. 13 23, 24; Isa. 65 8).

¹ מְשַׁלְלֵי כָל גְּבוּרֵי חַס' וְנִחְלֵי כָּל בְּמִצַּי חַס' וְשִׁבְעֵי יְשׁוּבָה וְיִכְרֹחוּ וְחִבְרוּ.

התשניב = § 1152.

תשניב occurs twice, once it is defective and once plene. As this infinitive absolute, which occurs twice only, is written in two different ways, the Massorah safeguards the different spelling in each case. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 84b, on Levit. 5 19 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 89a; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 94b; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 143a, all on the same passage; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 183a, on Ezek. 25 12 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 5 19. It will be seen that in the Pentateuch the primitive orthography without the mater lectionis has been preserved.

התשניג = § 1153.

תשניג he has trespassed, is twice with Pathach. That is, it is in two instances the preterite third person singular masculine, and hence has Pathach under the Shin in contradistinction to the infinitive recorded in the preceding Rubric where it has Cholem. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 85a, on Numb. 5 7 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 143a, on Levit. 5 19; (III) the same MS., fol. 194a, on Numb. 5 7 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

התשניד = § 1154.

תשניד and they have trespassed, occurs twice . . . and once it is with Sheva under the Van. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 183a, on Ezek. 25 12.

התשניה = § 1155.

תשניה for the trespassing of, or against, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 274a, on 2 Chron. 28 13 which I have printed and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Levit. 4 3.

התשניו = § 1156.

תשניו a quiver, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 10a, on Isa. 22 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 239b, on Job 39 23; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 127a, on Isa. 22 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 335a, on Job 39 23 and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

התשניז = § 1157.

תשניז his quiver, occurs three times in the Scriptures and the sign thereof in Chaldee is A man arose from his grave. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 34b, on Jerem. 5 16 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 216b, on Ps. 127 5; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 269a, on Lament. 3 13; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 317a, on Ps. 127 5; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 242a, on Jerem. 5 16; (VI) Cambridge Add. on Lament. 3 13 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 5 16. Lists V and VI only have the mnemonic sign.

התשניח = § 1158.

תשניח from the dunghill, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 369a, on Ps. 113 7 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 313a, and (III) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage. Lists II and III head the Rubric ב' ח' י' it occurs twice defective, which ought properly to be ב' ח' י' since it occurs twice only and is in both instances defective.

התשניט = § 1159.

תשניט occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, fol. 140b, on 1 Chron. 16 3.

התשנים = § 1160.

תשנים and blessed her, occurs twice and is plene. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 258a, on Prov. 31 28 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 350a, on Cant. 6 9; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 301a, on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Pro. 31 28 and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

התשנים"א = § 1161.

תשנים"א is in three instances with Gaya. That is, between the Sheva and Pathach. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 1174 on Deut. 28 69.

התשנים"ב = § 1162.

תשנים"ב. In four instances the textual reading is תשניב and the Senir תשניב. On referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that the reading suggested by the Sevir is the textual reading in MSS. and the ancient versions.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 146b, on Levit. 7 36 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 68a, and (III) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage. List III rightly states in the heading that there are five such instances (ה' כבירין באשר) and gives Deut. 4 23 as the fifth passage. For the reverse instances, where the textual reading is באשר and the Sevir אָשֶׁר, see below § 1188.

התשמי"ג = § 1163.

אָשֶׁר is three times with the accent. This Rubric is from Add. 15,251, fol. 24b, on Gen. 24 40. Its import is obscure, which is due to the catchwords in the second line. From the second and third catchwords, however, which respectively refer to Jerem. 34 14 and 2 Kings 20 3 it seems that the accent here intended is Darga. If so אָשֶׁר יִהְיֶה in the second line should be אָשֶׁר חֲבָרִי = 2 Kings 20 3 and Isa. 38 3. This yields the three instances of אָשֶׁר. That this Massorah is on Gen. 24 40 may be due to the Nakdan who placed it on this passage because of the phrase אָשֶׁר הִרְהִלֵּבֵנִי which also occurs in the other two instances (2 Kings 20 3; Isa. 38 3) where אָשֶׁר is with Darga.

התשמי"ד = § 1164.

אֲשֶׁר־אֵל occurs eight times thus combined in the Scriptures. אֲשֶׁר is followed about one hundred and forty-five times by the preposition. In about one hundred and thirty-seven times it is combined with אֵל and it is in these eight instances only that it is followed by אֵל. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. When it is borne in mind how often these two prepositions are the subject of various readings both in the MSS. and in the editions, and moreover when in Jerem. 36 23, where the same phrase occurs, it is אֲשֶׁר אֵל־יְהוָה and אֲשֶׁר עַל־יְהוָה, the safeguarding of these exceptional instances will at once be apparent.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 97b, on Ezek. 41 12 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 194a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 293a, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 112a, on Exod. 28 26; (V) Orient. 2849, fol. 81a, on Exod. 39 19; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezek. 41 12 and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. List V adds at the end אֲשֶׁר אֵל אֲשֶׁר הִלִּיק, thus contrasting it with the five instances in which these two expressions are reversed in the combination. (Vide supra, letter א, § 538.)

התשמי"ה = § 1165.

אֲשֶׁר אֲנִי מְצַוֶּה אֹתְכֶם which I command you, occurs eleven times in Deuteronomy. Normally אֲשֶׁר אֲנִי when followed by the Piel participle, מְצַוֶּה takes the pronominal suffix second person singular and the phrase is אֲשֶׁר אֲנִי מְצַוֶּךְ or מְצַוֶּךְ.

In this form it occurs no fewer than twenty-one times in Deuteronomy.¹ As it is in eleven instances only that this Piel participle is without the pronominal suffix and is followed by אֹתְכֶם the Massorah safeguards the minority.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 260a, on Deut. 4 2. It is remarkable that Jacob b. Chayim who mentions this Rubric three times, viz. on Deut. 11 22; 13 1 and 27 1 refers in the first instance to the Massorah Finalis where he says he has given it, and in the second and third instances he refers back to Deut. 11 22 where he states it is enumerated,² but it is nowhere to be found.

¹ Comp. Deut. 4 40; 6 2, 6; 7 11; 8 1, 11; 10 13; 11 8; 12 14, 28; 13 19; 15 6; 19 9; 27 10; 28 1, 13, 15; 30 2, 8, 11, 16.

² Comp. Deut. 11 22 מצוה אהבתי י"א וט"ו נכבדו בכבוד רבות' ודע' Deut. 13 1; 27 1 מצוה אהבתי י"א וט"ו נכבדו בכבוד רבות' ודע' התשמי"ז = § 1166.

אֲשֶׁר יוֹבֵא which is brought, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 35a, on Levit. 6 23.

התשמי"ח = § 1167.

אֲשֶׁר בֵּית־אֵל which is Beth-el, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to call attention to this anomalous phrase which ought to be אֲשֶׁר בְּבֵית־אֵל which is in or at Beth-el, as it is in 2 Kings 23 15 and as the Sevir gives it for both these passages. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 247.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 98a, on 2 Kings 2 3.

התשמי"ח = § 1168.

אֲשֶׁר הֵם חַיִּים that they live, occurs three times . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. In the only other instance in which this phrase occurs it is אֲשֶׁר הָיָה חַיִּים (Eocl. 4 2). Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) The printed Massorah on Deut. 4 10 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 83a, on 1 Kings 8 40; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 186a, on the same passage and (IV) the same MS., fol. 420b, on 2 Chron. 6 31. Lists II, III and IV head this Rubric simply אֲשֶׁר הֵם חַיִּים without אֲשֶׁר for which reason I have given it so under letter ה, § 256.

התשמי"ט = § 1169.

אֲשֶׁר הָיָה see שָׁהָה, letter ה, § 135.

התש"ע = § 1170.

אֲשֶׁר יְהוָה אֱלֹהֶיךָ which Jehovah thy God, occurs four times with these accents in this book. That is, in Deuteronomy where this phrase occurs thirty times it is in these four passages only, with Pashta, Darga Tevir. In the other twenty-six instances it has no fewer than six different accents.¹

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 122b, on Deut. 16 18 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Deut. 3 20. As one of the instances is אֲנִי יְהוָה אֱלֹהֶיְכֶם (Deut. 3 20) it is evident that this Massorah is designed to include the suffix second person plural. The heading, therefore, in List II בְּכַשְׁ בְּכַשְׁ בְּכַשְׁ is more precise.

¹ In one instance it is אֲשֶׁר יְהוָה אֱלֹהֶיךָ (Deut. 13 13); in one אֲשֶׁר יְהוָה אֱלֹהֶיךָ (25 19); in one אֲשֶׁר יְהוָה אֱלֹהֶיךָ (27 3); in two instances אֲשֶׁר יְהוָה אֱלֹהֶיךָ (7 16; 17 14); in ten אֲשֶׁר יְהוָה אֱלֹהֶיךָ (4 21; 15 4; 19 1, 2, 10, 14; 20 16; 21 23; 24 4; 26 1); in ten אֲשֶׁר יְהוָה אֱלֹהֶיךָ (5 16; 12 9; 15 7; 16 5, 20; 17 2; 18 9; 25 16; 27 2; 28 8) and in two instances אֲשֶׁר יְהוָה אֱלֹהֶיךָ (11 31; 12 10).

התשנ"א = § 1171.

אֲשֶׁר יְהוָה אֱלֹהֶיךָ נָתַן לְךָ נַחֲלָה which Jehovah thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, occurs six times thus combined. The design of this Massorah is two-fold. It is (1) to safeguard these six passages against the eighteen instances in which this phrase occurs without the adjunct נַחֲלָה inheritance,¹ and (2) to protect it against being made conformable to those passages in which the adjunct is לְרִשְׁבֹּתֶיךָ according to thy tribes (Deut. 16 18); לְרִשְׁבֹּתָהּ to possess it (Deut. 19 2, 14) and לְרִשְׁבֹּתָהּ for an inheritance to possess it (Deut. 15 4; 25 19). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 128a, on Deut. 26 1. As all the six instances are restricted to Deuteronomy the heading ought more correctly to be ר' רשמי' בכפרי'.

¹ Deut. 4 40; 5 16; 7 16; 12 9; 13 13; 15 7; 16 5, 20; 17 2, 14; 18 9; 19 1; 25 16; 26 1, 2; 27 2, 3; 28 8.

התשע"ב = § 1172.

אֲשֶׁר הַמֶּלֶךְ הִמְצִיחַ בְּקִרְוֹ whom the king delighteth to honour, occurs four times thus combined. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Esther 6 9, is incorrect since this phrase occurs five times. Esther 6 7 is omitted. A later Nakdan, therefore, who found only four passages enumerated, affixed the heading accordingly. Moreover as this phrase occurs in Esther only, the heading ought to be ר' רשמי' בכפרי'.

התשע"ג = § 1173.

אֲשֶׁר־עִמּוֹ that were with him, occurs eleven times. Apart from Chronicles אֲשֶׁר is followed sixty times by the preposition with the suffix third person singular. In forty-nine instances this preposition is אִתּוֹ and in eleven only is it עִמּוֹ. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

And throughout Chronicles it is likewise so. In Chronicles, where אֲשֶׁר does not occur at all and where the phrase is uniformly אִתּוֹ in all the four instances where this combination occurs (1 Chron. 19 14; 2 Chron. 14 12; 18 2; 32 7), the combination required no protection. Hence the Massorah simply mentions the rule.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 26a, on Judg. 9 44 which ¹ Comp. אֲשֶׁר אִתּוֹ Gen. 8 1; 14 5, 17; 24 32; 32 8; 40 7; Numb. 22 40; Josh. 8 11; 22 30; Judg. 4 13; 7 1, 19; 8 4; 9 33, 35, 48; 1 Sam. 6 15; 14 17, 20; 22 6; 30 4, 9, 21; 2 Sam. 1 11; 3 20, 23, 31; 6 2; 15 14, 22, 30; 16 14; 17 2, 10, 12, 29; 18 1; 24 2; 1 Kings 1 41; 2 Kings 25 28; Jerem. 23 28; 41 7, 11, 13, 16; 42 8; 52 32; Ezek. 38 22; Esther 3 1.

I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 43a, on 1 Sam. 14 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 57b, on 2 Sam. 2 3; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 188a, on Judg. 9 44; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 170b, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 15a, on Gen. 24 54; (VII) the same MS., fol. 34b, on Gen. 35 6 and (VIII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 9 5.

התשעו = § 1174.

אשר עשה which he did, occurs six times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on 2 Kings 15 36. In its bare form it is both incorrect and unintelligible, since אשר עשה occurs about one hundred and fifty times.

To evolve the sense of this Massorah it is necessary to remark that, though not stated in the heading: (1) this Rubric refers to the occurrence of this phrase in Kings only; (2) that even here it is restricted to those passages where this phrase is preceded by והנה רבתי and the rest of the acts of, which sums up the deeds of the several sovereigns, since אשר עשה occurs altogether no fewer than forty-one times in this book and (3) that it is designed to safeguard the exceptional instances in which this phrase occurs against being made conformable to the normal combination which is used in these summaries. This is evident from the fact that והנה רבתי precedes the names of the respective rulers in twenty-seven passages. In twenty-one instances the deeds of the King are expressed by the phrase והכל אשר עשה and all which he did, and in six only is this normal formula exchanged for the abnormal אשר עשה which he did, without the expression והכל. The Massorah, therefore, protects this exceptional phrase. That this protection was necessary will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. The solitary instance of אשר עשה... והנה רבתי in 2 Chron. 36 8 is not included in this Rubric because והכל אשר עשה never follows והנה רבתי in Chronicles and hence required no protection.

Tested by this rule we see: (1) that the omission of אשר עשה in 1 Kings 12 33; 16 19; 2 Kings 17 22 from this Rubric is due to the fact that the summary phrase והנה רבתי does not occur in these passages; (2) that two instances which belong to this Rubric, viz. 1 Kings 22 46; 2 Kings 1 18 are wrongly omitted and (3) that two passages which do not belong to it, viz. 1 Kings 22 54; 2 Kings 15 36 are wrongly included, since in the case of Ahaziah it is not only והכל אשר עשה, but it is without the summary phrase והנה רבתי and in the case of Jotham it is והכל אשר עשה and (4) that the heading of the Rubric ought to be והנה רבתי... והכל אשר עשה.

1 Comp. והכל אשר עשה... 1 Kings 11 41; 14 29; 15 7, 23 31; 16 14; 22 39; 2 Kings 8 23; 10 34; 12 20; 13 8, 12; 14 28; 15 6, 21, 26, 31, 36; 21 17; 23 28; 24 5.

התשעיה = § 1175.

אשר עשה אתכם which he did with, or for you, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard Deut. 1 30 against being made conformable to 4 34 where it is אשר עשה לכם whereas in Joel 2 26 it is אשר עשה עמכם. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 255a, on Deut. 1 30.

התשעז = § 1176.

אשר יעשה which he shall do, occurs twice. This Rubric, which is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 352a, on Eccl. 3 14, I cannot explain, since this phrase occurs twenty times more. The same statement is repeated in the Massorah Parva of this Model Codex. It is possible that the original Massorah was אשר יעשה ב, as this phrase actually occurs twice (Exod. 28 4; Eccl. 2 3) and that the Nakdan, mistaking it for אשר יעשה supplied it with the wrong catchwords and transferred it from Eccl. 2 3 to 3 14.

1 Comp. אשר יעשה Exod. 14 13; 30 38; Levit. 5 22, 26; 18 29; Numb. 24 14; Deut. 3 24; 17 2, 12; 27 15; 1 Sam. 28 2; Isa. 19 15; 35 7; Ezek. 20 13, 21; Ps. 1 3; Eccl. 7 20; 11 5; Esther 1 20; Neh. 9 29.

התשעח = § 1177.

אשר צוה יהוה which Jehovah commanded, occurs three times in this combination at the end of a verse. That is, to distinguish it from the other three instances where this phrase ends the verse, but where אשר is with the prefix Caph, viz. באשר. (Vide infra, letter k, § 1199.)

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 58a, on Exod. 35 10 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. It is remarkable that both Lists omit 1 Kings 11 10.

התשעיה = § 1178.

אשר צוהתי which thou hast commanded me, is twice thus combined in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 75a, on Ezek. 9 11. It will be seen that whilst this Rubric includes the official or marginal reading in Ezek. 9 11 it omits Deut. 26 14.

התשעט = § 1179.

באשר in that, because &c. occurs fifteen times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated eighteen Lists, seventeen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 113a, on Jonah 1 8 which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 47 12; (III) the same Codex on Jonah 1 8; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 22a, on Judg. 5 27; (V) the same MS., fol. 139b, on Isa. 47 12; (VI) the same MS., fol. 143a, on Isa. 56 4; (VII) the same MS., fol. 209a, on Jonah 1 8; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 282b, on Ruth. 1 17; (IX) the same MS., fol. 352a, on Eccl. 3 9; (X) Add. 15,250, fol. 134b, on Judg. 5 27; (XI) Add. 15,451, fol. 166a, on Judg. 5 27; (XII) the same MS., fol. 251a, on 2 Kings 8 1; (XIII) the same MS., fol. 362b, on Isa. 47 12; (XIV) Add. 21,160, fol. 9a, on Gen. 21 17; (XV) the same MS., fol. 42b, on Gen. 39 23; (XVI) the same MS., fol. 292a, on Jonah 1 8; (XVII) Halle Oehliah Ve-Oehliah II, § 164, and (XVIII) the printed Massorah on Judg. 5 27. The two of the fifteen instances in which באשר begins the verse are also given in a separate Massorah in Harley 5710—11, on Ruth. 1 17 and in Add. 15,251, on the same passage. On referring to the notes on Eccl. 8 4 in my edition of the Bible, the necessity of safeguarding these instances will be seen.

Comp. The Massorah, Vol. III, p. 335, letter k, § 133.

התשס = § 1180.

ובאשר and in which, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, the preceding expression with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated seven separate Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 30a, on Isa. 65 12 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 240a, on Job 39 30; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 258b, on Ruth 1 16; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 146a, on Isa. 65 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 282b, on Ruth 1 16; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Isa. 66 4 and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Besides these separate Lists, this Rubric also forms the second part of the following Lists of § 1179, XIV, XV, XVI and XVIII.

התשסא-f = § 1181a-f.

אשר. Words which respectively occur once only, preceded by אשר. These six fragmentary Lists are respectively: (I) From Orient. 2349, fol. 40b, on Gen. 24 7; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 168a, on Jerem. 32 24; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 81a, on Levit. 16 32; (IV, V) from the same MS., fol. 259a, on 2 Kings 18 5 and (VI) the same MS., fol. 348a, on Isa. 17 8. Since these fragments have been printed I have found two others in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, one fol. 102b on Levit. 16 32 containing twelve of these unique combinations and one fol. 101b on Levit. 15 32 giving fourteen instances. The latter gives one instance, viz. אשר יעשה Job 3 25 which is not given in any of the other fragments. It will be seen that the shortest fragment gives three instances only and the longest thirty of these unique combinations and that none of them have headings to specify their number, nor do they give catchwords for the identification of the passages.

It is, therefore, manifest that the sundry fragments exhibit simply the first attempt on the part of the different Massorites to register these unique combinations and that they left the completion of the catalogue to successive Massorites, who have never completed it. The two printed Lists extant with the headings, one in the Massorah Finalis, letter k, § 790, and the other in the Paris Oehliah Ve-Oehliah, § 254, which state that there are thirty-six such unique combinations are simply misleading. They as usual, proceed from a later Nakdan who found a fragment which contained this number and accordingly affixed the heading to correspond to the instances therein recorded, without taking the trouble to ascertain whether there are any others. This is evident from the fact that there are altogether about seventy of these unique combinations with אשר and that the longest List does not record much more than half the number.

In fragment III, which records thirty, there are properly twenty-nine only, since וְאֵשֶׁר אֵינוּ is given twice, whilst in Jacob b. Chayim's List there are the following mistakes: וְאֵשֶׁר הָעֵשֶׂה should be וְאֵשֶׁר הָעֵלָה 1 Sam. 12 6; וְאֵשֶׁר יָדָבַר should be וְאֵשֶׁר אֵינוּ Jerem. 23 28; וְאֵשֶׁר should be וְאֵשֶׁר Neh. 7 71, and וְאֵשֶׁר חֻקָּה should be וְאֵשֶׁר חֻקָּה 2 Chron. 34 22.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 1182.

וְאֵשֶׁר and that, begins a verse twelve times. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 80b, on Levit. 25 33 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 382a, on Neh. 5 18; (III) the same MS., fol. 384a, on Neh. 7 72; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 383b, on Micah 3 3; (V) the same MS., fol. 462b, on Neh. 8 15; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 78a, on Exod. 9 21; (VII) the same MS., fol. 99a, on Exod. 21 13 and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 25 33.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 1183.

וְאֵשֶׁר יָבֵא and who shall come, occurs twice. That is, with the prefix Vav in contradistinction to the other eleven instances in which this combination occurs where it is without this prefix.¹ This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 134a, on Deut. 19 5.

¹ Comp. וְאֵשֶׁר יָבֵא Exod. 29 30; Levit. 11 34; Numb. 31 23; Deut. 29 21; 1 Sam. 2 34; 2 Kings 19 38; Ezek. 47 9, 9; Esther 4 11; Neh. 6 11; 2 Chron. 19 10.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 1184.

וְאֵשֶׁר יִדְבַר and which he spake, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these two solitary instances with the prefix Vav against being made conformable to the ninety-eight passages in which this combination occurs without the prefix. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Jerem. 9 11.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 1185.

וְאֵשֶׁר לֹא and who not, occurs eight times. That is, to distinguish it from the numerous instances in which this combination occurs without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 142a, on Isa. 52 15 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 178a, on Ezek. 18 8; (III) the same MS., fol. 211a, on Micah 3 5; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 462a, on Neh. 10 31; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 78a, on Exod. 9 21; (VI) the same MS., fol. 99a, on Exod. 21 13; (VII) Orient. 2349, fol. 62b, on Exod. 9 21; (VIII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Isa. 52 15; (IX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 164, margin and (X) the printed Massorah on Exod. 9 21.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 1186.

וְאֵשֶׁר עָלַי and who was over or upon, occurs twice. In the other numerous instances in which this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 105a on 2 Kings 10 5. Though the heading of this Rubric in the MS.¹ is וְאֵשֶׁר עָלַי it is manifest that the Massorah is on וְאֵשֶׁר עָלַי alone which occurs twice only, and that וְאֵשֶׁר עָלַי which does not occur in the second passage is the addition of an ignorant Nakdan.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 1187.

וְאֵשֶׁר עָשָׂה and what he did, occurs seven times, four [three] times in the Pentateuch and three [four] times in the Prophets. As this combination, which occurs about one hundred and eighty times, is without the prefix Vav in upwards of one hundred and seventy instances and with it in these two passages only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional phrase.

Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, ten in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 119a, on Deut. 11 4 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 218a, on 1 Kings 2 24; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 17b, on Josh. 24 17; (IV) the same MS., fol. 77b, on 1 Kings 2 24; (V) the same MS., fol. 91a, on 1 Kings 16 5; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 162a, on Josh. 24 17; (VII) the same MS., fol. 225a, on 1 Kings 2 24; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 238a, on 1 Kings 16 5; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 271a, on Deut. 11 4; (X) Orient. 2349, fol. 129b, on the same passage and (XI) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 2 24. The heading in List I which I have printed, viz. וְאֵשֶׁר עָשָׂה בְּיַד בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל is manifestly a clerical error and ought to be וְאֵשֶׁר עָשָׂה בְּיַד בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל as is attested by the contents of the Rubric, and this coincides with all the other Lists.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 1188.

וְאֵשֶׁר. Twelve instances are misleading where the textual reading is וְאֵשֶׁר and the Sevir וְאֵשֶׁר. Here we have the reverse of the record in § 1162. There instances are catalogued in which this relative pronoun or conjunctive is without the prefix Caph in the text, but has it in the Sevir, whilst here it is with it in the text, but is cancelled in the Sevir.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 132b, on Deut. 16 10 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 131b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 113b, also on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah on Jonah 1 14. List III heads it בְּיַד רַמְסֵי בְּרַח בְּנֵי אֲנָשׁ and gives nine instances only, omitting Josh. 9 21; Jerem. 23 27; Eccl. 4 17; whilst List IV which heads it רַמְסֵי בְּרַח omits Josh. 9 21; Eccl. 4 17. This shows the different traditions preserved in the different Massoretic Schools with regard to the number of Sevirin which their respective texts exhibited.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 1189.

וְאֵשֶׁר יָדַבְּרַת יְהוָה אֶל־מֹשֶׁה as Jehovah spake unto Moses, occurs four times thus combined. The phrase וְאֵשֶׁר יָדַבְּרַת יְהוָה as Jehovah spake, is in ten instances followed by Moses. In six passages it is וְאֵשֶׁר יָדַבְּרַת יְהוָה אֶל־מֹשֶׁה and in four only it is וְאֵשֶׁר יָדַבְּרַת יְהוָה אֶל־מֹשֶׁה. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 40a, on Exod. 9 12. As in two of the four instances it is וְאֵשֶׁר without the prefix Caph (Exod. 4 30; Numb. 15 22) and moreover as this phrase occurs also twice in Joshua (11 23; 14 6) the heading ought properly to be וְאֵשֶׁר יָדַבְּרַת יְהוָה אֶל־מֹשֶׁה.

¹ Comp. וְאֵשֶׁר יָדַבְּרַת יְהוָה אֶל־מֹשֶׁה Exod. 9 35; Numb. 17 6; 27 23; 1 Kings 8 53, 56; 2 Chron. 35 6.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 1190.

וְאֵשֶׁר צִוָּה יְהוָה as Jehovah commanded, ends a verse in three instances in a unique manner. That is, to distinguish it from the other three instances where this phrase ends the verse, but where it is וְאֵשֶׁר without the prefix Caph. (Vide supra, letter u, § 1177.)

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 68a, on Levit. 9 7 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 74b, on 2 Sam. 24 19; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Levit. 9 7; (IV) the printed Massorah on Levit. 10 15 and (V) the same on 2 Sam. 24 19.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 1191.

וְאֵשֶׁר צִוָּה מֹשֶׁה as Moses commanded, occurs three times in a unique manner. That is, without any adjunct to distinguish it from the other three instances where this phrase is followed by וְאֵשֶׁר יָדַבְּרַת יְהוָה the servant of Jehovah (Josh. 8 31, 33; 11 12). In fixing this number at three, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the reading וְאֵשֶׁר צִוָּה יְהוָה אֶל־מֹשֶׁה in Levit. 9 21 which is exhibited in the most ancient recension of the text, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 68b, on Levit. 9 21 which I have printed; (II) the same MSS., Vol. II, fol. 140a, on 1 Chron. 15 15; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 93a, on Levit. 9 21; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 247b, on 1 Chron. 15 15 and (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 321, on the same passage.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 1192.

וְאֵשֶׁר רָאָה when he saw them, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 21b, on Gen. 32 3 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As רָאָה by itself occurs twice only, the Massorah has also a separate Rubric on this trilateral. Of this separate Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 59b, on Jerem. 39 4; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 173b; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 262a, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. It will be seen that the two Lists which record the phrase have also the Rubric which gives רָאָה by itself.

תְּחִלָּתוֹ = § 1193.

וְאֵשֶׁר וְאֵשֶׁר and when, begins a verse twice. As this quinqueliteral, which occurs altogether fifteen times, is in thirteen instances in the middle of the verse and in two instances only it begins the verse, the Massorah safeguards its exceptional position.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 94b, on Ezek. 37 18 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 444b, fol. 42a, on Exod. 1 12; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 191a, on Ezek. 37 18 and (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 64a, on Exod. 1 12. This pair forms part of the List of fourteen words commencing with Vav which respectively occur twice at the beginning of the verse.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter v, § 63, Vol. I, p. 399.

תהשצו = § 1194.

לְאִשֶׁר אָנִי to that which I, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 38 20.

תהשציה = § 1195.

וּמֵאֲשֶׁר and of that, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 20b, on Gen. 31 1.

תהשצו = § 1196.

אֲשֶׁרֶה Asherah, is three times plene in this form. That is, the name of this goddess without and with prefixes and suffixes, which occurs forty times in the Bible, is in these three instances only with Yod after the Shin. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards this exceptional spelling. The necessity for protecting this peculiar orthography will be seen from the notes on Deut. 7 5 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 111a, on 2 Kings 17 16 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 268a, on Deut. 7 5; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Kings 17 16; (IV) the printed Massorah on Deut. 7 5 and (V) the same on 2 Kings 17 16.

תהשצו = § 1197.

אֲשֶׁר O the blessedness of, occurs four times at the beginning of the verse with the accent Mercha and the sign thereof in Challee is O strong man of the children of men hearken unto me, and another sign is A thoughtful man obeys the Lord. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 174a, on Ps. 1 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 182a, on Ps. 32 2; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 185a, on Ps. 40 5; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 319b, on Ps. 1 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 360a, on Prov. 8 34; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 347a, on Ps. 1 1; (VII) the same MS., fol. 354a, on Ps. 40 5; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 397b, on Ps. 1 1 and (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage. List I gives the first mnemonic sign and List IX the second. The second sign without the List is also given in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter u, § 772.

To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark: (1) that אֲשֶׁר which occurs altogether thirty-six times begins a verse in twenty-four instances; (2) that in this position it has no fewer than five different accents;¹ (3) that in four out of the six instances where it has Mercha it has also Gaya under the Aleph in some MSS. or in some MSS. two Gayas, one under the Aleph and one under the Shin and (4) that it is these four instances which are recorded in the Rubric before us.

It is, however, to be remarked that this is according to one School of Massorites and that according to another School these four instances are with Makeph and the accent Mercha. This is emphatically set forth in the heading of List III which is וְאֲשֶׁר בְּמֵרְכָה וְבַגַּיָּה וְבַגַּיָּה וְבַמֶּקֶף and not only is it אֲשֶׁר in the text in all the four instances of this Standard Codex, but also in the remarkable Model Codex Arund. Orient. 16. These two Codices belong to two different countries, the first is Italian circa A. D. 1230 and the second German circa A. D. 1120. It is important to state that not one of the Lists heads this Rubric בְּמֵרְכָה וְבַגַּיָּה וְבַגַּיָּה וְבַמֶּקֶף.

¹ Comp. אֲשֶׁר 1 Kings 10 8; Ps. 33 12; 84 6; 89 16; 144 15; Prov. 3 13; 28 14; 2 Chron. 9 7; אֲשֶׁר Isa. 56 2; Ps. 65 5; 94 12; 127 5; 137 9; אֲשֶׁר Ps. 41 2; 84 5; 106 3; 119 2; אֲשֶׁר Ps. 119 1; Dan. 12 12 apart from the four instances with this accent and Gaya and אֲשֶׁר Ps. 146 5.

תהשציה = § 1198.

אֲשֶׁר אָנִי O the blessedness of the man, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the combination אֲשֶׁר אָנִי which is recorded in the next Rubric. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 323a, on Job 5 17 which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תהשצו = § 1199.

אֲשֶׁר הַבְּרָכָה O the blessedness of the man, is four times thus combined in the Scriptures. It will be seen that whilst the former combination occurs outside the Psalms, this phrase is confined to the Psalter. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 216b, on Ps. 127 5 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 307b, on Ps. 94 12; (III) the same MS., fol. 317a, on Ps. 127 5; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Ps. 94 12 and (VI) the same on Ps. 127 5. List III heads this Rubric אֲשֶׁר הַבְּרָכָה and gives three instances only, omitting Ps. 34 9. This is due to the fact that this recension records those instances only which begin a verse. The expression אֲנִי has been omitted after אֲנִי=three which is not unfrequently the case.

תהיה = § 1200.

אֲשֶׁר הָעָם O the blessedness of the people, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 220a, on Ps. 144 15 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 320a, on the same passage and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 364a, on Ps. 89 16.

תהתיב = § 1201.

וְאֲשֶׁר and O the blessedness of, occurs twice. That is, this construct plural which occurs altogether thirty-six times, is in these two instances only, with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 246a, on Prov. 8 32 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 262b, on 2 Chron. 9 7 and (III) the same MS., fol. 339b, on Prov. 8 32.

תהתיב = § 1202.

אֲשֶׁרֶךָ thy blessedness, or blessed art thou, occurs twice. That is, with the suffix second person singular masculine, in the only other instance where it occurs it is אֲשֶׁרֶךָ with the suffix second person singular feminine (Eccl. 10 17). Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 135a, on Deut. 33 29 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 216b, on Ps. 128 2; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 372a, on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תהתיב = § 1203.

אֲשֶׁתְּאֵל Eshtael, is twice plene. This proper name without and with prefixes occurs altogether seven times. As it is defective in four instances¹ and plene in three, the Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 11b, on Josh. 15 33 which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. The apparent conflict between the heading of Lists I and II which emphatically states that this expression is twice plene and that of List III which as emphatically states that it is three times plene is due to the fact that the former refers to אֲשֶׁתְּאֵל without the prefix which occurs twice, whilst the latter includes אֲשֶׁתְּאֵל with the prefix Vav (Josh. 19 41) and ought, therefore, to be אֲשֶׁתְּאֵל בְּלִישׁׁתׁי. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, however, (List III) is incorrect, inasmuch as אֲשֶׁתְּאֵל רַחֵם לַעֲמִי = Judg. 13 25 is given as the third instance, whereas it should be אֲשֶׁתְּאֵל רַחֵם לַעֲמִי = Josh. 19 41.

¹ Comp. אֲשֶׁתְּאֵל Judg. 13 25; אֲשֶׁתְּאֵל Judg. 18 8; אֲשֶׁתְּאֵל Judg. 18 2, 11.

תהתיב = § 1204.

אֲשֶׁתְּרֵדוּ and sedition, occurs twice. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Ezra 4 19.

תהתיב = § 1205.

אֵת. Wherever this particle begins a verse in combination with any other expression it is with the prefix Vav (אֵת) except in fifteen instances where it is without this prefix (אֵת).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 84b, on Exod. 29 39 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 74b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter u, § 801.

This highly artificial Massorah can only be understood and its contents tested by a minute analysis of the instances in which $\text{וַ$ and וּ severally begin a verse throughout the Pentateuch. Without and with the prefix Vav this particle begins a verse in this division of the Bible no less than one hundred and sixty-seven times as follows:

Genesis. — In Genesis, where it occurs altogether thirty times at the beginning of a verse, it is in twenty-five instances with the prefix Vav and in five instances only it is וּ without the prefix (Gen. 9 18; 14 9; 15 19; 22 21; 34 28). Hence the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251, Cambridge Add. 1174, on Gen. 22 21 protects this minority. The necessity for safeguarding these passages will be seen by referring to the notes on Gen. 34 28; 35 12 in my edition of the Bible.

Exodus. — In Exod., where it occurs forty-eight times at the beginning of a verse, it is in thirty instances with the prefix Vav and in eighteen only it is without the Vav. Hence the Rubric before us safeguards the minority, and thereby excludes the variations which obtained in the ancient recensions exhibited in the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. It will be seen that this Rubric is based upon recensions of the text which had fifteen instances only without the prefix Vav. Hence 23 15, 27; 34 18 are omitted.

Leviticus. — In Levit., where it begins a verse fifty times, it is in eleven instances without the prefix Vav (11 9, 15, 22; 14 6, 31; 18 4; 19 19, 30; 25 5, 37; 26 2) and in thirty-nine instances with it.³ Hence the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710—11, on Levit. 11 2 and in Cambridge Add. 1174 on Levit. 18 4 and 19 30 protects the minority. It is remarkable that both these MSS. in all the three instances state that it occurs ten times only at the beginning of a verse in this book ($\text{יְרַא עֲשֵׂי בְּיָמֵינוּ}$), but as the List is not given, it is impossible to say in which instance these Codices read $\text{וַ$ where the present received text reads וּ .

Numbers. — In Numb. this particle begins a verse nineteen times. In fourteen instances it is with the prefix⁴ and in five only, it is without it (7 7; 15 23; 17 3; 28 4; 35 14). Hence the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,250, on Numb. 15 23 safeguards the minority.

Deuteronomy. — In Deut., where this particle begins a verse altogether twenty times, it is in ten instances with the prefix *Vav*⁵ and in ten without it. (Vide infra, letter ו , § 1206.)

And in all the rest of the Pentateuch it is with the prefix at the beginning of the verse ($\text{וַ$) except in twenty-five instances where it is without it, viz. וּ .

From the above analysis we see that there are thirty-one instances apart from Exodus where וּ begins a verse. Even if בְּמִדְבָּר except twenty-five is taken to be בְּמִדְבָּר except twenty-eight, as the ו and וּ are so much alike, there is still a difference of three passages. This is probably due to the fact that this Massorah emanates from a Massoretic School whose text exhibited various readings.

Though Lists I and II emphatically state in the heading that there are fifteen such instances, they catalogue fourteen only and omit Exod. 39 35 which is manifestly due to a clerical error. The heading in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List III), viz. $\text{אֵין יְרַא עֲשֵׂי בְּיָמֵינוּ כִּסְפֵי בְּרַאשֵׁי הַיּוֹם}$ is a mistake for כִּסְפֵי שְׁמֵת since all the sixteen instances are from Exodus. This List too is based upon Codices which had sixteen such instances and hence Exod. 23 15, 27 are omitted. It is without the addition at the end which summarily gives the number of instances of וּ beginning a verse in the rest of the Pentateuch.

¹ Comp. $\text{וַ$ Gen. 10 12, 14, 16, 17, 18, 27, 28, 29; 14 6; 15 20, 21; 17 21; 19 11; 22 22; 34 26, 29; 35 12; 36 3; 41 52; 42 4, 20; 43 13; 44 2; 46 28; 47 21.

² Comp. $\text{וַ$ Exod. 4 17; 5 8; 18 3; 26 1, 29; 29 4, 14, 15, 17, 41; 30 27, 28, 30; 31 8, 9, 10, 11; 35 14, 15, 28; 36 34, 38; 38 28, 31; 39 18, 28, 29, 34, 38; 40 29.

³ Comp. $\text{וַ$ Levit. 3 4, 10, 15; 4 9, 11, 19, 26, 31, 35; 5 10, 16, 25; 7 3, 4, 32; 8 3, 17, 20, 21; 9 10, 11, 13, 19, 21; 10 14, 16; 11 6, 7, 13, 14, 16, 17, 18, 19; 14 41; 16 25, 27; 18 22.

⁴ Comp. $\text{וַ$ Numb. 1 18; 3 10, 46; 4 26; 6 17; 7 8; 17 18; 28 8; 31 8, 10; 32 35, 36, 38; 35 6.

⁵ Comp. $\text{וַ$ Deut. 2 4; 3 21; 9 21; 11 8; 13 17; 14 8, 14, 15; 34 2, 3.

וַ - § 1206.

$\text{וַ$ begins a verse ten times in Deuteronomy. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the variation in Deut 14 16 which obtained in the ancient recensions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 141b, on Deut. 14 16 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 131b, on the same passage and

(III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו , § 806. For the analysis of the respective numbers of $\text{וַ$ and וּ at the beginning of a verse in this book see the preceding Rubric.

וּ - § 1207.

וּ . From Josh. 21 3 to verse 37 whether at the beginning or in the middle of a verse, the proper name of the city is always preceded by וּ except in twenty-four [eight] instances where it is preceded by this particle without the prefix Vav, viz. וּ .

The forty-five proper names of the cities recorded in this section of Joshua are promiscuously preceded by the particle וּ without and with the prefix Vav. In seventeen instances the proper name is preceded by this particle with the prefix *Vav*¹ and in twenty-eight it is without this prefix. The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to register the instances in which the name is preceded by וּ . For this reason the seven expressions which are preceded by וּ , but which are not proper names of cities are excluded from this register (Josh. 21 3, 8, 13, 21, 27, 32, 36). It will be seen that the Massorah here, contrary to its usual practice, safeguards the majority. This is due to the fact that the variations exhibited in the ancient Codices and early editions are on the passages which constitute this majority, as is disclosed in the notes on Josh. 21 16, 18, 23, 24, 29, 31, 34 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 151b, on Josh. (II) 18 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 15a; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 159b, (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו , § 806. In List I בְּבִרְיָא and בְּבִרְיָא are manifestly clerical errors for $\text{בְּבִרְיָא} = \text{בְּבִרְיָא}$ proper name and בְּבִרְיָא except twenty-eight times, as they are correctly given in the headings of the other Lists. The omission in this List of בְּבִרְיָא 21 35 is also due to a scribal error. List II omits בְּבִרְיָא 21 24; List III omits בְּבִרְיָא 21 17 and gives בְּבִרְיָא 21 25 twice. But as all these Lists state in the headings that there are twenty-eight such instances, the omissions are unquestionably clerical errors. The addition to the heading in List V which forms part of the Rubric according to the ten instances in Deuteronomy where וּ begins a verse, viz. $\text{וּכֵן מִפֶּי דְרִשְׁתָּן מִן רַבִּי}$ is meaningless. It is to be remarked that this Massorah is based upon a recension of the text which omits Josh. 21 36, 37. (Comp. my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, p. 178 &c.)

¹ Comp. וּ Josh. 21 13, 14, 14, 15, 15, 16, 16, 18, 21, 22, 22, 25, 27, 31, 32, 32, 36.

וּ - § 1208a.

וּ begins a verse four times in this book, i. e. in Jeremiah. In Jeremiah, where this particle begins a verse nineteen times, it is with the prefix Vav in fourteen instances¹ and in four or rather five without it. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 162b, on Jerem. 25 19 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 48a, on Jerem. 25 21; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 297b, on Jerem. 25 23, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 25 19. All these Lists state that there are four instances only whereas there are five. Lists I, II and IV omit Jerem. 43 6; whilst List III omits Jerem. 25 23. According to List II which heads this Rubric בְּבִרְיָא the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the four instances in Jerem. 25. In this chapter alone this particle begins a verse nine times; in five instances it is with the prefix Vav (25 20, 22, 24, 25, 26) and in four it is without it (25 18, 19, 21, 23). Jerem. 43 6 is, therefore, rightly omitted because it is not in this Section. The other Lists which do not restrict this Massorah to Jerem. 25 are defective. That these instances required safeguarding may be seen from the notes on Jerem. 25 23 in my edition of the Bible.

¹ Comp. וּ Jerem. 6 11; 25 20, 22, 24, 25, 26; 28 4; 34 21; 36 17; 41 3; 52 11, 17, 18, 19.

וּ - § 1208b.

וּ occurs three times at the beginning of a verse. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 14 9 is inexplicable, since in the Pentateuch alone this particle without the prefix Vav begins a verse no fewer than forty-nine times. (Vide supra, letter ו , § 1205.) It may be that the number three is intended to represent the three divisions of the Bible, the Law, the Prophets and the Hagiographa.

תתתט = § 1209.

תת is with Tzere (תז), but when it is with Makeph it is with Segol (תז) except in one instance . . . and in three instances it is with Segol though it is without Makeph. קטן קטן in Massoretic terminology denotes Tzere and קטן קטן Segol.

Of this Rubric, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 242b, on Prov. 3 12 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 295a, on Ps. 47 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 337a, on Prov. 3 12; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 13a, on Gen. 1 1; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 47 5 and (VII) the same on Prov. 3 12. The different headings of this Rubric ארז ארז (List II) and ארז ארז (List III) are due to the peculiar features which the Massorites emphasise in this exceptional orthography. The one lays stress on its being with Segol though it is without Makeph and the other emphasises its having the accent Mercha though with Segol.

תתתי = § 1210.

For תת and תת with the accent Tiphcha see below, letter מ, § 1289.

תתתיא = § 1211.

תת. In five verses of the Pentateuch this particle occurs twice with one word only intervening. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 53b, on Exod. 29 5.

תתתיב = § 1212.

תת. In twenty-seven verses this particle occurs twice with one word only intervening. The peculiar position of the particle, which the preceding Rubric records with regard to the Pentateuch alone, is here noticed with regard to the whole Bible. These two Rubrics show how the Massorah was developed. In the first instance one division of the Bible was analysed and then the analysis gradually extended to the whole Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 87b, on Numb. 5 24.

תתתיג = § 1213.

תת. In thirteen verses of this book [i. e. Leviticus] the particle תת occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 86a, on Levit. 8 7. In the received text there are fourteen such verses, since the same peculiarity also occurs in Levit. 26 15.

תתתיד = § 1214.

תת. In six verses of this book [i. e. Deuteronomy] the particle תת occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 119b, on Deut. 12 3.

תתתטי = § 1215.

תת. In eight verses of Joshua the particle תת occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 8a, on Josh. 10 24 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 828.

תתתטיא = § 1216.

תת. In fifteen verses of Samuel this particle occurs three times. The reason for safeguarding these passages will be seen by a reference to the notes on 2 Sam. 7 7, 12 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) The printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 829, which I have printed and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 62b, on 2 Sam. 10 3. Though Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List I) correctly states in the heading that there are fifteen such instances, it enumerates fourteen only. It omits 2 Sam. 14 21 which the MS. List (No. II) rightly gives.

תתתטיב = § 1217.

תת. In nineteen verses of Kings this particle occurs three times. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading ארז ארז in 1 Kings 8 1 which is exhibited in the best Codices (Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 21,161; Orient. 1478 first hand, Orient. 4227); in the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485-86; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1486, and the editio princeps of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1624-25, and is corroborated by the parallel passage in 2 Chron. 5 2. Other MSS. and editions, however, follow the reading of this Massorah, viz. Arund. Orient. 16; Harley 5720; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; the second, third and fourth editions of the Bible, Naples 1491-93; Brescia 1494; Pesaro 1511-17; the Complutensian and Felix Pratensis' edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517. In my edition of the Bible I have followed the oldest dated and Standard Codices.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 116a, on 2 Kings 23 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 116b, on 2 Kings 23 16; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 213a, on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 827.

תתתייה = § 1218.

תת. In sixteen verses this particle occurs four times. On referring to the notes in my edition of the Bible on Levit. 20 18; Deut. 11 2; 2 Chron. 18 30 it will be seen that the design of this Massorah is to exclude the variations which obtained in the Codices of other Schools of Massorites with regard to some of these passages. It is, moreover, designed to safeguard the parallel passage in 1 Kings 22 31, where this particle also occurs four times, but where it is with the prefix Vav (תת) in the third instance, against being made conformable to 2 Chron. 18 30.

Of this Rubric, I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 89b, on Levit. 13 52 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 99b, on the same passage; (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 119a, on Deut. 11 2 and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 816. The heading in List II is ארז ארז sixteen verses have respectively four times ארז or rather four Eths. It will be seen that ארז which is normally used in the Massorah as the plural of ארז is here used as the plural of the particle ארז.

תתתייט = § 1219.

תת. In four verses this particle occurs five times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 62b, on Exod. 40 18 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תתתיכ = § 1220.

תת. In seven verses this particle occurs four times, in the first three instances it is without the prefix Vav and the fourth time it is with it. The reason for safeguarding these verses will be seen in the notes on Exod. 23 23 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 74b, on Levit. 16 24 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 20a, on Judg. 3 7; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 139b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 31b, on Gen. 13 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 164a, on Levit. 16 24 and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תתתיכא = § 1221.

תת. In three verses this particle occurs six times, in the first three instances it is without the prefix Vav and in the second three it is with it. Normally the first five instances in the verse would be without the prefix Vav and the sixth only would be with it. Hence the Massorah safeguards this abnormal use of the prefix.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) The printed Massorah on Exod. 29 5 which I have printed and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 119a, on the same passage. List II heads this Rubric ארז ארז and gives two instances only. The absence, however, of the third instance is evidently due to a Nakdan who overlooked the expression ארז ארז. Hence the copyist who found two instances only, altered the ארז in the heading into ארז to agree with the contents.

תתתכב = § 1222a-b.

תת. In nine verses of Exodus this particle occurs three times; the first and second time it is without the prefix Vav and the third time it is with it. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 65a, on Exod. 39 33 which I have printed as § 1222a and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 826, reproduced in § 1222b. Both Lists are corrupt.

In § 1222a there are four instances only which exhibit the import of the heading (Exod. 35 19; 39 33, 36, 40). The other five are at variance with the statement in the heading. In Exod. 35 11 which is here given as two separate verses, this particle occurs no fewer than eight times: the first, second, fourth, sixth and seventh time it is without the prefix Vav, whilst in the third, fifth and eighth it is with it. In Exod. 35 17; 39 37 it occurs four times, the first and second time without and third and fourth with the prefix Vav. In Exod. 39 40 it occurs six times: the first, second and fifth are without, whilst the third, fourth and sixth are with the prefix Vav.

In § 1222b six out of the nine instances are correct (Exod. 6 20; 7 3; 35 19; 39 33, 36, 41). The other three are the same incorrect ones which are given in § 1222a, viz. Exod. 35 11, 17; 39 40. There are altogether ten instances in Exodus which answer to the statement in the heading of this Rubric, and the following four passages must be substituted for the incorrect ones given in these two Lists: Exod. 9 20; 10 15; 21 5; 23 25.

תתתכ"ג = § 1223.

אָתְּ, אֶתְּ, אֵתְּ. In eleven verses this particle occurs three times, the first and second time it is without and the third with the prefix Vav, and in each case with one word only between these particles. In this respect, therefore, this Rubric differs from the preceding one. In the former Rubric no limit is specified for the expressions which intervene between the recurrence of this particle, whilst in the Rubric before us the intervention is in each case limited to one word.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 34b, on Gen. 11 26 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 82b, on Levit. 1 8; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 62a, on Exod. 21 5; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 165b, on Jerem. 29 17; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Gen. 11 26 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 21 5.

Not only do all the other Lists state that there are twelve such verses, but List II which is from the same MS. as List I which I have printed also states that there are twelve and gives Gen. 5 32 as the first instance which is omitted in List I. Moreover in List I אֶתְּ - Gen. 11 27 is incorrect, since it is אֵתְּ and belongs to the following Rubric. It ought to be אֶתְּ - Gen. 6 10. Though List III, which exhibits the oldest form extant of this Massorah, correctly states in the heading that there are twelve such instances, it enumerates eleven only. It omits Deut. 26 15 which is manifestly due to a scribal error.

The notes on Deut. 28 20; Isa. 29 10; Jerem. 24 10; 29 17 in my edition of the Bible show that the design of this Rubric is to exclude the various readings which some of the ancient Codices exhibited on these passages.

תתתכ"ד = § 1224.

אָתְּ, אֶתְּ, אֵתְּ. In twelve verses this particle occurs four times; in the first, second and fourth instances it is without the prefix Vav and is with it in the third instance.

The design of this Massorah is twofold. It is to exclude 2 Chron. 18 30, which is the parallel passage to 1 Kings 22 31 and which according to the recension of another School ought to belong to this Rubric, and also to militate against the various reading in Jerem. 41 10 which would exclude it from this Rubric, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59a, on 2 Sam. 3 25 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 116b, on Deut. 22 24; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 244b, on 1 Kings 22 31; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 37b, on Gen. 37 2; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Gen. 33 5; (VI) the same Codex on 2 Sam. 3 25; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 11 27 and (VIII) the same on 2 Sam. 3 25. It will be seen that though the heading of the List which I have printed states that there are twelve such verses, it records ten only. As the two missing verses, viz. Judg. 16 24; 1 Kings 22 31 are given in the other Lists it is evident that the omission here is due to a clerical error. List VII, which also omits 1 Kings 22 31, is manifestly due to the same cause.

תתתכ"ה = § 1225.

אָתְּ, אֶתְּ, אֵתְּ. In four verses this particle occurs five times, in the first, second and fourth instances it is without the prefix Vav, whilst in the third and fifth it is with it.

As in two out of the four verses the MSS. of other Massorites exhibit various readings, which are duly recorded in my edition of the Bible on Exod. 6 28; Jerem. 3 24; this Massorah, which emanates from another School, safeguards its readings.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 60b, on Exod. 6 28 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 149b, on Jerem. 3 24; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 72b, on Exod. 6 28; (IV) Orient. 2348, fol. 70b, on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 5 22.

In one verse the reverse is the case &c. That is, here where this particle also occurs five times it is in the first, third and fifth instances without the prefix Vav and in the second and fourth with it. This second part of the Rubric is absent in Lists II, III and V.

תתתכ"ו = § 1226.

אָתְּ, אֶתְּ, אֵתְּ. In nineteen [eighteen] verses this particle occurs four times, in the first and second instances it is without the prefix Vav, whilst in the third and fourth it is with the prefix.

The variations which obtained with regard to the readings in Exod. 35 17; 39 37; Levit. 8 30; Jerem. 51 28 as exhibited in the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible, are the cause of this Massorah.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 385b, on Neh. 9 24 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 155b, on Numb. 33 52. It will be seen that though it is stated in the heading that there are nineteen such verses, eighteen only are enumerated. From the fact that List II, which is from the oldest undated MS. extant, emphatically heads it אֶתְּ and records the same eighteen passages it is manifest that אֶתְּ - 19 should be אֶתְּ - 18.

תתתכ"ז = § 1227.

אָתְּ, אֶתְּ, אֵתְּ. Mnemonic sign for the two verses, viz. Exod. 39 39 40 in which this particle occurs six times. In Exod. 39 40 it is without the prefix Vav in the first, second and fifth instances and with it in the third, fourth and sixth instances. The mnemonic sign for it is Deut. 27 18 where the names of the six tribes are recorded without and with the prefix Vav in exactly the same order.

In Exod. 39 39 the absence and presence of the prefix in the six instances is different. Here it is without the prefix in the first, third and fifth instances and with it in the second, fourth and sixth. The sign for this in Hosea 2 7 where the six articles of food and raiment are enumerated in the second half of the verse without and with the prefix Vav is in precisely the same sequence. The reason for safeguarding these verses will be seen in the notes on Exod. 39 39, 40 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 195a, on Exod. 39 39 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 88b, on the same passage where this Rubric is somewhat expanded.

תתתכ"ח = § 1228.

אָתְּ, אֶתְּ, אֵתְּ. In fourteen verses this particle occurs five times; the first and second time it is without the prefix Vav and the third, fourth and fifth time it is with it. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the various reading in 2 Chron. 29 18 which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 469b, on 1 Chron. 6 52 which I have printed; (II) Add. 4445, fol. 80b, on Exod. 37 16 and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

These three Lists exhibit two distinct recensions of this Massorah. Lists I and III register all the fourteen verses in which this particle occurs five times without and with the prefix Vav and hence head this Rubric אֶתְּ, אֵתְּ, אֵתְּ, whereas List II is more artificial. It catalogues ten instances only and accordingly heads it אֶתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ and adds at the end וְכֵן כֵּן כֵּן אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ that is, and wherever this particle in combination with its noun ends the verse, as is the case with the four instances included in the first recension, viz. Josh. 21 18, 21, 27, 86, it is likewise so. Though Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List III) distinctly states in the heading that there are fourteen such verses, it enumerates fifteen. It gives אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ - Numb. 4 14 as one instance. But as it is here אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ three times without and twice with the prefix Vav it does not belong to this Rubric. It is manifestly the addition of a later Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah, as is attested by its absence in Lists I and II.

התחיש = § 1229.

אָתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ. In six verses in Judges where this particle occurs three times it is in the first and third instances without the prefix Vav and in the second it is with the prefix. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 27a, on Judg. 11 21 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 139a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 171b, on Judg. 11 29; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 818. List II rightly heads this Rubric וְאֶתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ and gives וְאֶתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ = Judg. 9 20 as the fourth instance.

התחיל = § 1230.

אָתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ. In six verses where this particle occurs four times it is in the first, third and fourth instances without the prefix Vav and in the second only, with it. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 110a, on 2 Kings 16 13 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 115a, on 2 Kings 21 13; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 258a, on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 819.

התחילא = § 1231.

אָתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ. In fourteen verses in Genesis where this particle occurs three times it is without the prefix Vav in the first instance and with it in the second and third instances. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 35b, on Gen. 36 5 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 808. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List II) is incorrect. Gen. 15 19 is omitted and וַיִּקַּח בְּלִילָהּ דָּוָא רִבְוֹן = Gen. 32 23 is inserted to make up the fourteen passages. But here it is וַיִּקַּח דָּוָא רִבְוֹן אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ which is against the import of this Rubric and belongs to § 1234 where it occupies its proper place.

התחליב = § 1232.

אָתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ. In twenty-six verses of the Pentateuch where this particle occurs three times it is without the prefix Vav in the first instance and with it in the second and third instances.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, fol. 60a, on Exod. 37 26. וְהָיָה עֵבֶק = Deut. 7 12 is manifestly a clerical error, since in this passage it is (אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ) twice without and once with the prefix Vav. If this scribal error is cancelled and the two verses in numbers where אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ occurs are added (Numb. 4 25; 31 12) to which the end of this Rubric refers, we obtain the requisite number twenty-six. It will be seen that whilst the preceding Rubric catalogues the instances which occur in Genesis only, this Rubric embraces the whole Pentateuch, and militates against the various reading which the recension of another School of textual redactors exhibited in Exod. 35 18, as may be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

התחלין = § 1233.

אָתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ. In four verses of Samuel where this particle occurs three times it is without the prefix Vav in the first instance and with it in the second and third instances. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 52b, on 1 Sam. 25 11. The record of this peculiarity which the preceding two Rubrics have preserved with regard to the Pentateuch is here extended to Samuel, and there can hardly be any doubt that it also exists with regard to the other books of the Bible.

התחליד = § 1234.

אָתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ. In eighteen verses where this particle occurs four times it is without the prefix Vav in the first and fourth instances and with it in the second and third. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the various reading which obtained with regard to Jerem. 25 18, as may be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 115b, on Deut. 5 21 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 469a, on 2 Chron.

4 11; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 164a, on Levit. 16 20 and (IV) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 7 14. Though List I, which I have printed, states in the heading that there are eighteen such verses, it enumerates seventeen only and omits Neh. 1 7. But this is due to a clerical error, since it is given in all the other Lists.

התחליה = § 1235.

אָתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ. In nineteen verses of the Pentateuch where this particle occurs four times it is in the first instance without the prefix Vav and with it in the other three.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 140b, on Deut. 30 15 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 150b, on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the Massorah which records the verses in the Bible wherein the same four words occur without the prefix Vav in the first and with it in the other three instances.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ו, § 110, Vol. I, p. 417.

התחליו = § 1236.

אָתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ. In eighteen verses this particle occurs five times, the first time it is without the prefix Vav whilst in the following four instances it is with it. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the various readings which obtained in the Codices of other Schools, as may be seen from the notes on Exod. 28 5; Levit. 14 6 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 52b, on Exod. 28 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 86a, on Numb. 4 9; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 56b, on Exod. 28 5; (IV) the same MSS., fol. 240b, on 1 Kings 18 38; (V) the same MS. fol. 298b, on Jerem. 44 9; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 110b, on Exod. 28 5; (VII) the same MS., fol. 191a, on Numb. 4 9; (VIII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 119 margin, fol. 112a, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 820.

Though List I distinctly states in the heading that there are eighteen such instances, it enumerates seventeen only. It omits Gen. 34 28, which is manifestly due to a clerical error since it is given in all the other Lists. It gives Jerem. 36 26 as the seventeenth instance where the received text has אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ, but as this is also given as the seventeenth instance in Lists VIII and IX it can hardly be regarded as a scribal blunder, since these Lists belong to MSS. of different countries and it probably exhibits a different recension. For 2 Kings 23 4 is to be substituted 2 Kings 22 12. Lists IV, V and VIII give as the eleventh instance וַיִּקַּח דָּוָא רִבְוֹן אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ whilst List VI heads this Rubric וְאֶתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ אֵתְּ and records thirteen passages only in the following order Gen. 33 2; 34 28; Exod. 28 5; Numb. 4 9; Josh. 3 10; 2 18; 1 Kings 18 38; 2 Kings 22 12; 24 15; Jerem. 8 1; 13 18; 44 9; Ezek. 34 16. It will be seen that List VII, which is from the same MS., duly gives the same seventeen instances which are recorded in List I plus the omitted passage in Gen. 34 28.

התחליו = § 1237.

אָתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ. In six verses this particle occurs seven times, in the first instance it is without the prefix Vav, whilst the other five instances are with it. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on 1 Chron. 6 45 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 242a, on 1 Chron. 6 61 and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 820.

התחליה = § 1238a.

אָתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ. In three verses of the Pentateuch where this particle occurs seven times it is without the prefix Vav in the first instance only and with it in all the six. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 146b, on Levit. 8 2.

התחליה = § 1238b.

אָתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ, וְאֶתְּ. Seven such instances occur altogether in the Bible. These two Rubrics again exhibit the gradual development of the Massorah. The Massorites first began their work on the Pentateuch and then extended their researches to the whole Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 86a, on Levit. 8 2 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 250a, on 2 Kings 15 29; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 109b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 274b, on 2 Chron. 28 18; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 431b, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 36 6 and (VII) the same on Levit. 8 25. The heading of List II which states that seven verses in the Scriptures have severally seven words the first of which is without the copulative whilst all the rest have the prefix Vav is important, inasmuch as it shows that this recension emanates from a different School of Massorites.

תחלים = § 1239a-c.

Words which respectively occur once only combined with this particle without the prefix Vav, but which in all other instances are preceded by וְ.

Lists 1239a and b, which are from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 168b, on Jerem. 32 24 and the same MS., fol. 169a, on Jerem. 33 20 exhibit the first fragmentary attempts on the part of the earlier Massorites to register these unique combinations. They have, therefore, as yet no headings nor catchwords.

List 1239c which exhibits the later development of this Massorah, I have found in the printed Massorah only, letter מ § 798. The Nakdan who completed it and who supplied it with the heading, fixing the number at forty-four and attached the catchwords, mistook its import. Hence he incorporated some instances which do not belong to it, and omitted some which ought to be included. Thus for instance אֲרִי־לֵיכֹם Josh. 10 24 and אֲרִי־מִלֵּלִים Isa. 33 18 (Nos. 21 and 27) have no companion at all with וְ, whilst אֲרִי־עֵץ Ezek. 16 20 and אֲרִי־שֵׁמֶרֶם 2 Chron. 11 14 (Nos. 34 and 43) respectively occur once only with וְ, and, therefore, belong to מ, § 1246. The following three instances which belong to this Rubric are omitted: אֲרִי־עֵץ Ezek. 16 21 which is everywhere else אֲרִי־עֵץ (Exod. 17 3; 21 5); אֲרִי־מֵן 1 Chron. 18 8; elsewhere אֲרִי־מֵן (2 Kings 25 13; Jerem. 52 17; אֲרִי־מִצֵּיפֹת Josh. 21 17 elsewhere אֲרִי־מִצֵּיפֹת (Josh. 21 3; 1 Chron. 6 64). The mistakes in the catchwords which are manifestly due to scribal errors I have corrected.

תחלים = § 1240.

An alphabetical list of words which are always combined with וְ and are never preceded by וְ.

Whilst the preceding Rubric records those words which are normally combined with וְ and which are severally preceded by וְ in one solitary instance, this Massorah catalogues the expressions which in all instances are combined with וְ without a solitary exception.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 160, which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 79, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 805. All these three Lists are almost identical and record fifty-four or fifty-five such instances, some of which are incorrect. Thus אֲרִי־עֵץ No. 5 also occurs with וְ Deut. 15 16. אֲרִי־עֵץ No. 16, occurs once only preceded by וְ (Gen. 1 7) and hence does not belong to this Rubric. אֲרִי־עֵץ No. 32 also occurs with וְ (Ezek. 39 21). אֲרִי־עֵץ No. 87 neither occurs with וְ nor with וְ, and is manifestly a clerical error for אֲרִי־עֵץ which is given in List III. The solitary אֲרִי־עֵץ which represents No. 41 and is exhibited in Lists I and III shows the identity of this Massorah in the Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah and in Jacob b. Chayim's recension. אֲרִי־עֵץ No. 42 does not occur. אֲרִי־עֵץ which List II exhibits is better since אֲרִי־עֵץ does occur (2 Sam. 15 16; 20 3; 1 Kings 7 37), whilst אֲרִי־עֵץ which List III gives occurs both with וְ (Deut. 10 4; 1 Kings 11 35) and with וְ (1 Sam. 17 18; Esther 9 12, 13, 14) and, therefore, is against the import of this Rubric. אֲרִי־עֵץ No. 51 which is given in List II is incorrect, since this expression occurs also with וְ (Ezek. 36 27).

The importance of this Rubric consists in its conclusively proving the oft-stated fact that Massoretic Lists whether arranged alphabetically or otherwise are frequently selections or fragments of certain materials which exhibit the same peculiarities. In casually looking at this Rubric the reader would naturally conclude that we have here a catalogue of all the words which are uniformly preceded by this particle without the copulative. But this is not the case. Numerous instances are omitted, as will be seen from the fact that in Aleph alone which is here represented by four instances, about thirty are omitted, viz.:

אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ
אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ
אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ
אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ
אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ
אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ
אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ
אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ
אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ
אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ	אֲרִי־עֵץ

תחלים = § 1241.

Three groups or phrases which respectively occur twice in the same Section and which in the first instance are without this particle, and with it in the second instance. As the phrases in question are exactly alike, the promiscuous absence and presence of this particle is very striking. That this diversity only obtained in the School in which the present text was redacted and that the text of other Schools did not exhibit these variations may be seen from the notes on Gen. 23 4 in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 23 4.

תחלים = § 1242.

Two groups or phrases which respectively occur twice in Leviticus vary; they are in the first instance with this particle and without it in the second. In these instances, therefore, the reverse is the case. On referring to the notes on Levit. 4 17 in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that this Massorah militates against those Codices which do not exhibit this variation. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 83b, on Levit. 4 17 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 93b, on the same passage.

תחלים = § 1243.

Two groups or pairs which respectively occur twice and which in the first instance are without this particle and with it in the second instance. The same peculiarity with regard to this particle which the preceding Rubric registers in Leviticus is here recorded in Numbers. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 102a, on Numb. 4 14 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 112a, and (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 191a, both on the same passage.

תחלים = § 1244.

Two groups which respectively occur three times are in the first and second instances with this particle and in the third without it . . . and in one group the reverse is the case. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 188a, on Ezek. 33 9 which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 132, and (III) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah §§ 232, 233.

תחלים = § 1246.

Eleven words which respectively occur twice in the same verse are once preceded by וְ and once by וְ.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated eleven Lists, eight in MSS. and three printed; (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 239a, on 1 Chron. 2 46 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 172b, on Jerem. 38 4; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 78b, on Exod. 35 18; (IV) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 219a, on 1 Kings 3 25; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 93b, on Numb. 18 15; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 333a, on Ezek. 43 7; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 219b, on Numb. 18 15; (VIII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 171, margin fol. 117a; (IX) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 280; (X) the printed Massorah on Exod. 35 18 and (XI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 803.

With the exception of Lists IV, IX and X all the other eight Lists make up these eleven verses by including the two which are given at the end of this Rubric as instances wherein the reverse is the case, viz. where the expression, which occurs twice in the same verse, is first preceded by this particle with the prefix Vav and is then repeated without it. The heading, therefore, in Lists I, II, VI, VII, VIII and X which states that in these eleven verses the expression in question is first preceded by וְ and then by וְ, viz. קָרַם קָרַם אֶת רִגְלֵי הָאֵלֶּיךָ is incorrect. The oldest form of this Massorah extant (List III) has not the vicious קָרַם אֶת רִגְלֵי הָאֵלֶּיךָ, but simply קָרַם אֶת רִגְלֵי הָאֵלֶּיךָ. This does not fix the priority of the particle without and with the copula. It, moreover, emphatically lays it down that these instances are unique and hence excludes such passages as (1) Numb. 32 1. Judg. 11 15; Micah 5 5; (2) Numb. 35 14 with Judg. 7 16; (3) Ezek. 40 6 with 2 Sam. 21 18 &c. But all doubt with regard to the import of this Massorah is set aside by the clear heading of List IV which is as follows: ...

§ 1246a-f.

Words which respectively occur twice, once preceded by this particle without the prefix Vav and once with it.

The six fragments which are marked § 1246a-f and which are from Orient. 2349, fols. 33a, 86a, on Gen. 9 9; Levit. 8 9; Add. 15,451, fols. 62a, 67b, 79a, 322a, on Exod. 35 11; 40 18; Levit. 14 46; Ezek. 24 25, contain the various attempts on the part of the different Massorists to collect the instances in the different books which exhibit these peculiar combinations. It will be seen that the smallest List registers three instances or such pairs only, whilst the largest records nineteen. Hence they have as yet no heading fixing the number, nor any catchwords.

Rubric 246g, which represents the latest development of this Massorah, I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter w, § 799. The heading, fixing the number and the catchwords as usual have been added by a later Nakdan, and as is frequently the case in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, are incorrect. To understand this Rubric it is necessary to remark that the eleven unique instances in which this particle occurs twice in the same verse, once without and once with the prefix Vav, and which are the subject of the preceding Massorah, viz. § 1245 are on principle excluded from this List. Apart, however, from these there are no fewer than the following thirteen other instances omitted which belong to this Rubric:

Table with 4 columns: Hebrew text, Book, Verse, and Page. Lists instances of the particle 'vav' with and without the prefix 'vav' in various biblical books like 1 Sam., Jerom., Gen., 2 Chron., 1 Chron., Deut., Exod., Josh., 1 Chron., Deut., Isa., Josh., and Judg.

Moreover one pair is given (No. 72), viz. and which is incorrect, since occurs twice 2 Sam. 19 39; Job 2 10. We have, therefore, altogether eighty-four such pairs instead of seventy-two as stated in the heading. That this heading is the addition of a later Nakdan is, moreover, evident from the fact that the printed Massorah on Ezek. 32 22 where this Rubric is referred to, no number of instances is specified, but it is simply called List.

§ 1247.

Abraham is in four instances preceded by this particle. That is, in all the other six instances where this combination occurs, the name of this patriarch is the shorter form Abram. This Rubric is incorrect since this combination occurs seven times; Josh. 24 3; Isa. 29 22; and Ps. 105 42 are omitted. I have mislaid the reference to the MS. from which it is taken.

Comp. Gen. 11 26, 27, 31; 13 5; 14 23; 15 18.

§ 1248.

Aaron and Moses, occurs twice in this combination. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these two instances against being made conformable to the other six passages in which these two names occur together and each is preceded by this particle, Moses comes first and Aaron second. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 38a, on Exod. 6 20. As

Exod. 5 20; 10 8; 12 50; Josh. 24 5; 1 Sam. 12 6, 8 by itself also occurs twice only, this combination of Moses preceded by the particle with the prefix Vav forms the subject of a separate Rubric which is given in Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 104a, on Numb. 26 59 and Orient. 2349, fol. 60b, on Exod. 6 20.

§ 1249.

the ark of Jehovah, the God of Israel, occurs twice thus combined in the Scriptures. In the other three passages where is preceded by and is followed by the phrase is simply the ark of the God of Israel, without the Tetragrammaton (1 Sam. 5 8, 11; 6 3). This Massorah is, moreover, designed to safeguard the phrase in question against being made conformable to the other combinations in this very section. In 1 Chron. XV occurs eight times; in three instances it is followed simply (1 Chron. 15 2, 2, 15) in one instance by alone (15 3) in two instances by (15 25, 28), whereas in the two passages before us it is followed by . That the early recension of the Hebrew text had not in these passages is evident from the Septuagint.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 140a, on 1 Chron. 15 12. The heading ought more properly to be , since the two instances are not only unique, but occur in the same Section.

§ 1250.

Eleazar, his son, occurs twice. In the other two instances in which this combination occurs the particle is with the prefix Vav (Numb. 20 25; 1 Sam. 7 1). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 86a, on Numb. 20 26.

§ 1251.

that which, followed by to command, occurs seven times. Normally the phrase in this combination is and it is in these seven instances only, that is absent. Hence the Massorah safeguards these exceptional instances. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 77b, on Exod. 34 11 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 87b, on the same passage.

Comp. Exod. 7 2; 25 22; 31 6; 35 10; 38 22; Numb. 15 23; Deut. 18 18; Josh. 22 2; Jerem. 32 23 &c.

§ 1252.

his sons, occurs four times . . . and throughout the Prophets and Hagiographa it is likewise so except in four [six] instances. is in thirty-three instances preceded by this particle without and with the prefix Vav. In the Pentateuch, where it is sixteen times with the prefix and four times only without it, the Massorah safeguards the exceptions, whilst in the Prophets and Hagiographa, where this combination occurs altogether thirteen times and where occurs seven times and six times only, the Massorah records the minority. As usual the design of this Massorah is to exclude the variations which obtained in the Codices of other Schools of textual redactors, as may be seen in the notes on Gen. 31 17 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Gen. 49 33 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 41a; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 62a, both on the same passage; (IV) Halle Oehlsh Ve-Ochlah, Supplement, fol. 131a; (V) the same fol. 132a and (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 49 33. List I, which I have printed is incorrect, since two instances are omitted, Esther 9 25; 1 Chron. 10 8. In letter w, § 1327, where this Massorah is exhibited in a different recension from the same MS., it is perfectly correct. List III heads this Massorah and simply gives the four instances in the Pentateuch. List IV which has the same heading and which concludes the Rubric with and is misleading, since it implies that this combination without the prefix Vav is the uniform reading throughout the Prophets and Hagiographa. The reference in List VI to Josh. 7 24 for the instances of in the Prophets and Hagiographa, is incorrect since Jacob b. Chayim has omitted to give them.

Comp. Gen. 9 1; 36 6; Exod. 4 20; 29 1, 41; 29 4, 8; 30 30; 40 12, 14; Levit. 6 2; 8 2, 6, 30; Numb. 3 10; 21 35.

Comp. Judg. 9 18; 1 Sam. 8 1; Jerem. 35 14; Ezek. 46 18; Job 42 16; 2 Chron. 28 3; 33 6.

§ 1253. התחניג

אֲחֻזְבֵּרְכָה the blessing, occurs twice with the accent Athnach. In the other two instances where תְּקַרְקֵה is preceded by אָרַךְ it is with Pashu (Deut. 11 29) or Zakeph-Katon (Deut. 28 8). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 119b, on Deut. 11 27 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 128a, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 133 3. As תְּקַרְקֵה which occurs altogether ten times has in these two instances only the accent in question, List III heads it simply אֲחֻזְבֵּרְכָה בִּי בְּעֵי אֲחֻזְבֵּרְכָה without אָרַךְ.

§ 1254. התחניד

אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי יְהוָה the words of Jehovah, are five times thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, in these five instances this phrase is exceptionally without the expression קָלִי, whilst normally it is אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי יְהוָה. The safeguarding of this phrase was necessary, since in Jerem. 36 4, 6, 11 the two phrases are used promiscuously and moreover since in Amos 8 11 Codices of another School of textual redactors exhibited various readings, which will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 155a, on 2 Chron. 11 4 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 2b, on Josh. 3 9; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 206a, on Numb. 11 24 and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 149. The heading רַבִּי יְהוֹה without אָרַךְ in List II is incorrect, since this phrase occurs more than five times. It is manifestly due to the careless omission of the particle on the part of the Scribe.

¹ Comp. אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי יְהוָה Exod. 4 28; 24 8; 1 Sam. 8 10; Jerem. 36 4, 11; 43 1; Ezek. 11 26.

§ 1255. התחניה

אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הַתּוֹרָה the words of the Law, is twice thus combined. Normally the phrase in the Pentateuch is אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הַתּוֹרָה all the words of the Law, which occurs seven times (vide infra, letter מ, § 1267). As it is in these two instances that it is without קָלִי all, the Massorah safeguards this abnormal combination.

And throughout the Prophets and Hagiographa it is likewise so except once. This second part of the Massorah is designed to safeguard the two instances in question, since the Codices of other Schools of textual redactors exhibited אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הַתּוֹרָה in Deut. 27 26, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 132b, on Deut. 31 24. Another recension of this Rubric which reverses the order is given below, letter מ, § 1266.

§ 1256. התחניז

אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הַזָּהָב the gold, is six times thus combined in the Scriptures. It is fifteen times preceded by this particle. In nine instances it is with the prefix Vav¹ and in six only is it without the prefix. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 221a, on 1 Kings 6 82 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 126a, on Zech. 13 9; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 153a, on Numb. 31 51; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 81a, on 1 Kings 6 32; (V) the same MS., fol. 221b, on Zech. 13 9; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 315b, on the same passage; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 57a, on Exod. 28 5; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 187a, on 1 Kings 6 32 and (IX) the printed Massorah on Exod. 28 5.

¹ Comp. אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הַזָּהָב 1 Kings 7 51; 2 Kings 16 8; 20 13; 23 36; Isa. 39 2; Ezra 8 25; 1 Chron. 28 16; 2 Chron. 1 15; 5 1.

§ 1257. התחניז

אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הַחֵלֶב the wall of, occurs three times. This noun singular construct is seven times preceded by this particle. In four passages it is with the prefix Vav¹ and in three without it. The Massorah, therefore, catalogues the minority. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 293b, on Neh. 2 17 which I have printed and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 172b, on 2 Chron. 36 19.

¹ Comp. אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הַחֵלֶב 1 Kings 3 1; 9 15; Neh. 3 16; 2 Chron. 26 6.

§ 1258. התחניה

אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הַחַיִּים the living, life, occurs three times thus combined in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 263b, on Eccl. 2 17 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 283a, on Ruth 2 20; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 368a, on Eccl. 2 17; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 299a, on Ruth 2 20; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 140b, on Deut. 30 15; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VII) the same Codex on Ruth 2 20 and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 99.

§ 1259. התחניט

אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הַיְהוּדִים the Jews, occurs twice in this book. That is, in Esther since apart from this book it also occurs three times (2 Kings 16 6; Jerem. 38 19; Neh. 13 23). The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these two instances against being made conformable to the other three passages in this book where it is אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הַיְהוּדִים (Esther 3 6, 13; 4 16), and thus to exclude the various reading which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors with regard to Esther 8 5, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 247b, on Esther 8 5 which I have printed and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 362a, on the same passage. The addition at the end of List II shows the design of this Massorah, viz. אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הַיְהוּדִים בִּלְבַד.

§ 1260. התח"ס

אֲתֵּי הַיַּרְדֵּן הַזֶּה this Jordan, occurs five [six] times. אֲתֵּי which is forty-one times preceded by אָרַךְ is in thirty-seven instances simply אֲתֵּי הַיַּרְדֵּן, without the adjunct of the demonstrative pronoun¹ and in six passages only is it with this adjunct. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174, on Deut. 31 2 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 1b, on Josh. 1 2 and (III) the printed Massorah on Deut. 31 2. List I not only states in the heading that there are five such instances only, but enumerates five, omitting Gen. 32 11. Lists II and III, however, as emphatically state in the heading that there are six and duly record six, which is in accordance with the textus receptus. It is, therefore, more than probable that the Nakdan of List I who found that it contained five instances only affixed the heading in harmony therewith.

¹ Comp. אֲתֵּי הַיַּרְדֵּן Numb. 32 5, 21, 29; 33 51; 35 10; Deut. 2 29; 4 21, 22, 26; 9 1; 11 31; 12 10; 27 2, 4, 12; 30 18; 31 13; 32 47; Josh. 3 14, 17; 4 22; 7 7; 22 25; 24 11; Judg. 10 9; 1 Sam. 13 7; 2 Sam. 2 29; 10 17; 17 22, 22, 24; 19 16, 37, 40, 42; 24 5; 1 Chron. 12 16.

§ 1261. התחמ"א

אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הָאֲדָמָה the inhabitants of the land, occurs twice in the Pentateuch. Apart from the Pentateuch this phrase occurs four times (Jerem. 10 18; Neh. 9 24; 1 Chron. 22 18; 2 Chron. 20 7). The design of this Rubric is to safeguard these two passages against being made conformable to the fuller phrase which is the subject of the Massorah in letter מ, § 1270, and thus to exclude the various reading in Exod. 23 31, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Numb. 33 55.

§ 1262. התחמ"ב

אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הָאֵזֶר the one lamb, does not occur again. That is, this combination without the prefix He before the numeral. This phrase with the article before the numeral is also unique. This Rubric, which is from the printed Massorah on Numb. 28 4 is incorrect, since אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הָאֵזֶר occurs twice, viz. Exod. 29 39; Levit. 14 12. The Rubric is correctly given in Orient. 2349, fol. 117b, on the same passage where it is אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הָאֵזֶר וְכֵן אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הָאֵזֶר and in Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 54b, on Exod. 29 39.¹ Far more artificial is this Rubric in Orient. 2349, fol. 75a, on Exod. 29 39, since it may not only suggest that these two phrases respectively occur several times in Exodus and Numbers, but it ignores the instance in Leviticus. Even according to this artificial language the Rubric ought properly to be אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הָאֵזֶר וְכֵן אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הָאֵזֶר אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הָאֵזֶר.

¹ אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הָאֵזֶר וְכֵן אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הָאֵזֶר וְכֵן אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הָאֵזֶר וְכֵן אֲתֵּי דִבְרֵי הָאֵזֶר.

תתתסג - § 1263.

אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ אֶרֶץ all the land, occurs fourteen times. That is, in contradistinction to the numerous instances where this phrase occurs and where it is without -קל. By fixing the number at fourteen the Massorah militates against the various reading which obtained in some Schools of textual redactors with regard to Josh. 2 3, as may be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 801b, on Ps. 72 19 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 266b, on Jerem. 51 25; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage; (IV) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Supplement, fol. 132b; (V) the printed Massorah on Deut. 34 1 and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 730. All these Lists include in this number Jerem. 45 4 where it is וְאֶתְּכֹלֵהָ with Vav which is due to the fact that the combination וְאֶתְּכֹלֵהָ is unique.

תתתסד - § 1264.

אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ דְבָרִים all the words, occurs thirteen times thus combined. That is, without being followed by the expression וְאֵלֶּיהָ which is its normal adjunct, when -קל precedes דְבָרִים as it is stated in the headings of the other Lists, viz. יְהוָה וְאֵלֶּיהָ.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 57a, on Jerem. 36 2 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 168a, on Jerem. 26 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 171a, on Jerem. 36 2; (IV) Orient. 2849, fol. 41a, on Gen. 24 66; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 259b, on Jerem. 36 2; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 258a, on the same passage; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 293a, also on the same passage; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 70a, on Exod. 4 30; (IX) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Supplement, fol. 130a, and (X) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 36 2. Though List I, which I have printed, distinctly states in the heading that there are thirteen such instances it enumerates twelve only, omitting Jerem. 30 2; but as this passage is given in all the other Lists there can hardly be any doubt that its omission is due to a clerical error.

In fixing the number at thirteen, this Massorah militates against those textual redactors who exhibit various readings in Jerem. 36 16, 20, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

תתתסה - § 1265.

אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ דְבָרִים וְאֵלֶּיהָ all these words, occurs twenty-five times thus combined. Normally when this phrase has the adjunct וְאֵלֶּיהָ it is without -קל. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority, and in so doing it excludes both the Eastern reading in 2 Sam. 13 21 and the various readings in Deut. 31 1, 28, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 47a, on Exod. 20 1.

1 Comp. אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ דְבָרִים וְאֵלֶּיהָ Gen. 44 6; 48 1; Exod. 24 27; Numb. 14 39; Deut. 5 19; 31 1, 28; Judg. 2 4; 1 Sam. 11 6; 18 23, 26; 21 13; 24 16; 25 37; 1 Kings 21 27; 2 Kings 1 7; 18 27; 23 16, 17; Isa. 36 12; Jerem. 3 12; 20 1; 22 5; 26 7, 10; Zech. 8 9; Job 42 7; Esther 9 20; Neh. 1 4; תתתסו - § 1266.

אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ דְבָרֵי הַתּוֹרָה all the words of the Law, occurs once only, in the Prophets and Hagiographa . . . and throughout the Pentateuch it is likewise so except in two instances. This is simply a different recension of the Rubric given above in letter מ, § 1265. Its importance is due to the fact that it shows these two different forms of it emanate from two different Schools of Massorites. Of this recension I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 150b, on Josh. 8 34 which I have printed and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 6b, on the same passage.

תתתסז - § 1267.

אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ דְבָרֵי הַתּוֹרָה הַזֹּאת all the words of this Law, occurs seven times thus combined. By fixing the number at seven, this Massorah militates against those Schools of textual redactors which exhibited this reading also in Deut. 27 26, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 128b, on Deut. 17 19. As all the instances occur in Deuteronomy the heading ought more properly to be דְּרַשְׁתִּי וְכָתַבְתִּי.

תתתסח - § 1268.

אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ דְבָרָיו all his words, occurs twice. In the four instances where this phrase occurs it is without -קל (Josh. 20 4; Jerem. 26 21; Ps. 105 28, Kethiv; 2 Chron. 34 27). Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 27a, on Judg. 11 11 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 171a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah on Amos 7 10 and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 41.

תתתסט - § 1269.

אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ דְהַדְרִים all the Jews, occurs five [four] times. That is, in contradistinction to the other six instances where this phrase occurs and where it is without -קל. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 1269.)

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the St. Petersburg of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 41 3. Though the heading states that there are five such instances, the Rubric itself records four only. As four only occur in the Bible the ה in the heading is manifestly due to a scribal error. Moreover, the heading is אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ דְהַדְרִים דִּרְמַן הַזֶּה which is also incorrect, since this phrase occurs once only with the prefix Vav (Jerem. 41 3). It ought more properly to be אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ דְהַדְרִים דִּרְבִּישׁ.

תתתסז - § 1270.

אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ יוֹשְׁבֵי הָאָרֶץ all the inhabitants of the land, is four times thus combined. In the other six instances where this phrase occurs it is without -קל. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 1261.)

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 109a, on Numb. 33 52 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 248a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah on Josh. 9 24 and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 729.

תתתסח - § 1271.

אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ כֵּלָיו all its vessels, occurs twice. קלֵיָי is sixteen times preceded by this particle. In fourteen instances it is with the prefix Vav and in two only is it without the prefix. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional combination. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the ancient reading which obtained in some Schools, in Exod. 39 36, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 62a, on Exod. 39 86 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 83b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. The heading of List III בְּיַעֲקֹב בְּרַחֲמָיו it occurs twice and is misleading, is of importance, since it shows that this condemnatory clause is used of actual various readings exhibited in MSS. just as it is used with regard to the כְּבִירָיו which give the alternative readings.

1 Comp. אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ כֵּלָיו Exod. 30 27, 28; 31 9; 35 13, 16; 39 33, 39; 40 9, 10; Numb. 1 50; 7 1, 1; 1 Chron. 23 26; 2 Chron. 29 18.

תתתסח - § 1272.

אֶת כָּל־מַעֲשֵׂה יְהוָה הַגְּדוֹל all the great work of Jehovah, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish it from the only other instance where this phrase occurs and where it is without the adjunct וְהַגְּדוֹל (Josh. 24 31). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 129b, on Deut. 11 7 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 189b, on the same passage.

תתתסח - § 1273.

אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ מִצְוֹת יְהוָה all the commandments of Jehovah, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. As this phrase, which occurs altogether eleven times, is in eight instances without -קל

1 Comp. אֶתְּכֹלֵהָ מִצְוֹת דֵּעַ Deut. 4 2; 6 17; 10 18; 28 9; Judg. 3 4; 1 Kings 18 18; 2 Kings 17 19; 2 Chron. 24 20.

and with it in three passages only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. This safeguarding was deemed necessary, since the two phrases are used promiscuously within three verses of each other (2 Kings 17 16 with 19).

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 251a, on 2 Kings 17 16 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 299a, on Neh. 10 30; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 134b, on Numb. 15 39; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 111a, on 2 Kings 17 16; (V) the same MS., fol. 386a, on Neh. 10 30; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 427a, on the same passage; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 214b, on Numb. 15 39; (VIII) Orient. 2849, fol. 110a, on the same passage and (IX) the printed Massorah, also on the same passage.

תתעד = § 1274.

אֵת־כָּל־מִצְוֹתָיו all his commandments, is five times thus combined. מִצְוֹתָיו which occurs altogether twenty-five times, is in fourteen instances the direct accusative, without being preceded either by וְאוֹרֵךְ or כִּי־; in five instances it is preceded by וְאוֹרֵךְ alone, without and with the prefix Vav and in one instance by כִּי alone (Deut. 26. 18); whilst in the five passages which constitute this Rubric it is preceded by both וְאוֹרֵךְ and כִּי. Hence the Massorah safeguards this peculiar combination.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 121a, on Deut. 13 19 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2849, fol. 131b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 140a, on Deut. 30 8 and (IV) Orient. 2848, fol. 141b, on Deut. 13 19. Lists II and III head this Rubric בִּי בְּרִשְׁתֵּי הַפִּנְקֵסִים it occurs twice in the Pentateuch and give Deut. 13 19; 30 8 as the two instances. These Lists must, therefore, be based upon a recension of the text which did not exhibit this combination in Deut. 28 1, 15.

1 Comp. מִצְוֹתָיו by itself Deut. 7 9; 8 2, 11; 28 45; 30 10, 16; Josh. 22 5. 1 Kings 2 3; 8 68, 61; 2 Kings 18 6; 23 3; Dan. 9 4; Neh. 1 5.

2 Comp. מִצְוֹתָיו Deut. 27 10 (Keri); 2 Chron. 34 31; וְאוֹרֵךְ־מִצְוֹתָיו Deut. 4 40; 13 5; Eccl. 12 18.

תתעיה = § 1275.

אֶת־כָּל־שְׂדֵהָ all the field of or country of, is twice thus combined. In the other four instances where this phrase occurs without or with the Vav conjunctive it is without the expression כִּי (Levit. 27 22; Josh. 21 12; Obad. 19; 1 Chron. 6 41).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 201b, on 2 Sam. 9 7 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 62a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 11a, on Gen. 14 7 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תתעז = § 1276.

אֶת־מִכְסָּהּ the covering of, occurs twice. In the other two instances where this combination occurs it is with the prefix Vav (Exod. 39 34, 34). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Exod. 40 19.

תתעזי = § 1277.

