ל"ח with Athnach occurs ten times Exod. 12 25; Numb. 12 2; 1 Kings 2 24; 8 20, 56; 2 Kings 20 9; Isa. 1 2; Jerem. 9 7; 40 8; 2 Chron. 6 10; and ל"ח with Soph-Pasuk seventeen times Gen. 21 1; 44 2; 1 Kings 14 11; 22 38; 2 Kings 2 22; Isa. 1 20; 21 17; 22 25; 23 8; 38 7; 40 6; 53 14; Jerem. 13 15; Ezek. 22 28; Joel 4 8; Obad. 18; Micah 4 4.

ל"ט = § 39.

ל"ט he hath spoken good concerning, occurs twice in this combination. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 274, on Esther 7 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 32a, on Numb. 10 29; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 362a, on Esther 7 9; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 204b, on Numb. 10 29; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 106b, on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

ל"י Jehovah hath spoken unto Moses, occurs six times in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 35b, on Exod. 4 30. As this phrase also occurs twice in Joshua (11 23; 14 6) there can be no doubt that בקריה in the heading is a scribal error for בחריה in the Pentateuch. (See also letter 2, § 1189.)

ל"יא = § 41.

ל"יא Jehovah hath spoken by the hand of Moses, occurs four times. As the phrase is normally יהוה צוה משה, Jehovah hath commanded by the hand of Moses (Exod. 35 29; Levit. 8 36; Numb. 15 23; 36 13; Josh. 14 2; 21 2, 8; Judg. 3 4; Neh. 8 14), the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 111a, on Numb. 17 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 38a, on Exod. 9 35, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. List II heads this Rubric ל"יא which is manifestly a clerical error for בקריה.

ל"יב Jehovah hath spoken concerning him, occurs three times. The phrase יהוה צוה ל"יב is in four instances followed by the preposition ל"יב unto with the suffix third person singular masculine (ל"יב) and in three instances by the preposition ל"יב with the same suffix. Hence the Massorah records the minority. This safeguarding is all the more necessary since these two prepositions are not infrequently interchanged (vide supra, letter 2, § 514) and since in two of the passages which constitute this Rubric, ל"יב seems more natural. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 255b; on 2 Kings 19 21.

ל"יג he hath spoken concerning me, occurs three times. Normally this Piel preterite third person singular masculine is followed by the preposition בְּ with the suffix first person (אֲנִי) in which combination it occurs five times (Gen. 24:80; Deut. 21; 1 Sam. 15:16; 1 Kings 13:18; Ezek. 2:2). The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 77a, on 1 Kings 2:4, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 181b, on the same passage.

בְּ אֲנִי he hath spoken concerning thee, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the combination בְּ אֲנִי (Deut. 13:3; 1 Sam. 3:17; 1 Kings 13:22; 2 Kings 5:18; Jerem. 38:25). The design of this Rubric, like that of §§ 42 and 43, is to safeguard the homonymous prepositions in combination with the Piel preterite בְּ אֲנִי. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 252a, on 1 Chron. 22:11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 268a, on 2 Chron. 18:22, and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 426b, on the same passage. It is remarkable that all the three Lists omit the instance in Jerem. 11:17, where it is בְּ אֲנִי with the feminine suffix.

בְּ אֲנִי and thou shalt speak unto him, is four times thus combined. Normally the combination בְּ אֲנִי and thou shalt say unto him, which occurs twelve times (Exod. 7:16, 26; 8:16; 9:13; 13:14; Numb. 8:2; Deut. 26:3; 2 Sam. 13:5; Isa. 7:4; Jerem. 34:2; Ezek. 32:2; Zech. 6:12). By fixing the number at four, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the reading בְּ אֲנִי in Exod. 9:1, in accordance with 8:16, which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors as is evident from the Samaritan recension, the Septuagint and the Syriac.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 286a, on 1 Kings 21:19, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 445b, fol. 49b, on Exod. 9:1; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 96a, on 1 Kings 21:19; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 43a, on Exod. 9:1; (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 4:15; (VI) the same on Exod. 9:1, and (VII) the same on 1 Kings 21:19.

בְּ אֲנִי I speak, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse. That is, in contradistinction to the other two instances where this Piel preterite first person singular begins a verse and is with the prefix Vav (Jerem. 1:16; Hosea 12:11). Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 180b, on Jerem. 22:21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 451a, on Eccl. 1:16; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. These two expressions form part of the List of fourteen words which respectively occur twice at the beginning of a verse without the prefix Vav. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 62.)

בְּ אֲנִי - § 47.

בְּ אֲנִי I have spoken and have done, occurs four times. That is, without any other expression intervening. Hence Ezek. 24:14, in excluded. For this Rubric see letter א, § 952.

בְּ אֲנִי - § 48.

בְּ אֲנִי when speaking, occurs twice, . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. As this Piel infinitive construct occurs five times with the prefix Caph and twice only with Beth, and moreover as these two letters are almost identical in the MSS., the Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 253b, on Prov. 23:16, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2849, fol. 42b, on Gen. 27:5, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter heads this Rubric בְּ אֲנִי which is incorrect, since it occurs twice only without the prefix Vav. It ought either to be בְּ אֲנִי or בְּ אֲנִי as it is in List I. This Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 70.)

בְּ אֲנִי - § 49.

בְּ אֲנִי and speak or and to speak, occurs eleven times. בְּ אֲנִי or בְּ אֲנִי with Makeph, which is both the Piel Imperative and the Infinitive, occurs altogether about eighty-seven times. In seventy-six instances it is without the prefix Vav and in eleven only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS., and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 97b, on 2 Kings 1:3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 385a, on Neh. 9:13; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 245a, on 2 Kings 1:3; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 291b, on Isa. 58:9; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on 2 Kings 1:3; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Neh. 9:13. It will be seen that these eleven instances consist of three Imperatives (2 Sam. 19:8; 2 Kings 1:9; Ezek. 37:21) and eight Infinitives (2 Kings 2:11; Isa. 58:9, 18; 59:4; Jerem. 7:13; 25:3; 35:14; Neh. 9:13), and that two have Segol instead of Tzere (Isa. 58:9; 59:4) which is due to the Makeph (בְּ אֲנִי).

בְּ אֲנִי to speak, or speak thou, is twice with Pathach. That is, in these two instances this trilateral, which is either the Infinitive or Imperative, has Segol under the Beth, called Pathach in Massoretic terminology instead of Tzere which is due to the Makeph.

And wherever it is followed by אֲנִי it is likewise so. In combination with this particle of entreaty in which this Imperative occurs four times, it is always בְּ אֲנִי with Segol (Exod. 11:2; 2 Sam. 13:18; 2 Kings 18:26; Isa. 36:11).

This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, both Finalis letter ו, § 34 and Parva on Isa. 59:13, is incorrect, since apart from its combination with אֲנִי this trilateral is בְּ אֲנִי with Segol in four instances and not in two, Exod. 20:16 and Ezek. 14:4 being omitted. On Jerem. 9:4 the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,251, remarks בְּ אֲנִי and בְּ אֲנִי. The printed Massorah Parva remarks on this passage בְּ אֲנִי and בְּ אֲנִי. Accordingly there are three such instances apart from its combination with אֲנִי. As is often the case these conflicting Massorahs are due to the variations in the respective recensions which obtained in the several Massoretic Schools. This is attested by the Massorah Parva in the Model Codex Orient. 2626 on Exod. 20:16, which remarks that the Mugah reads here בְּ אֲנִי with Tzere. Hence the Massorah Parva both in Add. 15,251, and in Jacob b. Chayim's edition, which states that בְּ אֲנִי with Segol occurs three times apart from בְּ אֲנִי, is based upon the recension represented by the Mugah Codex, the three instances being Isa. 49:13; Jerem. 9:4; Ezek. 14:4, and Jacob b. Chayim's Rubric in the Massorah Finalis, which I have reproduced, must be corrected accordingly.

בְּ אֲנִי speak, or my speaking, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, this Imperative singular feminine or Infinitive with suffix first person singular, in contradistinction to this quadrilateral which occurs thirteen times as a noun with suffix first person singular and is pointed בְּ אֲנִי denoting my word.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 58a, on Jerem. 31:20, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 231a, on Job. 21:3; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 31:20; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 21b, on Judg. 5:12; (V) the same MS., fol. 167a, on Jerem. 31:20; (VI) the same MS., fol. 328b, on Job 21:3; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 255a, on Jerem. 31:20, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Job 21:3. List III, which heads this Rubric בְּ אֲנִי one of the three instances with Dagesh or Sheva under the Beth, shows that the design of this Massorah is to distinguish these three instances from those in which this quadrilateral is Raphe or is with Kametz under the Beth.

בְּ אֲנִי and as he was speaking, occurs three times in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the variation in the phrase which occurs four times in this book and which is in three instances בְּ אֲנִי with the prefixes Vav Beth and Vav Caph in the fourth passage. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, fol. II, fol. 288b, on Dan. 8:18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 284b, on Dan. 10:11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 372b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Dan. 8:18. As all the three instances occur in Daniel the heading ought to be בְּ אֲנִי. That of List IV is more correct.

דַּבֵּר speak, has four times the accent in this book. That is, in Leviticus this Imperative is in four instances with Tevir. The Imperative דַּבֵּר, which occurs altogether nineteen times in Leviticus and which with the solitary exception of 16 1 always begins a verse, has no fewer than seven different accents. The prevailing accent, however, is Gershayim which it has in eight instances (Comp. דַּבֵּר Levit. 1 2; 4 2; 12 2; 19 2; 23 2, 10; 25 2; 27 2). This is the reason why the Massorah safeguards the passages with -Tevir.

Of this Rubric, I collated five Lists, four in MSS., and one printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 85b, on Levit. 7 23, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2928, fol. 95b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 78a, on Levit. 23 34; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 36, on Levit. 23 24, and (V) the printed Massorah on Levit. 7 23.

דַּבֵּר אֶל-אַהֲרֹן וְאֶל-בָּנָיו speak unto Aaron and unto his sons, occurs three times in the Pentateuch. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the three instances where Moses is ordered to speak exclusively to Aaron and to his sons against being made conformable to the two instances where he is commanded to speak to Aaron and to his sons and to all the children of Israel (אֶל-קָרְיָיִךְ Levit. 17 2; 22 18).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 66a, on Levit. 6 18, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2948, fol. 95a, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 2849, fol. 85a, also on the same passage.

דַּבֵּר אֶל-בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל speak unto the children of Israel, is twice with the accent Zarka in the Pentateuch. That is, when this Imperative is followed by אֶל-בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל, thus distinguishing it from the other two instances where one is דַּבֵּר אֶל-בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל (Exod. 25 2) and the other דַּבֵּר Numb. 17 17 which is part of the following Rubric. Hence Levit. 16 2, which is the only other instance where it is דַּבֵּר with Zarka, is excluded. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Exod. 14 2.

נ"ו - § 56.

דַּבֵּר אֶל-בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל speak unto the children of Israel, is twice with the accent in this book. That is, in Numbers where this Imperative is followed by אֶל-בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל it is in two instances with Legarmeh, once in the beginning of the verse and once in the middle. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 97a, on Numb. 17 17, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 85a, on Numb. 19 2; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 92a, on Numb. 17 17, and (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 220b, on Numb. 19 2. As there are two altogether which have this accent and as these are restricted to Numbers, the heading ought more properly to be בְּבַעַי וּבַעַי as simply בְּבַעַי as the other three Lists have it.

דַּבֵּר אֶל-בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל speak unto the children of Israel, is in six instances without the adjunct לֵאמֹר saying. In explanation of this Massorah it is necessary to remark that the phrase דַּבֵּר אֶל-בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל, which occurs altogether twenty-eight times, is in nine instances followed by the adjunct לֵאמֹר saying (Exod. 31 13; Levit. 4 2; 7 28, 29; 12 2; 23 24, 34; Numb. 9 10; Josh. 20 2) and in thirteen instances it has the longer adjunct וְדַבַּרְתֶּם אֲלֵהֶם and thou shalt say unto them (see the following Rubric), whilst in the six instances which constitute this Rubric it is even without the shorter addition of the infinitive לֵאמֹר. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional shorter formula. By fixing the number at six, the Massorah excludes the reading לֵאמֹר in Numb. 5 6 which obtained in some Codices, as is attested by the Samaritan recension.

The Hebrew recension of the Septuagint followed had a tenth instance of this phrase in Numb. 25 16, as is evident from its rendering of this verse Καὶ ἐλάλησεν Κύριος πρὸς Μωσῆν, λέγων, ἐλάλησον τοῖς υἱοῖς Ἰσραὴλ, λέγων = : דַּבֵּר, וְדַבַּרְתֶּם אֶל-בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל לֵאמֹר וְדַבַּרְתֶּם אֲלֵהֶם לֵאמֹר. It will be seen that its omission in the present Massoretic textus receptus is due to the homoeoteleuton לֵאמֹר לֵאמֹר.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 50a, on Exod. 25 2, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 220b, on Numb. 19 2; (III) Orient. 2848, fol. 81b, on Exod. 25 2; (IV) Orient. 2849, fol. 71b, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 14 2.

דַּבֵּר אֶל-בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל וְאָמַרְתֶּם אֲלֵהֶם speak unto the children of Israel and say unto them, is thirteen times thus combined in the Pentateuch. That is, in contradistinction to the shorter formula which has simply the adjunct לֵאמֹר as well as to the phrase without any adjunct, recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 95b, on Numb. 15 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 75a, on Levit. 18 2; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 65a, on Levit. 1 2; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 69a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 178b, on Levit. 23 2; (VI) the same MS., fol. 212b, on Numb. 15 2; (VII) the same MS., fol. 248a, on Numb. 33 51, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 1 2.

דַּבְּרוּ speak ye, occurs four times in the Pentateuch, three times at the beginning of a verse and once in the middle. Apart from this division of the Bible this imperative plural masculine also occurs nine times. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 78a, on Levit. 15 2, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 78b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 151a, on Levit. 11 2; (IV) Orient. 2849, fol. 87b, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 12 8. List IV heads this Rubric בְּרִי וְרִשְׁוֹנֵי בְרִי and gives the three instances only which begin a verse in the Pentateuch. Outside the Pentateuch it begins a verse twice (Judg. 9 2; Isa. 40 2).

וַיְדַבֵּר אֱלֹהִים and God spake, is three times thus combined. Normally when וַיְדַבֵּר is followed by the Divine name it is the Tetragrammaton, viz. וַיְדַבֵּר יְהוָה and Jehovah spake. In this combination it occurs about one hundred times. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards this exceptional combination. This protection is directed against the recension which reads וַיְדַבֵּר יְהוָה in Exod. 6 2, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 88a, on Exod. 6 2, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 61a, on Exod. 20 1; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 71b, on Exod. 6 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 97a, on Exod. 20 1; (V) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach I, § 53; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 8 15, and (VII) the same on Exod. 6 2. This Rubric forms part of the List of nine words which respectively occur three times combined with the Divine name אֱלֹהִים (Vide supra, letter א, § 654).

וַיְדַבֵּר יְהוָה and Jehovah spake, is four times with the accent Zarka. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 111b, on Numb. 18 8, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2848, fol. 121b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. All the three Lists are hopelessly corrupt as וַיְדַבֵּר יְהוָה occurs twice only with Zarka (Exod. 6 13; Numb. 18 8). Of these one instance only is given in the Lists, viz. Numb. 18 8. In the first two instances (Numb. 11 21; 16 28) the accent Zarka does not refer to יְהוָה which does not occur in these verses, but to וַיְדַבֵּר and these two passages are duly given in the Rubric which treats on וַיְדַבֵּר with this accent. (Vide supra, letter א, §§ 846, 877.) In the fourth passage where the Tetragrammaton is with Zarka the phrase is not וַיְדַבֵּר יְהוָה, but וַיְדַבֵּר יְהוָה (Numb. 20 12). Yet both Lists I and II head this Rubric וַיְדַבֵּר יְהוָה. Though List III heads it בְּבַעַי וּבַעַי דַּבֵּר, thus restricting the instances in which it is וַיְדַבֵּר to two, it gives וַיְדַבֵּר יְהוָה Levit. 10 8 as the first passage (where, however, it is וַיְדַבֵּר יְהוָה with Munach Zakeph Katon) and omits Exod. 6 13 which is one of the two instances. Indeed this List does not actually refer to the accents, and the expression בְּבַעַי וּבַעַי דַּבֵּר in the heading is the addition of an ignorant Nakdan. (Vide infra, letter ד, § 65.)

ס"ב - § 62.

יְהוָה יְהוָה יְהוָה is three times with the accent. That is, with Darga Tevir. Of this recension, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 189b, on 2 Chron. 33 10, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 97b, on Levit. 11 1; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 87b, on the same passage, and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Chron. 33 10. We have here another striking illustration of the artificial manner in which the Massorah arranges some of the Rubrics in accordance with the three divisions of the Bible. The Law, which contains five of these passages, is treated as one so as to harmonise with the Prophets and the Hagiographa which respectively contribute one instance each. This explains the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,250, which remarks on Exod. 6 29 בָּשֶׁר בָּ, in Harley 5710-11 on 2 Chron. 33 10 which has the same statement and in Cambridge Add. 1174 on Levit. 11 1 which also says בָּשֶׁר בָּ.

יְהוָה יְהוָה יְהוָה is seven times with the accent Tevir. The seven instances which have artificially been reduced to three in the preceding Rubric, are here given in detail. Normally this phrase is with Mercha Tipcha. Out of the seventy-nine instances in which it occurs altogether, it is with these accents seventy-two times, and in seven instances only is it with Targa Tevir. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional accents. This simple Rubric is not so popular in the MSS. as the artificial recension recorded in the preceding Rubric. I have found it once only in the MSS., viz. Vienna Codex No. 35 on Deut. 4 12, which I have printed. In Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, however, it occurs four times: (I) on Exod. 6 29; (II) on Levit. 11 1; (III) on Numb. 33 50, and (IV) on 2 Kings 21 10. In List II 2 Kings 21 10 is omitted.

The exceptional accents in the other passages are as follows: (1) יְהוָה יְהוָה Levit. 11; 16 1; 25 1; Numb. 3 14; Deut. 32 48; 1 Chron. 21 9; (2) יְהוָה יְהוָה Levit. 10 8; 13 1; 14 33; 15 1; Numb. 2 1; 4 1, 17; 14 26; 16 20; 19 1; (3) יְהוָה יְהוָה Exod. 23 1; (4) יְהוָה יְהוָה Numb. 1 1; (5) יְהוָה יְהוָה Numb. 9 1 and (6) יְהוָה יְהוָה recorded in § 61.

יְהוָה יְהוָה יְהוָה and Jehovah spake, occurs four times in the Prophets and Hagiographa. In these two divisions of the Bible the Tetragrammaton is normally preceded by יְהוָה, viz. יְהוָה יְהוָה and Jehovah said. In this combination it occurs about ninety-one times in the Prophets and Hagiographa. As it is in these four instances only that the Tetragrammaton is combined with יְהוָה, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard this exceptional combination. The need for this protection will be apparent when it is borne in mind that these four exceptional instances are restricted to three books, viz. to Joshua where יְהוָה יְהוָה occurs twelve times (1 1; 3 7; 4 1, 15; 5 9; 6 2; 7 10; 8 1, 18; 10 8; 11 6; 13 1) and where יְהוָה יְהוָה is the solitary exception; to Kings where the normal phrase occurs nine times (1 Kings 8 18; 9 8; 11 11; 19 15; 22 17, 20, 21; 2 Kings 10 30; 23 27) and the abnormal once only; and to Chronicles where the regular combination occurs six times (1 Chron. 11 2; 21 27; 2 Chron. 6 8; 18 16, 19, 20) and the irregular twice.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 418a, on 1 Chron. 21 9, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 187. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List II) is incorrect. The heading יְהוָה יְהוָה is manifestly a careless blunder and ought to be יְהוָה יְהוָה, since two of the instances occur in Chronicles. The addition at the end of the Rubric וְכֵן אָמַר יְהוָה is also incorrect and ought properly to be וְכֵן אָמַר יְהוָה בְּבָרֵךְ, since in three instances יְהוָה יְהוָה is followed by אָמַר in the Pentateuch. (Vide supra, letter ג, § 60.)

יְהוָה יְהוָה יְהוָה and Jehovah spake unto Aaron, occurs twice. That is, to Aaron alone, in contradistinction to the instances in which Jehovah spake to him in conjunction with his brother Moses, recorded in § 67. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 154, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 187b, on Numb. 18 8, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The addition in the heading of the printed Massorah (List III) וְכֵן אָמַר יְהוָה is due to an ignorant Nakdan who mistook the import of this Rubric which is not to record the accent (vide supra, letter ג, § 61), but the fact that in these two instances Jehovah by way of exception spoke to Aaron alone.

יְהוָה יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ and Jehovah spake unto Moses, is in ten instances without the adjunct לֹאמַר saying. To understand this Rubric it is necessary to remark that this phrase occurs altogether about eighty times and that in seventy instances לֹאמַר saying follows immediately after הָמָּה, whilst in the ten instances which constitute this Rubric this infinitive is either wholly absent (Exod. 32 7; 33 1; Levit. 16 1) or some words intervene between הָמָּה and לֹאמַר (Levit. 25 1; Numb. 1 1; 3 14; 9 1; 33 50; 35 1; Deut. 32 48).

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 99b, on Numb. 1 1, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 74b, on Exod. 32 7; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 117a, on Numb. 33 50; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 121a, on Exod. 33 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 184a, on Numb. 1 1; (VI) Orient. 2348, fol. 109b, on Numb. 1 1; (VII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 154, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 33 1.

Lists II and VII simply head this Rubric יְהוָה יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ or יְהוָה יְהוָה לֹאמַר which is misleading, since this phrase occurs altogether eighty times. Lists III, V and VII state in their respective headings that there are nine such instances only and omit Numb. 35 1, but this is manifestly due to the careless absence of אֱלֹהֵינוּ or אֱלֹהֵינוּ, an expression which the Nakdan not infrequently overlooked and then altered the number in the heading to agree with the instances given in the defective Rubric.

That the design of this Massorah is to militate against the ancient Codices which had this adjunct in some of these passages, is attested by the Samaritan and the Septuagint. Thus in both passages (Exod. 32 7; 33 1) the Samaritan recension has לֹאמַר, whilst the Septuagint exhibits it in the first instance.

יְהוָה יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ and Jehovah spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, is eleven times thus combined. That is, in these instances Jehovah spake to both conjointly, in contradistinction to the numerous occasions in which He spake to Moses alone and to the two exceptional instances in which He spoke to Aaron alone, recorded in § 65.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 38a, on Exod. 6 13, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 100b, on Levit. 14 33; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 64a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 72a, on Exod. 6 13; (V) the same MS., fol. 190b, on Numb. 4 1; (VI) the same MS., fol. 216a, on Numb. 16 20; (VII) Orient. 2349, fol. 87b, on Levit. 11 1; (VIII) Orient. 2348, fol. 97b, on the same passage; (IX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 154, and (X) the printed Massorah on Numb. 19 1.

List IX heads this Rubric וְכֵן אָמַר יְהוָה and records twelve, giving Exod. 7 9 as one of the twelve instances. This recension of the Massorah is manifestly based upon a recension of the text which reads here וְכֵן אָמַר יְהוָה instead of וְכֵן אָמַר יְהוָה as is attested by the Samaritan. The design of the current Massorah is, therefore, apparent. It is to militate against the less popular text. The printed Massorah, which also states in the heading that there are twelve such instances, enumerates eleven only omitting Exod. 7 9 in harmony with all the other Lists, though it is in conflict with its heading.

ס"ח - § 68.

יְהוָה יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ בְּמִדְבַּר סִינַי and Jehovah spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, is three times thus combined. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174 on Numb. 3 14, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 184b, on Numb. 1 1, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 123.

יְהוָה יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ and Jehovah spake unto me, is unique in the Pentateuch. As the normal phrase is יְהוָה יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ and Jehovah said unto me, which occurs no less than eleven times in this very book (Deut. 1 42; 2 2, 9, 31; 3 2, 26; 5 25; 9 12, 13; 10 11; 18 17), the Massorah safeguards this solitary combination and thereby militates against the recension which reads it here too וַיִּשָּׁר, as is attested by the Samaritan. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 1174 on Deut. 2 17. As this phrase is unique, the heading ought more properly to be ל' וַיִּשָּׁר or ל' וַיִּשָּׁר.

וַיִּשָּׁר מֹשֶׁה אֶל־יְהוָה and Moses spake unto Jehovah, is unique. That is, in contradistinction to the normal phrase which is וַיִּשָּׁר מֹשֶׁה אֶל־יְהוָה and Moses said unto Jehovah. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 878.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 154.

וַיִּשָּׁר and she shall or and thou shalt speak, is three times with Shurek in the prefix Vav. The quadriliteral וַיִּשָּׁר which is both the Piel future third person singular feminine and the second person singular masculine, occurs nineteen times with the prefix Vav. In sixteen instances this Vav is with Pathach or is Vav conversive, which in Massoretic terminology is called Dagesh, whilst in three instances only it is with Shurek called Rophe. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional form.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 192a, on 1 Sam. 25 24, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 53a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 183a, on Ezek. 24 27; (IV) Add. 15,260, fol. 229b, on Isa. 40 27; (V) the same MS., fol. 288b, on Ezek. 24 27; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 199a, on 1 Sam. 25 24; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 292; (VIII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 25 24, and (IX) the same on Isa. 40 27. Lists I and IV indicate the import of this Massorah by the heading וַיִּשָּׁר, whilst List I alone has the mnemonic sign. This sign without the List of the passages is also given in Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 85b, on Ezek. 24 27.

וַיִּשָּׁר thou shalt speak, occurs twice. That is, the future second person singular feminine, in contradistinction to the second person singular masculine (וַיִּשָּׁר) which occurs twenty-five times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 13a, on Isa. 29 4.

וַיִּשָּׁר and I will speak, occurs four times in the Scriptures ... and once it is without the prefix Vav. This Piel future first person singular with the prefix Vav and paragogic He occurs altogether thirteen times. In nine instances the Beth is with Sheva (וַיִּשָּׁר) and in four only, is it with Tere which is due to its pausal or disjunctive accent. Without the prefix Vav it occurs altogether nine times, of which eight are with Sheva and one only is with Tere. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority in each case.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 185b, on Pa. 40 6, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 293b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 298a, on Pa. 50 7; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 142a, on Deut. 32 1; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 9, margin; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 18 30, and (VII) the same on Deut. 32 1.

וַיִּשָּׁר and I will speak, is always with Pathach except once where it is with Kametz. That is, this sexteliteral, which occurs altogether nine times, has always Pathach under the Vav, except once where it is with Kametz. Without the paragogic He, however, where this Piel future first person singular with the prefix Vav occurs six times, the reverse is the case. In this form the Vav is five times with Kametz (Deut. 1 43; Jerem. 7 13; 25 3; Ezek. 11 25; 24 18) and once only with Pathach. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards in each case the solitary exception. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 372b, on Dan. 10 16, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

וַיִּשָּׁר and they, or and ye spake, occurs three times in the Scriptures. It will be seen that though this quadriliteral with the prefix Vav, is in two instances the future third person plural feminine with Vav conversive (1 Sam. 4 20; 1 Kings 3 22) and in once instance the second person plural feminine with Vav conversive (Jerem. 44 25), yet all the three instances are here grouped together because of their identity in the spelling.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 175b, on 1 Sam. 4 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 37b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 78a, on 1 Kings 3 22; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 182b, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 4 20; (VI) the same on 1 Kings 3 22, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 44 25.

וַיִּשָּׁר that is speaking, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 105b, on 2 Sam. 14 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 25a, on Isa. 52 6; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 283a, on Dan. 8 18; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 141b, on Isa. 52 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 371a, on Dan. 8 13; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 10, margin where it is given twice; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 45 12, and (VIII) the same on Dan. 8 13.

וַיִּשָּׁר from speaking, or speaking with, occurs eight times. That is, with Chirek, Massoretically called Dagesh, in contradistinction to the twenty-five instances in which this quadriliteral is with Rophe or with Sheva (וַיִּשָּׁר), being the Piel participle. It will be seen that though this quadriliteral is in five instances the Piel infinitive construct and in three the Hithpael participle singular masculine (Numb. 7 89; Ezek. 2 2; 43 6) yet the Massorah has regard simply to the identity of the spelling.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists, eighteen in MSS. and two printed. I shall, however, specify the following nine only: (I) Harley 5750—11, Vol. I, fol. 90a, on Numb. 7 89, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 98b, on Ezek. 43 6; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 183a, on Pa. 34 14; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 189a, on Pa. 52 6; (V) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 2 2; (VI) the same Codex on Ezek. 43 6; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 10; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 31 29, and (IX) the same on Ezek. 43 6. List VI which heads this Rubric וַיִּשָּׁר indicates its design. Lists II, IV and V state in the heading that there are nine such instances. This is due to the inclusion of 2 Sam. 14 13 where it is with the prefix Vav.

וַיִּשָּׁר This noun in the absolute is always with Kametz and whenever the Daleth is with Sheva, the Beth is always with Pathach (וַיִּשָּׁר) except in one instance where it is וַיִּשָּׁר. The single exception is when it forms part of the proper name of a town in Gilead, viz. וַיִּשָּׁר or וַיִּשָּׁר (2 Sam. 9 4, 5; 17 27, vide infra, letter ג, § 110). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 154a, on 2 Chron. 8 15.

וַיִּשָּׁר wicked thing, is five times thus combined. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 241b, on 2 Kings 4 41.

וַיִּשָּׁר in this word, or matter, occurs eight times ... and twice it is with the prefix Vav. The design of this Massorah is twofold. In the first place it is to exclude the reading וַיִּשָּׁר in 1 Kings 13 34, which obtained in the less dominant School of textual redactors, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible; and in the second place to safeguard this phrase against being confused with the more frequent combination וַיִּשָּׁר which occurs seventeen times, as the prefixes ו and י are almost identical in many MSS.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 113b, on Deut. 3 26, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 204a, on 2 Sam. 12 14; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 292b, on Ezra 10 18; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 55a, on 1 Sam. 28 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 64a, on 2 Sam. 12 14; (VI) the same MS., fol. 74a, on 2 Sam. 24 3; (VII) the same MS., fol. 878b, on Ezra 10 18, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 13 34.

הַיְיָ the word, is four times with this accent in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 59b, on Jerem. 40 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 174a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 51 59.

הַיְיָ which begins a verse seventeen times in Jeremiah, is with four different accents. In six instances it is with Pashta (הַיְיָ 7 1; 11 1; 18 1; 30 1; 44 1; 46 13); in five which constitute the following Rubric, it is with Tevir and in two it is with Revia (הַיְיָ 45 1; 50 1). As the prevailing accent is Pashta this Massorah safeguards the minority. That this Massorah is restricted to the instances which begin a verse, is attested by the fact that apart from this position it has also twice this accent (Numb. 36 6; Hag. 2 5). The heading, therefore, in List I ought properly to be הַיְיָ בְּשֵׁרֵי בְּקִרֵי. The same ought to be the heading in List II viz. הַיְיָ בְּשֵׁרֵי instead of simply הַיְיָ בְּשֵׁרֵי. The printed Massorah (List III) which escapes the difficulty by heading it הַיְיָ בְּשֵׁרֵי הַיְיָ, obscures the design of this Massorah.

הַיְיָ the word, is five times with this accent. That is, at the beginning of the verse. Apart from beginning the verse and outside Jeremiah it has this accent in no fewer than nine instances (comp. הַיְיָ Gen. 22 11; Levit. 9 6; Numb. 22 20, 35; Deut. 17 11; 1 Sam. 21 3; 2 Sam. 11 27; Esther 2 4; 5 14). As in the preceding Rubric, so here the design of the Massorah is to record the minority of the passages in Jeremiah in which הַיְיָ has not the prevailing accent Pashta.

Of this Rubric, I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 170a, on Jerem. 34 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 170b, on Jerem. 35 1; (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 44b, on Jerem. 21 1, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 35 1. Accordingly the heading in List I ought to be הַיְיָ בְּשֵׁרֵי הַיְיָ and that of Lists II, III and IV הַיְיָ בְּשֵׁרֵי הַיְיָ. The expression הַיְיָ should be in all the headings.

הַיְיָ אֲשֶׁר צִוָּה יְהוָה the word, or thing which Jehovah hath commanded, is in four instances without the adjunct אֲשֶׁר saying. That is, without אֲשֶׁר following immediately after יְהוָה as is the case in Exod. 35 4; Levit. 17 2. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Exod. 16 16, which I have printed, and (II) Cambridge Add. 1174 on the same passage.

מ"ז - § 84.

הַיְיָ הַגָּדוֹל this great thing, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which the phrase is simply הַיְיָ without the adjunct הַגָּדוֹל. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 126b, on Deut. 3 26.

הַיְיָ הַרְעָה הַיְיָ this wicked thing, is five times thus combined. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 124a, on Deut. 19 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 389a, on Neh. 13 17; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 401b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 7, § 22. Both the headings of these MS. Lists, viz. הַיְיָ הַרְעָה הַיְיָ and of the printed Massorah, viz. הַיְיָ הַרְעָה הַיְיָ, are not strictly correct, since three of the instances in this combination are הַיְיָ הַרְעָה הַיְיָ (Exod. 33 4; Deut. 17 5; Neh. 13 17) and two are הַיְיָ הַרְעָה (Deut. 13 12; 19 20). Strictly, therefore, the heading ought to be הַיְיָ הַרְעָה הַיְיָ.

הַיְיָ and the thing, or matter, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the six instances where it is הַיְיָ. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 188b, on 1 Sam. 20 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 235a, on 1 Kings 20 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 49b, on 1 Sam. 20 23; (IV) the same MS., fol. 94b, on 1 Kings 20 9; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 119b, on Deut. 1 17; (VI) the same MS., fol. 195a, on 1 Sam. 20 23;

(VII) the same MS., fol. 242a, on 1 Kings 20 9, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 7, § 9.

הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ the word of God, is three times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the other two instances where it is הַיְיָ הַיְיָ, recorded in the following Rubric. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 157b, on Judg. 3 20, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 140a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 9 27. This Rubric forms part of the nine groups of words which respectively occur three times followed by הַיְיָ. (Vide supra, letter 7, § 654.)

מ"יא - § 88.

הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ the word of God, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the recension, which reads הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ the word of Jehovah, in 1 Kings 12 22, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 87b, on 1 Kings 12 22.

הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ the word of Jehovah, occurs four times. By fixing the number at four, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the ancient reading in 1 Kings 12 22, of the less dominant School of textual redactors. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 135, on Isa. 39 5.

הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ by the word of Jehovah, is five times thus combined. With the prefixes ב and כ, which are almost identical in the MSS. the phrase הַיְיָ הַיְיָ occurs altogether thirty-eight times. In twenty-six instances it is הַיְיָ הַיְיָ and in twelve only is it הַיְיָ הַיְיָ. But even as this minority is unequally divided, since seven out of this number occur in one chapter and thus become the minority in this section, leaving five only for the rest of the Scriptures, the Massorah divides this Rubric into two. In this part, therefore, the exceptional five phrases are safeguarded. By fixing the number at five for this part, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the reading הַיְיָ הַיְיָ in 1 Sam. 3 21, and 2 Chron. 30 12, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

And from 1 Kings 13 1 to 33 it is likewise with the prefix Beth except once. In this chapter the reverse is the case, הַיְיָ הַיְיָ is the rule. It occurs no less than seven times (1 Kings 13 1, 2, 5, 9, 17, 18, 32) and הַיְיָ הַיְיָ once only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 157a, on 1 Sam. 3 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 229a, on 1 Kings 13 17; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 187b, on 2 Chron. 30 12; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 182b, on Ps. 33 6; (V) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 8 9; which alone has the mnemonic sign; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 37a, on 1 Sam. 3 21; (VII) the same MS., fol. 152b, on Jerem. 8 9; (VIII) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach I, § 152, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 8 9. The words at the end of the first part of this Rubric in the List which I have printed, viz. הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ, I cannot explain.

הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ by the command of the king, occurs three times. In the only other instance where this combination occurs it is with the prefix Caph. (Comp. הַיְיָ הַיְיָ Esther 5 8). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 860a, on Esther 3 15, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 310b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Esther 1 12. As all the three instances are restricted to the same book, the heading הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ is more precise though it also ought to be הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ.

הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ הַיְיָ and the word of, occurs eighteen times. That is, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this construct occurs without the prefix Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 101a, on Numb. 23 8.

יהוה and the word of Jehovah, occurs seven times. In the other four instances where this phrase occurs it is without the prefix Vav. (Vide supra, letter 7, § 89.)

Of this Rubric, I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 74a, on 2 Sam. 24 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 92a, on 1 Kings 17 24; (III) the same MS., fol. 211a, on Micah 4 2; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 215b, on Isa. 2 3; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 182b, on 2 Sam. 24 11; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 85, on 2 Sam. 24 11; (VII) the same Codex on Isa. 2 3, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 17 24.

קדקד according to the word of Jehovah, is four times with Zakeph in this book. Of this phrase which occurs twenty-six times altogether, there are seventeen in Kings alone. According to the received text these seventeen instances have no fewer than seven different accents which I subjoin in the order of their respective numbers. Five are with Munach Katon קדקד (1 Kings 15 29; 16 34; 17 16; 2 Kings 10 17; 24 2); four with Mercha Soph-Pasuk קדקד (1 Kings 12 24; 2 Kings 4 44; 7 16; 9 26); three with Mehupach Pashta קדקד (1 Kings 14 16; 16 12; 2 Kings 14 26); two with Mercha Typcha קדקד (1 Kings 13 26; 22 88); one is with Munach Athnach קדקד (1 Kings 17 5); one with Munach Revia קדקד (2 Kings 23 16) and one with Munach Legarmeh קדקד (2 Kings 1 17). With this analysis before us we shall be able to test the Massorah on the passages which constitute this Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 281a, on 1 Kings 15 29, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 117a, on 2 Kings 24 2; (III) Vienna Codex No. 85, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. Though all these four Lists coincide in stating in their respective headings that there are four such instances only, it is when analysing the instances which they severally record that we encounter the difficulty.

Thus List I gives אלו as the third instance. As this may either be the catchword for 1 Kings 17 16, or for 2 Kings 10 17 it is difficult to say which of these two passages is meant to be included in the four and which is to be excluded.

List II, which also records four, gives בר אלו as the third instance, which undoubtedly shows that 1 Kings 17 16 is meant and renders it probable that List I also designed this as the third passage.

List III, which simply heads this Rubric בשה, is misleading since, as we have seen, this phrase occurs seventeen times in this book. It is, therefore, manifest that the omission בשה is due to the carelessness of the Scribe. But though the heading states there are four such instances, the Rubric itself records three only, omitting אלו altogether which may either be 1 Kings 17 16 or 2 Kings 10 17.

List IV, which also states that there are four such instances and which duly records four, gives אשר רבי אל אלו 2 Kings 10 17 as the third passage and omits 1 Kings 17 16.

The greatest conflict prevails in the Massorah Parva on these passages, both in the MSS. and in the editio princeps, as will be seen from the following analysis. On 1 Kings 15 29, Harley 5720, and Arund. Orient. 16, have בשש whilst the printed Massorah has בשש. On 1 Kings 16 34, Arund. Orient. 16, and the editio princeps have בשש, whilst Harley 5710-11 and Harley 5720 have בשש. On 1 Kings 17 16, Add. 15,250, and the editio princeps have בשש, whilst Harley 5720 has בשש. On 2 Kings 10 17 the editio princeps has בשש, whilst Harley 5710-11; Harley 5720 and Add. 15,250 have בשש. On 2 Kings 24 2, both the MSS. (Harley 5720; Add. 15,250) and the editio princeps coincide in remarking בשש.

As to the text in the Codices, whilst Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; and Add. 15,451 have קדקד in 1 Kings 15 29, Harley 5710-11, has קדקד. In 1 Kings 16 34, Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451, have קדקד, whilst Add. 15,250 has קדקד. In 2 Kings 24 2, Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; and Add. 15,451 have קדקד, whilst the Model Codex Harley 5710-11 has קדקד on which the Nakdan has the following instructive remark: בשה רבי אל אלו בשש ורבי אל אלו בשש.

There can, therefore, be no doubt that the different Massoretic Schools preserved different traditions with regard to these accents, that according to one School of textual redactors there are four such instances only, whilst according to another School there are five and that this explains the conflicting Massorahs. The reason why the headings of the respective Rubrics add the expression בשה is that apart from this book this phrase also occurs with the same accents in Josh. 8 27.

לדבריו as every day's work required, is three times thus combined. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 322b, on 1 Chron. 16 37, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 85 on the same passage. As all the three instances are restricted to Chronicles, the heading ought properly to be רבי ובשה.

מקדמ from the word of, occurs three times. That is, as a noun in the construct with the prefix Mem, in contradistinction to the instances in which this quadrilateral is differently pointed (vide supra, letter 7, § 77). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 70b, on Exod. 23 7, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 176b, on 1 Sam. 19 44, and (III) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 10 10.

דברי my word, occurs thirteen times. This quadrilateral occurs altogether forty-two times. In twenty-nine instances the Resh is with Patach (דברי), being the plural with the suffix first person singular and in thirteen instances the Resh is with Chirek (דברי), being the singular with the same suffix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. By fixing the number at thirteen, the Massorah militates against those Codices which read דברי in Jerem. 1 12; 23 28, 29; Jonah 4 2, as is evident from the Septuagint.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated no fewer than thirty Lists, twenty-eight in MSS. and two printed. I specify however the following eleven Lists only: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 66 2, which I have printed; (II) the same Codex on Jerem. 23 28; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 29 10; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 130a, on Numb. 11 23; (V) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 92b, on the same passage; (VI) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 220b, on 1 Kings 6 12; (VII) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 81b, on Jerem. 1 12; (VIII) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 234b, on Job 29 22; (IX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 10; (X) the printed Massorah on Numb. 11 28, and (XI) the same on 1 Kings 6 12. Though the heading of List IV states that there are ten such instances only, the List itself records identically the same thirteen passages. It must therefore be a clerical error for יי.

קדקד according to thy words, is three times defective of Yod in the Pentateuch. That is, in these three instances it is not the pausal form of the singular קדקד, but is the plural קדקד with Yod defective. This Rubric, which records the defective orthography of this noun in the Pentateuch alone, I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 30 34. In the addition at the end of this Rubric, Jacob b. Chayim states that these three instances in the Pentateuch are part of the thirteen passages in the Bible, which exhibit the same anomaly and that he has given the full List in the Massorah Finalia. The same reference he gives in Gen. 47 30. On Ps. 119 9, 45, however, he states that he has given it on Pericope יוצא = Gen. 30 34. But this Rubric is nowhere to be found in the printed Massorah.

דברי thy words, is in thirteen instances defective of Yod. That is, in these instances it is not to be taken as the pausal form of the singular דברי, but as the defective plural, viz. דברי. On referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that in nearly all the instances many of the MSS., the early editions and the ancient Versions actually exhibit the plural דברי as the textual readings.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated ten Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 32b, on Gen. 47 80, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 212a, on Ps. 119 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 314a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 28b, on Gen. 30 34; (V) the same MS., fol. 91a, on Numb. 14 20; (VI) the same MS., fol. 369b, on Ps. 119 9; (VII) the same MS., fol. 371a, on Ps. 119 107; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 211a, on Numb. 14 20; (IX) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh I, § 114, and (X) Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh, § 130. As these thirteen instances include four only without any prefix (Ps. 119 16, 17, 101, 105), one with the prefix Beth (Ps. 119 42) and eight with the prefix Cap (Gen. 30 34; 47 80; Numb. 14 20; Ps. 119 9, 25, 28, 65, 107) it is remarkable that List IV alone should have the correct heading יְהוָה בְּלִישׁ.

List V has the important addition at the end stating that according to the Eastern recension there are fifteen such instances and that Judg. 13 12 and 1 Kings 8 12 are two of the List (למסורת זו הנה עשרים ואחד מנה עשר). The design, therefore, of this Massorah is to exclude the Eastern recension.

וְיִקְרָאוּ and words, occurs twice. This plural noun occurs altogether twenty-eight times. In twenty-six instances it is without the prefix Vav and in two only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exception.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 304a, on Eccl. 5 6, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 9b, on Gen. 11 1; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 8a, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

וְיִקְרָאוּ the words of Jehovah. For this Rubric see letter u, § 1254.

וְיִקְרָאוּ the words of Jeremiah, occurs four times. By fixing the number at four, the Massorah safeguards the shorter form of the superscription of Jeremiah against the longer form וְיִקְרָאוּ which is preserved in the Septuagint (το δὲ ῥημα του θεου ε εγενετο εν Ιερουσαλ) in conformity with Hosea 1 1; Micah 1 1; Zeph. 1 1.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 147b, on Jerem. 1 1, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 239a, on the same passage. As this combination does not occur apart from this book, the heading ought properly to be יְהוָה וְיִקְרָאוּ.

וְיִקְרָאוּ and the words of, occurs five times. By fixing the number at five, the Massorah excludes the reading וְיִקְרָאוּ in Ps. 145 5, which is exhibited in the ancient versions and which is now accepted by many as preferable, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. It, moreover, safeguards 2 Chron. 12 15 against being made conformable to the parallel passage in 1 Kings 14 29 where it is וְיִקְרָאוּ.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 220b, on Ps. 145 5, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 257a, on 1 Chron. 29 29; (III) the same MS., fol. 264b, on 2 Chron. 12 15; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 417b, on 1 Chron. 29 29; (V) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 10; (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 109 3, and (VII) the same on 1 Chron. 29 29. List VI adds in the heading that three of the instances begin a verse (בְּתוֹתָיִם). They are Ps. 109 3; 1 Chron. 29 29 and 2 Chron. 12 15 and form part of the Rubric, recording twelve words, which respectively occur three times at the beginning of the verse. (Vide infra, letter v, § 72.)

וְיִקְרָאוּ and my words, occurs twice. This plural with the suffix first person singular, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether thirty-eight times. As it is וְיִקְרָאוּ or וְיִקְרָאוּ in thirty-six instances, and twice only וְיִקְרָאוּ the Massorah safeguards the two exceptional instances. That variations obtained in ancient times with regard to the precise reading in these two passages is attested by the Septuagint. Whilst the predominant School of textual redactors took this quadrilateral as a complete word another School regarded it as an abbreviation and resolved it in the first instance into וְיִקְרָאוּ (= καὶ τὰ ῥήματα). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 144a, on Isa. 59 21.

וְיִקְרָאוּ thy words, is in eight instances the textual reading, for which the official reading is, thy word. That is, in these passages the Kethiv, which has the plural, is cancelled by the Keri, which directs us to read the singular, and in this respect, therefore, this Rubric is the converse of § 99. By fixing the number at eight, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the Eastern recension which reads וְיִקְרָאוּ without variation in Judg. 13 17. On referring to the notes on 1 Kings 8 26; and Jerem. 15 16, it will be seen that the Keri is the substantive reading also in these passages.

Of this Rubric I collated fourteen Lists, twelve in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 166a, on Judg. 13 17; (II) the same MS., on the same passage; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 223a, on 1 Kings 8 26; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 214b, on Ps. 119 147; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 28b, on Judg. 13 17; (VI) the same MS., fol. 33a, on 1 Kings 8 26; (VII) the same MS., fol. 156b, on Jerem. 15 16; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 316a, on Ps. 119 147; (IX) Add. 15,251, fol. 28b, on Gen. 30 34 where it is given as the converse of § 99; (X) the same MS., fol. 189a, on 1 Kings 8 26; (XI) Add. 15,451, fol. 280b, on the same passage; (XII) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh I, § 115; (XIII) Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh, § 121, and (XIV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 21. It is remarkable that though four of the instances only are וְיִקְרָאוּ without the prefix (Judg. 13 17; 1 Kings 8 26; 22 13; Jerem. 15 16) and the other four are with different prefixes (1 Kings 18 36; Ps. 119 147, 161; Ezra 10 12) yet none of the Lists state in their respective headings וְיִקְרָאוּ, thus showing that this important qualifying expression is often omitted.

וְיִקְרָאוּ his words, is in two instances the textual reading and ought to be his word. That is, in these two passages the plural noun with the suffix third person singular which is the Kethiv, the Keri or the official reading substitutes the singular. In spite, however, of this Massoretic declaration the Codices, the early editions and the ancient versions greatly vary in their respective readings with regard to these expressions, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter v, § 86.

וְיִקְרָאוּ and his words, occurs five times. This plural noun with the suffix third person singular occurs altogether about twenty-seven times. In twenty-two instances it is without the prefix Vav and in five only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated thirteen Lists, ten in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 114b, on Deut. 4 36, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 157a, on 2 Chron. 13 22; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 354b, on Eccl. 9 16; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 265b, on 2 Chron. 13 22; (V) the same MS., fol. 280b, on 2 Chron. 35 27; (VI) the same MS., fol. 333b, on Job 34 35; (VII) the same MS., fol. 354b, on Eccl. 9 16; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 508a, on 2 Chron. 35 27; (IX) Add. 21,160, fol. 262b, on Deut. 4 36; (X) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 11, margin; (XI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 4 36; (XII) the same on Job 34 35, and (XIII) the same on 2 Chron. 35 27.

וְיִקְרָאוּ thy words, occurs three times in the Alphabet. That is, in the 119th Psalm. Not only does each of the twenty-two groups or stanzas begin with one of the letters of the alphabet, but each of the eight verses which constitute each group begins with the same letter. Hence this Psalm exhibits an octuple alphabet. For this reason the Massorah calls it the Alphabet or the great Alphabet i. e. the Eight-fold Alphabet.

By fixing the number at three, the design of this Massorah is to indicate that in the other four instances in which this expression occurs in this Psalm it is Yod without the Yod after the Beth or is the pausal form of the singular (Ps. 119 16, 17, 101, 105), thus militating against the Codices which read it Yod as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 818a, on Ps. 119 139, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ק"י Debar, is three times with Kamets. With Sheva under the Daleth, this trilateral has normally Patach under the Daleth i. e. ק"י and is the construct of the noun ק"י. In these three instances, however, the Beth is with Kamets, which is due to its being part of the proper name of a town in Gilead. Hence the Massorah, which has regard simply to the fact that the Kamets abnormally follows the Sheva in this expression, records the fact. (Vide supra, letter 7, § 78.)

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 202a, on 2 Sam. 9 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 62a, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 169a, also on the same passage.

ק"י" Deborah, is three times defective. This proper name occurs altogether ten times. In seven instances it is plene (Judg. 4 4, 5, 9, 10; 5 1, 7, 12) and in three only is it defective. Hence the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the minority. This protection is all the more necessary since the two different spellings occur not only in the same book, but within a few verses of the same chapter.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 48a, on Gen. 35 8, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2848, fol. 58a; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 81b; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 34b; (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Judg. 4 14. Lists III and V alone have not the mnemonic sign.

ק"י" the manner of, or my cause, occurs twice. It is generally supposed that in Ps. 110 4 the Yod is not the suffix first person singular as in Job 5 8, which is the only other instance where this form occurs, but is paragogic. In Add. 21,161, fol. 168b, which is one of the oldest Codices extant ק"י" is the textual reading and the Massorah Parva remarks against it ק"י. Being preceded by ק"י we should normally expect the phrase to be ק"י" as it is in Eccl. 3 18; 7 14 and Dan. 2 30. Hence the Massorah safeguards the anomalous form, which obtained in the predominant School, and thus militates against the Massorah of the rival School of textual redactors.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 323a, on Job 5 8, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

ק"י" and the fish, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which is one of the most ancient parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 74b, on Exod. 7 21, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 48a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 7, § 52. These two instances form part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav which respectively occur twice in the same book. (Vide infra, letter 7, § 66.) Accordingly the heading of this Rubric ought more correctly to be בבבב.

ק"י" the standard of the camp of the children of, occurs three times. In describing the standards of the different tribes two phrases are used. In five instances it is simply ק"י" without the adjunct ק"י (Numb. 2 8, 10, 18, 25; 10 18) and in three only is it with the addition ק"י. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. That some Codices read ק"י" ק"י" in Numb. 10 18 is attested by the Samaritan recension of the text. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 106b, on Numb. 10 25, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage. "ב" in the heading is the abbreviation of ק"י" and ק"י" the three tribes in connection with which the adjunct ק"י is used.

קט"ו - § 116.

קט"ו the breasts of, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181b, on Ezek. 23 8. As the two instances not only occur in the same book, but are restricted to the same section the heading ought more properly to be בבבב.

ק"י" Dedan, occurs twice. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter 7, § 58, is difficult to explain, since this proper name occurs six times without the prefix (Gen. 25 8, 8; Jerem. 25 23; 49 8; Ezek. 27 15, 20). Heidenheim's suggestion that the design of this Massorah is to record the two instances in which the Daleth is without Dagesh (comp. דדדד on Gen. 25 8) contrary to the rule of two similar letters, is too ingenious. It may be that the Massorah intends to record the only two instances in which this proper name is preceded by ק"י without and with the prefix Vav and that the heading ought to be בבבב. This seems to be supported by the printed Massorah Parva, which has בבבב on Ezek. 27 15 where the text is ק"י" ק"י".

ק"י" - § 118.

ק"י" gold, is three times written with He. The emphatic of the Chaldee ק"י" without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether nineteen times. In Daniel where it occurs sixteen times, it is uniformly with Aleph (ק"י" or ק"י" and in three it is with Yod (ק"י" Doyeg 1 Sam. 22 18, 18, 22). The Massorah regards the spelling with Aleph as correct and hence formulates it as exhibiting the standard orthography. For this reason the Kerri or official reading substitutes ק"י" with Aleph in each of the three instances in which the textual reading is ק"י" with Yod.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 376b, on Ezra 7 18, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Dan. § 22, and (III) the same on Ezra 6 6. As all the three instances are in Ezra the heading ought to be בבבב.

ק"י" Doeg, occurs three times. This name of the Edomite, who was the chief of Saul's herdsmen, occurs altogether six times and is spelt in two different ways. In the three instances which constitute this Rubric, it is with Aleph (ק"י" or ק"י") and in three it is with Yod (ק"י" Doyeg 1 Sam. 22 18, 18, 22). The Massorah regards the spelling with Aleph as correct and hence formulates it as exhibiting the standard orthography. For this reason the Kerri or official reading substitutes ק"י" with Aleph in each of the three instances in which the textual reading is ק"י" with Yod.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 7, § 55, and (II) Add. 21,161, fol. 16, on 1 Sam. 21 8. Notwithstanding this definite Massorah it can only be regarded as proceeding from one School of textual redactors, since another School preserved a different tradition. This is attested by the Massorah Parva in the Model Codex Harley 5710-11, which remarks on 1 Sam. 21 8 ק"י" ק"י" ק"י". It will be seen that this Massorah does not indicate whether any of the three instances with Aleph are ק"י" plene, or ק"י" defective. The Massorah Parva, however, in Add. 15,250 remarks on אין 1 Sam. 21 8 וְאִתּוֹ לֶחֶם אֶתֹרֹת יָמָיו. As the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710-11 and Arund. Orient. 16 on Ps. 52 2 remarks לְכִי אִתּוֹ לֶחֶם אֶתֹתּוֹ it is evident that the two defective instances are 1 Sam. 21 8; 22 9 and that the one plene is Ps. 52 2. This is supported by the best MSS. and the early editions. Accordingly אִתּוֹ 1 Sam. 21 8 in my edition of the Bible ought to be אִתּוֹ notwithstanding the Massoretic remark in Harley 5710-11 and the reading in Orient 2201 first hand, which I followed.

קִיב love, beloved, or friend, is twice defective. As this noun, which occurs altogether six times, is plene in four instances and defective in two only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, where it is given three times: (I) on Levit. 10 4, which I have printed; (II) Esther 2 15, and (III) the Massorah Finalis, letter ק, § 56.

קִיבא my love, or friend, is three times defective. With the suffix first person this noun occurs altogether twenty-three times. As it is plene in twenty instances and defective in three only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 168a, on Jerem. 32 8. As all the three instances are not only restricted to the same book but to the same section, the heading ought to be קִיבא וְכִנּוּי.

קִיבב my love, or friend, occurs five times, three times defective and twice plene. This is one of the artificial Rubrics which make the decipherment of the Massorah so difficult. We have seen in the preceding Rubric that this form of the noun with the suffix first person occurs no less than twenty-three times and not five as here stated. As four instances are in the Prophets and nineteen in the Song of Songs, the Massorah obtains the number five by artificially counting all the instances in the Song as one, and thus makes up the five. This artificial counting is, moreover, applied to the two plenes. The nineteen instances in Canticles, which are uniformly plene are regarded as one, and the single plene instance in Isa. 5 1 makes up the two plenes.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 41b, on Jerem. 32 8, which I have printed, and (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on the same passage. List II is corrupt. קִיבא אֶתֹתּוֹ should be קִיבא אֶתֹתּוֹ Jerem. 32 8, אֶתֹתּוֹ Jerem. 32 9, the first וְכִנּוּי = וְכִנּוּי is Jerem. 32 12 and the second וְכִנּוּי should be וְכִנּוּי, thus giving the three defectives first.

קִיבג his uncle, or Dodo, is five times plene. In explanation of this Rubric it is necessary to remark: (1) that this expression is both a noun with the suffix third person singular denoting uncle, and a proper name Dodo, (2) that in this double sense it occurs altogether eleven times, and (3) that it is spelt in two different ways, being defective in six instances (Levit. 20 20; 25 49, 49; 2 Sam. 23 24; 2 Kings 24 17; Esther 2 7) and plene in five. Hence the Massorah, which has regard to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in the sense, safeguards the orthography of the minority, consisting of two nouns with the suffix (1 Sam. 10 16; Amos 6 10) and the proper names (Judg. 10 1; 1 Chron. 11 12, 26).

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 26a, on Judg. 10 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 245a, on 1 Chron. 11 12; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 145a, on Judg. 10 1; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 170b, on the same passage; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, and (VI) the printed Massorah, both on the same passage. As all the six Lists emphatically state that there are five such instances only and coincide in omitting 2 Sam. 23 9, it is evident that they are based upon a recension of the text, which did not recognise the Ken in the textus receptus.

קִיבד love, occurs four times in the Scriptures, three times defective and once plene. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 78b, on Ezek. 16 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 84b, on Ezek. 23 17; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 245a, on Prov. 7 18; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 261b, on Cant. 5 1; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181b, on Ezek. 23 17; (VI) the same MS., fol. 388b, on Prov. 7 18; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 372b, on Cant. 5 1, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Prov. 7 18.

Though all the eight Lists coincide in their statement in the respective headings that one instance is plene, Lists I, IV, V and VII do not specify which is the solitary plene, whilst the other four Lists are most conflicting. Thus List II says it is Prov. 7 18; Lists III and IV declare that it is Cant. 5 1 and List VIII as emphatically states that it is Ezek. 16 8. On referring to the notes on Ezek. 23 17 in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that several MSS. and early editions give this passage as the plene. It is, therefore, evident that there were different traditions in the different Schools of textual redactors as to the orthography of this expression.

קִיבה my love, or Doda, occurs twice once plene and once defective. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 147a, on 1 Chron. 27 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 255a, on the same passage, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, also on the same passage. Lists II and III head this Rubric more precisely, viz. בְּחַדֵּי לִשָּׁה חַדֵּי חַדֵּי. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ב, 428, Vol. II, p. 217.)

קִיבז David, without and with the prefixes, is five times plene. In the nine books, which belong to this part of the Rubric by virtue of their exclusion from the second part, this proper name without and with the prefixes, occurs no fewer than 796 times! As it is defective in 791 instances and plene in five only, the Massorah safeguards the extremely rare exceptions.

And throughout the twelve Minor Prophets, Chronicles and Ezra-Nehemiah it is likewise plene. In these three books where this proper name occurs about 281 times; 9 in the Minor Prophets, 11 in Ezra-Nehemiah and 261 in Chronicles, it is uniformly plene. Hence the simple mention of the fact suffices as a guide for the Scribe. It will thus be seen that of 1077 times in which this name occurs it has retained its primitive orthography in 791 instances and that in 286 instances only has the later plene spelling been introduced.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 227a, on 1 Kings 11 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 92b, on Ezek. 34 23; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 78a, on 1 Kings 3 14; (IV) the same MS., fol. 86a, on 1 Kings 11 4; (V) the same MS., fol. 87a, on 1 Kings 11 36; (VI) the same MS., fol. 189a, on Ezek. 34 23; (VII) the same MS., fol. 394a, on Cant. 4 4; (VIII) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 11 4, and (IX) the same on Ezek. 34 23. Lists III and IV have at the end וְכִנּוּי חַדֵּי חַדֵּי and omits חַדֵּי, whilst List V has it חַדֵּי חַדֵּי חַדֵּי and omits חַדֵּי. But these omissions are manifestly due to clerical carelessness. List II has at the end חַדֵּי חַדֵּי, which are the initials חַדֵּי חַדֵּי, the three books in which the plene orthography uniformly prevails.

They are as follows: (1) In Samuel it occurs 577 all defective; (2) in Kings 96, of which 98 are defective and 3 plene; (3) Isaiah 10 all defective; (4) Jeremiah 15 all defective; (5) Ezekiel 4, of which 3 are defective and 1 plene; (6) Psalms 89 all defective; (7) Proverbs 1 defective; (8) Job 1 defective and the Five Megilloth 4, of which 3 are defective and 1 plene.

קִיבא David the man of God, occurs three times in the Scriptures thus combined. For other persons who are thus distinguished see letter א, § 425. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11 Vol. II, fol. 300b, on Neh. 12 24, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 388a, on Neh. 12 26; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 401a, on Neh. 12 24; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 427b, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VI) the same on 2 Chron. 8 14.

עַד David yet more, is four times thus combined in the Scriptures. The adverb עַד yet more, is combined with דָּוִד nine times. In five instances it precedes the proper name (comp. עַד דָּוִד 1 Sam. 20 8; 23 4; 2 Sam. 6 1; 1 Chron. 14 14; 17 18) and in four the order is inverted. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. By fixing the number at four, the design of this Massorah is to exclude the reading of those Codices in which the two parallel passages, viz. 2 Sam. 7 20 and 1 Chron. 17 18 are the same, as will be seen from the notes in 2 Sam. 7 20 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 199b, on 2 Sam. 5 18, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 60a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 247a, on 1 Chron. 14 3; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 171a, on 2 Sam. 5 18; (V) Vienna Codex No. 85 on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 71.

It is remarkable that not only do all the six Lists emphatically state that there are four instances only, in which this adverb follows the proper name David, but they coincide in omitting 1 Sam. 18 29 where the received text has also עַד דָּוִד. List VI omits the second instance in 1 Chron. 14 3b and gives in its place וַיִּשָּׂא דָּוִד אֶת הַיָּרֵךְ וַיִּשְׂרָף וַיִּשְׂרָף וַיִּשְׂרָף 1 Chron. 17 18, thus harmonising by a reverse process the two parallel passages (2 Sam. 7 20; 1 Chron. 17 18). That this is not due to the first editor of the Massorah, but that the Rubric in this form proceeds from a School of Massorites which had this reading in their Codices, is evident from the following remark appended to it by Jacob b. Chayim אשר העתיק ובידו המפורסם שלט הוא דרשה קצתה עור לרוב ע"ב Chayim

And wherever it is preceded by the verb to do it is likewise with this prefix. Preceded by עָשָׂה it occurs six times and is uniformly עָשָׂה (1 Kings 11 6, 38; 15 11; 2 Kings 14 3; 16 2; 2 Chron. 28 1). Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 190a, on 1 Sam. 22 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 207a, on Amos 6 5; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 811b, on Zech. 12 8; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 196b, on 1 Sam. 22 14, and (V) the printed Massorah on Amos 6 5.

Lists I, II and IV, though emanating from different Schools and from countries far apart, are identical. They take no notice of the fact that some of the instances are plene and some defective, since this is outside the scope of this Massorah. List III, however, heads this Rubric כָּדָוִד בֵּית and as it is without the second part it is evident that its design is to record the three instances in which this name with the prefix Caph is plene, in contradistinction to the six in which it is defective. But though its statement that כָּדָוִד is three times plene is quite correct, yet the first instance which it gives וַיִּשָּׂא בְּיַד דָּוִד אֶת הַיָּרֵךְ 1 Sam. 22 14, is in conflict with the received text. In the textus receptus the three plene instances are Amos 6 5; Zech. 12 8 and 2 Chron. 28 1. It is, therefore, evident that either a later Nakdan who found this Rubric without its second part, mistook its import and hence altered the heading into כָּבֵית, or if the Rubric as it is actually proceeded from the original Massorites themselves, it is based upon a recension of the text in which 1 Sam. 22 14 was plene and 2 Chron. 28 1 defective. The printed Massorah (List IV), which has the second part כָּבֵית וְכָל דָּוִד בְּיַד is manifestly corrupt and ought to be כָּבֵית וְכָל עֲשִׂיית דָּוִד בְּיַד, as is attested by Lists I and II.

לְדָוִד to, or of David, is twice with the accent Passa in this book. That is, in the Psalter and when it begins the Psalm, in contradistinction to the seven instances in which it is with a different accent in this position, recorded in the following Rubric. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ps. 25 1. The heading ought more properly to be לְדָוִד בְּשֵׁיבַת בְּיַד, since apart from its beginning the verse it also occurs with the same accent in Ps. 132 11.

לְדָוִד is in seven instances with the accent. That is, with Asla before Legarmeh. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 180b, on Ps. 26 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 851a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (IV) the same on Ps. 103 1. The addition at the end of the Rubric is needless and affords another illustration of the fact that the Nakdanim added phrases which are no part of the Massorah, simply to fill out the line.

לְדָוִד. Throughout this book it is [a Psalm] of David except in seven instances where it is Of David a Psalm. As the expression לְדָוִד normally precedes לְדָוִד in which combination this phrase occurs twenty-seven times (vide infra, letter א, § 264, Vol. II, p. 207) and as it is in these seven instances only where the order is inverted, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional inversion. By fixing the number at seven, the design of the Massorah is to militate against those textual redactors who read לְדָוִד לְדָוִד in Ps. 40 1, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ps. 24 1. That the design of this Massorah is to contrast the abnormal phrase לְדָוִד לְדָוִד with the normal combination לְדָוִד לְדָוִד and that the expression לְדָוִד לְדָוִד has been carelessly omitted in the heading before לְדָוִד, is attested by the heading of this Rubric on Ps. 109 1 where it is לְדָוִד לְדָוִד and where Jacob b. Chayim refers for the List to Ps. 24 1.

לְדָוִד sick, occurs three times in the Scriptures . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. That is, the feminine form with Kametz under the Vav, in contradistinction to the only instance where this trilateral adjective occurs and where it is with Segol under the Vav, being the masculine (Lament 5 17).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 14a, on Isa. 30 22, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 873b, on Lament 1 18; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 76b, on Levit. 20 18; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 170a, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Isa. 30 22.

וַיִּרְדּוּ they shall wash, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 193b, on Ezek. 40 38, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 259a, on 2 Chron. 4 6.

לְדָוִד faint, sick at heart, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 268b, on Lament 1 22, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 1 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 119a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 856a, on Lament 1 22; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 273a, on Jerem. 8 18; (VI) the printed Massorah on Isa. 1 5, and (VII) the same on Lament 1 22.

לְדָוִד silent, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 826a, on Ps. 39 3, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 287b, fol. 29a, on the same passage; (III) Cambridge Add. 465, also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 62 2.

The conflict between these Lists and the contradictory remarks in the Massorah Parva, both in the MSS. and in the printed edition, on the respective passages are due to the fact that these Lists emanate from different Massoretic Schools and that they are based upon different redactions of the text, as will be seen from the following analysis.

Lists II and III head this Rubric לְדָוִד בְּיַד וְכָל דָּוִד and give the first and last instance (Ps. 22 8; 65 2) as defective and the second and third (39 3; 62 2) as plene. Not only is the text in Orient. 2375 where List II is given in harmony with this recension, but Orient. 2212 and Orient. 2376 fully coincide therewith. This is moreover corroborated by the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,250 and Orient. 2376, on Ps. 22 3; by Harley 5710—11 and Arund. Orient. 16, on Ps. 39 3; by Harley 5710—11 and Cambridge Add. 465, on Ps. 62 2, all of which remark on these passages that it occurs four times, twice plene and twice defective (ר"י ב' מלי ו' ז' ח'). In accordance with this Massorah Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 second hand; Orient. 4227; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the second edition, Naples 1491—98; the third edition, Brescia 1494; the fourth edition, Pesaro 1511—17 and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible Venice 1517 read it רָקַק defective in Ps. 22 3; and in accordance with this Massorah also Orient. 2201 second hand; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227; the first, third and fourth editions of the Bible; the Salonica edition of the Psalms &c. 1515; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25 have it רָקַק defective in Ps. 65 2.

The second recension of this Rubric is exhibited in List IV. The heading of this Rubric states that רָקַק, which occurs four times, is defective in one instance only (ר"י ז' ח') and emphatically specifies Ps. 22 3 as the solitary defective (ר"י ז' ח'), thus excluding Ps. 65 2, which according to this is plene. This recension is followed by Orient. 2201 first hand; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451; the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486—87; the accurately-printed second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491—98 and the Complutensian. It is remarkable that though the Massorah Parva on Ps. 65 2 repeats the statement that it occurs four times, three times plene and once defective (ר"י ז' ח' מלי ו' ז' ח') Jacob b. Chayim has here רָקַק defective, which is in conflict with List IV, given in his own edition of the Massorah. The addition at the end of the Rubric which I have printed, viz. רָקַק מלי ו' ז' ח' ח', is manifestly due to a clerical error and should be רָקַק ר"י ז' ח' ח', without the expression מלי, as is attested by the Massorah Parva on Ps. 22 3 in this very MS. In accordance with the first recension of this Rubric the margin and the text in Ps. 22 3 in my edition of the Bible, must now change places.

קָלִים dumb, silent, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 189a, on Isa. 47 5. As the only other instance in which this adverb with the termination Mem occurs is with the prefix Vav (Lament 3 16), this Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words, which respectively occur three times, twice without Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter י, § 70.)

קָלִים - § 139.

קָלִים to judge, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, the Kal infinitive with the prefix Lamed, in contradistinction to the other two instances in which this quadriliteral occurs where it is once קָלִים, the noun קָלִים with the prefix Lamed (Deut. 17 8) and once קָלִים, the noun קָלִים with the prefix Lamed (1 Sam. 24 15).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 205b, on Eccl. 6 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 120a, on Isa. 8 18, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 50 4.

קָלִים occurs three times. That is, as a verb denoting to judge. Though this biliteral is in one instance the preterite third person singular masculine (Jerem. 22 16) and in two instances the active participle (Gen. 15 14; Jerem. 30 18), yet the Massorah groups all the three together under one Rubric because of their identity in spelling.

And wherever it is the proper name of a man it is likewise so. This part of the Rubric is incorrect. The biliteral קָלִים, which occurs fifty-five times, is the proper name of a man in forty-five instances only, and in the other ten it is the name of a place (Gen. 14 14; Deut. 24 1; Josh. 19 47; Judg. 18 29; 1 Kings 12 30; 15 20; Amos 8 14; 1 Chron. 21 2; 2 Chron. 16 4; 30 5). It ought, therefore, to be קָלִים אִישׁ וְקָלִים אֶרֶץ as it is in List VII.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 36a, on Gen. 15 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 46a, on the same passage; (III)

Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 160b, on Jerem. 22 16; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 250a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 2a, on Gen. 15 14; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 22 16. Lists III, IV, V and VI have not this second part of the Rubric. But as they head the Rubric קָלִים בְּלִישׁוֹת or בְּלִישׁוֹת קָלִים, they restrict the instances to the verb and hence could without ambiguity omit the notice of this biliteral as a proper name.

קָמַט as was, occurs three times, twice with Patach and once with Kametz. As this noun with the prefix Caph, which occurs altogether three times, has in one instance a Kametz, owing to the pausal accent (Ps. 22 15), the Massorah safeguards this variation in the graphic signs. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 808b, on Ps. 97 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 337a; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 865b, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

קָמַט - § 142.

קָמַט as a circle, or ball, occurs twice. The only other instance in which this noun occurs it is without the prefix Caph (Ezek. 24 5). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 127b, on Isa. 22 18.

קָמַט generation and generation, is four times plene in the Hagiographa. The following explanatory remarks will show the design of this Massorah in the three forms in which it is exhibited in § 143a—c. The expression קָמַט generation or as the proper name of a place Dor, without and with the prefixes, which occurs fifty-three times, is normally plene. Of the fifty-three times in which it occurs by itself, it is קָמַט with the Vav in fifty-one instances and twice is קָמַט defective. (Vide infra, § 143b.) It is when immediately repeated, viz. קָמַט קָמַט or קָמַט קָמַט &c. that the orthography of the expression varies in this reduplication. In some instances the first of the two is plene and the second defective; in some the reverse is the case; in some both are plene and in some both are defective. As these variations are in one division of the Bible the exception and in the other the rule, the different Schools of Massorites have safeguarded the minorities in separate Rubrics. In § 143a the exceptional orthography in the third division is recorded. Here where this reduplication occurs altogether twenty-two times, both expressions are defective in fourteen instances (Ps. 10 6; 33 11; 45 18; 61 7; 77 9; 85 6; 89 2; 90 1; 100 5; 102 18; 106 31; 119 90; 135 18; 146 10). In one instance the first expression is defective (Ps. 89 5) and in three instances the second is defective (Ps. 49 12; 79 18; 145 18). As it is in four instances only that both are plene in this reduplication, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional passages.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 275b, on Esther 9 28, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Ps. 145 4. The heading in the printed Massorah קָמַט קָמַט קָמַט קָמַט is more precise, since by the addition of the expression קָמַט it rightly indicates that this reduplication has different prefixes. The statement, however, of this List that there are five such plene instances in the Hagiographa and the inclusion of Eccl. 1 4 as the fifth instance is not quite correct, since in this passage another word (קָמַט) intervenes between קָמַט קָמַט and though it is also given in § 143c it is rightly excluded in List I.

It will be seen that the reduplication in Ps. 79 18 is not only excluded in these Lists from the instances in which both expressions are plene, but is one of the four instances of this reduplication in which the first expression alone is plene and the second defective recorded in §§ 143b—c. Accordingly קָמַט plene in this passage, which I have adopted in my edition of the Bible, in accordance with Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451; the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486—87; the first, second and third editions of the Bible. (Soncino 1488, Naples 1491—98; Brescia 1494); the Salonica Psalms &c. 1515; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible 1517; and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, must be קָמַט defective, in accordance with the oldest and best Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,161; Orient. 4227 and with the Complutensian.

generation and generation, is four times thus written. That is, in this reduplication the first expression alone is plene and the second is defective. By fixing the number at four, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the recensions of the text which read קמי plene in Jerem. 4 39, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Throughout the Prophets &c. This part of the Rubric records the orthography of the reduplication in the Prophets, apart from the solitary instance in Jerem. 50 39 included in the first link of this concatenation, and in the Hagiographa. In the Prophets, where it occurs eight times (Isa. 13 20; 34 10, 17; 58 12; 60 15; 61 4; Joel 2 2; 4 20), both the expressions in the reduplication are uniformly plene. Hence the Massorah simply states the fact without specifying the passages. As to the instances in the Hagiographa which are exceptionally also plene, these constitute the preceding separate Rubric, whilst the two last instances are the abnormally defective orthography of קמי by itself. It will be seen that one of the two (Josh. 17 11) is part of a proper name of the place En-Dor.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 50 39, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Ps. 49 12. The heading in the printed Massorah ר' רבמ"ט ב"מ קמי מ' מ' מ' מ' leaves the import of this Rubric beyond the shadow of a doubt. It emphatically declares that in these four instances the first of the reduplication alone is plene and that the second is defective. This List, however, does not give the second part of the Rubric.

all the forms קמי when by itself &c. This Rubric safeguards the orthography of the expression קמי both when it occurs by itself and when it is reduplicated throughout the Scriptures, in a chain of six links. As each link has a separate heading I shall explain the import of each in the order in which it is exhibited in this concatenation.

(A) All the forms of קמי. That is, whether denoting generation or as a proper name of a place are always plene with the exception of two instances. (Vide supra, letter ק, § 143a.)

(B) And in all the forms in which it is reduplicated. That is, wherever it is repeated with the different prefixes (בליש) it is likewise defective in both members of this reduplication in the Hagiographa, with the exception of five instances. It will be seen that here too, Eccl. 1 4 is given as one of the instances, which is rightly excluded from the first form of this Rubric. (Vide supra, letter ק, § 143a.)

(C) And throughout the Prophets it is likewise so. That is, in the second division of the Scriptures it is likewise plene in both members of the reduplication. (Vide supra, letter ק, § 143b.)

(D) In four instances the first of the reduplication alone is plene and the second defective. (Vide supra, letter ק, § 143b.)

(E) In one instance the reverse is the case the first is defective and the second plene (Ps. 89 5).

(F) And in four instances the singular is spelt with Aleph. That is, קמי instead of קמי. (Vide supra, letter ק, § 16.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Frensdorff's Massoretisches Wörterbuch, p. 48, note 1, communicated by Heidenheim from a MS.

The above analysis discloses the following result; that this reduplication, which occurs altogether thirty-four times, is entirely defective in seventeen instances (Exod. 3 15; 17 16; Deut. 32 7; Ps. 10 6; 33 11; 45 18; 61 7; 77 9; 85 6; 89 2; 90 1; 100 5; 102 13; 106 31; 119 90; 135 13; 146 10); in twelve it is entirely plene (Isa. 13 20; 34 10, 17; 58 12; 60 15; 61 4; Joel 2 2; 4 20; Ps. 145 4; Prov. 27 24; Lament. 5 19; Esther 9 28); in one instance the first of the reduplication only is defective (Ps. 89 5) and in four instances the second alone is defective (Jerem. 50 39; Ps. 49 12; 79 13; 145 13). Accordingly Ps. 145 13 in my edition of the Bible, ought to be קמי defective.

and generation, occurs twice in the Scriptures and is plene. That is, with Sheva under the Vav, in contradistinction both to the thirteen instances in which it is plene and the Var is with Kametz and to the seventeen defective instances also with Kametz. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 263a, on Eccl. 1 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 11b, on Gen. 15 16;

(III) Add. 15,251, fol. 19b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. The heading קמי ב' in the printed Massorah (List IV), is manifestly a clerical error for בקמי.

from generation to generation, occurs three times in this form. That is, in these instances only is קמיה without and with the prefix (בליש), followed by the plural קמיה instead of the singular. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 234b, on Isa. 51 8.

our generations, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this expression which not only occurs twice but in two successive verses, is spelt differently, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard this variation in the spelling. By plene is meant that it is קמי with Vav after the Resh alone and not קמי with two Vavs. This is attested both by the oldest MSS. and the Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251 and the best early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 16b, on Josh. 22 27.

throughout, or in your generations, occurs five times at the end of the verse in the Pentateuch. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 82b, on Numb. 15 21, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ק, § 77. With the exception of the heading in which List II omits the expression קמי, the two Lists give identically the same five passages. As there are nine instances in which קמי ends the verse, I cannot divine why these five only are recorded and the following four are omitted Exod. 16 38; 30 8, 31; Numb. 10 a.

to thresh, occurs twice. That is, once defective (2 Kings 13 7) and once plene (Hosea 10 11). The design of this Massorah is twofold. As this infinitive with the prefix Lamed, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt the Massorah in the first place safeguards the variation in its orthography. And secondly it is directed against the School of textual redactors which exhibited קמי as the textual reading in Hosea 10 11, with the Keri קמי in the margin, as is attested by the Model Codex, Harley 5710-11.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 202b, on Hosea 10 11, which I have printed, and (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 247b, on 2 Kings 13 7. The heading of List II קמי מ' מ' מ' מ' is more precise.

thou shalt thresh, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 214b, on Habak. 3 12, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 280a, on Isa. 41 15.

from falling, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 56 14. As both instances are in the Psalter the heading ought more properly to be קמי.

he hastened, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 274a, on Esther 6 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 165a, on 2 Chron. 26 20; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Esther 6 12, and (V) the same on 2 Chron. 26 20. List IV heads this Rubric קמי.

sufficient, enough, occurs six times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. That is, with Tzere in contra-distinction to the numerous instances in which this biliteral is with Cherek, being the Chaldee relative pronoun, or a sign of the genitive. In the only other instance in which the Hebrew biliteral occurs, it is ׃ with Kametz, being with the pausal accent (Mal. 3 10).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 19a, on Isa. 40 16, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 130b, on Deut. 15 8, and (III) the printed Massorah on Levit. 12 8. The latter heads it ׃ . As it enumerates the same six instances only and adds at the end ׃ (Prov. 27 27), it is evident that the number seven in the heading is meant to include the instance with Vav and that ׃ at the end stands for ׃ and one of the seven is &c.