אֶת־מִשְׁפָּטַי my judgments, occurs three times. מִשְׁפָּטַי is thirteen times preceded by this particle. In ten instances it is with the prefix Vav and in these three passages only is it without it. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 92b, on Levit. 18 4 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 66a; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 76a, both on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 270a, on Ezek. 5 6; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 166a, on Levit. 18 4; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passages and (VII) the same on Ezek. 5 6. These Lists afford a striking illustration of the difficulties connected with the deciphering of the Massorah. Thus List I heads this Rubric בְּיָמֵי מִשְׁפָּטַי it occurs three times at the beginning of a verse which is incorrect since the first instance alone begins a verse. List II states in the heading that all the three instances occur in the same book (בְּיָמֵי־) whereas two instances occur in Leviticus and one in Ezekiel, whilst List III declares that there are four such instances and gives Levit. 26 3 as one where this phrase does not occur at all in the textus receptus.

1 Comp. מִשְׁפָּטַי Levit. 18 5, 26; 25 18; 1 Kings 6 12; Ezek. 5 7; 11 20; 20 11, 18, 19, 21.

2 אֶת־מִשְׁפָּטַי ד' וְסִבֵּי אֵם מִשְׁפָּטַי תִּשְׁבֵּן אֵם בְּהַקְרֵי הַלֵּבָן וְאֵם בְּהַקְרֵי הַמָּאָה וְהַבֵּן אֶת־מִשְׁפָּטַי.

תתעיה = § 1278.

אֶת־עֲבֹדַת יְהוָה the service of Jehovah, occurs three times and is used once the Law, once the Prophets and once Hagiographa. In the other six instances where this expression of service occurs it is אֶת־עֲבֹדַת הַיְהוָה the service of the honor of Jehovah.¹

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, two in MSS. and three printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 200b, on Numb. 8 11 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 28b, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage; (IV) the same on Josh. 22 27 and (V) the same on 2 Chron. 25 16. It will be seen that List I which I have printed is based upon a recension of the text which had אֶת־עֲבֹדַת־יְהוָה in 2 Chron. 35 16 instead of אֶת־עֲבֹדַת־יְהוָה which is the reading of the textus receptus. Hence also the heading אֶת־עֲבֹדַת־יְהוָה. The other four Lists are based upon the received text and hence head this Rubric simply עֲבֹדַת־יְהוָה without the particle אֶת. The heading עֲבֹדַת־יְהוָה of List II is due to a clerical error since this phrase occurs three times only and the Rubric itself duly records the three passages.

1 Comp. אֶת־עֲבֹדַת־יְהוָה 1 Chron. 23 13, 18, 20; 2 Chron. 24 12; 29 35; 35 16; three times it is אֶת־עֲבֹדַת־יְהוָה 1 Chron. 9 13; 23 28; 25 21 and once אֶת־עֲבֹדַת־יְהוָה Numb. 16 9.

תתעט = § 1279.

אֶת־עֹלֶתְהָ the burnt offering of, occurs twice in the Scriptures. לְהַעֲרֹךְ the construct singular is five times preceded by this particle; in three instances it is with the prefix Vav (Levit. 16 24; 2 Kings 16 15, 15) and in two without it. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed; (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 58a, on Levit. 7 8 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 145a, and (III) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage. The heading אֶת־עֹלֶת־אֵשׁ in List I and אֶת־עֹלֶת־אֵשׁ in List III is incorrect and is manifestly due to a clerical error since אֵשׁ occurs once only (Levit. 7 8). I have, therefore, substituted for it the correct heading from List II.

תתע"ס = § 1280.

אֶת־עַמִּי אֶת־יִשְׂרָאֵל my people Israel, is six times thus combined. That is, with the particle אֶת repeated before יִשְׂרָאֵל. In the twelve instances where God speaks of his people as Israel, three different phrases are used (1) אֶת־עַמִּי יִשְׂרָאֵל which occurs four times, viz. 2 Sam. 3 18; 1 Kings 6 13; 16 2; Ezek. 36 12; (2) אֶת־יִשְׂרָאֵל which occurs twice, viz. Exod. 3 10; 7 4 and (3) אֶת־יִשְׂרָאֵל which occurs six times with אֶת repeated before יִשְׂרָאֵל. The reason why the Massorah safeguards here the majority is that Codices of a different School of textual redactors did not exhibit in all these passages this peculiar combination, as will be seen from the notes on 2 Sam. 7 7 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 187a, on 1 Chron. 11 2 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59a, on 2 Sam. 5 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 82b, on 1 Kings 8 16; (IV) the same MS., fol. 161a, on Jerem. 23 13; (V) the same MS., fol. 245a, on 1 Chron. 11 2; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 230a, on 1 Kings 8 16; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Sam. 5 2; (VIII) the same Codex on 1 Kings 8 16 and (IX) the printed Massorah, Finalis, letter ט, § 434.

תתע"סא = § 1281.

אֶת־עֲנִי my affliction, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to אֶת־עַמִּי which also occurs three times (Exod. 3 7; 2 Kings 14 26; Neh. 9 9). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Lament. 1 9.

תתע"סב = § 1282.

אֶת־עַמִּי the side of, occurs twice. The construct עַמִּי is eight times preceded by this particle which is in six instances with the prefix Vav (Numb. 35 5, 5, 5; Ezek. 47 17, 18, 19) and in two only is it without the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 4.

תתע"סג = § 1283.

אֶת־עֲדֹמָיו his neighbour, occurs five times. This Rubric, which I have printed in Vol. III, p. 2, § 1283* and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2210, fol. 80a, on 1 Sam. 20 41. It is manifestly the beginning of a Rubric which was left to other Massorites to complete, since this phrase occurs no fewer than seventeen times and the following twelve instances are omitted: Exod. 21 18; 32 27; Deut. 4 42; 15 2; 19 4, 5; Josh. 20 5; 1 Sam. 20 41; 2 Kings 3 23; Jerem. 31 34; Prov. 26 19; Ruth 3 14.

תחתיה = § 1283.

תחתיה the Sabbath, occurs four times. That is, without the expression תחתיה thus distinguishing it from the other eight instances where תחתיה is preceded by this particle, but where the phrase is תחתיה תחתיה. By this Massorah which proceeds from the dominant School, the Massorites militate against the recension of those Schools which exhibited these passages in the normal and fuller form. This is evident from the fact that the important MS. No. 1-3 in the National Library in Paris emphatically states, both in the Massorahs Parva and Magna that according to the Sevir the reading in these four instances is תחתיה תחתיה.

Of this Rubric, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 389a, on Neh. 13 18 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 74a, on Exod. 31 16; (III) the Paris Codex, National Library No. 1-3 on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 401b, on Neh. 13 18; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 59b, on Exod. 31 14; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 118b, and (VII) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage. The heading of List II is זה השבת ר' הוסיף לה.

1 Comp. תחתיה תחתיה Exod. 20 4, 11; Deut. 15 12, 15; Jerem. 17 22, 24; Neh. 13 17, 22.

2 Thus on Exod. 31 14 the Massorah Parva of this Model Codex remarks that תחתיה תחתיה is and on verse 16 of the same chapter the Massorah Magna has תחתיה תחתיה. That תחתיה תחתיה and תחתיה תחתיה are interchangeable terms we have shown above, letter א, § 729, Vol. IV, p. 91.

תחתיה = § 1284.

תחתיה my Sabbaths, occurs twice in this book. That is, in Ezekiel. There are two recensions of this Rubric, the one which I have printed from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 179a, on Ezek. 20 12 and which is also given in the printed Massorah on Ezek. 20 21. The second recension is as follows: Throughout the Pentateuch it is תחתיה תחתיה except once, viz. Levit. 19 3 and throughout Ezekiel it is likewise so with the prefix Vav except twice, viz. Ezek. 20 12, 21. Of this recension I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 98a, on Levit. 19 3 which I have here given and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 277a, on Ezek. 20 12 which is corrupt.

The reason which is at the basis of these different recensions will be apparent when the passages are given where the phrase in question occurs. תחתיה is fourteen times preceded by this particle. In six instances it is תחתיה תחתיה without the prefix Vav (Exod. 31 13; Levit. 19 30; 26 2; Isa. 56 4; Ezek. 20 12, 21) and in eight it is תחתיה תחתיה with the prefix (Levit. 19 3; Ezek. 20 13, 16, 20, 24; 22 8; 23 38; 44 24). It will thus be seen that in Ezekiel, where this phrase occurs nine times, it is seven times with the prefix and twice only without it. The first recension, therefore, has regard to Ezekiel alone and safeguards the minority in this book. This was all the more necessary since Codices of the less dominant School of Massorites exhibited a different reading in Ezekiel 20 21, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

The second recension is based upon the occurrence of this phrase in the Pentateuch and Ezekiel. In the Pentateuch, where it occurs four times, it is in three instances without the prefix and in one passage only is it with it. Here, therefore, the Massorah, safeguards this solitary exception. In Ezekiel, however, the case is inverted. Here, where it occurs nine times and where it is in seven instances with the prefix Vav and in two only is it without it, the Massorah safeguards the reverse minority.

1 כל אשרי את שבתתי גם חר חרם שבתתי חסרונותי קדשם וכל דברו נכבד את שבתתי גם את שבתתי וכו'.

2 As it affords another illustration of the difficulty connected with deciphering the Massorah I subjoin it, את שבתתי תחתיה גם את שבתתי תחתיה, את שבתתי תחתיה גם את שבתתי תחתיה.

תחתיה = § 1285.

תחתיה the field of, occurs twice. In the other two instances where this phrase occurs it is תחתיה תחתיה. (Vide supra, letter א, § 1275.) Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710 11, Vol. I, fol. 82b, on Levit. 27 22 which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (III) the same on Ojad 19.

תחתיה = § 1286.

תחתיה תחתיה the heaven and the earth, is thirteen times thus combined. By fixing the number at thirteen this Massorah militates against the ancient reading which is preserved in the Septuagint and which shows that there were other instances of this combination. Thus in Deut. 8 19 the Septuagint has it διαμαρτυρομαι υμιν σημερον τον τε ουρανον και την γην = הערתי קדשם וכל דברו נכבד את שבתתי תחתיה תחתיה which undoubtedly represents the Hebrew recension of the translators, as is attested by the parallel passages in Deut. 4 26; 30 19; 31 28.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the most ancient constituent parts of the Massorah and most popular, I collated fifteen Lists, thirteen in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 133a, on Deut. 31 28 which I have printed; (II) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Hag. 2 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118b, on 2 Kings 19 15; (IV) the same MS., fol. 134a, on Isa. 37 16; (V) the same MS., fol. 161b, on Jerem. 23 24; (VI) the same MS., fol. 168a, on Jerem. 32 17; (VII) the same MS., fol. 216b, on Hag. 2 6; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 258a, on 2 Chron. 2 11; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 261b, on 2 Kings 19 15; (X) the same MS., fol. 357a, on Isa. 37 16; (XI) the same MS., fol. 390a, on Hag. 2 6; (XII) Add. 21,160, fol. 97b, on Exod. 20 11; (XIII) Halle Ocllah Ve-Ocllah, Supplement, fol. 131b; (XIV) the printed Massorah on Hag. 2 21 and (XV) the same on 2 Chron. 2 11.

תחתיה = § 1287.

תחתיה the deep, occurs three times. This Rubric I found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ט, § 19.

תחתיה = § 1288.

תחתיה תחתיה. For this Rubric see letter ט, § 208, Vol. II, p. 710.

תחתיה = § 1289.

תחתיה. This particle with and without the prefix Vav occurs seven times with the accent. That is with Tipcha. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 133b, on Isa. 36 22 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 382a, on Neh. 5 6; (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 17a, on Isa. 36 22; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 246a, on Numb. 32 28; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Isa. 36 22; (VI) the printed Massorah on Numb. 32 28 and (VII) the printed Massorah Parva, outer margin on Isa. 36 22.

Though List VI is the only one which states in the heading that the accent is Tipcha (תחתיה תחתיה) Lists III and IV have this accent under the particle, viz. תחתיה or תחתיה. There is, therefore, no doubt that the accent here intended is Tipcha. The difficulty, however, in deciphering this Massorah consists in the fact that this particle without and with the prefix Vav, has Tipcha in numerous other passages. In Genesis alone it has this accent no fewer than thirty times. The headings in Lists III (תחתיה תחתיה), V and VII (תחתיה תחתיה), that in these seven instances the accent is misleading, supply the clue to the solution of this Rubric. We have seen that תחתיה is used as a condemnatory expression for תחתיה. This implies that the Sevir on these passages exhibited a different form, viz. תחתיה with Makeph and without any accent, which is confirmed by the fact that תחתיה is actually the textual reading in some of the best MSS. and nearly all the early editions in 2 Kings 15 37, as may be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

It is remarkable that with the exception of List III all the Lists have תחתיה תחתיה 1 Sam. 25 12 as one of the seven instances. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that these Massorahs are based upon a recension of the text which exhibited here תחתיה תחתיה instead of תחתיה תחתיה as it is in the textus receptus. This is confirmed by the Septuagint which does not exhibit תחתיה תחתיה. It is also to be noticed that not a single List gives Isa. 37 28 as one of the seven passages. Gen. 19 25 in the List which I have printed is my mistake for תחתיה תחתיה 1 Sam. 25 12. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List VI) gives תחתיה תחתיה Ezek. 2 8 as the sixth instance, but the accent here is Mercha (תחתיה) both in the MSS. and in the best editions, and is, therefore, rightly excluded from the other Lists. The omission of 2 Kings 15 37 in the same List is correctly supplied in List VII.

1 Comp. תחתיה Gen. 2 13; 9 22, 23; 14 16; 17 11, 25; 20 14; 21 5; 27 17; 24 60; 26 8; 30 29; 31 1; 32 23; 34 13; 44 21; תחתיה Gen. 1 16; 10 16; 15 19; 19 25; 22 3, 22; 24 20; 41 10, 51; 44 2; 45 13; 46 15; 47 12; 49 31.

תתתצ = § 1290.

וְאֵת, וְאֵת. For the two verses in which this particle occurs twice, first with the prefix Vav and then without it, see letter מ, § 1245.

תתתצא = § 1291.

וְאֵת, וְאֵת, וְאֵת. Seven verses have severally this particle three times; in the first and third instances it is with the prefix Vav and in the second it is without the prefix. This Rubric is designed to exclude the various reading of the less dominant School of textual redactors in Levit. 3 9, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 103b, on Numb 6 17 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2848, fol. 113b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 139a, on Levit. 3 9; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (V) the same on Jonah 1 9. List III heads this Rubric דמין דמין דמין בכל חד וחד ואת את ואת ואת.

תתתצב = § 1292.

וְאֵת, וְאֵת, וְאֵת. Three verses in which this particle respectively occurs four times are unique; the first which begins the verse, the third and the fourth are with the prefix Vav and the second is without it. . . . In one verse the reverse is the case, the first which begins the verse and the third are without the prefix whilst the second and fourth are with it. From the notes on Exod. 35 12; Jerem. 41 8 in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that the Codices of other Schools exhibited variations. Hence the safeguarding of these passages by the dominant School of Massorites.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 66a, on Levit. 7 3 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 85a, on the same passage.

תתתצג = § 1293.

וְאֵת, וְאֵת. In fourteen verses of the Pentateuch this particle occurs twice with one word only intervening and is in both instances with the prefix Vav. This Rubric registers the reverse phenomenon to that which is recorded in letter מ, § 1212.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 87a, on Levit. 9 11 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2848, fol. 97a, on the same passage.

תתתצד = § 1294.

וְאֵת, וְאֵת, וְאֵת. Four verses in which this particle occurs three times in this book and in each instance with the prefix Vav. That is in Exodus. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 54a, on Exod. 29 14.

תתתצה = § 1295.

וְאֵת, וְאֵת, וְאֵת. Twenty-seven verses in which this particle respectively occurs four times and is with the prefix Vav in all the four instances. This Rubric registers the reverse phenomenon to that which is recorded in letter מ, § 1218.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 69b, on Levit. 11 16. It will be seen that two of the instances are in conflict with the received text. In Jerem. 25 23 the textus receptus has וְאֵת without the prefix Vav. The only instance in which the present text has וְאֵת is Gen. 25 3 where this particle occurs twice only, once without and once with the prefix Vav, nor is it here followed by וְאֵת. In 1 Chron. 1 16 the present text has only three times וְאֵת. The Rubric before us must, therefore, be based upon Codices which begin this verse with וְאֵת which ends verse 15 in our text.

תתתצו = § 1296.

סִימָן וְאֵת. That is, a sign indicating the words which are severally preceded by this particle with the prefix Vav (וְאֵת) in Exod. 35 11—19 in contradistinction to those words in this Section which are preceded by this particle without the prefix (וְאֵת). According to this catalogue there are in all twenty-five words which are preceded by וְאֵת and sixteen only are combined with וְאֵת. In referring, however, to the notes on this Section in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that in no fewer than twelve out of the sixteen combinations with וְאֵת in the present text some of the best MSS. read וְאֵת. This Massorah, therefore, militates against these various readings. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Exod. 38 20.

תתתצז = § 1297.

סִימָן וְאֵת. That is, a sign indicating the words which are severally preceded by this particle with the prefix Vav (וְאֵת) in Exod. 39 33—41 in contradistinction to those words in this Section which are preceded by this particle without the prefix (וְאֵת).

Accordingly there are in all twenty words which are preceded by וְאֵת and fifteen only are combined with וְאֵת, as וְאֵת וְאֵת is simply the designation of the Section and the combination belongs to the fifteen instances without the prefix. The reason for this Massorah will be found in the notes on this Section in my edition of the Bible. It will there be seen that in no fewer than eleven instances out of the fifteen where the present text has וְאֵת in accordance with this catalogue, both MSS. and early editions read וְאֵת. It is to militate against these readings that this Massorah was designed. This List I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Exod. 39 38. וְאֵת וְאֵת in verse 34 should be repeated, since it occurs twice in this verse. וְאֵת וְאֵת in verse 37 and וְאֵת וְאֵת in verse 39 I have corrected into וְאֵת וְאֵת and וְאֵת וְאֵת since they are manifest mistakes in the printed Massorah.

תתתצח = § 1298a—e.

וְאֵת. Words which respectively occur once only preceded by this particle with the prefix Vav.

The four fragments which are marked § 1298a—d and which are respectively from Orient. 2349, fol. 100a, on Numb. 1 49; Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 116a, on 2 Kings 23 10; the same MS., fol. 192b, on Ezek. 40 6; Add. 15,451, fol. 69a, on Levit. 1 12, contain the first attempts of the different Massorites to collect the instances which exhibit this unique combination. It will be seen that with very few exceptions they are confined to the Pentateuch. Since the publication of this Rubric I have found no fewer than eleven different fragments of this Massorah in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fols. 87a, 40b, 51a, 62a, 67a, 68a, 71a, 80a, 91b, 93a, 138b. All these are as yet without catchwords.

Rubric 1298e which represents the latest development of this Massorah, I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter מ, § 797. The design of this Massorah is to catalogue: (1) words which are not only unique in this combination with וְאֵת, but which never occur again with וְאֵת and (2) those words which though combined once only with וְאֵת occur also more than once preceded by וְאֵת. For this reason words which are unique in their combination with וְאֵת, but which are also unique in their combination with וְאֵת are excluded from this catalogue. They belong to the List of words which respectively occur twice, once preceded by וְאֵת and once by וְאֵת, recorded in letter מ, § 1246.

It will be seen that though this List has already a heading and gives the catchwords, it does not specify the number of these unique combinations. The one hundred and eighty-nine instances which are therein enumerated do not represent one third of the passages, since there are altogether about seven hundred words which are preceded once only by וְאֵת.

תתתצט = § 1299.

וְאֵת. Fifty-two words respectively, occur twice preceded by this particle with the prefix Vav.

The design of this Massorah is to record those words which occur twice preceded by וְאֵת and which in all other passages are preceded more than once by וְאֵת. This is attested by the fact (1) that there are altogether nearly two hundred words which are combined with וְאֵת and that this List includes those only which in all other passages where they occur are combined twice at least with וְאֵת and (2) that it uniformly excludes the words which, though combined twice with וְאֵת are yet unique in their combination with וְאֵת and of which there are no fewer than seventeen instances.¹

This Rubric, in the form in which I have printed it, I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter מ, § 802.

¹ Comp. (1) וְאֵת וְאֵת Exod. 10 2; Numb. 14 22; (2) וְאֵת וְאֵת Exod. 17 3; 21 6; וְאֵת וְאֵת Exod. 16 21; (3) וְאֵת וְאֵת 1 Kings 7 43; 2 Chron. 4 14; וְאֵת וְאֵת 1 Kings 7 20; (4) וְאֵת וְאֵת Judg. 6 20, 21; וְאֵת וְאֵת Exod. 12 17; (5) וְאֵת וְאֵת Neh. 5 7; 7 5; וְאֵת וְאֵת Neh. 13 11; (6) וְאֵת וְאֵת Esther 6 10, 11; וְאֵת וְאֵת 1 Kings 20 21; (7) וְאֵת וְאֵת Numb. 21 8; Josh. 13 21; וְאֵת וְאֵת 1 Chron. 3 19; (8) וְאֵת וְאֵת Gen. 10 29; 1 Chron. 1 23; וְאֵת וְאֵת 1 Chron. 8 9; (9) וְאֵת וְאֵת 2 Kings 23 13; Jerem. 43 17; וְאֵת וְאֵת 1 Chron. 18 8; (10) וְאֵת וְאֵת 2 Chron. 23 1; 34 8; וְאֵת וְאֵת Gen. 34 29; 46 6; וְאֵת וְאֵת Jerem. 8 10; (12) וְאֵת וְאֵת 1 Chron. 6 59; 2 Chron. 34 20; וְאֵת וְאֵת Josh. 21 30; (13) וְאֵת וְאֵת Gen. 26 40; Neh. 10 25; וְאֵת וְאֵת Deut. 26 10; (14) וְאֵת וְאֵת Gen. 19 28; 1 Chron. 1 22; וְאֵת וְאֵת Gen. 26 9; (15) וְאֵת וְאֵת Gen. 40 22; 41 10; וְאֵת וְאֵת Gen. 40 21; (16) וְאֵת וְאֵת Exod. 26 9; 26 16; וְאֵת וְאֵת Numb. 26 6; (17) וְאֵת וְאֵת Esek. 23 8, 11; וְאֵת וְאֵת Esek. 23 19.

Though the heading states that there are fifty-two such pairs the List itself gives fifty-one. There are actually fifty-eight such instances and the following seven are omitted: (1) וְאֶחָיו 2 Sam. 10 6; Pa. 60 2; comp. with וְאֶחָיו 2 Sam. 8 18; 10 16 &c.; (2) וְאֶחָיו 2 Chron. 17 6; 34 7 with 2 Kings 23 14; 2 Chron. 14 2 &c.; (3) וְאֶחָיו Numb. 35 6; Deut. 1 22 with Gen. 19 25, 29 &c.; (4) וְאֶחָיו Jerem. 36 26; 43 6 with Jerem. 20 1, 2 &c.; (5) וְאֶחָיו 2 Sam. 12 8; 2 Kings 24 15 with Numb. 31 9; Jerem. 29 23; (6) וְאֶחָיו 1 Kings 2 35; 1 Chron. 16 39 with 1 Kings 1 44; 1 Chron. 5 34 &c.; (7) וְאֶחָיו 2 Kings 22 12; 2 Chron. 34 20 with 2 Kings 22 8; 2 Chron. 34 8.

As is often the case, we have in this List simply an expansion of fragmentary attempts to record the passages in the Bible which exhibit this peculiarity. This is evident from the Massorah in Orient. 4445, fol. 83b, on Exod. 39 36 where this ancient Codex gives an incipient catalogue of five pairs only which are Nos. 17—21 in our Rubric. The heading in Jacob b. Chayim's List, which I have printed and which fixes the number is probably due to a later Nakdan and not to the editor, who mistook it for a complete catalogue. This Rubric, moreover, exhibits blunders in the catchwords וְאֶחָיו should be וְאֶחָיו 1 Sam. 12 18; וְאֶחָיו ought to be וְאֶחָיו Isa. 4 4.

תתק"ה = § 1300.

וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן and the tabernacle of, is five times thus combined in the Scriptures. In the other six instances where וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן is preceded by this particle it is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 29 44; 30 26; 31 7; 40 34; Numb. 8 15; Josh. 18 1).

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 228a, on 1 Kings 8 4 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 74b, on Levit. 16 20; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 151a, on 2 Chron. 5 5; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 82b, on 1 Kings 8 4; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 419b, on 2 Chron. 5 5; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 80b, on Levit. 16 33; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 164a, on Levit. 16 20 and (VIII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן follows וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן in all the five instances List V heads this Rubric וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן.

תתק"ו = § 1301.

וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן and Ophir, occurs twice, once it is defective and once plene. As this phrase, which occurs twice, is differently spelled in the two parallel passages, the Massorah safeguards the variation in the spelling. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 314a, on 1 Chron. 1 23.

תתק"ז = § 1302.

וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן and thy brethren, occurs twice. וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן is five times preceded by this particle. In three instances it is without the prefix Vav (Numb. 18 2; 2 Sam. 15 20; 2 Chron. 21 13) and two it is with the prefix. Hence the Massorah records the minority. Of this Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, I collated two Lists: (I) on Gen. 47 6 which I have printed and (II) on 1 Sam. 17 18.

תתק"ח = § 1303.

וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן and his brethren, is five times thus combined in the Scriptures. In the other ten instances where this combination occurs it is וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן without the prefix Vav. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eleven Lists, eight in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 32a, on Gen. 47 11 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 38a, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 26a, on Judg. 9 41; (IV) the same MS., fol. 170b, on Jerem. 35 3; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 124a, on Deut. 33 9; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 170a, on Judg. 9 41; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 57a, on Gen. 47 11; (VIII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement fol. 132a; (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 47 11; (X) the same on Judg. 9 41 and (XI) the same on Jerem. 35 3.

¹ Comp. וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן Gen. 31 23, 25; 37 2; 42 4, 7, 8; 45 24; Numb. 8 26; Judg. 9 5, 24.

תתק"ט = § 1304.

וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן and your brother, occurs three times in this book. That is, in Genesis. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 27b, on Gen. 42 20.

It is incorrect, since in Gen. 43 14 to which the catchwords וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן refer it is וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן without the prefix Vav. My attempt to correct it by printing וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן in larger type and putting וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן before it in brackets does not remove the difficulty, since there are four more instances of וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן in Genesis (42 16, 34, 34; 43 7). As the reading וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן is impossible in Gen. 43 14 there can hardly be any doubt that the original heading was וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן to distinguish it from the other five instances where this phrase occurs in Genesis and where it is without the prefix, and that a later Nakdan added the third instance and altered the heading.

תתק"י = § 1305.

וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן and the one, occurs four times in the Scriptures. וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן is ten times preceded by this particle. In six instances it is without the prefix Vav (Levit. 14 30, 31; 15 30; Numb. 8 12; 2 Sam. 14 6; 1 Kings 12 49) and in six it is without the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 90b, on Levit. 14 31 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 105b, on Numb. 8 12; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 127a, on the same passage; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 88a, on 1 Kings 12 29; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 235b, on the same passage and (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 14 31.

תתק"יא = § 1306.

וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן and the ram, occurs five times. That is, to distinguish it from the other seven instances where this combination occurs and where it is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 22 13; Exod. 29 16, 19, 20; Levit. 8 22; Dan. 8 4, 7). This Massorah is, moreover, designed to safeguard the solitary combination of this particle with the same quadrilateral but with a slight difference in the punctuation (וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן Deut. 12 22) which denotes and the hart, against being made conformable to these five instances.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 53b, on Exod. 29 16 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 92a, on Levit. 8 20; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 48b, on Exod. 29 15; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 74b, on Levit. 8 20; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 114a, on Exod. 29 15; (VI) the same MS., fol. 147b, on Levit. 8 20; (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 29 15 and (VIII) the same on Levit. 9 18. As all the five instances occur in the Pentateuch, the heading of List VI וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן is more precise.

תתק"יב = § 1307.

וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן and the man, occurs twice. וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן is twenty-three times preceded by this particle. In twenty-one instances it is without the prefix Vav and in these two instances only is it with the prefix. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards this exceptional combination. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 108b, on Deut. 22 24 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 135b, on the same passage.

¹ Comp. וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן Exod. 2 20, 21; Levit. 14 11; Deut. 17 5, 5; 22 18; Judg. 4 22; 17 11; 19 17, 22; 1 Sam. 17 24; 29 4; 1 Kings 20 39; 2 Kings 9 11; 13 21; Jerem. 22 30; 38 4; Esak. 10 6; Eccl. 9 15; Esther 6 9; Dan. 12 7.

תתק"יג = § 1308.

וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן and Eleazar, occurs twice. In the other five instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 6 23; Numb. 20 26, 28; 26 60; 32 28). By fixing the number at two, this Massorah militates against the various readings which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors with regard to Exod. 6 23, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 99b, on Numb. 20 25 which I have printed and (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 176b, on 1 Sam. 7 1.

תתק"יד = § 1309.

וְאֶתְּיָרְדָן and his mother, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 94b, on Levit. 20 9 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 2b, on Gen. 2 24; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 169b, on Levit. 20 9 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תתקכ"א = § 1310.

אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי and the Amorite, occurs four times. אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי is twelve times combined with this particle. In eight instances it is without the prefix Vav¹ and in four it is with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 6b, on Gen. 10 16 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 154b, on Josh. 24 18; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 180a, on 1 Chron. I 14; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 18a, on Josh. 24 18; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 465a, on 1 Chron. I 14; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 15 21 and (VII) the same on Josh. 24 18.

¹ Comp. אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי Gen. 14 7; Exod. 34 11; Numb. 21 32; 32 39; Josh. 10 12; Judg. 11 23; Amos 2 9, 10.

תתקכ"ב = § 1311.

אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי and his men, occurs twice in the Scriptures. In the other three instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (1 Sam. 24 7; 2 Kings 11 9; 2 Chron. 23 8). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 16b, on Gen. 24 59.

תתקכ"ג = § 1312.

אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי and the ephod, occurs twice thus combined. אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי is seven times preceded by this particle. In five instances it is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 28 6; 39 2; Levit. 8 7; Judg. 18 20; 1 Sam. 30 7) and in two only is it with the prefix. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 74a, on Exod. 29 5 and (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 71a, on the same passage. The apparently conflicting Massorah in Add. 15,250, fol. 48a, on the same passage which states that this combination is unique (אין נראה לי כן) is due to the omission on the part of the Scribe of the expression בְּתוֹרַת הַפִּתְאוּחַ. In the Pentateuch this combination occurs once only.

תתקכ"ד = § 1313.

אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי and Ephraim, is twice thus combined in the Scriptures. As in the other six instances in which Ephraim is preceded by this particle it is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 48 13, 20; Judg. 12 4, 4; Isa. 9 20; 11 13) the Massorah safeguards the exceptional two passages in which it is with the prefix.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 32a, on Gen. 48 1 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 56a, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

תתקכ"ה = § 1314.

אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי and the coffer, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 148b, on 1 Sam. 6 11.

As regards the pointing of אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי which occurs three times, both the MSS. and early editions differ. Harley 5720 which is one of the oldest Codices, Add. 15,250, Add. 15,451, the first, second and third editions of the entire Bible (Soncino 1488; Naples 1491—93; Brescia 1494) the Complutensian and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible (Venice 1517) point it with Kametz under the Gimel (אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי), whilst Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16 have it אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי with Pathach which I have followed in my edition of the Bible. It is remarkable that Jacob b. Chayim in the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, has it אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי with Pathach in the first and second instances and אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי in the third instance.

תתקכ"ו = § 1315.

אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי and the earth, occurs five times . . . and wherever it is preceded by the heaven it is likewise so. Normally this phrase is preceded by אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי (vide supra, letter א, § 1286), and as it is in these five instances only where this combination with the prefix Vav stands by itself, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional position. On referring to the notes on Gen. 35 12 the reason for recording these instances will be apparent.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 113a, on Deut. 3 12 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 45a, on Jerem. 22 12; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 39a, on Gen. 35 12; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 160b, on Jerem. 22 12; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 97b, on Deut. 3 12; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 259a, on the same passage; (VII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement fol. 130b; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 35 12 and (IX) the same on Jerem. 22 12.

תתקכ"ז = § 1316.

אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי and his land, is five times thus combined. אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי is eleven times preceded by this particle. In six instances it is without the prefix Vav (Numb. 21 24, 35; Deut. 2 31; 4 47; 2 Kings 18 33; Isa. 36 18) and in five with it. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

Of this Rubric, I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 103a, on Numb. 21 34 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 134a, on Deut. 2 24; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 124a; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 257b, both on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Numb. 21 34 and (VI) the same on Deut. 3 2.

תתקכ"ח = § 1317.

אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי and their land, occurs three times. This phrase, which occurs altogether fifteen times, is in twelve instances without the prefix Vav¹ and in three only it is with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS., and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 145a, on Josh. 10 42 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 17a, on Isa. 37 18; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 8b, on Josh. 10 42; (IV) the same MS., fol. 134a, on Isa. 37 18; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 130b, on Josh. 10 42; (VI) the same MS., fol. 212b, on 2 Kings 19 17; (VII) the printed Massorah on Josh. 10 42 and (VIII) the same on 2 Kings 19 17.

¹ Comp. אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי Deut. 4 38; 9 5; 19 1; 29 7; Josh. 12 1; 23 6; 24 8; Judg. 6 9; 2 Kings 18 36; Isa. 36 20; 2 Chron. 7 14; 32 18.

תתקכ"ט = § 1318.

אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי and the garments of, occurs six times. אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי is preceded by this particle in twenty instances. In thirteen instances it is without the prefix Vav¹ and in seven it is with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 55b, on Exod. 31 10 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. It will be seen that List I enumerates six such instances only, omitting Exod. 39 41. The notes in my edition of the Bible on Exod. 39 41 and a comparison of Exod. 35 19 with the parallel passage in 39 41 will disclose the design of this Massorah which is to exclude the variation in the Codices of other Massoretic Schools.

² Comp. אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי Gen. 27 15; Exod. 28 3; 35 19, 19; 39 1, 41, 41; 40 13; Levit. 16 23, 32; 2 Kings 26 29; Jerem. 52 33; Ezek. 16 18.

תתקל"א = § 1319.

אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי and its slaves, occurs four times. In the other five instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 27 7; 35 16; 39 39; Numb. 4 8, 11). By fixing the number at four this Massorah militates against those Schools of textual redactors who exhibited this reading also in Exod. 35 16; 39 39, as will be seen in the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 62a, on Exod. 39 35 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 61b, on Exod. 35 12; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 126b; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 78a and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

תתקל"ב = § 1320.

אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי and the house, is five times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the thirty-five times where this phrase occurs and where it is אֲחִיזַבְחָנִי without the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah I collated fourteen Lists, twelve in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 72b, on Levit. 14 41 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 225a, on 1 Kings 9 7; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 267a, on 2 Kings 23 27; (IV) Orient 4445, fol. 99b, on Levit. 14 41; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 84b, on 1 Kings 9 7; (VI) the same MS., fol. 117a, on 2 Kings 23 27; (VII) the same MS., fol. 261b, on 2 Chron. 7 20; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 190a, on 1 Kings 9 7; (IX) the same MS., fol. 329b, on 2 Chron. 3 5; (X) Add. 15,451, fol. 490a, on 2 Chron. 7 20; (XI) Add. 21,160, fol. 160a, on Levit. 14 41; (XII) Vienna Codex No. 35, on 2 Chron. 3 5; (XIII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 14 41 and (XIV) the same on 1 Kings 9 7.

ההחקאי = § 1821.

וְאֵתֵיכֶם and his house, is seven times thus combined. In the other seven instances in which וְאֵתֵיכֶם is preceded by this particle it is without the prefix Vav (Levit. 27 14, 15; Josh. 7 18; 1 Sam. 3 18; 2 Sam. 6 20; 1 Kings 3 1; 1 Chron. 16 43).

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, fol. 221a, on 1 Kings 7 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 153b, on 2 Chron. 8 1; (III) Add. 15,151, fol. 18b, on Gen. 12 17; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 219a, on 2 Sam. 19 42; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 12 17 and (VI) the same on 1 Kings 4 7.

התחככי = 1822.

וְאֵתֵיכֶם and Balaam, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the four instances where it occurs without the prefix Vav (Numb. 22 41; 23 28; Dent 23 5; Neh. 13 2).

Of this popular Rubric I collated twelve Lists, nine in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 146b, on Josh. 13 22 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 184b, on 1 Chron. 6 55; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 10a, on Josh. 13 22; (IV) the same MS., fol. 242a, on 1 Chron. 6 55; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 192a, on Josh. 13 22; (VI) the same MS., fol. 317a, on 1 Chron. 6 55; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 154b, on Josh. 13 22; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 242a, on Numb. 31 8; (IX) Orient. 2849, fol. 119a, on the same passage; (X) the printed Massorah also on the same passage; (XI) the same on Josh. 13 22 and (XII) the same on 1 Chron. 6 55. As Balaam is in Numb. 31 8; Josh. 13 22 the name of the son of Beor and in 1 Chron. 6 5 of a city in the territory of Manasseh, List IX heads this Rubric 317a, on 1 Chron. 6 55; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 154b, on Josh. 13 22; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 242a, on Numb. 31 8; (IX) Orient. 2849, fol. 119a, on the same passage; (X) the printed Massorah also on the same passage; (XI) the same on Josh. 13 22 and (XII) the same on 1 Chron. 6 55. As Balaam is in Numb. 31 8; Josh. 13 22 the name of the son of Beor and in 1 Chron. 6 5 of a city in the territory of Manasseh, List IX heads this Rubric וְאֵתֵיכֶם it occurs three times in two different senses. The heading in List VIII, viz. וְאֵתֵיכֶם denotes that it occurs three times, once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa.

התחקכו = § 1823

וְאֵתֵיכֶם and my son, occurs twice. וְאֵתֵיכֶם is nine times preceded by this particle. In seven instances it is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 24 6, 8; Exod. 4 28; 1 Kings 3 20, 21; 17 18; 2 Kings 6 29) and in two with it. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 65b, on 2 Sam. 14 16.

התחקכי = § 1824.

וְאֵתֵיכֶם and his son, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the Kethiv or textual reading in Deut. 2 38; 33 9 which the Keri or official marginal reading cancels.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 49b, on Jerem. 27 7 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 108a, on Levit. 22 28; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 164a, on Jerem. 27 7; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 68b, on Levit. 22 28 and (V) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 27 7.

The heading in List IV which emphatically states that there are four instances of this combination and the fact that the Rubric itself actually enumerates four would suggest that the Massorah in this MS. proceeds from a School of Massorites whose text exhibited the Kethiv as the substantive reading. But the catchwords for the other two passages are inexplicable.¹

1 וְאֵתֵיכֶם וְאֵתֵיכֶם וְאֵתֵיכֶם וְאֵתֵיכֶם וְאֵתֵיכֶם וְאֵתֵיכֶם וְאֵתֵיכֶם וְאֵתֵיכֶם וְאֵתֵיכֶם וְאֵתֵיכֶם

התחקכי = § 1825.

וְאֵתֵיכֶם and her son, occurs twice in this combination. That is, in contradistinction to the other six instances where it is without the prefix Vav (1 Sam. 1 23; 1 Kings 17 20; 2 Kings 4 37; 6 29; 8 1, 5). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 21 10.

התחקכו = § 1826.

וְאֵתֵיכֶם and the sons of, occurs ten times thus combined in the Scriptures. In the numerous other instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated thirteen Lists, eleven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 248b, on 2 Kings 14 6 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 108a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 118a, on 2 Kings 25 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 183a, on Ezek. 25 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 272b, on 2 Chron. 25 24; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 340a, on the same passage; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 37b, on Gen. 37 2; (VIII) Orient. 2849, fol. 49a, on the same passage; (IX) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Kings 14 6; (X) the same Codex on 2 Chron. 25 24; (XI) Halle Oehliah Ve-Oehliah, Supplement fol. 180b; (XII) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 37 2 and (XIII) the same on 2 Chron. 25 24.

התחקכו = § 1827.

וְאֵתֵיכֶם and his sons, occurs six times &c. This Rubric is simply § 1252 inverted. It shows how the same materials were differently elaborated by the different Massoretic Schools. Of this inverted form, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 56b, on 1 Sam. 30 22 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 388a, on Esther 9 25; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 168a, on 1 Sam. 30 22; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage and (V) the same Codex on 1 Chron. 10 8.

התחקכו = § 1828.

וְאֵתֵיכֶם and their sons, is four times thus combined. That is, to distinguish it from the twelve instances in which it is without the prefix Vav (Deut. 12 31; 2 Kings 17 17, 31; Jerem. 3 24; 7 81; 18 21; 19 5; 32 35; Ezek. 23 39; Hos. 9 12; Zech. 10 9; Ps. 106 37).

The design of this Massorah is to exclude the various reading in Jerem. 3 24 which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors, as may be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 168b, on 2 Chron. 25 4 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 272a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 148b, on 1 Sam. 6 10; (IV) the same MS., fol. 429b, on 2 Chron. 25 4; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 127a, on Josh. 5 7; (VI) the same MS., fol. 899b, on 2 Chron. 25 4; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 122a, on Deut. 4 10; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 260b, on the same passage; (IX) the printed Massorah also on the same passage and (X) the same on Josh. 5 7.

התחקכו = § 1829.

וְאֵתֵיכֶם and Benjamin, occurs four times. In the other four instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 43 16, 29; Judg. 20 35, 43).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 53b, on Gen. 43 15 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 48b, on Gen. 42 36; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Gen. 43 15; (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 42 36 and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter כ, § 248.

התחקכו = § 1830.

וְאֵתֵיכֶם and Baruch, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the four instances where it occurs without the prefix Vav (Jerem. 32 13; 36 4, 5, 26). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 258b, on Jerem. 36 17 which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 43 6.

התחקכיא = § 1831.

וְאֵתֵיכֶם and my covenant, occurs twice. וְאֵתֵיכֶם is thirty-two times preceded by this particle. In thirty instances it is without the prefix Vav and in two only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 169b, on Jerem. 33 20 which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2849, fol. 86b, on Gen. 17 21.

תתקליב = § 1332.

ואתבת and the daughter of, occurs five times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the seven instances where it is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 24 48; 34 7; Exod. 2 1; Levit. 18 17; 2 Sam. 12 24; Lament. 2 1; Neh. 6 18).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 69a, on Levit. 11 16 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 154a, on 2 Chron. 8 11; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 104a, on Levit. 18 17; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 86a, on 1 Kings 11 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 262a, on 2 Chron. 8 11; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 233b, on 1 Kings 11 1; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 166b, on Levit. 18 17; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 11 16; (IX) the same on 1 Kings 11 1 and (X) the same on 2 Chron. 8 11. The catchword המלך for Levit. 18 17 in the List which I have printed is manifestly a scribal error. List II, which is from the same MS., has it rightly שרת אשר which is confirmed by all the other Lists.

תתקליג = § 1333.

ואתבתו and his daughter, is twice thus combined. In the other two instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 21 7; 1 Chron. 2 35). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 256a, on 2 Kings 23 10.

תתקליד = § 1334.

ואתהיבך and the word, occurs twice. היבך is preceded by this particle about sixty-seven times. In sixty-five instances it is without the prefix Vav and in these two instances only is it with this prefix. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards this abnormal combination. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 94b, on 1 Kings 20 24.

תתקליה = § 1335.

ואתהיבכים and the words, occurs three times in the Scriptures. In the other forty instances where היבכים is preceded by this particle it is without the prefix Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 295b, on Neh. 5 6 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 171b, on Jerem. 36 27; (III) the same MS., fol. 219a, on Zech. 7 12; (IV) the same MS., fol. 382a, on Neh. 5 6; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 396a, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 258b, on Jerem. 36 27 and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 40.

תתקליו = § 1336.

ואתהידוד and David, occurs twice. דוד is altogether preceded fifty-one times by this particle. In forty-nine instances it is without the prefix Vav and in these two instances only is it with the prefix. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards this exceptional combination. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ט, § 70.

1 Comp. אמתיה 1 Sam. 16 10; 17 38, 42, 43, 55; 18 9, 16, 20, 25, 29; 19 1, 5, 7, 12, 14, 15, 20; 20 17, 33; 21 5; 24 2; 25 23; 26 2; 2 Sam. 2 4; 3 17, 35; 5 3, 17, 17; 8 6, 14; 16 6, 10; 21 16; 24 1; 1 Kings 5 17; 8 15; Jerem. 33 21; Ps. 144 10; Ruth 4 22; 1 Chron. 11 3; 12 32, 39, 39; 14 8; 18 13; 21 1, 21; 2 Chron. 6 4.

תתקלז = § 1337.

ואתהידורם and Hadoram, occurs twice. In the other two instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (1 Chron. 18 10; 2 Chron. 10 18). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 314a, on 1 Chron. 1 21.

תתקלח = § 1338.

ואתהידמים and the bloods of, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading ידמים the singular, which obtained in some Schools of textual redactors, as will be seen in the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. In the other three instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 4 11; 2 Kings 9 26; Hos. 1 4).

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 120b, on Isa. 4 4.

תתקליט = § 1339.

ואת זקני and the elders of, occurs three times. In the other five instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 3 16; Judg. 8 16; 1 Kings 8 1; Ezek. 20 3; 2 Chron. 5 2). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 113a, on 2 Kings 19 2 which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 17 15 and (III) the same on 2 Kings 19 2.

תתקלזם = § 1340.

ואתהידמיהם and the fat, occurs five times and wherever it is preceded by and the two kidneys it is likewise so. This combination occurs altogether twelve times. In seven instances it is part of the lengthier phrase ואת שתי הקליה ואתהידמיהם and the two kidneys and the fat (Exod. 29 13, 22b; Levit. 3 4, 10, 15; 4 9; 7 4) and in these five instances only it is used without being part of this lengthier phrase. Hence the Massorah records these instances. This Massorah is, moreover, designed to safeguard Exod. 29 22 against being made conformable to the parallel passage in Levit. 8 25. In the former it is simply ואתהידמיהם whereas in the latter it is ואתהידמיהם.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 54a, on Exod. 29 22 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 66a, on Levit. 3 9 and (III) the printed Massorah on Exod. 29 22. List III simply states that this combination occurs five times and omits the addition at the end of the Rubric, which makes this Massorah unintelligible, since ואתהידמיהם occurs twelve times.

תתקלמ = § 1341.

ואתהימור and Hamor, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 35a, on Gen. 34 13.

תתקלמב = § 1342.

ואתהימנותי and my statutes, occurs five times. That is, in contradistinction to the six instances where this combination occurs without the prefix Vav (Levit. 18 5, 26; 19 19; 20 8; 25 18; Ezek. 20 11).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the earliest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated nine Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 82b, on Levit. 26 43 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 103b, on Levit. 18 4; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 20 16; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 196a, on Ezek. 44 24; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 270a, on Ezek. 5 6; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 166a, on Levit. 18 4; (VII) the same MS., fol. 182a, on Levit. 26 43; (VIII) Orient. 2349, fol. 98b, on the same passage and (IX) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage. It is remarkable that not only does the heading of List III state that this phrase occurs twice, but that two instances only are enumerated in the Rubric itself, viz. Levit. 26 43; Ezek. 20 16. The Massorah Parva too of this ancient Codex on Ezek. 20 16 remarks that it occurs twice only.

1 אתה ימנותי דוד 5 טו וימנותי יקן :

תתקלמג = § 1343.

ואתהימנותיהם and the statutes, occurs four times. In the other five instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 18 20; Deut. 5 1; 16 12; 26 16; 1 Chron. 22 13).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 116b, on Deut. 7 11 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 251b, on 2 Kings 17 37; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 293a, on Neh. 1 7; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 111b, on 2 Kings 17 37; (V) the same MS., fol. 379b, on Neh. 1 7; (VI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 17 19 and (VII) the same on 2 Kings 17 37.

תתקלמד = § 1344.

ואתהיבוסי and the Jebusite, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 38, which I have printed and

(II) Add. 15,451, fol. 465a, on 1 Chron. 1 14. It is remarkable that both Lists not only emphatically state in the heading that there are four such instances only, but enumerate four and that both omit Gen. 15 21, which is the fifth instance in the received text. It would, therefore, seem that these Lists are based upon a recension of the text which exhibited this combination four times only, and that this Massorah militates against those Codices which had it five times.

ואת חכמים וחסידים הנקראים ידועים וידועים וידועים וידועים וידועים

תתקפ"ה - § 1845.

וְיָדָא and thy hand, occurs twice thus combined. יד is thirteen times in combination with this particle. In eleven instances it is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 8 1; 9 22; 14 16; Numb. 27 18; Deut. 15 7, 8, 11; 2 Kings 10 15; Ps. 145 16; Eccl. 7 18; Neh. 9 15) and in two only is it with this prefix. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional combination. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 223b, on 1 Kings 8 42.

תתקפ"ו - § 1846.

וְיָדָא and Judah, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the twenty instances in which this combination occurs without the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and the most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 81b, on Gen. 46 28 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 215a, on 2 Sam. 24 1; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 83b, on Ezek. 21 25; (IV) Orient 4445, fol. 87b, on Gen. 46 28; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 74a on 2 Sam. 24 1; (VI) the same MS., fol. 180b, on Ezek. 21 25; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 38b, on Gen. 46 28; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 182b, on 2 Sam. 24 1; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 819b, on Ezek. 21 25; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 55b, on Gen. 46 28; (XI) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (XII) the same on Ezek. 21 25.

Comp. אַחֲרַיִם Judg. 1 19; 2 Sam. 20 5; 2 Kings 8 19; 21 11, 16; 23 27; Isa. 11 13; Jerem. 14 19; 33 25; Zech. 2 2, 4, 16; 1 Chron. 5 41; 2 Chron. 21 11, 13; 25 5; 28 19; 33 9; 34 3 5.

תתקפ"ז - § 1847.

וְיָדָא and Jehovah, is six times thus combined in the Scriptures. The Tetragrammaton is preceded by this particle about two hundred and twenty-eight times. In about two hundred and twenty-two instances it is without the prefix Vav and with it in these six instances only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 14b, on Isa. 31 1 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 122b, on Isa. 9 13; (III) the same MS., fol. 154a, on Jerem. 10 21; (IV) the same MS., fol. 201a, on Hos. 5 4; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 152, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter x, § 152.

תתקפ"ח - § 1848.

וְיָדָא and Joshua, occurs twice thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the seventeen instances where it is without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 120b, on Numb. 32 28 which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 108a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 99a, also on the same passage and (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 121b, on Deut. 3 21.

Comp. אַחֲרַיִם Numb. 27 18, 22; Deut. 3 28; 31 14, 23; Josh. 1 16; 4 10, 10, 14; 6 27; 7 20; 8 27; 9 24; 10 4; 11 15; 17 14; Zech. 3 1.

תתקפ"ט - § 1849.

וְיָדָא and the sea, occurs five times. As this phrase, which occurs altogether sixteen times, is in eleven instances without the prefix Vav (Exod. 14 21, 21; 20 11; Josh. 24 7; 1 Kings 7 23, 24; Jonah 1 9; Ps. 146 6; 2 Chron. 4 2, 3, 15) and with it in these five instances only, the Massorah records the minority. By fixing the number at five, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the reading אֲחֵרַיִם in Exod. 20 11 which obtained in the Codices of the less dominant School of textual redactors.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 82a, on 1 Kings 7 39 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 110b, on 2 Kings 16 17; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 188b, on 1 Kings 7 39; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 229b, on the same passage and (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

תתק"ן = § 1850.

וְיָדָא and the inhabitants of, occurs nine times. That is, in contradistinction to the eighteen instances in which this combination occurs without the prefix Vav (Exod. 23 31; Numb. 33 55; Deut. 13 14, 16; Judg. 1 19, 30, 31, 33; 21 10; 1 Sam. 23 5; Jerem. 10 18; 21 6; Ezek. 15 6; Neh. 9 24; 1 Chron. 8 18; 22 18; 2 Chron. 20 7; 21 11). By fixing the number at nine, the design of this Massorah is to include the Keri or official reading אֲחֵרַיִם in Judg. 1 27a.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 12b, on Josh. 17 11 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 278a, on 2 Chron. 32 22; (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 156a, on Judg. 1 27 and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Josh. 17 11. On Judg. 1 27 the printed Massorah refers to Pericope פקק where Jacob b. Chayim says he has given this Rubric, and in the Massorah Finalis, letter y, § 386, he refers to Judg. 1 27. In neither of these two places, however, is this Rubric given.

ואת יעשיהו בן נבטו בנדר סקק; ואת יעשיהו בן נבטו בנדר בנפשי סקק.

תתקנ"א - § 1851.

וְיָדָא and Jeremjahu, occurs twice. יְרֵמְיָהוּ is seventeen times preceded by this preposition. In fifteen instances it is without the prefix Vav (Jerem. 20 1, 2, 3; 26 7, 24; 37 13, 21; 38 6, 7, 10, 13, 14; 39 14; 44 15) and in two instances only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Jerem. 43 6.

תתקנ"ב - § 1852.

וְיָדָא and the lamb, occurs four times. In the other five instances where this phrase occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 29 39; Levit. 14 12, 13; Numb. 28 4; Ezek. 46 15). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Numb. 28 8.

תתקנ"ג - § 1853.

וְיָדָא and the priest, occurs twice. In the other two instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Levit. 13 49; 1 Sam. 21 6). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 31b, on Judg. 18 27. The heading ought properly to be ב' וְיָדָא, since both instances occur in the same book.

תתקנ"ד - § 1854.

וְיָדָא and the laver, occurs three times. That is, to distinguish it from the other four instances where this phrase occurs without the prefix Vav (Exod. 35 16; 38 8; 40 11, 30). The design of this Massorah is two-fold. It is to guard against Exod. 30 28 being made conformable to the parallel passage in Exod. 35 16 and to exclude the Kethiv or textual reading in 2 Kings 16 17.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 55a, on Exod. 30 28 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 74a, on Exod. 31 9; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 85b, on Exod. 30 28; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 75b, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage and (VI) the same on Levit. 8 11.

תתקנ"ה - § 1855a-c.

וְיָדָא. Words which severally occur once only preceded by and all or and every. These Lists exhibit the first attempt to catalogue the words which are unique in their combination with וְיָדָא.

Lists I and II are respectively from Add. 15,451, fols. 78a, 104a on Levit. 14 9 and Numb. 16 32, whilst List III is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter c, § 52. It will be seen that §§ 1855a and b have not as yet any heading, fixing the number of these unique combinations, nor are they supplied with catchwords for the identification of the passages. The same is the case with the incipient List, registering thirteen only of these instances which I have found in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 98b, on Levit. 14 9, since printing the Massorah. It is List III, viz. § 1855c which exhibits the latest development of this Rubric. Hence we have here already both the heading which fixes the number of the instances and the catchwords.

The design of this Massorah is not simply to record the words which are unique in their combination with וְיָדָא, but those which in all other instances are combined with וְיָדָא without the prefix Vav. This is attested by the fact that there are altogether no fewer than eighty words which are preceded once only by וְ, but which do not occur at all in combination with וְ.

Tested by this canon, we shall see that five instances recorded in these Lists do not belong to this category, viz. (1) וְאֵת קַלְבֵּי־הַבָּשָׂר; (2) וְאֵת קַלְבֵּי־הַבָּשָׂר; (3) וְאֵת קַלְבֵּי־הַבָּשָׂר; (4) וְאֵת קַלְבֵּי־הַבָּשָׂר; and (5) וְאֵת קַלְבֵּי־הַבָּשָׂר, since these do not occur at all in combination with וְ. They belong to the numerous instances of unique combinations with וְ, which do not occur again preceded by וְ and which are excluded from this Rubric. As is usually the case, they have been added by a later Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah. Accordingly these Lists contain sixteen unique combinations only, which properly belong to this Rubric.

תחתקני = § 1356.

וְאֵת כָּל־הַבַּיִת and the whole house, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 184a, on 1 Kings 6 22. It is in conflict with the received text which has וְאֵת־בַּיִת in Levit. 14 41 without וְ and which is in accordance with letter א, § 1320.

תחתקני = § 1357.

וְאֵת כָּל־בַּיִת and all the house of, occurs nine times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the twenty-nine times where this combination is simply וְאֵת־בַּיִת without וְ.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 18b, on Isa. 39 2 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 135a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 170b, on Jerem. 35 3; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 270a, on Jerem. 52 13; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 39a, on Gen. 47 12; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 292a, on Jerem. 35 3; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 57a, on Gen. 47 12; (VIII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (IX) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Supplement fol. 132a, and (X) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 25 9.

תחתקני = § 1358.

וְאֵת־כָּל־בָּשָׂרוֹ. Throughout the Scriptures it is his flesh except in three instances where it is and all his flesh. וְ is in twelve instances combined with the particle וְ without and with the prefix Vav. In nine passages it is simply וְאֵת־בָּשָׂר or וְאֵת־בָּשָׂר and in three only is this particle followed by the adjunct וְ. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional combination. This protection is designed to guard the variation in the two parallel passages, viz. Levit. 15 16; 16 4 against being made conformable to each other, since in some ancient recensions the two passages were identical, as is evident from the Samaritan text.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 88b, on Levit. 4 11 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2848, fol. 93b, and (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol I, fol. 64b, both on the same passage.

¹ Comp. וְאֵת־בָּשָׂרוֹ Exod. 21 28; 29 31; Levit. 14 9; 16 4, 24, 26, 28; Eccl. 4 5; וְאֵת־בָּשָׂרוֹ Levit. 8 17.

תחתקני = § 1359.

וְאֵת־כָּל־הַיְהוּדִים and all the Jews. For this Rubric see above letter א, § 1269.

תחתקני = § 1360.

וְאֵת כָּל־עוֹרֵב and every raven, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 121a; on Deut. 14 14. It conflicts with the textus receptus, where this phrase is without the prefix Vav in Levit. 11 15 and with it in Deut. 14 14. The received Massorah, moreover, especially safeguards this variation in the two parallel passages. From the notes on Levit. 11 15 in my edition of the Bible, however, it will be seen that in the ancient recensions of the text as well as in the Versions, the reading in both passages was alike with the prefix Vav. The Rubric before us, therefore, may be based upon a text which exhibited this reading also in Levit. 11 15.

תחתקני = § 1361.

וְאֵת־כָּל־הָעָם and all the people, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the twelve instances where this phrase occurs without the adjunct וְ. (Vide infra, letter א, § 1391.)

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 44b, on 1 Sam. 15 8 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 174b, on Jerem. 41 10; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 261a, on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 251.

תחתקני = § 1362.

וְאֵת־הַכֵּלִים and the vessels, is three times thus combined. In the other four instances where it occurs the phrase is וְאֵת־הַכֵּלִים and all the vessels (1 Kings 7 45, 2 Chron. 5 1; 25 24; 29 19). The design of this Massorah is to exclude the various reading exhibited in 2 Chron. 5 1, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 222b, on 1 Kings 7 51 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 276a, on Dan. 1 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 82b, on 1 Kings 7 51; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (V) the same on Dan. 1 2.

תחתקני = § 1363.

וְאֵת־כֵּלֵי and the vessels of, occurs twice in this combination. This plural construct is eight times preceded by this particule. In six instances it is without the prefix Vav (Numb. 4 82; Deut. 1 41; Jerem. 21 4; 50 25; 2 Chron. 28 24, 24) and in two instances only, is it with the prefix. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional combination. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 142a, on 1 Chron. 18 8. The needless וְ at the end has simply been added by the Scribe to fill out the line and shows that the Massoretic terminology must not be too strictly pressed.

תחתקני = § 1364.

וְאֵת־כֵּלֵי and his vessels, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the fifteen instances where this combination is with the adjunct וְ, viz. וְאֵת־כֵּלֵי (Exod. 30 28; 31 9; 35 18, 16; 39 33, 39; 40 9, 10; Levit. 8 11; Numb. 1 50; 7 1, 1; 1 Chron. 23 26; 2 Chron. 29 18, 18). The design of this Massorah is to exclude the various reading in Exod. 31 8 which was exhibited in other Schools of textual redactors, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 76a, on Exod. 31 8 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2848, fol. 86a, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 74a, on 1 Sam. 17 54 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 31 8. List IV adds at the end of the Rubric וְ which denotes that one of the instances occurs in the Law, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa.

תחתקני = § 1365.

וְאֵת־כֵּלֵיהָ and her vessels, occurs twice. On referring to the notes on Exod. 30 27 in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that this Massorah is directed against the recension of the text which exhibits here וְאֵת־כֵּלֵיהָ.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 75b, on Exod. 30 27, which I have printed and (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 55a, on the same passage. I have already referred to the fact that there are additions made by the Scribes which must not be taken as part of the Massorah, but which are simply designed to fill up the line. A striking illustration of this we have in the Rubric before us. At the end of List II is the following: לֹא מִצַּוֵּת מִצַּוֵּת דִּי לִמְלֵאנָא.

תחתקני = § 1366.

וְאֵת־הַכְּנָעִי and the Canaanites, occurs twice. וְ is fourteen times preceded by this particule. In twelve instances it is without the prefix Vav and in two only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. This safeguarding was designed to militate against the various reading which was preserved in the Standard Codices of other Massoretic Schools in Exod. 23 28, as will be seen in the notes in my edition of the Bible on this passage. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 9b, on Gen. 15 21.

¹ Comp. וְאֵת־הַכְּנָעִי Exod. 23 28; 33 2; Numb. 21 3; Josh. 3 10; 16 10; 17 13, 18; Judg. 1 4, 6, 17, 28, 29.

תתקס"ז = § 1367.

אֶת־הַכֶּסֶף and the silver, is four times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the twenty-eight instances where this combination occurs without the prefix Vav. By fixing the number at four, this Massorah militates against the various reading in 1 Chron. 5 1 which is in harmony with the parallel passage in 1 Kings 7 51, as will be seen from the notes in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 151b, on 2 Chron. 5 1 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 5b, on Josh. 7 24; (III) the same MS., fol. 259b, on 2 Chron. 5 1; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 419b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 101a, on Numb. 31 22; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 43 12 and (VII) the same on Numb. 31 22.

תתקס"ח = § 1368.

אֶת־הַכַּדְוָשִׁים and the Chaldees, is three times thus combined. In the other three passages where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Jerem. 32 5; 33 5; Hab. 1 6). Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, three in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 258b, on 2 Kings 25 25 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 216a, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage; (V) the same on Jerem. 21 4 and (VI) the same on Jerem. 41 3.

תתקס"ט = § 1369.

אֶת־לוֹט and Lot, occurs twice. That is, with the prefix Vav in contradistinction to the other five instances where it is without this prefix (Gen. 11 27; 14 12, 16; 19 10, 29). This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Gen. 11 31.

תתק"י = § 1370.

אֶת־הַלֵּוִיִּם and the Levites, occurs four times. הַלֵּוִיִּם is twenty-four times preceded by this particule. In twenty instances it is without the prefix Vav and in four only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 57b, on Jerem. 33 21 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 274b, on 2 Chron. 29 4 and (III) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 33 21.

תתקקי"א = § 1371.

אֶת־הַלֶּחֶם and the bread, occurs three times. In the only other instance where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 16 32). Hence the printed Massorah Parva both on Gen. 27 17 and on Exod. 29 32 remarks that (כל קרי וכן הולם בראי את הולם) throughout the Scriptures this phrase is with the prefix Vav except once.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 54b, on Exod. 29 32 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 18a, on Gen. 27 17; (III) Cambridge Add. 1174, on Exod. 29 32 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Lists II and IV not only state in the heading that there are two instances of this combination with the prefix Vav, but they enumerate two only. From List II it is impossible to say which are the two instances since it practically gives one instance twice; whilst List IV omits Levit. 3 31. This omission, however, is manifestly due to a clerical error and hence a later Scribe, as is usually the case, altered the heading in accordance with the instances enumerated in the Rubric. This is attested not only by Lists I and III which are from Model Codices, but by the Massorah Parva in the MSS. against the several passages.

¹ Thus on Gen. 27 17 where this Rubric occurs its text את הולם כ' וכן את הולם = Gen. 27 17 and in this place, i. e. Gen. 27 17.

תתקקי"ב = § 1372.

אֶת־הַמִּזְבֵּחַ and the altar, occurs four times. הַמִּזְבֵּחַ is nineteen times preceded by this particule. In fifteen instances it is without the prefix Vav and in four only, is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 54b, on Exod. 29 44 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 85a; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 75a, both on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah on Levit. 16 20.

תתקקי"ג = § 1373.

אֶת־מְנַשֶּׁה and the altar of, occurs nine times. The construct מְנַשֶּׁה is twenty-six times preceded by this particule. In seventeen instances it is without the prefix Vav and in nine only is it with the prefix. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority. By fixing the number at nine the Massorah militates against those Codices which read מְנַשֶּׁה in 2 Chron. 29 18. This reading, moreover, is also excluded by Rubric 1228 which gives 2 Chron. 29 18 as one of the fourteen verses with מְנַשֶּׁה in the first part of the verse followed by three times מְנַשֶּׁה.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 117a, on Exod. 30 27 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 74a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 49b, also on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 419b, on 2 Chron. 4 19; (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 38 30 and (VI) the same on Exod. 39 38. List IV only gives four passages though it states in the heading that there are nine, whilst List V which also states that there are nine, omits Exod. 38 30 which is manifestly due to a clerical error. The pointing of מְנַשֶּׁה in the heading which I have printed is a mistake and ought to be מְנַשֶּׁה as it is given here.

תתקקי"ד = § 1874.

אֶת־מִי and who, or whom, is four times thus combined in the Scriptures. This interrogative is fifteen times preceded by this particule. In eleven instances it is without the prefix Vav and in four only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. This Rubric is designed against those Codices which read מִי in 1 Sam. 12 3b, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 180a, on 1 Sam. 12 3 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 227a, on Job 12 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 41b, on 1 Sam. 12 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 129b, on Isa. 28 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 143a, on Isa. 57 11; (VI) the same MS., fol. 325b, on Job 12 3; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 225a, on Isa. 28 9; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 186b, on 1 Sam. 12 3; (IX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 161; (X) the printed Massorah on Isa. 28 9 and (XI) the same on Job 12 3.

תתקקי"ה = § 1875.

אֶת־הַמֶּלֶךְ and the king, occurs four times. That is, in contradistinction to the normal combination which is without the prefix Vav (דָּרָגָה) and which occurs twenty-four times. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 62b, on 2 Sam. 10 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 6b, on Josh. 8 23; (III) the same MS., fol. 250b, on 1 Chron. 19 7; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 121a, on Josh. 8 23 and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תתקקי"ו = § 1876.

אֶת־הַבְּרֵכָה and the candle-stick, occurs three times. הַבְּרֵכָה is nine times preceded by this preposition. In six instances it is without the prefix Vav and in three only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. By fixing the number at three, the Massorah militates against the recension which exhibited the reading בְּרֵכָה in Exod. 31 8, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 75b, on Exod. 30 27 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 74a, on Exod. 31 8; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 85b, on Exod. 30 27 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 31 8.

תתקקי"ז = § 1877.

אֶת־הַבְּשֵׁרֶת and the meat-offering, occurs eight times in the Scriptures. In the other fourteen instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 101a, on Ezek. 45 17 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 99a, on Levit. 14 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 197a, on Ezek. 45 17; (IV) the same MS., fol. 261b, on 2 Chron. 7 7; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 73a, on Levit. 14 20; (VI) the same MS., fol. 292a, on Ezek. 45 17; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 231b, on 1 Kings 8 64; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 136b, on Exod. 40 29 and (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תתקקי"ח = § 1878.

אֶת־מְנַשֶּׁה and Manasseh, is twice thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the other four instances where this combination occurs without the prefix Vav (Gen. 46 20; 48 1; Isa. 9 20; 2 Chron. 33 11).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 165a, on Judg. 11 29 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 39b, on Gen. 48 18 and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

וְאֵת צִוִּיּוֹתָיו - § 1879.

וְאֵת צִוִּיּוֹתָיו and his commandments, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 114b, on Deut. 4 40 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 267b, on Eccl. 12 18; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 355b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 104a, on Deut. 13 5; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 402a, on Eccl. 12 13; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 308a, on the same passage and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter z, § 56.

וְאֵת מֹשֶׁה - § 1880.

וְאֵת מֹשֶׁה and Moses, occurs twice. In this separate form this Rubric is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 104a, on Numb. 26 59. It also occurs in Orient. 2849, fol. 60b, on Exod. 6 20. It is, however, simply another recension of Rubric 1248.

וְאֵת מִשְׁפַּחָהּ - § 1881.

וְאֵת מִשְׁפַּחָהּ and the charge of, is four times thus combined. וְאֵת מִשְׁפַּחָהּ is eighteen times preceded by this particle. In fourteen instances it is without the prefix Vav and in four only is it with this prefix. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 164a, on 1 Chron. 23 32, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 91a, on Numb. 3 7; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 188b; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List V) is incorrect. His List is headed וְאֵת מִשְׁפַּחָהּ וְאֵת מִשְׁפַּחָהּ and omits Numb. 18 5.

וְאֵת נְבִיאָיו - § 1882.

וְאֵת נְבִיאָיו and thy prophets, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 284b, on 1 Kings 19 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 298b, on Neh. 9 26; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 93b, on 1 Kings 19 10, and (IV) the same MS., fol. 385b, on Neh. 9 26.

וְאֵת עִירָיו - § 1883.

וְאֵת עִירָיו and his habitation, occurs three times in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 38b, on Jerem. 10 25.

וְאֵת צְעִירֵיהֶם - § 1884.

וְאֵת צְעִירֵיהֶם and the young men, or the servants, occurs three times in the Scriptures thus combined. That is, with the prefix Vav. In the other three instances where this combination occurs, it is without this prefix (Gen. 48 16; 2 Sam. 4 12; Ruth 2 9).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 222a, on Job 1 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 50a, on 1 Sam. 21 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 321b, on Job 1 15 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

וְאֵת נַפְשׁוֹ - § 1885.

וְאֵת נַפְשׁוֹ and the soul, is four times thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the other four instances where this combination is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 9 5; Exod. 23 9; Jerem. 20 18; Prov. 1 19).

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 210b, on 2 Sam. 19 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 149b, on 2 Chron. 1 11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 70a, on 2 Sam. 19 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 75a, on 1 Kings 1 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 257b, on 2 Chron. 1 11 and (VI) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 25 29. List VI adds at the end (וְאֵת נַפְשׁוֹ) that once נַפְשׁוֹ in this phrase has the prefix He, viz. Gen. 12 5.

וְאֵת נָתָן - § 1886.

וְאֵת נָתָן and Nathan, occurs twice. In the other two instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (2 Sam. 12 1; 1 Chron. 2 36). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 180b, on 1 Kings 1 44, which I have printed and (II)

Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 76a, on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the lengthy Massorah recording words which respectively occur twice preceded by וְאֵת. (Vide supra, letter z, § 1299.)

וְאֵת עַבְדָּיו - § 1887.

וְאֵת עַבְדָּיו and his servants, occurs four times. עַבְדָּיו is sixteen times preceded by this particle. In twelve instances it is without the prefix Vav and in four only is it with this prefix. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated eight Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 68a, on 2 Sam. 11 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 74b, on 2 Sam. 24 20; (III) the same MS., fol. 160a, on Jerem. 21 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 162b, on Jerem. 25 19; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 169b, on 2 Sam. 11 1; (VI) the same MS., fol. 252a, on Jerem. 25 19; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 178b, on 2 Sam. 11 1 and (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 281a, on Jerem. 25 19.

וְאֵת הַזֶּבֶחַ - § 1888.

וְאֵת הַזֶּבֶחַ and the burnt offering, occurs three times in the Scriptures thus combined. This phrase, which occurs altogether twenty-one times, is without the prefix Vav in eighteen instances and it is in these three passages only that it is with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 101a, on Ezek. 46 17 which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 149a, on Levit. 9 13; (III) Orient. 2849, fol. 87a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 90a, on Levit. 14 13; (V) the printed Massorah on Levit. 9 13 and (VI) the same on Levit. 14 13.

וְאֵת עִירָהּ - § 1889.

וְאֵת עִירָהּ and the city, is eight times thus combined in the Scriptures. Normally the combination is עִירָהּ without the prefix Vav which occurs no fewer than forty-six times. As it is in these eight passages where it is with the prefix Vav, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 47a, on Jerem. 23 39, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2849, fol. 62b, on Exod. 9 38 and (III) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 23 39. List II indicates the design of this Massorah in the heading, viz. וְאֵת עִירָהּ וְאֵת עִירָהּ וְאֵת עִירָהּ.

וְאֵת עָרָיו - § 1890.

וְאֵת עָרָיו and the cities of, is seven times thus combined in the Scriptures. In the other eight instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 19 29; Josh. 20 2; 2 Kings 13 25; Jerem. 10 22; Obad. 20; 1 Chron. 6 42, 52; 2 Chron. 12 4). These instances are especially safeguarded, since in 1 Kings 9 19 the two phrases עָרָיו and עָרָיו occur promiscuously.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 154a, on 2 Chron. 8 6 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 225a, on 1 Kings 9 19; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 85a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 170a, on Jerem. 34 22; (V) the same MS., fol. 262a, on 2 Chron. 8 6; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 259a, on Jerem. 34 22; (VII) the same MS., fol. 421b, on 2 Chron. 8 6; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 292a, on Jerem. 34 22; (IX) the printed Massorah on Zech. 1 12 and (X) the same on 2 Chron. 8 6.

וְאֵת עַמָּם - § 1891.

וְאֵת עַמָּם and the people, occurs twelve times in the Scriptures. עַמָּם is altogether preceded by this particle about one hundred and thirteen times. Normally this combination is without the prefix Vav, which is the case in about one hundred and one instances and it is in these twelve passages only that it is with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards this abnormal combination. It is, moreover, designed to distinguish this combination from the one recorded in letter z, § 1361, which has the adjunct וְאֵת, viz. וְאֵת עַמָּם וְאֵת עַמָּם.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the most ancient and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fourteen Lists, thirteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 296b, on Neh. 7 5, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 38b, on Gen. 47 21; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 4b, on Josh. 6 10; (IV) the same MS., fol. 26a, on Judg. 9 46; (V) the same MS., fol. 160a, on Jerem. 21 7; (VI) the same MS., fol. 296b, on Neh. 7 5; (VII) the same MS., fol. 244b, on 1 Chron. 10 9; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 251a, on 1 Chron. 20 3; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 281a, on Jerem. 21 7; (X) the same MS., fol. 458b, on Neh. 7 5; (XI) Add. 21,160, fol. 1a, on Gen. 14 16; (XII) the same MS., fol. 256a, on Deut. 2 4; (XIII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, fol. 123b, margin and (XIV) the printed Massorah on Numb. 13 18. Though List I, which I have printed, explicitly states in the heading that there are twelve such instances, it catalogues eleven only, omitting 1 Chron. 20 3. But as all the Lists duly give this passage, there can hardly be any doubt that this omission is due to a scribal error.

תְּהִיָּה = § 1392.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and my people, is four times thus combined. Normally וְיָצְאָה is preceded by וְהָיָה which is the case in no fewer than forty-one instances. As it is in these four passages only where it is preceded by וְהָיָה, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 176a, on 1 Sam. 5 11 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 110a, on Ezek. 44 23; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 38b, on 1 Sam. 5 10; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 148a, on the same passage; (V) Vienna Codex No. 85 on Jerem. 33 24 and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 248.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1393.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and his people, occurs seven times. That is, in contradistinction to the other eight instances where it occurs without the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the most ancient and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fourteen Lists, eleven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 171a, on 2 Chron. 35 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 46a, on Exod. 17 13; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 55b, on Gen. 14 6; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 8b, on Josh. 10 33; (V) the same MS., fol. 250b, on 1 Chron. 19 7; (VI) the same MS., fol. 276b, on 2 Chron. 31 8; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 48b on Exod. 14 6; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 123b, on Josh. 8 1; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 504a, on 2 Chron. 31 8; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 87a, on Exod. 14 6; (XI) the same MS., fol. 93b, on Exod. 17 13; (XII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 14 6; (XIII) the same on 2 Chron. 31 8 and (XIV) the same on 2 Chron. 35 3.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1394.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and the bones of, occurs seven times. In the other eight passages where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 213a, on 2 Sam. 21 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 36b, on Jerem. 8 1; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 72a, on 2 Sam. 21 12; (IV) the same MS., fol. 152a, on Jerem. 8 1; (V) Vienna Codex No. 85 on Josh. 24 32 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 8 1.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1395.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and Eav, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the other three instances where this combination is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 25 28; 27 1; Jerem. 49 10). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 137b, on Josh. 24 4.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1396.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and a bullock, occurs twice in this book thus combined. That is, in Leviticus to distinguish it from the other four instances in this book where it occurs without the prefix Vav (Levit. 8 14; 16 6, 11; 11). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 69b, on Levit. 8 2.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1397.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and the bullock, occurs three times. That is, both in contradistinction to the other thirteen instances where this phrase occurs without the prefix Vav, and to distinguish it from the three passages where this combination occurs with the prefix Vav, but without the He before v recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 74a, on Exod. 29 3, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 70b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 58b, also on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 69a, on Levit. 8 17; (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 29 3; (VI) the same on Levit. 8 17 and (VII) the same on Judg. 6 28.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1398.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and Zalmunna, occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 24a, on Judg. 8 21.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1399.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and the bird, is three times thus combined. By fixing the number at three, the design of this Massorah is to exclude the reading וְיָצְאָה in Levit. 14 6a which obtained in the less dominant School of textual redactors, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two printed and one in MS.: (I) the printed Massorah on Gen. 15 10, which I have printed; (II) the same on Levit. 14 6 and (III) the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 100a, on the same passage.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1400.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and Zephanjah, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these two instances which exhibit the later orthography of the proper name against being made conformable to the other two instances where this combination occurs and where the primitive orthography is exhibited, viz. וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and Zephanyah (Jerem. 21 1; 52 24). The reason for the diversity in the names originally terminating in jah (יָה) is fully set forth in my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, p. 386 &c. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118a, on 2 Kings 25 18.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1401.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and Ramoth, occurs three times. In the other two instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Josh. 21 38; 1 Chron. 6 65). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 134b, on 1 Chron. 6 58; (II) the printed Massorah on Deut. 4 43 and (III) the same on Josh. 20 8. It will be seen that the Massorah, contrary to its usual method, records here the majority.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1402.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and the head, occurs twice. וְיָצְאָה is eighteen times preceded by this participle. In sixteen instances it is without the prefix Vav and in two only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 199b, on 2 Sam. 4 12 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 84b, on Gen. 40 20; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 84.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1403.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and the spirit, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the eleven instances where this combination occurs without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 120b, on Hag. 1 14 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 216a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 240b, on 1 Chron. 5 26 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Hag. 1 14.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1404.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and the evil, occurs twice. In the other eight instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2849, fol. 140b, on Deut. 30 15.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה = § 1405.

וְהָיָה וְיָצְאָה and the field of, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish it from the other two instances where this phrase occurs without the prefix Vav recorded in letter v, § 1285. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on 1 Chron. 6 41, is in conflict with the received text where this combination occurs three times, Josh. 21 12 being omitted.

תתרי"ג = § 1406.

ואת שכם and Shechem, occurs twice. שכם is six times preceded by this participle. In four instances it is without the prefix (Gen. 34 13; Josh. 21 21; 1 Kings 12 25; 1 Chron. 6 52) and in two only, is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 14b, on Josh. 20 7, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 23a, on Gen. 34 26 and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 28a, on the same passage. It will be seen that in the first of these two instances Shechem is the name of a son of Hamor, whilst in the second it is the name of a city. The Massorah, however, has regard only to the identity of the spelling. This Rubric constitutes one of the pairs of words which respectively occur twice preceded by תתרי"ג given above in letter מ, § 1299.

תתרי"ד = § 1407.

ואת השלח and the table, occurs three times. By fixing the number at three, this Massorah militates against the various reading which obtained in the less dominant School of textual redactors, as will be seen in the notes on Exod. 31 8; 35 12; 39 36 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 76b, on Exod. 30 27, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 117a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage and (IV) the same on 1 Kings 7 48.

תתרי"ה = § 1408.

ואת שם and the name, is four times thus combined. שם, which is thirty-seven times preceded by this participle, is in thirty-three instances without the prefix Vav and with it in these four instances only. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 97a, on Numb. 17 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 95b, on Ezek. 39 7; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 84a, on Numb. 17 18; (IV) the same MS., fol. 291a, on Ezek. 39 7; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 35b, on Gen. 41 52; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 218a, on Numb. 17 18; (VII) the same MS., fol. 295b, on Ezek. 39 7; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 17 18 and (IX) the same on Ezek. 20 39.

תתרי"ו = § 1409.

ואת השמן and the oil, occurs seven times. In the other four instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Exod. 29 7; 37 29; 40 9; Levit. 8 10).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 78b, on Exod. 35 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 74a, on Exod. 31 11; (III) the same MS., fol. 83b, on Exod. 39 38; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 118b, on Exod. 31 11; (V) the same MS., on Levit. 8 2 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 31 11. It will be seen that this Massorah, contrary to its usual method, records here the majority.

תתרי"ז = § 1410.

ואת שני and the two, occurs three times. The design of this Massorah is to distinguish this combination from the two instances where the trilateral שני is also preceded by תתרי"ג, but where it is with Chirek under the Nun (אשרשק Levit. 14 6, 51) being the construct of שני.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 68a, on Exod. 18 3, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 71a, on Exod. 29 3; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 58a, on the same passage; (IV) Orient. 2348, fol. 78a, on Exod. 18 3 and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תתרי"ח = § 1411.

ואת שעיר החטאת and the goat of the sin offering, occurs twice. In the other two instances where this phrase occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Levit. 9 15; 16 15).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 92a, on Levit. 16 27, which I have printed and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 102a, on the same passage. The heading ought properly to be ב' יבשים since both instances are restricted to the same book.

תתרי"ט = § 1412.

ואת שרי and the princes of, occurs three times. The plural construct שרי is twenty times preceded by this participle. In seven instances it is without the prefix Vav and in three only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional phrase.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 103b, on 2 Kings 8 21, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 251b, on Jerem. 24 1; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תתרי"י = § 1413.

ואת שתי and the two, occurs six times in this combination in the Scriptures and wherever it is combined with Kidneys it is likewise so.

To understand this artificial Massorah it is necessary to remark that: (1) שתי is twenty-nine times preceded by this participle, fourteen times it is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 32 23; Exod. 28 9, 11, 12, 23, 24; 39 16; Levit. 16 21; Numb. 7 7; 1 Kings 7 41, 42; Dan. 8 7; 2 Chron. 4 12, 13) and fifteen times with this prefix; that (2) in the fourteen instances where it has the prefix Vav it is never followed by תתרי"ט; and that (3) in the fifteen passages where it has this prefix it is in nine instances followed by this exception (Exod. 29 13, 22; Levit. 3 4, 10, 15; 4 9; 7 4; 8 16, 25) and in six only is it combined with another noun. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority, i. e. the six passages in which it is not combined with תתרי"ט.

Of this Rubric, which constitutes one of the oldest portions of the Massorah, I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I fol. 195b, on 1 Sam. 30 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 93a, on Ezek. 35 10; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 82b, on Exod. 39 18; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 56a, on 1 Sam. 30 18; (V) the same MS., fol. 189b, on Ezek. 35 10; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 164a, on 1 Sam. 30 18; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 168a, on the same passage; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 111b, on Exod. 28 25; (IX) Orient. 2349, fol. 73b, on the same passage; (X) the printed Massorah on Exod. 39 18 and (XI) the same on Ezek. 35 10.

Lists VI, VII, VIII and XI omit the second part of this Rubric, viz. וכל הכלית רב' which makes the import of this Massorah unintelligible since וקראש' as we have seen, occurs altogether fifteen times and not six. In the references which I have printed Exod. 25 25 is a mistake for Exod. 28 25.

תתרי"י = § 1414.

באתהוקים. In two instances where this participle, with or without the prefix Mem, precedes הוקים the people as the textual reading, the Sevir or extra-official reading is ב' and is misleading. For the Sevir and the import of the condemnatory adjunct see letter מ, §§ 729, 742. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 183b, on Deut. 18 3.

תתרי"יא = § 1415.

מאת פני from the presence of, is five times thus combined. That is, instead of the normal expression מ'פני. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, two in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 250b, on 2 Kings 16 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 116a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 27 30; (IV) the same on Levit. 10 4; (V) the same on 2 Kings 16 14 and (VI) the same on Job 2 7.

תתרי"יב = § 1416.

אתם them, occurs five times. The design of this Massorah is not merely to register the five instances in which this abnormal sign of the accusative (א'ק) with the suffix third person masculine plural occurs, but to record the fact that the five verbs with which this anomalous form is here combined take the normal form in all other passages.¹

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists, twelve in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 92a, on Ezek. 34 12, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 34 12; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 188b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 242a, on 1 Chron. 6 50; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 288b, on Ezek. 34 12; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 52a, on Exod. 18 20; (VII) the same MS., fol. 96a, on Numb. 21 3; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 285a, on Ezek. 34 12; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 107a, on Numb. 21 3; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 29a, on Gen. 32 1; (XI) the same MS., fol. 94b, on Exod. 18 20; (XII) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 74; (XIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 32 1; (XIV) the same on Ezek. 34 12 and (XV) the same on 1 Chron. 6 50. Lists X and XI have at the end אֵת שֵׁשׁ אֲנִי עֹשֶׂה עִי עֵזֶק. 23 45.

¹ Comp. (1) וקראש' אוקים Gen. 1 22, 28; 5 2; 49 28; Exod. 39 43; (2) וקראש' אוקים Ezek. 3 17; 23 7; (3) וקראש' אוקים Josh. 2 10; וקראש' אוקים Deut. 7 2; וקראש' אוקים Deut. 3 8; (4) וקראש' אוקים 2 Kings 19 12; Isa. 37 12; וקראש' אוקים Judg. 8 34; and (5) וקראש' אוקים Deut. 2 11, 20; Judg. 10 4.

תַּחֲרִיב = § 1417.

תַּחֲרִיב me, is plene once only, in the Pentateuch. As in all the other thirty instances in which it occurs, this sign of the accusative with the suffix first person singular has uniformly retained its primitive orthography;¹ the Massorah safeguards this unique exception. This Rubric is from Add. 15,251, fol. 123b, on Deut. 32 51.

¹ Comp. אֵת Gen. 4 14; 12 12; 15 3; 20 13; 24 56; 26 27; 30 20; 31 27; 34 30; 35 3; 40 15; 41 10, 10, 13; 42 36; 45 4, 5, 8; 48 3, 11, 15, 16; 49 29; Exod. 12 32; 17 3; Levit. 10 19; Numb. 14 22; Deut. 1 14; 4 10; 5 26.

תַּחֲרִיב = § 1418.

תַּחֲרִיב is five times plene in Isaiah. Though headed תַּחֲרִיב this Rubric contains one instance only of תַּחֲרִיב without a prefix. Three of the instances are with the prefix Vav (תַּחֲרִיב Isa. 57 11, 11; 58 2) and one is with the prefix Mem (תַּחֲרִיב Isa. 54 15). This sign of the accusative with the suffix first person singular does not occur in Isaiah with the prefix. Without it, it occurs four times and is defective (Isa. 29 18; 43 22; 61 1; 65 3). The design of this Massorah is to militate against those Codices which retained the primitive orthography in Isa. 57 11, 11; 58 2, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 143a, on Isa. 57 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 134a, on Isa. 37 6; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 227b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 291a, on Isa. 58 2; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Isa. 57 11, and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The different headings of the Lists, viz. אֵת שֵׁשׁ אֲנִי עֹשֶׂה אֵת אֵת אֵת אֵת are due to the Rubric including the different forms.

תַּחֲרִיב = § 1419.

תַּחֲרִיב is eleven [twelve] times plene in this book . . . and once it is with the prefix He. This sign of the accusative with the suffix first person singular occurs altogether twenty-five times in Jeremiah. It is defective in thirteen instances¹ and plene in twelve. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 38a, on Jerem. 9 23, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 150b, on Jerem. 5 19; (III) the same MS., fol. 153a, on Jerem. 9 5; (IV) the same MS., fol. 155a, on Jerem. 13 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 162b, on Jerem. 25 6; (VI) the same MS., fol. 168b, on Jerem. 32 39; (VII) the same MS., fol. 172b, on Jerem. 37 18; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 256a, on Jerem. 32 39 and (IX) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 9 23.

These nine Lists exhibit two recensions of this Massorah based upon two different redactions of the text. Lists I, VI, VII, VIII and IX constitute the recension which I have printed. They make up the twelve plene instances of תַּחֲרִיב and the one instance of תַּחֲרִיב as exhibited in the Rubric which I have printed. In this Rubric, however, the heading אֵת אֵת is a clerical error for אֵת אֵת. The second recension is exhibited in Lists II, III and IV. This recension makes up the twelve plene instances by omitting Jerem. 25 6; 37 18 by giving in their stead אֵת אֵת Jerem. 32 30 and by including the one instance with the prefix He Jerem. 5 22. Hence the Lists of this recension add at the end אֵת אֵת אֵת אֵת אֵת instead of אֵת אֵת. List V is simply a fragment giving four instances only. The heading אֵת אֵת in List IX is due to the fact that it includes the one instance with the prefix Vav.

¹ Comp. אֵת Jerem. 2 13; 4 17; 15 6; 22 16; 24 7; 26 15; 29 12, 13; 32 30; 33 22; 38 19; 42 9, 20.

תַּחֲרִיב = § 1420.

תַּחֲרִיב is five times plene in Ezekiel. In Ezek., where it occurs altogether thirteen times, it is in eight instances defective¹ and in five only plene, the Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 182a, on Ezek. 23 35, which I have printed and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

¹ Comp. אֵת Ezek. 3 24; 8 3; 11 1; 13 19; 20 3; 33 16; 40 1; 44 1.

תַּחֲרִיב = § 1421.

תַּחֲרִיב is five times plene in the Hagiographa. In the Hagiographa this sign of the accusative with the suffix first person singular occurs altogether six times or seven including the single instance where it is with the prefix Vav (Job 14 3). It is defective in one instance only (2 Chron. 12 5). It will be seen that the normal orthography in this division of the Bible is plene and the exceptional spelling is defective and that the Massorah contrary to its usual method records here the majority. This is probably due to the fact that the design of the Massorah is to catalogue the plene instances only of this expression.

And throughout Joshua and Judges it is likewise so except in two instances. In Joshua and Judges, where it occurs altogether thirteen times and where it is plene in eleven instances¹ and defective in two only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 357a, on Lament. 3 2.

¹ Comp. אֵת Josh. 14 10, 11, 12; Judg. 8 15; 10 18; 11 7, 9; 12 2; 16 26; 19 13; 20 5.

תַּחֲרִיב = § 1422.

תַּחֲרִיב occurs thirty-two times plene and throughout Joshua and Judges it is likewise so except twice. Whilst the preceding five Rubrics (§§ 1417—1421) record severally the orthography of this expression in the separate books, the Massorah before us gives a complete catalogue of the plene instances throughout the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 134b, on Deut. 32 51 which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 24 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 290b, on Pa. 31 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 361a, on Esther 5 12; (V) Add. 15,250 fol. 286b, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 294a, on Jerem. 37 18 and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 847.

It will be seen that though List I, which I have printed, expressly states in the heading that there are thirty-one such instances, it enumerates twenty-nine only. The omission of one, viz. Ezek. 20 27, or Isa. 37 6 is manifestly due to the fact that the catchword אֵת which may refer to either of these two passages, ought to have been repeated by the Scribe. As Neh. 6 14 is given in the other five Lists, there can hardly be any doubt that its omission here is due to the same carelessness on the part of the Scribe. It is, moreover, to be remarked that Jerem. 24 6 (אֵת אֵת), is here given as one of the plene instances which is also given in Lists II and IV and which agrees with § 1419.

List II, which as we have seen is the oldest form of this Massorah, is very peculiar and evidently exhibits a different recension. It states in the heading that there are thirty-two plene instances (אֵת אֵת) though it enumerates thirty-one only. It counts Joshua and Judges as each representing one plene instance and omits 2 Kings 19 6; Isa. 37 6; Jerem. 32 39; thus making up the twenty-nine passages.

Lists III and IV state in the heading that there are thirty such instances (אֵת אֵת) and duly enumerate thirty only, omitting 2 Kings 19 6; Jerem. 24 6. Though List V also states in the heading that there are thirty plene instances (אֵת אֵת) it catalogues twenty-seven. It omits 2 Kings 19 6; Jerem. 32 39; Ezek. 20 27 and כִּי בִּי = Ezek. 33 35b; but like Lists I and II it gives Jerem. 24 6. List VI is very remarkable and affords a striking illustration of the difficulties and blunders which later Nakdanim imported into the Rubrics. In this splendid Codex (Add. 15,451) the heading of the Rubric states that there are twenty-six such plene instances of אֵת אֵת and though it duly records twenty-six they are made up as follows: (1) eight instances are omitted, viz. 2 Kings 19 6; Isa. 57 11, 11; 58 2; Jerem. 24 6; Ezek. 6 9; Lament. 3 2; Neh. 5 14; (2) two are inserted, viz. Josh. 14 10, 11 which are not only contrary to the scope of this Massorah, but are in direct conflict with the addition of this very Rubric and (3) Isa. 60 5 is given where אֵת does not occur at all instead of Zeph. 3 7 which is manifestly due to the same ignorant Nakdan.¹ Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List VII) states in the heading that there are twenty-seven plene instances (אמרו כיו בלאים), but catalogues twenty-eight. It omits Jerem. 24 6; 32 39; Ezek. 20 27; Lament. 3 2; Neh. 5 14. On comparing this List with the Lists which record the instances in the separate books, viz. Rubrics 1417-21, it will be seen that the latter yield altogether twenty-nine instances only, as follows Deut. 1, Isa. 5, Jerem. 13, Ezek. 5 and the Hagiographa 5; whilst the different recensions of the Rubric before us yield altogether thirty-three instances.

אוהי כיו מל ומסנתק אשר בעלמא אוהי, החיה יהיה אוהי, ביום שלוח אוהי, כאשר עובתם אוהי, תאוהי לא חיראו נאם, שבתך בתוך מוסת, השכל ידוע אוהי, חסכנתו בפרת, זה גודלך מנת, על אשר לא עובת אוהי, יהיה גבולך ערין, ולא חכנים אוהי, כי כלם ידעו אוהי, לרדת אוהי, כי אוהי עבי אוהי, כי בתחם אוהי אל בית ותחי עד זאת, יען שבתם אוהי, כי בפוסק, במרתח נחשת אשר גרפו נקט, כך אוהי, זה גודל אפס באוהי, זה חיראו תהיה, בדרך אקסיד רוחי, גם למהר אם קראו לה, כיראים אוהי, וכל ידועתם ושפטים דמות, מל במינ' חס' בעלמא שבת, שבתים אוהי.

התחרכיב = § 1423.

תאורי me? occurs twice, once it is plene and once defective. As this expression, which occurs twice, not only in the same book, but within a few sections, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards the variation in the orthography. The reason for this protection will be seen in the notes on Jerem. 7 19 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 150b, on Jerem. 5 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 152a, on Jerem. 7 19; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 274a, on Jerem. 5 22 and (IV) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 7 19. These two instances form part of the alphabetical List, recording the words which begin with He Aleph and which respectively occur twice with Pathach or Chateph-Pathach under the He.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ה, § 19, Vol. I, p. 261 &c.

התחרכיב = § 1424.

תאורי thee, is seventeen times plene as masculine. This accusative with the suffix second person singular masculine without prefixes occurs altogether forty-eight times. As it is defective in thirty-two instances¹ and plene in sixteen only the Massorah safeguards the minority, especially as some Codices exhibit variations in the orthography of this expression which will be seen in the notes on Numb. 14 12; Jerem. 22 26; Ezek. 38 4 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 71b, on Exod. 25 9 which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 66a, on the same passage; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 3 27; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 191a, on Ezek. 38 4; (V) the same MS., fol. 289b, on Ps. 25 5; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 271a, on Ezek. 2 3; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 55a, on Exod. 25 9; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 126b, on Deut. 9 14; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 3b, on Gen. 17 2; (X) the same MS., fol. 77b, on Exod. 9 15; (XI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement fol. 130a, and (XII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 849.

It will be seen that though List I, which I have printed, emphatically states in the heading that there are seventeen such plene instances it enumerates fifteen only, omitting Ezek. 23 4. But as these are duly given in all the oldest Lists, their omission is undoubtedly due to a clerical error. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List XII) makes up the seventeen passages by omitting Ezek. 2 3 and giving Ezek. 38 17 which is contrary to all the other Lists. As תאורי 2 Sam. 24 24 is included in the plene instances, List IV correctly heads it תאורי.

¹ Comp. תאורי defective Gen. 7 1; 17 6; 28 3; 30 26, 30; 41 41; 45 11; Exod. 23 33; 27 8; Numb. 14 12; 16 10; Deut. 28 21, 36; 29 12; 1 Sam. 8 7; 2 Sam. 14 32; 18 12; 19 34; 1 Kings 8 43; 2 Kings 1 10; 2 Kings 8 13; Jerem. 22 26; 30 11; 38 14; 42 6; 43 3; Ezek. 38 17; Micah 6 16; Zech. 3 4; Prov. 25 8; 2 Chron. 6 33 and in two instances it is with the prefix Vav תאורי 1 Kings 11 37; Jerem. 46 28.

התחרכיב = § 1425.

תאורי thee, is nine [eight] times plene as masculine. Owing to the pausal or distinctive accents, this accusative with the suffix second person singular masculine which is normally תאורי or תאורי, has in eighteen or nineteen instances the same vowel-points as the feminine. In eleven instances it is defective¹ and in eight plene. The Massorah here records the passages in which the otherwise feminine form is masculine.

¹ In seven instances the pausal accent is Soph-Pasuk (תאורי Gen. 27 8; Deut. 28 48, 51; 1 Kings 22 24; Jerem. 7 16; Ezek. 2 1; 2 Chron. 18 23); in one instance it is with Revia (תאורי Prov. 6 22) in two with Zakeph-Katon (תאורי Jerem. 12 1; Ezek. 44 5) and in one with Pashta (תאורי Jerem. 49 16).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 180b, on Ezek. 21 34, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 191b, on Ezek. 38 9 and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 290b, on the same passage. Though the heading of Lists I and II state that there are nine instances, the Rubrics themselves give eight only and List III emphatically states in the heading that there are eight only (תאורי) and duly gives the same eight passages. It will thus be seen that whilst both include תאורי 1 Kings 20 25, they exclude 1 Kings 22 24; Jerem. 12 1. As these two Standard Codices belong to different Massoretic Schools and to countries far apart there can hardly be any doubt that these two instances are designedly excluded from the plenes because they belong to the defectives.

התחרכיב = § 1426.

תאורי thee, is thirteen [fourteen] times plene as feminine. This accusative, with the suffix second person singular feminine, occurs altogether twenty-seven times. In eleven instances it is defective¹ and in fourteen it is plene. As the plenes are all along recorded, the Massorah for the sake of uniformity departs here from its usual method and catalogues the majority which consist of the later plene orthography. By referring to the notes on Numb. 5 21; Ezek. 16 8, 39; 21 35; 27 26 in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that this is the orthography of the predominant School of Massorites and is designed to militate against other Codices.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 79b, on Ezek. 16 57, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176b, on Ezek. 16 39; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 141a, on Judg. 14 15; (IV) the same MS., fol. 278a, on Ezek. 16 57; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 147a, on Judg. 14 15; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 315a, on Ezek. 16 4; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 195a, on Numb. 5 21 and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 850.

It will be seen that though the List which I have printed (List I) states in the heading that there are thirteen such instances only, it records fourteen and omits Ezek. 16 59, 60. As this MS. is a Model Codex, this List must be based upon MSS. in which these two instances were defective. The other six Lists, however, contain these two passages and though they all state in the headings that there are sixteen instances, List IV omits Ezek. 23 29; Lists V and VII omit Jerem. 11 17; List V also omits Ezek. 16 57; 23 25 and List VI omits Ezek. 22 15. As these omissions are in conflict with the statement in the heading, they must be ascribed to clerical errors.

¹ Comp. תאורי defective Gen. 12 12; Numb. 5 19; 1 Sam. 25 34; 2 Sam. 14 18; Ezek. 16 5, 8, 39a; 21 34, 35; 26 19; 27 26.

התחרכיב = § 1427.

תאורי is in four instances with Kametz in the Scriptures . . . That is, in these four instances this feminine form is masculine apart from those specified in the second part of this Rubric. Whilst § 1425 is restricted to the plenes, this part of the Rubric records the passages in which this feminine form is masculine without any regard to its orthography or the accents.

And whenever it has the accent Athnach or Soph-Pasuk. That is, when it has either of these pausal accents it is with Kametz under the Tav (תאורי or תאורי). This statement is not quite correct. For though תאורי which occurs altogether eighteen times (vide supra, letter מ, § 1425) has Soph-Pasuk in ten instances¹ it never occurs with Athnach. The phrase must, therefore, be interpreted here in a loose sense to denote the great pausal accents including Sakeph-Katon, Revia and Pashta which the four passages in the first part of this Rubric exhibit.

And when it is feminine. — As feminine, which occurs altogether twenty-seven times (vide supra, letter מ, § 1426) the Kametz under the Tav (תאורי or תאורי) is its normal form.

And throughout the book of Ezekiel it is likewise so except in six instances. In Ezekiel, where this accusative with the suffix second person singular occurs twelve times, it is with Kametz under the Tav (תאורי) in six instances² and in six with Sheva (תאורי). The Massorah records the latter. Though the instances with Kametz (תאורי) and with Sheva (תאורי) are evenly divided in this book yet the Massorah applies the expression and all, ¹ Comp. תאורי or תאורי Gen. 27 8; Deut. 28 48, 51; 1 Kings 22 24; Jerem. 7 16; 19 10; Ezek. 2 1; 3 22; 38 9; 2 Chron. 18 23.

² Comp. תאורי or תאורי Ezek. 2 1, 6; 3 22; 38 9; 40 4; 44 5.

or and throughout to the former half to denote that it is אָמֵץ irrespective of the accent, since in three of the six instances it is with Zakeph-Katon (אָמֵץ Ezek. 2 6; 40 4; 44 5) which would otherwise have put these passages in the same category with Judg. 13 15; Jerem. 12 1 recorded in the first part of this very Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 165*b*, on Judg. 13 15 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 25*b*, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 338*b*, on Prov. 6 22; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 173*a*, on Judg. 13 15; (V) the same MS., fol. 301*b*, on Jerem. 49 16 and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 851. The printed Massorah (List VI) only gives the second part of this Rubric and Jacob b. Chayim refers to Jerem. 12 1 where he says the first part is given, but it is nowhere to be found.

תַּחְתְּרוּחַ = § 1428.

אִתִּי him, is twice plene in this book. That is, in Jeremiah. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Jeremiah 18 10, is incorrect, since it is three times plene, 25 15 is omitted. This is attested by all the Lists which record the plene instances in the Bible (vide infra, letter א, § 1432). As this sign of the accusative with the suffix third person singular masculine occurs thirty times in this book and is defective in twenty-seven instances¹ and plene in three only the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

¹ Comp. אִתִּי defective Jerem. 20 2; 22 12; 25 12; 26 8, 24; 27 7, 8, 12; 29 26; 32 5; 37 4, 15, 16; 38 6, 13, 27; 39 5, 7, 14; 40 1, 1; 41 2, 9, 12; 44 20; 45 9, 31.

תַּחְתְּרוּכִי = § 1429.

אִתִּי is twice plene in this book, i. e. Ezekiel. In Ezekiel where it occurs altogether fifteen times it is defective thirteen times¹ and plene twice only. Hence the Massorah records the exceptions. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 177*b*, on Ezek. 17 17.

¹ Comp. אִתִּי defective Ezek. 12 13, 23; 13 10, 15, 16; 17 13, 16; 31 16; 33 2; 36 29; 39 15; 43 26; 46 13.

תַּחְתְּרוּלִי = § 1430.

אִתִּי is four times plene in this book. That is, in the twelve Minor Prophets which are Massoretically treated as one book. In the Minor Prophets where it altogether occurs twelve times and where it is defective in eight instances¹ and plene in four only, the Massorah safeguards the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 128*a*, on Mal. 3 22.

¹ Comp. אִתִּי defective Joel 2 19; Micah 6 5; Hag. 2 13; Zech. 11 10, 13; 13 9; Mal. 1 12; 3 17.

תַּחְתְּרוּלֵי = § 1431.

אִתִּי is four times plene in this book, i. e. in the Psalms. The only other instance in which it occurs in this book is defective (Ps. 101 5). Here again the majority is recorded contrary to the usual practice of the Massorah, because the plenes are all along catalogued. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 349*a*, on Ps. 18 1.

תַּחְתְּרוּלֵיב = § 1432.

אִתִּי is plene in twenty-four instances . . . and throughout Judges it is likewise so except twice. It will be seen that these instances embrace seven books only: (1) Joshua, (2) Kings, (3) Jeremiah, (4) Ezekiel, (5) the Minor Prophets, (6) Psalms and (7) Nehemiah, for the following reason:

The Pentateuch. — The Pentateuch, where it occurs no fewer than two hundred and forty-eight times,¹ is omitted because אִתִּי is without an exception defective. No Massoretic School attempted to introduce the later plene orthography into this division of the Scriptures.

Joshua. — In Joshua where it occurs nineteen times it is defective in fifteen instances² and plene in four only. Hence the exceptions are included in this general List. Here, therefore, the later plene orthography has only partially prevailed, and even ¹ Viz. 62 in Genesis; 51 in Exodus; 62 in Leviticus; 49 in Numbers and 24 in Deuteronomy.

² Comp. אִתִּי defective Josh. 4 3; 4 14; 7 15, 25; 8 23; 9 12; 13 21; 14 7; 18 20; 19 14; 20 4; 24 8, 14, 30, 35.

in one of the four instances (Josh. 16 6) some of the best Codices have still the primitive spelling as may be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible, where, however, אִתִּי Josh. 24 30 should be אִתִּי defective.

Judges. — In Judges where it occurs nineteen times it is plene in seventeen instances¹ and defective in two only. Hence this Massorah safeguards the rare exceptions by recording them especially at the end of the List and does not catalogue the plenes which are the rule. Accordingly the following three instances which are defective in my edition of the Bible must be plene Judg. 1 6; 8 8 and 16 21. It will be seen that the later orthography has almost uniformly been introduced into this book.

Samuel. — In Samuel where it occurs forty-four times it is without exception defective. Hence like the Pentateuch, it is not included in this catalogue.

Kings. — In Kings where it occurs sixty-two times and four times with the prefix Mem, it is defective in fifty-eight instances² and plene in four and with the two instances of אִתִּי (2 Kings 3 11; 8 8) in six only. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards these exceptions in the List before us.

Isaiah. — In Isaiah where it occurs four times it is uniformly defective (Isa. 8 13; 20 1; 29 11; 36 21) and hence like the Pentateuch and Samuel, it is not included in this catalogue.

Jeremiah. — In Jeremiah where it occurs altogether thirty times it is defective in twenty-seven instances and plene in three only. (Vide supra, letter א, § 1428.) Accordingly the exceptional orthography is included in this catalogue.

Ezekiel. — In this book where it occurs fifteen times it is defective in thirteen instances and plene in two only. (Vide supra, letter א, § 1429.) Hence the exceptions are here included.

Minor Prophets. — In this part of the Bible it occurs altogether twelve times. Here it is defective in eight instances and plene in four only. (Vide supra, letter א, § 1430.) Accordingly the minority is included in this List.

Psalms. — In the Psalter where it occurs altogether five times and where it is plene four times and defective in one instance only (vide supra, letter א, § 1431) the majority is here represented, because the plenes are all along registered.

Proverbs. — This sign of the accusative with the suffix third person masculine does not occur at all in Proverbs, either as defective or plene.

Job. — In Job it occurs once only and is defective (42 11) for which reason it is not included in this List.

The Five Megilloth. — In this part of the Bible it occurs three times. These are not only restricted to Esther, but are defective (Esther 9 17, 18, 25) and hence, like the Pentateuch, Samuel and Isaiah, the Megilloth are not included in this catalogue.

Daniel. — In Daniel, as in Proverbs, אִתִּי does not occur at all either as defective or plene.

Ezra-Nehemiah. — In this book it occurs once only and is plene (Neh. 13 26). Accordingly it is included in this catalogue.

Chronicles. — In Chronicles, where it occurs sixteen times, it is uniformly defective³ and hence, like the Pentateuch, Samuel, Isaiah and Job, it is not represented in this List.

It will thus be seen that there are altogether four hundred and seventy-nine instances in the Bible of this accusative with the suffix third person singular masculine, that four hundred and thirty-eight are defective (אִתִּי) and that twenty-four without Judges and forty-one with Judges are plene (אִתִּי).

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 43*a*, on Jerem. 18 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 4*b*, on Josh. 6 18; (III) the same MS., fol. 99*a*, on 2 Kings 3 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 177*b*, on Ezek. 17 17; (V) the same MS., fol. 299*b*, on Ps. 67 8; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 245*b*, on 2 Kings 3 26; (VII) the same MS., fol. 294*a*, on Ezek. 17 17 and (VIII) the printed Massorah, Finalis, letter א, § 846.

As the twenty-four plene instances include two with the prefix Mem, Lists II, III and IV head this Rubric more properly

¹ Comp. אִתִּי plene Judg. 1 6; 2 9; 6 31; 7 5; 8 8, 27, 27; 11 11, 24, 24; 12 6; 14 11; 16 5, 21, 26, 31*b*; 20 42. This added to the twenty-four plene instances recorded in this Rubric, yields altogether forty-one plene instances for the whole Bible.

² Comp. אִתִּי defective 1 Kings 1 33, 34, 38, 44, 45; 5 15; 7 23 24; 11 28, 29, 34; 12 1, 20, 20; 13 31; 14 13, 18, 22; 15 8; 16 7; 18 21; 20 16, 41; 21 25; 22 14; 2 Kings 1 10, 12; 5 3; 6 32; 7 20; 9 2, 27, 28, 28; 10 16, 35; 11 2, 2, 12; 12 10, 22; 14 20, 21; 15 7; 16 14, 17; 17 36; 18 36; 21 26; 22 5; 23 29, 30, 30; 24 12; 25 5, 6; אִתִּי 1 Kings 22 7, 8.

³ Comp. אִתִּי 1 Chron. 16 1; 2 Chron. 4 2, 3; 10 1; 13 11, 23; 18 13; 22 11, 11; 23 11; 24 26; 25 28; 26 1, 23; 27 9; 34 10.

Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List VIII) is incorrect. ... should be Josh. 6 18. ... Josh. 24 14 is defective according to the Massorah. ... 1 Kings 20 33 is wrong since there is no ... in this verse and it is manifestly a mistake for ... without the expression ... = Jerem. 39 5. ... does not occur and is evidently a mistake for ... = Neh. 13 26. Moreover the heading of the second part of this Rubric, viz. ... is in conflict with this Massorah, since the plene instances in Joshua are included in this List. The expression ... must, therefore, have been added by an ignorant Nakdan.

תתחילין = § 1433.

אני is twice defective in this book. That is, in Judges. As it occurs altogether nineteen times in this book and is plene in seventeen instances and defective in these two passages only (vide supra, letter א, § 1432), the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. The reason for safeguarding these two passages is to exclude the various reading exhibited in Judg. 16 31, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which is part of the preceding Massorah, and which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 30b, on Judg. 16 24.

תתחילין = § 1434.

היא, is twelve times plene. That is, without and with the prefix Vav. This applies to the following six books only.

The Pentateuch. — In the Pentateuch where this sign of the accusative, with the suffix third person singular feminine and with the prefix Vav, occurs no fewer than ninety-six times, it is defective in ninety-four instances¹ and plene in two only. Hence these two passages are included and safeguarded in this List.

Samuel. — In Samuel where it occurs altogether nine times it is defective in seven instances (1 Sam. 9 23; 15 9; 18 17; 20 9; 21 10; 30 10; 2 Sam. 13 14) and plene in two only. Accordingly the minority is safeguarded in this catalogue.

Isaiah. — In Isaiah it occurs six times and the defectives and plenes are equally divided. In 1 7; 9 6 and 19 17 it is defective whereas in the other three instances it exhibits the later plene orthography for which reason it is included in this List.

Jeremiah. — Here it occurs three times only and is defective in one instance (Jerem. 32 23) and plene in the two instances included in this List. The notes on Jerem. 32 31; 32 2 in my edition of the Bible will show the reason for safeguarding these passages.

The Minor Prophets. — In this part of the Bible where it occurs altogether four times the different spellings are evenly divided. It is defective in two (Amos. 9 8; Zech. 5 6) and plene in two which are here given. The safeguarding of these two instances is due to the various reading exhibited in other redactions, as will be seen in the notes on Hos. 4 19 in my edition of the Bible.

Psalms. — In the only instance in the Psalter where it occurs, it exhibits the later plene orthography.

Throughout Joshua, Judges [Samuel], and Ezekiel it is likewise so except in three instances. Whilst in the preceding books the later plene orthography is the exception and the defective the rule in the books specified in this second part of the Rubric the reverse is the case. The plene is the rule in in these three books and the defective the exception. In Joshua where it occurs eleven times it is plene in nine instances (Josh. 1 15; 8 29; 10 30, 37; 18 4, 8; 19 47, 47, 47) and defective in the two instances here recorded. In Judges where it occurs nine times (Judg. 1 8, 17; 11 35, 38; 14 2, 3, 12; 15 6; 19 25) it is uniformly plene and in Ezekiel where it occurs altogether twenty-three times it is plene in twenty-two instances (Ezek. 2 10; 4 3; 17 7, 9; 20 28, 42; 21 16b; 23 8, 17, 34; 26 4; 30 25; 32 16, 16, 18, 20; 36 17; 43 17; 47 14, 22; 48 12 13; 23 10) and defective in one solitary instance which is recorded in this part of the Rubric. In referring to the notes on Ezek. 2 10; 4 3; 17 7, 9 in my edition of the Bible the reason for safeguarding the solitary defective instance will be seen, since this Massorah is designed to exclude the various readings exhibited in the redactions of the less ascendant Schools of Massorites.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 290a, on Ps. 27 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 108b, on Numb. 22 33; (III) the same MS., fol. 290a, on Jerem. 33 2; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 228a, on Numb. 22 33 and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

¹ That is Gen. 26; Exod. 15; Levit. 23; Numb. 22 and Deut. 6. The two instances with the prefix Vav are Levit. 10 17 and Numb. 22 33 the latter is included in the plene List of the twelve passages.

The heading in the second part of this Rubric in List I, which I have printed, viz. ... is incorrect, since the instances in Samuel are included in the first part of the List. There can, therefore, be no doubt that ... has been added by an ignorant Nakdan and is rightly absent in all the other four Lists. The heading in List II, viz. ... is more precise since one of the twelve instances is with the prefix Vav. This also accounts for the heading of List V, viz. ... As three of the five Lists (II, IV, V) are on Numb. 22 33 it is evident that this Massorah is designed to include this form with the prefix Vav which accordingly is unique apart from Ezekiel.

תתחילין = § 1435.

אנתה. Throughout Joshua and Ezekiel this accusative with the suffix third person singular feminine is plene with the exception of three instances. This is simply another form of the second part of the preceding Massorah. This Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 12b, on Josh. 18 5.

תתחילין = § 1436.

ואנתה and her, occurs four times, three times plene and once defective. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 100b, on Numb. 22 33, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 151a, on Levit. 10 17; (III) Orient. 2345, fol. 114b, on Numb. 22 33; (IV) the printed Massorah on Levit. 10 17 and (V) the same on Ezek. 23 10.

Both Lists IV and V head this Rubric ... and distinctly specify Ezek. 12 13 as the only instance in which it is plene (ואנתה לא יראו בתיא בלא). But this is certainly incorrect. Not only is ... Numb. 22 33 one of the twelve plene instances given in all the Massoretic Lists of § 1434 including the printed Massorah, but Ezek. 12 13; 23 10 are emphatically excluded from the plenes in Ezekiel both in the second part of Rubrics § 1434 and § 1435 where it is distinctly stated that it is defective in one solitary instance in this book, viz. Ezek. 21 16. Besides all the three MS. Lists head this Rubric ... List II emphatically states that the first instance alone is defective ... = Levit. 10 17. There can, therefore, be no doubt that some later Nakdan has ignorantly inverted the heading and that Jacob b. Chayim has so printed it with the addition at the end without examining its contents.

תתחילין = § 1437.

אנתני us, is three times plene . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. This accusative, with the suffix first person plural, occurs altogether thirty-two times without and twice with the prefix Vav. As it is defective in thirty-one instances¹ and plene in three only the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. The notes on Jerem. 21 2 in my edition of the Bible, as well as the plene reading in Josh. 22 19, which is exhibited both in MSS. and editions will show the design of this Massorah.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 44b, on Jerem. 21 2, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 159b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 382b, on Neh. 6 9; (IV) Add. 15451, fol. 108b, on Deut. 6 23; (V) the same MS., fol. 249a, on Jerem. 21 2; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 124b, on Deut. 6 23; (VII) the same MS., fol. 280b, on Jerem. 21 2; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 267b, on Deut. 6 23; (IX) Orient. 2349, fol. 127a, on the same passage and (X) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

As one of the instances is with the prefix Vav (אנתני Deut. 6 23) Lists III and V head this Rubric ... and Lists IV, VI, VIII and IX ... All the ten Lists not only record the same three instances, but Lists I, V and VII state that they respectively occur in the three divisions of the ¹ Comp. אנתני defective Gen. 34 9; 42 30; 43 18; 47 19; Exod. 16 3; Numb. 10 31; 14 3, 8; 20 5; Deut. 1 19, 22, 26, 27, 27; 6 23; 26 6; Josh. 7 7; 9 22; 24 17; 1 Sam. 11 3; 17 9; 30 23; Jerem. 2 6, 6; 42 2; 43 3, 3, 3; Ezek. 8 12; Ezra 4 2 and אנתני Josh. 22 19.

Bible and exclude Josh. 22 19 which would otherwise assign two instances to the Prophets. Accordingly אָתָם Josh. 22 19 which is plene in my edition of the Bible, in accordance with the reading of many MSS. and editions must be corrected into אָתָּךְ in harmony with the Massorah.

תתרתליח = § 1438a.

אָתָם. In four instances the textual reading is אָתָם them for which the Sevir is אָתָּךְ her, and they are misleading in the Scriptures. Viz. Josh. 10 28; Judg. 18 27; Jerem. 33 9; 4 12. On referring to Josh. 10 28 it will be seen that the Sevir is in some MSS. described as the official Keri, whilst in other MSS. and early editions it is actually the substantive textual reading. For the interchangeable use of אָתָּךְ and אָתָּךְ see above, letter א, §§ 729 and 742.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I have found since the publication of my edition of the Massorah, in MS. No. 1-3 in the National Library of Paris, on Josh. 10 38.

אָתָּךְ דְּהוּ לֹחֵם אָתָּךְ דְּהוּ בִּקְרָא מִקְרָא לִקְרָא חִיחֵת לִי רַחֵם סֵלָה

תתרתליח = § 1438.

אָתָם them, is thirty-nine times plene in the Pentateuch and the sign thereof is, my head in full [= plene] with dew [טל = 39 times].

This accusative, with the suffix third person plural masculine, occurs altogether two hundred and twenty-two times in the Pentateuch (viz. in Genesis 30; Exod. 57; Levit. 42; Numb. 37 and Deut. 17 times). It has retained its primitive defective orthography, in one hundred and eighty-three instances, whilst in thirty-nine instances only has the later plene spelling been introduced. Hence the Massorah records the exceptions.

Of this Rubric which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 120a, on Deut. 12 29, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 30a, on Gen. 41 8; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 84a, on Numb. 4 12; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 61b, on Gen. 49 28; (V) the same MS., fol. 196b, on Numb. 6 20; (VI) the same MS., fol. 260a, on Deut. 3 28; (VII) Orient. 2349, fol. 141a, on Deut. 31 7; (VIII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 131b, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 856.

It will be seen that though List I, which I have printed, emphatically states in the heading that there are thirty-nine such instances it records thirty-four only. As all the other Lists with the exception of List III duly catalogue all the thirty-nine passages it is evident that the five instances here omitted are Levit. 23 43; 24 6; Numb. 6 20; 7 3; 25 4 and that their omission is due to a clerical error as is not unfrequently the case in long Lists. List II which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, describes the instance in Levit. 15 55 as constituting a difference of opinion in the Massoretic Schools whether it should be plene or defective (וְכִלְיֵי בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל יִלְכְּוּ). For No. 37 this List gives the catchwords אָתָּךְ = Numb. 19 9 instead of Deut. 1 15 in which verse, however, there is no אָתָּךְ in the received text. List III which is headed אָתָּךְ טַל מִלְּבַיִת וְעַתָּה יִשְׂרָאֵל יִלְכְּוּ gives the eleven instances only which occur in Numbers and adds at the end אָתָּךְ טַל מִלְּבַיִת וְעַתָּה יִשְׂרָאֵל יִלְכְּוּ. It is remarkable that Lists IV, V and VI give אָתָּךְ = Exod. 28 43 as the seventeenth instance in which אָתָּךְ does not occur. It is evidently a clerical error for אָתָּךְ = Numb. 4 19. In Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List IX) there are the following mistakes. אָתָּךְ לֵב מִלְּאֵד חֲנִי דְּבִשָׁה should be אָתָּךְ לֵב מִלְּאֵד חֲנִי דְּבִשָׁה Exod. 29 3, since it is the first אָתָּךְ in this verse which is plene. אָתָּךְ יִשְׂרָאֵל should be אָתָּךְ יִשְׂרָאֵל Numb. 5 4; אָתָּךְ מִשָּׁה אֵת דְּעִלָּתָא is a mistake for אָתָּךְ מִשָּׁה אָתָּךְ טַל מִלְּבַיִת Numb. 7 6; אָתָּךְ דְּהוּ לֹחֵם אֵת דְּהוּ בִּקְרָא מִקְרָא לִקְרָא חִיחֵת לִי רַחֵם סֵלָה = Deut. 29 7 should be אָתָּךְ דְּהוּ לֹחֵם אֵת דְּהוּ בִּקְרָא מִקְרָא לִקְרָא חִיחֵת לִי רַחֵם סֵלָה Deut. 10 15; אָתָּךְ דְּהוּ לֹחֵם אֵת דְּהוּ בִּקְרָא מִקְרָא לִקְרָא חִיחֵת לִי רַחֵם סֵלָה should simply be אָתָּךְ דְּהוּ לֹחֵם אֵת דְּהוּ בִּקְרָא מִקְרָא לִקְרָא חִיחֵת לִי רַחֵם סֵלָה Deut. 27 4 as it is in our List, to distinguish it from the first אָתָּךְ דְּהוּ לֹחֵם אֵת דְּהוּ בִּקְרָא מִקְרָא לִקְרָא חִיחֵת לִי רַחֵם סֵלָה in verse 2 of the same chapter. In the List which I have printed אָתָּךְ Levit. 14 6 is a mistake for אָתָּךְ.

תתרתליח = § 1439.

אָתָם is four times plene in Samuel. In Sam. where it occurs fourteen times it is defective in ten instances¹ and plene in four only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. Of this ¹ Comp. אָתָם defective 1 Sam. 5 6; 12 9; 15 18; 17 40; 25 20; 31 12; 2 Sam. 8 11; 17 19; 21 12; 23 16.

Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 178a, on 1 Sam. 9 12 and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 857, which I have printed. The heading of List II אָתָם טַל מִלְּבַיִת וְעַתָּה יִשְׂרָאֵל יִלְכְּוּ is a mistake as is evident from the fact that the Rubric itself correctly records four instances only as well as from the heading of List I, viz. אָתָם טַל מִלְּבַיִת וְעַתָּה יִשְׂרָאֵל יִלְכְּוּ.

תתרתמ = § 1440.

אָתָם is nine times plene in this book. That is, in Kings where it occurs altogether thirty-two times, and where it is defective in twenty-three instances¹ and plene in nine only. The Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS., and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 99a, on 2 Kings 3 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 103a, on 2 Kings 10 6; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 201b, on 2 Kings 3 10; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 246b, and (V) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage.

¹ Comp. אָתָם defective 1 Kings 5 17; 8 4, 21, 48; 11 24; 2 Kings 10 8; 11 4, 4, 4; 13 4, 23; 16 3; 17 7, 15, 28, 33; 19 12; 21 3, 8; 24 20; 25 20, 20, 21.

תתרתמא = § 1441.

אָתָם is twice plene in the Minor Prophets. In this part of the Bible where it occurs eight times, it is defective in six instances¹ and plene in two only. Hence the Massorah records the exceptions. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 863.

¹ Comp. אָתָם defective Hosea 2 9; Joel 4 7; Zech. 2 4; 8 8; Mal. 3, 3, 19.

תתרתמב = § 1442.

אָתָם is four times plene [in the Hagiographa]. In the Hagiographa, where, apart from Ezra-Nehemiah, it occurs seventeen times it is defective in thirteen instances¹ and plene in four only. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

And throughout Ezra-Nehemiah it is likewise so except in one instance. Here where this accusative with the suffix third person plural masculine occurs five times the plene orthography is also the rule, inasmuch as it is אָתָם in four instances (Ezra 4 4; 8 17; Neh. 2 20; 6 4) and Neh. 1 9 constitutes the solitary exception for which reason the Massorah safeguards it.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 311a, on Ps. 106 26 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 267b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 9 13. List II omits the second part of this Rubric which is misleading since אָתָם plene occurs more than four times in this division of the Bible. List III rightly heads this Rubric אָתָם טַל מִלְּבַיִת וְעַתָּה יִשְׂרָאֵל יִלְכְּוּ. It will be seen that according to this Massorah Neh. 2 20 which is defective in my edition of the Bible should be plene whilst 2 Chron. 8 2 which is plene should be defective. The former, in accordance with the second part of this Massorah, recognises Neh. 1 9 as the only defective instance in Ezra-Nehemiah and the latter, in accordance with the first part of this Rubric which declares that there are four plene instances in the Hagiographa, excludes 2 Chron. 8 2 from the plenes.

¹ Comp. אָתָם defective Esther 8 11; 1 Chron. 8 8; 11 18; 18 11; 2 Chron. 2 16; 3 10; 5 5; 6 38; 8 2; 19 10; 20 16; 24 23; 33 3.

תתרתמג = § 1443.

אָתָם is six times defective in this book. That is, in Joshua. In this book where it occurs altogether twenty-nine times the later plene spelling prevails in twenty-three instances¹ and the original defective orthography is retained in six instances only. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 139b, on Josh. 5 7, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 4a; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 127a; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 278a, and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

¹ Comp. אָתָם plene Josh. 1 14; 2 10, 23; 4 3, 3, 3; 5 7b; 7 11; 8 6, 12, 22; 9 20, 25; 10 19, 25, 28; 11 12, 14; 14 1; 22 32; 24 8, 11, 12.

תתרתמד = § 1444.

אָתָם is sixteen times defective in this book. That is, in Jeremiah where it occurs altogether fifty times, the primitive orthography is exhibited in these instances only whereas in thirty-four passages the later plene spelling prevails.¹ That attempts were made to introduce this spelling in other passages of this book may be seen from the notes on Jerem. 25 18; 27 4; 29 21 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest portions of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 164a, on Jerem. 27 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 170a, on Jerem. 34 16; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 5 3; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 253b, on Jerem. 27 4; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 257b, on Jerem. 34 16; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 282a, on Jerem. 23 2; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Jerem. 27 4 and (VIII) the printed Massorah, on Jerem. 23 2. Though the List, which I have printed, like all the other Lists, states in the heading that there are sixteen such instances (ט"ו is a mistake for ט"י), it enumerates fifteen only. It is remarkable that Jerem. 25 4, which it omits, is also omitted in Lists II and IV. It is, however, not only duly given in List III, which is the oldest form of this Massorah, but in Lists V, VI and VIII and its omission is manifestly due to a clerical error.

¹ Comp. אָמַק plene Jerem. 1 16; 4 12; 5 5, 7; 7 22, 23; 9 15; 10 5; 11 4, 4, 6, 7; 12 15; 14 12; 16 3, 3, 7, 8; 21 4; 23 15; 29 17; 31 8; 32 40, 41; 33 9; 34 13, 20; 35 2, 2; 49 37; 52 3, 26, 26, 27.

הַתְּחַרְמִיָּה = § 1445.

אָמַק is twenty-five times defective in this book. That is, in Ezekiel. As in Joshua and Jeremiah so in Ezekiel the later plene orthography is the rule and the original defective spelling the exception. In this book the accusative with the suffix third person plural masculine occurs altogether seventy-four times. In forty-nine instances it is plene¹ and in twenty-five only is it defective. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. The necessity for protecting these instances will be seen in the notes in my edition of the Bible, on Ezek. 3 17; 4 9; 5 16; 7 18; 16 23; 17 12; 20 19, 21, 21, 38; 37 19; 44 12 where the primitive orthography was still exhibited in the less dominant School of textual redactors against which this Massorah militates.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176b, on Ezek. 16 37, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 179a, on Ezek. 20 13; (III) the same MS., fol. 188b, on Ezek. 34 4; (IV), the same MS., fol. 195a, on Ezek. 43 8; (V) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 5 4; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezek. 7 27 and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 862.

With the exception of List VI, which exhibits simply a fragment, though it states in the heading that there are twenty-five defective instances, and the printed Massorah which is hopelessly corrupt, all the other five Lists absolutely coincide with regard to these defective passages. Preeminent amongst these is List V which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah and which is faultless. Apart from the omission of Ezek. 37 17, which is manifestly due to a clerical error, Lists I, II, III and IV give exactly the same instances as are recorded in List V of the ancient St. Petersburg Codex. Accordingly Ezek. 20 22 and 37 19, which are defective in my edition of the Bible, should be plene. In the List which I have printed, the reference to the catchwords יִקְבָּצוּ אָמַק, the fifth instance, should be Ezek. 16 37 instead of 37 21 and to the catchwords דַּהַּ אֲנִי לִקְחָ קִדְרֵי דַּהַּ, the sixteenth instance, Ezek. 37 21 instead of 37 19.

As to Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List VII), the corruptions are numerous. The later Nakdan having mistaken כ"ה = 25 in the heading for כ"ג = 23, tried to make up the twenty-eight instances in the following manner: (1) Ezek. 5 4 and 34 23 each of which contains one instances, viz. Nos. 2 and 15 he divided each verse into two, so that they make Nos. 2, 3, 26 and 27. (2) He omitted eight instances, viz. Ezek. 7 27; 11 20; 16 37; 20 18; 34 14; 37 22, 23; 39 28, and (3) he inserted ten others which are plene, viz. Ezek. 5 4a; 12 15, 15; 16 21; 20 15, 19, 21b, 22; 30 10, 19; whilst אֲכַל אָמַק which does not occur in Ezekiel, is manifestly a corruption of אֲכַל אָמַק Ezek. 43 8. In Baer's manipulated List, which this Massoretic authority gives in the Critical Annotations on Ezek. 7 27, three instances are omitted, viz. Ezek. 20 18; 39 28 and 43 8, for which he substitutes three others, two from Jacob b. Chayim's corrupted List, viz. Ezek. 20 21b, 22 and 37 19. But these, as will be seen, are contrary to all the MS. Lists.

¹ Comp. אָמַק plene Ezek. 3 9, 17; 4 9, 9; 5 3, 4a, 16; 7 18; 8 18; 10 17; 12 15, 15; 14 4; 16 21, 33; 17 12; 20 11, 11, 15, 17, 19, 21, 21, 22, 23b, 26, 38; 28 23; 28 24; 30 20; 32 31; 33 82; 34 2, 8, 10, 26; 37 19, 21b, 23b, 24, 26, 26; 39 27a; 43 11, 11, 24; 44 12, 14, 19.

The result of §§ 1438—1445, which register the different spellings of this sign of the accusative with the suffix third person plural masculine, is that it occurs altogether 472 times in the three great divisions of the Bible, as follows: (I) In the Pentateuch, where it occurs 222 times, it is אָמַק 183 times and אָמַק 39. Here, therefore, the primitive orthography prevails; (II) in the Prophets, where it occurs 228 times, it is אָמַק 87 times and 141 אָמַק. Here the later orthography has more successfully been carried through, whilst (III) in the Hagiographa, where it occurs 22 times, it is אָמַק 14 times and אָמַק 2. Here the original orthography prevails.

הַתְּחַרְמִי = § 1446.

אָמַק and them, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 75b, on Ezek. 10 22, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 98b, on Levit. 14 11; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 10 22; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 311b, on the same passage; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 90a, on Levit. 14 11; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezek. 10 22; (VII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 14 11 and (VIII) the same on Ezek. 10 22. It will be seen that, whilst the earlier orthography is retained in the Pentateuch, the later spelling is exhibited in Ezekiel.

הַתְּחַרְמִי = § 1447.

אָמַק them, occurs twice. That is, this accusative with the suffix third person plural feminine with the paragogic He. In the only other instance where it occurs it is without the He (Ezek. 16 54). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 189a, on Ezek. 34 21, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 288b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 126a, on Exod. 35 26 and (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 78b, on the same passage. Lists III and IV more properly head it בִּי הוּרָה וְהוּרָה מִלִּי it occurs twice, once defective and once plene, since it is defective in the first passage and plene in the second.

הַתְּחַרְמִי = § 1448.

אָמַק with thee. Throughout Numbers it is always אָמַק with the exception of three instances. That is, in Numbers where this accusative with the suffix second person singular masculine occurs altogether ten times, it is in six instances אָמַק, being the same as the second person feminine, which is due to its pausal accent,¹ whilst in three or rather four instances only has it the normal masculine vowel-points. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, but which is one of the oldest parts thereof, I collated five Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 218b, on Numb. 18 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 137b; (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 97b; (IV) Orient. 2849, fol. 111b, and (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, all on Numb. 18 7. As there are four such instances in Numb. and as the Rubric, which I have printed, emphatically states that there are three only and omits Numb. 11 17, it may be that List I is based upon a recension of the text which did not read אָמַק here. The other four Lists, however, state in the heading that there are four and duly record four. It is remarkable that List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric, heads it אָמַק ר' כִּסְעָן, whilst List IV heads it אָמַק ר' כִּסְעָן.

¹ Comp. אָמַק Numb. 18 19; אָמַק 16 10 and אָמַק 18 1, 1, 2, 2.

הַתְּחַרְמִי = § 1449.

אָמַק with thee, occurs sixteen times in the Pentateuch. This accusative with the suffix second person singular masculine occurs altogether thirty-three times in the Pentateuch. In seventeen instances it is pointed אָמַק which is due to its pausal accent and in sixteen אָמַק. Hence the Massorah records the minority. The safeguarding of these instances was deemed all the more necessary since the text of other recensions read אָמַק in two of the sixteen instances, viz. Exod. 12 48; Levit. 29 33, as will be seen in the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 18b, on Gen. 26 24, which I have printed: (II) the same MS., fol. 219a, on Numb. 18 7; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Numb. 11 17; (IV) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 10 margin and (V) the printed Massorah on Levit. 10 15. It will be seen that though the List which I have printed states in the heading that there are sixteen instances, it enumerates fifteen only and omits Numb. 11 17. It is remarkable that List IV, which states in the heading that there are fourteen such instances and records fourteen, also omits this passage as well as Levit. 10 15, whilst in the printed Massorah on Numb. 18 19, where this Rubric is mentioned and where Jacob b. Chayim refers for the List to Levit. 10 15, the heading is אשר טעו בחיבור...

תתרי"ג = § 1450.

אתך with thee, occurs five times in the Scriptures. That is, this feminine form is in five instances masculine with the accents Pashta (אָתְּךָ Gen. 24 40), Revia אָתְּךָ (Levit. 10 9; Judg. 7 4) and Tipcha אָתְּךָ 1 Kings 13 6).

And wherever it is the feminine or has the accents Athnach and Soph-Pasuk it is likewise so pointed. As feminine this accusative with the suffix second person singular occurs seven times only (Gen. 20 16; Josh. 2 19; 2 Sam. 14 19; Isa. 54 15, 17; Ezek. 16 62; Ruth 1 10) and is always so pointed irrespective of the accents. As masculine, however, it has these points in thirty-seven out of the forty-one instances in which it occurs because of the four pausal or distinctive accents, viz. Soph-Pasuk, Athnach, Segoltha and Zakeph-Kat.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 229a, on 1 Kings 13 16. As the Rubric now stands it is incorrect, since מחיי can only refer to the parallel passage in Gen. 24 7 where, however, אתך does not occur, but לְאִתְּךָ. The only other instance where it is אתך with Pashta is Josh. 2 19, but as it is here feminine it is precluded by the scope of this Rubric. It is, therefore, most probable that a later Nakdan who simply thought of the two parallel passages (Gen. 24 40 and verse 7 of the same chapter) added the expression מחיי and then altered the ד = 4 in the heading into ה = 5 to agree with the contents of the Rubric, an expedient which as we have seen, has often been resorted to by later Nakdanim.

Thus in (1) thirteen instances it is with Soph-Pasuk אָתְּךָ Gen. 6 18b; 8 16; Exod. 18 22; Numb. 18 19; 1 Sam. 21 2; 2 Sam. 16 21; Ezek. 36 6; Prov. 2 1; 3 28; 29; 5 17; 7 1; 23 11; (2) in sixteen instances it is with Athnach אָתְּךָ Gen. 6 18a, 19; 8 17; 17 4; 28 4; Levit. 10 14; Numb. 16 10; Judg. 9 32; 1 Sam. 29 10; 1 Kings 13 16b; 2 Kings 19 9; Isa. 37 9; Jerem. 12 3; Ezek. 38 15; 39 4; Job 14 5; (3) in one instance, it is with Segoltha אָתְּךָ Jerem. 38 26 and (4) in seven instances it is with Zakeph-Katon Numb. 18 1, 2, 2; Judg. 7 2, 4b; 1 Kings 6 12.

תתרי"א = § 1451.

אתך is three times with Dagesh in this Section. That is, of the sixteen instances in which this normally feminine form is masculine because of the pausal accent Athnach, three occur in the Section recording the denunciation of Gog. (Ezek. 38—39), vide supra, § 1450, note. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ezek. 39 4.

תתרי"ב = § 1452.

מאתך from thee, occurs five times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 217b, on 1 Kings 2 16 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 239a, on 2 Kings 2 10; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 257a, on Prov. 30 7; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 77b, on 1 Kings 2 16; (V) the same MS., fol. 348a, on Prov. 30 7; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Kings 2 16 and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The Massorah, as usual, has regard simply to the identity of the vowel-points and hence makes no distinction between the three instances in which it is masculine (1 Kings 18 12; 2 Kings 2 10; Prov. 30 7) and the two in which it is feminine (1 Kings 2 16, 20).

תתרי"ג = § 1453.

אתכם and with you, occurs three times. This accusative with the suffix second person plural masculine, which occurs altogether fifty-one times, is in forty-eight instances without the prefix Vav and with it in these three instances only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 33a, on Numb. 1 4 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 245b, on 2 Kings 10 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 105a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 206a, also on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 184a, on Numb. 1 4; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Kings 10 2 and (VII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 1 4.

תתרי"ד = § 1454.

מאתכם from you, occurs three times. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 870.

תתרי"ה = § 1455.

אתם with them, occurs thirty-seven times. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the various readings which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors in Gen. 11 31 and 42 7, as will be seen in the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter א, § 868. Though the heading states that there are thirty-seven such instances, the Rubric records thirty-six only, Levit. 26 39 is omitted, which is manifestly due to a clerical error.

תתרי"ו = § 1456.

יאתה he shall come, occurs twice. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Job 37 22.

תתרי"ז = § 1457.

התיי bring ye, occurs three times, it is twice defective and once plene. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the Eastern reading in Isa. 21 14 which is התיי plene. It is remarkable that the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, which is described as exhibiting the Eastern recension, has here the Western orthography, viz. התיי defective.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 278b, on Dan. 3 13, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 127a, on Isa. 21 14; (III) the same MS., fol. 155a, on Jerem. 12 9; (IV) the same MS., fol. 366a, on Dan. 3 13; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 223a, on Isa. 21 14; (VI) the same MS., fol. 410a, on Dan. 3 13; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 349b, on Isa. 21 14 and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Dan. 3 13. Lists VI and VIII add at the end כתי the last (i. e. Dan. 3 13) is plene.

תתרי"ח = § 1458.

אתה he came, occurs three times, twice it is written with He and once with Aleph. As this Peal preterite third person singular masculine, which occurs three times, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards the variation in the orthography. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 370a, on Dan. 7 22, which I have printed and (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 282b, on the same passage. List II has at the end כתי כתי which fixes the spelling with Aleph to Ezra 5 16. Hence the diversity in the orthography occurs within the same chapter.

תתרי"ט = § 1459.

את בש. For this alphabetical permutation called Athbash, see letter א, § 25.

תתרי"י = § 1460.

אתי come ye, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 127a, on Isa. 21 12, which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 853. For the second part of this Rubric see above, letter א, § 1457.

תתרי"יא = § 1461.

אתה. In five instances this pronoun second person singular masculine without and with the prefix Vav is in the text written אתה for which the marginal or official reading is אתה. On referring to the notes on Ps. 6 4; Job 1 10; Neh. 9 6 it will be seen that the alternative marginal reading is the substantive textual reading in many MSS. and early editions.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 247b, on Pa. 6 4, which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah on Eccl. 7 22. These five instances form part of the List recording twenty-nine words which are without He at the end of the word in the text, but for which the official reading substitutes the He.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter ה, § 38, Vol. I, fol. 269.

תתרתים = § 1462.

אתה thou, occurs fourteen times at the beginning of a verse in the Law and in the prophets, four of which are in the Law. This pronoun second person singular masculine begins a verse twenty-one times. In seventeen instances it is with the prefix Vav (וְ) and in four instances only, is it without this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions.

Of this separate Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174, on Gen. 41 40, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 36a, on Exod. 7 2 and (III) the printed Massorah on Deut. 2 18.

¹ Comp. וְאָתָּה Gen. 6 21; 15 15; 32 13; 45 19; Exod. 9 30; 14 16; 18 21; 27 20; 28 1, 3; 30 23; 31 13; Numb. 1 50; 18 7; Deut. 5 28; 21 9; 30 8.

תתרתים = § 1463.

אתה occurs seven times at the beginning of a verse in the Prophets. In the Prophets, where it begins a verse sixty-five times and where it is with the prefix Vav fifty-eight times¹ and without it seven times only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional instances. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the various readings of the less dominant School of textual redactors which obtained with regard to 1 Kings 1 20; 8 43; Jerem. 18 23; 46 28 and Ezek. 43 10, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 79b, on 1 Kings 5 17, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 156b, on Jerem. 15 15; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 231a, on Jerem. 8 43; (IV) the printed Massorah, on Jerem. 15 15 and (V) the same on Ezek. 43 10.

¹ Comp. וְאָתָּה Josh. 3 8; 1 Sam. 24 18; 1 Kings 1 20; 8 32, 34, 36, 39; 9 4; 20 26; Isa. 14 13, 19; 41 8; Jerem. 1 17; 7 16; 11 14; 12 3; 18 23; 20 6; 25 30; 30 10; 32 26; 34 3; 45 5; 46 27; Ezek. 2 6, 8; 3 19, 21, 25; 4 1, 3, 4; 5 1, 7, 2; 12 3; 13 17; 19 11; 21 11, 19, 24, 30, 33; 22 2; 24 25; 27 2; 32 28; 33 7, 9, 10, 12, 30; 36 1; 37 16; 39 1, 17; Hos. 12 7; Micah 4 8; 5 1.

תתרתים = § 1464.

אתה begins a verse sixteen times in the Psalms. In the Psalter, where it begins a verse thirty-one times, it is in fifteen instances with the prefix Vav¹ and in sixteen without it. Contrary to its usual method, the Massorah here records the majority. This is due to the fact that the design of the Massorah is to catalogue all the passages in which it begins the verse without the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 300b, on Ps. 69 20, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 314a, on Ps. 119 4; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 366a, on Ps. 102 14 and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

¹ Comp. וְאָתָּה Ps. 3 4; 22 4, 20; 41 11; 50 17; 55 14, 24; 59 6, 9; 86 15; 89 39; 92 9; 102 13, 28; 109 21.

תתרתים = § 1465.

אתה begins a verse eleven times in the Law and the Prophets. This Rubric groups together the contents of the two separate Rubrics marked §§ 1462, 1463. Of it I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 112a, on Deut. 2 18, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 97a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 257a, also on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 297b, on 1 Kings 8 34; (V) Halle Oehlrah Ve-Oehlrah II, § 156, margin and (VI) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 5 17.

It is remarkable that not only does the heading in Rubric 1462 state that there are twelve instances where אתה begins a verse in the Law and Prophets, but that four of the Lists of the Rubric before as (Lists II, III, IV, V) state the same, though they all enumerate the same eleven instances only. As these MSS. belong to countries far apart and to different Massoretic Schools, it is more than probable that the headings originally corresponded with the contents and that later Nakdanim omitted the twelfth instance to harmonise this Rubric with the dominant text. The heading of List V which is simply אתה ייבא without כוונתו is misleading, since this pronoun second person singular masculine occurs many more times. (Vide supra, § 1464.)

תתרתים = § 1466a-d.

אתה has in fourteen instances the accent. That is, has the accent on the Aleph, as the heading of § 1466b states or is Milel, as the heading in §§ 1466 c and d give it.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 76b, on 1 Kings 1 42, which I have printed, marked § 1466a; (II) the same MS., fol. 138a, on Isa. 44 21 marked § 1466b; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 60a, on Gen. 49 3 marked § 1466c; (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 840 marked here § 1466d, and (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 302b, on Ps. 76 8.

The bare statement in the headings of all the four Lists which I have printed, that this pronoun occurs fourteen times with the accent on the penultima is misleading. אתה occurs altogether about five hundred and thirty-two times. In forty-eight instances it is with Kametz under the Aleph (אָתָּה) because it is either with Athnach or Soph-Pasuk and these accents are invariably on the penultima.¹ The import of this Massorah, therefore, is that with its normal vowel-point Pathach under the Aleph (אֵתָּה), the accent which is on the ultima in upwards of four hundred and fifty instances, is in these comparatively few passages on the penultima.

It will be seen that though all the four Lists emphatically state that there are fourteen such instances only, Lists I and III enumerate sixteen, List II records thirteen whilst List IV gives twenty. This discrepancy is due to the fact that none of them is complete. There are twenty-seven instances in which אתה with Pathach under the Aleph, has the accent on the penultima, viz. Gen. 3 19; 22 12; 29 15; 32 18; 49 3; Exod. 33 8; Judg. 12 5; 1 Sam. 17 33; 20 8; 30 13; 2 Sam. 15 2, 19; 1 Kings 1 42; Isa. 41 9; 44 21b; Jerem. 2 27; 17 17; Hos. 2 25; Ps. 2 7; 25 7; 40 18; 70 6; 76 8; Eccl. 7 22; Ezra 9 15; 1 Chron. 28 3; 2 Chron. 14 10. These twenty-seven instances of אתה have respectively the following five different accents: four have Athnach (Ps. 2 7; 25 7; 40 18; 70 6); fifteen have Zakeph (Gen. 3 19; 22 12; 29 15; 49 3; Exod. 33 3; 1 Sam. 17 33; 20 8; 30 13; 2 Sam. 15 2, 19; Isa. 41 9; 44 21; Hos. 2 25; Ezra 9 15; 2 Chron. 14 10); five have Tipcha (Judg. 12 5; 1 Kings 1 42; Jerem. 17 17; Eccl. 7 22; 1 Chron. 28 3); two Revia (Jerem. 2 27; Ps. 76 8) and one has Pashtha (Gen. 32 18). It is, therefore, evident that later Nakdanim affixed this heading, because in the respective fragmentary Lists which they found there were only fourteen instances recorded and that still later Nakdanim added a few more which they happened to find. This is fully confirmed by the heading of List V which emphatically states that there are twenty-six such instances (אתה יבא) though the List itself catalogues fourteen only. In Lists I and II ויבא, after which I have put a query, are manifestly a clerical error for ובי = Isa. 44 21. In Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah (List IV) there are the following mistakes (1) אתה יבא = Jonah. 1 8 it is אתה with Kametz under the Aleph and hence does not belong to this category and (2) אתה יבא = Neh. 9 15. The reference Gen. 32 18 to No. 5 should be 1 Sam. 30 13 and 2 Sam. 14 32 should be 1 Sam. 20 8 and אתה יבא should be without the prefix Vav. These references are of course my mistakes.

¹ Comp. וְאָתָּה Gen. 3 11; 4 11; 27 32; 29 14; Numb. 27 13; 1 Sam. 15 17b; 30 13; 2 Sam. 1, 8, 13; 19 14; 1 Kings 2 9, 26; 17 24; Isa. 44 21; 48 4; 49 3; 64 7; Ps. 5 5; 16 2; 31 4; 89 18, 27; 119 114; 139 8; 140 7; Job 17 14; Dan. 9 23.

אָתָּה Deut. 9 6; Judg. 11 2; 1 Sam. 29 6; 2 Sam. 16 8; 1 Kings 20 14; 21 19; Isa. 43 1; 44 17; 51 16; Jerem. 3 4; 17 14; Jonah. 1 8; Ps. 22 11; 31 15; 71 3; 93 2; Prov. 22 19; 23 2; 26 4; Ruth 3 9; Neh. 9 8, 31.

תתרתים = § 1467.

אתה. Eleven words are respectively preceded once only by this pronoun. That is, they are unique in combination with this pronoun without the prefix Vav, whilst in all other passages where this combination occurs the pronoun has the prefix (אֵתָּה). That this is the import of the Massorah is evident from the fact that there are altogether about one hundred and eighty-two words in the Bible which respectively occur only once preceded by אתה and that with the exception of two those only are selected which in all other passages are preceded by וְאָתָּה.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter u, § 841, which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh, § 261, and (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 31a, on Gen. 41 40. It is important to remark that List III, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, is as yet without any heading or catchwords and hence does not fix the number of these unique combinations. It records ten of these instances and omits אָתָּה בְּיָמֶיךָ Ezek. 43 10. The fact, therefore, that six instances are omitted in all the three Lists¹ and that these are in conflict with the number given in the heading of Lists I and II does not militate against List III, where no number is specified. But all the three Lists include two instances which do not occur with אָתָּה and hence are against the import of this Massorah, viz. אָתָּה הוּא and אָתָּה הוּא אֱלֹהִים.

The notes on 1 Kings 1 24; § 43 and Ezek. 43 10 in my edition of the Bible will show that the design of this Massorah in recording these unique combinations, is to exclude the various readings which obtained in the less dominant School of textual redactors with regard to these passages.

¹ Comp. (1) אָתָּה אֱלֹהִים Josh. 5 13 with אָתָּה אֱלֹהִים 1 Kings 9 4; 2 Chron. 7 17; (2) אָתָּה אֱלֹהִים 1 Kings 1 13 with verse 20; (3) אָתָּה יְהוָה 1 Kings 18 9 with אָתָּה יְהוָה Ps. 145 15; (4) אָתָּה יְהוָה Jerem. 22 2 with אָתָּה יְהוָה Exod. 9 30; (5) אָתָּה בְּיָמֶיךָ Ps. 142 6 with אָתָּה בְּיָמֶיךָ Ps. 71 7; and (6) אָתָּה בְּיָמֶיךָ Ezra 9 15 with אָתָּה בְּיָמֶיךָ Ezek. 3 19, 21; 33 9.

הַתְּחִיבָה = § 1468.

אָתָּה אֱלֹהִים thou art God, occurs five times. That is, this pronoun second person masculine without and with the prefix Vav, is in five instances followed by אֱלֹהִים in contradistinction to the thirty-four instances in which אָתָּה and אָתָּה are followed by יְהוָה.¹

Of this Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, I collated two Lists: (I) On Ps. 55 24, which I have printed, and (II) on Ps. 86 10. As four of the instances are אָתָּה אֱלֹהִים without the prefix Vav (1 Kings 18 36; Ps. 60 12; 61 6; 86 10) and one is אָתָּה אֱלֹהִים with the prefix (Ps. 55 24), the headings of both these Lists are inaccurate since the heading of the first List states that אָתָּה אֱלֹהִים occurs five times and the second says that אָתָּה אֱלֹהִים occurs five times. The latter is also repeated on Ps. 61 6 where this Rubric is mentioned and where the instances are not given. The heading ought to be אָתָּה אֱלֹהִים הוּא אֱלֹהִים.

¹ Comp. אָתָּה יְהוָה Numb. 14 14, 14; 2 Sam. 7 27; 1 Kings 18 37; 2 Kings 19 19; Isa. 37 20; Jerem. 3 22; 12 1; 31 18; Jonah 1 14; Ps. 4 9; 12 8; 40 6; 86 17; 91 9; 97 9; 109 27; 119 12, 137, 151; Lament. 5 19; 1 Chron. 17 27; 29 10; אָתָּה יְהוָה 2 Sam. 7 24; Jerem. 12 3; 18 23; Ps. 3 4; 22 20; 41 11; 59 6, 9; 102 13; 109 21; 1 Chron. 17 22.

הַתְּחִיבָה = § 1469.

אָתָּה יְהוָה thou art Jehovah, begins a verse three times. As this pronoun second person singular masculine is followed in twelve instances by the Tetragrammaton at the beginning of a verse, and as it is in nine instances with the prefix *Vav*¹ and in three only without it, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 176b, on Ps. 12 8, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 286b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 293b, on Ps. 40 12; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 375b, on Lament. 5 19; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 354a, on Ps. 40 12 and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 12 8.

¹ Comp. אָתָּה יְהוָה Jerem. 12 3; 18 23; Ps. 3 4; 22 20; 41 11; 59 6, 9; 102 13; 109 21.

הַתְּחִיבָה = § 1470.

אָתָּה עַתָּה thou now, occurs three times. That is, in three instances these two homonyms follow each other without any other expression intervening. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 16b, on Gen. 26 29, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 227b, on 1 Kings 12 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 16a, on 1 Kings 21 7; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 196b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 26a, on Gen. 26 29; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 19a, on the same passage; (VII) the printed Massorah also on the same passage and (VIII) the same on 1 Kings 21 7.

It is remarkable that though one of the instances is with the prefix Vav אָתָּה עַתָּה 1 Kings 12 4 yet not only do none of the headings take notice of this fact, but with the exception of List VII, all the Lists give אָתָּה without the prefix Vav in the catchwords for all the three passages.

הַתְּחִיבָה = § 1471.

אָתָּה הוּא art thou this? occurs four times in the Scriptures thus combined. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 197b, on 2 Sam. 2 20 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 58a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 92b, on 1 Kings 18 7; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 169b, on 2 Sam. 2 20; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 204b, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 20b, on Gen. 27 21; (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage and (VIII) the same on 1 Kings 18 7. Lists II and VII add at the end אָתָּה הוּא = and in one instance it is without the interrogative He (Gen. 27 24).

הַתְּחִיבָה = § 1472.

אָתָּה has in four instances the accent Pazer . . . and in one instance it has this accent without the prefix Vav. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Exod. 28 1. The extraordinary minuteness with which the Massorites analyzed every expression throughout the Bible is attested by this Rubric, wherein they confidently state that this pronoun, which without and with the prefix Vav occurs hundreds of times, has in these five instances only the accent in question. Having collated every passage in which it occurs I can testify to the absolute accuracy of this statement.

הַתְּחִיבָה = 1473.

אָתָּה has in five instances the accent Tevir. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter u, § 845, is corrupt. There are altogether eight instances in which this pronoun is with Tevir, viz. Gen. 15 15; 1 Sam. 24 12; 2 Sam. 5 2; 7 20; 1 Kings 18 37; Jerem. 45 5; 2 Chron. 2 15; 21 15. It will thus be seen that the following four instances are here omitted 2 Sam. 5 2; 7 20; 1 Kings 8 37; 2 Chron. 2 15, whilst 1 Kings 1 18 is included, thus showing that this fragmentary List emanates from the Massoretic School which read it אָתָּה with Aleph, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. The heading as usual has been added by a later Nakdan who mistook the fragment as exhibiting all the instances.

הַתְּחִיבָה = § 1474.

אָתָּה וְעַתָּה and thou, and now, occur eighteen times with the accent Tevir. That is, these two homonyms, the pronoun second person singular masculine and the adverb with the prefix Vav have this accent in eighteen instances.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 222b, on Mal. 1 9, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 299b, on Jerem. 45 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 396a, on Mal. 1 9; (IV) the same MS., fol. 486b, on 2 Chron. 2 15; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 56b, on Gen. 47 4; (VI) the same MS., fol. 205a, on Numb. 11 6 and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

Though all the seven headings agree in the statement that there are eighteen such instances, Lists I and VII alone record this number and coincide in the passages. List III records sixteen and omits Micah 4 11; 2 Chron. 2 15. Lists II and IV give seventeen, both omitting 2 Chron. 2 15. List V enumerates twenty-two instances or rather twenty-one, since it records 2 Sam. 7 20 twice and makes up this number by rightly adding 2 Sam. 5 2; 7 20, as well as giving one of the instances in 1 Sam. 21 4 which is אָתָּה with Revia in the received text. It is remarkable that List VI which records twenty-two instances, not only gives the same two passages (2 Sam. 5 2; 7 20) as well as 1 Sam. 21 4, but adds 1 Sam. 27 1 which is אָתָּה without the prefix Vav in the textus receptus.

That all these Lists are more or less defective and incorrect the following data will disclose: (I) אָתָּה with Tevir occurs eight times (vide supra, letter u, § 1473) and אָתָּה twelve times (Gen. 47 4; Numb. 11 6; 22 34; 2 Sam. 19 10; 1 Kings 1 18; 2 Kings 5 15; Isa. 5 3; Hos. 2 12; Micah 4 11; Mal. 1 9; Ezra 9 10; 10 2). This makes it in all twenty instances and not eighteen. (II) Though Lists V and VI rightly give 2 Sam. 5 2 and 7 20, which are omitted in all the other five Lists, yet they, like the other five Lists, not only omit 1 Kings 18 37, but in common with those Lists give as one of the instances Hos. 5 7 which is אָתָּה without the prefix Vav. These two Lists, moreover, add 1 Sam. 21 4 and 27 1 which are also אָתָּה without the prefix contrary to the scope of this Massorah. That the design of the Massorah is simply to record these two expressions not only with this accent, but with the prefix Vav and to exclude those with this accent, but which are without this prefix, is evident from the fact that וְאָתָּה with Tevir, but without the prefix Vav occurs no less than nineteen times¹ and וְאָתָּה eight times.² Otherwise we should have forty-seven instances if those without the prefix were included.

¹ Comp. וְאָתָּה Gen. 17 9; Exod. 10 25; 18 19; Numb. 22 34; Deut. 28 52; Josh. 5 15; Judg. 7 10; 1 Sam. 28 9; 29 9; 2 Kings 19 10, 19; Isa. 14 10; 37 10; Jerem. 5 17; 10 6; 22 6; Obad. 13; 1 Chron. 11 2; 17 4.

² Comp. וְאָתָּה Numb. 22 33; 1 Sam. 14 30; 27 1; 1 Kings 12 26; 21 7; Ezek. 23 43; Hos. 5 7; Micah 7 10.

תַּתְּרַעִיָּה = § 1475.

וְאָתָּה and thou, occurs three times in the Scriptures, twice it is with Kametz under the Aleph and once with Patach. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 206a, on 2 Kings 9 25 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 49b, on 1 Sam. 20 23; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 162b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 195a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 29a, on Gen. 31 44, and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage. (Vide supra, letter א, § 943.)

תַּתְּרַעֵי = § 1476.

וְאַתָּה and thou, thou. Five [six] verses in which this pronoun second person masculine occurs twice; it is with the prefix Vav in the first instance and without it in the second four [five] of these begins a verse. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 224a, on 1 Kings 8 39, which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 297, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 17 9. Though the heading distinctly states that there are five such instances only, the Rubric itself records six. The heading of the other two Lists correctly states that there are six and the Lists duly enumerate the same passages.

תַּתְּרַעִיָּה = § 1477.

וְאַתָּה and thou. Eight words are respectively preceded once only by this pronoun with the prefix Vav. That is, they are unique in the combination with this pronoun with the prefix Vav, whilst in all the passages where the words in question are combined with the pronoun second person masculine it is without the prefix, i. e. אַתָּה. That this is the meaning of this Massorah is evident from the fact that there are altogether upwards of eighty words which respectively occur only once preceded by וְאַתָּה and that with the exception of two, those only are here selected which occur again and are preceded by וְאַתָּה. This Rubric, therefore, is the contrast to the one in letter א, § 1476.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 842, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 69b, on Exod. 28 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 135b, on Numb. 16 17, and (IV) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 262.

As already stated, the design of this Massorah is not merely to catalogue the words which occur once only preceded by וְאַתָּה, but those words which when they occur again are preceded by וְאַתָּה. Accordingly (1) two instances in this fragmentary List do not belong to it, viz. וְאַתָּה תַּעֲשֶׂה 1 Kings 5 23 and וְאַתָּה לֵךְ Dan. 12 13, since neither of these words is ever preceded by וְאַתָּה and (2) no fewer than eleven which belong to this Rubric are omitted.¹ The omissions, as is often the case, are due to the fact that this List exhibits the first attempt to collect these unique combinations and that the original Massorites left it to their colleagues to complete the catalogue, which as far as it is at present known, was not done. Hence List II, which is the oldest form of this fragment, has not only no heading as yet fixing the number of instances, but contains one combination which is not in the other fragments, viz. וְאַתָּה תִּרְבֵּר (Exod. 28 3, comp. with Exod. 7 2) and omits one which the others have, viz. וְאַתָּה אֲרִי (1 Kings 1 20). List III which records the same eight instances as List I, ends this fragment with וְאָתָּה כָּל הַיּוֹם This simply gives the number contained in the fragment to fill up the lines, and there can hardly be any doubt that later Nakdanim who mistook this fragment for a complete catalogue, made this ending into a heading. List IV is of importance inasmuch as it supplies the clue to the proceedings of the later Nakdanim. Mistaking the import of this Massorah a Nakdam added three more instances which do not belong to this Rubric, viz. וְאַתָּה שָׁלוֹם (1 Sam. 25 6); וְאַתָּה חָסָד (1 Kings 5 23) and וְאַתָּה נִסְיָן (Ezek. 33 9) since they do not occur in combination with וְאַתָּה and he forthwith altered the ט = 8 in the heading into יא = 11.

¹ Viz. (1) וְאַתָּה אֲרִי Pa. 86 15 comp. with וְאַתָּה אֲרִי 2 Sam. 7 29; Ps. 86 5; (2) וְאַתָּה אֲרִי Pa. 55 24 with וְאַתָּה אֲרִי 1 Kings 18 36; Ps. 60 12 &c.; (3) וְאַתָּה דָּבַר Exod. 31 13 with וְאַתָּה דָּבַר 2 Sam. 17 6; (4) וְאַתָּה יִצְחָק Exod. 9 30 with וְאַתָּה יִצְחָק Jerem. 22 2; (5) וְאַתָּה יִשְׂרָאֵל Isa. 41 8 with וְאַתָּה יִשְׂרָאֵל Isa. 44 21; Hos. 4 15; (6) וְאַתָּה מִסֵּי Pa. 71 7 with וְאַתָּה מִסֵּי Pa. 142 6; (7) וְאַתָּה נָתַתְּ 1 Kings 12 4 with וְאַתָּה נָתַתְּ Gen. 26 20; 1 Kings 21 7; (8) וְאַתָּה תִּמְצֵל 2 Sam. 9 7 with וְאַתָּה תִּמְצֵל Micah 6 14; (9) וְאַתָּה תִּבְרַח Gen. 15 16 with וְאַתָּה תִּבְרַח Deut. 31 7; (10) וְאַתָּה תִּבְרַח Pa. 109 28 with וְאַתָּה תִּבְרַח Pa. 5 13; (11) וְאַתָּה תִּשְׁבֵּן Deut. 30 8 with וְאַתָּה תִּשְׁבֵּן Pa. 85 7.

תַּתְּרַעִיָּה = § 1478.

וְאַתָּה בְּרֵאשִׁית and thou, son of man, occurs twenty-four times in this book. That is, in Ezekiel to distinguish it from the numerous instances in which בְּרֵאשִׁית occurs in this book without being preceded by וְאַתָּה. As this phrase does not occur outside Ezekiel the heading ought more properly to be בְּרֵאשִׁית. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 109b, on Ezek. 33 10. Though the heading states that there are twenty-four such instances the Rubric itself records twenty-two only. Ezek. 37 16 and 39 1 are omitted which is manifestly due to a clerical error. In the received text there are twenty-three instances, but this Rubric is based upon a recension which read וְאַתָּה בְּרֵאשִׁית in Ezek. 43 10, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

תַּתְּרַעִיָּה = § 1479.

וְאַתָּה וּבָנֶיךָ and thou and thy sons, occurs three times. וְאַתָּה is eleven times preceded by this pronoun second person singular masculine. In eight instances it is וְאַתָּה without the prefix Vav (Gen. 6 18; 45 10; Levit. 10 9, 14; Numb. 18 1; Deut. 30 2; 1 Sam. 28 19; 2 Sam. 9 10) and in three only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Numb. 18 1, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תַּתְּרַעִיָּה = § 1480.

וְאַתָּה הוּא and thou art he, occurs twice. וְאַתָּה is eleven times preceded by the pronoun second person singular masculine. In nine instances it is וְאַתָּה without the prefix Vav (2 Sam. 7 28; 2 Kings 19 15; Isa. 37 16; Jerem. 14 22; Ps. 44 5; Neh. 9 6, 7; 1 Chron. 17 26; 2 Chron. 20 6) and in two instances only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 309b, on Ps. 102 28. In the first catchwords is manifestly a clerical error and is due to the fact that this divine name follows וְאַתָּה in five out of the nine instances in which this phrase occurs. This made it familiar to the Nakdan and hence he substituted it for the less familiar phrase וְאַתָּה הוּא.

תַּתְּרַעִיָּה = § 1481.

וְאַתָּה תִּצְוֶה and thou shalt command, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Josh. 3 8, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 110a, on Exod. 27 20; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (IV) the same on Josh. 3 8. As this combination, which occurs twice altogether, begins a verse in both instances one Massoretic School emphasise the fact that its begins the verse and hence Lists I and IV head this Rubric בְּיַד רַא פְּסִי; whilst another Massoretic List which had regard to the combination, irrespective of the position it occupies in the verse, headed Lists II and IV בְּיַד רַא פְּסִי. Only the heading in Lists I and IV ought more properly to be בְּיַד רַא פְּסִי.

תַּתְּרַעִיָּה = § 1482.

וְאַתָּה and thou, is in three instances used for the masculine. That is, this pronoun second person which was originally epene, but which according to later orthography is normally feminine, has in these three instances retained its primitive spelling for the second person masculine.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 115b, on Deut. 5 24, which I have printed; (II) the same MSS., Vol. II, fol. 88a, on Ezek. 28 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 185a; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 285a; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 282a, all on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 99a, on Numb. 11 15; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 205b; (VIII) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage; (IX) the printed Massorah on Deut. 5 24, and (X) the same on Ezek. 28 14.

הַתְּחִיבִי = § 1483.

הַתְּחִיבִי is the textual reading in five instances as the feminine form of the pronoun second person singular, for which the official reading or the Keri substitutes תְּחִיבִי and one instance it is with the prefix Vav (וַתְּחִיבִי) in the Kethiv for which the Keri is תְּחִיבִי. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only on 2 Kings 4 16. The addition at the end, which states that there is one instance only where this spelling occurs with the prefix Vav, is incorrect since there are three such instances, viz. Judges 17 2; 2 Kings 4 7, and Jerem. 4 30. The passage in 2 Kings 4 7 is in the Model Codex Orient. 2626—28.

הַתְּחִיבִי = § 1484.

הַתְּחִיבִי ye, occurs four times at the beginning of a verse. This pronoun second person plural masculine, which begins a verse thirty-one times, is in twenty-seven instances with the prefix Vav¹ and in four only is it without the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11; Vol. I, fol. 37b, on Exod. 5 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 30b, on Isa. 43 10; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 112b, on Deut. 29 9; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 60a, on Exod. 5 11; (V) Orient. 1474, fol. 190a, on Isa. 53 10; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 160, margin and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 5 11. The mnemonic sign is given in List V alone.

¹ Gen. 9 7; 50 20; Exod. 19 6; Numb. 31 19; Deut. 1 40; 4 4; Josh. 8 7; 10 19; 18 6; 22 18; 23 3; Judg. 2 2; 9 18; 10 13; 1 Sam. 10 19; Isa. 57 3; 61 6; 65 11; Jerem. 16 12; 27 9; 29 20; Ezek. 20 39; 36 8; Mal. 1 12; 2 8; Esther 8 8; 2 Chron. 15 7.

הַתְּחִיבִי = § 1485.

הַתְּחִיבִי and ye, occurs four times with the accent at the beginning of the verse in the Scriptures. That is, with Gershayim. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 25a, on Judg. 9 18, which I have printed, except the heading with the mnemonic sign which is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 93a, on Ezek. 36 8; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 189b, on Ezek. 36 8; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 137b, on Judg. 9 18; (IV) the same MS., fol. 289b, on Ezek. 36 8; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 286b, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 169b, on Judg. 9 18, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Josh. 18 6. The mnemonic sign without the record of the passages is also given in Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 93a; the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 301, on Neh. 13 18, and in the printed Massorah on Ezek. 36 8.

It is remarkable that both the Model Codex Harley 5710—11 and the printed Massorah on Ezek. 36 8 most emphatically state that these four instances respectively begin a verse, whereas Neh. 13 8 does not begin the verse in the received text. It is possible that in the Codices from which this recension was made this passage was divided into two verses?

הַתְּחִיבִי = § 1486.

וַתְּחִיבִי and ye, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, this pronoun second person plural feminine without and with the prefix Vav. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the reading וַתְּחִיבִי in Ezek. 13 11 which obtained in the earliest Codices, as is attested by the Septuagint and Vulgate, which will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists, thirteen in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 21a, on Gen. 31 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 92a, on Ezek. 34 17; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 13 11; (IV) the same Codex on Ezek. 34 17; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 189a, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 20b, on Gen. 31 6; (VII) the same MS., fol. 288b, on Ezek. 34 17; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 273b, on Ezek. 13 11; (IX) the same MS., fol. 285, on Ezek. 34 17; (X) Add. 15,451, fol. 328b, on the same passage; (XI) Add. 21,160, fol. 27a, on Gen. 31 6; (XII) Orient. 1474, fol. 82b, on Ezek. 13 11; (XIII) the same MS., fol. 111b, on Ezek. 34 17; (XIV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 31 6, and (XV) the same on Ezek. 13 11. List XII alone has the mnemonic sign. As this pronoun is in three instances with the prefix Vav and once without the prefix, it forms part of the List of words which respectively occur four times, three times with and once without the prefix Vav.¹

¹ Comp. The Massorah, letter¹, § 74, Vol. I, fol. 407.

הַתְּחִיבִי = § 1487.

הַתְּחִיבִי yesterday, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the eight instances where this adverb is תְּחִיבִי without the prosthetic Aleph (Exod. 5 8, 14; 1 Sam. 20 27; 2 Sam. 3 17; 15 20; Job 8 9; Ruth 2 11; 1 Chron. 11 2). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 147b, on 1 Sam. 4 7, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 182a, and (III) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage.

הַתְּחִיבִי = § 1488.

כַּתְּחִיבִי as yesterday, occurs twice. This adverb with the prefix Caph precedes תְּחִיבִי nine times. In seven instances it is without the prosthetic Aleph, viz. תְּחִיבִי (Gen. 31 2, 5; Exod. 5 7, 14; Josh. 4 18; 1 Sam. 21 6; 2 Kings 13 5) and with it in these two instances only, viz. תְּחִיבִי. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards this exceptional phrase. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 43a, on 1 Sam. 14 21.

הַתְּחִיבִי = § 1489.

אֶתְּחִיבִי hire, without and with prefixes occurs five times with Patach. That is, under the Nun. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 128b, on Deut. 23 19, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176b, on Ezek. 16 34; (III) the same MS., fol. 210a, on Micah 1 7; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 109a, on Deut. 23 19; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 117a, on the same passage; (VI) the same MS., fol. 275a, on Ezek. 16 34; (VII) the printed Massorah on Deut. 23 19 and (VIII) the same on Ezek. 16 34.

Letter Beth.

א = § 1.

The first part of this Rubric, which registers the number of times Beth occurs in the Bible, is taken from the celebrated Poem given above, letter א, § 224. The second part, which records the number of times Beth occurs in the Pentateuch, is from a MS. in my possession. For a description of this remarkable MS. see my Introduction to the Massoretico-critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, Part I, chap. VII, pp. 110, 111.

ב = § 2.

ב. — The instance in which letter Beth has one Tāgin is from Harley 5710—11.

ג = § 3.

ג. — The four instances in which this letter has two Tāgin is from Harley 5710—11 on these passages.

ד = § 4.

ד. — In four instances the Beth has three Tāgin. These four instances are from the Sepher Tāgin in the Vitry Machsor Add. 27,021, Vol. II, fols. 209a—215a, which I have printed in The Massorah, letter ט, § 25, Vol. II, pp. 680—701.

ה = § 5.

ה. — This List of words beginning with Beth, which respectively occur once only, I have compiled myself and arranged alphabetically. The necessity for such a List is described in letter א, § 12. (Vide supra, p. 4.) Without this List, the five fragments marked § 5a—e, which I have printed at the end of it and which are respectively from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Numb. 10 22; Arund. Orient. 16, fols. 153b, 179a, 187b, on Jerem. 10 3; Ezek. 20 18, 32 30, could scarcely be identified; nor could the following Rubrics six and seven be explained.

To Students who understand the labour and the difficulty of collecting and arranging upwards of forty thousand forms which respectively occur only once, the impossibility of being absolutely correct will be apparent. They require no apology for the mistakes which have crept into this first attempt. The following I have detected since this Rubric has been printed:

Omissions:

Jerem. 46 2	בְּקִרְבֵּי חֶסֶד	2 Kings 2 12	בְּבִנְיָו
Gen. 48 3	בְּלֹו	Ps. 79 10	בְּמַיִם כְּחַיִּב
Exra 6 2	בְּסִבְרֵי	Josh. 19 11	בְּדִבְרֵי שָׂמַח
1 Kings 4 15	בְּנִסְתָּלֵי	2 Sam. 8 10	בְּהַדְרֵי עֵינָיו
1 Sam. 18 7	בְּרִבְבוֹתָיו	1 Chron. 18 10	בְּהַדְרֵי עֵינָיו
Exod. 40 18	בְּרִחְתּוֹ	2 Sam. 18 18	בְּחַיִּי כְּחַיִּב
1 Kings 18 42	בְּרִדּוֹ כְּחַיִּב	Deut. 2 28	בְּחַצְרוֹתָם
2 Sam. 23 8	בְּשִׁבְתָּ מִבֵּית	Ezek. 21 29	בְּפִי מִתָּה
Prov. 26 24	בְּשִׁלְטוֹ כְּחַיִּב	2 Chron. 35 20	בְּרִקְבֵי שָׂמַח

The following words occur more than once:

בְּרָה	בְּפִקְעוֹתָם	בְּחֹרֵי	בְּגִבּוֹר	בְּאֵו
בְּרָד	בְּפִנָּה	בְּחֹרֵי	בְּגֹוֹשׁ	בְּמַרְבּוֹת
בְּשִׁתּוֹ	בְּעִבְרוֹתָם	בְּלֵצֵי	בְּזוֹ	בְּבִיתֵי
בְּחֹקְכֶם	בְּעַל	בְּלוֹ	בְּחִיל	בְּבִקְעָת
	בְּקִרְשׁ	בְּפִקְעוֹ	בְּחֻכְתָּהּ	בְּבִבְיָהּ

בְּקִשׁ with Dagesh in the Coph Zeph. 1 6 which is a mistake for בְּקִשׁ also occurs several times.

ו = § 6.

ו. — An alphabetical List of unique words which respectively begin with Beth. This List is so arranged that the second letter of each word exhibits the alphabetical order.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 19b, on Gen. 30 13, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 32b, on Gen. 42 21; (III) the same MS., fol. 53b, on Exod. 12 27; (IV) the same MS., fol. 90a, on Levit. 7 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 97a, on Levit. 13 41; (VI) the same MS., fol. 158b, on Numb. 27 damaged; (VII) Orient. 2349, fol. 44b, on Gen. 30 13; (VIII) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh I, § 37; (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 6, and (X) Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh, § 36.

With the exception of Lists I, II, VII and X, the others are hardly alike. They manifestly exhibit different recensions proceeding from different Massoretic Schools. When it is borne in mind that there are about 2277 words beginning with Beth which occur only once and that innumerable alphabets might, therefore, be compiled by taking different combinations, it is difficult to divine why the Massorites selected exactly this limited number of words for the alphabets in question. It may be that the words thus distinguished were either the subject of different readings or of some Hagadic traditions preserved in the several Massoretic Schools. From the fact that בְּזִמְרָה (Hos. 7 4) is given to represent letter Vav, it is evident that the Massorites who compiled this Rubric worked upon a recension in which this Kal participle singular feminine was written plene though this is against the present textus receptus.

ז = § 7.

ז. — An alphabetical List of unique words which exhibit the alphabet at the end thereof. That is, the words beginning with letter Beth are so arranged that each expression ends with a letter in alphabetical sequence. The design of the Massorites in selecting these twenty-one expressions from the 2277 which begin with Beth is as inscrutable as is the cause of the selection for the alphabet of § 6.

This List, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Nah. 2 11. It will be seen that letter ט, is not represented in this alphabet. This may be due to a scribal error, for though expressions beginning with Beth and ending with Teth are of rare occurrence, still there are about twelve in the 2277 forms.

ח = § 8.

ח. — Twenty-nine words are read with Beth and they are unique. That is, with the prefix Beth they have no parallel, in all other instances where these expressions occur again they are with the prefix Caph.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh, § 215, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 1. Though both Lists state in the respective headings that there are twenty-nine such instances and both duly record this number, List I has two instances which are not in List II, viz. בְּרִמּוֹתָי Gen. 5 1 and בְּמַעְיָרֵיהֶם 2 Chron. 31 17, whilst List II has two instances which are not in List I, viz. בְּפִקְעוֹתָם 2 Chron. 20 29 and בְּחֻלְקֵיהֶם 2 Chron. 31 17. In List I, moreover, there are the following corruptions in the catchwords: (1) for בְּפִקְעוֹתָם 2 Chron. 20 29 the catchwords should be בְּרִדּוֹ מִבֵּית אֱלֹהִים and not שְׂכֵמֶת יָמִים; (2) for בְּקִשׁ Zech. 10 5 כֹּחֶם and not בְּרִשָׁם, and (3) for בְּקִשְׁלֶם Job 24 5 בְּרִשָׁם should be בְּרִשָׁם.

ט = § 9.

ב. — Twenty-nine words which begin with Beth have the accent Pazer. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ב, § 4. It will be seen that though the heading states that there are twenty-nine such instances the Rubric itself records thirty-one. Amongst these is one instance with Pazer-Gadol, commonly called Karne-Pava, viz. קאָרנע (Numb. 35 5). The catchword for קאָרנע, viz. דגה במחתי לך = 2 Kings 18 21 is a clerical error for דגה במחתי על משענת = Isa. 36 6. I have given the right reference though leaving Jacob b. Chayim's words.

י = § 10.

ב. — An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once with Beth at the beginning and once without it.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 128b-129a, on Deut. 28 4, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 104a, on Levit. 18 18; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 330b, on Ezek. 36 38; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 6; (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 6, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 11.