׃ as often as he passed, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 99b, on 2 Kings 4 8, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 130a, on Isa. 28 19.

קניד = § 154.

׃ from year to year, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 30a, on 1 Sam. 7 16, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 149a, on the same passage.

׃ enough, or sufficient for them, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 79a, on Exod. 36 7, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 49 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 208b, on Obad. 5; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 305a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 301b, also on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 301b, on Jerem. 49 9; (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 36 7, and (VIII) the same on Jerem. 49 9.

׃ Dibon, is three times plene. That is, with Vav. This proper name without and with the prefixes, occurs altogether eleven times. As it is defective in eight instances (Numb. 21 30; 32 3, 34; 33 45, 46; Josh. 13 17; Isa. 15 2; Neh. 11 25) and plene in three only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional later orthography. By fixing the number at three, the design of this Massorah is to exclude the reading ׃ in Isa. 15 2, which was exhibited in the text of another School of Massorites, as is attested by Orient. 2201, second hand; Harley 5710—11, first hand; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451; Orient. 4227; Orient. 1478, and all the early editions except one.

That the earlier reading in Isa. 15 2 was ׃ defective is attested by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201, first hand; Harley 5710—11, second hand with the remark of the Massorah Parva on it ׃ ; Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 15,251 &c. To these Standard Codices is to be added the extremely accurate Lisbon edition of Isaiah 1492, and the fact that though Orient. 1478 has it plene, the Nakdan remarks in the Massorah Parva ׃ , from which we learn that the celebrated Mugah Codex also exhibited the defective reading.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 10a, on Josh. 13 9, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ׃ , § 80.

׃ Dishon, or the pygmy, bison, is always without Vav except once. This expression, which occurs altogether eight times is restricted to the Pentateuch and Chronicles, between which it is equally divided. In the Pentateuch, where it occurs four times, it is normally without the Vav (Gen. 36 25, 30a; Deut. 14 5) and in one instance only is it with the Vav (Gen. 36 21a). Hence here the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception.

And throughout Chronicles it is likewise entirely plene except in one instance. Here where it also occurs four times the reverse is the case. It is with the Vav in three instances (1 Chron. 1 41, 42) and in one instance only is it without the Vav (1 Chron. 1 38a). Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the defective spelling.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed; (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 26b, on Gen. 36 21, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 36b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. The heading ׃ in List I, is due to the fact that in Chronicles it is both with Yod and Vav except in one instance. List II makes this point more clear, inasmuch as it heads the first part ׃ .

׃ A sign to indicate where this name is Dishon and where ׃ in this Section. That is, in Gen. 36 21—30. Within ten verses of this chapter this name occurs promiscuously seven times in two different forms. In three instances it is with Cholem (Gen. 36 21a, 25, 30b) and in four with Kametz (Gen. 36 21b, 26, 28, 30a). Moreover as these two forms are used in one and the same verse (36 21, 30), the Massorah safeguards the respective forms.

And the sign is that on the day whereon the Law is read it is ׃ and the others are ׃ , beginning with the Sabbath day. As the seven instances correspond to the seven days of the week, the mnemonic sign indicates that on the three days when the Lesson from the Pentateuch is read, viz. the Sabbath, Monday and Thursday, answering to the first, third and fifth instances, the name is with Cholem and in the other four, which correspond to the four days in which the Law is not read, it is without Cholem i. e. with Kametz.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 26b, on Gen. 36 21, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 36b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. The sixth instance, viz. 36 30a should be ׃ and the seventh 36 30b ׃ .

׃ Throughout the Pentateuch it is ׃ defective. That is, in the two instances in the Pentateuch where this name occurs without the prefix Vav, it is defective of Vav (Gen. 36 25, 30a).

And wherever it is with the prefix Vav in the Pentateuch it is with Vav plene except once. Considering that with the prefix this name occurs once only in the Pentateuch (Gen. 36 21a) and that in Deut. 14 5 where it is defective it denotes a species of antelope, this heading of the second part of the Rubric is misleading, since it suggests that ׃ is of frequent occurrence in the Pentateuch.

And all through Chronicles it is plene except once. For this part of the Rubric see letter ׃ , § 157a.

׃ and Dishon, occurs four times in this form. That is, without and with the prefix Vav it occurs four times in the Pentateuch, three times defective and once plene.

And all through Chronicles it is likewise plene except once. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 48b, on Gen. 36 21, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 58b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Deut. 14 5, which gives the second part of this Rubric only.

׃ , ׃ , this. From Ezra 1 1 to 5 15 the expression used is ׃ and from 5 16 to the end of the Chaldee [i. e. 6 18] it is ׃ . This Chaldee demonstrative pronoun occurs altogether thirteen times. In six instances it is ׃ with Tzere, being the masculine (Ezra 5 16, 17; 6 7, 7, 8, 12) and in seven it is ׃ with Kametz, the feminine (Ezra 4 13, 15, 15, 16, 19, 21; 5 8). It will be seen from this analysis that these two forms not only occur in the same book, but that they are severally restricted to a different part of the book. Hence the Massorah summarily indicates the two parts in which they respectively occur.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 375b, on Ezra 5 16, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

׃ a crushing, broken or contrite, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 126b, on Deut. 23 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 27a, on Isa. 57 15; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 202a, on Ps. 90 3; (IV) Arund.

Orient. 16, fol. 143a, on Isa. 57 15; (V) the same MS., fol. 307a, on Ps. 90 3; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 109a, on Deut. 23 2; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 286a, on Isa. 57 15; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 427b, on Ps. 90 3; (IX) Orient. 2348, fol. 146a, on Deut. 23 2; (X) Orient. 2349, fol. 186b, on the same passage; (XI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (XII) the same on Isa. 57 15. These Lists represent two different recensions of the text and emanate from two different Schools of textual redactors.

Recension I. To this recension belongs List VII, which heads it with He in Deut. 23 2. This reading is supported by Orient. 2201; and the Complutensian and was originally the reading of the Mugah Codex, which was afterwards altered according to the testimony of the Massorah Parva in this MS.

Recension II. To this recension belong Lists IV, IX and X. They head the Rubric with Aleph. This is supported by the textual reading of Harley 5710-11, Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451; Orient. 2348; Orient. 2349, and all the early editions except the Complutensian.

The other eight Lists cannot with safety be assigned to either of these recensions since they simply state that occurs three times and do not indicate the spelling. The Massorah Parva in Cambridge Add. 465, on Deut. 23 2, viz. Delajah, shows the conflicting views of the Massorites. Most of the Lists have either at the end or beginning indicating thereby that the three instances respectively occur in the Law, the Prophets and Hagiographa.

thou hast broken, occurs twice once with Aleph and once with Yod. Though these two expressions belong to two different roots, one being the Piel of to break, and the other the Piel of to break, the Massorah treats them as identical and hence safeguards the variation in the spelling in the two instances in which it occurs. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 296b, on Ps. 51 10. As both instances occur in the Psalter the heading ought more properly to be broken.

this, occurs three times. That is, this lengthier form of the demonstrative pronoun, in contradistinction to the shorter it. (Vide supra, letter g, § 158.) Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 365a, on Dan. 2 31, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 409b, on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter g, § 88.

§ 162.

Eight words, which are masculine are read as feminine. For this Rubric, see below letter z, § 88.

poor, weak, or door, is twelve times with Pathach. That is, in these instances the noun poor without and with the prefixes, as well as the Kal preterite third person plural and the Niph'al future third person singular without and with the prefix Var, of the root to be weak, the Daleth has Pathach, in contradistinction to those instances in which it is with Kametz. By fixing the number at twelve, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the reading poor with Pathach in Ps. 82 3, which is exhibited in some MSS.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated no fewer than twenty Lists. I shall however specify the following thirteen only: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 205a, on 2 Sam. 13 4, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 98b, on Levit. 14 21; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 64b, on 2 Sam. 13 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 319b, on Ps. 141 3; (V) the same MS., fol. 323a, on Job 5 16; (VI) the same MS., fol. 344b, on Prov. 22 22; (VII) the same MS., fol. 347a, on Prov. 28 11; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 166b, on Judg. 6 15; (IX) the same MS., fol. 348a, on Isa. 17 4; (X) the same MS., fol. 434b, on Ps. 141 3; (XI) Halle Oehler Ve-Oehler II, § 23, margin; (XII) the printed Massorah on Judg. 6 6, and (XIII) the same on Ps. 141 3.

The oldest form of this Massorah (List II) as well as Lists III-V, VIII-XIII, add at the end of this Rubric, poor and weak.

and whenever poor, is combined with poor it is likewise with Pathach. In this combination it occurs twice (Ps. 72 13; 82 4). The omission of this second part of the Rubric in Lists I, VI and IX, is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe.

poor, occurs twice. The only other instance in which it occurs it is poor with Kametz, which is due to the pausal accent (Zeph. 3 12). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 343a, on Prov. 19 4.

poor, occurs three times in this form. That is, without and with prefixes. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 51b, on Gen. 41 19, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 61b, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 370a, on Jerem. 52 15. As two of the instances are with prefixes, List III heads this Rubric and simply records these two.

Delajah, occurs three times. That is, in this lengthened form, in contradistinction to the four instances in which the primitive shorter form Delajah, has been preserved (Ezra. 2 60; Neh. 6 10; 7 62; 1 Chron. 3 24). For the cause of this change see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Bible p. 386 &c.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 253b, on 1 Chron. 24 18, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 36 12, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As the three instances are with prefixes, List III, more properly heads this Rubric poor.

I was brought low, occurs twice, once with the accent on the ultima and once on the penultima. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ps. 143 7. Though it simply safeguards the different position of the accents in these two instances where this Piel preterite first person singular occurs, yet there is also a difference in the orthography of it, which this Massorah leaves unnoticed. In Ps. 116 6 it is defective. This is attested by Orient. 2201 first hand; Harley 5710-11, Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251, and Orient. 4227. It is, however, to be remarked that Orient. 2201 second hand and Add. 15,451, have it plene poor and this is the reading in the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486-87; the first, second and third editions of the Bible (Soncino 1488, Naples 1491-93, Brescia 1494); the Salonica edition of the Psalms &c. 1515; the Complutensian; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-25. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once Milra and once Milël. (Vide infra, letter z, § 194.)

they fail, occurs twice, once with the accent on the ultima and once on the penultima. The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to safeguard the different position of the accent in the only two instances in which this preterite third person plural occurs.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 380b, on Job 28 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 353a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter g, § 86. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once Milra and once Milël. (Vide infra, letter z, § 194.)

she droppeth, or weepeth, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 212b, on Ps. 119 28, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

קע it shall drop, leak, or Jidlah, occurs twice, once Milra and once Miteh. That is, once it is with Kametz and once with Cholem. It will be seen that with Kametz this quadriliteral is a proper name (Gen. 22 22) and that with Cholem it is the future third person singular masculine. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 22 22. It is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once with a long vowel and once with a short vowel. (Vide infra, letter 7, § 606, Vol. II, p. 310 &c.)

קעא leaves, boards, occurs three times in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the plural קעא when it is in the absolute (קעא) and when in the construct (קעא). The two forms occur altogether twenty-five times. In seventeen instances it is with Sheva, being in the construct and in six only is it with Kametz, as it is Massoretically called i. e. in the absolute. But as this minority in all the rest of the Scriptures is the majority in one book, the Massorah divides this Rubric into two parts for the purpose of safeguarding the exceptions in each case.

In all the rest of the Scriptures where the two forms occur altogether nineteen times, it is קעא in the construct in sixteen instances (Judg. 3 23 24 25; 19 27; 1 Sam. 3 15; 21 14; 1 Kings 6 31, 32, 34; 2 Kings 18 16; Isa. 45 2; Ps. 107 16; Neh. 6 10; 2 Chron. 28 24; 29 3, 7) and in three only is it with Kametz. Hence the Massorah safeguards here the exceptions.

And throughout Ezekiel it is likewise so except twice. In this book where the two forms occur six times, the reverse is the case. The absolute קעא occurs four times (41 23, 24, 24, 24) and the construct twice only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 57a, on Jerem. 36 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 151a, on 2 Chron. 4 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 171b, on Jerem. 36 23; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 396b, on Neh. 6 1; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 424a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach II, § 280, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 7, § 88. List V heads this Rubric בְּקַעִי in the Scriptures, in the heading of List I is not to be taken strictly, but as denoting the Bible apart from Ezekiel. It will be seen that though the Rubrics include the instance with the prefix Vav (קעא 2 Chron. 4 9) they exclude the instances with the prefixes ב, ה and ל.

קעי the innocent blood, is three times thus combined. That is, with Pathach under the Daleth and with He before קע, in contradistinction to all the eleven instances where it is simply קע with Kametz under the Daleth and is not followed by the prefix He. (Deut. 19 10; 21 8; 27 25; 2 Kings 21 16; 24 4; Isa. 59 7; Jerem. 26 15; Joel 4 19; Jonah 1 14; Ps. 106 38; Prov. 6 17).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 257b, on 2 Kings 24 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 107a, on Deut. 19 13; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 249b, on Jerem. 22 17; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 134a, on Deut. 19 13; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Kings 24 4; (VI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 19 13, and (VII) the same on 2 Kings 24 4.

קעד my blood, occurs twice . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this trilateral which is the noun קעד blood, with the suffix first person singular, against being confused with the trilateral קעד rest, silence, in which the Yod is part of the noun and the Daleth is with Chateph-Kametz, recorded below letter 7, § 186. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 54a, on 1 Sam. 26 20, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 7, § 92. This Rubric, is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter 7, § 70.)

קעה - § 175.

קעה in thy blood, occurs twice. That is, in the singular, in contradistinction to the other three instances in which this noun with the prefix Beth and the suffix second person feminine, is in the plural. (Comp. קעה Ezek. 16 6, 6, 6). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 180b, on Ezek. 22 4.

קעי from her blood, occurs six times. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 245a, on 2 Kings 9 33, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 138b, on Numb. 19 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 104b, on 2 Kings 9 33; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 94a, on Numb. 19 4; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 141a, on Levit. 4 30; (VI) the same MS., fol. 221a, on Numb. 19 4; (VII) Orient. 2349, fol. 84a, on Levit. 4 30, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As five out of the six instances occur in the Pentateuch, List VII heads this Rubric קעי and enumerates the five only. This explains the heading of List IV, viz. קעי, which would otherwise seem in conflict with the other Lists, as the expression קעי has here manifestly been omitted.

קעי the bloods, occurs twice. This Rubric, which is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ezek. 24 9, is difficult to explain, since this expression occurs five times, Ezek. 22 2; 2 Sam. 16 7; 21 1 being omitted. קעי, which I have added in brackets, does not remove the difficulty, since one of the omitted instances occurs in this book. קעי would remove the difficulty better as the two instances which constitute this Rubric occur in the same section.

קעי - § 178.

קעי bloods, or blood of, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 31a, on Gen. 4 10, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 30a, on the same passage. As it is קעי in 2 Chron. 24 25 it is clear that this Rubric embraces the plural construct without and with the prefix Beth. In these two forms, however, it occurs no fewer than fourteen times. In twelve instances it is קעי (Gen. 4 10, 11; Levit. 12 5; 2 Sam. 16 8; 1 Kings 2 5, 5, 31; 2 Kings 9 7, 26, 26; Isa. 4 4; Hosea 1 4) and in two קעי (Levit. 12 4; 2 Chron. 24 25). It is, therefore, difficult to divine why this Massorah records three instances only. The Massorah Parva in Add. 15,250, which remarks on Gen. 4 10, that it occurs five times (קעי), does not aid us in solving the problem and probably refers to the five which constitute the following Rubric. It may be that these three instances, as is sometimes the case, are selected to represent the three divisions of the Bible, each of which as a whole is taken to furnish one example.

קעי the plural construct, for which the Sevir [the extra-official reading] is five times קעי the singular. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 31a, on Gen. 4 10, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, on the same passage.

קע - § 180.

קע her blood, is three times plene. That is, with Yod after the Mem. With the suffix third person singular feminine, קע occurs altogether ten times. In seven instances it is in the singular with this suffix or without Yod (comp. קע Levit. 4 30, 34; 10 18; 15 25; Numb. 19 5; Ezek. 24 7, 8) and in three only is it with the Yod or in the plural. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional form.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 2710-11, Vol. I, fol. 70a, on Levit. 12 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MSS., Vol. II, fol. 12a, on Isa. 26 21; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 128a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 62a, on Levit. 12 7, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קָסִיָּה he was like, occurs twice. That is, this preterite third person singular masculine, in contradistinction to the seven instances in which this trilateral is with Dagesh in the He. (Vide supra, letter 7, § 180.) Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ezek. 31 8, which I have printed, and (II) the same Codex on Ps. 144 4.

קָסִיָּה I have likened, or I am like, occurs twice . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. That is, the Kal preterite first person singular, in contradistinction to the other two instances where this quinqueliteral is קָסִיָּה the Piel, recorded in Rubric 184.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 84b, on Isa. 14 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 151a, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 249a, also on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words, which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav, and once with it. (Vide infra, letter 7, § 70.)

קָסִיָּה be thou like, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs twice in the sense of to be like and is written with He . . . and whenever it denotes the blood of, it is written with Yod. The addition at the end indicates the import of this Massorah, which is to fix the orthography of the trilateral homonym with Sheva and Thare. When it is the imperative and denotes be like it is spelt with He at the end and when it is the plural construct of 7 blood, it is with Yod.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 349a, on Cant. 2 17, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Cant. 8 14. These two Lists afford a striking illustration of the fact that the same textual phenomena were differently elaborated by the several Massoretic Schools. The instances which constitute this Rubric are part of the alphabetical List of words, which respectively occur twice, once without and once with the prefix Vav. (Vide infra, letter 7, § 37.)

קָסִיָּה I have thought, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to this quinqueliteral, which is pointed קָסִיָּה, which also occurs twice and which is recorded in § 182.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 125a, on Isa. 14 24, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 156a, on Numb. 33 56; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 94a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 220a, on Isa. 14 24, and (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 248b, on Numb. 33 56.

קָסִיָּה I shall liken, occurs twice. In contradistinction to the only other instance in which the future first person of קָסִיָּה to become like, occurs where it is קָסִיָּה the Hithpael Isa. 14 14.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 208a, on Hosea 12 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 856b, on Lament. 2 18; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Hosea 12 11, and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Lament. 2 18.

קָסִיָּה silence, rest, occurs three times in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this trilateral with Chataph-Kametz under the Daleth against being confused with קָסִיָּה my blood, which is recorded in § 174.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 29b, on Isa. 62 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 199b, on Ps. 83 2; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 237a, on Isa. 62 6; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 237b, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 7, § 95.

קָסִיָּה Dammin, occurs twice with Dagesh. That is, in these two instances this quadrilateral has Dagesh in the Mem, which is due to the Patach under the Daleth, being part of the proper name of a place, in contradistinction to the twenty instances in which it is קָסִיָּה with Mem Raphe, being the plural of 7 blood. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 46b, on 1 Sam. 17 1.

קָסִיָּה - § 188.

קָסִיָּה stand thou still, be silent, occurs three times in the Scriptures, twice plene and once defective. As this imperative, which occurs three times only, is spelt in two different ways, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the variation in the spelling.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 85b, on Ezek. 24 17, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 184a, on Pa. 37 7; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 24 17; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 182b, on Ezek. 24 17; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 288a, on the same passage; (VI) the same MS., fol. 325a, on Pa. 37 7; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 822a, on Ezek. 24 17, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 7, § 94. List VI heads this Rubric 7 7 and enumerates two instances only. But this apparent conflict is due to the fact that this List records the plenes alone and hence excludes Ezek. 24 17, which is defective.

קָסִיָּה be ye still, occurs twice . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 43a, on 1 Sam. 14 9 which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 127b, on Isa. 23 2. The latter heads it 7 7. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words, which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter 7, § 70.)

קָסִיָּה - § 190.

קָסִיָּה he shall be still or silent, occurs twice . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 111a, on Amos 5 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 181b, on Pa. 30 13; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 800a, on Amos 5 13, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Pa. 30 13.

קָסִיָּה and he was silent, occurs twice with Dagesh . . . and once it is 7 7 with Sheva. That is, in these two instances it is with Patach under the Vav followed by Dagesh in the Yod, being the future third person singular with Vav conversive, and in the third instance it is with Sheva as the Vav is the conjunctive.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 68b, on Levit. 10 3, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 93b, on Add. 15,250, fol. 60b; (IV) Orient. 2849, fol. 87a, and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. With the exception of List I all the other Lists simply head this Rubric either 7 7 or 7 7.

קָסִיָּה occurs twice. That is, in two different senses. In the first instance it is the proper name of a man, with the prefix Vav and denotes and Dan, and in the second it is the name of a city and the Vav is part of the name i. e. Vedan.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 184a, on Ezek. 27 19, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 823b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

Lists II and III, head this Rubric more properly 7 7 7 7 and these two expressions are part of the alphabetical List of words, which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter 2, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217 &c.)

קָסִיָּה - § 193.

קָסִיָּה Daniel is three times without Yod. That is, in these three instances the name is defective in the text or Kethiv and the official reading or Keri is קָסִיָּה. The design of this Massorah is to make these three exceptional instances in which the primitive orthography of this proper name has survived, conformable to all the instances in which the later pronunciation has been introduced. Originally the name was either קָסִיָּה judge of God or קָסִיָּה = קָסִיָּה my judge is God. But to safeguard the Divine name 7 7 God, the ancient redactors of the text pointed and pronounced it קָסִיָּה Dani-iel, thus obliterating the name 7 7. Hence this remarkable phenomenon in the MSS. and in the printed editions, of the silent Aleph and the Yod not only having the There but Dagesh. (Comp. my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical text of the Bible p. 396 &c.)

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 175a, on Ezek. 14 20, which I have printed; (II) Cambridge Add. 465, on Ezek. 14 14; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. List II heads this Rubric, וְיִצְאֵל בְּלִי בְּיָדוֹ כִּי הָיָה בְּיָדוֹ בְּיָדוֹ חֵטְא יוֹד וְאֵלֶּף בְּיָדוֹ, in which the Massoretic Canon is laid down that with the exception of these three instances in which it is without Yod and the Aleph is with There, in all the other passages the Yod is with Dagesh and has the There.

דָּנִיֵּאל and to Daniel, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the eighteen instances in which this name has the prefix Lamed alone without the Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 282a, on Dan. 6 24.

דַּעִי my knowledge, or opinion, occurs four times. In the other three instances in which this trilateral occurs the Daleth is with Sheva (דָּעִי), being the imperative feminine (1 Sam. 25 17; Jerem. 2 23; 3 13). Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 332a, on Job 32 6, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 355a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (IV) the same on Job 32 10. As all the instances are restricted to the same book, the heading ought more properly to be דָּעִי בְּסֵפֶר.

דַּעַת אֱלֹהִים and the knowledge of God, occurs three times. That is, with and without the prefix Vav this phrase occurs three times only. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 336b, on Prov. 2 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 298a, on Hosea 4 1; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Hosea 6 6; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (V) the same on Prov. 2 5. As this phrase is in two instances with the prefix Vav (Hosea 6 6; Prov. 2 5) and in one passage without it (Hosea 4 1), Lists IV and V head this Rubric more correctly דָּעַת בְּלִישׁ.

דָּעַת and, knowledge, occurs four times in the Scriptures. As this infinitive construct, or substantive, which occurs altogether eighteen times with the prefix Vav, is in fourteen instances with Sheva and in four only with Kametz, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional vowel-points.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, three in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 253a, on Prov. 22 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 132a, on Isa. 33 6; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 370a, on Ps. 119 66; (IV) the printed Massorah on Isa. 33 6; (V) the same on Ps. 119 66, and (VI) the same on Eccl. 1 16. As three of the instances are with Kametz under the Daleth, which is due to the pausal accent, and one is with Pathack, being with the non-pausal accent (דָּעַת Pa. 119 66), Lists II, IV-VI head this Rubric more precisely דָּעַת קָמֶץ וְאֵלֶּף בְּיָדוֹ.

דָּבַרְתָּ and in knowledge, occurs five times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5410-11, Vol. II, fol. 257a, on Prov. 24 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 340a, on Prov. 11 9; (III) the same MSS., fol. 345a, on Prov. 24 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 351b, on Eccl. 2 21; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 75b, on Exod. 31 3; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Exod. 35 31.

דָּקֵה slight, thin, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 94a, on 1 Kings 19 12, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Levit. 16 12.

רָקְקוּ they being pierced, or thrust through, occurs twice ... and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 518a, on Jerem. 37 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 172a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 357b, on Lament 4 9, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 37 10.

רָדְדָה and the thistle, occurs twice. That is, with Pathack under the Daleth in both instances. By fixing the number at two, the design of this Massorah seems to be to militate against the Codices, which exhibit רָדְדָה with Kametz, in Gen. 3 18, as is the case in Harley 1528; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451 &c. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 202a, on Hosea 10 8, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ד, § 103.

רָדְדָה thou shalt, or she shall tread, occurs five times. It will be seen that though this quadrilateral is in three instances the future second person singular (Deut. 33 29; Micah 6 15; Ps. 91 13) and in two the third person feminine (Deut. 11 24, Josh. 1 3) yet the Massorah groups them together because of its identity of spelling without any regard to the difference in sense.

This Rubric is one of the most popular parts of the Massorah. I collated no fewer than twenty Lists of it, but I shall specify the following seven only: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 137a, on Josh. 1 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 116b, on Micah 6 15; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 202b, on Ps. 91 13; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 6, on Josh. 1 3; (V) the same MS., fol. 307a, on Ps. 91 13; (VI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 11 24, and (VII) the same on Josh. 1 3. Many of the Lists head it דָּרְדָה.

רָדְדוּהוּ they trode him down, occurs twice in the Scriptures, once defective and once plene. As this Hiphil preterite third person plural with the suffix third person singular masculine, which occurs twice only, is spelt differently in each passage, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the variation in the spelling.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 233b, on Job 28 8, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 34a, on Judg. 20 43; (III) the same MSS., fol. 330b, on Job 28 8; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Judg. 20 43; (V) the printed Massorah on Job 28 8, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ד, § 109.

Lists II, III and V distinctly add that it is defective in the first instance (קָדַם הַיָּם) i. e. Judg. 20 43 and this is the case in the majority of MSS. But that this is the reading of one School of Massorites and that another School read it without the Vav in both instances, is attested by Orient. 2201 first hand; Harley 5710-11, and by nearly all the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on Job 28 8 in my edition of the Bible. It is remarkable that though the printed Massorah (List V) emphatically states that the plene instance is in Job 28 8 (בְּרָאָה הַיָּם), yet Jacob b. Chayim reads it here קָדַם הַיָּם defective, thus exhibiting one of the conflicts between the Massorah and his text.

רָדְדָה הַדֶּרֶךְ הַדָּרֹם the way of, or towards the south, occurs six [seven] times. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 289a, on Ezek. 40 24, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

It will be seen that, though List I states in the heading that there are six such instances only, the Rubric itself records seven. That the heading is not a scribal error, but that the original Massorah contained simply six such instances, is attested by the oldest form of this Rubric, which is exhibited in List II. Not only does it state in the heading that there are six only (שֵׁשׁ הַדָּרֹם הַדָּרֹם), but the Rubric gives six only, omitting Ezek. 40 44.

ר"ה הַיָּם the way of the sea, or towards the west, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 194a, on Ezek. 41 12.

ר"ו הַצָּפוֹן the way of, or towards the north, is six times combined in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 97a, on Ezek. 40 20, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 40 44; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 292b, on Ezek. 40 20, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ר"ז שִׁבְעַת יָמִים a way, or journey of seven days, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 99a, on 2 Kings 3 9, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 28a, on Gen. 31 23.

ר"ח = § 208.

ר"ח בְּדֶרֶךְ מִצְרַיִם in the way, or after the manner of Egypt, occurs three times. Though this Rubric is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I have found it in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 only, on Isa. 10 24.

ר"ט וּבְבִרְיָהּ and in the way of, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, in the construct. In the only other instance in which this quinqueliteral occurs, it is וּבְבִרְיָהּ in the absolute (Jerem. 6 25). Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 238a, on 1 Kings 22 53, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 174a, on Ps. 1 1; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 97b, on 1 Kings 22 53; (IV) the same MS., fol. 284b, on Ps. 1 1; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 347a, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 202b, on Numb. 9 13, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ר"י כְּבִרְיָהּ as the way, or after the manner of, occurs twice in the Pentateuch. That is, in contradistinction to many instances wherein this noun is with the prefix Beth, which is almost identical in appearance in most MSS. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 13b, on Gen. 19 31, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 13b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 105. As this expression also occurs once with the prefix Vav (comp. וּבְבִרְיָהּ Numb. 11 31), this Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter י, § 70.)

ר"יא לְרִיבָהּ in the way of, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, in these three instances the Lamed has Sheva or is Raphe, in contradistinction to the five instances in which it is with Pathach (Gen. 42 25; 45 21, 23; Josh. 9 11; Isa. 49 11).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 200b, on Ps. 85 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 305b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 2 18. Lists II and III head this Rubric י, which, as is often the case, denotes Sheva.

ר"יב הַיָּם his way, is in four instances the textual reading or Kethiv, for which the official reading or Keri is הַיָּמִים his ways. That is, the noun יָּמִים with the suffix third person singular masculine, without and with the prefixes, is in the singular in the text, whilst according to the official marginal reading it is the plural. On referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that both MSS. and early editions are in conflict with this Massorah.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 286a, on Ps. 10 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 348b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 198a, on 1 Sam. 18 14, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 10 5. Whilst List I, which I have printed, emphatically states in the heading that there are four instances only and duly enumerates four, Lists II, III and IV as emphatically declare that there are five and two of the Lists (II and III) give Job 26 14 as the fifth instance. List IV however gives וּבְבִרְיָהּ Job 8 19 as the fifth passage; but this may be simply a mistake on the part of Jacob b. Chayim for וּבְבִרְיָהּ. As the List which I have printed is from the splendid Model Codex, it is evident that this Massorah is based upon Codices which exhibited four instances only, whilst the other Lists emanate from a Schol of textual redactors which preserved five, as will be seen from the notes on Job 26 14 in my edition of the Bible.

ר"יג הַיָּמִים thy ways, is three times defective in the Scriptures. According to this Massorah the noun יָּמִים exhibits the same phenomenon with the suffix second person singular masculine which the preceding Rubric records in connection with the suffix third person. Here the textual reading in three instances is יָּמִים thy way and the official reading or Keri directs us to read it with Yod i. e. יָּמִים thy ways. On referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that the MSS. and editions vary with regard to the reading in these instances.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 212b, on Ps. 119 37, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 76a, on Exod. 33 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 1b, on Josh. 1 8; (IV) Add. 18,251, fol. 60b, on Exod. 33 13; (V) the same MS., fol. 370a, on Ps. 119 37; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 122b, on Exod. 33 13; (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VIII) the same on Josh. 1 8. Some of these Lists add at the end וּבְבִרְיָהּ or simply אָךְ, indicating thereby that one of the instances is in the Law, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa.

ר"יד הַיָּמִים darice, occurs twice, in the Scriptures. That is, in these two instances it is defective, in contradistinction to the other two passages in which it is plene, viz. Ezra 2 69; Neh. 7 70. That this is the import of this Rubric, which I have found in Harley 5710-11 only, Vol. II, fol. 279a, on Neh. 7 69, is attested by the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710-11, and Arund. Orient. 16, which state on Neh. 7 70 that it is one of the two plene instances (יָּמִים), the other being in Ezra 2 69. The order of the three instances in Neh. are 7 69 defective, 70 plene and 71 defective. The text and the margin in Neh. 7 70 in my edition of the Bible must, therefore, change places according to this Massorah, though some MSS. and most of the early editions support the text.

ר"טו הַיָּמִים he sought out, searched, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only on Levit. 10 16, affords another illustration of the difficulties connected with deciphering the Massorah. יָּמִים occurs five times (Levit. 10 16; 1 Chron. 10 14; 2 Chron. 16 12; 17 3; 22 9) and not twice. But in accordance with the peculiar method of the Massorites the whole of Chronicles is regarded as exhibiting one instance and the Pentateuch another and in this artificial manner the two instances are obtained.

ר"טז הַיָּמִים he sought out, searched. Whenever this preterite third person singular masculine occurs it is with Pathach except where it is with Kametz. It will be seen from the preceding Rubric that יָּמִים with Pathach under the Resh occurs five times. In one instance, however, it is יָּמִים with Kametz. Hence the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 162a, on 2 Chron. 22 9.

ר"טז הַיָּמִים we sought him, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on 1 Chron. 15 13. As both instances are restricted to Chronicles, the heading ought more properly to be כי נבטח.

לדרוש to search out, occurs twice. That is, the infinitive absolute; the only other instances in which the infinitive occurs it is לדרוש the construct (Deut. 22 2). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 1174, on Deut. 22 22. The instance in Levit. 10 16, according to the Massorah, is the central word in the Pentateuch, which is indicated by the peculiar form of the letter Dalet, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. These notes are from Add. 15,282 and Orient. 2696.

לדרוש to search out, to seek. This infinitive with the prefix Lamed, occurs altogether thirty times. In seventeen instances it has preserved its defective orthography לדרש and in thirteen it is לדרוש plene. As one of these two kinds of spelling prevails in the different parts of the Bible, the Massorah for the purpose of indicating it, records this predominance in accordance with the three great divisions, the Law, the Prophets and the Hagiographa, beginning with the Prophets.

The Prophets. — In the Prophets this infinitive occurs ten times. Here the plene is the rule, and the defective the exception. The former occurs eight times (1 Kings 14 5; 22 8; 2 Kings 1 3, 6, 16, 16; 22 18; Ezek. 20 1) and the defective twice only. Hence the Massorah safeguards here the exceptions, and thus excludes the plene spelling in 2 Kings 1 3 and 6, which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors.

The Hagiographa. — Throughout the Hagiographa it is likewise plene except in seven instances. In this division of the Bible, where it occurs altogether eighteen times, it is plene in eleven instances (Eccl. 1 13; 1 Chron. 10 13; 22 19; 2 Chron. 12 14; 14 3; 15 12; 18 7; 20 3; 30 19; 34 3, 26) and defective in seven only. Here, therefore, the plene is the rule and the defective the exception. Hence the Massorah safeguards the defective orthography in this division.

The Pentateuch. — In the Pentateuch, where it occurs twice only (Gen. 25 22; Exod. 18 15), it has preserved its defective primitive orthography in both instances. As there are no exceptions here the simple record of the fact is sufficient without specifying the passages.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 202b; on Hosea 10 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 251b, on 1 Chron. 21 30; (III) the same MS., fol. 273a, on 2 Chron. 26 5; (IV) the printed Massorah on Ezra 6 21, and (V) the same on 1 Chron. 21 30. The two Lists in the printed Massorah (Lists IV and V) are corrupt, as will be seen from the following analysis: List IV is headed לדרוש ו' ה', which ought manifestly to be נבטח ו' ה' and though it gives six instances it states that in בן במלכי שרי ב' ב' 2 Chron. 32 31 there are two instances, which is incorrect, since לדרוש occurs once only in this verse and omits 2 Chron. 19 3. Moreover, the addition at the end וכל אוריא רבי ה' במב' מל' מל' is unquestionably an error for וכל נבטח רבי ה' במב' מל' מל'. Though the heading of List V is correct, the instances which it records are not quite correct, since it also states in 2 Chron. 32 31 the expression לדרוש occurs twice (וכן במלכי שרי ב' במבוק). Moreover, it has the erroneous addition at the end וכל אוריא רבי ה' במב' מל' מל' instead of נבטח, which in this case is more glaring, since the two exceptions are here recorded and they are both in the Prophets. It is difficult to say whether these blunders are primarily due to Jacob b. Chayim or to the carelessness of the Nakdan.

לדרוש אלהים to enquire of God, is four times thus combined . . . and twice it is with the prefix He. Normally when this infinitive is followed by the Divine name, denoting to enquire of the Supreme Being, the phrase is לדרוש אלהים to enquire of Jehovah. In this combination it occurs nine times (Gen. 25 22; 1 Kings 22 8; 2 Kings 22 18; Ezek. 20 1; Hosea 10 12; 2 Chron. 12 14; 14 3; 15 12; 18 7). As it is in these four instances only where it is followed by אלהים and in two where it is combined with אוריא, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 46b, on Exod. 18 15, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 178a, on 1 Sam. 9 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 40a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 251b, on 1 Chron. 29 30; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 153; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 18 15, and (VII) the same on 1 Sam. 9 9. Lists II, IV—VI have not the second part of this Rubric. It is to be remarked that List VI not only wrongly heads this לדרוש אלהים, but adds at the end וכל אוריא רבי ה' במב' מל' מל', which is manifestly a repetition of the blundering addition to § 220.

לדרוש יהוה to seek Jehovah, occurs four [three] times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter מ, § 139. The fact that it records three instances only, and that all the three are לדרש, shows that the Massorah is restricted to the combination of this infinitive with the Tetragrammaton and that it excludes the instance in 2 Chron. 15 13 where לדרש is preceded by דרש, the future third person singular masculine. Accordingly ר' לדרש in the heading, which is in conflict with the contents of the Rubric, is manifestly a clerical error for ר' לדרוש.

לדרוש יהוה seek ye Jehovah, is three times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the other three instances where it is לדרוש יהוה (2 Kings 22 13; Amos 5 6; 2 Chron. 34 21). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only where it occurs twice: (I) on Isa. 55 6, and (II) on Ps. 105 4.

לדרוש יהוה he will seek, thou shalt seek, is always defective except in three instances. The future third and second person of דרש, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether twelve times. As it is defective in nine instances (comp. דרש Isa. 8 19; Ps. 10 4; 2 Chron. 15 13; 2 Chron. 24 22; דרוש 2 Sam. 11 3; 2 Chron. 31 9; דרוש Deut. 12 30; 23 7; Ps. 10 13) and plene in three only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. On referring to the notes on Ps. 10 13 and Job 10 6 in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that the design of this Massorah is to militate against the variations which other Schools of textual redactors exhibit in these passages.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Deut. 23 7, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 117a, on the same passage.

לדרוש יהוה thou shalt seek, occurs four times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ר, § 120, is incorrect, since there are five instances of this future second person, the fifth instance occurs in Ps. 10 13. Though three of the instances are defective (vide supra, letter ר, § 223) and two plene (Ps. 10 15; Job 10 6) this Rubric takes no notice of the variation in the spelling.

§ 225. לדרוש יהוה

לדרוש יהוה is three times plene in this form. That is, the future of this verb is plene in different forms. This Rubric simply records futures of דרש which are exceptionally plene. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 82b, on Ezek. 20 40, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 280b; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

לדרוש יהוה seeking, enquiring, is four times plene in the Scriptures. This participle occurs altogether eleven times. It is defective in seven instances (Deut. 11 12; Jerem. 30 17; 38 4; Ps. 9 18; 14 2; 53 3; Esther 10 3) and plene in four only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional spelling. By fixing the number at four, the Massorah militates against the variation in Micah 6 8, as will be seen from the note on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 219b, on Ps. 142 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 92a, on Ezek. 34 6; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 148a, on 1 Chron. 28 9;

(IV) St Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 34 6; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 188a, on the same passage; (VI) the same MS., fol. 286a, on 1 Chron. 28 9; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 285a, on Ezek. 34 6, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

רָכַז and seeking, occurs three times and is defective. With the prefix Vav this participle has uniformly retained its primitive defective orthography. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 124a, on Deut. 18 11, which I have printed; (II) the same, MS., Vol. II, fol. 8a, on Isa. 16 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 340b, on Prov. 11 27; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 361a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 222a, on Isa. 16 5; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 132b, on Deut. 18 11; (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VIII) the same on Isa. 16 5. Lists II and IV add at the end that the three instances occur respectively in the Law, the Prophets and the Hagiographa.

רָכַח = § 228.

רָכַח in the law of, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish it from the two instances where it is with the prefix Cap̄h, which greatly resembles it in the MSS. (Dan. 6 9, 19). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 281b, on Dan. 6 6, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 376b, on Ezra 7 14.

רָכַט and Dathan and Abiram, occurs three times. These two names occur together seven times. In four instances רָכַט is without the prefix Vav, viz. רָכַט וְאֶבְרָם (Numb. 16 24, 25, 27; 26 9) and in three it is with it. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This protection was deemed all the more necessary since the two forms are used promiscuously in one and the same verse (Numb. 16 27; 26 9). That other recensions exhibited variations is attested by the Samaritan text, which has רָכַט וְאֶבְרָם without the prefix Vav in Numb. 26 9 in both clauses.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 116a, on Numb. 26 9, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 126a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 214b, on Numb. 16 1; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 121.

ה. — This part of the Rubric, which registers the number of times He occurs in the Bible, is taken from the alphabetical Poem given above, letter ה, § 224. The second part, which records the number of times He occurs in the Pentateuch, is from a MS. in my possession. For a description of this remarkable MS. see my Introduction to the Massoretico-critical edition of the Bible, Part I, chap. VII, p. 110 &c.

ה = § 2.

ה. — One He is with one Täg. This is from the Massorah Parva of Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 114a, on Deut. 4 26.

ה = § 3.

ה. — Eighteen Hes in the Pentateuch have respectively one Täg and are closed at the top. This Rubric is from the Machsor Vitry, Add. 27,027, Vol. II, fol. 209—215, which I have printed in letter ה, § 25, Vol. II, pp. 680 &c.

ה = § 4.

ה. — Nine Hes have respectively two Tägin. This Rubric I have compiled from the Massorah Parva of Harley 5710—11 on the several passages.

ה = § 5.

ה. — The following Hes have respectively three Tägin. This Rubric I have compiled from the Massorah Parva of Harley 5710—11 on the several passages.

ה = § 6.

ה. — The following three hundred and sixty Hes in the Pentateuch are not closed at the top and have respectively four Tägin each. This Rubric is from the Machsor Vitry, Add. 27,027, Vol. II, fol. 209—215, which I have printed in letter ה, § 25, p. 680 &c.

ה = § 7.

ה. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with He which respectively occur once only. That the Massorites of the different Schools made attempts to elaborate such alphabetical catalogues of unique expressions is attested by the fragmentary remains which are found in the Massorah of sundry MSS., as is seen from the incipient Lists given below in §§ 8a—d. In order to facilitate the identification by the student of the unique forms beginning with He, I compiled this alphabet. Since its publication, however, I have discovered sundry mistakes which were unavoidable in a first attempt to find out and alphabetically to arrange over 2700 words beginning with He which occur once only. These mistakes as far as I could detect them I have pointed out in the Additions at the end of this Volume p. 752, § 7a—c.

ה. — [Words beginning with He, which respectively occur once only.] The four incipient catalogues of unique words beginning with He are from the following MSS. List I (§ 8a), which registers four words, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 106b, on 2 Kings 12 12. List II (§ 13b), which records fifteen such expressions, is from the same MS., fol. 178a, on Ezek. 18 25. List III (§ 8c) is from Orient. 1471, fol. 202a, on 1 Kings 18 30 and List IV (§ 8d) is from the same MS., fol. 207b on 1 Kings 21 20.

These four incipient catalogues are of great importance, inasmuch as they disclose the method which the Massorites followed in elaborating the different Rubrics. In the fragment which constitutes List I, the instances are from the same book, whilst those in List II as yet follow no order. Lists III and IV, however, show that they afterwards arranged them alphabetically and that owing to the excessive space which such an alphabet would occupy, the Massorites catalogued the instances in separate members, following the alphabetical sequence of the second letter. Hence List III exhibits the instances in which the second letter is He, whilst List IV exhibits those in which the second letter is Mem. The three Lists which I have found since the publication of the catalogues before us, and which I have printed in Volume III, p. 341 &c., exhibit respectively Beth, Nun and Shin; whilst the List in the printed Massorah on Job 38 34 not only records the instances with Tav with a separate heading, but distinctly states at the end that they form part of an alphabetical catalogue, which Jacob b. Chayim says will be found in the Massorah Finalis under letter He, but which is nowhere to be found. There can, therefore, be no doubt that the rest of the alphabet will still be found in MSS. to which I have not as yet had access. That these Lists are imperfect will be seen by comparing them with the alphabetical List of words beginning with He, which I have compiled and given in the preceding Rubric.¹ It is these incipient Lists, which later Nakdanim mistook for complete and which they furnished with headings, fixing the number in accordance with the instances recorded in each fragment and thus introducing the great difficulties in explaining the Massorah.

ה. — Thirteen words are defective of He at the beginning. That is, in these instances the respective words are in the text without the He and the official reading or Keri supplies the missing letter. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the Babylonian recension which reads ה without a Keri in Jerem. 10 13, in accordance with 12 12 and 51 16. It is remarkable that the so-called Babylonian Codex i. e. St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, which is supposed to exhibit the Eastern recension, has ה in the text, contrary to the official List, which distinctly declares that the Babylonians read it ה without a Keri and that the Massoretic annotator of this Codex, for reasons best known to himself, attempts to make it conformable to the Eastern recension by remarking that it is one of the three instances in which the He is absent (ה ה ה).

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 182a, on 1 Sam. 14 32, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 43a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 73b, on 2 Sam. 23 9; (IV) the same MS., fol. 79a, on 1 Kings 4 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 154a, on Jerem. 10 13; (VI) the same MS., fol. 178a, on Ezek. 18 20; (VII) the same MS., fol. 355a, on Eccl. 10 20; (VIII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 90; (IX) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 165, and (X) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 23 9.

The fact that List IX gives וַיִּקַּח אֱלֹהִים אֶת־עֲוֹנוֹתָיִם 2 Kings 11 19 instead of וַיִּשְׁמַח לֵב עַם־יִשְׂרָאֵל 2 Kings 11 20 and that the addition of וַיִּקַּח אֱלֹהִים to the catchwords precludes its being due to the carelessness of the Scribe shows that different Codices exhibited different expressions in which the He was absent at the beginning of the word.

That this Massoretic List does not exhaust all the passages, but that the instances here adduced are simply typical which may easily be multiplied, has been shown by Graetz. Thus in Gen. 4 13 the He is absorbed by the He with which the preceding word (וַיִּדָּן) ends, and the expression ought to be וַיִּדָּן לִי מִיִּיְהוָה Is my iniquity too great to bear? or to be forgiven? This interrogative indicates contrition and repentance and it is due to it that God grants Cain pardon and protection in verse 15. In 1 Sam. 22 15 and 2 Sam. 19 23 הָיָה should be הָיָהָה, the He at the beginning is absorbed by the second He. Both the Authorised Version and the Revised Version acknowledge this in their respective renderings. For other examples where the He is missing at the beginning of words, I must refer to Graetz. (Monatsschrift für Geschichte und Wissenschaft des Judenthums, Vol. XXIX, p. 2 &c. Krotoschin 1880.)

Seven words, on the contrary, have a superfluous He at the beginning, which is cancelled by the official Keri. That these seven instances are also typical and that others can easily be shown where the He at the beginning of words is principally due to dittography may be seen in the same Essay by Graetz.

Of this part of the Rubric, which in some MSS. forms the second part of the Massorah before us, and in some MSS. and editions constitutes a separate Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 182a, on 1 Sam. 14 32; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 73b, on 2 Sam. 23 9; (III) the same MS., fol. 355a, on Eccl. 10 20. In these three it is the converse part; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 108a, on 2 Kings 14 7; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 307a, on Eccl. 10 20; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 91; (VII) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 166, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 24.

ה. — Words beginning with He interrogative, which respectively occur once only. The five fragments, which respectively occur in Add. 15,451, fol. 320a, on Ezek. 22 14; the same MS., fol. 398a, on Ps. 5 11; Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 177a, on Ezek. 17 10; Orient. 1474, fol. 13b, on Jerem. 7 19 and Orient. 2349, fol. 31a, on Gen. 4 9, like those exhibited in § 8a—d, again show that the Massorites gradually collected the unique forms and recorded them in short catalogues before they obtained a sufficient number of instances to arrange them either according to the sequence of the books or in alphabetical Lists. It will be seen that even in the fifth fragment (§ 10e), which consists of seventeen instances, no attempt was as yet made to furnish it with a heading or to arrange the instances according to order of the books or the alphabet.

ה. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with He, which respectively occur once only. The four Lists which I have here given, exhibit different recensions of the same Rubric and are all designed to give a selection of unique words beginning with interrogative He in alphabetical order, though none of them are quite correct; since they include words where the He is not interrogative.

Of this Rubric, which exhibits the longer recension, I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 225a, on Job 7 12, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 66; (III) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 65, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 3. It will be seen that this List is already in a developed form and that half of the alphabet is represented by two or more examples of the same letter, so that instead of consisting of twenty-two it is made up of forty words. It is also to be remarked that in three of the examples, viz. הָיָה (Micah 7 3), הָיָהָה (2 Sam. 18 18) and הָיָהָהָה (Deut. 27 9) the He is not interrogative. Their introduction into this List is due to the fact that Vav, Zayin and Samech furnish no instance of being preceded by interrogative He, and that they were required to complete the alphabet.

List II consists of thirty-nine examples and differs from List I in the following respects: It omits four, viz. הָאֵל (Job 8 3), הָאֵלֵהּ (Isa. 58 5), הָאֵלֵהֶם (Ps. 88 11) and הָאֵלֵהֶם (Job 38 35), whilst it gives three new ones, viz. הָאֵלֵהֶם (2 Sam. 2 26); הָאֵלֵהֶם (Jerem. 22 28) and הָאֵלֵהֶם (Job 15 7). הָאֵלֵהֶם is a clerical mistake for הָאֵלֵהֶם as is evident from the catchwords. List III is the largest. It gives forty-six examples and also differs from List I. It adds in the heading that the instances are unique with Pathach (וְכָל־חֵדֶי־לִי־מֵת). Besides having the three which List II adds, it has three others, viz. הָלַל (Isa. 28 24) הָקִימָה (Ezek. 9 8) and הָבֵיטָה (Zech. 7 5), the last is added by a later hand. List IV gives forty-two examples. It too exhibits variations. In the first place it states in the heading that this alphabetical List records the unique instances of words beginning with He interrogative (אֵיבֵן־פֶּן־חֵדֶי־הִי־בִישׁוֹתֵי־בְרִיתֵי־בְרִיתֵי־בְרִיתֵי). It gives two new instances which none of the other Lists contain, viz. הָקִימָה (Jerem. 3 5) and הָקִימָה (Jerem. 7 11); it omits הָקִימָה (Judg. 8 19), הָקִימָה (Isa. 58 5), הָקִימָה (Ps. 88 11), and הָקִימָה (Ezek. 9 8). It has the same clerical error הָקִימָה, which List II exhibits and also has הָלַלְךָ, which is another scribal blunder for הָלַלְךָ (Micah 4 9).

ה. — An alphabetical List of words, which respectively occur once Raphe and once with Pathach.... Every one of them is unique beginning with He interrogative. That is, in each case the He is either with Chateph-Pathach or Pathach and the following letter is without Dagesh. This List, which is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 7 9, exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah and hence contains one example only for each letter of the alphabet. Like the other Lists, therefore, it gives הָקִימָה הָקִימָה הָקִימָה to represent the letters Vav, Zayin and Samech, which explains the addition הָקִימָה הָקִימָה of the heading, thus showing that though these three expressions begin with Pathached He, the following letter is Raphe and is thus in apparent conflict with the remark at the end of the Rubric, which states that in every instance the He is interrogative.

ה. — An alphabet of words each being in the interrogative.... These are all unique with the interrogative. This Rubric, which I have also found in St. Petersburg Codex only, is another of the earliest recensions of this Massorah. It will be seen that it differs from the preceding one (§ 11b) in giving other examples for Beth, Gimel, Cheth, Teth and Mem, in omitting Vav and in giving two for He, thus making up the number twenty-two.

" = § 11d.

ה. — An alphabetical List of unique words beginning with He. This Rubric also which I have found in St. Petersburg Codex only, on Habak. 3 8 and which, therefore, exhibits the oldest recension of this Massorah, varies somewhat from the other two Rubrics in the same Codex. Not only are the two letters Aleph and Beth differently represented, but Shin is unrepresented altogether and the alphabet is thus one letter short. These different recensions conclusively prove my contention that the alphabetical Lists are frequently made up of selections only, according to the idiosyncrasies of the several Massoretic Schools and that they were never meant to exhaust all the instances.

ה. — Three Hes in the Pentateuch seem to be interrogatives, but they are not so. That is, in these three instances the emphasis of the interrogative does not rest upon the word which begins with He, but upon the next clause. Accordingly the first passage denotes judge of all the earth shall he not do right? the second this one fellow who came to sojourn here, and will he needs be a judge? and the third, one man is the sinner, and will thou be wrath with all the congregation? (Comp. Rashi וְאַתָּה הִיאֵהְיָה אֶת־כָּל־הַיְהוּדִים חַקְיָנָה). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 18 25.

ה. — Words commencing with He, which respectively occur once only at the beginning of a verse. That is, in contradistinction to those passages where they occur again, but where they are with the prefix Vav.

The three incipient Lists (§ 13a—c), which are respectively from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 258b, on Ruth 1 13; Orient. 2349, fol. 73b, on Exod. 27 14, and Add. 21,160, fol. 221b, on Numb. 19 11, again exhibit the first attempts on the part of the Massorites to collect the unique instances which later Massorites gradually succeeded in completing, and which are recorded in § 13d and 13e.

ה. - Pairs of words in which the second expression is abnormally without the prefix He. That is, in these instances alone is the phrase without the article before the second word whilst in all other passages where it occurs, it is with it. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 188, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 25 30. It will be seen that the List which I have printed gives twenty-four such combinations, whilst List II records eleven only though both have the same heading. There can, therefore, be no doubt that List I, is a later development with additional pairs.

ה. - Seven pairs of words in which the second expression is abnormally with the prefix He. That is, in these instances only is the phrase with the article before the second word, whilst in all others passages where the several combinations occur, they are without the He. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Paris Ochlal § 189, where it is given as the reverse (הלוה) to the preceding Rubric. The third instance viz. הוהוה is incorrect, since the textus receptus in Ezek. 39 27 is הוהוה without the He before the second word. It is the addition of a later Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah and added this passage because the phrase הוהוה is unique, overlooking the fact that the design of this Rubric is to record the combinations which have abnormally He before the second word and not before the first.

ה. - Combinations of two words, both of which are with the prefix He and which respectively occur once only. These three Lists again show the gradual manner in which the Massorites collated the materials for the respective Rubrics. § 23a, which is from Orient. 2349, fol. 105a, on Numb. 7 85, records six such instances only, being all that the first compiler succeeded in finding. In this incipient form this Rubric is as yet without a heading and without catchwords.

ה. - This Rubric, which is still without a heading, is a further development of the preceding one. Of it I collated five Lists: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 75b, on Levit. 11 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 97a, on Numb. 7 85; (III) the same MS., fol. 315a, on Ezek. 16 32; (IV) the same MS., fol. 391a, on Zech. 4 10, and (V) the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 126a, on Numb. 7 85.

List II records twenty-five instances only, i. e. three less than List I. It omits Nos. 17, 18 and 27. Though List III records eighteen only, omitting Nos. 1, 2, 7, 13, 15, 17, 18, 19, 24, 26 and 28, it gives one, viz. הוהוה (2 Kings 23 17) not recorded in Lists I and II. The differences in List IV are still more marked. It records nineteen, but the omissions are not quite the same as in List III, being Nos. 1, 3, 9, 13, 17, 18, 21, 22, 23 and 28, and like List III, it gives the instance from 2 Kings 23 17, not recorded in Lists I and II. The oldest form of this Rubric is exhibited in List V. It records the following twelve instances only: Nos. 2, 3, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10, 12, 14, 22, 25, 27.

My reason for printing these two Lists separately, is that they alone have already headings affixed to them and are arranged according to the sequence of the books in the Bible. List I, moreover, is also furnished with lengthy catchwords which always indicates a later development. Though this recension records twenty-nine pairs and the first recension (§ 23b) twenty-eight, a close comparison of the two will disclose that the first recension has ten which the second has not (Nos. 1, 13, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 24, 26, 28) and that the second has eleven which are not recorded in the first (Nos. 1, 10, 11, 12, 13, 18, 19, 21, 22, 26, 28). By adding the ten of the first recension to the twenty-nine of the second and the instance in 2 Kings 23 17 recorded in Lists III and IV of the first recension, we obtain forty such pairs. But even this does not exhaust the number, since הוהוה (1 Kings 3 22) and הוהוה (Zech. 4 10) &c. belong to this category. Moreover it will be seen that List II has this Rubric on הוהוה (2 Chron. 20 12) thus adding another pair which are not in the other Lists.

The heading, which is both in Add. 15,451 and in Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah Finalis, or in Lists II and III of this recension, viz. הוהוה ברש תיבואה has still to be noticed. Not because of its unintelligibility, but because it confirms the oft-repeated statement that the number has frequently been added by a later Nakdan who mistook the import of the Massorah, and fixed the number of the incipient List to correspond with the instances therein recorded.

ה. - [Pairs which respectively occur twice, once without the prefix He before the second word and once with it.] The twenty-nine separate links which were afterwards united into one great alphabetical chain and which I have given in Rubric 24a--ee are respectively from the following MSS.: (a) Orient. 2348, fol. 32a, on Gen. 6 4; (b) the same MS., fol. 69a, on Exod. 20 20; (c) the same MS., fol. 73b, on Exod. 28 15; (d) the same MS., fol. 134b, on Deut. 20 8; (e) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 24b, on Gen. 38 8; (f) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 28a, on Judg. 12 7; (g) the same MS., fol. 119b, on Isa. 2 7; (h) the same MS., fol. 121b, on Isa. 6 13; (i) the same MS., fol. 178b, on Ezek. 20 6; (k) Add. 15,451, fol. 156b, on Josh. 15 18; (l) mislaid the reference; (m) Add. 15,451, fol. 247b, on Ps. 113 1; (n) mislaid the reference; (o) Add. 15,451, fol. 434a, on Ps. 139 15; (p) the same MS., fol. 316a, on Ezek. 17 7; (q) the same MS., fol. 841b, on Isa. 2 11; (r) the same MS., fol. 58b, on Exod. 29 39; (s and t) mislaid the reference; (u) Add. 15,451, fol. 33b, on Gen. 44 28; (v) the same MS., fol. 288b, on Jerem. 31 29; (x) the same MS., fol. 355a, on Isa. 34 3; (y) the same MS., fol. 382b, on Jonah 4 8; (z) the same MS., fol. 85a, on Levit. 23 28; (aa) the same MS.; (bb) the same MS., fol. 421a, on Ps. 81 29; (cc) the same MS., fol. 50a, on Exod. 18 14; (dd) Orient. 4445, fol. 50a, on Exod. 9 8, and (ee) Add. 15,451, fol. 43a, on Exod. 9 8.

These incipient Lists dispersed through the MSS. are of importance. They indicate how the different Schools of Massorites collated the materials and that in their original fragmentary state these Lists were without heading and without catchwords. They, moreover, enable us to control the several members of the longer Lists after they had been put together alphabetically or arranged according to the order of the books in the Bible.

ה. - [An alphabetical List of pairs which respectively occur twice, once without the prefix He before the second word and once with it.] This Rubric exhibits a united chain of the sundry links dispersed throughout the MSS.

Of this alphabetical Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 174a, on Ps. 1 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 175a, on Levit. 23 27; (III) the same MS., fol. 200b, on Numb. 8 8; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 3; (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 3, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 11.

List I exhibits the oldest form of this entire Massorah. It is as yet without catchwords and instead of the heading it gives the import of it at the end where it states that the whole forms an alphabet, one phrase of which is with He and one is without it, and they are unique in the Scriptures. It will be seen that though it consists of sixty-three such duplicate phrases, six letters are not represented in this alphabetical List, viz. ה, ו, ז, ט, י, and that one member of the duplicates No. 21, viz. הוהוה has no reference. This is due to the fact that it does not exist in the textus receptus. But as this duplicate pair is also given in Nos. 15 and 16 of the incipient Lists, as well as in Lists III and IV of the alphabetical Lists, there can hardly be any doubt that the text from which these Massorahs were compiled had this reading.

Though List II is headed אלפא בראשון מן תריצין תבואה דר נמיב דא בראשון דרש it breaks off with letter כ' and is manifestly planned upon a more limited scale, since it gives fewer examples for each letter. Instead of forty-six duplicate pairs, which List I has up to this letter, List II gives twenty-one only, viz. Nos. 1-14, 20, 24, 26, 35, 40, 41 and 46.

List III indicates the incompleteness of this alphabet in the heading, by stating ברמא ברמא ברמא ברמא. It breaks off at letter Zayin and is also designed to exhibit a more contracted List, since it records twenty-nine such duplicate pairs up to this letter, against the thirty-five in List I, omitting Nos. 14—18, and 34. It, however, has the duplicate זרובול and זרובול.

List IV. — Though like List I, this List records sixty-three of these duplicates, it omits No. 65 עם אלמים עם אלמים and gives זכר שמים זכר שמים (Ps. 89 30; Deut. 11 21), which is also given in No. 26 of the incipient List, as well as in Lists V and VI.

List V. — This List records sixty-two duplicate pairs only. It omits two which are in List I, viz. No. 21 (זרובול זרובול) and 26 (זרובול זרובול) and gives the pair זכר שמים זכר שמים, which as we have seen, are also given in No. 26 of the incipient List as well as in List VI.

List VI. — Like Lists I and IV, this List records sixty-three. It omits, however, No. 21 (זרובול זרובול) of List I and has זכר שמים זכר שמים not in List I, and thus makes up the sixty-three.

We have still to remark on the omission of זכר שמים זכר שמים in List V. In the textus receptus זכר שמים זכר שמים occurs twice, viz. Exod. 29 39 and Levit. 14 12. Accordingly its presence would be contrary to the scope of this Rubric which is to record unique phrases. As this duplicate pair, however, is not only given in the three incipient Lists (Nos. 15, 16, 17), but in all the other five alphabetical Lists, it is evident that this Massorah must be based upon MSS. which read זכר שמים זכר שמים in Levit. 14 12. As is often the case with these Lists they do not claim to exhaust all the examples. This we have seen is the case in Lists II and III, which give more contracted alphabets as far as they go. Hence letter Aleph alone might be increased by זכר שמים זכר שמים (Ezra 9 11; Ezek. 20 29) &c.

ה. — Seven duplicate phrases in which the same word occurs once with the prefix He and once without it. For this Rubric see letter ש, § 678, Vol. II, p. 637.

ה. — Three words are respectively without He in the middle in the textual reading or Kethiv, and are with it in the official reading or Keri. . . . And in the two the reverse is the case the textual reading is with He in the middle, which the official reading cancels. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the Babylonian or Eastern recension, which has לניר (2 Kings 9 15) as the substantive reading without a Keri.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 186a, on 1 Sam. 18 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 243a, on 2 Kings 7 12; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 47a, on 1 Sam. 18 1, which gives the first part only; (IV) the same MS., fol. 104a, on 2 Kings 9 15; (V) the same MS., fol. 132a, on Isa. 32 15; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 161a, on 1 Sam. 18 1, which gives the first part only; (VII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 92; (VIII) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah §§ 109, 110, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 25.

Of the second part of this Rubric there are also two separate Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 102b, on 2 Kings 7 12 and (II) the printed Massorah on Eccl. 6 10. The latter, after giving the two instances, adds שרה כבד נקרא שמו ונדע. This is due to the fact that the Eastern recension reads שרתקא and does not recognise any Keri here. Accordingly the second part of this Rubric as given in the Lists, is based upon this recension. In List IX, however, Jacob b. Chayim has the following heading for this part וילא כבד ה' במעשה תיבתי וילא כבד ה' וילא כבד ה' וילא כבד ה'. Besides the two given in all the other Lists, we have here שרתקא (Eccl. 6 10) כשדמכל (Eccl. 10 8) and שרתקא (Lament. 5 18). But though two of these constitute differences between the Easterns and Westerns, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible, no notice is taken of this in this part of the Rubric.

ה. — Five words are defective of He in the middle. That is, in these passages the respective forms are abnormally without the He: (1) In 1 Sam. 1 24 זכר שמים זכר שמים as in Prov. 31 12; (2) in 1 Kings 13 28 זכר שמים זכר שמים should be זכר שמים זכר שמים as in verse 24 where the same two animals the ass and the lion are described; (3) in Jerem. 27 20 זכר שמים זכר שמים should be זכר שמים זכר שמים comp. Ezek. 39 28; (4) in Prov. 24 17 זכר שמים זכר שמים should be זכר שמים זכר שמים comp. Dan. 11 84, and (5) in Lament. 2 11 זכר שמים זכר שמים should be זכר שמים זכר שמים.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 50a, on Jerem. 27 20. It is of great importance, inasmuch as it proves that the Massorah at a very early period treated on grammatical forms.

ה. — Six words respectively occur once only without He in the middle. The design of this Massorah is to record the Hiphil infinitives construct with the prefix Lamed, which are contracted in one instance only, and which occur again without this contraction. This is attested by the fact that four out of the five contracted infinitives here recorded, respectively occur again without this contraction and that six contracted forms, which are unique, but of which no full forms occur, are excluded, viz. לניר (1 Sam. 2 33); לניר (Jerem. 37 12); לניר (Dan. 11 35); לניר (Prov. 31 3); לניר (2 Sam. 18 3); לניר (Numb. 5 22) &c. and that לניר is not included because it occurs twice (Jerem. 39 7; 2 Chron. 31 10); for the same reason לניר (Isa. 3 8; Ps. 78 17) is excluded. Tested by this canon the following forms are omitted; לניר (Eccl. 5 5 comp. לניר 1 Kings 16 19); לניר (Exod. 13 21 with לניר Neh. 9 19); לניר (2 Sam. 19 19 with לניר Levit. 18 21 &c.); whilst לניר ought to be excluded since לניר does not occur and לני, which is a noun does not properly belong to this Rubric. לניר (2 Kings 9 15) is not included though לניר occurs in Esther 4 8, because the official reading is לניר. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 176.

ה. ה. — Fifteen words respectively occur twice, once written with He and once with Cheth. For this Rubric see letter ה, § 15.

ל = § 30.

ה. ה. — Two words are written with He in the middle and are read with Caph. That is, in these two instances the official reading or Keri substitutes Caph which is here the suffix second person for the textual reading or the Kethiv He which is the suffix third; or כפ for כ. On referring to the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that there is a great conflict in the MSS. and the early editions with regard to the Kethiv and Keri. In the recension which the Septuagint translators had before them, the expression in the first instance was entirely omitted, whilst in the second instance the Keri is exhibited.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 151, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 160a, on Jerem. 21 12; (III) the MS. Massorah Finalis in Add. 15,251, fol. 441a; (IV) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 139, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 32. List II, which heads this Rubric כפ כפ, is misleading, since one only is כפ כפ and the other is כפ כפ.

ה. — A List of twenty-three words read with He which are unique in this form. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 24 23, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 73b, on Exod. 30 36. The latter, which exhibits the older form of this Rubric, records twenty-two only, omitting זכר שמים (Prov. 5 11) and does not as yet fix the number of these instances, but simply adds at the end בלשונן ה' בלשונן ה'.

ה. — [Words which respectively occur once only spelt with He.] That is, in contradistinction to the other passages where similar forms are written with Cheth.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 17b, on Gen. 24 60, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 960, on Isa. 52 11; (III) the same Codex on Isa. 62 9; (IV) the same Codex on Ezek. 7 11; (V) the same Codex on Ezek. 23 24; (VI) the same Codex on Amos. 4 3; (VII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 147; (VIII) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 211, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 7.

List I exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah. It records twenty-eight such instances and in this respect Lists IV and VI are like it. List II, though from the same MS. as Lists IV and VI, has already the heading ששה חר מן לא קריין ה כל חר מן ליה רבו, which fixes the number at thirty-one, whilst Lists III and V, which have no heading, add at the end the same statement, which constitutes the heading of List II. All these six Lists, however, are as yet without catchwords. Lists VII, VIII and IX, which exhibit a later development, have the catchwords supplied.

As to their contents five of the Lists only, record thirty-one instances (Lists II, III, V, VI, VIII). The three instances which List I has not, but which the other Lists give are רמח (Isa. 16 4) רמח (Isa. 56 10), given in Lists II, III, IV, V and VI, but not in Lists VII, VIII and IX, and רמח (Ezek. 7 16), recorded in all the Lists except List VII.

רמח, which is given in all the five Lists of the St. Petersburg Codex (Lists II-VI), is evidently a mistake for רמח (Ezek. 7 20), which is duly given in Lists I, VII and IX, since רמח occurs twice (Ezek. 19 5; 24 7). It is equally evident that רמח, which the same five Lists record, is a mistake for רמח, which is rightly given in the other four Lists. List IV omits רמח (Isa. 64 1). List VIII omits רמח, which as we have seen, is also omitted in Lists I, VIII and IX. List VIII makes up this omission by giving at the end רמח (Ezra 8 31) as the thirty-first instance, but this is in conflict with the Massorah and is manifestly the addition of an ignorant Nakdan; since this expression occurs three times (vide supra, letter מ, § 159), and is rightly absent in all the other Lists. Though List IX states in the heading that there are thirty-one such instances, it records thirty only, for like Lists I, VII and VIII, it omits רמח (Isa. 56 10). List VIII alone indicates the design of this Massorah in the heading, by stating that (וכל רבו כרמח ח) in all other places the similar forms are written with Cheth. Hence the Massorah safeguards the expressions spelt with ה and מ against being interchanged, since these two letters are almost identical in many MSS.

ה. — Twenty-nine words are without He at the end in the textual reading or Kethiv, which the official reading or Keri supplies. These are simply typical instances and by no means exhaust all the examples, as will be seen in my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, p. 144 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 52a, on 1 Sam. 24 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 105a, on 2 Kings 9 37; (III) the same MS., fol. 285a, on Ps. 6 4; (IV) the same MSS., fol. 358a, on Lament. 5 21; (V) the same MS., fol. 365a, on Dan. 2 40; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 295a, on Ezek. 45 3; (VII) the Massorah Finalis in Add. 15,251, fol. 436b; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 318a, on Lament. 5 1; (IX) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 93; (X) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 111, and (XI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 28.

That the number given in the heading is simply intended to correspond to the instances enumerated in the Rubric, is attested by the heading in List VI, which is אלקי מלך חסדי ה בנות ה. Here, therefore, the number is not as yet fixed. The same is the case in the corrupt List preserved in Sopherim VII 2. It is also to be remarked that List V gives רבית Dan. 2 40 as one of the instances, though this is not included in the other Lists.

ה. — Twenty words are written with He at the end, which the official reading or Keri cancels . . . and with regard to one there is a difference of opinion. By fixing the number at twenty, which have this superfluous He at the end, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the Babylonian recension, which reads רמח in the text and has רמח with He as the Keri. It is to be remarked that List III, which is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, or the so-called Babylonian Codex, has the Kethiv and Keri in accordance with the Palestinians, thus affording another conclusive proof that this Codex does not exhibit the Babylonian recension.

Of this important Rubric I collated thirteen Lists, eleven in MSS. and two printed; (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 121b, on Zech. 1 16, which I have printed, the Keri being my addition;

(II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 141b, on Josh. 7 21; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 8 7; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 149a, on the same passage; (V) the same MSS., fol. 339a, on Prov. 8 17; (VI) the same MS., fol. 375a, on Ezra 5 15; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 264a, on Jerem. 43 11; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 18a, on Gen. 27 3; (IX) the Massorah Finalis, in Add. 15,251, fol. 436b; (X) Add. 15,451, fol. 149b, on Josh. 7 21; (XI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 94; (XII) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 112, and (XIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 28.

Though Lists II and III state in their respective headings that there are twenty such instances, they enumerate twenty-one, giving צרה Gen. 27 3 as the last instance. But this is manifestly due to the omission against it of the remark בתי עליה ורבי מלתי עליה, as the other Lists have it, since the orthography of this expression was a subject of controversy between the different Schools of textual redactors. The separate heading ילכר במסורת, by which this expression is introduced in List XII, I have found nowhere else and is probably the addition of a later editor, as is often the case in the Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah. The printed Massorah on Gen. 27 3 goes to the other extreme and describes it as one of the twenty-one instances where the He is superfluous צרה חר מן כח חרוב חר ה בנות חרוב ולא קרי. The List in Sopherim VII 2 is hopelessly corrupt.

ה. — The following words are written with He at the end and are unique. The design of the Massorah is to safeguard the words which occur once only written with He at the end and which in all other passages where they occur, are written with Aleph at the end. Of this important Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 442b, on Dan. 10 14, which I have printed, and (II) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 75, margin.

On collating the instances recorded therein with the received text it will be seen that this Rubric must be based upon Codices which exhibited various readings. (1) לכתב occurs twice in the same verse, but according to the import of this Rubric it is with He in 1 Kings 10 19b and לכתב with Aleph in the first part of the verse. (2) לכתב, which also occurs twice (vide infra, letter ח, § 20) is with He in 2 Kings 7 12 only, and לכתב with Aleph in 1 Kings 22 25. Yet the various reading with regard to its orthography is on 2 Kings 7 12, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. (3) ופסח occurs twice (vide infra, letter ע, § 333) and is with He in Dan. 2 7 only, and with Aleph ופסח in Dan. 5 12, and (4) ופסח occurs altogether eight times with He in the received text (vide infra, letter ה, § 104). But according to this Massorah it should not only be ופסח in Dan. 6 11, but ופסח with Aleph in all the other instances. The contrast to ופסח is ופסח (Judg. 9 5) and to ופסח (Prov. 7 20). It is also to be remarked that, contrary to its usual method, the Massorah here records in two instances the Kethiv instead of the Keri, viz. הלח (Deut. 3 11) and קח (Ezek. 14 4).

ה. — Thirteen words are written with He at the end, which are everywhere else written with Aleph. This Rubric, which I have found in the Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah only, § 180, is simply a later recension of the preceding Rubric. A later Nakdan added in the heading the number thirteen to correspond with the instances therein recorded, though this is in conflict with the eleven other passages given in the second part of the List. By the omission of the two expressions ופסח and ופסח, which as we have seen, respectively occur more than once, the compiler of this List brought it more in harmony with the received text. He, however, still left ופסח and gave both the instances of ופסח, which is contrary to the import of this Massorah, and added the new instance ופסח, thus making up the number thirteen.

And apart from this Massorah. — This supplementary List of eleven more instances is by a later editor. Though it supplies additional expressions, which in one instance only are written with He at the end and which occur again with Aleph, it shows that the compiler mistook the import of this Massorah, as will be seen from the following analysis: (1) ופסח with He, occurs twice, once as a proper name, which is here recorded and once as a noun denoting help (Ps. 46 2). That the Massorah has regard to the spelling, irrespective of the difference in the sense is attested by ופסח, which the compiler gives here as the eighth instance. In Ezek. 4 7 it is the participle, whilst its contrast ופסח with Aleph (Ezra 2 43; Neh. 7 46) is a proper name; (2) דָּוִדָּה (Dan. 2 44) is wrong in spite of the catchwords. It ought manifestly to be דָּוִדָּה, which occurs once only with He at the end (Dan. 7 24) and in contrast with דָּוִדָּה with Aleph, which occurs many times; (3) מִצְרַיִם with Aleph (Dan. 5 5) is not only against the import of this Massorah which deals with unique words ending in He, but occurs several times (Dan. § 15; 4 30; 5 5). As for דָּוִדָּה, it is uniformly written with He at the end, whilst מִצְרַיִם with Aleph does not occur.

ה. — [Words which respectively occur once only with audible He.] This incipient List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 105b, on Numb. 8 4. It exhibits the first attempt to collect the unique instances with audible He at the end. The five instances are already arranged according to the alphabet, though imperfectly.

ה. — An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur once only with audible He at the end. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 26b, on Gen. 40 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 84a, on Ezek. 22 24; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 122b, on Numb. 5 27; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 30 18; (V) the same Codex on Ezek. 22 24; (VI) the same Codex on Ezek. 29 19; (VII) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181a, on Ezek. 22 24; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 338a, on Prov. 5 3; (IX) the same MS., fol. 370a, on Dan. 7 11; (X) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 48; (XI) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 42, and (XII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 13.

As is often the case, this is simply a limited alphabetical List of unique words, which exhibit the same phenomenon. This is attested by the fact that the earlier Lists (I-VI, VIII) are restricted to one example to represent each letter, whilst the later redactors of Lists IX-XII have not only added the catchwords, but added more examples for some of the letters and thus exceeded the twenty-two letters of the alphabet. Thus Lists VII, IX and X, which are the first with catchwords, consist of twenty-five examples. They give two more for letter Vav (דָּוִדָּה Ezek. 22 2; מִצְרַיִם Zech. 4 2) and an additional one for Mem (מִצְרַיִם Job 11 9). List VIII, which is one of the earlier Lists and is restricted to a single example for each letter, gives מִצְרַיִם alone for Mem instead of מִצְרַיִם and מִצְרַיִם instead of מִצְרַיִם to represent Samech, though מִצְרַיִם occurs twice (2 Kings 8 3, 5), whilst List XI, which exhibits the latest development, has twenty-seven examples. It gives four for Vav, adding מִצְרַיִם (Gen. 47 13), the same two for Mem as Lists VII, IX and X with an additional one for Tav (מִצְרַיִם Ruth 2 7). On referring to the Lists of words which respectively occur once ending with He, which I compiled (vide infra, letter ה, § 66), it will be seen that there are a large number of such expressions and that the alphabet may be greatly increased.

ה. — A List of eighteen words which abnormally end with silent He. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 35a, on Exod. 2 3, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 14 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 13b, on Josh. 19 13; (IV) the same MSS., fol. 181a, on Ezek. 22 24; (V) the Massorah Finalis in Add. 15,251, fol. 436b-437a; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 44; (VII) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 43, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 15. With exception of List II, which omits מִצְרַיִם (Isa. 30 32) and makes up the eighteen instances by giving מִצְרַיִם (Levit. 13 4), which is not in any of the other seven Lists, all the Lists give the same eighteen examples. The absence of מִצְרַיִם or מִצְרַיִם (Ezek. 36 5) is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe. This is not only attested by the heading of this List, which emphatically states that there are eighteen such instances, but by the fact that all the other seven Lists give it.