List II, which is from the oldest undated Codex extant, gives twenty-six pairs only. It omits the following eighteen pairs: Nos. 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, 11, 13, 14, 15, 16, 18, 22, 24, 27, 30, 31, 34, 37 and yet it represents every letter in the alphabet in so far as the alphabet is represented in the other five Lists. This shows conclusively that the original design of the earlier Massorites was simply to compile a limited alphabet of single pairs in so far as they were able to find them, in order to illustrate each expression which occurs twice, once with and once without the prefix, and that later Massorites aimed at multiplying these pairs for each letter. And yet though all the other five lengthier Lists are almost identical, letters ד, ב, ל and פ are not at all represented. The heading ought, therefore, more properly to be י וְיָ וְיָ אֲלֻפֵּיחַ דְּלוֹת וְיָ an imperfect alphabet &c. The only difference in the five later Lists consists in List V having as No. 3 the pair אָקֶלֶם Gen. 3 5 and אָקֶלֶם Numb. 15 19 which none of the others have, and in List VI having as No. 38 the pair אָקֶלֶם Numb. 35 22 and אָקֶלֶם Numb. 35 20 which also none of the others have, whilst it omits the pair (No. 27) אָקֶלֶם Levit. 13 49 and אָקֶלֶם Ps. 68 14 which the four lengthy Lists give. It is to be remarked that in some Massoretic Schools the words beginning with the same letter of the alphabet which occur twice, once without and once with the prefix Beth, were collected and treated in separate Rubrics with separate headings. Hence the pairs which exhibit letter נ are given in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 1, under the heading נ וְנָנִי מִדִּירָה נ וְנָנִי בֵּן. Here, however, three pairs only are given, and the pair (No. 6) אָקֶלֶם Isa. 3 16, אָקֶלֶם Isa. 58 1, which are given in all the long Lists, are omitted. The pairs which exhibit letter ס are given in the printed Massorah Finalis, under letter ב, § 4, with the heading ס וְסָס מִדִּירָה ס וְסָס בֵּן, whilst those beginning with פ are given in the printed Massorah Finalis under letter ב, § 2, with the heading פ וְפָפִי מִדִּירָה פ וְפָפִי בֵּן.

יא = § 11a-c.

ב. — Words beginning with Beth which respectively occur twice, once with Sheva or Chirek under the Beth and once with Pathach.

It is important to notice that § 11a and b which are from the same MS., viz. Orient. 2849, fol. 39b, on Gen. 22 13 and fol. 98a, on Levit. 26 26, the one recording three pairs only and the other five, exhibit the first attempts to collect these instances. Since the publication of this Rubric I have found two more incipient Lists in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, one on Exod. 27 7, fol. 69a, and one Exod. 32 4, fol. 74b. The first records ten pairs and omits אָקֶלֶם Isa. 19 2 and אָקֶלֶם Amos 9 8 which constitute the seventh pair in § 11c. It, moreover, has no companions in אָקֶלֶם No. 6 and אָקֶלֶם No. 8. The second List records eight pairs only. It omits אָקֶלֶם No. 3, אָקֶלֶם No. 9 and אָקֶלֶם No. 11. Neither has a heading or catchwords.

Rubric 11c, which is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 302a, on Ps. 74 5 and which is still without a heading, catalogues eleven such pairs. It is probably due to this recension that the later editors of the other Lists have added the heading fixing the number of the pairs at eleven. Of its form with the heading, I have collated five Lists, two in MSS. and three printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 507b, on 2 Chron. 35 13 which heads it אָקֶלֶם; (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I,

§ 50; (III) the printed Massorah on Isa. 8 1; (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 2, and (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 49. All the five Lists with the headings call the first of the pair which has Sheva or Chirek under the Beth מִלְּפָנֶיךָ below and the second member which has Pathach מִלְּפָנֶיךָ above.

List I of the five Lists with heading, omits the first pair אָקֶלֶם and אָקֶלֶם and gives in its place אָקֶלֶם and אָקֶלֶם (Gen. 41 53; 43 1). But as אָקֶלֶם and אָקֶלֶם are of frequent occurrence, this pair is contrary to the scope of the Massorah which is to record unique pairs. It is manifestly the addition of a later Nakdan who mistook the import of the Rubric and is rightly absent in all the other Lists. List V, which gives the same eleven pairs recorded in Lists II, III and IV, has at the end under the heading אָקֶלֶם and אָקֶלֶם apart from the Massorah the following additional pair אָקֶלֶם and אָקֶלֶם (Levit. 13 48; Eccl. 10 17). This is not only in conflict with the number given in the heading, but shows that the List is not final and that the heading is a later addition.

It will be seen that the expressions Milva and Milel, which in their more restricted sense describe the position of the accent when it is on the ultima or penultima, are here used to indicate the quantity of the vowel-sign. This is the case with all the four prefixes בּוּבֵל with words which respectively occur twice only, once with one kind of vowel and once with another. The Massorah classifies the words with the several prefixes, mostly according to the letters of the alphabet by which they are followed. Thus in connection with the prefix Vav there are four separate Lists headed as מִלְּפָנֶיךָ and מִלְּפָנֶיךָ, viz. (1) pairs beginning with א; vide letter א, § 11d; (2) pairs beginning with י and ending with י; vide letter י, § 15h-a; (3) pairs mostly beginning with ו; see letter ו, § 10, and (4) pairs beginning with מ; see letter מ, § 24. In connection with the prefix Caph there is one List of pairs thus described; see letter ב, § 18; whilst with the prefix Lamed there are no fewer than five Lists of such pairs; see letter ל, §§ 11, 12, 17, 18, 19a-e.

Graetz has shown, and I believe conclusively, that prior to the introduction of the present system of vowel-signs the different value and pronunciation of the prefixes בּוּבֵל in the pairs of homonyms were indicated by a single point placed either above or below the prefix. Thus בּוּבֵל indicated the present pointing אָקֶלֶם and hence was called מִלְּפָנֶיךָ above, because the point was above the prefix; whilst בּוּבֵל stood for the present אָקֶלֶם and was called מִלְּפָנֶיךָ below, because the point occupied the position below the prefix. The same was the case with the prefix Vav [אָקֶלֶם] = אָקֶלֶם and אָקֶלֶם [אָקֶלֶם] = אָקֶלֶם so also אָקֶלֶם [אָקֶלֶם] = אָקֶלֶם and אָקֶלֶם [אָקֶלֶם] = אָקֶלֶם so also אָקֶלֶם [אָקֶלֶם] = אָקֶלֶם and אָקֶלֶם [אָקֶלֶם] = אָקֶלֶם.

Comp. Monatschrift für Geschichte und Wissenschaft des Judenthums, Vol. XXX, pp. 348-367, 395-406. Krotoebin 1891.

יב = § 12.

ב. — In four words the prefix Beth which is written in the text is officially cancelled . . . and in one word the reverse is the case, the prefix is not in the text, but is officially supplied. The design of this Rubric is to harmonise 2 Kings 22 5 and 9. On referring to the notes in my edition of the Bible on the passages which constitute this Rubric it will be seen that both MSS. and editions exhibit in the text the Keri as the substantive reading.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 202b, on 2 Sam. 10 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 69b, on Jerem. 52 11; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 256a, on Prov. 28 8; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 52 11; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 62b, on 2 Sam. 10 9; (VI) the same MS., fol. 115b, on 2 Kings 22 5; (VII) the same MS., fol. 347a, on Prov. 28 8; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 209b, on 2 Sam. 10 9; (IX) the same MS., fol. 305b, on Jerem. 52 11; (X) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 89; (XI) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 107, and (XII) the printed Massorah on Prov. 28 8. It will be seen that List I gives first the four words consecutively which are the subject of this Massorah and afterwards the catchwords also separately, a method which is not unfrequently adopted in the Massorah of this Model Codex.

יג = § 13.

ב. — Eleven words are in the text written with Beth, for which the official reading substitutes Caph . . . in three instances the reverse is the case the textual reading is Caph and the Keri Beth.

On referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that the official Keri is in almost all the instances the substantive textual reading.

Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, seven in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 140a, on Josh. 6 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 170b, on Judg. 19 25; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 240a, on 2 Kings 3 24; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 3b, on Josh. 4 18; (V) the same MS., fol. 359b, on Esther 3 4; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 310a, on the same passage; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 137; (VIII) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 149; (IX) the printed Massorah on Hosen 1 1 in the inner square enclosing the first word; (X) the same on 1 Chron. 1 1 occupying the same position, and (XI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 10. Lists I, VII, IX, X and XI are the only five which give the second part of this Rubric.

According to the Model Codex Harley 5710-11 גקלמא with Beth is also the textual reading in Josh. 6 15 and the Massorah in this important MS. has against it גקלמא קי. The editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah by Jacob ben Chayim, Venice 1524-25, has also גקלמא in the text with the Massorah on it בתי וקרי ב. Hence the Kethiv and Keri in my edition of the Bible.

It is remarkable that in all the three Lists of the printed Massorah the catchwords after ב are either אהריי בתי עתלי (Lists IX, X) or אהריי רחוקי בתי עתלי (List XI). As there is no such passage in the Bible, it is evident that a later Nakdan who supplied the catchwords has here mixed up the two passages in which ב occurs, viz. Ezra. 10 28 and Neh. 3 20. This confusion, however, already occurs in Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal (List VII). In the Rubric which I have printed the reference to גקלמא should be 2 Sam. 5 24 and not 5 22.

ג"י = § 14a-c.

ג"י. An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once with the prefix Beth and once with Caph. The similarity between the ב and כ and indeed their almost identity in many MSS. have been a fruitful source of various readings, as is attested by the preceding Rubric. This caused the Massorites to safeguard especially those expressions which are limited in their occurrence to twice with the two prefixes which though differing in their meaning are yet alike in their appearance. As is often the case with lengthy Lists, we have in the Rubric before us the first attempt of the Massorites which is restricted to sections of the alphabet. Hence the fragment marked here § 14a, which is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 289a, on Ezra 5 1 records five pairs only, exhibiting two letters, viz. ש and ר. The second fragment marked § 14b, which is from the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 192b, on 1 Chron. 4 31 also records five pairs exhibiting the same two letters. Yet it omits one pair in ש, viz. גקמא and גקמא which is in the first fragment and gives a pair in ר, viz. רתקיא and רתקיא which that fragment has not. Since the appearance of the first volume of the Massorah I have found four other fragments in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445: (1) fol. 52a, on Exod. 11 1 which records nine pairs; (2) fol. 58b, on Exod. 16 31 which also catalogues nine pairs; (3) fol. 99b, on Levit. 14 35 which gives eleven pairs, and (4) fol. 120b, on Numb. 4 20 which also gives eleven pairs. From the printed Massorah of Jacob b. Chayim on Ps. 71 9 which gives a fragment of three pairs exhibiting letter ב, and which I have printed in Volume III, p. 3, § 14, it will be seen that these fragments or sections of the alphabet were issued from some Massoretic Schools with separate headings. Thus for instance this fragment is headed בתי רינן דוד כ דוד and at the end of it is added בתי רינן אב דוד כ דוד. The expression רינן דוד, which I have reproduced as it is given in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, is manifestly a mistake for רינן.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 3 3, which I have printed; (II) the same Codex on Isa. 47 3; (III) Add. 16,451, fol. 329b, on Ezek. 36 17; (IV) the same MS., fol. 386b, on Habak. 1 13; (V) the same MS., fol. 405b, on Ps. 35 14; (VI) the same MS., fol. 438b, on Dan. 2 43; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 192a, on Numb. 4 20; (VIII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 4; (IX) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 4, and (X) the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible by Felix Pratensis, Venice 1516-17, Vol. II, at the end. In the printed Massorah by Jacob b. Chayim this Rubric does not occur, though the editor refers for it to the Massorah Finalis, letter ב, in no less than six places (Numb. 4 20; Ps. 71 9; 89 37; Prov. 5 11; Eccl. 7 16; Dan. 4 5), where he states he has given it.

Both the pairs and the number of instances to represent each letter of the alphabet, vary in almost every one of these Lists. In the earlier recensions of the Rubric as a rule there is not only one pair given for each letter, but some of the letters are not represented. Thus List I, which I have printed, gives nineteen pairs only and omits ב כ and ל; whilst List II, which is from the same ancient Codex, gives twenty-one pairs and omits to represent letter ב. It moreover, gives three different pairs for the three letters ג ו ז and ש, viz. (1) גקמא וקמא 2 Kings 17 34; 2 Chron. 31 21 instead of גקמא וקמא Eccl. 11 9; Ezek. 43 3; (2) גקמא וקמא Ps. 7 18; Eccl. 7 15 instead of גקמא וקמא Gen. 1 27; 5 3, and (3) גקמא וקמא Ps. 89 37; Isa. 38 8; instead of גקמא וקמא Ezek. 31 5; Exod. 11 1. It also gives גקמא וקמא Ps. 103 10; Dan. 9 16 instead of the corrupt גקמא וקמא בתי. When it is added that the largest number of pairs in the ancient recension of this Rubric is twenty-one and that in the later recension exhibited in Lists VIII, IX and X there are forty-eight and fifty such pairs, it will be seen that the instances which required safeguarding in the different Massoretic Schools increased in the course of time.

ג"י = § 15.

ג"י. Six words are written in text with Beth for which the official reading substitutes Mem . . . and in one instance the reverse is the case the textual reading is with Mem and the official reading is Beth. The design of this Massorah is not only to exclude the Eastern recension, which follows the textual reading or the Kethiv and which is supported by the ancient Versions, but to militate against other Schools of textual redactors in several of these passages, as will be seen from the notes in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 138b, on Josh. 3 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS. on the same passage; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 247a, on 2 Kings 12 10; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 3a, on Josh. 3 16; (V) the same MS., fol. 17b, on Josh. 24 15; (VI) the same MS., fol. 117a, on 2 Kings 23 33; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 147a, on Josh. 3 16; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 162a, on Josh. 24 15; (IX) the same MS., fol. 255a, on 2 Kings 12 10; (X) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 141; (XI) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 154, and (XII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 11.

ג"י = § 16.

ג"י. Three words respectively occur twice, once beginning with Beth and once with Lamed Beth. For this Rubric see letter ב, § 15, Vol. II, p. 108.

ג"י = § 17.

ג"י. An alphabetical List of words ending with Beth which respectively occur once only. This List I compiled myself and arranged alphabetically in accordance with the last letter but one. The necessity for such a List is described in letter מ, § 12. (Vide supra, p. 4.) The following additional instances I have found since this Rubric has been published.

Omissions:

Gen. 46 13	ריב	1 Chron. 24 13	קלמא
Ezek. 30 5	קב	1 Kings 2 22	קלמא
1 Chron. 4 8	קב	Judg. 7 26	קב
Numb. 26 24	קלמא	Ps. 83 12	קב
1 Chron. 9 10	קלמא	1 Kings 1 19	קב
Neh. 12 6	קלמא	Gen. 14 2	קב
1 Chron. 8 34	קלמא	1 Chron. 8 18	קב
Josh. 15 13	קלמא	" 4 34	קב
" 11 21	קב	Judg. 4 11	קב
" 15 50	קב	Numb. 10 29	קב
Judg. 20 38	קב	1 Chron. 5 19	קב
Exod. 33 6	קב	2 Kings 10 23	קב
1 Kings 19 8	קב	2 Sam. 13 3	קב
Deut. 9 8	קב	Jerem. 35 19	קב
2 Kings 19 20	קב	1 Chron. 2 21	קב
Gen. 1 22	קב	" 22	קב
		2 Sam. 10 8	קב

The following words occur more than once:

הָיָה	הָיָה	הָיָה	הָיָה	הָיָה
הָיָה	הָיָה	הָיָה	הָיָה	הָיָה
הָיָה	הָיָה	הָיָה	הָיָה	הָיָה
הָיָה	הָיָה	הָיָה	הָיָה	הָיָה

י"ח = § 18.

הָיָה in or by thee, is three times plene in this form ... once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. That is, this preposition with the suffix second person masculine without and with the prefix Vav which is normally הָיָה has in three instances silent He. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 213b, on 2 Sam. 22 30, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 39a, on Exod. 7 29; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 219b, on Ps. 141 8; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 45a, on Exod. 7 29, and (V) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 22 30. The one instance which is with the prefix Vav (Exod. 7 29) denoted by the expression בלשוננו in the heading is also given in the List of twenty words which respectively occur once only ending with הָיָה instead of v. (Vide supra, letter ה, § 56c.)

י"ט = § 19.

הָיָה in or with him, is in six instances according to the Sevir הָיָה in or with her. That is, in these six instances the suffix third person singular masculine should be feminine. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Exod. 4 17.

כ" = § 20.

הָיָה in or with her, for which the Sevir substitutes another expression in three instances. That is, the prefix Beth, according to the Sevir, is in the first instance to be read with the suffix third person plural masculine (הָיָה) instead of the textual reading הָיָה with the suffix third person singular feminine. In the second place it is to be read with the suffix third person singular masculine (הָיָה) whilst in the third passage an Aleph is to be substituted for the He and is to be read הָיָה Kal preterite third person singular.

The importance of this Rubric to textual criticism, consists in the fact that these three alternative readings which are here called Sevirin are in other parts of the Massorah described as official Keri (vide letter כ, § 481), thus confirming the oft-repeated statement that Sevir and Keri are frequently used as interchangeable terms. This is, moreover, attested by the fact that the Sevirin in question, like the Keri, are in many MSS. and editions the substantive textual reading, as will be seen from the notes on these three passages in my edition of the Bible. This separate Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter כ, § 114. I hardly need remark that the expression הָיָה is in the heading of the Rubric in the editio princeps and not הָיָה.

כ"א = § 21a-b.

הָיָה in them. In two instances the textual reading is הָיָה, the prefix with the suffix third person plural masculine, for which the official Keri substitutes הָיָה, the prefix with the suffix third person singular feminine.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 105b, on Hosea 9 2, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 20a, on Judg. 2 22 where it is given as the converse of § 23, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter כ, § 111. It is remarkable that the heading of List I which is from the Model Codex gives הָיָה as the Keri whilst that of List II, which is also a Model Codex and List III describe it as הָיָה, thus yielding additional evidence that the two expressions are identical. § 21b, which is from the splendid MS. in the Paris National Library No. 1-8 on Judg. 11 25 not only gives two additional instances which belong to this category but heads this Rubric הָיָה. The School of Massorites, therefore, from which this Rubric emanates describes these instances as misleading instead of regarding them as official.

כ"ב = § 22.

הָיָה and in her, occurs three times. This preposition with the suffix third person singular feminine occurs about two hundred and twenty-two times. In about two hundred and nineteen times it is without the prefix Vav and in three instances only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 14b, on Gen. 24 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 7b, on Isa. 14 32; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 143a, on 1 Chron. 20 2; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 125a, on Isa. 14 32; (V) the same MS., fol. 250b, on 1 Chron. 20 2; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 16a, on Gen. 24 14; (VII) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah, Supplement fol. 180a; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 14, and (IX) the same on Isa. 14 32. As these three instances occur in the three divisions of the Bible, some of the Lists add הָיָה אֲנִי אֲנִי אֲנִי once it occurs in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa.

כ"ג = § 23.

הָיָה. In three instances the textual reading is הָיָה in them, for which the Sevir substitutes הָיָה in her. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 20a, on Judg. 2 22, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 343b, on Isa. 6 13, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter כ, § 112. On referring to the notes on these passages it will be seen that the Sevir is the substantive reading in many MSS. and editions, thus showing that this expression describes the textual reading of the less dominant School of Massorites. It is remarkable that both Lists II and III emphatically state in the heading that there are four instances (הָיָה וְהָיָה וְהָיָה וְהָיָה) and give as the fourth instance הָיָה הָיָה הָיָה הָיָה Isa. 63 19, though it is difficult to see to what the suffix third person singular feminine refers in this connection.

כ"ד = § 24.

הָיָה. In three instances הָיָה or הָיָה after a closed syllable is Raphe. The הָיָה = 3 does not refer to הָיָה alone, but to הָיָה words which has to be supplied, as is evident from the fact that the other two instances which are without Dagesh lene after a closed syllable (= הָיָה) are הָיָה Isa. 34 11 and הָיָה Ezek. 23 42. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Ps. 68 18.

כ"ה = § 25.

הָיָה. In six verses this preposition with the suffix third person plural occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the various readings which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors in Judg. 2 22 and Ezek. 23 25, as is attested by the MSS., the Versions and early editions, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. In the Model Codex Harley 5710-11 which reads הָיָה in Ezek. 23 25 the Nakdan added the following marginal note: In another Massorah I have found that הָיָה here ought to be הָיָה since it includes this verse in the six verses which have respectively הָיָה twice. I have also seen another Codex in which it was written הָיָה.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 20a, on Judg. 2 22, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 139b; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35; (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage, and (V) Paris Oehlah Ve-Oehlah, § 334. List III states in the heading that there are four verses only in which הָיָה occurs twice. It omits Ezek. 25 17; 35 11 and Hosea 14 whilst it gives Judg. 2 22 twice.

1 בספרה אחר כמאמר כי זה צריך להיות כן כי הוא כונה זה המס' מאומה ו' שיה' בהם כן כן תם כפי' אחר ראיתי כן שיהיה כחוב כן.

כ"ו = § 26.

הָיָה occurs four times. Though in three instances it is part of a proper name denoting and Beer, and once it signifies a pit (Prov. 23 27), yet because the spelling is identical in all the four instances the Massorah as usual includes them under the same Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 125a, on Isa. 15 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 206b, on Amos 5 6; (III) the same MS., fol. 345a, on Prov. 23 27; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 364b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 133a, on Josh. 15 28; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 85, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah, Finalis, letter כ, § 93.

List VI heads it הָיָה הָיָה הָיָה הָיָה which properly makes a distinction between the proper name and the noun, but it omits

Amos 5 5 which is the second instance where בְּבֵרֵי occurs in accordance with the number specified in the heading. It is therefore, probable that this Rubric is based upon a recension which reads בְּבֵרֵי in Amos 5 5. The two instances of בְּבֵרֵי constitute one of the pairs in the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Beth which respectively occur twice. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 67.)

כ"ז = § 27.

בְּבֵרֵי from Beer-sheba, occurs twice. That is, in these two instances it is followed by וְדָן and to Dan, as the Massorah Parva in the Model Codex Harley 5710-11 on 2 Chron. 30 5 has it. Without this adjunct בְּבֵרֵי occurs six more times (Gen. 28 10; 46 5; 2 Kings 12 2; Neh. 11 30; 2 Chron. 19 4; 24 1).

This Rubric is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 251a, on 1 Chron. 21 2. The Massorah Parva in Harley 5710-11, on 2 Chron. 30 5 shows it beyond doubt that the catchwords בְּבֵרֵי = 1 Kings 19 3 are a scribal error for בְּבֵרֵי = 2 Chron. 30 5. This is moreover, corroborated by the fact that in 1 Kings 19 3 it is בְּבֵרֵי and the Mem prefix is here impossible.

כ"ח = § 28.

בְּבֵרֵי to Beer, or Beerah, occurs four times in the Scriptures, in one instance it is the proper name of a man. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 31a, on Gen. 46 1 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 162b, on Judg. 9 21; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 132b, on 1 Chron. 5 6; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 25b, on Judg. 9 21; (V) the same MS., fol. 240a, on 1 Chron. 5 6; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 224b, on Numb. 21 16; (VII) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah, Supplement, fol. 132a; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 46 1, and (IX) the same on Numb. 21 16.

To understand the apparently conflicting statements of these Rubrics it is necessary to remark that besides בְּבֵרֵי in 1 Chron. 5 6 which is the name of a person, there is another name of a person בְּבֵרֵי written with an Aleph 1 Chron. 7 37 and that these two have the accent on the ultima, whilst in the other three passages where this expression is the name of a place (בְּבֵרֵי) with the local He (בְּבֵרֵי), the accent is on the penultima. List I, therefore, which heads this Rubric בְּבֵרֵי has regard simply to the identity. List II adds at the end בְּבֵרֵי thus giving the second name of the person written with Aleph. List V which heads it בְּבֵרֵי not only records the four instances with He, but emphasises the fact that three have the accent on the penultima and one on the ultima whilst Lists IV, VI, VII, VIII and XI which head this Rubric בְּבֵרֵי not only separate the penultimates from the ultimates but include in this List the fifth instance written with a. Hence also the heading בְּבֵרֵי of List III.

כ"ט = § 29.

בְּבֵרֵי Beeroth, or pits of. Throughout the Pentateuch and Samuel it is defective except in one instance and throughout the rest of the Scriptures it is likewise plene.

In explanation of this Massorah it is necessary to remark that it is designed to include the defective and plene orthography of בְּבֵרֵי, with the prefixes and suffix, not only as the name of a place and the noun denoting pits, or wells of, but the gentilic noun בְּבֵרֵי the Beerothite. This is evident from the fact that apart from this gentilic noun, בְּבֵרֵי occurs once only in Samuel and that without the instances of בְּבֵרֵי the declaration in the heading of this Rubric that it is defective throughout Samuel would be meaningless.

In the Pentateuch and Samuel, therefore, where it occurs altogether eleven times and where it is defective in ten instances and plene once only, the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception, whilst in all the rest of the Scriptures where it occurs four times and where it is uniformly plene the simple statement of this fact is sufficient. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 373a, on Ezra 2 25.

בְּבֵרֵי Gen. 26 18; בְּבֵרֵי Gen. 26 15; בְּבֵרֵי Deut. 10 6; בְּבֵרֵי Gen. 14 10, 10; בְּבֵרֵי 2 Sam. 4 2; בְּבֵרֵי defective 2 Sam. 4 2, 5, 9; 23 37; בְּבֵרֵי 2 Sam. 4 5.

¹ Comp. בְּבֵרֵי Josh. 9 17; 18 25; Ezra 2 25; Neh. 7 29.

ל = § 30.

בְּבֵרֵי Beer, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the proper name which is written בְּבֵרֵי without the Aleph (1 Chron. 7 36). Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 103b, on Hosea 1 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 18a, on Gen. 26 34; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 19b, on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Hosea 1 1, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The heading in the printed Massorah (List V), viz. בְּבֵרֵי it occurs twice and in two different senses, is incorrect, since it is a proper name of a person in both instances. בְּבֵרֵי is, therefore, rightly absent from the headings of all the other Lists.

ל"א = § 31.

בְּבֵרֵי from the well or pit, is in three instances so written. That is, in these three instances the normal expression בְּבֵרֵי with the prefix He and Mem, is abnormally written with Aleph. These three instances as well as the two instances of בְּבֵרֵי Jerem. 2 13 belong to the List of forty-eight words which are written with Aleph in the middle in the text and which the official reading cancels. (Vide supra, letter א, § 18.)

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 73b, on 2 Sam. 23 15, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 179a; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

ל"ב = § 32.

בְּבֵרֵי wild grapes, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 120b, on Isa. 5 2. The heading ought more properly to be בְּבֵרֵי, since the two instances not only occur in the same book but in the same section.

ל"ג = § 33.

בְּבֵרֵי in Babylon, occurs eight times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 258b, on 2 Kings 25 28, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 139b, on Isa. 48 14; (IV) the same MS., fol. 165b, on Jerem. 29 22; (V) the same MS., fol. 375b, on Ezra 5 17; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 363a, on Jerem. 48 14; (VII) the same MS., fol. 806a, on Jerem. 51 44; (VIII) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Jerem. 29 22, and (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ל"ד = § 34.

בְּבֵרֵי and Babylon, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 53a, on Jerem. 32 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 200b, on Pa. 87 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 159b, on Jerem. 20 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 167b, on Jerem. 32 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 169b, on Jerem. 34 8; (VI) the same MS., fol. 806a, on Pa. 87 4; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 20 6; (VIII) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 77, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 96.

ל"ה = § 35.

בְּבֵרֵי into Babylon, occurs twenty-nine times. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading בְּבֵרֵי in 2 Kings 25 7 and Jerem. 28 3, which obtained in the less dominant School of textual redactors and is exhibited in some of the oldest MSS. and editions.

This Rubric is one of the earliest and most popular parts of the Massorah. I have collated no fewer than twenty Lists of it, nineteen in MSS. and one printed, and simply give the following ten as typical: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 114b, on 2 Kings 20 17, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 137b, on Isa. 43 14; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on the same passage; (IV) the same Codex on Jerem. 29 1; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 214a, on 2 Kings 24 15; (VI) the same MS., fol. 230b, on Isa. 43 14; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 344b, on 2 Chron. 33 11; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 283a, on Jerem. 20 5; (IX) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 77, and (X) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 94. All these Lists include the one instance with the prefix Mem, viz. בְּבֵרֵי Jerem. 27 16, though none of the headings have it בְּבֵרֵי. It has been stated that the reading בְּבֵרֵי in Jerem. 28 3 is that of the Eastern recensions simply because the so-called Babylonian Codex of A. D. 916 has it. The official Lists which record the variations between the Babylonians and Palestinians do not give it. The Massorah itself of this so-called Babylonian Codex, which as we have seen, gives two Lists of this Rubric (Lists III and IV) and in which we should naturally expect to find it amongst the twenty-nine instances if it were a Babylonian reading, carefully excludes it from both these Lists.

לִי = § 36.

לִי occurs twice in two different senses. That is, in the first instance it is the noun לִי with the prefix Beth and the suffix third person singular masculine denoting by his garment (Gen. 39 12) and in the second instance it is the infinitive of the verb לִי meaning in his having dealt deceitfully (Exod. 21 8). This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Gen. 39 12. These two expressions are part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Comp. letter מ, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217 &c.)

לִי = § 37.

לִי and they dealt unfaithfully, occurs twice. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Ps. 78 57.

לִי = § 38.

לִי the treacherous, is five times plene in the Scriptures. This Kal participle plural without and with the prefixes occurs altogether twelve times. In seven instances it is defective (Isa. 24 16; Jerem. 9 1; Ps. 119 158; Prov. 11 3, 6; 13 2, 15) and plene in five instances. Hence the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the minority. This was deemed all the more necessary since in Isa. 24 16, where it occurs twice, it is spelt in two different ways.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 118a, on Habak. 1 13, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 128b, on Isa. 24 16; (III) the same MS., fol. 337a, on Prov. 2 22; (IV) the same MS., fol. 345a, on Prov. 23 28; (V) the printed Massorah on Isa. 24 16; (VI) the same on Habak. 1 13, and (VII) the same on Ps. 25 3. As three of the instances have the prefix He and Vav, the heading of this Rubric in the printed Massorah, viz. הִי מִלִּי בְּלִי is more precise.

לִי = § 39.

לִי A sign: In describing the treachery of Judah (Jerem. 3 7, 8, 10, 11) three different forms of the same root are used, first the adjective feminine, then the participle feminine then the adjective again and then again the participle with the prefix Mem. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the three different expressions. This Rubric is from Orient. 1474, fol. 5b, on Jerem. 3 11.

מִי = § 40.

מִי and the garment, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Levit. 13 58, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 157b, on the same passage. The latter heads it מִי מִמִּיקָם בִּי which is misleading, since it suggests that it occurs again apart from its beginning a verse. It ought more properly to be מִי מִמִּיקָם בִּי it occurs twice and at the beginning of a verse.

מִי = § 41.

מִי as a garment, occurs four times. That is, in contradistinction to the two instances in which it is מִי with Sheva under the prefix Caph (Ps. 109 19; Job. 13 28).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 140b, on Isa. 50 9, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 234a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 100. The heading of List III is מִי רִבְעִי = four times with Dagesh which denotes in Massoretic terminology four times with Pathach under the Caph in contradistinction to the two times with Sheva which in the language of the Massorah is called Raphi.

מִי = § 42.

מִי holy garments, occurs three times. The construct מִי is eight times followed by this noun; in five instances it is with the article, viz. מִי הַקִּיָּשׁ (Exod. 31 10; 35 19; 39 1; 40 13; Levit. 16 32) and in these three only is it without the article. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 91a, on Levit. 16 4.

מִי = § 43.

מִי and his garments, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 53b, on Exod. 29 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 196b, on 2 Sam. 1 2; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 244b, on Prov. 6 27; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 338b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 48b, on Exod. 29 21; (VI) the same MS., fol. 164b, on 2 Sam. 1 2; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 114b, on Exod. 29 21; (VIII) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (IX) the same on 2 Sam. 1 2.

מִי = § 44.

מִי Bigvai, occurs twice with Zakeph-Kametz. This proper name occurs altogether six times. In four instances it is with Pathach under the Vav and with the accent Tipcha (מִי Ezra 2 2; 8 14; Neh. 7 7; 10 19) and in these two instances only is it with Kametz and Zakeph-Katon. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Neh. 7 19.

מִי = § 45.

מִי occurs twice. That is, with Kametz and the accent Zakeph-Katon. Normally the biliteral מִי is with Pathach (מִי) and has Kametz only when it is with the accent Soph-Pasuk (מִי) which is the case in four instances (1 Sam. 2 18; 22 18; 2 Sam. 6 14; 1 Chron. 15 27). In one instance, however, it has abnormally Kametz with the accent Zakeph-Katon, viz. מִי (Exod. 28 42). Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional vowel-point in the noun מִי which denotes linen.

With regard to the adverb with the prefix Lamed which occurs altogether thirty-three times, the Massorah is more artificial and complicated. In the Pentateuch, where it occurs eight times it is in four instances with Pathach (מִי Exod. 12 37; Numb. 29 39; Deut. 3 5, 18 8) and in four with Kametz (מִי Exod. 26 9, 9; 36 16, 16) and though they are thus evenly divided the Kametz instances are restricted to one Section, viz. the construction of the Tabernacle, whilst the Pathach instances occur in different parts of the Pentateuch (Exod. 12 37; Numb. 29 39; Deut. 3 5; 18 8). In the other two divisions of the Bible, where it occurs altogether twenty-five times, it is thirteen times with Pathach (מִי Josh. 17 5; Judg. 8 26; 20 15, 17; 1 Kings 5 3, 30; 10 15; 2 Kings 21 16; Isa. 26 13; Eccl. 7 29; Esther 4 11; Ezra 1 6; 2 Chron. 9 14) and twelve with Kametz (מִי). But though here again they are evenly divided, the Kametz instances with one exception Judg. 7 5 are restricted to the Minor Prophets (Zech. 12 12, 12, 12, 12, 13, 13, 13, 13, 14, 14) and all the Pathach instances occur in the other parts of the Prophets and Hagiographa, with one solitary exception, viz. Judg. 7 5 where it is with Kametz and Zakeph-Katon, viz. מִי. This not only explains the Rubric before us, but the other two Rubrics on this subject, which I have printed in Vol. III, § 45*, from the printed Massorah on Exod. 26 9 and Levit. 16 4. The heading, however, in the printed Massorah on Exod. 26 9, viz. מִי מִי מִי מִי מִי מִי contains a serious mistake. מִי ought to be מִי, as is attested by Add. 19,776, on Exod. 26 9, viz. מִי מִי מִי מִי מִי מִי and the Massorah Parva in Arund. Orient. 16 on Judg. 7 5 מִי מִי מִי מִי מִי מִי.

מִי = § 46.

מִי thyself, alone, occurs three times . . . and whenever it has the accent Athnach or Soph-Pasuk it is likewise so. That is, with Segol under the Daleth without having either of these pausal accents. With Segol under the Daleth this quadriliteral occurs altogether eleven times. In six instances it is with Soph-Pasuk (מִי Exod. 18 18; Numb. 11 17; 2 Kings 19 19; Isa. 37 20; Ps. 71 16; 86 10) and in two with Athnach (מִי Ps. 83 19; Prov. 5 17). As it is in these three instances only where it has the Segol without the accents in question, the Massorah safeguards the abnormal vowel-points. This safeguarding was deemed all the more necessary, since two of the three exceptional instances are with Zakeph-Katon (מִי Exod. 18 14; 1 Sam. 21 2), whilst in the other three instances where it has this accent it is with Sheva under the Daleth (מִי 1 Kings 8 39; 2 Kings 19 15; Isa. 37 16).

Of this Rubric I collated thirteen Lists, ten in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 46b, on Exod. 18 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 189a, on 1 Sam. 21 2; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 298a, on Neh. 9 6; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 50a, on 1 Sam. 21 2; (V) the same MS., fol. 385a, Neh. 9 6; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 398b, on the same passage; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 52a, on Exod. 18 14; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 163a, on 1 Sam. 21 2; (IX) the same MS., fol. 425b, on Neh. 9 6; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 94b, on Exod. 18 14; (XI) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (XII) the same on 1 Sam. 21 2, and (XIII) the same on Neh. 9 6. As these three instances occur in the three divisions of the Bible, Lists V, IX, X, XII and XIII add at the end (א ברוך א ברוך א ברוך) that one occurs in the Law, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa. List VI omits the addition at the end וכל אמת דברי which makes this Rubric unintelligible and proves the oft-repeated statement that these restricting adjuncts are not unfrequently absent.

מיז = § 47.

מִזֵּי עֲצֵי שִׁטִּים staves of shittim wood, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to מִזֵּי עֲצֵי שִׁטִּים the staves of shittim wood which occurs five times (Exod. 25 28; 30 5; 37 15, 28; 38 6). The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this phrase against being made conformable to the other combination. This Rubric, which is from Add. 15,250, fol. 47a, on Exod. 27 6, does not occur in the printed Massorah.

מִזָּה = § 48.

מִזָּה alone, occurs three times. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the various reading in Ps. 102 8 which obtained in some Schools of textual redactors in accordance with Prov. 27 8, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 7b, on Isa. 14 31, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 105b, on Hosea 8 9; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 205a, on Ps. 102 8; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Hosea 8 9; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 125a, on Isa. 14 31; (VI) the same MS., fol. 309a, on Ps. 102 8; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 221a, on Isa. 14 31; (VIII) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (IX) the same on Hosea 8 9, and (X) the same on Ps. 102 8. Lists V, VI, VII, VIII and X head this Rubric מִזָּה three times and plene. But in the older form of this Rubric, which is exhibited in Lists I—IV, the expression מִזָּה is absent.

מִזָּה = § 49.

מִזָּה alone, occurs eight times in the Scriptures. This is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah. Its design is to safeguard these passages against being made conformable to those in which this adverb with the prefix Lamed occurs and which are recorded in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated thirteen Lists, eleven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 268a, on Lament. 1 1 which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 15 17; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 49 31; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 129b, on Isa. 27 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 357a, on Lament. 3 28; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 63a, on Levit. 13 46; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 72a, on the same passage; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 403a, on Lament. 3 28; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 302a, on Jerem. 49 31; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 156b, on Levit. 13 46; (XI) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, § 236; (XII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 13 46 and (XIII) the same on Jerem. 49 31.

מִזָּה = § 50.

מִזָּה alone, occurs three times in the Scriptures . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. That is, in contradistinction to the eight instances without the prefix Lamed recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 116b, on Micah 7 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 212b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 285a, on Ps. 4 9; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 308a, on Micah 7 14; (V) the same MS., fol. 319b, on Ps. 4 9; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 204b, on Micah 7 14; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 109a, on Numb. 23 9; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 229a, on the same passage; (IX) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, § 200; (X) the printed Massorah on Numb. 23 9, and (XI) the same on Pa. 4 9.

מִזָּה = § 51.

מִזָּה and tin, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 281b, on Ezek. 22 18.

מִזָּה = § 52.

מִזָּה and they were separated, or separated themselves, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard it against the various reading מִזָּה Ezra 10 16, which was preserved in the less dominant School of textual redactors and which is now regarded as preferable by some of the best critics. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Neh. 9 2.

מִזָּה = § 53.

מִזָּה to make a separation, to separate, is twice with the accent. That is, in the two out of the three instances in which it occurs in the Pentateuch it is with the accent Zakeph-Gadol. The qualifying expression מִזָּה in the Pentateuch, is manifestly omitted from the heading, since this Hiphil infinitive construct occurs also once outside the Pentateuch where it has the same accent, viz. מִזָּה Ezek. 42 20. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Gen. 1 14.

מִזָּה = § 54.

מִזָּה and to make a separation, or to separate, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, with the prefix Vav, in contradistinction to the three instances where this Hiphil infinitive construct occurs without the prefix.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 60b, on Levit. 10 10, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter heads this Rubric מִזָּה it occurs twice with the accent in the Pentateuch, that is, with the accent Zakeph-Katon in contradistinction to the three instances without the prefix Vav which have Zakeph-Gadol. Neither of the two headings, however is quite correct. Both for מִזָּה and for מִזָּה it ought properly to be מִזָּה and in the Pentateuch, since this form does not occur outside the Pentateuch.

מִזָּה = § 55.

מִזָּה and he separated, occurs three times. By fixing the number at three, this Massorah militates against the reading of the fourth instance in Ezra 10 6 recorded above in Rubric 52.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 1a, on Gen. 1 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 145b, on 1 Chron. 25 1, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 107.

מִזָּה = § 56.

מִזָּה is twice defective in this form . . . and in all the other forms it is plene. That is, in these two instances of the Hiphil form, the one future first person singular with Vav conversive, and the other the participle plural, the Yod after the Daleth is absent, whilst in all the other forms of the Hiphil the Yod is expressed.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 94b, on Levit. 20 26, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 144a, on Isa. 59 2, and (III) the printed Massorah on Levit. 20 26. These two words form part of the Lists recording the expressions which respectively occur once with Yod defective in the middle. (Vide infra, letter ז, §§ 17.—19.)

מִזָּה = § 57.

מִזָּה Bedan, or in Dan, occurs four times in the Scriptures; in two of the instances it is the name of a person. That is, in 1 Sam. 12 11 and 1 Chron. 7 17 it is the name of a place Bedan, whilst in 1 Kings 12 29 and 2 Kings 10 29 the Beth is the prefix to the proper name Dan. It will be seen that the Massorah here as elsewhere has regard to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the sense of the expressions.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 180b, on 1 Sam. 12 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 42a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 88a, on 1 Kings 12 29; (IV) the same MS., fol. 242b, on 1 Chron. 7 17; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 190b, on 1 Kings 12 29; (VI) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 12 11, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 108. List I alone indicates in the heading the import of this Rubric.

גח = § 58.

גחל occurs three times, twice with Kametz and once with Pathach. That is, in two instances it is the Niphal participle and in one place it is the preterite third person singular masculine. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 181b, on Ps. 30 8, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 266b, on Prov. 28 22. The latter adds at the end קראתה פתח the first instance is with Pathach, i. e. 1 Sam. 28 21.

גחל = § 59.

גחלני they troubled me, occurs three times. That is, this Chaldee Pael future third person plural with the suffix first person singular, is without the Vav after the Lamed. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 279a, on Dan. 4 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 287b, on Dan. 7 15; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 370a, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Dan. 4 2, and (V) the same on Dan. 7 15. Lists II and V head it גחלני it occurs three times and is defective, i. e. without the Vav after the Lamed.

גחל = § 60.

גחלני in haste, occurs twice and is written with He... and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Dan. 2 25, which I have printed; (II) the same Codex, on Dan. 3 24, and (III) the printed Massorah on Dan. 2 25.

גחל = § 61.

גחלני unclean cattle, occurs twice in this book. That is, in Leviticus. In the third instance where this phrase occurs it is with the prefix Beth (Levit. 7 21). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 72a, on Levit. 27 11.

גחל = § 62.

גחלני in cattle, is four times Raphe. That is, with Chirek under the prefix Beth and hence without Dagesh in the second Beth. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 85b, on Levit. 7 21, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 59a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 894, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 188b, on Levit. 27 10, (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 9 10, and (VI) the same on Levit. 7 21.

גחל = § 63.

גחלני in the cattle, is six times with Dagesh in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the Raphe instance recorded in § 62. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the various reading which was exhibited in Gen. 9 10 in the early recensions of the text, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 257b, on Prov. 30 30 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 349a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 61a, on Levit. 11 3; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 394a, on Prov. 30 30; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 89b, on Levit. 7 21; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 188b, on Levit. 27 27; (VII) Orient. 2349, fol. 88a, on Gen. 9 10; (VIII) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (IX) the same on Levit. 11 3.

גחל = § 64.

גחלני as the cattle, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 327b, on Job 18 3, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 288a, on Isa. 63 14.

גחל = § 65.

גחלני and to, or for the cattle, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 238b, on 2 Kings 3 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 22b, on Isa. 46 1; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 139a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 59a, on Levit. 7 26; (V) the same MS., fol. 199a, on 2 Kings 3 9; (VI) the same MS., fol. 232a, on Isa. 46 1; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 232b, on the same passage; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 246b, on 2 Kings 3 9, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Levit. 7 26.

גחל = § 66.

גחלני Nine forms of the verb גחל are defective of the Aleph. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 52b, on 1 Sam. 25 8, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (III) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 1 margin, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 39 16. It is remarkable that all the MS. Lists emphatically state that the defective instance in connection with Jeroboam is in Chronicles, viz. רבו ירבעם וכל דרבו הימים which may either be 2 Chron. 10 3, or 12. The printed Massorah alone has it רבו ירבעם וכל דרבו הימים = 1 Kings 12 12. The printed Massorah, moreover, describes the instance in Ruth 3 15 as a point of dispute in the Massoretic Schools (רבו רבבא וזר עריך בררא פליתא). But on examining the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that both the MSS. and edition also exhibit variations on most of the other instances. This Rubric forms part of the general List of words which are defective of the letter Aleph in the Bible. (Vide supra, letter א, § 14.)

גחל = § 67.

גחלני Eight forms of the verb גחל are singular according to the textual reading for which the Sevir gives the plural. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 108a, on Numb. 13 22, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4446, fol. 131b, on the same passage; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 14 1; (IV) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 82b, on Ezek. 20 38; (V) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 93b, on Ezek. 36 20; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 208b, on Numb. 13 22; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VIII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 1, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Numb. 13 22.

With the exception of Lists III and IV, all the other seven Lists emphatically state in their respective headings that there are eight such instances and give identically the same passages. Most of them emphasize the fact that the Sevir is not restricted to גחל the Kal future third person singular masculine, but includes several forms of this verb. Hence the Rubric before us records four instances of גחל, three of גחל and one of גחל. Lists II and IV state in the heading that there are only six such instances and accordingly give six, omitting 2 Sam. 3 22 and Jerem. 51 48. But even this shorter List includes two instances of גחל, viz. Isa. 45 24 and Ezek. 20 38. The shorter recension shows conclusively that the tradition with regard to the Sevirin, or extra official Keri, like that about the official Keri varied in the different Massoretic Schools. Whilst this School preserved a shorter List of this Rubric another School had a much longer List containing double the number of instances. As this School also extended the Sevir to the instances in which גחל precedes קח (Numb. 21 7; Judg. 21 2; 1 Sam. 4 3; 14 26) I have given the longer List on גחל (Vide infra, letter ב, § 119.) The fourteen passages in which the Sevir has גחל the future third person plural for גחל; the singular, form a separate Rubric. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 113.) At the end of this Rubric קח = 116 should be קח = § 119a.

גחל = § 68.

גחלני [Forms from the root גחל which respectively occur once only.] This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 384a, on Neh. 8 1. As is usually the case, it exhibits the first attempt to collect the unique forms of this verb and is, therefore, simply a fragment. This is evident from the fact that there are altogether no fewer than one hundred and forty forms of גחל which respectively occur once only. The incipient List is, therefore, without heading, which I have indicated by the brackets. Another fragment, recording twelve unique forms is given in the Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 1.

ט"ט - § 69.

כיאתָּ she is coming, occurs twelve times. That is, in these twelve instances this verb is exceptionally combined with the adverb of place without the paragogic He. In the other thirty-four instances where this combination occurs, the adverb is כִּיָּאָה. By fixing the number at twelve, the Massorah militates against the ancient recensions which also exhibited this combination in Exod. 26 33; Deut. 12 11 and 31 16, as is attested by the Samaritan text. The safeguarding of these instances was also deemed necessary, since the two combinations are used promiscuously in close proximity. (Comp. Deut. 1 37, 38; Ezek. 47 9, 9.)

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 111b, on Deut. 1 37, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190a, on Ezek. 36 22; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 276b, on the same passage; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 123b, on Deut. 1 37; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ezek. 36 22, and (VI) printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 69.

1 Comp. כִּיָּאָה Gen. 19 22; 20 13; Exod. 10 26; 26 38; Levit. 18 3; 20 22; Numb. 14 24; 15 18; Deut. 1 38, 39; 4 5; 7 1; 11 10, 29; 12 5, 6, 11, 29; 23 21; 28 21, 63; 30 16, 18; 31 16; Judg. 18 17; 2 Kings 4 11; 9 2; Isa. 7 24, 25; Ezek. 11 18; 36 21; 40 1; 47 9, 9.

ע - § 70.

הָאָה he cometh, he cometh, occurs twice thus combined. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the School of textual redactors which exhibited הָאָה in Jerem. 46 20, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 309b, on Ezek. 7 6.

ע"א - § 71.

גָּהָה gone into days, or stricken in age, occurs four times thus combined. In fixing the number at four, the Massorah militates against the reading גָּהָה or גָּהָה in 1 Sam. 17 12 which is exhibited in the Septuagint, Syriac &c. and which is now adopted by some of the best textual critics.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 16a, on Gen. 24 1, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ע, § 160. As גָּהָה precedes this phrase in all the four instances, the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 1 also heads this Rubric גָּהָה. (Vide infra, letter ע, § 121.)

ע"ב - § 72.

הָאָה. This Kal preterite third person singular masculine with the prefix Vav occurs altogether fifty-three times. In thirty-six instances it is in the middle of the verse and in seventeen only is it at the beginning of the verse. Hence the Massorah records its exceptional position. In this number the Massorah includes the Keri in Jerem. 43 11 as the textual reading here is הָאָה. The MS. Lists which head this Rubric הָאָה are based upon Codices which exclude the Keri.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, nine in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 97b, on Ezek. 41 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 121b, on Deut. 14 29; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 99b, on Levit. 14 44; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 130b, on Deut. 14 29; (V) the same MS., fol. 215a, on 2 Sam. 16 5; (VI) the same MS., fol. 298a, on Jerem. 43 11; (VII) the same MS., fol. 334a, on Ezek. 41 3; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 159b, on Levit. 14 35; (IX) the same MS., fol. 191a, on Numb. 4 5; (X) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 16 5; (XI) the same on Isa. 47 11, and (XII) the same on Dan. 11 9.

ע"ג - § 73.

וָאָה and he came unto her, occurs twice thus combined in the Scriptures. Normally when וָאָה is combined with this preposition, וָאָה is followed by a noun and not the pronominal suffix. Hence the Massorah records this abnormal combination.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, fol. 267a, on Eccl. 9 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 354b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 185a, on Deut. 22 18; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 135b, on the same passage, and (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Eccl. 9 14.

ע"ד - § 74.

הָאָה she is coming, is eleven times with the accent. That is, on the ultima, being the Kal participle feminine, in contradistinction to the twenty-three instances in which it is the preterite third person singular feminine and has the accent on the penultima.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists, fourteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 218a, on Prov. 13 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 271b, on Esther 2 13; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 10 22; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 53a, on 1 Sam. 25 19; (V) the same MS., fol. 147a, on Isa. 66 18; (VI) the same MS., fol. 209a, on Jonah 1 3; (VII) the same MS., fol. 222a, on Zech. 14 18; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 341a, on Prov. 13 12; (IX) the same MS., fol. 359a, on Esther 2 13; (X) Add. 15,451, fol. 274a, on Jerem. 10 22; (XI) Add. 21,160, fol. 23b, on Gen. 29 6; (XII) the same MS., fol. 38a, on Gen. 37 25; (XIII) Orient. 2349, fol. 44a, on Gen. 29 6; (XIV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 1, and (XV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 18.

And throughout Kings and Ezekiel it is likewise with the accent on the ultima, except in two instances where it is on the penultima. In Kings and Ezekiel this participle occurs no fewer than fifteen times whilst the preterite occurs twice only. Here, therefore, Milva is the rule and Milal the exception. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence in these two books. As this Rubric includes the one Milva instance with the prefix Vav (הָאָה Micah 4 18) the heading ought more properly to be הָאָה though none of the Lists have it so.

ע"ה - § 75.

וָאָה and thou shalt come, occurs seven times with the accent on Tav. That is, in contradistinction to the other twelve instances where this Kal preterite second person singular masculine with the prefix Vav occurs and where the accent is on the penultima, as is shown in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated thirteen Lists, twelve in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 4a, on Gen. 6 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 128b, on Deut. 26 3; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 56b, on Jerem. 36 6; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 122b, on Zech. 6 10; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 49a, on 1 Sam. 20 19; (VI) the same MS., fol. 171a, on Jerem. 36 6; (VII) the same MS., fol. 218b, on Zech. 6 10; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 16a, on Gen. 6 18 with the mnemonic sign; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 6a, on the same passage; (X) the same MS., fol. 137a, on Deut. 26 3; (XI) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Gen. 6 8 with the mnemonic sign; (XII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 1, margin, and (XIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 6 18.

ע"ו - § 76.

הָאָה is in three instances with the accent. That is, with Revia and on the penultima. In the fourth instance where it has this accent it is on the ultima. The seven instances in which this quadrilateral is Milva and the twelve in which it is Milal exhibit no fewer than twelve different accents¹ and as it is in these three instances only where it is Milal with Revia the Massorah records this fact.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 116a, on Deut. 6 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 234b, on 1 Kings 19 15; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 94a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 313b, on Zech. 6 10; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 267b, on Deut. 6 18; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Zech. 6 10.

¹ The seven Milva instances have five different accents: (1) הָאָה Deut. 17 9; (2) הָאָה Gen. 6 18; Deut. 26 3; 1 Sam. 20 19; (3) הָאָה Exod. 3 18; (4) הָאָה Jerem. 36 6, and (5) הָאָה Zech. 6 10, whilst the twelve Milal exhibit seven varieties: (1) הָאָה Deut. 12 26; (2) הָאָה 2 Kings 9 2a; (3) הָאָה the three instances which constitute § 76; (4) הָאָה 1 Sam. 10 3; 2 Kings 9 2b; (5) הָאָה Ezek. 38 15; (6) הָאָה Deut. 12 5; 2 Sam. 5 29; 1 Chron. 14 14, and (7) הָאָה 1 Sam. 22 5.

ע"ז - § 77.

הָאָה thou camest, is twice with Kametz. This Rubric, which is from the printed Massorah on Gen. 16 8 and which states that this Kal preterite second person singular feminine occurs twice with Kametz, is meaningless, since it can have no other vowel-point under the Beth. בבאת is manifestly a clerical error for באת in the Scriptures as the heading has it in Add. 15,250, fol. 12a, on the same passage. That is, in these two instances it is without the prefix, in contradistinction to the five instances in which it has this prefix and which are recorded in the following Rubric.

ע"ה = § 78.

באת and thou shalt come, occurs five times . . . and once it is with Aleph defective. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 89a, on 1 Kings 14 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 99b, on 2 Kings 4 4; (III) the same MS., fol. 283b, on Ruth 3 4; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 199b, on 2 Kings 4 4; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 175b, on 2 Sam. 14 3; (VI) the same MS., fol. 201b, on 2 Kings 4 4, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ruth 3 4. The latter is the only List which has in the heading (הי לבאת) that it occurs five times as feminine.

ע"ט = § 79.

באת שמך and thou shalt come thither, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the ancient reading באתה and ye shall come thither in Deut. 12 5 which is exhibited in the Samaritan and the Septuagint and which is in accordance with verse 9 of this chapter. For the combination of the verb באת with this adverb of place with and without the paragogic He see above ב, § 69.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 104a, on 2 Kings 9 2.

ד = § 80a.

באת to come, or come thou, is fourteen times plene in the Scriptures, four of these are in the Pentateuch. It will be seen that this Rubric includes both the Kal infinitive and the imperative singular masculine. The Massorah as usual has regard simply to the identity of the spelling, irrespective of the difference in the sense.

In the Pentateuch, where באת occurs altogether eighteen times, it is defective in fourteen instances¹ and plene in four passages only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

This Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 43b, on Gen. 43 25. The declaration that there are altogether fourteen such instances in the Bible is due to the fact that, according to the School of textual redactors from which this Rubric proceeds, Josh. 23 7 is plene.

¹ Comp. wh Gen. 7 1; 16 2; 30 3; 38 8; Exod. 2 18; 6 11; 7 26; 9 1; 10 1; 17 12; 22 25; Levit. 14 48; Numb. 32 9; Deut. 4 21.

ד = § 80b.

באת is thirteen times plene. That is, apart from Samuel and the Hagiographa. Outside these two exceptions it occurs altogether forty-five times both as infinitive and imperative, eighteen times in the Pentateuch and twenty-seven times in the Prophets excepting Samuel. As the Pentateuch has already been analysed in the preceding Rubric, it is only necessary to state that of the twenty-seven instances in the Prophets, eighteen are defective¹ and nine only plene. Hence the Massorah in this division of the Bible safeguards the orthography of the minority.

And throughout Samuel and the Hagiographa it is likewise plene except in five instances where it is defective. In Samuel it occurs altogether six times. It is plene in five instances (1 Sam. 9 6, 15; 2 Sam. 3 35; 15 28; 16 21) and defective in one instance only (2 Sam. 14 32). Hence the solitary exception is recorded. In the Hagiographa, too, where it occurs ten times, the plene orthography is the rule and the defective the exception. The former occurs six times (Job 14 14; Dan. 11 10, 13; 2 Chron. 12 11; 18 84; 25 14) and the defective four only. Here, therefore, the Massorah also records the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 110a, on 2 Kings 16 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 188a, on Ezek. 33 22; (III) the same MS., fol. 191b, on Ezek. 38 18; (IV) the same MS., fol. 224a, on Mal. 3 23; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 208a, on 2 Kings 16 11; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 210a, on the same passage; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 29a, on Gen. 39 16; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 14a, on Gen. 24 31; (IX) the same MS., fol. 42a, on Gen. 39 16; (X) the same MS., fol. 323b, on Job 14 14; (XI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 1, margin, and (XII) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 33 22.

¹ Comp. wh Josh. 23 7; 1 Kings 1 42; 14 28; 2 Kings 5 5; Isa. 20 1; 22 15; 36 20; Jerem. 27 7; 36 20; 40 4; Ezek. 3 4, 11, 24; 9 9; 10 2; 21 32; Habak. 2 3; Hag. 1 2.

With the exception of Lists XI and XII, the headings of all the other ten Lists coincide in stating that there are thirteen such plene instances apart from Samuel and the Hagiographa, though some of them differ with regard to one instance. Thus Lists V, VIII and X which belong to different Schools and to countries far apart, give ע"ה Exod. 22 25 as the fifth instance instead of ע"ה Josh. 10 27. This is also the case in Lists XI and XII which head this Rubric differently. This might be due to a confusion of the catchwords ע"ה (Josh. 10 27) and ע"ה (Exod. 22 25), but for the fact that in List VIII it is ע"ה and in List XII it is ע"ה which preclude such a confusion. List XI states in the heading that there are eighteen such instances (באת), and gives the following four in addition to the thirteen recorded in the other Lists, viz. Hag. 1 2; Job 14 14; Dan. 11 10, 13. It is evident that an ignorant Nakdan who found this List without the heading of the second part באת altered the heading of the Rubric. List XII is very remarkable and instructive: (I) It states in the heading that there are (באת) fourteen such plene instances, which agrees with the heading in § 80a; (2) it gives Exod. 22 25 as the fifth instance instead of Josh. 10 27 thus coinciding with Lists V, VIII and X; (3) it gives Exod. 17 12 as the sixth instance and states ע"ה that there is a difference of opinion in the different Schools on this passage; (4) it gives ע"ה = Josh. 23 7 as the seventh instance which is supported by some of the best MSS., viz. Orient. 2201, second hand; Harley 5710—11; Orient. 2627 second hand, and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, as well as with the Massorah Parva on this passage, and (5) it omits Joel 3 14. The addition ע"ה = 1 Sam. 9 6, is manifestly due to an ignorant Nakdan, since it not only makes fifteen instances and conflicts with the heading, but is contrary to the express statement at the end of the Rubric (ע"ה) which excludes Samuel from the List of the fourteen plene instances. It is to be remarked that the omission of ע"ה after ע"ה is also in Lists I and II. As it is ע"ה with the prefix Vav in Esther 5 14, the heading of the second part of this Rubric ought more correctly to be ע"ה and yet none of the Lists have it so.

ד"א = § 81.

באת is five times defective in the Hagiographa and Samuel. Of this separate Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 164a, on 2 Chron. 25 8, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Ps. 126 6. For its import see the preceding Rubric.

ד"ב = § 82.

באת coming he shall come, or he shall surely come, occurs five times. That is, this combination of the infinitive followed by the Kal future third person singular masculine. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 72b, on Levit. 14 48, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 100a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (IV) the same on Habak. 2 3.

ד"ג = § 83.

באת and come, occurs twice. That is, this infinitive with the prefix Vav is in these two instances defective in contradistinction to the third instance where it is plene (2 Chron. 18 29). As the identical phrase occurs in two parallel passages (comp. 2 Kings 22 30 with 2 Chron. 18 29) and varies in its orthography, the Massorah safeguards this variation.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 78b, on 1 Kings 3 7, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 426b, on 2 Chron. 18 29, and (III) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 22 30. Lists II and III head this Rubric ע"ה and include in the enumeration the plene instance.

י"ד = § 84.

יבוא is nine times with Vav plene in the Scriptures. This Kal infinitive construct with the prefix Beth and without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether twenty times. In eleven instances it is defective¹ and in nine plene. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 28b, on Gen. 42 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 101a, on 2 Kings 5 18; (III) the same MS., fol. 107a, on 2 Kings 12 10; (IV) the same MS., fol. 296a, on Ps. 51 2; (V) the same MS., fol. 297a, on Ps. 54 2; (VI) the same MS., fol. 343a, on Prov. 18 3; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 202b, on 2 Kings 5 18; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 356a, on Ps. 51 2; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 47b, on Gen. 42 15; (X) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 1, margin; (XI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 42 15, and (XII) the same on Ps. 52 2.

Though eleven out of the twelve Lists agree in stating in their respective headings that there are nine such plene instances, yet in enumerating them they differ with regard to the passages in which they occur. This conflict is due to the fact that these Lists represent two distinct Schools of textual redactors, viz. the Western and Eastern. According to the Westerns Ps. 54 2 is plene and Ezek. 46 8 is defective. They, therefore, include the former and exclude the latter; whilst according to the Easterns the reverse is the case, Ps. 54 2 is defective and Ezek. 46 8 is plene. Hence this recension excludes the Psalm instance and includes the Ezekiel passage. Lists I, III, VIII and IX exhibit the Eastern recension whilst Lists II, IV, V, VI and VII represent the Western recension. List XII is a mixture of both Schools and hence gives ten instances. The Massoretic note יבוא עם לבית against Ps. 54 2 in the Model Codex No. 1—3 in the Paris National Library, has supplied the clue to the apparently conflicting passages recorded in these Lists. As these Lists include the instances with the prefix Vav, the headings ought more properly to be יבוא עם מל' בליש' and יבוא עם מל'.

¹ Comp. יבוא Numb. 33 40; 1 Sam. 30 1; 2 Sam. 4 4; Jerem. 22 23; 28 9; Ezek. 46 8; Prov. 1 26, 27, 27; יבוא Exod. 34 34; Numb. 7 89.

י"ה = § 85.

יבוא occurs four times, twice defective and twice plene. This is in accordance with the Eastern recension, since according to the Westerns Ezek. 46 8 is defective, as will be seen in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 78a, on Ezek. 34 34, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 77b, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 197a, on Ezek. 46 8; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 87b, on Numb. 7 89; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 124b, on Exod. 34 34; (VI) the same MS., fol. 200a on Numb. 7 89; (VII) the same MS., fol. 277b, on Ezek. 46 8, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 34 34.

י"ו = § 86.

יבוא is three times plene in the Pentateuch. Apart from the Pentateuch, this Kal infinitive with the prefix Caph also occurs five times plene (1 Sam. 4 5; 5 10; 2 Sam. 17 27; 2 Kings 5 6; Ezek. 23 44) and twice with the prefix Vav (Josh. 3 15; 8 29). By fixing the number at three, this Massorah militates against the reading of the celebrated Hellali Codex which exhibits יבוא defective in Gen. 12 14, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 122b, on Deut. 16 6, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 12 14. Jacob b. Chayim's List is hopelessly corrupt. It not only states that there are two such plenes in the Pentateuch (Gen. 12 14; Deut. 16 6), but declares that in one instance it is also plene with the prefix Vav. יבוא plene does not occur in the Pentateuch and the catchwords for it consist of a confusion of two passages, viz. Deut. 23 12 and 24 13.

¹ יבוא ב' מל' באר' דתי בוא ארז, בוא השם מועד צאחק סמניו, דור ובווא השם חשיב ל' את התבוא.

י"ז = § 87.

יבוא is six times defective. That is, without and with the prefix Vav, in contradistinction to the ten instances in which it is plene recorded in the previous Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 245b, on 2 Kings 10 2, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 76a, on Exod. 33 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 97a, on 1 Kings 22 36; (IV) the same MS., fol. 105a, on 2 Kings 10 2; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 250a, on 2 Kings 6 32; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 121b, on Exod. 33 9, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. List I, which I have printed, gives as the second instance יבוא ארן דיה = 1 Sam. 4 5 instead of כבא השמש = Deut. 23 12. But as כבא השמש is not only given in List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, but in all the other Lists and, moreover, as all the six Lists unanimously exclude יבוא ארן there can hardly be any doubt that ארן is a clerical error for השמש. It is remarkable that both Lists III and IV which correctly record the same six instances, not only head this Rubric יבוא ארן, but enumerate seven. List III gives יבוא ארן as the fifth passage and List IV gives יבוא ארן. Neither of these passages, however, is to be found in the present text. As this Rubric includes one instance with the prefix Vav, List VII rightly heads it יבוא ארן בליש'.

י"ח = § 88.

יבוא occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the reading יבוא in Josh. 3 15, which is exhibited in some MSS. and early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS., and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 136a, on Deut. 23 12, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the same on Josh. 8 29.

י"ט = § 89.

יבוא to come, is nine times defective. As this infinitive with the prefix Lamed which occurs altogether about eighty-eight times is defective in these nine instances only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. In fixing the number at nine, this Massorah defends the reading of the Jerusalem Codex in Gen. 48 7, against the Hellali Codex, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 119b, on Deut. 11 31, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 31b, on Judg. 18 9; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 103a, on Deut. 11 31; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 176a, on Judg. 18 9; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 83b, on Exod. 12 23; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Judg. 18 9; and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 48 7. It will be seen that all these Lists include the two instances of יבוא which are exceptionally defective. This accounts for the יבוא בליש' of List III.

י"א = § 90.

יבוא לרשת to go to possess, occurs twice in this book. That is, in Joshua. Apart from Joshua, it occurs five times (Deut. 9 1; 11 31; Judg. 18 9; Neh. 9 15, 23). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 12b, on Josh. 18 3.

י"ב = § 91.

יבוא and go, or come, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 132a, on Deut. 31 2, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 14a, on Josh. 14 11; (III) the same MS., fol. 278b, on 2 Chron. 33 14; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 121b, on Deut. 31 2; (V) the same MS., fol. 193a, on 1 Kings 13 16; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 506a, 2 Chron. 33 14; (VII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 1, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Deut. 31 2.

List IV heads this Rubric יבוא ארן it occurs four times and is plene, which is perfectly correct since this form of the infinitive with the prefixes Lamed and Vav is plene in all the four instances. The heading in the printed Massorah (List VIII), viz. יבוא ארן it occurs four times plene, is misleading for it suggests that in other passages it is defective, whereas it occurs four times only and is plene in all the instances. List VII heads this Rubric יבוא ארן and enumerates three only, viz. Deut. 31 2; Josh. 14 11 and 1 Kings 13 16, which implies that it is defective in 2 Chron. 33 14.

same passage. As this infinitive with the prefix Beth and the suffix third person plural masculine is five times defective in the textus receptus, this Rubric must be based upon a recension of the text in which Exod. 40 32 and Ezek. 42 14 were plene.

קין = § 103.

קין is three times defective. That is, in contradistinction to the six instances in which it is plene (1 Sam. 16 6; 18 6; Ezek. 44 17, 21; 46 10; Ezra 2 68). Of this Rubric, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 4445, fol. 71a, on Exod. 28 43; (II) the same MS., fol. 84b, on Exod. 40 32; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 268b, on 2 Chron. 20 10, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 28 43. The three instances are obtained in accordance with the artificial manner of the Massorah by counting the Pentateuch where קין occurs three times (Exod. 28 43; 30 20; 40 32) as one instance, and the two passages which respectively occur in the Prophets and the Hagiographa. List III discards this artificial arrangement and simply has it וכל ארץ רבתי... בבואם ב' הם. The printed Massorah (List IV) is hopelessly corrupt¹ and must be corrected in accordance with the three MS. Lists.

¹ בבואם כול' הם' כב' וס' ארץ כצרים. בבואם הנביא. בתוכם בבואם יבא.

קיד = § 104.

קיד when they came, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this infinitive with the prefix Beth and the suffix third person plural feminine which occurs twice, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards the variation. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 20a, on Gen. 30 38, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 194b, on Ezek. 42 12; (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 30 38, and (IV) the same on Ezek. 42 12.

קיה = § 105.

קיה their coming, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. By fixing the plene instances at two, the Massorah excludes the defective reading in Ruth 1 19b which is exhibited in several MSS. and early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 282b, on Ruth 1 19, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 298b, on the same passage, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 8 7. As it is with the prefix Caph in Ruth 1 19b, the heading ought more properly to be ב' בליש, but as we have seen, the expression בלישא is often omitted from the headings.

קיז = § 106.

קיז and go or come thou, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, the imperative singular feminine with the prefix Vav. In the other five instances where it occurs it is without this prefix (2 Sam. 13 11; 1 Kings 14 6; 17 13; Ezek. 37 9; Nah. 3 14).

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 216a, on 1 Kings 1 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 23a, on Isa. 47 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 76a, on 1 Kings 1 13; (IV) the same MS., fol. 139a, on Isa. 47 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 349b, on Cant. 4 16; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 13b, on Gen. 19 34; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 6b, on the same passage; (VIII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 1; (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 19 34, and (X) the same on 1 Kings 1 13. As it is plene in one instance (Cant. 4 16), Lists IV, V, VI, VII and IX rightly head this Rubric ב' בליש and List VII defines it still more by adding against the catchwords for Cant. 4 16 ב' בליש.

קיא = § 107.

קיא and come ye, occurs three times. This imperative plural masculine occurs altogether eleven times. In eight instances it is with Shurek (Gen. 45 18; Deut. 1 7; 2 Kings 10 6; Jerem. 49 14; Ps. 96 8; Job 17 10; 1 Chron. 16 29; 2 Chron. 30 8), and in three with Kametz. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 205a, on Joel 4 11, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 288a, on Ezek. 39 17; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ק, § 75.

קיא = § 108.

קיא he shall come, occurs twice with the accent. That is, with Munach on the penultima. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 123b, on Deut. 1 38, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 105a, on the same passage.

קיא = § 109a.

קיא he will come, is seven times plene in the Pentateuch. This Kal future third person singular masculine occurs altogether forty times in the Pentateuch. It is defective in thirty-three instances¹ and plene in seven only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. By fixing the number at seven, the Massorah militates against the Jerusalem Codex which reads קיא defective in Levit. 11 34 and קיא in Numb. 19 7, as well as against the Hellali Codex which reads קיא in Levit. 14 36b, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 74a, on Levit. 16 26, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 22a, on Gen. 32 9; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 97b, on Numb. 8 24; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 30b, on Gen. 32 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 152b, on Levit. 11 34; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 1, margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 16 26. List IV has the following mnemonic sign קיא קיא קיא קיא קיא קיא קיא, which I have found in no other MS.

¹ Comp. קיא defective Gen. 49 10; Exod. 18 15, 23; 21 3; 22 8; 29 30; Levit. 14 36, 36, 48; 16 2, 3; 21 11, 23; Numb. 6 6; 19 7; 20 24; 27 17; 31 23, 23; Deut. 1 38; 18 6, 22; 19 6; 23 2, 3, 8, 4, 4, 9, 11, 12; 25 5; 29 21.

קיא = § 109b.

קיא is seven times plene in the Pentateuch and throughout Isaiah it is likewise plene except once. With the exceptional orthography of the future third person singular masculine in the Pentateuch this recension of the Rubric combines the solitary exception in Isaiah. In this book, where it occurs twenty-one times, it is plene no fewer than twenty times¹ and defective in one instance only. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the unique passage.

The design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading קיא defective in Isa. 7 24 and 59 19 as well as against the Sevir קיא in Isa. 45 24 and 66 23 which is the textual reading in MSS. and early editions and is exhibited in the ancient Versions, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 102a, on Levit. 16 26, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 92a, on the same passage.

¹ Comp. קיא plene Isa. 1 23; 3 14; 5 26; 7 24; 13 6; 30 18; 32 10; 35 4, 4; 37 33; 40 10; 41 8; 45 24; 57 2; 59 19; 60 13, 20; 66 7, 15, 23.

קיא = § 110.

קיא is plene throughout Jeremiah except four times. In this book, where it occurs altogether twelve times, it is plene in eight instances¹ and defective in four only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. By thus fixing the number at four, the Massorah militates against the reading קיא defective in Jerem. 17 6, 15 and 21 13 which is exhibited both in MSS. and early editions, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 36 29. It is remarkable that both Jerem. 6 26 and 36 29 which are here described as exhibiting variations in the MSS. are plene in the text, though the Rubric itself counts them, as two of the four defective instances. A later Nakdan, however, erased the Vav in Jerem. 36 29 and remarked against it קיא. It is equally remarkable that Jerem. 17 6 and 21 13 which ought to be קיא plene are in the text of this Codex קיא defective. Such conflicts, however, between the Massorah and the textual readings of this MS. are of frequent occurrence.

¹ Comp. קיא plene Jerem. 4 12; 17 6, 15; 21 13; 46 18; 49 4, 36; 51 40.

ק"י = § 110*.

יבוא throughout Psalms, Job and Proverbs it is ק"י; defective except in five instances where it is plene. In these three poetical books, where it occurs altogether sixteen times, it is defective in eleven instances¹ and plene in five only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. In fixing the number at five, this Massorah militates against the reading ק"י plene in Ps. 121 1 which is exhibited in some MSS. and in the editio princeps of the Bible with the Massorah by Jacob b. Chayim. It, moreover, excludes the plene reading in Prov. 6 15, which I have given in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 1, margin. I have given it in the Massorah, Vol. III, p. 3, letter ב, § 110*.

¹ The eleven defective instances are as follows, five in the Psalms, viz. 37 13; 50 3; 55 6; 121 1; 126 6; three in Job, viz. 3 6, 25; 41 8, and three in Proverbs, viz. 6 15; 7 20, 22.

ק"י"א = § 111*.

יבוא is four times plene in this book. That is, in Job. This Rubric, which is from the printed Massorah on Job 5 21 and which I have given in the Massorah Vol. III, p. 3, letter ב, § 111*, simply records the instances in Job, where this future third person singular masculine occurs altogether seven times and is defective in three instances. It will be seen that the Massorah here, contrary to its usual method, records the majority.

ק"י"ב = § 111.

יבוא is twice defective in this book. That is, in Ezra-Nehemiah. Here, where it occurs altogether five times, it is plene in three instances (Ezra 10 8; Neh. 13 1, 19) and defective in two. Here, therefore, the Massorah records the minority. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 382b, on Neh. 6 11, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Ezra 10 8.

ק"י"ב = § 112.

יבוא. The instances of the defective and plene orthography of ק"י, which the preceding five Rubrics record in the separate books of the Bible are here given in one concatenation. The six links of which it consists are combined by separate headings which as usual, are more or less artificial.

(A) The first member of this chain states that Throughout the Pentateuch, Joshua and Judges it is always defective except in nine instances.

The Pentateuch. — In the Pentateuch, where it occurs forty times, it is defective in thirty-seven instances and plene in seven only. (Vide supra, § 109a.)

Joshua. — In Joshua it occurs once only and is plene (6 19). The declaration, therefore, that it is always defective in this book, which is made in the heading is simply artificial.

Judges. — In Judges, of which there is no separate Rubric, it occurs five times, four times defective, viz. 4 20; 13 12, 17; 14 18, and once plene, viz. 13 8. Here, therefore, the heading is strictly applicable.

(B) And in all the rest of the Prophets it is likewise plene except in six instances. The remaining Prophets embraced in this member of the chain are as follows:

Samuel. — In Samuel, of which there is no separate Rubric, it occurs altogether eleven times; there is only one defective instance, viz. 1 Sam. 2 34. All the other ten instances are plene, viz. 1 Sam. 2 36; 9 6; 21 16; 26 10; 2 Sam. 5 6, 8; 6 9; 15 4, 37; 18 27. Accordingly 1 Sam. 26 10, which is ק"י defective in my edition of the Bible and which is in accordance with Orient. 2201 first hand; Harley 5710—11; Harley 5720; Add. 15,451; Add. 15,251 first hand, the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485; the first edition of the Bible Soncino 1488; the third edition Brescia 1494; the Earlier Prophets, Pesaro 1511; the Complutensian; the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible by Felix Pratensis 1517 and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah 1524—25, must now be corrected into ק"י plene in accordance with this Massorah and with Orient. 2201 second hand; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 second hand and the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491—93.

Isaiah. — In Isaiah, of which there is no separate Rubric, it occurs twenty-one times. It is plene in twenty instances and defective once only. (Vide supra, letter ב, § 109b.)

Jeremiah. — In Jeremiah, where it occurs twelve times, it is plene in eight instances and defective in four. (Vide supra, letter ב, § 110.)

Ezekiel. — In Ezekiel, of which there is no separate Rubric, it occurs ten times and is defective in one instance only. Accordingly 20 38; 24 26; 44 3, 9, 25; 46 8, 10; 47 9, 9 are plene.

Minor Prophets. — Of the Minor Prophets there is also no separate List. Here it occurs eighteen times and is defective in one instance only. It is, therefore, plene in the following seventeen passages: Hosea 7 1; 9 4; 10 12; 13 15; Joel 1 15; Amos 5 9; Micah 1 15; 5 4, 5; 7 12; Habak. 1 9; 3 3, 16; Zeph. 2 2, 2; Zech. 9 9; Mal. 3 1.

(C) And throughout Kings, the Psalms, Job and Proverbs it is likewise defective except in six (five) instances.

Kings. — This book ought properly to belong to B and be included in the heading יבוא since it is in the Prophets and not in the Hagiographa, which this member of the chain discusses. There is no separate List of Kings. In this book ק"י occurs six times (1 Kings 14 13; 2 Kings 5 8; 6 32; 19 32, 33, 33) and is uniformly defective.

The Psalms, Job and Proverbs. — For the sixteen instances in these three poetical books, viz. the eleven defective and five plene see § 111.

(D) Canticles. — And throughout Canticles it is likewise plene except once. This heading is misleading, since it states that the plene orthography is the rule in this book, whereas it occurs only in one instance in the whole of Canticles and is defective (Cant. 4 16).

(E) Ecclesiastes. — And throughout Ecclesiastes it is likewise defective except once. This is still more misleading. Not only is the defective orthography of this future third person singular masculine not the rule in Ecclesiastes, but neither ק"י nor ק"י"א occurs in this book and the solitary instance which is adduced as an exception is ק"י"א with the prefix Shin.

(F) And throughout the Hagiographa it is likewise plene except in three instances. As the Psalms, Job, Proverbs, Canticles and Ecclesiastes, which belong to the Hagiographa, have already been noticed in this concatenation, the heading here ought more properly to be יבוא.

Lamentations. — In Lamentations it occurs altogether only once and is defective (4 12).

Ezra-Nehemiah. — For this book, where it occurs altogether five times, see ב, § 111.

It will be seen that Esther, Daniel and Chronicles are not included in this long Rubric. This is due to the fact that in Esther, where it occurs four times (4 11; 5 4, 8; 6 5), Daniel, where it occurs twice (11 13, 24), and Chronicles, where it occurs four times (2 Chron. 19 10; 23 6, 19; 25 7), it is uniformly plene.

From the above analysis we obtain the following results with regard to the orthography of this future third person singular masculine. Of the 159 instances in which it occurs, 94 are plene and 65 defective. The original defective spelling ק"י has uniformly maintained its position in Kings and Proverbs only. Its ascendancy is exhibited in the Pentateuch, Judges and the Psalms; whilst in the rest of the Bible ק"י, the later plene orthography has been introduced either wholly, as is the case in Daniel and Chronicles, or in the majority of instances. Moreover, even in some of the passages where the textus receptus has prevailed the Standard Codices of other textual redactors exhibit important variations.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 158a, on Levit. 14 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 201b, on Numb. 8 24; (III) the same MS., fol. 287a, on Habak. 3 3; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 458b, on Neh. 6 11, and (V) the printed Massorah on Numb. 8 24. The printed Massorah (List V) adds at the end that according to some, Prov. 6 15 is the only plene instance in this book (יבוא). Hence Proverbs where, apart from the Kethiv (18 17), it occurs altogether three times (6 15; 7 20, 22) and which is one of the two books wherein the original defective orthography is uniformly retained according to the textus receptus, is thus deprived of its preeminence by this School of textual redactors.

ק"י"ג = § 113.

יבוא the future third person singular, is according to the Sevir יבוא the plural in fourteen instances. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Levit. 11 34. Since the publication of this Rubric I have found it also in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 95a, on the same passage. This Massorah is exclusively restricted to the future third person singular masculine for which the extra official reading is the future third person plural. It is, therefore, distinct from ב, § 67, which records the several forms of this verb belonging to this category.

ק"י = § 114.

יבא it shall come upon me, is twice thus combined in the Scriptures. This Rubric is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 189b, on Ps. 55 6. As Jerem. 4 12 is יבא לי in the received text, it shows that יבא and לי respectively exhibit the readings of two different Schools of textual redactors and that each School guarded its reading in a separate Rubric.

קט"ו = § 115.

יבא לי it shall come unto me, occurs twice. This Massorah emanates from the School of textual redactors which preserved the reading לי in Jerem. 4 12. Hence the conflict between this Rubric and the preceding one.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 149b, on Jerem. 4 12 which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 241a on the same passage.

קט"ז = § 116.

יבא שמוע occurs twice with the accent. For this Rubric see ב, § 108.

ק"י"ז = § 117.

יבא and he shall come, is eleven times Raphe in the Scriptures. That is, with Sheva under the Vav in contradistinction to those numerous instances in which it is with Pathach.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated eighteen Lists, seventeen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 64b, on Jerem. 48 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 180a, on Ps. 24 9; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 281a, on Job 21 17; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 285a, on Dan. 11 7; (V) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 285b, on Dan. 11 15; (VI) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 26 2; (VII) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 37a, on 1 Sam. 4 3; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 129a, an Isa. 26 2; (IX) the same MS., fol. 136b, on Isa. 41 25; (X) the same MS., fol. 201a, on Hosea 6 3; (XI) the same MS., fol. 289a, on Ps. 24 9; (XII) the same MS., fol. 328b, on Job 21 17; (XIII) Add. 15,250, fol. 230a, on Isa. 41 25; (XIV) Add. 15,251, fol. 230b, on the same passage; (XV) the same MS., fol. 246a, on Jerem. 48 8; (XVI) Add. 15,451, fol. 300b, on the same passage; (XVII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 1, and (XVIII) the printed Massorah on Job 21 17.

List XI alone heads this Rubric properly יבא י"א ב"ל thus emphasising the fact that it is plene in two instances (Hos. 6 3; Ps. 24 7), which List I states at the end.

ק"י"ח = § 118.

יבא and he came, is fifteen times plene. With the exception of the book of Esther, this future third person singular masculine occurs upwards of two hundred and thirty times. As it is defective in about two hundred and eighteen instances and plene in fifteen only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

And throughout Esther it is likewise plene except twice. In Esther, where it occurs altogether six times and is plene in four instances (4 2, 9; 5 10; 6 6) and defective in two only, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated fifteen Lists, thirteen in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 97a, on 1 Kings 22 30, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 37a, on 1 Sam. 4 13; (III) the same MS., fol. 104b, on 2 Kings 9 30; (IV) the same MS., fol. 190a, on Ezek. 36 20; (V) the same MS., fol. 321b, on Job 1 6; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 197b, on 1 Kings 22 30; (VII) the same MS., fol. 291a, on Ezek. 40 6; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 247a, on Job 1 6; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 226a, on 1 Kings 7 14; (X) the same MS., fol. 244a, on 1 Kings 22 15; (XI) the same MS., fol. 313b, on Ezek. 14 1; (XII) the same MS., fol. 357b, on Isa. 38 1; (XIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 276b, on Ezek. 36 20; (XIV) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 4 13, and (XV) the same on Ezek. 40 6. List VII omits the second part of this Rubric which makes it unintelligible.

ק"י"ט = § 119a.

יבא and he came, is in twelve instances according to the Sevir and they came. This Massorah is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 93b, on Numb. 13 22. Its design is manifestly to record those instances only of the future third person singular masculine which are with Var conversive (יבא) for which the Sevir is יבאו the plural, just as § 113 catalogues exclusively the instances of this future without the prefix יבא. This is not only indicated in the heading, but in the addition at the end of the Rubric, which emphasises the fact that wherever יבא is followed by יבאו the extra-official reading is likewise יבאו the plural.

Accordingly six only out of the twelve instances properly belong to this Rubric, viz. יבא Numb. 13 22; 2 Sam. 3 35; 19 9; Ezek. 14 1; 23 44; 36 20. Four, viz. יבא Isa. 45 24; 66 28; Jerem. 51 48; Ezek. 20 38 belong to § 113, where they are duly given, whilst the two instances of יבא belong to § 67. As is often the case, a later Nakdan, who mistook the import of this Massorah not only mixed up the different forms of this verb, but altered the heading to correspond with the number of instances which he put promiscuously together.

ק"י"ט = 119b.

יבא. In eight instances this verb is in the singular as the textual reading, for which the Sevir substitutes the plural. This is simply another recension of § 67.

ק"י"ט = § 120.

יבאני he shall come upon him, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. That is, to distinguish it from the only other instance where it is יבאני with Tzere under the Aleph and without Dagesh in the Nun, being the suffix first person plural (Isa. 28 15).

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 347a, on Prov. 28 22.

ק"כ"א = § 121.

יבא she shall, or thou shalt come, is three times defective. That is, in the Prophets. It will be seen that the Massorah, as usual, which has regard simply to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in the sense, couples together the third person singular feminine (2 Sam. 13 5; Jerem. 2 3) with the second person singular masculine (1 Kings 22 25). This future, both as second person masculine and third person feminine, occurs altogether twenty-nine times in the Prophets. As it is plene in no fewer than twenty-six instances and defective in three only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 96b, on 1 Kings 22 25, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 197b, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 199b, also on the same passage. The headings of this Rubric afford a striking illustration of the difficulty in deciphering the Massorah. Thus Lists I and III simply state that it is three times defective, whereas it is defective in no fewer than fifteen instances. The three times must, therefore, refer to the Prophets alone and the word בניאם must be supplied. The heading in List II יבא בנאם it is three times defective in this book, i. e. Kings is still more puzzling, since it occurs only once in Kings and the other two instances are in Samuel and Jeremiah. בניאם must, therefore, be a scribal error for בניאם.

ק"כ"ב = § 122.

יבא is seventeen times defective. That is, as future second person masculine and third person feminine. In the Pentateuch, where it occurs altogether twenty-two times, it is plene in thirteen instances and defective in nine. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. The Massorah, after enumerating the nine instances, adds אלו הם בניאם these are defective in the Law.

The following are in the Prophets and Hagiographa. In these two divisions of the Bible apart from Proverbs it occurs altogether fifty-seven times. It is plene in forty-nine instances and defective in eight only. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority.

And throughout Proverbs it is likewise defective except in four instances where it is plene. In Proverbs, where it occurs altogether eight times, it is defective in four instances (3 25; 4 14; 23 10; 26 2) and plene in four. As this is the only book in the Bible where the two kinds of spelling occur in equal numbers it occupies a part of the Rubric by itself.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 70a, on Levit. 12 4, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4446, fol. 65a, on Exod. 23 27; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 321b, on Job 1 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 331a, on Job 29 13; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 45b, on Exod. 23 27; (VI) the same MS., fol. 347b, on Job 2 2; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 136a, on Deut. 23 26; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 267b, on Job 2 2; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 255b, on Deut. 1 37; (X) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 1, margin; (XI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 12 4, and (XII) the same on Job 2 2. Lists VI and X omit the third part of this Rubric, which excepts Proverbs from the seventeen instances, and thus render this Massorah unintelligible. List X, moreover, heads this Rubric with the prefix Vav and enumerates sixteen only, omitting 1 Kings 22 25 which is manifestly incorrect.

קני - § 123.

קני is ten times plene. That is, in the Prophets. As the defective and plene orthography of this future third person singular feminine with the prefix Vav varies in the different books, the Massorah separates the three Divisions of the Bible, according to the predominance of the one or the other mode of spelling.

The Pentateuch. — The Pentateuch, where it occurs twice, is omitted because there is no difference in its spelling in this Division, since it maintains here the primitive orthography in both instances (Gen. 8 11; 19 38).

The Prophets. — In this Division it occurs altogether thirty-six times. Here it is defective in twenty-six instances and plene in ten. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. In fixing the number at ten, this Massorah militates against the redactions of other Schools which read it plene in Judg. 19 26, as will be seen from the note on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

The Hagiographa. — And throughout the Hagiographa it is likewise plene except twice: In this Division it occurs altogether twelve times. It is plene in ten instances and defective in two only. Here, therefore, the exceptional orthography is safeguarded. In fixing the number of the defectives at two, the Massorah militates against the Eastern recension, which reads it defective in Ruth 2 7 and which is also the reading in the earliest editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 63a, on 2 Sam. 11 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 71b, on 2 Sam. 20 22; (III) the same MS., fol. 106b, on 2 Kings 11 16; (IV) the same MS., fol. 180b, on Ezek. 22 4; (V) the same MS., fol. 187b, on Ezek. 33 4; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 169b, on 2 Sam. 11 4; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 279a, on Ezek. 22 4; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 280b, on Ezek. 37 10, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 22 4. List VII omits the Hagiographa which makes the Rubric unintelligible.

1 Comp. קני defective Judg. 9 57; 13 6; 19 14, 26; 1 Sam. 25 36; 2 Sam. 8 5; 1 Kings 1 15, 28; 2 19; 10 1, 2, 2; 14 4, 17; 21 5; 2 Kings 4 7, 26, 27, 36, 37; 11 18; 24 10; 25 2; Jerem. 52 6; Ezek. 2 2; 3 24.

2 Comp. קני plene Job 37 8; Ruth 2 8, 7, 18; 3 16; 2 Chron. 9 1, 1; 23 12, 15; 30 27.

קני - § 124.

קני and she came upon them, occurs twice. That is, this Kal future third person singular feminine with and without the prefix Vav, is in two instances followed by the preposition with the suffix third person plural masculine, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this phrase occurs and where it is קני (Judg. 19 14). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 26a, on Judg. 9 57.

קני - § 125.

קני she shall come upon him, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 247b, on Prov. 11 27, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 340a, on Prov. 10 24; (III) the same MS., fol. 340b, on Prov. 11 27; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 360b, on Prov. 10 24; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 1, margin, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Prov. 11 27. List V has the following mnemonic sign עשילת דחיל בישא.

קני - § 126.

קני thou shalt come, occurs three times in this form. That is, this future second person singular feminine without and with the prefix Vav, in contradistinction to the future second person singular masculine which is of frequent occurrence.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 86a, on Ezek. 16 7, which I have printed, and (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 260a, on Ruth 3 17. The conflict between these two Massorahs is manifestly due to the fact that they are based upon two different recensions of the text. List I emphatically states that Ezek. 16 7 is קני defective and this is confirmed by many of the Standard Codices and all the early editions except two, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Orient. 2627; Orient. 1474 on which this Massorah is given &c. for which reason I have adopted it in my edition. List II, however, heads this Massorah קני and hence is based upon a recension which had קני plene in Ezek. 16 7. This is the reading in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Add. 15,452; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485-86, and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah. It is remarkable that the Model Codex itself, which gives this recension of the Massorah (Harley 5710-11), is one of the MSS. which read קני defective.

קני - § 127.

קני I shall come, is five times defective. This Kal future first person singular without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether thirty-three times. As it is plene in twenty-eight instances and defective in five only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 228b, on 1 Kings 13 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 211b, on Ps. 118 19; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 817b, on Ps. 132 3; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 17a, on Gen. 24 42; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 32a, on Gen. 33 14; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 41a, on Gen. 24 42; (VII) the same MS., fol. 47a, on Gen. 33 14; (VIII) Cambridge Add. 465, on Gen. 24 42, which alone has the mnemonic sign, and (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

As this Rubric includes the one instance in which it is קני with the prefix Vav Lists I, II and VI rightly head it קני. List IX expresses it by קני.

1 Comp. קני plene Gen. 38 16; Exod. 20 21; 1 Sam. 29 8; 2 Sam. 11 11; 1 Kings 1 14; Ezek. 38 11; Hos. 11 9; Mal. 3 24; Ps. 5 8; 26 4; 42 8; 66 13; 71 16; 78 17; Job 23 3; Esther 4 16; Neh. 2 7, 8; 6 11; קני 2 Sam. 17 2; Isa. 37 24; קני Ezek. 3 15; 8 10; 16 8; Neh. 2 9, 11, 15; 13 7.

קני - § 128.

קני and I shall come, occurs twice. That is, with Sheva under the prefix Vav, in contradistinction to the eight instances where it is with Kametz, for which see the note to the preceding Rubric. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 134a, on Isa. 37 24.

קני - § 129.

קני and I will come, occurs four times, and once it is without the prefix Vav . . . the second instance, viz. Judg. 15 1 is defective. That is, in these five instances this Kal future first person singular is with paragogic He. In fixing the instances with Vav conjunctive (ה) at five, the Massorah militates against the ancient reading קני in 2 Kings 19 23, which is exhibited in the Septuagint and which is now accepted by most textual critics as preferable.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 149a, on 2 Chron. 1 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 113b, on 2 Kings 19 23; (III) the same MS., fol. 294b, on Ps. 43 4; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 19b, on Gen. 29 21; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 21a, on the same passage; (VI) the same MS., fol. 261b, on 2 Kings 19 23; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 24a, on Gen. 29 21; (VIII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 1, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 29 21.

קני - § 130.

קני they shall come, is three times plene. This future third person plural masculine occurs fifty-three times. It is defective in fifty instances and plene in three only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 196b, on 1 Sam. 31 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 200b, on Pa. 86 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 56b, on 1 Sam. 31 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 305b, on Pa. 86 9; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 335a, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 363a, also on the same passage; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 203a, on 1 Sam. 31 4; (VIII) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (IX) the same on Pa. 86 9.

קליא = § 131

קליא and they shall come, is seven times Rāphe. This future third person plural masculine is preceded by the Vav no fewer than 196 times. In 189 instances the Vav in Massoretic language is with Dagesh = Pathach, i. e. is Vav conversive, whilst in seven instances only, is it Rāphe = with Sheva, i. e. conjunctive. Hence, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the most ancient and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated thirteen Lists, ten in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 149b, on Josh. 18 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 65, on Isa. 13 2; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 91a, on Ezek. 33 31; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 56a, on Exod. 14 17; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 13a, on Josh. 18 4; (VI) the same MS., fol. 124a, on Isa. 13 2; (VII) the same MS., fol. 149a, on Jerem. 3 18; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 88a, on Exod. 14 16; (IX) the same MS., fol. 255b, on Deut. 10 11; (X) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah II, § 1; (XI) the printed Massorah on Josh. 18 4; (XII) the same on Isa. 13 2, and (XIII) the same on Jerem. 3 18.

Though most of the Lists state at the end (ברר' כל) that in Ezek. 33 31 it is plene, yet List IX alone heads this Rubric with וישא דר' ח' and adds against the catchwords for Ezek. 33 31 that this is the plene instance which is more precise. List XIII heads it וישא דר' ח', thus affording another proof that וישא and דר' are synonymous in Massoretic terminology and denote Sheva.

קליב = § 132.

קליב and they came, is three times plene. As this future third person plural with Vav conversive occurs no fewer than 189 times and is defective in 186 instances and plene in three only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. By fixing the number at three, the Massorah militates against the reading קליב defective in Jerem. 8 16 which is exhibited both in MSS. and the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 247a, on 2 Kings 11 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 37a, on Jerem. 8 16; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 166b, on 2 Chron. 29 18; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 106b, on 2 Kings 11 19; (V) the same MS., fol. 158a, on Jerem. 8 16; (VI) the same MS., fol. 257a, on 2 Chron. 29 18; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 482a, on the same passage; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 243b, on Jerem. 8 16, and (IX) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 11 19.

קליג = § 133.

קליג. A sign for the spelling of this future third person plural feminine. The design of this Massorah is to indicate where this form is plene. Apart from קליג, which is simply the catchword for this sign and the spelling of which without the He is unique, this Rubric catalogues the five instances of this futura without and with the prefix Vav which are plene, in contradistinction to the seven instances in which it is defective, viz. Gen. 41 21; Exod. 2 16, 18; 1 Kings 3 16; Isa. 44 7; 47 9; 48 8. This is evident from the remark at the end of the Rubric, which emphatically states that in all the other instances where this future occurs it is defective. Accordingly this Massorah is based upon Codices which exhibited קליג in 1 Sam. 10 7. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 26b, on Gen. 30 38, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 2 16.

קליד = § 134.

קליד and they shall come, occurs twice, once at the beginning of the verse and once at the end. That is, with Vav conjunctive, in contradistinction to the instances in which it is with Vav conversive, recorded in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 153a, on Jerem. 9 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 139b, on Isa. 47 9, and (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 273b, on Jerem. 9 16.

קליה = § 135.

קליה and they came, occurs five times. That is, with Pathach under the Vav, in contradistinction to the two instances in which it is Rāphe or with Sheva. (Vide supra, § 134.) The design of this Massorah is to exclude the textual reading or Kethiv in Esther 4 4, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 23a, on Isa. 48 3, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 139b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 360a, on Esther 4 4; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 26b, on Gen. 41 21; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 42a, on Exod. 2 16; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 39a, on the same passage; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 66a, also on the same passage; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 310b, on Esther 4 4; (IX) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah II, § 1, margin, and (X) the printed Massorah on Exod. 2 16. Not only do none of these Lists state that according to the official reading or Keri the instance in Esther 4 4 is plene, but those Lists which give it in the catchwords have it defective, as it is in all the other four instances.

קליז = § 136.

קליז we shall come, is three times defective. This future first person plural without and with Vav conversive occurs altogether twelve times. It is plene in nine instances and defective in three only. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional orthography. This was deemed especially necessary since the two different spellings occur within a few verses of each other (comp. 2 Kings 7 4, 12).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 102b, on 2 Kings 7 12, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 37 10. According to this Massorah, therefore, Ezra 8 32 must be קליז plene. This is corroborated by the Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 &c. and by all the early editions except one, viz. by the first, second, third and fourth editions of the Bible, the Complutensian, the first Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517, and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25. קליז defective I have found in Add. 15,451, and in the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486—87. Accordingly קליז defective Ezra 8 32 in my edition of the Bible is to be corrected into קליז plene.

1 Comp. קליז plene Gen. 20 13; 37 10; 2 Kings 7 4; Jerem. 2 31; 42 14; Job 9 32; Neh. 4 5; קליז 1 Sam. 10 14; Ezra 8 32.

קליז = § 137.

קליז and we shall come, occurs twice and is plene. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 152b, on Jerem. 14 14.

קליח = § 138.

קליח and let us come, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. That is, the future first person plural with paragogic He and with or without the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 149b, on Jerem. 4 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 317b, on Pa. 132 7, and (III) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 4 5. As one of the instances is without the prefix Vav, List II heads this Rubric more correctly וישא דר' ח' whilst List III has it וישא דר' ח' and adds at the end וישא דר' ח'.

קליט = § 139.

קליט and he that cometh, occurs six times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ב, § 72.

קליט = § 140.

קליט and coming in, occurs three times. That is, to distinguish this trilateral with Kametz under the Vav where it is the par-

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 23, which I have printed, and (II) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 1.

נסה = § 163.

בְּבִיאָה bring thou [masculine], occurs three times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. That is, this imperative singular masculine with He paragogic, in contradistinction to this quinqueliteral with Tzere under the He which also occurs three times without and once with the prefix Vav, but which is the preterite third person singular feminine. (Vide supra, letter ב, § 152.)

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 110a, on Amos 4 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 253b, on Prov. 23 12; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 206a, on Amos 4 1; (IV) the same MS., fol. 345a, on Prov. 23 12; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 19a, on Gen. 27 7; (VI) the same MS., fol. 378b, on Amos 4 1; (VII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 1, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 27 7. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without and once with the prefix Vav. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 73.)

נסיה = § 164.

בְּבִיאָה bring thou [feminine], occurs three times. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the textual reading or Kethiv בְּבִיאָה both in Isa. 16 3 and 43 6. That the Kethiv in Isa. 43 6 is בְּבִיאָה and that בְּבִיאָה is the Keri is attested by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 and Harley 5710—11.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 64b, on 2 Sam. 13 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 137a, on Isa. 43 6; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 171a, on 2 Sam. 13 10, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 67.

נסיה = § 165.

בְּבִיאָה bring ye, occurs three times in the Scriptures. By fixing the number of this imperative second person plural masculine at three, this Massorah militates against the Kethiv in Isa. 16 3; 43 6.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 28b, on Gen. 42 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 49b, on Jerem. 27 12; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 128a, on Mal. 3 10; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 33a, on Gen. 42 19; (V) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 27 12; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 164a, on the same passage; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 287b, also on the same passage; (VIII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 1, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 42 19.

נסיה = § 166.

בְּבִיאָה and bring ye, occurs six times in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to distinguish this imperative second person plural which, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether nine times (vide supra, letter ב, § 165) from the preterite third person plural with Tzere under the He (בְּבִיאָה), which occurs thirty times without and with the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 110a, on Amos 4 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 297b, on Neh. 8 15; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 33a, on Gen. 42 34; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 27 12; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 206a, on Amos 4 4; (VI) the same MS., fol. 275b, on 2 Chron. 29 31; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 432b, on the same passage; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 287b, on Jerem. 27 12; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 48b, on Gen. 42 34; (X) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 1; (XI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 42 34, and (XII) the same on 2 Chron. 29 31. Seven out of the twelve Lists (III, IV, VI—X) combine the preceding Rubric and this in one Massorah with the heading בְּבִיאָה וְבִיאָה.

נסיה = § 167.

בְּבִיאָה he shall bring, is five times defective. As this Hiphil future third person singular masculine, which occurs altogether thirteen times (see the following Rubric), is plene in eight instances and defective in five, the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the minority. This was deemed necessary since the MSS. of the less dominant School had it בְּבִיאָה plene in Cant. 8 11, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 88a, on Numb. 6 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 197b, on Ps. 78 29; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 76b, on Numb. 6 10; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 308a, on Eecl. 12 14, and (V) the printed Massorah on Cant. 8 11.

נסיה = § 168.

בְּבִיאָה he shall bring, occurs thirteen times, five times defective and eight plene.

Of this Rubric I collated eighteen Lists, sixteen in MSS. and two printed. Of these I specify the following ten only: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 154a, on Josh. 23 15, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 163a, on 2 Chron. 24 11; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 123a, on Numb. 6 13; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 17a, on Josh. 23 15; (V) the same MS., fol. 161a, on Jerem. 27 11; (VI) the same MS., fol. 303b, on Ps. 78 29; (VII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 1; (VIII) Cambridge Add. 465, on Levit. 7 29, which alone gives the mnemonic sign; (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (X) the same on Ps. 78 19.

Though List VII states in the heading that בְּבִיאָה occurs fifteen times, it rightly enumerates thirteen only; List IX is corrupt. Jacob b. Chayim too states in the heading that it occurs fifteen times and attempts to obtain this number by wrongly dividing the catchwords, since בְּבִיאָה is no verse and כִּי אֲמַרְתָּ וְכָל הַדְּבָרִים וְיָבֵן בְּבִיאָה, which he gives as two separate catchwords, are one verse (Eecl. 12 14). Besides בְּבִיאָה should be בְּבִיאָה. It is remarkable that בְּבִיאָה is also given as a catchword in List VII. A later Nakdan, however, has erased it and substituted for it בְּבִיאָה בְּבִיאָה = 2 Chron. 24 11.

נסיה = § 169.

בְּבִיאָה and he brought, occurs three times in this book. This quadriliteral with Patach under the Vav and Kametz under the *Vo*l with Dagesh, occurs altogether 271 times. In 220 instances it is with Cholem on the Beth, being the Kal future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive (vide supra, letter ב, § 118), and in 51 instances only is it with Tzere under the Beth, being the Hiphil future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive. Hence, the Massorah in §§ 169—171 safeguards this Hiphil form which is the minority against being confused with the Kal. The Rubric before us and the following Rubric show that the Massorites, as is usually the case with long Lists, originally worked on the text of the several books, though the separate registers of the other books have not as yet come to light.

The separate List on Samuel, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Sam. 18 27. It will be seen that the catchword for 1 Sam. 19 7 is here בְּבִיאָה instead of בְּבִיאָה as it is in the received text. Whether the Massorite based this Rubric on MSS. which had this reading, or whether it is due to a clerical error in this carefully written Standard Codex is difficult to divine.

נסיה = § 170.

בְּבִיאָה occurs ten times in Kings. Of this separate Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 95a, on 1 Kings 20 39, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

נסיה = § 171.

בְּבִיאָה occurs fifty-one times. That the design of this Massorah is to militate against the Codices of other Schools, which exhibited the Kal where we now have the Hiphil and vice versa, is evident from the following instances. In Gen. 27 18 the Massoretic reading is בְּבִיאָה the Kal, whereas the text from which the Septuagint and Vulgate were made exhibited בְּבִיאָה the Hiphil. Again in Ps. 105 40 the received text is בְּבִיאָה the Hiphil, whilst the ancient text, according to the Septuagint and Vulgate was בְּבִיאָה the Kal.

Of this Rubric I collated thirteen Lists, twelve in MSS. and one printed; (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 59b, on Exod. 37 5, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 48a, on 1 Sam. 19 7; (III) the same MS., fol. 111a, on 2 Kings 17 24; (IV) the same MS., fol. 179a, on Ezek. 17 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 260a, on 2 Chron. 5 1; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 157a, on 1 Sam. 19 7; (VII) the same MS., fol. 425a, on 2 Chron. 15 18; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 335a, on the same passage; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 248b, on 2 Kings 4 42; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 180b, on Exod. 38 7; (XI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezek. 17 12; (XII) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 1, and (XIII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 37 5.

List VII is very instructive, inasmuch as it affords a striking proof of the fact that in the case of lengthy catalogues the beginning only is given. Though the heading states that there are fifty-one such instances, the first ten alone are recorded. List XIII, as is frequently the case with Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, is incorrect. Thus for instance תרע"ג and תרע"ב, which are given as two passages, are one instance and ought to be תרע"ג אף על גב דתרע"ב Exod. 40 21. The same is the case with ויצעקו אל יי רישם מצור and ויצעקו אל יי רישם מצור but represent one instance and ought to be ויצעקו אל יי רישם מצור Josh. 24 7.

קע"ב = § 172.

ויבא and he brought me, is twice defective. This Hiphil future third person singular masculine with the prefix Vav occurs altogether nine times. In seven instances it is plene (Ezek. 40 17, 28, 32, 35; 41 1; 44 4; 46 19) and in two only is it defective. Hence, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This protection was especially necessary, since all the nine instances occur in the same book and the two different spellings occur in the same chapter.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 121a, on Ezek. 40 48, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 293a, on the same passage.

קע"ג = 173.

ויבאו is three times defective in this form. That is, three forms of the Hiphil future with the prefix Vav, one with the suffix first person plural, and two with the suffix third person plural are defective of Yod. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 85 on Deut. 26 9, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 137b, on the same passage. From the notes on Jerem. 24 1 in my edition of the Bible it will be seen why this passage is described in the Massorah before us as being the subject of various reading. These three instances are part of the Rubric which records the defectives of the Hiphil generally. (Vide supra, letter ב, § 144.)

קע"ד = § 174.

ויבאו and he brought him, is five times plene. That is, in the Law and the Prophets where this Hiphil future third person singular with the suffix third person singular masculine and the prefix Vav occurs altogether nine times. It is defective in four instances (1 Sam. 17 54, 57; Jerem. 37 14; 52 11) and plene in five. It will be seen that the Massorah, contrary to its usual method, records here the majority. This is due to the artificial form of the Rubric.

And throughout the Hagiographa it is likewise plene except once. This part of the Rubric is misleading, since it implies that ויבאו is of frequent occurrence in this third division of the Bible. It occurs here three times only and the three instances are restricted to Chronicles, where it is twice plene (2 Chron. 25 23; 36 4) and once defective.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 44a, on Gen. 29 13, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32a, on Judg. 19 21; (III) the same MS., fol. 45b, on 1 Sam. 16 12; (IV) the same MS., fol. 100a, on 2 Kings 4 20; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 21, on Gen. 29 13; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 23b, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. The printed Massorah, which heads it simply ויבאו and adds at the end ויבאו, is not quite exact, since it suggests that this expression occurs altogether five times apart from Chronicles and is always plene. The second part of this Rubric, however, in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah ויבאו ויבאו is better, since it avoids the ambiguity of this part in the other Lists.

קע"ה = § 175.

ויבאה and he brought her, occurs four times twice plene and twice defective. As the four instances are spelt in two different ways, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard these different spellings.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, six in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 213b, on 1 Kings 3 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 284a, on Dan. 9 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 78a, on 1 Kings 3 1; (IV) the same MS., fol. 371b, on Dan. 9 14; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 225b, on 1 Kings 3 1; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 15b, on Gen. 24 67; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 2 22; (VIII) the same on Gen. 24 67; (IX) the same on 1 Kings 3 1, and (X) the same on Dan. 9 14. Most of the Lists state that the first two instances are defective and the second are plene. It will thus be seen that it is in Genesis where the primitive orthography has been preserved. List VIII heads this Rubric ביה and records the two instances only which are defective.

קע"ז = § 176.

תיביא thou shalt or she shall bring, occurs thirteen times. Here again the Massorah has regard simply to the identity of the spelling, irrespective of the fact that in two out of the thirteen instances it is the future third person singular feminine (Levit. 12 6; Prov. 31 14).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 128a, on Deut. 26 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 44a, on Jerem. 18 22; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 227b, on Job 14 3; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 258a, on Prov. 31 14; (V) Orient. 4445, fol. 64b, on Exod. 23 19; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 326a, on Job 14 3; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 62b, on Levit. 12 6; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 236a, on Isa. 58 7; (IX) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 1; (X) the printed Massorah on Exod. 23 19, and (XI) the same on Isa. 58 7.

קע"ז = § 177.

ויבאה and she brought him, is twice defective in the Scriptures and once plene. As these three instances are spelt in two different ways, the Massorah safeguards the respective spelling. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 35a, on Exod. 2 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 35b, on 1 Sam. 1 24; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 65b, on Exod. 2 10; (IV) the same MS. fol. 289b, on 1 Sam. 1 24; (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 2 10 and (VI) the same on 1 Sam. 1 24.

קע"ח = § 178.

ואבא and I brought, is twice defective. This Hiphil future first person singular with Vav conversive occurs altogether seven times. As it is plene in five instances (Josh. 24 8 Keri; Judg. 2 1; 1 Sam. 15 20; Jerem. 2 7; 11 8) and defective in two only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 170b, on Jerem. 35 4, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 19 4. The printed Massorah (List II) not only states in the heading that there are three such defective instances (ואבא וואבא וואבא), but enumerates three, giving וואבא אל ארץ and וואבא אל ארץ as the second of the three instances. This Rubric must, therefore, emanate from a School of textual redactors whose Codices read it וואבא in Jerem. 2 7.

קע"ט = § 179.

ויביאו they shall bring, occurs nine times in the Scriptures. Of this very popular Massorah I collated fifteen Lists, fourteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 273b, on Esther 6 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 75a, on Levit. 17 5; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 97b, on Numb. 18 13; (IV) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 220a, on 1 Kings 5 8; (V) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 299b, on Neh. 10 40; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 79b, on 1 Kings 5 8; (VII) the same MS., fol. 147a, on Isa. 66 20; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 361b, on Esther 6 8; (IX) the same MS., fol. 386b, on Neh. 10 40; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 90b, on Exod. 16 5; (XI) the same MS., fol. 95a, on Exod. 18 23;

(6) קָשַׁיִם 10 9.
קָשַׁיִם St. Petersburg Codex; Orient 2201; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; the first, second and third editions of the Bible; the Pesaro edition of the Latter Prophets; the fourth edition of the Bible; the Complutensian; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah.
קָשַׁיִם Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,451 and the editio princeps of the Prophets.
 (7) 2 Chronicles 22 9.
קָשַׁיִם Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah.
קָשַׁיִם Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451; the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486—87; the first, second, third and fourth editions of the Bible; the Complutensian and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, margin.

This detailed analysis will confirm my oft-repeated statement that the Standard Codices as well as their sundry Massorahs exhibit different recensions which emanate from different Schools of textual redactors, and that the attempt to reduce them to uniformity is simply to obliterate the several traditions which were preserved in the respective Schools. In the List which I have printed, six instances only are enumerated though the heading states that there are seven. There can hardly be any doubt that the omission of Ezek. 19 9 is due to a clerical error, since it is not only given in all the other Lists, but in List II which is from this very MS.

קָשַׁיִם = § 183.

קָשַׁיִם it shall be brought, occurs five times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 247a, on 2 Kings 12 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 247b, on 2 Kings 12 17; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 90a, on Levit. 6 23; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 106b, on 2 Kings 12 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 153b, on Jerem. 10 9; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 68a, on Levit. 6 23; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 72b, on the same passage; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 144b, also on the same passage; (IX) the same MS., fol. 152b, on Levit. 11 32; (X) the printed Massorah on Levit. 6 23, and (XI) the same on 2 Kings 12 5.

קָשַׁיִם = § 184.

קָשַׁיִם are brought, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 53b, on Gen. 43 18, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 23 42; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 182a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 186a, on Ezek. 30 11; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 50a, on Gen. 43 18; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 1, margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 30 11.

קָשַׁיִם = § 185.

קָשַׁיִם they shall despise, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. As this Kal future third person plural masculine which occurs three times, is not only differently spelt, but varies in its orthography within a few verses of each other (Cant. 8 1, 7), the Massorah safeguards this variation. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 262b, on Cant. 8 7, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 301b, on the same passage. The needless addition of קָשַׁיִם at the end of the line Rubric is simply due to the Scribe who wished to fill up the line.

קָשַׁיִם = § 186.

קָשַׁיִם to shame, occurs twice in the Scriptures . . . and both are plene. The design of this Massorah is to distinguish this noun with the prefix Lamed from the same quadrilateral with Cholem on the Vav, which also occurs twice and which is the Kal infinitive form קָשַׁיִם. (Vide supra, letter ב, § 204.)
 Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 247b, on Prov. 12 8, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 340b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 26a, on Gen. 38 23; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 389a, on Prov. 12 8; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 50a, on Gen. 38 23, and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קָשַׁיִם = § 187.

קָשַׁיִם occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, in two different senses. In one instance it is the name of the month Bul (1 Kings 6 38) and in the other it denotes increase, food.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah in this separate form, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 240a, on Job 40 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 335a, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 188a, on 1 Kings 6 38. The last has the more correct heading קָשַׁיִם. This pair form part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 248, Vol. II, p. 217 etc.)

קָשַׁיִם = § 188.

קָשַׁיִם trodden down, or weltering, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176a, on Ezek. 16 22. As both instances do not only occur in the same book, but in the same section, the heading ought more properly to be קָשַׁיִם.

קָשַׁיִם = § 189.

קָשַׁיִם is twice defective. This noun, which occurs twenty-five times, is plene in twenty-three instances and in two only is it defective. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 123, and is designed to exclude the defective reading קָשַׁיִם in Exod. 21 33a, which is preserved in the celebrated Hellali Codex, thus making the spelling in the two clauses of the same verse uniform, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric emanates from the Eastern School of textual redactors, since it is the Madinechat who read קָשַׁיִם defective in Prov. 28 17 whilst the Maarbat or Westerns, whose text we follow, read it קָשַׁיִם plene.

קָשַׁיִם = § 190.

קָשַׁיִם and the pit, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 49b, on Gen. 37 24, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 59b, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (IV) the same on Jerem. 41 9.

קָשַׁיִם = § 191.

קָשַׁיִם his pit, or cistern, occurs twice. As this expression, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt in the two parallel passages, being defective in the first instance and plene in the second, this Massorah is designed to safeguard the variation. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 133b, on Isa. 36 16. The Massorah Parva on this expression in the same MS. and in the same place is more distinct, viz. קָשַׁיִם.

קָשַׁיִם = § 192.

קָשַׁיִם pits, or cisterns, without and with the prefixes occurs five times, and the absence of both Vavs is unique . . . in Deut. 6 11 it is defective of both Vavs, whilst in all the other passages the first Vav only is absent. Throughout Jeremiah, however, the plural is קָשַׁיִם with Aleph.

To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark (1) that there are two forms of this noun, viz. קָשַׁיִם with Aleph and קָשַׁיִם with Vav; (2) that in the case of the singular of the form קָשַׁיִם the absence of the Vav is the exception (vide supra, letter ב, § 189), whilst in the plural which occurs altogether five times as recorded in the Rubric before us, it is the invariable rule, and (3) that in one instance even the second Vav is absent.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 116a, on Deut. 6 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 42b, on 1 Sam. 13 6; (III) the same MS., fol. 273a, on 2 Chron. 26 10; (IV) the same MS., fol. 385b, on Neh. 9 25; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 162a, on 1 Sam. 13 6; (VI) the same MS., fol. 399a, on Neh. 9 25; (VII) the same MS., fol. 430b, on 2 Chron. 26 10; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 38b, on Gen. 37 20; (IX) the same MS., fol. 267a, on Deut. 6 11, and (X) the printed Massorah on Gen. 37 20. List III adds at the end of the Rubric קָשַׁיִם.

רִיט = § 219b.

רִיט is twice plene in the Prophets . . . and throughout the Hagiographa it is likewise so except five times. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 134a, on Isa. 37 10, on Ps. 84 13; (II) the same MS., fol. 305b, on Ps. 84 13; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 120a, on Deut. 28 52, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Prov. 28 25. Lists II and IV reverse the two parts of this Rubric, whilst List III divides it into three parts, giving the one defective instance in the Pentateuch first, then the two plene instances in the Prophets and lastly the five defectives in the Hagiographa. It will be seen that though List I states that there are five defectives in the Hagiographa it records three only, omitting Ps. 21 8; and 135 18. As these are duly given not only in List IV, but in List II, which is from the same MS., there can hardly be any doubt that the omission is due to the carelessness of the Scribe. All these four Lists give Prov. 28 25 as one of the five defectives in the Hagiographa. It is, therefore, evident that this recension also includes the instances of this participle with the prefix Vav which occurs once defective in this division of the Bible. The importance of this recension, however, consists in the fact that it emanates from the Eastern School of textual redactors, since, unlike § 219a, it excludes Jerem. 5 17 from the plenes, and since the official Lists testify that the Madinchai only read it here רִיט defective. As this defective orthography is also exhibited in some of the Standard Western Codices and in all but two of the early editions, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Orient. 1474; Orient. 4227; the editio princeps of the Prophets; the first second and third editions of the Bible; the Complutensian; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, it clearly proves that no argument can be derived from a particular reading that a MS. is of an Eastern or Western recension because it exhibits a reading which according to the official Lists belongs to Eastern or Western Schools of textual redactors. It is important to remark that the Massorah Parva in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 or in the so-called Babylonian Codex on Jerem. 12 5 which states רִיט is not Babylonian, but Palestinian, since according to the Easterns it is רִיט plene twice only (Isa. 37 10; Jerem. 12 5) and רִיט defective in Jerem. 5 17. Moreover, רִיט should be רִיט.

רִיב = § 220.

רִיב he trusteth, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this participle singular masculine, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt in each case, the Massorah safeguards the difference in its orthography. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 313a, on Ps. 112 7, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter states that the plene instance is in Isa. 26 3.

רִכא = § 221.

רִכא he shall cause to trust, occurs twice. In the only other instance where this apocopated Hiphil future third person singular masculine occurs it is with Vav conversive. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Kings 18 30. As it is preceded by לֹא in both instances it is also given in the same MSS. as a separate Rubric in combination with this adverb of negation. (Vide supra, letter א, § 508.)

רִכב = § 222.

רִכב confidence, occurs three times. That is, without and with the prefix He. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 401a, on Eccl. 9 4, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 227a, on Isa. 36 4. The latter heads it רִכב and gives the two instances only with the prefix He.

רִכג = § 223.

רִכג in the belly, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, with Pathach under the Beth in contradistinction to the other two instances where the Beth is with Sheva (Ps. 139 13; Eccl. 11 5).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 31a, on Jerem. 1 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 235a, on Job 31 15; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 147b, on Jerem. 1 5; (IV) the same MS., fol. 331b, on Job 31 15; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 239b, on Jerem. 1 5; (VI) the same MS., fol. 296b, on Hos. 12 4, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Lists II and IV which head this Rubric רִכג indicate the design of this Rubric.

רִכד = § 224.

רִכד Oh my Lord, is seven times thus combined in the Scriptures. As this particle of entreaty occurs altogether twelve times, and is always combined with two different forms of the same quadrilateral, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard here its combination with the one special form.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 30a, on Gen. 44 18, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 22b, on Judg. 6 13; (III) the same MS., fol. 35b, on 1 Sam. 1 26; (IV) the same MS., fol. 79a, on 1 Kings 3 26; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 33a, on Gen. 44 18; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 52a, on the same passage; (VII) the same MS., fol. 207b, on Numb. 12 11; (VIII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement fol. 131a, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 44 18.

רִכה = § 225.

רִכה Oh Lord, is five times thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, in these five instances the quadrilateral is with Kamet under the Nun in contradistinction to the seven instances in which this combination occurs and in which this quadrilateral is with Chirek under the Nun, being the suffix first person singular. The safeguarding of these two different forms was deemed necessary since they are used within two verses of each other (Judg. 6 13, 15).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 36b, on Exod. 4 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 5a, on Josh. 7 8; (III) the same MS., fol. 28b, on Judg. 13 8; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 128a, on Josh. 7 8; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 69a, on Exod. 4 10; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 152, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 4 10.

רִכז = § 226a.

רִכז son of, or consider, occurs three times, twice defective and once plene . . . once it is with the prefix Shin, and wherever it is in combination with the name Nun it is likewise so. That is, with Chirek under the Nun. The design of this Massorah is to record the instances in which the Beth in this expression has abnormally Chirek apart from the twenty-nine passages in which it is in construction with the proper name Nun, the father of Joshua.¹ It will be seen that in the two instances which are here described as defective as well as the one with the prefix Shin, רִכז is the construct of רִכז, whilst the one which is here called plene is the imperative of רִכז to understand, to consider.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this form in the printed Massorah, I collated seven Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 127b, on Deut. 25 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 114a, on Jonah 4 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 344b, on Prov. 23 1; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 366b, on Prov. 30 1; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 293a, on Jonah 4 10; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 137a, on Deut. 25 2, and (VII) Orient. 2348, fol. 147a, on the same passage.

These seven Lists exhibit two recensions of this Massorah. The first recension to which belong Lists I, III and IV are confined to רִכז without the prefixes apart from its combination with Joshua. Hence it includes Prov. 23 1 and excludes Jonah 4 10 or adds it at the end as outside the simple form. The second recension is strictly confined to this noun construct, without and with the prefixes, of which there are four instances apart from its combination with the name Joshua. Hence it heads this Rubric רִכז it records the following four passages Deut. 25 2; Jonah 4 10, 10; Prov. 30 1 and rightly excludes Prov. 23 1, which is the imperative of רִכז. To this recension belong Lists II, V, VI and VII. The absence of רִכז at the end of List IV makes this List unintelligible.

¹ Comp. Exod. 23 1; Numb. 11 28; 13 18, 16; 14 6, 30, 38; 26 65; 27 18 32 12, 28; 34 17; Deut. 1 38; 31 23; 32 44; 34 9; Josh. 1 1; 2 1, 23; 6 6 14 1; 17 4; 19 49, 51; 21 1; 24 29; Judg. 2 8; 1 Kings 16 34; Neh. 8 17.

רִכז = § 226b.

רִכז is seven times defective in this form. That is, the form רִכז without and with the prefixes, occurs seven times defective or

Of this Rubric, which is one of the most ancient and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated seventeen Lists, sixteen in MSS. and one printed. I shall enumerate the following ten only: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 42b, on Exod. 12 46, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 200b, on 2 Sam. 7 6; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 54a, on Exod. 12 46; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 5 8; (V) the same Codex on Amos 6 9; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 61a, on 2 Sam. 7 6; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 216b, on Isa. 5 8; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 85a, on Exod. 12 46; (IX) Halle Oehlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 248, and (X) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 3 17.

רמ"ד = § 244.

in this house which is called, occurs twice. That this combination required safeguarding is evident from the Septuagint. In the first passage this version exhibits ἐν οὐλῶν ἁπλῶν = ἁπλῶν οὐλῶν without and in the second ὁ οὐλῶν μου = οὐλῶν. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 11a, on Jerem. 7 10. As it is in the first instance where this combination occurs and in the second, the heading ought more properly to be ב"י בלש"י, but this expression, as we have seen, is often omitted.

רמ"ה = § 245.

into the house, occurs eighteen [nineteen] times. That is, with paragogic He instead of . The design of this Massorah is to exclude the reading in 2 Sam. 19 6, which obtained in some Schools of textual redactors; as is attested by the Standard Codex Harley 5710-11, as well as by the Keri which was preserved in other Schools and which is exhibited in the Massorah Parva of Add. 21,161.

Of this Rubric I collated fifteen Lists, fourteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 11a, on Gen. 19 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 40b, on Exod. 9 19; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32a, on Judg. 19 15; (IV) the same MS., fol. 66a, on 2 Sam. 14 31; (V) the same MS., fol. 88b, on 1 Kings 13 15; (VI) the same MS., fol. 100a, on 2 Kings 4 32; (VII) the same MS., fol. 104a, on 2 Kings 9 6; (VIII) Add. 15,250, fol. 143b, on Judg. 19 15; (IX) Add. 15,251, fol. 125b, on Josh. 2 18; (X) the same MS., fol. 176b, on 2 Sam. 14 31; (XI) the same MS., fol. 202a, on 2 Kings 4 32; (XII) Add. 15,451, fol. 216b, on 2 Sam. 13 7; (XIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 50a, on Gen. 43 26; (XIV) Halle Oehlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 79, and (XV) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 13 15.

Nine of the fifteen Lists (III, V, VI, VII, IX-XIII) emphatically state in the respective headings that there are nineteen such instances, though three only (Lists III, VIII, X) record all the nineteen instances. As is often the case with lengthy Lists, the copyists omitted passages even in these Lists which correctly state in the headings that there are nineteen instances. As the omission is principally of ב"י in the catchwords Gen. 43 26, that is the second instance in this verse (Lists I, IV, V, VII, XIV, XV) the Nakdanim altered into . It will be seen that in ten instances this expression is with under the Beth and in nine with , which is due to the pausal accent and that the Massorah takes no notice of this fact.

רמ"ו = § 246.

and within the house, or and inward, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 5 9, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, on the same passage. The heading ב"י is not quite correct: it ought either to be ב"י קמץ, since it occurs twice only and is with in both instances, or simply ב"י as it is in List II.

רמ"ז = § 247.

and the house of, for which the Sevir in four instances is and into the house of. On referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that the Sevir exhibits the textual reading of some MSS. and editions.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 76a, on Exod. 8 20, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the same on 2 Kings 2 3 (see also letter י, § 650).

רמ"ח = § 248.

Five words respectively occur twice in the same connection in an exceptional manner, once preceded by in the house of and once by the house of. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 64b, on Exod. 12 29, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 360b, on Esther 5 1; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 84a, on Exod. 12 29; (IV) the same MS., fol. 311a, on Esther 5 1; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Exod. 12 29; (VI) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 37 16, and (VII) the same on Esther 5 1.

רמ"ט = § 249.

the house of her husband, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the combination the house of a woman which occurs once (Josh. 2 1). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS., and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 106a, on Numb. 30 11, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Ruth 1 9, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter כ, § 351.

ר"נ = § 250.

Beth El is in three instances with Munach under the Beth... in all the other passages it is with Gaya. which, in combination with without and with the prefixes occurs altogether about seventy times, has in sixteen instances the accent Zakeph-Katon (זכ"ה). In thirteen out of these sixteen instances is simply with and the normal Metheg, and in three only it is with Shophar = Munach. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional accent.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 48a, on Gen. 35 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 6a, on Josh. 8 17; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 121a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 26a, on Gen. 35 16; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 35a, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on 1 Kings 12 32. List II heads this Rubric . In List III which heads it is manifestly a clerical error for .

Comp. Gen. 31 13; Judg. 21 2; 1 Sam. 7 16; 13 2; 2 King 2 2; Hos. 10 15; Amos 3 14; 5 6; 7 10; 1 Kings 12 32a; 13 4; Amos 7 13; Josh. 7 2.

רנ"א = § 251.

house of God, occurs five times in the Scriptures. In all the other instances in which this combination occurs and which are recorded in the following Rubric it is with the article. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional instances.

Of this Rubric, I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 168b, on Judg. 17 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 186b, on Ps. 42 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 31a, on Judg. 17 5; (IV) the same MS., fol. 279a, on 2 Chron. 34 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 294a, on Ps. 42 5; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 175b, on Judg. 17 5; (VII) Halle Oehlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 153; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 28 22, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter כ, § 487. The heading in Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah (List VIII) which states that this combination occurs five times in the Law, in the Prophets and in the Hagiographa apart from Chronicles and Ezra (Beth Aleph is incorrect, since one of the five instances is in 2 Chron. 34 9, whilst in Ezra-Nehemiah it does not occur at all. Here it is always with the article. The blundering heading is, as usual, due to an ignorant Nakdan.

רנ"ב = § 252.

the house of God, occurs forty-eight times. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this combination against being interchanged with the more common phrase Beth He (Beth Aleph) about 243 times. In 195 instances the combination is Beth He or Beth and in 48 only is it Beth or Beth. Hence the Massorah safeguards

Of 195 instances in which the combination with the Tetragrammaton occurs 181 are with and 14 are with, whilst of the 48 instances in which the combination is with and 3 are with. It is remarkable that whilst with the prefix Lamed (Beth) is included in this Rubric the Massorah rigidly excludes this construct with prefix Beth (Beth) although occurs 35 times, and with occurs 7 times only.

the minority. This protection was all the more necessary since the two phrases are promiscuously used in one and the same verse (1 Chron. 23 28; 25 6; 28 12).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 259a, on 2 Chron. 4 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 281b, on 2 Chron. 36 18; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 451b, on Ezra 6 22, and (IV) Cambridge Add. 465, on 2 Chron. 4 19. In the preceding Rubric (List VIII) Jacob b. Chayim states that in Chronicles and Ezra-Nehemiah בית אלהים occurs forty-eight times and that he has given the List in the Massorah Finalis (ורה ושר איה בהן) (מה בית אלהים וזה בבתי רבתי). Not only is this Rubric nowhere given in the printed Massorah, but this statement is incorrect: (1) בית אלהים should be בית אלהים and (2) the forty-eight instances are not restricted to Chronicles and Ezra-Nehemiah since three occur outside these two books, viz. Judg. 18 3; Eccl. 4 17 and Dan. 1 2.

רני = § 253.

בית אלהים דנה this house of God, occurs four times . . . and in all other passages it is simply with the demonstrative pronoun דה. The combination בית אלהים is in nine instances followed by the demonstrative pronoun. In five instances it is דה (Ezra 5 17; 6 7, 7, 8, 12) and in four it is the emphatic דה. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the respective phrases. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 375a, on Ezra 5 13, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezra 7 24, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 471.

רניד = § 254.

בית ישראל the house of Israel, occurs four times [in the Pentateuch]. ישראל is preceded by בית and בני about 640 times. In the Pentateuch the phrase בני ישראל is the rule. In this division of the Bible it occurs about 316¹ times whilst בית ישראל occurs four times only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. The necessity for safeguarding the respective phrases will be seen on referring to the notes on Exod. 16 31 whence it is evident that the readings in the received text are those of the dominant School and that the ancient Codices of other textual redactors exhibited בני ישראל where the textus receptus has בית ישראל and vice versa.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 92a, on Exod. 40 38, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 97a, on Levit. 10 6, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 87a, on the same passage.

¹ As follows: Genesis 6; Exodus 105; Leviticus 49; Numbers 142; Deut. 14.

רניה = § 255.

בית ישראל the house of Israel, occurs twenty times . . . and throughout Jeremiah and Ezekiel it is likewise so except in eighteen instances where it is ישראל.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, and which does not occur in this form in the printed Massorah, I collated seven Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 38b, on 1 Sam. 7 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 60b, on 2 Sam. 6 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 87b, on 1 Kings 12 21; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 140b, on Numb. 20 29; (V) Add. 15,351, fol. 272b, on Ezek. 12 9; (VI) the same MS., fol. 288b, on Ezek. 29 12, and (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 92a, on Exod. 16 31. Lists I, II, IV and V have the same addition at the end of the Rubric. List VII has וכל ירמיה וזקאל רבי כמני whilst Lists III and VI have no addition at all, which makes this Rubric unintelligible. It is remarkable that all the Lists which have the addition omit ושר after Ezekiel though בית ישראל occurs thirteen times in the Minor Prophets.

It will be seen that the twenty instances embrace all the three divisions of the Bible with the exception of three books, viz. Jeremiah, Ezekiel and the Minor Prophets. The reason for it will be seen from the following analysis:

(A) The Pentateuch. — In this division, as we have already seen, בית ישראל is the rare exception and is safeguarded in a separate Rubric. (Vide supra, letter ב, § 254.)

(B) The Prophets. — An analysis of the occurrence of the respective phrases in the several books in this division will disclose the reason why some of the books are included in this Rubric and why others are excluded from it.

Joshua. — In Joshua where בית ישראל occurs 56 times and בית ישראל once only, the solitary instance is included in the List of twenty.

Judges. — In this book, where בית ישראל occurs no fewer than 53 times the alternate phrase בית ישראל does not occur at all.

Samuel. — In Samuel בית ישראל occurs eleven times and בית ישראל seven times only. Hence the minority are included in the List.

Kings. — In this book, where בית ישראל occurs twenty-one times and בית ישראל twice only the exceptions are safeguarded in the List.

Isaiah. — In Isa. בית ישראל occurs five times and בית ישראל three times. Hence the minority are included in the List.

Jeremiah. — Here the case is different בית ישראל is the rule. It occurs twenty-one times and בית ישראל, which occurs nine times constitutes the minority. Hence the latter is excluded from the List and is safeguarded in a separate Rubric. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 256.)

Ezekiel. — The same is the case in Ezekiel. In this book בית ישראל is the rule. It occurs no fewer than sixty-six times, whilst בית ישראל is the exception since it occurs nine times only. The former is, therefore, excluded from the List and the latter is safeguarded in a separate Rubric. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 256 and § 363.)

The Minor Prophets. — In the Minor Prophets, which the Massorah treats as one book, the arrangement is very artificial as will be seen from the following Rubric. As בית ישראל occurs here thirteen times and בית ישראל eleven and, moreover, as one of the combinations prevails in one portion and one in the other, the Minor Prophets are divided into two parts in accordance with the prevalence of the respective phrases. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 256.) It is due to this division that the Minor Prophets are excluded from the List before us.

(C) The Hagiographa. — In the ten books of which the third division of the Bible consists, the occurrence of the respective combinations greatly varies, as will be seen from the following analysis.

The Psalms. — In the Psalter בית ישראל occurs twice and בית ישראל does not occur at all. The two instances are, therefore, included in the List.

Proverbs. — In Proverbs neither of the phrases occurs.

Job. — The same is the case with Job.

The Five Megilloth. — In these five books בית ישראל occurs once only (Ruth 4 11) and בית ישראל not at all. The solitary instance is, therefore, included in the List.

Daniel. — In Daniel neither of the phrases occurs.

Ezra-Nehemiah. — In this book בית ישראל occurs eight times (Ezra 6 16, 21; Neh. 1 6; 8 14, 17; 9 1; 10 40; 13 2) and בית ישראל not at all. As there are no exceptions to safeguard, there is no separate List which records the instances in this book.

Chronicles. — The same is the case with Chronicles. Here the combination בית ישראל exclusively occupies the ground. It occurs twenty-one times (1 Chron. 2 1; 6 49; 2 Chron. 5 10; 6 11; 7 3; 8 2, 8, 9; 10 18; 13 12, 16, 18; 28 3, 8; 30 6, 21; 31 1, 6; 33 2, 9; 35 17). There is, therefore, no cause for a special List since there are no variations to safeguard.

רניז = § 256.

בית ישראל בית ישראל. In Jeremiah and Ezekiel it is always the house of Israel except eighteen times where it is the children of Israel. In these two books, as we have already seen, בית ישראל is the rule. It occurs no fewer than ninety-seven times and בית ישראל eighteen times only. Hence the exceptions are safeguarded.

And from Hosea 1 1 to Amos 3 11 it is likewise the children of Israel except four times where it is the house of Israel. In this part of the Minor Prophets בית ישראל occurs seven times (Hosea 2 1; 3 1, 4, 5; 4 1; Amos 2 11; 3 1) and בית ישראל four times only. Hence the minority is safeguarded.

And from Amos 3 12 to the end of the book of Minor Prophets it is likewise the house of Israel except four times where it is the children of Israel. In this part the contrary is the case, בית ישראל is the rule. It occurs nine times (Amos 5 1, 25; 6 1, 14; 7 10; 9 9; Micah 1 5; 3 1, 9) whilst בית ישראל, which occurs four times only, is the exception and hence is safeguarded.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 61a, on Jerem. 23 7, which I have printed; (II) Halle Oehlsh Ve-Oehlsh II, § 29; (III) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 44 9, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 419. Both Lists III and IV distinctly state that בית ישראל occurs seventeen times only in Jeremiah and Ezekiel and List III which duly enumerates this number omits Jerem. 23 7. As List VII of Rubric 255, which is from a carefully written Model

Codex, also states that there are only seventeen such instances, there can hardly be any doubt that the different Massoretic Schools had different records with regard to the number of the respective phrases.

רניז - § 257.

בית קלא house of restraint, or prison, occurs three times. That is, without and with the prefix, in contradistinction to the other four instances where this combination occurs and where it is with the article (1 Kings 22 27; Jerem. 37 15, 18; 2 Chron. 18 26). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 110b, on 2 Kings 17 4, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 208b, on the same passage. As קלא itself without the prefix He only occurs three times, List II heads this Rubric to distinguish it from the four instances in which it is with the article. The reference in the Rubric which I have printed should be 2 Kings 17 4 and not 1 Kings.

רניה - § 258.

בית שער shearing house, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 105b, on 2 Kings 10 14.

רניט - § 259.

בית in the house of. Eleven words are respectively preceded once only by this noun in the construct with the prefix Beth. That is, in this combination the words in question are unique, since in all other instances where they occur preceded by this noun, it is without the prefix Beth.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 240b, on Numb. 30 4, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 151a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 391a, on Ezra 6 5; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 237a, on 1 Kings 14 13; (V) the same MS., fol. 451a, on Ezra 6 5; (VI) the same MS., fol. 476b, on 1 Chron. 17 1; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Numb. 30 4; (VIII) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 169.

Though not explicitly stated so in the heading, the design of this Massorah is not simply to record the unique combinations with בית, but those words only which occur again more than once preceded by this noun in the construct without the prefix Beth. This is evident from the fact that no fewer than twelve unique combinations with בית are here excluded because they do not occur in combination with בית and that four unique combinations with בית are omitted because they occur once only preceded by בית.

Tested by this canon we see that בית רבני רבני is given in seven out of the nine Lists (I, II, IV, V, VI, VIII, IX) is incorrect, since בית רבני does not occur and though it already occurs in the ancient Massorah of Orient. 4445 (List II) it is manifestly due to an ignorant Nakdan who mistook it for בית רבני רבני (see the note). Moreover בית קיש does not belong to this Rubric, though it is given in all the Lists, since בית קיש occurs once only. List IV omits בית שער 2 Sam. 3 6 and makes up the eleven instances by giving בית שער Ezra 5 17 and though this instance is also given in Lists V and VIII it is against the import of this Massorah, since בית שער does not occur. It is the addition of an ignorant Nakdan. List VIII is hopelessly corrupt and it is difficult to say whether its confusion is due to Jacob b. Chayim or a scribe. It is to be remarked that the oldest form of this Massorah (List II) has as yet no heading.

1 Comp. (1) בית און Levit. 14 34; (2) בית האסור Judg. 16 21; (3) בית 2 Kings 15 5; (4) בית החלל Amos 1 4; (5) בית ליצור Micah 1 10; (6) בית מנחם Ps. 119 84; (7) בית סוכי Judg. 17 4; (8) בית קיש 2 Chron. 36 17; (9) בית שער Gen. 42 17; (10) בית נבני Prov. 5 10; (11) בית שפחה Eccl. 7 4; (12) בית חקוני Isa. 56 7.

2 Comp. (1) בית און Eccl. 7 4 with בית און Eccl. 7 2; (2) בית חקוני Gen. 39 2 with בית חקוני Gen. 40 7; (3) בית חקוני Exod. 12 29 with בית חקוני Jerem. 37 18; (4) בית חקוני Esther 5 1 with בית חקוני Esther 5 1.

רניט - § 260.

בית אבתי in the house of our father, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 164a, on Judg. 11 2, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 45b, on Gen. 31 14.

רניא - § 261.

בית אל in Beth-El, occurs four [five] times in the Scriptures . . . and from 1 Kings 12 29 to 13 32 it is likewise so with the exception of one instance where it is without the prefix Beth.

With the prefix Beth, this proper name occurs altogether thirteen times. As eight of the instances are restricted to one section (1 Kings 12 29, 32, 32, 33; 13 4, 11, 11, 32) and five are outside this section, the Massorah divides the books in which this combination occurs, into two parts, viz. the part in which בית אל is the exception and accordingly requires safeguarding and the part in which בית אל is the exception and hence requires protection. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on 2 Kings 23 15 is incorrect, since בית אל occurs five times apart from the two chapters in Kings. The omission of 1 Sam. 30 27 is manifestly due to a clerical error. A later Nakdan, as usual, who found four instances recorded, altered the ה into ג.

רניב - § 262.

בית אלהים in the house of God, occurs twice. That is, without the prefix He. The two instances are given in the following Rubric. They are a separate Rubric in Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 153.

רניג - § 263.

בית האלהים in the house of God, occurs seven times . . . and in two instances this combination is without the He. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this combination against being interchanged with the more common phrase בית דיה which is recorded in the following Rubric, just as בית אלהים without the prefix Beth is safeguarded against בית דיה (Vide supra, letter ב, 252.)

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 374a, on Ezra 3 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 278b, on 2 Chron. 33 7; (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 151a, on 2 Chron. 4 11; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 498b, on 2 Chron. 22 12, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 472.

רניד - § 264.

בית יהוה in the house of Jehovah, is thirty-nine times thus combined in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is twofold. In the first place it is to distinguish between those instances in which בית יהוה is followed by the divine name יהוה recorded in the former Rubric and the passages in which it is in combination with the Tetragrammaton. And in the second place it is to fix the instances in which the phrase is בית יהוה, in contradistinction to the 180 instances in which it is בית יהוה without the prefix Beth. By fixing the number at thirty-nine the Massorah not only militates against the various readings exhibited in some MSS. in 1 Sam. 1 7 and 2 Kings 22 13a, but against the textual reading or Kethiv in 2 Kings 22 5a, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated fifteen Lists, fourteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 246a, on 2 Kings 11 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 88a, on 1 Kings 12 27; (III) the same MS., fol. 106a, on 2 Kings 11 10; (IV) the same MS., fol. 118a, on 2 Kings 25 13; (V) the same MS., fol. 159a, on Jerem. 20 1; (VI) the same MS., fol. 164b, on Jerem. 28 5; (VII) the same MS., fol. 216a, on Hag. 1 14; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 254b, on 1 Chron. 26 12; (IX) the same MS., fol. 290a, on Ps. 27 4; (X) the same MS., fol. 318a, on Ps. 135 2; (XI) Add. 15,250, fol. 212a, on 2 Kings 21 4; (XII) Add. 15,451, fol. 263b, on 2 Kings 22 5; (XIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 294a, on Zech. 14 21; (XIV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 152 and (XV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 135 2.

Though all the fifteen Lists state in the respective headings that there are thirty-nine such instances, yet their forms show that they are derived from two different Schools. Lists I, XI and XV possess the same features and manifestly proceed from the same Massorites though List I alone gives all the thirty-nine instances and List XI omits the Psalms and Lamentations, which is apparently due to a want of space, and though List XV like the other twelve Lists omits 2 Cron. 20 5. All the other twelve Lists not only coincide in omitting this verse, but also in excluding 2 Kings 22 8 and in making up the thirty-nine instances with two other passages, viz. בית יהוה = 2 Chron. 34 30 and בית יהוה = 2 Chron. 34 31. In the received text, however, there is בית יהוה and not בית יהוה in the first of the two passages, whilst in the second there is neither בית ה' nor even בית יעקב. Jacob b. Chayim, the first editor of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, who printed List XV which as we have seen, belongs to one School of Massorites, had also before him this Rubric in its second form, as exhibited in the twelve Lists. He too testifies to the fact that all the Massorahs which he collated, give these two verses as making up the thirty-nine instances and he declares his inability to explain this mystery. As all these MSS. belong to different ages and to countries far apart, it is evident that this recension of the Massorah is based upon Codices which read בית ה' in 2 Chron. 34 30 in accordance with the parallel passage in 2 Kings 23 2 and which repeated this phrase after עליהם in verse 31.

Jacob. b. Chayim's remark (לי הרבי סימני במסורה) ועין מה רשאי לי כרבי סימני במסורה at the end of the Rubric on Ps. 135 2 where he refers to the difficulties connected with these passages and to what he had said in the Massorah Finalis under the Rubric מרי, is of peculiar interest to the Massoretic student. It shows that he printed first the Massorah Finalis before printing the so-called Massorah Marginalis which accompanies the text of the Bible.

ואמר המעתיק קש"ל שובל ספר המסורה כמילא ואלו הסימני של בתי יו ויעבר המלך על עמדו ויכרוז ובמפקוד ההוא לא נמצא לא בית יו ולא בבות יו ונדר מנאז יועל המלך בית יו דרית וכל המסרים המדויקים תריווח בית יו דמפקוד ההוא הם בית יו ולא בבות יו כי אם דמליטת חננת דמקוד ואם נשטים אלו אינם כי אם כ"ח בבות יו ולא מל הכל ספרי המסר בניי מל וכן נראה שלא נשתמשו כולם ואם נאמ' שאמר בבות יו שיש במפקוד ויעל המלך בית יו דרית הוא בני יו אינו יודע להוכיח יורה הוא אם הוא חגיגי דמפ' כמנ דמליטת או לא ופס' ויעבר המלך על עמדו יעבר בני ב' בקשאו למ' הנהוואו כל ספרי המסרה לא להגם עכ"ל.

§ 265. רס"ה

בבית יעקב in the house of Jacob, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this phrase in Jerem. 5 20 where the parallelism requires either ביעקב in the first clause or בית יעקב in the second which is exhibited in some MSS. of the Septuagint. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 206a, on Amos 3 13.

§ 266. רס"ו

בבית לחם in Beth-lehem, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 137b, on 1 Chron. II 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 28a, on Judg. 12 10; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 140a; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 146a, and (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 172b, all on the same passage.

§ 267. רס"ז

בבית המלך in the house of the king, occurs three times . . . and once it is with the prefix He. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 270b, on 2 Chron. 23 5, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 38 7; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 428b, on 2 Chron. 23 5; (IV) the printed Massorah on Esther 9 4, and (V) the same on 2 Chron. 23 5.

§ 268. רס"ח

ובית דוד and the house of David, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this combination in 1 Chron. 17 24 against being made conformable to 2 Sam. 7 26 where the phrase is inverted, viz. בית עבדך דוד. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Chron. 17 24, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ד, § 62.

§ 269. רס"ט

ובית יוסף and the house of Joseph, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 137a, on Josh. 18 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 209a, on Obad. 18; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah, also on the same passage.

§ 270. ר"ע

ובית המלך and the house of the king, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, to distinguish it from the other two instances where this combination occurs without the prefix He. (Jerem. 27 18, 21.) This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 12 19.

§ 271. רע"א

לבית אבותיהם after the house of their fathers, occurs seven times. That is, in this longer form לבית is in thirty-five instances followed by this plural noun with the suffix third person plural masculine. In thirty-eight instances the combination is with the shorter form, viz. לבית אבתם¹ and in seven only is it with the longer form. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional phrase. It will be seen from the note that the longer form is restricted to Chronicles and that even here it is in the minority since the shorter combination occurs eight times in this book.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 267a, on 2 Chron. 17 14, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Chron. 31 17. As one of the instances is (1 Chron. 4 38) the heading ought more properly to be בליש." ¹ Comp. לבית אבתם Numb. 1 2, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 45; 2 2, 32; 3 15, 20; 4 2, 22, 29, 40, 42; 17 17, 21; 26 2; 34 14, 14; Ezra 10 16; 1 Chron. 5 15, 24; 7 2, 4; 9 13; 12 31; 24 4; 26 13.

§ 272. רע"ב

לבית האלוקים for the house of God, occurs three times. This construct noun with the prefix Lamed is followed by the Divine name nineteen times. In sixteen instances it is the Tetragrammaton (2 Kings 25 16; Jerem. 52 17, 20; Zech. 7 3; Jerem. 26 8; Neh. 10 36; 1 Chron. 9 23; 22 14; 26 27; 2 Chron. 4 16; 5 1; 9 11; 24 14; 29 31; 30 1; 31 16) and in three only is it אלוקים. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. This was all the more necessary since the two phrases are used interchangeably in one and the same verse (Ezra 2 68). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 373b, on Ezra 2 68, the verse which required safeguarding.

§ 273. רע"ג

לבית אמה to the house of her mother, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 24b, on Gen. 24 28, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 16b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

§ 274. רע"ד

לבית ישראל to the house of Israel, is four times thus combined in the Scriptures. Apart from Ezekiel this combination is the exception and the rule is לבני ישראל to the children of Israel, which occurs twenty-four times. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional phrase.

And throughout Ezekiel it is likewise לבית ישראל except in one instance. In Ezekiel, where this phrase is the rule and where it occurs twelve times (Ezek. 3 17; 4 3; 12 6; 24 21; 29 6, 16, 21, 22; 33 7; 36 37; 40 4; 45 8) and בני ישראל is the exception, the Massorah safeguards the solitary instance.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 110b, on Amos 5 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 204b, on Ps. 98 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 206b, on Amos 5 3; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 303a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 365b, on Ps. 98 3; (VI) Halle Oehlsh Ve-Oehlsh II, § 29, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 98 3.

It will be seen that List I gives Ezek. 37 21 as the solitary passage where בני ישראל is used in this book instead of the regular phrase לבית ישראל. List V, however, has it בני ישראל, thus giving Ezek. 37 16 as the only exception. As neither of these instances is לבני, one being בני and the other לבני, Lists II, VI and VII which simply state בני ישראל without mentioning any exception, are more correct. In Lists III and IV the second part of this Rubric is entirely absent which makes it unintelligible, since it suggests that לבית ישראל occurs four times only, whereas it occurs altogether sixteen times.

§ 275. רע"ה

ולבית and to the house of, occurs three times at the beginning of a verse in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 56b, on Jerem. 35 18.

רעז - § 276.

ולבית and to the house of, occurs ten times, three of them at the beginning of a verse. The design of this Massorah is to militate against those Codices which read it לבית without the prefix Vav in Numb. 4 38 and 46, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists, fourteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 201b, on 2 Sam. 9 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 86b, on Numb. 4 34; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 121a, on the same passage; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 85b, on 1 Kings 10 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 127b, on Isa. 22 21; (VI) the same MS., fol. 143b, on Isa. 58 1; (VII) the same MS., fol. 160a, on Jerem. 21 11; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 171a, on Jerem. 35 18; (IX) the same MS., fol. 262b, on 2 Chron. 9 11; (X) Add. 15,451, fol. 93b, on Numb. 4 34; (XI) the same MS., fol. 233a, on 1 Kings 10 12; (XII) the same MS., fol. 299b, on Jerem. 35 18; (XIII) the same MS., fol. 491a, on 2 Chron. 9 11; (XIV) Add. 21,160, fol. 193a, on Numb. 4 46, and (XV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

רעז - § 277.

ולבית אבתם and after the house of their fathers, occurs three times in all other passages it is without the prefix Vav. As this combination, which occurs altogether twenty times, is in seventeen instances without the prefix Vav (לבית אבתם Numb. 1 2, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42; 4 2, 29, 40, 42) and in these three instances only with the Vav, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional phrase. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 86b, on Numb. 4 34, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 84b, on the same passage. The addition at the end of List II, viz. למה אבתם, expresses the design of this Rubric better than the addition at the end of List I which has לבית אבתם, since there is a separate Massorah on the combination לבית אבתם ולבית אבתם, contrasting it with the inverted combination לבית אבתם לבית אבתם. (Vide infra, letter a, § 856, Vol. II, p. 250.)

רעח - § 278.

בבית ישראל from the house of Israel, is six times thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the normal phrase מן בני ישראל from the children of Israel, which occurs sixteen times (Levit. 17 13; 20 2; Numb. 3 12; 8 16; 16 2; 25 6; Deut. 23 18; 24 7; Josh. 2 2; 4 4; Judg. 19 12; 1 Sam. 9 2; 2 Sam. 21 2; 1 Kings 9 20; Dan. 1 3; Ezra 7 7).

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 77b, on Ezek. 14 4, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 103a, on Levit. 17 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 175a, on Ezek. 14 4; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 313b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 165b, on Levit. 17 10; (VI) the same MS. fol. 172b, on Levit. 22 18; (VII) Orient. 2349, fol. 92b, on Levit. 17 3; (VIII) Halle Oehliah Ve-Oehliah II, § 29; (IX) the printed Massorah on Levit. 17 3, and (X) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 421. It will be seen that List I, which I have printed, enumerates five instances only, though it states in the heading that there are six. The omission is manifestly due to a clerical oversight of the expression ושלשה [= Ezek. 14 7] after the last instance. This expression and בבית are not unfrequently omitted.

רעט - § 279.

בבית in the house of, is five times plene in the Pentateuch. That is, in these instances the construct is abnormally with paragogic He. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 39b, on Exod. 8 20, which I have printed and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 177. By an oversight the fifth instance רב שר כבוד ביתו Exod. 8 20, has dropped out of the List which I have printed. It is remarkable that Gen. 44 14, where the present text has also רב, is excluded from this List, whilst List II, which also states in the heading that there are five such instances only omits Gen. 43 17. The heading ought properly to be בבית and in the Pentateuch, since all the instances are restricted to the Pentateuch.

רס - § 280.

בבית יוסף the house of Joseph, occurs three times. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the two different forms which are used in the two consecutive verses, viz. Gen. 43 17 and 18. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 37a, on Gen. 43 17.

רסא - § 281.

בבית פרהו the house of Pharaoh, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 39b, on Gen. 47 14.

רסב - § 282.

ובית and his house, occurs six times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which is one of the most ancient and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 34b, on Exod. 1 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 197a, on 2 Sam. 2 3; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 114b, on Micah. 2 2; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 163a, on 2 Chron. 24 16; (V) Orient. 4445, fol. 42a, on Exod. 1 1; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 54a, on 1 Sam. 27 3; (VII) the same MS., fol. 210b, on Micah 2 2; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 271b, on 2 Chron. 24 16; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 204a, on 2 Sam. 2 3; (X) Halle Oehliah Ve-Oehliah II, § 247; (XI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 1 1, and (XII) the same on 2 Chron. 24 16.

רסג - § 283.

בביתים places for staves. Throughout the Pentateuch it is for places for the staves except twice where it is places for staves. This phrase, which occurs altogether five times, is not only confined to the Pentateuch, but is restricted to one book. In three instances it is with the prefix Lamed, viz. לביתים לביתים (Exod. 25 27; 30 4; 37 27) and in two only is it without this prefix and with Pathach under the Lamed of the second noun, viz. ביתים לביתים (Exod. 37 14; 38 6). Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 80a, on Exod. 38 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 53b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Exod. 37 14. As the two passages occur in the same section, Lists II and III simply head this Rubric לביתים לביתים. The punctuation and the references in the Rubric which I have printed, are to be corrected in accordance with those given here.

רסד - § 284.

בביתים the houses, has in three instances two accents. That is, it is with Munach and Zakeph-Katon. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 176. Both the MSS. and the early editions give four such instances, but they greatly vary, as will be seen from the following analysis:

(1) Exodus 12 7.

בביתים with two accents is exhibited in Orient. 4445; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 21,160; Add. 15,451; Orient. 4227; the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491-93; the Lisbon Pentateuch 1491; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah 1524-25.

בביתים with Zakeph only Add. 15,250; editio princeps of the Pentateuch Bologna 1482; the first edition of the Bible Soncino 1483; the third edition Brescia 1494 and the second quarto, Venice 1521.

(2) Isaiah 22 10.

בביתים Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,451; Add. 15,251; the Lisbon edition of Isaiah 1492; and the Pesaro edition of the Latter Prophets 1515.

בביתים Add. 15,250; Orient. 4227; the first, second, third and fourth editions of the Bible; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible; the second quarto, and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah.

(3) Zachariah 14 10.

בביתים Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251 and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah.

בביתים Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,451; Add. 15,250; Orient. 4227; the first, second, third and fourth editions of the Bible; the Pesaro edition of the Latter Prophets; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible and the second quarto.

(4) 2 Chronicles 34 11.
Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16;
Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah.
Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451; the first, second, third and fourth editions of the Bible and the second quarto.

רפיה = § 285.

רפיה and houses, occurs four times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated eight Lists:
(I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 116a, on Deut. 6 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 4a, on Isa. 6 11;
(III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 121b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 210b, on Micah 2 2; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 217a, on Isa. 6 11; (VI) the same MS., fol. 306b, on Micah 2 2; (VII)
Add. 15,251, fol. 303a, on the same passage, and (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 267a, on Deut. 6 11.

רפיה = § 286.

רפיה house, is twice written with He. That is, this emphatic Chaldee noun which is normally with Aleph (רפיה Ezra 5 3, 9, 11; 6 3) is in these two instances abnormally with He, for which reason the Massorah safeguards it. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 290a, on Ezra 6 15. As it is with the prefix Vav in the first instance, the heading ought more properly to be בלישא. But this qualifying expression, as we have already seen, is often omitted.

רפיה = § 287.

רפיה אל. The verb רפיה to weep, to mourn, is always combined with the preposition על except in three instances where it is with אל.
Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 198b, on 2 Sam. 3 32, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59a, on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ezek. 27 31, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 186. These three instances form part of the long List of words which are exceptionally construed with אל. (Vide supra, letter א, § 523.) The note on 2 Sam. 1 24 in my edition of the Bible will show the reason why the Massorites safeguarded these passages.

רפיה = § 288.

רפיה to weep, to lament, is five times written with Vav in the Scriptures. This infinitive absolute, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether nine times. In four instances it is with its normal He (1 Sam. 1 10; 2 Sam. 3 16; 15 30; Ps. 126 6) and in five with Vav. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the abnormal orthography. On referring to the notes on the four instances in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that the official Keri cancels the He in all cases and directs us to read it רפיה with Vav; whilst the notes on Jerem. 22 10 and Lament. 1 2 show, on the contrary, that another School of textual redactors have a Keri on the instances which are written with Vav, directing that they should be read with He. The two conflicting Massorahs, therefore, show that they proceed from two different Schools of textual redactors who preserved different traditions about its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed:
(I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 45a, on Jerem. 22 10, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Micah 1 10;
(III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 160b, on Jerem. 22 10; (IV) the same
MS., fol. 210b, on Micah 1 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 355b, on Lament. 1 2; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 402a, on the same passage;
(VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 315a, also on the same passage; (VIII)
the printed Massorah on Isa. 30 19, and (IX) the same on Jerem. 22 10.

רפיה = § 289.

רפיה and I shall weep, occurs twice. That is, this Kal future first person singular with Var conjunctive, in contradistinction to the three instances in which it is with Var conversive recorded in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah,
I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 27b, on Judg. 11 37, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 153a, on Jerem. 8 23, and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 244a, on the same passage.

רפיה = § 290.

רפיה and I wept, occurs three times in the Scriptures. By fixing the number at three, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading רפיה in Ps. 69 11, which is still exhibited in the Septuagint, which is now accepted as more correct and which is supported by Ps. 35 13. The variation is due to the abbreviation in the original text which was simply רפיה and which one School of textual redactors resolved into רפיה and another into רפיה.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 204a, on 2 Sam. 12 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 194a, on Ps. 69 11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 300b, on the same passage;
(IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 359b, also on the same passage, and (V)
the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

רפיה = § 291.

רפיה they shall weep, is twice plene. That is, with the paragogic Nun. This Kal future third person plural masculine occurs altogether six times. In four instances it has its normal form (Levit. 10 6; Numb. 11 13; 1 Sam. 11 5; Joel 2 17) and in these two instances only does it exhibit this paragogic נ. Hence the Massorah safeguards the abnormal orthography. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed:
(I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 235b, on Job 31 38, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 332a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

רפיה = § 292.

רפיה weeping, occurs seven times . . . and is always defective except once. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the extra-official reading or the Sevir רפיה the plural in Numb.
11 10, as will be seen from the note on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 58a, on Exod. 2 6, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 69b, on 2 Sam. 19 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 103b, on 2 Kings 8 12; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 89a, on Numb. 11 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 261a, on Jerem. 41 6; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 65a, on Exod. 2 6; (VII) the same MS., fol. 205a, on Numb. 11 10, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 2 6. As two of the instances are with the prefix Vav, six of the Lists head this Rubric more precisely
רפיה.

רפיה = § 293.

רפיה and weeping, occurs twice, once plene and once defective.
As this participle active singular masculine with the prefix Vav which occurs twice only, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards this variation in the orthography. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 67a, on 2 Sam. 15 30.

רפיה = § 294.

רפיה they weeping, is twice plene in the Scriptures. This participle active masculine plural occurs altogether six times.
It is defective in four instances (Numb. 25 6; Judg. 2 5; Job 30 31; Ezra 3 12) and plene in these two instances only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 297b, on Neh. 8 9, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Numb. 25 6.

רפיה = § 295.

רפיה [Forms of the root רפיה which respectively occur only.]
This List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah and the heading of which I supplied, as indicated by the brackets, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 135a, on Deut. 21 17.

רפיה = § 296.

רפיה firstborn, is seven times defective in the Pentateuch. This noun occurs altogether forty-six times in the Pentateuch, and once with the prefix Beth (רפיה Deut. 15 19). It is plene in forty instances and defective in seven only, including the solitary instance with the prefix Beth. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional spelling, which in fact exhibits the redactors against the Codices of the less dominant School which read it his firstborn, and which is still exhibited in the Septuagint and the Syriac, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 244b, on 1 Chron. 9 44.

ש"ט - § 309.

Bel, occurs three times. That is, in these three instances Baal has been contracted into Bel. For the reason of this contraction see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible p. 400 &c. Of this Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, I collated two Lists: (I) on Isa. 46 1 and (II) on Jerem. 50 2.

ש"י - § 310.

ואברהם and I become cheerful, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 185a, on Ps. 39 14, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 85 on Job 9 27; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ש"יא - § 311.

she or it did not wax old, or wear out, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading of the plural, in Deut. 29 4b, which is exhibited in the Samaritan, the Septuagint, the Targum of the so-called Jonathan and some MSS. These have read the last clause לא קלו פסל תחלוקה in the plural which is not in harmony with the first part of this verse, but with the following verse.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 120b, on Deut. 29 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 112b, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 139b, also on the same passage. As לא precedes this verb in both instances, List III is headed לא קלוה.

ש"יב - § 312.

they waxed old, occurs four times. By fixing the number at four, this Massorah militates against the ancient reading recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 139b, on Deut. 29 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 7a, on Josh. 9 13; (III) the same MS., fol. 291a, on Ps. 32 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 385b, on Neh. 9 21; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 120b, on Deut. 29 4; (VI) the same MS., fol. 129b, on Josh. 9 13; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 151a, on the same passage; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Deut. 29 4; (IX) the same on Ps. 32 3, and (X) the same on Neh. 9 21.

ש"יג - § 313.

tribute, or in Lo, is four times so written. It will be seen that in the first instance לו is part of the compound proper name Lo-Debar with the prefix Beth and that in the other three instances it is the noun לו denoting tribute. The Massorah, however, which has regard only to the identity of the spelling, as usual, groups them together under the same Rubric. The remark in the heading that it is four times so written with Vav has special reference to 2 Sam. 17 27 where this proper name occurs again and where it is לו with Aleph. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 62a, on 2 Sam. 9 4.

ש"יד - § 314.

Belteshazzar, Belhazzar, sign indicating their respective occurrence. To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that this proper name, which occurs altogether seventeen times and is confined to Daniel, is spelt in three different ways, viz.: (1) בֵּלְטֶזְאָר with Teth after the Lamed and silent Aleph after the Shin; (2) בֵּלְטָזָר without the Teth, but still with Aleph after the Shin, and (3) בֵּלְטָזָר not only without the Teth, but with the silent Aleph before the Shin. Moreover, as these spellings are restricted to certain sections of the book, the Massorah as usual, divides the book into parts in accordance with the prevalence of the respective orthography, safeguarding in each case the exceptional spelling. In Dan. 1 1-4 34 where it occurs eight times it is uniformly בֵּלְטֶזְאָר (1 7; 2 26; 4 5, 6, 15, 16, 16, 16) and hence no exception is here safeguarded, whilst in Dan. 5 1-12 18 where it occurs nine times, the spelling without the Teth is the rule and with it the exception. The former occurs seven times (5 1, 2, 9, 22, 30; 7 1; 8 1) and the latter twice only (5 12; 10 1). Hence the Massorah safeguards in this part the exceptional orthography.

This recension of the Massorah I have printed from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 280b, on Dan. 4 16. It will be seen that it refers exclusively to the first and second spelling, viz. with and without the Teth and leaves the third spelling in which the Shin and Aleph are transposed entirely unnoticed. Whether this omission is due to the fact that it is based upon Codices in which this transposition did not occur or whether this School of Massorites simply intended to emphasise the presence and absence of the Teth cannot be stated with certainty. A reference to the notes on Dan. 5 30, 8 1 and 10 1 favours the first hypothesis.

Very difficult is the recension of this Massorah in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 369a, on Dan. 5 30 and Vienna Codex No. 85 on the same passage which seems to state that from Dan. 1 1 to 5 30 בֵּלְטָזָר is written בֵּלְטֶזְאָר and from Dan. 6 1 to 12 18 בֵּלְטֶזְאָר is written בֵּלְטָזָר. The difficulty would indeed disappear if we adopted Jacob b. Chayim's version of it on Dan. 5 30, which divides the book into two parts for the purpose of pointing out that in the first part the name is written with Shin before the Aleph and in the second the Aleph is before the Shin. But this not only implies that the recension in both these carefully written Codices is corrupt, but it omits altogether the indication of the places where the first and second spellings occur.

1 מן רמ"ד דם' עד ביה בליליא בלשאר בלשאר כח' ומן ביה בליליא עד סוף רמ"ב בלשאר בלשאר כח'.
2 סתם מן רמ"ד סוף עד ביה בליליא קול בלשאר בלשאר כח' וסוף קרם לארץ וכן ביה בליליא עד סוף סתם בלשאר בלשאר כח' וסוף קרם לארץ.

ש"טו - § 315.

without, occurs three times. That is, this adverb with the prefix Lamed. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 465 on Job 41 25.

ש"טז - § 316.

because not? occurs four times. That is, in these four instances it is used pleonastically in combination with לא not instead of simply לא which occurs five times (Judg. 14 3; 1 Kings 22 7; 2 Kings 3 11; Jerem. 49 7; 2 Chron. 18 6).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (1) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 97b, on 2 Kings 1 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 98a, on 2 Kings 1 16; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 198b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 87b, on Exod. 14 11, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ש"יז - § 317.

mixture, meslin, occurs three times. That is, twice without and once with the prefix Mem. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 329b, on Job 24 6, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 327b, on the same passage and (III) the printed Massorah on Job 6 5. List III heads this Rubric בִּלְיָ and duly gives the two instances only without the prefix Mem, whilst Lists I and II head it בִּלְיָ or בִּלְיָ. It will thus be seen that these two Lists are based upon Codices which read it in Job 18 15 as one word.

ש"יח - § 318.

and worthlessness, or worthless, occurs twice. That is, this compound noun is twice with the prefix Vav. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the reading in 2 Sam. 23 6 against those Codices which read it here simply קֵלָעֵל and connected it with the preceding verse, viz. לא חזר קֵלָעֵל as is evident from the Septuagint οὐ οὐ μὴ βλαστήσῃ οὐ παράνομος. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 195b, on 1 Sam. 30 22, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 56a, on the same passage.

שני - § 353.

הבנים והבנות the sons of, and the daughters of. A sign indicating where they respectively begin a verse. This noun plural construct, without and with the prefix Vav, begins a verse in Chronicles about one hundred and eleven times. In sixty-four instances it is with the prefix Vav including קמץ with Kametz in 1 Chron. 24 23, whilst in forty-seven it is without the prefix. As in some parts of the book the instances with the prefix prevail and in others those without it predominate, the Massorah divides Chronicles into three sections in accordance with the predominance of these instances and in each case safeguards the minority.

A. From 1 Chron. 1 1 to 22 19, it is קמץ with the prefix which begins the verse except in twenty-seven [thirty] instances, where it is קמץ without the prefix. In this part where קמץ begins a verse fifty-seven times and קמץ thirty times, the Massorah safeguards the minority. It will be seen that though the heading of this section states that there are here twenty-seven instances in which קמץ begins a verse, the Rubric itself records twenty-eight and omits two which are in the received text, viz. 1 Chron. 1 8 and 12 25. There is, however, no doubt that this omission as well as the alteration of the heading, is due to the carelessness of the Scribe.

B. And from 1 Chron. 23 1 to 27 34 קמץ likewise begins a verse except three times where it is קמץ. In this Section the instances without the prefix are the rule and with it the exception. Here קמץ begins a verse seventeen times and קמץ three times only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional קמץ. It will be seen that though the heading of this section distinctly states that there are here three such instances, two only are recorded and 1 Chron. 27 1 is omitted, which is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe. By fixing the number at three, this recension of the Massorah excludes the reading קמץ in 1 Chron. 24 23 which is not only the reading of many MSS. and all the early editions except one, but is exhibited in the Septuagint and the Syriac, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

C. And from 1 Chron. 28 1 to 2 Chron. 36 23 קמץ likewise begins a verse. As there is no instance in which קמץ begins a verse in this Section, since in all the three passages in which this plural noun construct commences the verse it is קמץ with the prefix Vav (2 Chron. 10 17; 25 13; 31 6), there is no exception to safeguard. Here, therefore, the simple statement is sufficient without recording the passages.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 287b, on 1 Chron. 1 5, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 227. The printed Massorah (List II), which also divides this Rubric into three Sections, states in the heading of A that there are thirty-two instances in which קמץ begins a verse (במלת בני). But this is manifestly due to a clerical error, since there are thirty only which the Rubric itself correctly records. Moreover at the end of the heading of C it states that in this Section there is one exception where קמץ without the prefix Vav begins a verse (במלת בני ירדה), viz. 1 Chron. 24 23. But this too is incorrect, since it is here קמץ with Vav. Besides, the passage does not belong to this Section for it occurs before ויקרא 1 Chron. 28 1. Against the catchwords בני in the Rubric which I have printed, the reference 1 Chron. 2 27 is a misprint for 5 27.

¹ Comp. קמץ 1 Chron. 1 6, 7, 9, 32, 33, 35, 39; 2 6, 7, 8, 9, 30, 31, 32, 33, 42, 43, 47; 3 15, 16, 17, 19, 22, 24; 4 7, 13, 15, 16, 19, 20, 26; 5 1, 11, 23, 28, 29; 6 3, 10, 12, 29; 7 2, 3, 7, 8, 10, 17, 20, 31, 33, 34, 38, 39; 8 12, 35, 39; 9 41; 19 15.

² Comp. קמץ 1 Chron. 23 8, 9, 12, 13, 15, 16, 18, 19, 20, 21, 23; 24 21, 26, 27; 26 7, 21 22.

שני - § 354.

בני is in seven instances with the accent in this Section. That is, קמץ when followed by the tribal name as well as the expression קמץ after their families, and preceded by קמץ or קמץ or is without it, the tribal name has the accent Zarka in these instances. This combination occurs altogether twelve times in Numb. 26 12-51. In five instances it has two different accents and it is in these passages only that it is uniformly with the same accent. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards them against being interchanged with any of the other accents.

¹ Comp. (1) קמץ למשוחם אלה בני-גורן למשוחם בני ישישוי למשוחם Numb. 26 23, 42, 48; (2) קמץ למשוחם בני ישישוי למשוחם בני ישישוי למשוחם Numb. 26 28, 41.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 103a, on Numb. 26 12, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 146a; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 89a; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 98a; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 110b, all on the same passage; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 234a, on Numb. 26 26, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 26 12. The sign at the end consists of the initials of the several tribes which have the accent in question. Lists III, V, VI and VII head this Rubric וישישוי which is more distinct. The mnemonic sign at the end of List IV. is שנימאל and of List VII. is שנימאל which is more ingenious.

שני - § 355.

קמץ is seven times with the accent. That is, in seven instances where קמץ begins a verse and is followed by a proper name, this combination is with Mercha Tipcha. In such combinations it is generally קמץ with Munach (Gen. 10 2; 34 27; 35 23, 24; Numb. 1 42 &c.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 98a, on Numb. 26 28. Though it states in the heading that there are seven such instances it records five only. It gives קמץ Gen. 37 27 which neither begins the verse nor has this accent, and even if we take the catchword to refer to 1 Chron. 1 42, which is the only other place where this combination occurs and where it does begin the verse, it does not obviate the difficulty, since it is here קמץ with Zakeph-Katon. It omits Numb. 26 19; Ezra 2 24, 29; 1 Chron. 1 41 &c.

שני - § 356.

קמץ is twice with the accent in this Section. That is, with Mercha Tipcha, to distinguish it from the other instances in this chapter where this phrase is with different accents. (Vide supra, letter ב, § 354.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 110b, on Numb. 26 19.

שני - § 357.

קמץ is three times with the accent in this Section. That is, with Mehupach Pashta, in contradistinction to the different accents which this combination has in the other instances where it occurs in this Section recorded in §§ 355, 356. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 103a, on Numb. 26 23, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 146a; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

שני - § 358.

קמץ is five times with Zakeph in this Section, they are misleading. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 130b, on 1 Chron. 1 38, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 224.

Though these Lists do not state it in their respective headings, the design of this Massorah manifestly is to safeguard these accents when this combination begins a verse and either is without or with the prefix Vav. In the Section before us (1 Chron. 1 1-54) the construct קמץ or קמץ followed by a proper name, begins the verse seventeen times and has no fewer than seven different accents: (1) In five instances it is Tipcha, Athnach, viz. 1 Chron. 1 6, 8, 35, 36, 37; (2) in one place it is קמץ with Zakeph-Katon, viz. 1 42; (3) in one it is Pashta Zakeph-Katon, viz. 1 28; (4) in one (1 33) it is Munach Revia; (5) in one (1 32) Kadma Ve-Azla; (6) in three places (1 7, 39, 41) it is Mercha Tipcha and in five (1 5, 9, 17, 38, 40) it is Munach Zakeph-Katon. The latter constitute this Rubric.

From this analysis it will be seen that Lists I and II which are identical omit two instances, viz. קמץ 1 5 and קמץ 1 9 and make up the five by קמץ (1 42) which is in the best Model Codices קמץ (Orient. 4445; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251 &c.) and which I have adopted in my edition of the Bible; and by קמץ (1 30) which is manifestly the addition of an ignorant Scribe who mistook the import of this Massorah, since there is no קמץ in this verse. Still more corrupt is the printed Massorah (List III). It not only omits the same two instances, but makes up the five by three correct ones (1 Chron. 1 17, 38, 40) and two which occur in the middle of the verse, viz. קמץ (1 34b) and קמץ (1 41b).

§ 359. שנים

בני אדם the sons or children of men, occurs nine times. That is, apart from the Psalms where it occurs eleven times (11 4; 14 2; 31 20; 49 3; 53 3; 57 5; 58 2; 62 10; 66 5; 89 48; 90 3). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) The printed Massorah on Prov. 15 11, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 115a, on Deut. 32 8.

In fixing the number at nine, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the Eastern readings בני הקמים in Jerem. 32 19 and בני הקים in Joel 1 12 which are also exhibited in some MSS. and early editions, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric exhibits one of the great difficulties connected with the deciphering of the Massorah. It will be seen that the heading simply states that there are nine such instances only and that the List itself records this number without any qualification. List II is still more puzzling, since it not only states in the heading that there are six such instances in the Scriptures (בני אדם בקרי), but gives the following six passages: Deut. 32 8; 2 Sam. 7 14; Jerem. 32 19; Ezek. 31 14; Joel 1 12; Dan. 10 16, without any explanation whatever. This difficulty is duly noticed in a note by Jacob b. Chayim on Prov. 15 11. The solution of it is that in the recension of this Rubric exhibited in List I those instances are catalogued which occur outside the Psalter and that the Nakdan omitted the remark וכל תהלתו רבי, whilst in the recension given in List II the instances both in the Psalter and Proverbs are excluded and the Nakdan omitted at the end the qualifying addition וכל תהלתו ושלי רבי.

ו בהרכבה ספרו כפירי לא כפירי כי אם ה בני אדם המני תהלתו ושללי לא בני יתחן והנה הכפירי דכפר בני האדם וכל תהלתו דכר ודקנא דשארי אינת בני אדם השכתנא דאינת ס ונקנא ספר ספר וסמפיים בני אדם וכל תהלתו דכר בני אדם סכ"ב בני האדם וספיר לתריס לבני אדם. הביס י"י.

§ 360. שים

בני האדם the children of men, occurs five [six] times... and throughout Ecclesiastes it is likewise so. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 43a, on Gen. 11 5, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 44a, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 54a, on 1 Sam. 26 19; (IV) the same MS., fol. 260b, on 2 Chron. 6 30; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Supplement fol. 129b, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 33 13.

As Lists I and II include Jerem. 32 19, which is בני הקמים according to the Babylonians, it is evident that these two Lists are based upon the Eastern recension of the text. Moreover, as they exclude 2 Chron. 6 30 it would seem that the Codices on which this Massorah is based exhibited here בני אדם without the prefix He. The ה in the heading of the List, which I have printed, is manifestly due to a clerical error since the List itself duly records six instances. List II which emanates from the same School is correctly headed ו = 6. Lists III-VI exhibit the Western recension. They exclude Jerem. 32 19 and include 2 Chron. 6 30. It will be seen that all the Lists give Ps. 145 12 as one of the instances. As it is לבני האדם, with the prefix Lamed, the respective headings ought more properly to be בליש ה.

Normally the phrase is בני אדם, which occurs altogether twenty times (vide supra, letter ב. § 359) and בני האדם is the exceptional combination apart from Ecclesiastes. Hence the design of the Massorah is to safeguard the minority. Moreover, as in Ecclesiastes this combination is the invariable rule (Eccl. 1 13; 2 3, 8; 3 10, 18, 19, 21; 8 11; 9 3, 12), there is no necessity for specifying the instances. The Massorah, therefore, simply records the fact.