As to its design, the fact that in two thirds of the instances the He is the suffix third person singular feminine, indicates that the Massorites originally intended to record in this Rubric those expressions only which are abnormally without the Dagesh, viz. הָ, instead of הֶ, and that later Nakdanim have added instances which are outside its scope. This is more apparent from the the three Lists in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 42b, 50b, 85b, on Exod. 2 3; 9 18 and Levit. 1 15 where a number of different expressions have been inserted in each List simply because they end in הָ. It remains to be added that all the Lists include in these eighteen instances מִצְרַיִם (Ezek. 14 4) which is the Kethiv and with the exception of the printed Massorah (List VIII), the Keri מִצְרַיִם (Ezek. 36 5). The addition מִצְרַיִם in the heading of List VIII shows that certain Codices head it with Dagesh in some of the passages, as will be seen from the notes on Jerem. 20 17 in my edition of the Bible. The note appended to List VII, which the learned Frensdorff states is in the same handwriting as the MS. itself, does not properly explain the import of this Massorah. In List II לִי מִצְרַיִם is manifestly a clerical error due to dittography.

ה. — Eleven words respectively occur twice, once with audible He at the end and once with silent He. That is, in one instance it is the feminine suffix third person singular and in the other it is either the paragogic He or the simple feminine termination. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the reading מִצְרַיִם, which is that of the Eastern recension, as is attested by the Model Codex No. 1-3 in the Paris National Library, which states in the Massorah on Levit. 13 4 לִי מִצְרַיִם מִצְרַיִם. It is also designed to militate against the various readings of other recensions, as will be seen from the notes on Ps. 48 14 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the most ancient and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists, thirteen in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 16a, on Gen. 25 31, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 104a, on Levit. 13 4; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 18 5; (IV) the same Codex on Isa. 23 17; (V) the same Codex on Hosea 9 10; (VI) the same Codex on Zeph. 3 7; (VII) the same Codex on Zech. 9 4; (VIII) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 126a, on Isa. 18 5; (IX) the same MS., fol. 202a, on Hosea 9 10; (X) the same MS., fol. 332a, on Job 33 5; (XI) the same MS., fol. 337b, on Prov. 5 3; (XII) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Gen. 25 31; (XIII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 45; (XIV) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 44, and (XV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 14.

Lists I-VII and X are the oldest form of this Rubric. They are as yet without catchwords, whilst II which is the oldest of all, exhibits the first attempt to collect these instances and records five pairs only, viz. Nos. 2, 3, 6, 7 and 9. With the exception of List XII they all state that there are eleven such pairs and they enumerate them in almost identically the same order. List XII, however, emphatically states in the heading that there are twelve such pairs (יב זוגות כ"ב דר כ"ב דר כ"ב דר כ"ב דר כ"ב דר) and though it breaks off with No. 10 it gives מִצְרַיִם (Deut. 20 19) and מִצְרַיִם (Jerem. 6 6) as the seventh pair, which is not given in any of the other Lists; whilst List XIV adds at the end under the separate heading מִצְרַיִם דר לבר מִצְרַיִם (Prov. 9 2) and מִצְרַיִם (Ps. 44 23). But even these two additional pairs by no means exhaust the number. Including verbs there are the following pairs מִצְרַיִם (Ezek. 24 6) and מִצְרַיִם (Ps. 142 8); מִצְרַיִם (Levit. 2 8) and מִצְרַיִם (Numb. 15 27); מִצְרַיִם (Isa. 45 18) and מִצְרַיִם (Ps. 90 17); מִצְרַיִם (Ezek. 30 21) and מִצְרַיִם (2 Kings 12 13); מִצְרַיִם (Numb. 8 4) and מִצְרַיִם (Job 30 12); מִצְרַיִם (Isa. 62 1) and מִצְרַיִם (Jerem. 3 11).

It will be seen that no fewer than five of the Lists are from the so-called Babylonian Codex. As all these Lists give מִצְרַיִם (Levit. 13 20) and מִצְרַיִם Rophe (Levit. 13 4) as the second of the eleven pairs, and moreover, as according to the Babylonians it is מִצְרַיִם with Dagesh in Levit. 13 4, we have here additional evidence that this Codex does not exhibit the Babylonian recension.

ה. — Three verses wherein every word which ends with He has Dagesh in the He. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 48a, on Exod. 21 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 103b, on Hosea 2 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 200a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 330b, on Job 28 27; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 53a, on Exod. 21 10; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 329a, on Job 28 27; (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 21 10; (VIII) the same on Job 28 27, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 40.

As in these three verses which respectively contain, three, five and four words ending with He, all the *He*s have not only Dagesh, but all the *Dageshed He*s closely follow one another, Lists VII and IX add מִצְרַיִם in their respective headings. Moreover as these three verses severally occur in the three great divisions of the Bible, Lists II, V and VI add ...

ד. - An alphabetical List of words [ending with He] which respectively occur once with the accent on the penultima. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in this form in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Habak. 3 11, which I have printed; (II) the same Codex on Ezek. 23 8; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 43b, on Exod. 3 1, and (IV) the same MS., fol. 136b, on Numb. 17 15.

As is often the case with the oldest recensions, these four Lists simply exhibit limited alphabets of the same characteristics, selected from a larger number of instances. This accounts for their variations. In Lists I and II, which are from the same Codex, these variations are limited to two. For letter ...

ד. - An alphabetical List of words ending in He which respectively occur once with the accent on the penultima. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 88b, on Exod. 14 26, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 43b, on the same passage; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 88; (IV) Paris Ochliah-Ve-Ochliah § 82, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 37.

This recension is a further development of the more concise alphabet given in the preceding Rubric. The original Lists (I and II), as we have seen, are limited to one example for each letter. Even Lists III and IV of the first recension, have simply one of the most three additional words, so that they severally give twenty-three and twenty-five such instances. Now the Lists of the developed alphabet in the recension before us give a minimum of thirty-five and a maximum of forty examples. The older List (I) gives thirty-five instances. Lists II, III and V record respectively the same thirty-seven instances and in precisely the same order, with the only difference that List II is without catchwords. The two additional instances are ...

ד. - An alphabetical List of words with Segol [ending in He] which respectively occur once only. That is, in contradistinction to those ending in silent He preceded by Tzere, which are recorded in the following Rubric. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 18 7.

ד. - Fifteen words are severally unique. That is, end with He preceded by Tzere, whereas in the other instances where they occur the vowel-point is Segol.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 55 4, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 64a, on Exod. 22 22; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 158a, on Jerem. 17 17; (IV) the same MS., fol. 165a, on Jerem. 32 23; (V) the same MS., fol. 343b, on Prov. 19 17; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 158a, on Levit. 11 42; (VII) Orient. 2349, fol. 88a, on the same passage; (VIII) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Exod. 22 22; (IX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 113, margin and (X) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter פ, § 96.

With the exception of List II, which has as yet no heading and the printed Massorah (List X), all the Lists emphatically state in their respective headings that there are fifteen such instances and duly record the same fifteen in practically the same order. As the List which I have printed also states that there are fifteen (in the heading is a printers mistake for ט) and enumerates fourteen only, it is evident that ...

We have still to consider the printed Massorah (List X), which has given so much trouble to Massoretic experts. This Rubric is not only headed... but records twenty-five instances.

On comparing these ten with the fifteen which alone constitute this Rubric in all the other Lists and the design of which is to record the instances ending with He preceded exceptionally by There...

י"ח. - Sixteen words in the Pentateuch are written with He at the end for which the official reading or the Keri is Vav.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 148b, on Dent. 34 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2848, fol. 153b, on the same passage, and (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 92a, on Numb. 10 36.

It will be seen that these sixteen expressions consist of ten in which the ה_ is the archaic suffix third person singular masculine instead of the normal ו_ and that six are the Kal infinitive of verbs in which this letter is part of the root. י"ח - § 48.

י"ח. - These are written with He at the end of the word and are read with Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Hosea 1 2. It is an incipient List of the other Scriptures in which the ה_ is officially cancelled and ו_ substituted in the infinitives absolute of verbs Lamed He.

(1) The Archaic suffix:

Table with 4 columns: Book/Chapter:Verse, Hebrew text, Book/Chapter:Verse, Hebrew text. Lists instances of archaic suffix.

and seventeen or eighteen times קָרָה, which the Massorah gives in a separate Rubric. (Vide infra, letter כ, § 808.)

(2) Infinitives absolute of verbs Lamed He:

Table with 4 columns: Book/Chapter:Verse, Hebrew text, Book/Chapter:Verse, Hebrew text. Lists instances of infinitives absolute.

(3) Proper names:

Table with 4 columns: Book/Chapter:Verse, Hebrew text, Book/Chapter:Verse, Hebrew text. Lists instances of proper names.

The only alteration which the redactors of the text have uniformly carried through is in the first class, where they have consistently given the Keri against the expressions with the archaic suffix. In the second class they have been inconsistent. Though קָרָה the infinitive absolute occurs once only (Isa. 22 17) there is no Keri קָרָה against it.

Isa. 6 9; vide infra, letter ν , § 80), the Massorites furnished it with the Keri in one instance only (Exod. 3 7) and left $\nu\alpha\gamma$ in 1 Sam. 1 11, without any note. That these irregularities are due to different Schools of textual redactors who had different traditions with regard to the orthography of the text, is attested by the conflicting Massoretic notes on $\nu\alpha\gamma$. This infinitive absolute, which occurs altogether nine times, is in four instances written with ν and in five with ν . Whilst one School of Massorites cancels the He another School cancels the Vav (vide supra, letter ν , § 228 and the notes on 2 Kings 20 13; Ezek. 48 18 &c. in my edition of the Bible). In some cases the infinitive absolute of verbs Lamed He has uniformly retained the ν without a Keri (comp. $\nu\alpha\gamma$ Amos 5 5; 7 11 17) and in others again the Keri is even on the infinitive construct, viz. $\nu\alpha\gamma$ Gen. 48 11) $\nu\alpha\gamma$ (Prov. 16 16).

In the third class consistency was more attainable, since with the exception of $\nu\alpha\gamma$ and $\nu\alpha\gamma$ ending in ν , all the proper names terminating in ν are written with ν .¹ The unique instance of $\nu\alpha\gamma$ has, therefore, a Keri cancelling the He and substituting the normal Vav. In the other cases the Vav is substituted for the He to make them conformable to the rest of the proper names which end in ν . For the Keri on $\nu\alpha\gamma$ (Gen. 49 10) I cannot account, since in none of the other twenty-two instances where this name is written with He, has the Massorah made an attempt to cancel the He and substitute Vav, which it has in ten instances.

7. - Fourteen words are written with He at the end for which the official reading or Keri substitutes Vav. That is, in these instances the suffix in the textual reading is in the singular and the Keri or official marginal reading is in the plural. By fixing the number at fourteen, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the Eastern recension, which has $\nu\alpha\gamma$ the plural as the textual reading in Lament. 4 17, and no Keri.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists, seventeen in MSS. and three printed. I shall, however, specify the following ten only: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 77b, on Levit. 21 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 125b, on Deut. 21 7; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 106b, on Levit. 21 5; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 97a, on 1 Kings 22 49; (V) the same MS., fol. 148a, on Jerem. 2 15; (VI) the same MS., fol. 160a, on Jerem. 22 6; (VII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 95; (VIII) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 113; (IX) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 24 10, and (X) the same on Lament. 4 17. For the second part of this Rubric see below, letter ν , § 148.

7. - Five words respectively occur twice, once ending with He and once with Yod. That is, these pairs which are with Tere and in the construct state, are severally in one instance in the singular and in the other in the plural. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the singular and plural forms of these expressions against the various readings, which the MSS. of the less dominant School exhibited, as will be seen from the notes on Deut. 7 15; 28 60; Jerem. 4 29; Ps. 64 9, in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest constituent parts of the Massorah, I collated fourteen Lists, eleven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 271a, on Esther 1 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 111b, on Levit. 25 34; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 4 29; (IV) the same Codex, on Mal. 1 6; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 150a, on Jerem. 4 29; (VI) the same MS., fol. 299a, on Ps. 64 9; (VII) the same MS., fol. 358b, on Esther 1 14; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 178b, on Levit. 25 34; (IX) Orient. 2348, fol. 107b, on the same passage; (X) Orient. 2349, fol. 97b, also on the same passage; (XI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 77; (XII) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 94; (XIII) the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 at the end of Vol. II, and (XIV) the printed Massorah on Prov. 19 18.

The fourteen Lists exhibit two recensions. The first recension records five instances only and is exhibited in eight Lists (I, III, IV, V, VI, VII, XI, XIII) four of which (I, III, V, XIII) have the mnemonic sign, whilst the second is exhibited in six Lists (II, VIII, IX, X, XII, XIV), which are respectively headed $\nu\alpha\gamma$ and duly record six such pairs, adding $\nu\alpha\gamma$ (Levit. 25 34) and

7 - § 51.

7. - Words ending with Aleph He which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 81b, on Exod. 25 40, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 71b, on the same passage. Though this List is evidently designed to record those instances only which end in ν with Segol (ν), it is incipient even in this form, since there are no fewer than fifteen such unique expressions, as will be seen from ν , § 66.

7. - [List of words ending with Beth He which respectively occur once only.] That is, with He Raphe preceded by Beth with Kametz. These five Lists are respectively from: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 78b, on Exod. 36 2; (II) the same MS., fol. 115b, on Numb. 25 8; (III) Vienna Codex No. 85, on Exod. 36 2; (IV) the printed Massorah on Isa. 50 11, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ν , § 12. It will be seen that though they are severally designed to record the same phenomenon, the shortest of these Lists consists of four examples, whilst the longest records nineteen only. That they simply exhibit unfinished attempts to collect the unique words ending in ν with Kametz which are Raphe (ν), will be seen from ν , § 66 where there are nearly seventy such instances.

7. - Words ending with Cheth He which respectively occur once only. That is, with He Raphe preceded by Cheth with Kametz. These three Lists are: (I) from Orient. 2349, fol. 53b, on Gen. 48 21; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 124b, on Deut. 20 11, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ν , § 8.

When it is borne in mind that there are upwards of ninety expressions which occur once only ending in ν with Kametz, and are Raphe ν (vide infra, letter ν , § 66), it will be seen that even the longest List, consisting of twenty-seven examples, is simply an attempt to collect these instances.

List III (the printed Massorah) again affords a striking illustration of the oft-repeated fact that later Nakdanim frequently mistook the import of the Rubrics and not only added instances which are in conflict with their design, but furnished the unpointed expressions with wrong catchwords. Thus in three instances, viz. (1) $\nu\alpha\gamma$ (Prov. 31 26), the catchwords are for $\nu\alpha\gamma$ (Zech. 3 9), (2) $\nu\alpha\gamma$ (Job 30 12) or $\nu\alpha\gamma$ (Cant. 7 13), the catchwords are for $\nu\alpha\gamma$ (Numb. 8 4) and (3) for $\nu\alpha\gamma$ (Isa. 48 8) the catchwords are $\nu\alpha\gamma$ (Ezek. 40 38), which are in conflict with the import of the Rubric, since its design is to record the expressions terminating in He Raphe (ν). Moreover $\nu\alpha\gamma$ occurs twice (Deut. 1 22; 1 Chron. 13 2) and is, therefore, against the scope of this Massorah which tabulates unique forms. $\nu\alpha\gamma$ (Neh. 10 25), which ends with Aleph in the received text and is, therefore, in conflict with the heading of this Rubric, may be based upon MSS. which exhibited $\nu\alpha\gamma$ with He.

The Lists for words ending in He Raphe preceded by Gimel with Kametz (ν), by Daleth with Kametz (ν), by He with Kametz (ν), by Vav with Kametz (ν) and by Zain with Kametz (ν), I have not as yet been able to find in the MSS., though unique forms of each of these letters occur, as will be seen from letter ν , § 66.

7. - [Words ending with Teth He which respectively occur once only.] That is, with He Raphe preceded by Teth with Kametz. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 46a, on Gen. 15 17, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 36a, on the same passage. The latter adds at the end $\nu\alpha\gamma$ ליה ביה ביה. Like the preceding Lists this simply exhibits the first attempt to collect the instances of words ending in ν , as is evident from the fact that it records eleven only whereas there are upwards of forty such words.

7. - [Words ending with Yod He which respectively occur once only.] This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 122a, on Numb. 25 22. As ten out of the fourteen examples which constitute this incipient List, terminate in ם, it is evident that the design of the original compiler was to record those instances only in which the He is preceded by Yod with Kamets, in contradistinction to the alphabetical List of words ending in He, which are preceded by silent Yod, (vide supra, letter ם, § 41), and that a later Nakdan who disregarded this fact, added here the four instances with Kamets under the He. At the end of this Rubric is added כלה לוי כהן, which I have inadvertently omitted.

17. - [Words ending in Yod He which respectively occur once only.] This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 94b, on Levit. 21 13. It will be seen that seven of the eleven examples, which constitute this fragmentary List, are with Kametzed He preceded by a silent Yod and a Segoled Lamed (יהי). There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that the four instances of יה without the Yod are a later addition.

17 - § 56a.

17. - [Words ending in Caph He which respectively occur once only.] That is, with He Raphe preceded by Caph with Kametz. This incipient Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 42b, on Gen. 27 7. As the design of this Massorah evidently is to record words ending in He Raphe, דהה, which I pointed דהה (Job 28 23) should be דהה (Josh. 14 9). On referring to ם, § 66, it will be seen that there are more than 110 such instances.

17 - § 56b.

17. - [Words ending in Caph He which respectively occur once only.] This fragmentary List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 126b, on Deut. 23 2. It will be seen that out of nine instances here recorded, five only end in He Raphe preceded by Kametzed Caph, one ends in ם and three end in ם, thus showing the incipient Lists begun by the first compilers have been added to irrespective of the original design

17 - § 56c.

17. - Twenty words respectively end in He. That is, in these instances the silent He follows the Kametzed Caph, which is here the second person singular masculine, contrary to the normal form of this suffix which is simply Caph without the He (ה).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists, twelve in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 48a, on Exod. 13 16, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 48b, on Exod. 7 29; (III) the same MS., fol. 142b, on Numb. 22 38; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 7 27; (V) the same Codex on Ezek. 40 4; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 35b, on 1 Sam. 1 26; (VII) the same MS., fol. 92b, on 1 Kings 18 10; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 153a, on Jerem. 7 27; (IX) the same MS., fol. 319a, on Ps. 139 5; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 75a, on Exod. 7 29; (XI) the same MS., fol. 282b, on 3 Sam. 22 30; (XII) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah I, § 74; (XIII) Paris Oehlah Ve-Oehlah, § 92; (XIV) the printed Massorah, on Exod. 7 29, and (XV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ם, § 21.

The List which I have printed (List I) is exceedingly interesting. It shows that a Rubric is not infrequently made up of two different forms of the same Massorah, the one consisting of longer catchwords which are designed to facilitate the identification of the passages, and the other of single words only, which is the earlier form and hence is more difficult to decipher, being as it were a mnemonic sign, and is explained by the first.

At the end of List XIII דהה (Gen. 27 7) is given as another instance under the separate heading דהה לוי כהן, whilst List XV states in the heading that there are twenty-one such instances (דהה לוי כהן) and includes this expression as a part of the Massorah itself, though it is excluded in all the other thirteen Lists. It is remarkable that though List III gives the same twenty instances, it is yet without any heading, fixing the number of these abnormal forms. Six of the Lists (II, III, X, XI, XIII, XV) have the expression דהה or דהה - certainly, plainly i. e. these words are plainly, or certainly so written. (Vide supra, letter ם, § 115.)

17 - § 57a-c.

17. - [Words ending in Lamed He which respectively occur once only.] That is, with He Raphe preceded by Lamed with Kametz. These Lists too, which are from Orient. 2349, fol. 35a, on Gen. 13 9, and fol. 47a, on Gen. 33 14, exhibit the first attempts on the part of the Massorites to collect the expressions which end with He Raphe preceded by a Kametzed Lamed. Accordingly דהה (1 Sam. 1 23) is in conflict with the design of this Rubric.

17. - Words which end in He preceded by Lamed. Though this List, which is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 18, records thirty-one such instances, it is still simply a fragmentary catalogue of the words which end in ה. A reference to letter ם, § 66 will show that there are about 220 such expressions.

This Rubric again shows that later Nakdanim have not only added instances to it which are contrary to its import, but furnished the unpointed expressions with catchwords which are in direct conflict with the Massorah. Thus for instance דהה (Prov. 16 26) is given twice as the eighth and fifteenth instance. The latter is probably a mistake for דהה (Prov. 6 6) with the wrong catchword attached to it דהה (Job 7 9) the thirteenth instance, which is given as unique, occurs no fewer than nine times and is manifestly דהה (Dan. 4 32) furnished with the wrong catchwords. The same is the case with דהה (Isa. 66 8) the fourteenth instance, which as the Massorah itself states, occurs three times (vide infra, letter ם, § 63) and which is a mistake for דהה (2 Chron. 33 12) or דהה (Numb. 15 20), furnished with the wrong catchwords. דהה (No. 28), which is here recorded as unique (1 Sam. 2 5) occurs twice (also Joël 1 12).

17. - [Words ending in Mem He which respectively occur once only.] That is, with He Raphe preceded by Mem with Kametz. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174, on Exod. 1 10, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 68a, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 58a, also on the same passage.

Of the thirteen instances which constitute this Rubric, eleven are with Kametz under the Mem. There can, therefore, be no doubt that the design of this Massorah is to record those instances only which end with ם and that the two instances with ם are a later addition. Indeed Lists II and III omit דהה (Hosea 10 7) though they have דהה (Cant. 2 9), which, however, may be דהה (Micah 2 3). Like all the other Lists of this kind this simply exhibits the first attempt at collecting these unique expressions, as is attested by the fact that there are altogether more than 160 words ending in ם which respectively occur once only. (Vide supra, letter ם, § 66.)

17. - Words ending in He preceded by Noun with Kametz and Dagesh (ה) are singular throughout the Scriptures; and those preceded by Kametzed Noun without Dagesh (ה) are plural except in three instances.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, and constitutes a section in Ben-Asher's Treatise, I collated six Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 30b, on Gen. 2 21, which I have printed; (II) Ben-Asher's Treatise § 15, p. 989, in my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible; (III) the same Treatise given in letter ב, § 246, p. 658; (IV) the same in my Massorah, Vol. III, p. 298, § 19; (V) the same in Vol. III, p. 323, § 28, and (VI) the same in Baer and Strack's edition p. 43, § 55.

17. - Eight words ending in He preceded by Noun with Dagesh (ה) respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, three in MSS. and three printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 144a, on Levit. 6 14, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 6a, on Gen. 6 16; (III) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 277; (IV) Paris Oehlah Ve-Oehlah § 269; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 6 16, and (VI) the same on Levit. 6 14.

According to Heidenheim in שם ושמע and שמה on Gen. 6 16, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard these eight expressions which are ambiguous, against being taken as plurals. Hence the Nun is with Dagesh and they are defective of Yod. Accordingly Micah 7 10 ought to be נָנָן, which is exhibited in Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,451 second hand; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488 and the third edition, Brescia 1494.

¶. — Words ending in He preceded by Dageshed Nun with Kametz, which respectively occur once. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2849, fol. 32a, on Gen. 6 16. It will be seen that these eleven instances are restricted to those which begin with Tav and hence exhibit an attempt at an alphabetical List of words which end with נָן. That these are simply a fragment is evident from the fact that there are twenty-six words beginning with נ and ending in נָ and that without Dagesh in the Nun (נִ) there are about sixteen more, as will be seen from נ, § 66.

¶. — Words ending in He preceded by Kametz Nun, which respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which records nineteen words, is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter נ, § 5. It is simply a fragment of the unique expressions ending in the suffix נָ with and without Dagesh, as will be seen from נ, § 66. A similar fragment, which catalogues thirteen only, is given in the ancient Codex Orient. 444b, fol. 90a, on Levit. 6 14.

¶. — Words ending in silent He preceded by Kametz Ayin, which respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2849, fol. 47a, on Gen. 33 12. As there are more than 110 expressions ending in He Raphe preceded by Kametz Ayin (vide infra, letter נ, § 66), it is evident that these eleven instances simply exhibit a fragmentary attempt to collect these unique forms. נָנָן, the last instance, is contrary to the import of this Rubric and is manifestly the addition of a later Nakdan. The List recording the unique words ending in נָ I have not as yet been able to find, though there are about thirty, as will be seen from נ, § 66.

¶. — Words ending in silent He preceded by Kametz Pe, which respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 409a on Dan. 2 15. There are altogether over eighty expressions ending in silent He preceded by Pe with Kametz (נָפ) as will be seen from נ, § 66. It is, therefore, evident that these eight forms simply exhibit a first attempt to collect these unique words.

נָן — § 62.

¶. — Words ending in silent He preceded by Kametz Twad, which respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2849, fol. 119b, on Numb. 31 26. This List of eight such words, like its predecessors, is simply an incipient fragment, since there are over fifty such unique forms. (Vide infra, letter נ, § 66.)

נָן — § 63a—d.

¶. — Words ending in silent He preceded by Kametz Coph, which respectively occur once only. These fragmentary Lists are from Orient. 2849, fol. 137a, on Deut. 25 9; Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 108b, on Numb. 33 28 and Orient. 1471, fol. 204a, on 1 Kings 19 20. The seventh instance, viz. נָפָן (Isa. 62 1) in § 68a, is contrary to the scope of this Massorah, which is to record the unique instances of silent He preceded by Kametz Coph (נָפ). For this reason נָפָן, the seventh instance in § 68b, which I have pointed נָפָן and given the reference to Isa. 62 1, should be נָפָן Jerem. 3 11.

¶. — Words ending in silent He preceded by Coph, which respectively occur once only. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter פ, § 2. It will be seen that this List records twenty-one instances, or two less than § 68a. Both, however, are fragmentary, since there are altogether about sixty-five such unique forms. (Vide infra, letter נ, § 66.)

נָן — § 64a.

¶. — Words ending in silent He preceded by Kametz Resh, which respectively occur once only. This Rubric is from Orient. 2849, fol. 60b, on Exod. 6 3. As its design is to record the unique instances of words ending in silent He preceded by Kametz Resh, two of the eleven expressions, viz. נָרָן (Exod. 6 3), which ends in Alaph and נָרָן (Isa. 34 9), which is with Dagesh in the He, are manifestly out of place.

¶. — Words ending in Dageshed He preceded by Resh with Kametz, which respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2849, fol. 89a, on Levit. 13 20. As there are about forty-four such instances (vide infra, letter נ, § 66), it is manifest that this List is simply a fragment.

¶. — Words ending in silent He preceded by Resh with Kametz, which respectively occur once only. This List, which is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ר, § 3, is a further development of § 64a. Though it records nearly three times as many examples it is fragmentary, since there are about 271 unique words ending in He Raphe preceded by Resh with Kametz. (Vide infra, letter נ, § 66.) With the solitary exception of נָרָן (Ezek. 39 14), which is with Dagesh, all the other twenty-seven words end in He Raphe, which clearly shows the design of this Rubric. There can, therefore, be no doubt that this expression is the addition of a Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah. To the same Nakdan is probably due the insertion of נָרָן in this List as unique, since it occurs twice (Ps. 77 3; Lament. 3 49).

¶. — Words ending in silent He preceded by Tav, which respectively occur once only. These two incipient Lists, which do not occur in the printed Massorah, are from Orient. 2849, fol. 45b, on Gen. 31 27 and the same MS., fol. 69a, on Exod. 19 23. It is remarkable that though there are about 215 words which respectively occur once only, ending in He Raphe and being preceded by Tav with Kametz (נָת), as will be seen from letter נ, § 66, yet in the first of these two fragments consisting of eight expressions, there are two ending in Alaph and in the second, consisting of twelve instances, there are two with Dagesh in the He (נִ) and one with Kametz (נָ). This is due to the carelessness of a later Nakdan who ignored the import of these Lists. Of the unique expressions which end in He Raphe preceded by Shin with Kametz (נָש) and of which there are about eighty (vide infra, letter נ, § 66), I have not been able to find any List.

¶. — An alphabetical List of words ending in He, which respectively occur once only. This List I have compiled myself. Its importance will be appreciated by Massoretic students when it is stated that most of the preceding Rubrics, which consist of single unique expressions without vowel-points and without catchwords, I could not possibly have identified without this compilation. Even with its aid the difficulties are not quite overcome; since the same unpointed letters are capable of different graphic signs and may stand for several unique forms in the absence of catchwords in the MS. Massorahs. The mistakes which I have detected since the publication of this List, I have pointed out in the Additions at the end of Volume I, p. 753, § 66a—c. When it is borne in mind that this List alone contains over 4000 unique words ending in He which I had to find out, the student will readily understand how this comparatively small number escaped my detection. I have no doubt that there are still mistakes, which I have been unable to detect and shall be grateful if they are pointed out.

נָן lo! occurs three times. The only other instance in which this bilateral interjection occurs it is נָן with Kametz (Dan. 3 26).

this Rubric, are omitted: (1) וְהָיָה Gen. 18 10 comp. with וְהָיָה Judg. 6 8; (2) וְהָיָה Levit. 5 2 with וְהָיָה Levit. 18 44, 44; (3) וְהָיָה Prov. 19 1 with וְהָיָה Prov. 10 18; 28 26; (4) וְהָיָה 2 Kings 6 30 with וְהָיָה Deut. 31 8; 2 Kings 4 19; (5) וְהָיָה Job 31 11 with וְהָיָה Job 31 26; (6) וְהָיָה Jerem. 20 1 with וְהָיָה 2 Kings 25 19; (7) וְהָיָה 2 Kings 6 5 with וְהָיָה 1 Sam. 1 28; whilst the following three, which are included in this Rubric, do not belong to it: וְהָיָה Gen. 49 20; וְהָיָה 2 Sam. 15 30 and וְהָיָה 2 Kings 2 28, since they do not occur in combination with וְהָיָה. List II, which gives nine instances only, rightly omits וְהָיָה, but it also omits וְהָיָה Ps. 37 5. It has, however, no heading and does not fix the number of these unique combinations. From the above analysis it is evident that the heading in Lists I and III, fixing the number at eleven, is wrong. It is the addition of a later Nakdan, who made it correspond to the number of instances therein enumerated.

וְהָיָה וְהָיָה. Eight verses in which this pronoun respectively occurs twice, the first time with the prefix Vav and the second without it. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 270b, on 2 Chron. 22 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 94b, on 1 Kings 20 12; (III) the same MS., fol. 201b, on Hosea 8 6; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 197a, on 1 Kings 20 12; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage; (VI) Paris Oehlah Ve-Oehlah, § 341, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 2 Chron. 22 9.

וְהָיָה וְהָיָה. Eight verses in which this pronoun with the prefix Vav respectively occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading וְהָיָה in Zech. 6 13, which is still exhibited in ancient MSS. of the less dominant School of textual redactors. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 98.)

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, nine in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 284b, on 1 Kings 19 19, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 81a, on Judg. 17 7; (III) the same MS., fol. 77a, on 1 Kings 2 8; (IV) the same MS., fol. 94a, on 1 Kings 19 19; (V) the same MS., fol. 122a, on Isa. 8 13; (VI) the same MS., fol. 201b, on Hosea 7 9; (VII) the same MS., fol. 219a, on Zech. 6 13; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 288b, on 1 Chron. 2 21; (IX) Paris Oehlah Ve-Oehlah, § 340; (X) the printed Massorah on Judg. 17 7; (XI) the same on 1 Kings 19 19, and (XII) the same on Hosea, 7 9.

It will be seen that the List which I have printed emphatically states in the heading that there are eight such verses and gives 1 Chron. 22 10 as the eighth instance. And though Lists II and V state in their respective headings that there are seven such verses only, they omit Hosea 7 9 and give 1 Chron. 22 10 as a parallel to Zech. 6 13. These three Lists must, therefore, be based upon a recension of the text which exhibited וְהָיָה וְהָיָה in 1 Chron. 22 10. The printed Massorah (List X) affords an illustration of the oft-repeated statement that later Nakdanim altered the headings of Rubrics when they misunderstood their import. The Nakdan or Jaob b. Chayim mistook וְהָיָה וְהָיָה as the catchwords for one instance and hence altered the heading וְהָיָה וְהָיָה into וְהָיָה וְהָיָה, since in this undivided form six instances only appear, whereas וְהָיָה וְהָיָה refers to Isa. 8 13 and וְהָיָה וְהָיָה to Zech. 6 13.

וְהָיָה וְהָיָה and he, occurs twice. That is, with Kametz under the Vav, in contradistinction to the numerous instances where this pronoun with the prefix Vav, is with Sheva. This Massorah is based upon the official reading or Keri, since the Kethiv or the textual reading in 1 Kings 17 15 is וְהָיָה וְהָיָה with Yod.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 51b, on Gen. 41 11, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 44a, on the same passage, which is more properly headed וְהָיָה וְהָיָה, and (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 282b, on 1 Kings 17 15.

וְהָיָה וְהָיָה and he shall be, occurs six times. In the other seven instances where this combination occurs it is וְהָיָה וְהָיָה without the prefix Vav (Gen. 44 17; Exod. 4 16; Deut. 28 44; 31 8; Eccl. 3 14; 1 Chron. 22 9). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Orient. 2349, fol. 86a, on Gen. 16 12.

וְהָיָה וְהָיָה she, occurs three times in the Pericope. That is, in Gen. 1 1-6 8. This trilateral pronoun occurs altogether fifteen times in Pericope Bereshith. In twelve instances it is masculine and hence is pointed וְהָיָה (2 11, 13, 14, 14, 19; 3 6 15; 4 4, 20, 21, 28; 6 8) and in three instances only is it feminine and is pointed וְהָיָה. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 80b, on Gen. 3 12.

וְהָיָה וְהָיָה his glory, occurs five times. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. 221b, on Ps. 148 13, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 214a, on Habak. 3 8; (III) the same MS., fol. 821a, on Ps. 148 13; (IV) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 22 18, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 78.

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the only instance in which the archaic suffix ו for the third person singular masculine has survived in the text in connection with this noun. (Jerem. 22 18.) In the other four passages in which it occurs with the suffix third person, later redactors have successfully substituted for it the normal ו. Though the List which I have printed does not indicate in the heading nor in the enumeration of the passages that there is any difference in its orthography, all the other Lists distinctly say in their respective headings that it is four times with Vav and once with He. The absence of this indication in List I is due to the fact that the compiler of it based this Rubric upon MSS. which exhibited the normal reading ו, also in Jerem. 22 18 in accordance with the official Keri. This official marginal reading or Keri is given in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 and in the Model Codex Harley 5710-11 on Jerem. 22 18. For an analysis of the passages in which this archaic form of the suffix has been preserved see letter ו, §§ 47, 48.

וְהָיָה וְהָיָה be thou, occurs twice in the Scriptures, once it is written with He and once with Aleph. As this Kal imperative singular masculine, which occurs twice, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards the respective spellings. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 238a, on Job 37 6, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 384a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 72. These two words form part of the eleven expressions which respectively occur twice, once ending with Aleph and once with He. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 23.)

וְהָיָה = § 103.

וְהָיָה וְהָיָה occurs three times in the same verse. That is, with Aleph. As this Chaldee Peal preterite singular masculine which occurs eight times in the same verse, is three times spelt with Aleph and five times with He, the Massorah safeguards the minority, recording that in the first and the last two instances it is with Aleph. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 281a, on Dan. 5 19.

וְהָיָה וְהָיָה is twice written with He. The design of this artificial Massorah is to safeguard the instances in which this Peal preterite is written with He, in contradistinction to the passages in which it is with Aleph, recorded in the preceding Rubric. With He it occurs altogether eight times (Dan. 4 26; 5 19, 19, 19, 19; 6 4, 15). The Massorah, however, artificially makes it into two by giving Dan. 4 26 as one and reckoning all the instances from Dan. 5 19 as exhibiting another, excepting the first, seventh and eighth instances which are given in the preceding Rubric. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 367b, on Dan. 4 26. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 35a.)

וְהָיָה = § 105.

וְהָיָה וְהָיָה being, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, as participle active singular masculine from וְהָיָה with Segol under the Vav, in contradistinction to the three instances in which this triliteral is a noun with Kametz under the Vav (וֹ), denoting mischief (Isa. 47 11; Ezek. 7 26, 26).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 264a, on Eccl. 2 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 296a, on Neh. 6 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 351a, on Eccl. 2 22; (IV) the same MS., fol. 382b, on Neh. 6 6; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 424a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 343, margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 71.

קו occurs twice. That is, the Chaldee Peal preterite second person singular masculine, in contradistinction to this quadriliteral which occurs thirteen times and is pointed קוה, being the preterite first person singular. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 365a, on Dan. 2 81.

קיא he or she shall be, is three times written with He. This Peal future third person singular occurs altogether seven times. In four instances it is written with Aleph (קיא Dan. 2 40, 42; 7 28; Ezra 6 8) and in three with He. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This protection is all the more necessary since the two forms occur in one and the same verse. (Dan. 2 42).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 276b, on Dan. 2 41, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 365b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. The latter heads it קיא ביהוה, which is misleading, since it suggests that it is also so written apart from this book. It ought properly to be ביהוה.

קיה wickedness, destruction, is twice defective. This plural or abstract noun, occurs altogether ten times. In eight instances it is with two Vavs (קיה Pa. 5 10; 38 13; 52 4; 55 12; 57 2; 91 3; 94 20; Job 6 30) and with one Vav in these two instances only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

This Rubric I found in the printed Massorah only, of which it gives two conflicting Lists: (I) on Prov. 19 13, which I have printed, and (II) on Numb. 32 4. The first Rubric states that there are two such defective instances and records two only, whilst the second states there are three and gives Job 6 30 as the third instance, adding however that there is a difference of opinion about the Job passage.¹

קיש Hoshaiah, occurs three times in the Scriptures. This is one of the few proper names ending with the Divine name ה, which the redactors of the text have not attempted to safeguard by lengthening it into jahu (יח). (Comp. my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Bible, p. 886 &c.)

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 300b, on Neh. 12 32, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex on A. D. 916 on Jerem. 42 1; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 43 2; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 401a, on Neh. 12 32; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 74.

קי Hoses the son of Nun, occurs three times. (Numb. 13 8, 16; Deut. 32 44).¹ That is, the name which the successor of Moses bore before this great Lawgiver changed it to Joshua (comp. Numb. 13 16), in contradistinction to the normal combination קיש Joshua the son of Nun, which occurs about twenty-seven times.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 4445, fol. 131b, on Numb. 13 8. This ancient Codex has been acquired by the British Museum since the publication of the text of the Massorah. Hence the absence of this Rubric in this place. As all the three instances are restricted to the Pentateuch, the heading ought properly to be ביהוה.

קי in Hoshea, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 110b, on 2 Kings 17 4.

קיא and she was moved, or disturbed, occurs three times and is defective. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 282b, on Ruth 1 19, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 175a, on 1 Sam. 4 5; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 147b, on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Kings 1 45, and (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 4 5.

קייב she, begins a verse three times in the Scriptures. This pronoun third person singular feminine which begins a verse seven times, is in four instances with the prefix Vav (קייב Josh. 2 6; Judg. 4 5; 1 Sam. 1 10; Hosea 2 10) and in three without the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 75b, on Ezek. 10 20, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 272a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 40b, on Gen. 38 25; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 50a, on the same passage; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezek. 10 20; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 38 25, and (VII) the same on Ezek. 10 20.

קייג is in eleven instances written with Yod in the Pentateuch. That is, without and with the prefixes. This pronoun third person which is used in the Pentateuch both for the masculine and the feminine, and which occurs altogether about 209 times, is in these eleven instances exceptionally written Yod, in contradistinction to the 198 passages where it is written with Vav.¹

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 77a, on Levit. 21 9, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 106b, on Levit. 20 17; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 71a, on Levit. 11 39; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 170a, on Levit. 20 17; (V) the same MS., fol. 194a, on Numb. 5 13; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 131; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 38 25, and (VIII) the same on Levit. 13 21.

The reason for the normal orthography קי in the Pentateuch, which is abnormal in the Prophets and the Hagiographa (vide supra, letter ה, § 83), is most probably to be found in the fact that, like in the Phoenician, the Moabite and old Aramaic Inscriptions, this pronoun was originally written קי for both persons and must have been pronounced hū or hī according as the masculine or feminine was required by the context. When the plena scriptio was introduced it was almost every where expanded into קי irrespective of gender. At a later period, however, the Yod was introduced for the feminine. But owing to the peculiar sanctity with which the Law of Moses was regarded, the redactors of the text scrupled to extend this orthography to the Pentateuch, where, however, it has penetrated into the eleven instances which constitute this Rubric.

That the orthography of קי and קי to indicate the respective genders, was not finally settled among the different Schools of textual redactors and that some recensions exhibited variations, is attested both by ancient records and Biblical MSS. Thus for instance we are told that even the Standard Temple Codices differed with regard to the number of the instances in which קי as the feminine occurred in the Pentateuch. (Comp. my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Bible, p. 408 &c.) The Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text uniformly has קי for the feminine throughout the Pentateuch, and the celebrated Hellali Codex read קי in Gen. 20 5b, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. The Massorah itself records instances in the Prophets and Hagiographa where the textual reading is קי, which ought to be קי and vice versa

1 (1) Without the prefixes (קיי) it occurs 131 times in the Pentateuch, viz. 42 times in Genesis; 7 times in Exodus; 56 times in Leviticus; 16 times in Numbers and 10 times in Deuteronomy; (2) with the prefix He (קייא) 56 times, viz. 10 in Genesis; 4 in Exodus; 7 in Leviticus; 8 in Numbers and 27 in Deuteronomy, and (3) with the prefix Vav (קייב) 11 times, viz. 4 in Genesis; none in Exodus; 4 in Leviticus; 3 in Numbers and none in Deuteronomy.

where מא should be מא. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 83.) It, moreover, states that in one instance at least where the Palestinians read מא the Babylonians have מא and in one the reverse is the case (see notes on Ezek. 1 13, Nah. 2 12 in my edition of the Bible), and in no fewer than thirty-one instances the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 retains מא without and with the prefixes instead of the later מא, which is the reading of the present textus receptus, viz. Isa. 39 1; Jerem. 3 17; 8 1; 22 16; 25 13; 28 1, 17; 31 1; 33 15; 45 4; 50 4, 20; Ezek. 11 7; 14 17; 16 46, 48; 18 20; 21 19; 26 17; 30 18; 32 16; Hosea 2 4; Joel 4 1; Amos 5 13b; Micah 3 4; Nah. 3 10; Zeph. 1 12; 3 19; Hag. 2 6; Zech. 3 9; 5 6.

The whole of this question is ably discussed by Delitzsch, Zeitschrift für kirchliche Wissenschaft und kirchliches Leben, Vol. I, p. 393 &c., Leipzig 1880; Gesenius-Kautzsch, Hebrew Grammar, p. 107, Oxford 1898; Driver, Critical notes on Leviticus, p. 25 &c., in the Sacred Books of the Old Testament edited by Paul Haupt, London 1894.

קיי. In five instances the textual reading is קיי and the official reading is קיי. For this Rubric see letter מ, § 83.

קטז she, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs seven times with the accent in the Scriptures. That is, with Zakeph-Gadol. The design of this Massorah is simply to safeguard the accent on the pronoun third person feminine. Hence no notice is taken of its orthography, being in four instances with Yod (מא Levit. 13 10; Josh. 11 10; Judg. 18 28; Ezek. 1 13) and in three with Vav (מא Gen. 38 14; Levit. 20 13; 22 12).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 25b, on Gen. 38 14, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 77b, on Levit. 22 12, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 38 14. These three Lists give identically the same seven instances and are based upon the same recension of the text. According to another recension מא is also with the same accent in Judg. 5 29. This is attested by Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Orient. 1471; the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-25. It is, however, מא with Tevir in Add. 15,451; Orient. 4227; the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the second and third editions, Naples 1491-93; Brescia 1494 and the Pesaro edition of the Earlier Prophets 1511. It is to be remarked that Lists II and III in the catchwords for מא Josh. 11 10 road here מא in accordance with several MSS. and early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

קטז. Two verses are misleading in the same section, in the first verse the feminine pronoun precedes the masculine and in the second the reverse is the case the masculine precedes the feminine. In these two verses this pronoun third person occurs four times, twice in each verse and is twice masculine and twice feminine. And though each verse has one feminine and one masculine form, their position is not the same. In verse 11 the feminine precedes the masculine form, whilst in verse 14 the reverse in the case, the masculine form stands first and the feminine second. As the two feminines are outside and the two masculines are in the middle, this is indicated by the mnemonic verse from Jerom. 31 22 the feminine surround the masculine. It is this alternate position which is misleading both to the reader and the Scribe and which this Massorah safeguards.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 92b, on Levit. 17 11, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 103b, on Levit. 17 14; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 102b, on Levit. 17 11; (IV) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 226, and (V) the printed Massorah on Levit. 17 11. List II heads this Rubric מא, which is manifestly a mistake for מא, as List IV has it, since the four pronouns occur in two verses of the same section and not in four separate verses.

קיז he was, is in three instances with the accent Mercha and on the penultima? [ultima]. That is, contrary to the rule of מא

they have the accent on the ultima instead of the penultima. Of this Rubric, I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 88, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2369, fol. 149b, on 1 Kings 17 7. The latter, which gives identically the same three passages, heads this Rubric מא, thus showing that the expression מא in List I is a mistake for מא. List II, which gives the third instance מא, emphatically states that with regard to Jerem. 52 6 the Codices are divided.

קייח is five times with the accent on the penultima. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter מ, § 101. With exception of 2 Kings 5 1, מא in all the other four passages which constitute this Rubric has not only the accent Mercha, but is Milra and two of these are given in the preceding Rubric as Milra. There can, therefore, be no doubt that the expression מא in the heading, is there also a mistake for מא and the catchwords מא = 2 Kings 5 1, where מא is not with Mercha, ought to be מא and Jerem. 52 6, which is given in the preceding Rubric, as the third instance. Accordingly this Rubric is simply another recension of § 117.

קייט to be to them, occurs four times in this form in the Scriptures. That is, the forms מא the Kal preterite third person singular feminine with the prefix Vav, מא the future third person singular feminine or second person singular masculine and מא the infinitive construct, are in these four instances only, followed by מא in the Pentateuch.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 75b, on Exod. 30 21, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 85b, on the same passage. The expression מא in the heading, is manifestly a mistake for מא, since this combination occurs many times apart from the Pentateuch (comp. Ezek. 3 26; 44 28; 48 12). That the design of this Massorah is to restrict this combination of מא with the verb מא to these three forms only, is evident from the fact that in combination with other forms of this verb מא occurs many times (comp. Gen. 11 3; 41 54; Exod. 29 45; Levit. 26 45 &c.). Exod. 40 15, is excluded from this Rubric because מא intervenes between מא and מא.

By fixing the number at four, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the ancient reading מא in Numb. 19 21, which is exhibited in the Samaritan recension of the text, the Chaldee, the Septuagint and the Syriac, as will be seen from notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

קיכ to become wind, or spirit, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 8a, on Jerem. 5 13.

קיכא - § 121.

קיכא to be there, occurs three times. The verb מא is combined with this adverb about forty times. In about thirty-seven instances this adverb is simply מא in this combination, and in three only is it מא with paragogic He. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards this exceptional combination. This protection was all the more necessary since within a few verses of one and the same chapter where the identical phrase is used, it is in one instance מא and in the other מא (Ezek. 1 12, 20). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 71b, on Ezek. 1 12.

קיכב In seven instances is the verb מא in the singular in the textual reading and the plural in the official reading or Keri. That is, according to the headings of several Rubrics, it is in these instances with He at the end and is read with Vav.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eleven Lists, eight in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5720-11, Vol. I, fol. 148a, on Josh. 15 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 149b, on Josh. 18 12; (III) Orient. 4445; fol. 156a, on Numb. 34 4; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16 fol. 11a, on Josh. 15 4; (V) the same MS., fol. 370a, on Deut. 7 8;

(VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 157a, on Josh. 18 12; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 249a, on Numb. 34 4; (VIII) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah I, § 96; (IX) Paris Oohlah Ve-Oohlah § 114; (X) the printed Massorah, on Numb. 34 4, and (XI) the same on Josh. 15 4.

These eleven Lists exhibit two recensions. Recension I, which is represented by seven Lists (I—VI, XI) records all the forms of this verb in the singular, for which the official reading is the plural. As there are altogether seven such instances, viz. five consisting of the preterite third person singular with the prefix Vav (והיה) Numb. 34 4; Josh. 15 4; 18 12, 14, 19), one without the prefix (היה) Jerom. 50 6) and one the future third person (יהיה) Ezek. 37 22), this Recension gives all these instances and hence states in the respective headings that there are seven such instances. Recension II, which is represented by four Lists (VII—X) has regard to those five instances only which are identical in form, i. e. the preterite with the prefix Vav (והיה) and hence heads this Rubric הוה מלך בחד לישן בני הו יקו and records these five instances alone, as the two other forms are part of the Rubric, which records fourteen words written with He at the end and read with Vav. (Vide supra, letter ה, § 49.) List X affords another striking illustration of the oft-repeated statement that later Nakdanim frequently mistook the import of the Massorah and altered the headings. This List, as we have seen, exhibits the second recension which catalogues the five instances. The Nakdan mistook the catchwords נחל מצרים יהודה ורובא צמניה צמניה = Josh. 15 4 to represent two separate instances and hence he, or Jacob b. Chayim, not only put a full stop between מצרים יהודה ורובא צמניה צמניה, but altered the ה in the heading into ו. List III, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, states at the end of the Rubric that in one instance (Ezek. 47 12) the reverse is the case, the textual reading of this verb is the plural (היה) and the official the singular (היה).

והיה the singular is in two instances in the Pentateuch rendered in the Targum by the plural. That is, as if like the preceding, it ended in Vav (והיה) instead of He (היה). This is the rendering of the so-called Jerusalem Targum. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1379, fol. 50b, on Gen. 13 5.

והיה נבולו he was when he began to reign, occurs seven times in the Scriptures. In recording the ages of the respective kings when they began to reign, נבולו is used thirty-eight times. In thirty-one instances, this infinitive with the suffix third person singular masculine alone is used, and in seven only is it preceded by והיה. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination. This protection was all the more necessary since the two descriptions are promiscuously used in one and the same chapter. (Comp. 2 Kings 8 17, 26; 2 Chron. 21 5, 20; 27 1, 8.)

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 161b, on 2 Chron. 21 20, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 15 33. The ו in the heading is a mistake for ו.

והיה and it shall come to pass, occurs four times with this accent. That is, with Gershayim.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 43a, on Exod. 13 11, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 86a; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 75a; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 65a; (V) Orient. 5404, fol. 64a, all on the same passage; (VI) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah II, § 18, margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 12 25.

These seven Lists vary more or less both in their respective headings and in the number of the instances which they severally record. To enable us to test the conflicting statements, it is necessary to give all the instances in which והיה occurs in the Bible with this accent and to point out the position which it occupies in the respective verses. With this accent it occurs altogether twenty times, twelve times in the Pentateuch of which six begin a verse (Exod. 12 25; 13 11, 14; Levit. 13 19; Deut. 6 10; 21 14) and six are in the middle of the verse (Gen. 38 9; Exod. 1 10; 18 22; Levit. 25 50; Deut. 20 11; 24 1) and eight times in the Prophets where it is always at the beginning of the verse (Josh. 6 5; 8 8; 1 Sam. 25 20; 1 Kings 18 12; Isa. 23 17; Jerem. 17 8; 31 28) except once (Zech. 12 8).

List I. — Tested by these facts it is evident that the List which I have printed, though it does not state it in the heading, is restricted to the Pentateuch, and is apparently designed to record those instances only which begin a verse. It is equally evident that it is incorrect, since as we have seen, there are in the Pentateuch six instances where והיה begins a verse and not four and that two are omitted (Levit. 13 19; Deut. 6 10).

List VII. — From the above analysis it is also evident that the printed Massorah, which heads this List ויהיה בשם הוה and which is repeated in the printed Massorah Parva, outer margin, on Exod. 13 11, is incorrect, since there are six such instances in the Pentateuch. Not only is Levit. 13 19 omitted, but this List gives מצות גילוח Deut. 27 2 as the fifth instance where it is והיה with Revia, so that it really records four only, for it also omits Deut. 6 10. The suggestion that ויהיה may be a mistake for ויהיה (Deut. 6 10) is against the regular order of the passages which is very strictly observed in this Rubric. It is to be remarked that in the catchwords for Exod. 13 11 Jacob b. Chayim gives ויהיה יי אלהך, the expression ויהיה does not occur.

List II. — The heading of this List (והיה רמז בעצמא בכתבא), which restricts the four instances where it begins the verse with this accent to Exodus is also incorrect, since it occurs three times only in this book at the beginning of a verse with Gershayim, and in the fourth instance ויהיה כל הרב הגדל ויהיה אלך, which is here given, viz. והיה, it is in the middle of the verse. However by restricting it to Exodus instead of extending it to the whole Pentateuch, as is done in the preceding Rubrics, this List indicates the clue to the solution of the difficulty, and shows that ויהיה is the addition in the heading by an ignorant Scribe.

Lists III, IV and V. — These three Lists, which respectively head this Rubric ויהיה בשם הוה, emphatically show that the design of this Massorah is to record the four instances in which ויהיה is with Gershayim in Exodus, irrespective of its position in the verse. Hence it rightly gives Exod. 18 22 as the fourth instance and excludes Deut. 21 14 given in Lists I and VII.

List VI. — This List is of peculiar interest, inasmuch as it shows how later Nakdanim who mistook the import of Massorahs, added these passages. This Rubric, like Lists III, IV and V, is rightly headed ויהיה בשם הוה and enumerates the same four passages in Exodus, recorded in the Lists, which restrict ויהיה to this book. A later Scribe, however, added the above ויהיה לאתמול = Deut. 31 14, which is both in conflict with the number given in the heading and with the design of this Massorah. It will be seen that ויהיה or Double Gershesh, is called ויהיה in Lists III, IV and V.

והיה has eight times the accent Legarmeh in this book. That is, in Isaiah. In the only other instance where it occurs it is with the simple Munach (והיה) Isa. 5 5) without Legarmeh.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 5b, on Isa. 10 20, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 128b, on the same passage.

והיה is six times with the accent in this book. That is, with Munach Legarmeh, in the Minor Prophets, which are treated in the Massorah as one book. In the other five instances where it occurs in this part of the Scriptures it is with the simple Munach (והיה) (Joel 3 1; Obad. 17; Zeph. 2 7; Zech. 12 3; 14 7).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 95 on Hosea 2 23, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 161. The heading in the printed Massorah (List II), viz. ויהיה בשם הוה, and the fact that Jacob b. Chayim placed this Rubric under letter ו, show that he misunderstood its import. He evidently took it that these accents refer to the combination ויהיה. That the design of this Massorah is to record the instances in which it is ויהיה with Munach Legarmeh followed by any words with Munach Revia, is attested by ויהיה ויהיה (Micah 4 1) and ויהיה ויהיה (Micah 5 6). The printed Massorah, moreover, wrongly gives ויהיה as the first instance, whereas it is here ויהיה with Mehupach and omits ויהיה זבח ויהיה זבח Zech. 14 8.

וְהָיָה is thirteen times with the accent Pazer in the Scriptures. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Josh. 2 19. There are fourteen such instances where this preterite with the prefix Vav is with Pazer. The instance here omitted is in Judg. 21 22. It will be seen that this Rubric includes the Keri in Ezek. 45 5. The note of Jacob b. Chayim appended to the catchwords for Judg. 7 4 in this List, to the effect that מִדָּה is here with Zakeph and that it is not included in this Rubric in some Massorahs, is enigmatical. All the Model Codices which I have examined (Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 &c.), and all the early editions without exception have it with Pazer.

וְהָיָה חֲמִשָּׁה עָשָׂר בְּסֵפֶר הַתּוֹרָה וְיָשָׁר לִי הַמִּצְוָה כִּי הוּא בְּקֶדֶם כִּי לֹא נִבְנָה אֶלֶּא אַתְּ בְּמִסְפָּרָה בְּמִסְפָּר פְּסוּקֵי כְּבוֹד מִסְפָּרֵי יְשָׁרִים בְּרִבְעֵי גָּבִי הוּא בְּפֶלֶא וְיָשָׁר לִי נִבְנָה וְנִבְנָה אֶתְּהָרָה לֹא נִבְנָה חֵן מִן הַתּוֹרָה.

וְהָיָה is three times with the accent in this book. That is, with Revia in Exodus. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2848, fol. 87a, on Exod. 33 8, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2849, fol. 77a, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 76a, also on the same passage.

As וְהָיָה is also three times with Revia in Genesis (12 12; 30 41; 44 31), there can hardly be any doubt that a Rubric to this effect may yet be found in some MSS. which will show that the design of this Massorah is to indicate the minority of the passages where וְהָיָה is with Revia in these two books, compared with the number of instances in which it occurs in the other three books of the Pentateuch. This in Numbers it occurs five times (15 24; 16 7; 17 20; 21 9; 33 56) and in Deuteronomy nine times (8 19; 11 18; 29; 18 19; 21 18; 25 8; 27 2; 28 1, 15), whilst in Leviticus there is not a single instance.

וְהָיָה the singular is in nine instances in the Pentateuch rendered in the Targum by the plural. That is, as if it were וְהָיוּ instead of וְהָיָה. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 80a, on Gen. 2 10, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 29a, on the same passage.

קלא = § 131.

וְהָיָה וְהָיָה and that man was, occurs twice. That is, in this combination, in contradistinction to the phrase וְהָיָה וְהָיָה (Numb. 16 7; 17 20; Deut. 18 19; 1 Sam. 17 25). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 159b, on Jerem. 20 18, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the same on Job 1 1.

וְהָיָה יְהוָה and Jehovah was, or shall be, is six times thus combined in the Scriptures. In the only two other passages where וְהָיָה is followed by the divine Name, it is וְהָיָה אֱלֹהִים or וְהָיָה יְהוָה (Gen. 48 21; 1 Kings 18 24).

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 158b, on Judg. 2 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 251b, on 2 Kings 18 7; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 19b, on Judg. 2 18; (IV) the same MS., fol. 52a, on 1 Sam. 24 15; (V) the same MS., fol. 112a, on 2 Kings 18 7; (VI) the same MS., fol. 221b, on Zech. 14 9; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 28a, on Gen. 28 21; (VIII) Halle Oehlah Ye-Oehlah I, § 152, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter u, § 151.

וְהָיָה כִּי יָבִיחַ הַיּוֹם וְהָיָה and it shall come to pass on that day, occurs thirteen times thus combined in this book. That is, in Isaiah. Apart from this book this phrase occurs altogether eighteen times (Jerem. 30 8; Ezek. 38 10, 18; 39 11; Hosea 1 8; 2 18, 28; Joel 4 18; Amos 8 9; Micah 5 9; Zeph. 1 10; Zech. 12 8, 9; 13 2, 4; 14 6, 8, 18).

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 5a, on Isa. 7 18.

וְהָיָה יְהוָה and it shall be in the day of, is five times thus combined. וְהָיָה is followed thirty-nine times by this noun with the prefix Beth. In thirty-five instances it is וְהָיָה יְהוָה with Pathach under the Beth and in these five only, is it with Sheva. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 181b, on 1 Sam. 13 22, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 48a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 157b, also on the same passage; (IV) Orient. 2849, fol. 185a, on Deut. 21 16; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VI) the same on Zeph. 1 8.

וְהָיָה שְׁמֵי who was, occurs three times. That is, apart from Ecclesiastes, this form of the preterite third person singular masculine with the prefix Shin, is exceptionally used in two instances only instead of וְהָיָה שְׁמֵי.

And throughout Ecclesiastes it is likewise so except in three instances. This abnormal form is the rule in Ecclesiastes. Here it occurs six times (1 9; 2 9; 3 15; 6 10; 7 24; 12 9) and once it is וְהָיָה שְׁמֵי (12 7), whilst וְהָיָה שְׁמֵי, which is normally used in all the other Scriptures, is here the exception, occurring three times only.

This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter v, § 111, is incorrect. It states in the heading that there are three such instances, whereas there are two only apart from Ecclesiastes. And as the Rubric itself duly gives the two, the ; is manifestly a clerical mistake for a. Still more corrupt is the second part of this Rubric, which gives apparently four instances where וְהָיָה שְׁמֵי occurs in this book, but which are really only three, since the catchwords וְהָיָה שְׁמֵי for the first instance and וְהָיָה שְׁמֵי for the third, are both in Eccl 1 16. I have, therefore, omitted the first catchword.

וְהָיָה הִיא she was, begins a verse five times in the Scriptures. This preterite third person singular feminine stands at the beginning of a verse altogether thirty-seven times. In thirty-two instances it is with the prefix Vav and in five only is it without this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards this rare exception.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 94b, on Ezek. 37 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 186a, on Ps. 42 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190b, on Ezek. 37 1; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 288b, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 394b, on Prov. 31 14; (VI) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 37 1, and (VII) the same on Prov. 31 14.

Comp. וְהָיָה at the beginning of the verse Gen. 9 16; Exod. 11 6; Levit. 16 29, 34; 24 9; 25 6; Numb. 19 21; 25 18; Deut. 17 19; 28 26; Josh. 6 17; 1 Sam. 13 21; 2 Kings 9 37 Keri; Isa. 11 16; 18 19; 19 17; 25 4; Jerem. 7 23; 25 11; 33 9; 42 16; 49 17, 33; 50 10; 51 37; Ezek. 5 15; 13 9; 29 9; 44 28; 48 12; Micah 7 18; Zeph. 2 6.

וְהָיָה הִיא she was, occurs four times. That is, with Kametz under the Yod instead of the normal Sheva, which is due to its pausal accents, being in two instances Zakeph-Katon (Isa. 14 24; 64 9) and in two Athnach (Lament 1 8; 2 Chron. 15 19).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 7b, on Isa. 14 24, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 158a, on 2 Chron. 15 19; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 288a, on Lament 1 8; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 14 24; (V) the same Codex on Isa. 64 9; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 266a, on 2 Chron. 15 19; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 315a, on Lament 1 8; (VIII) Halle Oehlah Ye-Oehlah II, § 18, margin, and (IX) the printed Massorah, on Isa. 14 24. List II, which heads it וְהָיָה הִיא and adds at the end וְהָיָה הִיא, indicates the import of this Massorah.

וְהָיָה הִיא Wherever it is with this accent it has Gaya without variation. Accordingly, as it occurs five times with Gerhayim, it must be וְהָיָה הִיא in all the five instances (Levit. 13 24; Numb. 19 10; 1 Sam. 13 21; 2 Kings 9 37 Keri; Zeph. 2 6).

And wherever it is with this accent it is without Gaya except once. As it occurs five times altogether with Telisha-Gedolah the other four instances must be without Gaya. (Exod. 40 15; Levit. 25 6; Numb. 19 9; Isa. 19 17) without Gaya.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 120b, on Numb. 32 22, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 119b, on the same passage.

קליח throughout the Pentateuch is with the accent Geresh except once. Apparently this statement might mean that with one exception קליח throughout the Pentateuch, where it occurs upwards of thirty times, is always with the accent Gereshayim. This, however, is not its meaning as is attested by the fact that it has nine different accents and the preceding Rubric mentions those instances in which it is with Telisha-Gedolah. By comparing the two parts of this Rubric it will be seen that its design is restricted to two accents only, in connection with קליח, which are exhibited in the different parts of the Bible, viz. Gereshayim and Kadma Ve-Azla. In the Pentateuch Gereshayim prevails. Here it occurs twice (Levit. 13 24; Numb. 19 10) and with Kadma Ve-Azla once only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the solitary instance.

And throughout the rest of the Scriptures it is likewise except three times. As outside the Pentateuch these two accents are equally divided, since קליח also occurs three times only (Isa. 28 4; Jerem. 7 33; Ezek. 5 15 Keri), the rule and the exception are here inapplicable in this artificial Rubric.

In this artificial form this Rubric does not occur in the printed Massorah. I collated three Lists of it in the following MSS.: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 117a, on Numb. 27 11, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 116a, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 111b, also on the same passage. In the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 148a, on the same passage, the first part of this Rubric only is given, viz. כל אורחם קליח בר בן חר. Whilst the printed Massorah, on 2 Kings 9 37, and Zeph. 2 6 gives the second part.

קיא is three times with the accent in the Prophets. That is, with Azla and Teres or Kadma Ve-Azla. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ק, § 116, is corrupt. It omits Ezek. 5 15, which is one of the three instances and gives Zeph. 2 6, which the printed Massorah itself gives as one of the three instances with Gereshayim, recorded in the preceding Rubric. That this corruption is not due to Jacob b. Chayim, is evident from the note which he appended to the Rubric, and which I give below.¹ He, however, could not find the third instance and was inclined to think that there were only two.

קמא. As this preterite second person singular masculine with and without the prefix Var, is spelt in three different ways, the Massorah by this sign indicates the passages where this variation obtains. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 67a, on 2 Sam. 15 38, and (II) the printed Massorah on Judg. 11 6.

קמב = § 142.

קמב is twice plene. Of this separate Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 27a, on Judg. 11 6, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 59b, on 2 Sam. 5 2. It will be seen that these two instances are part of the preceding Rubric.

קמג = § 143.

קמד = § 144.

קמד and I will be their God, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the phrase לכם לאלהים and I will be your God, which occurs three times (Exod. 6 7; Levit. 26 12; Jerem. 7 23). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ק, § 435. It is incorrect since there are four such instances. (Comp. Jerem. 31 83.)

קמה they were, begins a verse twice [three times]. This preterite third person plural begins a verse altogether thirty-three times. In thirty instances it is with the prefix Vav and in three only is it without this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional position.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 201a, on Hosea 5 10, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 402a, on Lament. 1 5; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 315a, on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ק, § 120. It is remarkable that List I, which is from the carefully written Model Codex and which I have printed, not only states in the heading that there are two such instances, but enumerates two only. But as all the other five Lists state in their respective headings that there are three and give Jerem. 51 43 as one of the three, List I is either based upon Codices which exhibited קמה in Jerem. or it may be due to a clerical error.

קמז they were, is in two instances supposed to be קמה he was. That is, in these two passages the extra-official reading is the preterite third person singular instead of the plural, which is the textual reading. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 95b, on Ezek. 22 13. For the interchangeable use of קמה and קמז see letter ק, §§ 729; 742.

קמח ג' וזנין מן ב' קרמ' היו ותני' יהיה. Two phrases respectively occur twice in the same Section, the first time the verb is in the plural, and the second in the singular. As this variation obtains not only in identically the same phrases, but in the same connection, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard this phenomenon. The necessity for this protection will be seen on referring to the notes on Gen. 41 48, 53 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 252b, on 1 Chron. 23 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 253b, on 1 Chron. 24 28; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 31b, on Gen. 41 48; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 46a, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 302b, on Eccl. 2 7; (VI) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach, Supplement fol. 132a; (VII) Paris Ochlach Ve-Ochlach § 238; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 41 53, and (IX) the same on 1 Chron. 24 28.

קמט. For this textual reading the Sevir, or the extra-official reading is twice קמט. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Exod. 36 29. It will be seen that the Sevir makes this phrase conformable to the parallel passage in Exod. 26 24. The second catchwords בכח קרשם ארתיים בכח may either refer to Exod. 26 25 or 36 30. As Exod. 26 24 is קמט, it is more probable that it is intended for 26 25 so as to make verses 24 and 25 uniform. Besides if the immediately following verse were intended by the Massorah, viz. Exod. 36 20, 30, the Massorah would not give these lengthy catchwords for it, but would denote it by the ordinary expression וילאמר (vide supra, letter ב, § 180).

קמט ye have been, is twice defective. That is, this preterite second person plural masculine, without and with the prefix Vav, which occurs upwards of thirty times and is normally spelt with two Yods, is in these two instances only with one Yod. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional spelling.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 141a, on Deut. 31 27, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 42a, on 1 Sam. 12 14; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 114b, on Deut. 31 27; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 126a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 96. As one of the instances is with the prefix Vav (1 Sam. 12 14), Lists III and IV head this Rubric more properly

קני" to be, is twice written with He. In the other four instances in which this infinitive absolute occurs, it is with Vav. They are given in the following Rubric. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ה, § 90. The Massorah Parva in Add. 21,161 on both these passages remarks קני" thus making it conformable to the other four instances.

קניב to be, is eight times defective in this form. That is, the infinitive form with the prefixes Beth, Lamed and Mem, which occurs over 100 times altogether and which is normally with Vav plene, is in these eight instances only, without the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 59a, on Exod. 36 18, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 50b, on Exod. 9 28; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 63b, on Exod. 40 15; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 128a, on Exod. 36 18; (V) the same MS., fol. 136b, on Exod. 40 15; (VI) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah II, § 18 margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 19 16.

קניג and to be, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 85, on Esther 8 13. As both instances are plene, the heading ought more properly to be וכלי. This Rubric shows beyond doubt that the statement of the printed Massorah that קניג occurs once only (vide infra, letter ה, § 174, where it is among the unique words beginning with Vav Lamed), is incorrect.

קניד = 154.

קניד from to be, is three times plene in this form ... all in this book. That is, in Exodus the infinitive form with the prefixes Beth, Lamed and Vav, is in these three instances exceptionally plene. (Vide supra, letter ה, § 162.) Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 68b, on Exod. 12 4, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 62b, on the same passage.

קניה while he was, is three times defective. This infinitive construct, with the suffix third person singular masculine and with the prefix Beth, which occurs altogether seven times, is in four instances plene (Isa. 55 6; Ezek. 15 5; Ps. 63 1; 142 1) and in three defective. Hence the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the minority. This protection was necessary, since in some redactions of the text it was plene in Jerem. 39 15, as is attested by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 where a later Nakdan remarked against it וכלי.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 155a, on 2 Chron. 10 6, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 87b, on 1 Kings 12 6; (III) the same MS., fol. 178a, on Jerem. 39 15, and (IV) the printed Massorah on 2 Chron. 10 6.

קניז and be thou, or and thou shalt be, occurs six times. That is, with Sheva under the He and not with Chateph-Segol (חטף), as is attested by the best Standard MSS., viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 10a, on Gen. 17 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 142b, on Judg. 17 10; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 9a, on Gen. 12 2; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (V) the same on Judg. 17 10.

קניז be ye, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 215b, on Numb. 16 16, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 83a, on the same passage.

קניח = § 158.

קניח and be ye, occurs seven times in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to this quadriliteral which is קניח. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 197a, on 2 Sam. 2 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 205a, on 2 Sam. 13 28; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 65a, on Jerem. 48 28; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on the same passage; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 57b, on 2 Sam. 2 7; (VI) the same MS., fol. 106b, on 2 Kings 11 8; (VII) the same MS., fol. 270b, on 2 Chron. 23 7; (VIII) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 2 7; (IX) the same on Jerem. 48 28, and (X) the same on 2 Chron. 23 7. List IV, which is the oldest form of this Rubric and is headed קניח, indicates the design of this Massorah.

קניט he or it shall be, is twice misleading. That is, in these two instances the extra-official reading is קניט the plural instead of קניט the singular. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 100b, on Ezek. 44 30. For the interchangeable expressions קניט and קניט see above, letter ה, §§ 729, 742.

קניט = § 160.

קניט he, or it shall be, is eight times misleading. That is, in these passages the extra-official reading is different. What the Sevir substitutes for this Kal future third singular masculine, the Rubric itself does not say. From the first two instances, however, which are avowedly corrupt, it would seem that it is קניט the feminine. But this does not suit all the passages, since it not only requires קניט in Ps. 89 37 and 1 Chron. 17 11 to be taken as feminine, but is inadmissible in the other passages. I must, therefore, leave the explanation of this Rubric to more expert Massorites, and will only point out that we have here references to Babylonian and Palestinian variations which have hitherto been unknown. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 86a, on Ezek. 16 16.

קניט which shall be, occurs four times in Ecclesiastes. That is, this abnormal form instead of the normal קניט, which occurs twenty-six times in the other Scriptures and once in Eccl. (8 12). The design of this Rubric is to militate against the ancient reading קניט in Eccl. 10 14 which is preserved in the Septuagint and the Syriac and which is now accepted as preferable to קניט. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ה, § 121. It is both misleading and incorrect, since it occurs five times. Not only is Eccl. 3 22 omitted, but the statement in the heading that it occurs four times in Ecclesiastes (רבי בקיאה) implies that it also occurs apart from this book, whereas קניט occurs nowhere else.

קניט = § 162.

קניט occurs three times in this form. That is, in the singular where the plural might be expected. This appears to be the import of this enigmatic Rubric of which I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 29b, on Gen. 1 14, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 28b, on the same passage.

קניט Be Jehovah, occurs twice. That is, followed by קניט. Be Jehovah thy God blessed. In the other three instances where קניט occurs it is followed by קניט (1 Kings 8 57) or simply by קניט (Jerem. 42 5) or קניט (1 Chron. 22 11). This Rubric is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 85b, on 1 Kings 10 3. The catchwords קניט 1 Kings 8 57 are manifestly a clerical error for קניט. This is attested by the fact that this Massorah is on 1 Kings 10 9 and that the phrase וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם alone occurs twice, otherwise this Rubric has no meaning since, as we have seen, וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם occurs five times.

וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם and it shall be, occurs thirty-two times in the Scriptures, four of these are in the Minor Prophets. That is, this apocopated future with the prefix Vav, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this quadriliteral is pointed וְהָיָה and with which it is not infrequently interchanged, as will be seen from the notes on 1 Kings 13 33; 14 5 in my edition of the Bible (comp. Gesenius-Kautzsch Hebrew Grammar, § 112*h*). This Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 107*a*, on Hosea 14 7. It shows that the Massorites originally arranged their materials in accordance with the several books.

וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם occurs thirty-two times. The instances which were at first recorded on the separate books are here collected together in one List.

Of this popular Massorah I collated seventeen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 62*b*, on Exod. 9 22, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 40*b*, on 1 Sam. 10 5; (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 61*b*, on Exod. 10 21; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 80*b*, on the same passage; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 9 10; (VI) Halle Oehlsh Ve-Ochlah II, § 18, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 108.

It will be seen that though List I states in the heading that there are thirty-two such instances, it enumerates thirty-one only, omitting 1 Chron. 22 16. But as this is duly given in the other Lists its omission is manifestly due to a clerical error. To the catchword וְהָיָה No. 11 I give the reference 1 Sam. 20 13, but as this is already given on וְהָיָה No. 9, 1 Chron. 14 15 should be substituted for it. The printed Massorah (List VII) gives על Exod. 10 21 twice, as Nos. 4 and 6, which is evidently a scribal error.

וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם and it came to pass, is five times with this accent in this book. That is, with Gershayim in Genesis. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 84*a*, on Gen. 10 19, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 17*b*, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 7*b*, on Gen. 20 13; (IV) the same MS., fol. 50*a*, on Gen. 43 21; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Gen. 10 19; (VI) Halle Oehlsh Ve-Ochlah, Supplement, fol. 129*b*, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 10 19. Lists III and IV head this Rubric וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם which is incorrect, since one of the instances (Gen. 39 5) is in the middle of the verse.

וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם is twice with this accent in this book. That is, with Gershayim in Samuel. This Rubric is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 37*b*, on 1 Sam. 4 18. Against each of these two passages the Massorah Parva also states that there are two such instances with this accent (בְּכַתְּבֵי מַסּוֹרָה).

As there are six such instances (vide infra, letter ה, § 168), there can hardly be any doubt that this Rubric records the two only which occur in the same section and that the qualifying expression כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם must be supplied in the heading.

וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם is six times with the accent in this book. That is, with Gershayim in Samuel. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1471, fol. 189*a*, on 2 Sam. 4 4, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2210, fol. 95*b*, on the same passage.

Between Genesis and Samuel I have not as yet been able to find any Lists, recording the instances in which וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם is with Gershayim. From a careful collation, however, it occurs as follows: once in Exodus (40 17); none in Leviticus; once in Numbers (10 11); none in Deuteronomy; four times in Joshua (8 14; 10 11, 27; 16 5); and once in Judges (11 89).

וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם is nine times with Gershayim in this book. That is, in Kings where it also always begins a verse. By fixing the number at nine, this Massorah militates against the Sevir which is וְהָיָה in 2 Kings 13 21. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 219*a*, on 1 Kings 3 18, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. I fol. 228*a*, on 1 Kings 12 20.

וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם is three times with this accent in this book. That is, in Ezra-Nehemiah. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 294*b*, on Neh. 3 33, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 295*a*, on Neh. 4 9; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 395*b*, on the same passage, and (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 421*b*, on Neh. 1 4. As these three instances respectively begin a verse, the latter heads it בְּכַתְּבֵי מַסּוֹרָה. Between Kings and Ezra-Nehemiah וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם occurs once only with this accent (Ezek. 33 21). This accounts for the apparent gap between Kings and Ezra-Nehemiah.

וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם is five times with this accent in this book. That is, in Chronicles, where four of the instances begin a verse and one is in the middle of the verse (1 Chron. 2 8). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 180*b*, on 1 Chron. 2 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 155*a*, on 2 Chron. 10 2; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 156*a*, on 2 Chron. 12 2, and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage.

קע"ב - § 172.

וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם is five times with this accent in this book. That is, with Pashta in Judges, and always begins the verse. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 141*b*, on Judg. 16 4. It is incorrect, since there are altogether ten such instances in this book and all begin the verse. Judg. 1 28; 3 18; 9 42; 15 17 and 21 4 are omitted. It probably exhibits the first attempt to collect these instances and a later Nakdan, who mistook the incipient List for complete, prefixed the heading to agree with the tentative number enumerated in the Rubric. Moreover the catchwords וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם Judg. 19 8 are manifestly a clerical error for וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם 19 5.

וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם occurs twenty-one [twenty] times with this accent at the beginning of a verse. That is, with Tevir. In the only other instance three instances where it occurs with this accent it is in the middle of the verse (comp. וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם Josh. 19 10; Judg. 8 27; 1 Sam. 25 2).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated thirteen Lists, twelve in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 119*b*, on Num. 31 37, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 162*b*, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 174*b*, on Jerem. 41 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 219*a*, on Zech. 8 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 264*b*, on 2 Chron. 12 11; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 89*a*, on Num. 10 85; (VII) the same MS., fol. 196*b*, on 1 Kings 18 17; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 384*a*, on 2 Chron. 11 11; (IX) Add. 15,451, fol. 89*a*, on Num. 10 85; (X) Add. 21,160, fol. 248*b*, on Num. 31 37; (XI) the same MS., fol. 278*a*, on Josh. 5 8; (XII) Orient. 2349, fol. 5*b*, on the same passage, and (XIII) the printed Massorah on 2 Chron. 12 11.