§ 361. שם

בני אהרן הכהן the sons of Aaron the priest, is three times thus combined. When the priestly function follows or precedes the phrase the sons of Aaron, it is normally בני אהרן הכהנים (Levit. 1 8, 11; 2 2; 3 2; Numb. 3 3; 10 8; Josh. 21 19; 2 Chron. 29 21; 31 19) or בני אהרן הכהנים בני אהרן the priests the sons of Aaron (Levit. 21 1; 2 Chron. 26 18; 35 14, 14). As it is in these three instances only where the singular is abnormally used in connection with this phrase, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional usage and thus militates against the various reading in Levit. 1 7 and 2 Chron. 31 19, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 82b, on Levit. 1 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 92b, on the same passage, and

(III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter כ, § 214. The latter is misleading. It heads this Rubric בני אהרן הכהן whereas בני אהרן הכהנים occurs about twenty-three times.

§ 362. שם

בני האלהים the sons of God, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 375a, on Job 2 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,261, fol. 322a, on Job. 1 6; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 6 2.

§ 363. שנים

בני ישראל the sons, or children of Israel, occurs nine times in Ezekiel. For the explanation of this Rubric see letter ב. § 256.

§ 364. שם

בני נפתלי the sons, or children of Naphtali, occurs twice in this book. That is, in Numbers this phrase begins a verse in two instances. In the other two instances it is preceded by ויליצא אמה or simply by ויליצא (Numb. 10 27; 34 28). The design of this Massorah is to exclude the reading לבני in Numb. 1 42 which is not only exhibited in some MSS. and editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible, but which is in accordance with the diction of this Section where the descendants of the tribes begin the verse with לבני. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 84a, on Numb. 1 42.

§ 365. שם

Throughout this Section בני begins the verse except three times where it is ובני. That is, in Numb. 26 1-51 where the descendants of the several tribes begin the verse twelve times with this construct plural noun, it is in nine instances without the prefix Vav (בני Numb. 26 12, 16, 19, 23, 26, 28, 38, 44, 48) and in these three instances only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional usage. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 103a, on Numb. 26 8.

§ 366. שם

begins a verse three times in Chronicles. For this Rubric see letter ב. § 353.

§ 367. שם

Proper names preceded throughout the Scriptures by this noun plural construct without the prefix Vav (בני) except in one instance where it is (בני) with it. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the various reading in Gen. 34 27, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 22b, on Gen. 34 27.

§ 368a-b. שם

and the sons of. is in four instances the textual reading, for which the Sevir is and the son of. That is, the singular instead of the plural. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 242b, on 1 Chron. 7 17, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb. 26 8, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 46 23. Lists I and III are identical. List II heads this Rubric ור בני ראו and records three only, omitting 1 Chron. 7 17. It is however perfectly evident that these three Lists simply exhibit the first attempt to collect the Sevirim and that later Nakdanim as usual, supplied the headings to correspond with the instances given in the respective Lists. This is attested by the fact that since the publication of this short List I have found the following four Lists of a larger recension of this Rubric: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 65a, on Gen. 46 23, which I have printed in Vol. III, letter ב, § 33; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 55a; (III) Orient. 2350, fol. 99b, and (IV) Orient. 1379, fol. 111a, all on the same passage. Though these Lists state in their respective headings that there are fourteen such instances, they enumerate fifteen. But even these long Lists do not give all the instances since it is evident that 1 Chron. 2 7; 7 14 and 24 29 belong to this category.

ט וס - § 369a-d.

and the sons, or children of. The following words respectively occur once only in combination with בני. That is, in being preceded by this noun plural construct with the prefix Vav they are unique. In all other instances where these words are preceded by this noun plural construct it is without the prefix Vav.

The four Lists, more or less fragmentary, which I have printed are from the following MSS. and editions. List I marked 369a is from Orient. 2849, fol. 48a, on Gen. 35 26; List II marked 369b is from the same MS., fol. 124a, on Deut. 2 12; List III marked 369c is from Add. 15,451, fol. 34b on Gen. 46 14. Of List IV marked 369d I collated two editions; one Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 366, which I have printed and one in the Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 214. These four Lists again exhibit the gradual development of the Massorah. The first, second and third, as is usually the case with the original attempts, have as yet neither headings specifying the number of these unique combinations, nor the catchwords to facilitate the identification of the passage.

The design of this Massorah is not simply to record the words which are unique in their combination with בני, but those which only occur again more than once in combination with בני. This is evident from the fact (1) that no fewer than forty-three unique combinations with בני are excluded from these Lists because they do not occur again preceded by בני' and (2) that thirteen others are excluded because they occur once only preceded by בני'. Tested by this canon the following facts are disclosed:

(1) Five combinations recorded in the Lists do not belong to this Rubric, since words do not occur at all preceded by בני viz. בני אהרן No. 13 in List I and No. 8 in List II; בני אהרן No. 31 in List III and No. 16 in List IV; בני אהרן No. 20 in List III and No. 23 in List IV; בני אהרן No. 30 in List III and No. 27 in List IV; בני אהרן No. 6 in List I and No. 29 in List IV.

(2) בני אהרן No. 12 in List III and IV and בני אהרן No. 24 in List III and No. 32 in List IV are against the import of this Massorah since these combinations occur once only without the prefix Vav (1 Chron. 23 18, 1 Chron. 1 42) and, therefore, belong to those instances which are excluded and which are given in the notes. In Gen. 36 26, 28 it is בני אהרן.

(3) the heading of List IV which as usual, has been added by a later Nakdan is therefore misleading. Moreover, the expression בני אהרן after בני is incorrect since it denotes a proper name whereas several of the combinations are not with proper names.

(4) בני אהרן No. 12 in List I does not occur and is most probably a clerical error for בני אהרן Numb. 26 9 which is given in Lists III and IV. Neither does בני אהרן No. 6 in List II occur. בני אהרן occurs twice Ezra 2 37, Neh. 7 40 and it may be that the compiler of this fragment read בני אהרן instead of בני אהרן in Ezra 10 20.

- ¹ Comp. (1) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 4 16; (2) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 3 24; (3) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 6 10; (4) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 2 31; (5) בני אהרן Gen. 10 29; (6) בני אהרן 2 Chron. 22 8; (7) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 7 10; (8) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 4 7; (9) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 2 8; (10) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 3 16; (11) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 2 32; (12) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 2 47; (13) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 3 16; (14) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 4 16; (15) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 2 38; (16) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 7 3; (17) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 3 17; (18) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 1 32; (19) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 24 29; (20) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 7 38; (21) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 2 7; (22) בני אהרן Job 4 11; (23) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 2 42; (24) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 4 26; (25) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 2 30; (26) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 7 3; (27) בני אהרן 2 Chron. 35 7; (28) בני אהרן Jerem. 40 8; (29) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 7 39; (30) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 8 39; (31) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 4 13; (32) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 3 19; (33) בני אהרן Numb. 26 8; (34) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 4 18; (35) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 23 17; (36) בני אהרן Job 5 7; (37) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 6 12; (38) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 4 20; (39) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 3 22; (40) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 2 28; (41) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 7 34; (42) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 2 31; (43) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 7 2.

² Comp. (1) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 8 12 with בני אהרן verse 18; (2) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 7 8 with בני אהרן the same verse; (3) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 7 7 with בני אהרן Numb. 26 40; (4) בני אהרן Ezek. 27 15; (5) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 2 6, with בני אהרן 9 6; (6) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 2 43, with בני אהרן 23 19; (7) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 7 10, with בני אהרן 11; (8) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 7 33, with בני אהרן in the same verse; (9) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 1 39, with בני אהרן Gen. 36 22; (10) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 24 29, with בני אהרן 23 29; (11) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 6 29, with בני אהרן 23 13; (12) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 1 40, with בני אהרן Gen. 36 24; (13) בני אהרן 1 Chron. 3 22, with בני אהרן 26 7.

ט וס - § 370.

and the children of Israel, occurs fifteen times in the middle of a verse. The design of this Massorah is not only to protect this phrase with the prefix Vav against the numerous instances in which it is without this prefix (vide supra, letter ב, § 254) but to safeguard the reading in 1 Sam. 14 18, since the Codices from which the ancient Versions were made exhibited here בני אהרן or בני אהרן, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

And wherever it begins a verse it is likewise so. Apart from the fifteen instances where it is in the middle of the verse, this phrase begins a verse eleven times (Exod. 1 7; 12 35; 14 29; 16 35; Deut. 10 6; Judg. 3 5; 1 Kings 12 17; 20 27; 1 Chron. 27 1; 2 Chron. 10 17; 31 6), so that this combination occurs altogether twenty-six times. Why the Massorah did not group them together in one List, but divided them in this artificial manner it is difficult to divine.

Of this popular Rubric I collated fifteen Lists, thirteen in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 102b, on Numb. 26 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 145b, on Josh. 12 6; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 212b, on 2 Sam. 21 2; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 288a, on Ezra 3 1; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 43b, on 1 Sam. 14 18; (VI) the same MS., fol. 200a, on Hos. 2 2; (VII) the same MS., fol. 263b, on 2 Chron. 10 17; (VIII) Add. 15,250, fol. 153a, on 2 Sam. 14 18; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 86b, on Levit. 24 23; (X) the same MS., fol. 153b, on Josh. 12 7; (XI) the same MS., fol. 371b, on Hos. 2 2; (XII) the same MS., fol. 449a, on Ezra 3 1; (XIII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 29; (XIV) the printed Massorah on Numb. 26 4, and (XV) the same on Hos. 2 2.

Lists V, VI and VII simply head this Rubric בני אהרן without stating that these instances are in the middle of the verse and without giving the second part, which makes this Massorah unintelligible. List XIV omits Neh. 7 73 which is evidently due to a clerical error, since it rightly states in the heading that there are fifteen such instances. The expression בני אהרן after Ezra 3 1, which represents the passage in question, is often overlooked by the Scribes. The phrase בני אהרן which appears in the heading in eleven of the Lists is not quite correct, since in 1 Sam. 14 18 בני אהרן ends the verse. In List XIII בני אהרן is, therefore, more correctly omitted.

ט וס' - § 371.

and against the children of, occurs four times. By fixing the number at four, the design of the Massorah is to controvert the reading בני אהרן in 1 Chron. 25 which is that of several MSS. several early editions and the ancient versions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 44a, on 1 Sam. 14 47, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 253a, on 1 Chron. 24 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 255b, on 1 Chron. 28 4; (IV) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 60a, on Jerem. 40 11; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 199b, on 1 Sam. 14 47; (VI) the same MS., fol. 296a, on Jerem. 40 11, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Chron. 24 5.

ט וס"ב - § 372.

as children of, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 210b, on Ps. 144 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 112b, on Amos 9 7; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 208a, on the same passage, and (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 301a, also on the same passage.

ט וס"ג - § 373.

to the sons of, begins a verse three times in this Section. That is, in contradistinction to the four instances where this date is with the prefix Vav in this very Section (ל בני 1 Chron. 6 42, 46, 47; 7 1). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 241b, on 1 Chron. 6 48, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 242a, on 1 Chron. 6 56; (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 134b, on 1 Chron. 6 48, and (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 405b, on the same passage.

ט וס"ד - § 374.

ל בני פלוני to the sons of, is in three instances with this accent. With the dative Lamed without and with the prefix Vav and followed by a proper name, begins a verse five times in Josh. 21. In three instances it is with the accent Munach (ל בני Josh. 21 6, 13, 27) and in two this combination is with Kadma Ve-Azla (ל בני Josh. 21 5 7). The Massorah, therefore, safeguards this variation in the accents in the minority of passages.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1471, fol. 53b, on Josh. 21 5. The heading which restricts it to וְלִבְנֵי מַלְיִי is not quite correct, since the third instance shows that the variation in the accents includes also the phrase וּמַלְיֵי מַלְיִי which occurs seven times in this chapter at the beginning of a verse (21 7, 23, 28, 30, 32, 36, 38) and which has the same accents as וְלִבְנֵי מַלְיִי in one instance only (21 32).

שָׁמַיָא = § 375.

וְלִבְנֵי and to the sons of, is in three instances with the accent in this Section. Exactly the same variation in the accents occurs in the parallel Section in 1 Chron. 6. Here where לְבָנַי, without and with the prefix Vav followed by a proper name, begins a verse six times, it is in one instance with Munach (6 42), twice it is with Zarka (6 56, 62) and three times this combination is with Kadma Ve-Azla. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 134a, on 1 Chron. 6 48.

שָׁמַיָא = § 376.

מִבְּנֵי from the sons of, begins a verse eight times in this Section. In Ezra 8—10 where the List of the families is given, the respective names are preceded by this expression which begins a verse twenty-four times. In sixteen instances it is with the prefix Vav (ובְּנֵי 8 6, 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14; 10 20, 21, 22, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30) and in eight only is it without the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 291a, on Ezra 8 2, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 377a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 399a, on Ezra 10 33; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 394a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah, also on the same passage. As there are no other instances of this occurrence in, any other parts of this book, Lists II—V head this Rubric הָרִישֵׁת בַּמַּסֹּרָה.

שָׁמַיָא = § 377.

מִבְּנֵי וּמַלְיֵי from the sons of, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs seven times in this book. In Chronicles בְּנֵי is normally preceded by מן without and with the prefix Vav when part taken out of the whole is expressed. In this combination it occurs no fewer than thirty-seven times.¹ In seven instances, however, it has the partitive Mem prefixed to it instead of this preposition. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional usage in this book.

And throughout the Scriptures it is likewise so except four times. For this part of the Rubric, see letter ב § 531, Vol. II, p. 232.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5610—11, Vol. II, fol. 138b, on 1 Chron. 12 32, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 250a, on 1 Chron. 18 11; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 412a, on the same passage; (IV) Halle Ochlah, Ve-Ochlah II, § 167, and (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Chron. 12 32. List II has not the second part of this Rubric.

¹ Comp. לִבְנֵי 1 Chron. 4 42; 5 18; 9 3, 4 (Keri), 14; 12 17, 26, 27; 24 3, 4; 26 1, 10; 27 3, 10, 14; 2 Chron. 20 14, 19; 29 12; 34 12, 12; יַעֲקֹבִי 1 Chron. 9 3, 8, 6, 7, 10, 32; 12 30, 31; 15 17; 2 Chron. 8 9; 29 19; 29 12, 13, 14, 14.

שָׁמַיָא = § 378.

וְלִבְנֵיהֶם thy sons, occurs eighteen times. That is, with the suffix second person singular feminine, in contradistinction to the forty-five instances in which it occurs without and with the prefix Vav, with the suffix second person masculine, viz. וְלִבְנֵי בְּנֵי. By fixing the number at eighteen, the Massorah excludes the ancient reading בְּנֵי in Zech. 9 13, which is still exhibited in the Septuagint and which is now accepted by many textual critics as the correct one, whilst it includes the Keri וְלִבְנֵי with the prefix Vav instead of the textual reading בְּנֵי in 2 Kings 4 7.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ב, § 229. It will be seen that though the heading emphatically states that there are eighteen such instances, the Rubric itself records seventeen. This is manifestly due to the Scribe who omitted the official reading in 2 Kings 4 7. Amongst these eighteen there are three קַמֶּצֶת with Kametz under the Nun (Isa. 49 17; 54 13; 62 5) which is due to the pausal accents. But the Massorah has no regard to the difference in the vowel-points.

שָׁמַיָא = § 379.

וּבְנֵיהֶם וּבָנֹתָיהֶם and thy sons and thy daughters, is three times thus combined. This combination occurs altogether eight times. In five instances it is without the prefix Vav (וּבְנֵיהֶם וּבָנֹתָיהֶם Deut. 28 32, 53; 2 Sam. 19 6; Jerem. 5 17; Job 1 18) whilst in these three instances only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah records the minority. This safeguarding was deemed especially necessary, since in Gen. 19 12 the ancient Codices exhibited a various reading, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 69a, on Levit. 10 14, which I have printed and which omits the third instance; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 207b, on Amos 7 17, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 230.

שָׁמַיָא = § 380.

בְּנֵי his son, is in four instances the textual reading for which the official reading is בְּנֵי his sons. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 124a, on Deut. 2 33, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 105b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 415b, on Dan. 11 10; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 258a, on Deut. 2 33; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VI) the same on 1 Sam. 30 6. That there were more than these four instances is evident from the fact that both the Midrash Rabba and the Zohar also give Numb. 21 35 as an instance which may be seen in the Minchath Shai on this passage.

שָׁמַיָא = § 381.

בְּנֵי וְאִשְׁתּוֹ his sons and his wives. In two instances his sons are placed before his wives. Normally when the plural אִשְׁתּוֹ wives with the pronominal suffix is combined with בְּנֵי sons or children with the pronominal suffix, אִשְׁתּוֹ and בְּנֵי take precedence of וְאִשְׁתּוֹ and בְּנֵי. Thus it is אִשְׁתּוֹ בְּנֵי (Gen. 36 6), בְּנֵי אִשְׁתּוֹ (Numb. 16 27; 1 Sam. 30 3; Jerem. 14 16; Neh. 10 29; 2 Chron. 20 13; 31 18) except in these two instances where the position is reversed. That this is the import of this Massorah, which is designed to restrict it to the plural אִשְׁתּוֹ with the pronominal suffix and not to אִשְׁתּוֹ the singular with the pronominal suffix, is evident from the fact that in the case of the singular there is no fixed precedence. Sometimes it is אִשְׁתּוֹ בְּנֵי (Exod. 4 20; 1 Sam. 30 22 &c.) and sometimes the reverse בְּנֵי אִשְׁתּוֹ (Gen. 7 7; 8 18; Exod. 18 5 &c.). That this anomalous combination was preserved in the dominant School of textual critics, and that the less dominant redactors of the text had the normal combination in Gen. 31 17 will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 45b, on Gen. 31 17, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 55b, on the same passage, and (III) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 233.

שָׁמַיָא = § 382.

בְּנֵי עִמּוֹ his sons with him, occurs four times. בְּנֵי without and with the prefix Vav, is fifteen times followed by the preposition with the suffix third person singular masculine. In eleven instances it is בְּנֵי (Gen. 7 7; 8 18; 9 8; 46 7; Exod. 28 1, 41; 29 21, 21; Levit. 8 2, 30, 30) and in four only is it עִמּוֹ. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 56a, on Gen. 48 1, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 66a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. As two of the instances are with the prefix Vav (Levit. 25 41, 54), the heading ought more properly to be בְּנֵי עִמּוֹ וְעִמּוֹ.

שָׁמַיָא = § 383.

וְלִבְנֵינוּ and to our children, is twice plene. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the reading in Deut. 29 28 which is marked by the dots as spurious. See my Introduction to the Masoretico-Critical text of the Bible p. 330 &c.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Gen. 31 16, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 21a, on the same passage. As this expression with the prefix Vav occurs twice only, the heading ought more properly to be בְּנֵי וְלִבְנֵינוּ. So also the heading of List II should be בְּנֵי וְלִבְנֵינוּ instead of בְּנֵי וְלִבְנֵינוּ since this expression is restricted to the Pentateuch.

שפ"ד - § 884.

וּבְנֵיהֶם וּבְנֹתֵיהֶם and your sons and your daughters, occurs twice in this combination. This phrase occurs altogether five times. In three instances it is without the prefix Vav (וּבְנֵיהֶם וּבְנֹתֵיהֶם) Exod. 32 2; Joel 3 1; Neh. 4 8) and in these two instances it is with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 108b, on Deut. 12 12.

שפ"ה - § 885.

וּבְנֵיהֶם וּבְנֹתֵיהֶם and their sons and their daughters, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the five instances where this combination occurs without the prefix Vav (וּבְנֵיהֶם וּבְנֹתֵיהֶם) Jerem. 11 22; Ezek. 23 47; 24 25; Ps. 106 38; Neh. 10 29). By fixing the number at three, the design of the Massorah is to controvert the various reading in Jerem. 14 16, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 40b, on Jerem. 14 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 195a, on 1 Sam. 30 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 156a, on Jerem. 14 16; (IV) the same MS., fol. 277a, on 2 Chron. 31 18; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 14 16, and (VI) the printed Massorah on 2 Chron. 31 18.

שפ"ו - § 886.

בְּנֵיהֶם בְּנֵיהֶן their sons or children, occurs three times in this form. That is, this noun plural without and with prefixes, which occurs numerous times with the suffix third person plural masculine, occurs three times only with the suffix third person plural feminine. The design of this Massorah is to controvert the ancient reading בְּנֵיהֶם in Gen. 31 43 which is still preserved in the Samaritan recension of the text. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 46a, on Gen. 31 43.

שפ"ז - § 887.

וּבָנָה and he shall build, occurs six times in the Scriptures. וּבָנָה occurs altogether forty-six times. In forty instances it is without the prefix Vav and in six only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional instances. This design of the Massorah is indicated by the addition at the end of the Rubric. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 170b, on 2 Chron. 33 4.

שפ"ח - § 888.

וּבְנֵיהֶם and I will build them, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this Kal preterite first person singular with Vav conversive and with the suffix third person plural, which occurs twice only, is spelt differently in the two passages of the same book, the Massorah safeguards this variation in the spelling against being made uniform by the copyists. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 24 6, which I have printed, and (II) the Massorah on the same passage.

שפ"ט - § 889.

וּבְנֵיהֶם and we shall build, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 456a, on Neh. 2 18.

ש"צ - § 890.

וּבְנֵיהֶם and he built, occurs three times . . . and once it is with Sheva. That is, in three instances the Vav is conversive and in one it is the conjunctive. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 233b, on 1 Kings 18 82, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 273a, 2 Chron. 26 6; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 195a, on 1 Kings 18 82, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

שצ"א - § 891.

וּבְנֵיהֶם and she built, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 242b, on 1 Chron. 7 24.

שצ"ב - § 892.

וּבְנֵיהֶם we will build, occurs seven times . . . and once it is with Vav conversive (וּבְנֵיהֶם). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Numb. 32 16. The addition at the end should be וּבְנֵיהֶם אֵת וּבְנֵיהֶם Neh. 3 38. It is my mistake.

שצ"ג - § 893.

בִּנְיָהּ building, is five times plene in the Scriptures in this form. That is, including the one instance in which it is with the prefix He (Amos 9 6), in contradistinction to the six instances in which it is defective (Comp. בָּנָה Gen. 4 17; 1 Kings 6 12; Jerem. 22 13; Ezek. 13 10; Micah 3 10; Habak. 2 12).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 150a, on 2 Chron. 2 3, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Amos 9 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 208a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 304b, also on the same passage; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Chron. 2 3, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 244. The heading of List II בְּ הַלְּבָבִים is incorrect since the five instances do not occur in the same section.

שצ"ד - § 894.

הַבּוֹנִים the builders, occurs five times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. In the other three instances where this participle plural occurs it is without the prefix He. (Ezra 4 1; Neh. 3 33, 35).

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 211a, on Ps. 118 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 288a, on Ezra 3 10; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 294b, on Neh. 3 37; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ps. 118 22; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VI) the same on Job 3 14. It is remarkable that though this participle plural is plene in three instances (בְּנֵיהֶם Ps. 118 22; Neh. 3 37; 4 11) and defective in two (בָּנָה Job 3 14; Ezra 3 10) none of the Lists indicate this variation in the orthography.

שצ"ה - § 895.

הַבּוֹנֵה the builders, or the builder of, occurs twice, once with He and once with Yod and is with Tzere. That is, this Kal participle is in one instance the plural [= with Yod] and in the other the singular [= with He] and is the construct [= with קָן i. e. Tzere] in both instances.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 227b, on 1 Kings 5 32, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 211b, on Ps. 118 22; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 320b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 183b, on 1 Kings 5 32; (V) the same MS., fol. 346a, on Ps. 147 2, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 243.

Here too, as in Rubric 394, the Massorah does not notice the variation in the plene and defective orthography of this expression, though in the second instance (Ps. 147 2) it is undoubtedly plene. This is attested by the Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 &c. as well as by all the early editions as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric constitutes part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter י, § 70).

שצ"ו - § 896.

לְבָנָה. Forms of the Chaldee בָּנָה to build, which are written with Aleph. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 364b, on Dan. 2 21, and (II) the printed Massorah on Dan. 2 9. From these two Lists I separated the forms of בָּנָה. See also letter א, § 22a.

שצ"ז - § 897.

בִּנְיָהּ Binnui, occurs six times. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the Eastern reading בָּנָה in Neh. 7 15 in accordance with the parallel passage in Ezra 2 10.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ב, § 250. It is incorrect since it states in the heading that it occurs six times and enumerates six only whereas it occurs seven times Ezra 10 38 is omitted. In two of the instances it is with the prefix Vav (Ezra 10 30, 38). As these two form part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Beth which respectively occur twice (vide infra, letter ב, § 67) it is evident that the omission of Ezra 10 38 is due to a clerical error.

שצ"ח - § 398.

צחָ Bunni, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 299a, on Neh. 10 16, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 121. The printed Massorah (List II) which states that it occurs four times is hopelessly corrupt.

שצ"ט - § 399.

צחָ Benaiah, occurs seven times in the Scriptures. This proper name without and with the prefixes occurs altogether forty-two times. In thirty-one instances it is the longer form צחָ and in eleven instances only is it the shorter form צחָ. Hence the Massorah safeguards the orthography in the minority of the passages. The statement in the heading that this form occurs seven times only is exclusive of the instances in Ezra where, as we shall see, it occurs four times.

And throughout Ezra it is likewise so. On comparing the books in which the two forms are used it will be seen that this promiscuous occurrence is restricted to three, viz. Samuel, Ezekiel and Chronicles. Here this name occurs altogether twenty-three times and here it is that the longer form is used in sixteen instances and the shorter form in seven only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the divergent minority. In Kings, where this name occurs fifteen times, it is uniformly the longer form. There is, therefore, no instance to be safeguarded. In Ezra, however, the contrary is the case. Here where this name occurs four times (Ezra 10 25, 30, 35, 43) it is always the shorter form. Hence the bare statement of this suffices without specifying the passages. For the cause of these two forms see my Introduction to the Masoretico-Critical edition of the Bible p. 386 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 75b, on Ezek. 11 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 137b, on 1 Chron. 11 22; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 147a, on 1 Chron. 27 14; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 71b, on 2 Sam. 20 23; (V) the same MS., fol. 245b, on 1 Chron. 11 22; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 275a, on Ezek. 11 13; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 319b, on 1 Chron. 11 22; (VIII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 49, and (IX) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 20 23. Lists I, VI and VIII omit the second part of this Rubric, which makes this Massorah unintelligible. List IV rightly heads the Rubric בנהי ובהי, since two of the instances have the prefix Vav (2 Sam. 20 23; 1 Chron. 4 36).

¹ Comp. צחָ, without and with the prefixes, 2 Sam. 8 18; 23 20, 22, 30; 1 Kings 1 8, 10, 26, 32, 36, 38, 44; 2 25, 29, 30, 30, 34, 35, 46; 4 4; Ezra 11 1; 1 Chron. 11 24; 15 18, 20, 24; 16 5, 6; 18 17; 27 5, 6, 34; 2 Chron. 31 13.

צח - § 400.

צחָ Benjamin, is seventeen times plene in the Scriptures. This proper name, without and with prefixes, occurs altogether about one hundred and sixty-five times. In one hundred and forty-eight instances it is defective i. e. without the Yod between the Mem and the final Nun and in seventeen instances only is it with the Yod. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional orthography. The protection of this abnormal spelling was all the more necessary since the Standard Codices of other textual redactors exhibited the normal orthography in several instances, as will be seen from the notes on Gen. 35 18 and 42 4 in my edition of the Bible. The design of this Massorah, moreover, is to exclude the textual reading in 1 Sam. 9 1 and 1 Chron. 27 12.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated seventeen Lists, fourteen in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 300a, on Neh. 11 36, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 40b, on Gen. 49 27; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 15a, on Josh. 21 17; (IV) the same MS., fol. 42b, on 1 Sam. 13 2; (V) the same MS., fol. 168a, on Jerem. 32 8; (VI) the same MS., fol. 201a, on Hos. 5 8; (VII) the same MS., fol. 387a, on Neh. 11 36; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 31b, on Gen. 35 18; (IX) the same MS., fol. 255b, on Jerem. 32 8; (X) Add. 15,451, fol. 159a, on Josh. 21 17; (XI)

the same MS., fol. 373a, on Hos. 5 8; (XII) Add. 21,160, fol. 35a, on Gen. 35 18; (XIII) the same MS., fol. 47a, on Gen. 42 4; (XIV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement fol. 132a; (XV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 35 18; (XVI) the same on Josh. 21 17 and (XVII) the same on Neh. 11 38.

It will be seen that, though the heading of the List which I have printed (List I) emphatically states that there are seventeen such instances, it enumerates fifteen only. As all the other Lists not only state in their respective headings that there are seventeen, but record this number, it is evident that the omission of Hos. 5 8 and Neh. 11 36 is due to a clerical oversight, which is frequently the case in long Lists. These two instances are not only given in the other Lists, but five of the Rubrics are actually on these passages, as will be seen from the above description.

צ"ח - § 401.

צחָ Benjamin, occurs nine times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated eleven Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 171a, on Judg. 20 39, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 36a, on Gen. 45 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 209a, on Obod. 19; (IV) the same MS., fol. 242b, on 1 Chron. 7 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 261a, on 1 Chron. 21 6; (VI) the same MS., fol. 280a, on 2 Chron. 34 32; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 317b, on 1 Chron. 7 10; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. on Gen. 45 14; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 54b, on the same passage; (X) Vienna Codex No. 85, on 1 Chron. 7 10, and (XI) the same Codex on 2 Chron. 34 32.

The bare statement of the heading that this proper name with the prefix Vav occurs nine times without any qualification, which is not only that of the List which I have printed (List I), but that of four other Lists (III, V, VI and IX), is misleading since צחָ occurs no fewer than twenty-eight times. Its import is indicated by the qualifying addition at the end of the Rubric in List II which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah. It states that these nine instances are unique, since in all the other passages where it occurs it is either preceded by the name יוסף or יוסף as the following analysis will show. In fifteen instances where it occurs it is preceded by Judah (Comp. יוסף 1 Kings 12 23; Ezra 1 5; 4 1; 10 9; Neh. 12 36; 2 Chron. 11 1, 3, 12, 23; 15 2, 8, 9; 25 5; 31 1; 34 9) and in four instances it is preceded by Joseph (Comp. יוסף יוסף Gen. 35 24; 46 19; Deut. 27 12; 1 Chron. 2 2). The printed Massorah mentions this Rubric on Exod. 1 3 and refers to Judg. 29 39 where Jacob b. Chayim states he has given the List, whilst on Judg. 20 29 he refers to the Massorah Finalis for it, but it is nowhere to be found.

י ובענין סי' סמינן כחיהדין וכל יתרה ווסף יתרה רבותיהן.

צ"ח - § 402.

צחָ Benjamin, and in Benjamin, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this form of the name which occurs twice only is differently spelt in each instance, the Massorah safeguards the variation in the spelling. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 26b, on Judg. 10 19.

צ"ח - § 403.

צחָ Bina, occurs twice in all the Scriptures and is in both instances written with Aleph. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 136a, on 1 Chron. 9 43.

צ"ח - § 404.

צחָ entraining, occurs twice, once written with He, and once with Aleph. This Chaldee Peal participle active, which occurs twice, is differently spelt within two verses of each other. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards it against being made uniform. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 369b, on Dan. 6 14, which I have printed and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 412, on the same passage.

צ"ח - § 405.

צחָ Beor, is twice defective. This proper name occurs altogether ten times. In eight instances it is plene (צחָ Gen. 36 32; Num. 22 5; 31 8; Deut. 23 5; Josh. 13 22; 24 9; Micah 6 5; 1 Chron. 1 43) and in these two instances only is it defective.

Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 230b, on Numb. 24 3.

חז = § 406.

בעלתי I have become a husband, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the various reading in the early Codices in Jerem. 31 32, as is attested by the Septuagint which exhibits ἡμεῖς = קחתי. Modern critics rightly take it that the כ in the Massoretic text was originally ; and that the correct reading, therefore, is קחתי. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 167b, on Jerem. 31 32.

חז = § 407.

בעלתה married, or married wife, occurs twice. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter כ § 252.

חז = § 408.

בעלתה בעל married to a husband, occurs twice and is defective. The expression חז defective refers to the participle construct which is plene in the absolute, as will be seen in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 135b, on Deut. 22 22, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 145b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 108b, also on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 20 3, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter כ, § 253. The heading of List V כי דמטיב באי ought more properly to be כי דמטיב ובאי, since both the instances are restricted to the Pentateuch.

חז = § 409.

לבעליו to the owner thereof, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 70a, on Exod. 21 34, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 352b, on Eccl. 5 12; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 53b, on Exod. 21 34; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 101a, on Exod. 22 11; (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 21 34, and (VI) the same on Eccl. 5 12.

חז = § 410.

ובקלות and Bealoth, occurs twice. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter כ, § 254. These two words constitute part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Beth which respectively occur twice. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 67.)

חז = § 411.

באנא Baana, is three times written with Aleph. This proper name, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether twelve times. In nine instances it is with He (Comp. בקה 2 Sam. 4 2, 5, 6, 9; 23 29; Ezra 2 2; Neh. 7 7; 10 28; 1 Chron. 11 30) and in these three instances only, is it with Aleph. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional spelling. This protection was deemed all the more necessary since in 1 Kings 4 12 some MSS. and editions exhibit a different reading, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 79a, on 1 Kings 4 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 380b, on Neh. 3 4; (III) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 4 16, and (IV) the same on Neh. 7 7.

חז = § 412.

ובקר occurs twice in two different senses. That is, in Exod. 22 4 it denotes and he shall feed and in Levit. 6 5 and he shall burn. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 44a, on Exod. 22 4, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the same on Levit. 6 5.

חז = § 413.

ובקרתה הרע מישראל and thou shalt put away evil from Israel, is twice thus combined. The phrase ובקרתה הרע which occurs nine times altogether and which is restricted to Deuteronomy, is in seven instances followed by מקרבך from the midst of thee (13 6; 17 7; 19 19; 21 21; 22 21, 24; 24 7) and in two only by מקרבך from Israel. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. This protection was all the more necessary since the two phrases are used promiscuously within a few verses of each other (17 7, 12; 22 21, 22). The addition at the end of the Rubric indicates the design of this Massorah.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 135b, on Deut. 22 22, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 145b, on the same passage.

חז = § 414.

ובקרו and they shall burn, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 192a, on Ezek. 39 9b. It is remarkable that this Model Codex gives Isa. 1 31 which is קרו Kal in the received text, as the first of the two instances where קרו the Piel occurs, instead of Ezek. 39 9a. That this is no Scribal error is evident from the fact that the Massorah Parva of this most carefully written Codex, is not only on Ezek. 39 9b, but gives the catchword for the second instance קרו = Isa. 1 31.

חז = § 415.

בקר באש burning with fire, occurs twice. That is, in contradiction to בקר באש (Hos. 7 6). This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Deut. 4 11 affords a striking illustration of the difficulty in deciphering its import which is due to the artificial manner in recording the instances. The phrase בקר באש occurs four times and not twice. As the second instance is in the combination בקר באש which occurs three times and as these instances are restricted to the same book (Deut. 4 11; 5 20; 9 15), the Massorah, as is not unfrequently the case, treats all the passages in this book as yielding one instance.

חז = § 416.

בכערים brutish men, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 180b, on Ezek. 21 36, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 307b, on Ps. 94 8, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 21 36. List II heads this Rubric כי בתי לישני = it occurs twice in two different senses.

חז = § 417.

תבקרתה thou shalt, or she shall terrify me, occurs three times and with Pathach. That is, with Pathach under the Tav in contradiction to תבקרתה this Piel future third person with suffix first person singular which is with Shurek under the Tav (2 Sam. 22 5; Ps. 18 5). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter כ, § 257.

חז = § 418.

תבקרתה they shall terrify him, occurs twice defective in the same book. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Job 3 5. As it occurs twice only and is defective in both instances and, moreover, as the two instances are restricted to the same book, the heading ought more properly to be כי חז ובקרתה.

חז = § 419.

נבטת he was afraid, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 274a, on Esther 7 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 144a, on 1 Chron. 21 30; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 413b, on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Esther 7 6.

It is to be remarked that the best Standard Codices (Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251 &c.) and several of the early editions have it with Pathach, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

חז = § 420.

באוצה greedy, is twice plene. This participle active singular occurs altogether five times. In three instances it is defective. (מקרבך Jerem. 8 10; Hab. 2 9; Prov. 1 19) and in two it is plene

Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. It will be seen that the two different spellings occur in the same books. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 465 on Prov. 15 27. יביל in the heading is a printing mistake for ביל.

תכי"א = § 421.

תכי"א thy covetousness, occurs twice. That is, with the suffix second person singular feminine, in contradistinction to the only one instance where this quadrilateral is תכני with the suffix second person singular masculine (Jerem. 22 17). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181a, on Ezek. 22 13.

תכי"ב = § 422.

תכי"ב is twice plene in this form. That is, both in the first instances where it is the plural of תכני fenced place and in the second instance where it is the plural of תכני rock with the prefix Beth, it is plene with the two Vavs. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190b, on Ezek. 36 35, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 277a, on the same passage. The heading in List I emphasises the fact that the expression is different in sense, whilst the heading of List II (ב' מל' דביל) lays stress on the fact that it is with the two Vavs.

תכי"ג = § 423.

תכי"ג fenced places. To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that the plural of תכני, without and with the prefixes, occurs altogether twenty times and with the Job instance (vide supra, letter ב, § 422) twenty-one times. Its normal orthography is תכני with the second Vav only. In this form it occurs fifteen times (Numb. 13 28; Deut. 28 52; Josh. 14 12; 2 Sam. 20 6; 2 Kings 18 13; 19 25; Isa. 36 1; 37 26; Jerem. 33 3; Hos. 8 14; Zeph. 1 16; 2 Chron. 17 2; 19 5; 32 1; 33 14). The remaining six instances are spelt in three different ways. Two are תכני with the first Vav, but without the second (Deut. 1 28; Neh. 9 25); two are תכני with both Vavs (vide supra, letter ב, § 422) and two are תכני without either Vav (Deut. 3 5; 9 1). The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the three different abnormal spellings only, as these constitute the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 117b, on Deut. 9 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 209a, on Numb. 13 28, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 261. Add. 21,160, has also another recension of this Massorah which is principally designed to safeguard the orthography in Deuteronomy. It is on fol. 258b, Deut. 3 5 as follows: וילכדו ערים בצורה. בצורות ישבו מל דמל. ושאר' בצורה כתבן. אנה אנתו עלים אחינו המסו. וילכדו ערים בצורה.

תכי"ד = § 424.

תכי"ד is twice so written. That is, plene with the first Vav and without the second Vav. Of this separate Rubric, which safeguards the first two instances recorded in the preceding Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 123a, on Deut. 1 28, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Neh. 9 25. The catchword וינצמים = Deut. 9 1 is a mistake for וילכדו Neh. 9 25.

תכי"ה = § 425.

תכי"ה it shall be withholden, occurs twice. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ב, § 259.

תכי"ו = § 426.

תכי"ו from Bozrah, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this popular Massorah I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 24a, on Gen. 36 33, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 29a, on Isa. 63 1; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 130b, on 1 Chron. 1 44; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 145b, on Isa. 63 1; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 32a, on Gen. 36 33; (VI) the same MS., fol. 237b, on Isa. 63 1; (VII) the same MS., fol. 314a, on 1 Chron. 1 44; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 37a, on Gen. 36 33; (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (X) the same on Isa. 63 1. As these three instances occur respectively in the Law, the Prophets and the Hagiographa Lists VII, VIII and IX add כתיב דר' בנתי' דר' בנתי' or simply the initials כתיב.

תכי"ז = § 427.

תכי"ז and he clave, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 167b, on Judg. 15 19.

תכי"ח = § 428.

תכי"ח cleaving, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 267a, on Eccl. 10 9.

תכי"ט = § 429.

תכי"ט and cleaving, occurs twice. That is, with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 345b, on Ps. 141 7, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 263. It will be seen that according to List I not only is Eccl. 9 1 defective, but it is with the prefix Vav contrary to the received text whilst according to List II, which is headed ונקת ב' מל' בליש and in which מן מילה ונקת בשר is the second instance, Ps. 141 7 is plene, though it is defective in the textus receptus.

תלי"א = § 430.

תלי"א they were broken up, occurs twice. This Niphal preterite third person plural which occurs four times, is in these two instances only with Sheva under the Coph. In the other two passages it is ונקת with Kametz (Prov. 3 20; 2 Chron. 25 12) which is due to its pausal accent. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ב, § 265.

תלי"ב = § 431.

תלי"ב and she was broken up, occurs four times. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 216b, on 1 Kings 1 40, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 136a, on Numb. 16 31; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 76b, on 1 Kings 1 40; (IV) the same MS., fol. 117b, on 2 Kings 25 4; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 84a, on Numb. 16 31; (VI) the same MS., fol. 269b, on Jerem. 52 7; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 92b, on Numb. 16 31; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 184a, on 1 Kings 1 40; (IX) the same MS., fol. 215b, on 2 Kings 25 4; (X) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb. 16 31; (XI) the printed Massorah on the same passages, and (XII) the same on 1 Kings 1 40. List X only has the mnemonic sign.

תלי"ג = § 432.

תלי"ג a bekah, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 16a, on Gen. 24 22, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 262.

תלי"ד = § 433.

תלי"ד. Forms from the root תקק to make void, which respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 67b, on Jerem. 51 2. The heading I have added in accordance with the import of the Rubric ונקת Isa. 19 3, which is the only other unique form of תקק, is omitted.

תלי"ה = § 434.

תלי"ה making empty, or void, occurs twice. With the two instances of the Kal participle active singular masculine added to those in the preceding Rubric all the forms of the verb from תקק are exhausted. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 202a, on Hos. 10 1, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 296a, on the same passage. The heading of List II, viz. ב' יביל is more precise, since both instances are plene.

תלי"ו = § 435.

תלי"ו to enquire, to consider, occurs twice in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 252a, on Prov. 20 25, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 110b, on 2 Kings 16 15; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 266. This Rubric constitutes part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 70.)

תליר = § 436.

יִבְקֹרְךָ he shall seek, occurs twice. That is, this Piel future third person singular with Tzere under the Coph, in contradistinction to יִבְקֹרְךָ the Chaldee Pael future with Pathach under the Coph, which occurs once (Ezra 4 15). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 71a, on Levit. 13 36, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As it is combined with מִלּוּ in both instances, List II heads this Rubric בּ וְיִבְקֹרְךָ.

תליר = § 437.

אֹזֵן וְצֹאֵן oxen and sheep, occurs five times. Normally when these two classes of animals are combined צֹאֵן sheep precedes אֹזֵן oxen. In this form the phrase occurs about eighteen times. (Comp. אֹזֵן וְצֹאֵן Gen. 12 16; 13 5; 20 14; 21 27; 24 35; Exod. 12 38; Deut. 16 2; 1 Sam. 14 32; 15 21; 27 9; 2 Sam. 12 2; 1 Kings 1 9; 8 6; 2 Kings 5 26; Jerem. 31 12; 2 Chron. 5 6; 18 2; 32 29.) As it is in these five instances only that the order is reversed, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 83a, on Levit. 27 32.

תליר = § 438.

כְּבֹשֶׁת like the ox, is three times with Dagesh in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 240a, on Job. 40 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 146b, on Isa. 65 25; (III) the same MS., fol. 335a, on Job 40 15; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 220a, on Isa. 11 7; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VI) the same on Job 40 15.

תליר = § 439.

בְּבֹקֶר in the morning, begins a verse three times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ב, § 269.

תליר = § 440.

בְּבֹקֶר בְּבֹקֶר morning by morning, or every morning, occurs thirteen times. Of this popular Massorah I collated seventeen Rubrics, fifteen in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 66a, on Levit. 6 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 101b, on Ezek. 46 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 64b, on 2 Sam. 13 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 130a, on Isa. 28 19; (V) the same MS., fol. 140b, on Isa. 50 4; (VI) the same MS., fol. 197b, on Ezek. 46 13; (VII) the same MS., fol. 215b, on Zeph. 3 5; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 253a, on 1 Chron. 23 30; (IX) the same MS., fol. 265a, on 2 Chron. 13 11; (X) Add. 15,250, fol. 171a, on 2 Sam. 13 4; (XI) the same MS., fol. 224a, on Isa. 28 19; (XII) the same MS., fol. 233b, on Isa. 50 4; (XIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 292b, on Ezek. 46 13; (XIV) Add. 21,160, fol. 91b, on Exod. 16 21; (XV) the same MS., fol. 116a, on Exod. 30 7; (XVI) the printed Massorah on Zeph. 3 5, and (XVII) the same on 2 Chron. 13 11.

תליר = § 441.

וּבְבֹקֶר and in the morning, occurs six times. That is, in contradistinction to the one hundred and five instances in which it is בְּבֹקֶר without the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 8b, on Isa. 17 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 201a, on Ps. 88 14; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 271b, on Esther 2 14; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 126a, on Isa. 17 11; (V) the same MS., fol. 359b, on Esther 2 14; (VI) the same MS., fol. 361a, on Esther 5 14; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 91a, on Exod. 16 12; (VIII) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah, Supplement fol. 131a; (IX) the printed Massorah on Exod. 16 12, and (X) the same on Esther 5 14.

תליר = § 442.

וּלְבֹקֶר and to the morning, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the peculiar construction in these two passages and thus to exclude the more natural reading בְּבֹקֶר without the prefix Lamed which is required by the parallelism and which is still preserved in the Septuagint. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 181a, on Ps. 30 6, which I have printed;

(II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 244a, on 1 Chron. 9 27, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 30 6.

תליר = § 443.

מִן־בֹּקֶר from the morning, occurs three times. That is, to distinguish it from the only other instance where it occurs and where it is בְּבֹקֶר without the prefix He (Job 4 20). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 74b, on 2 Sam. 24 15, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 169b, on 2 Sam. 2 27, and (III) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 24 15.

תליר = § 444.

לְבֹקֶר לְבֹקֶר every morning, is four times with Dagesh . . . and once it is with Chirek. Normally the phrase for every morning is בְּבֹקֶר בְּבֹקֶר (vide supra, letter ב, § 440). Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional expression.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 15a, on Isa. 33 2, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 182a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 309a, on Ps. 101 8; (IV) the same MS., 357a, on Lament. 3 23; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 387b, on Ps. 101 8; (VI) the same MS., fol. 374b, on Lament. 3 23; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 403a, on the same passage; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 423b, on Ps. 101 8; (IX) the printed Massorah on Isa. 33 2, and (X) the same on Ps. 101 8.

תליר = § 445.

וּבְבֹקֶתֶם and ye shall seek, occurs three times in the Scriptures and once it is without the prefix Vav. By fixing the number at three the design of this Massorah is to exclude the ancient reading וּבְבֹקֶתֶם and thou shall seek which is still preserved in the Samaritan recension in Deut. 4 29 and which is the more correct reading, as is attested by בָּרָךְ the next verb of this very clause.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fourteen Lists, eleven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 50b, on Jerem. 29 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 96a, on Numb. 16 10; (III) Orient. 4446, fol. 134b—135a, where it is given twice; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 29 13; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 165b, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 98a, on Deut. 4 29; (VII) the same MS., fol. 254b, on Jerem. 29 13; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 92a, on Numb. 16 10; (IX) the same MS., fol. 253b, on Jerem. 29 13; (X) Add. 15,451, fol. 122b, on Deut. 4 29; (XI) Add. 21,160, fol. 215a, on Numb. 16 10; (XII) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (XIII) the same on Deut. 4 29, and (XIV) the same on Jerem. 29 13. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times with the prefix Vav and once without it. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 74.)

תליר = § 446.

בָּרְכֵשׁ seek, occurs three times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. It will be seen that in Eccl. 7 25, which the Massorah gives here as the one instance with the prefix Vav, בָּרְכֵשׁ is not the imperative as in the other three instances, but the infinitive.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 183a, on Ps. 84 15, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 215a, on Ps. 119 176; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 39b, on 1 Sam. 9 8; (IV) the same MS., fol. 316b, on Ps. 119 176; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 343a, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 184b, on 1 Sam. 9 8 and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 275. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 73.)

תליר = § 447.

וּלְבֹקֶשׁ and to seek, occurs four times. This Piel infinitive with the prefix Lamed, which occurs altogether twenty-eight times, is in twenty-four instances without the conjunctive Vav and with it in four instances only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 192a, on 1 Sam. 25 29, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 124a, on Zech. 8 21; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 206a, on Ps. 104 21; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 310a, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 360b, on Esther 4 8; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 405b, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 104 21.

תניח = § 448.

תניח seek ye, occurs seven times. This quadrilateral occurs altogether sixteen times. In eight instances it is with Chirek under the Beth and without Dagesh in the Coph i. e. תניח preterite third person plural (Ps. 54 5; 86 14; Lament. 1 9; Eccl. 7 29; Esther 6 2; Ezra 2 62; Neh. 7 64; 12 27) and in seven it is with Pathach under the Beth and Dagesh in the Coph i. e. the imperative plural masculine. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority and thus safeguards them against being interchanged.

And once it is with the prefix Fav. With the prefix it is preterite four times (Ezek. 7 25, 26; Hos. 3 5; 5 15) and once only it is the imperative. Hence the Massorah safeguards the single instance.

Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 119a, on Zeph. 2 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 140b, on 1 Chron. 16 11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 55a, on 1 Sam. 28 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 215a, on Zeph. 2 3; (V) the same MS., fol. 248b, on 1 Chron. 16 11; (VI) the same MS., fol. 290a, on Ps. 27 8; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 310b, on Zeph. 2 3; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 322a, on 1 Chron. 16 11; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 201a, on 1 Sam. 28 7; (X) the printed Massorah on Zeph. 2 3, and (XI) the same on 1 Chron. 16 11.

It is remarkable that List IV, which is from the carefully written Model Codex, not only states in the heading that there are four such instances only, but gives Ps. 22 27 as the fourth passage (בקהו ר' רדש ויהי בקשו את יי בפהו בקשו יי רדשו). It will thus be seen that this List not only omits 1 Sam. 28 7; Ps. 27 8; 105 4; 1 Chron. 16 11, but reads בקשו in Ps. 22 27, which is תניח in the received text.

תניח = § 449.

תניח and they shall, or but let them seek, is three times Raphe in the Scriptures. That is, this sexiliteral, which occurs altogether twelve times, is in three instances with Chirek under the Vav, being the copulative, in contradistinction to the nine instances where it has Pathach, being Fav conversive (Comp. תניח Josh. 2 22; Judg. 6 29; 2 Sam. 17 20; 1 Kings 1 3; 19 10, 14; 2 Kings 2 17; Zech. 6 7; Esther 2 21). It will be seen that Raphe is here the Massoretic terminology for Chirek.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 239a, on 2 Kings 2 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 153b, on 2 Chron. 7 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 98b, on 2 Kings 2 16, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 279.

תניח = § 450.

תניח occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 348a, on Parv. 31 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 334a, on Job 37 11, and (III) the printed Massorah on Prov. 31 2. List III heads this Rubric תניח לשון ישיב. The same heading Jacob b. Chayim also gives in the Massorah Parva on this passage. But none of the MS. Lists, nor the Massorah Parva in the MSS. which I have collated have this remark. Indeed Jacob b. Chayim himself does not give it in the Massorah Parva on Job 37 11, where he simply remarks תניח as it is in the MSS.

תניח = § 451.

תניח and pure, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 180a, on Ps. 24 4.

תניח = § 452.

תניח as the son of, is twice with Pathach. That is, in contradistinction to the fifteen instances in which this trilateral is תניח with Kametz. With Kametz it is seven instances an adverb denoting already &c. (Eccl. 1 10; 2 12; 3 15, 15; 6 10; 9 6, 7) and in eight the name of a river (Ezek. 1 1, 3; 3 15, 23; 10 15, 20, 22; 43 3). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 282b, on Dan. 7 13, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Dan. 6 1. In List II the Rubric is more explicit and is as follows: תניח ב' פתי בשמתי . . . וכל קריי קבי.

תניח = § 453a.

תניח the field, is three times written with Aleph. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 411a, on Dan. 4 12.

To understand the import of this Rubric, it is necessary to remark that this Chaldee emphatic of תניח a field occurs altogether eight times. It is in two instances preceded by תניח in the tender grass of (Dan. 4 12, 20a) and in six by תניח the beasts of (Dan. 2 38; 4 9, 18, 20b, 22, 29). The Massorah, therefore, as is not unfrequently the case artificially counts all the six combinations with תניח as exhibiting one, and thus obtains the three instances.

תניח = § 453b.

תניח is three times written with Aleph. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 367b, on Dan. 4 18. It will be seen that it is another artificial recension of the preceding Rubric. The three instances are here obtained by (1) giving the solitary exception of תניח to eat with Aleph instead of the תניח; (2) by counting all the seven instances of תניח to create (Gen. 1 1, 27, 27; 2 3; Deut. 4 32; Isa. 40 26; Jerem. 31 22) as one, and (3) all the eight of תניח the field in Daniel (2 38; 4 9, 12, 18, 20, 20, 22, 29) as one. There is another recension of this Massorah in Orient. 2365, fol. 2a, on Gen. 1 27 which is as follows: כל לשון בראה כתי אלף וכל לשון אבראי בת' הי במי'א כתי אלף ולא ברא איהם להם.

תניח = § 454.

תניח אלהים God created, is three times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the combination תניח Jehovah created, which is recorded in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 1a, on Gen. 1 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 5b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 107a, on Deut. 4 32; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 2b, on Gen. 1 1, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the List of nine words which respectively occur three times combined with תניח. (Vide supra, letter א, § 654).

תניח = § 455.

תניח יהוה Jehovah created, is three times thus combined. That is, in these passages the different forms of the verb תניח precede the ineffable Name, in contradistinction to the other combinations where the verb follows this divine Name (Isa. 40 23; 42 5; 43 1, 15; 45 8).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 2b, on Isa. 4 5, and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 53a, on Jerem. 31 22. As in Numb. 16 30 it is תניח future and in Isa. 4 5 it is תניח with the prefix Fav, the heading of List II תניח יהוה is more correct.

תניח = § 456.

תניח pure, or Davah, is in five instances, written with He. That is, in contradistinction to the instances in which this trilateral is written with Aleph, recorded in letter ב, § 453.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 24a, on Judg. 7 24, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 136a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 350a, on Ps. 19 9; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 331a, on Cant. 6 9; (V) the printed Massorah on Judg. 7 24, and (VI) the same on Cant. 6 9. It will be seen that in two instances this trilateral is part of the proper name תניח (Judg. 7 24, 24) and in three the feminine of the adjective תניח. The Massorah, however, as is frequently the case, has regard simply to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in the sense. List IV adds at the end of the Rubric תניח רבותין וכל לשון אכלה רבותין תניח יהוה וכל לשון אכלה רבותין תניח יהוה וכל לשון אכלה רבותין תניח יהוה. In the printed Massorah (Lists V and VI) where the same addition is to be found, Jacob b. Chayim omits the reference to the exceptional instance.

תניח = § 457.

תניח I have created him, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 138b, on Isa. 45 8.

תניח = § 458.

תניח occurs four times in this form. The design of this Massorah is to catalogue the trilateral forms without and with the prefixes, with Kametz and Tzere. Hence the four instances include two Piel imperatives of תניח to form, to make (Ezek. 21 24, 24), one Piel infinitive with the prefix Vav of the same root (Ezek. 23 47) and one plural construct with the prefix Lamed of the adjective pure (Ps. 73 1). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 94b, on Ezek. 21 24.

טנז = § 459.

טנז occurs twice in two different senses, once plene and once defective. That is, in one instance where it is plene it denotes a creation, or unheard of thing (Numb. 16 30) and in the other where it is defective, it is the feminine of the adjective טנז and denotes fat (Hab. 1 16).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 110b, on Numb. 16 30, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 83b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 305b, on Hab. 1 16, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Numb. 16 30. List II, which heads this Rubric טנז, emphatically states that it is plene in both instances. These two instances form part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ז, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217.)

טס = § 460.

טס the fat, the fatlings, occurs twice. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ezek. 34 3.

טסא = § 461.

טסא the fat ones, is three times plene in this section in this form. That is, this adjective plural feminine without and with prefixes (= טסא), which occurs altogether six times in this section (= Gen. 41 1—20), is in three instances plene, whilst in the other three it is defective (Gen. 41 2, 4, 20). The Massorah, therefore, safeguards this diversity of spelling within such a limited space. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 27a, on Gen. 41 5, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 61b; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 51b; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

טסב = § 462.

טסב the food, occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 64b, on 2 Sam. 13 5. As these instances are not only restricted to the same book, but occur within a few verses of each other, the heading ought more properly to be טסב.

טסג = § 463.

טסג fleeing, gliding, is twice defective. In the only other passage where it is plene and with the prefix Vav it is a proper name (1 Chron. 3 22). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 129a, on Isa. 27 1, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 330a, Job 26 13. For another recension of this Rubric see below letter ז, § 469.

טסד = § 464.

טסד bars, fugitives, is always without the second Yod except twice. Without and with prefixes this plural noun occurs altogether eleven times. As it is defective nine times (Exod. 26, 26, 27, 27, 29, 29; 36 32, 32, 34, 34) and plene in in these two instances, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 56b, on Exod. 26 26, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 137b, on Isa. 43 14. This recension includes the instance in which it is טסד with Kametz (Isa. 43 14).

טסה = § 465.

טסה bars, is always without the second Yod except once. This recension excludes the instance in which it is טסה with Kametz and hence gives one plene instance only. Of this form of the Massorah I collated three Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Exod. 26 26, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the same on Exod. 36 32.

טסז = § 466.

טסז to flee, occurs four times, three times defective and once plene. Of this Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, I collated two Lists: (I) the Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 284b, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 36 36. As is frequently the case, Jacob b. Chayim's Lists are incorrect. List I is headed טסז which is manifestly a mistake and ought to be the reserve טסז as I have printed it, since against the third instance only is the remark טסז. List II is headed טסז and טסז in Jonah I 3 is omitted altogether. Moreover, according to the oldest and Standard Codices in Jonah I 3 is defective, viz. St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; British Museum Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 &c. as well as according to all the early editions.

טסח = § 467.

טסח when he fled, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 34b, on Gen. 35 7, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Ps. 57 1.

טסיה = § 468.

טסיה fleeing, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 34a, on Jerem. 4 29, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 150a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 16 8. In List III this Rubric is headed טסיה in the Massorah has against it in the Massorah Parva טסיה in both instances. But this is incorrect, since it is with Pathach in both instances. This is not only attested by the best MSS., but by the fact that the Massorah gives it in the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice with Pathach. (Vide infra, letter ז, § 539, Vol. II, p. 299.) In Gen. 16 8 it is with Pathach at the end of the verse. Hence it is included in the List of words in Genesis which have Pathach with the pausal accent Soph-Pasuk. (Vide infra, letter ז, § 540, Vol. II, p. 299.)

טסיה = § 469.

טסיה is three times defective in this form. That is, in the two passages where it is the adjective and in the one instance where it is the Hiphil participle. In this respect, therefore, this Rubric differs from the one exhibited in letter ז, § 463. The latter simply records the two passages where it is the adjective.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 72b, on Exod. 26 28; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 108b; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. As these three instances respectively occur in one of the three divisions of the Bible List III has at the end of the Rubric טסיה.

טסיע = § 470.

טסיע his bar, is twice the textual reading and the official reading is טסיע his bars. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 81b, on Exod. 39 33, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 64b, on the same passage, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Exod. 35 11. The latter adds at the end טסיע i. e. the same is the case in Ezek. 17 21 where the Kethiv is טסיע and the Keri טסיע and that in all other instances it is plene.

טסיא = § 471.

טסיא her bars, is twice defective. That is, in the first instance it is without the second Yod and in the second it is without the first Yod. On referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that both the MSS. and early editions vary in the orthography of this expression. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 292a, on Jonah 2 7.

טסיהב = § 472a.

טסיהב her bars, occurs four times, three times plene and once defective. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 68b, on Jerem. 51 30, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 221b, on Isa. 15 5, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 285. All these Lists state without any qualification that three of the instances are plene and do not indicate which is the solitary defective, though List II states in the heading (טסיהב) that the defective consists in the absence of the second Yod i. e. טסיהב.

טסיהב = § 472b.

טסיהב which occurs four times varies in its letters, twice it is entirely plene, once it is without the second Yod and once without the first Yod. According to this recension, therefore, which I have found in Orient. 1474, only, fol. 67a, on Jerem. 51 30, there are two instances only which are entirely plene, viz. בְּרִיתְךָ (Jerem. 51 30, Lament. 2 9), one is בְּרִיתְךָ without the second Yod (Isa. 15 3) and one בְּרִיתְךָ without the first Yod (Jonah 2 7) and it is this recension which we follow in the received text. With the evidence, however, of the variations indicated in § 471 this recension can only be accepted as emanating from the dominant later School of textual redactors. This is attested by the oldest Codices. Thus Isa. 15 5, which is בְּרִיתְךָ in the textus receptus, is בְּרִיתְךָ entirely plene in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Add. 15,250; Arund. Orient. 16, first hand and Add. 15,451 also first hand. Again Jonah 2 7, which is בְּרִיתְךָ without the first Yod in the received text, is בְּרִיתְךָ entirely plene in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Add. 15,451; Add. 21,160 &c.

תְּעִי = § 473.

בְּרִיתֵי אֹהֲבָם אֹהֲבָם covenant with them, or with thee, occurs four times. Normally when בְּרִית is followed אָ with the suffix third person plural, or with the suffix second person singular it is אֹהֲבָם (Exod. 6 4; Levit. 26 44; Deut. 28 69) and אֶתְךָ (Gen. 6 18; 17 4; Ezek. 16 62). As it is in these instances only where it is abnormally combined with אֹהֲבָם and אֶתְךָ, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. This protection was all the more necessary since the two phrases are promiscuously used within two verses of each other (Ezek. 16 60, 62). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 116b, on Ezek. 37 26.

תְּעִיר = § 474.

בְּרִית אֱלֹהִים the covenant of God, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is twofold. In the first place it is to safeguard this combination against being made conformable to the normal phrase בְּרִית יְהוָה the covenant of Jehovah (Numb. 10 33; Deut. 4 23; 10 8; 29 24 &c.) and in the second place it is to record that in these two instances this combination differs even from the exceptional passages in which בְּרִית is followed by the Divine Name אֱלֹהִים, since in the only other four places where this is the case it is with the prefix He, viz. בְּרִית הָאֱלֹהִים (Judg. 20 27; 1 Sam. 4 4; 2 Sam. 15 24; 1 Chron. 16 6).

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 303a, on Ps. 78 10. The heading ought more properly to be בְּלִישׁ בִּי since in one of the instances it is בְּרִיתֵי (2 Chron. 34 32). The ה' in the MS., is manifestly a clerical error for בִּי, since the Rubric records two passages only which is the correct number.

תְּעִיר = § 475.

בְּבְרִית in covenant, occurs three times. That is, with Chirek under the Beth, or is Ruphe as some of the headings have it, in contradistinction to the five instances in which it is with Pathach and which are recorded in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 131a, on Deut. 29 11; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 188a, on 1 Sam. 20 8, which gives the mnemonic sign only and which I have printed; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176b, on Ezek. 16 8; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 277a, on the same passage; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 139b, on Deut. 29 11; (VI) Halle Oehläh Ve-Oehläh, Supplement fol. 131b; (VII) Paris Oehläh Ve-Oehläh, Add. § 18, which also has the mnemonic sign; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Deut. 29 11, and (IX) the same on 1 Sam. 20 8.

תְּעִיר = § 476.

בְּבְרִית in the covenant, is five times with Dagesh. That is, with Pathach under the Beth to distinguish it from the preceding form which is with Chirek.

Of this popular Massorah I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 235b, on 1 Kings 20 34, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 56a, on Jerem. 34 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 116a, on 2 Kings 23 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 170a, on Jerem. 34 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 266a, on 2 Chron. 15 12; (VI) the same MS., fol. 270b, on 2 Chron. 23 1; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 196a, on 1 Kings 20 34; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 116a, on 2 Kings 23 3; (IX) Add. 15,251, fol. 214a, on the same passage; (X) the same MS., fol. 170a, on Jerem. 34 10; (XI) Halle Oehläh Ve-Oehläh, Supplement fol. 131b, and (XII) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 20 34.

תְּעִי = § 477.

וּבְרִיתִי and my covenant, occurs twice. This noun with the suffix first person singular, which occurs altogether forty-nine times, is in forty-seven instances without the prefix Vav and in two only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 201b, on Ps. 89 29, which I have printed, and (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 177b, on Ezek. 17 19.

תְּעִיח = § 478.

בְּרִכְהָ. Forms of the root בָּרַךְ to bless which respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Halle Oehläh Ve-Oehläh II, § 23. The heading and the catchwords I have added. It will be seen that of the eighteen instances here recorded fourteen are different forms of the verb, one of which is Chaldee (No. 18), and four are of the noun בְּרִכְהָ with prefixes and suffixes (Nos. 2, 9, 12, 16). That this is simply an incipient List, exhibiting the first attempt to collect these unique forms, is evident from the fact that there are altogether no fewer than fifty-nine forms of the Hebrew verb alone, four of the Chaldee and ten of the noun בְּרִכְהָ, which respectively occur once only.

תְּעִיט = § 479.

שְׂמִיחָה. A List of unique forms of בָּרַךְ . . . each one of which has no parallel. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 51 2, which I have printed, and (II) the same Codex on Isa. 65 16. Though these two Lists record identically the same eighteen instances, List II is not only without the heading, but ends differently, viz. הָרַחֵם יְהוָה רַחֵם חַדְשׁ וְרַחֵם בְּלִישׁ חַדְשׁ לִיט רַחֵם בְּלִישׁ.

But though this Rubric, like the preceding one also records eighteen instances, eight only are the same, thus showing that the compilers of this List were different from those who put together § 478. The great interest, however, which attaches to this recension is due to its very early date.

תִּים = § 480.

בְּרִכְהָ. All the forms of the verb בָּרַךְ which have the accent on the penultima i. e. on the Beth have simply Sheva under the Resh . . . and all which have the accent on the ultima i. e. the Caph have Chateph-Pathach under the Resh except in one instance. This Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 360a, on Ps. 72 15. See also my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Bible p. p. 282, 992, § 21.

תְּפִיא = § 481.

בְּרִכְהָ אֱלֹהִים blessed be God, occurs twice, once at the beginning of the verse and once at the end of the verse. Normally when this participle singular masculine is followed by the Divine Name it is the Tetragrammaton. In this form i. e. בְּרִכְהָ אֱלֹהִים it occurs about twenty-five times. As it is in these two instances only where it is followed by אֱלֹהִים, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 299b, on Ps. 66 20, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 300b, on Ps. 68 36; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 331a, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

תְּפִיב = § 482.

בְּרִכְהָ אַתָּה יְהוָה blessed art thou O Jehova, occurs twice. That is, with the personal pronoun intervening between בְּרִכְהָ and the Tetragrammaton. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 314a, on Ps. 119 12.

תְּפִיג = § 483.

בְּרִכְהָ הוּא blessed is he, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 1174, on Numb. 22 12.

תְּפִיד = § 484.

וּבְרִכְהָ and blessed, occurs seven times, three times at the beginning of a verse. This participle passive singular masculine, which occurs altogether sixty-three times, is in fifty-six instances without the prefix Var and in seven only is it with this prefix. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority.

Of this popular Massorah I collated fourteen Lists, thirteen in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 129a, on Deut. 28 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 8b, on Gen. 14 20; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 178b, on Ps. 18 47; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 73a, on 2 Sam. 22 47; (V) the same MS., fol. 288a, on the same passage; (VI) the same MS., fol. 301b, on Ps. 72 19; (VII) the same MS., fol. 301b, on Ps. 72 19; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 181b, on 2 Sam. 22 47; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 10a, on Gen. 14 20; (X) the same MS., fol. 138b, on Deut. 28 3; (XI) the same MS., fol. 199b, on 1 Sam. 25 23; (XII) the same MS., fol. 221a, on 2 Sam. 22 47; (XIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 1b, on Gen. 14 20; (XIV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 23, and (XV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 14 20. The three instances in which וְבֵרַךְ begins a verse are given in a separate Rubric in (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 192b, on 1 Sam. 25 33 where it is added that one instance is in the Law, one in the Prophets, one in the Hagiographa (חר בחררה חר בנבֵי חר בכתיב), and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 53a, on the same passage. These three instances, moreover, constitute part of the Massorah which records twelve words beginning with Vav, which respectively begin a verse and which severally occur three times. (Vide infra, letter v, § 72.)

תפיח = § 485.

יְהוָה blessed of Jehovah, occurs twice and in the Pentateuch. That is, the Tetragrammation is here preceded by this participle passive singular in the construct state. Normally the phrase is יְהוָה with Kametz under the Beth. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 18a, on Gen. 26 29, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,161, fol. 19a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

תפיח = § 486.

יְהוָה ye are blessed, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. As this participle passive plural, which occurs three times, is spelt in two different ways, the Massorah safeguards the spelling against being made uniform, especially as the variation in the spelling occurs in the same book.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 197b, on 2 Sam. 2 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 211a, on Ps. 115 15; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 51b, on 1 Sam. 23 21; (IV) the same MS., fol. 57b, on 2 Sam. 2 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 313b, on Ps. 115 15; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 269b, on 2 Sam. 2 5; (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 23 21; (VIII) the same on Sam. 2 5, and (IX) the same on Ps. 115 15. The MS. Lists I, II, V, VI distinctly state in the heading that two of the instances are plene and Lists I and III state that 2 Sam. 2 5, is the defective. When, therefore, the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 23 21 heads this Rubric בֵּרַךְ בֵּי הַיָּם, Jacob b. Chayim copied here a clerical error which also exists in the MS. of List IV, viz. בֵּרַךְ בֵּי הַיָּם. In the two other Lists of the printed Massorah Jacob b. Chayim correctly gives it בֵּרַךְ.

תפיח = § 487.

בֵּרַךְ he blessed, occurs thirteen times. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the reading בֵּרַךְ he blessed in 1 Kings 21 13 and Ps. 10 3, which the redactors of the text, in accordance with a well known canon, substituted for the original reading קלל or נאף to curse, blaspheme, in order to remove the harsh and impious phrase, he cursed or he blasphemed the Lord. (Comp. my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible p. 363 &c.)

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 14a, on Gen. 24 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 97b, on Exod. 20 11, and (III) the printed Massorah on Job 42 12. For בָּרַךְ after בָּרַךְ for which I have given the reference to Job 2 9 it is better to give Ps. 10 3, which is also Piel preterite third person singular masculine, though it is with Tzere under the Resh instead of Pathach. The same principle, however, underlies both the passages. Though List II states in the heading that there are twelve such instances only it records the same thirteen passages. The printed Massorah (List III) states in the heading that there are twelve only and catalogues this number, omitting אָבִיר after בָּרַךְ בָּרַךְ.

תפיח = § 488.

וְבֵרַךְ and he blessed, occurs three times . . . twice in the Law and once in the Prophets. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 173b, on 1 Sam. 2 20, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 116b, on Deut. 7 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 36a, on 1 Sam. 2 20; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 152b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 53b, on Exod. 23 25; (VI) the same MS., fol. 180b, on 1 Sam. 2 20; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 268b, on Deut. 7 13; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 23 25; (IX) the same on Deut. 7 13, and (X) the same on 1 Sam. 2 20. It will be seen that whilst the preceding Rubric includes the instance of the preterite with Tzere under the Resh (Ps. 10 3), this Rubric with the prefix Var excludes the one with the same vowel-points (Numb. 23 20).

תפיח = § 489.

בֵּרַךְ he blessed him, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 9b, on Isa. 19 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 146a, on 1 Chron. 26 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 254a, on the same passages; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 19b, on Gen. 27 27; (V) the same MS., fol. 482a, on 1 Chron. 26 5; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 23; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 27 27, and (VIII) the same on Isa. 19 25. Though in the received text three of the instances are בָּרַךְ with Chateph-Pathach under the Resh and one only is בָּרַךְ with Sheva (1 Chron. 26 5) yet in the carefully written Model Codex, Harley 5710-11, all the four instances are with Sheva. The other MSS. and the early editions are not uniform.

תפיח = § 490.

בָּרַךְ to bless, occurs four times. This Rubric, which I have found in Add. 21,160 only, fol. 230a, on Numb. 23 25 is incorrect. This trilateral occurs altogether ten times. It is Piel infinitive in eight instances (Gen. 22 17; Numb. 23 11, 20, 25; 24 10; Deut. 15 4; Ps. 132 15; 1 Chron. 4 10) and imperative in two (Deut. 33 11; Job 2 9). It will thus be seen that in the four instances here recorded six instances of the infinitive are omitted. The solution may probably be found in the fact that the original Massorite simply gave the first part of the List and that a later Nakdan mistook it as complete and altered the heading to accord with the passages thus enumerated.

תפיח = § 491.

לְבָרַךְ to bless, occurs nine times in the Scriptures. That is, the Piel infinitive construct with the prefix Lamed.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 115a, on Numb. 24 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 207b, on 2 Sam. 6 20; (III) the same MS., fol. 224a, on 1 Kings 1 47; (IV) the same MS., fol. 476b, on 1 Chron. 16 43; (V) the same MS., fol. 477a, on 1 Chron. 17 27; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 230b, on Numb. 24 1, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תפיח = § 492.

וּלְבָרַךְ and to bless, occurs four times. By fixing the number at four, the Massorah militates against the ancient variation in Deut. 28 12, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 129a, on Deut. 10 8, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 252b, on 1 Chron. 23 13; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 414a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 110b, on Deut. 10 8; (V) the same MS., fol. 116a, on Deut. 21 5; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 23; (VII) the printed Massorah on Deut. 10 8, and (VIII) the same on 1 Chron. 23 13.

תפיח = § 493.

וְלִבְרַךְ and to bless him, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 62a, on 2 Sam. 8 10, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 209a, on the same passage and (III) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 23.

הצ"ד = § 494.

וַיְבָרֵךְ and bless thou, occurs three times in the Scriptures once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. That is, the imperative with the prefix Var, in contradistinction to the same quadriliteral which is וְבָרַךְ the preterite and which also occurs three times. (Vide supra, letter ב, § 488.)

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 201a, on 2 Sam. 7 29, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 181a, on Ps. 28 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 61b, on 2 Sam. 7 29; (IV) the same MS., fol. 290a, on Ps. 28 9; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 118b, on Deut. 26 15; (VI) the same MS., fol. 351a, on Ps. 28 9; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 208b, on 2 Sam. 7 29; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 403b, on Ps. 28 9; (IX) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 23, and (X) the printed Massorah on Ps. 28 9.

הצ"ה = § 495.

וַיְבָרֶכְיָם בְּרַבְּבֵי יְהוָה bless ye Jehovah, is five times thus combined. The summons to the people to bless Jehovah occurs altogether eleven times. In six instances the Tetragrammaton is preceded by the sign of the accusative, viz. בְּרַבְּבֵי יְהוָה (Ps. 134 1; 135 19, 20, 20; Neh. 9 5; 1 Chron. 29 20), whilst in the combination before us this accusative is absent. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 158a, on Judg. 5 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 205b, on Ps. 103 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 21b, on Judg. 5 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 309b, on Ps. 103 20; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 134a, on Judg. 5 2; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 165b, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

הצ"ו = § 496.

וַיְבָרֶכְיָם and bless ye, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 217b, on Ps. 134 2, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 71b, on 2 Sam. 21 3; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 177b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 134 2.

הצ"ז = § 497.

וַיְבָרֵךְ and he shall bless, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 111a, on Deut. 1 11, which I have printed, and (II) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 23.

הצ"ח = § 498.

וַיְבָרֵךְ אֱלֹהִים and God blessed, occurs three times. This future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive is seven times followed by the Divine name. In four instances the combination is וַיְבָרֵךְ יְהוָה and Jehovah blessed (Gen. 30 30; 39 5; 2 Sam. 6 11; 1 Chron. 13 14) and in three only is it אֱלֹהִים. Hence the Massorah records the minority. In this separate form I have found this Rubric in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 2 3. It is part of the Rubric, consisting of nine words which respectively occur three times combined with אֱלֹהִים. (Vide supra, letter א, § 654.)

הצ"ט = § 499.

וַיְבָרֵךְ אֹתָם and he blessed them, occurs four times in the Pentateuch. That is, in contradistinction to the five instances in which וַיְבָרֵךְ has the pronominal suffix third person plural. (Comp. וַיְבָרֵכֶם Gen. 48 20; Levit. 9 22; Josh. 22 6, 7; Ps. 107 38.) This Rubric which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ב, § 304, is incorrect. There are five such instances; Gen. 5 2 is omitted. As all the instances are restricted to the Pentateuch, the heading ought to be בהר"ה.

הק = § 500.

וַיְבָרֵךְ יְהוָה Jehovah shall bless thee, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, without אֵלֶיךָ following the Tetragrammaton.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 53a, on Jerem. 31 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 259a, on Ruth 2 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 167a, on Jerem. 31 23; (IV) the same MS., fol. 317a, on Ps. 128 5; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 256a, on Jerem. 31 23; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 372b, on Ps. 134 3; (VII) the same MS., fol. 395a, on Ruth 2 4; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 95a, on Numb. 6 24; (IX) the same MS., fol. 288b, on Jerem. 31 23; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 197a, on Numb. 6 24; (XI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (XII) the same on Deut. 14 29.

And throughout the Psalter it is likewise וַיְבָרֵךְ יְהוָה [viz. Ps. 128 5; 134 3], whilst in all the other instances it is וַיְבָרֵךְ יְהוָה אֵלֶיךָ. (Comp. Deut. 14 24, 29; 15 10; 16 10, 15; 23 21; 24 19.)

These twelve Lists exhibit two recensions. List I is based upon the ancient recension of the text which reads וַיְבָרֵךְ יְהוָה אֵלֶיךָ in Deut. 15 4, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible, and hence it emphatically declares that there are three such instances only, one in the Law, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa. The Massorah Parva on Jerem. 31 23 in Harley 5720, which is one of the oldest and most important Codices, is also based upon this recension, since it explicitly states that there are three such instances. Nine of the other Lists are based upon the recension of the text which reads וַיְבָרֵךְ יְהוָה without אֵלֶיךָ in Deut. 15 4. They, therefore, head this Rubric וַיְבָרֵךְ יְהוָה, including the instance in question. Though Lists IV and VI also state in the heading that there are four such instances, yet like List I they both exclude Deut. 15 4. Besides omitting the Deuteronomy passage, List IV also omits Jerem. 31 23 and makes up the four instances by including Ps. 128 5 and 134 3, whilst List VI includes Ps. 128 5 only, which yields the four requisite instances. It is also to be remarked that, as is not unfrequently the case, six of the Lists (Nos. I, III—VII) omit the second part of this Massorah, which makes it difficult to understand, since this shorter phrase also occurs twice in the Psalter.

As וַיְבָרֵךְ יְהוָה, which occurs altogether thirteen times, is in seven instances followed by אֵלֶיךָ according to the textus receptus, and is six times without it the more natural way would have been to record the minority by simply stating וַיְבָרֵךְ יְהוָה מִחוּץ לְמַסְרָה, it occurs six times by itself. Still more artificial is the corrupt printed Massorah Parva on Ruth 2 4, which is based upon another mode of formulating this Rubric. Of the thirteen instances in which this phrase occurs, both in its shorter and longer forms, three are preceded by לָמַסְרָה (Deut. 14 29; 23 21; 24 19) and two occur in the Psalter. Deducting, therefore, these five passages eight remain. Accordingly Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah Parva ought to be וַיְבָרֵךְ יְהוָה וְיַבְרַח וְיַבְרַח וְיַבְרַח instead of וַיְבָרֵךְ יְהוָה וְיַבְרַח וְיַבְרַח וְיַבְרַח.

הק"א = § 501.

וַיְבָרֵכֶם and he blessed them, occurs twice, once at the end of the verse and once at the beginning. That is, in the same section, the qualifying expression בְּנֵינָא is omitted. This is evident from the fact that it not only occurs three times more, but that in two of the three instances it begins a verse. (Gen. 48 20; Levit. 9 22; Ps. 107 38.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 15b, on Josh. 22 6.

הק"ב = § 502.

וְאֶבְרַכְּהָ and I will bless, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 220a, on Ps. 145 1.

הק"ג = § 503.

וְאֶבְרַכְּהוּ and I blessed him, occurs twice, once with Kametz under the Vav and once with Pathach. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 141a, on Isa. 51 2, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 27 33. The latter which states וַיְבָרַךְ אֵת יַעֲקֹב בֵּן מִתָּה אֵת קַמֶּצֶת is incorrect, since it occurs only twice altogether. This Rubric constitutes part of the twenty-one words beginning with Vav Aleph which respectively occur twice, once with Pathach under the Vav and once with Kametz. (Vide infra, letter א, § 11 f.)

הק"ד = § 504.

מְבַרְכֵיךָ those who bless thee, occurs twice . . . and once it is with the prefix Var. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 12 3.

תקיה = § 503.

תְּקִיָּה he shall be blessed, occurs four times, twice with Kametz and twice with Pathach. The two instances with Kametz under the Resh are due to the pausal accent. (Ps. 112 2; Prov. 22 9)

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 201a, on 2 Sam. 7 29, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 61b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 313a, on Ps. 112 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 317a, on Ps. 128 4; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 343b, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 208b, on 2 Sam. 7 29; (VII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 23, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 112 2.

תקיז = § 506.

תְּקִיָּז she shall be blessed, occurs three times, twice with Kametz and once with Pathach. The two instances with Kametz (Judg. 5 24a; Prov. 20 21) are due to the pausal accent.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 139a, on Judg. 5 24, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 252a, on Prov. 20 21; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 344a, on the same passage; (IV) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 23, and (V) the printed Massorah on Judg. 5 24.

תקיזי = § 507.

תְּקִיָּזִי is blessed, occurs three times and is defective . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 100a, on Numb. 22 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 210a, on Ps. 113 2; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 144b, on Numb. 22 6; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 322a, on Job 1 21; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 375b, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 226b, on Numb. 22 6; (VII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 23; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 22 6, and (IX) the same on Ps. 113 2. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter י, § 73.)

תקיהי = § 508.

תְּקִיָּהִי knees, in all its forms is always with Dagesh in the Caph except in two instances. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 57b, on Gen. 50 23, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 369a, on Dan. 6 11; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 142b, on Judg. 7 6; (IV) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 23 margin, and (V) the printed Massorah on Dan. 6 11.

תקיטי = § 509.

תְּקִיָּתִי the blessing, is twice with the accent Athnach. For this Rubric see letter כ, § 1253.

תקיזי = § 510.

תְּקִיָּזִי occurs twice in two different senses. That is, in 1 Chron. 12 3, it is the proper name Berachah with the prefix Vav and in Prov. 11 26, it is the noun בְּרָכָה denoting blessing with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 247a, on Prov. 11 26, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 138a, on 1 Chron. 12 3. This pair forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217 &c.)

תקייא = § 511.

תְּקִיָּיָא according to the blessing of, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish it from the quadriliteral תְּקִיָּיָא Prov. 11 11, the only other instance where this noun construct occurs and where the prefix is Beth. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 132b, on Deut. 16 17, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 103b, on Deut. 12 15, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תקייב = § 512.

תְּקִיָּיָב my blessing, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 79b, on Levit. 25 21, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 80a, on Gen. 27 36; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 32a, on Gen. 33 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 178a, on Levit. 25 21; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-

Ochlah II, § 23; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 33 11, and (VII) the same on Levit. 25 21.

As it also occurs once with the prefix Vav (Comp. בְּרָכָהִי Isa. 44 3) this Rubric constitutes part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without and once with the prefix Vav. (Vide infra, letter י, § 73.)

תקיזג = § 513.

תְּקִיָּזִג thy blessing, occurs twice and is defective. That is, it is in the singular. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 174b, on Ps. 3 9, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 284b; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 319b, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

תקייד = § 514.

תְּקִיָּיִד blessing, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, with Kametz under the Resh, in contradistinction to the two instances with Tzere recorded below § 516. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 256a, on Prov. 28 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 305a, on Ps. 84 7; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 366a, on Prov. 28 20; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 350a, on Ps. 21 7; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 23; (VI) the printed Massorah on Prov. 10 6, and (VII) the same on Prov. 28 20. The heading of List VII, viz. רִבְחַת־קַמֶּצִי indicates the import of this Massorah.

תקטיז = § 515.

תְּקִיָּיִז the blessing of, occurs six times, five times defective and once plene. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 179a, on Ps. 21 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 288b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 322b, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 40b, on Gen. 49 25; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 37a; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 57a, and (VII) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

תקטיזי = § 516.

תְּקִיָּיִזִי poets, occurs twice. That is, with Tzere under the Resh, in contradistinction to the four instances where it is with Kametz recorded above in § 514. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 263b, on Eccl. 2 6, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 350b, on Cant. 7 5, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage.

תקיזיז = § 517.

תְּקִיָּיִזִיז Berechyahū, occurs four times in the Scriptures. This proper name occurs altogether eleven times. In seven instances it exhibits the primitive shorter form בְּרָכָה (Zech. 1 1; Neh. 3 4, 30; 6 18; 1 Chron. 3 20; 9 16; 15 23) and in these four instances it exhibits the later longer form. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This protection is all the more necessary since the two forms are used promiscuously within a few verses of each other. (Zech. 1 1, 7; 1 Chron. 15 17, 23.)

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 121a, on Zech. 1 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 133b, on 1 Chron. 6 24; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 165b, on 2 Chron. 28 12; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Zech. 1 7; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 217a, on the same passage; (VI) the same MS., fol. 241b, on 1 Chron. 6 24; (VII) the same MS., fol. 248a, on 1 Chron. 15 17; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 475b, on the same passage; (IX) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 56, and (X) the printed Massorah on Zech. 1 7. In List IX the י in the heading is manifestly a clerical error for ך as is attested both by the contents of the Rubric itself, and by all the other Lists. For the reason of changing the shorter form into the longer see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Bible p. 386 &c.

תקייח = § 518.

תְּקִיָּיִח the glittering of, or Berak, occurs three times. It will be seen that in two instances this trilateral is the noun construct of בְּרָק lightning, glittering (Deut. 32 41; Hab. 3 11) and that in one instance it is part of the compound proper name of a place in the tribe of Dan. (Josh. 19 45). The Massorah, however, as we have often seen, has regard to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in the sense. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 123*b*, on Deut. 32 41, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 306.

תק"ט = § 519.

ולקחים and lightnings, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the other five instances where this plural noun is without the prefix Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 47*a*, on Exod. 19 16.

תק"י = § 520.

וברק and Barak, or and lightning, occurs three times in the Scriptures. The expression ברק, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether nineteen times, twelve times as proper name (Comp. ברק Judg. 4 8, 9, 10, 12, 14, 14, 15, 22; 5 12, 15; יברק Judg. 4 6; 5 1) and seven times as a noun denoting lightning. As it is without the prefix Vav in sixteen instances and with it in three only, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 157*b*, on Judg. 4 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 230*b*, on Job 20 25; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 21*a*, on Judg. 4 16; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 133*b*, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 165*b*, on Judg. 5 1; (VI) the printed Massorah on Judg. 4 16, and (VII) the same on Job 20 25. List III rightly adds at the end קרמי שם אש, since here too the Massorah has regard simply to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in the sense.

תקכ"א = § 521.

ברור polished, or pure, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 332*b*, on Job 33 3, which I have printed, and (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 236*a*, on the same passage. The latter heads it ב' ומל'.

תקכ"ב = § 522.

בסור Besor, occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 56*a*, on 1 Sam. 30 9. As the three instances occur in the same section, the heading ought more properly to be י' ויבטל'. The catchwords for the third passage רע ויליעל אש רע ויליעל are 1 Sam. 30 22 where בסור does not occur. It is manifestly a clerical error for ויבטל' where רע ויליעל verse 21 and shows that the Scribes often mistook the catchwords.

תקכ"ג = § 523.

בשרה glad tidings, is three times defective. As this noun, which occurs altogether six times, is plene in three instances (2 Sam. 18 22, 25, 27) and defective in three, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. This is especially necessary since the two different spellings occur within a few verses of each other. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 178*b*, on 2 Sam. 18 20, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (IV) the same on 2 Kings 7 29. At the end of List III Jacob b. Chayin states that in another recension of the Massorah 2 Sam. 18 22 is substituted for 18 20 as the second defective instance.¹ The two MS. Lists, however, which I have collated have this Rubric as I have printed it.

1 והבטרה אחרת נבחר במקום לא איש בטורה אחת ולכה אין בטורה שנייה.

תקכ"ד = § 524.

מבשול sidden, occurs twice with Kametz. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Exod. 12 9.

תקכ"ה = § 525.

ודבשר and the flesh, occurs three times in the Pentateuch. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 85*b*, on Levit. 7 19, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 444*b*, fol. 91*a*; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 59*a*; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 145*b*, all on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 310. As the three instances are restricted to the Pentateuch the heading ought more properly to be ג' ויהרר' but the Vav, as we have seen, is frequently omitted in such cases. The heading of List III ג' ויהרר' is wrong, since one instance only begins the verse (Levit. 7 19*a*), the other two are in the middle of the verse, as the Rubric which I have printed correctly states it.

תקכ"ו = § 526.

ודבשר and flesh, occurs eight times. Of this popular Massorah I collated fourteen Lists, twelve in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 70*b*, on Levit. 13 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 94*a*, on Ezek. 37 8; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 226*a*, on Job 10 11; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 284*b*, on Dan. 10 3; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 91*b*, on 1 Kings 17 6; (VI) the same MS., fol. 325*a*, on Job 10 11; (VII) the same MS., fol. 372*a*, on Dan. 10 3; (VIII) Add. 15,250, fol. 290*a*, on Ezek. 37 8; (IX) Add. 15,251, fol. 14*a*, on Gen. 2 23; (X) the same MS., fol. 185*b*, on 1 Kings 17 6; (XI) Add. 15,451, fol. 445*b*, on Dan. 10 3; (XII) Add. 21,160, fol. 322*a*, on Job 10 11; (XIII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 13 18, and (XIV) the same on Ezek. 37 8.