Though the heading in the List which I have printed states that there are twenty-one such instances, and though this is also stated both in the heading of List II and in the Massorah Parva of this ancient Codex, they enumerate twenty instances only, which is the correct number and is rightly so given both in the headings and contents of all the other Lists. Owing to the expression וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם against No. 19, which may either be וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם = Zech. 7 4 and 8 1 or וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם = Zech. 7 4; 8 1 and 18 where it is וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם with this accent in all the three instances, some confusion has arisen in the Lists. Against Zech. 8 1 in my List is to be added 8 18. In my edition of the Bible וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם 1 Kings 5 2 is a mistake for וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם.

וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם the singular, is six times misleading. That is, in these six instances the Sevir or extra-official reading, is וְהָיָה כְּמִנְיַת הַיּוֹם the plural in accordance with Gen. 5 4, 5, 8, 11, 14, 17, 20, 27; 11 82; 35 28.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 86*b*, on Gen. 17 1, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 85*b*, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 47 28. Lists I and II are identical, only that the latter adds the expression ויהי in the heading for which List III has the equivalent ויהי. It will be seen that though the heading emphatically states there are six such instances, the Rubric itself records five only. As List III, which also states that there are six, gives ה [= Gen. 9 29] as the second instance, and moreover as this List is practically as the other two, it is certain that its omission in Lists I and II is due to a later Nakdan who followed the recension of the text recorded below in § 186 irrespective of the fact that by so doing he produced a conflict between the heading and the instances catalogued in the List.

What is remarkable about these Lists is that they give אברם or אברהם Gen. 17 6 and ישערו or ישערו 2 Kings 20 4 as two of the six passages where the reading ויהי the plural is impossible, and omit חזק Gen. 5 23 and למך Gen. 5 21 for which the Sevir on both these passages actually is ויהי.

ויהי אחרי ההקדמים האלה and it came to pass after these things, occurs three times. This phrase occurs altogether eight times and always begins a verse. In five instances the preposition is אחרי (Gen. 22 1; 39 7; 40 1; 1 Kings 17 17; 21 1) and in three only, is this preposition אחרי the plural construct. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This protection was necessary since the two combinations are used promiscuously in one and the same chapter (Gen. 22 1, 20) and since the Samaritan recension has uniformly אחרי.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 39b, on Gen. 22 20, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 444b, fol. 39a, on Gen. 48 1; (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 32b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 11a, on Gen. 22 20; (V) the same MS., fol. 58b, on Gen. 48 1; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 18; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 22 20, and (VIII) the same on Josh. 24 29. The mnemonic sign I have found in Cambridge Add. 465 and in the printed Massorah on Gen. 22 20. The latter has it in the outer margin.

ויהי אחרי מות and it came to pass after the death of, is four times thus combined. That is, in this combination in these three instances the words immediately follow each other, in contradistinction to the other two passages where other expressions intervene between ויהי and אחרי (comp. 2 Kings 14 17; 2 Chron. 25 25).

Of this popular Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 137a, on Josh. 1 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 1b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 18b, on Judg. 1 1; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 17b, on Gen. 25 11; (V) the same MS., fol. 162b, on Judg. 1 1; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 16b, on Gen. 25 11; (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VIII) the same on Josh. 1 1. All these Lists give the mnemonic sign.

ויהי איש אחד and there was one man, occurs twice. In the other four instances where ויהי איש occurs, it is without אחד (Judg. 17 1; 19 1; 2 Sam. 21 20; 1 Chron. 20 6) and once ויהי is followed by הוא (Job 1 1). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 28a, on Judg. 13 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 85a, on 1 Sam. 1 1, and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 145b, on the same passage.

ויהי גבול נחלתם and the border of their inheritance was, occurs twice. In Joshua 19, which describes the territories of the several tribes, three different phrases are used. In the case of Zebulun and Dan the lengthier formula which heads this Rubric is used. With regard to Simeon the shorter form ויהי נחלתם and their inheritance was, is used (19 1) whilst with regard to Issachar, Asher and Naphtali the phrase ויהי גבולם and their border was, is used (19 18, 25, 33). Hence the Massorah safeguards the different phrases. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 14a, on Josh. 19 41. In the mnemonic sign ויהי, which stands in the MS. before the last line just as I have printed it, the second letter is partly erased. It is, therefore, intended for the initials of ויהי and ought to follow immediately after ויהי.

ויהי דבר ואתה קראתם and the word of-came . . . and thou son of man, occurs five times. To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that the formula ויהי דבר ויהי and the word of Jehovah came, is thirty-eight times followed by son of man. In thirty-three instances it is simply ויהי דבר ויהי and in five only is ויהי דבר ויהי preceded by ויהי the pronoun second person with the prefix Vav. In the only other instance where ויהי דבר ויהי is preceded by the pronoun in this connection it is ויהי without the prefix Vav (§ 16). Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional occurrence against its being made uniform with the normal phrase. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 102a, on Ezek. 27 1.

ויהי דבר ויהי צבאות and the word of Jehovah of hosts was, or came, occurs four times. Normally the phrase is ויהי דבר ויהי. As it is in these instances only, that ויהי צבאות follows the Tetragrammaton, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 264b, on Zech. 8 1, which I have printed, and (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Zech. 7 4. The contents of List I show that this Rubric, in spite of its heading, refers simply to the phrase ויהי דבר ויהי צבאות without ויהי which occurs four times. List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, rightly therefore states in the heading that with ויהי this phrase occurs three times only, and omits the Isaiah passage where it is ויהי and not ויהי. As all the three instances are restricted to one book, the heading ought properly to be ויהי צבאות.

ויהי והמה and it came to pass as they, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 65a, on 2 Sam. 13 30, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 171b, on the same passage.

ויהי ביום ההוא and it came to pass on that day, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the phrase ויהי דבר ויהי and it came to pass at that time, which occurs three times and is recorded below § 191. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 42b, on Gen. 26 32, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קס"ד - § 184.

ויהי מימים and it came to pass after days, occurs three times thus combined. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 164a, on Judg. 11 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 26b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 29b, on Judg. 15 1, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Josh. 23 1.

קס"ה - § 185.

ויהי ביום and it came to pass in the days of, occurs five times. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I specify the following ten only, six in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 8a, on Gen. 14 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 31a, on Jerem. 1 3; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 270b, on Esther 1 1; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 7 1; (V) the same Codex on Jerem. 1 3; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 18; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 14 1; (VIII) the same on Jerem. 1 3; (IX) the same on Ruth 1 1, and

(X) the same on Esther 1. In his Critical Annotations on Isa. 7 1 in the Babylonian Codex, Strack quotes a List of this Rubric from Codex Tzofut Kale No. 81, which has at the end והוא נוסף בשי דוד = 2 Sam. 21 1.

ויהי בלילי and all the days of [Enoch or Lamech] was, occurs twice... and the mnemonic sign is לח = לך. That is, in connection with Enoch and Lamech the verb is לך the singular, whereas in all the other eight instances where this phrase occurs, seven in this Section (Gen. 5 5, 8, 11, 14, 17, 20, 27) and one in 9 29, it is the plural לכם.

And all the Nakdanim are misleading, for they remark that the mnemonic sign is לח = לח. That is, with Enoch, Lamech and Noah, it is לך the singular.

But this is their mistake. The sign is לח and in the case of Noah (Gen. 9 29) the best Codices read לכם, till Elijah cometh. That is, it must remain so till the great Prophet comes who will decide all doubtful questions.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 4a, on Gen. 5 23, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 5b; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 41b; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 81b; (V) Orient. 5404, fol. 30b, and (VI) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

With the exception of List I, all the Lists coincide in their statement that there are three such instances and they include Gen. 9 29. Moreover List II which is from a Model Codex, gives in the heading the mnemonic sign לח which the compiler of List I deprecates. The solution of these conflicting Massorahs is to be found in the fact that Gen. 9 29 is one of the six instances which are the subject of Sevirin (vide supra, letter ה, § 174) and which, as is often the case, is the substantive reading in some MSS., whilst in others these extra-official readings are relegated to the margin. Hence List I is based upon a recension of the text which excludes the Sevir. This is supported by Orient. 2201; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 second hand; the first edition of the Bible, Sonecio 1488 and the second edition, Naples 1491—98, whilst the Massorah exhibited in the other Lists, is based upon a recension of the text, which has the Sevir as the substantive textual reading. This is the reading not only of the Samaritan recension, but of the following MSS. and early editions: Harley 5710—11, which exhibits in the text the deprecated לכם; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451, first hand; Add. 9401; Orient. 2348; Orient. 2349; Orient. 4227; Orient. 5404; the editio princeps of the Pentateuch, Bologna 1482; the third edition of the Bible, Brescia 1494; the Complutensian; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517, and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25.

ויהי קנה and it was so, occurs eight times thus combined, six times in the Law and twice in the Prophets. In fixing the number of times this phrase occurs in the Pentateuch and its exact position in the several verses, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the ancient recension of the text which is still exhibited in the Septuagint. According to this recension ויהי קנה not only occurs seven times in the account of the creation, but in one instance this formula occupies a different and more correct position. The Septuagint shows that ויהי קנה also occurred in Gen. 1 20 where we should naturally expect it in harmony with its uniform use after each creative behest. The same applies to its position at the end of verse 6 in the Septuagint instead of at the end of verse 7, as it is in the received text in accordance with the direction of this Massorah. It will be seen that in all the other five instances where this formula occurs, it invariably follows the Divine fiat, viz. ויאמר אלהים ויהי and God said let it be so... ויהי קנה and it was so (comp. Gen. 1 9, 11, 15, 24, 30). Its position, therefore, after the declaration of what God made, is not only contrary to the usage of this formula in the narrative, but has no meaning.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 1a, on Gen. 1 7, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 103. The latter heads this Rubric ויהי קנה and gives the six instances only, which occur in Genesis. This is manifestly a mistake for ויהי קנה.

ויהי קנה and it came to pass as soon as rested, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah,

I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 107b, on Numb. 11 25, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 117b, on the same passage. It is remarkable that though both these Lists emphatically state that this Kal infinitive construct with the prefix Caph is in both instances preceded by ויהי, the textus receptus has ויהי in Josh. 3 13. It may be that as קנה by itself occurs twice only (vide infra, letter ז, § 134, Vol. II, p. 275), an ignorant Nakdan mistook this Massorah to refer to the whole phrase, instead of to the single word.

ויהי קנה and it came to pass when moved, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 3a, on Josh. 3 14.

קיז = § 190.

ויהי קנה and it was evening, occurs three times at the beginning of a verse in this Section. This phrase, which occurs altogether six times and is always in conjunction with ויהי בקר and it was morning, is restricted to the first chapter of Genesis. In this Section it is in three instances the second part of the verse and in three it begins the verse, that is, the whole formula forms a separate verse. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in the position of this identical phrase in one and the same Section against its being made uniform.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 29b, on Gen. 1 23, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5401, fol. 28b, on the same passage.

ויהי קנה and it came to pass at that time, is three times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the phrase ויהי קנה and it came to pass on that day, which occurs three times. (Vide supra, letter ה, § 183.)

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 25b, on Gen. 38 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 227a, on 1 Kings 11 29; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 86b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 189a, also on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 14b, on Gen. 21 22, and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ויהי קנה and it came to pass at the end of, occurs six times at the beginning of the verse. This Rubric, the reference to which I have mislaid, is incorrect, since this phrase occurs twelve times and always begins the verse. The following six instances are omitted Exod. 12 41; Deut. 9 11; Judg. 11 39; Jerem. 13 6; 42 7, and 2 Chron. 8 1. As is not infrequently the case (vide infra, letter ה, § 200), it exhibits the first attempt to collect these instances and a later Nakdan instead of completing the List, mistook it for complete and prefixed the heading with the number to correspond to the recorded instances.

ויהי קנה and it came to pass at the end of, is five times thus combined in the Scriptures. Normally ויהי קנה is in this combination followed by קנה. As such this phrase occurs twelve times. (Vide supra, letter ה, § 192.) In these five instances, however, it is abnormally followed by קנה. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 72a, on Ezek. 3 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 103a, on 2 Kings 8 3; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 271b, on Ezek. 3 16; (IV) Orient. 2349, ז"ח and they were, is twice defective of Yod in all the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 185a, on 1 Chron. 7 15. In most of the MSS. and in the editions Numb. 26 11 is ז"ח with two Yods. But as this Massorah emphatically states that it is ז"ח with one Yod and moreover as this is supported by Add. 15,451, it shows that we have here again the variations which obtained among the different Massoretic Schools of textual redactors.

ז"ר they shall be, so written, occurs five times in the Prophets. As it is normally ז"ר with the paragogic He in this division of the Bible (vide supra, letter ז, § 206), the Massorah safeguards here the exceptional orthography. That this spelling exhibits the reading of the predominant School of textual redactors and that other Schools read it ז"ר, is attested by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Add. 21,161, which read it with paragogic He in both Ezek. 7 4 and 9, the latter having in the Massorah Parva against both Ezek. 7 4 and 9 ז"ר. This separate Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ezek. 29 12. We have seen in the preceding Rubric that Jerem. 18 21 is differently spelt by the different textual redactors.

ז"ח - § 208.

ז"ט and we were, occurs twice. This Kal future first person plural with Vav conversive occurs altogether four times. Twice it is the normal form and in two instances, which are recorded in the following Rubric, it is the apocopated form. Hence the Massorah safeguards the two different forms of the same future. The only other instance where this future occurs it is ז"ט with Sheva under the Vav (Gen. 47 19).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 68b, on 2 Sam. 11 28, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. 204b, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 44 17, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 118.

ז"י and we were, occurs twice. That is, in this apocopated form, in contradistinction to the normal form recorded in the preceding Rubric. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 98b, on Numb. 13 33, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 209b, on the same passage.

ז"יא occurs eight times with Kametz. That is, in contradistinction to the five instances where it is ז"יא with Segol, being the Kal future first person plural. In thus safeguarding this quadrilateral with Kametz, the Massorah, as usual, has regard simply to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in the sense. Hence it groups together the six instances in which ז"יא is Niphal preterite third person singular masculine (1 Kings 1 27; 12 24; Joel 2 2; Zech. 8 10; Neh. 6 8; 2 Chron. 11 4), the one instance in which it is the participle feminine (Prov. 13 19) and the one in which it is a feminine noun denoting lamentation (Micah 2 4).

Of this Rubric I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 248a, on Prov. 13 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 296a, on Neh. 6 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 76a, on 1 Kings 1 27; (IV) the same MS., fol. 87b, on 1 Kings 12 24; (V) the same MS., fol. 210b, on Micah 2 4; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 18, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 1 27.

ז"יב and the temple, occurs twice, once with Kametz and once with Pathach. That is, in one instance it is in the absolute and once it is in the construct. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 417b, on Ezra 3 6. These two instances form part of the alphabetical

List of words which respectively occur twice, once with Kametz and once with Pathach. (Vide infra, letter ז, § 596, Vol. II, p. 307.)

ז"יג - § 213.

ז"יג in the temples or palaces of, occurs twice. Normally this noun when in the construct and with the prefix Beth, is in the singular (ז"יג). In this form it occurs twelve times. As it is in these two instances that it is in the plural, the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 124b, on Isa. 13 22, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 219b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Prov. 30 28.

ז"יד Lucifer, or wail thou, lament, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 220a, on Isa. 14 12. It is remarkable that though according to the Septuagint, the Chaldee, Vulgate, Rashi, Ibn Ezra and modern expositors ז"יד in Isa. 14 12 is a noun, denoting brilliant star i. e. Lucifer and in Zech. 11 2 it is the Hiphil imperative singular masculine of ז"יד, signifying wail thou, or lament, the Massorah does not remark against it ז"יד, which it generally states in such cases. Neither is it given in the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ז, § 248, Vol. II, p. 217.) This would seem to favour the rendering of the Syriac, Aquila and St. Jerome, which regard it in Zech. 11 2, also, as the imperative of ז"יד.

ז"טו Hayemin, is twice defective in this form. That is, this plural form is abnormally without the Yod between the two Memes in these two instances. From the fact that in Numb. 6 5 it is the plural of ז"ט with the prefix He it would seem that the Massorah regarded ז"ט in Gen. 36 24 as a derivative of ז"ט. The Samaritan recension of the Hebrew reads ז"ט, the Emim, or giants in Gen. 36 24 which is also the rendering of the Chaldee (ז"ט). Owing to this uncertainty of its etymology I placed this quadrilateral under He according to its initial letter, though it might more properly be in ז. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 36 24.

ז"טז thanksgiving festivals, occurs twice and is plene. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 98b, on Levit. 19 24, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2848, fol. 108b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 191.

ז"יז ways, occurs four times in the Scriptures. By fixing the number at four, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the textual reading ז"יז or ז"יז in Prov. 31 27. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 193b, on Ps. 68 25, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 814a, on Habak. 3 6; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 381a, on Ps. 68 25; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 808a, on Habak. 3 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 359a, on Ps. 68 25, and (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

The MS. Lists coincide in treating all the four instances as plene, that is ז"יז with Vav. This is also the reading in Job 6 19 in some of the Standard Codices (Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250) and all the early editions prior to the editio princeps of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah. Other Standard MSS., however, of equal importance read the Job instance ז"יז defective, viz. Arund. Orient. 16; Orient. 4227; Add. 15,251. As this reading is not only exhibited in Jacob b. Chayim's text, but as the Massorah Parva expressly remarks on it that it occurs four times and that this is the only defective instance (ז"יז), it is evident that different traditions obtained in the several Massoretic Schools with regard to its orthography in Job.

List VI ends as follows: ז"יז הנהגות חכמים. ז"יז חכמים, which states that the four instances exhibit three different spellings. In Prov. 31 27 it is ז"יז or ז"יז. In Habak. 3 6 it is ז"יז without the Yod after the Lamed.

In Job 6 19 it is הליכה without the Vav and in the other instances it is הליכה. As Ps. 68 23 is the only other instance, it is evident that the expression נשארין is here loosely used for the singular. This List, therefore, whilst supporting the reading without Vav in Job 6 19, shows that according to another School of textual redactors it was הליכה without the Yod in Habak. 3 6.

הלאה further, yonder, occurs twice. In the other eleven instances where this adverb occurs it is with the prefix Vav (הלאה). Of this Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, I collated two Lists: (I) on Gen. 19 9, and (II) the Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 153.

ריט - § 219.

מבואה beyond, occurs twice. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ה, § 154, is incorrect, since this adverb with the prefix Mem occurs three times, and Jerem. 22 19 is omitted.

ריב - § 220.

הליכה אתהאלוהים to walk with God, occurs three times in this form. That is, with the Hithpael form both in the future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive and with preterite third person. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 31b, on Gen. 5 24, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 41b, on the same passage, and (III) Orient 5404, fol. 30b, also on the same passage.

הלך to go, is four times defective. Apart from Jeremiah this infinitive occurs thirty-one times. In twenty-seven instances it is plene (הלך) and in four only is it defective. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

And throughout Jeremiah it is likewise defective except six times. In Jeremiah, where it occurs altogether fourteen times, it is defective in eight instances (2 2; 3 12; 17 19; 19 1; 34 2; 35 13; 37 9; 41 6) and plene in six only. Here, therefore, the reverse is the case, the defective is the majority and the plene the minority. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority in this book.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 176b, on 1 Sam. 6 12, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 21a, on Judg. 4 9; (III) the same MS., fol. 126b, on Isa. 20 2; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 221b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,451: fol. 25a, on Gen. 31 30; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 28b, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. List IV omits the second part, which makes the Rubric unintelligible. The second part of the Rubric is given as a separate Massorah: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 253a, on Jerem. 28 13, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. In the former it is simply headed רכיב which is misleading. In the latter the heading is correctly given רכיב בכתב, which restricts the six to Jeremiah.

That these Rubrics record the orthography of one School of textual redactors and that other Schools preserved different traditions with regard to the spelling of this infinitive, is attested by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916. In this ancient MS. no fewer than four instances are plene in Jeremiah (3 12; 34 2; 35 13; 41 6) which are defective according to this Massorah.

הלך is four times plene in the Pentateuch. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 32b, on Gen. 8 3, which

I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As the only other instance in which this infinitive occurs in the Pentateuch is defective (הלך Gen. 31 30), it will be seen that the Massorah, contrary to its usual method, records here the majority.

הלך והלך going on and great, or increasing, is three times thus combined. In the description of the continually-increasing greatness of six eminent worthies, the expression והלך or הלך is followed by the same adjective in two different forms. With regard to three the combination is הלך והלך and of three it is said והלך גדל. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the respective phrases against being made uniform. For the first three the mnemonic sign is וי which are the initials of יצחק Isaac, שמואל Samuel and יהושפט Jehoshaphat; for the second three it is זים which are the initials of זאב David and זרעו Mordecai.

Of this form of the Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 174a, on 1 Sam. 2 26, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 267a, on 2 Chron. 17 12, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 26 13. All the three Lists emphatically state that הלך והלך occurs three times, and give the mnemonic sign זים for the three names in connection with which this phrase occurs. They must, therefore, be based upon a recension of the text which exhibited והלך והלך in Exod. 11 3. It is to be remarked that the Massorah in Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 199b, on 2 Sam. 5 10, which gives the second part of this List only and which is הלך והלך נ רמתי והמנוח משה דוד בירכי, supports this hypothesis.

Rubric 224b, which is from Orient. 1379, fol. 71b, on Gen. 26 13, exhibits a different form of this Massorah. The method adopted by this Massorite in formulating it is not following the order of the books in which these instances respectively occur, but arranging it so that הלך והלך the participle and הלך והלך the infinitive alternately follow each other. It will be seen that this List gives five names only, leaving out Moses, and is therefore based upon the textus receptus.

Rubric 224c. — Of this Rubric I collated four Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 42a, on Gen. 26 13, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 181a, on 1 Sam. 2 26; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 18a, on Gen. 26 13, and (IV) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 39. As these three instances are preceded by והלך and are part of § 224a, I have placed them here instead of recording them in letter z, § 79.

הליכה והגדלה. With regard to five [worthies] it is written they went on and became great. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1379, fol. 71a, on Gen. 26 13. It is another recension of §§ 224a and b. As it emphatically states in the heading that it is in connection with five only that this phrase occurs, and leaves out Moses both in the enumeration of the names and in the mnemonic sign which is here זים instead of זים, it is undoubtedly based upon the received text. Its form shows that it proceeds from a different Massoretic School.

הלך to go, occurs four times, three times defective and once plene. The only other instance in which this quadrilateral occurs it is הלך the participle (Jerem. 22 10).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 36a, on Exod. 3 19, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 333a, on Job 34 23; (III) the same MS., fol. 353a, on Eccl. 6 8; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 108a, on Numb. 22 13; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 68a, on Exod. 3 19; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Eccl. 6 8.

Nothing can be more emphatic than the statement in the List which I have printed, that in Job 34 23 this infinitive is plene. Yet all the other Lists as emphatically state that it is defective in all the four instances, and this is supported by the Standard Codices (Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 1525) and all the early editions. The List, therefore, which I have printed must be based upon a recension of the text which exhibited והלך, but which was not favoured by the predominant School of textual redactors.

רָבַח going, is nine times plene in the Pentateuch... and once it is with the prefix Vav. This participle occurs altogether fourteen times in the Pentateuch, and is defective in five instances only (Gen. 18 16; 24 42; 32 7; Exod. 13 21; Numb. 14 14). It will thus be seen that the Massorah, contrary to its usual method, safeguards here the majority. The one instance with the prefix Vav is not the participle but the imperative of רָבַח.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 88a, on Levit. 11 27, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 61b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 87a, on Numb. 22 22; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 70b, on Levit. 11 27; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 51a, on Exod. 19 19; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 23a, on Gen. 28 20; (VII) the same MS., fol. 152a, on Levit. 11 27; (VIII) Hall's Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Supplement, fol. 130a, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 25 32.

רָבַח is three times plene in this book. That is, in Samuel. In Samuel, where this participle occurs altogether thirteen times, it is defective in ten instances (1 Sam. 2 26; 17 7, 15 41; 2 Sam. 3 1, 31; 6 4; 12 23; 15 30; 16 13) and plene in three only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This protection is all the more necessary since the two different spellings occur within a few verses of the same chapter (comp. 2 Sam. 15 20 with 30).

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 66b, on 2 Sam. 15 20.

רָבַח is three times defective in this book. That is, in the Minor Prophets, which are Massoretically treated as one book. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 209a, on Jonah 1 13. It will be seen that the third instance is with the prefix He (רָבַח Habak. 1 6). The heading ought, therefore, more correctly to be וְרָבַח בְּלִישׁ בְּנֵי נ. This Rubric, however, is to be regarded as exhibiting the orthography of one School of textual redactors only. This is attested by the fact that the following MSS. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11, Add. 15,451 and all the early editions with the exception of one, read רָבַח in Micah 2 7. Moreover in Micah 2 9 רָבַח plene is the reading of the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Add. 15,451; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86; the first second third and fourth editions of the Bible (Soncino 1488, Naples 1491—93; Brescia 1494; Pesaro 1511—17) and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517.

רָבַח is ten times plene in this form in the Prophets. That is, the participle form, without and with the prefixes He and Caph. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 131b, on Isa. 30 29, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 213b, on Habak. 1 6; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 305a, on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 160.

The design of this Massorah is to exclude the textual reading רָבַח in Josh. 6 18. It will be seen that this Rubric, which records the plene instances in the Prophets, includes here the preceding two Rubrics. It is based upon the same recension of the text as those two Rubrics are. List I, which I have printed, states in the heading וְרָבַח בְּלִישׁ בְּנֵי נ, but as it records ten instances I have corrected the ה which is a manifest clerical error, into ו. List II, however, which is from the same MS., rightly heads it וְרָבַח בְּנֵי נ and duly records eleven instances, supplying the expression וְרָבַח [= Jonah 1 13] after כִּי הֵם which is not infrequently omitted.

רָבַח is twice plene in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 275a, on Esther 9 4. The expression בְּקִרְיָהּ is manifestly a clerical error for בְּקִרְיָהּ. As this participle, which occurs twice only in Esther, is plene in both instances the heading ought more properly to be בְּבִשְׂרָא וְתֵלֵב.

רָבַח is four times defective in this book. That is, in Ecclesiastes. In Ecclesiastes, where this participle occurs altogether nine times, it is plene in five instances (1 6, 6; 2 14; 3 20; 6 6) and defective in four, the Massorah records the minority. This safeguarding of the variation in its orthography is necessary since the two spellings occur within a few verses of each other (comp. 1 4, 6, 6).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 266b, on Eccl. 9 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 267b, on Eccl. 12 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 351a, on Eccl. 1 4, and (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 301b, on the same passage.

רָבַח is seven times defective in the Hagiographa. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ה, § 160, is corrupt. It omits three instances in the Hagiographa, which are defective (Ps. 101 6; Job 31 26; 2 Chron. 17 12) in the Standard Codices and the best editions, and records three instead which are plene (Cant. 7 10; Esther 9 4, 4), two of which are expressly given as such in a separate Massorah. (Vide מִסְפָּרָא, § 231.)

And two instances are plene in the Psalms. The only other instance in which this participle occurs in the Psalter it is defective (Ps. 101 6). As the Psalter is part of the Hagiographa it is difficult to say why it is thus exempted.

רָבַח that goeth, occurs three times, twice defective and once plene. As this feminine participle, which occurs three times only, in differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards it against being made uniform. It will be seen that the original defective orthography is retained in the Pentateuch.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 96a, on Levit. 11 27, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 388a, on Neh. 12 33; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 428a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 24a, on Gen. 32 21; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 152b, on Levit. 11 27; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 32 21, and (VII) the same on Levit. 11 27.

רָבַח were going, that were going, is twice so written. That is, in these two instances it is written with Vav after the Caph. This participle plural, which occurs altogether four times, three times without the prefix He and once with it, is spelt in three different ways. In one instance it is רָבַח entirely defective (Exod. 2 5), in one it is רָבַח entirely plene (Neh. 6 17) and in the two instances which constitute the Rubric before us, it is partly defective and partly plene, that is רָבַח without the first Vav, but with the second. This Massorah therefore, which is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 53b, on 1 Sam. 25 42, is designed to safeguard the two instances which are alike in their orthography. That this is the spelling of these two instances, will appear from the following analysis:

(1) 1 Sam. 25 42. — רָבַח with the second Vav only, is the reading of Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 second hand; Orient. 1478 second hand; the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491—93; the Pesaro edition of the Former Prophets, 1511; the Complutensian and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517.

רָבַח without the Vav, which I have adopted in my edition, is the reading of Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,451, first hand; Orient. 1478 first hand and Jacob B. Chayim's first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25. This reading, therefore, is not supported by the majority of the Standard Codices and the best editions. רָבַח with both Vavs, which is exhibited in the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86, and in the first and third editions of the Bible, Soncino 1488, Brescia 1494, is not supported by any of these MSS.

(2) 2 Chron. 9 21. — רָבַח with the second Vav only, is the reading of Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; Orient. 4227 and all the early editions.

(3) Exodus 2 5. — רָבַח entirely defective, is the reading here of all the MSS. and early editions.

(4) Nehemiah 6 17. — רָבַח entirely plene is the reading of Orient. 2201 second hand; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251 and all the early editions without exception. רָבַח without the first Vav is the reading of Orient. 2201 first hand and Add. 15,250.

This analysis will enable us to test two other recensions of this Rubric which I have found, one in MS. and one printed.

The MS. recension is in Add. 21,160, fol. 65a, on Exod. 2 5. It states that רָבַח is three times defective, or is defective in three different ways: (1) הלכה in Exod. 2 5 and הלכות Neh. 12 31 are entirely defective; (2) הלכות in 2 Chron. 9 21 is defective of the first Vav, and (3) הלכות Neh. 6 17 is defective of the second Vav. It will be seen that this Rubric not only omits הלכות 1 Sam. 25 42, but imports the plural noun הלכות and declares that it is הלכות without the second Vav in Neh. 6 17, which is in direct conflict with all the MSS. and early editions.

Jacob b. Chayim gives us two different Lists of this Rubric in his printed Massorah on Exod. 2 5. The first List is rightly restricted to the four instances of this plural participle, and the only variation in it is that it describes the Samuel passage as הלכות which, as we have seen, is not supported by the majority of the Standard MSS. and early editions. The second List is quite at variance with the first. It not only gives 2 Chron. 9 21 as הלכות entirely defective, which is contrary to the MSS. and early editions, but omits הלכות 1 Sam. 25 42 and makes up the four defectives by inserting the plural noun הלכות (Neh. 12 31) and the feminine participle singular הלכות (Neh. 12 38). Even in the directions which Jacob b. Chayim appends to these two Lists with regard to the orthography as the result of his collation of ancient Codices and in which he includes הלכות and הלכות (Neh. 12 31, 38), he gives the instance in 1 Sam. 25 42 as entirely defective. This is not only in conflict with the Massorah, but as we have seen, is against the majority of the Standard Codices and early editions.

הלכות I have gone, or walked, occurs three times, twice with Pathach and once with Kametz. That is, in two instances it has the normal Pathach under the Lamed and once it is with Kametz, which is due to its pausal accent Soph-Pasuk. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this quinqueliteral, which in these three instances is the Piel preterite first person singular, against being mixed up with the Kal הלכות which occurs six times, five times with Pathach (Jerem. 2 23; Ps. 26 1; Job 31 5; Ruth 1 21; Neh. 2 16) and once with Kametz (Gen. 35 3), which is also due to its pausal accent Soph-Pasuk. The protection is all the more necessary since the Kal and the Piel have the same sense, and are so used in the same books.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 184b, on Ps. 38 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 217a, on Ps. 131 1; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 235a, on Job 30 28; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 293a, on Ps. 38 7; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 325b, on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Job 30 28.

הלכות they go, or cause to go, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, as Piel preterita third person plural, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this quadriliteral is הלכות the Kal.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 270b, on Lament. 5 18, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 329b, on Job 24 10; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 184. Lists IV and V head this Rubric רליו and the latter adds at the end רליו, giving the reference for the Raphe instance to Jerem. 51 50 where it is הלכות without Dagesh in the Lamed, being the Kal imperative plural.

הלכות he shall go, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, as Piel future third person singular masculine, in contradistinction to the five instances where this quadriliteral is הלכות the Kal.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 80b, on Ezek. 18 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 200b, on Ps. 85 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 177b, on Ezek. 18 9; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 276a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Prov. 6 28

הלכות they shall go, or walk, occurs three times in the Scriptures This Piel future third person plural masculine, occurs altogether seven times. In four instances it is the normal form הלכות (Habak. 3 11; Ps. 81 14; 115 7; Eccl. 8 10) and in three it is with the paragogic Nun. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 201b, on Ps. 89 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 306b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 310a, on Ps. 104 10; (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 89 16, and (V) the same on Ps. 104 26.

הלכות (Exod. 21 19). There is a difference of opinion between Ben-Asher and Ben-Naphtali about this expression here. Ben-Asher points it הלכות with Tzere and with the accent on the ultima, whilst Ben-Naphtali points it הלכות with Segol and with the accent on the ante penultima and it is with Makeph. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Exod. 21 19. The expression קקן קקן - קקן קקן denotes Tzere and קקן or קקן signifies Segol.

§ 241. רליו

הלכות and I have walked, occurs twice in this book [the Scriptures]. This Hithpael preterite first person singular occurs altogether nine times. In seven instances it is without the prefix Vav and in two only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 71a, on Levit. 26 12. בקריה is manifestly a Scribal error for בקריה.

הלכות and he walked, or went, occurs three times at the beginning of a verse. That is, in contradistinction to the other two instances where this Hithpael future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive occurs in the middle of the verse (2 Sam. 11 2; 1 Chron. 21 4).

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 4a, on Gen. 5 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 81a, on Ezek. 19 6; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 279b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 5b, on Gen. 5 22; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VI) the same on Ezek. 19 6.

הלכות they walking, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 365a, on Dan. 4 34. As this Chaldee Aphel participle plural is restricted to Daniel, the heading ought more properly to be הלכות.

§ 244. רליו

הלכות flowing, a wayfarer, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the variation which obtained with regard to 1 Sam. 14 26, as is attested by the Septuagint. Originally the text must have been הלכות = הלכות the bees had gone, which was wrongly resolved into הלכות. This is now admitted by some of the best textual critics. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 43b, on 1 Sam. 14 26, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 63b, on 2 Sam. 12 4.

הלכות praise thou, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 320b, on Ps. 147 12, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 146 1. As both these instances of the Piel imperative singular feminine are restricted to the Psalter, the heading ought more properly to be הלכות.

הלכות. Eight Psalms begin and end with Hallelujah. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 221a, on Ps. 148 1. The thirteen Psalms which end with Hallelujah are given in a separate Rubric in Codex Bodley No. 71 (comp. the Massorah, Vol. III, p. 4). For the discussion on the exact position of this expression in the several Psalms, as well as on its orthography, see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, p. 376 &c.

וְיִדְבְּלוּ and they praised, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 8a, on Gen. 12 15, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 168a, on Judg. 16 24; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 295b, on Neh. 5 13; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 382a, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 12 15; (VI) the same on Judg. 16 24, and (VII) the same on Neh. 5 13.

רמיח = § 248.

וְיִלְלוּ they shall praise him, occurs twice in the Psalter. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ה, § 195. As the two instances are restricted to this book, the heading ought properly to be ב. ובמה.

מְדַבֵּר praised, occurs three times and is defective in the Scriptures. This participle Pual singular masculine, occurs altogether seven times. In four instances it is with the prefix Vav (מְדַבֵּר Ps. 48 2; 96 4; 145 3; 1 Chron. 16 25) and in three it is without the prefix. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 218a, on 2 Sam. 22 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 177b, on Ps. 18 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 287b, on Ps. 18 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 313a, on Ps. 113 3, and (V) the printed Massorah, on Ps. 18 4. It is remarkable that both Lists III and IV head this Rubric with מְדַבֵּר and enumerate two instances only, viz. 2 Sam. 22 4 and Ps. 113 3. But this is manifestly due to the omission אַחַר [= Ps. 18 4] after אַחַר.

יְדוּלֵל he shall make foolish, occurs three times and is plene. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 22a, on Isa. 44 25, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 232a, also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 193.

תְּהַדְּלֶיךָ thou shalt, or she shall rejoice or praise, occurs twice. This quinqueliteral, which is both Hithpael future second person singular masculine and third person singular feminine, occurs altogether five times. In three instances it is with Tzere under the Lamed (Ps. 34 3; 52 3; Prov. 27 1) and in two with Kametz, which is due to its pausal accent Soph-Pasuk. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. It will be seen that the Massorah here, as also elsewhere, has regard to the identity of the spelling, irrespective of the difference in the sense. In Isa. 41 16 it is second person masculine, whereas in Prov. 31 80 it is third person feminine.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 19b, on Isa. 41 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 136b; (III) Vienna Codex No. 36; (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Prov. 31 30.

וְיִדְבְּלוּ and they shall glory, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 299a, on Ps. 64 11.

וְיִשְׁבְּרוּ they broke, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 125b, on Isa. 16 8.

הִלֵּם here, hither, occurs twelve times and is defective. That is, in contradistinction to the assonant הִלֵּם a dream, which is always plene. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 9b, on Gen. 16 13, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 3 5.

As the catchwords for the sixth instance denote 1 Sam. 14 16 where it is הִלֵּם with the prefix Vav, and moreover, as the heading of these Lists is neither הִלֵּם יִב הִלֵּם i. e. הִלֵּם without and with the prefix Vav which occurs twelve times, nor הִלֵּם יִב הִלֵּם which is normally to be expected, it may be that this Rubric includes הִלֵּם which was originally in this passage and which has been corrupted into הִלֵּם, as is attested by the Septuagint. But whether the Massorah means to indicate הִלֵּם before הִלֵּם or not, it is certain that the received text is impossible and grammatically untranslatable. It is now accepted by the best textual critics that הִלֵּם הִלֵּם, which is preserved by the Septuagint, exhibits the original recension.

הֵם they, these &c., ends the verse twelve times. This personal pronoun third person plural ends a verse forty times altogether. In twenty-eight instances it is with the paragogic He and in twelve only it is without this paragogic He. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This safeguarding was especially necessary, since the same phrase ending two verses, one after another, is once הֵם בִּי קָרָשׁ and once בִּי קָרָשׁ הֵם (Exod. 29 33, 34) and in other two verses it is once הֵם בִּיהַר הַיָּם and once בִּיהַר הַיָּם (Ezek. 12 2, 3).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 161a, on Judg. 8 24, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 76b, on Ezek. 12 2; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 297a, on Neh. 7 61; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 29b, on Gen. 40 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 115b, on Num. 1 15; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 94a, on 1 Kings 20 3; (VII) the same MS., fol. 373a, on Ezra 2 59; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 383b, on Neh. 7 61; (IX) Halle Oehlrah Ve-Ochlah II, § 106, and (X) the printed Massorah on Exod. 18 26. Lists V, VII, IX and X head this Rubric with הֵם כֹּל שֵׁמוֹ פְּסוּי דְקָרָי רַחֵם בְּמִיֵּם הֵם throughout the Scriptures הֵם ends the verse except twelve times where it is הֵם, which indicates the import of this Massorah. The addition at the end of the List which I have printed is important. It conclusively proves the statement which I have often made, that the Nakdanim fixed beforehand the number of lines of the Massorah with which they intended to furnish the respective MSS. both in the upper and lower margins, and when the Rubrics were too long and would exceed this number they often curtailed them, and when they were not long enough to fill up the requisite number of lines, they as often added phrases which are no part of the Rubric or found it necessary to add an explanation why the lines are fewer.

1 Comp. הֵם at the end of the verse Numb. 13 3; Josh. 2 4; 7 3; 1 Sam. 12 21; 19 20, 21; 25 11; 1 Kings 9 20; 2 Kings 7 10; Jerem. 5 10; 6 28; 7 4; Ezek. 2 6, 7; 3 7, 9, 26, 27; 10 20; 13 3; Hosea 2 6; Zeph. 3 12; Ps. 9 7; 25 6; 119 111; Prov. 19 7; 1 Chron. 26 6; 2 Chron. 8 7.

רניח = § 257.

הֵם הֵם. This personal pronoun third person plural is always with Segol when it is with the prefix Beth, Shin, Lamed or Mem and with Tzere when it is with the prefix He, Caph or Vav except once, viz. הֵם 2 Kings 17 15. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 198b, on 1 Chron. 6 8. It is part of the Treatise which is attributed to Ben-Asher. (Vide infra, letter א, p. 658, § 22.)

רניח = § 258.

הֵם and they, begins a verse nine times. The design of this Massorah is primarily to safeguard the phrase הֵם בְּבָאִים and they brought, which begins the verse in 2 Chron. 9 24, against being made conformable to the parallel passage הֵם בְּבָאִים which also begins the verse in 2 Kings 10 25.

the following eight only, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 52b, on Exod. 28 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 158a, on 2 Chron. 9 24; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 293a, on Neh. 1 10; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 69b, on Exod. 28 5; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 263a, on 2 Chron. 9 24; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 105; (VII) the printed Massorah on Prov. 1 18, and (VIII) the same on 2 Chron. 9 24.

Lists V and VI head this Rubric לכאן ראו וקראו הם במים והם whilst List IV, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, adds at the end והוא קרייה הם which is substantially the same. Accordingly the design of this Massorah apparently is to record the exceptional instances in which this personal pronoun with the prefix Vav (הם) begins a verse, in contrast to all the other Scriptures where it begins a verse and is normally (הם) without the prefix Vav. Strictly interpreted, therefore, this heading is misleading. This is attested by the fact that הם normally begins a verse, whilst והם begins a verse six times only throughout the Scriptures. (Gen. 44 4; Exod. 6 27; Deut. 32 21; Judg. 19 11; 2 Sam. 20 8; Hosea 8 4.) The printed Massorah (List VII) which heads this Rubric הם הם הם הם is incorrect, since it is והם alone which begins the verse nine times.

והם לא ידעו and they knew not, occurs three times . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. That is, in contradistinction to the less emphatic phrase והם ידעו which denotes the same thing and which is recorded in letter ב, § 179.

רשם for they, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, this personal pronoun plural masculine with the prefix Shin and Segol under it, in contradistinction to the only instance where this trilateral occurs with Sheva under the Shin and is with Makeph (רשם) Eccl. 3 18). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 270a, on Lament. 4 9, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 357b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah, also on the same passage.

רס"א they, begins a verse nineteen times. That is, without the prefix Vav, in contradistinction to the twelve instances where it begins the verse with this prefix, recorded below ה, § 266.

Of this popular Massorah I collated twenty Lists, but shall specify the following nine only, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 32b, on Gen. 7 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32b, on Judg. 19 22; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 8a, on Gen. 7 14; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 291a, on Ezek. 44 16; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 223a, on Numb. 20 13; (VI) the same MS., fol. 327b, on Job 24 13; (VII) Cambridge Add. 465 on Gen. 7 14 which alone has the mnemonic sign; (VIII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 106, margin, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 200. In Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah (List IX) the catchwords for No. 8, viz. והם את ערלים שבעו Ezek. 32 29 are wrong, since והם is here in the middle of the verse. They ought to be והם ערלים שבעו 1 Sam. 9 11. The catchwords for No. 9 והם ירדום בקנה העיני should be והם ירדום בקנה העיני 1 Sam. 9 27.

רס"ב they, occurs four times in this book. That is, in Proverbs. In Proverbs this personal pronoun third person plural without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether ten times. In six instances it is without the paragogic He (1 9, 18; 4 22; 18 8; 26 22; 30 24) and in four it is with the paragogic He. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This protection is all the more necessary since the two forms are used in one and the same verse (30 24). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 257b, on Prov. 30 18.

רס"ג they are making, or doing, occurs five times. This participle plural is fourteen times preceded by the personal pronoun third person plural. In nine instances it is והם עשוי without the paragogic He (Exod. 5 8; 2 Kings 12 16; 17 34, 40, 41; 22 7; Ezek. 8 6 (Keri), 9; 2 Chron. 34 16) and in five only it is with the paragogic He. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. By fixing the number at five, this Massorah militates against the textual reading הם in Jerem. 7 17, which is exhibited in Codex Reuchlin No. 2 (comp. Baer, Critical Notes on this passage).

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 59a, on Exod. 36 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 36a, on Jerem. 7 17; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 74a, on Ezek. 8 13; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 39a, on 1 Sam. 8 8; (V) the same MS., fol. 152a, on Jerem. 7 17; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 36 4; (VII) the same on Jerem. 7 17, and (VIII) the same on Ezek. 8 13.

רס"ד by, or in them, occurs three times. That is, as pronoun third person plural with paragogic He and the prefix Beth, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this quadrilateral is pointed רס"ד with Sheva under the Beth and without Dagesh in the Mem, being a feminine noun and denoting beast, cattle.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 118a, on Habak. 1 16, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 72b, on Exod. 30 4; (III) the same MS., fol. 79a, on Exod. 36 1; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 213b, on Habak. 1 16; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 75a, on Exod. 30 4; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 106 margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 30 4.

רס"ה those, occurs twelve times. This personal pronoun with the prefix He, occurs altogether fifty-eight times. In forty-six instances it is without the paragogic He and in twelve only is it with it. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional form. By fixing the number at twelve, the Massorah militates against the Eastern recension of the text, which reads הם in Jerem. 50 20, and which is exhibited in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916. The protection of these instances was moreover necessary, since the same phrases are not only used promiscuously with the two different forms of this pronoun, but in one and the same book. Thus for instance והם ואתם and והם ואתם Numb. 9 7; 14 38; 16 14; והם ואתם 2 Kings 13 4; 1 Kings 3 2. (Vide infra, letter י, § 254.)

Of this popular Massorah I collated twenty Lists and shall specify the following twelve only, nine in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 91a, on Numb. 9 7, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 112a, on 2 Kings 18 4; (III) the same MS., fol. 149a, on Jerem. 3 16; (IV) the same MS., fol. 156a, on Jerem. 14 15; (V) the same MS., fol. 204b, on Joel 3 2; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 209b, on 2 Kings 18 4; (VII) the same MS., fol. 401b, on Neh. 13 15; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 202a, on Numb. 9 7; (IX) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 106, margin; (X) the printed Massorah on Numb. 9 7; (XI) the same on Jerem. 14 15, and (XII) the same on Neh. 13 15. It will be seen that though List I, which I have printed, rightly states in the heading that there are twelve such instances, it enumerates eleven only, omitting Jerem. 5 18. But as this instance is duly given in the other Lists, there can be no doubt that its omission in List I is due to a clerical error.

רס"ו and they, begins a verse ten times. That is, with the paragogic He, in contradistinction to the nine instances in which this pronoun with the prefix Vav begins a verse and is without the paragogic He, recorded above, letter ה, § 258.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 170a, on Judg. 18 27, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 71a, on Ezek. 2 5; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 320b, on 1 Chron. 12 21; (IV) the printed Massorah on Isa. 63 10, and (V) the same on Micah 4 12.

רס"ז and they, occurs twice in the Pentateuch. This personal pronoun third person plural with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether eighteen times in the Pentateuch. In sixteen instances it is without the paragogic He (comp. והם Gen. 14 13; 42 8, 23; which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 363a, on Esther 9 24; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 97a, on Deut. 2 15, and (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 257a, on the same passage.

and he troubled, or discomfited, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I. fol. 43b, on Exod. 14 24, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 21a, on Judg. 4 15, and (III) the printed Massorah on Exod. 14 24.

and he discomfited them, occurs three times... In the second instance the textual reading is רעו, and they have no parallel in all the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 177b, on Ps. 18 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 287b, on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Josh. 10 10; (IV) the same Codex on Ps. 18 15, and (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 7 10.

It will be seen that the List which I have printed omits 1 Sam. 7 10 and not only gives 2 Sam. 22 15 as the second instance, which is the Kethiv in the textus receptus, but states that the Kethiv or textual reading is רעו and consequently the official reading or the Keri, according to this Massorah, is רעוה. The needless ורעוה at the end of the Rubric, is simply added to fill up the line. The other four Lists coincide in giving 1 Sam. 7 10 as the second instance and in omitting the Kethiv רעו in 2 Sam. 22 15. It is, therefore, probable that List I is based upon a different recension of the text, since the Massorah in this MS. is most carefully compiled and the MS. itself is a Model Codex. Moreover it is more likely that the Keri in 2 Sam. 22 15 would make this passage conformable to the parallel passage in Ps. 18 15 and not make it designedly at variance therewith.

in or with them, occurs fifteen times in the Scriptures. That is, with There under the He. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this feminine pronoun third person plural against the variations exhibited in some recensions which read רעק the masculine in several of these passages, as will be seen from the notes on Exod. 25 29; Levit. 11 21 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric which, in this form, is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 45a, on Gen. 30 26, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 66b, on Exod. 25 29; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 58a, on Exod. 37 16; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 270a, on Jerem. 4 29; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 203a, on Numb. 10 3, and (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 70, margin.

is in three instances with Pathach. That is, in Massoretic terminology with Segol under the He. By fixing the number at three, this Massorah excludes the reading קנה in Gen. 30 37 which is exhibited in Harley 5710—11; Orient. 4227 and in the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491—93.

Of this separate Rubric I collated six Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 196a, on 1 Sam. 31 7, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 228b, on Isa. 38 16; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 229b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 290a, on Ezek. 42 14; (V) Orient. 2626—28, Vol. II, fol. 84b, on 1 Sam. 31 7, and (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 70. List V has the following mnemonic sign in the heading ורעוה ורעוה ורעוה ורעוה ורעוה ורעוה.

These two Rubrics, viz. § 280 and § 281 constitute one Rubric in some Massorahs with the heading רעוה ורעוה ורעוה ורעוה ורעוה ורעוה. Of this form I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 22a, on Gen. 30 26; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 185a, on Isa. 38 16; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 160a, on Levit. 14 40, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 219. The latter, however, is imperfect, since Jacob b. Chayim's List gives thirteen instances only, with There. Levit. 11 21 and 14 40 are omitted, though the heading expressly states that there are fifteen such instances.

than they, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading רעק, which obtained in some Codices, as is attested by Orient. 4227 and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517, in Ezek. 16 47. The latter has also רעק in the margin of verse 52. As to the pointing of this triliteral, Orient. 2201, which is one of the oldest dated MSS. has it רעק with There under the He, with the remark in the Massorah Parva against it ורעק ברעלי ב. This is also the pointing in Add. 15,251; the Complutensian and the first edition of the Rabbinic with the Massorah. However, Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,151 and the majority of the early editions have it רעק with Segol. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176b, on Ezek. 16 47.

behold I, is four times thus combined in the Scriptures. The personal pronoun אני is eleven times preceded by this interjection. In seven instances the interjection is with the paragogue He, viz. ורעוה אני (vide infra, letter ה, § 302) and in these four instances it is without the paragogue He. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional phrase.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 24a, on Isa. 49 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 236a, on Job 33 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 142b, on Isa. 56 3; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 36a, on Exod. 6 30; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 483a, on Job 33 6; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 6 30, and (VII) the same on Isa. 56 3.

lo, behold, is five times with Segol in the Scriptures. That is, when this interjection is combined by Makeph with the next word, because, as one of the Lists adds at the end, in such a combination the first letter of the word combined therewith takes the accent (לפי שרעשע באות ראשונה של חברה ומעמדו לה). By fixing the number at five, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the variation which is exhibited in Job 31 35, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

And when it is followed by על or עלה or עליה it is likewise so. ורעוה על occurs twice (Job 13 1; 33 29); ורעוה עלה four times (Job 8 20; 36 5, 22, 26) and ורעוה עליה once (Job 26 14).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twelve Lists, nine in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 235b, on Job 31 35, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 143b, on Numb. 23 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 324a, on Job 8 19; (IV) the same MS., fol. 332a, on Job 31 35; (V) the same MS., fol. 332b, on Job 33 12; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 382b, on Job 31 35; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 109a, on Numb. 23 9; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 230a, on Numb. 23 24; (IX) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement fol. 131b; (X) the printed Massorah on Numb. 23 9; (XI) the same on Job 8 19, and (XII) the same on Job 31 35.

List VI has the following mnemonic sign at the end ורעוה על ורעוה עלה ורעוה עליה ורעוה על ורעוה עלה ורעוה עליה and List IX adds the explanation which I have given above.

and behold, or and if, occurs five times in the Scriptures, two of these are at the beginning of a verse. With There and Segol this interjection and conjunctive occurs altogether about 115 times both in Hebrew and Chaldee. In 110 instances it is without the prefix Vav and with it five times only. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional occurrence.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 276b, on Dan. 2 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 278b, on Dan. 3 18; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 261b, on 2 Chron. 7 18; (IV) the same MS., fol. 86b, on Dan. 3 18; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 68b, on Exod. 4 1; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Dan. 3 18. It will be seen that the three Daniel instances are not only Chaldee, but conjunctive, whilst the two Hebrew are interjection. The two passages where ורעוה begins the verse are Dan. 2 6 and 3 18.

therein, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, three in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 65a, on Levit. 5 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 34b, on Jerem. 5 17; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 150b, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Levit. 5 22; (V) the same on Numb. 13 19, and (VI) the same on Jerem. 5 17.

וְהָיָה and they, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, with Sheva under the Vav, in contradistinction to the Vav instances where it is חָמֵץ with Kametz (Josh. 8 20; 1 Sam. 20 21; 1 Kings 20 40; 2 Kings 2 8, 14). By fixing the number at three, this Massorah, militates against the recension of the text which exhibits וְהָיָה in 2 Sam. 4 6, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 90a, on Ezek. 30 17, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59b, on 2 Sam. 4 6; (III) the same MS., fol. 173a, on Jerem. 38 22; (IV) the same MS., fol. 186b, on Ezek. 30 17; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 288a, on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 4 6.

וְהָיָה to these, occurs four times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 70b, on Ezek. 1 23, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 268b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 285a, on Ezek. 1 5, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 224. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words, which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter ה, § 75.)

רָמַז - § 289.

וְהָיָה from, or of these, occurs seven times. Of this popular Massorah I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 64a, on Levit. 4 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 16a, on Isa. 34 16; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 183a, on Ps. 34 21; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 133a, on Isa. 34 16; (V) the same MS., fol. 150a, on Jerem. 5 6; (VI) the same MS., fol. 176b, on Ezek. 16 51; (VII) the same MS., fol. 291b, on Ps. 34 21; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 4 2; (IX) the same in Jerem. 5 6, and (X) the same on Ezek. 42 5.

וְהָיָה behold, begins a verse seven times in this book. That is, in Genesis. In Gen. this interjection begins a verse altogether eighteen times. In eleven instances it is וְהָיָה with the prefix Vav (Gen. 15 4; 28 13, 15; 37 7; 41 2, 3, 6, 18, 19, 23; 45 12) and in seven only it is without this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 40a, on Gen. 24 13, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 50b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 37 7.

וְהָיָה begins a verse four times in this book. That is, in Samuel. Here this interjection begins a verse altogether twelve times. In eight instances it is וְהָיָה with the prefix Vav (1 Sam. 11 5; 20 21; 26 24; 2 Sam. 3 22; 14 7; 15 24; 18 31; 19 42) and in four only it is without this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. By fixing the number at four, the Massorah militates against the reading וְהָיָה in 2 Sam. 15 36, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah in this separate form, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 86a, on 1 Sam. 2 31, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 67a, on 2 Sam. 15 36; and (III) the same MS., fol. 68a, on 2 Sam. 17 9.

וְהָיָה begins a verse ten times in this book. That is, in Ezekiel. Here this interjection begins a verse altogether twenty-two times. In twelve instances it is וְהָיָה with the prefix Vav (Ezek. 4 8; 8 4; 9 2, 11; 13 12; 14 22; 16 27; 17 10; 18 14; 22 13; 40 5; 43 2) and in ten it is without the prefix. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 176b, on Ezek. 16 44, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 186b, on Ezek. 31 3; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 22 6; (IV) the same Codex on

Ezek. 39 8; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 288a, on Ezek. 31 3, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 28 3. Lists III and IV indicate the import of this Massorah in the respective headings, viz. כָּל חֻקְיָא דְרַמְזֵי דְבֵינָא

רָמַז - § 293.

וְהָיָה begins a verse three times in Chronicles. In this book this interjection begins a verse eleven times altogether. In eight instances it is וְהָיָה with the prefix Vav (1 Chron. 22 14; 28 21; 2 Chron. 2 9; 13 12; 16 11; 19 11; 20 11; 29 9) and in three only it is without the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. This separate Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 161b, on 2 Chron. 21 14. וְהָיָה in the heading is manifestly a clerical error for בָּרִיחַ.

וְהָיָה. This Rubric, which allocates the position of the interjection without and with the prefix Vav in the different books of the Scriptures, combines the several registers of the respective books into a chain of four links. I shall detach the several links and give the register of each book separately, as they are in the older Massorahs.

(1) וְהָיָה behold, begins a verse seven times in this book. That is, in Genesis.

Genesis. — In Genesis, where this interjection begins a verse altogether eighteen times, the minority is without the prefix Vav. Hence וְהָיָה is safeguarded. For this Rubric see above, letter ה, § 290.

(2) And throughout the rest of the Pentateuch it is likewise so, as well as throughout Joshua and Judges except in six instances where it is וְהָיָה with the prefix Vav. As this second link of the artificial concatenation comprises the remainder of the Pentateuch, Joshua and Judges, it will be more easily explained by separating each of the constituent parts.

The rest of the Pentateuch. — That is, Exodus-Deuteronomy.

Exodus. — In this book where this interjection begins a verse twice, it is in both instances (וְהָיָה) without the prefix Vav (9 3; 23 20).

Leviticus. — In this book, neither וְהָיָה nor וְהָיָה ever begins a verse.

Numbers. — In Numbers, where this interjection begins a verse four times, it is twice (וְהָיָה) without the prefix Vav (22 11; 23 20) and twice (וְהָיָה) with it. (Vide infra, letter ה, § 304.)

Deuteronomy. — In this book this interjection begins a verse once only and is (וְהָיָה) with the prefix Vav (22 17). It will thus be seen that this interjection, which begins a verse altogether seven times in the Pentateuch apart from Genesis is in the majority of instances without the prefix Vav and with it in the minority. This is the reason why the Massorah includes the rest of the Pentateuch among the exceptions of וְהָיָה beginning a verse.

Joshua. — In Joshua this interjection begins a verse three times, twice it is (וְהָיָה) without the prefix Vav (2 18; 3 11) and once with it. (Vide infra, letter ה, § 306). Hence it is included in this constituent part where וְהָיָה is the exception.

Judges. — In this book this interjection begins a verse five times. In three instances it is (וְהָיָה) without the prefix Vav and in two it is (וְהָיָה) with it. (Vide infra, letter ה, § 306). Hence it is included among the books in which וְהָיָה is the minority.

(3) And throughout Samuel it is likewise so except in four instances. That is, in Samuel, too, the rule is וְהָיָה and the exception is וְהָיָה at the beginning of a verse. For this Rubric, which is here the second link in the chain, see letter ה, § 291.

(4) And throughout Kings, Isaiah and Jeremiah this interjection, without the prefix Vav is the rule at the beginning of a verse and with the prefix it occurs eight times only. For the exceptional eight instances of וְהָיָה in this fourth link in the chain, which are here mentioned but not recorded, see the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 13a, on Gen. 24 13, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 45a, on Gen. 41 29. The latter gives links one and two only of this chain.

וְהָיָה. This Rubric exhibits a more complete concatenation of the separate links recording the instances in the several books in which this interjection begins the verse without the prefix Vav and in which it is with the prefix. It consists of eight links. These I shall detach so as to give separately the books in which one form of this interjection or the other predominates at the beginning of the verse.

Of this complete Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 117a, on Josh. 1 1, which I have printed; (II) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah II, § 89, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 228.

(1) Throughout Joshua and Judges begins a verse except six times where it is without the prefix Vav. This link which is the first here, is the second in the preceding chain (§ 294), as is attested by its contents. Accordingly the heading ought to be the same and the words וכל אשר אמר יהוה have dropped out at the beginning of the heading. They are properly given in Lists II and III. For the analysis of this part see No. 1 of § 294.

(2) And throughout Genesis begins a verse. This heading, which is here the second link, is a corruption of the heading of the first link in § 294 and ought to be כל אשר בראית ריב הוה במוי הוה, as it is rightly given in List II. For the analysis of this link see § 294, No. 1.

(3) And throughout Samuel begins a verse except in four instances where it is without the prefix Vav. For the analysis of this link see § 294, No. 8.

(4) And throughout Kings, Isaiah and Jeremiah where this interjection begins a verse it is without the prefix Vav except in eight instances where it is with the prefix Vav.

Kings. — In Kings where this interjection begins a verse ten times, it is five times without the prefix Vav (1 Kings 1 14; 8 12; 2 Kings 1 14; 19 11; 20 17) and five times with it. (Vide infra, letter ה, § 306.) As the instances are evenly divided it is difficult to say why הוה is placed as the rule and הוה as the exception. It may be that by fixing the number at five in Kings, as is done in List III, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the reading הוה in 1 Kings 1 14, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Isaiah. — In Isaiah this interjection begins a verse twenty-four times. Without the prefix Vav (הוה) is here the rule and with it (הוה) is the rare exception. The former occurs twenty-two times (8 18; 10 33; 12 2; 13 9; 22 17; 24 1; 25 2; 30 27; 36 6; 37 11; 38 17; 39 6; 40 10; 41 16; 47 14; 48 10; 49 12; 52 13; 54 16 Keri; 62 11; 65 8, 14), and the latter twice only. Hence its inclusion in the Lists for safeguarding.

Jeremiah. — In Jeremiah this interjection begins a verse twenty times. It is without the prefix Vav (הוה) in nineteen instances (4 13; 7 8; 8 19; 9 24; 17 15; 23 5, 19; 30 23; 31 27, 31, 38; 32 7, 24, 27; 33 14; 49 19, 22; 50 41, 44) and once only is it (הוה) with the prefix (38 22). Hence its inclusion in the List for safeguarding. It is remarkable that the solitary exception is omitted. But as it is duly given in Lists II and III its omission here is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe.

(5) Ezekiel. — Throughout Ezekiel it is with the prefix Vav (הוה) at the beginning of a verse except ten times where it is without the prefix. In this book the interjection begins a verse twenty-two times. In twelve instances it is (הוה) with the prefix Vav (4 8; 8 4; 9 2, 11; 13 12; 14 22; 16 27; 17 10; 18 14; 22 13; 40 5; 43 2) and in ten (הוה) without it. Hence the minority is recorded.

(6) The Minor Prophets. — Throughout the Minor Prophets it is (הוה) without the prefix at the beginning of the verse except twice where it is (הוה) with the prefix. In the twelve Minor Prophets, which the Massorah treats as one book, this interjection begins a verse fourteen times. In twelve instances it is (הוה) without the prefix Vav (Amos 2 13; 8 11; 9 8, 18; Obad. 2; Nah. 2 1; 3 18; Habak. 2 4; Zech. 9 4; 12 2; 14 1; Mal. 3 28) and twice only is it (הוה) with the prefix. Hence its position in this Rubric for safeguarding.

(7) Chronicles. — And throughout Chronicles this interjection is with the prefix Vav (הוה) at the beginning of the verse except three times where it is (הוה) without the prefix. In Chronicles this interjection begins a verse eleven times. It is with the prefix (הוה) in eight instances (1 Chron. 22 14; 28 21; 2 Chron. 2 9; 13 12; 16 11; 19 11; 20 11; 29 9) and three times without it (הוה). Hence the Massorah in this Rubric, safeguards the minority.

(8) In all the rest of the Hagiographa this interjection without the prefix Vav (הוה) begins the verse excepting six times where it is (הוה) with the prefix. The rest of the Hagiographa which, apart from Chronicles, comprises ten books, or six if the Five Megilloth are taken as one. In this division the interjection begins a verse altogether thirty-three times. In twenty-seven instances it is (הוה) without the prefix Vav (Ps. 7 15; 33 18; 39 6; 52 9; 54 6; 55 8; 59 8; 73 12; 119 40; 121 4; 123 2; 127 3; 128 4; 132 8; Job 3 7; 4 8; 5 17, 27; 13 18; 32 20; 33 2, 7; 40 13, 16; Cant. 3 7; Eccl. 5 17; Neh. 9 86) and in six only is it (הוה) with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards here the exceptional occurrence. (Vide infra, letter ה, § 307.)

It will thus be seen that this interjection begins a verse in the Bible 187 times, that it is הוה without the prefix Vav 114 times and הוה with the prefix Vav 53 times.

הוה behold, is four times misleading in the Pentateuch. That is, in these four instances the Sevir or extra-official reading is הוה with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 77a, on Exod. 32 34, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 87a; (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 76a; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

We have here in the respective headings of this Rubric a striking proof that the expressions רמבין and רמבין are used interchangeably according to the opinion of the several Massoretic Schools with regard to the value of these extra-official readings. Whilst the four MS. Lists head this Rubric רמבין, the printed Massorah on all the four instances has it רמבין. The MS. Massorah Parva in Add. 15,250 both on Exod. 32 34 and Numb. 32 28 also heads it רמבין. This is also the heading in the Massorah Parva in Add. 21,160 on Numb. 22 5 and 32 23; whilst Add. 19,776 on both these passages has it רמבין, thus combining the two terms. That the Sevir represents the reading exhibited in some MSS. will be seen from the notes on Numb. 22 5 in my edition of the Bible and from the discussion in letter ה, § 742.

הוה. Seven words are once only preceded by this interjection. That is, in these seven instances only are these words combined with this interjection without the prefix Vav, whereas in all other instances they are preceded by הוה. It is to be remarked that the design of this Massorah is to record those words which are not only unique in their combination with הוה, but which occur again more than once combined with הוה and in this respect this Rubric differs from the following one. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Judg. 7 13. The incipient List in Orient. 4445, fol. 30b, on Gen. 41 29 gives unique combinations principally with הוה including these also in the number.

הוה — § 298.

הוה. Eleven words respectively occur twice, one preceded by this interjection without the prefix Vav (הוה) and once with it (הוה). Whilst the preceding Rubric registers the words which are unique in their combination with הוה, but which occur again several times combined with הוה, this Rubric records the words which respectively occur twice, once preceded by הוה and once by הוה. In § 297 the combination with הוה alone is unique, in this Rubric both the combinations, the one with הוה and the one with הוה, are unique. הוה occurs twice, once with Segol under the Beth והוה קין (Gen. 15 8) and once with Tere והוה קין (Gen. 18 10). As the unique combination of הוה is with קין, the Massorah here distinguishes between הוה and הוה and gives והוה as the pair to הוה. For this reason והוה with Patach (Exod. 9 8) and והוה with Kametz (Dan. 10 10) are omitted. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ה, § 238.

As there are five other words which respectively occur once only preceded by הוה and once by הוה, it is evident that the List was originally without the heading, fixing the number and that a later Nakdan added the ה to correspond with the instances recorded in the Rubric.

הוה. Five verses in which this interjection occurs twice the first time without the prefix Vav (הוה) and the second (הוה) with the prefix. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 49a, on Gen. 37 9, which I have printed; (II) Paris Oohlah Ve-Oohlah, § 339, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 31 51.

ש behold your God, occurs twice. By fixing the number at two, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the reading ש behold our God in Isa. 35 4, which is preserved in the Septuagint (ὁὐὸ ὁ Θεὸς ἡμῶν). This variation is due to the fact that originally the text had simply the abbreviated word ש, which one School of textual redactors resolved into ש in harmony with Isa. 40 9, whilst another School resolved it into ש in accordance with Isa. 25 9. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 133a, on Isa. 35 4.

ש behold I, occurs seven times. This interjection is thirty-eight times combined with the personal pronoun first person singular. In thirty-one instances the combination is ש and in seven only is it ש. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190b, on Ezek. 37 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 257b, on 2 Chron. 2 3; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 280b, on Ezek. 37 5; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah, on Jerem. 32 27; (VI) the same on Ezek. 37 5, and (VII) the same on 2 Chron. 2 3.

Comp. ש Gen. 24 13, 43; 25 32; 48 21; 50 5; Exod. 3 13; 4 23; 7 17; 8 23; 19 9; 23 20; 34 10; Numb. 23 32; Josh. 14 10; Judg. 6 37; 1 Sam. 3 11; 24 4; 2 Sam. 24 17; Isa. 8 18; 54 11, 16 Keri; Jerem. 6 19; 18 11; 50 9; Hosea 3 16; Amos 3 13; 9 9; Zech. 11 16; 12 2; Mal. 3 23; 1 Chron. 17 1.

ש behold not, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. This interjection is followed fifteen times by the negative. In twelve instances the combination is ש with the prefix Vav (Exod. 7 16; 9 7; Levit. 13 32, 34, 53, 55; 14 48; Judg. 21 8; 1 Kings 3 21; 10 7; Ezek. 30 21; Neh. 6 12) and in three only is it without the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. By fixing the number at three, the Massorah, moreover, includes the textual reading or Keri in 1 Sam. 20 2.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 215b, on Ps. 121 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 147b, on Jerem. 1 6; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 239b, on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 121 4, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ש and behold, begins a verse twice in this book. That is, in Numbers. In the other two instances where it begins a verse it is without the prefix Vav. (Vide supra, letter ש, § 294.)

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. I, fol. 107b, on Numb. 32 14, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 88a, on Numb. 25 6; (III) the same MS., fol. 93a, on Numb. 32 14, and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage.

ש - § 805.

ש. Throughout Joshua and Judges this interjection without the prefix Vav (ש) begins a verse except three times where it is ש with the prefix. (Vide supra, letter ש, § 294.) This separate Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ש, § 226.

ש begins a verses five times in this book. That is, in Kings. (Vide supra, letter ש, § 85.) Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 77a, on 1 Kings 1 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 88a, on 1 Kings 13 1; (III) the same MS., fol. 88b, on 1 Kings 13 25; (IV) the same MS., fol. 94b, on 1 Kings 20 13; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 180a, on 1 Kings 1 22; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 183b, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah, also on the same passage.

ש begins a verse six times in the Hagiographa. (Vide supra, letter ש, § 295.) This separate Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 259a, on Ruth 2 4.

ש - § 308.

ש. Two verses in which this interjection with the prefix Vav respectively occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 49a, on Gen. 37 7, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 59a, on the same passage. It is remarkable that the heading of both Lists simply gives ש twice. But this is due to the carelessness of the Scribe, as is evident from the fact that in these two verses only, does ש occur three times, whilst there are no fewer than eleven verses in which it occurs twice (comp. Gen. 18 12; 37 7; Judg. 3 25; 4 22; 2 Sam. 1 6; 1 Kings 3 21; Isa. 5 7; Jerem. 14 18; Ezek. 2 9; 37 2; Amos 7 1) apart from the verse in which it occurs twice with ש intervening (Judg. 7 13).

ש. Thirteen words respectively occur once only preceded by this interjection with the prefix Vav. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the words which occur once only in combination with ש and which occur more than once combined with ש. This Rubric, therefore, is the converse of § 298, which records unique pairs, or words once combined with ש and once with ש.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ש, § 231. It is incorrect. ש does not belong to this Rubric, since ש does not occur; neither has ש a companion, since ש does not occur, whilst ש occurs once only and hence ש and its unique companion ש do not belong to this Rubric, but to § 293; whereas ש, which occurs once only (Amos 7 7) and which is ש in all other instances (Isa. 8 7; 40 10; Zech. 9 4) is omitted. ש Ezek. 4 3 in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, is a manifest scribal error for ש, as is evident from the catchwords. I have, therefore, corrected it accordingly. It will be seen that ש with Tzere under the Beth is here properly included, since ש occurs twice with Tzere (1 Kings 13 2; 1 Chron. 22 9, vide supra, letter ש, § 298).

ש and behold we, is three times thus combined. ש, the pronoun first person plural, is preceded by this interjection altogether eight times. In five instances the combination is ש behold we, without the prefix Vav (Josh. 2 18; 1 Sam. 14 8; 23 3; Neh. 9 36, 36) and in three only is it with the prefix. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. I, fol. 99a, on Numb. 20 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 295a, on Neh. 5 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 382a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 423a, also on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 106b, on Numb. 20 16; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 37 7, and (VII) the same on Neh. 5 5.

ש and behold he was or they were not, is three times thus combined. Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 20b, on Gen. 31 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 184a, on Ps. 37 36; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 184b, on the same passage; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 20b, on Judg. 3 25; (V) the same MS., fol. 293a, on Ps. 37 36; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 27a, on Gen. 31 2; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 89, margin; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 31 2; (IX) the same on Judg. 3 25, and (X) the same on Ps. 37 36. As these three instances respectively occur in the three divisions of the Bible, several of the Lists either add ש or simply the abbreviation ש.

and behold I, is five times thus combined in the Scriptures. This interjection is thirty-six times combined with the personal pronoun first person singular. In thirty-one instances it is without the prefix Var (vide supra, letter ה, § 302) and in these five instances only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. It is remarkable that וְהִנֵּנִי does not occur, though וְהִנֵּנִי without the prefix Vav occurs seven times. (Vide supra, letter ה, § 302.)

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5719-11, Vol. I, fol. 153b, on Josh. 23 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 125a, on Zech. 11 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 23b, on Judg. 7 17; (IV) the same MS., fol. 230b, on Zech. 11 6; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 150b, on 1 Sam. 10 8; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 27a, on Gen. 28 15; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 89, margin, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 28 15. The catchwords for the second instance in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List VIII) viz. וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי הִלֵּךְ Josh. 23 14. are manifestly a mistake for וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי הִלֵּךְ Josh. 23 14.

and behold the word of Jehovah came unto him, occurs twice in this combination. That is, with this interjection instead of the normal וְהִנֵּנִי. Comp. 1 Kings 19 9, which is one of the two abnormal phrases with 17 2 and 8 of the same book.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 234a, on 1 Kings 19 9, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 93b, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 11a, on Gen. 15 4.

and behold he, is five times thus combined. The design of this Massorah is twofold. It is in the first place to include the official reading וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי, thus militating against the textual reading וְהִנֵּנִי or וְהִנֵּנִי in Jerem. 18 3. And in the second place to distinguish these five instances with the prefix Var from the eight passages in which this combination is without the prefix (Gen. 20 16; Exod. 4 14; 1 Sam. 10 22; 2 Sam. 9 4; Jerem. 38 5; Job 2 19; Ruth 3 2; Ps. 48 5).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 165a, on 2 Chron. 26 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 158a, on Jerem. 18 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 273b, on 2 Chron. 26 20; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 36a, on Gen. 42 27; (V) the same MS., fol. 248a, on Jerem. 18 3; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 135a, on Deut. 22 17, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 42 27. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List VII), which heads this Rubric וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי אֲנִי אֲנִי affords another striking illustration of my oft-repeated statement that later Nakdanim not infrequently mistook the import of the respective Rubrics. Having mistaken the catchwords וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי אֲנִי as representing one passage and hence thought that the Rubric records four instances only, the Nakdan forthwith altered the ה in the heading into ו when the catchwords ought to be divided, since they represent two instances, viz. Judg. 9 33 and Jerem. 18 3. Besides וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי is incorrect and should be וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי.

and behold this, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the three instances in which it is וְהִנֵּנִי without the prefix Var (Ezek. 16 49; Cant. 2 8, 9). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 157b, on Isa. 21 9.

and behold Jehovah, is four times thus combined in the Scriptures. The Tetragrammaton is fifteen times preceded by this interjection. In eleven instances the combination is וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי without the prefix Vav (1 Sam. 20 23; 2 Kings 7 2; Isa. 19 1; 22 17; 24 1; 26 21; 62 11; 66 15; Amos 6 11; Micah. 1 3; 2 Chron. 21 14) and in five only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 243b, on 2 Kings 7 19, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 93b, on 1 Kings 19 11; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 27a, on Gen. 28 13; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 22b, on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochlal

Ve-Ochlal I, § 152; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 28 13, and (VII) the same on 1 Kings 19 11. All the Lists coincide in giving Amos 7 7, as one of the four instances where וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי occurs, though the textus receptus has וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי. For the frequent substitution of וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי for וְהִנֵּנִי see letter מ, § 107-115.

and behold all, is five times thus combined in the Scriptures. Here we have one of the comparatively few exceptions where the Massorah safeguards the majority, since וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי, the combination without the prefix Var, occurs twice only (Ezek. 16 44; Job 1 12).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 211b, on 2 Sam. 19 42, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 217a, on Zech. 1 11; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezek. 8 10; (IV) the same Codex on Zech. 1 11, and (V) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 7 15.

and behold he had given, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the three instances where this combination is וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי without the prefix Var (1 Kings 1 23; 22 23; 2 Chron. 18 22). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 42a, on 1 Sam 12 13.

and behold it spread, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, but which is one of the oldest parts of this Corpus, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 90b, on Levit. 14 39, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 4443, fol. 99b, on the same passage. The heading ought more properly to be וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי, since all the three instances occur in the same book.

and behold three, occurs twice thus combined. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 40 16. As the two instances are restricted to the same book, the heading ought more properly to be וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי.

behold I am against thee, occurs three times. That is, with the suffix second person feminine. The only other instance where this phrase occurs it is וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי with the suffix second person masculine (Ezek. 29 3). Normally when this interjection with the suffix first person singular is used in such combination, it is followed by the preposition אֶל with the suffix second person masculine or feminine. Thus for instance וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי (Jerem. 50 31; 51 25; Ezek. 29 10; 35 3; 38 3) and וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי (Jerem. 21 13; Ezek. 21 8; Nah. 2 14). As it is in these three instances that it is followed by the preposition אֶל, with the suffix second person feminine, apart from the solitary instance where it is with the masculine suffix, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 185a, on Ezek. 28 22. As the three instances occur in the same book, the heading ought more properly to be וְהִנֵּנִי אֲנִי.

behold me, or here am I, occurs twice with Dagesh. That is, with Segol under the Nun. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 43a, on Gen. 27 18, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 89, margin; (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 27 18, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 243.

and behold I, occurs three times. This interjection with the suffix first person singular, occurs altogether about 165 times. It is in 162 instances without the prefix Vav (וְהִנֵּנִי) and in these three only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional occurrence.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 4b, on Gen. 6 13, which

I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 220a, on 1 Kings 5 19; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 79b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 6a, on Gen. 6 18; (V) Vienna Codex No. 85 on 1 Kings 17 12, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 6 18.

behold he, occurs twice in the Scriptures and once with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 222b, on Job 8, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 245b, on 1 Chron. 11 25; (III) Vienna Codex No. 85 on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Numb. 23 17. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without Vav at the beginning and once with it. (Vide infra, letter ך, § 70.)

שכר = § 825.

behold we, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. 292a, on Ezra 9 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 7b, on Josh. 9 25; (III) the same MS., fol. 149b, on Jerem. 3 22, and (IV) the same MS., fol. 878a, on Ezra 9 15. The heading ךי רישׁ of List II is manifestly a clerical error. The Dageshed instances are recorded in the following Rubric.

behold we, is three times with Dagesh in the Pentateuch. The only other instance where it occurs it is ךי with There under the Nun (Job 38 36). Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 80a, on Gen. 44 16, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 183b, on Numb. 14 40; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 29b, on Gen. 44 16; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 102a, on Numb. 14 40; (V) Halle Oolah-Ve-Oolah II, § 89, margin; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 44 16, and (VII) the same on Numb. 14 40. As the three instances are restricted to the Pentateuch, the heading ought more properly to be ךי רישׁ. List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, adds at the end ךי רישׁ ושרי רישׁ, thus calling the There instance the Rophe.