תקכ"ז = § 527.

בשר ערלתו the flesh of his foreskin, is in two instances not preceded by the accusative אר'. Normally when this phrase follows the verb חָלַט; to cut off, it is preceded by the accusative particle (Comp. Gen. 17 11, 14, 23 25). As it is in these two instances only that אר' is absent, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the ancient recension which exhibited אר' in both these passages and which the Samaritan text still preserves. Of this Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, I collated two Lists: (I) on Gen. 17 24, which I have printed, and (II) on Levit. 12 3. The latter which heads this Rubric יאל בשר ערלתו ב' is interesting, inasmuch as it shows that it is formulated by a different Massorite.

תקכ"ח = § 528.

מבשר as the flesh of, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 241*b*, on 2 Kings 5 14, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 101*a*, on the same passage.

תקכ"ט = § 529.

מבשרי from my flesh, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 2*b*, Gen. 2 23. In Job 19 22, which this Rubric gives as the second instance, the received text is ומבשריי' with the prefix Vav. It is remarkable that the catchwords for this passage in this carefully written Codex מבשרי לא חבטו without the prefix. The Vav in the Rubric which I have printed has been added by mistake to agree with the textus receptus.

תקל = § 530.

ומבשרי and from my flesh, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 328*a*, on Job 19 22. It will be seen that the instance which is given in the preceding Rubric, as being without the prefix Vav, is here given as with it.

תקל"א = § 531.

בשרים occurs twice in two different senses. That is, in Prov. 14 30 this quinqueliteral is the plural of בשר flesh and is metonymically used for the body, whilst in Prov. 19 10 it is the plural of שר prince with the prefix Beth. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 249*a*, on Prov. 14 30, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 341*b*; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 390*a*, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217 &c.)

תקל"ב = § 532.

בבשת in shame, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 434*a*, on 2 Chron. 32 21, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 278*a*, on the same passage.

תקל"ג = § 533.

בשתם their shame, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 215*b*, on Zeph. 3 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 293*b*, on Ps. 40 16; (III) the same MS., fol. 301*a*, on Ps. 70 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 312*b*, on Ps. 109 29;

(V) Add. 15,250, fol. 331b, on Ps. 70 4; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Ps. 109 29.

תקליד = § 534.

בתִּמְלֶךָ daughter of a king, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. This combination occurs altogether six times. In three instances it is with the prefix He before, מֶלֶךְ i. e. בְּתִמְלֶךָ (2 Kings 11 2; 2 Chron. 22 11, 11) and in three it is without the He. Hence the Massorah records this variation in the phrase and thus safeguards it against being made uniform. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 245a, on 2 Kings 9 34, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 105a, on the same passage. As it is with the prefix Vav in one of the instances (Dan. 11 6) the heading ought more properly to be בְּתִמְלֶךָ בִּי אוֹ וּבְתִימְלֶךָ or בְּתִמְלֶךָ בִּי בְּלִישֵׁי.

תקליה = § 535.

בתִּתּוֹ in the daughter, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 23a, on Gen. 34 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 268b, on Lament. 2 5; (III) Halle Oehlrah Ve-Oehlrah, Supplement fol. 130b, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 34 19. In the printed Massorah, (List IV) this Rubric is headed בִּי בְּתִי לִישֵׁי which is very difficult to explain, since it has the same sense in both passages. As it is absent in all the MS. Lists, it is more than likely that it is due to a later Nakdan who mistook its import. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of the trilateral words which respectively occur twice. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 233.)

תקליז = § 536.

בתִּתּוֹ the daughter, occurs four times . . . and wherever it denotes the measure Bath it is likewise so. This trilateral with Pathach under the He occurs altogether seven times. In the four instances which constitute this Rubric it denotes daughter whilst in the other three instances it is the name of a measure (Ezek. 45 11, 11, 14). It is the latter which is referred to in the second part of this Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 58a, on Exod. 1 22, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 167a, on Jerem. 31 22; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 266b, on Jerem. 49 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 374a, on Lament. 2 13; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 255a, on Jerem. 31 22; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 64b, on Exod. 1 22; (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (VIII) the same on Jerem. 49 4, and (IX) the same on Lament. 2 13.

It is remarkable that List I alone gives the second part of this Rubric which makes its import intelligible. The omission of it in all the other Lists leaves the occurrence of this trilateral apart from the four instances in question, unexplained. The heading of List VII דִּירֶשׁ and that of List IX דִּירֶשׁ are due to the fact that this trilateral occurs once with Chateph-Pathach (Comp. דִּירֶשׁ Gen. 17 17).

תקליז = § 537.

בתִּתּוֹ and the daughter, occurs four times at the beginning of a verse. That is, in contradistinction to the five instances in which this trilateral is in the middle of the verse. (2 Sam. 14 27; Ezek. 45 14; Dan. 11 6, 17; 1 Chron. 2 49.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 78a, on Levit. 22 12.

תקליח = § 538.

בְּנֵי וּבָנוֹת, בְּנוֹת וּבָנִים. Throughout the Scriptures it is sons and daughters except once where it is daughters and sons. The normal phrase בְּנֵי וּבָנוֹת occurs twenty-seven times (Gen. 5 4, 7, 10, 16, 19, 22, 26, 30; 11 11, 13, 15, 17, 19, 21, 23, 25; Deut. 28 41; 1 Sam. 30 19; 2 Sam. 5 13; Jerem. 16 2; 29 6, 6; Ezek. 14 18, 22; 23 4; 1 Chron. 14 3; 2 Chron. 28 8). As it is in one instance that this regular order is abnormally inverted, the Massorah safeguards this solitary exception. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 5 4. In the received text, however, 2 Chron. 24 3 exhibits no exception to the general rule, since here too it is בְּנֵי וּבָנוֹת. This Massorah must, therefore, be based upon a recension which had בְּנוֹת וּבָנִים unless we assume with Heidenheim (שם שבל) on Gen. 5 4) that an ignorant Nakdan wrongly formulated this Rubric, that it ought to be בְּנֵי וּבָנוֹת בְּנֵי וּבָנוֹת בְּנֵי וּבָנוֹת בְּנֵי וּבָנוֹת and that it does not denote the inversion of the phrase at all, but refers to the accents. The phrase בְּנֵי וּבָנוֹת, which occurs altogether eighteen times is in seventeen instances with Mercha Tiphcha and with Tiphcha Mercha in the solitary instance of 2 Chron. 24 3.

תקליט = § 539.

בְּבֵנוֹת occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, in two instances it is the noun plural construct of בְּנוֹת with the prefix Beth and denotes among the daughters of, whilst in the third instance it is the infinitive construct with the prefix Vav signifying and in the building of (Ezek. 17 17).

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 22b, on Gen. 34 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 166a, on Judg. 14 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 29a; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 140b; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 173a, all on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 34 1. The third instance with the query in the List, which I have printed, is manifestly meant for Ezek. 17 17, though the catchwords are wrong. בְּבֵנוֹת ought to be בְּבָנוֹת וּבְבָנוֹת. The other five Lists, including List II from the Massorah in the same MS., head this Rubric בְּ בָנוֹת and give the two instances only.

תקימ = § 540.

בְּבֵנוֹת like the daughters of, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 210b, on Micah 1 8, which I have printed and (II) the same MS., fol. 336a, on Job 42 15.

תקמ"א = § 541.

בְּנוֹתֶיךָ thy daughters, is three times plene . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. That is, with Vav after the Nun. This plural noun with the suffix second person singular masculine, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether twelve times. In nine instances it is defective (Comp. בְּנוֹתֶיךָ Gen. 19 15; 31 41; וּבְנוֹתֶיךָ Gen. 19 12; Levit. 10 14; Deut. 28 32, 53; 2 Sam. 19 6; Jerem. 48 46; Amos 7 17) and in these three instances only is it plene. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional orthography and thus excludes the variation in Gen. 31 31, which is exhibited in the famous Codex Hallali, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 46a, on Gen. 31 31, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 321a, on Job 1 18; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 28b, on Gen. 31 31; (IV) the same MS., fol. 319a, on Job 1 18; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 31 31, and (VI) the same on Job 1 18.

תקמ"ב = § 542.

וּבְנוֹתָיו and his daughters, is three times plene in the Scriptures. With the prefixes this plural noun with the suffix third person singular masculine, occurs altogether eight times. It is defective in five instances (Exod. 34 6; Numb. 21 29; 36 2; Deut. 32 19; Job 1 3) and plene in three only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric I collated four List, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 294a, on Neh. 3 12, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 33b, on Gen. 46 15; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 46a, on Gen. 32 1, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תקמ"ג = § 543a—c.

בְּנוֹתֶיהָ her daughters, or the villages thereof, is five [six] times defective . . . and throughout the Hagiographa it is likewise so except in five instances.

The three Rubrics marked § 543a—c are simply three different recensions of the same Massorah the design of which is to register the variation in the orthography of this expression. This plural noun with the suffix third person singular feminine, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether fifty-two times. It is defective in twenty-four instances and plene in twenty-eight. As one of the two spellings, however, occurs more frequently in one division of the Bible and one in the other divisions, the Massorah, or rather the different Massoretic Schools, have more or less artificially formulated these occurrences in accordance with their respective predominance in the several divisions.

§ 543a. The Law and the Prophets. — In these two divisions this expression occurs altogether thirty times. Here the plene orthography predominates. It occurs twenty-two times¹ and the defective eight times only. Hence the Massorah here safeguards the exception. Of this form of the Rubric, which is the oldest, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 108b, on Numb. 32 42, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 149b, on Josh. 17 11; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 141b, on Numb. 21 25; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 19a, on Judg. 1 27, and (V) the printed Massorah on Numb. 21 32.

¹ Comp. וּבְנוֹתֶיהָ Josh. 15 47, 47; 17 11, 11, 11, 11, 11, 16; Judg. 1 27, 27, 27; 1 Sam. 1 4; Ezek. 16 46, 46, 48, 53, 53, 55, 55; 23 10; 26 6; 30 18.

As the only three instances which occur in the Pentateuch are uniformly defective (Numb. 21 25, 32; 32 42), Lists I, III and V artificially regard this division of the Bible as furnishing one instance, calling it בל אריתי, which with the five from the second division yield the six requisite instances. Hence ה הית in the headings of Lists I and V, is a clerical error for הית י. List III, which is the oldest form of the Massorah, correctly heads it בנתיי בנתיי הית הית הית, whilst List I, which I have printed, simply states at the end that it is likewise defective in the Hagiographa except in six instances. Lists II, III, IV and V append these six passages.

§ 543b. The Hagiographa. — This Rubric, which is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 156a, on Judg. 1 27, registers the plene instances in the Hagiographa. In this division this expression occurs altogether twenty-two times. Here the defective orthography is the rule and the plene the exception. The former occurs sixteen times¹ and the latter six times only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the reverse, which is the minority. The necessity for safeguarding these variations arises from the fact that the two different spellings occur in one and the same verse. Thus in 1 Chron. 7 29, where it occurs four times, it is twice defective and twice plene. In 2 Chron. 13 19, where it occurs three times, it is twice plene and once defective, whilst in 2 Chron. 28 18, it is three times plene and once defective. In the heading of this Rubric the expression בנקיי is manifestly a clerical error for בנתיי.

§ 543c. This recension of the Rubric, which is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 242b, on 1 Chron. 7 29, is the most simple and correct. It gives the three divisions of the Bible in the inverse order, beginning with the Hagiographa and ending with the Law. Like § 543b, and the other Lists which mention the Hagiographa, it emphatically states that in this division of the Bible there are six plene instances only, and duly enumerates the six. Accordingly 1 Chron. 2 23 and the third instance in 2 Chron. 28 18, which are plene in my edition of the Bible in common with other editions, must be defective.

¹ Comp. יגליה קהיה Neh. 11 25, 26, 27, 30, 31; 1 Chron. 2 23; 7 28, 28, 28, 28, 29, 29; 8 12; 18 1; 2 Chron. 13 19; 28 18.

תקמ"ד = § 544.

מבנותיה and in her daughters, or villages, occurs four times, twice plene and twice defective. As this expression, which occurs four times, is spelt in two different ways, the Massorah safeguards the variation in the spelling in the respective passages.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 300a, on Neh. 11 28, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 27b, on Judg. 11 26; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 145b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 239. List II alone indicates which two of the four instances are plene. After giving the catchwords for the two passages in Judg. 11 26 it adds בלי בלי.

תקמ"ה = § 545.

מבנותיה of our daughters, is four times plene. That is, with different prefixes. This plural noun with the suffix first person without and with prefixes, occurs altogether twelve times. It is defective in eight instances (Gen. 34 9, 16, 21; Jerem. 35 8; Neh. 5 2, 5, 5; 10 31) and plene in four only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 172a, on Judg. 21 7, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 34a; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 145a; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 151a, all on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Ps. 144 12. List V alone has the correct heading בלי בלי, since these instances include the plural form with the different prefixes.

תקמ"ו = § 546.

בנותיה their daughters, is five times defective. That is, without and with prefixes, this plural noun with the suffix third person plural, which occurs altogether fifteen times, is in these five instances only, defective in contradistinction to the ten passages where it is plene (Comp. Judg. 3 6, 6; 2 Kings 17 17. Jerem. 3 24; 32 35; Ezek. 23 47; 24 25; Ps. 106 37, 38; 2 Chron. 31 18). This Massorah, therefore, excludes the variation which is exhibited in several MSS. and early editions in Ezek. 23 47, as may be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 120b, on Deut. 12 31, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 55b, on 1 Sam. 30 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 152a, on Jerem. 7 31; (IV) the same MS., fol. 159a, on Jerem. 19 9; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 163b, on 1 Sam. 30 3; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 112a, on Deut. 12 31; (VII) the same MS., fol. 167b, on 1 Sam. 30 3; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 129b, on Deut. 12 31, and (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage. It is instructive to note that though this Rubric includes בנתיי without and with the prefix none of the headings have the expression בלי.

תקמ"ז = § 547.

ביתן בתולות. Sign for the orthography of בתולות throughout the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 187a, on Ps. 45 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 321a, on Ps. 148 12; (III) Add. 9401, fol. 78a, on Exod. 22 16, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 148 12.

To understand this Massorah in its different forms as exhibited in the several Lists, it is necessary to remark that this noun plural, without and with the prefix He, which occurs altogether thirteen times, is spelt in four different ways. In four instances, apart from the three in Esther, which are regarded by the Massorah as one, that is, in seven instances, it is the three entirely plene or with both Vavs i. e. בתולות בתולות (Isa. 23 4; Ps. 45 15; 148 12; Esther 2 2, 17, 19). In five instances it is without the second Vav i. e. בתולה בתולה (Exod. 22 16; 2 Sam. 13 18; Ezek. 44 22; Amos 8 13; Lament. 2 10). In one instance it is בתולה without the first Vav (Zech. 9 17) and in one instance without both Vavs or entirely defective (Lament. 5 11).

List I. — According to this analysis List I, which I have printed, duly records the three entirely plene instances apart from Esther, simply refers to Esther as exhibiting the same spelling without specifying the number and states that with the solitary exception in Zech. 9 17, it is without the second Vav in all other passages without giving the number or catchwords. The fault of this Rubric is that it ignores the one instance in Lament. 5 11 which, as we have seen, is entirely defective.

List II. — This List exhibits quite a different arrangement. It states that this plural noun is always defective or is without the second Vav except in four instances, counting Esther as one, that in Zech. 9 17 the Palestinians read it entirely plene whilst the Babylonians read it with one Vav, and that in Lament. 5 11, it is entirely defective.¹

List III. — Still more different is this List. It states that this plural noun is always written without the second Vav except in two instances where it is entirely plene, viz. Isa. 23 4 and Ps. 45 15; that it is likewise so throughout Esther; that in Zech. 9 17 the Babylonians read it entirely plene and the Palestinians write it without the second Vav and that in Lament. 5 11 it is entirely defective.²

List IV. — Perfectly unintelligible is this Rubric in the printed Massorah (List IV). The Nakdan who manipulated it mistook its import. It states that this plural noun varies four times in its letters, that the four instances are Isa. 23 4; Ps. 45 15, where it is without the first Vav; Lament. 5 11 where it is without both Vavs and Zech. 9 17 where it is with both Vavs; and that throughout Esther it is likewise with both Vavs. On comparing this statement with the analysis as well as the contents of the other three Lists, the wonder is that Jacob b. Chayim simply took exception to Ps. 45 15 being here given without the first Vav and that he did not point out the muddle of the whole Rubric.³

1 בתולה בתולות כל חס' במד' מל' וס' לא חלתי ולא ילדתי חספתי בתולות בתולות אחריה רעויותי. וכל בגלה רעויותי בחורסי תם בתולות וכל בגלה אסתר דבר מל' אין ינוב בתולות בחרי ויל' לסקרא ולסכרא בתה ינוב עני בתולות חס' דחס'.
2 בתולה בתולה כל' בת' כן במד' מל' דמל' וס' לא חלתי, בתולות אחריה רעויותי. וכל בגלה אסתר דבר מל' יחורסי ינוב בתולות מל' דמל' למסקרא בת' נישום בעיה עני בתולות בת'.
3 בתולות ד' משנין בן חורסות וס' לא חלתי ולא ילדתי, לוקמות חובל למלך בתולות בחרי חס' ויל' קדמא, חס' דחס' נישום בעיה עני חס' דמל' יחורסי ינוב בתולות, וכל בגלה אסתר בתולות בת' מל' — סקרא חס' דחס' ויל' לחורסי חס' דין בתולות דמסורא דין בתולות בת' חס' ד' בתולות דוק וקחמא בתולות חרי חס' ד' סככל חספתי חס' ד' בתולות דין דמסורא חס' ד' דוק ויל' דוק וקחמא חס' ד' וסכר אחר חס' ד' חס' ד' דין דין ד' מל' :

Letter Gimel.

כ = § 1.

1. — The first part of this Rubric, which registers the number of times Gimel occurs in the Bible, is taken from the alphabetical Poem given above, letter כ, § 224. The second part, which records the number of times Gimel occurs in the Pentateuch, is from a MS. in my possession. For a description of this remarkable MS. see my Introduction to the Massoretico critical edition of the Bible. Part I, chap. VII, pp. 110, 111.

ג = § 2.

1. — The three instances in which Gimel has four Tagin are given in the Vitry Machsor, Add. 27,021, Vol. II, fol. 209a—215a, which I have printed in the Massorah, letter ג, § 25, Vol. II, pp. 680—701.

ד = § 3a—b.

1. The two fragments which record unique words beginning with Gimel are respectively from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 110a, on 2 Kings 15 25, and the same MS., fol. 196a, on Ezek. 45 9. Since the publication of this Rubric I found two other fragments in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445. One is fol. 56b, on Exod. 15 and consists of nine such expressions and one fol. 98b, on Levit. 19 9, gives eleven words. The latter exhibits the first part of the alphabet.

ה = § 4.

1. This List of words beginning with Gimel which respectively occur once only, I have compiled myself and arranged alphabetically. The necessity for such a List I have described in letter כ, § 12. (Vide supra, p. 4.) I need not repeat here the difficulty in collating and arranging upwards of forty-two forms which are unique, or apologise for the mistakes which have crept into this first attempt. Those who have been engaged in a similar task will readily forgive mistakes. The following I have detected since this Rubric has been published:

Omissions: Deut. 33 74 גרש Lament. 2 14 גרש	Omissions: Ps. 145 12 גבורתי Josh. 5 9 גלגל קמ
--	---

The following words occur more than once:
גבר גבל גילי גיש

ו = § 5.

1. An alphabetical List of words ending with Gimel which respectively occur once only. This List I compiled and arranged alphabetically in accordance with the last letter but one. For the necessity of such a List see letter כ, § 12. The following are some corrections:

Omissions: 1 Chron. 12 1 זיקל 1 Sam. 27 6 זיקל	Omissions: 1 Sam. 22 8 לרית 1 Chron. 12 20 זיקל
---	--

The following words occur more than once:
חשיה פלג סתה

ז = § 6.

1. זארה splendour, pride, occurs five times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ז, § 4.

ח = § 7.

1. חארה in pride, occurs twice. This Rubric too, I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ps. 31 19.

ט = § 8.

1. חארה splendour, pride, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the twenty-three instances where this quadriliteral occurs with Sheva under the Gimel, being in the construct.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 79b, on Ezek. 16 49, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 240a, on Job 40 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 335a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 342a, on Prov. 16 18; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 357a, on Job 40 10; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 315b, on Ezek. 16 49, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. This Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter ט, § 73.)

י = § 9.

1. יאל redeem, occurs three times and is defective . . . and wherever it is the participle it is likewise defective except in two instances in the Prophets and the Hagiographa.

The design of this Massorah is to show where this trilateral, which is both the infinitive absolute and the participle active, remains a trilateral. As infinitive (יאל) it continues a trilateral or is defective in all the three instances in which it occurs. As participle, however, (יאל) in which capacity it occurs altogether nineteen times, it ceases to be a trilateral or is plene (יאל) in one instance only. The declaration in the second part of this Rubric that it is plene in two instances, is due to the fact that it includes one instance with the prefix He (Ps. 103 4; vide infra, letter י, § 12), which it indicates by the term בליש.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 99a, on Levit. 27 13, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 109a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. List III has not the second part of this Rubric.

יא = § 10.

1. יאל to redeem, is twice plene. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 260a, on Ruth 4 6, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 284a, on the same passage. It will be seen that both these Rubrics emphatically state that this Kal infinitive construct with the prefix Lamed, which occurs twice, is plene in both instances. As we are distinctly told in the official List of variations between the Easterns and Westerns that according to the Palestinians it is יאל both in the Kethiv and Keri and that the Babylonians read יאל plene in Ruth 4 6, it is evident that this Massorah follows the Babylonian recension and that it was formulated at a time when the two Schools of textual redactors were not as yet so strictly divided.

יב = § 11.

1. יאל redeem thou, occurs twice and in this book, once with Kametz and once with Pathach. That is, in Ruth where it occurs twice this imperative masculine singular has two different vowel points. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 260a, on Ruth 4 4. It is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once with Kametz and once with Pathach. (Vide infra, letter י, §§ 600, 602, Vol. II, pp. 307, 309.)

י"ב = § 12.

נִדְּמָה redeemer, is three times plene in this form. That is, without and with the prefix He. Of this Rubric I collated two separate Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 28a, on Isa. 59 20, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 48 16. The third instance in the List which I have printed, is the imperative גִּל from גָּלַל to roll and does not belong to this Rubric. It has manifestly been added by a later Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah and who altered the י"ב in the heading into י"ג to correspond to the number of the instances recorded by him. This is not only confirmed by the independent List II, but by the second part of Rubric 9, where it constitutes the second part of that Massorah.

י"ג = § 13.

נִדְּמָה their redeemer, occurs twice, once at the beginning of a verse and once at the end. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 67b, on Jerem. 50 34.

י"ד = § 14.

נִדְּמָה הַזֶּה their redeemer is strong, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Prov. 23 11.

י"ה = § 15.

נִדְּמָה they were defiled, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 144a, on Isa. 59 3.

י"ו = § 16.

נִדְּמָה thy vault, or arched cell, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 277b, on Ezek. 16 31.

י"ז = § 17.

נְבִיא locusts, occurs twice, once it is defective and with Pathach, and once it is plene and with Kametz. . . . the latter is plene and with Kametz. As this expression, which occurs twice only, is spelt differently in each passage, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard the variation in the orthography. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, of which there are two Lists: (I) the Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 8, which I have printed, and (II) the Massorah on Amos 7 1. I have also given this Rubric below י, § 91.

י"ח = § 18.

נִבְּרָה he was lifted up, or exalted, occurs five times in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the trilateral נִבְּרָה the construct of the adjective נִבְּרָה which occurs twice and to the adjective נִבְּרָה which occurs eighteen times as well as to the noun נִבְּרָה which occurs three times. (Vide infra, letter י, § 20.)

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 88a, on Ezek. 28 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 165a, on 2 Chron. 26 16; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 169a, on 2 Chron. 32 25; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 217a, on Ps. 131 1; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 184b, on Ezek. 28 2; (VI) the same MS., fol. 273b, on 2 Chron. 26 16; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 282a, on Ezek. 28 2; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 344a, on 2 Chron. 32 25, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 28 2.

י"ט = § 19.

נִבְּרָה exalt thou, or to make high, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 180b, on Ezek. 21 31, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

כ" = § 20.

נִבְּרָה height, occurs three times and is defective. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) the printed Massorah on Prov. 16 18, which I have printed; (II) the same on Job 22 12, and (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 250a, on Prov. 16 18, which adds at the end הַרְבֵּה אֲמַר אֱמֶת הַקֶּבֶד which does not occur and is evidently intended for הַרְבֵּה אֲמַר אֱמֶת Ezek. 40 42; but הַקֶּבֶד occurs twice (Comp. Ezek. 1 18).

כ"א = § 21.

כְּנֻפָה like the height, or exaltation, occurs twice in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading כְּנֻפָה with the prefix Beth instead of Caph in Ps. 10 4, which is exhibited in several MSS. and early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible, and which is regarded as preferable.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 176a, on Ps. 10 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 299a, on Amos 2 9, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 10 4.

כ"ב = § 22.

וְנִבְּלָה and the border, is three times defective. With the prefix Vav this noun occurs altogether eighteen times. It is plene in fifteen instances (וְנִבְּלָה Numb. 34 6, 6; Josh. 12 4; 13 11, 23; 15 5, 5, 12, 12, 47; 17 9; 22 25; Judg. 1 36; Ezek. 40 12; 47 17) and defective in three only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 113a, on Deut. 3 16, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 134b, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 124b, also on the same passage.

כ"ג = § 23.

הַבְּלָה the border, is four times defective. With the prefix He this noun occurs altogether forty-eight times. As it is plene (הַבְּלָה) in forty-four instances and defective in four only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174, on Numb. 34 8, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 156a, on the same passage. The latter heads it הַבְּלָה and includes הַבְּלָה Numb. 21 13.

כ"ד = § 24.

בְּלָה border, is seven times defective in this form. That is, without and with different prefixes. This Massorah embraces all the passages in the Bible in which this noun without the suffixes is defective. Hence it not only includes the instances contained in the two preceding Rubrics, but the passage where it is without any prefix (בְּלָה 2 Sam. 21 5) and the one where it is with the prefix Mem (מְבִלָה Numb. 21 13).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 95a, on Numb. 21 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 132a, on Josh. 13 27; (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 147a, on the same passage; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 10b, also on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 154b, also on the same passage; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 224b, on Numb. 21 13, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Though the List which I have printed (List I) states in the heading that there are nine such instances, it enumerates eight only, omitting Numb. 34 8, but as this is given in all the other Lists there can hardly be any doubt that its omission is due to a clerical error.

כ"ה = § 25.

בְּלָה thy border, occurs three times. That is, with Segol under the Lamed which is due to its pausal accent. In the other four instances where this noun with the suffix second person singular masculine occurs it is with Sheva under the Lamed (Comp. בְּלָה Exod. 23 31; Deut. 12 20; 16 4; 19 8). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174, on Numb. 20 17, which I have printed, and (II) British Museum Orient. 2349, fol. 113a, on the same passage. It is remarkable that both Lists omit Exod. 34 24. Is it because the Massorite designed to record the three instances only in which it is with Soph-Patach and hence omitted Exod. 34 24 because it is here with Athnach?

כ"ו = § 26.

בְּלָה thy border, is three times plene in the Pentateuch. That is, with Vav after the Beth in contradistinction to the instances in which it is defective recorded in the preceding Rubric. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed:

(I) Orient. 2348, fol. 149a, on Deut. 28 40, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 139a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 91b, on Numb. 20 16; (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 7 27, and (V) the same on Deut. 28 40. As all these Lists include Exod. 7 27, where it is שֶׁרָא with Shera under the Lamed it is evident that the design of the Massorah is to emphasize the fact that in these instances this noun is with Vav after the Beth irrespective of the vowel-point under the Lamed. This is confirmed by the Massorah Parva in Add. 21,160 and in Jacob b. Chayim's edition on Exod. 7 27 which remarks ג. מל' בתי בליש'.

כ"ז = § 27.

גְּבוּלָתֶיךָ thy border, occurs twice. That is, with the suffix second person singular feminine in contradistinction to the eleven instances in which it is masculine. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 321a, on Ps. 147 14, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 346b, on the same passage.

כ"ח = § 28.

גְּבוּלוֹ his border, is five times defective. That is, this noun with the suffix third person singular masculine without and with the prefix Beth.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 14a, on Gen. 23 17, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 27a, on Judg. 11 20; (III) the same MS., fol. 195a, on Ezek. 43 12; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 139a, on Judg. 11 20; (V) the same MS., fol. 294a, on Ezek. 43 12; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 16a, on Gen. 23 17; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 12a, on the same passage; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 225a, on Numb. 21 23, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 23 17. It is remarkable that the List which I have printed (List I) makes up the five instances by giving Josh. 18 5, which is plene in the received text, instead of Numb. 21 23, which is defective. As all the other eight Lists, however, reverse it, giving Numb. 21 23 and omitting Josh. 18 5, the Rubric which I have printed must either be based upon a different recension of the text which is not unfrequently the case with the Massorah in this Model Codex, or this inversion is due to a clerical error. Lists III, V and IX head this Rubric more precisely גבולו בגבול ה' חסר.

כ"ט = § 29.

*גְּבוּלָיִם your border, occurs three times, twice defective and once plene. As this noun with the suffix second person plural masculine, which occurs three times only, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards the variation against being made uniform. On referring to the notes in Josh. 1 4 and Amos 6 2 in my edition of the Bible, the necessity for protecting the orthography will be apparent. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 130a, on Deut. 11 24, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 140a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 272a, also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ג, § 16. As one of the instances is with the prefix Mem (מגבולאי Amos 6 2) the heading ought more properly to be גבולכם ג. בליש'.*

ל' = § 30.

*גְּבוּלוֹת borders, is twice defective in this form. That is, in the plural form, without and with the prefix Beth it is in two instances entirely defective, or without either Vav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 151b, on Deut. 32 8, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 141b, on the same passage.*

ל"א = § 31.

גְּבוּלוֹת borders. To understand the conflicting statements with regard to the orthography of this word it is necessary to remark that this plural noun which occurs altogether five times, four times without the prefix and once with the prefix Beth, is spelt in four different ways as follows:

(1) גְּבוּלוֹ entirely defective occurs twice and the two instances are given in the preceding Rubric. This is attested by Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; Add. 21,160 &c.

(2) In one instance it is גְּבוּלוֹ entirely plene (Ps. 74 17). This is the spelling in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 &c.

(3) In one it is גְּבוּלוֹ without the first Vav (Job 24 2), as it is in Orient. 2201 first hand; Arund. Orient. 16, with the Massorah Parva against it ל' בתי בן; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,160, with the Massorah Parva against it ל' בתי בן. In Orient. 2201 second hand, however, and in Harley 5710-11 it is גְּבוּלוֹ without the second Vav and the Massorah Parva in the latter remarks on it ל' בתי בן.

(4) In one it is גְּבוּלוֹ without the second Vav (Isa. 10 13). This is the reading in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 &c.

These data will explain the import of the following five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed, which I have collated of this Rubric: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 108b, on Numb. 32 33, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 329b, on Job 24 2; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 248b, on Numb. 32 33; (IV) the printed Massorah on Numb. 32 33, and (V) the same on Ps. 74 17.

It will be seen that List I, which I have printed, omits the Job instance altogether which is the only one that is the subject of a various reading.

List II disposes of the five instances as follows (1) גְּבוּלוֹ entirely defective, one Deut. 32 8; (2) גְּבוּלוֹ entirely plene, one Ps. 7 4; (3) גְּבוּלוֹ without the first Vav Numb. 32 33; Job 24 2, and (4) גְּבוּלוֹ without the second Vav, one Isa. 10 13.¹ It will thus be seen that Numb. 32 33, which List I gives as one of the two entirely defective instances, is here given with the second Vav contrary to the MSS.

List III exhibits all the four different spellings in accordance with the MSS. in the following order: two entirely defective (Numb. 32 33; Deut. 32 8); one defective of the second Vav (Isa. 10 13) one defective of the first Vav (Job 24 2) and one entirely plene (Ps. 74 17).²

List IV. — In this List, which is couched in less artificial language, the orthography of the five instances is thus described: two entirely defective (Numb. 32 33; Deut. 32 8), one entirely plene (Ps. 74 17) and two defective of the first Vav (Isa. 10 13; Job 24 2).³ Accordingly Isa. 10 13 which has the first Vav and is defective of the second Vav in Lists I and II in harmony with all the MSS. is here reversed. The addition at the end of this List, which states that in all the other instances apart from these five it is גְּבוּלוֹ without the second Vav, is due to an ignorant Nakdan who probably wanted words to fill up a line, since this plural noun without suffixes does not occur outside these five passages.

List V. — Though differently arranged, this List gives the orthography of the five instances exactly the same as List III, but in the following order: one entirely plene (Ps. 74 17) two without the first Vav (Isa. 10 13; Job. 24 2) and two entirely defective (Deut. 32 8; Numb. 32 33). It has also at the end the same misleading addition which List III has.⁴ The printed Massorah also gives the two instances without the first Vav in a separate Rubric on Job 24 2, which entirely agree with those given in Lists III and IV.⁵ Jacob b. Chayim refers to the Massorah on Ps. 74 for the entire Rubric.

1 הארץ לעריה נגבולות כתיב, יצב גבולת עמיס חסר דחס, ואסיר גבולת עמיס כתיב, אתה הצבת כל גבולות כתיב, גבולות ישעו גבולות כתיב.
2 הארץ לעריה נגבולת, יצב גבולת עמיס כתיב חסר דחס, ואסיר גבולת עמיס גבולת כתיב, אתה גבולות ישעו עקר גולו גבולות כתיב, וכל גבולות ארץ כל דובל.
3 לעריה נגבולת עיר הארץ, יצב גבולת עמיס חסר דחס, אתה הצבת כל גבולות מל' דובל, וב' גבולות כתיב חסר ו' קריאת וסי ואסיר גבולות עמיס, גבולות ישעו עיר ושמא גבולות כתיב חסר ו' ו' חסין.
4 גבולות ל' מל' דובל אתה הצבת, וב' גבולות כתיב וסי ואסיר גבולות עמיס, גבולות ישעו, וב' דחס חסין וסי יצב גבולת עמיס וחת חסר לבני ג' דחסות ושמא גבולות כתיב חסין ו' חסין.
5 גבולות ל' כתיב חסין וסי ואסיר גבולות עמיס, גבולות ישעו וחת חסין בתלם סוכן עיר.

ל"ב = § 32.

*לְגַבְלוֹתֵיהֶם with the borders or coasts thereof, occurs four times in the Scriptures. The two instances in Numbers are defective and the two in Joshua have Vav after the Beth.*

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5720-11, Vol. I, fol. 150b, on Josh. 19 49, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 156b, on Numb. 34 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 14a, on Josh. 19 49; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 121b, on Numb. 34 2, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage. List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, rightly adds at the end that the instances in the Pentateuch are defective and those in Joshua are plene

(אחריהם לנבולתה חתבין). The same addition is given in Lists III, IV and V. This explains the import of the enigmatical addition at the end of the Rubric, which I have printed and which ought to be גבאים מלי בחרו חס' וביבאיה מלי, the Scribe having carelessly omitted חס' after בחרו and מלי after גבאים.

גב = § 33.

גבאל Gebal, occurs twice, once with Kametz and once with Pathach. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 184a, on Ezek. 27 9, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Ps. 83 8. These two instances are part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once with Pathach and once with Kametz. (Vide infra, letter ג, § 595, Vol. II, p. 307).

גיד = § 34.

גבעה גבעה a hill, the hill, or Gibeah. Whether as a noun denoting hill which occurs eleven times without the prefix He and three times with it, or as the proper name of a place in which sense it occurs about forty-seven times, it is always גבעה with He, except once where it is גבעה with Aleph. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 131b, on 1 Chron. 2 49. This exceptional expression forms part of the Rubric, recording ten words ending with Aleph, which respectively occur once only. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 21a).

גיר = § 35.

גבור In three instances in which the textual reading is גבור the singular, the Sevir or extra-official reading, is גבורים the plural. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 159a, on 2 Chron. 17 16. Against the catchword גיר the reference should be 2 Chron. 13 3 and not 13 16.

גיר = § 36.

גברי mighty, is three times defective in this form. That is, this adjective, without and with the prefix He, which occurs altogether about forty-eight times, is defective in these three instances only. The safeguarding of this exceptional, but primitive orthography, was all the more necessary since the two modes of spelling occur in two clauses of the same verse (Gen. 10 9a and b). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 10 8.

גיר = § 37.

גבור and mighty, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 205b, on Amos 2 14, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ג, § 23.

גיר = § 38.

גבור from, or than the mighty, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 342b, on Prov. 16 32.

גיר = § 39.

גבורים mighty man, is seven times defective. This plural noun, without and with the prefix Caph, occurs altogether twenty-one times. It is plene in fourteen instances¹ and defective in seven only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. By fixing the number of גבורים at seven, this Massorah excludes the textual reading, or Kethiv in 2 Sam. 23 9 for which the official reading, or Keri substitutes גבורים.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 143b, on Josh. 10 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 252b, on Prov. 21 22; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 7b, on Josh. 10 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 349b, on Cant. 3 7; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 151b, on Josh. 10 2; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Cant. 3 7.

With the exception of List II, which omits Prov. 21 22 and which is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe, all the other six Lists enumerate the same seven instances in identically the same order. As the catchwords גבול גבול may refer either to 2 Sam. 1 25 or 27, since it is followed by the noun in question in both these verses, it is at first difficult to decide which of the two instances is here meant. The following collation of the Standard Codices, however, is conclusive. In verse 25 it is not only גבורים defective in Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 &c., but the Massorah Parva in Arund. Orient. 16 and Add. 15,250 emphatically states that it is one of the seven defective instances (ג' רש), whilst all these Codices have it גבורים plene in verse 27. Accordingly 2 Sam. 1 25 against the catchwords in the List which I have printed, ought to be 2 Sam. 1 25. As one of the instances is with the prefix Caph the heading ought more properly to be גבול גבול though none of the Lists have it.

¹ Comp. גבורים plene 2 Sam. 1 19, 21, 22, 27; 2 Kings 24 16; Isa. 5 22; Jerem. 5 16; 48 14; Ezek. 32 12, 21, 27, 27; 39 18. גבורים Joel 2 7.

And wherever it is with the prefix He (הגבורים) it is likewise defective except in six instances. Of this part of the Rubric I collated eleven Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 143b, on Josh. 10 2 where it is the second part of this Massorah; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 7b, on the same passage where it is also the second part of this Massorah and the following nine Lists where this part is given as an independent Rubric; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 76b, on 1 Kings 1 8; (IV) the same MS., fol. 204b, on Joel 4 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 245b, on 1 Chron. 11 19; (VI) the same MS., fol. 344b, on Prov. 21 22; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 180a, on 1 Kings 1 8; (VIII) Add. 15,251, fol. 320a, on 1 Chron. 11 19; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 377a, on Joel 4 9; (X) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (XI) the same on 1 Chron. 11 19.

With the prefixes He and He Vav, where this plural noun occurs altogether twenty-four times, the reverse is the case; it is defective in seventeen instances¹ and plene in seven only. Here, therefore, the defective is the rule and the plene is the exception. Hence the Massorah here safeguards the exceptional orthography. It will be seen that the List, which I have printed (List I) states in the heading that there are six such plene instances only and duly enumerates six, omitting 1 Chron. 28 1. But as it is given in all the ten Lists and, moreover, as the headings of these Lists are ג' מלי, there can hardly be any doubt that the omission is due to a clerical oversight and that the Nakdan altered the ג' in the heading into ה' to agree with the contents of the List. It is remarkable that both the Lists in the printed Massorah (Lists X and XI) omit Joel 4 9 and make up the seven instances by giving כנעניל רוד גואר Cant. 4 9 which is contrary to all the MS. Lists. That the Canticle passage is a later addition to make up for the omission of the Joel passage is certain. Not only does the printed Massorah Parva on Joel 4 9 state that it is one of the seven plene instances (ג' מלי), but List X is on this very passage. The reference 2 Sam. 10 7 to the catchwords גבול גבול is a mistake for 1 Chron. 19 8.

¹ Comp. גבורים defective Gen. 6 4; 2 Sam. 10 7; 16 6; 20 7; 23 8, 9 (Keri); 16, 17, 22; Cant. 4 4; Ezra 7 28; Neh. 3 16; 1 Chron. 11 10, 11, 12, 24; 29 24. גבורים 1 Chron. 29 24.

ג' = § 40.

גבורים among the mighty, occurs four times. As all the four instances are plene, the heading ought properly to be גבורים. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 205b, on Amos 2 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 246a, on 1 Chron. 12 1; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Amos 2 16, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Judg. 5 13. The heading ג' מלי of Lists III and IV is insufficient inasmuch as it suggests that this expression is in four instances plene and that it is defective in other passages, whereas it occurs altogether four times only.

ג' = § 41.

גבורים occurs six [seven] times plene. For this Rubric see above § 39.

ג' = § 42.

גבורי החיל valiant men of might, occurs five times. That is, with Pathach both under the He and Cheth, in contradistinction to the two instances in which it is גבורי החיל with Segol under the He and Kametz under the Cheth (Josh. 6 2; 10 7), which is due to the pausal accent. Apart from these two passages the construct גבורי is followed by the singular noun חיל eighteen times. In thirteen instances it is without the prefix He in this combination¹ and in five only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah records the minority. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 246a, on 1 Chron. 12 8, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ג, § 29.

¹ Comp. גבורי החיל Neh. 11 14; 1 Chron. 5 24; 7 2, 9; 8 40; 12 22, 26, 31; 26 6, 31; 2 Chron. 14 7; 17 13, 14.

מ"ג = § 43.

valiant men of night, is four times thus combined. Normally the construct גבורי is followed by this noun in the singular as set forth in the preceding Rubric. As it is in these four instances only that it is in the plural, the Massorah safeguards the abnormal combination. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 135a, on 1 Chron. 7 11, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 317b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ג, § 30. It will be seen that though the heading of List I, which I have printed, states that this combination occurs four times, five instances are recorded. As it is גבורי חיל in 1 Chron. 26 31 and as this instance is not given in the other two Lists, there can hardly be any doubt that it is the addition of an ignorant Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah. The heading of the printed Massorah (List III) גבורי החילים is also due to a careless Scribe, since it is חילים without the prefix He in all the four passages. The only instance where it is with this prefix is in the combination גבורי החילים 1 Chron. 11 26 which is no part of this Rubric. As all the four instances not only occur in the same book, but are restricted to the same section the heading ought more properly to be גבורי חיל or גבורי חילי.

מ"ד = § 44.

might, with the suffix and without or with the prefix, which is normally plene, is in two forms (בליש) abnormally without the Vav after the Beth. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional spelling. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 22a, on Judg. 5 31.

מ"ה = § 45.

the mighty, occurs twice [and is] plene. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 339a, on Ps. 106 2, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As this plural noun, without prefixes and suffixes, occurs twice only and is plene in both instances, the heading ought properly to be גבורים.

מ"ו = § 46.

and thy might, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, this plural noun with the suffix second person singular masculine which occurs altogether three times, twice with the prefix Vav and once with the prefixes Vav Caph, is plene with Vav after the Beth in all the three instances.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 220b, on Ps. 145 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol II, fol. 29b, on Isa. 63 15; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 145b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 320a, on Ps. 145 4; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 106a, on Deut. 3 24; (VI) the same MS., fol. 238a, on Isa. 63 15; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 369b, on the same passage; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 259b, on Deut. 3 24, and (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As one of the instances is with the prefixes וְ (Deut. 3 24) and one is with Yod after the Tav (Ps. 145 4) Lists II, III, V, VI, VIII and IX head this Rubric גבורי. Moreover, as one of the instances occurs in the Law, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa List II has at the end חזקו ביהודי בני ישראל.

מ"ז = § 47.

his powers, or mighty acts, occurs three times. That is, this plural noun with the suffix third person singular without and with the prefix Beth. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the various reading in Ps. 150 2 and to include the marginal reading in Job 26 14, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 320b, on Ps. 145 12. As one of the instances is with the prefix Beth (Ps. 150 2) the heading ought more properly to be גבורות.

מ"ח = § 48a—d.

bowls. These four Lists are simply different forms of the same Massorah. They emanate from different Schools of Massorites and are designed to indicate the spelling of גביץ cup, bowl, both in the singular and the plural. List 48a, which is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Exod. 37 19 declares that the plural is always גביצים without the Yod after the Beth in the Pentateuch, whilst the singular גביץ both with prefix and suffix, is always with Yod after the Beth and concludes by laying down the general rule that whenever the plural without the suffix precedes a word which begins with the letter Mem, it is invariably written גביצים without the Yod after the Beth. This implies that in Jerem. 35 5 where it is followed by a word beginning with Mem, it is גביצים. Hence the best MSS. and early editions have it defective, viz. St. Petersburg Codex of A.D. 916; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Orient. 2627; Add. 15,451; Add. 21,161 and the latter has the following Massorah on it גביץ וכל אלה עשות מלי ליהוה. For the editions which follow this Massorah see the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

List 48b is from Add. 15,251, fol. 63a, on Exod. 37 19. With the exception of including the two instances among the plenes, in which it is the plural with the suffix third person singular feminine, this recension is substantially the same and also declares that wherever it is followed by a word beginning with Mem it is written גביצים. Like the preceding recension, therefore, it lays it down that in Jerem. 35 5 it is גביצים without the Yod after the Beth.

List 48c. — Of this form I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 72a, on Exod. 25 38, and (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 37 19. It will be seen that this recension emphatically declares that the plural without the suffix is invariably גביצים without the Yod after the Beth, thus including the Jeremiah passage.

List 48d. — This recension I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ג, § 18. It explicitly states that the Jeremiah passage is entirely plene, viz. גביצים, and is thus not only in conflict with the printed Massorah on Exod. 37 19, but with the Standard Codices and the best early editions. I have, therefore, given it as an alternative reading in my edition of the Bible.

מ"ט = § 49.

the hills of, occurs three times twice plene and once defective. As this noun plural construct which occurs three times, is spelt in two different ways, the Massorah safeguards the difference in its orthography. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 214a, on Habak. 3 6 which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 309b, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 49 26, and (IV) the same on Habak. 3 6. Though none of these Lists state which is the single defective yet the Massorah Parva on Gen. 49 26 remarks that this is defective. As in all the three instances this noun construct is followed by עולם, List IV heads this Rubric גבעות עולם.

נ" = § 50.

he shall strengthen himself, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 324a, on Job 15 25.

נ"א = § 51.

a man, is twice with Kametz. That is, in two instances the Gimmel has Kametz without having the pausal accent Soph-Pasuk or Athnach which is normally the case in all the seventeen instances when it is with this vowel point. In the other two instances where this noun has Zakeph-Katon and Revia the Gimmel is with Segol. (Comp. גבר Judg. 5 30; גבר Job 14 14). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 17a, on Ps. 128 4.

נ"ב = § 52.

a man, occurs eighteen times. That is, with Kametz under Gimmel in contradistinction to the twenty instances in which it is with Segol. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 245a, on 1 Kings 22 49, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 497b, on 2 Chron. 20 36, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ג, § 21.

It is very remarkable that all the three Lists expressly state that there are eighteen such instances only, whereas there nineteen. But though the heading says eighteen List I gives seventeen only, omitting Job 34 9. It may, however, be that the catchwords ה'לאל יסכן נבר are to be divided, viz. ה'לאל Job 22 2 and נבר Job 34 9, thus yielding eighteen. But even so Prov. 28 21 is omitted. List II omits Isa. 22 17; Dan. 8 15 and 2 Chron. 20 36, though it also states in the heading that there are eighteen. It, however, gives Prov. 28 21 with the wrong catchwords ה'בר פנים לא טוב = Prov. 24 23 instead of ה'בר פנים בטשטם. This is manifestly due to a clerical error. List III, like List I omits Job 34 9 and what is remarkable, it gives the same wrong catchwords ה'בר פנים בטשטם for Prov. 28 21 as List II. Moreover, in this List אני should be אני וידו בראתי אני Dan. 8 15. It is to be added that in five of the nineteen instances נבר is the second part of the compound proper name עציון נבר Ezion-geber (Numb. 33 35, 36; Deut. 2 8; 1 Kings 22 49; 2 Chron. 20 36).

ג' = § 53.

נבר a man, occurs three times. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the abnormal Aramaic form נבר for the normal Hebrew נבר in Ps. 18 26 and thus to preclude its being made conformable to the parallel passage in 2 Sam. 22 26 where it is נבר instead of נבר. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 365a, on Dan. 2 25, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

ג' = § 54.

נברתיה her mistress, occurs four times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Caph. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 241b, on 2 Kings 5 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 257b, on Prov. 30 23; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 100b, on 2 Kings 5 3; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 367a, on Prov. 30 23; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 11a, on Gen. 16 4; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 2b, on the same passage; (VII) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VIII) the same on 2 Kings 5 3.

ג' = § 55.

ה'ננה on the roof, occurs twice in the Scriptures, once defective and once plene. That is, in one instance it is without the paragogic He and in one with it. In 1 Sam. 9 26, where it is without the He in the textual reading or Kethiv, it is supplied by the official marginal reading or Keri. Normally on the roof is עליתו (Josh. 2 6, 8; 1 Sam. 9 25; 2 Sam. 16 22 &c.) and as it is in these two instances only that the form with the paragogic He is used to express locality, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional use. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 176b, on 1 Sam. 9 26.

ג' = § 56.

ג'נ his roof, occurs four times. That is, this noun singular with the suffix third person singular. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 96b, on Ezek. 40 13, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 130a, on Exod. 37 26; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 80a, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 30 3, and (V) the same on Ezek. 40 13. As one of the instances is with the prefix Lamed (לג'נ Ezek. 40 13), List II heads this Rubric, לג'נ; List IV לג'נ and List V לג'נ.

ג' = § 57.

ג'ננ roofs, occurs four times in the Scriptures and is plene. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 65a, on Jerem. 48 38, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 216b, on Ps. 129 6.

ג' = § 58.

ג'נתיהם their roofs, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this plural noun with the suffix third person masculine which occurs in the same book, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 168b, on Jerem. 32 29, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ג, § 33. The addition at the end of List II as well as the Massorah Parva in the MSS. on Jerem. 19 13, indicates that it is defective in 19 13 and plene in 32 29. As both instances occur in Jerem. the heading of this Rubric ought properly to be ג'נתיהם.

ג' = § 59.

ג'ר Coriander, occurs twice. That is, with Pathach under the Gimel in contradistinction to the sixty-five instances in which this biliteral is with Kametz, being the proper name Gad. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. 1, fol. 92a, on Numb. 11 7, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 51a, on Exod. 16 31; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 99a, on Numb. 11 7, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ג, § 34. Lists II and III indicate the import of this Massorah in the heading, viz. ג'ר. List IV adds at the end that in one instance it is with the prefix Lamed (Isa. 65 11).

ג' = § 60.

ג'רותיו his banks, is four times plene. By fixing the number at four, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the textual reading or the Kethiv ג'רותיו in 1 Chron. 12 16, and to include the official marginal reading or Keri ג'רותיו in this Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 139b, on Josh. 4 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 138b, on 1 Chron. 12 16; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 3a, on Josh. 3 15; (IV) the same MS., fol. 3b, on Josh. 4 18, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage. List II heads this Rubric ג'רותיו which is in direct conflict with the heading of List I from the same MS., and which is manifestly due to the fact that the two Rubrics emanate from two different Massoretic Schools who worked upon different recensions of the text. As this plural noun with the suffix third person singular masculine occurs altogether four times, the heading ought more properly to be ג'רותיו.

ג' = § 61.

ג'רוד the troop, occurs five times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ג, § 36, is corrupt. There are altogether nine such instances and the following four are omitted viz. 1 Sam. 30 15, 15, 23; 2 Kings 13 21. The only solution which I can hazard of this puzzling Rubric is that after the heading originally followed the instance from 2 Kings 13 21, which has dropped out and that the Rubric finished with ג'רוד for which an ignorant Nakdan substituted the solitary instance of the misplaced 1 Sam. 30 8.

ג' = § 62.

ג'רל. A List of unique forms from the root ג'רל. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 51 18, and hence is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah. It exhibits the first attempt to collect the different forms of the root ג'רל which respectively occur once only and thus furnishes an instructive illustration of the method which the early Massorites adopted in formulating a Rubric. In analysing this List it will be seen that the twenty-three expressions of which it consists contain the following six varieties of this root, all mixed up together. (1) Twelve of the instances are forms of the verb ג'רל which respectively occur once only, viz. Nos. 3, 6, 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 14, 15, 17, 21, 22. But, as there are altogether forty-one such unique expressions twenty-nine are omitted. (2) Five are forms of the noun greatness, viz. Nos. 1, 2, 5, 13, 23. There are however nine unique forms of this noun, to that four are omitted. (3) Two are forms of the noun greatness, viz. Nos. 18, 9. Of this class one only is omitted. (4) One is a form of the noun tower, viz. No. 16. As there are eight unique forms of it, seven are omitted. (5) Two are of the adjective great, viz. Nos. 4, 9; but as there are thirteen unique forms of it, eleven are omitted. And (6) one is a proper name viz. No. 20 and the second unique form of it is omitted. It will thus be seen that though these six varieties have altogether seventy-six forms which respectively occur once, the Massorite in the List before us records twenty-three and left it for his colleagues to collect the fifty-three.

ג' = § 63.

ג'רל great, is three times defective in this form. That is, without and with the prefix Caph, which is indicated by the expression ג'רל.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 190b, on Ps. 57 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 128a, on Deut. 26 8; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 137b, on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 57 11; (V) the printed Massorah on Deut. 1 17; (VI) the same on Ps. 48 2, and (VII) the same on Ps. 57 11. The three Lists in the printed Massorah are conflicting. Thus on Deut. 1 17 and 48 2 (Lists V and VI) Ps. 108 5 is given as the third defective instance whilst on Ps. 57 11 (List VII) Jacob b. Chayim gives 57 11 as the third passage. From the four MS. Lists, however, it is certain that the latter is the right passage. There can, therefore, be no doubt that this apparent contradiction in the printed Massorah is due to the carelessness of the Scribe who confused the parallel passages על פי פס' 57 11 with על פי פס' 108 5.

ס"ד § 64.

גדולה the great, is eight times plene in the Pentateuch. In the Pentateuch this adjective with the prefix He occurs altogether twenty-six times. It is defective in eighteen instances and plene in eight only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. The reason why the Pentateuch alone is here safeguarded, is that outside this division of the Bible, where it occurs upwards of eighty times, the later plene orthography uniformly prevails. Hence the Prophets and Hagiographa required no safeguarding.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 143b, on Deut. 34 12, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 8a, on Gen. 10 21; (III) the same MS., fol. 144b, on Deut. 34 12; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 28, fol. 93b, margin, and (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 10 21.

ס"ה = § 65.

גדולה and great, occurs eight times and is plene. With the prefix Vav this adjective does not occur at all in the Pentateuch, and outside this division of the Bible where it occurs eight times, it invariably exhibits the later plene orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated seventeen Lists, fourteen in MSS. and three printed. I shall, however, enumerate seven only: (I) Harley 5710-21, Vol. I, fol. 199a, on 2 Sam. 5 10, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 10 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 17, fol. 53b, on 1 Sam. 25 36; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 244b, on Jerem. 10 6; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 244b, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 39, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Job 3 19.

ס"ו = § 66.

למגדול ודקדוק from great to small, occurs twice. In the one other instance where this phrase occurs it is without the prefix Lamed (2 Chron. 34 30). As the normal phrase is קטן ודקדוק from small to great (Gen. 19 11; 1 Sam. 5 9; 30 2; 2 Kings 25 26; Jerem. 8 10; 42 1; 44 12) and למקטן ודקדוק (2 Kings 23 2; Jerem. 42 8), the Massorah safeguards here this abnormal inversion. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 359a on Esther 1 20.

ס"ז = § 67.

גדול great of, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. As this adjective in the construct state which occurs three times is spelt differently, the Massorah safeguards the difference in its orthography. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 168a, on Jerem. 32 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 177a, on Ezek. 17 3; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 278a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 289b, on Jerem. 32 19, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Lists IV and V add at the end קדמוהי which fixes Jerem. 32 19, as the defective.

ס"ח = § 68.

גדולים the great, or powerful ones, is six times plene in the Scriptures. Without and with the prefix He this adjective plural occurs altogether thirty-six times. In thirty instances it is defective and in six only is it plene. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. On referring to the notes on Prov. 18 16 and Eccl. 9 14 in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that the design of this Massorah is to militate against the various readings which obtained in the Codices on these passages. In accordance with this Massorah Jerem. 27 7, which is plene in my edition of the Bible should be defective.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 48a, on Jerem. 25 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 141b, on 1 Chron. 17 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 387a, on Neh. 11 14; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 427a, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Judg. 5 16; (VI) the same on Jerem. 25 14, and (VII) the same on Neh. 11 14. As two of the instances are with the prefix He (Neh. 11 14; 1 Chron. 17 8) Lists III, IV and V head this Rubric more properly גדולים whilst List VII heads it גדולים. Though no fewer than eleven out of the thirty-six instances of this adjective plural occur in the Pentateuch, there is not a single plene instance in this division of the Bible.

ס"ט = § 69.

גדולה great, is four times plene in the Pentateuch. Without and with the prefix He and Vav this adjective feminine occurs altogether about one hundred and thirty-two times in the Bible. It is plene in one hundred and one instances and defective in thirty-one. But as the plene orthography prevails in one division and the defective in another, the Massorah has so arranged this Rubric as to safeguard the minority in each case. For this purpose this Rubric is divided into the following three parts:

(A) The Pentateuch. — In this division where this adjective occurs twenty-two times, it is defective in eighteen instances¹ and plene in four only. Hence here the Massorah safeguards the plenes.

(B) And throughout the Prophets and Hagiographa it is likewise plene except seven [eight] times. In these two divisions of the Bible, exclusive of Daniel, it occurs altogether one hundred and four times. Here the plene orthography is the rule and the defective the exception. It is plene in ninety-six instances² and defective in eight only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the defectives.

(C) And all through Daniel it is likewise so except once. The reverse is the case in Daniel. Here where it occurs six times, the defective orthography is the rule and the plene the exception, since it is defective in five instances (Dan. 8 8; 9 12; 10 7, 8, 11 44) and plene in one instance only (Dan. 8 21). Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the solitary plene spelling.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 137a, on Deut. 25 13, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 142a, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 29b, on Judg. 15 18; (IV) the same MS., fol. 154b, on Jerem. 11 16; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 394a, on Neh. 1 8; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 245a, on Jerem. 11, 16; (VII) the same MS., fol. 422a, on Neh. 2 10; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 275a, on Jerem. 11 16, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Esther 4 1.

Though all the Lists coincide in recording the same number of plenes and defectives for the different divisions of the Bible, yet Lists I and II alone give the arrangement which I have printed. As it is exhibited in Orient. 4445 it must be the oldest form of this Massorah. במ"ו in heading B, which I have printed, is manifestly a clerical error for במ"ח. This is not only attested by the Rubric itself which duly enumerates eight instances, but by the heading במ"ו of all the other Lists and by their giving the same eight passages. List III exhibits a different recension of this Massorah, though the passages are the same. It gives the two defective instances in the Prophets first, then the four plenes in the Pentateuch and then the six defectives in the Hagiographa apart from Daniel.³ The other Lists begin with the heading and continue with the four plenes in the Pentateuch. Lists V, VII and VIII omit the third part, viz. וכל דגאל דמי which makes it unintelligible. List IV which has it is due to the carelessness of the Scribe, since it ought to be the reverse וכל דגאל דמי.

¹ Comp. defective Gen. 15 12; 20 9; 27 33, 34; 29 2; 45 7; Exod. 11 6; 12 30; 32 21, 80, 31; Deut. 7 23; גדולה Gen. 10 12; 29 16; 39 9; Exod. 14 31; Deut. 5 22; 18 16.

² Comp. גדולה Josh. 6 5, 20; 10 2, 2, 10, 20; 24 26; Judg. 11 33; 15 8; 1 Sam. 2 17; 4 5, 10, 17; 5 9; 6 14, 19; 14 20, 33; 19 5, 8; 28 5; 2 Sam. 13 15, 15; 18 7; 23 10, 12; 1 Kings 1 40; 19 11; 20 21; 2 Kings 4 8; 6 23; 17 21; 22 13; Jerem. 26 19; 44 7; Ezek. 17 9; 29 18; Jonah 1 4, 10, 16; 3 3; 4 1, 6; Zech. 1 14; 8 2, 2; 14 4; Job 1 19; Esther 4 1; 8 15; Ezra 3 11, 13; Neh. 5 1, 7; 8 12, 17; 12 43; 13 5; 1 Chron. 11 14; 29 1, 9, 22; 2 Chron. 16 14; 21 14; 28 5, 6; 30 21, 26; 34 21; גדולה Judg. 21 5; 1 Sam. 4 6; 6 9, 15, 18; 14 45; 18 17; 2 Sam. 13 16; 18 9; 20 8; 1 Kings 3 4; 7 9, 12; 2 Kings 4 38; Jerem. 16 10; 22 8; 32 42; Ezek. 16 46; 23 4; 43 14; Jonah 1 2; 3 2; 4 11; Neh. 6 8; 13 27; 2 Chron. 4 9; גדולה Eccl. 9 13.

³ גדולה הנבואה ב' חס' וס' אחה נתח ביד עבדך. לקול הסלה גדולה, וכל אורי רכ' חס' בב' סל' לא יחיה לך בביתך וכן וכן. לא יחיה לך בביתך. לעשות קטנה או גדולה, את אשר תגדלה, כל כתיב רכ' חס' בב' חס' מיט' אכתיבנ באשתינו הגדולה, ברעה גדולה ובהרעה, ירע לשם רעה גדולה. ודבתי ירע גדולה, וכמה גדולה אמתנו, וכל דבוטל רכ' חס' בב' חס' ודוק הגדולה.

ע = § 70.

and great, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this adjective feminine with the prefix Vav which occurs twice only, is differently spelt in the two passages, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 296b, on Neh. 7 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 383a, on the same passage, and (III) Ad. 15,251, fol. 424a, also on the same passage. The instance in Neh. is defective.

ע"א = § 71.

the greatness, occurs four times, three times plene and once defective. That is, with Shurek in the Vav and Dagesh in the Lamed, in contradistinction to the twenty-seven instances where this sextiliteral is with Cholem. (Vide supra, letter ; § 60 note.) Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated six Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 141b, on 1 Chron. 17 19, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 61a, on 2 Sam. 7 21; (III) the same MS., fol. 256b, on 1 Chron. 29 11; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 411b, on 1 Chron. 17 19; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 323a, on the same passage, and (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 208b, on 2 Sam. 7 21. Lists II and IV state that the defective is 1 Chron. 29 11.

ע"ב = § 72.

he became great, occurs three times. That is, the preterite third person singular masculine, in contradistinction to the three instances in which this trilateral is the Piel and which are recorded in § 75. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 322a, on Job 2 13, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 25b, on Gen. 26 13; (III) the same MS., fol. 376a, on Job 2 13; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 18b, on Gen. 26 13; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 18a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement, fol. 130a, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 26 13.

ע"ג = § 73.

she became great, occurs three times in the Scriptures... once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 198b, on 1 Sam. 26 24, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 54a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 378a, on Ezra 9 6; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 393a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 420b, also on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 13a, on Gen. 19 13; (VII) the same MS., fol. 200b, on 1 Sam. 26 24; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 19 13, and (IX) the same on Ezra 9 6.

ע"ד = § 74.

and they grew, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 164a, on Judg. 11 2.

ע"ה = § 75.

he exalted, or brought up, occurs twice. That is, with Pathach under the Daleth. In the only other instance where this Piel preterite third person singular masculine occurs, it is with There (על Isa. 49 21). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 3b, on Josh. 4 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 359b, on Esther 3 1, and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 126b, on Josh. 4 14.

ע"ו = § 76.

he exalted him, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 276a, on Esther 10 2, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 263b, on the same passage. As both instances are in the same book, the heading ought more properly to be ב' ובמ'.

ע"ז = § 77.

I have made great, or brought up, occurs three times... and once it is with the prefix Lamed. In two instances it is the Piel preterite first person singular (Isa. 1 2; 23 4), whilst in the other two the one without the prefix and the one with it (1 Chron. 25 4, 29) it is a proper name. The Massorah, however, which has regard to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in the sense, groups them together in one Rubric.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah but which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 145b, on 1 Chron. 25 4, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 1 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 119a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 128a, on Isa. 23 4; (V) the same MS., fol. 253b, on 1 Chron. 25 4; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 222b, on Isa. 23 4, and (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 216b, on Isa. 1 2.

ע"ח = § 78.

he made great, is three times defective of Yod. That is, in these three instances is the Hiphil form abnormally without the Yod after the Daleth with Chirek. Once it is הָיָה the Hiphil preterite third person singular masculine (1 Sam. 12 24, with 20 41 &c.) once הָיָה the Hiphil future third person plural with Vav conversive (Zeph. 2 10, with 2 8) and once הָיָה the Hiphil participle singular (Ps. 18 51). On referring to the notes on Zeph. 2 10; and Ps. 18 51 in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that the design of this Massorah is to militate against the plene readings which are exhibited in some MSS. and early editions.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 42a, on 1 Sam. 12 24, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 215a, on Zeph. 2 10; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 187b, on 1 Sam. 12 24, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ע"ט = § 79.

For this Rubric see letter ה, § 224.

ע"י = § 80.

according to the greatness, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 304a, on Ps. 79 11, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 81b, on Numb. 14 19; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 79 11, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The printed Massorah (List IV) which heads this Rubric כְּגֹדֶל הַגְּדֹלָה is incorrect, since the קול נול in all its forms is invariably defective. It should at least be כְּגֹדֶל הַגְּדֹלָה as it occurs twice only altogether.

ע"יא = § 81.

in thy greatness, occurs twice. That is, with Segol under the Lamed instead of Sheva (Comp. עָלָה Deut. 3 24), which is due to its pausal accent. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 186b, on Ezek. 31 2, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 326a, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 129a, on Deut. 9 26.

ע"יב = § 82.

fringes, festoons, occurs twice, and is in both instances defective of the first Yod. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-21, Vol. I, fol. 126a, on Deut. 22 12, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 135b, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis letter י, § 47. The heading of List II ב' ב' is more precise, since it indicates that it not only occurs twice, but that it is in both instances without the first Yod. The heading of List III ב' ב' implies that in these two instances only is it without the first Yod, whereas it does not occur anywhere else. Nor is the heading of List IV ב' ב' less misleading. It ought more properly to be ב' ב' as it is in List II.

ד"ג - § 83.

Gedaliah, is four times defective of the Vav in the Scriptures. Apart from the two instances where it is with the prefix Vav, this proper name occurs altogether thirty times. In twenty-six instances according to this List, or in twenty-five according to other Lists, it is the longer form Gedaliahu with Vav at the end, whilst in four or in five instances only has it retained the shorter primitive form Gedalia without the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. It is remarkable that in the only two instances where it is with the prefix Vav, one exhibits the shorter form (Ezra 10 18), and one the longer (Jerem. 38 1). For the reason which underlies this change of the shorter into the longer form see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Bible, p. 386 &c.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 60a, on Jerem. 40 5, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on the same passage; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 41 16; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 174a, on Jerem. 40 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 214b, on Zeph. 1 1; (VI) the same MS., fol. 379a, on Ezra 10 18, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 40 5.

Lists II, III, V, VI and VII emphatically state that there are five such instances, giving Zeph. 1 1 as the fifth passage. List VI heads this Rubric ג'דליהו בן ג'דליהו; whilst Lists V and VII add at the end the one instance of this shorter form with the prefix Vav (Ezra 10 18). List I, however, which is from the carefully written Model Codex, states as emphatically that there are four such instances only. That this is not due to a clerical error, but to the fact that the Codices on which this List is based exhibited this number only, is attested by List IV. This List, which is from another Standard Codex, emphatically states that there are three such instances only, and duly enumerates this number. It not only omits Zeph. 1 1, but Jerem. 41 16, though it gives at the end the one passage of the shorter form with the prefix Vav. It is, therefore, evident that the change of the shorter form into the longer was more extensively effected in some Model Codices. The headings of Lists II and III ג'דליהו בן ג'דליהו ought more correctly to be ג'דליהו בן ג'דליהו, since the shorter form without the prefix Vav does not occur apart from the Prophets.

1 Comp. ג'דליהו 2 Kings 25 22, 23, 24, 25; Jerem. 39 14; 40 6, 7, 9, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16; 41 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 9, 10, 18; 43 6; 1 Chron. 25 3, 9; ג'דליהו Jerem. 38 1. 2 ג'דליהו ג'דליהו רבבא אל ג'דליהו חזק וידיד ג'דליהו.

ד"ד - § 84.

Gedaliahu, or Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, occurs seven times. According to the received text Gedaliah is seven times described as ג'דליהו בן אהיקם the son of Ahikam only (Jerem. 40 14, 16; 41 1, 6, 10, 16, 18) and seven times as ג'דליהו בן אהיקם בן שאפן the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan. As the two forms are promiscuously used, not only in one and the same chapter, but within a few verses of each other and as the Scribes were more liable to employ the shorter phrase, the Massorah safeguards the longer form.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 174a, on Jerem. 40 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 174b, on Jerem. 41 10, and (III) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 40 9. It will be seen that though the heading states that there are seven such instances, the List itself records six only, that it omits two which are in the received text (Jerem. 41 2; 43 6) and that it gives one passage which is the shorter form in the textus receptus (Jerem. 41 10). Precisely so is List II which is in the same Model Codex. List III is the reverse. Though it states in the heading that there are six such instances only, it records seven, and gives as the seventh instance Jerem. 43 6 which, as we have seen, is omitted both in Lists I and II. But like Lists I and II it not only omits Jerem. 41 2, but gives Jerem. 41 10 as one of the instances. That this is not due to the carelessness of a Scribe, but exhibits variations in the text itself, is attested by the note which the first editor of the Massorah appended to this Rubric. Jacob b. Chayim distinctly declares that though he found in the MSS. which he consulted the longer phrase in Jerem. 41 2 yet all the Massorahs give Jerem. 41 10 as one of the six passages which have this longer form. There can, therefore, be no doubt that the Massorahs were based upon Codices which read it reversedly in the two verses in question. It is to be remarked that the design of this Rubric is simply to safeguard the respective phrases ג'דליהו בן אהיקם and ג'דליהו בן אהיקם בן שאפן and not to record the fact that in one instance it is combined with ג'דליהו (Jerem. 40 5) and in the other instances it is ג'דליהו.

1 וכן העדיף המסביר במצויי בכל המסור' אשר לפניו במקום קצת יסמאלו בן ג'דליהו בן אהיקם בן שאפן ויבטל יסמאלו את כל שרידיו שכתבו המסור' בן שאפן ובכל מסורי המסור' בכתב מסור' יסמאלו בכתב המסור' ג'דליהו בן אהיקם בן שאפן.

ד"ה - § 85.

Gideon, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 162a, on Judg. 8 30, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 23b, on Judg. 7 18; (III) the same MS., fol. 24b, on Judg. 8 30; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 142b, on Judg. 7 18; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 168a, on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 2, § 53. As the three instances are restricted to the same book, the heading of the Rubric ought properly to be ג'דליהו בן ג'דליהו. This Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times with the prefix Vav and once without it. (Vide infra, letter 2, § 74.)

ד"ו - § 86.

they have blasphemed, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118a, on 2 Kings 19 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 184a, on Isa. 37 6; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 210b, on 2 Kings 19 6, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ד"ז - § 87.

Gedor, is twice defective. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 132a, on 1 Chron. 4 4, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 132b, on 1 Chron. 4 39. It will be seen that according to this Massorah 1 Chron. 4 18, which is the only other passage where this proper name occurs, is plene. This, however, is only according to one School of textual redactors. According to another School which is exhibited in the Model Codices Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11 &c., it is defective. See the note on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

ד"ח - § 88.

occurs twice. That is, in two different senses. In the first instance it is the plural of ג'דרה with the prefix Vav and denotes and hedges, or sheep-folds and in the second it is the proper name Gederah, a city in the plain of Judah.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 148b, on Josh. 15 41, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 111b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 125b, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 102a, on Numb. 32 24; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 166a, on Josh. 15 41; (VI) Orient. 2849, fol. 120b, on Numb. 32 24; (VII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Josh. 15 41, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 32 24. Lists II, III, VI and VII head this Rubric more properly ג'דליהו בן ג'דליהו, whilst List VIII makes it more distinct by the addition ג'דליהו בן ג'דליהו. The printed Massorah (List VIII) simply emphasises the fact that it is defective in both instances, viz. ג'דליהו בן ג'דליהו.

ד"ט - § 89.

and he stretched himself, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 100b, on 2 Kings 4 84, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 2, § 57. As all the three instances are restricted to Kings, the heading ought more properly to be ג'דליהו בן ג'דליהו.

ד"י - § 90.

into the midst of. That is, when this construct of 4 midet, is with the prefix Lamed, which occurs six times (Dan. 8 6, 11, 15, 21, 23, 24), it is invariably with Aleph at the end, but when it is with the preposition Beth it is without the Aleph. This is the plain meaning of this Rubric which is from the Model Codex Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 366b, on Dan. 8 25. Accordingly all the three instances in which this construct with the preposition Beth occurs (Dan. 8 25; 4 7; 7 15) ought to be ג'דליהו בן ג'דליהו without Aleph. Yet in the received text it is one of the three instances where it is without the Aleph (Dan. 7 15), whilst in the other two passages it is with. The notes on Dan. 3 6 and 7 15 in my edition of the Bible show the variations which obtained with regard to the orthography of this construct. The catchword of this Rubric should be with Vav.

צ"א = § 91.

צ"א. For this Rubric see above letter א, § 17.

צ"ב = § 92.

צ"ב he shall press upon, or invade him, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 38b, on Gen. 49 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 118b, on Habak. 3 16; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 61a, on Gen. 49 19; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 57a, on the same passage; (V) Vienna Codex No. 85 on Habak. 3 16; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 49 19, and (VII) the same on Habak. 3 16.

Six Lists out of the seven simply state in their respective headings that this expression occurs twice. List VI alone heads this Rubric ב"א מלמא חסר and in the Rubric itself Habak. 3 16 is described as defective (חסר). On Habak. 3 19, however, where Jacob b. Chayim gives this Rubric a second time (List VII) neither the heading nor the List itself, says anything about the Habakkuk instance being defective. What is still more remarkable is the fact that Jacob b. Chayim gives plene in the text. This reading is attested by all the oldest and best MSS., viz. St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; Add. 21,161 &c., as well as by all the early edition which I have given in the note on this passage in my editions of the Bible. The remark חסר at the end of the note which is based on List VI in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah is, therefore to be cancelled, since it is contrary to the unanimous testimony both of the MSS. and the early editions. Accordingly the catchword of this Rubric should be with Vav. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Yod which respectively occur twice. (Vide infra, letter י, § 11.)

צ"ג = § 93.

צ"ג exaltation, pride, occurs five times in this form. That is, without and with the prefix this contracted form with the Aleph elided, is in these instances used for the normal צ"ג. In Job 20 25, however, which is one of the five instances צ"ג it is abnormally taken to denote body. This is rather remarkable, since three of the five instances occur in Job alone, and it is used in its normal sense in the other two passages (22 29; 33 17). It is more probable that some Codices read it צ"ג with Cholem instead of Kametz, which yields the required sense and that this Massorah is designed to militate against this reading.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 368a, on Dan. 4 34, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 246a, on Jerem. 18 17, and (III) the printed Massorah Dan. 4 34. List II states that there are three instances only and catalogues three, omitting Job 20 25 and Dan. 4 34. The omission of the latter may be due to its being Chaldee, whilst that of the former would favour the supposition that it was not pointed צ"ג, but צ"ג.

דעת הרוב, וזהו המצוי ביד המסורתיים והוא נכון ויבא, במסורתיים הנכונה נכונה ספרי נוח

צ"ד = § 94.

צ"ד and a nation, occurs four times . . . once in the Law and three times in the Prophets. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 68b, on Exod. 19 6, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 67b, on Jerem. 50 41; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 142b, on Isa. 55 5; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 242b, on Jerem. 6 22; (V) the same MSS., fol. 266a, on Jerem. 50 41; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 19 6; (VII) the same on Isa. 55 5, and (VIII) the same on Jerem. 50 41. The addition at the end of the Rubric would seem to indicate that the design of this Massorah is to emphasise the absence of this noun with the prefix Vav from the Hagiographa.

צ"ה = § 95.

צ"ה to a strong nation, is three times thus combined. Normally צ"ה is combined with צ"ה which occurs five times

(Comp. צ"ה Gen. 12 2; 17 20; 21 18; 46 8; Exod. 32 10), or with צ"ה, as well as with צ"ה, which occurs three times. (Comp. צ"ה Gen. 18 18; Numb. 14 12; Deut. 26 5). As it is in these three instances only where it is not followed by the adjunct צ"ה, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 29a, on Isa. 60 22, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Micah 4 7; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 211a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 307a, also on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 237a, on Isa. 60 22; (VI) the same MS., fol. 308b, on Micah 4 7, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Isa. 60 22.

צ"ו = § 96.

צ"ו from nation to nation, occurs three times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter א, § 68.

צ"ז = § 97.

צ"ז. Eight forms of the noun צ"ז which respectively occur once only. The design of this Massorah is to catalogue the forms of צ"ז with prefixes and suffixes which are unique. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Paris Oehliah Ve-Oehliah, § 266, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Ps. 106 5. They are both more or less fragmentary. List II, which exhibits the first attempt at collecting these unique forms, records three instances only, viz. צ"ז Ps. 106 5; צ"ז which is a mistake for צ"ז Gen. 10 31 and צ"ז Isa. 60 12. This primitive fragment is still without a heading and without catchwords and צ"ז unique alone follows each instance, as is usually the case in incipient Lists. That List I though larger, is also a fragment, is evident from the fact that it gives seven instances only, whereas there are altogether eleven such instances, four being omitted, viz. צ"ז Deut. 15 6; צ"ז Ezek. 38 12; צ"ז Ps. 106 5 which is in the smaller fragment and צ"ז Ezek. 38 18. A later Nakdan, who mistook the import of this Massorah and who regarded the List as complete, added צ"ז my back Isa. 50 6 which is contrary to the scope of this Rubric, furnished the instances with catchwords instead of leaving the simple צ"ז and supplied the List with the heading, fixing the number in accordance with the instances therein enumerated.

צ"ח = § 98.

צ"ח and among the nations, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 130b, on Deut. 28 65, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 186b, on Ps. 44 12; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 301b, on Neh. 13 26; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 294b, on Ps. 44 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 389b, on Neh. 13 26; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 109a, on Numb. 23 9, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Deut. 28 65.

צ"ט = § 99.

צ"ט as the nations, occurs three times with Dagesh and is plene. That is, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this plural noun is with the prefix Beth which is so similar in appearance and which is also with Pathach.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 117b, on Deut. 8 20, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 20 32; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 110b, on 2 Kings 17 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 179b, on Ezek. 20 32; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 208b, on 2 Kings 17 11; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 109b, on Deut. 8 20; (VII) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 17 11, and (VIII) the same on Ezek. 20 32.

ק = § 100.

ק to nations, occurs twice in the Pentateuch. The only other instance in which it is with Sheva under the Lamed is Micah 4 3. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this exceptional form against the fourteen instances in which the Lamed is with Pathach. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 36b, on Gen. 17 6.

ק"א = § 101.

ק"א the nations of, is three times plene. That is, in the Prophets and Hagiographa. In these two divisions of the Bible where this plural construct occurs altogether seven times, it is defective in four instances (i. e. נ in Jerem. 26 6; 44 8; Ezra 6 21; 2 Chron. 32 13), and plene with two Yods in three. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

And throughout the Tentateuch it is likewise so. In this division where it occurs four times (Gen. 18 18; 22 18; 26 4; Deut. 28 1) it is uniformly plene. The simple mention of this fact therefore suffices without recording the passages. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 169a, on Jerem. 33 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 277b, on 2 Chron. 32 17; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Jerem. 33 9, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Accordingly נ in Jerem. 44 8, which is plene in the text of my edition of the Bible, in accordance with Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,451, and נ in the notes must change places. In spite of this Massorah there are great variations both in the MSS. and early editions with regard to the orthography of this expression, as will be seen in the notes on Jerem. 26 6; 44 8; Ezra 6 21 and 2 Chron. 32 13, in my edition of the Bible. This conflict extends even to the Massorah. Thus for instance Jerem. 26 6, which is rightly נ in the text of St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 in accordance with the Massorah before us, has against it in the Massorah Parva נ, thus contradicting the text.

קב = § 102.

בָּרִיתִים the bodies, occurs twice, once plene and once defective . . . the sign thereof is, the one by קבא full Ps. 110 6, is בָּרִיתִים full, or plene. As this expression, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards the variation in the orthography. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 312b, on Ps. 110 6, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The mnemonic sign is from the latter.

קי = § 103.

לְנִיחָה captivity, is four times defective in this form. That is, without and with the prefixes. The noun נִיחָה without and with the prefixes, occurs altogether forty-three times. In thirty-nine instances it is plene and four only is it defective. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional orthography. The notes on Nah. 3 10 in my edition of the Bible show that this Massorah militates against the variations exhibited in other recensions. It in to be remarked that in Isa. 49 21 נִיחָה is the participle feminine.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 117b, on Nah. 3 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 140b, on Isa. 49 21; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 233b, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Nah. 3 10, and (V) the same on Esther 2 6. As נִיחָה by itself which occurs twenty-five times, is plene in twenty-three instances and defective in two only, Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 271b, on Esther 2 6, gives these two in a separate Rubric.

קד = § 104.

גֹּלָן Golan, is plene. That is, in Deut. 4 43 on which this Rubric is given. In Josh. 20 8; 21 27 it is גֹּלָן and in all other passages it is גֹּלָן. The name of this city of refuge occurs altogether four times. In two instances it is spelt גֹּלָן (Deut. 4 43; 1 Chron. 6 56) and in two גֹּלָן for which the official reading or Keri is גֹּלָן, making it conformable to the orthography in the other two passages. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 107b, on Deut. 4 43. The expression גֹּלָן in all other passages, must not be too strictly interpreted, since this proper name occurs twice only apart from the two instances in Joshua. The pointing of the two different spellings in the Rubric which I have printed, is to be corrected in accordance with that given here. The two instances in Joshua form part of the List of sixty words in which letters are transposed (see letter ט, § 480).

קה = § 105.

וְאֶנְשֵׁי and I shall give up the ghost, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 326a, on Job. 13 19, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 320a, on Job 3 11. As both instances are restricted to the same book, the heading ought more properly to be וְאֶנְשֵׁי.

קז = § 106.

נָרְ he sojourned, is ten times with Kametz. That is, in contradistinction to the twenty-two instances in which this biliteral is with Tzere, being a noun and denoting sojourner, stranger. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 233b, on Job 28 4. It will be seen that though the heading states that there are ten instances the Rubric itself records eight only, omitting Deut. 18 6, and Ezra 1 4. This is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe.

קח = § 107.

נָרְ he sojourned there, is four times thus combined in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 280b, on Ezra 1 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 24a; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 32a; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 26a; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 35b, all on Gen. 35 27; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Ezra 1 4.

קיח = § 108.

נָרְ occurs twice at the beginning of a verse in two different senses. That is, in Gen. 26 3, it is the imperative and denotes sojourn thou, whilst in Gen. 49 9 it is a noun and signifies a lion's whelp. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 60b, on Gen. 49 9, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 26 3. As both instances occur in the same book, the heading ought more properly to be נָרְ בְּסֵפֶר בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל.

קיט = § 109.

נָרְ I have sojourned, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 21a on Gen. 32 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 30a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 120 5. The heading נָרְ בְּסֵפֶר לִשְׁוֹן וְנָרְ occurs twice and in two different senses, in the Massorah of the Hamburg MS. on Gen. 32 5, given by Frensdorff (Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 59, notes p. 18; Massoretisches Wörterbuch, p. 44), is not only against the import of the two passages, but is not supported by any of the MS. Massorahs, both Magna and Parva, which I have collated.

קי = § 110.

נָרְ denotes and he was afraid in two instances. As this Kal future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, which occurs altogether five times, denotes in three instances and he sojourned (Gen. 20 1; 21 34; Deut. 26 5) and in these two instances only does it signify and he was afraid, the Massorah safeguards the two exceptional passages. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 226a, on Numb. 22 3 and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, which I have printed. The expression נָרְ at the end, indicates that the Samuel instance is at the end of the verse.

קיא = § 111.

נָרְ who sojourn, is four times with Kametz. That is, with Kametz under the Gimel, in contradistinction to the three instances where it is with Tzere, being the noun plural of נָרְ with the prefix He (Ezek. 47 22; 1 Chron. 22 2; 2 Chron. 30 25).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 80a, on Levit. 25 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 158a, on 2 Chron. 15 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 198a, on Ezek. 47 22; (IV) the same MS., fol. 266a, on 2 Chron. 15 9; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 293a, on Ezek. 47 22; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 177a, on Levit. 25 6, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 25 45.

As one of the instances is with the prefix Vav (2 Chron. 15 9), the heading ought more properly to be נָרְ בְּסֵפֶר בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל. List II heads it more precisely נָרְ בְּסֵפֶר בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל . . . דָּרֵי בְּקִיָּה.

קיב = § 112.

נָרְ of her whelps, occurs twice and is defective. As this plural noun with the suffix third person singular feminine which occurs three times, twice with the prefix Mem and once without it, and which is restricted to within a few verses of each other, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards this variation in the orthography. It is, however, to be remarked, that this Massorah, which is followed in the textus receptus, simply represents one School of textual redactors and though it is supported by Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251, yet another School write it plene in both instances, and this is supported by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Add. 15,451 &c. It is remarkable that the Model Codex Harley 5710-11 has it defective in the first instance, and קָרַח plene in the second. For the variations in the early editions see the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 178b, on Ezek. 19 3.

קָרַח = § 118.

קָרַח by lot, is five times Raphe. That is, with Sheva under the Beth. Apart from Numbers this noun with the prefix Beth, occurs altogether eleven times. In seven instances the Beth has Pathach, called in Massoretic terminology Dagesh (vide infra, § 114) and in four instances only is it Raphe. Hence the Massorah records the minority. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Josh. 14 2, is corrupt. Its design is to register the Raphe instances apart from Numbers as is evident from the printed Massorah Parva on Judg. 20 9 where it is correctly stated that it occurs four times and that it is likewise so throughout Numbers (בגדל ד' ובל ודבר דב). Accordingly the catchwords רצו משה ובל (Numb. 34 13) are out of place here. They are evidently a corruption of דב ובל ודבר דב and ought to be at the end of the Rubric. As is often the case, all the instances in one book are counted as one, thus yielding the requisite number five given in the heading. The apparently conflicting remarks in the Massorah Parva on the several passages, viz. ד' רמ and ד' רמ, are due to the fact that the ד' = four denotes the four instances apart from Numbers and ד' = five includes Numbers which counts as one. As one of the instances is קָרַח with Pathach under the Resh, the Massorah in Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb. 34 13 remarks קָרַח במא סת'.

קָרַח = § 114.

קָרַח by the lot, is six times with Dagesh in the Scriptures. That is, with Pathach under the Beth, in contradistinction to the instances with Sheva, recorded in the preceding Rubric. Of this Rubric, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 151a, on Josh. 21 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 134a, on 1 Chron. 6 48, and (III) the printed Massorah on Josh. 21 4. Both the MS. Lists distinctly state that there are six such instances only, though the catchword במבנה, which is given in both as the sixth passage, cannot be identified. In the textus receptus, however, there are seven, viz. 1 Chron. 6 46, 50 besides the five registered in this Rubric. It is, therefore, difficult to divine which of these two missing passages is intended by the enigmatical במבנה. It is remarkable that the printed Massorah Parva also states in three instances that this expression with Dagesh occurs six times. (Comp. Josh. 21 4, 5, 6). In the heading of List III, which states that it occurs four times only (בגדל ד' רמ), the expression במבנה = in this book, is omitted as is evident from the fact that the four instances in Joshua only, are recorded. The addition at the end ובלדן חמשים is manifestly a misprint for בלדן בלואם רמ.

קָרַח = § 115.

קָרַח and the lot, occurs twice in the Scriptures. In the other twelve instances where this noun occurs it is without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 8b, on Isa. 17 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 126a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 163a, on Levit. 16 8; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Isa. 17 14, and (V) the printed Massorah on Levit. 16 8. The fact that it is with Kametz and plene in both instances explains the different headings of this Rubric. Thus in Lists III and IV it is קָרַח which ought more properly to be ב' וקָרַח. Here, therefore, the Kametz under the Resh is emphasised, whilst in List V which is ב' וקָרַח the presence of the Vav, in contradistinction to its absence in other instances (vide infra, § 117), is laid stress on.

קָרַח = § 116.

קָרַח the lot of, occurs twice with Pathach in the Scriptures . . . and four times altogether, including prefixes. That is, in these two instances is this noun without any prefix in the construct state, and in two it is with prefixes.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 216a, on Ps. 125 8, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 10b, on Josh. 14 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 317a, on Ps. 125 3; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 252a, on Numb. 36 3; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah on Numb. 36 3; (VII) the same on Josh. 18 11, and (VIII) the same on Ps. 125 3 which alone has the mnemonic sign. The mnemonic sign without the List is also given in the Massorah Finalis letter ג, § 120. The heading in List VI, viz. וּבְגֵל ד' רמ בליש וּמְחַק is incorrect. It consists of a confusion of the two headings which respectively belong to this Rubric and the following one. Moreover, the catchwords ועל גל משה בנין should be ועל גל משה בני בנין Josh. 18 11.