שכר = § 827.

and behold ye, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 42a, on Jerem. 16 12 which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 157a, on the same passage. These two instances are part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav He, which respectively occur twice. (Vide infra, letter ך, § 68.)

behold they are written, occurs five times in the Prophets. In recording the acts of the several Kings the narrator sums up the narratives by a reference to the official archives from which he derived his information and uses three different formulas in this appeal. In Kings, where it occurs thirty-four times, the formula begins in twenty-nine instances with the interrogative ךי or ךי הלא are they not? with the paragogic He¹ and in five only does it begin with ךי behold they. Hence the Massorah here safeguards the exceptional formula.

And throughout Chronicles it is likewise so with the exception of three passages. In Chronicles and Esther the reverse is the case. Here where this appeal to the public records occurs altogether sixteen times, the formula beginning with ךי is the rule and the one with ךי הלא the exception. The former occurs thirteen times without and with the prefix Vav² and the latter three times only. Hence here the Massorah safeguards the exceptional ךי הלא formula.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated eight Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 89b, on 1 Kings 14 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 109a, on 2 Kings 15 15; (III) the same MS., fol. 109b, on 2 Kings 15 31; (IV) the same MS., fol. 264b, on 2 Chron. 12 15; (V) the same MS., fol. 868b, on Esther 10 2; (VI) Harley 5710-11,

Vol. II, fol. 166b, on 2 Chron. 12 15; (VII) Add. 15,250, fol. 424a, on the same passage, and (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 814b, on Esther 10 2. Lists II and III give the first part only of this Rubric, whilst Lists IV-VIII reverse the order of the two parts. See also letter ך, § 128 and § 127, Vol. II, p. 129.

and behold they are written, is twice thus combined in all the Scriptures. This formula, which as we have seen, occurs altogether eighteen times, is in these two instances only with the prefix Vav, which is the reason for its being safeguarded. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 186a, on 1 Chron. 9 1.

be silent, is twice with Kametz and Zakeph. That is, Zakeph-Katon. This imperative, which occurs altogether six times, is three times with Pathach and three with Kametz. As the third Kametz instance is with the accent Soph-Pasuk (ךי Habak. 2 20; Zech. 9 17) and one with Zakeph-Godal (ךי Zeph. 1 7), the Massorah safeguards the exceptional Pathach with the accent Zakeph.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 157a, on Judg. 3 19, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 20b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 164b, also on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 85, on Amos 6 10; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 245. Both Lists in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (Lists IV, V), which are headed ךי רישׁ are doubly incorrect. In the first place there are three instances in which it is with Kametz and in the second place Amos 8 8, which is here given as one of the two instances, is with Pathach and Soph-Pasuk, as will be seen from the above analysis. Moreover, ךי רישׁ in List V is a mistake for ךי רישׁ.

All the following forms of the verb ךי to turn, are unique. This Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I have found in St Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 only, on Hosea 7 8. It strikingly confirms my oft-repeated statement that the Lists of the compilers of the Massorah are frequently incipient. The first Massorites collected as many of the examples as they could find and left the Lists to be gradually completed by their colleagues and successors who not infrequently mistook them for complete and furnished them with headings, fixing the number to agree with the instances recorded in these rudimentary catalogues. It will be seen that apart from the last instance, which occurs twice, viz. Levit 13 16 and Prov. 17 20 and is manifestly the addition of a later Nakdan, since it is contrary to the avowed import of the Rubric, this catalogue registers eight forms only, whereas there are thirty-eight such unique forms of the verb ךי.

¹ The following thirty unique forms of ךי are absent: (1) ךי Job 9 5; (2) ךי Levit. 13 10; (3) ךי Amos 4 11; (4) ךי Ps. 78 9; (5) ךי Amos 6 12; (6) ךי Jerem. 23 86; (7) ךי Prov. 13 7; (8) ךי Gen. 19 29; (9) ךי 1 Chron. 19 8; (10) ךי Gen. 19 21; (11) ךי 2 Sam. 10 8; (12) ךי Lament. 3 8; (13) ךי 1 Sam. 10 9; (14) ךי Judg. 7 18; (15) ךי 2 Chron. 9 12; (16) ךי Zeph. 3 9; (17) ךי Job 12 15; (18) ךי 1 Sam. 25 12; (19) ךי Amos 5 8; (20) ךי Ps. 114 8; (21) ךי Amos 5 7; (22) ךי Job 20 14; (23) ךי Lament. 5 2; (24) ךי 1 Sam. 10 6; (25) ךי Jerem. 2 21; (26) ךי Exod. 7 20; (27) ךי Jonah 3 4; (28) ךי Job 38 14; (29) ךי Ezek. 16 34; (30) ךי Ezek. 16 34.

they were turned, occurs twice. That is, with Segol under the He and Pe Raphe. This Niphal preterite third person plural, occurs altogether five times. As it is with simple Sheva under the He and with Dagesh in the Pe in the other three instances (ךי Ps. 78 57; Job 19 19; 41 20), the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the minority. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Dan. 10 16.

it shall be turned, occurs twice. The only other instance in which this quadrilateral occurs, it is ךי the Kal future third person (Lament. 3 8). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 204b, on Joel 3 4, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15 250, fol. 301a, on the same passage שליד = § 334.

וְהָיָה and it was turned, occurs twice. That is, the Niphal in contradistinction to the eight passages in which this quinqueliteral is the Kal. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 65b, on Exod. 14 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,259, fol. 237b, on Isa. 63 10; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 238b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 246.

שליה = § 335.

וְהָיָה thou shalt be turned, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 234b, on Job 30 21.

וְהָיָה turning oneself, tumbling, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 23a, on Judg. 7 13, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Job 37 12.

וְהָיָה the mountain of God, is seven times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the other seven instances in which it is הַר הַיְהוָה the mountain of Jehovah (Gen. 22 14; Numb. 10 33; Isa. 2 3; 30 29; Micah 4 2; Zech. 8 3; Ps. 24 3).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 234a, on 1 Kings 19 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 88b, on Ezek. 28 16, and (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 43b, on Exod. 3 1.

שליח = § 338.

וְהָיָה in the mountain of Jehovah, is three times thus combined . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. In the only other instance where הָיָה is followed by the Divine name it הָיָה (Exod. 4 27).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 14b, on Isa. 30 29, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 180a, on Ps. 24 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 131b, on Isa. 30 29; (IV) the same MS., fol. 289a, on Ps. 24 3; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 23a, on Gen. 22 14, which alone has the mnemonic sign; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 152, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 22 14. The word אַבְרָם has inadvertently dropped out of the text before מֶלֶךְ in the mnemonic sign.

וְהָיָה הַר בֵּית יְהוָה the mountain of the house of Jehovah, occurs three times. This Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I have found in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 only, on Isa. 2 2, where, however, the catchwords for the third instance are וְכַל הַמִּקְוָה, which is a mistake for וְכַל הַמְּבֹרָה and which I have duly corrected.

וְהָיָה and in the mountain, occurs twice, once at the beginning of a verse and once at the end. As the noun absolute with the prefix Beth occurs altogether forty-two times, and is with the prefixes Vav Beth (וְהָיָה) in these two instances only, the Massorah safeguards this rare occurrence.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 128a, on Deut. 8 7, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 11b, on Josh. 15 48; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 125b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Beth, which respectively occur twice. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 67.)

וְהָיָה and the mountain, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which it is הָיָה without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 264b, on Deut. 5 20, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Deut. 4 11. As the three instances are restricted to the same book, the heading ought more properly to be הַדְּבָרִים :

וְהָיָה as the mountain, occurs twice. This Massorah is designed to militate against the recension of the text which reads it הָיָה with Beth in both these instances. This reading is exhibited in Add. 21,161 on Ps. 125 1; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—87 in Isa. 28 21; and the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488 in Ps. 125 1; the Syriac, Symmachus and Theodotion.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 180a, on Isa. 28 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 317a, on Ps. 125 1; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 259. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words consisting of three letters, which respectively occur twice. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 233.)

וְהָיָה to the mountain, occurs thirteen times. That is, with local He to express motion to the mountain, instead of עלה or הִלַּךְ (Exod. 24 1, 18; Hag. 1 8) or עלה קָדָר (Exod. 19 12, 13; Deut. 5 5; Josh. 18 12). This safeguarding was especially necessary since in Exod. 24 12 and 13 the two phrases are used interchangeably.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 138a, on Josh. 2 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 2a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 19a, on Judg. 1 34; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 86a, on Deut. 1 41; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 126a, on Josh. 2 16; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 256a, on Deut. 1 41; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 81, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 260.

וְהָיָה הַר הַחֹר הַחֹר mount Hor, is five times thus combined. That is, without any prefix. In the other seven instances in which this combination occurs it is in four instances with the prefix Beth (וְהָיָה Numb. 20 23; 33 37, 39; Deut. 32 50) and in three with the prefix Mem (וְהָיָה Numb. 21 4; 33 41; 34 8).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 109a, on Numb. 34 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 113a, on Numb. 20 22; (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 112a, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 266. Lists II and III add at the end that in one instance it is with the prefix Vav (וְהָיָה מִן הַר הַחֹר Micalh 7 12) where, however, the received text is הָיָה הַחֹר. The printed Massorah (List IV) is incorrect. Some ignorant Nakdan added a sixth passage, viz. וְהָיָה הַחֹר Numb. 34 8, apparently not knowing that with the prefix Mem this combination occurs three times, and forthwith altered the ה in the heading into ו.

וְהָיָה in the mountains of, is in three instances in the cities of, according to the Sevir. That is, in these three instances the extra-official reading is וְהָיָה. This Rubric is from the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,451, fol. 288a, on Jerem. 31 5, fol. 331a, on Ezek. 37 22 and fol. 498a, on 2 Chron. 21 11.

This Rubric is of importance to textual criticism inasmuch as it affords additional evidence that the Sevir represents the actual reading of MSS. This is attested by the fact that one of these three Sevirin (2 Chron. 21 11) is not only the textual reading in this Model Codex, but is in the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486—87 and is exhibited in the Septuagint and the Vulgate. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 729 and § 742.)

וְהָיָה and he will kill me, occurs three times in the Scriptures. The only other instance in which this sextiliteral occurs it is with Shurek under the Gimel (וְהָיָה), being the third person plural (1 Kings 12 27).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 233a, on 1 Kings 18 12, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 45a, on 1 Sam. 16 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 92b, on 1 Kings 18 12; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 154b, on 1 Sam. 16 2, and (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 18 12.

וְיַרְגֵּנִי and they will kill me, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. This Massorah is in accordance with the Hillali Codex which exhibits ירְגֵנִי plene in Gen. 20 11. According to the Jerusalem Codex, however, it is here ירְגֵנִי defective. It will thus be seen that the two celebrated Standard Codices which emanate from two different Schools of textual redactors, vary in the orthography of this expression.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 228a, on 1 Kings 12 27, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 192b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 14a, on Gen. 20 11, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav He, which respectively occur twice. (Vide infra, letter ה, § 68.)

וְיַרְגֵּנִי to kill, occurs three times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. In the only other instance where this trilateral occurs with Cholem on the Resh it is with Chateph-Pathach under the He (הַרְגֵנִי), being the imperative (Judg. 8 20).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 92a, on Numb. 11 15, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 22 13; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 222a, on Isa. 22 13; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 223b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 129b, on Deut. 13 10; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 107a, on Numb. 11 15, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Lists V and VI emphatically state that all the three instances are defective (נִּשְׁמָה), whilst List III as emphatically states in the heading that two only are defective and one is plene (נִּשְׁמָה אֶחָד פְּלֵנָה), but it does not indicate which of the three is plene. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide infra, letter ה, § 73.)

וְיַרְגֵּנִי is four times plene in this form. That is, four forms of the verb ירְגֵנִי ending with Cholem are plene. One is יַרְגֵנִי the future first person singular (see below ה, § 350); one יַרְגֵנִי the infinitive with the prefix Vav (Esther 9 16) and two are יַרְגֵנִי the infinitive with the prefix Lamed (Eccl. 3 3; Esther 7 4).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 363a, on Esther 9 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 205b, on Amos 2 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 361b, on Esther 7 4; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Amos 2 3; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 368a, on Eccl. 3 3; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 312b, on Esther 7 4, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 270. As the latter gives precisely the same four instances which are recorded in the other Lists, it is evident that its heading נִּשְׁמָה אֶחָד פְּלֵנָה is due to the carelessness of the Scribe. In the ancient form of this Rubric (List IV) נִּשְׁמָה in the heading is manifestly a scribal error for נִּשְׁמָה, as is attested by the Massorah Parva in this Codex.

וְיַרְגֵנִי to kill thee, occurs three times in the Scriptures. In the only other instance where this infinitive with the suffix second person singular masculine occurs, it is יַרְגֵנִי (1 Sam. 24 10), according to Ben-Asher, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 296a, on Neh. 6 10, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 19a, on Gen. 27 42; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 43b, on the same passage and (IV) the printed Massorah, also on the same passage.

וְיַרְגֵנִי I will kill, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this future first person singular not only occurs twice in the same book but is spelt differently in the two instances, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Amos 9 1.

וְיַרְגֵנִי and I killed him, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 246a, on 2 Kings 10 9, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59b, on 2 Sam. 4 10. In both instances the He is with Sheva according to the majority of the Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 &c. 2 Kings 10 9, where it is יַרְגֵנִי with Segol in accordance with Add. 15,250, is to be corrected.

שמי = § 352.

וְיַרְגֵנִי they will kill me, is three times defective in this form. That is, in these three instances of the plural form is the Vav absent between the Resh and the Nun. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 25b, on Gen. 26 7.

וְיַרְגֵנִי the slain, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this participle passive plural which occurs twice, is not only restricted to the same book, but is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. That this variation obtained in the predominant School and that other textual redactors read it plene in both instances, is attested by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 which has it יַרְגֵנִי plene in Isa. 14 19; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485-86, and the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 123a, on Isa. 10 4, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 125a, on Isa. 14 19. As the two instances are restricted to Isa. the heading ought more properly to be יַרְגֵנִי בְּיִשְׂרָאֵל.

וְיַרְגֵנִי her slain, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. This participle passive plural with the suffix third person singular feminine, is differently spelt in each of the two instances. Hence the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the variation in its orthography. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 388a, on Prov. 7 26, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 129a, on Isa. 26 21.

וְיַרְגֵנִי slaughter, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 86b, on Ezek. 26 15.

וְיַרְגֵנִי occurs twice, once it is written with Aleph and once it is written with He and in two different senses. In 1 Chron. 5 26, where this quadrilateral is written with Aleph, it is the proper name Hara of a region of Assyria with the prefix Vav, whilst in Ps. 7 15 it is the preterite of יַרְגֵנִי to conceive with the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 175a, on Ps. 7 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 240b, on 1 Chron. 5 26; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 316a, on the same passage, and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the List of eleven words which respectively occur twice, once ending with Aleph and once with He. (Vide supra, letter א, § 23.)

וְיַרְגֵנִי and she conceived and she bare and she called, occurs three times. Normally when a mother is described as having conceived and given birth to a child it is she who names the child and not the father. (Comp. וְיַרְגֵנִי Gen. 29 32; 30 18, 20, 24; 38 4, 5; 1 Sam. 1 20 &c.) As it is in these three instances only where וְיַרְגֵנִי follows וְיַרְגֵנִי and moreover as the two phrases are promiscuously used in Gen. 38 3 and 4, the Massorah safeguards this abnormal combination. That this exceptional phrase, however, simply exhibits the reading of the predominant School of Massorites and that other Schools of textual redactors had here the normal phrase, is attested by the extra-official reading or Sevir, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 94b, on Gen. 38 3, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 25b, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 58b, on Exod. 2 22; (IV) Halle Oehlsh Ve-Ochlah II, § 35; (V) the same, Supplement fol. 130b, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ק, § 135. (Uide infra, letter י, § 323; letter ק, § 263.)

וַיִּתְקַרַּע עוֹד and she conceived again, occurs six times. That is, in contradistinction to the eleven instances in which this future third person singular feminine with Vav conversive is followed immediately by וַיִּתְקַרַּע, viz. וַיִּתְקַרַּע וַיִּתְקַרַּע (Gen. 4 1, 17; 21 2; 30 17; 23; 33 3; 1 Sam. 2 21; Isa. 8 3; Hosea 1 3, 8; 1 Chron. 7 23). As it is in these instances only that the adverb עוֹד intervenes between these two verses, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 25a, on Gen. 30 7, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 29 33. It is remarkable that the List which I have printed not only emphatically states in the heading that there are six such instances, but enumerates six, leaving out וַיִּתְקַרַּע (Gen. 29 35) where the received text has וַיִּתְקַרַּע עוֹד. As this List is in a carefully-written Model Codex, it is difficult to say whether the absence of וַיִּתְקַרַּע is due to its absence in the text of the Codices upon which this Massorah is based, or to the carelessness of the Nakdan. List II has all the seven instances in accordance with the textus receptus.

סִימַן וַיִּתְקַרַּע עוֹד. A sign for the accents of this phrase. As וַיִּתְקַרַּע וַיִּתְקַרַּע, which occurs seven times in the Pentateuch, has no fewer than six different accents, the Massorah indicates them here so as to safeguard them against being made uniform by the Nakdanim. In the case of Simeon and Levi (Gen. 29 33, 34) the phrase is with Munach Zarka. In connection with Judah (29 35) it is with Kadma Ve-Azla. As these are above the two words (לעיל) the Massorah gives the mnemonic sign Judah shall go up (Judg. 1 2) i. e. the accents must be above. In connection with Naphtali (Gen. 30 7) the phrase has Munach Zakeph-Katon; with Zebulun (Gen. 30 19) Mehupach Pashta; whilst in connection with Onan (Gen. 38 4) it is with Marsha Tipcha.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 25a, on Gen. 30 7. It will be seen that וַיִּתְקַרַּע (Gen. 29 35), which is omitted in List I of § 358, is here included, though the two Massorahs are from the same MS.

הָרָן Haran, occurs three times in this form. That is, this name without and with the prefix Vav, occurs three times. To obtain the three instances, the whole of Genesis, where it occurs six times and where it is both the name of the brother of Abraham (Gen. 11 26, 27, 27, 28, 29) and of a place (Gen. 11 31), is artificially reckoned as yielding one instance. In the second instance it is part of the compound name Beth-Haran (Numb. 32 36), whilst in the third instance it is the name of one of the sons of Shimei (1 Chron. 23 9). The addition at the end indicates that הָרָן in the compound בֵּית הָרָן in Numb. 32 36, is הָרָם with Mem in the compound בֵּית הָרָם in Josh. 13 27.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 34b, on Gen. 11 26, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 33b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 274. Lists I and II are identical, whilst List III not only exhibits a different recension and a totally different arrangement, but is in conflict with the other Lists. It states that Haran occurs twice as the proper name of a place, viz. Numb. 32 36; Josh. 13 27 and is always so when it is the proper name of a person, with the exception of two instances in 1 Chron. 2 46 where it is הָרָן with Cheth instead of He, twice in the same verse.¹

בְּהַרְרֵי in the mountains of, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 188b, on Ps. 50 10.

מִהַרְרֵי from, or than the mountains of, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 114b, Numb. 23 7, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 361a, on Ps. 76 5; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 108b, on Numb. 23 7; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 229a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Ps. 76 5.

וַיִּלְחֲדוּם and to destroy, is three times plene in this form. That is, three forms of this verb which normally end in ים, are with Vav between the Resh and Samech (רִים). This, however, is in accordance with the predominant School of textual redactors. That other Schools exhibited here the normal defective orthography, is attested by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, which has וַיִּלְחֲדוּם in Jerem. 1 10 and the Model Codex Add. 21,160, first hand, which has וַיִּלְחֲדוּם in Job 12 14.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 31b, on Jerem. 1 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 147b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 325b, on Job 12 14; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 350a; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 322b, and (VI) the printed Massorah, also on same passage.

ו. — This part of the Rubric, which registers the number of times Vav occurs in the Bible, is taken from the alphabetical Poem given above, letter ו, § 224. The second part, which records the number of times Vav occurs in the Pentateuch, is from a MS. in my possession. For a description of this remarkable MS. see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible. Part I, chap. VII, p. 110 &c.

יג = § 2.

יג. — Twenty-three Vavs in the Pentateuch have respectively one Tag. This Rubric I have compiled from the Massorah Parva of Harley 5710—11 on the several passages.

ל = § 3.

ל. — Thirty-eight Vavs in the Pentateuch are thicker at the top and curved round to the front at the bottom. This Rubric is from the Machsor Vitry, Add. 27,027, Vol. II, p. 209—215, which I have printed in letter ל, § 25, Vol. II, p. 680 &c.

מ = § 3^a.

מ. — Two Vavs in the Scriptures are elongated, the Vav in וָבֵן the belly (Levit. 11 42) and the Vav in וָבֵן Vajezatha (Esther 9 9). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2375, fol. 249b, on Esther 9 9. These two words form part of the alphabetical List of majuscular letters in the Bible. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 227.)

נ = § 4.

נ. — Twelve words which are respectively without Vav at the beginning in the text are officially read with it. That is, though the textual reading or Kethiv is without the Vav, the official reading or Keri is with it.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 240a, on 2 Kings 4 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 256a, on Prov. 27 24; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 55 13; (IV) the Massorah Finalis of Add. 15,251, fol. 437a; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 103; (VI) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 117; (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter נ, § 16, and (VIII) the same letter נ, § 60. On referring to the notes on the respective passages in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that the Keri or the marginal reading, is the textual reading in most of these instances both in MSS. and early editions.

ס. — Eleven words which are respectively written with Vav at the beginning in the text are officially read without it. This Rubric records the instances in which the converse is the case. The textual reading is with Vav at the beginning of the respective words which the official reading or Keri cancels. It will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible that the official marginal reading is the textual reading in many cases both in MSS. and early editions.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 222b, on 1 Kings 7 36, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 246a, on

2 Kings 11 1; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 82a, on 1 Kings 7 36; (IV) Massorah Finalis of Add. 15,251, fol. 437a; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 104; (VI) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 118; (VII) the printed Massorah on Dan. 9 5, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter נ, § 17. It is remarkable that Lists V, VII and VIII give the catchwords for the first instance וְיָמֵי יִצְחָק בְּיָמֵי אֲבֹתָיו 2 Sam. 16 10, whilst it is in the received text וְיָמֵי יִצְחָק בְּיָמֵי אֲבֹתָיו

ע = § 6.

ע. — Ten words which are respectively written with Vav at the beginning in the text and are officially read with Yod. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated twelve Lists, eight in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 204a, on 2 Sam. 12 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 250b, on Prov. 17 27; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 5 29; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 121a, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 197a, on Ezek. 46 15; (VI) the same MS., fol. 272a, on 2 Chron. 24 27; (VII) the same MS., fol. 886b, on Prov. 2 7; (VIII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 119; (IX) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 136; (X) the printed Massorah on Prov. 11 3; (XI) the same in the square enclosing the first word of Hosea, and (XII) the same in the square enclosing the first word of Chronicles.

By fixing the number at ten, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the Eastern recension which reads וָבֵן with Vav in the text in 2 Sam. 6 23 and for which the official marginal reading or the Keri is וָבֵן with Yod, as well as against the textual reading וָבֵן with Vav in Ezek. 43 26 of the same recension and the Keri וָבֵן with Yod, which would make this Rubric to consist of twelve instances, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. In the Rubric which I have printed nine instances only are enumerated, though the heading states that there are ten. As all the other Lists which also head this Rubric וְיָמֵי יִצְחָק בְּיָמֵי אֲבֹתָיו duly record ten instances, giving וָבֵן Ezek. 46 15 as one of the ten, it is evident that its omission here is due to a clerical error. List II, which is from the same Codex, not only records this passage, but gives the Keri alone of all the instances and thus differs from all the other Lists.

פ. — In three instances is the Vav with Pathach. This Rubric, which is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 215a, on Ps. 119 163, I cannot understand. It appears to me that the design of this Massorah is to record the three instances in the 119th Psalm, in which words beginning with Vav Aleph, are with Pathach under the Vav (א), in contradistinction to those which have Kametz, recorded in the following Rubric. If this be the import of this enigmatical Rubric, the word וְיָמֵי after וָבֵן must be omitted and the reference is to Ps. 119 87, which is the only passage in the Great Alphabet where this personal pronoun with the prefix Vav occurs. I must, however, leave it to more expert students of the Massorah to explain the phraseology of the heading.

צ = § 8.

צ. — Throughout the Great Alphabet the Vav in words beginning with Vav Aleph, is with Sheva or Pathach except in eight instances where it is with Kametz. The first person future with the prefix Vav (א) occurs altogether twenty-nine times in Ps. 119. In nineteen instances it is with Sheva (א), being the conjunctive (Ps. 119 15, 17, 18, 27, 33, 34, 34, 42, 44, 45, 47, 48, 48, 88, 115, 117, 125, 134, 146), in two it is with Pathach (א), being Vav conversive (Ps. 119 46, 163) whilst in eight instances only is it with Kametz (ק) also being conversive. Hence the Massorah records the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 213a, on Ps. 119 52, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 316a, on Ps. 119 158, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 119 52.

As the mnemonic sign at the end of the Rubric קרש קרש ה refers to the respective letters in the Great Alphabet where the Vav with Kametz occurs, and as these eight instances are in letters where two occur (Ps. 119 52, 55); ה (ver. 59); ז (ver. 106); ט (ver. 131); ק (ver. 147); ר (ver. 158) and ש (ver. 167), it will at once be seen that ה, the first word of the sign, is a clerical error for ז and that קרש, the third word, is a mistake for קרש. Accordingly the sign in the printed Massorah (List III) וי תשיש ישי should be וי תשיש ישי.

י. — Words beginning with Vav having Sheva and followed by a consonant with Shurek which are unique. That is, three Hophels and seven Pual forms. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 51a, on Jerem. 29 22. וי תשיש the eighth instance, is manifestly a clerical error for וי תשיש Isa. 17 13. The List is incipient and hence has no heading.

י = § 10.

יא. — Sixteen words beginning with Vav which respectively occur twice, once with Sheva or its substitute and once with Pathach or Kametz. For the expressions מליל and מליל denoting these graphic signs see letter כ, § 11.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 222b, on Job 2 9, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 227a, on 1 Kings 5 11; (III) the same MS., fol. 395a, on Zech. 14 4; (IV) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 47; (V) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 46; (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 3, and (VII) the same letter ו, § 64. List V heads this Rubric וי תשיש and yet it not only enumerates the same sixteen pairs, but adds one pair as outside this recension (מליל מליל, viz. וי תשיש (Isa. 44 16) and וי תשיש (2 Chron. 24 15), whilst List VII has וי תשיש, but gives exactly the same sixteen pairs as in the List which I have printed and in precisely the same order. It will be seen that eleven of these pairs begin with Vav Yod (י) and in five different letters follow the Vav, viz. Nos. 1, 10, 11, 12 and 13. It may, therefore, be that originally this Rubric recorded those instances only which commenced with Vav Yod, that later Nakdanim added the five in which other letters follow the Vav, and that the וי תשיש and וי תשיש represent the original headings.

יד. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav which respectively occur once only. The following Lists, more or less fragmentary, exhibited in § 11-24, I have collated from different MSS. As they respectively begin with Vav I have arranged them in alphabetical order in accordance with the letter which immediately follows the Vav. They are of the utmost importance to the study of the Massorah, inasmuch as they show that the original Massorites simply grouped together as many of the unique words which exhibit the same peculiarities, without furnishing them with headings, since they expected their colleagues to complete these incipient Lists. Later Nakdanim, however, not infrequently mistook these fragments for complete Registers and supplied them with headings, fixing the number of the respective instances to answer to the number of words recorded in the incipient Lists.

יח. — Words beginning with Vav Aleph which respectively occur once only. The first fragment (List 11a) which records nine words beginning with Vav Aleph, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 179a, on Ezek. 20 10. The sixth instance וי תשיש I cannot identify as there is no such quinqueliteral in the Bible.

List 11b, which records sixteen such unique words, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 31b, on Gen. 46 16. וי תשיש which is here the twelfth instance, does not occur. It will be seen that the two fragments do not record the same words. As these two incipient Lists are from two Standard Codices which emanate from two different Schools of Massorites and from countries far apart, it shows how these Lists were originally compiled.

List 11c, which records nine such words, is also from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 77a, on Levit. 20 23. It will be seen that all the words here have Vav with Kametz and that they, therefore, properly belong to the alphabetical List which registers this characteristic. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 26.)

יט = § 11d-e.

יא. — Words beginning with Vav Aleph which respectively occur twice, once with Sheva or its substitute under the Vav and once with Kametz or Pathach. For the expressions Milra and Milal denoting these graphic signs see letter כ, § 11.

List 11d, which records seven such pairs, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 41a, on Gen. 24 48, and List 11e which gives six, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 125b, on Zech. 11 13. It will be seen that these fragments exhibit the first attempt to collect the pairs which exhibit this peculiarity. They are, therefore as yet without headings.

יג. — Twenty words beginning with Vav Aleph which respectively occur twice are once with Sheva or its substitute under the Vav and once with Kametz. This is a fully developed List of the phenomena recorded in the two preceding fragments. It is already furnished with a heading describing the import of this Massorah and fixing the number of the pairs which belong to this category.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 57a, on Exod. 33 17, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 371a, on Dan. 8 27; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 61a, on Exod. 33 18; (IV) the same MS., fol. 277a, on Jerem. 15 16; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 48; (VI) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 47, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 65.

With the exception of List VI, all the Lists coincide in fixing the number of these pairs in their respective headings at twenty, and in recording them in exactly the same order. Though List VI also states in the heading that there are twenty such pairs, it not only enumerates them in a different order, but adds at the end that outside this recension of this Massorah (מליל מליל) there is another pair, viz. וי תשיש (Numb. 9 8) and וי תשיש (Dan. 8 13). On comparing these Lists with the first fragment (§ 11d), it will be seen that it gives another pair, viz. וי תשיש (Deut. 10 2) and וי תשיש (Jerem. 32 10) which is not given in any of the six Lists. Since the publication of my Massorah I have found two other fragments of this Rubric in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445. The first of these incipient Lists is (fol. 76a) on Exod. 33 17. It records six pairs which are Nos. 2, 9, 11, 12, 14, 15 in the full Rubric. The second fragment is (fol. 127b) on Numb. 9 8. It records eight pairs, six of which are Nos. 19, 18, 18, 7, 20 and 4, in the full Lists, one is the same given in List VI as apart from the recension of this Massorah, viz. וי תשיש (Numb. 9 8) and וי תשיש (Dan. 8 13) and one is the same given in fragment § 11d, viz. וי תשיש (Deut. 10 2) and וי תשיש (Jerem. 32 10). We have thus twenty-two such pairs according to the different recensions of the Massorah itself. But even these by no means exhaust the number. I have found three other pairs, viz. וי תשיש (1 Kings 6 18) and וי תשיש (1 Kings 7 11); וי תשיש (Jerem. 3 19) and וי תשיש (Josh. 24 3); וי תשיש (Ezek. 5 14) and וי תשיש (Ezek. 16 27). It is, therefore, evident that none of the Lists are complete and that the heading which fixes the number at twenty proceeds from later Nakdanim who simply fixed this number in accordance with the instances enumerated in the Lists.

All the instances of words beginning with Vav Aleph which do not occur again, contained in § 11a-f amount to about 70, whereas there are altogether about 957 unique forms of words commencing with ו. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 28.)

יז = § 12a-c.

יח. — Words beginning with Vav Beth which respectively occur once only. These three fragmentary Lists, which do not occur in the printed Massorah, are respectively: (I) from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 194a, on Ezek. 41 6; (II) from the same MS., fol. 185b, on Ezek. 29 7, and (III) from the same MS., fol. 194a, on Ezek. 40. Though these incipient Rubrics together record twenty-five such unique expressions, they in fact amount to twenty only, since List I has four which are also given in List II, viz. Nos. 3, 4, 5 and 10, whilst No. 3 of List III is No. 2 in List II. It is important to notice here that not only are these fragments without any heading, but that they are not as yet arranged either according to the alphabet or according to the order of the books.

י" — Words from an alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Beth. This List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 476a, on 1 Chron. 16 22. It will be seen that the sixteen unique expressions beginning with Vav Beth, recorded in this fragment are already arranged alphabetically, the alphabet being exhibited after the Vav Beth, and that six letters are represented, viz. ו, ב, ע, ז, ח and ק. There can, therefore, be no doubt that other fragments may yet be found in MSS., which will not only complete the alphabet, but which will show that different alphabets of words beginning with Vav Beth, were formed by the different Schools of Massorites, some having fewer and some more examples in each link. This is corroborated by the fact that since the publication of the Massorah I have found another fragment in Orient. 4445, fol. 105b, on Levit. 20 5. This ancient Codex catalogues eleven words of letter Mem alone and thus exhibits a link of a much more extensive alphabet. It will be seen that יבבבבבב, which is No. 10 in the List I have printed and which is expressly described as unique (י) occurs twice in the received text.

They are as follows: (1) יבבבבבב Levit. 20 5; (2) יבבבבבב Neh. 9 29; (3) יבבבבבב Ps. 46 3; (4) יבבבבבב Jerem. 32 21; (5) יבבבבבב Isa. 30 32; (6) יבבבבבב 2 Chron. 35 4; (7) יבבבבבב 2 Chron. 17 4; (8) יבבבבבב Isa. 32 18; (9) יבבבבבב Job. 24 14; (10) יבבבבבב Zech. 10 9; (11) יבבבבבב Ezek. 40 22.

י" — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Beth which are unique. This List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 504b, on 2 Chron. 31 21. With the exception of the solitary letter Gimel, which for some reason is not represented, we have here the whole alphabet. On comparing it with the contents of the fragments recorded in List 12d and in the note to it, it will be seen conclusively that sundry alphabets of varying scales were issued by different Massoretic Schools. In the six corresponding letters in § 12d and in 12e, the former fragment gives sixteen examples and the latter ten only. Of these eight only are the same, so that the fragment (§ 12d) contains half as many again as the corresponding letters in the full alphabet and must, therefore, be part of an alphabet formed on a much larger scale. This is still more visible when the examples of the single letter Mem from the ancient Codex given in the note are compared with those recorded in the corresponding letter of the complete alphabet. The former gives eleven examples whilst the latter gives three only, which are entirely different. It is, therefore, evident that the letter Mem in the note is a link of a much larger alphabet. As the full alphabet also gives יבבבבבב as unique, it is more than probable that these Lists are based upon a recension of the text in which it occurred once only.

י" — Words which respectively occur twice, once beginning with Vav Beth and once with Vav Caph. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the words beginning Vav Beth against being confused with the same expressions which begin with Vav Caph, since the Beth and Caph are almost identical in many MSS. and as this similarity has been a fruitful source of various readings. (Vide supra, letter ב, § 14.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 295b, on 2 Kings 17 34.

As all the instances beginning with ב recorded in § 12a—f amount to about 63 and as there are altogether about 745 such unique forms (vide infra, letter ב, § 28), it is evident that a small fraction only of this category has been selected by the Massorites for these incipient Lists.

There are about 131 words which occur once only beginning with ב and about 102 beginning with כ, but of these I have not as yet found any List or fragment in the MSS.

י" — Words beginning with Vav He which respectively occur once only. The five fragments simply exhibit different attempts to record this peculiarity. The first marked § 13a, which catalogues six instances, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181a, on Ezek. 22 15. The second marked § 13b, which records four instances, is from the same MS., fol. 194b, on Ezek. 41 6. The third marked § 13c, which records three instances, is also from the same MS., fol. 120a, on Isa. 3 6. The fourth marked § 13d, which records twenty instances, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 39b, on Exod. 8 25; whilst the fifth marked § 13e, which records six instances, is the only one from the printed Massorah, on Levit. 11 30. Not only have the fragments from the MSS. no headings, but they are not arranged either alphabetically or according to the sequence of the books. The fragment from the printed Massorah, however, confines the instances to one chapter in Leviticus. It will be seen that יבבבבבב the fifth instance, which is here described as unique, occurs twice.

י" — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav He which respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 43 15. This is simply a selection from over 1000 words beginning with Vav He arranged alphabetically. The alphabet is exhibited after the ה or in the third letter of the respective words. Why the letter Vav is represented by two examples and the letter Zayin is not represented at all, or why the Massorites selected these particular words for an alphabetical distinction I cannot divine.

י" — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav He which respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 444a, on Dan. 8 3. It manifestly emanates from another School of Massorites who, owing to certain traditions preserved by them, selected another set of unique words beginning with Vav He for alphabetical distinction. For reasons known only to the Massorites, some of the letters are represented by two, three and even four examples, whilst four letters, viz. ו, י, י' and ל are entirely unrepresented.

י" — Five words beginning with Vav He respectively occur twice, once in the singular and once in the plural. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ו, § 67.

י" = § 13i.

י" — Four words respectively occur twice, once beginning with Vav He and once with Vav Lamed. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ו, § 68.

As there are no fewer than 1089 words beginning with Vav He which occur once only (vide infra, letter ו, § 28), it is evident that those selected by the Massorites and exhibited in the incipient Lists and in the alphabets of § 13a—i, constitute a very small fraction of these unique forms.

There is only one word beginning with Vav Vav, which is unique, but of words beginning with Vav Zayin, which respectively occur once only, there are about 98. Of these, however, I have not found any kind of List in the MSS.

י" — Words beginning with Vav Cheth which respectively occur once only. The List marked 14a, which records five such unique words and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 124a, on Isa. 13 9 and the List marked 14b, which records six instances and which also does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the same MS., fol. 186b, on Ezek. 31 3.

Since the publication of the Massorah I found another List in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 47 9. This List, which registers eight instances and which I have given in the Supplement (Vol. III, p. 5, letter ו, § 14c), is remarkable because it is not only furnished with a heading, but fixes the number of these unique expressions at eight. When it is stated that there are no fewer than 274 words beginning with ח, which respectively occur once only (vide infra, letter ו, § 28), this heading can only be accounted for by its being the addition of a later Nakdan, who fixed the number to agree with the number of instances recorded in this fragment.

There are in all 48 unique words beginning with ח, but of these I have not found any List in the MSS.

ז. — The following words ending in Vav and beginning with Vav Yod respectively occur twice, once with Pathach, and once with Sheva. This is the fully developed Massorah of which the preceding five incipient Lists are the first attempt to collect the pairs exhibiting this characteristic.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 29b, on Gen. 41 35, which I have printed; (II) Massorah Finalis of Add. 15,251, fol. 422b; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 133b, on Exod. 39 21; (IV) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 46; (V) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 45, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 69.

With the exception of List I, all the Lists emphatically state in their respective headings that there are twenty-two such pairs (כ"ב זיון) and though the heading of List I does not specify the number, the Rubric itself coincides with the other Lists in recording identically the same twenty-two pairs. List V, however, adds at the end that there is another pair outside this recension of the Massorah (ולכח מסתמא), viz. וַיִּקְרָא (Ps. 22 27) and וַיִּקְרָא (Hosea 13 6) which Jacob b. Chayim incorporated in his Massorah (List VI) without altering the heading and thus produced a conflict between the number specified in the heading and the instances recorded in the Rubric itself. The heading of List II shows conclusively that ז shows conclusively that ז and י are here synonymous with Pathach and Tzere. All the Lists give וַיִּקְרָא with its companion, which is not a future plural and וַיִּקְרָא with its companion, which is with the suffix third person singular and which are contrary to the scope of this Massorah; whilst they omit the pair וַיִּקְרָא (Exod. 39 30) and וַיִּקְרָא (Josh. 18 4) which belong to this Rubric.

ז. — Word: beginning with Vav Caph which respectively occur once only. This fragmentary attempt to collect the unique instances of words beginning with Vav Caph, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 184a, on Ezek. 26 19. וַיִּקְרָא Joel 1 15 should be וַיִּקְרָא Ezek. 26 19.

ז. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Caph which are unique. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 281b, on Dan. 6 11. Why the Massorites should have selected these twenty-two expressions for alphabetical distinction from the 310 words beginning with Vav Caph which respectively occur once only, I cannot divine.

טז = § 17a-f.

ז. — Words beginning with Vav Lamed which respectively occur once only. Fragment I marked § 17a, which records nine instances, does not occur in the printed Massorah. It is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 117b, on 2 Kings 24 14. Fragment II marked § 17b, which records six instances, is from the printed Massorah on Ezek. 23 33. Fragment III marked § 17c, which catalogues fifty, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 83a, on Levit. 20 3. Fragment IV marked § 17d, which gives ten, is from the same MS., fol. 474a, on 1 Chron. 12 33. Fragment V marked § 17e, which gives eleven, is also from the same MS., fol. 496b, on 2 Chron. 19 2. Fragment VI marked 17f, which records twenty-three instances, is also from the same MS., fol. 480b, on 1 Chron. 23 29. Besides these I have found seven incipient Lists of different lengths in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445 recording the unique expressions which begin with Vav Lamed: (I) on Gen. 43 32, fol. 34a; (II) on Gen. 45 8, fol. 36a; (III) on Gen. 47 34, fol. 38b; (IV) on Exod. 13 16, fol. 54b; (V) on Levit. 7 37, fol. 91a; (VI) on Levit. 9 1, fol. 92b, and (VII) on Numb. 29 39, fol. 150b. These conclusively show that the later lengthy Massoretic Lists were at first collected in separate fragments which were afterwards linked together.

ז. — The following proper names of men beginning with Vav Lamed respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 16a, on Gen. 25 18. By simply stating in the heading "the following proper names &c." without specifying the number, the compiler of this Rubric indicates that the catalogue is incomplete and that he left it to his colleagues to gradually complete the incipient List. They, however, failed to do it, as is attested by the fact that there are no fewer than thirty-two proper names beginning with Vav Lamed which are omitted. As the original Massorite enumerated the instances according to the order of the Biblical books I shall give the omissions in the same order: (1) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Gen. 4 26; (2) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Levit. 10 6; (3) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Deut. 10 6; (4) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Numb. 3 27; (5) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Deut. 3 15; (6) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Deut. 33 20; (7) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Deut. 33 22; (8) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Deut. 33 24; (9) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Josh. 17 3; (10) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Josh. 17 17; (11) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 1 Sam. 13 22; (12) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 2 Sam. 6 23; (13) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 2 Sam. 9 10; (14) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 1 Kings 2 33; (15) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Zech. 6 14; (16) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Zech. 6 14; (17) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Zech. 6 14; (18) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Ruth 2 1; (19) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Esther 8 7; (20) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Dan. 1 7; (21) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Dan. 1 7; (22) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Ezra 8 16; (23) וְיֵשׁוּבָה Neh. 7 6; (24) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 1 Chron. 2 34; (25) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 1 Chron. 4 21; (26) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 1 Chron. 7 19; (27) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 1 Chron. 26 4; (28) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 1 Chron. 26 6; (29) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 2 Chron. 17 7; (30) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 2 Chron. 17 7; (31) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 2 Chron. 17 7; (32) וְיֵשׁוּבָה 2 Chron. 23 1.

ז. — One hundred and eighteen words beginning with Vav Lamed respectively occur once only. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter l, § 12. We have here a most conclusive proof of the oft-repeated statement that many of the Massoretic Lists are simply incipient and that later Nakdanim, who mistook them for complete, wrongly specified the number of the instances and frequently furnished the single words of the original Rubrics with misleading catchwords: (1) The heading positively states that there are 118 such unique expressions. On referring to § 28 it will be seen that there are no fewer than 592 words beginning with Vav Lamed which respectively occur once only. (2) This List itself enumerates 134 such instances and is thus in conflict with the number specified in the heading. It is, therefore, evident that a later Nakdan added sixteen instances to the original List without altering the number given in the heading. (3) וְיֵשׁוּבָה, which is here given as unique (Esther 8 13), the Massorah itself states occurs twice. (Vide supra, letter h, § 153.) And (4) the later Nakdan furnished some of the instances with wrong catchwords, viz. For וְיֵשׁוּבָה the catchword לַעֲבֹד ought to be לַעֲבֹד 2 Sam. 3 10. For וְיֵשׁוּבָה the catchword וְיֵשׁוּבָה ought to be וְיֵשׁוּבָה 2 Sam. 11 11. For וְיֵשׁוּבָה the catchword וְיֵשׁוּבָה ought to be וְיֵשׁוּבָה Jerem. 48 31, and for וְיֵשׁוּבָה the catchword וְיֵשׁוּבָה ought to be וְיֵשׁוּבָה Esther 9 29.

ז. — Words beginning with Vav Mem which respectively occur once only. The three fragments marked 18a-c, which do not occur in the printed Massorah, exhibit the first attempt to collect the 705 unique expressions which begin with Vav Mem. Fragment I, which records nine instances, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 90a, on Levit. 14 17; (II) which records eleven instances, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 149a, on Jerem. 3 3, and (III) which gives ten, is from the same MS., fol. 149b, on Jerem. 4 7. The second and last expressions in Fragment I, I cannot identify.

ז. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Mem which respectively occur once only. From the earliest periods the Massorites of the different Schools not only tried to collect the vast number of unique words beginning with Vav Mem, but to arrange the incipient Lists alphabetically. As the linking together of the examples which each letter yields into one alphabetical chain, would have exceeded the amount of space allotted to the Massorah for each page, the instances which constituted the several letters had to be given separately and hence were dispersed throughout the Codices. Besides some Massoretic Schools only succeeded in collecting and registering more or less unique expressions for one, two or three letters of the Alphabet. Hence it is that in some of the oldest MSS. we find Lists which record examples of a few separate letters only, as we shall see from the following analysis.

Of the Rubric in which the whole alphabet is represented I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 44b, on Exod. 3 22; (III) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 18, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter z. The alphabetical Lists in Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 19, begin with z. The List which I have printed, viz. § 18d—l, I have linked together from the Model Codex.

י"א. — Words beginning with Vav Mem Aleph which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 37b, on Exod. 5 23, which I have printed; (II) the corresponding letter in Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 18, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter z, § 6. List II gives eighteen examples only, seventeen of which are identical with those in List I and one is new, viz. זקק (Habak. 1 16), whilst List III records twenty-seven instances of which twenty-six are identical. It omits זכר (Dan. 4 14) and gives זכר the Habakkuk instance instead, thus making up the twenty-seven. No. 21 is a mistake for זקק, Ezek. 4 10, as is evident from the catchwords. On referring to § 28 it will be seen that there are altogether 35 unique words beginning with z. The longest List, therefore, omits eight.

י"ב. — Words beginning with Vav Mem Beth, Vav Mem Gimel, Vav Mem Daleth and Vav Mem He which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 142a, on 1 Chron. 27 17, which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 18, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter z, § 7—9. The four letters of the alphabet which it groups together are represented by forty-one examples as follows: z by 13, g by 11, h by 11 and l by 6. In the corresponding links in Lists II and III it will be seen that List II gives 5 examples for z, 2 for g, 3 for h and 4 for l of which זכר (Zeph. 1 14) is new and that List III gives 13 for z making up this number by giving זכר (Hosea 9 11) which is wrong, since it occurs twice (comp. Job 31 18) and omitting זכר (2 Sam. 8 8). For g it gives 13 adding גזר (Exod. 3 22). It omits g altogether and gives for h 9 examples i. e. three more than in List I, viz. חזק (Zeph. 1 14) which is also given in the former List, חזק (Isa. 31 4) and חזק (Ezek. 43 14). It will be seen that these four letters are represented in the Rubric before us by 41 examples whereas there are altogether 90 such instances, viz. z 24; g 21; h 26 and l 19. (Vide infra, § 28.)

י"ג = § 18f.

י"ג. — Words beginning with Vav Mem Vav, Vav Mem Zayin, Vav Mem Cheth, Vav Mem Teth and Vav Mem Yod which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 261b, on Cant. 4 7, which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 18, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter z, § 10 and 11. This Rubric is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 261b, on Cant. 4 7. The five letters which it groups together are represented by 46 examples, as follows: v by 12; z by 5; h by 19; t by 4 and y by 6. In List II v is represented by 3 examples only, of which one (זכר Ps. 18 8) is new; z by 4 of which one (זכר 2 Sam. 4 8) is new; h by 9, of which two (חזק Gen. 4 4, and חזק Prov. 3 14) are new; t by 5, of which one (זכר Ezra 6 14) is new and y by 4, of which three (זכר Levit. 22 27; זכר 1 Kings 7 10; זכר 2 Kings 10 11) are new. In List III z and y are not represented at all. v is identical with those in List I; h is represented by 22 of which three (זכר Gen. 4 4; זכר Prov. 3 14; זכר Ezek. 43 14) are new, two of these occur also in List I. On referring to § 28 it will be seen that these five letters yield no fewer than 180 unique examples, viz. v 26; z 16; h 52; t 15 and y 21.

י"ד. — Words beginning with Vav Mem Caph, Vav Mem Lamed and Vav Mem Mem which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 183a, on Pa. 34 20, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 19, which however begins with the instances for l; (III) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 18, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter z, § 12 and § 13.

It will be seen that List I gives forty-eight instances for these three letters, viz. c 12; l 20 and m 16. List II, in which letter z is absent, records thirty-one for Lamed and Mem, viz. l 16, of which fourteen are identical with those in List I and two (למל Eccl. 9 15; למל Ps. 103 19) are new and for m 15, omitting מזקק (Prov. 1 31). List III records forty-two examples for the three letters, viz. c 6; l 18 and m 18, six of which (מזקק 2 Sam. 12 3; מזקק Prov. 14 31; מזקק Ps. 103 19; מזקק Eccl. 9 15; מזקק Ezek. 8 2, and מזקק 1 Chron. 6 51) are new, two of these are also given in List II.

List IV is of peculiar interest, inasmuch as it shows whence Jacob b. Chayim derived the materials for his edition of the Massorah. At the end of the List which records the instances of words beginning with z, he states that all the Lists of words in this alphabet, beginning with z up to z: he collected himself from different Massoretic works, that there exists a complete large Alphabet, which he could not find, that the one which he found simply extended from l to z, that the other parts he collected in separate Lists and that he, therefore, did not know whether they were defective or not. Now the part of this alphabetical List from z: to z: is in the Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 19, and it is this which Jacob b. Chayim printed with very slight alterations. His List for z gives the same sixteen instances, in the same order and with the same catchwords. The same fourteen are identical with those in List I and the same two instances are new. For g his List also gives fifteen instances only, fourteen of which are not only identical with those in the Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, but are practically in the same order and with the same catchwords. The only difference in the two Lists is that the Ochliah Ve-Ochliah List omits גזר (Prov. 1 31) and Jacob b. Chayim's List omits the next word to it, viz. גזר Ps. 107 28. For h I have also found the following incipient Lists: (I) in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 39b, on Gen. 48 6; (II) the same Codex, fol. 34a, on Exod. 12 44; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 46a, on the same passage, and (IV) the same MS., fol. 353b, on Isa. 30 4. And on h (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 476b, on 1 Chron. 17 5; (II) the printed Massorah on Ps. 69 15, and (III) the same on Ps. 107 28.

It will be seen that the longest List (I) gives 47 instances for the three letters, viz. z 12; g 20; h 15, whereas there are altogether 114 such instances, viz. z 29; g 48 and h 37. (Vide infra, § 28.)

י"ה. — Words beginning with Vav Mem Nun, Vav Mem Samech, Vav Mem Ayin and Vav Mem Pe which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 168a, on 2 Chron. 31 3, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 19; (III) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 18, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter z, § 13. List I gives 37 examples for these four letters, viz. n 6; s 11; a 13 and p 7. List II gives thirty-nine of which two are new, viz. נזקק (Amos 5 11) and נזקק (Judg. 13 19). List III gives 43, viz. n 6; s 14; a 14 and p 9. It omits one (נזקק Job 31 23) which is given in Lists I and II and records the following seven which are not in List I: נזקק (Levit. 27 28); נזקק (Amos 5 11) which is also given in List II; נזקק (Ps. 18 18); נזקק (2 Chron. 19 7); נזקק (Gen. 5 29); נזקק (Judg. 13 19) which is also given in List II and נזקק (Isa. 11 11). With the exception of the usual mistakes in the printed Massorah, List IV, as is to be expected from what has already been pointed out, is identical with List II both in the instances which it records and in the catchwords. The only difference between the two Lists is that Jacob b. Chayim gives נזקק (Amos 5 6) twice and omits נזקק (Exod. 8 7) which are manifestly due to carelessness. Besides these four Lists separate incipient fragments occur in sundry parts of the Massorah in the different MSS. Thus for instance fragments of the four letters which constitute this Rubric are given: (I) in Add. 15,451, fol. 370a, on Isa. 65 13; (II) the same MS., fol. 377a, on Joel 4 18; (III) the same MS., fol. 480b, on Ps. 119 110; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 249a, on Jerem. 19 14; (V) in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 47a, on Exod. 6 9; (VI) the same Codex fol. 48b, on Exod. 8 7; (VII) the same fol. 158b, on Numb. 36, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 18 26.

It will be seen that the longest List (III) gives 43 instances for the four letters, viz. n 6; s 14; a 14 and p 9, whereas there are altogether 120 such instances, viz. n 26; s and a 84, p and w being treated in the Massorah as the same; z 45 and m 15. (Vide infra, § 28.)

י"ח - § 18i. — Words beginning with Vav Mem Tradi and Vav Mem Coph which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 401b, on Ps. 20 3, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 125b, on Deut. 22 3; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 19; (IV) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 18, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 13.

It is remarkable that both Lists I and II give וַיִּצְרֵק as one of the instances, since this Hiphil participle singular with the prefix Vav does not occur in the present text. From Lists I and II which have no catchwords, it is difficult to divine whether the Massorite based this List upon a recension which exhibited וַיִּצְרֵק with the prefix Vav in Prov. 17 15. List II, however, gives the catchwords for it רִשָּׁע עֲקֵב שׂוֹרֵר = Isa. 5 23 where the received text has וַיִּצְרֵק. This certainly cannot be explained on the supposition that the Massorite found here וַיִּצְרֵק with the prefix Vav, for in that case it would not be unique as this form occurs in Dan. 12 3, which is here given as occurring once only. Lists III and V solve the difficulty by omitting וַיִּצְרֵק altogether. List IV records sixteen examples for וַיִּצְרֵק, giving three new ones, viz. וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Micah 5 1); וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Ps. 116 3) and וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Prov. 30 12) which is also given in List II. But even this longer List which gives 29 instances for these two letters, is simply a fragment; since there are altogether 74, viz. וַיִּצְרֵק 47 and וַיִּצְרֵק 27. (Vide infra, § 28).

Besides the four Lists there are the following fragments cataloguing these unique expressions: (I) Orient. 4445, fol. 38a, on Gen. 47 2; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 402, on Ps. 22 22; (III) the same MS., fol. 403b, on Ps. 28 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 419a, on Ps. 81 7, and (V) the same MS., fol. 478a, on 1 Chron. 20.

י"ט - § 18k. — Words beginning with Vav Mem Resh which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 49b, on Exod. 17 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 59a, on the same passage; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 19; (IV) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 18, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 13.

On collating the four Lists with the one which I have printed (List I) the following variations are disclosed; List II which records thirteen examples, has two new ones וַיִּצְרֵקוּ Levit. 13 25, וַיִּצְרֵקוּ Numb. 12 8) and omits three (וַיִּצְרֵקוּ Josh. 15 44; וַיִּצְרֵקוּ Ezek. 43 3; וַיִּצְרֵקוּ Prov. 3 9). In Lists III and IV there are no variations, whilst List V registers thirteen instances only. It omits וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Job 39 25) and records two new ones, viz. וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Numb. 12 8), which is also given in List II and וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Job 22 7). All these Lists, however, are simply incipient, since there are no fewer than 40 unique words beginning with וַיִּצְרֵק, as will be seen in § 28.

י"י - § 18l. — Words beginning with Vav Mem Shin and Vav Mem Tav which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 15b, on Gen. 25 14, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 269b, on Jerem. 4 7; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 19; (IV) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 18, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 13.

With the exception of List IV the other four Lists are practically identical. The variations in List IV consist in its omitting no fewer than seven instances in וַיִּצְרֵק, viz. וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (2 Sam. 3 39); וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Jerem. 22 14); וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Ezra 6 9); וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Gen. 10 23); וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Zech. 14 4); וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Zech. 9 10); וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Jerem. 30 21) and it gives two new ones, viz. וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (1 Sam. 30 19) and וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Neh. 10 32). It, moreover, records one new one for וַיִּצְרֵק, viz. וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Josh. 12 3).

The identity of Jacob b. Chayim's List (V) with that of the Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah (List III) is here established beyond the shadow of a doubt. It will be seen that the second instance given in this Rubric is וַיִּצְרֵקוּ. As Lists I and II are without vowel-points and without catchwords, this quinqueliteral may either be וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Isa. 17 4) or וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Exod. 29 21) since both these forms are unique. Lists III, IV and V, however, have been supplied with catchwords by later Nakdanim which indicate the passages and thus decide the vowel-points. Now the Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah gives וַיִּצְרֵקוּ = Exod. 29 21, thus taking it for וַיִּצְרֵקוּ, whilst the Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah gives וַיִּצְרֵקוּ =

Isa. 17 4, which is וַיִּצְרֵקוּ and Jacob b. Chayim gives identically the same catchwords.

Here again I have to point out that all the five Lists are simply fragmentary. The longest gives 26 for וַיִּצְרֵק and 2 for וַיִּצְרֵקוּ, whereas it will be seen from § 28 that there are altogether no fewer than 102, viz. וַיִּצְרֵק 68 and וַיִּצְרֵקוּ 34, deducting the forms of וַיִּצְרֵק which the Massorah reckons under וַיִּצְרֵקוּ. These Lists were never meant to record all the forms. They simply exhibit the words which the different Massoretic Schools, for reasons which cannot now be divined, selected from a large mass of unique expressions for distinction. This is attested by the fact that though there are no fewer than 705 words beginning with וַיִּצְרֵק which respectively occur once only, yet not only does the extensive Alphabet exhibited in the links marked § 18a-b give simply 273 examples, but there are actually sundry complete Alphabets which consist of 22 examples. The following is the oldest form of these Alphabets which is from the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 44b, on Exod. 3 22.

י"א - § 19a. — Words beginning with Vav Nun which respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 82b, on Levit. 1 4. On closely examining the twenty-one instances here recorded, it will be seen that they were originally arranged alphabetically and that later scribes, as is not infrequently the case, not only transposed several of the words, but ignorantly added וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Ezek. 44 25) which begins with Vav Lamed, contrary to the import of this Rubric.

י"ב - § 19b. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Nun which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, but which is one of the oldest constituent parts of it, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 60b, on Jerem. 40 15, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 150b, on Numb. 29 31, and (III) Orient. 2375, fol. 170a, on Cant. 1 5.

It will be seen that the Alphabet of List I consists of twenty-four examples instead of twenty-two. This is due to the fact that both נ and נ are severally represented by two examples instead of one. List II, which exhibits the oldest form of an Alphabet, gives eighteen examples only. Four letters are unrepresented, viz. ט, ז, י, and מ, four are represented by different expressions, viz. נ by וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Jerem. 25 37); נ by וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Josh. 9 24); נ by וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Prov. 12 8) and נ by וַיִּצְרֵקוּ (Ezra 8 23). In List III two letters are not represented, viz. נ and נ and as in List II, נ is represented by וַיִּצְרֵקוּ. Both these Lists, however, clearly show that the enigmatical expression וַיִּצְרֵקוּ, which is given in List I for נ, is וַיִּצְרֵקוּ Ps. 68 13. When it is stated that there are more than 500 words beginning with Vav Nun which occur once only (vide infra, § 28) and that innumerable Alphabets might be obtained by different combinations, it will at once be seen that the selection of twenty-two expressions on the part of the Massorites to be thus distinguished, must be due to some recondite cause.

Though there are upwards of 90 words beginning with Vav Samech which respectively occur once only, I have not found in the MSS. an incipient List which records any of them.

י"ג - § 20a-b. — Words beginning with Vav Ayin which respectively occur once only. These two fragments, one recording five words and the other eleven, which do not occur in the printed Massorah, are respectively from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 179a, on Ezek. 19 10 and the same MS., fol. 191a, on Ezek. 37 19. There are altogether more than 320 unique expressions beginning with וַיִּצְרֵקוּ. (Vide infra, § 28).

י"ד = § 21a-b.

י"ד - § 21a-b. — Words beginning with Vav Pe which respectively occur once only. These two fragments, which do not occur in the printed Massorah, are from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 121a, on Isa. 5 14, and fol. 190b, on Ezek. 37 9. There are altogether about 139 words beginning with Vav Pe which are unique. Though there are about 87 unique words beginning with v (vide infra, § 20), I have not found any of them recorded in the MSS.

כ"ב = § 22.

כ"ב. — Words beginning with Vav Coph which respectively occur once only. This fragment, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190b, on Ezek. 37 6. There are upwards of 160 words beginning with כ"ב which are unique. (Vide infra, § 28.) Of unique words beginning with כ"ב, of which there are about 188, I have found no incipient List in the MSS.

כ"ג. — Words beginning with Vav Shin which respectively occur once only. This incipient List, which records seven such instances and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 191a, on Ezek. 38 4. Its fragmentary character will be seen when it is stated that there are altogether about 388 unique expressions beginning with ש. (Vide infra, § 28.) In Orient. 2375, fol. 162b, on Eccl. 9 7 there is the following Rubric with regard to three words beginning with ש which are peculiarly pointed וְשָׂרָה בַלֵּב מוֹט וְשָׂרָה שְׂבִיךְ (Eccl. 9 7) וְשָׂרָה שְׂבִיךְ (Judg. 5 12) וְשָׂרָה לְקִרְיָאִים (2 Kings 9 17) כִּי בַמְשִׁיבָה.

כ"ה = § 24e.

כ"ה. — Sixteen words beginning with Vav Tav are unique and they are all Raphe. That is, they are all futures second person singular masculine or third person singular feminine with Sheva under the Vav or Vav conjunctive, in contradistinction to those futures with Pathach or Vav conversive which are recorded in § 24h. This Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Hosea 2 4. It will be seen that though the heading distinctly states that there are sixteen such instances, the List itself records fifteen only. Moreover וְשָׂרָה the last instance but one occurs twice (1 Kings 13 6; Job 10 16) and is, therefore, in conflict with the heading. There can hardly be any doubt that it is a clerical error for וְשָׂרָה, which I have printed in accordance with § 24f.

On referring to § 28 it will be seen that there are numerous such unique futures with Vav conjunctive. The question, therefore, is whether the List is simply the first attempt to collect these unique forms to which a later Nakdan, who mistook it for complete, added the heading fixing the number to accord with the instances therein enumerated, or whether the design of this Massorah is to record those futures only, which in all other instances are with Pathach or with Vav conversive. The latter hypothesis is favoured by the fact that twelve of the fifteen instances which constitute this Rubric, occur again more than once with Pathach. Accordingly the three instances which do not occur with Vav conversive וְשָׂרָה וְשָׂרָה וְשָׂרָה, as is often the case, have been added by a Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah.

כ"ז. — The following words beginning with Vav Tav respectively occur once only with Sheva under the Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Paris Oehliah Ve-Oehliah § 368. It is a later development of the preceding List and though it records twenty-nine such futures, it is far from cataloguing all, as will be seen from § 28. It is developed on the same lines as the preceding List. The remarks, therefore, made on the one apply still more to the other, since in the List before us an additional difficulty arises from the introduction of a future with the suffix וְשָׂרָה (Isa. 38 16).

כ"ז. — Words beginning with Vav Tav which respectively occur once only with Sheva. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 346b, on Isa. 13 13. Like the one marked § 24e, it is simply a fragment with this advantage, however, that a Nakdan has not furnished it with a heading fixing the number of the instances. Though it records fourteen such futures only, eleven alone are identical with the former and the three new ones are in the longer List marked § 24f.

כ"ח. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Tav which respectively occur once only. That is, these futures are with Vav conversive, in contradistinction to those with Vav conjunctive recorded in § 24e-g. The third letter in each of the words follows the alphabetical order. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 90b, on Ezek. 32 2, which I have printed, and (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 16 13.

It will be seen that in List I ת alone is represented by three examples, the two at the end are most probably the addition of a later Nakdan, since they disturb the uniformity of the alphabet, making it to consist of twenty-four links instead of twenty-two. List II differs from List I in the following respects, (1) it heads the Rubric וְשָׂרָה לְשׁוֹן לְשׁוֹן נְקֻמָּה בְּרִישׁ חִבְרוֹתָא; (2) it records eighteen examples only, ק, ק, ש and ת, are not represented and (3) four letters, viz. נ, י, כ and מ are represented by different examples, נ by וְשָׂרָה Exod. 4 25; י by וְשָׂרָה Judg. 16 19; כ by וְשָׂרָה Exod. 39 32 and מ by וְשָׂרָה which does not occur and may be a corruption of וְשָׂרָה Ezek. 16 25 given in List I. Why these words have been selected from the multitude of the unique expressions beginning with Vav Tav for these alphabetical distinctions it is difficult to divine. The variations, however, in the Lists show that the different Massoretic Schools must have preserved different traditions which guided them in their respective selections.

כ"ח. — Eleven words beginning with Vav Tav respectively occur twice, once with Sheva under the Vav and once with Pathach. That is, in one instance the future is with Vav conjunctive and in one with Vav conversive.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Halle Oehliah Ve-Oehliah I, § 51, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 114a, on Levit. 26 43; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 8 10; (IV) Massorah Finalis of Add. 15,251, fol. 443a; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 402a, on Levit. 26 43; (VI) Paris Oehliah Ve-Oehliah § 50; (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 74, and (VIII) the same letter ו, § 6.

Of these eight Lists five only (I, III, VI, VII, VIII) give all the eleven pairs, and though List IV also states in the heading that there are eleven pairs, it records six. The absence of the five pairs is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe. To the same cause is to be ascribed the omission in List VIII of the first number of one of the pairs, viz. וְשָׂרָה Levit. 26 43. Here וְשָׂרָה Ps. 50 18, the second number, stands alone without its companion.

It is important to notice that List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric, and List V which is from the splendid Model Codex, have not as yet any heading fixing the number of these pairs and that they respectively record nine only. This shows conclusively that the Lists were simply tentative and were left open to be gradually completed. Other Massorites found two more pairs, and later Nakdanim, who mistook these Lists for complete, not only furnished them with the headings, but fixed the number to agree with the pairs recorded therein. This is, moreover, attested by the fact that there are more than eleven such pairs and that the following belong to this Rubric (1) וְשָׂרָה Job 15 5 and וְשָׂרָה Job 7 15; (2) וְשָׂרָה Ps. 71 21 and וְשָׂרָה 1 Kings 2 15; (3) וְשָׂרָה Ps. 71 2 and וְשָׂרָה 2 Sam. 22 44. For the terms Milra and Milal denoting Sheva and Pathach see letter מ, § 11. It is in accordance with this usage that List IV heads this Rubric וְשָׂרָה לְשׁוֹן לְשׁוֹן נְקֻמָּה בְּרִישׁ חִבְרוֹתָא.

One thing is perfectly evident i. e. that these sundry fragmentary Lists and different alphabets have not been compiled by the same Massorites and that they do not belong to the same age or country.

כז א. — Words beginning with the prefix Vav which respectively occur twice, once without being followed by He and once with it. That is, these nouns occur twice only with this conjunctive and are in one instance without the definite article and in one with it.

The interest of the six fragments marked § 27a-f, as usual, consists in the fact that they show the gradual manner in which the Massorites collected the materials for the respective Rubrics. These incipient Lists, which do not occur in the printed Massorah, are from the following MSS.: (I) marked § 27a, which records eight pairs, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 30b, on Gen. 3 1; (II) marked § 27b, which records twelve, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 129a, on Isa. 10 28; (III) marked § 27c, which gives four, is from the same MS., fol. 218b, on Zech. 6 1; (IV) marked § 27d, which gives three, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Isa. 10 33; (V) marked § 27e, which gives four, is from the same Codex on Zech. 3 8, and (VI) marked § 27f, which also gives four, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 182a, on 1 Chron. 3 20. Besides these, there are also incipient Lists in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 57b, on Exod. 16 7, fol. 98a, on Levit. 13 55 &c.

כח א. — An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once beginning with Vav and once with Vav He. The foregoing fragmentary Lists and others dispersed throughout the MSS., are here arranged in alphabetical order of twenty-eight representative pairs.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, five in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 45a, on Exod. 16 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 118b, on Numb. 3 25; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 30 24; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 354a, on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 9; (VI) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 9; (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Chron. 3 20; (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 18, and (IX) the same letter ו, § 66. Five of the Lists (I, VI, VII, VIII, IX) give identically the same twenty-eight pairs: three (II, III, V) record twenty-seven, omitting the eighth pair, viz. וְהָיָה הַיּוֹם (Ps. 138 6; Ezek. 21 31); whilst List IV records twenty-three only. Besides omitting the eighth pair, which the other Lists omit, it omits No. 18 וְהָיָה הַיּוֹם; Nr. 14 וְהָיָה הַיּוֹם; Nr. 27 וְהָיָה הַיּוֹם and No. 28 וְהָיָה הַיּוֹם. It will be seen that this alphabet is incomplete, since five letters, viz. ו, י, ט, י and כ are not represented: yet List VI alone indicates this incompleteness by the addition of the expression וְהָיָה הַיּוֹם in the heading.

כט א. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav which respectively occur once only. This List I compiled myself. The preceding Rubrics, which exhibit different catalogues of unique words beginning with Vav and which are in the MSS. without vowel-points and without catchwords, show that without this alphabetical List it would be almost impossible to identify these expressions since many of them are spelt in exactly the same way. In this first attempt to find out and to arrange about 9000 words beginning with Vav which respectively occur once only, many mistakes must necessarily have crept into the List. These the student who understands the difficulty of such a task will readily forgive and easily correct.

1 As far as I could find them they are as follows: ו 967; ו 746; ו 181; ו 102; ו 1089; ו 1; ו 98; ו 274; ו 48; ו 1494; ו 310; ו 529; ו 705; ו 507; ו 96; ו 326; ו 189; ו 87; ו 162; ו 188; ו 388 and ו 624. — 9000.

ל א. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav which respectively occur once only at the beginning of a verse. For this Rubric see above, letter ו, § 25.

לא = § 30.

לא א. — Twenty-two words respectively begin a verse without the Vav. That is, in these passages only they abnormally begin the verse without the prefix Vav, whilst in all other instances where they severally occupy this position they have normally the Vav.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 56a, on 1 Sam. 30 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 199a, on Ezek. 48 34; (III) the same MS., fol. 367a, on Dan. 4 1; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 410b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 273a, on Jerem. 9 5; (VI) the same MS., fol. 340a, on Ezek. 48 34; (VII) the same MS., fol. 414b, on Ps. 68 29; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 232b, on Numb. 25 11, and (IX) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 175. That these are not all the instances which exhibit this peculiarity is evident from List IX, which adds at the end under the heading apart from the recension of the Massorah (וְהָיָה הַיּוֹם), the following two expressions: וְהָיָה Deut. 3 14, and וְהָיָה Neh. 10 7.

לב א. — All the verses throughout the book of Ruth begin with Vav except eight. This book consists altogether of eighty-five verses, seventy-seven of which begin with the prefix Vav. As eight verses only are without this prefix, the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 260a, on Ruth 3 13. The three expressions which form the mnemonic sign are made up of the first letters of the words with which the respective verses begin.

לג א. — Twenty-two verses in the Scriptures in which neither Vav nor Yod occurs. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 105a, on Numb. 7 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 310b, on Ps. 105 11; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 78a, on Numb. 7 20; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 87a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 154a, on Josh. 12 18; (VI) Orient. 2348, fol. 115a, on Numb. 7 20; (VII) Orient. 5404, fol. 104a, on the same passage, and (VIII) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

The fact that Exod. 20 18 is here given as one verse shows that this Massorah is not based upon the system which divided this verse into four verses, otherwise there would be twenty-five verses in which neither Vav nor Yod occurs. For the different verse-division of the Decalogue see my Introduction to the Masoretic-Critical edition of the Bible p. 76. The heading of List VIII alone calls the Vav וְהָיָה and the Yod וְהָיָה. Numb. 8 14 and Numb. 13 44 in the Rubric which I have printed are mistakes for 7 14 and 7 44.

לה = § 34.

לה א. — An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once without the prefix Vav and once with it. From time immemorial the Massorites endeavoured to collect the words which respectively occur twice only, once without the prefix Vav and once with it. The earliest efforts necessarily yielded a limited number of examples. Hence the different Massoretic Schools at first arranged the scanty materials into restricted alphabetical Lists in which each letter was represented by one pair only. As one guild of Massorites found some expressions which exhibited this phenomenon and other guilds discovered others, different limited alphabets were compiled some of which are recorded below (see letter ו, Rubrics 54, 55 &c.). In the course of time, however, most of the expressions which belong to this category were collected, and thus the alphabetical Lists were expanded to such an extent that the space of the Marginal Massorah in the Biblical Codices would not admit of their being recorded. To obviate the difficulty the different letters of the alphabet which exhibit this feature were separated and made into separate Rubrics which are dispersed throughout the MSS., on passages where the several margins afforded the requisite space. These expanded Rubrics, each of which records the pairs belonging to one of the letters in the alphabet, are here given in alphabetical sequence in the following twenty Lists (§§ 34-58).

לז א. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Aleph and once with Vav Aleph.

Of this Rubric I collated twelve Lists, nine in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 17b, on Gen. 27 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 132a, on 1 Chron. 4 11; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 19b, on Gen. 27 19; (IV) the same MS., fol. 95a, on Numb. 6 27; (V) the same MS., fol. 369a, on Isa. 63 6; (VI) the same MS., fol. 416b, on Ps. 74 4; (VII) the same MS., fol. 485a, on Ps. 144 1; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 441a, on Dan. 5 4; (IX) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh I, § 1; (X) Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh § 1; (XI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 1 1 in the inner square enclosing the first word, and (XII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 13.

Lists I, II, IX and X give the same twenty-three pairs in exactly the same order. List XI has one pair more, viz. אָפֶלֶל (1 Chron. 2 37) and אָפֶלֶל (1 Chron. 2 37) not instead of אָפֶלֶל, as stated by Frensdorff (Nachweise &c. to his edition of the Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh No. I), but in addition to it; whilst List XII catalogues twenty-five pairs. Besides giving the additional pair in List XI, it records אָלֶקָהָה (Ruth 2 7) and אָלֶקָהָה (Ruth 2 2). Lists III, IV, V and VI, however, respectively record eighteen, eight, sixteen and seventeen pairs only, which as far as they go, are identical with those in the longer registers. But even the longest List is not intended to be exhaustive. This is attested by the fact that there are many other pairs which belong to this category and which are not recorded, viz. אָפֶלֶל (Jerem. 15 7) and אָפֶלֶל (Ezek. 6 3); אָפֶלֶל (Exod. 23 11) and אָפֶלֶל (Isa. 29 19); אָפֶלֶל (Ps. 145 2) and אָפֶלֶל (Gen. 26 3); אָפֶלֶל (Isa. 19 10) and אָפֶלֶל (Isa. 14 23); אָפֶלֶל (Ezek. 5 11) and אָפֶלֶל (Ezek. 16 27); אָפֶלֶל (Judg. 2 3) and אָפֶלֶל (1 Kings 12 18) and אָפֶלֶל (2 Sam. 20 24); אָפֶלֶל (Ps. 31 24) and אָפֶלֶל (Amos 5 15); אָפֶלֶל (Amos 4 5) and אָפֶלֶל (Deut. 10 19) and many others which the student may easily find out by comparing the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur once only (א, § 12) with the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Vav (ו, § 28). The heading of this Rubric in the printed Massorah on Cant. 7 8, fixing the number at twenty-three (כִּי וַתֵּן הַרְבֵּי אֵי הַרְבֵּי אֵי) is the addition of a later Nakdan and is in conflict with Lists XI and XII, which Jacob b. Chayim printed himself.

It is from the first pair of this alphabetical List, viz. אָפֶלֶל and אָפֶלֶל that the two independent Massoretic Compilations (the one in the Paris National Library, edited by Frensdorff, Hanover 1864, and the other still in MS. in the Halle University Library which begin with this Rubric), derive their name Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh. (Comp. my Introduction to the Massoretic-Critical edition of the Bible p. 463 &c.)

א — § 35.

א. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Beth and once with Vav Beth. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 74a, on Levit. 16 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 161a, on 2 Chron. 20 26; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 84b, on Exod. 40 36; (IV) the same MS., fol. 101b, on Levit. 16 1; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 422b, on Ps. 95 9; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 202b, on Numb. 9 22; (VII) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh I, § 1; (VIII) Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh § 1, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 7.

Lists I and II record identically the same eighteen pairs in identically the same order, the only difference in the two Lists is the addition at the end which in List II is אֵלֶיךָ יְהוָה לֵבִי רָחֵם, which, however, does not fix the number at eighteen, but simply states that the above eighteen pairs are without parallel in the Scriptures. Lists III and IV, which are from the oldest Codex and which, therefore, represent the first attempt to collect these pairs, respectively record ten instances only. In List III these, as far as they go, are identical with those recorded in Lists I and II. But in List IV nine only are the same as in the other Lists and one of the pair is לֵבִי רָחֵם לֵבִי רָחֵם, of which the first alone occurs in the received text (1 Chron. 26 5) and the second is not to be found. Lists V, VI, VII and VIII respectively register seventeen pairs, which with the exception of List VI are, as far as they go, identical with those recorded in Lists I and II. They all omit the seventeenth pair, viz. בְּקִשְׁתִּי וּבְקִשְׁתִּי; whilst List VI also omits the eighteenth pair, viz. בְּקִשְׁתִּי וּבְקִשְׁתִּי and makes up the seventeen by a new pair which is not in any of the other Lists, viz. בְּקִשְׁתִּי לֵבִי רָחֵם (Numb. 9 22) and בְּקִשְׁתִּי לֵבִי רָחֵם (Numb. 9 19). It is List IX which registers nineteen pairs. Though it also omits the seventeenth pair, it makes up the nineteen by two new pairs, which are not in any of the other eight Lists, viz. בְּקִשְׁתִּי (Jerem. 15 7); בְּקִשְׁתִּי (Isa. 30 24) and בְּקִשְׁתִּי (Ezra 9 8) and בְּקִשְׁתִּי (Ezra 9 9). But though it records nineteen, the List states in the heading that there are seventeen only (כִּי וַתֵּן הַרְבֵּי אֵי הַרְבֵּי אֵי). This heading, however, which is in conflict with the contents of the Rubric, must have been added by Jacob b. Chayim from another List giving this number, since he tells us at the end of the Rubric that it is part of an alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once without the prefix Vav and once with it, and that he divided it himself into separate Rubrics and dispersed them according to the several letters of the Alphabet. On comparing these Lists together it will be seen that they record more than twenty such pairs. But even this does not exhaust the number, as a collation of the alphabetical Lists of unique words beginning with Beth (ב, § 5) and of those beginning with Vav (ו, § 28) will disclose. Having thus indicated how the numbers of the pairs given in the separate Lists can be tested, I shall simply specify in the following Rubrics, which complete this alphabet, the MSS. which I have collated for these registers.

ו. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Gimel and once with Vav Gimel. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 77a, on Levit. 20 18, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 83b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 317a, on Ezek. 18 18; (IV) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh I, § 1; (V) Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh § 1, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ג, § 2. The latter is the only one which furnishes this Rubric with a heading (הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד), fixing the number at five. But as Jacob b. Chayim states that he broke up this alphabetical List into separate Rubrics, he must have supplied the heading. All the six Lists record identically the same five pairs.

ו. — Words which respectively occur twice only, once beginning with Daleth and once with Vav Daleth. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, three in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 272b, on Esther 3 15, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 317a, on Ezek. 18 18; (III) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh I, § 1; (IV) Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh § 1; (V) the printed Massorah on Cant. 8 14, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ד, § 2. The two Lists of the printed Massorah (V and VI) have again a heading (כִּי וַתֵּן מִדְּוָד הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד) fixing the number of the pairs at six, which has manifestly been supplied by Jacob b. Chayim. All the six Lists record identically the same pairs in the same order.

ו — § 38.

ו. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with He and once with Vav He. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 20a, on Gen. 30 40, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 45a, on Exod. 4 12; (III) the same MS., fol. 134b, on Numb. 15 27; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 328a, on Job 19 9; (V) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh I, § 1; (VI) Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh, § 1, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 19.

With the exception of omitting the ninth pair, Lists V and VI are identical with List I. The two oldest forms of this Massorah, which are exhibited in Lists II and III in this Rubric, are in a very incipient state. The former records ten pairs only and the latter eleven. And though the two Lists do not record quite the same examples, they are, as far as they go, identical with those in List I. In the same incipient state is List IV, which heads the fragment הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד and records eleven pairs of which one is new, viz. הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Job 19 9) and הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Levit. 1 6). It is the printed Massorah Finalis (List VII) which gives the longest catalogue. It records twenty-three pairs, three of which are not in List I, viz. הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Gen. 24 14) and הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Ps. 45 11); הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד which are also given in List IV; הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Judg. 8 19) and הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Josh. 2 13); הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Ps. 118 25) and הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Neh. 1 11). But even this expanded List does not exhaust all the pairs. Thus we have הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Jerem. 7 28) and הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Isa. 11 5); הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Ps. 104 10) and הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Levit. 16 26); הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Micah 3 3) and הַרְבֵּי מִדְּוָד (Ezek. 16 39) and compare the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with He (ה, § 27) with that of the unique words beginning with Vav (ו, § 28).

ו. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Zayin and once with Vav Zayin. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 26b, on Gen. 40 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 29b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 435b, on Ps. 146 8; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 1; (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 1, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Prov. 23 21. These six Lists record identically the same four pairs. The printed Massorah alone furnishes this Rubric with the heading (הר כן רי ונתן הר הו חדר הו) fixing the number at four.

ח ח. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Cheth and once with Vav Cheth. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 22a, on Gen. 33 11, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 29b, on Gen. 40 14; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 435b, on Ps. 146 8; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 1; (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 1, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח, § 4.

List II, which exhibits the first attempt at collecting these pairs, records six only, but these, as far as they go, are identical with those in List I. With the exception of List VI the other three Lists (III, IV, V) record the same nine pairs in precisely the same order. It is List VI which not only furnishes this Rubric with a heading, but states that there are twelve such pairs (יב ונתן מדרין הר הו חדר הו) and duly enumerates this number. The three additional pairs are חוהר (Ps. 58 6) and חוהר (Deut. 18 11); חוהר (2 Kings 12 17) and חוהר (Job 13 2) — the Kethiv חוהר in Dan. 9 24 the Massorah as usual does not recognise, as the Keri or official reading is חוהר — and חוהר (Numb. 34 23) and חוהר (1 Chron. 7 39).

ח"א. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Teth and once with Vav Teth. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 29b, on Gen. 43 16, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 1; (III) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 1, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח"א, § 1. The latter is the only List which supplies this Rubric with the heading (ח"א ונתן ח"א בית חדר וסיה) fixing the number of these pairs.

ח"ב. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Yod and once with Vav Yod. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 21a, on Gen. 31 51, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 35a, on Gen. 44 13; (III) the same MS., fol. 59b, on Exod. 18 9; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 380b, on Neh. 3 7; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 395a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 1; (VII) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 1, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח"ב, § 1.

Lists II and III, which respectively record eleven and twelve pairs, exhibit the first attempt on the part of the Massorites to collect these instances. Though ten of the pairs in List II are identical with those recorded in List I; yet even this incipient catalogue gives one new pair, viz. ח"ב (Ps. 68 20) and ח"ב (Gen. 44 13). The twelve pairs in List III are, as far as they go, identical with those in List I. The first heading appears in List V which is contained in List I; whilst Lists IV, VI and VII are the same as List I. It is List VIII which exhibits variations. Though it states in the heading that there are eighteen such pairs (יח ונתן ח"ב חדר חדר חדר חדר), it records twenty-six. The three new pairs are ח"ב (Gen. 1 20) and ח"ב (Exod. 1 7); ח"ב (Isa. 44 2) and ח"ב (Gen. 49 25); ח"ב (2 Sam. 19 4) and ח"ב (2 Sam. 19 4). But even this expanded List does not exhaust all the instances, as will be seen from the following: ח"ב (Levit. 6 9) and ח"ב (Prov. 30 17); ח"ב (Levit. 5 4) and ח"ב (Ps. 106 38); ח"ב (Ps. 84 12) and ח"ב (1 Chron. 7 35); ח"ב (Dan. 2 11) and ח"ב (Ezra 4 10) &c. &c. Comp. the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Yod (י, § 10) with the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Vav (ו, § 28).

ח"ג. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Caph and once with Vav Caph. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 78b, on Levit. 22 24, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 72a, on Exod. 29 33; (III) the same MS., fol. 84a, on Exod. 40 13; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 1; (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 1, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח"ג, § 5.

List II alone exhibits this Rubric in its incipient state. It records eleven pairs only, but it gives one pair which is not in List I, viz. ח"ג (2 Sam. 17 3) and ח"ג (1 Sam. 17 57). This pair is also given in all the other Lists. List III gives also ח"ג (1 Chron. 5 36) and ח"ג (Exod. 40 13). List VI is the only one which heads it ח"ג ונתן ח"ג חדר חדר חדר חדר and duly enumerates fifteen pairs, making up this number by ח"ג ח"ג which is also in the ancient List III. But even this List does not give all the pairs which exhibit this characteristic. Comp. ח"ג (1 Kings 18 34) and ח"ג (Judg. 7 16) and the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Caph (כ, § 19) with the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Vav (ו, § 28).

ח"ד. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Lamed and once with Vav Lamed. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 1a, on Gen. 1 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 142a, on 1 Chron. 18 3; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 157b, on 2 Chron. 15 5; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 249b, on 1 Chron. 18 3; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 1; (VI) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 1, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח"ד, § 8.

Lists I and III alone record identically the same fifteen pairs. Lists II and V record fourteen, whilst List IV records twelve only. All the Lists, however, which record less than fifteen, give exactly the same pairs as Lists I and III as far as they go. It is List VII which has not only a heading (ח"ד ונתן ח"ד חדר חדר חדר חדר), but records seventeen pairs, the two new ones are ח"ד (2 Chron. 31 7) and ח"ד (Isa. 51 16); ח"ד (Levit. 25 21) and ח"ד (1 Sam. 13 21). But even this expanded List does not exhaust all the instances, as will be seen from a comparison of the alphabet of unique words beginning with Lamed (ל, § 14) with the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Vav (ו, § 28).

ח"ה. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Mem and once with Vav Mem. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 122a, on Deut. 16 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 166a, on 2 Chron. 29 6; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 112a, on Levit. 15 47; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 1; (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 1, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח"ה, § 6.

List III, which is the oldest form of this Rubric, exhibits it in its incipient state, since it records ten pairs only; but these, as far as they go, coincide with the other Lists. It is remarkable that though all the other five Lists give the same eighteen pairs and though List VI heads this Rubric ח"ה ונתן ח"ה חדר חדר חדר חדר, fixing the number at eighteen, yet there are others which belong to this Rubric and which are not recorded. Comp. ח"ה (1 Chron. 2 49) and ח"ה (Josh. 15 31); ח"ה (Numb. 11 26) and ח"ה (Numb. 11 27); ח"ה (Jerem. 10 19) and ח"ה (Jerem. 15 18) and the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Mem (מ, § 13) with the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Vav which respectively occur once only (ו, § 28).

ח"ו. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Nun and once with Vav Nun. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 63a, on Levit. 1 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 33a, on Gen. 47 30; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 164a, on 2 Chron. 25 16; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 39a, on Gen. 47 30; (V) the same MS., fol. 85a, on Levit. 1 4; (VI) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 183a, on Ezek. 25 14; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 4; (VIII) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 1, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח"ו, § 1.

Lists IV and V, which are from the oldest Codex and which as usual exhibit the first attempts to collect these pairs, respectively record ten and thirteen only. These, as far as they go, are identical with those in List I. Of the same incipient nature is List II which gives six only, all of which coincide with those in List I. The other five Lists, viz. III, VI, VII, VIII and IX, record identically the same fifteen pairs as List I, the only difference being that List IX has a heading (סני ונתן דוד בן חור וזו ולי רב) which fixes the number at fifteen.

סני. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Samech and once with Vav Samech. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 73b, on Levit. 15 13, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 47a, on Exod. 6 22; (III) the same MS., fol. 86a, on Levit. 1 4; (IV) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah I, § 1; (V) Paris Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah, § 1, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ס, § 1.

With the exception of List III, which omits the third pair, all the other Lists record identically the same five pairs in almost the same order. The printed Massorah alone furnishes the Rubric with the heading הו ונתן דוד בן חור. It will be seen that two of the pairs are words with Sin (ש). This is due to the fact that ס and ש are frequently treated by the Massorah as the same letter.

סני. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Ayin and once with Vav Ayin. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 31a, on Gen. 45 20, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 36b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 45a, on Exod. 4 21; (IV) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah I, § 1; (V) Paris Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah, § 1, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter פ, § 1.

Lists II and III, which exhibit the oldest form of this Rubric, respectively record ten and seven pairs only, but these as far as they go, coincide with those in List I, whilst Lists IV and V give identically the same eleven pairs as List I. The printed Massorah (List VI) again affords a striking illustration of the untrustworthiness of the heading. This List records eight pairs only and omits the last three pairs which were absent in the MS. because as is often the case, there was no more space at the end of the line. Jacob b. Chayim, finding eight instances only, mistook it for complete and hence furnished it with the heading הו ונתן דוד בן חור. Even the eleven pairs recorded in the three Lists (I, IV, V) are not meant to exhaust the number. Comp. סני (Ps. 24 8) and סני (Isa. 43 17); סני (Neh. 10 24) and סני (Neh. 8 4) and the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Ayin (פ, § 16) with the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur once only beginning with Vav (ו, § 28).

סני. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Pe and once with Vav Pe. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 98a, on Numb. 19 2, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 105b, on the same passage; (III) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah I, § 1; (IV) Paris Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah, § 1, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter פ, § 1. The latter is the only List which has a heading to this Rubric הו ונתן דוד בן חור, fixing the number of the pairs at four which is misleading, since there are more than this number. Comp. סני (Ps. 106 4) and סני (Jerem. 15 15); סני (Micah 7 4) and סני (Job 10 12) and the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Pe (פ, § 18) with the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav which respectively occur once only (ו, § 28).

סני = § 50.

סני. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Tsadi and once with Vav Tsadi. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 156b, on 2 Chron. 13 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,421, fol. 105b, on Numb. 19 2; (III) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah I, § 1; (IV) Paris Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah, § 1, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter צ, § 1. Though all these Lists coincide in recording the same two pairs, List V alone has a heading (בי ונתן דוד בן חור) which fixes the number at two. But this addition, which is due to Jacob b. Chayim, is incorrect, since there are more than two such pairs. Comp. סני

(Isa. 44 3) and סני (Job 5 25); סני (Numb. 19 15), סני (Numb. 31 50) and the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Tsadi (צ, § 14) with the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav which respectively occur once only (ו, § 28).

סני. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Coph and once with Vav Coph. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 6a, on Gen. 9 13, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 105b, on Numb. 19 2; (III) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah I, § 1; (IV) Paris Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah, § 1, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ק, § 1.

Lists I, II and III give identically the same four pairs in exactly the same order. List IV gives five pairs, adding סני (Deut. 15 9) and סני (Deut. 5 11). List V which also gives five pairs makes up this number by adding a different pair, viz. סני (Gen. 19 28) and סני (Ps. 148 8). This List, however, affords another illustration of the incorrectness and misleading nature of the headings. It is the first Rubric with a heading, viz. הו ונתן דוד בן חור, thus fixing the number at five, whereas there are many more such pairs. Comp. סני (Esther 4 4) and סני (Esther 9 23); סני (Ezek. 22 19) and סני (Prov. 13 11); סני (Ezek. 27 19) and סני (Ezek. 30 24); סני (1 Kings 8 64) and סני (Numb. 6 11) &c. &c. and see the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Coph (ק, § 8) with the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav which respectively occur once only (ו, § 28).

סני. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Resh and once with Vav Resh. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 6a, on Gen. 9 13, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 355b, on Isa. 34 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 417b, on Ps. 78 9; (IV) the same MS., fol. 489b, on Dan. 7 9; (V) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah I, § 1; (VI) Paris Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah, § 1, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ר, § 1.

With the exception of List VI, all the Lists record the same nine pairs. List IV is the only MS. List which gives catchwords to these pairs. List VI adds a tenth pair, viz. סני (Ezek. 24 11) and סני (Isa. 29 8). But even this List is incipient, since there are many other pairs, viz. סני (Job 28 18) and סני (Ezek. 27 16); סני (Numb. 23 10) and סני (2 Kings 6 26); סני (Isa. 23 4) and סני (Isa. 1 2); סני (Ezek. 23 40) and סני (Ruth 3 8); סני (2 Kings 5 13) and סני (2 Sam. 11 8); סני (Isa. 41 21) and סני (Deut. 1 12); סני (Deut. 17 8) and סני (Job 13 6); סני (Cant. 1 12) and סני (Jerem. 48 11) &c. Comp. the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Resh (ר, § 10) with the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav which respectively occur once only (ו, § 28). This shows the misleading nature of the heading of List VII הו ונתן דוד בן חור, fixing the number of these pairs at nine, which is manifestly due to Jacob b. Chayim.

סני. — Words which respectively occur twice only in the Scriptures, once beginning with Shin and once with Vav Shin. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 4b, on Gen. 6 16, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 117b, on Numb. 2 16; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 91a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 355b, on Isa. 34 5; (V) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah I, § 1; (VI) Paris Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah, § 1, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ש, § 1.

In List II, which exhibits the earliest attempt at collecting these pairs, six only are recorded, the last two being absent; but it gives instead סני which can only be סני (1 Sam. 19 18) or סני (Exra 5 14) and סני (Jerem. 13 16) neither of which, however, yields a proper pair. And though all the other six Lists record identically the same seven pairs yet they are fragmentary and simply exhibit the instances which the Massorite could find who formulated this Rubric, as is attested by the fact that there are many more, viz. סני (Ps. 73 26) and סני (Jerem. 51 35); סני (Ezek. 5 10) and סני (Isa. 14 30); סני (Cant. 1 13) and סני (Cant. 8 10); סני (Gen. 25 2) and סני (1 Chron. 1 32); סני (Dan. 6 23) and סני (Dan. 3 28) &c. Comp. the alphabetical List of unique words beginning with Shin (ש, § 11) with the

Two words which respectively occur twice have Yod in the middle when they begin with the prefix Vav and are without the Yod when they do not begin with the Vav. To understand this artificial Massorah it is necessary to remark that its design is to safeguard the unique defective spelling of תצדק without the Yod in 1 Sam. 9 21 and the abnormal orthography of the plural תצדק without the Yod after the Tzadi in Ps. 58 8. Neither of these two expressions with this defective spelling begins with the prefix Vav, whilst in the only instance in which either of them occurs with the Vav it is with the regular Yod. Hence the Massorah indicates that when these two expressions begin with Vav their spelling is plene and when they are defective they are without this prefix. On referring to the notes on Ps. 58 8 in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that this Massorah militates against the various readings which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors. This Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 249. (Vide infra, letter v, § 64.)

ס"א = § 61a.

Words which respectively occur twice at the beginning of a verse, once without the prefix Vav and once with it. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this incipient state in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Orient 2349, fol. 124b, on Deut. 3 9, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 78a, on Exod. 35 9; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 134b, on Deut. 3 9, and (IV) Orient. 5404, fol. 123b, on the same passage.

With the exception of omitting the second pair תצדק תצדק, which List I erroneously gives twice, Lists III and IV give identically the same seven pairs. List II, which exhibits the oldest attempt to collect these pairs, records eleven. Of these five only are identical with the first five in Lists I, III and IV, whilst the following six are new: (1) תצדק Exod. 25 7 and תצדק Exod. 35 9; (2) תצדק Ps. 102 23 and תצדק Esther 2 19; (3) תצדק Dan. 4 26 and תצדק Dan. 4 31; (4) תצדק Ps. 114 3 and תצדק Neh. 9 11; (5) תצדק Ps. 83 11 and תצדק Hosea 10 8, and (6) תצדק Ps. 71 3 and תצדק Exod. 34 2. They are all, however, given in the following Rubric.

Twenty-five words which respectively occur twice at the beginning of a verse, once without the prefix Vav and once with it. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter v, § 27. It professes to give all the pairs of words which belong to this category in the Bible. It will be seen that though the heading emphatically states that there are twenty-five such pairs, the Rubric itself records twenty-four only. As Lists I, II and IV record one pair (תצדק and תצדק) which is not given in this expanded Rubric, this would make up the twenty-five.

Fourteen words respectively occur twice at the beginning of a verse without the prefix Vav and in all the other Scriptures they are with Vav. That is, when they occupy this position at the beginning of the verse throughout the Scriptures they are normally with the prefix Vav.

The design of this Rubric is to safeguard the abnormal absence of the prefix Vav and thus to militate against those Codices which in many instances exhibit the normal prefix or read differently, as will be seen from the notes on Numb. 2 7; 29 24, 37; Ps. 4 18; Eccl. 8 4 in my edition of the Bible. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 95, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 150a, on Numb. 29 24; (III) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 171, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 21.

Lists I and IV are absolutely identical. They afford another proof that Jacob b. Chayim used the Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah for his edition of the Massorah. List III, which also states in the heading that this Rubric consists of fourteen pairs (יד ויד), omits the thirteenth pair, viz. תצדק and תצדק, and makes up the number by giving תצדק (Ps. 4 8 and 60 6) as the eighth pair. List II, which is from the ancient Codex Orient. 4445 and which, therefore, exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, emphatically states in the heading that there are eleven such pairs only (יא ויא) and duly records eleven. It omits תצדק (Ps. 74 8; 83 5); תצדק (Ps. 79 2; 119 110) and תצדק (Gen. 42 30; Jerem. 42 19), thus showing that at this early period the readings of the present text were not as yet fixed.

On the contrary fourteen words respectively occur twice at the beginning of a verse with the prefix Vav and in all the Scriptures they are without the Vav. That is, when these expressions begin the verse in all the other parts of the Bible, they are without this prefix.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 375b, on Ezra 5 17, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 286a, on Ezek. 1 23; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 96; (IV) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 172, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 4. The latter rightly heads this Rubric יד ויא. When the printed Massorah, therefore, on Esther 1 18 heads it כב רים מן כב נכסין ברישי and refers to the Massorah Finalis for the List, it is manifest that כב is a printers error for יד. (Vide infra, letter v, § 65.)

Nine words which respectively occur twice in the Scriptures are alike in this that in one instance they begin with Vav and in the other they are with Vav in the middle. That is, when they severally are with the prefix Vav they are defective and when they are without this prefix they are plene.

This recension of the Rubric, which records nine such pairs only and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 30b, on Isa. 66 3. The plene נחם, which is the second member of the last pair, does not occur in the present Massoretic text. This noun, which occurs five times (1 Sam. 11 11; 21 7; Jerem. 17 8; Job 24 19; Neh. 7 3), is invariably defective. The compilers of this Massorah must, therefore, have based it upon a recension which had it abnormally plene in one instance. But as the Rubric is without catchwords it is now impossible to identify the solitary exception.

The ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 76a, on Exod. 33 6, also gives another recension of this short List. It records ten such pairs of which the first five only are identical, whilst the second five are different, viz. תצדק לי מלי (Judg. 16 30) and תצדק לי מלי (1 Sam. 16 20); תצדק לי מלי (Judg. 4 19) and תצדק לי מלי (Isa. 60 2); תצדק לי מלי (Ps. 58 6) and תצדק לי מלי (Deut. 18 11); תצדק לי מלי (2 Chron. 8 18) and תצדק לי מלי (Isa. 60 9); תצדק לי מלי (2 Chron. 26 23) and תצדק לי מלי (2 Sam. 3 29). With the exception of the first pair all are in the expanded Lists.

Twenty words which respectively occur twice are alike in this that in one instance they are with Vav in the middle of the word and in one they have Vav at the beginning of the word. Of this recension of the Rubric, which is an expanded development of the preceding Massorah, I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Malachi 3 1, which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 248, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 59. On comparing the three Lists of the longer recension with each other and with two of the shorter recension (§ 64a) the following variations are disclosed:

List I. — Though this List states in the heading that there are twenty such pairs, it records nineteen only. It omits three which are given in List I of the shorter recension, viz. (1) תצדק תצדק; (2) תצדק תצדק; (3) תצדק תצדק and one of List II of the same recension, viz. תצדק תצדק.

List II. — This List states in the heading that there are twenty-eight such pairs (כ"ח וכן), but enumerates twenty-four only, with the exception of omitting תצדק תצדק in List I of the short recension and תצדק תצדק in List II of the same recension, as well as in List I of the long recension, it gives all the twenty-one pairs of the preceding Lists and adds three new pairs (1) תצדק Josh. 23 13, תצדק Jerem. 9 23; (2) תצדק 2 Kings 24 14, תצדק 1 Sam. 22 8, and (3) תצדק Neh. 2 2, תצדק Mal. 1 8.

List III. — Though this List states in the heading that there are twenty-five pairs (כ"ה וכן), it records twenty-six. But this is due to a confusion, since Jacob b. Chayim incorporated into this List two pairs (תצדק תצדק and תצדק תצדק) which belong to a different Rubric. (Vide supra, letter v, § 63.) By deducting these two and adding תצדק תצדק, which Jacob b. Chayim omitted but which is given in List I of the short recension and List II of the long recension, we obtain the requisite number of twenty-five pairs.

ו"ו. — The following words in the Scriptures [beginning with Vav] respectively occur twice at the commencement of a verse and they have no parallel. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 106b, on Numb. 10 9, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 105b, on the same passage. As seven of the twelve pairs here recorded are the same given in § 63, it would seem that they exhibit two different forms of the same Massorah.

ו"ז. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav which respectively occur twice and in the same book. That is, these duplicates do not all occur in one book, but are severally restricted to one or another book of the Bible. They are not, however, restricted to any position of the verse and thus differ from the pairs recorded in § 63 where the pairs severally begin the verse.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 38b, on Exod. 7 18, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 297a, on Ps. 55 13; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 341b, on Isa. 1 30; (IV) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 62; (V) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 61, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 25.

With the exception of List III, which breaks off with letter ב because it finishes the space-limit allotted to the Massorah, all the Lists record identically the same twenty-two pairs. As the Scriptural text yields no pair for letter ו they all coincide in making up the twenty-two by giving the same two examples for letter ו. It will be seen that the alphabet is exhibited in the first letter following the prefix Vav and thus differs from the alphabets recorded in the following Rubrics. Lists II and V add ו"ז after ו"ו in the heading which makes the import of this Massorah clearer.

ו"ח. — Five words beginning with Vav Beth Shem respectively occur twice only. This Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 424b, on 2 Chron. 14 10. It is another proof of the gradual development of the Massorah, inasmuch as it shows that the numbers of the lengthy alphabetical List recorded in the following Rubric, were at first collected separately, that in their incipient state they were furnished with separate headings and that the sundry links were afterwards coupled together into one alphabet. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 68.)

ו"ט. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Beth which respectively occur twice only. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 180b—181a, on Ps. 26 1, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 63; (III) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, § 62, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 8.

Lists I and IV record identically the same sixty-seven pairs in practically the same order. They both give ו"ח and Beer-Sheva (Josh. 15 28; Amos 5 5) as the seventh pair and ו"ט as the thirty-sixth pair. In the received text, however, this plural with the prefixes Vav Beth occurs once only (Deut. 4 34). But as List II also states that it occurs twice, it is probable that these three independent Rubrics are based upon a recension of the text which had it twice. List II records sixty-five pairs only, omitting ו"ח the twelfth pair and ו"ט the twenty-sixth pair, whilst List III gives sixty-six pairs. It omits two pairs which are in all the other Lists, viz. ו"ח and ו"ט and makes up the sixty-six by adding ו"ח (Isa. 43 2; Ps. 89 26).

It is remarkable that in all the four Lists the two instances in which the Tetragrammaton occurs in the textus receptus with the prefixes ו"ו are not given under ו"ו, which is their proper position according to the alphabetical sequence, but under ו"ז as if they were ו"ז. This is probably due to the traditional pronunciation of the Ineffable Name.

ו"י. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav He which respectively occur twice. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 18b—19a, on Gen. 28 22, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 459a, on Neh. 3 26; (III) Orient. 1471, fol. 99b—101b, on

1 Sam. 9 16; (IV) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 64; (V) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 63, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 20. On comparing the five Lists with the one which I have printed the following facts are disclosed:

List II. This List, which has no heading nor catchwords, exhibits a limited alphabet consisting of thirty-five pairs only in which ו and ק alone are not represented, but those which are represented are all in List I.

List III. This List, which has the same heading as List I and which is furnished with scanty catchwords, records fifty-six pairs or two less than List I. It omits the following three pairs: (1) ו"ח; (2) ו"ט, and (3) ו"י, but has ו"ז which is not given in List I, thus making up the fifty-six pairs.

List IV. This List records fifty-seven pairs or one less than List I. It omits two pairs, viz. (1) ו"ח and (2) ו"ט, but gives ו"ז which, as we have seen, is also given in List III, thus making up the fifty-seven.

Lists V and VI. With the exception of the heading of List V which is ו"ז and the heading of List VI which is ו"ח, these two Lists are identical. They respectively record the same sixty pairs, or two more than List I. The two additional are ו"ח (Ps. 78 38; Job 9 17) and ו"ט which is also given in Lists III and IV. I have already adverted to the fact that these long Lists are a later development and that they are made up of different Rubrics which originally consisted of one link only with a separate heading. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 67a.) A striking illustration of this fact is the link of this alphabet preserved in the printed Massorah Parva. On Gen. 37 24 the outer margin has the following heading ו"ז, thus showing that the six pairs of this alphabet which represent letter ו, originally formed a separate Rubric with a separate heading.

ו"יא. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav Yod which respectively occur twice with Pathach. That is, futures with Vav conversive, in contradistinction to those in which the Vav is with Sheva or is conjunctive, recorded in § 15c.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 212a, on Ps. 118 27, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 73b, on Levit. 8 11; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 148a, on Levit. 8 30; (IV) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 69, and (V) Paris Ochlah § 68.

It will be seen that whilst ו and ל are not represented in List I, six of the letters (ז, ט, ב, ט, ה, א) are represented by two examples. List II records twenty-two pairs only, breaking off with ק because it finishes the allotted space for the Massorah. List III is a limited alphabet giving one pair for each letter. Hence it records twenty pairs ו and ל not being represented. List IV records twenty-four only and omits two pairs, viz. ו"ח and ו"ט; whilst List V records twenty-eight or two pairs more than List I. They are ו"ח (2 Kings 6 22; 17 27) and ו"ט (Ps. 49 9; 72 14) and are indicated as being a later addition. They prove the oft-repeated statement that these additions are due to the Nakdanim who misunderstand the import of the Massorah. These two pairs are with Sheva or with Vav conjunctive, whilst the manifest design of this Rubric is to record the instances in which the Vav is with Pathach or is conversive.

ו"יב. — An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. This incipient Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 37 16. Though it states in the heading that it is an alphabetical List, it gives five letters only. Its interest, however, consists in the fact that it shows that originally this alphabet gave one example for each letter, whereas it will be seen from the following Rubric, that later Massorites largely expanded this alphabet. The materials for this alphabet increased to such an extent that the Massorites gave the examples for some of the letters in separate Rubrics with separate headings. For letter ז the printed Massorah Finalis has preserved a separate List with a distinct heading (letter ז, § 4), which I have given in Vol. III, p. 5, § 70.

ו"יג. — An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. Of this expanded alphabet I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 1471, fol. 42b-44a, on Josh. 11 21, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 14; (III) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 13, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 6.

Whilst List I gives eighty-eight such words, List II records ninety-one. The additions consist of three more examples representing letter v: (1) Job 17 4; Prov. 14 34 and Micah 6 14; Ps. 107 25; (2) Prov. 22 28; 23 10 and Micah 6 14; (3) Cant. 4 8; Ruth 3 17 and Ezek. 16 7. Though List III, like List II, records ninety-one they are made up somewhat differently. In it omits and gives (Job 41 2; Prov. 22 29) and (1 Sam. 3 10) instead of, adds another instance in q, viz. (1 Sam. 7 5; Joel 2 16) and (2 Chron. 24 5) which is not in Lists I and II and gives the additional three examples which are also given in List II. A longer catalogue is exhibited in List IV which records ninety-eight such representatives. It gives three more for letter u, viz. (1) Gen. 4 14; Job 13 20 and Ps. 55 13; (2) Jerem. 4 21; Ps. 85 9 and Numb. 9 8; (3) Gen. 25 25; 1 Sam. 16 12 and 1 Sam. 17 42. It records one more for r, viz. Prov. 23 35; Cant. 5 7 and Gen. 34 30, three more for s, viz. (1) Deut. 18 14; Judg. 9 37; and Micah 5 11; (2) Ezra 4 14; 6 9 and Ezra 7 22; (3) 2 Kings 6 5; Jerem. 38 26 and Dan. 9 20. It adds the three examples for letter t, which are given in Lists II and III and gives for the expression instead of, agreeing with List II.

But even the more expanded List (IV) is far from being exhaustive, as will be seen from the following omissions: Isa. 63 2; Zech. 1 8 and Cant. 5 10; Gen. 34 1; Judg. 14 3 and Ezek. 17 17 (comp. v, § 539); Isa. 63 12; Eccl. 10 9 and Ps. 141 7; Ezek. 37 6, 8 and Job 10 11 (comp. s, § 128); Judg. 4 7; Ezek. 31 2 and Isa. 5 13 (comp. r, § 273). These omissions may largely be multiplied.

The remarkable feature in the four Lists is the fact that they all give the same ten examples for letter v, which begin with Vav; whereas according to the express statement in the heading, the design of this Massorah is to record the words which respectively occur three times, twice without Vav and once only with it. The only explanation which I can give is that driven by a desire to have all the letters of the alphabet represented and since letter Vav yields no proper examples, the Massorites resorted to these artificial means in order to complete the alphabetical List and indicated the difference in each case between the two instances and the one, by the two having Pathach or being with Vav conversive and the one being with Sheva or with Vav conjunctive. It will also be seen that three of the four examples which all the Lists give for v are with v. This is due to the fact that the Massorah treats these two letters as identical.

v. — The converse. An incomplete alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice with the prefix Vav and once without it. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, two in MSS. and three printed: (I) Orient. 1471, fol. 44a, on Josh. 11 21, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 15; (III) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 14; (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 39 3, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 7.

Lists I, II and III are identical. They record the same twenty-four examples in exactly the same order. Lists IV and V record twenty-five examples, giving an additional one for letter z, viz. Esther 2 8, 19 and Ps. 102 23. The alphabet is called incomplete (רלה) because six of the letters (r, s, t, v, z, s) are not represented. It will be seen that the same artificial device which the Massorites adopted in the representation of v in the preceding Rubric, they have also adopted in the three instances which represent this letter in the Rubric before us.

v. — Twelve words which begin with Vav respectively occur three times at the beginning of a verse, whereas they are without it in all the other Scriptures. That is, throughout the Scriptures when these expressions begin a verse they are normally without this prefix.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 312a, on Ps. 109 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 327b, on Job 17 15; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 105b, on Exod. 25 19; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 97; (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 173, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 22.

With the exception of the printed Massorah (List VI) all the Lists not only state in the heading that there are twelve such words only, but enumerate the same twelve. The printed Massorah, however, which also states in the heading that there are twelve enumerates thirteen, giving (Gen. 33 19; 47 20; 1 Kings 16 24) as the second group. But though this expression begins the verse in all the three passages, v, without the prefix Vav does not occur. And as the heading emphasises the fact that the words which constitute this Rubric occur again without this prefix at the beginning of the verse (וכל קרי לא נבחרו), there can be no doubt that a later Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah, added this expression which is not only in conflict with the heading, but with the scope of the Rubric. It will be seen that the catchwords for the third instance in which v occurs (Ps. 109 3) in the List which I have printed (List I), are furnished with an inverted Segol. This is frequently the case in the Massorah, especially of the splendid Model Codex Arund. Orient. 16, to indicate thereby that the Rubric in question is on the words thus distinguished.

v. — An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 16, which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 15, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 8.

List II records forty-six such groups or three more than List III, viz. one more in letter s (Exod. 36 5; Eccl. 6 11; Neh. 6 17 and 1 Chron. 8 40); one in letter n (Ezek. 27 19; Lament. 5 6; 1 Chron. 29 14 and Gen. 34 16) and one in letter m (Ps. 140 8; Lament. 3 43, 44 and Exod. 40 3). Whilst List III records forty-five or two more than List I, viz. one for u, 2 Sam. 3 21; Job 9 18; Cant. 3 2 and 2 Sam. 17 1 and one for z, viz. Job 38 3, which is also given in List II. All these Lists, however, only represent the instances which the respective compilers could find and are by no means intended to be exhaustive, as is attested by the fact that many more examples are to be found for each letter of this alphabet. Comp. Gen. 27 36; 33 11; Levit. 25 21 and Isa. 44 3; 2 Sam. 15 30; Jerem. 14 4; Esther 7 8 and Jerem. 14 3; Exod. 4 11; Levit. 19 14; Ps. 58 5 and Isa. 42 19; Ezek. 18 9; Ps. 85 14; Prov. 6 28 and 1 Kings 21 27; Exod. 20 26; Ezek. 16 57; Prov. 26 26 and Ezek. 16 36, (vide supra, letter v, § 148) and many others. Like all the other long Lists, the several links of this alphabet were at first collected separately and furnished with distinct headings. Later Massorites connected these into one chain. One member of this concatenation representing letter v with a separate heading which is preserved in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 28, I have given in Vol. III, p. 5. § 73.

v. — The converse. An incomplete alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times with the prefix Vav and once without it. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 17, which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 16, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 9.

Though the heading states that this Rubric consists of an incomplete (רילה) alphabet yet we were not prepared to find that seven letters only (א.ב.ג.ד.ה.ו.ז.ח.ט.י.כ.ל.מ.נ.ס.ע.פ.צ.ק.ר.ש) would be absent. For v, as usual, the Biblical text yields no example; but for four letters at all events (ג.ד.ה.ו.) there are certainly examples. Comp. (1) Jerem. 33 6; Ezek. 16 37; Nah. 3 6 and Jerem. 49 10; (2) Deut. 33 2; Isa. 58 10; Eccl. 1 5 and Isa. 60 1; (3) Isa. 10 23; 28 22; Dan. 9 27 and Dan. 11 36; (4) Isa. 13 21; Ezek. 17 23; Zech. 8 8 and Ps. 68 7. Yet all the three Lists record identically the same twelve examples only and in precisely the same order.

v. — An incomplete alphabet of words which respectively occur four times without the prefix Vav and once with it. This fragment, which exhibits three letters only of the alphabet in question, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 116b, on 2 Kings 23 22. The reason for its breaking off with ה is, as usual, to be found in the fact that the Nakdan could not exceed the number of lines assigned in this Codex to the Massorah.

7. — An incomplete alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times without the prefix Vav and once with it. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 18, which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 17, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 10.

List I. — It will be seen that though the eighteen groups in this List extend from א to ע they give examples of ten letters only and that four letters (ג, ה, ו, ז) are not represented.

List II. — The portion of this List which corresponds to List I and which extends from א to ע records twenty-six groups. The nine new examples consist of one addition to letter ב, viz. Deut. 28 68; 1 Kings 22 50; Isa. 43 14 and Dan. 11 40; one to letter ה, viz. Exod. 5 23; 2 Kings 21 11; Ps. 74 3; Ruth 1 21 and Josh. 24 20; two to letter י, viz. Deut. 28 63; Isa. 62 5; Zeph. 3 17; Ps. 19 6 and Job 39 21; Exod. 13 17; Judg. 2 18; 1 Sam. 15 29; Ps. 110 4 and Jerem. 26 13; one to letter מ, viz. Deut. 11 14; 28 12, 24; Isa. 30 23 and Zech. 10 11; two to letter נ, viz. Isa. 57 10; Jerem. 2 25; 18 12; Job 6 26 and 1 Sam. 27 1; Josh. 14 1; 17 6; Jerem. 16 19; Prov. 14 18 and Exod. 32 13 and two to ע = ש, viz. Deut. 28 63; 30 9; Isa. 64 4; Ps. 119 162 and וקש Isa. 66 14; Ezek. 17 4, 5; Ps. 81 6; 105 21 and וקשו Levit. 6 3. And it omits one example for ל, viz. Ezek. 1 23, 23, 23; 42 9 and זכח Zech. 5 9.

List III. — Though like List I, this List also records eighteen groups, it differs from the former in the following respects: It omits letter ב, but gives an additional example for letter י, viz. which is also given in List II, and has one for letter נ, viz. which is also given in List II, but which in this List (III) is wrongly placed after ו.

7. — This part of the alphabet which gives an additional example for letter ע and the concluding letters of the alphabet, is to be found in List II only. Many other examples may easily be added to the several letters which constitute this alphabetical List.

7. — An alphabetical List of two combined words which are respectively without the prefix Vav and are misleading. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the readings in these passages against the Codices which exhibited the prefix Vav before the first or second word in these combinations. The expression in the heading denotes the rejection by the predominant School of textual redactors of the alternative or extra-official readings which obtained in the Codices of the less dominant School and which they indicated by the term כתיב (vide supra, letter א, § 742). On referring to the notes in my edition of the Bible on Numb. 8 4; Josh. 1 14; 1 Sam. 9 10; 2 Sam. 5 4; 2 Kings 5 23; Isa. 5 12; 61 10; 63 1; Habak. 3 4, 11; Ps. 115 1; 1 Chron. 5 16 &c. it will be seen that the ancient recensions exhibited the prefix Vav in most of the passages which constitute this Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 18a, on Gen. 27 33, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 60a, on 2 Sam. 5 4; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 248a, on 2 Kings 4 42; (IV) the same MS., fol. 367b, on Isa. 58 8; (V) the same MS., fol. 387a, on Habak. 3 11; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 287b, on the same passage; (VII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 31; (VIII) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 30, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 11.

With the exception of List VIII which adds another example for ו, viz. Neh. 9 17, all the Lists coincide in giving the same twenty-four examples in precisely the same order. It is, however, to be observed that in this alphabet the words which are without the Vav are arranged in alphabetical sequence. As it is not always the first of the two words in which the Vav is absent, the alphabetical order is sometimes represented in the second word. Thus in וקשו וקשו and וקשו וקשו which stand before וקשו, it is the second words i. e. וקשו and וקשו which exhibit the order because they are without the required Vav and hence rightly precede וקשו. The same is the case with וקשו וקשו and וקשו וקשו which follow וקשו or letter מ. Here וקשו which represents ו and וקשו which represents ו are without the Vav and hence rightly follow מ and precede ע. The only disturbance in the alphabetical order are וקשו וקשו and וקשו וקשו, since it is וקשו which is without the required Vav and represents ו which ought to precede וקשו. Yet with the exception of List VIII, which is a later form of this Rubric, all the Lists exhibit this order. It will be seen that for ו the List which I have printed gives וקשו וקשו which fixes וקשו to be without the Vav. This is also given in Lists V, VI and VIII. But Lists IV, VII and IX give וקשו וקשו. Lists V, VII and IX add וקשו in the heading which describes this alphabet as incomplete. As the only letter which is not represented is Vav, this expression must refer to its absence, though Vav hardly ever yields an example. It is remarkable that Lists III, IV and V give for וקשו וקשו the catchwords וקשו וקשו 1 Sam. 9 5 instead of וקשו וקשו 1 Sam. 9 10.

7. — For this Rubric see letter א, § 653. וקשו וקשו which occurs in the MS., is manifestly a mistake for וקשו.

ע"ח = § 78.

7. — Sixteen pairs of words both of which are without the prefix Vav and are severally unique in this combination. In all other instances where this combination occurs, the second word is normally with the prefix Vav. Comp. Gen. 7 21; 8 17; 9 18 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 252, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 32. Though the latter also states in the heading that there are sixteen such pairs, it records fifteen only. It omits two, viz. וקשו וקשו (Gen. 10 1) and וקשו וקשו (Josh. 14 12) and gives one וקשו וקשו 2 Chron. 31 5 which is not in List I. Both headings, however, are incorrect and are the addition of a later Nakdan who fixed the number at sixteen to coincide with the instances enumerated in the Rubric. This is attested by the fact that the very next Rubric gives some which are here omitted, viz. וקשו וקשו (Levit. 11 19); וקשו וקשו (Ezra 7 17); comp. also וקשו וקשו (Exod. 1 2).

7. — Five pairs of words respectively occur twice, in one instance both are without the prefix Vav and in the other both are with this prefix. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 251, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 94b, on Levit. 11 19, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 34. List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric, is still without a heading and does not fix the number of the pairs, though it records the same five.

7. — An alphabetical List of pairs of words, the first word of which is with the prefix Vav and which are severally without this prefix in all the other Scriptures. That is, in all other parts of the Scriptures where these two words are thus combined the first word of this combination is without the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 47a, on Exod. 19 18, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 316b, on Ezek. 17 18; (III) the same MS., fol. 436b, on Job 1 1; (IV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 32; (V) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 31, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 2. This Rubric is incorporated in the Variations given in the editio princeps of Bomberg's Rabbinical Bible, Venice 1517. Here it is treated under the title וקשו וקשו and is not arranged alphabetically. Though it records sixteen of these pairs, thirteen only are identical with those given in the alphabetical Lists and the following three are new: וקשו וקשו (Numb. 34 18); וקשו וקשו (Ezek. 37 22) and וקשו וקשו (Numb. 35 30).

7. — Words beginning with the prefix Vav and combined with Jehovah which respectively occur once only. The four fragmentary Lists marked § 81a-d exhibit the first attempts made by the different Massorites to collect the words beginning with the prefix Vav which are followed by the Tetragrammaton and which in this combination occur once only. These incipient catalogues again show the gradual expansion of what afterwards became long Lists which later Nakdanim furnished with headings or subscriptions and catchwords.

Fragment I. — This fragment, which is marked 81a and which, records six instances, is from Orient. 2849, fol. 107a, on Numb. 10 34. The first example is incorrectly given here, since וַיָּבֹאוּ occurs twice and belongs to the Rubric which records the two instances of words beginning with Vav and followed by the Tetragrammaton where it is rightly given. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 83.) וַיָּבֹאוּ the sixth example is altogether a mistake, since the combination with the prefix Vav does not occur. וַיָּבֹאוּ without the prefix, which does occur (Gen. 24 44), is outside the scope of this Rubric. It is probably a clerical error for וַיָּבֹאוּ 1 Kings 14 15.

Fragment II. — This fragment, which is marked § 81b, and which records ten examples, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 120b, on Isa. 19 21. וַיָּבֹאוּ the second example, is against the design of this Massorah which is to register the unique instances with the prefix Vav and is manifestly a mistake for וַיָּבֹאוּ Isa. 53 1.

Fragment III. — This fragment, which is marked § 81c and which registers eight examples, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 119b, on Deut. 11 23.

Fragment IV. — This fragment, which is marked § 81d and which records twenty-two, or more properly twenty-one such examples, is from the same MS., viz. Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 47a, on Jerem. 25 4. It will be seen that וַיָּבֹאוּ is recorded twice, both as the twelfth example and the twenty-second.

Besides these four incipient Lists I have also collated three others in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445: (I) on Exod. 12 23, fol. 53b, which records twelve examples; (II) fol. 54a, which gives sixteen examples, and (III) on Numb. 14 3, fol. 132a, which also catalogues sixteen examples. With the exception of the few mistakes which I have pointed out in Fragments I, II and IV, all the instances both in those which I have printed and in the three in Orient. 4445, are embodied in the following developed List.

ו. — Words beginning with Vav and combined with Jehovah all of which have no parallel in the Scriptures. Of this expanded Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 181b, on Deut. 30 3, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 152; (III) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 187, and (IV) the printed Massorah, on Judg. 1 1 in the outer square enclosing the first word of the book.

It will be seen that List I has no heading, but adds a subscription at the end which often serves as a heading, indicating the import of the Rubric, and that it records forty instances. List II, which records the same forty instances, is already furnished with a heading fixing the number at forty (הרבה מן הן). (הרבה מן הן) as well as with catchwords. Here, however, the twenty-sixth instance, is manifestly a clerical error for וַיָּבֹאוּ (Zech. 8 3), as is evident from the faulty catchwords וַיָּבֹאוּ, List III records identically the same forty instances as List I and is furnished with a much better heading than List II (מ' מן הן) וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה הוֹשִׁיעַנו וְהוֹשִׁיעַנו לַיְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ וְהוֹשִׁיעַנו לַיְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ. Though List IV also states in a somewhat different heading (מ' מן הן וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ) that it contains forty such examples, it records forty-one adding וַיָּבֹאוּ (Isa. 40 8). But as וַיָּבֹאוּ also occurs in Ps. 37 9 it is in conflict with the import of this Massorah, which records unique instances. It is manifestly the addition of a later Nakdan who was misled by the various reading in Isa. 40 81.

ו. — Words followed by Jehovah which respectively occur twice, once without the prefix Vav and once with it. This fragment which exhibits the first attempt to collect these combinations and which records two such pairs only, is from Orient. 2849, fol. 107a, on Numb. 10 84. The second pair are incorrect, since וַיָּבֹאוּ occurs many times, whilst the design of this Massorah is to record unique combinations with the Tetragrammaton. Another incipient List, recording seven of these pairs, I have found in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 48b, on Exod. 6 8. They are identical with those incorporated in the expanded List § 82b.

ו. — Eleven words which respectively occur twice are unique. That is, they are followed by the Tetragrammaton and in this combination are once without the prefix Vav and once with it.

Of this expanded Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 37b, on Exod. 6 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 280a, on 1 Kings 14 14; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 287b, on the same passage, (IV) the same MS., fol. 349a, on Isa. 19 21; (V) the same MS., fol. 365a, on Isa. 51 9; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 152; (VII) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 186, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 107.

Though all the eight Lists coincide in giving eleven pairs only, yet List II omits וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ, the fifth pair, and gives in its place וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ (Zech. 8 2). As Lists II, III and V have no headings and do not fix the number of these pairs, this additional pair does not conflict with any others which may still be found belonging to the same category.

The five Lists which are furnished with headings materially differ in their respective wording, and thus afford a striking proof that they emanate from different Massoretic Schools. Besides the unmeaning heading of List I, which I have printed, List IV heads it וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ, which admirably states the import of this Rubric. List VI heads it וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ, which is less intelligible, because of the absence of וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ. The same is the case with List VII which heads it וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ. Though expressed in different words List VIII, like List IV properly indicates the design of this Massorah, viz. וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ. The mere exhibition of these variations is enough to show that they are the compilations of different Massorites.

ו. — Nine words which begin with the prefix Vav and are followed by Jehovah respectively occur twice. That is, in contradiction to the pairs recorded in the preceding Rubric which in this combination are once only with the prefix Vav.

With the exception of List V all the Lists coincide in stating in their respective headings that there are nine such pairs and in recording the same nine examples, only that List II gives the third pair (וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ) twice, which is manifestly due to a clerical oversight. The printed Massorah, however (List V), states in the heading that there are eleven such pairs (ואת) and duly records eleven, adding וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ (Exod. 9 4; Deut. 28 59) and וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ (Deut. 28 11; 30 9). This would seem to indicate that the headings of all the other Lists which are from MSS. of different Schools of Massorites and from countries far apart, are wrong and that the number was added to agree with the instances enumerated in the respective Rubrics, or that in the case of the two pairs recorded in List V, this Rubric was based upon Codices which exhibited וַיָּבֹאוּ or וַיָּבֹאוּ after the verb and not וַיָּבֹאוּ. It is also to be remarked that List V enumerates the first eleven instances in which this combination occurs with their respective catchwords separately and the second with their catchwords separately and not in pairs.

The headings of the different Lists again show that they emanate from different Massoretic Schools. Of List I the heading is וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ; List II is headed וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ; List III is headed וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ; List IV is headed וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ and List V is headed וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ.

ו. — Pairs of words which respectively occur twice only, once with the prefix Vav before the second word and once without it before both words. This Rubric is from Add. 15,451, fol. 86a, on Exod. 39 18. The heading I have supplied, since the Rubric in the Massorah is without a heading. In the Massorah Parva, however, on the same folio on וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ it is stated that there are eleven such pairs, yet the Rubric itself records fifteen. Even if we deduct the thirteenth pair, for וַיָּבֹאוּ וְהַיָּהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ does not occur in the textus receptus, we have still fourteen and the conflict between the Massorah Magna and the Massorah Parva on this passage remains. It will be seen that the instances are restricted to the Pentateuch.

ו. — Pairs of words which respectively occur twice only, once without the prefix Vav before the first word and once with this prefix before both words. The two incipient Lists marked § 85a, and § 85b, the one recording seven pairs and the other five, are (I) from Orient. 2849, fol. 80b, on Gen. 3 18, and (II) from the same MS., fol. 33b, on Gen. 9 18. A still more ancient fragment which registers seven pairs, is given in Orient. 4445, fol. 114a, on Levit. 26. They exhibit the earliest attempt to collect the instances which belong to this category and in this respect are interesting to the study of the gradual development of the Massorah.

י. — Thirty-six pairs of words which are alike and which occur twice only, once with the prefix Vav before both words and once without this prefix before the first word. This Rubric is from Add. 15,451, fol. 392b, on Zech. 8 10. According to the heading, which fixes the number of these pairs at thirty-six, this List professes to register all the instances which belong to this category. That it records twenty-eight only, is due to the fact that the space allotted in this Codex to the marginal Massorah does not admit the rest of the Rubric and hence the Nakdan had to break off in the middle of the twenty-eighth pair. The remaining eight instances, however, the Nakdan has recorded in another part of the Massorah.

י. — Pairs of words which respectively occur twice only, once without the prefix Vav before the first word and once with this prefix before both words. This Rubric is from the same MS., Add. 15,451, fol. 457b, on Neh. 5 10. On collating this List with the former it will be seen that it records the eight instances which are wanted in § 85c to make up the thirty-six pairs. They are in this List Nos. 4, 6, 7—11 and 13. It often happens that when the Nakdan had to break off in the middle of a Rubric the rest of the List is contained in another part of the Massorah. Though it records twenty-one pairs there are really twenty only, since Nos. 3 and 21 are duplicates.

י. — Fifty pairs of words which respectively occur twice only, once with the prefix Vav before both words and once without this prefix before the first word. This developed Rubric, which is already furnished with catchwords, is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 33. Though the heading emphatically states that there are fifty such pairs, the Rubric itself records forty-eight only. It is in conflict with § 85c where it is distinctly stated that there are thirty-six pairs. Whether this discrepancy is due to the compiler of Rubric 85e having been more successful in collecting the different incipient Lists and connecting them into one chain, or whether it arises from the fact that the two Rubrics are based upon different redactions of the text which exhibited various readings, it is now difficult to determine.

The pairs which are wrongly transposed in Jacob b. Chayim's List I have corrected, but the blundering catchwords I have indicated by asterisks that they may testify to the oft-repeated statement that they cannot always be relied upon, having been supplied by later Nakdanim.

י. — Four groups which respectively occur three times in the same Section, are in the first instance without the prefix Vav and in the second and third instances with this prefix. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the various readings which obtained in other recensions and which exhibited the Vav, as will be seen from the notes on Levit. 25 25 in my edition of the Bible and in the Septuagint on Isa. 43 12; 44 8; Ezek. 38 6.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 178b, on Levit. 25 25, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 111b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 112a, on Levit. 25 35; (IV) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 239, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 37. List IV states in the heading that there are three such groups only (שלוש) and records three, omitting the third group (שלוש) which is due to the fact that the compiler of this Rubric could find this number only. List III, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, not only records identically the same four groups, but adds at the end that this Rubric is from the celebrated Codex Mughah (מגוה).

י. — Four groups which respectively occur three times in the same Section are in the first instance with the prefix Vav and with- out it in the second and third instances. The design of this Massorah, which records the converse phenomenon, is the same as that of the preceding Rubric, as will be seen from the notes on Jerem. 5 29; 9 8; Job 38 3.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS., and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 81b, on 1 Kings 7 18, which I have printed; (II) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 240, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 40.

י. — Six groups which respectively occur three times in the same Section are with the prefix Vav in the first and the second instances and without it in the third instance.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 102b, on 2 Kings 7 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 141a, on Isa. 51 11; (III) the same MS., fol. 193b, on Ezek. 40 36; (IV) the same MS., fol. 304b, on Ps. 80 20; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 204b, on 2 Kings 7 1; (VI) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 241, and (VII) the printed Massorah, on Ezek. 40 36.

י. — Pairs of words which respectively occur once only with the prefix Vav before both words. The design of these Lists is to record those combinations only in which the first word is abnormally with the prefix Vav.

The five fragments marked § 89a-e, which do not occur in the printed Massorah, are respectively: (I) from Orient. 2349, fol. 97b, on Levit. 25 44; (II) the same MS., fol. 101b, on Num. 3 46; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 49b, on Exod. 17 12; (IV) the same MS., fol. 54a, on Exod. 24 21, and (V) the same MS., fol. 65b, on Exod. 33 25. To these I have now to add three more incipient Lists from the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, which I have found since the publication of Volume I and which I shall here give as Nos. VI, VII and VIII in order to identify them in the collation. Fragment VI, which records ten instances, is on Gen. 46 9, fol. 37a; VII, which records twenty-six, is on Exod. 30 9, fol. 73a, and VIII, which records twelve, is on Levit. 25 44, fol. 112b. These incipient Lists exhibit the first attempts on the part of the Massorites to collect the instances which belong to this category and which were afterwards grouped together into one catalogue. Their relation to the fully-developed Rubric will be discussed in the analysis of the following List.

י. — Seventy-four pairs occur once only with the prefix Vav before both words. Of this fully-developed Rubric, which I have not found in any MS. I collated two Lists, both printed: (I) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 253, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 31. In the collation of these two Lists with each other and with the eight MS. fragments I take List I, which I have printed, as the standard and describe the variations from it according to the numerical sequence followed therein.

List II. — This List which states in the heading that there are sixty-two such examples (שנים ושלשים ושתיים) records sixty-five, so that the heading and the contents are in conflict. This is probably due to the fact that a later Nakdan added three more instances which he was able to find and did not alter the heading. As to its contents it gives five instances which are not in List I, viz. (1) וְאֵשׁ אֶתְּחַד 1 Sam. 27 11; (2) וְאֵשׁ אֶתְּחַד 2 Kings 22 1, but as it also occurs in 2 Chron. 34 1 it is contrary to the scope of this Massorah; (3) וְאֵשׁ אֶתְּחַד Josh. 13 11; (4) וְאֵשׁ אֶתְּחַד (1 Chron. 7 7) and (5) וְאֵשׁ אֶתְּחַד Gen. 18 11, and omits no fewer than fourteen, which are recorded in List I, viz. Nos. 6, 15, 23, 24, 26, 31, 33, 41, 42, 46, 47, 53, 62 and 69.

Fragment I. — Though this fragment records five instances only, it gives one which is neither in List I nor List II, viz. וְאֵשׁ אֶתְּחַד Ezek. 45 25.

Fragment II. — This fragment, which catalogues four instances, gives the same new one as fragment I.

Fragment III. — This fragment, which records ten instances, also gives one which is not contained in Lists I and II, viz. וְאֵשׁ אֶתְּחַד Deut. 14 18. As the first instance in this incipient List occurs twice, it does not belong to this category.

Fragment V. — Records thirty-two instances, three of which are not given in List I. One is in List II, viz. וְאֵשׁ אֶתְּחַד and two are new, וְאֵשׁ אֶתְּחַד 2 Chron. 11 13, and וְאֵשׁ אֶתְּחַד 2 Kings 10 33

Fragment VI. — All the ten instances recorded in this ancient fragment are given in Lists I and II. At the end of this incipient List the Massorite added ל' מלן .

Fragment VII records twenty-six instances, three of which are not in List I, viz. (1) וְקָטַל וְיִצְחָק Levit. 26 1; (2) וְאֵשׁ וְאָקֵה which is also given in List II and Fragment V, and (3) $\text{וְנִלְכָּד וְיִלְכָּד}$ which is also contained in Fragment V.

Fragment VIII, which records twelve instances, gives the same three which are not in List I, but are in Fragment VII.

The result of this analysis shows that the longest catalogue (List I), which gives the number at seventy-four, does not exhaust all the instances which belong to this category. The explanation which Frensdorff gives for the omission of these instances (Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Notes p. 50 &c.), that the design of this Massorah is not simply to record the unique instances in which the first word in this combination has the prefix Vav, but those only which occur again without this prefix, is not sustained by a careful examination of all the passages and is certainly precluded by the contents of the most ancient incipient Lists.

ז' . — Nine verses are alike in having respectively four words at the end of the verse. That is, in these verses the same word occurs twice with one word intervening and one ending the verse, thus making four, and the repeated word is abnormally without the Vav conjunctive. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 217a, on Zech. 1 18, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Though List I states in the heading that there are nine such instances, it enumerates eight only. List II, which also records eight verses, states in the heading that there are eight only ($\text{ח' שְׁמוֹת מְבוּרָה מִיֵּשׁב וְעִמָּה רַחֵם אֱלֹהֵינוּ בְּעַצְמוֹ}$). The two Lists, however, do not give the same eight instances. The former omits Ps. 46 11 and the latter 2 Sam. 7 8. The addition of נִרְמָה in the heading of List I is important, inasmuch as it defines the import of this Massorah by restricting these instances to the end of the verse and thus accounting for the omission of $\text{בְּיִצְחָק וְקָטַל}$ (2 Sam. 5 2), $\text{אֶרְצָתְךָ אֶת־אֶרְצֹתְךָ}$ (2 Sam. 7 7) &c.

ז' . — Nine verses are alike having four words which are without the prefix Vav. Of this form of the Rubric I collated two Lists, both in MSS.: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 295a, on Ps. 45 7, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 85 on the same passage. Though the heading of this Rubric, which is exactly the same in both Lists, states in which these nine verses are alike i. e. in the absence of the Vav conjunctive, it omits to define the position of the four words in question and thus leaves the import of this Massorah uncertain. Both Lists record the same nine verses in exactly the same order. By the inverted Segols on the catchwords for Ps. 45 7, the Nakdan indicates that the Massorah in the MS. is on this passage.

ז' . — Twelve verses are alike, they respectively begin with a word without the prefix Vav, which is repeated with one expression only intervening and which is unlike the one at the beginning of the Verse, inasmuch as it is with the prefix Vav. That is, in twelve instances a word which begins the verse without the Vav conjunctive, is immediately repeated with it, one word only intervening between the reduplication.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 118b, on Deut. 10 21, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 291b, on Jerem. 34 19; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 40b, on Gen. 38 25; (IV) the same MS., fol. 270b, on Deut. 10 21; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, fol. 9a, margin, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז' , § 42.

Though five of the six Lists state in their respective headings that there are twelve such verses, two only (Lists I and VI) record this identical number in precisely the same order. Lists III and IV give ten, omitting Hag. 2 8 and Eccl. 1 4. List II states in the heading that there are eleven such verses only. It omits two (Ps. 60 9; Eccl. 1 4) and makes up the eleven by giving as No. 2 $\text{אֶל־עֲבָדֶיךָ הָאֱלֹהִים הָאֵלֶּים}$ (Gen. 31 58) which belongs to this category, though none of the other Lists give it. This unquestionably shows that these Rubrics emanate from different Massoretic Schools and are based upon different reconstructions of the text. The different wording of the respective headings accentuate this fact. Besides the complicated heading of List I which I have printed, List II has it $\text{סְמוֹת דְּרִישׁוֹן קְרָמָה דְּמַסְמֵק וְהַלָּה יֵּשׁבֵהוּ}$

ז' . — Eight words are unique in that they respectively occur twice in the middle of the verse with one word only intervening first with the prefix Vav and then without this prefix. This Massorah records the converse of the phenomenon registered in the preceding Rubric. Here the reverse is the case. The reduplicated words are not only in the middle of the verse, but have the prefix Vav in the first instance and are without it in the second. That this Massorah is designed to militate against various readings will be seen from the notes on Isa. 45 14 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 10b, on Gen. 19 4, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, fol. 9a, margin where it is given as the converse (מְבוּרָה) of the preceding Rubric, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז' , § 43. The heading of List II indicates the import of this Massorah more explicitly, viz. $\text{ח' דְּרִישׁוֹן כָּאֲשֶׁר מַסְמֵק מִבְּיַד מְבוּרָה מִבְּיַד מְבוּרָה}$.

ז' . — Eight verses in which the same word occurs twice, once at the beginning of the verse and once immediately after with one expression only intervening and both are with the prefix Vav. In this respect, therefore, this Massorah differs from Rubric 91 where the first of the duplicate which begins the verse is without the Vav conjunctive.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 123b, on Zech. 7 6, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 46 7. List II rightly omits the second list וְהַלָּה מִן־עֵד Numb. 31 20 because וְהַלָּה occurs twice more in this verse, and correctly gives in its place וְהַלָּה מִן־עֵד Exod. 26 13. List III, which also omits the Numbers passage, records seven instances only, though it states in the heading that there are eight.

ז' . — Thirteen verses in which the same word occurs twice in the middle of the verse, with one expression only intervening and both are with the prefix Vav. The phenomenon which the preceding Rubric records with regard to the reduplication at the beginning of the verse this Massorah registers as occurring in the middle of the verse.

On examining the passages which constitute this Rubric, it will be seen that in some instances the duplicate expression is redundant, whilst in others various readings are exhibited in the Codices of the less dominant Schools of textual redactors, as is shown in the notes on Esther 4 16, and 2 Chron. 8 9 in my edition of the Bible. The design of the Massorah, therefore, is to militate against these variations. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 273a, on Esther 4 16, which I have printed, and (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 20 6.

ז' . — Twenty-eight verses in which the same word occurs twice with one expression only intervening and both words are with the prefix Vav. The design of this Massorah is to record all the instances in the Bible in which the same word is repeated with one expression only intervening, and in which both the words have the prefix Vav, irrespective of the position which this reduplication occupies in the several verses. Hence this register necessarily includes the three Rubrics which are designed to indicate the position which these reduplications occupy in the several verses. (§§ 93, 94 and 96.)

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 385b, on Nah. 1 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 73a, on Levit. 7 24; (III) the same MS., fol. 256b, on 2 Kings 14 26; (IV) the same MS., fol. 889b, on Ezek. 48 22, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז' , § 44.

It is remarkable that though all the four MS. Lists state in their respective headings that there are twenty-eight such instances, Lists I and II record twenty-nine, whilst Lists III and IV record twenty-seven. Moreover, List II omits the third instance, viz. אָבִי שָׁרָה וְאִמִּי (Exod. 35 9) and makes up this number by giving יְהוָה יִשָּׁרָה וְיָשָׁר (Gen. 9 18) which none of the other Lists give. The absence of the last two instances in Lists III and IV, which reduces the number to twenty-seven, is manifestly due to the fact that the space allotted to the Massorah was exhausted. It is in Jacob b. Chayim's Rubric (List V) where the confusion arises. It states in the heading that there are thirty-five such verses (הָיוּ מִן הַלֵּב נְסִיחַ וְכִלִּי) and it records twenty-five only. Of these the following three are not contained in any of the MS. Lists: (1) וּבִן לִי וּבִן רֵעִי Gen. 13 8; (2) וְהָרַשְׁתָּ עִקְ הָרִשָׁי אִבְנֵי 2 Sam. 5 11, and (3) וְיָשָׁר וְיִשָּׁר וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר 2 Kings 17 36, whilst the seven or rather the eight verses which form the first part of the MS. Rubric are entirely omitted. This exclusion is manifestly due to the fact that these verses constitute a separate Rubric (vide supra, letter v, § 93); but why the compiler of Jacob b. Chayim's List did not for the same reason omit the middle thirteen and the last eight verses which also constitute separate Rubrics (vide supra, letter v, § 94 and infra, letter v, § 96) and why he did not indicate this exclusion in the heading, but left the puzzling number thirty-five (לֵב) it is difficult to divine.

In comparing the contents of these five Lists we obtain the following results. The four MS. Lists record thirty such verses; the printed List adds three new ones, whilst all the five Lists omit two which belong to this category, viz. וְהָרַשְׁתָּ עִקְ הָרִשָׁי מִתּוֹ Exod. 26 13 and וְהָרַשְׁתָּ קִיר הָרִשָׁי עִצִּים 1 Chron. 14 1. Putting these together we actually have the thirty-five mentioned in the heading of List V. Though the puzzling heading of Jacob b. Chayim's List (V) may thus be explained, I can suggest no solution of the different headings in the printed Massorah by which it is referred to. On Gen. 19 26 it is described as כִּהָּ מִסֵּוּר רִמֵּי and on 2 Sam. 21 20 as לִיכֵּי פְסוּקִים.

7. — Eight verses are alike, the same words occur twice with one expression only intervening, at the end of the verse and both words have the prefix Vav. The phenomenon which § 93 records with regard to the reduplication at the beginning of the verse, this Massorah registers as occurring at the end of the verse.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, all in MSS.: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 43b, on Jerem. 19 1, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 132a, on Numb. 13 23; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 38a, on 1 Sam. 6 5; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 148b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 248b, on Jerem. 19 1; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 183a, on 1 Sam. 6 5, and (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 209a on Numb. 13 23.

With the exception of List II all the others state in their respective headings that there are eight such verses and record identically the same eight. List II, however, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, not only heads it י פְסוּקִים רִמֵּי מִסֵּוּר מִלֵּה וּמִסֵּוּר מִתּוֹ וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר but records seven, omitting the last instance, viz. Prov. 26 10, which is probably due to the various reading in this passage, as will be seen in the notes in my edition of the Bible.

Since the publication of the Massorah I found a Rubric in this ancient Codex (Orient. 4445, fol. 67b), on Exod. 23 13, recording nine verses in Exodus in which the same word occurs twice, once at the beginning of the verse and once in the middle, both having the prefix Vav. I give them in the order in which they are registered in the Rubric, as will be seen from the foot-note.¹ Exod. 36 13; 12 16; 34 22; 25 5; 35 7; 23 9; 31 5; 35 33; 23 16. The difference between this Rubric and § 93 is that the former fixes the precise position of the second word in the reduplication, whilst this Massorah does not fix its position; simply stating that it is the middle of the verse.

7. — Seven verses are unique, they respectively begin with a word with the prefix Vav, which is repeated without this prefix. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the various reading in Numb. 5 10, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this recension of the Rubric, which is not in the printed Massorah, but which is one of the oldest parts of this Corpus, I collated six Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 173a, on 1 Sam. 1 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 120b, on Numb. 4 16; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 111a, on Numb. 26 33; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 191b, on Numb. 4 16; (V) the same MS., fol. 194a, on Numb. 5 10, and (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement, fol. 132b.

Lists I, II, V and VI alone give the same seven instances in practically the same order. List III states in the heading that there are six such verses (י פְסוּקִים) and not only records six, but omits two instances, viz. Ezek. 34 24; 40 18, which are given in Lists I, II and V. It however makes up the six by giving Numb. 26 33 (יִשָּׁר וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר) which the other Lists do not record. List IV also states in the heading that there are six such verses only and omits 1 Sam. 1 7.

7. — Twelve verses which respectively have the same word twice, once at the beginning of the verse with the prefix Vav and once in the middle of the Verse without the Var. This expanded List I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Numb. 4 16. Though it records five more instances than the preceding List, it omits Numb. 26 33, which is given in List III of the shorter recension.

צ"ח = § 98.

7. — In fifteen verses the same word occurs twice, once at the beginning of the verse with the conjunctive Vav and once at the end of the verse without the Var. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 274a, on Esther 7 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 86b, on Exod. 32 16; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 76b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 22 48.

Lists I and IV alone give identically the same fifteen instances: whilst Lists II and III record sixteen, adding וְהָרַשְׁתָּ עִקְ הָרִשָׁי מִתּוֹ Exod. 26 24. The heading, therefore, v, of these two Lists must be a mistake for v.

7. — Twelve verses respectively begin with the same word which is repeated twice in the middle of the verse and all the three words are without the conjunctive Vav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated seven Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 91a, on Numb. 9 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 119a, on Zeph. 2 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 136a, on Isa. 40 24; (IV) the same MS., fol. 215a, on Zeph. 2 2; (V) the same MS., fol. 374b, on Ezra 4 15; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 450a, on the same passage, and (VII) Orient. 2349, fol. 106b, Numb. 9 22.

With the exception of List II, all the other Lists state in their respective headings that there are twelve such verses and apart from List III, which by a clerical error omits Zeph. 2 2 and Ezra 4 15, record identically the same twelve instances. List II, however, heads this Rubric י פְסוּקֵי בְּקִיר and duly records fourteen, adding וְהָרַשְׁתָּ עִקְ הָרִשָׁי מִתּוֹ viz. Prov. 6 10 and 24 33, which none of the other Lists give.

7. — Ten verses in which respectively the same word occurs three times, in the first and second instances it is without the conjunctive Vav and in the third it is with the conjunctive. On referring to the notes in my edition of the Bible, on Deut. 17 8; Jerem. 34 17; Obad. 13 and Neh. 9 6 it will be seen that the design of this Massorah is twofold. It is in the first place to militate against the various readings which some recensions of the text exhibited and in the second place to exclude the textual reading or Kethiv in Neh. 9 6.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 4710-11, Vol. I, fol. 123a, on Deut. 17 8, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 41a, on Gen. 49 31; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 37a, on Gen. 49 31; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 66b, on Exod. 3 2, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 48.

All the MS. Lists emphatically state in their respective headings that there are ten such verses and they all coincide in enumerating the same ten only. Jacob b. Chayim's List, however, states in the heading that there are eleven such verses (יא פְסוּקֵי) and records twelve. The two additional ones are

¶ — In ten verses the same word respectively occurs three times, the first and third time it is without the conjunctive Vav and the middle one is with the Vav; three of these instances begin a verse and seven are in the middle of the verse. It will be seen that the Rubric is divided into two parts; the three instances in which the first word of these triplets begins the verse are given in the first part and the seven are recorded in the second part. For the sake of perspicuity, however, I have united the two headings into one in the translation. Of this entire Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 5b, on Gen. 9 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 7a, on Gen. 9 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 23b, on Gen. 31 53, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Isa. 49 21.

List II heads it וה מוקד and records seven only, omitting Gen. 31 53; 1 Sam. 12 5 and Jerem. 14 12. List III, which is headed וה מוקד ויהי, registers eight only. It omits three, viz. 1 Sam. 12 3, 5, and Isa. 49 21; whilst it adds וה מוקד ויהי Jerem. 9 22, which is neither in List I nor List II. It is remarkable that whilst List IV like List II is headed וה מוקד it records twelve such instances, adding וה מוקד ויהי Judg. 13 23 which is not in the other Lists and וה מוקד ויהי which is also given in List III. It is, therefore, evident that the heading of List III belongs to the recension of this Massorah which is exhibited in List IV. The catchwords וה מוקד ויהי in the printed Massorah (List IV) are a clerical error for וה מוקד ויהי Josh. 20 6.

The three verses which constitute the first part of the List which I have printed (List I) are also given in the Massorah as a separate Rubric. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 156b, on Jerem. 14 12; (II) the same MS., fol. 307b, on Ps. 92 4; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 29b, on Gen. 31 53; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Jerem. 14 12, and (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 31 53. As these three verses respectively occur in the Law, the Prophets and the Hagiographa, Lists III and IV add at the end the mnemonic sign א"ק.

The notes on 1 Sam. 12 3; Isa. 49 21, and Jerem. 9 22 in my edition of the Bible clearly show that the design of this Massorah is to exclude the various readings which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors with regard to these passages.

¶ — In eight verses the same word respectively occurs three times, the first which begins the verse is with the conjunctive Vav and the second and third are without the Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 4b, on Gen. 6 19, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 36 17, and (III) the same on Ezek. 41 24. Though List I states in the heading that there are eight such instances it records seven only. It omits Dan. 4 2, which is evidently due to the carelessness of the Scribe. List II heads the Rubric וה מוקד ויהי stating that there are five such verses and that the first of the triplet begins the verse. In accordance with the statement of the heading this List records five such verses only. It omits three which are in List I (Gen. 6 19; 1 Kings 3 13; 1 Chron. 24 20) and gives one (וה מוקד ויהי Dan. 4 22) which is omitted in List I. וה מוקד ויהי at the end of the catchwords for the first instance is manifestly a misprint for וה מוקד ויהי. Though List III also states in the heading that there are five such verses only (וה מוקד ויהי), yet it duly records all the eight, giving the Daniel instance which is also given in List II, but which is omitted in List I.

¶ — Eight verses in which the same word respectively occurs three times, the first and third are with the Vav conjunctive and the second is without it. The notes on Judg. 19 19 in my edition of the Bible show that the design of this Rubric is to militate against the Codices which exhibit variations with regard to the use of the conjunctive in these triplets.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 281a, on Dan. 6 5, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 156b, on Jerem. 14 12; (III) the same MS., fol. 307b, on Ps. 92 4; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 29b, on Gen. 31 53; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VI) the same on Judg. 19 19.

Contrary to the usual method of the Massorah, two only of the six Lists (Lists I, VI) are on the passages which constitute this Rubric, whilst four are given on verses outside this Rubric. This is due to the fact that in these four instances the Rubric is given on the three verses which form the first part of § 101 as the converse of it and hence are recorded on those passages.

ק"ד = § 104.

¶ — Six verses in which the same word respectively occurs three times, the first which begins the verse is without the Vav conjunctive whilst the second and third are with it. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter v, § 49. It will be seen that in the Proverbs passage the third is vav with Segol whilst the first and second are vav with Pathach.

¶ — In ten verses in the Scriptures a word respectively begins the verse with the conjunctive Vav and the same word is repeated twice also with the conjunctive Vav. That is, all three expressions, the one beginning the verse and the two in the middle of the verse are with the prefix Vav. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the various readings which obtained in other Codices with regard to some of these passages, as will be seen from the notes on Deut. 22 3; Obad. 12 and 1 Chron. 2 31 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric which I have found in the printed Massorah only, I collated two Lists: (I) on Ezek. 3 13, which I have printed, and (II) on Obad. 12.

¶ — Six verses in which the same word respectively occurs four times, in the first three instances it is without the Vav conjunctive and the fourth time it is with the Vav. This recension of the Rubric is based upon the Palestinian division of the Decalogue into ten verses. Hence what is in the current editions three verses in Exodus, viz. 20 3, 4 and 5 and three in Deuteronomy, viz. 5 7, 8 and 9, is according to this division respectively one verse only i. e. Exod. 20 3 and Deut. 5 7. For the reason of this division see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible p. 76 and vide infra, letter v, § 109.

¶ — Four verses in which the same word respectively occurs four times, in the first three instances it is without the Vav conjunctive and in the fourth it is with the Vav. Of this recension, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) the printed Massorah on Ps. 27 9, which I have given in Vol. III, p. 5, § 106b; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 60b, on Exod. 18 21, and (III) the same MS., fol. 60b, on Exod. 18 25. These three Lists coincide in giving identically the same four verses.

¶ — Seven verses are alike, they have respectively the same four words, which in the first, second and fourth instances are without variation, whilst in the third instance the word varies in form.

It will be seen that the variation, which consists in the presence of the Vav conjunctive in the third instance, applies to two of the seven verses only (Gen. 41 26; Isa. 30 16), and that in five verses the difference in the third expression consists in its form. Thus in Deut. 1 31 it is vav, whilst the other three are vav. In Josh. 21 15 the third instance is vav without the Vav conjunctive according to this Massorah and against the textus receptus, whilst in the other three instances in this verse it is vav with the Vav. In 1 Sam. 9 4 and Ezra 8 16 all the four expressions are with the Vav conjunctive and the difference consists in the third word alone being in the plural (vav) in the one verse and in the other passage where the same name occurs four times, it is the shorter form (לִקְרָא) in the third instance, whilst in the other three instances it is the longer form (לִקְרָאָה). In Ezek 48 16 the third alone has the prefix Mem (מִקְרָאָה) as well as the prefix Vav, whilst in the other three instances this expression in this verse is either without any prefix or is simply with the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,421, fol. 30a, on Gen. 41 26, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 80b; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 61b; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 51b, all on the same passage; (V) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 296, and (VI) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 41 26. List I and the ancient List II not only state in their respective headings that there are seven such verses, but record identically the same seven in exactly the same order.—Though Lists III and IV state in their respective headings that there are six such verses only, they record eight. They give וַיִּשְׁכַּב רַמְתָּה Gen. 41 27 as the first instance instead of וַיִּשְׁכַּב מִרְהַר Gen. 41 26, give the other six instances in the same order as Lists I and II and add an eighth, viz. מִמַּגְדַּל 1 Sam. 16 1, which is not recorded in Lists I and II. The remarkable part, however, in connection with these two Lists is the heading, which is as follows: וְיִשְׁכַּב מִן דְּמִלְכָּא בְּשֵׁי קִיָּם וְהִלְתָּא שׁוּרִי חֲנִי וְרִבְכָּא שׁוּרִי. This wrong heading is manifestly due to the fact that the first example here given is wrong, viz. Gen. 41 27, where the first and third are actually וַיִּשְׁכַּב and the second and fourth are וַיִּשְׁכַּב. Hence the Nakdan who took this verse as exhibiting the import of this Massorah, expressed it so in the heading. List V, which is headed מִיִּשְׁכַּב מִן דְּמִלְכָּא בְּשֵׁי קִיָּם וְהִלְתָּא שׁוּרִי חֲנִי וְרִבְכָּא שׁוּרִי, adds Isa. 31 1 (עַל קַל יָקַל עַל) which none of the MS. Lists record and which is manifestly the addition of a later Nakdan. List VI, which is also headed מִיִּשְׁכַּב מִן דְּמִלְכָּא בְּשֵׁי קִיָּם וְהִלְתָּא שׁוּרִי חֲנִי וְרִבְכָּא שׁוּרִי, makes up the eight by giving מִמַּגְדַּל 1 Sam. 16 1 which, as we have seen, is also given in Lists II and III. The fact that it is here מִמַּגְדַּל עַל יָקַל עַל shows that some Massorites took the expression בְּשֵׁי קִיָּם to denote not simply different in form, but different radically. The words which I exhibited as constituting the variations as well as two of the references attached to the catchwords in the Rubric, which I have printed, must be corrected in accordance with the explanation which I have given of the import of this Massorah.