קָרַח = § 117.

קָרַח lots. Four forms of this noun are defective. That is, they are abnormally without the Vav after the Gimel. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 91b, on Levit. 16 8, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 18b, on Judg. 1 3; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 163a, on Levit. 16 8; (IV) the same MS., fol. 252a, on Numb. 36 3; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Dan. 12 13, and (VI) the printed Massorah, on Levit. 16 8.

קָרַח = § 118.

קָרַח a fleece, mowing, occurs twice. In the only other instance where this biliteral occurs it is with Kametz (קָרַח) and is the preterite of קָרַח. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated six Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 123b, on Deut. 18 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 301b, on Ps. 72 6; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 106b, on Deut. 18 4; (IV) Add. 15,461, fol. 133a, on the same passage; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 72 6, and (VI) Cambridge Add. 465, on Deut. 18 4. The latter heads this Rubric קָרַח ב' וּבְגֵל ליש.

קָרַח = § 119.

קָרַח occurs twice in two different senses. That is, in the first instance it is the future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive of קָרַח and denotes and he brought up, and in the second from קָרַח and signifies and he shaved.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 222b, on Job 1 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 322a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 80b, on Numb. 11 31; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 319a, on Job 1 20, and (V) the printed Massorah on Numb. 11 31. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217 &c).

קָרַח = § 120.

קָרַח he robbed, is three times with Kametz. That is, under the Zayin instead of Pathach, as in Ezek. 18 18; Job 20 19. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 65b, on Levit. 5 23, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 94b; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 84b, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

Lists II, III and IV state in their respective headings that it occurs twice with Kametz ב' קָרַח, and record two instances only, omitting Ezek. 18 16. This apparent contradiction is due to the fact that the four Lists exhibit two recension of this Massorah. The one recension records all the instances in which the second radical of this preterite is with Kametz, without any regard to the accents, whilst the other emphasises the fact that in two instances only it is abnormally with Kametz without the pausal accent, and omits Ezek. 18 16, because here it is with Athnach and Kametz, which is normal. This is attested by the Massorah Parva on Levit. 5 23, which remarks ב' קָרַח במקום אֶתְנַחֵם, thus restricting the two Kametz instances to the none Athnach accent. Rubric IV gives the catchwords בְּעַד רֵשֵׁי ד' עזק, Ezek. 18 17, as the second of the two instances. Here however, קָרַח does not occur, and it is manifestly a clerical error for עַד אֶתְנַחֵם עזק Ezek. 18 12, which Jacob b. Chayim has overlooked. On Ezek. 18 18 the printed Massorah also states that קָרַח occurs twice with Kametz, and gives Ezek. 18 18 and Eccl. 5 7 as the two instances. But this manifestly refers to the noun violence, which without and with the prefix Vav, also occurs twice. The expression קצק here, as not infrequently elsewhere, is קצק קצק and denotes Ters in Massoretic terminology. As I have by oversight omitted this Rubric I subjoined it in the foot note¹.

1 גול ב' קצק וטו גול אה ואסר לא סוב עשה, גול וכושם (?) תדק היראה.

קביא = § 121.

קביא he was cut off, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 273b, on 2 Chron. 26 21, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 165a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 271b, on Esther 2 1; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 235a, on Isa. 53 8; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 309a, on Esther 2 1, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ק, § 69.

קביב = § 122.

קביב Gehazi, is four times defective of Yod in the Scriptures. This proper name, which occurs altogether twelve times and within three chapters of the same book, is in eight instances with Yod after the Gimel (2 Kings 4 12, 14, 25, 27, 29, 36; 5 20, 21) and in four only is it without the Yod. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional orthography. On referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that all the eight plene instances are the subject of various readings. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on 2 Kings 4 31.

קביג = § 123.

קביג the valley of, without and with the prefix Beth, is nine times so written. That is, without the Aleph at the end. Without and with the prefix Beth, the construct of קביג occurs altogether thirty-three times. In twenty instances it is with the normal Aleph (קביג)¹ and in nine instances only, reckoning Joshua as one instance, is it without the Aleph (קביג). Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. The need for protecting these instances is due to the fact that the two different spellings occur in one and the same verse (Ezek. 39 11; Zech. 14 5), and that other Schools of textual redactors had not these variations. Thus the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16, have קביג with Aleph in Isa. 22 5, and this reading is exhibited in some of the earliest editions as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. In Zech. 14 5, too the St. Petersburg Codex has קביג to which the Massoretic annotator takes exception, remarking that in the first part of the verse it is plene and defective in the second (קביג יא כה מלי וכו' יי כה מלי). Conflicting readings are also exhibited in 2 Kings 23 10.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 192a, on Ezek. 39 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 221b, on Zech. 14 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 178b, on 2 Chron. 33 6; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 332a, on Ezek. 39 11; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 295a, on the same passage; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35, on 2 Chron. 33 6; (VII) the printed Massorah on Josh. 18 16, and (VIII) the same on Zech. 14 5.

And throughout Joshua it is likewise so. In Joshua, where this construct occurs altogether six times (15 8, 8; 18 16, 16; 19 14, 27), it is uniformly defective and hence the whole book, according to the artificial arrangement of the Massorah, is reckoned to yield one instance, which makes the requisite number nine. This treatment is adopted in all the Lists which are practically identical.

1 Comp. קביג Isa. 22 1; 28 1, 4; Jerem. 7 32; 19 2; Ezek. 39 11, 15; Zech. 14 4, 5; Neh. 11 30; 1 Chron. 4 14; 2 Chron. 25 11; קביג 2 Sam. 8 18; Jerem. 7 31; 32 35; Ps. 23 4; 60 2; 1 Chron. 18 12; 2 Chron. 14 9; 28 3.

קביד = § 124.

קביד the valley of Hinnom, occurs three times. That is, without קב the son of, intervening. קביד Hinnom, is thirteen times combined with קב the valley of. In ten instances the phrase is simply קביד the valley of the son of Hinnom,¹ and in three only it is simply קביד the valley of Hinnom, without קב. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional shorter combination. This protection is all the more necessary since the two forms are not only used within a few verses of each other, but in the very same verse (Josh. 15 8; 18 16; Jerem. 19 2, 6). It is, moreover, designed to exclude the various reading in Josh. 15 8, which is exhibited in some MSS., early editions and ancient versions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

1 Comp. Josh. 15 8; 18 16; 2 Kings 23 10 Keri; Jerem. 7 31, 32; 19 2, 6; 32 35; 2 Chron. 28 3; 33 6.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 387a, on Neh. 11 30, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ק, § 75. It will be seen that, though the heading emphatically states that there are three such instances, the Rubric itself records two only, omitting Josh. 18 16b. That this omission is due to the carelessness of the scribe is evident from the fact that these three instances are duly given in List II.

קביה = § 125.

קביה in the valley, is three times defective with prefixes. That is, in the absolute this noun is without the Aleph with different prefixes. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 143b, on Deut. 34 6, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 153b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. It is remarkable that whilst these three instances of the absolute form are included in the List of words which are without Aleph in the text, but which are officially read with it (vide supra, letter ק, § 14a-d) the construct form which, as we have seen, occurs nine times or rather fourteen times without this letter (vide supra, letter ק, § 123), is excluded from this List.

קביז = § 126.

קביז valley, is twice with Segol, once it is with Aleph at the end and once with He. The design of this Massorah is not only to safeguard the abnormal vowel-point Segol, but the reading קביז with Gimel in Ezek. 47 13 against the less dominant School of textual redactors which read it קביז, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. Here again the expression קביז is used for קביז. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ק, § 126.

קביח = § 127.

קביח the valleys. The two plural forms of קביח, viz. קביח and קביח with the Yod transposed, occur altogether eight times. In five instances it is קביח with the Yod after the Aleph (Ezek. 7 16; 31 12; 32 5; 36 4, 6) and in three only is it קביח with the Yod after the Gimel. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional form. Though the Rubric before us suggests no other spelling for these instances, there is an official reading or Keri which makes them conformable to the majority, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474 on Ezek. 6 3. The pointing of these instances should be in accordance with the form קביח.

קביט = § 128.

קביט sinevs, occurs twice and in the same section. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 280b, on Ezek. 37 6.

קביש = § 129.

קביש Gihon, is three times thus written. That is, with Yod after the Gimel, in contradistinction to the other three instances where it occurs and where it is without the Yod. In this separate form the Rubric is from Orient. 2349, fol. 80a, on Gen. 2 13.

קביל = § 130.

קביל Gihon, is three times defective. That is, without the Yod. As this proper name without and with the prefix, which occurs altogether six times, is plene in three instances and defective in three, the Massorah safeguards the variation in the orthography. The necessity for this protection will be seen from the notes on 1 Kings 1 45 in my edition of the Bible. This separate form of the Rubric is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 76b, on 1 Kings 1 38.

Of the two Rubrics given in one register I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 278a, on 2 Chron. 32 30; (II) the same MS., fol. 278b, on 2 Chron. 33 14; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 434b, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 2 13, and (V) the same on 1 Kings 1 38.

קליא = § 131.

קליא occurs twice in two different senses. That is, in the first instance it is the Hiphil future third person singular masculine, with Vav conversive, from קלל and denotes and he rolled (Gen. 29 10) whilst in the second instance it is the Kal of קל and signifies and he rejoiced (Ps. 16 9).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 19b, on Gen. 29 10, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the same on Ps. 16 9. These two instances form part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter מ, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217 &c.)

קליב = § 132.

קליב thou shalt, or she shall rejoice, occurs twice. It will be seen that though this quadriliteral is future second person masculine in the first instance, and third person feminine in the second, the Massorah has regard simply to the identity of the spelling, irrespective of the difference in the sense. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 136b, on Isa. 41 16, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קליג = § 133.

קליג and she shall rejoice, occurs twice. That is, in Isaiah since apart from this it also occurs three times (Ps. 96 11; Prov. 23 25; 1 Chron. 16 31). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 226b, on Isa. 35 1. We have here another instance of the fact that the Massorah often omits in the headings the qualifying adjunct בטהרה.

קליד = § 134.

קליד we will rejoice, occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 128b, on Isa. 25 9.

קליה = § 135.

קליה joy, gladness, occurs three times. That is, without the prefix Vav. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the textual reading קלי in Prov. 23 24. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 105b, on Hosea 9 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 201b; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. As it occurs once with the prefix Vav and Sheva (קליה) this Rubric constitutes part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 73.)

קליז = § 136.

קליז the Gilonite, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 66b, on 2 Sam. 15 12, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 173a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Parva on 2 Sam. 15 12. Neither the headings of the respective Lists, nor the two instances, indicate whether this gentile noun is plene in both instances. All the Standard Codices which I have collated (Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 &c.) as well as most of the early editions have קליז without the Yod in 2 Sam. 23 34, for which reason I have adopted it in the text of my edition of the Bible. Here too, the qualifying expression יבטח is omitted from the headings.

קליג = § 137.

קליג Ginath, occurs twice. That is, as a proper name and with Yod after the Gimel, in contradistinction to the three instances where it is קלי, the construct of קלי (Cant. 6 11; Esther 1 5; 7 7) and is without the Yod. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 91a, on 1 Kings 16 21. The heading ought more properly to be קליג since the two instances occur in two consecutive verses.

קליח = § 138.

קליח to heaps, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed:

(I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 68b, on Jerem. 51 37, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 228b, on Job 15 28; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 244a, on Jerem. 9 10, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קליט = § 139.

קליט. A sign for the different vowel-points of this quadriliteral. To understand the import of this Rubric it is necessary to remark that as this quadriliteral noun does not occur without prefixes in Ezekiel, the Psalms or Ecclesiastes, it is evident that the design of the Massorah is to include all the forms, both without and with the prefix, throughout the Scriptures. Hence it not only includes the noun which denotes wheel, whirling, but the proper name of the place near the Jordan. Of all the forty-four instances in which this expression occurs, there are ten only, in four books. As these exhibit two different vowel-points, the Massorah separates them from the rest of the Scriptures for safeguarding. With these preliminary explanations we shall be able to analyse the division and the import of this Rubric.

In Ezekiel, the Psalms and Ecclesiastes for which [חוקא, חילוא קליט] קליט is the mnemonic sign, it is always קליט. In these three books where it occurs altogether eight times. (Ezek. 10 2, 6, 13; 23 24; 26 10; Ps. 77 19; 83 14; Eccl. 12 6) it is invariably with Pathach under both Gimeles.

In Isaiah it is קליט. Here, where it occurs twice (Isa. 17 13; 28 28) it is with Chirek under the first Gimel and Pathach under the second. In the received text Isa. 17 13 is קליט with Pathach under the first Gimel. But as the Massorite himself furnished it with the vowel-points this Rubric must emanate from a School of textual redactors which read it with Chirek.

And in the rest of the Scriptures it is קליט. That is, with Chirek under the first Gimel and Kametz under the second. In the thirty-four instances of the other Scriptures where it is thus pointed, it is invariably the proper name.¹ This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 79a, on Ezek. 10 2.

¹ Comp. Deut. 11 30; Josh. 4 19, 20; 5 9, 10; 9 6; 10 7, 9; 12 23; 14 6; 15 7; Judg. 2 1; 3 9; 1 Sam. 7 16; 10 8; 11 14, 15, 15; 13 4, 7, 8, 12, 15; 15 12, 21, 23; 2 Kings 2 1; Hosea 4 15; 9 15; 12 12; Amos 4 4; 5 6; Micah 6 5; Neh. 12 29.

קליט = § 140.

קליט Gilgal as a proper name is always with Kametz. That is, under the second Gimel. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Deut. 11 30.

קליט = § 141.

קליט and Gilgal, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the twenty instances where this name is קליט, with the prefix He and without the Vav conjunctive.¹ This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 39a, on 1 Sam. 7 16.

¹ Comp. קליט Deut. 11 30; Josh. 9 6; 10 7, 9; 15 7; Judg. 2 1; 3 19; 1 Sam. 10 8; 11 14, 15; 13 4, 8, 12, 15; 15 12; 2 Kings 2 1; Hosea 4 15; Amos 4 4; 5 6; Micah 6 5.

קליט = § 142.

קליט to Gilgal, occurs six times. That is, with the paragogic He. Normally when this place is combined with verbs of motion it is either קליט (Josh. 15 7) or simply קליט without the local He (1 Sam. 11 15; 13 12; 15 12). Moreover, the verb קליט which is in 2 Sam. 19 16 combined with קליט, is in 1 Sam. 13 8 and Hosea 4 15 followed by קליט and the phrase קליט קליט in Josh. 10 6, 15, 43, is in this very book קליט קליט (9 6). The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the instances before us against being made conformable to the other passages.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 176a, on 2 Sam. 19 41, which I have printed; (II) Cambridge Add. 465, on Josh. 10 15; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (IV) the same on 2 Sam. 19 41.

קליט = § 143.

קליט for a head, or poll, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the instances in which it is with the suffix third person plural masculine, recorded in the following Rubric. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 84a, on Num. 3 47, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Exod. 38 26; and (III) the printed Massorah on Exod. 16 16. The latter heads it קליט.

קמד = § 144.

לְלִנְדָּוָם by their heads, or polls, occurs seven [six] times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter נ, § 81, is incorrect. There are six instances only. דקדילו, which is given as the second instance, should be נקדילו Numb. 1 18. וימשיך הליים and וימשיך הליים, which are given as two instances in two separate lines, are one passage, viz. Numb. 23 3. These catchwords I have corrected.

קמיה = § 145.

נְלִיחַ the capturing of, occurs twice. That is, the Kal infinitive construct, in contradistinction to the three passages where this quadrilateral is with Shurek under the Gimel (גלח) being noun feminine plural (1 Kings 7 41; 2 Chron. 4 12, 13). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 147b, on Jerem. 1 3, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter נ, § 86.

קמיו = 146

וְהִנֵּה and he was carried away captive, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 237b, on Job 36 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 333b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 366a, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 267a, on Jerem. 52 27, and (V) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 25 21. The printed Massorah (Lists V) omits 2 Kings 25 21, and gives as the third instance ויגלו המצרים 2 Chron. 36 20. This is not only against the received text which has here ויגלו, but against all the MS. Lists. Some of the Lists add at the end ויגלו א Job 36 15; ויגלו א Job. 20 28.

קמיו = § 147.

וְלִיחַ revealing, making bare, migrating, occurs five times in the Scriptures. That is, with Segol under the Lamed, in contradistinction to the noun וליח which is with Kametz, and which is recorded above (letter נ, § 103).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 257b, on 2 Kings 24 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 117b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 843b, on Prov. 20 19; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 391a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 15 19.

The Rubric, which I have printed (List I) simply emphasises the fact that in these instances the Lamed is with Segol and that one of the five instances is with the prefix Vav (1 Sam. 22 8b). Hence this recension of the Rubric safeguards the vowel-points. The other four Lists, however, which represent another recension have regard to the spelling and lay stress upon the fact that in three instances it is defective (1 Sam. 22 8, 3; 2 Sam. 15 19), and plene in two (2 Kings 24 14; Prov. 20 19). Hence they head this Rubric וליח חס, or as Lists V indicates by stating after the first three instances וליח חס קמיו; thus safeguarding the variation in the orthography. The heading of this recension ought more properly to be וליח חס וקמיו.

קמיה = § 148.

וְהִנֵּה she shall be discovered, occurs three times. . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. That is, in contradistinction to the fourteen instances where this quadrilateral is pointed וקמיה, being the Piel future second person singular masculine.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 79b, on Ezek. 16 57, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 255b, on Prov. 26 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176b, on Ezek. 16 57; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 275b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 98a, on Exod. 20 26; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Ezek. 16 57. As these three instances respectively occur in the three divisions of the Scriptures, List IV adds at the end וקמיה חס, whilst List V heads the Rubric וקמיה חס.

קמיה = § 149.

וְהִנֵּה and they were discovered, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed; (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 43a, on 1 Sam 14 11, which I have printed;

(II) Add. 15,251, fol. 158a, and (III) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage.

קינ = § 150.

וְהִנֵּה and he uncovered, or opened, occurs twice and both times at the beginning of a verse. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 10a, on Isa. 22 8, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 142b, on Numb. 22 81; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 127b, on Isa. 22 8, and (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 114b, on Numb. 22 31.

קמיה = § 151.

וְהִנֵּה and she uncovered, occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181b, on Ezek. 23 18.

קמיה = § 152.

וְהִנֵּה I will discover, or expose, occurs twice in the Scriptures. In the only other instance where this quadrilateral occurs it is וקמיה the Kal (Ruth 4 4). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 114b, on Micah 1 6.

קמיה = § 153.

וְהִנֵּה they were carried away, occurs twice. That is, with Kametz under the He, in contradistinction to the three instances in which it is with Chirek (היח), being the Hiphil (2 Kings 17 28, 33; Jerem. 22 12). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the Vienna Codex No. 35, on 1 Chron. 9 1.

קמיה = § 154.

וְהִנֵּה is revealed, occurs twice, once it is with Chateph-Pathach, and once with five points. That is, with Chateph-Segol, which consists of five points. As this Peal participle passive singular masculine which not only occurs twice in the same book, but within the same section, is pointed differently, the Massorah safeguards this variation. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 438a, on Dan. 2 19, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 46, fol. 364b, on the same passage.

קמיה = § 155.

וְהִנֵּה springs, is seven times defective. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 82a, on 1 Kings 7 41, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 11b, on Josh. 15 19; (III) the same MS., fol. 18b, on Judg. 1 15; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 138a, on Josh. 15 19; (V) the same MS., fol. 138b, on Judg. 1 15; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 155b, on Josh. 15 19; (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VIII) the same on 1 Kings 7 41.

The addition עמיה קמיה after וקמיה shows beyond doubt that the seventh instance is וקמיה (1 Kings 7 41a) with the prefix Vav and that the second instance which occurs in this verse, is וקמיה plene. As the different spellings of this noun occur in one and the same verse, the Massorah safeguards the variation. The heading ought more properly to be וקמיה חס, since one of the instances is with the prefix Vav. We have here another of the comparatively few instances in which the Massorah, contrary to its usual method, records the majority since the plene are the exception, occurring three times only (1 Kings 7 41; 2 Chron. 4 12, 13) and once וקמיה (2 Chron. 4 12).

קמיה = § 156.

וְהִנֵּה rings of, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 354b, on Esther 1 6, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Cant. 5 14. As in Canticles the accent is on the ultima (וילי) and in Esther on the penultima (וילי) the Massorah Parva on Cant. 5 14 in Add. 15,251 remarks וקמיה חס במע.

קמיה = § 157.

וְהִנֵּה of our captivity, occurs twice in the Scriptures, and is defective. The design of this Massorah is to include the plene reading in Ezek. 33 21 which is exhibited in the Codices of other Schools of textual redactors, and in some of the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 96b, on Ezek. 40 1.

קניח = § 158.

קניח roll ye, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 8a, on Josh. 10 18, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קניח = § 159.

קניח desolate, emaciated, occurs three times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, where it is given twice: (I) on Job 15 34, and (II) on 30 3. As this expression is restricted to Job the heading ought properly to be קניח בְּיֹסֵפִי.

קיס = § 160.

קיס to Gilead, occurs three times. That is, with the paragogic He. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 147b, on 1 Chron. 27 21, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 154b, on Numb. 32 39; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 182b, on 2 Sam. 24 6; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 483b, on 1 Chron. 27 21; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 120b, on Numb. 32 39, and (VI) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 24 6.

קיסא = § 161.

קיסא which lie along, occurs twice in this book. That is, in Canticles. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 262a, on Cant. 6 5. As this expression, which occurs twice altogether, is restricted to this book the heading ought properly to be קיסא בְּיֹסֵפִי, but the Vav, as we have seen, is often omitted.

קיסב = § 162.

קיסב also, begins a verse four times . . . and all in the Pentateuch. In the Pentateuch, where this conjunctive begins a verse altogether seventeen times, it is with the prefix Vav in thirteen instances, (vide infra, § 177) and in four only is it without this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 32b, on Gen. 7 3, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 105a, on Deut. 1 37.

קיסג = § 163.

קיסג. Throughout the Pentateuch, Joshua and Judges וַיִּנְחַם always begins a verse except in five instances, where it is וַיִּנְחַם. This Rubric, which is an expanded recension of the preceding one, including Joshua and Judges in the catalogue, is misleading. It states in the heading that וַיִּנְחַם begins a verse throughout Joshua, whereas in this book neither וַיִּנְחַם nor וַיִּנְחַם ever occurs at the beginning of a verse.

Judges. — In Judges, where this conjunctive begins a verse five times, it is in four instances with the Vav conjunctive (וַיִּנְחַם) Judg. 2 3, 10, 17; 19 19) and in one instance only, is it without the prefix. Hence its inclusion in this Rubric. This form of the Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, where it is given twice: (I) on Exod. 6 4, which I have printed, and (II) on Deut. 1 37.

קיסד = § 164.

קיסד. This Rubric, which allocates the position of the conjunctive without and with the prefix Vav, in the remaining Scriptures, combines the several registers of the respective books into a chain of five links. I shall detach the several links and give the register of each book separately as they are in the older Massorahs.

Samuel. — In Samuel up to which the preceding Rubrics furnishes the registers, where this conjunctive occurs altogether ten times at the beginning of a verse, it is without the prefix in six instances, and with it in four only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. (Vide infra, letter ג, § 178.)

Kings. — In this book, which forms the first link of the Rubric before us, where this conjunctive begins the verse altogether seventeen times, it is with the Vav in sixteen instances¹ and once only is it without the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception.

Isaiah. — In Isaiah, which is the second link in the Rubric before us, where this conjunctive occurs altogether eight times at the beginning of the verse, it is five times without the prefix² and three times with it. These three instances are, therefore, safeguarded in a separate Rubric. (Vide infra, letter ג, § 179.)

Jeremiah. — In Jeremiah, which is still a part of the second link of this concatenation, where it begins a verse fourteen times, it is without the prefix Vav in eight instances³ and in six with it. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority in a separate Rubric. (Vide infra, letter ג, § 180.)

Ezekiel. — In Ezekiel, which is the third link of this concatenation, this conjunctive begins a verse nine times. In six instances it is with the prefix Vav⁴ and in three only is it without the prefix. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards it in a separate Rubric. Of this separate Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 179a, on Ezek. 20 23; (II) the same MS., fol. 186b, on Ezek. 31 17; (III) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 16 52, and (IV) the same on Ezek. 20 23.

The Minor Prophets. — In the Minor Prophets, which constitute here the fourth link, this conjunctive begins a verse altogether eighteen times. Deducting the four instances in which וַיִּנְחַם is followed by וַיִּנְחַם and וַיִּנְחַם (Amos 4 6, 7; Micah 6 13; Mal. 2 9) which the Massorah artificially excludes from this register, fourteen only remain. Of these nine without the prefix Vav begin a verse,⁵ and five only are with this prefix at the beginning of the verse. Hence the Massorah safeguards these five both here and in a separate Rubric. (Vide infra, letter ג, § 181.)

The Hagiographa. — For the instances in this division of the Scriptures, which is the fifth link in this concatenation, see below letter ג, § 182. The entire Rubric is given in Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 93.

¹ Comp. וַיִּנְחַם at the beginning of the verse 1 Kings 1 46, 47, 48; 2 5; 3 13; 8 4; 10 11; 14 24; 15 13; 16 7; 21 23; 2 Kings 21 16; 23 15, 19, 24; 24 4.

² Comp. וַיִּנְחַם at the beginning of the verse Isa. 14 8; 28 29; 43 13; 48 8; 66 4.

³ Comp. וַיִּנְחַם at in the beginning of a verse Jerem. 2 18, 34, 37; 8 7; 33 21, 26; 46 21; 51 49.

⁴ Comp. וַיִּנְחַם in the beginning of a verse Ezek. 8 18; 9 10; 20 12, 15, 25; 21 22.

⁵ Comp. וַיִּנְחַם at the beginning of the verse Hosea 6 11; 8 10; 10 6; Joel 1 20; Nah. 3 10, 11; Zeph. 1 18; 2 12; Zech. 9 11.

קיסה = § 165.

קיסה. A sign. Throughout the Scriptures this conjunctive is with the prefix Vav after Athnach (וַיִּנְחַם) except in twenty-four instances where it is without it (וַיִּנְחַם).

This conjunctive begins the sentence immediately after the pausal accent Athnach altogether about one hundred and fifty-five times. In eighty-one instances it is (וַיִּנְחַם), without the prefix Vav, and in seventy-four it is with it (וַיִּנְחַם). But as the one is the rule in certain books and the other the exception, whilst in other books the reverse is the case, the Massorah separates those which in each case exhibit the minority and accordingly divides this Rubric into two parts, and thus safeguards the exceptions. The first part of this Rubric, which records the instances where וַיִּנְחַם without the prefix Vav exceptionally begins the sentence after Athnach, embraces the following books:

Genesis. — In this book, where it begins the sentence after Athnach ten times, it is with the prefix Vav in seven instances, (14 7, 16; 21 26; 38 22; 40 15; 42 22; 44 9) and in three only is it without the prefix. Hence the Massorah includes this book in the catalogue of exceptions. It will be seen that the List gives two for Genesis, whereas there are three, Gen. 45 25 is omitted which as we shall see, is manifestly due to the first attempt on the part of the original compiler who could not find any more.

Exodus. — Here, where it begins the sentence seven times, it is in four instances with the prefix (2 19; 3 9; 4 14; 18 23) and in three without it, for which reason this book is included in the catalogue which registers the minority. It will be seen that here too the List records two only, and omits Exod. 10 24, which is due to the same cause.

Leviticus. — In this book there is not a single instance where either וַיִּנְחַם or וַיִּנְחַם begins the sentence after Athnach.

Numbers. — In this book it begins the sentence four times. It is with the prefix Vav in three instances (13 27; 24 24, 26) and is without it once only. Hence Numbers is part of the List which records the exceptions.

Deuteronomy. — It is remarkable that in this book the instances in which it is without the prefix are the majority, and those with it are in the minority. The former occur four times (1 37, 23 3, 4; 32 25) and the latter twice only (1 28; 2 6). The inclusion of this book in the List of the exceptions of vav is due to the fact that the Massorah treats the Pentateuch as one book. As such the instances without the Vav are in the minority, being altogether eleven only, whilst those with it are sixteen. In Deuteronomy the List before us omits two instances, viz. 1 37; 32 25, which, as already stated, is due to the incipient state in which the List was left by the original compiler.

Joshua. — In this book, where it occurs altogether four times, it is in three instances with the prefix Vav (2 24; 7 11; 22 7) and in one instance only is it without the prefix. Hence it is included in the List of exceptions.

Judges. — It is difficult to devine why the two instances in Judges are included in the exceptions, since vav with the prefix after Athnach, does not occur in this book, except on the supposition that a later Nakdan mistook the import of this Massorah.

Samuel. — In this book, where this conjunctive begins the sentence sixteen times after Athnach, it is evenly divided; eight times it is without the prefix (1 Sam. 2 26; 12 25; 22 7; 28 6, 19, 20; 2 Sam. 3 17; 12 14) and eight with it (1 Sam. 4 17; 14 21; 23 17; 2 Sam. 1 11; 2 6, 7; 11 24; 13 36). It will be seen that in the List five only are recorded without the prefix, and three are omitted, viz. 1 Sam. 28 6, 19; 2 Sam. 3 17. This gives us the clue to the Rubric in its present state. A later Nakdan who found an incipient List of these exceptional instances, as is often the case, mistook the catalogue for complete. Hence he not only supplied it with the heading, fixing the number to agree with the instances which this imperfect List exhibited, but included in the first part of the Rubric books which in this incipient form exhibited an apparent minority.

Kings. — Here, where this conjunctive occurs altogether eight times, it is with the prefix in six instances (1 Kings 1 6; 7 31; 18 35; 2 Kings 13 6; 16 3; 22 19) and in two only is it without the prefix. Hence its inclusion in the List.

Ezekiel. — In this book, where it occurs seven times, the instances with the prefix Vav are the rule and those without it the exception. The former are five (5 11; 16 29, 43; 23 35, 37) and the latter two only. These are, therefore, part of the List of exceptions.

Psalms. — In the Psalter this conjunctive begins a sentence after Athnach four times. In two instances it is with the prefix (8 3; 78 21) and in two without it (84 7; 129 2). Not only are the latter omitted altogether, but the one instance given in the List, viz. Ps. 132 12 is incorrect, since vav here is not preceded by Athnach. As the Nakdan found this single instance representing the Psalms he put the Psalter in the List of exceptions though this instance is incorrect.

Job. — In Job there is no instance of either vav or vav following an Athnach.

Canticles. — The same is the case in Canticles.

Ruth. — In this book, where it occurs twice, it is once with the prefix (3 12) and once without it. Hence this book too is wrongly placed in the List of exceptions.

Chronicles. — In this book, which is the last in the first part of the List, this conjunctive occurs altogether sixteen times. In thirteen instances it is with prefix Vav (1 Chron. 10 13; 12 39; 29 9; 2 Chron. 12 12; 16 12; 21 4, 13; 24 7, 12; 26 20; 28 2, 5; 34 27) and in three only is it without the prefix. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards here the exceptions.

And throughout Jeremiah, Isaiah, the Minor Prophets, Ecclesiastes and Ezra-Nehemiah it is likewise without the Vav with the exception of sixteen instances where it is vav after Athnach. In these five books, where this conjunctive begins the sentence after Athnach fifty-nine times, it is in forty-two instances without the prefix Vav and in sixteen [seventeen] instances only, is it with the prefix. In these books, therefore, the reverse is the case, vav is the rule and vav the exception, as will be seen from the following analysis.

Jeremiah. — In this book, where it occurs sixteen times, it is without the prefix Vav in twelve instances (2 36; 6 15; 7 11; 8 12; 13 23; 23 11; 31 36, 37; 46 16; 48 2; 51 44, 49) and in four only, is it with it. The List gives three, but this is due to its incompleteness. Jerem. 52 10 must be added.

Isaiah. — Here, where it occurs eight times, without the prefix is the rule and with it is the exception. The former occurs six times (13 3; 14 10; 49 15; 57 6, 7; 66 3) and the latter twice only.

The Minor Prophets. — In the Minor Prophets, which the Massorah treats as one book, where it occurs fourteen times it is without the prefix in nine instances (Hosea 7 9; 9 16; 12 12; Joel 1 18; Amos 7 6; Nah. 3 11; Zech. 8 6; 9 12; Mal. 3 16) and with it in five only.

Ecclesiastes. — In this book, where it occurs sixteen times, it is without the prefix in eleven instances (2 7, 19, 23, 24; 3 11; 4 4; 5 9; 6 9; 7 14; 8 10; 9 1) and in five with it.

Ezra-Nehemiah. — In these two books, which are treated in the Massorah as one, it occurs four times. In three instances it is without the prefix Vav (Neh. 6 1; 13 22, 26) and once only is it with the prefix.

From the above analysis we obtain the following results: (1) Four of the books which are included in the first part of this Rubric, viz. Judges, Samuel, Psalms and Ruth, do not belong to it, since they do not exhibit a minority of vav as contrasted with vav . (2) This leaves five books only which properly belong to this part, viz. the Pentateuch, Joshua, Kings, Ezekiel and Chronicles. And (3) these exhibit nineteen instances of vav , adding the four passage omitted in the register, and forty-three of vav , which entitles them to be placed in the first part for safeguarding the minority. With the exception of omitting Jerem. 52 10, the second part of this Rubric is correct. The five books which it groups together as exhibiting the reverse usage of those given in the first part, contain forty-two instances of vav and seventeen only of vav . Here, therefore, the conjunctive without the prefix is the rule, and with the prefix is the exception. Here the latter require safeguarding. Accordingly the heading and the number of books given in the first part are absolutely incorrect, whilst in the heading of the second part vav is simply to be altered into vav .

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 361, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v , § 102. Jacob b. Chajim's Rubric (List II) states in the heading that there are twenty instances only of vav following Athnach (vav vav) and omits four given in Lists I, viz. Numb. 23 25; Judg. 5 4; 1 Sam. 2 26; 12 25. This fully confirms our contention that the Lists originally simply exhibited the first attempt to collect these peculiarities, they being still without a heading, and that later Nakdanim, who mistook them for complete, supplied the headings, fixing the number to agree with instances which the incipient Lists recorded. That these two Lists proceed from different Schools is, moreover, attested by the fact that List II has in the second part Jerem. 52 11, which is omitted in List I, and omits Jerem. 28 14, which is given in List I.

vav vav = § 166.

vav vav vav . Four verses which respectively begin with vav and in which this conjunctive is twice repeated. That is, the two conjunctive thus repeated are both without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 193a, on Isa. 48 8, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 54a, on Exod. 12 32.

vav vav = § 167.

vav vav vav . In twelve verses this conjunctive occurs three times. That is, without the prefix Vav, when this prefix would be normal, with the third instance of vav in the majority of these passage.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, eight in MSS. and four printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 40b, on Gen. 24 25, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 24b, on Judg. 8 22; (III) the same MS., fol. 155a, on Jerem. 12 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 245a, on 1 Chron. 11 2; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 32a, on Gen. 43 8; (VI) the same MS., fol. 201a, on 1 Sam. 28 6; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 93, margin; (VIII) the same, Supplement, fol. 130a; (IX) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 356; (X) the printed Massorah on Judg. 8 22; (XI) the same on Jerem 12 6, and (XII) the same on Eccl. 9 6.

List VIII states in the heading that there are thirteen such verses (vav vav vav) and gives Eccl. 4 8 as one of the instances. Its omission in all the other Lists may probably be due to the fact that they are based upon a recension of the text in which the third conjunctive in the verse in question was with the prefix Vav (vav) as it is still exhibited in the Septuagint. This Rubric is an expansion of the preceding one. Whilst § 166 is restricted to the instances in which the first of the three conjunctives begins the verse, this Rubric registers all the verses of the Bible in which it occurs three times. Hence this Rubric includes the four instances of the preceding Rubric. This explains the different Massoretic headings in the MSS., some having vav vav vav , some vav vav vav and some vav vav vav .

קט"ח = § 168.

Nine [five] verses in which this conjunctive occurs twice once without the prefix Vav, and once with it. That is, in Samuel. This Rubric affords another striking illustration of how later Nakdanim ignorantly manipulated the headings of incipient Lists. The original compiler simply put together as many of the verses in Samuel as he could find in which the conjunctive occurs twice once without, and once with the prefix Vav, and as usual affixed as yet no heading to it. A later Nakdan who found ב"ב in the Massorah Parva against one of the verses in Samuel, which referred to all the instances in the Bible recorded in the following Rubric, mistook it for the instances in this book. Hence he altered ב"ב into ב"ב because the three instances here given are in Samuel where there are, however, five such verses. The two instances which the original compiler does not give are 1 Sam. 2 26 and 12 14. This explains the apparently conflicting Massorah Parva both in the MSS. and in the printed edition which remark on 1 Sam. 26 25 and on 2 Sam. 15 19 and on 2 Sam. 15 19 and on 2 Sam. 15 19.

קט"ט = § 169.

Nine verses in which this conjunctive occurs twice, once without the prefix Vav and once with it. That is, in contradistinction to the four verses in which it also occurs twice, but in which it is the first time with the prefix Vav and the second without it (vide infra, letter 1, § 187) and to nine verses in which it is both times with the prefix. (Vide infra, letter 2, § 188.)

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 66b, on 2 Sam. 15 19, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 59b, on Gen. 48 19; (III) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 358, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 2, § 100.

ק"ס = § 170.

I, occurs seven [six] times in this combination at the beginning of a verse. This combination begins a verse seventeen times. In eleven instances it is with the prefix Vav (וְ) and in six only is it without the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. By fixing the number at six, the Massorah militates against the recension which read it with the prefix in Ezek. 20 23, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 157a, on Judg. 2 21, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 301a, on Ps. 71 22; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 332a, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Judg. 2 21. It will be seen that the List, which I have printed (List I) states in the heading that there are seven such instances, though the headings of the other three Lists state that there are six only, and duly enumerate this number. It is remarkable that the headings in other Lists as well as the remarks of the Massorah Parva in some MSS. also have 7. This is the reason why I have reproduced it here as it is in the MS. The omission of the sixth instance here, viz. Prov. 1 26 is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe as is attested by the fact that it is given in the other Lists.

Comp. at the beginning of the verse Jerem. 13 26; Ezek. 8 18; 9 10; 20 15, 26; 21 22; Amos 4 6; Micah 6 18; Mal. 2 9; Job 40 14; Neh. 5 10.

קע"א = § 171.

occurs four times in the Prophets. That is, apart from Samuel. Normally, when this conjunctive is combined with the sign of the accusative in this division of the Bible, it is with the prefix Vav. For this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, see below letter 2, § 198.

קע"ב = § 172.

also they, occurs four times in the Prophets. This conjunctive is combined with the personal pronoun third person plural masculine altogether sixteen times. In twelve instances it is with the paragogic He (הֵ) and in four only according to this Massorah, is it without the paragogic He. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional combination. This Rubric Comp. Josh. 1 15; 1 Sam. 14 16, 22; 19 20, 21, 21; 1 Kings 14 23; Isa. 66 3; Jerem. 12 6, 6; 25 14; 46 21 and once it is with the prefix Vav (1 Sam. 14 21).

I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter 1, § 101. It will be seen that it is based upon recensions which read without the paragogic He in Josh. 9 4. The textus receptus, however, is supported by the Massorah Parva which remarks against Judg. 1 22; Ezek. 10 16; 31 17 in the following MSS. Harley 5710-11; Harley 5720; Arund. Orient. 16, and also by the printed Massorah Parva on Judg. 1 22; Ezek. 10 16.

קע"ג = § 173.

also this is vanity and a striving after wind, occurs three times. In the other passage where this combination occurs it is with the prefix Vav (Eccl. 4 16). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Eccl. 2 26.

קע"ד = § 174.

also now, is three times thus combined. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the exceptional combination of this conjunctive with the adverb against being mistaken for the normal combination with its homonym thou the personal pronoun, which occurs no less than fifteen times. That these two homonyms were not infrequently interchanged will be seen from the notes on Judg. 9 38; 1 Kings 1 18; Isa. 64 7 in my edition of the Bible. (Comp. also the Massorah Vol. III, fol. 375, letter 2, § 58.)

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 180b, on 1 Sam. 12 16, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 64a, on Gen. 44 10, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 54a, on the same passage. The following words have dropped out in the Rubric after the third line which makes this Rubric consists of three instances only, of this combination and all coincide in omitting 1 Kings 14 14 where there is a fourth instance in the textus receptus. As these Rubrics belong to different Schools, and to countries far apart, it is, therefore, more than probable that the text from which they were compiled had not these enigmatical words at the end of the verse or read here (Comp. verse 12).

Comp. Gen. 24 44; 43 8; Exod. 10 26; 18 18; Numb. 27 13; Deut. 1 37; Judg. 8 22; 1 Sam. 28 22; 2 Sam. 15 19; 1 Kings 21 19; Isa. 14 10; Obad. 11, 18; Habak. 2 16; Prov. 26 4.

קע"ה = § 175.

both, or neither, yesterday and, or nor to day, is twice thus combined. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 188b, on 1 Sam. 20 27, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 5 14.

קע"ו = § 176.

both, or neither, yesterday and or nor the day before, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish it from the variation of this phrase in Exod. 4 10 where it is with the prefix Vav and which is used soon after the former combination in the very same book (2 Sam. 5 2). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 187a, on 1 Chron. 11 2.

קע"ז = § 177.

and also, begins a verse thirteen times in the Pentateuch. In the other four instances where this conjunctive begins a verse in the Pentateuch it is without the prefix Vav. (Vide supra, letter 2, § 162.) Contrary to its usual method the Massorah records here the rule instead of the exception. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 179a, on Levit. 25 45, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 7b, on Gen. 20 12, and (III) the printed Massorah on Levit. 25 45.

קע"ח = § 178.

begins a verse four times in this book. That is, in Samuel. In the other six instances where this conjunctive begins the verse it is without the prefix Vav (1 Sam. 2 15; 12 16, 28; 17 36; 2 Sam. 5 2; 8 11).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 212b, on 2 Sam. 20 26, קפ"ח = § 188.

וְנָם וְנָם. Nine verses in which this conjunctive respectively occurs twice and is in both instances with the prefix Vav. That is, in contradistinction to the instances in which it is the first time without the prefix and the second alone with it, recorded in §§ 168, 169. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 67a, on Jerem. 50 24. It is remarkable that whilst this Rubric records at the end the solitary instance in which וְנָם occurs three times it does not record the only verse in which it occurs five times (Josh. 7 11).

קפ"ט = § 189.

וְנָם אִי and also a nan, occurs twice. In contradistinction to the other two instances where this combination occurs without the prefix Vav (Jerem. 6 11; Ps. 46 10). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 77b, on Exod. 34 3, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 163a, on Jerem. 26 20; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 51a, on Exod. 34 3; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 122b, on the same passage, and (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Jerem. 26 20. This Rubric forms part of the five words which respectively occur twice followed by וְנָם. (Vide supra, letter א, § 420.)

קצ"א = § 190.

וְנָם אִי and also I, occurs five times in the middle of the verse. This combination occurs altogether seventeen times. In twelve instances it begins the verse (vide supra, letter ז, § 170) and in five only is it in the middle. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional position. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176b, on Ezek. 16 43, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 163a, on Ps. 71 22, where it is given as a contrast to וְנָם אִי which begins a verse six times; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 332a, on the same passage, exhibiting the same contrast (vide supra, letter ז, § 170), and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 170.

קצ"ב = § 191.

וְנָם אִי and also I, is five times thus combined. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this exceptional combination of וְנָם being followed by וְנָם, against being made conformable to the normal phrase וְנָם אִי which occurs seventeen times. (Vide supra, letter ז, § 190.) This protection was all the more necessary since in the parallel passages, recording the same event, the two phrases are interchanged (2 Kings 22 19, with 2 Chron. 34 27).

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 255b, on 2 Kings 22 19, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 35b, on 1 Sam. 1 28; (III) the same MS., fol. 57b, on 2 Sam. 2 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 115b, on 2 Kings 21 19; (V) the same MS., fol. 206a, on Amos 4 7; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 14b, 6n Gen. 1 26; (VII) Orient. 1471, fol. 93b, on 1 Sam. 1 28, which has the following mnemonic sign אָבִיבִלְךְ שָׁלַ עֲבִירָא וּבִנֵי שְׁמוֹנָתָא and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 21 26.

קצ"ג = § 192.

וְנָם אִי is nine times thus combined. That is, in the Pentateuch. In this division of the Bible this combination occurs altogether twenty-one times. In twelve instances it is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 29 27, 30, 33; 30 15; 32 20, 20, 20; 44 29; 48 11; Exod. 33 17; Deut. 3 3; 12 31) and in nine it is with the prefix. Hence the Massorah records the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 10a, on Gen. 14 7. It will be seen that here again the important qualifying term בְּרִייה is omitted from the heading. What is meant by the addition וְנָם אִי at the end of the Rubric I cannot divine, since וְנָם אִי occurs once only in the same verse (Jerem. 28 14) in all the fifteen instances where this combination occurs apart from the Pentateuch.

קצ"ד = § 193.

וְנָם אִי occurs twice in the Hagiographa. In this division of the Bible where this combination occurs altogether five times, it is in three instances without the prefix Vav (וְנָם אִי Job 2 10; Eccl. 3 11; 7 14) and twice only is it with the prefix. Hence here too, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

And throughout the Prophets it is likewise so except in four instances. That is, in this division it is as a rule also with the prefix Vav except in the four instances here specified. This part of the Rubric is incorrect. This combination, which occurs in the Prophets altogether twenty-three times, is in thirteen instances with the prefix Vav (וְנָם אִי Judg. 2 10; 1 Kings 15 13; 18 35; 2 Kings 23 15, 19, 24; Isa. 7 20; Jerem. 27 6; 28 14; 52 10; Ezek. 20 12; 23 37; Zech. 13 2) and in ten without it. Besides the four instances recorded in this part of the Rubric, וְנָם אִי also occurs in 1 Sam. 17 36; 28 19, 19; 2 Sam. 14 7; 19 31; 2 Kings 21 11. There are thus ten instances of וְנָם אִי in the Prophets and not four. It is, therefore, manifest that the qualifying phrase וְנָם אִי has been omitted at the end of the Rubric. But even this does not explain the omission of 2 Kings 21 11. It will be seen that without Samuel, where וְנָם אִי does not occur and hence וְנָם אִי which is the invariable rule needed not to be safeguarded, the combination without the prefix Vav is a very small minority. Hence the Massorah here safeguards the exceptional passages. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on 2 Chron. 21 13.

קצ"ד = § 194.

וְנָם אַתָּה and also thou, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. This conjunctive is eighteen times combined with the personal pronoun second person masculine. In fifteen instances it is without the prefix (vide supra, letter ז, § 174) and in three only, is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 217a, on 1 Kings 2 5, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 77a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 218a, on Zech. 3 7; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 14b, on Gen. 21 26; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 9b, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Zech. 3 7.

קצ"ה = § 195.

וְנָם הוּא and also he, occurs seven times thus combined. The pronoun הוּא is thirty-four times preceded by this conjunctive. In twenty-seven instances it is without the prefix Vav and in seven only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, eleven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 213a, on 2 Sam. 21 20, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 143a, on 1 Chron. 20 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 72b, on 2 Sam. 21 20; (IV) the same MS., fol. 131a, on Isa. 31 2; (V) the same MS., fol. 251a, on 1 Chron. 20 6; (VI) the same MS., fol. 273b, on 2 Chron. 26 20; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 32b, on Gen. 48 19; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 220b, on 2 Sam. 21 20; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 59b, on Gen. 48 19; (X) the same MS., fol. 232a, on Numb. 24 24; (XI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 93 margin, and (XII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 24 24.

Comp. וְנָם אִי Gen. 4 4, 26; 10 21; 27 31; 38 11; 48 19; Exod. 1 10; Judg. 3 31; 6 36; 9 19; 1 Sam. 19 22, 23, 24, 24; 31 5; 2 Sam. 17 5; 1 Kings 4 15; Jerem. 27 7; 48 26; Zech. 9 7; Prov. 11 25; 21 13; Job 13 16; 31 28; 1 Chron. 10 5; 2 Chron. 21 11; 22 3.

קצ"ו = § 196.

וְנָם קָלָה and also all, occurs five times. וְנָם קָלָה is preceded by this conjunctive eighteen times. In ten instances it is without the prefix Vav and in eight it is with the prefix. Apart from Chronicles the combination without the prefix is the rule. It occurs nine times (Comp. וְנָם קָלָה Deut. 28 61; Judg. 9 49, 49; 20 48; 1 Sam. 31 6; Isa. 26 12; Ps. 25 3; Eccl. 5 16, 18) and without it is the exception. Hence here the Massorah safeguards the minority. In Chronicles, however, the reverse is the case. Here where this combination occurs altogether four times, it is in three instances with the prefix Vav (Comp. וְנָם קָלָה 1 Chron. 12 38; 29 24; 2 Chron. 24 7) and in one instance only, is it without the prefix (וְנָם קָלָה 2 Chron. 36 14). Hence the Massorah here safeguards the solitary exception.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 46b, on Exod. 18 23, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 95a; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 78b; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 68b, all on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 98. Though List I, which I have printed, states in the heading that there are five such instances, it records four only. But as the fifth instance (Jerem. 40 11) is duly given in all the other Lists its omission is manifestly due to a scribal error. Ezek. 16 28 has inadvertently crept into the references against the last line but one and must be cancelled.

קציז - § 197.

and also not, occurs five times. In the other five instances where this combination occurs it is without the prefix Vav (Isa. 48 8, 8; Ps. 129 2; Cant. 8 1; Eccl. 9 12). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 370b, on Eccl. 9 11.

קציח - § 198.

that also, occurs three times. That is, this conjunctive with the prefix Shin. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 351a, on Eccl. 1 17, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 354a, on Eccl. 8 14. As these three instances are restricted to Ecclesiastes the heading ought more properly to be a bulrush, occurs three times in the Scriptures... and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 35a, on Exod. 2 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 8b, on Isa. 18 2; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 225a, on Job 8 11; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 42b, on Exod. 2 3; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 128a, on Isa. 18 2; (VI) the same MS., fol. 324a, on Job 8 11; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 38a, on Exod. 2 3; (VIII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal Supplement, fol. 182a; (IX) the printed Massorah on Exod. 2 3, and (X) the same on Isa. 18 2. As the three instances without the prefix Vav respectively occur in the three divisions of the Bible some of the Lists add at the end or have in the heading This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter , § 78).

קציט - § 199.

ר - § 200.

is seven times defective in this form. That is, the five instances of the noun desert, and the two instances of the Kal participle passive (Pa. 181 2, 2) are in the several forms, with prefixes and suffix, defective of the Vav. This Massorah, therefore, militates against the recensions which exhibit the plene form in Joel 4 4, 7; and 2 Chron. 32 25, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 208b, on Obad. 15, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 343b, on Prov. 19 17; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 805a, on Obad. 15, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter , § 106. The latter heads this Rubric and omits one of the two instances in Pa. 181 2, which is evidently due to a clerical error.

רא - § 201.

according to the desert, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 162b, on Judg. 9 16, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 25a, on the same passage. The heading of List II is more precise, inasmuch as it states that one of the instances is plene and one defective (בא אל הים) and adds at the end that the instance in Judges is plene and the one in Chronicles is defective, which coincides with the preceding Rubric. As this noun with the prefix Caph, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt in each passage, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the variation.

ריב - § 202.

your desert, or recompence, occurs twice and is defective. This Massorah, therefore, is designed to exclude the variation in the orthography of these passages exhibited in other redactions of the text, as will be seen in the notes on Joel 4 4, 7 in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 204b, on Joel 4 4. As the two instances occur not only in the same book, but within a few verses of each other, the heading ought more properly to be ב. The two instances form part of the seven defectives recorded in § 200.

ריג - § 203.

doing good, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 247a, on Prov. 11 17.

ריד - § 204.

occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, in two different senses. In the first instance it is Kal participle passive, denoting weaned, i. e. weaned child (Isa. 11 8) and in the second instance it is part of the proper name Beth-Gamul, a city in Moab (Jerem. 48 23).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 64b, on Jerem. 48 23, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 266a, on the same passage. The latter heads this List ב. which though better, is still not quite precise for it ought more properly to be ב. This Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217.)

ריח - § 205.

like the garden, occurs seven times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 9b, on Gen. 13 10, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 31 12.

ריי - § 206.

like the garden of Jehovah, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 141a, on Isa. 51 8.

ריז - § 207.

he shall steal, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this Kal future third person singular masculine which occurs twice, is spelt differently in each passage, the Massorah safeguards the variation in the orthography. It will be seen that in the Pentateuch the archaic orthography is preserved. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 48b, on Exod. 21 37, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 44a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah, also on the same passage, and (IV) the same on Prov. 6 30.

ריח - § 208.

like a thief, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 282b, on Job 24 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 284b, on Job 30 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 204a, on Joel 2 9; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 301a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter , § 108.

ריט - § 209.

and he rebuked, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the only other instance where it occurs with Sheva under the Vav (Zech. 3 2). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 27a, on Gen. 37 10, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ריי - § 210.

rebuking, occurs twice. As this participle, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt in each instance, being plene in Nah. 1 4 and defective in Mal. 2 3, the Massorah safeguards this variation. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 212b, on Nah. 1 4. Though the heading does not state that one of the instances is defective, yet the Massorah Parva of this MS. remarks on Mal. 2 3 where it is defective ב.

ר"י - § 211.

וְיִרְגְּזוּ and they quaked, occurs three times... and once it is without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 213a, on 2 Sam. 22 8, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 287b, on Ps. 18⁷; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

ר"י - § 212.

ר"י a stranger, begins a verse three times in the Scriptures... once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. That is, in contradistinction to two other instances where it begins the verse, but where it is with the prefix Vav (Exod. 22 20; 23 9).

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 35b, on Jerem. 7 6, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 151b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 314b, on Ps. 119 19; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 341b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 28b, on Gen. 23 4; (VI) the same MS., fol. 367b, on Ps. 119 19; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 23 4, and (VIII) the same on Jerem. 7 6.

ר"י - § 213.

כְּנֵר הַבְּאֵר as well the stranger as the homeborn, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. In the other six instances in which these two classes of the commonwealth are mentioned the homeborn precedes the stranger (Exod. 12 49; Levit. 16 29; 17 15; 18 26; Numb. 15 29, 30).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 142b, on Josh. 8 33, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 6b, (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 121a; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 129a, all on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 176b, on Levit. 24 16; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 85 on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 2, § 115.

ר"י - § 214.

ר"י occurs four times in this form. To understand this artificial Massorah it is necessary to remark that this trilateral not only includes the proper name Gera, which is written with Aleph (ג) and occurs nine times (Gen. 46 21; Judg. 3 15; 2 Sam. 16 5; 19 17, 19; 1 Kings 2 8; 1 Chron. 8 3, 6, 7), but the small weight or coin called Geraḥ which is written with He (ה) and occurs five times (Exod. 30 13; Levit. 27 25; Numb. 3 47; 18 16; Ezek. 45 12) and the noun denoting rumination, cud, also written with He (ה), which occurs eight times (Levit. 11 3, 4, 5, 6, 7; Deut. 14 8, 7, 8), thus yielding altogether twenty-two instances of this homonym. The four instances specified in the heading of the Rubric and enumerated are then obtained by (1) counting the solitary instance of the Proper name in the Pentateuch as one passage by (2) taking all the passages in which it denotes weight or coin as representing one (3) all the passages in which it denotes cud as one and (4) finally all the instances of the proper name outside the Pentateuch as one. The addition at the end of the Rubric indicates when this homonym is written with He and when with Aleph. In connection with weights or small coins (מקלות) and with cattle (בקר) it is with He and as proper name (שם רגבי) it is with Aleph. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 55b, on Gen. 46 21. The printed Massorah Parva in the outer margin on this passage simply gives the sign for its orthography.

ר"י - § 215.

ר"י thy neck, is twice defective. This noun feminine plural with the suffix second person singular masculine, without and with the prefix Lamed, occurs altogether four times (Prov. 1 9; 3 3, 22; 6 21). As it is differently spelt, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard the variations in its orthography. The difficulty, however, in doing this arises from the fact that different Schools of textual redactors have preserved different traditions with regard to its precise spelling in the respective passages.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 858a, on Prov. 1 9, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2375, fol. 119a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. According to List II two of the four instances are entirely defective, that is without Vav and without Yod (ר"י Prov. 1 9; 6 21); in one instance it is entirely plene, that is both with Vav and Yod (ר"י Prov. 3 3) and the other is with Vav defective and Yod plene (ר"י Prov. 3 22).¹

List III also states that it is entirely defective in Prov. 1 9; 6 21, but Jacob b. Chayim emphatically remarks that most of the Codices which he consulted had ר"י without Vav, but with Yod in Prov. 1 9; that Prov. 6 21 alone was entirely defective, which was not supported by this Massorah; that Prov. 3 22 is ר"י with Yod, but without Vav and that in Prov. 3 3 it is ר"י with Vav only and without Yod.² It will be seen that this is in conflict with List II where it is expressly stated that Prov. 3 3 is ר"י entirely plene.

List I. — From the examination of Lists II and III it is evident that List I is incomplete and that something is omitted after the catchwords כָּתוּב על לוח לבך which should describe its spelling in this passage, as well as in Prov. 3 22. The conflict between the two Massorahs (Lists II and III) is still more reflected in the readings of the MSS. and early editions, as will be seen from the following analysis of the four passages:

(1) Proverbs 1 9.

ר"י without Vav, but with Yod, Orient. 2201; Add. 15,250; Orient. 4227; Orient. 2375; the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486—87; the Leira edition of Proverbs 1492; the third edition of the Bible, Brescia 1494; the Salonica edition of Proverbs &c. 1515; the Complutensian; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25.

ר"י both without Vav and without Yod, Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,161; the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491—93; and the fourth edition of the Bible, Pesaro 1511—17.

ר"י both with Vav and with Yod, the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488.

(2) Proverbs 3 3.

ר"י both with Vav and Yod, Orient. 2201 second hand; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227; Orient. 2375; the editio princeps of the Hagiographa; the first, second, third and fourth editions of the Bible; the Salonica edition of Proverbs &c. and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah.

ר"י with Vav, but without Yod, Add. 15,250. ר"י without Vav, but with Yod, Add. 21,161; the Leira edition of Proverbs; the Complutensian and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible.

(3) Proverbs 3 22.

ר"י without Vav; but with Yod, Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,161; Orient. 4227; Orient. 2375; the editio princeps of the Hagiographa; the Leira edition of Proverbs; the Salonica edition of Proverbs; the Complutensian; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah.

ר"י with both Vav and Yod, the first, second, third and fourth editions of the Bible.

(4) ר"י both without Vav and without Yod, Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Orient. 2375.

ר"י without Vav, but with Yod, Orient. 2201; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,161; Orient. 4227; the editio princeps of the Hagiographa; the second edition of the Bible; the Salonica edition of Proverbs &c.; the Complutensian; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah.

ר"י with Vav, but without Yod, Add. 15,250. ר"י both with Vav and with Yod, the first edition of the Bible; the Leira edition of Proverbs and the third edition of the Bible.

This detailed analysis again confirms my oft-repeated statement that the Standard Codices as well as their sundry Massorahs, exhibit different recensions which emanate from different Schools of textual redactors and that the attempt to reduce them to uniformity is simply to obliterate the different traditions which were preserved in the respective Schools.

1 נר"י ב' חס' אל חס', אל חס', חס' וחס' אל יעקב נגרותיך של ושמך נגרותיך כה'. 2 לנגרותיך ב' חס' חס' וחס' כי לית חן לראשך, עגור על נגרותיך, וברוך חסדיך ראוי נגרותיך וליה חן כל בידך חסד ד"ג העגור חס' חס' אמנם לשון חס' חסדיך אינו פזיזת כן: וא' כל ידך לחד יחיו חס' נשאר, ויהי כל ידך לחד חסד וחס' אל יעקב.

ר"י - § 216.

ר"י he will stir up, occurs three times and in this book. That is, in Proverbs. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Prov. 15 18. The heading according to the editio princeps should be ר"י.

ר"יז - § 217.

תתנרר thou wilt stir up, or excite, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 164a, on 2 Chron. 25 19.

ר"יח - § 218.

תנרנר their throat, with their throat, occurs three times, it is twice defective. As this noun with the suffix third person plural, without and with the prefix Beth, which occurs altogether three times, is in two instances plene and defective in one instance, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the different spelling, especially as this difference of spelling occurs in the same book. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 313b, on Ps. 115 7, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 340b, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (IV) the same on Ps. 149 6. As all the three instances occur in the Psalter, the heading ought more properly to be בנרנר. The heading of List IV, viz. בנרנר, is misleading, since with the prefix Beth it occurs twice only. It, however, correctly adds נכסר.

ר"יט - § 219.

תנרנר with their throat, occurs twice. Whilst in the preceding Rubric the Massorah safeguards the variation in the spelling, in the Rubric before us it simply records the two instances in which this form of the noun has the prefix Beth. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 115 7.

ר"כ - § 220.

תנרנר an ax, occurs four times in this form. That is, this noun which occurs altogether four times, is once without a prefix and in the other three instances it is with a different prefix in each instance. Of this Rubric, I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 125a, on Deut. 20 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 220b, on 1 Kings 6 7; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 5b, on Isa. 10 15; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 115a, on Deut. 19 5; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 184a, on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah, on Isa. 10 15. The addition at the end of List II וכל חד בחד and the heading of List III וכל חד בחד, as well as the heading of List VI מדרין בלש בקרי express in different language that the design of this Massorah is to record the fact that this noun exhibits a unique form in each of the four passages.

ר"כ"א - § 221.

תנרנר a bone, occurs three times. That is, with Kametz under the Gimel, which is due to its pausal accent. It is remarkable that the Massorah does not notice the enigmatical נרנר in 2 Kings 9 13 which the Septuagint simply transliterates (γαρεν = נרנר). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ג, § 121.

ר"כ"ב - § 222.

תנרנר the threshing-floors, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 51a, on 1 Sam. 23 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 204b, on Joel 2 24, and (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 197b, on 1 Sam. 23 1.

ר"כ"ג - § 223.

תנרנר and thou shalt diminish, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this peculiar reading in these two passages which obtained in the dominant School of textual redactors, against the ancient reading תנרנר without the Resh, which is still exhibited in the Septuagint and which is preferable. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Job 15 4. The heading ought more properly to be בנרנר, since the instances are restricted to Job. Apart from this book where this Kal future second person singular masculine occurs twice, it is both times without the prefix Vav (Deut. 13 1; Jerem. 26 2).

ר"כ"ד - § 224.

תנרנר sojourning, sweeping, occurs twice. It is now generally admitted that this sextiliteral is in the first instance the Hithpael participle from נרנר to sojourn and in the second the Hithpoel participle of נרנר and denotes sweeping. This Massorah, however, does not aid us in the separation of these two roots. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 166b, on Jerem. 30 23.

ר"כ"ה - § 225.

תנרנר drive thou away, or to drive, occurs three times. Though this trilateral is the imperative in the first instance and the infinitive in the second and third passages the Massorah, as usual, groups them together under one Rubric. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 252b, on Prov. 22 10, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 52a, on Exod. 11 1; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 344b, on Prov. 22 10; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 14a, on Gen. 21 10; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 8b, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Prov. 22 10.

ר"כ"ז - § 226.

תנרנר and he drove out, occurs three times at the beginning of a verse. This Piel future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, occurs altogether seven times. In four instances it is in the middle of the verse (Exod. 10 11; Deut. 33 27; Judg. 9 41; 1 Kings 2 27) and in three only, is it at the beginning of the verse. Hence the Massorah safeguards the position of the minority. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 31a, on Gen. 3 24, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 41a, on the same passage.

ר"כ"ז - § 227.

תנרנר Gershon, occurs twice in this book . . . and throughout the Scriptures it is likewise so except in four instances where it is נרנר Gershom.

To understand this artificial Massorah it is necessary to remark that this proper name occurs altogether thirty-one times in the Bible, that in seventeen instances it is with Nun at the end (תנרנר) and in fourteen with Mem (תנרנר). But as these two forms respectively prevail in different parts of the Bible, this Rubric is so arranged as to safeguard the minority in each case.

Chronicles. — In Chronicles which constitutes the first part of this Rubric and where this proper name occurs twelve times, the Mem form is the rule and the Nun form the exception. The former occurs ten times (1 Chron. 6 1, 2, 5, 23, 47, 56; 15 7; 23 15, 16; 26 24) and the latter twice only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the two exceptional instances.

All the other Scriptures. — In all the other books, which constitute the second part of this Rubric and where this proper name occurs nineteen times, the Nun form is the rule and the Mem form the exception. The former occurs fifteen times (Gen. 46 11; Exod. 6 16, 17; Numb. 3 17, 18, 21, 25; 4 22, 38, 41; 7 7; 10 17; 26 57; Josh. 21 6, 27) and the latter four times only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional Mem form. In fixing the number of the Nun instances in Chronicles at two and the Mem instances in the other Scriptures at four, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the Eastern recension which reads תנרנר with Mem in 1 Chron. 5 27.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 144b, on 1 Chron. 23 6, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 59b, on Exod. 18 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32a, on Judg. 18 30; (IV) the same MS., fol. 252b, on 1 Chron. 27 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 377a, on Ezra 8 2; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 176b, on Judg. 18 30; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 93b, on Exod. 18 3; (VIII) Halle Oehlsh Ve-Oehlsh II, § 65; (IX) the printed Massorah on Exod. 2 23, and (X) the same on Ezra 8 2. These ten Lists exhibit two different forms of this Massorah. Lists I and IV are as I have printed it, whilst in Lists II, III, V-X the arrangement is different. They begin with תנרנר and continue with תנרנר, and the two parts being reversed.

It is important to remark that whilst seven of the Lists simply safeguard the Mem and Nun forms, three emphasise the fact that all the four, or three out of the four instances, which according to one recension constitute the second part of this Rubric, or according to another recension are the first part, are defective. Thus List VII heads this Rubric תנרנר, List IX

גִּישָׁם רִי הַכִּי, whilst List X not only states in the heading that three only are defective (גִּישָׁם רִי גִּישָׁם רִי גִּישָׁם רִי), but emphatically declares that in Ezra 8 2, it is גִּישָׁם רִי plene (גִּישָׁם רִי). This Rubric must, therefore, be based upon a recension of the text which reads the Ezra instance with Vav, and this reading is supported by Add. 15,251, and the carefully printed second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491—98. It will be seen that the Mem form in the Pentateuch is always defective, which is probably due to the etymology assigned to it in Exod. 2 2, viz. גִּישָׁם רִי. Hence the Septuagint transliteration of it Γησαμ. Apart from the Pentateuch, however, or the Pentateuch and the solitary instance in Ezra, where the Mem form occurs ten times, all in Chronicles, these ten Rubrics do not indicate whether any of the ten instances are differently spelt. But the important Model Codex Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 138b, on 1 Chron. 6 1, has a separate Rubric on the defective orthography of the Mem form in the Hagiographa, which states that it is twice defective (גִּישָׁם רִי) in this division of the Bible, viz. 1 Chron. 6 1, 28.¹ Accordingly all the other eight instances are plene. Hence 1 Chron. 15 7, which is defective in my edition, must be גִּישָׁם רִי plene. This is supported by the best Standard Codices, and some of the early editions, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient, 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486—87; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the third edition Brescia 1494 and the Complutensian. The defective גִּישָׁם רִי, which I have adopted in my edition, is supported by Add. 15,451; the second and fourth editions of the Bible, Naples 1491—98; Pesaro 1511—17; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25.

¹ גִּישָׁם רִי הַכִּי בְּחִבְרֹן וּסְמִינָרִים בְּנֵי לֵוִי גִישָׁם רִי חֶמֶד בְּנֵי יִצְחָק בֶּן גִּישָׁם רִי לֵוִי.

§ רִבִּיז - 226.

גִּישָׁם רִי unto Goshen, occurs twice. That is, with the paragogic He. Normally when this region is described it is גִּישָׁם רִי הָאָרֶץ the land of Goshen, and we should, therefore, expect here גִּישָׁם רִי הָאָרֶץ as it is at the end of verse 28. Hence the Massorah safeguards these two exceptional forms. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient, 2349, fol. 55b, on Gen. 46 28, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 87b, and (III) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage.

§ רִבִּיז - 229.

גִּישָׁם רִי Gath, or winepress, without and with prefixes, is always with Pathach and there is not a single instance with Kametz. The import of this Rubric is given more precisely in Orient. 1478, fol. 16b, on 1 Sam. 27 11, where it is as follows גִּישָׁם רִי מִן כָּל לֵשׁ בְּנֵי אֲמֹנִי בְּנֵי אֲמֹנִי בְּנֵי אֲמֹנִי בְּנֵי אֲמֹנִי בְּנֵי אֲמֹנִי בְּנֵי אֲמֹנִי בְּנֵי אֲמֹנִי, without and with the prefixes, this noun or proper name is always with Pathach, whether it is with Athnach or Soph-Pasuk. The same is the case with the noun גִּישָׁם רִי tribute, without and with the prefix. The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to fix the vowel-points of these expressions with the pausal accents, so that in the seven passages where it is with Athnach (גִּישָׁם רִי 1 Sam. 17 4; 27 4; 2 Sam. 21 20, 22; 1 Kings 2 39; 1 Chron 20 6, 8) and in the eight where it is with Soph-Pasuk (גִּישָׁם רִי 1 Sam. 21 11, 18; 27 2; 1 Kings 2 39, 40; Isa. 63 2; Pa. 56 1; 1 Chron. 8 13), the Pathach is not changed into the normal Kametz.

Letter Daleth.

ד = § 1.

ד. — The first part of this Rubric, which registers the number of times Daleth occurs in the Bible, is taken from the alphabetical Poem, given above, letter מ, § 224. The second part, which records the number of times Daleth occurs in the Pentateuch, is from a MS. in my possession. For a description of this remarkable MS. see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Bible, Part I, chap. VII., p. 110 &c.

ד = § 2.

ד. — One Daleth is with one Tag. This is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 43a, on Exod. 13 14.

ד = § 3.

ד. — Four Daleths have respectively two Tägin. This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of Harley 5710—11 on the several passages.

ד = § 4a.

ד. — Ten Daleths have respectively three Tägin. This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of Harley 5710—11 on the several passages.

ד = § 4b.

ד. — Nine Daleths are respectively with four Tägin. This Rubric is from the Machsor Vitry, Add. 27,027, Vol. II, fol. 209—215, which I have printed in letter ד, § 25, Vol. II, p. 680 &c.

ד = § 5.

ד. — Words beginning with Daleth which respectively occur once only. From the following List, whence it will be seen that there are upwards of 140 such unique expressions, there can be no doubt that the eleven forms which constitute this Rubric exhibit the first attempt to collect these forms and that the original compiler left it to his colleagues gradually to complete the register. This incipient List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 163a, on Jerem. 26 8. The bracketed heading is my addition.

ד = § 6.

ד. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Daleth which respectively occur once only. This List I have compiled, since no other form of the incipient register given in the preceding List has as yet come to light. For the words which are given in this List as unique, but which occur more than once, see the Additions at the end of this Volume p. 752, § 6.

ד = § 7.

ד. — Two words which are defective of Daleth in the middle, are officially read with it. That is, the textual reading or the Kethiv is without this letter, but the official reading or the Keri supplies it. It will be seen that in the first instance the design of the Keri is to harmonise 1 Kings 9 18 with the passage in 2 Chron. 8 4, whilst in the second instance it is to remove an archaic form. On referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that the Keri has found its way as the substantive reading into the text of both MSS. and early editions. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Paris Oehlah Ve-Oehlah § 181.

ד = § 8.

ד. — Words ending with Daleth which respectively occur once only. This incipient List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 65b, on Jerem. 49 5. From the six words which constitute this first attempt at registering these unique forms, it will be seen that they all end in ד, so that the plan thus adopted was strictly alphabetical. The List, however, even of the words ending with ד, has not been completed, since there are altogether upwards of thirty such unique expressions, as will be seen from the following Rubric.

ד = § 9.

ד. — An alphabetical List of words ending with Daleth which respectively occur once only. This List I have compiled myself. It will aid students in deciphering any other fragmentary registers which may yet be found in some MSS. I have detected the following omissions since the Rubric has been published:

Omissions:

Ezek.	27 28	דלד	1 Chron. 2 29	דלד	1 Chron. 27 6	דלד
1 Chron.	4 18	דלד	Neh.	3 14	דלד	Zech.	3 2
Gen.	10 8	דלד	"	12 15	דלד	Gen.	4 16
1 Chron.	8 16	דלד	Josh.	19 12	דלד	Jerem.	50 21

For the words which occur more than once see the Appendix to this Volume, p. 752, § 9.

ד = § 10.

ד. — Two words are written in the text with Daleth for which the official reading, or Keri substitutes Resh. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 250a, on 2 Kings 16 6, where it is given as the converse of the instances written with Resh, but read with Daleth; (II) the Massorah Finalis of Add. 15,251, fol. 241b; (III) Paris Oehlah Ve-Oehlah § 123, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ד, § 8. On referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that the Keri is the substantive reading both in MSS. and in early editions.

ד = § 11a.

ד. — Words which respectively occur twice, once with Daleth and once with Resh. It is important to notice that this fragment, which is from Orient. 2849, fol. 48a, on Gen. 35 11, and which registers five pairs only, is not as yet arranged according to the alphabet, and has no heading. The same is the case with the larger fragment in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 127a, on Numb. 8 16, which I have found since the publication of this List. This shows conclusively that the Lists were gradually developed and that the headings were added at a later period.

ד = § 11b.

ד. — An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once with Daleth and once with Resh and they are all unique.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eleven Lists, eight in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 178a, on Ps. 18 43, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 4 4; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 5 28; (IV) the Massorah Finalis of Add. 15,251, fol. 443b; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 81b, on Levit. 11 14; (VI) the same MS., fol. 388b, on Ezek. 47 5; (VII) the same MS., fol. 408a, on Ps. 42 4; (VIII) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah I, § 7; (IX) the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517, Vol. II, at the end; (X) Paris Oohlah Ve-Oohlah, § 7, and (XI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter η , § 1.

Though this List is an expansion of the incipient registers recorded in § 11a, it must not be taken as complete nor indeed did the compilers of it intend it as such. This is attested by the two oldest recensions of it in the St. Petersburg Codex. The first, which heads it an alphabet (List II), gives eighteen pairs only, whilst the second (List III) gives thirty-eight such pairs or one more than the List which I have printed, viz. η Job 39 25. It will be seen that though all the Lists head this Rubric as exhibiting the alphabet, seven of the longest of them only register fourteen letters, since η , η , η , η , η , η , η and η are not represented.

On comparing 2 Sam. 22 43 with Ps. 18 43; 87 1 with 110 3 or some of the other pairs and referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible, the design of this Massorah will be apparent.

η - § 12.

η this, without and with the prefix Lamed, is always written with Aleph. That is, in all the six instances in which it occurs (Dan. 4 27; 5 6, 6; 7 3, 3, 8), in contradistinction to η one, with which this Massorah contracts the orthography of this feminine pronoun and which is always written with He according to this Rubric. (Vide infra letter η , § 43.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 281b, on Dan. 7 1.

η - § 13.

η she sorrowed, occurs twice. That is, the preterite third person singular feminine. In the only other instance where this quadriliteral occurs, it is a noun with Sheva under the Daleth and Kametz under the Aleph (η Job 41 14). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, fol. 53a, on Jerom. 31 25, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 167a, on the same passage.

η - § 14.

η and he take thought, occurs twice, once Milz and once Milra. That is, in the first instance the accent is under the Daleth and in the second under the Aleph. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 30b, on 1 Sam. 9 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 40b, on 1 Sam. 10 2, and (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 184b, on the same passage. As the two passages occur in the same book, the heading ought more properly to be η .

η - § 15.

η he shall fly, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 180a, on Deut. 28 49, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,260, fol. 112a, on the same passage.

η - § 16.

η Dor, is four times written with Aleph in the Scriptures. That is, the textual reading or the Kethiv is with Aleph, but the official reading or Keri is with Vav. That this is the import of this Massorah is attested by the Model Codex Harley 5710-11, which has in the Massorah Parva on Josh. 17 11, and 21 32, the official η , whilst in 1 Kings 4 11 η is altered in the text itself into η . This textual reading here is supported by Add. 21,161, and the Splendid Model Codex Oriental 2627. And though the remarkable MS. of the Paris National Library No. 1-3 has in the text η it has the official η in the Massorah Parva, as it is in Josh. 11 2; 12 23; 23; Judg. 1 27; 1 Sam. 28 7; 1 Chron. 7 29.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 219b, on 1 Kings 4 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 805a, on Ps. 83 11; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 169b, on Josh. 21 32; (IV) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah, Supplement fol. 129b; (V) the printed Massorah on Josh. 17 11, and (VI) the same on Ps. 83 11.

η - § 17.

η bees, occurs three times without and with prefixes, twice plene and once defective. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 123b, on Deut. 1 44, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 133b, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 29a, on Judg. 14 8; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 178b, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VI) the same on Ps. 118 12.

These six Lists exhibit two distinct recensions. Lists I and II, which represent the first recension, emphatically state in the heading that two of the instances (Judg. 14 8; Ps. 118 12) are plene and one (Deut. 1 44) is defective, whilst Lists IV, V and VI, which exhibit the second recension, as emphatically declare that all the three instances are defective (η). As both recensions agree that it is defective in the first instance (Deut. 1 44), I subjoin the analysis of the MSS. and early editions of the other two instances only.

(2) Judges 14 8.

η plene, Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16, on which the Massorah Parva remarks η , viz. this passage and Ps. 118 12; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485-86; the first edition of the Bible Soncino 1488; the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491-93; the third edition, Brescia 1494; and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517.

η defective, Add. 15,451; the Complutensian and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-25 in which the Massorah Parva remarks against it that it is unique in this plene instance and that it is defective in all the three instances without and with the prefixes η . This, it will be seen, is in direct conflict with the Massorah Parva in Arund. Orient. 16, on the same passage.

(3) Psalm 118 12.

η plene, Orient. 2201, second hand; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250, on which the Massorah Parva remarks here η , viz. this passage and in Judg. 14 8; Add. 15,251, Add. 15,451, on which the Massorah Parva remarks η though in the text it is the plene; the editio princeps of the Hagiographa; the second, third and fourth editions of the Bible; the Salonica edition of the Hagiographa, 1515; the Complutensian and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible.

η defective, Orient. 2201 first hand; the first edition of the Bible and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah.

From the above analysis it will be seen that the first recension which I have printed, is supported by the best Standard Codices and early editions and that η Ps. 118 12 in my edition of the Bible ought to be η plene. As these three instances severally occur in the three divisions of the Bible, Lists IV-VI add η in the headings. These conflicting Massorahs afford another striking illustration of the repeated fact that they are based upon different recensions of the text which were preserved in the several Schools of textual redactors in accordance with their respective traditions.

η - § 18.

η occurs twice, once plene and once defective. That is, in two different senses. In the first instance where it is defective it is the proper name of a place Debir with the prefix Lamed and in the second which is plene it is the noun with the prefix Lamed denoting an oracle. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter η , § 5. These two expressions are part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses (Vide infra, letter η , § 428, Vol. II, p. 217 &c.)

η - § 19.

η to Debir, without and with the prefix Lamed, occurs three times and is defective. As this proper name, which occurs altogether thirteen times, is in these three instances only with the paragogic He, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional form. This is all the more necessary since in one of the passages (Josh. 10 39) the He is superfluous.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 144b, on Josh. 10 38, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 8b; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 123a; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 180b, and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

כי - § 20.

דיבריה Dibrain, occurs twice. This Rubric, which is from Vienna Codex No. 85 on Hosea 1 8, is corrupt. This proper name of Hosea's father-in-law occurs once only and in 2 Sam. 11 27, which is indicated by the catchwords as the second instance, there is not the remotest approach to such a name.

כי - § 21.

היא cleaveth, occurs twice. That is, in these two instances only, is it followed immediately by the prefix Lamed, in contradistinction to the other four passages where this preterite third person feminine occurs. (Ps. 68 9; 102 6; Job 19 20; Ruth 1 14.) In Ps. 102 6 there is the intervention of a noun. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ps. 44 26.

כי - § 22.

תה תשמר פה thou shalt keep fast, occurs twice in this book and is plena. That is, with paragoge Num. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 259b, on Ruth 2 21, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 288b, on the same passage. As these two instances are restricted to Ruth the heading ought more properly to be כי - § 22.

כי - § 23.

והיא and they pursued, occurs twice. In contradistinction to the three instances where this Hiphil future third person plural with Vav conversive, is recorded in the following Rubric. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 31b; on Judg. 18 22. As this form does not occur apart from Judg. the heading ought properly to be כי - § 23.

כי - § 24.

והיא and they pursued, occurs three times. As this Hiphil future third person plural with Vav conversive which occurs altogether five times, exhibits two forms, viz. the normal form ויהי, which constitutes the preceding Rubric as well as the second part of this Rubric, and the abnormal ויהי, the Massorah safeguards these two different forms. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 244b, on 1 Chron. 10 2, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 407b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 7, § 5. Lists II and III do not give the second part of this Rubric.

כי - § 25.

והיא they shall be joined, or cleave together, occurs twice. That is, this Pual future third person plural masculine, in contradistinction to the other two instances where this quinqueliteral יהי Kal future (Numb. 36 7, 9). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 289a, on Job 38 38, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Job 41 9. As these two instances are restricted to Job the heading ought properly to be כי - § 25.

כי - § 26.

והיא adhering, or he adhered, occurs twice in the Scriptures. It will be seen that in the first instance it is the preterite third person singular masculine and that the There under the Beth is due to its pausal accent Athnach, whilst in the second instance it is an adjective. The Massorah, however, as usual, groups them under the same Rubric because the vowel-points are identical. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 289b, on 2 Kings 3 8, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 99a, on the same passage.

כי - § 27.

והיא to speak against God, occurs twice in this form. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2849, fol. 118b, on Numb. 21 5.

כי - § 28.

והיא to speak unto all Israel, occurs four times. When the message or address is to the people of Israel, the phrase יהי is normally followed by יהי. In this form it occurs no fewer than thirty-nine times in the Pentateuch. In four instances, however, the expression יהי all, is used instead of יהי the children of. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 111a, on Deut. 1 1. As all the instances are restricted to Deuteronomy, the heading ought more properly to be יהי. But these qualifying expressions, as we have seen, are frequently omitted. As bearing upon this Rubric see letter 4, § 571.

Comp. יהי Exod. 6 9; 14 2, 15; 19 6; 25 2; 30 81; 31 18; 34 84; Levit. 1 2; 4 2; 7 28, 29; 11 2; 12 2; 15 2; 18 2; 23 2, 10, 24, 34, 44; 24 28; 25 2; 27 2; Numb. 5 6, 12; 9 4, 10; 15 2, 18, 38; 17 17, 21; 19 2; 27 8; 33 51; 35 10; Deut. 1 8; 4 45.

כי - § 29.

והיא to speak unto all the children of Israel, occurs five times in the Pentateuch. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter 7, § 486, is hopelessly corrupt. This combination occurs once only, viz. Numb. 14 89. In Exod. 16 10, which is here given as the first instance, it is יהי... יהי, whilst the other three instances (Deut. 1 1; 31 1; 32 45) are not only without יהי, but form part of the preceding Rubric. It is evident that an ignorant Nakdan who found an incipient register of the fully given List, recorded in the preceding Rubric, added the two instances and supplied the erroneous heading and that Jacob b. Ch. printed this confused Rubric without examining its contents.

כי - § 30.

והיא. Whenever the verb יהי is combined with the preposition (יהי) and these suffixes, it is with Dagesh except in nine instances where it is Rafe. That is, normally these three combinations, which occur altogether thirty times, are (1) יהי in twenty-two passages (2) יהי in six, and (3) יהי or יהי in two. In the nine instances, however, which are recorded in this Rubric יהי is abnormally combined with יהי and יהי. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

And throughout Ezekiel it is likewise Rafe. As the normal combination does not occur in Ezekiel and as it is invariably Rafe in all the five instances (Ezek. 2 1; 3 22, 27; 14 4; 44 5), the simple mention of the fact without specifying the passages, was deemed sufficient. It is to be remarked that the passages in which יהי is the pronoun in this combination and precedes the verb יהי (Numb. 22 85, 88; 24 18; 1 Kings 22 14), are excluded because they do not exhibit any anomaly.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists, thirteen in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 102b, on Numb. 26 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 237b, on 1 Kings 22 24; (III) the same MS., fol. II, fol. 56a, on Jerem. 35 2; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 146a, on Numb. 26 8; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 149b, on Jerem. 4 12; (VI) the same MS., fol. 268a, on 2 Chron. 18 28; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 97b, on Numb. 26 8; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 14a, on Gen. 21 2; (IX) the same MS., fol. 146b, on 1 Kings 22 24; (X) the same MS., fol. 496a, on 2 Chron. 18 28; (XI) Add. 21,180, fol. 8a, on Gen. 21 2; (XII) the same MS., fol. 288a, on Numb. 26 8; (XIII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 10; (XIV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 21 2, and (XV) the same on 2 Chron. 18 28.

It is remarkable that in Lists II and III the second part of this Rubric is as follows יהי ליה יהי ביה יהי יהי and all through Ezekiel it is also Rafe except once where it is יהי Ezek. 14 4. It is, therefore, evident that these two Lists are based upon the redaction of a text which exhibited יהי in this passage and not יהי as it is in the received text. The heading in the Rubric which I have printed, should be יהי יהי יהי in accordance with that given above.

Comp. יהי Gen. 17 8, 22, 28; 34 6; 35 13, 14, 15; 45 15; Exod. 31 18; 34 29, 32, 34, 35; Numb. 7 89; 2 Sam. 3 27; 2 Kings 35 6, 26; Jerem. 23 28; 29 5; 52 9, 32; 2 Chron. 10 10. For the six instances of יהי see § 31. יהי or יהי Exod. 25 22; Jerem. 23 25.

ל"א - § 31.

ל"א to speak unto them, occurs six times. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the reading ל"א in Ezek. 14 4 which obtained in the less dominant School of textual redactors and which is registered in the Massorah of this School, recorded in the preceding Rubric. As this Rubric is restricted to the combination of the verb with ל"א, the phrase with the noun intervening, viz. ל"א ל"א Jerem. 27 18, is excluded.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 152b, on Josh. 22 15; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 16a; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 129b; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 160b, all on the same passage; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 39b, on Gen. 23 8; (VI) the same MS., fol. 78a, on Exod. 34 8; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 42 7, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 7, § 7.

ל"ב = § 32.

ל"ב In two instances is the verb ל"ב to speak, combined with ל"ב them. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 130a, on Deut. 11 19.

ל"ג = § 33.

ל"ג to speak with, occurs six times in the Pentateuch. In this division of the Bible the verb ל"ג to speak, is generally followed by the preposition ל"ג with the different suffixes, viz. ל"ג ל"ג (Exod. 6 29; 14 12; 29 42 &c.), ל"ג ל"ג (Gen. 45 12; Deut. 1 43; 4 12, 15; 10 4), ל"ג ל"ג (Gen. 24 30), ל"ג ל"ג (Deut. 1 6; 5 24). In the six instances, however, which constitute this Rubric, it is twice ל"ג ל"ג or ל"ג ל"ג (Exod. 19 9; Numb. 11 17), twice ל"ג ל"ג (Exod. 20 19; Deut. 5 4) and twice ל"ג ל"ג (Exod. 20 16, 10). Hence the Massorah safeguards this combination. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Deut. 5 4.

ל"ד = § 34.

ל"ד and speaking, occurs five times defective in the Scriptures. By fixing the number at five, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the ancient reading ל"ד in Prov. 16 13 which was in the recension of the text from which the Septuagint was translated and which is now accepted by Biblical critics as preferable to the present Massoretic recension.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 15a, on Isa. 33 15, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 110b, on Amos 5 10; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on the same passage; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 132b, on Isa. 33 15; (V) the same MS., fol. 342a, on Prov. 16 13; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 314b, on Esther 10 3; (VII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 15 2, and (VIII) the same on Prov. 16 13. As this Kal participle active with the prefix Vav which occurs five times, is defective in all the instances, Lists V, VI, VII and VIII head this Rubric more correctly ל"ד.

ל"ה = § 35.

ל"ה they speaking, or those who are speaking of, occurs four times, three times defective and once plene. As this plural participle construct, which occurs four times, is differently spelt in the same book, the Massorah safeguards the variation in the spelling. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 190b, on Ps. 58 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 285a, on Ps. 5 7; (III) the same MS., fol. 290a, on Ps. 28 3, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ל"ו = § 36.

ל"ו occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, in two different senses. In the first instance it is the active participle plural feminine and denotes they are speaking (Numb. 27 7), whilst in the second it is a feminine noun plural of ל"ו and signifies boats, rafts.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 220a, on 1 Kings 5 23, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 80a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 183a, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 236a, on Numb. 27 7, and (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage. Lists II-V rightly head this Rubric ל"ו. As one of the instances is defective and one plene the heading of List IV properly safeguards this variation in the spelling viz. ל"ו ל"ו ל"ו ל"ו ל"ו ל"ו. These two instances form part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter 2, § 428.)

ל"ז = § 37.

ל"ז he spake, occurs twice at the beginning of the verse. As this Piel preterite third person singular masculine, which occurs upwards of two hundred times, begins a verse in two instances only, the Massorah safeguards this peculiar position. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 261b, on Jerem. 42 19, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 48b, on Gen. 42 30, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ל"ח = § 38.

ל"ח Whenever this Piel preterite third person singular masculine has a conjunctive or non-pausal accent, it is with Segol (תקף) and when it is with the pausal accent Athnach or Soph-Pasuk it is with Tzeret (תקף) except in one instance where it is with Tzeret without the pausal accent. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 162a, on 2 Chron. 23 3. The expression ל"ח to denote the conjunctive or non-pausal accents is an important contribution to the Massoretic terminology.