י. — In six verses the same word respectively occurs four times, the first and second times without the Vav conjunctive and the third and fourth with the Vav. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Hosea 11 9.

י. — In five verses the same word respectively occurs four times, the first is without the conjunctive Vav and the other three are with the Vav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 81a, on Exod. 39 3, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 91a, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 80a, also on the same passage.

List II furnishes an important contribution to textual criticism. It will be seen that the third example given in this Rubric is based upon the division of the Decalogue into ten verses according to which the quadruple וְיָאָה וְיָאָה וְיָאָה וְיָאָה are all in one verse, viz. Deut. 5 17. But though the twofold division of the verses in the Decalogue is indicated in the Massoretic text by the double accents (vide supra, letter י, § 106a), we have not known that this was peculiar to one School of textual redactors. This, however, is now disclosed in List II where it is emphatically stated that this division is according to the Palestinians, viz. וְיָאָה וְיָאָה וְיָאָה וְיָאָה לא תרצה רשעה שהיא פסוקא חד למעריבא Babylonians.

י. — In twenty-eight verses in the Pentateuch the same word respectively occurs four times, first without the conjunctive Vav and then three times with it. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this form in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 119b, on Numb. 31 28, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 129b, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 118b, also on the same passage, and (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 216b, on Numb. 16 32.

Though all the four Lists emphatically state in their respective headings that there are twenty-eight such verses, they enumerate twenty-seven only. The missing verse is Exod. 31 7. The nineteen verses of this Rubric which refer to the particle וְיָאָה constitute a Rubric by themselves (vide supra, letter מ, § 1286).

י. — Eighteen verses are alike, they have respectively the same word four times, the first of the quadruple is without the conjunctive Vav and the other three are with the Vav. Whilst the preceding Rubric registers the verses in the Pentateuch alone, which belong to this category, the Rubric before us records the verses which occur throughout the Scriptures. The Massorah, however, excludes from this catalogue the nineteen verses in the Pentateuch which exhibit the same phenomenon with regard to the particle וְיָאָה, recorded in the preceding Rubric and which also constitute a Rubric by themselves. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 1285.)

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 144b, on Isa. 60 17, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 376b, on Ezra 7 22; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 82b, on Exod. 39 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 109b, on Levit. 23 38; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 86a, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 132a, on Gen. 39 3; (VII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement, fol. 133b, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 29.

With the exception of Lists II and VIII all the MS. Lists emphatically state in their respective headings that there are eighteen such verses (יִי מִיִּשְׁכַּב) and four of the Lists (III, IV, V, VI) record identically the same eighteen instances. When, therefore, List I records fifteen only, and omits three which are given in all the other seven Lists, viz. וַיִּשְׁכַּב מִן דְּמִלְכָּא בְּשֵׁי קִיָּם וְהִלְתָּא שׁוּרִי חֲנִי וְרִבְכָּא שׁוּרִי Numb. 3 27; וַיִּשְׁכַּב מִן דְּמִלְכָּא בְּשֵׁי קִיָּם וְהִלְתָּא שׁוּרִי חֲנִי וְרִבְכָּא שׁוּרִי Hosea 4 15 and וַיִּשְׁכַּב מִן דְּמִלְכָּא בְּשֵׁי קִיָּם וְהִלְתָּא שׁוּרִי חֲנִי וְרִבְכָּא שׁוּרִי Ezra 7 22, it is manifest that this omission is due to the carelessness of the Scribe. List II, which is from the same MS. as List I, states that there are seventeen such verses (יִי מִיִּשְׁכַּב) and records seventeen only, omitting Dan. 5 19 evidently because וְיָאָה occurs five times in this verse, twice without and three times with the prefix Vav (וְיָאָה וְיָאָה וְיָאָה וְיָאָה וְיָאָה). As it is given in the other six Lists, including the two from the oldest MS. (Lists II and III) it is evident that the Massorites of this School referred it to the whole phrase וְיָאָה וְיָאָה וְיָאָה וְיָאָה וְיָאָה which occurs four times in this verse, first without the prefix Vav and then three times with it. Though List VII also states in the heading that there are eighteen such verses (יִי מִיִּשְׁכַּב), it records fifteen only, omitting Ezek. 34 4; Dan. 5 19; 1 Chron. 6 56. But the omission is evidently a scribal error. We have still to consider the printed Massorah (List VIII), which states in the heading that there are twenty such verses (יִי מִיִּשְׁכַּב) and which records twenty. The two new ones are Numb. 35 5 and 1 Kings 7 5. As the verses in which the particle וְיָאָה occurs in the Pentateuch are excluded from this Rubric, the first of these additional two instances could only be admitted if we assume that it refers to the combination וְיָאָה וְיָאָה which occurs four times in the verse, first without the prefix Vav and then three times with it, which is the case with the Daniel instance. There is no difficulty about the second, viz. 1 Kings 7 2, which refers to וְיָאָה וְיָאָה וְיָאָה וְיָאָה. From their position, however, at the end of the Rubric it will be seen that they are out of order and that they are the addition of a later Nakdan who altered the ancient heading יִי into יִי to agree with the expanded number.

י. — Seven verses in which respectively four words occur, the first is without the conjunctive Vav and the other three are with the Vav. That is, in these verses four nouns which have the article He, immediately follow each other and three are exceptionally with the conjunctive Vav. In this respect, therefore, this Rubric differs from the preceding three Rubrics. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 85b, on Numb. 3 81.

י. — In three verses four words immediately follow one another, the first which begins the verse and the second are without the Vav conjunctive, whilst the third and fourth are with the Vav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 122a, on Numb. 35 15, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 121a, on the same passage. Though both these Lists state in their respective headings that there are three such verses only which begin a verse, and record three, there are four, the fourth instance is 1 Chron. 22 16. Hence the addition at the end of the following Rubric ד. מדר ראי מה.

א. — In fourteen verses four words immediately follow one another, the first and second are without the Vav conjunctive whilst the third and fourth are with this Vav four of these begin the verse.

The preceding Rubric records those instances only which begin a verse, whilst this Rubric registers all the verses in the Scriptures which belong to this category. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the abnormal absence and presence of the conjunctive in these combinations and thus to militate against the redactions which exhibit variations, as is attested by the notes on 1 Kings 2 3; Jerem. 2 26; 14 16; 1 Chron. 22 16 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 110a, on Numb. 35 15, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 45. The latter in very incorrect. Thus וקני ought to be מלכה 1 Kings 2 3; ובראה ought to be מלכה Jerem. 2 26; וקניתה ought to be מלכה 2 Chron. 3 7 and וירב משפט ought to be מלכה 2 Chron. 20 9.

א. — Eleven verses are unique, they respectively begin with a word which is with Vav conjunctive and which is immediately followed by three words also with this Vav. That is, in each of these verses the first four words are all with Vav conjunctive. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter א, § 46.

The last passage for which I have given the reference Jerem. 44 22 I have marked with an asterisk because it is simply the nearest approach, since the combination as given in this Rubric does not occur in the Bible. The expression וילקחה occurs only three times altogether (Jerem. 29 18; 42 18; 44 22) and in the first instance the phrase is וילקחה וילקחה וילקחה; in the second וילקחה וילקחה וילקחה; and in the third וילקחה וילקחה וילקחה. But these combinations do not exhibit four consecutive words with the Vav conjunctive, nor does any one of them begin the verse, conditions which are absolutely required by this Rubric. The last passage, therefore, as is not infrequently the case, must have been added by a later Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah and who accordingly altered the original in the heading into א. By fixing the number of these instances at ten, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the variation which obtained with regard to Josh. 15 32, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

א. — Five verses are alike in recording the same names, but vary in the letters. That is, in these five verses two in the Pentateuch and three in Chronicles, the same four names of the sons of Kohath are recorded in precisely the same order yet they differ with regard to the position of the Vav conjunctive. Leaving אמראם Amram, the first name which is necessarily without this conjunctive, the difference obtains with regard to three names. Thus in Exod. 6 18 and 1 Chron. 6 3, all the three names have the prefix Vav. In Numb. 3 19 the first and third have it. In 1 Chron. 5 28 the second and third have it; whilst in 1 Chron. 23 12 the third alone has it. On comparing the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text on Exod. 6 18 and the notes on Numb. 3 19 in my edition of the Hebrew Bible, it will be seen that the design of this Massorah is to militate against the variations which obtained in some ancient Codices with regard to these passages.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 60b, on Exod. 6 18, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 133a, on 1 Chron. 5 28; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 241a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 480a, on 1 Chron. 23 12; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 72b, on Exod. 6 18; (VI) the same MS., fol. 189a, on Numb. 3 19; (VII) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 288, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 6 18. Jacob b. Chayim (List VIII) omits Numb. 3 19 which is manifestly due to an oversight.

א. — A sign about the daughters of Zelophehad. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the promiscuous use of the conjunctive Vav in connection with the enumeration of Zelophehad's five daughters, which is given in four different verses. Leaving מחלה Mahlah, the first name which is necessarily without this conjunctive, this promiscuous presence and absence of the Vav is exhibited in the four names. Thus in Numb. 26 33 and Josh. 17 3 the second and fourth names have the prefix Vav. In Numb. 27 1 the third, fourth and fifth, whilst in Numb. 36 11 the order of the names is reversed and though here also the last three have the Vav they are not exactly the same names.

That the present position of the Vav simply exhibits the reading of one School of redactors and that the text of other Schools exhibited variations, is attested by the Model Codex No. 1-3 in the Paris National Library where the Massorah on מחלה Numb. 26 33 states that this is according to the Palestinians and that the Babylonians read it without the Vav (מן למשאמי במסר בכל הדעה). In Numb. 27 1 both the Samaritan recension and the Septuagint read וקח with Vav instead of וקח and in Josh. 17 3 several MSS. the Septuagint, the Syriac, the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1486; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488 and the third edition, Brescia 1494 read וילקח with Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 122b, on Numb. 36 11, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 147b, on Numb. 27 1; (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 103b, on Numb. 26 33; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 234a, on the same passage; (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 275; (VI) the printed Massorah on Numb. 26 33, and (VII) the same on Numb. 36 11.

The heading of List II, viz. ד. מדר רמב"ם is of importance. From the above analysis it will be seen that רמב"ם is undoubtedly the condemnatory expression of one School for another School and that the latter represents alternative readings of MSS. (Vide infra, letter א, § 742.) The mnemonic sign after each line consists of the initials of the respective names without and with the prefix Vav.

א. — In two verses the same word occurs five times, the first and fifth are without the conjunctive Vav whilst the three middle are with this conjunctive. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 117a, on Numb. 27 17, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 116a, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 236b, also on the same passage.

ק"ט = § 119.

א. — Six verses are alike in that they have respectively five words immediately following each other the first being without the Vav conjunctive and all the other four having this conjunctive. That the unnecessary conjunctive before all the four consecutive expressions was not exhibited in all the MSS. and that this Massorah, therefore, is designed to militate against the variations, may be seen from the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew on Deut. 14 26. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 121b, on Deut. 14 26, the very passage which required safeguarding.

א. — In Gen. 24 35 and 32 6 where Jacob's and Abraham's possessions are respectively described in almost similar language, not only does the order of the words vary but the position of the conjunctive Vav greatly varies. In the case of Jacob, where five expressions are used, two only are without the Vav (והוא and והוא), whilst in the case of Eliezer, who describes Abraham's possessions and where eight expressions are used, all but one have the prefix Vav. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the order of the words and indicates which of the expressions are with the prefix Vav. This Rubric, which is from Orient. 1379, fol. 84b, on Gen. 32 6, is not quite explicit. British Museum Orient. 2349 on the same passage is more distinct, viz. מה דודי לי שור חמור צאן עבד ושמה סימני שור צאן, אבימלך ואליעזר ונמלים וחמרים מימי צאן של שור נה. דודי לי שור שני קדחן ושני דומים אליעזר אלעזר בה כולחן וזין.

א. — In Gen. 12 16 and 20 14 Pharaoh's presents to Abram and Abimelech's presents to the same patriarch are described.

The List of the former consists of seven varieties whilst that of the latter contains four items. The shorter List as far as it goes, is contained in the longer which has three additional items. The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to safeguard the respective Lists against being made uniform, by indicating the several items in a mnemonic sign, but more especially to declare that with the exception of the first item all the expressions in both the longer and shorter Lists have the Vav conjunctive. The Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text and the Septuagint show that this Massorah militates against the variations which obtained in some Schools of textual redactors with regard to these two passages. This Rubric is from Orient. 1379, fol. 50a, on Gen. 12 16.

ו. — Five verses are alike in that they have respectively six words, the first, third and fifth of which are without the Vav conjunctive, whilst the second, fourth and sixth are with this Vav. That this promiscuous position of the Vav simply represents the readings of the predominant School of textual redactors and that the Codices of other Schools exhibited variations is attested by the notes on Exod. 35 16; 39 39 and Deut. 20 17 in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 58a, on Exod. 35 16, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 124b, on Deut. 20 17. It will be seen that these two Lists safeguard the passages in which there are the variations.

ו. — Three verses are alike, they severally repeat a word six times without the Vav conjunctive and the first instance begins the verse. That the abnormal absence of the Vav before all the expressions was not in all the Codices and that this Massorah is designed to militate against the redactions which exhibited variations will be seen from the notes on Exod. 22 8 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah I, § 159, margin, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 100b, on Exod. 22 8; (III) the same MS., fol. 171b, on Levit. 21 20, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 22 8.

ו. — In two verses where six words immediately follow each other the second and sixth alone are with Vav conjunctive, whilst all the others are without the Vav. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the variations which the redactions of other Massoretic Schools exhibited with regard to the position of the Vav in these two verses, as will be seen from the notes in my edition of the Bible. The safeguarding is all the more necessary since in the received text itself where the identical six gentile names are given, the position of the Vav conjunctive varies (comp. Deut. 20 17 with Josh. 9 1 and vide supra, letter ו, § 122).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160; fol. 242b, on Numb. 31 22, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The heading ought manifestly to be חתני ושימרה נכבי וי וכל שאריו לא נכבי וי.

ו. — In three verses where six words immediately follow each other the first two are without the Vav conjunctive and the remaining four are with the Vav. That this Massorah is according to the readings of the predominant School of textual redactors and that other Schools exhibited variations will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. 67a, on Levit. 7 37, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 68b, on the same passage. List I states at the end that two passages are added to this Massorah, viz. Judg. 3 5, and 1 Chron. 28 11 whilst List II, which also states in the heading that there are three such verses, omits 2 Chron. 18 7 and gives in its place 2 Chron. 28 1, which List I gives in the addition.² In the List which I have printed ב has accidentally dropped out before קריב.

2 ב פסוק ראית בחוק ו סליי ב קדמאי לא נכבי וסו וסופנתן וסח חחרת, וקחל דוד את כל שרי וקחל אלהינו וסח.

קכ"ז = § 126.

ו. — In three verses the seven Canaanitish tribes are given. For this Rubric see letter ז, § 634, Vol. II, p. 411.

קכ"ח = § 127.

ו. — In two verses where nine words immediately follow each other the first alone is without the Vav conjunctive, whilst the rest are with the Vav conjunctive. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 107b, on Numb. 32 3.

קכ"ח = § 128.

ו. — Forty-eight words respectively occur once only defective of Vav. That is, normally they are with Vav. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 28, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 14b, on Gen. 24 39; (III) the same MS., fol. 273b, on Deut. 12 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 281b, on 2 Sam. 22 5, and (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 481a, on 1 Chron. 26 24.

With the exception of the printed Massorah (List I) all the MS. Lists head this Rubric: the following words are unique with Vav defective (אלן בלז תהי ב חזדדא) without specifying the number. Lists II and IV record identically the same forty-seven instances in the same order as List I. They both register two new instances which are not in List I, viz. ברתל ישראל 2 Kings 11 15 וסחן ברתל ישראל 2 Sam. 8 13, וסחן ברתל ישראל 1 Chron. 26 24. List III records forty-three instances only, but this is due to the space assigned to the Massorah being exhausted. It, however, registers the two new instances given in Lists II and IV and omits the same three. List V records forty-six instances in the same order as all the other Lists. It gives one of the new instances (סחן Jerom. 31 21) and omits one of the three (סחן Prov. 30 1) omitted in Lists II, III and IV as well as two (סחן Zechl. 6 1; סחן 1 Chron. 5 6) which all the other Lists record.

The importance of this Massorah to the orthography of the text is as follows: (1) וסחן ברתל Isa. 16 5 is supported by Lists I, II, III and IV which give the lengthier catchwords סחן ברתל ברתל, thus showing that it is here defective and וסחן ברתל in Nah. 2 6, whilst List V alone has the catchwords סחן ברתל Nah. 2 6 which I have given as the alternative in List I; (2) וסחן ברתל is not וסחן ברתל Prov. 13 4, but וסחן ברתל Job 14 5, as is attested by all the four MS. Lists which give the catchwords וסחן ברתל. Accordingly the latter is defective and the former plene; (3) וסחן ברתל defective is 1 Chron. 6 4 which List I leaves uncertain, since the addition וסחן ברתל may either be 1 Chron. 6 4 or 1 Chron. 24 26, but which Lists II, III and IV leave beyond the shadow of a doubt by the addition of וסחן ברתל קריב וסחן ברתל, though List V gives this Massorah on 1 Chron. 24 26 and the Nakdan alters וסחן ברתל here into וסחן ברתל, and (4) all the Lists state that the reading in 1 Kings 9 9 is וסחן ברתל defective, in accordance with the Mugah Codex, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition. The alteration of וסחן ברתל, which is the heading of the MS. Lists, into וסחן ברתל in the printed Massorah (List I), is due to a later Nakdan and is incorrect, since there are more than forty-eight such instances, as is evident from Rubric 132.

ו. — An alphabetical List of defectives which respectively occur once only. This alphabetical List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 33 13. Whilst the preceding Rubric not only records words which are defective in one instance but which occur again as plene, this restricted alphabet is made up of defectives, irrespective of the fact whether they occur again as plenes or not. Hence ten of the letters in this alphabet are also given in the preceding Rubric and others again are here recorded which do not occur as plene, viz. וסחן ברתל &c. Four are defective of Yod and not of Vav i. e. those which represent He, Vav, Lamed and Shin, whilst those which represent Nun and Coph, viz. וסחן ברתל and וסחן ברתל defective, do not occur in the textus receptus. The first may either be a scribal error for וסחן ברתל (Jerem. 48 9) or וסחן ברתל (1 Sam. 10 5) and the second may be וסחן ברתל the infinitive in Ps. 32 9 which some Codices read without the Vav in accordance with וסחן ברתל Ps. 27 2. וסחן ברתל and וסחן ברתל are not represented.

ו. — An alphabetical List of defectives which respectively occur once only. This alphabetical List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 13 21. With the exception of letter Dalath all the alphabet is here represented. Four of the letters, viz. He, Samech, Resh and Tav represent words which are defective of Yod. $\text{יָרָא} = \text{יָרָא}$; (Jerem. 5 28) or יָרָא (2 Chron. 14 6), is plene in the textus receptus; whilst צָרַח occurs twice (Exod. 12 34; 2 Sam. 20 3). The examples, therefore, for Vav and Tzadi must be from Codices in which the first instance was defective and the second was plene in one of the two passages. It will be seen that two letters only (v and w) are here represented by the same examples which are given in the preceding alphabet, whilst four (viz. n, m, p and s) are registered in the long List of Rubric 128.

1. — An alphabetical List of words defective of Vav which respectively occur once only All these are unique expressions defective of Vav. This Rubric too, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 2 10. This third alphabet differs from the preceding two alphabets, which are from the same Codex, inasmuch as it consistently records those words only which are defective of Vav. It will be seen that (1) v and w are the only two letters unrepresented; that (2) two of the Letters only (m and n) are represented by the same examples as in the first alphabet; that (3) three letters (s, p and k) are the same as in the second alphabet and that (4) three letters only (m, n and p) are the same as in the List of Rubric 128.

ק"ל"ב = § 132.

1. — Proper names of persons which are defective of Vav. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 79a, on 1 Kings 4 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 387b, on Neh. 12 3; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 415b—416a, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 62.

The design of this Massorah manifestly is not only to record the proper names of persons, without and with prefixes, which are abnormally defective in one instance but which occur again plene in exactly the same form. Tested by this principle two out of the seven names with the prefix Vav do not belong to this category, since וְיִשְׂרָאֵל and וְיִשְׂרָאֵל plene do not occur. With regard to the orthography of the name וְיִשְׂרָאֵל or וְיִשְׂרָאֵל it will be seen from the notes on Esther 10 1 that this constitutes one of the differences between the Eastern and Western recensions of the text. Six of the names in this List are contained in Rubric 128, viz. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , וְיִשְׂרָאֵל and וְיִשְׂרָאֵל ; one (קִיָּה) is in the second alphabetical List (§ 130) and one (יִשָּׁר) in the third alphabetical List (§ 131).

Lists I and II record the same eighteen names in precisely the same order. List III records seventeen only, omitting קִיָּה the last name; whilst the printed Massorah (IV) which also registers the same seventeen and omits the same name, suffers from serious mistakes. Thus וְיִשְׂרָאֵל ought to be וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (1 Kings 4 19) and וְיִשְׂרָאֵל ought to be וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Neh. 2 19).

ק"ל"ג = § 133.

1. — The following proper names of persons respectively occur once only with Vav plene. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 106b, on Numb. 10 24. The design of this Massorah is not only to record the proper names ending in v and preceded by Vav which are unique in this plene form, but those only which occur again without the Vav. This is attested by the fact that וְיִשְׂרָאֵל is without the Vav in the other four passages where it occurs (Numb. 1 11; 2 22; 7 60, 65); וְיִשְׂרָאֵל occurs again without the Vav in Neh. 3 7 and the same is the case with וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Numb. 25 14). Hence וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Josh. 13 3); וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (1 Chron. 11 34); וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Josh. 13 8); וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Numb. 26 23); וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (1 Chron. 4 3); וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (1 Chron. 27 29) &c. are omitted; because, though being unique with this plene termination (v), they do not occur without the Vav. Tested by this canon we see that וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Numb. 10 29) is a clerical error for וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , the catchword Numb. 26 6 where וְיִשְׂרָאֵל with Vav preceding the termination v occurs, in contradistinction to וְיִשְׂרָאֵל without the Vav. We thus obtain the only four names ending in v with Vav plene, which occur again without the Vav.

ק"ל"ד = § 134.

1. — The following proper names of persons respectively occur once only with Vav in the middle of the word. That is, in these instances only are they plene, whilst in all other passages where they occur they are defective. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter v, § 62. As it includes וְיִשְׂרָאֵל it is evident that the design of this Massorah is to record all the names which occur once only with Vav plene, in contradistinction to the preceding Rubric which is restricted to those ending in v. But it also shows that it is incipient, since it does not give the other unique names with this termination.

1. — The following words are with Vav plene and without parallel. That is, these forms which are mostly participles and which are normally without Vav, respectively occur once only with Vav after the first radical.

Of this expanded form of the Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 26, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 79b, on Levit. 15 10, and (III) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 41 8. It will be seen that List I records twenty-five such instances. List II, however, registers twenty-seven. It omits וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Jerem. 4 14) and has three which are not in List I, viz. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Exod. 33 6); וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Levit. 15 10) and וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Isa. 66 3). It is remarkable that though List III, like List I, occurs in the printed Massorah it is not a duplicate. It omits three instances, which are recorded in Jacob b. Chayim's first List, viz. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל which, as we have seen, is also omitted in the MS. List; וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Nah. 1 2) and וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Zeph. 1 9) which are given in List II. It moreover records five which are not in List I, the three which List II gives and two new ones, viz. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Isa. 66 3), which it states is the third instance in this verse belonging to this category (וְיִשְׂרָאֵל), and וְיִשְׂרָאֵל 2 Sam. 24 12. But even this expanded recension is not exhaustive, as will be seen from the following two Rubrics.

1. — The following plene words are unique. This shorter recension of the same Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 300a, on Jerem. 46 25. It exhibits the first attempt to collect the anomalous forms which belong to this category and shows the method which the different Massoretic Schools adopted in elaborating the same materials. Though the School from which it emanates were able to collect twenty of these instances only, this Rubric records three which none of the expanded Lists of the preceding recension give, viz. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Ezek. 22 25) וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Amos 9 13) and וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Eccl. 1 5). That these Rubrics are designed to militate against the variations exhibited in other redactions of the text will be seen from the notes on Isa. 66 3; Jerem. 46 25; Ezek. 4 9; Amos 9 13 etc. in my edition of the Bible.

1. — An alphabetical List of words with Vav plene which respectively occur once only. As is usually the case with these alphabets, this is simply a selection from a large number of words which severally occur once only with Vav plene. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) which I have printed and have mislaid the reference to the MS. from which I have taken it, and (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 33 8.

On collating the two Lists the following differences are disclosed (1) in List I the letter n is not represented, whilst List II represents it by וְיִשְׂרָאֵל Hab. 1 13, which excludes the Kethiv וְיִשְׂרָאֵל in Prov. 22 11. (2) for וְיִשְׂרָאֵל List II gives two examples, the one in List I and also וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Ps. 103 4). (3) for וְיִשְׂרָאֵל List II gives וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Ps. 130 8) instead of וְיִשְׂרָאֵל in List I, and (4) for וְיִשְׂרָאֵל List II has twice וְיִשְׂרָאֵל (Gen. 2 4; Ruth 4 18) instead of וְיִשְׂרָאֵל with the prefix Vav (Neh. 9 13). The second וְיִשְׂרָאֵל in List II is manifestly the addition of a later Nakdan who found that this plene expression occurs twice. The remarkable feature in both Lists is the fact that they give for וְיִשְׂרָאֵל the expression וְיִשְׂרָאֵל Esther 4 11, thus showing that they are based upon a recension of the text which exhibited וְיִשְׂרָאֵל without the Vav in 2 Chron. 16 12.

1. — Eight words respectively occur twice in Exodus, once defective and once plene. For this Rubric see letter n, § 400, Vol. II, p. 214.

ק"ל"ט = § 138.

1. — The following words respectively occur twice, once with Pathach and once with Vav. That is, they severally occur in the same section or connection and are in the first instance a feminine noun singular in the construct or in Massoretic terminology without Vav, and in the second with Vav or the plural in the absolute. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the variations which obtained in some Schools of textual redactors with regard to Pa. 53 7; Cant. 5 13, and 6 2, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Orient. 1471, fol. 134a, on 1 Sam. 31 12, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 75a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 203b, also on the same passage, and (IV) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 207.

קליט - The following words have q superfluous Vav and are with Chateph-Kametz. That is, in these thirty-three words which are in the text or Kethiv read with Vav and Cholem (ל), the official reading or Keri cancels the Vav altogether as superfluous and substitutes Chateph-Kametz or Kametz. This, however, represents the reading of the dominant School of textual redactors only. Other Schools exhibited in two thirds of these instances either no Vav at all or no various reading with regard to the Vav (= ל); whilst in three instances at least the presence or absence of the Vav (ל or ך) constituted differences between the Eastern and Western recensions (Ezek. 44 8; Ps. 101 5; Ruth 4 6). This is attested by the notes on Deut. 12 13; 1 Sam. 25 31; Isa. 18 4; 44 17; 58 14; Jerem. 1 5; 23 8; Ezek. 21 28; 43 8; Hosea 8 12; Amos 7 8; 8 2; Micah 1 3; Neh. 1 3; Ps. 10 15; 89 29; 101 5; 145 8; Ruth 4 6; 1 Chron. 7 34; 18 10, in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ך, § 30. With the exception of Ezek. 21 26, which Jacob b. Chayim wrongly gives instead of Ezek. 21 28 of the same chapter, the List is perfectly correct. The addition of קליט in the heading i. e. that these words are with Chateph-Kametz, is against the majority of the Standard Codices where they are simply with Kametz. It must, therefore, be taken as representing a minority of textual purists.

קמ"ב - Fourteen words are respectively written with two Vavs. That is, two Vavs following each other in the middle of the word.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 59b, on Exod. 37 8, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 80b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 250b, on 2 Kings 7 9; (IV) the same MS., fol. 284a, on Jerem. 25 27; (V) the same MS., fol. 461a, on Neh. 9 14; (VI) the same MS., fol. 478b, on 1 Chron. 21 8; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 132b, on Exod. 39 4; (VIII) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 184; (IX) the printed Massorah on Exod. 39 4, and (X) the same on Esther 4 8. These ten Lists exhibit two recensions of this Massorah.

Recension I. - The oldest form of this Massorah is that exhibited in Lists I and II. According to these Lists there are fourteen such instances and though List II heads this Rubric with קמ"ב and records eleven, the addition at the end with קמ"ב makes up the number fourteen which List I registers in detail.

Recension II. - Lists III-X exhibit the second recension. They coincide in ignoring the three instances in which קמ"ב is written with two Vavs, but differ in their respective headings. Lists III, V-VIII state in their respective headings that there are twelve such instances (קמ"ב) and record twelve, whilst Lists IV, IX and X state that there are thirteen (קמ"ב) and duly record thirteen. The קמ"ב in the heading of List X is manifestly a mistake for קמ"ב, since it records thirteen and is identical with List IX. Those which record twelve add קמ"ב (2 Kings 23 4) which is not in the oldest recension (Lists I and II) and those which record thirteen add also קמ"ב (1 Sam. 20 1).

On referring to the notes on Exod. 37 8; 39 4; 1 Sam. 20 1; 1 Sam. 25 18; Isa. 3 16; Jerem. 25 27 in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that these words are the subject of textual and official variations or Keri and Kethiv. Pinsker in his Einleitung in das Babylonisch-Hebräische Punktationssystem p. 122 &c., has shown that some of the variations constitute differences between the Eastern and Western recensions of the text. In my edition of the Bible I have followed the oldest recension of this Massorah, which exhibits no variation on 2 Kings 23 4.

קמ"א - The following words respectively occur twice, once with Vav and once with Yod. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the variations exhibited in other Schools of textual redactors, in Josh. 2 14; Pa. 59 10; Prov. 4 21; Ezra 2 50, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Orient. 1879, fol. 247b, on Num. 3 9, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 111a; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 101a, and (IV) Orient. 5404, fol. 100a, all on the same passage.

קמ"ב - Four words respectively occur twice, once with Vav and once with Yod. That is, these expressions severally occur in the same section or connection with this variation.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 194b, on Num. 5 18, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 94a, on Num. 3 9; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Gen. 4 18; (IV) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 237, and (V) the printed Massorah on Num. 8 16.

A close analysis of these Lists shows that they proceed from different Massoretic Schools.

List I. - This List states in the heading that there are four such pairs (the ך is a misprint for ך) and duly records four only.

List II. - Though this List also states in the heading that there are four such pairs (ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ) and duly registers four, yet the four are made up differently. It omits ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ (Numb. 3 9; 8 16) and gives ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ (Josh. 2 14, 20) as one of the four pairs.

List III. - This List not only states in the heading that there are eight such pairs (ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ) but records eight. It gives the four recorded in List I as well as the pair ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ of List II and adds two new ones, viz. ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ and ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ (Numb. 1 16; 26 9) both of which are according to the official reading or Keri; ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ and ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ (Josh. 15 19; Judg. 1 15 and ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ and ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ (Josh. 15 19; Judg. 1 15).

List IV. - This List states in the heading that there are six such pairs (ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ), but records five only. It gives the four of List I and adds ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ which are also given in Lists II and III.

List V. - This List states in the heading that there are seven pairs (ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ) and registers seven. It gives the four in List I, also gives the pair ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ given in Lists II, III and IV, and makes up the seven by two new pairs which are not recorded in the other four Lists, viz. ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ and ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ (Zeph. 1 18; 3 8); and ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ and ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ (Prov. 3 21; 4 21).

קמ"ג - An incomplete alphabetical List of words which are respectively written with Vav in the middle and are read with Yod. That is, these words are in the text or Kethiv with Vav for which the official reading or Keri substitutes Yod in the margin. The design of this Massorah is to record those words only which occur once with Vav instead of Yod. Hence the words which occur more than once exhibiting the same peculiarity, are here excluded. They are given in separate Rubrics. (Vide infra, § 144 and § 145.)

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah and is already given in a very corrupt form in Sopherim 7 4, I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 26a, on Gen. 39 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 151a, on Jerem. 6 7; (III) the same MS., fol. 287a, on Ps. 17 17; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 501a, on 2 Chron. 26 21; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 72; (VI) the editio princeps of the Rabbinical Bible, Venice 1517, Vol. II, at the end; (VII) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 81, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 6.

With the exception of List IV, which records a limited alphabet of thirty-two words, all of which are contained in List I, the other six Lists register two instances which are not given in List I, viz. ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ (2 Kings 24 15) and ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ (Ezek. 4 15). There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that the omission of these two expressions is due to the carelessness of the scribe. This is confirmed by the fact that the fragmentary List, marked § 143a, which is from the same MS. (Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 5b, on Gen. 8 17) gives ך וּמִן בְּנֵי בְרַעַשׁ. There are thus seventy-five instances altogether. Lists II, III, V, VI and VIII record identically the same seventy-five examples in practically the same order. List VII, however, records eighty. Besides the two which are omitted in List I but which, as we have seen, are given in the other Lists, it registers five which none of the other Lists give, two for ה, viz. הַיָּרֵד = הַיָּרֵד (1 Sam. 30 24); הַקְּשִׁיּוֹת = הַקְּשִׁיּוֹת (2 Kings 23 4); one for ל, viz. לְמַלְיָי = לְמַלְיָי (Neh. 12 14); one for ע, viz. עָרְיָם = עָרְיָם (Isa. 30 6) and one for צ, viz. צָלוּל = צָלוּל (Judg. 7 19). The first two are marked by Frensdorff as later additions.

List VI, which exhibits the first printed form of this Massorah and which, as we have seen, coincides in giving the same seventy-five examples as are recorded in the MS. Lists, suffers from the following printers errors, nearly all of which are in the catchwords; מִשִּׁי for מִשִּׁי Jerem. 6 7; מְלִיכָה for מְלִיכָה Nah. 2 6; גִּיל for גִּיל Prov. 23 24; הַבְּעִיר for הַבְּעִיר Zech. 11 2; לָקַח for לָקַח Ezra 8 17; אֵלֵי for אֵלֵי Jerem. 25 7; לְמַלְיָי for לְמַלְיָי Ps. 74 11; הַיָּרֵד for הַיָּרֵד 1 Sam. 18 6; הַיָּרֵד for הַיָּרֵד 2 Sam. 3 15; הַיָּרֵד for הַיָּרֵד Neh. 10 20 and הַיָּרֵד for הַיָּרֵד Jerem. 48 4.

Lists IV, V, VII and VIII add the expression יָדוּת incomplete, in their respective headings. This is due to the fact that five of the letters, viz. ז, ט, כ, מ and נ are not represented in this alphabet. The notes in my edition of the Bible on the respective expressions which constitute this Massorah, show the variations in the MSS. and early editions with regard to these textual and official readings or Kethiv and Keri.

ו, ה. — Five words respectively occur twice written with Vav in the middle for which the official reading is Yod. That is, in these expressions the official reading substitutes Yod for the textual Vav.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 96a, on Numb. 16 11, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 135a, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 246a, on 1 Chron. 12 19; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 399a, on Ps. 9 19; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 90b, on Exod. 16 7; (VI) the same MS., fol. 215a, on Numb. 16 11; (VII) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. I, § 123; (VIII) Paris Ochl. Ve-Ochl. I, § 139, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 19.

In List I we have another example of two separate forms of a Rubric being combined into one. The first form, which is the older of the two, consisted simply of the words which are the subject of the Keri, whilst the second gave the catchwords only. A later Nakdan, however, as is not infrequently the case in the Massorah of this Codex, combined the two into one Rubric. In the printed Massorah (List IX) the two examples of קָמַי are wrongly given as קָמַי. It is to be remarked that this Rubric is according to the Eastern recension of the text. According to the Westerns there are six such pairs, since they have קָמַי as Kethiv and קָמַי as Keri in Job 24 4 which forms a pair with Amos 8 4, as will be seen from the notes in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

ו, ה. — Two words respectively occur three times with Vav in the middle for which the official reading is Yod. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, two in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 23b, on Gen. 36 5 where it is given as the converse of ו, § 26, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. I, § 125; (III) Paris Ochl. Ve-Ochl. I, § 141; (IV) the printed Massorah on Job 39 12, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 21. These two groups also constitute two separate Rubrics in letter ו, viz. § 189, and § 190. (Vide infra, Vol. II, fol. 610.)

קָמַי = § 146.

ו, ה. — Eighteen words are defective of Vav at the end of the word. That is, in the text they are without the suffix, but in the official reading or Keri they are supplied with the Vav. It will be seen that in fourteen instances the respective verbs are in the singular in the Kethiv and that the Keri directs us to read them as plural.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated eighteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following eight only, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 172b, on Judg. 21 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 39a, on 1 Sam. 7 9; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 32b, on Gen. 43 28; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 50b, on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. I, § 105; (VI) Paris Ochl. Ve-Ochl. I, § 119; (VII) the printed Massorah, on 1 Kings 1 1, in the square enclosing the first word and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 18.

Though all the Lists emphatically state in their respective headings that there are eighteen such instances and record identically the same examples, the List in Sopherim 7 1, which exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric, does not as yet specify the number, but simply says the following words are written without Vav (אֵלֵי כוֹרְבָן חֶסֶר אֵי) and enumerates thirteen only. It omits יָרַע, one אָרְרִי and the three instances of יִשְׁתַּחֲוֶה. But even the expanded number must simply be taken as typical instances. Both אָרְרִי and יִשְׁתַּחֲוֶה constitute separate Rubrics. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 318 and infra, letter ש, § 306.)

ו, ה. — Eleven words are respectively written with Vav at the end which is not read. That is, in the text they are with the plural suffix according to the Kethiv or textual reading which the Keri or the official reading cancels.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated eleven Lists, nine in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 143a, on Josh. 9 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 140b, on Josh. 6 7; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 183b, on 1 Sam. 15 16; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 4a, on Josh. 6 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 108b, on 2 Kings 14 13; (VI) the same MS., fol. 110a, on 2 Kings 16 15; (VII) the same MS., fol. 197a, on Ezek. 46 9; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 381a, on Neh. 3 15; (IX) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. I, § 106; (X) Paris Ochl. Ve-Ochl. I, § 120, and (XI) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 12 3.

Though List XI, like all the MS. Lists, distinctly states in the heading that there eleven such instances only, (יָא מִלֵּן כוֹרְבָן) yet it records thirteen. The two additional ones are (בְּמִן חֶסֶר וְלֹא כִרְיָן) Judg. 8 22, which is יָאָרְרִי according to the extra-official reading, and (אֵלֵי חֶסֶר אֵי אֵלֵי חֶסֶר אֵי) Esther 9 23, which is יָאָרְרִי without the suffix in the textus receptus, but which is with the suffix in several MSS., as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that either Jacob b. Chayim or some Nakdan added these two passages because according to some Codices, they belonged to this category, though none of the MS. Lists include them and though they are in conflict with the heading of the List itself. The List in Sopherim 7 1, which does not specify the number of these instances, is very corrupt. It is to be added that the three instances in which יָאָרְרִי is officially read, יָאָרְרִי, constitute a separate Rubric. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 389.)

ו, ה. — Eight words are written with Vav at the end for which the official reading or Keri substitutes He. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 77b, on Levit. 21 5, where it is given as the converse of ו, § 49, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 2 24; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32a, on Judg. 19 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 370a, on Dan. 7 8; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 413a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. I, § 97; (VII) Paris Ochl. Ve-Ochl. I, § 115, and (VIII) the printed Massorah, on Dan. 5 5.

The design of this Massorah is to militate against the Babylonian recension of the text which has לְהַשְׁכִּיחַ, with the suffix third person singular masculine in Judg. 19 3, without the Keri לְהַשְׁכִּיחַ, with the suffix third person feminine which is the official reading of the Palestinians. As List II, which is from the so-called Babylonian Codex, coincides with the other seven Lists in giving this passage as one of the eight instances which are officially read with He at the end, we have here another proof that this Codex does not exhibit the Babylonian recension.

ו, ה. — Nineteen words in the Hagiographa are respectively written with Vav at the end for which the official reading or Keri substitutes Yod. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 278a, on Dan. 3 19, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 309b, on Ps. 102 24, and (III) the same MS., fol. 366b, on Dan. 3 19.

The ה in the heading is manifestly a clerical error for ה" = 19. This is attested by the fact that the Rubric itself records nineteen instances, as well as by the headings of the other two Lists which have ה" and which record the same nineteen words in identically the same order.

ה" - Forty-four words are respectively written with Fav at the end for which the official reading or Keri substitutes Yod. Whilst the preceding Rubric records the instances in the Hagiographa only, which belong to this category, this Rubric registers all the words in the whole Bible which exhibit the same peculiarity.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS., and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 115a, on Deut. 5 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 189a, on Isa. 47 18; (III) the same MS., fol. 201b, on Hosea. 8 12; (IV) the same MS., fol. 315a, on Pa. 119 79; (V) the same MS., fol. 379a, on Ezra 10 87; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 285b, on Ezek. 1 8; (VII) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah I, § 120; (VIII) Paris Oohlah Ve-Oohlah, § 186; (IX) the printed Massorah, on 1 Sam. 1 1 in the square enclosing the first word, and (X) the same on Jerem. 1 1 also in the square enclosing the first word.

As six of the MS. Lists (II-VII) emphatically state in their respective headings that there are forty-four instances (מ"ד מלת) and duly record this number and moreover as List I, which I have printed, also records the same forty-four words only and in identically the same order, there can hardly be any doubt that the ה" in the heading of this List is a clerical error for ה"ד. But though these headings coincide in stating that there are forty-four and in giving identically the same number and the same words, they practically give forty-eight. This apparent discrepancy is due to the artificial Massoretic method of counting all the instances as one which occur in the same book, section or verse, belonging to the same category. Hence Jerem. 51 84, where there are five instances in the same verse and where Lists III, IV, V, VII, IX and X have ה"ד ב"ה or ה"ד ב"ה after the word מאלט or after מאלט בלעט, is counted as one.

List VIII heads this Rubric מ"ז מלת and records forty-seven which is due to resolving the Massoretically one instance in Jerem. 51 84 into five. It, moreover, gives ד"ג Isa. 16 8 instead of ד"ג against all the MS. Lists and gives ח"ט Josh. 6 9 at the end of the Rubric as an instance apart from the Massorah (ולכד ספסריה).

List IX is headed מ"ה מלת. As it records forty-five, of which forty-four are identical with the MS. Lists and one is the Joshua instance given in List VIII as outside this Massorah, it is evident that the מ"ה is a clerical error for מ"ד.

List X. — Though this List is simply headed מ"ן מלת רחוב ו"י, without fixing the number, it records identically the same words in the same order as the MS. Lists.

As all the headings distinctly state that the design of this Massorah is to register those words only which end in Fav according to the Kethiv, but which according to the Keri end in Yod, ק"ט 2 Sam. 12 9 and ק"ל 1 Kings 5 17 are manifestly against the import of this Rubric, since both these expressions retain the Fav at the end and the Yod is inserted before the Fav, viz. ק"ט and ק"ל.

ק"א - Words written with Fav at the end which are with Yod defective in Avamaic. That is, these eight preterites third person plural are without the Yod after the graphic sign Chirek, in contradistinction to those forms which have the Yod when the second radical is with Chirek. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Dan. 3 22.

קנ"ב-קס"ז - § 152-167.

ק"ב - Words which respectively occur once only ending in Fav. The different links which constitute this incomplete alphabetical chain I collated from sundry MSS. They are specified under the respective fragments.

קנ"ג - § 152a-b.

ק"ג - The two fragmentary Lists, recording the unique words ending in Fav preceded by Aleph, the one registering fourteen instances and the other four, are respectively from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 332b, on Job 33 21 and Vienna Codex

No. 85 on Numb. 8 21. On referring to § 153, it will be seen that there are altogether about 135 such examples.

Of words ending in Beth Fav, Gimel Fav and Daleth Fav, which respectively occur once only, I have as yet not found any fragmentary Lists, though the unique forms are as follows: ב 146; ג 40 and ד 189 times.

ק"ד - The nine incipient Lists of words ending in Fav preceded by He, exhibit the first attempts made by the different Schools of Massorites, to collect the forms with the suffix third person singular masculine which respectively occur once only. They are from the following MSS.:

(I) the first fragment, which is marked § 153a and which gives nine examples, is from Orient. 2849, fol. 49b, on Gen. 37 14. I have also given it under the words beginning with Fav י"ד which respectively occur once only. Vide supra, letter י, § 15d; (II) the second marked § 153b containing nine, is from the same MS., fol. 51a, on Gen. 40 23; (III) the one marked § 153c, which registers six, is from the same MS., fol. 51b, on Gen. 41 14; (IV) the one marked § 153d, giving seven, is from the same MS., fol. 58b, on Exod. 2 10; (V) § 153e, which records sixteen instances, is from the same MS., fol. 60a, on Exod. 15 2. It will be seen that this List gives two examples of words terminating in ה which are proper names, viz. ח"ה 1 Chron. 24 21 and ח"ה 2 Chron. 20 37; (VI) § 153f which records eleven words, is from the same MS., fol. 141b, on Deut. 32 10. This List also includes two proper names, viz. ח"ה 1 Chron. 12 6 and ח"ה which is also given in § 153e; (VII) § 153g, which records five words only, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 29a, on Judg. 14 17; (VIII) § 153h giving nine instances, is from the same MS., fol. 30a, on Judg. 16 16, and (IX) § 153i, which also records nine, is from the same MS., fol. 165a, on Jerem. 28 10.

To these are to be added the fragmentary Lists of unique words which end in ה but which uniformly begin with ח. These the Massorah formulates in different Rubrics which are given above in letter ח, § 15e-g.

ק"ה - Words which end in Fav preceded by He and which respectively occur once only. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finals only, letter ה, § 38. From the fact that it includes the proper name ח"ה (2 Chron. 22 10) it is evident that its design is to record indiscriminately the unique words ending in ה whether this termination is the suffix third person singular masculine or not. But though it registers thirty-two such instances it is simply to be regarded as a larger fragment than the preceding incipient Lists. This is evident from the fact that there are upwards of 350 expressions with this ending which respectively occur once only, as will be seen from letter ח, § 168.

Of words ending in Var Fav and Zayin Fav which respectively occur once only, I have not as yet found any fragmentary Lists, though the unique forms are as follows: ז 11 and ז 37.

ק"ו - Words ending in Fav preceded by Cheth which respectively occur once only. The design of this Massorah is to record those words only in which the Fav is with Cholem (ח) or is practically the suffix third person singular masculine, in contradistinction to the 101 instances in which it is ח, normally the suffix third person plural.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 107a, on Numb. 10 36; (II) Orient. 2848, fol. 117a, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 108a, also on the same passage. Though all the three Lists record identically the same fifteen instances and in exactly the same order, yet this Rubric simply exhibits the first attempt to collect the unique words ending in ח. This is evident from the fact that there are altogether about thirty-five expressions which belong to this category and that no less than twenty are not registered, as will be seen from ח, § 168. ח"ה (Numb. 10 36) with He, is the textual reading or Kethiv, whilst the official reading is ח"ה with Fav. (Vide supra, letter ח, § 47.) Hence its inclusion here. For ח"ה = ח"ה Deut. 13 14 which List I exhibits, Lists II and III have ח"ה Josh. 6 1. This is in accordance with the design of the Massorah which registers the unique expressions ending in ח.

קניח. — Words ending in Vav preceded by Teth which respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 235b, on 1 Kings 20 33. Its design is to record those words only which end in ו with Shurek or with the suffix third person plural, in contradistinction to ו with Cholem or the suffix third person singular. The List is simply a fragment, since there are altogether about 60 words ending in ו which respectively occur once only. (Vide infra, letter י, § 168.) Its interest consists in the fact that it exhibits the Eastern recension of 1 Kings 20 33, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible and in the Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Bible pp. 158, 438.

Of words ending in Yod Vav I have not as yet found any fragmentary List. As there are upwards of 400 such expressions (vide infra, letter י, § 168) it may be that the Massorites were deterred from giving any register which would far exceed the marginal space allotted in MSS. to the Massorah.

קניח. — Words ending in Vav preceded by Caph which respectively occur once only. This fragment, which records three examples only, is from Cambridge Add. 1174 on Exod. 9 32. The incipient state of this first attempt to record the unique words ending in ו will be understood when it is stated that there are more than 120 expressions which belong to this category. (Vide infra, letter י, § 168.)

קניח = § 157a—d.

קניח. — Words ending in Vav preceded by Lamed which respectively occur once only. The four incipient Lists, marked § 157a—d are from the following MSS.: (I) marked § 157a which records fifteen instances, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 30a, on Gen. 2 1. As the trilateral ו with Dagesh in the Lamed, stands for two different forms each of which is unique, viz. ו with Pathach under the first radical, being the Piel imperative masculine plural (Exod. 5 18) and ו with Kametz, being Pual preterite third person plural for ו (Ps. 72 20), and moreover as this List is without catchwords, it is impossible to say whether the sixth or the thirteenth instance is intended for one or the other. At all events one of these two ought to be printed ו and the reference should be Exod. 5 18; (II) List II marked § 157b, which records eighteen instances, is from the same MS., fol. 36b, on Levit. 8 31. Here, too, we have a similar difficulty which is due to the absence of catchwords, a common feature in the earliest forms of the Massorah. The quadriliteral ו may be ו with Kametz under the first radical, being Kal preterite third person plural Ezek. 24 5; ו with Pathach, Piel imperative plural masculine Levit. 8 31 or ו with Tzere under the Shin, being the imperative in pause Exod. 16 23, each of which occurs once only. As two only are here represented, it is difficult to say which is the one that is omitted; (III) List III marked § 157c, which records seven instances, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 345b, on Prov. 24 17. It will be seen that whilst the two preceding Lists are restricted to unique instances in which the Vav is with Kibbutz (ו) being the third person plural, this fragment has regard simply to those which terminate in ו irrespective of their being indicative of the plural (ו) or the suffix third person singular (ו); (IV) the fragment marked § 157d, which records three instances only, is from Vienna Codex No. 85, on Levit. 8 31.

קניח. — Words which end in Vav preceded by Lamed. This Rubric, which has already a heading and is furnished with catchwords, is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ל, § 18. Though it records twenty-nine examples, they are practically twenty-six only, since three of the expressions respectively occur twice: (1) ו for which Jacob b. Chayim erroneously gives ו, as is evident from the catchwords ו Job 19 12 which also occurs in Job 30 12; (2) ו for which the catchwords give Isa. 10 33, also occurs in Isa. 40 4, and (3) ו for which the reference is given to Ps. 62 11 also occurs in Job 27 12. But even this expanded List is simply a fragment, since there are altogether upwards of 280 words ending in ו which respectively occur once only, as will be seen from letter י, § 168.

קניח. — Words ending in Vav with Cholem preceded by Mem which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 142b, on Deut. 32 38, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 152b, on the same passage. These two Lists record the same thirteen words in exactly the same order.

Though this List records fourteen instances only, or one more than the preceding List, three alone are in common in the two Lists, viz. ו (Exod. 15 9), ו (Ps. 2 3) and ו (Ps. 2 5), whilst eleven exhibit different examples. It is also to be remarked that ו which this List gives as unique, viz. Job 27 23 occurs ten times more (Deut. 32 23; Ps. 5 12; 55 16; 64 9; Job 6 16; 20 23; 21 17; 22 2; 30 2, 5), and is manifestly intended for ו in the same verse which occurs once only. ו the last instance, for which the catchwords refer to Prov. 8 29 also occurs in Isa. 27 9.

The ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 57a, on Exod. 15 9 gives another List which materially differs from the preceding two Lists. It records twenty instances of which the following seven are new ו (Cant. 3 7); ו (Exod. 15 17); ו (Job 6 17); ו (Ps. 58 7); ו (Ps. 73 7); ו (Levit. 6 3); and ו (Josh. 15 50). It will be seen that two of these new instances are ו with He at the end in the textus receptus. It is also to be remarked that this List also gives ו as unique. Hence this ancient form of the Massorah must be based upon Codices which exhibited ו with Yod in Isa. 27 9, as is the case in the Cambridge MS. Add. 465.

But even this expanded List is simply an attempt to collect these expressions since there are more than 70 words ending in ו which respectively occur once only, as will be seen from י, § 168.

קניח. — Words ending in Vav with Cholem preceded by Nun, which respectively occur once only. That is, in contradistinction to those ending in ו. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 43b, on Gen. 9 24, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 33b, on the same passage.

Though both Lists record identically the same fourteen instances, they exhibit simply the first attempt to collect the unique words ending in ו, as is attested by the fact that there are about 66 such expressions. (Vide infra, letter י, § 168.) As the design of this Rubric is to register those words only which terminate in ו with Cholem, the quadriliteral ו which I have printed (2 Sam. 21 5), ought more properly to be ו (Isa. 10 9).

קניח. — Words ending in Vav with Kibbutz preceded by Nun, which respectively occur once only. The three fragmentary Lists are respectively from the following MSS. (I) marked § 159b, which records six such examples, occurs in Orient. 2348, fol. 62b, on Gen. 42 11, and Orient. 2349, fol. 52b, on the same passage; (II) § 159c, which registers five, is from the same two MSS., the one fol. 73a, and the other fol. 63a, both on Exod. 10 9, and (III) § 159d, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 218a, on Ps. 136 28.

The longest List, which records fifteen instances and which adds at the end that the above words have no parallel in all the Scriptures, is simply a fragment. It will be seen from י, § 168 that there are about 783 such expressions.

Of words ending in Samech Vav I have as yet not been able to find any fragmentary List, though there are 50 such instances. (Vide infra, letter ש, § 163.)

קניח = § 160.

קניח. — Words ending in Vav preceded by Ayin which respectively occur once only. This incipient List, which records three such instances only, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 61a, on Exod. 39 3. From י, § 168 it will be seen that there are altogether about 145 words which belong to this category.

In referring, however, to the notes on 1 Kings 8:13 in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that this is the Kethiv and that the Keri is קָדֵשׁ with Vav; (3) לִיָּא (1 Sam. 18:29) which ends in א and which, with the exception of List IV, all the Lists exhibit, is a real difficulty, and is probably an abbreviation exhibiting the first three letters of לִיָּאֵל (2 Sam. 13:6) or לִיָּאֵל (Ps. 21:4), both of which occur once only; (3) אֲדָמָה , which according to the catchwords, is אֲדָמָה in Isa. 42:21, occurs also twice in the Psalms (50:6; 97:6). But as the Massorah not infrequently regards an expression as unique when it does not occur in any other book but one, it may be Massoretically described as $\text{אֲדָמָה לִי וְלִי וְלִי וְלִי וְלִי}$, which is actually the case with No. 4. It may, however, be that this quadriliteral is intended for אֲדָמָה which is really unique (Job 32:2) and that the catchwords which are absent in the oldest forms of this Massorah, have wrongly been assigned to it by a later Nakdan, and (4) אֲדָמָה the second example for א , which is here given as unique, viz. Deut. 2:30 also occurs twice in Jerem. (10:13; 51:16). Yet on referring to the printed Massorah Parva on Deut. 2:30 it is described as unique (ל) by which is meant that it does not occur again outside Jeremiah, as is attested by the Massorah on this passage in Harley 5710—11, Add. 21,160 and Cambridge Add. 1174 which remarks $\text{לִי וְלִי וְלִי וְלִי וְלִי}$. This may be the alternative explanation of No. 3. It is, however, to be remarked that אֲדָמָה is absent in Lists III, IV, V and VII and that the latter gives אֲדָמָה (Esther 10:2) in its stead.

1. — An alphabetical List of words ending in Vav which respectively occur once only. This List, I compiled myself. Its importance is attested by the aid which it gives in the analysis of the preceding Rubrics.

א = § 1.

א. — The first part of this Rubric, which registers the number of times Zayin occurs in the Bible, is from the celebrated Poem given above, letter א, § 224. The second part, which records the number of times Zayin occurs in the Pentateuch, is from a MS. in my possession. For a description of this remarkable MS. see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, Part I, chap. VII, pp. 110, 111.

ב = § 2.

ב. — The five instances in which the Zayin has three Tâgin are from Harley 5710—11 on the respective passages.

ג = § 3.

ג. — In fourteen instances the Zayin is in the middle. That is, between two semicircles. This Rubric is from the Sepher Tagin in the Vityr Machsor, Add. 27,021, Vol. II, fols. 209a—215a, which I have printed in the Massorah, letter ט, § 25, Vol. II, pp. 680—701.

ד = § 4.

ד. — In fourteen instances the Zayin is not in the middle. That is, the semicircle is on the right only. This Rubric is from the Sepher Tagin, p. 7, ed. Barges, Paris 1866.

ה = § 5.

ה. — In nine instances the Zayin is not in the middle but is curved on the top. This Rubric is from Sepher Tagin, p. 8, ed. Barges.

ו = § 6.

ו. — Three words are according to the textual reading written with Zayin for which the official reading or Keri substitutes Nun. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 39 13. Accordingly in two out of the three instances which occur in this ancient MS., the Massorah Parva has a Keri. Thus in Isa. 44 14, where the textual reading is זָרַח with Zayin, the Massorah Parva has against it קָרַח i. e. זָרַח. The same is the case in Jerem. 39 13, where the textual reading is זָבַח with Zayin and where the Massorah Parva directs us to read it with Nun, being one of the three words written with Zayin for which the official reading substitutes Nun (בִּין קָן נִסְתָּן רַבִּי בָּן וָקָן בְּנָן). The identity of the letters Zayin and Final Nun in the oldest MSS. of the Bible (see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical Text pp. 473, 475) has been the cause of other variations. In a Massorah preserved in the Reuchlin Codex No. 2 on Judg. 6 26 we see that variations obtained in the different Schools of textual redactors in three other passages, that the Nehardai read זָבַח with Zayin both in Judg. 6 26 and Dan. 11 31 and נָקְמוּ with Zayin in 2 Kings 17 31, and that the Surai read these three words with Nun. The Massorites, however, whose redaction we follow, whilst admitting that the form of the letter in the three expressions which constitute § 6, is that of Zayin, maintain that it is intended for a small final Nun and hence safeguard it by placing these three words in the alphabetical List of minuscular Letters. (Vide supra, letter א, § 229.)

ו. ב. כִּלְיָן חֲזָרָה וְהָיָה בֵּן עַד וְהָיָה דָּן וְהָיָה חֶמְדָּה לְחַדְרָהּ בִּזְיוֹן לְמוֹרָהּ בְּנָן;
ו. א. בְּכָל מִקְדָּשׁ חֶמְדָּה לְמוֹרָהּ בְּנָן; א. א. בְּכָל לְחַדְרָהּ בִּזְיוֹן לְמוֹרָהּ בְּנָן;
Comp. Barr, Critical notes on Judg. 6 26, p. 96.

ז = § 7.

ז. — Words beginning with Zayin which respectively occur once only. This fragment, which exhibits the first attempt on the part of the Massorites to collect the unique forms beginning with Zayin and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 117b, on 2 Kings 24 14.

ח = § 8.

ח. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Zayin which respectively occur once only. This List I compiled myself. The following words occur more than once זָרַח זָרַח זָרַח זָרַח זָרַח whilst זָבַח (Judg. 1 30) is omitted.

ט = § 9.

ט. — An alphabetical List of words ending in Zayin which respectively occur once only. This List also I compiled myself. The following corrections are to be made: נָקְמוּ occurs several times, whilst זָבַח (Judg. 5 23); נָקְמוּ (2 Kings 17 31) and נָקְמוּ (Job 26 9) are to be added.

י. — Three words which respectively occur twice in the same combination, are in the first instance with Zayin and in the second with Shin. . . . And the converse three which respectively occur twice in the same combination, are in the first instance with Shin and in the second with Zayin. This does not mean that the variation in the case of each group is restricted to the single letters Zayin and Shin and vice versa, but that the predominant feature in the expressions used in the same combination is indicated by these letters.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 169b, on Judg. 18 29, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 61b, on Exod. 20 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32a, on Judg. 18 29; (IV) the same MS., fol. 270b, on 2 Chron. 23 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 294a, on Pa. 42 10; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 133; (VII) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 203, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 20 8. Lists VII and VIII record the first part of this Rubric only.

יא. — Zabdi, without and with the prefix Fav, occurs three times in the Hagiographa. Apart from this division of the Bible this name occurs also three times (Josh. 7 1, 17, 18). The design of this Massorah is to safeguard it against its being confused with the quadriliteral זִכְרִי Zichri.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 243a, on 1 Chron. 8 19, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 406b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 9. Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List III) is incorrect. By the omission of the expression בְּכָלֵיהֶם in the heading, it states that this name occurs three times only, whereas it occurs six times. Moreover the reference זָבַח for the third instance is meaningless.

יב. — Zabadjah, occurs six times in the Scriptures. As this is one of the proper names which occur in duplicate form, the one terminating in jah (יָה) and the other in jahu (יָהּ), the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the instances in which this name has retained its primitive shorter form. This recension of the Rubric, which exhibits the traditions of one School of textual redactors, I have found in Harley 5710-11 only, Vol. II, fol. 291a, on Ezra 8 8. For the reason of this duplicate-spelling see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical text of the Hebrew Bible, p. 386 &c.

There is, however, another recension of this Massorah from a different School of Massorites which does not recognise the two different spellings of this name. The Rubric from this School emphatically states in the heading that all the nine instances in which this name occurs without and with the prefix Vav, uniformly exhibit the primitive form זבולון.

Of this recension, which is the more popular one, I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 243a, on 1 Chron. 8 15; (II) the same MS., fol. 254a, on 1 Chron. 26 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 255a, on 1 Chron. 27 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 277a, on Ezra 8 8; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 406b, on 1 Chron. 8 15; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezra 8 8; (VII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 45, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on 1 Chron. 26 2. All these Lists coincide in heading this List זבולון הטהור. They enumerate the nine instances without any indication whatever that it is זבולון in any one of these passages. When it is borne in mind that the non-essential Vav conjunctive is specially mentioned in the heading, it will hardly be supposed that the essential difference in the ending would be entirely ignored if that difference obtained in the School of redactors from which this Massorah proceeds.

זבדדו Zabadjah, occurs three times without and with the prefix Vav. That is, in contradistinction to the six instances in which this name retained its primitive short form, recorded in the first recension of the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 146a, on 1 Chron. 26 2, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on 2 Chron. 19 11. This shows that in the School of textual redactors where the duplicate form of this proper name obtained, each form was duly safeguarded in a separate Rubric.

זבולון Zebulun, is so written in ten instances. That is, with Vav after the Lamed. To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that this proper name, without and with the prefixes, which occurs altogether forty-three times in the Bible, is spelt in two different ways, viz. זבולון with Vav after the Beth and זבולון with Vav after the Lamed. As the one spelling prevails in the Law and the Prophets and the other in the Hagiographa, the Massorah divides this Rubric according to these divisions, so as in each case to safeguard the minority.

The Law and the Prophets. — In these two divisions this name occurs altogether thirty-three times. In twenty-four instances it is זבולון (Gen. 49 13; Exod. 1 3; Numb. 1 9, 30, 31; 2 7, 7; 7 24; 10 16; 13 10; 26 28; 34 25; Deut. 27 13; 33 18, 18; Josh. 19 10, 16; Judg. 1 30; 4 10; 5 14; 12 12; Ezek. 48 26, 27, 33) and זבולון in nine instances only. Hence the Massorah safeguards here the orthography of the minority.

The Hagiographa. — In this division, where this proper name occurs altogether ten times, the reverse is the case. זבולון is the rule. It is so spelt in nine instances (Ps. 68 28; 1 Chron. 2 1; 6 48, 62; 12 34, 41; 2 Chron. 30 10, 11, 18) and זבולון the exception. It is spelt in this way in one instance only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the solitary exception.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 158b, on Josh. 19 27, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 31b, on Gen. 46 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 44a, on Josh. 19 27; (IV) the same MS., fol. 21a, on Judg. 4 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 28a, on Judg. 6 35; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 158a, on Judg. 19 27; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 25b, on Gen. 30 20; (VIII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 131a, and (IX) the printed Massorah on Gen. 46 14. List VIII omits the second part of this Rubric which makes it unintelligible.

זבולון. In the Pentateuch this name is spelt זבולון with the Vav after the Beth except in three instances where it is זבולון with the Vav after the Lamed. In the Pentateuch, where this name occurs eighteen times (vide supra, letter 1, § 14), it is in fifteen instances זבולון and in three only זבולון. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional spelling. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Numb. 1 8.

זבולון and from Zebulun, occurs twice in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is simply to record the two instances in which this proper name is with the prefixes ז. Hence the variation in the position of the Vav in the middle of the word is not adverted to. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 167b, on 2 Chron. 30 11, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

זבולוני the Zebulonite, occurs three times and is defective. That is, without the Vav after the Lamed. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 103a, on Numb. 26 27, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 165b, on Judg. 12 11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 28a, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 1, § 28.

ז"י = § 18.

זבדדו לפני יהוה to sacrifice before Jehova, is four times thus combined in the Scriptures. Normally the phrase is זבדדו לפני יהוה to sacrifice to Jehovah. In this combination it occurs about twenty-six times (comp. Exod. 3 18; 5 3, 17; 8 4, 22, 23, 24, 25; 13 15; Levit. 17 5; 19 6; 22 29; Deut. 15 21; 16 2; 17 1; Judg. 2 5; 1 Sam. 1 3, 21; 6 15; 15 15, 21; 16 2; Jonah 1 16; 1 Chron. 29 21; 2 Chron. 11 16; 15 11). As it is in these four instances only that לפני יהוה is used after the verb זבדדו to sacrifice, instead of לפני יהוה, the Massorah safeguards the abnormal combination.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 224b, on 1 Kings 8 62, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 153a, on 2 Chron. 7 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 84a, on 1 Kings 8 62; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 149a, on Levit. 9 4, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 4, § 138.

זבולון and to sacrifice, occurs twice, once it is plene at the beginning and once it is plene in the middle. That is, of this infinitive with the prefix Lamed which occurs fifteen times, there are two unique forms. In one instance only is it with the Vav conjunctive (זבולון 1 Sam. 1 3), which the Massorah denotes by plene at the beginning. In the other instance in which it is without the prefix Vav, it has the Vav after the Beth (זבולון 2 Chron. 11 6) which it describes by the term plene in the middle. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 35a, on 1 Sam. 1 3.

זבולון and they shall sacrifice, occurs twice. This Kal future third person plural masculine with the prefix Vav occurs altogether fifteen times. In thirteen instances, the Vav is with Pathach, being conversive and in two instances only is it with Sheva, being conjunctive. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptions.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 75a, on Exod. 8 4, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Ps. 107 22.

זבולון the sacrificers of, occurs twice and is defective. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 183b, on Deut. 18 8, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 106b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Hosea 13 2.

זבולון שקלים a sacrifice of peace offerings, occurs four times ... and twice it is with the prefix Lamed. This phrase, without and with the prefix 5 or 6, occurs altogether twenty-seven times. In twenty-one instances זבולון שקלים is with the article, viz. זבולון שקלים (Levit. 4 10, 26, 31; 7 11, 21; 9 18; Numb. 6 18; 7 88, or זבולון שקלים Levit. 7 37; Numb. 7 17, 23, 29, 35, 41, 47, 53, 59, 65, 71, 77, 83), and in these six instances only, is it without the article. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 76a, on Levit. 19 5, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 104b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 66b, on Levit. 3 1; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 66a; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 70a; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 139a; (VII) the printed Massorah, all on Levit. 3 1, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 6 17.

As all the passages are in the Pentateuch, List VII heads this Rubric בְּחִירָה. Moreover as two of the six instances are with the prefix Lamed, Lists VI and VIII are headed בְּחִירָה. In the oldest form of this Rubric which is exhibited in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445 (List II), the heading is simply וְבַר שְׁלֹמֹה רִי and the four instances only are recorded.

וְבַר הַזֶּבֶחַ הַשְּׂמִימִי the sacrifice of his peace offering for thanksgiving, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Levit. 7 13, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 95b, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 85b, both on the same passage. Lists II and III are headed וְבַר הַזֶּבֶחַ הַשְּׂמִימִי without וְבַר.

כ"ד = § 24.

לְיֹבֵחַ for, or to the sacrifice, occurs twice. That is, with Pathach under the Lamed, in contradistinction to the four instances in which the Lamed is with Sheva (Levit. 3 6; 23 19; Josh. 22 26, 28).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 184a, on 1 Sam. 16 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 91b, on Numb. 15 5; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 109b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 26. List II heads this Rubric בְּרִישׁ, whilst Lists III and IV head it בְּרִישׁ. These two words form part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Pathach Lamed (ל or ל) which respectively occur twice. (Vide infra, letter ל, § 17, Vol. II, p. 109.)

וְבָחִים וְעֹלוֹת sacrifices and burnt offerings, is twice thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the two instances in which the combination is וְבָחִים וְתוֹדוֹת sacrifices and thank offerings (2 Chron. 29 31, 31).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 41a, on Exod. 10 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 246a, on 2 Kings 10 24; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Exod. 10 25, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

וְבָחִים וְשְׁלָמִים sacrifices [of] peace offerings, occurs twice. That is, instead of the normal phrase וְבָחִים וְשְׁלָמִים which occurs six times (Levit. 17 5; Josh. 22 23; 1 Sam. 10 8; Prov. 7 14; 2 Chron. 30 22; 33 16) and which was the original reading in Exod. 24 5, as is attested by the Samaritan recension. In 1 Sam. 11 15 the Septuagint exhibits וְשְׁלָמִים וְבָחִים.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 71a, on Exod. 24 5, which I have printed, and (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 179b, on 1 Sam. 11 15.

וְבָחִים וְצִדִּיקִים sacrifices of righteousness, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 153b, on Deut. 33 19, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 143b, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 142b, also on the same passage.

כ"ח = § 28.

וְזָבַח וְזַלְמוּנָה Zebah and Zalmunna, occurs four times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 24a, on Judg. 8 15. It is incorrect, since the combination of these two names with the Vav conjunctive before the second name alone, occurs five times, Judg. 8 5 being omitted. In the only other instance where this combination occurs, both names are with the Vav conjunctive (Judg. 8 10). In the other three passages the combination is זָבַח וְזַלְמוּנָה (Judg. 8 7, 12, 21). As all the instances are not only in the same book but in the same section, the heading ought more properly to be זָבַח וְזַלְמוּנָה.

וְיָיִם the proud, occurs four times in the Scriptures . . . and in all the verses in the Great Alphabet beginning with the words וְיָיִם (being the initial of וְיָיִם קָרָה וְיָיִם קָרָה Ps. 119 21, 51, 69, 78, 85, 122) it is likewise so. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the reading וְיָיִם in Ps. 54 5 which obtained in the Schools of other textual redactors and which is confirmed by the parallel passage in Ps. 86 14, as will be seen from the notes on Ps. 54 5 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this artificial recension of the Rubric, which is the more popular, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 213b, on Ps. 86 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 124a, on Isa. 13 11; (III) the same MS., fol. 223b, on Mal. 3 15; (IV) the same MS., fol. 305b, on Ps. 86 14; (V) the same MS., fol. 315a, on Ps. 119 69; (VI) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach II, § 174; (VII) the printed Massorah on Isa. 13 11, and (VIII) the same on Mal. 3 15.

It will be seen that not only does the term all the Scriptures exempt here one book, but a section of a book. The exemption is usually described in the second part of the Rubric after the categorical statement in the first part. But this exemption is not infrequently omitted, as is the case here in List II which makes this Rubric apparently to state that וְיָיִם occurs altogether four times only. For אַלף בֵּית רִבְעָה denoting Ps. 119 see letter ר, § 108.

וְיָיִם the proud, occurs ten times in the Scriptures. This simple recension of the Rubric which registers in plain words the passages, is not so popular as the preceding artificial one. I have found one List only of it in Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 200b, on Ps. 86 14, which I have printed.

ל"א = § 31.

וְיָיִם this, is three times with the accent. That is, at the beginning of the verse with Munach Legarmeh, without being preceded by the simple Munach, thus distinguishing it from the five instances in which this demonstrative is with the same accent and is followed by Munach and does not begin the verse (Exod. 32 1, 23; Deut. 2 7; Judg. 7 4; Isa. 63 1).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 266b, on Eccl. 9 3, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 73a, on Exod. 30 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 7a, on Josh. 9 12; (IV) the same MS., fol. 354a, on Eccl. 9 3; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 49b, on Exod. 30 13; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 59a, on the same passage; (VII) Add. 15,451, fol. 151a, on Josh. 9 12; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 306a, on Eccl. 9 3; (IX) the printed Massorah on Exod. 30 13, and (X) the same on Josh. 9 12.

With the exception of List I all the Lists emphasise the fact that these three instances begin the verse (יָיִם). As each occurs in one of the three divisions of the Bible, Lists VII-X add at the end of the Rubric וְיָיִם, which List I resolves into וְיָיִם one occurs in the Law, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa. Lists III and IV add at the end that in one instance this demonstrative with the prefix Vav has the same accent at beginning of the verse in Ezra 7 11 (וְיָיִם וְיָיִם) but here it is followed by the simple Munach.

וְיָיִם one to the other, is twice thus combined in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 43b, on Exod. 14 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 121a, on Isa. 6 3; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 40a, on Exod. 14 20; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 88a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

וְיָיִם is this? is four times Raphe. That is, with Chateph-Pathach under the He, being the interrogative. As this demonstrative occurs about 698 times with the prefix He and is with Pathach in about 694 instances and with Chateph Pathach in these four passages only, the Massorah safeguards these rare exceptions.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 189b, on 1 Sam. 21 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 7b, on Isa. 14 16; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 125a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 355a, on Eccl. 11 6; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 307a, on the same passage; (VI) Orient. 2849, fol. 58b, on Gen. 48 29; (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VIII) the same on Ecol. 11 6. With the exception of List VII all the Lists have the mnemonic sign.

ל"י this, is three times with the accent Pazer . . . and once this demonstrative without the prefix He has this accent. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter 1, § 86. When it is borne in mind that ל"י occurs about 694 times and ל"י 815 times, the stupendous labours of the Massorites in finding out that this demonstrative has this accent in four instances only, will be fully appreciated. I have carefully analysed the accents on all the 1009 instances in which ל"י and ל"י occur and found this Massorah absolutely correct.

ל"י and this, begins a verse twenty-three times in the Scriptures. This demonstrative with the prefix Vav occurs altogether fifty-one times. In twenty-eight instances it is in the middle of the verse and in twenty-three it begins the verse. The Massorah, therefore, records the position of the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 106b, on Numb. 8 4, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 128b, on Deut. 18 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 198a, on Ezek. 47 15; (IV) the same MS., fol. 876b, on Ezra 7 11; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 328b, on Job 21 25; (VI) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah II, § 100, margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 47 15.

ל"י and this is the word of, is three times thus combined and begins a verse. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 225a, on 1 Kings 9 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 84b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

ל"י and this is the word, occurs four times at the beginning of a verse. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 139b, on Josh. 5 4, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 71a, on Exod. 29 1; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 3b, on Josh. 5 4; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 48a, on Exod. 29 1; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 57b, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 148a, on Josh. 5 4; (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 29 1, and (VIII) the same on Josh. 5 4. As this combination with the prefix Vav occurs altogether four times only, the heading ought more properly to be ל"י four times and at the beginning of the verse.

ל"י - § 38.

ל"י as this, occurs five times. That is, in contradistinction to three passages where this trilateral is ל"י with Cholem. (Vide infra, § 42.) Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 143a, on Isa. 56 12, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 41 38, and (III) the same on Jerem. 5 29.

ל"י to this, occurs three times. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the abnormal combination ל"י in the first clause of 1 Sam. 25 21 against being made conformable to the normal phrase ל"י in the second clause of the same verse, and in the verse immediately following.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 192a, on 1 Sam. 25 21, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 50a, on 1 Sam. 21 12; (III) the same MS., fol. 53a, on 1 Sam. 25 21; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 158b, on 1 Sam. 21 20; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 304b, on Ecol. 6 5; (VI) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 21 12, and (VII) the same on Ecol. 6 5.

ל"י this, occurs twice in the Pentateuch. This demonstrative pronoun occurs altogether nine times. In seven instances it is the apocopated form ל"י (Judg. 6 20; 1 Sam. 14 1; 17 26; 2 Kings 4 25; 25 17; Zech. 2 8; Dan. 8 16) and in these two instances only, is it with the He at the end. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography, and thus militates against the School of textual redactors which exhibited the normal shorter form, as is attested by the Samaritan recension which has ל"י in both these passages

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 24b, on Gen. 37 19, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 65. As the two instances are not only restricted to the Pentateuch but to the same book the heading ought more properly to be ל"י or ל"י.

ל"י this, occurs ten times, twice it is with Vav (ל"י). That is, with Cholem. On referring to the notes in my edition of the Bible, on the passages which constitute this Rubric, it will be seen that in almost all the instances where the textual reading is ל"י with He the official reading substitutes for it ל"י with Vav, in conformity with the two instances in which it is so written in the textus receptus. This is distinctly declared in the heading of List VII has against ל"י in Ecol. 2 2, 24 and 5 18 ל"י. In the other three instances in the same book where the textus receptus reads ל"י (Ecol. 5 18; 7 28; 9 18) in accordance with this Rubric, the Codex reads ל"י with Segol. Cambridge Add. 465 has the Keri as the textual reading (ל"י) in 2 Kings 6 19; Ecol. 2 2 and 5 15. For the official substitution of Vav for He in words ending in ל"י see letter ל, § 48.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 102a, on 2 Kings 6 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 317b, on Ps. 132 19; (III) the same MS., fol. 858a, on Ecol. 5 15; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 201b, on 2 Kings 6 19; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 400b, on Ecol. 7 23; (VI) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah I, § 98, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 6 19. In List VI the catchwords ל"י should be ל"י 2 Kings 6 19 and ל"י should be ל"י Ezek. 40 45. It is remarkable that Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List VII) has also the first mistake.

ל"י this and this, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the three instances where this phrase is used in the same sense and where it is ל"י (2 Sam. 17 15; 2 Kings 5 4; 9 12).

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 31a, on Judg. 18 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 63b, on 2 Sam. 11 25; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 142b, on Judg. 18 4; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 148b, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VI) the same on 2 Sam. 11 25.

It is, however, to be remarked that ל"י with Cholem by itself occurs three times only and that the Massorah Parva in Add. 21,161 has against it ל"י in 2 Sam. 11 25 and 1 Kings 14 5, in accordance with the preceding Rubric.

ל"י - § 43.

ל"י this, is seven times rendered in the Targum by ל"י (= ל"י) in the Pentateuch. That is, this pronoun demonstrative feminine is translated as if it were ל"י the masculine. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1879, fol. 56a, on Gen. 17 10.

ל"י this is the ordinance of the law, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the three instances where this phrase is simply ל"י without ל"י (Levit. 7 37; 14 54; Numb. 19 14).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 112a, on Numb. 19 2, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 106b, on Numb. 31 21; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 92a, on the same passage, and (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 220b, on Numb. 19 2. As the two instances are not only restricted to the Pentateuch but to the same book the heading ought more properly to be ל"י or ל"י.

ל"י in this, occurs twice at the beginning of the verse. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 42 15, is incorrect, since it also begins the verse in Ps. 41 12. The heading ought properly to be ל"י.

וַי in this, occurs four times in the Pentateuch. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ו, § 7, is incorrect. וַי occurs eight times in the Pentateuch and not four. Gen. 42 33; Exod. 7 17; Levit. 26 27 and Numb. 16 28 are omitted. It may be as Frensdorff suggests (Massoretisches Wörterbuch, p. 298) that וַי is a mistake for וַיִּבְרַח and that the design of this Massorah is to record the four instances only which occur in Genesis. If this is so then the catchwords וַיִּבְרַח should be וַיִּבְרַח Gen. 42 33.

וַי in this, occurs three times in the Scriptures... and once it is with the prefix Vav. This pronoun demonstrative feminine with the prefix Beth occurs altogether eighteen times. In fifteen instances the Beth is with Sheva (ָ) and in three only is it with Kametz. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 127b, on Mal. 3 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 147b, on 1 Chron. 27 24; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 223b, on Mal. 3 10; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 313b, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 327a, on 1 Chron. 27 24, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Mal. 3 10. This group forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 78.)

וַי in this? occurs five times in the Scriptures. As this quadriliteral, which occurs altogether 278 times, is in 268 instances with Pathach under the He and in five only with Chateph-Pathach, the Massorah safeguards the exceptions.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 10b, on Isa. 23 7, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 403a, on Lament. 2 15; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 298b, on Ruth 1 19; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 85, on Lament. 2 15, and (V) the printed Massorah on Job 20 4. List III indicates the design of this Massorah by heading it וַיִּבְרַח. As three of the five instances begin a verse (Isa. 23 7; Job 20 4; 35 2), List IV adds at the end וַיִּבְרַח וַיִּבְרַח.

וַי and this, occurs twelve times at the beginning of the verse in the Pentateuch... and once in the middle of the verse. This pronoun demonstrative feminine begins a verse altogether thirty-three times in the Pentateuch. In twenty-one instances it is without the prefix Vav (comp. וַי Gen. 17 10; Levit. 7 35, 37; 11 46; 13 59; 14 2, 32, 54; 15 32; Numb. 4 4, 24, 28, 33; 5 29; 6 21; 7 84; 8 24; 16 8; 19 2, 14; Deut. 14 4) and in twelve only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah records the minority. By fixing the number at twelve, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the reading וַי in Deut. 4 44 which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors, as is attested by the Septuagint, Syriac and Vulgate, and which is now adopted by critics as preferable.

This form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 196a, on Numb. 6 13. As this demonstrative with the prefix Vav occurs only once more in the Pentateuch apart from the passages in which it begins the verse, the Massorah records the solitary instance.

וַי and this, occurs twenty-five times, sixteen of which begin a verse... and nine are in the middle of the verse. This Rubric is an expansion of the preceding Massorah. Whilst the former safeguards the instances in the Pentateuch only, this one records all the passages in the Bible in which וַי occurs both at the beginning and in the middle of the verse. By fixing the number in which it begins a verse at sixteen, this Massorah not only militates against the variation which obtained with regard to Deut. 4 44, but against the textual reading וַי of other Schools of textual redactors in Jerem. 44 29. This is attested by the important Standard Codex Harley 5710-11 which has וַי here in the text with the Massoretic remark against it וַיִּבְרַח.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated twelve Lists, ten in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 88a, on Numb. 6 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 126b, on Zech. 14 12; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 128a, on Levit. 7 1; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 222a, on Zech. 14 12; (V) the same MS., fol. 284a, on Ruth 4 7; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 124a, on Deut. 4 44; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 106a, on Exod. 25 3; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 144b, on Levit. 7 1; (IX) Orient. 2349, fol. 148a, on Deut. 33 1; (X) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 100; (XI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 25 3, and (XII) the same on Ruth 4 7.

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the passages in which this demonstrative with the prefix Vav (וַי) begins the verse against those in which it is without this prefix (וַי) at the beginning of the verse. This is not only clearly set forth in the heading of the oldest form of this Rubric (List III), viz. וַיִּבְרַח but in the headings of Lists V, VIII and X. This demonstrative occurs altogether forty-nine times at the beginning of the verse. According to the predominant School of textual redactors which the textus receptus follows, it is without the prefix Vav in thirty-three instances and with it in sixteen only. Hence the Massorah records the minority. Of the thirty-three without the Vav twenty-one occur in the Pentateuch. These I have given in the preceding form of this Rubric. The twenty-two in the Prophets and Hagiographa are as follows: Josh. 9 20; 13 2, 28; 15 20; 19 16, 23, 31, 39, 46; Isa. 14 26; Ezek. 43 12; 45 13; 48 29; Zeph. 2 10, 15; Zech. 14 19; Ps. 109 20; 119 50, 56; 132 14; Cant. 7 8; Lament. 3 21.

Lists VIII, XI and XII emphatically state in their respective headings that there are seventeen instances in which וַי begins the verse, and coincide in giving וַיִּבְרַח וַיִּבְרַח Ezek. 45 13 as one of the seventeen. In the face of the MS. List (VIII) it will hardly be maintained that Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (Lists XI and XII) is due to an error. It is more probable that these three Lists are based upon Codices which exhibited וַי in Ezek. 45 13. We have seen that the first recension of this Rubric (§ 49a), which confines itself to the twelve instances in the Pentateuch, adds at the end that the only other instance of וַי in this division is in the middle of the verse (וַיִּבְרַח), viz. Gen. 49 28. Afterwards when this Rubric was expanded by the addition of the four instances from the Prophets and the Hagiographa, this last line of the shorter recension was still left to finish the longer recension. This solves the enigma exhibited by the addition of וַיִּבְרַח וַיִּבְרַח at the end of List VIII and the printed Massorah Parva on Deut. 33 1 וַיִּבְרַח וַיִּבְרַח where, however, וַיִּבְרַח is manifestly a clerical error for וַיִּבְרַח which, as we have seen, is not infrequently the case.

וַיִּבְרַח and this shall be, occurs twice. This combination occurs altogether five times. In three instances it is without the prefix Vav (וַיִּבְרַח Levit. 14 2; Numb. 34 12; Zech. 14 19) and in two with it. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 101a, on Levit. 15 3, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 91a, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 90a, also on the same passage.

וַיִּבְרַח וַיִּבְרַח and thus and thus, occurs twice. As in the other three instances where this phrase occurs, it is without the prefix Vav (comp. וַיִּבְרַח וַיִּבְרַח 2 Sam. 17 15; 2 Kings 5 4; 9 12) the Massorah safeguards the minority. This protection was necessary, since the two forms are alternately used in the same verse (2 Sam. 17 15). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 5b, on Josh. 7 20.

וַיִּבְרַח to this, occurs twice. That is, the pronoun demonstrative feminine singular with the prefix Lamed with Sheva, in contradistinction to the three instances where it is with Kametz recorded in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 2b, Gen. 2 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 238a, on Job 37 1, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 2 23. The latter heads it וַיִּבְרַח, which is manifestly a clerical error for וַיִּבְרַח twice with Sheva. These two instances form part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Lamed and Sheva which respectively occur twice. (Vide infra, letter ל, § 18, Vol. II, p. 109.)

וַיִּבְרַח to this, occurs three times. That is, with Kametz under the Lamed. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed:

(I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 14a, on Isa. 30 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 48b, on Exod. 7 23; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181a, on Isa. 30 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 150a, on Jerem. 5 7; (V) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 314; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 7 23, and (VII) the same on Isa. 30 7. Lists IV and VI head this Rubric קצקצ and thus indicate more distinctly the import of this Massorah.

ג"ד gold, is twice with the accent. That is, with Talisha Gedolah. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 111a, on Exod. 28 15.

ג"ה pure gold, occurs four times. That is, in contradistinction to the other adjuncts with which ג"ה is combined and which are recorded below §§ 56, 58 and 59.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1879, fol. 159a, on Exod. 25 17. As this phrase occurs twenty-four times in Exodus, the Massorah obtains the number four by artificially counting the whole of Exodus as yielding one instance which with the three in Chronicles make up the four.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 50b, on Exod. 25 3, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 250a, on 1 Chron. 18 10; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 412a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 323b, also on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 25 3. The headings in Lists II and V which state that ג"ז alone occurs three times, are manifestly due to a clerical error, as is attested by the above analysis.

ג"ח locked up gold, occurs eight times. As this peculiar phrase is used in these passages to denote precious, unadulterated or pure gold, the Massorah safeguards it against being made conformable to the more simple designation ג"ז recorded in § 55.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 80b, on 1 Kings 6 20, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 82b, on 1 Kings 7 49; (III) the same MS., fol. 259a, on 2 Chron. 4 20; (IV) the same MS., fol. 263a, on 2 Chron. 9 20; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 184a, on 1 Kings 6 20; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 1, § 41.

ג"ט beaten gold, occurs five times. With the exception of Exodus, all the three descriptions of the different kinds of gold recorded in §§ 55, 56 and in this Rubric, are restricted to Kings and Chronicles. The Massorah, therefore, minutely defines the exact terms used in each passage so as to safeguard them against being interchanged.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 85b, on 1 Kings 10 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 262b, on 2 Chron. 9 16, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 1, § 40. The expression ג"ט in List I denotes both instances, the second in 2 Chron. 9 16 and the one in verse 16, which immediately follow each other. In List III, which is correctly headed ג"ט and which records four only, ג"ט is omitted after the catchwords ג"ט ג"ט ג"ט ג"ט.

ד"ס as gold, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 127b, on Mal. 3 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 232a, on Job 23 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 223a, on Mal. 3 3; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 380b, on Job 23 10; (V) the printed Massorah on Mal. 3 3, and (VI) the same on Job 23 10. Lists II, IV, V and VI head this Rubric ג"ט ג"ט.

ד"סא the gold of, occurs four times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. That is, in the construct, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which it is ג"ט in the absolute.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 150b, on 2 Chron. 3 6, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 126a, on Numb. 7 86; (III) the same MS., fol. 153a, on Numb. 31 52; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 258b, on 2 Chron. 3 6; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 115a, on Numb. 31 52; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 38 24, and (VII) the same on 2 Chron. 3 6.

The heading of List IV which states that this quadriliteral is in four instances with Sheva under the Zayin (הב הירקין), indicates the design of this Massorah, which is to distinguish it from the numerous instances in which it is with Kametz (רש). It will thus be seen that Sheva and Kametz are Massoretically called Rupshe and Dagesh. The heading of List VI רש רש רש רש רש expresses the same thing, only that here the Sheva is denoted רש which is another term for this graphic sign. (Vide supra, letter 1, § 15a and 1, § 24). This Rubric forms one of the links in the alphabetical chain of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter 1, § 75.)

ד"סב is warned, occurs three times with Kametz. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter 1, § 45 is incorrect, since this Niphal participle singular masculine, occurs six times and is always with Kametz (Ezek. 3 21; 33 4, 5, 6; Ps. 19 12). It is incorrect even on the supposition that the design of this Rubric is to record those instances only in which it is with Zakoph as it is also ג"ט in Ezek. 33 4, which is here omitted.

ד"סג and thou shalt teach, or warn, occurs three times, twice defective and once plene. As this Hiphil preterite second person singular masculine, with Vav conversive which occurs altogether three times is spelt differently, in the first instance with He at the end, and in the two passages in Ezekiel without the He, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. This protection is designed to militate against the recension of the rival Codices which exhibited ד"סג without the He, also in Exod. 18 20, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, 46b, on Exod. 18 20, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 271b, on Ezek. 3 17; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 94b, Exod. 18 20; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (V) the same on Ezek. 33 7.

ד"סד and they gushed out, occurs three times in the Scriptures, twice plene and once defective . . . and once without the prefix Vav. Though the phrase is identically the same in all the three instances, viz. ג"ט ג"ט, yet the verb is differently spelt in one instance (ג"ט Isa. 48 21). The Massorah, therefore, safeguards it against being made conformable to the other two passages. The Massorah also adds at the end of the Rubric that in the only instance where this Kal future third person plural masculine occurs without the Vav conversive and without being followed by קם, it is also defective (קם).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 197b, on Ps. 78 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 140a, on Isa. 48 21; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 105 41; (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 78 20 and (V) the same on Lament. 4 9. List II heads this Rubric קם, and records Isa. 48 21 and Ps. 78 20. Though the heading of this Rubric does not state whether these two instances are plene or defective, the Massorah Parva of this Codex emphatically states that they are both defective (קם). On Ps. 78 20, however, the Massorah Parva of the same MS., states קם. List III simply states that it occurs three times with the prefix Vav and once without it, without referring to any variation in its orthography. List IV is headed קם and duly records the two plene instances (Ps. 78 20; 105 41), only that the heading ought more properly to be קם since both are restricted to the Psalter, whilst List V heads it קם and records all the four instances as plene, the three with the prefix Vav and the one without it.

From the following analysis of the readings exhibited in the MSS. and the early editions, it will be seen that the Rubric which I have printed is correct, that the conflicting Massorah given by Jacob b. Chayim (List V) is without authority and that the contradictory remarks in the Massorah of several of the MSS. are due to the carelessness of the Scribes.

(1) Isaiah 48 21 — קם defective, is the reading in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11, Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251, the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491—93; the third edition, Brescia 1494; the Pesaro edition of the latter Prophets 1515; the fourth edition of the Bible, Pesaro 1511—17; the Complutensian; the editio princeps, of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25.

קם plene, is Add. 15,451; Orient. 4227; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488 and in the Lisbon edition of Isaiah 1492.

(2) Psalms 78 20 — קם plene, is the reading in all the MSS. and early editions.

(3) Ps. 105 41 — קם plene. Here too, all the MSS., and early editions have it plene. These are the three instances with the prefix Vav.

(4) Lamentations 4 9 — קם defective, is Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,160, second hand, and Orient. 4227.

This analysis explains to a great extent the apparently contradictory Massorahs which puzzled Jacob b. Chayim. When the Massorah remarks קם without or with the adjunct קם, and without or with the addition קם, on either Isa. 48 21 or Lament. 4 9, it denotes that it is defective in these two passages. When it states קם, without or with the adjunct קם, on Ps. 78 20 or 105 41, it denotes that the two instances in Psalms are plene. When it states קם it signifies that it occurs three times with the prefix Vav without any reference to its being plene or defective. When it states קם, without or with the addition קם, it denotes that this Kal future third person plural masculine without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether four times without noticing the plene and defective orthography. When it states קם on Isa. 48 21, it denotes that this future with the Vav conversive is unique as defective. And finally when the Massorah on Lament. 4 9 states קם, it signifies that this future third person plural masculine does not occur again either as plene or defective. Accordingly List II, which gives two instances only, is to be corrected by the Massorah Parva on Ps. 78 20 in the same MS. and the addition of the expression קם in List V, as is often the case in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, is to be ascribed to the carelessness of the Nakdan.

קם from his issue, occurs three times and is plene. That is, with the prefix Mem and the suffix third person masculine. In all the other instances where this noun is with the masculine suffix third person and is also plene, it is either without the prefix (comp. Levit. 15 2, 3, 33) or is with the prefix Beth (קם Levit. 15 3).

The design of this Massorah is to militate against the School of textual redactors which, besides other expressions, exhibited קם twice in Levit. 15 3, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text and the Septuagint and all the early editions of the Bible, except the editio princeps of the Prophets.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 91a, on Levit. 15 3, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 64b, on Levit. 15 13; (III) Add. 21,260, fol. 161b, on Levit. 15 3; (IV) Orient. 2348, fol. 101a, on the same passage, and (V) Orient. 5404, fol. 90a, also on the same passage. List II, which heads this Rubric קם, exhibits one of those conflicting Massorahs which can only be explained on the theory that they are based upon a different recension of the text. The Rubric itself does not indicate which of the three instances is defective. The Massorah Parva, however, of this MS. has against קם, both in Levit. 15 13 and 15, קם which leaves Levit. 15 3 as the defective. Yet in the text itself it is here קם plene. As all the three instances not only occur in the same book, but are restricted to the same section, the heading ought properly to be קם.

קם her issue, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this expression, which occurs twice within a few verses of each other, is spelt differently, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Levit. 15 19, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4446, fol. 101a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah, also on the same passage.

קם = § 67.

קם = § 68.

קם he shall presume, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this Hiphil future third person singular masculine which occurs twice only, is spelt differently in each passage, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

That this variation obtained in one School of textual redactors only, and that the redaction of other Schools did not exhibit it, is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text which has it plene in both instances.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 48a, on Exod. 21 14, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 43b, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 99a, also on the same passage.

קם as the corners, or corner columns, occurs twice. According to the Standard Codices both instances are defective. With regard to the instance in Zech. 9 15 there is no question about its being defective, but with regard to Ps. 44 12 there is a difference about its orthography. Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the Salonica edition of the Psalms 1515 and the Complutensian have it קם plene. The best Standard Codices and early editions, however, have it קם defective, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227; the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491—93; the third edition, Brescia 1494; the fourth edition, Pesaro 1511—17; the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 220a, on Ps. 144 12, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage.

קם and Ziza, occurs twice, once it is written with Aleph and once with He. That is, with the prefix Vav. Without this prefix קם with Aleph also occurs in 2 Chron. 11 20.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 144b, on 1 Chron. 23 11, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 240a, on 1 Chron. 4 37. This Rubric forms part of the Massorah recording eleven or twelve words which respectively occur twice, once ending in Aleph and once in He (vide supra, letter x, § 17), as well as of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav which respectively occur twice in the same book. (Vide supra, letter y, § 66.)

מ"ע = § 71.

מ"ע beside three, occurs twice. That is, with Sheva under the Tav, in contradistinction to the other three passages where it occurs with Segol, which is due to the pausal accent (comp. מ"ע 2 Sam. 7 22; Isa. 26 13; 1 Chron. 17 20).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 260a, on Ruth 4 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 28 4a, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 300a, also on the same passage.

It will be seen that the Massorah here distinguishes between מ"ע in Isa. 64 3 and מ"ע in 2 Sam. 7 22 which has the Sakeph on the Tav. Hence the Standard Codices point the Isaiah instance with Sheva, so Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 &c.

ע"ב they are pressed out, they are estranged, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to this trilateral with Kametz under the Zayin, recorded in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 119a, on Isa. 1 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 297b, on Ps. 58 4, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter y, § 80. List II heads it ב"ב ב"ב. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter z, § 428.)

ע"ג = § 73.

ע"ג they were estranged, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the two instances in which this trilateral is with Cholem on the Zayin, recorded in the preceding Rubric. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Job 19 13.

ע"ד = § 74.

ע"ד they are estranged, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 918, on Ezek. 14 5.

ע"ה pure, occurs three times. That is, with Kametz under the Zayin. This adjective occurs altogether eight times without and with the prefix Vav. According to the received text it is ע"ה with Pathach in five instances (Prov. 16 2; 20 21; Job 8 6; 11 4; 33 9) and in one instance where it is ע"ה with the prefix Vav (Prov. 21 8) it is also with Pathach. As the instances with Kametz are the exception, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 325a, on Job 11 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 110a, on Exod. 27 20, and (III) the printed Massorah on Levit. 24 2. It will be seen that List I not only states in the heading that there are three such instances, but records three giving Job 11 4, which is in the textus receptus with Pathach (ע"ה) as the third passage. It is remarkable that the Model Codex Harley 5710-11, has it ע"ה with Kametz. Lists II and III, however, head this Rubric ב"ב and give Exod. 27 20 and Levit. 24 2 as the only two, omitting the Job passage. This is confirmed by the text of Orient. 2201; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227, and the early editions, which exhibit ע"ה with Pathach in Job 11 4.

ע"ו pure, occurs three times... two of which are in the Pentateuch. That is, the feminine form of ע"ו. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 79b, on Levit. 24 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 229a, on Job 16 17; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 78b, on Exod. 30 34; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 327b, on Job 16 17; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 59b, on Exod. 30 34; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 117b, on the same passage; (VII) the printed Massorah also on the same passage; (VIII) the same on Levit. 24 7, and (IX) the same on Job 16 17.

ע"ז pure, occurs three times in the Scriptures. The only other instance where this trilateral occurs it is the Chaldee ע"ז innocency

(Dan. 6 23). Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 282b, on Job 25 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 270a, on Lament. 4 7; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 330a, on Job 25 5; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 353a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Job 15 15.

ע"ח = § 78.

ע"ח Zaccai, occurs twice with Zakeph Kametz. That is, in contradistinction to Neh. 3 20 where the official reading or Keri is ע"ח with Pathach and Tzepha for the textual reading ע"ח Zabbai. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Neh. 7 14.

ע"ט = § 79.

ע"ט I remembered, is in two instances the textual reading or Kethiv and the official reading or Keri is ע"ט thou hadst remembered, second person singular feminine. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter y, § 56.

פ"ד = § 80.

פ"א to remember or remember thou, begins a verse five times. In the other three instances in which this Kal infinitive absolute, used also as an imperative, occurs, it is in the middle of the verse (Exod. 13 3; Deut. 7 18; Jerem. 31 20). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter y, § 55.

פ"ב to remember, is twice defective. As this infinitive absolute, which occurs altogether eight times, is plene in six instances and defective in two only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

And wherever it is the imperative it is likewise defective (ע"ב) except in one instance. As imperative with Cholem it occurs altogether seventeen times. Here it is defective in sixteen instances (Exod. 32 13; Deut. 9 7, 27; 32 7; 2 Kings 9 25; Jerem. 14 21; 18 20; Ps. 25 6; 74 2, 22; 89 51; 137 7; Job 7 7; 36 24; 40 32; Lament. 5 1) and once only it is plene. Here therefore, the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 116b, on Deut. 7 18, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 167a, on Jerem. 31 20; (III) Add. 15,250; fol. 100b, on Deut. 7 18; (IV) the same MS., fol. 256a, on Jerem. 31 20; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 269a, on Deut. 7 18; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Ps. 132 1. Lists II, III and IV do not give the second part of this Massorah.

פ"ג remember thou, is twice with Kametz... and wherever it is joined with Makeph to ע"ג or ע"ג it is likewise with Kametz. ע"ג at the end of this Rubric are the initials of these four expressions.

This imperative occurs altogether twenty-eight times. In sixteen instances it is ע"ג with Cholem which are given in the preceding Rubric, and in twelve it is ע"ג with Kametz. Normally this Kametz is due to its combination by Makeph with one of the above-named four expressions (comp. (1) ע"ג Isa. 44 21; (2) ע"ג Ps. 89 48; (3) ע"ג Ps. 74 18, and (4) ע"ג 2 Kings 20 3; Isa. 38 3; Micah 6 5; Job 4 7; 10 9; Neh. 1 8). As it is in these two instances only, that ע"ג is abnormally combined in one passage with ע"ג and in the other with ע"ג, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 180a, on Ps. 25 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 269b, on Lament. 3 19; (III) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 193, margin, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Lament. 3 19. These four Lists exhibit two different recensions of this Massorah. Lists I and II exhibit one recension. According to this recension there are two such exceptions and Ps. 119 49 is ע"ג with Cholem. This is not only the reading in the text itself of this Model Codex, but also of Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 21,161; Orient. 2875 &c. The second recension is exhibited in Lists III and IV. These two Lists not only emphatically state in their respective headings that there are three such instances with Kametz (ע"ג) and give Ps. 119 49 as one of the three, but List III gives the following mnemonic sign ע"ג ע"ג ע"ג, and this reading is supported by Orient. 2201; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 and Orient. 4227.

וַיִּזְכֹּר אֱלֹהִים and God remembered, occurs four times in the Pentateuch. Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 38a, on Gen. 19 29, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 20a, on Gen. 30 22; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 28a; (IV) Add. 21,100, fol. 25b, all on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochlal Ye-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 130a; (VI) the same fol. 130b; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 8 1, and (VIII) the same on Gen. 19 29. The heading ought more properly to be רָמַח הַיָּד הַיְמָנִית since this phrase is restricted to the Pentateuch.

תִּזְכֹּר thou shall remember, is always defective except twice. As this future second person, which occurs altogether eight times, is defective in six instances and plene in two only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional spelling. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 116b, on Deut. 7 18.

תִּזְכְּרֶנּוּ they shall be remembered, occurs twice. This Rubric, which I have found in Vienna Codex No. 85 only, on Ezek. 3 20, is against the best Codices, which have תִּזְכְּרֶנּוּ with the paragogic He in Isa. 65 17. This is the reading in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 &c.

This Niphal future third person plural feminine occurs altogether six times and with the exception of the solitary instance in Isaiah (65 17) all the others are restricted to Ezekiel (§ 20; 18 24; 33 18, 16), and it is with regard to two Ezekiel instances that some MSS. and editions exhibit a variation in its orthography. Thus in Ezek. 31 20; St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; read it תִּזְכְּרֶנּוּ without the paragogic He, whilst in Add. 21,101 which had it originally תִּזְכְּרֶנּוּ with the He, the Nakdan altered the textual reading into תִּזְכְּרֶנּוּ and put against it in the margin תִּזְכְּרֶנּוּ. The second instance is in Ezek. 33 18. Here Orient. 2201, which is the second oldest dated MS. of the whole Bible, reads תִּזְכְּרֶנּוּ without the paragogic He, and this reading is supported by the Pesaro edition of the latter Prophets, 1515; the fourth edition of the Bible, Pesaro 1511-17; Complutensian and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-25. Accordingly the catchwords וְזָכַרְתֶּם וְזָכַרְתֶּם ought to be זָכַרְתֶּם לֹא תִזְכְּרֶנּוּ. That this, however, is the reading of one School of textual redactors only, and that the Codices of the predominant School read it here תִּזְכְּרֶנּוּ with the paragogic He, is attested by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 &c., for which reason I have adopted it in my edition of the Bible.

זְכוֹר his remembrance, is unique and throughout the Minor Prophets it is always so except in one instance. That is, this quadriliteral with Cholem is unique in Job, whereas in the Minor Prophets, where this quadriliteral occurs three times, it is twice זָכַר (Hosea 12 6; 14 8) and once only with Sheva (Mal. 3 22). This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Job 18 17. It forms part of the List of words which respectively occur once only in one book of the Scriptures, whilst in all other books they are the rule with one exception. (Vide infra, letter z, § 449, Vol. II, p. 227.)

ד"ר - § 88.

זָכַר וְזָכְרָה. — Eight words are masculine and are read as feminine. That is, in these eight instances the proper names זָכַר David (1 Sam. 18 21; 2 Sam. 13 39); זָכְרָה Israel (1 Sam. 17 21; 2 Sam. 24 9); מוֹאָב Moab (Judg. 3 30); כְּהֹלֶתֶיךָ Cohelath (Ecol. 7 27) which are masculine, and אַרְכָּה (1 Sam. 4 17; 2 Chron. 8 11) are treated as feminine, being combined with feminine verbs. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1471, fol. 68b, on Judg. 3 30.

ד"ר - § 89.

זָכְרָה זָכְרָה. — Four words are feminine and are used as masculine. In these four instances the reverse is the case, the normally feminine is abnormally treated as masculine. All the four instances refer to זָכְרָה. (Vide supra, letter z, § 1427.) This Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 62b, on Jerem. 49 16.

זָכְרָה a memorial, is three times defective. Without and with the prefixes this noun occurs altogether eighteen times. In fifteen instances it is plene and in these three instances only, has it retained its original defective orthography. In some Codices however, the process of substituting the later plene spelling has been more uniformly carried through, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text in which all the three instances are plene. Hence the Massorah safeguards the defectives.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 104b, on Exod. 28 12, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 111a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalls, letter ' , § 49. As one of the instances is with the prefix Lamed and, moreover, as all the three instances not only occur in the same book, but are restricted to the same section, the heading ought more properly to be זָכְרָה בְּלִישׁ וּבְעֵינַי.

זָכְרָה for a memorial, occurs seven times two of which are defective. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 55a, on Exod. 30 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 139a, on Josh. 4 7; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 69b, on Exod. 28 12; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 8a, on Josh. 4 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 219a, on Zech. 6 14; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 118b, on Josh. 4 7, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Zech. 6 14.

These Lists exhibit two different headings. List I states that there are seven such instances only, which is perfectly correct since it records the passages in which this noun is with the prefix Lamed alone. The other Lists which head this Rubric זָכְרָה include the one instance in which it is זָכְרָה (Exod. 13 9). This is rendered beyond doubt by the heading זָכְרָה לְזִכְרוֹן ה' בִּי מִן הַיָּד הַיְמָנִית and the addition at the end זָכְרָה לְךָ לֹאֵחָ הָרַחֵם מִן הַיָּד הַיְמָנִית.

זָכְרָה זָכְרָה. — Throughout the Scriptures it is זָכְרָה with Kametz under the Caph except in one instance where it is with Sheva, whilst in Ecclesiastes it is always with Sheva except in one instance where it is with Kametz. That is, this noun in the absolute is the rule and in the construct is unique apart from Ecclesiastes, whereas in Ecclesiastes the construct is the rule and the absolute is unique. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, both in the printed Massorah: (I) on Zech. 6 4, and (II) on Ecol. 1 11. It forms part of the List of words which respectively occur once only in one book of the Scriptures, whilst in all the other books they are the rule with one exception. (Vide infra, letter z, § 449, Vol. II, p. 227.)

צ"ג - § 93.

זָכְרָה remembrance of, occurs three times in the Scriptures and is plene. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 283b, on Ecol. 2 16, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 302b, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 106b, on Levit. 23 24, and (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 96a, on the same passage. List II heads this Rubric זָכְרָה זָכְרָה that is, with Sheva under the Caph.

זְכַרְיָהוּ Zecharjah, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, excluding Chronicles. This name without and with prefixes, occurs altogether 43 times in the Scriptures. As it exhibits two forms, viz. the shorter form ending in יָהּ jah and the longer form ending in יָהִי jahai and, moreover, as the former is the rule outside Chronicles and the exception in Chronicles, the Massorites divided this Rubric into two parts so as to safeguard the exceptions in each case.

In the Scriptures with the exception of Chronicles, where this name occurs altogether twenty-two times, it is the shorter form זְכַרְיָהוּ which occurs in twenty instances (2 Kings 14 29; 15 11; 18 2; Zech. 1 1, 7; 7 1, 8; Ezra. 5 1; 6 14; 8 3, 11, 16; 10 26; Neh. 8 4; 11 4, 5, 12; 12 16, 35, 41) and in two instances only is it the longer form. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the rare exception.

And throughout Chronicles it is likewise Zecharjahū except seven times. In this book, where it occurs altogether twenty-one times, it is the longer form זְכַרְיָהּ in fourteen instances (1 Chron. 5 7; 15 18, 24; 24 25; 26 2, 11, 14; 27 21; 2 Chron. 20 14; 21 2; 26 5; 29 1, 13; 35 8) and the shorter form זְכַרְיָה in seven only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the shorter form which is the minority. For the reason of this duplicate spelling see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical text of the Bible, p. 386 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated ten Lists, nine in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 249a, on 2 Kings 15 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 4b, on Isa. 8 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 109a, on 2 Kings 15 8; (IV) the same MS., fol. 132a, on Isa. 8 2; (V) the same MS., fol. 248a, on 1 Chron. 15 20; (VI) the same MS., fol. 267a, on 2 Chron. 17 7; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 219a, on Isa. 8 2; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 349b, on 2 Chron. 24 20; (IX) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 59, and (X) the printed Massorah on 1 Chron. 16 5. Lists VIII and X give the second part of this Rubric only. Lists I and II give זְכַרְיָהּ לְבַשׁוּ as the catchwords for 2 Chron. 24 20 and not זְכַרְיָהּ אֶלֶיָּהּ as it is in the textus receptus.

זְכַרְיָהּ branch, without and with the prefix He, is plene, whilst with the suffix it is defective. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb. 13 23.

זְכַרְיָהּ = § 96.

זְכַרְיָהּ the branch, occurs twice plene. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 157b, on Ezek. 15 2, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As both instances are not only plene, but are restricted to the same book, the heading ought properly to be זְכַרְיָהּ בְּיַד יְהוָה. The addition, therefore, of זְכַרְיָהּ alone in the heading of List II is not sufficient.

זְכַרְיָהּ is four times defective in this form. That is, forms derived from the root זָכַר, two being the future second person singular (זָכַרְתָּ Levit. 25 3, 4); one the construct of זָכַרְתָּ a branch (זָכַרְתָּ Isa. 17 10) and one the same noun with the suffix third person plural (זָכַרְתָּ Nah. 2 3).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2348, fol. 107a, on Levit. 25 3, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 97a; (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 96a; (IV) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 80a, all on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 63.

Lists I, II and III are practically the same and give identically the same four instances. List IV, however, emphatically states in the heading that there are five such instances (זָכַרְתָּ וְזָכַרְתָּ וְזָכַרְתָּ וְזָכַרְתָּ וְזָכַרְתָּ), and gives זָכַרְתָּ לְיָדֶיךָ Joel 4 10 as one of the five, which agrees with our text where זָכַרְתָּ is duly defective. Though List V, like Lists I, II and III, states in the heading that there are four defectives only (זָכַרְתָּ וְזָכַרְתָּ וְזָכַרְתָּ וְזָכַרְתָּ) and records four, yet one is different from these Lists. Instead of זָכַרְתָּ Nah. 2 3 it gives זָכַרְתָּ נָחֻם Numb. 13 23 which is plene in the textus receptus, and though it is also plene in Jacob b. Chayim's text (Venice 1524—25), yet the Massorah Parva against it is זָכַרְתָּ בְּלִישׁ, thus affording another instance of conflict between the text and certain Massorahs.

זְכַרְיָהּ songs, occurs four times in the Scriptures. In the only other instance in which this plural occurs it is with the prefix Beth (זְכַרְיָהּ Ps. 95 2) which some of the Massorahs duly mention.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 214a, on 2 Sam. 23 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 213a, on Ps. 119 54; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 128b, on Isa. 24 16, which states זְכַרְיָהּ; (IV) the same MS., fol. 314b, on Ps. 119 54; (V) the same MS., fol. 333b, on Job 35 10; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Isa. 24 16; (VII) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 23 1; (VIII) the same on Ps. 95 2, and (IX) the same on Job 35 10.

List II heads this Rubric זְכַרְיָהּ בְּלִישׁ, thus showing that three of the instances are with Vav plene and one (Isa. 24 16) is זְכַרְיָהּ without the Vav. This is expressed in different language but still more emphatically in the heading of List VI זְכַרְיָהּ בְּלִישׁ וְזְכַרְיָהּ בְּלִישׁ. This is supported by the best Standard Codices, which have זְכַרְיָהּ in Isa. 24 16. Thus Orient. 2201 where the Massorah Parva remarks on זְכַרְיָהּ; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16 with the Massorah on it זְכַרְיָהּ; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 with the Massorah on it זְכַרְיָהּ; Add. 15,451 &c. When, therefore, it is זְכַרְיָהּ entirely plene in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, it must be based upon a recension of the text preserved in some Schools of textual redactors which exhibited this reading. The Nakdan of this ancient Codex struck through the Yod and remarked against it זְכַרְיָהּ, but left it זְכַרְיָהּ with Vav plene.

זְכַרְיָהּ he thought, or devised, occurs twice. This Rubric, which is not in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 217a, on Zech. 1 6. In the textus receptus this trilateral is זְכַרְיָהּ with Pathach under the Mem in Zech. 1 6 and with Kametz under Lament 2 17. The Massorah must therefore mean to emphasise the fact that this preterite third person singular occurs twice without any regard to the variation in the graphic signs.

זְכַרְיָהּ = § 100.

זְכַרְיָהּ I have thought, occurs twice . . . one is with the accent on the ultima. That is, Ps. 17 3. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 287a, on Ps. 17 3.

זְכַרְיָהּ = § 101.

זְכַרְיָהּ appointed, occurs twice and is defective. In the only other instance where this Pual participle plural occurs it is the feminine (זְכַרְיָהּ Neh. 13 31). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Neh. 10 35.

זְכַרְיָהּ = § 102.

זְכַרְיָהּ and she committed adultery, occurs twice, once at the beginning of the verse and once at the end of the verse. This future third person singular feminine with Vav conversive, occurs altogether four times. In two instances it is the full form and in two the apocopated form, the Massorah safeguards here the two which exhibit the full form. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32a, on Judg. 19 2, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 143a, on Isa. 57 3.

זְכַרְיָהּ and she committed adultery, occurs twice. That is, in this apocopated form. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 149a, on Jerem. 3 8, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 181b, on Ezek. 23 5.

זְכַרְיָהּ = § 104.

זְכַרְיָהּ whoring, occurs twice in the Scriptures, once plene and once defective. As this participle active masculine which occurs twice only, is spelt differently in each case, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 195b, on Ps. 73 27, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 302a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

זְכַרְיָהּ = § 105.

זְכַרְיָהּ occurs three times in this form. That is, the form of the active participle masculine without and with the prefix He which is in one instance only defective (Hosea 4 15). And wherever it is plural it is plene with the second Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 76a, on Ezek. 6 *

זְכַרְיָהּ = § 106.

זְכַרְיָהּ a whore, is three times defective. This participle feminine occurs altogether nineteen times. As it is plene in sixteen instances and defective in three only, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the exceptional spelling, and thus to militate against the School of textual redactors which exhibited the normal orthography. This is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, which has both the instances in Levit. plene, and by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 which has זְכַרְיָהּ in Jerem. 2 20, as well as by some of the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 77b, on Levit. 21 7, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 148b, on Jerem. 2 20; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 94b, on Levit. 21 7; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 84a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

קִיָּה to or for a harlot, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 25b, on Gen. 38 15, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קיח = § 108.

קִיָּה he hath cast off, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 105b, on Hosea 8 3, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קִיָּה he hath indignation, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 229a, on Numb. 28 8, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 67.

This trilateral with Pathach under the Ayin, occurs altogether six times. As it is also with Pathach under the Zayin, in four instances, being a noun (comp. קִיָּה rage, wrath, Isa. 10 25; 30 27; Jerem. 15 17; Dan. 11 36) and in two only with Kametz, being the preterite third person singular, the Massorah safeguards the graphic signs of the minority. As a verb this trilateral has the accent on the ultima and as a noun the accent is on the penultima. Hence List II heads this Rubric קִיָּה בְּמִלֵּי.

קִיָּה they are sad, is twice defective. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 408b, on Dan. 1 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 364a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 26a, on Gen. 40 6, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As this participle plural masculine, which occurs twice only, is defective in both instances, the heading ought more properly to be קִיָּה בְּמִלֵּי.

קִיָּה and cry ye, is three times with Pathach. This quinqueliteral occurs altogether six times. In three instances it is with Kametz under the Zayin, being the preterite third person plural (comp. קִיָּה Jerem. 11 11, 12; 47 2) and in three with Pathach, being the imperative plural masculine. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards them against being interchanged.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 164b, on Judg. 10 14, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 25 34, which gives the mnemonic sign only; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 26b, on Judg. 10 14; (IV) the same MS., fol. 163a, on Jerem. 25 34; (V) the same MS., fol. 208b, on Joel 1 14, which gives the mnemonic sign only; (VI) the printed Massorah on Judg. 10 14, and (VII) the same on Joel 1 14. Lists III and VII alone give both the three instances and the mnemonic sign.

קִיָּה and he cried out, called out, or called together, occurs four times in the Scriptures. With There under the Ayin this quinqueliteral occurs seven times. As it is in four instances with Pathach under the Yod and Sheva under the Zayin, being the Hiphil, and in three with Chirek and Kametz, being the Niphal, the Massorah in this Rubric and in the following one, safeguards the respective forms.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 157b, on Judg. 4 10, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jonah 3 7; (III) the same Codex on Zech. 6 8; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 21a, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 209b, on Jonah 3 7; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Zech. 6 8, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Judg. 4 10.

קִיָּה and he came together, or was assembled. That is, to distinguish it from the other three instances where the verb used in this sense in this very book is קִיָּה with Tzadi instead of Zayin (Judg. 7 23, 24; 12 1 and comp. letter x, § 173, Vol. II, p. 316).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 182a, on 1 Sam. 14 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 23a, on Judg. 6 34; (III) the same MS., fol. 43b, on 1 Sam. 14 20, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 72.

קִיָּה the cry of, occurs three times in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the three instances of this noun in the construct with Zayin against being made conformable to the majority of passages in which it is with Tzadi (comp. קִיָּה Exod. 3 9; Jerem. 25 36; 48 5; Ps. 9 13; Job 24 38; Neh. 5 1).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 88a, on Ezek. 27 28, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 125a, on Isa. 15 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 184b, on Ezek. 27 28; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 221b, on Isa. 15 5, and (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 18 20.

קִיָּה from the cry of, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 65a, on Jerem. 48 34, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 252a, on Prov. 21 13; (III) the same MS., fol. 267a, on Eccl. 9 17; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 344a, on Prov. 21 13; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 391b, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 48 34, and (VII) the same on Prov. 21 13.

קִיָּה thou art old, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the Eastern recension of the text which exhibits קִיָּה plene in Josh. 13 1.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 146b, on Josh. 13 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 9b, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 149a, on 1 Sam. 8 5.

קכב = § 117.

קִיָּה I am old, occurs four times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 18 13 is incorrect. This Kal preterite first person singular occurs six times, and two instances, viz. Josh. 23 2; Ruth 1 12, are omitted. Frensdorff's explanation (Massoretisches Wörterbuch, p. 58) that in these four instances the Pathach is retained even with the pausal accent (קִיָּה) is inadmissible, since it is only in two out of the four instances that קִיָּה is with Soph-Pasuk (Gen. 18 13) and Athnach (Gen. 27 2), in the other two it is קִיָּה with Munach (1 Sam. 12 2) a non-pausal accent, and קִיָּה Olé Ve-Yored (Ps. 37 25), and though the latter is a pausal accent the two instances which are omitted, viz. קִיָּה with Zakeph-Katon (Josh. 23 2) and קִיָּה with Tipcha (Ruth 1 12) are also pausal accents. The printed Massorah here, as is often the case elsewhere, is incorrect.

קכג = § 118.

קִיָּה he shall become old, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 344b, on Prov. 22 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 326a, on Job 14 8, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קכד = § 119.

קִיָּה the beard, occurs three times . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. This quadriliteral, which occurs altogether nine times, is in six instances with There under the Coph and denotes the old, the aged (קִיָּה Gen. 43 27; Judg. 19 17, 20, 22; 1 Kings 13 25, 29) and in three only is it with Kametz. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 71a, on Levit. 13 30, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 217a, on Ps. 133 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 122a, on Isa. 7 20; (IV) the same MS., fol. 318a, on Ps. 133 2; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 218a, on Isa. 7 20; (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 13 30, and (VII) the same on Ps. 133 2.

קיב occurs twice in two different senses. In the first instance it is the construct of קיב and denotes the elder of (Gen. 24 2) and in the second it is the construct of קיב and denotes the beard of (Pa. 133 2).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 217a, on Pa. 133 2, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 318a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 872b, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 16a, on Gen. 24 2; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 12a, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Pa. 133 2. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter כ, § 248, Vol. II, p. 217.)

קיבא he was old, stricken in years, occurs four times. For this Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 24 1, see letter כ, § 71.

קיבב - § 122.

קיבב and his elders, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 310b, on Ps. 105 22, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 85, on Josh. 8 33.

קיבג - § 123.

קיבג old age, occurs twice and is defective. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 24b, on Gen. 37 8, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 52a; on Gen. 44 20, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 37 8. As both instances are not only restricted to the Pentateuch but to the same book, the heading ought more properly to be ב' חמ' ויבט' or ב' חמ' ויבט'. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in the same sense. (Vide infra, letter כ, § 427, Vol. II, p. 216.)

קיבד - § 124.

קיבד in his old age, occurs twice plene. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2849, fol. 38b, on Gen. 21 2. As the two instances occur in the same section the heading ought to be ב' חמ' ויבט'.

קיבה - § 125.

קיבה winnowing, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 259b, on Ruth 3 2, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 82. Lists II and III head this Rubric ב' חמ'.

קיבז - § 126.

קיבז they have scattered, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 217b, on Zech. 2 2, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter heads the Rubric ב' חמ' ויבט' though ויבט' more correctly specifies the two instances, חמ' is incorrect, since the Piel preterite third person plural from קיבז could not be plene.

קיבא I will scatter, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, the Piel future first person singular with Segol under the Resh in all the three instances. This is attested by the best Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 &c. The fact that the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 reads this quadriliteral קיבא the Kal instead of קיבא the Piel, is no reason for taking it as constituting one of the differences between the Orientals and Occidentals unless we are prepared consistently to regard the numerous variations in this Codex as exhibiting the Babylonian recension of the text which no sober critic will now maintain (see my contribution On Relationship of the so-called Codex Babylonicus of A. D. 916 to the Eastern Recension of the Hebrew Text p. 149 &c. in the Festschrift zu Ehren Prof. Chwolson's, Berlin 1899). I have, therefore, simply given it as a variant in the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible, as it is neither in the official List of Variations, nor have I found it in any MS. marked as such.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 76b, on Ezek. 12 14, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 12 14 which however reads it קיבא; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 275b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 270b, on Ezek. 5 12; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 181b, on Levit. 26 38; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 98b, on the same passage; (VII) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VIII) the same on Ezek. 5 12.

קיבא with the arm, is three times plene in this form in the Pentateuch. That is, this noun without and with the different prefixes, is in these instances only plene in this division of the Bible, in contradistinction to the other five passages where it is defective (Numb. 6 19; Deut. 5 15; 7 19; 18 8; 26 8).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 88a, on Exod. 6 6, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 116a, on Deut. 33 20, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קיבט with the arm or to sow, is three times defective. That is, in the Prophets this expression with Cholem on the Resh and with the prefix, as is evident from the fact that in Isa. 28 24 it is the infinitive with the prefix Lamed of קיבט to sow. This Rubric, which gives the instances in the Prophets in a separate Massorah, does not occur in the printed Massorah. I have found it in Arund. Orient. 16 only, fol. 177a, on Ezek. 17 9.

קיב is three times plene in the Pentateuch. This Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, is another recension of the preceding two Rubrics combined into one. It safeguards the minority or the exceptional orthography of the noun קיב, without and with the prefixes, in the three divisions of the Bible.

The Pentateuch. — In the Pentateuch, where this noun occurs altogether eight times, the defective orthography is the rule. (Vide supra, § 123.) Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the plene spelling.

The Prophets. — In this division, where it occurs altogether thirteen times, the reverse is the case, the plene orthography occurs eleven times (2 Kings 17 36; Isa. 44 12; 51 9; 52 10; 53 1; 63 8; 63 12; Jerem. 21 5; Ezek. 20 38, 34; 30 21) and the defective twice only, and with the infinitive קיבט three times. (Vide supra, § 129.) Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional defectives.

The Hagiographa. — In the Hagiographa, where this noun occurs fourteen times (Pa. 10 15; 77 16; 83 9; 89 11, 14; 96 1; 136 12; Job 22 8; 26 2; 26 9; 36 15; 40 9; Dan. 11 6; 2 Chron. 33 8), it is uniformly plene. The heading ב' חמ' ויבט' is not quite correct, since the three defective instances do not extend to the Hagiographa where there is not a single defective instance according to the Palestinians. This Rubric must therefore emanate from the Babylonians which read it defective in Dan. 11 6, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 44a, on Exod. 6 6, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 46b, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2849, fol. 148b, on Deut. 33 20; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 41a, on Exod. 6 6; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 71b, on the same passage; (VI) the same MS., fol. 264a, on Deut. 5 15, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 2 31. It is remarkable that List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, simply heads the second part of the Rubric ב' חמ' ויבט' leaving out the objectionable expression ויבט' and making up the fourth instance by stating ב' חמ' ויבט' which thus includes קיבט with the suffix which belongs to § 134 and which is incorrect here, since with the suffix it occurs four times defective in the Prophets.

קיבב - § 132.

קיבב my arm, is twice plene in this form. That is, this form with the suffix first person singular without and with the prefix, in contradistinction to the other two instances where it is defective (Isa. 51 5; 63 5). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ı, § 89.

By fixing the number at two, the design of this Massorah is to exclude the plene orthography of this expression in Isa. 63 5 which is exhibited in the recension of the text by the less dominant School of redactors, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

קלינ = § 133.

קלינ thy arm, occurs twice. This Rubric, the reference to which I have mislaid, is enigmatical, since this noun with the suffix second person singular occurs four times and two passages are omitted, viz. 1 Sam. 2 31 which is defective and Ps. 71 18.

קליד = § 134.

קליד thy arm, is five times defective in this form. That is, the form of this noun with the suffix second person singular masculine, without and with the prefixes, is in these five instances without the Fav. With this suffix this noun occurs altogether eleven times. As it is plene in six instances (Exod. 15 16; Ps. 44 4; 71 18; 79 11; Cant. 8 6; 2 Chron. 6 32) and defective in five, the Massorah records the minority. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the recensions of the text which exhibited variations with regard to the orthography of these eleven instances. Thus in Exod. 15 16 the celebrated Jerusalem Codex reads קליד defective. In Deut. 9 29 the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text reads קליד plene, whilst in Jerem. 32 17 not only does St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 read it קליד plene, but several of the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. In Ezek. 4 7, where the St. Petersburg Codex originally had קליד defective, the Nakdan corrected it into קליד plene.

Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, seven in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 129a, on Deut. 9 29, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 118a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 72a, on Ezek. 4 7; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 36a, on 1 Sam. 2 31; (V) the same MS., fol. 168a, on Jerem. 32 17; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 110a, on Deut. 9 29; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 265a, on the same passage; (VIII) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (IX) the same on Ezek. 4 7.

With the exception of List IX all the Lists not only state in their respective headings that there are five such defectives, but record identically the same five passages, which conclusively shows that they proceed from the same Massoretic School. List IX, which professes to register the four instances of the Prophets and Hagiographa only, is hopelessly corrupt: (1) there is no instance in the Hagiographa where this noun with the suffix second person is defective, neither does the List itself record one; (2) it omits two instances which all the other Lists give, viz. 1 Kings 8 42; Jerem. 32 17, and (3) it gives two instances which are incorrect, viz. ליקי the infinitive of לקי (Isa. 28 24) which is contrary to the scope of this Massorah and קריצ (Ezek. 17 9) which is not only against the import of this Rubric but which is plene.¹

קליז his arms. With the plural suffix third person singular masculine, this noun occurs five times, four times without the prefix Fav and once with it. As it is spelt in three different ways, once entirely plene (Judg. 15 14), once partly plene and partly defective (Hosea 11 3), whilst in the other three instances it is entirely defective (Judg. 16 12; Ezek. 30 22; Dan. 10 6), the Massorah safeguards the two instances each of which is exceptionally spelt. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 202b, on Hosea 11 3.

קליז and he arose, occurs three times . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa, and once it is without the prefix Fav. In the only other instance where it occurs without the prefix Fav it is קליז with Kametz under the Resh (Isa. 60 1), which is due to the pausal accent Soph-Pasuk.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 134b, on Dent. 33 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 27b, on Isa. 58 10; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 263a, on Eccl. 1 5; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 351a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 236a, on Isa. 58 10; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 143a, on Deut. 33 2, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ı, § 83.

קליח she rose, occurs four times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Fav. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated ten Lists, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710 11. Vol. I, fol. 240a, on 2 Kings 3 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 165a, on 2 Chron. 26 19; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 63a, on Exod. 22 2; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Nah. 3 17; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 99b, on 2 Kings 3 22; (VI) the same MS., fol. 213b, on Nah. 3 17; (VII) the same MS., fol. 273b, on 2 Chron. 26 19; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 22 2; (IX) the same on 2 Kings 3 22, and (X) the same on Nah. 3 17.

This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Fav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter ı, § 75.)

קליט to, or of the Zarhite, occurs twice. That is, with the prefix Lamed, in contradistinction to the other four instances where this patronymic occurs and where it is with the prefix He (Numb. 26 13, 20; Josh. 7 17, 17). The second reference in this Rubric should be 1 Chron. 27 13 and not 27 3.

קיס = § 140.

קיס thou shalt sow, is twice with Zakah. This future second person singular masculine, which occurs altogether ten times, is in eight instances with the normal Pathach under the Resh and in two instances only is it with Kametz, which is due to the disjunctive accent Zakeph-Katon. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional vowel-point and accent.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Deut. 22 9, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Levit 25 4. This Rubric is part of the List of words which respectively occur twice with Zakeph-Kametz. (Vide infra, letter ı, § 614, Vol. II, p. 313.)

קמא = § 141.

קמא sowing, is twice plene. Without and with the prefixes this active participle occurs altogether six times. It is defective in four instances (Gen. 1 29, 29; Isa. 55 10; Prov. 11 18) and plene, in two only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250 fol. 267a, on Jerem. 50 16, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קמיב ye shall sow, occurs twice. That is, with Kametz under the Resh, though it is with Pashta in one instance (Jerem. 35 7). In the only other passages where this future second person plural masculine occurs, it is with Sheva (קמיב Jerem. 4 3). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 170b, on Jerem. 35 7.

קמיז that which is sown, occurs three times in this form . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. That is, the three forms consisting of the noun קמיז in the singular, without the suffix, and in the plural with the suffix third person singular feminine, as well as the Kal participle passive singular masculine, are respectively unique. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ps. 97 11. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading ... in Ps. 97 11 which was exhibited in some Schools of textual redactors, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

וְרֵעַ seed, begins a verse four times ... and once it is with the prefix Vav. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the reading ... in Pa. 22 31 against the Codices which exhibited ... as is attested by the Septuagint and the Vulgate and which is now regarded by textual critics as preferable.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 139a, on Deut. 28 38, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 149a; (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 188a, and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 85, all on the same passage. It is remarkable that List IV not only states in the heading that there are two instances only in which this noun begins a verse, but records two, viz. Deut. 28 38 and Pa. 22 31, omitting Ps. 106 6, and 1 Chron. 16 13.

וְרֵעַ הַבַּיִת הַיְשׁוּאָה the seed of the house of Israel, occurs twice in this form. That is, without and with the preposition Mem before ... Normally the phrase is simply ... the seed of Israel, without ... the house of. In this form this combination occurs seven times (2 Kings 17 20; Isa. 45 25; Jerem. 31 36, 37; Pa. 22 24; Neh. 9 2; 1 Chron. 16 13). As this abnormal phrase occurs in these two instances only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination and thus militates against the recensions which exhibited the normal phrase in these two passages also, which is attested by the Septuagint. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 23a, on Jerem. 23 8.

מִן הַזֵּרֵעַ הַמְלֹכִי from the seed royal, occurs four times. The only other instance where it occurs, ... is followed by ... viz. ... from the seed of the king. (1 Kings 11 14).

Of this Rubric, I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118b, on 2 Kings 25 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 174b, on Jerem. 41 1; (III) the same MS., fol. 177a, on Ezek. 17 13; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 216a, on 2 Kings 25 25; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VI) the same on Ezek. 17 13.

In the textus receptus Dan. 1 8 is ... with the prefix Vav. Hence List V heads this Rubric ... The other five Lists, however, simply have it ... without stating that one of the instances is with the prefix Vav. This would seem to favour the reading in the Daniel passage without the prefix which is exhibited in the splendid Codex Add. 15,451 and many of the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on Dan. 1 8 in my edition of the Bible.

וְלֹא תִקַּח עֲרֵשָׁלָם. — Three verses vary. That is, they vary in their phraseology. ... with different prefixes, is in three several verses combined with ... which is preceded by different adjuncts, thus yielding three different forms of this phrase. Yet they practically denote the same thing, viz. and to, or upon thy seed for ever. The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to safeguard the respective forms against being made uniform. As stress is here laid upon the fact that ... is preceded by prefixes, the phrase ... 1 Sam. 20 42 is excluded.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 101b, on 2 Kings 5 27, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 9b, on Gen. 13 15; (III) the same MS., fol. 139a, on Deut. 28 46; (IV) Paris Oehliah Ve-Oohliah § 268, and (V) the printed Massorah on Deut. 28 46. The latter heads this Rubric ... which shows that in some Codices these variations did not exist. That this is the import of ... will be seen in letter a, § 729 and § 742.

וְהָיָה and his seed, occurs seven times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 83a, on Gen. 48 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 94b, on Numb. 14 24; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 45b, on Jerem. 22 28; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 144a, on Numb. 24 7; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 161a, on Jerem. 22 28; (VI) Halle Oehliah Ve-Oohliah, Supplement, fol. 132a, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 24 7.

וְהִיטְתָּ עַל הַמִּזְבֵּחַ to sprinkle on the altar, is six times without round about. Normally the phrase ... has the adjunct ... In this form it occurs twelve times (Exod. 29 16, 20; Levit. 1 5, 11; 3 2, 8, 13; 7 2; 8 19, 24; 9 12, 18). As it is in these passages only that ... is absent, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 60a, on Exod. 24 6, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 65b, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 81d, and (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 71a, all on the same passage. The ... in the heading is a misprint for ...

ק"ן - § 150.

וְלֹא הָיָה it was not sprinkled, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 85b, on Numb. 19 20.

קנ"א - § 151.

וְהִיטְתָּ סִימָן. — A sign for the accents of ... The phrase ... and the sons of Aaron shall sprinkle, occurs four times in this Section. In two instances it is the full formula, viz. ... and the sons of Aaron, the priests, shall sprinkle (Levit. 1 11; 3 2) and in two it is the shorter formula, viz. ... and the sons of Aaron shall sprinkle, without the expression ... (Levit. 3 8, 13). As the phrases have different accents, the Massorah indicates here that when it is the full phrase the verb ... is with Pazer (Levit. 1 11; 3 2) and when it is the shorter phrase the verb is ... with Telisha-Gadolah (Levit. 3 8, 13). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Levit. 3 2. ... in the Rubric which I have printed is a mistake for ... Accordingly the accent in the second line should be ...

¶. — The first part of this Rubric, which registers the number of times Cheth occurs in the Bible, is from the celebrated Poem given above, letter z, § 224. The second part, which records the number of times Cheth occurs in the Pentateuch, is from a MS. in my possession. For a description of this remarkable MS. see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, Part I, chap. VII, pp. 110, 111.

כ - § 2.

ג - § 3.

ד - § 4.

¶. — In the following words the Cheth has one Täg. This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of Harley 5710—11, on the respective passages.

ה - § 5.

¶. — In the following words the Cheth has two Tägin. This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of Harley 5710—11 on the respective passages.

ו - § 6.

¶. — In the following words the Cheth has three Tägin. This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of Harley 5710—11 on the respective passages.

ז - § 7.

¶. — In fourteen instances Cheth has a shaft in the middle. This Rubric is from the Sepher Tägin in the Machzor Vitry, Add. 27,021, Vo LII, fols. 209a—215a, which I have printed in the Massorah, letter r, § 25, Vol. II, pp. 680—701. Though it states that there are fourteen such instances, the remaining thirteen are not given.

ח - § 8.

¶. — In twenty-eight instances in the Pentateuch the Cheth has three Tägin, two to the right and one to the left. This Rubric is from the Sepher Tägin of the Machzor Vitry given in letter r, § 25.

ט - § 9.

¶. — In thirty-seven instances in the Pentateuch the Cheth is broad or widened out. This Rubric is from the Sepher Tägin in the Machzor Vitry, given below, letter r, § 25.

¶. — Four words are read with Cheth though it is not in the text. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on 2 Kings 17 21. It is not quite correct, since in 2 Kings 17 21 we are not simply to read the word with a Cheth which is not in the text, but we have to cancel the Aleph, thus substituting אָפּוּן for אָפּוּן, whilst in 2 Kings 20 4 three letters are cancelled

(אָפּוּן) and two others are substituted, z as well as r, so that אָפּוּן becomes אָפּוּן. The notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible will show the conflicting readings of the words which constitute this Rubric.

With regard to Jerem. 42 6 we are distinctly told in the official List of Variations, which obtained between the Easterns and Westerns, that the former did not insert ח in אָפּוּן or that both the Keri and Kethiv are alike אָפּוּן, whilst the latter have אָפּוּן in the text for which the Keri substitutes אָפּוּן. Yet the so-called Babylonian Codex, which is supposed to exhibit the Eastern recension, emphatically states in the Massorah Parva on this word אָפּוּן, thus furnishing another proof that this MS. is of the Palestinian and not Babylonian School.

¶. — Four words which are written with Cheth are read with He. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 205b, on 2 Sam. 13 37, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 252a, on Prov. 20 21; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 261a, on Cant. 1 17; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 344a, on Prov. 20 21; (V) the same MS., fol. 348a, on Cant. 1 17; (VI) Halle Oehliah Ve-Oehliah I, § 107; (VII) Paris Oehliah Ve-Oehliah, § 121; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Prov. 20 21, and (IX) the same on Cant. 1 17. For the variations which are exhibited in the MSS. and editions with regard to the Kethiv and Keri see the notes on these passages in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

י"ב - § 12.

¶. — Words beginning with Cheth which respectively occur once only. This incipient List of unique words beginning with Cheth, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 188a, on Ezek. 33 12.

י"ג - § 13.

¶. — An alphabetical List of words beginning with Cheth which respectively occur once only. This List I compiled myself. The following words given in this List as unique occur more than once; חָתָם, חָתָם, חָתָם, חָתָם, חָתָם, חָתָם, חָתָם. The following words are omitted:

Isa. 68 7	חָתָם	Lament. 2 8	חָתָם	Isa. 44 11	חָתָם
Jerem. 44 30	חָתָם	Job 21 20	חָתָם	1 Kings 16 19	חָתָם
" 48 5	חָתָם	" 16 16	חָתָם	Ps. 20 4	חָתָם
		Lament. 2 11	חָתָם	" 119 28	חָתָם

י"ד - § 14.

¶. — Twenty-two words respectively occur once only with Cheth. That is, in all other instances they are written with He. This Rubric safeguards the converse phenomenon of the one recorded in letter r, § 32.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Halle Oehliah Ve-Oehliah II, § 148, which I have printed; (II) Paris Oehliah Ve-Oehliah, § 212, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter r, § 2.

Though Lists I and III emphatically state in their respective headings that there are twenty-two such words, they record identically the same twenty-one instances only. List II, which by the addition in the heading of the words חָתָם indicates the design of this Massorah, gives חָתָם Judg. 21 14 as one of the instances, thus making up the twenty-two. But this is in conflict with the heading, which emphatically states that in all other passages the words in question are written with He, since חָתָם does not occur. A later Nakdan added at the end of List I that the catalogue is one less. The printed Massorah has the following mistakes in the catchwords: (1) יאמר ought to be יאמר 2 Kings 7 9; (2) נאמר ought to be נאמר Ezek. 37 10; (3) נאמר ought to be נאמר Zech. 11 14, and (4) אלה בני should be אלה בני 1 Chron. 8 6.

ט"ז = § 15a.

ט"ז. — Fifteen words respectively occur twice, once written with Cheth and once with He. Of this form of the Rubric, which definitely states in the heading that there are fifteen such pairs and which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181b, on Ezek. 23 21, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 156b, on Numb. 34 27; (III) the same MS. on the same folio and on the same passage in the outer margin; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 249b, also on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 149; (VI) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 213, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Chron. 8 7. These seven Lists record the same instances.

ט"ח. — Words which respectively occur twice, once with Cheth and once with He. This recension of the Rubric is also one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, as it is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 41 7. It will be seen that the heading fixes no number to these pairs and that it records eighteen.

On a collation of this Rubric with § 15a the following variations are disclosed. The pair constituting No. 7 in § 15a which are apparently omitted in this Rubric, are really represented by No. 9. The enigmatical וְהָאֵלֹהִים וְהָאֵלֹהִים are manifestly a scribal error for הָאֵלֹהִים and הָאֵלֹהִים so that we have here all the fifteen pairs of § 15a, and the eighteen are made up by three new pairs, viz. (1) הָאֵלֹהִים Zech. 11 8. הָאֵלֹהִים its companion Levit. 26 16 has been omitted by the carelessness of the Nakdan, as is attested by the following Rubric, (2) הָאֵלֹהִים and הָאֵלֹהִים, and (3) הָאֵלֹהִים and הָאֵלֹהִים.

ט"ט. — Thirteen [fourteen] words are alike in that they respectively occur twice only, once with Cheth and once with He. Of this Rubric, which definitely gives a less number in the heading than § 15a and which is also one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 32 18, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 40b, on Gen. 49 26, and (III) the same MS., fol. 107a, on Levit. 21 18.

It will be seen that though List I states in the heading that there are thirteen such pairs, it records fourteen. There can, therefore, be no doubt that י" in the heading is a clerical error for י". This is, moreover, attested by the headings of Lists II and III which have י". On comparing this List with § 15a we see that it omits three pairs given in the former, viz. No. 3 הָאֵלֹהִים and הָאֵלֹהִים, No. 4 הָאֵלֹהִים and הָאֵלֹהִים, and No. 8 הָאֵלֹהִים and הָאֵלֹהִים, making up the fourteen by the addition of הָאֵלֹהִים and הָאֵלֹהִים.

Lists II and III record identically the same fourteen pairs. They omit No. 4 of § 15a, viz. הָאֵלֹהִים and הָאֵלֹהִים, as we have seen, are also omitted in List I; but they differ from the latter in giving הָאֵלֹהִים and הָאֵלֹהִים instead of הָאֵלֹהִים and הָאֵלֹהִים.

י" = § 16a-b.

י". — Words ending in Lamed Cheth which respectively occur once only. These fragments, which do not occur in the printed Massorah, are from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 327a, on Job 16 13. When it is borne in mind that there are altogether about 58 such words, it will be seen that these fragments simply exhibit the first attempt on the part of the Massorites to collect and alphabetically to arrange these unique forms.

י"א = § 17.

י"א. — Words ending in Nun Cheth which respectively occur once only. This fragment is from the printed Massorah on Ezek. 41 9. There are altogether about thirteen words terminating in נ which are unique.

י"ב = § 18.

י"ב. — An alphabetical List of words ending in Cheth which respectively occur once only. This List I compiled myself. The following words given in this List as unique, occur more than once

וְהָאֵלֹהִים וְהָאֵלֹהִים וְהָאֵלֹהִים וְהָאֵלֹהִים

The following are omitted

וְהָאֵלֹהִים 2 Chron. 21 11; וְהָאֵלֹהִים 1 Chron. 12 20; וְהָאֵלֹהִים 1 Chron. 6 19; וְהָאֵלֹהִים Numb. 26 35; וְהָאֵלֹהִים Gen. 5 21.

י"ג. — Three forms of הָאֵלֹהִים or הָאֵלֹהִים are defective of Aleph. That is, the proper name הָאֵלֹהִים which according to this Massorah is from הָאֵלֹהִים and ought to be הָאֵלֹהִים (Numb. 13 14); the preterite second person masculine with the prefix Vav הָאֵלֹהִים (Josh. 2 16) which should be הָאֵלֹהִים, and הָאֵלֹהִים the imperative singular feminine (Isa. 26 20) which according to this Massorah ought to be הָאֵלֹהִים.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 108a, on Numb. 13 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 118a, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 107a, also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 6. The latter heads it הָאֵלֹהִים and gives הָאֵלֹהִים Jerem. 49 10 as the fourth instance. But this is not quite correct, since this infinitive is not defective of Aleph as the He takes its place. This Rubric forms part of the List of words which are defective of Aleph. (Vide supra, letter ט, § 14.)

י"ד. — This recension of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 90a, on Numb. 13 14. It is simply an expansion of the preceding Rubric by the addition of two Hiphils of הָאֵלֹהִים which are abnormally without Yod and which this form exhibits in all the other instances. (Comp. Josh. 6 25; 1 Kings 18 4; Isa. 49 2.)

י"ה = § 20.

י"ה. — הָאֵלֹהִים to hide thyself, occurs twice. That is, with He. This is in accordance with the received text, and is designed to safeguard it against being made conformable to the parallel passage (2 Chron. 18 24) where this Niphal infinitive is הָאֵלֹהִים with Aleph. This Rubric is from Cambridge Add. 465 on 1 Kings 22 25 and represents the predominant School of Massorites. Other Schools of textual redactors, however, read it הָאֵלֹהִים with Aleph in 2 Kings 7 12, as is attested by the Splendid Codex Add. 15,451, Add. 21,161, the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86 and the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488. It is to be added that the editio princeps of the Prophets, the first, second and third editions of the Bible read it also הָאֵלֹהִים with Aleph in 1 Kings 22 25; whilst the Massorah Parva in Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 and in the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible remark on חַיִּים which is in conflict with the received text. For further discussion on this Rubric see letter ט, § 35.

י"ו = § 21.

י"ו. — הָאֵלֹהִים to destroy, occurs three times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Isa. 13 5. As all the three instances are restricted to Isaiah, the heading ought properly to be ב' יבבש'.

י"ז. — הָאֵלֹהִים from the line, or Chelbel, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 150a, on Josh. 19 9, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 13b, on the same passage, and (III) the same MS., fol. 14a, on Josh. 19 29. As the two instances are restricted to Joshua, the heading ought more properly to be ב' יבבש'.

This Massorah makes no distinction in the vowel-points of these two expressions and the Standard Codices from which this Rubric is taken point them both alike, viz. הָאֵלֹהִים with Segol under the Cheth. This is also the pointing in Add. 15,251; the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491—93; the third edition, Brescia 1494; the Complutensian; and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517. The Massorah Parva of Add. 15,251, however, remarks on the textual reading הָאֵלֹהִים (Josh. 19 29) that the Hellali Codex has it with Tzere (הָאֵלֹהִים קָמָן קָמָן) and this is also the pointing in Orient. 2201; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451; Orient. 4227; the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the Pesaro edition of the Earlier Prophets (1511); the alternative marginal reading in the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible (1517) and Jacob b. Chayim's first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah 1524—25.

י"ח. — הָאֵלֹהִים with cords of, occurs four times. That is, to distinguish it from the two instances in which this quinqueliteral is הָאֵלֹהִים with He. (Vide supra, letter ט, § 72.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 383b, on Job 36 8.

כ"ד = § 24.

חֶבְרֹן they embraced, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 329b, on Job 24 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 357b, on Lament. 4 5; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Job 24 8.

כ"ה = § 25.

חֶבְרֹן folding, occurs twice and is defective and in the same book. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Prov. 24 83.

כ"ו = § 26.

חֶבְרֹן Habakkuk, occurs twice. That is, once without the prefix Lamed and once with it. This orthography with Pathach under the Beth and Dagesh in the Coph is in accordance with the predominant School of textual redactors and is exhibited in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 and all the early editions except one. According to another School, however, it is חֶבְרֹן with Kametz under the Beth and without Dagesh in the Coph. This is the reading in Add. 21,161; Orient. 4227; Erfurt Codex No. 3; Erfurt Codex No. 4 and the Complutensian. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Habak. 3 1.

כ"ז = § 27.

חֶבְרֹן companions, or charmers, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is simply to safeguard the Kametz under the Beth against its being made conformable to the other two instances where this quinqueliteral is with Tzere which are recorded in the following Rubric. Hence no notice is taken of its being with Pathach and Dagesh in one instance and with Chateph-Pathach and Raphe in the other, nor of the difference in the sense of these two expressions. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 335b, on Job 40 30.

כ"ח = § 28.

חֶבְרֹן companions, occurs twice. That is, with Tzere under the Beth, in contradistinction to the two instances with Kametz recorded in the preceding Rubric. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 33a, on Judg. 20 11.

חֶבְרֹן his companions, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, though the form is without the Yod in three out of the four instances in the text, it is not חֶבְרֹן his companion the singular as in Eccl. 4 10, but is חֶבְרֹן the plural according to the Keri or official marginal reading.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 94b, on Ezek. 37 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 138a, on Isa. 44 11; (III) the same MS., fol. 191a, on Ezek. 37 16, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Isa. 44 11. According to the addition at the end of the Rubric (List I) two of the instances are plene or are חֶבְרֹן (Isa. 44 11; Ezek. 37 19) and two are defective (Ezek. 37 16, 16). But the headings of the other three Lists emphatically state that three are defective and one only is plene (רִיבֵי חֶבְרֹן חֶבְרֹן). It is, therefore, probable that List I is based upon a recension which exhibited חֶבְרֹן in Ezek. 37 19.

חֶבְרֹן to Hebron, occurs nine times, eight times plene and once defective. That is, with the paragogio He. The only instance in which it is defective is 2 Sam. 2 1.

Of this popular Rubric I collated nine Lists, eight in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 144b, on Josh. 10 36, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 137a, on 1 Chron. 11 1; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 8b, on Josh. 10 36; (IV) the same MS., fol. 57b, on 2 Sam. 2 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 59b, on 2 Sam. 5 1; (VI) the same MS., fol. 244b, on 1 Chron. 11 1; (VII) the same MS., fol. 246b, on 1 Chron. 12 23; (VIII) Add. 15,451, fol. 152b, on Josh. 10 36, and (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

חֶבְרֹן to bind, or bind thou, occurs three times, twice defective and once plene. In one instance it is the infinitive construct

(Isa. 30 26) and in two instances it is the imperative singular masculine. As it is differently spelt in the two passages in which it is the imperative, being in one instance plene (Ezek. 24 17) and in the other defective (Job 40 13) like the infinitive, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 85b, on Ezek. 24 17, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 240a, on Job 40 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 131a, on Isa. 30 26; (IV) the same MS., fol. 182b, on Ezek. 24 17; (V) the same MS., fol. 335a, on Job 40 13; (VI) the printed Massorah on Isa. 30 26, and (VII) the same on Job 40 13.

The retention of the primitive defective orthography in the two instances is in accordance with the best Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201 second hand; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251, though it is at variance with the spelling of the imperative in the Ezekiel passage. The less dominant School of textual redactors, however, made the two imperatives uniform by having them both plene. This is attested by Orient. 2201, first hand; Harley 5710—11; Add. 21,161; Orient. 4227 and by all the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on Job 40 13 in my edition of the Bible.

חֶבְרֹן a feast, is three times with Pathach. That is, this noun which, is both absolute and construct is in these three instances only with Pathach, without being followed either by a noun with the prefix He or by the Tetragrammaton with the prefix Lamed.

And wherever it is combined with He or the ineffable name with Lamed it is likewise with Pathach. To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that חֶבְרֹן occurs altogether twenty-six times. From these we have to deduct the four instances in which the combination is חֶבְרֹן and which constitute the following Rubric, as well as the three which form the first part of this Rubric, so that nineteen only remain. Now in thirteen of these, חֶבְרֹן is followed by a noun with the prefix He, viz. חֶבְרֹן six times (Exod. 23 15; 34 18; Levit. 23 6; 2 Chron. 30 13, 21; 35 17); חֶבְרֹן six times (Levit. 23 34; Deut. 16 13; Zech. 14 16, 18, 19; Ezra 3 4) and חֶבְרֹן once (Exod. 34 25); whilst in six instances it is combined with לְיְהוָה (comp. לְיְהוָה Exod. 12 14; 13 6; 32 5; Levit. 23 41; Numb. 29 12; Deut. 16 10). It will be seen that in the sixth instance the expression חֶבְרֹן intervenes between חֶבְרֹן and לְיְהוָה. This explains the meaning of this part of the Rubric.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ה, § 11. It suffers from two serious mistakes and it is difficult to say whether they are due to Jacob b. Chayim or to the faulty MS., which he copied. (1) The catchwords חֶבְרֹן Exod. 34 22 ought to be חֶבְרֹן Ezek. 45 21. This is evident from the fact that this Rubric treats of חֶבְרֹן without the prefixes, otherwise it would include חֶבְרֹן in Exodus and exclude the legitimate Ezekiel passage which is חֶבְרֹן without the prefix. Besides if this Massorah had intended to include חֶבְרֹן with the prefix (חֶבְרֹן) the heading would have been חֶבְרֹן. And (2) the heading of the second part of this Rubric, viz. חֶבְרֹן וְלֹא חֶבְרֹן is manifestly a blunder for חֶבְרֹן לְיְהוָה. This is not only attested by the above analysis, but by the fact that חֶבְרֹן by itself denotes the Tetragrammaton and that חֶבְרֹן לְיְהוָה would mean and wherever חֶבְרֹן is combined with the Tetragrammaton and the Tetragrammaton, which is nonsense and leaves the combination with He altogether unnoticed, thus making the import of the Rubric unintelligible.

חֶבְרֹן a feast unto Jehovah, is four times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the combination חֶבְרֹן which denotes the same and which occurs six times, as will be seen from the analysis in the preceding Rubric. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the School of textual redactors which read חֶבְרֹן in Judg. 21 19 and which is exhibited in Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,451; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86 and the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 79b, on Levit. 23 39, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 172b, on Judg. 21 19; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 202a, on Hosea 9 5; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 80a, on Exod. 10 9; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 63a, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Levit. 23 39.

ל"ו the grasshopper, occurs twice in two different senses. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 89b, on Levit. 11 22, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 855b, on Eocl. 12 5, and (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 152a, on Levit. 11 22.

List I adds at the end that it occurs twice in two different senses, whilst List III heads this Rubric ל"ו ב"ר ל"ו. This manifestly proceeds from the School of Massorites who took ל"ו in Eocl. 12 5 to stand for ל"ו denoting the virile member (see my Commentary on Cokelah on this passage).

ל"ז as grasshoppers, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 93b, on Numb. 13 33, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 136a, on Isa. 40 22, and (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 209b, on Numb. 13 33.

ל"ח - § 36.

ל"ח Chagaba, occurs twice, once with Aleph and once with He. In this separate form I have found this Rubric in the printed Massorah only, on Neh. 7 48. It forms part of the List of words which respectively occur twice, once ending in Aleph and once in He. (Vide supra, letter א, § 33.)

ל"ט - § 37.

ל"ט in the clefts of, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 208b, on Obad. 8, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 49 16, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 18. List II adds at the end the important statement that in Jerem. 49 16 the textual reading is ל"ט and that it constitutes a variation (ל"ט ב"ר ל"ט) though the text itself has it ל"ט as it is in the lectus receptus. This shows that the design of this Massorah is to militate against this variation which was exhibited in other Codices.

ל"י a girdle, or gird thou, occurs four times in the Scriptures and once it is with the prefix Vav. It will be seen that in two instances this expression is a noun (2 Sam. 20 8; Prov. 31 24) and in three the imperative singular masculine (2 Kings 4 29; 9 1; Ps. 45 4). The Massorah, however, in accordance with its usual method, simply groups together homonyms without regarding the difference in the sense.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 244a, on 2 Kings 9 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 295a, on Ps. 45 4; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 202a, on 2 Kings 4 29; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 45 4; (V) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 20 8, and (VI) the same on Ps. 45 4. Though three of the instances are plene (2 Sam. 20 8; Ps. 45 4; Prov. 31 24) and two defective (2 Kings 4 29; 9 1) none of the Lists record the variation in the orthography of this expression. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter י, § 7a.)

ל"יא a girdle, is twice plene and both instances occur in the same book. The orthography of this noun, which occurs altogether four times, twice without the prefix Vav (2 Kings 3 21; Isa. 3 24) and twice with it (2 Sam. 18 11; Isa. 32 11) constitutes one of the variations between the Easterns and Westerns. According to the Babylonian recension it is defective in three instances (2 Sam. 18 11; 2 Kings 3 21; Isa. 32 11) and plene in one passage and the plene instance is Isa. 3 24; whilst according to the Palestinians which also have it defective in three instances and once plene, the plene is in Isa. 32 11 and not 3 24. This is attested both by the official List of Variations between these two Schools of textual redactors and the best Standard Codices. Thus Orient. 2301 which is one of the oldest dated MSS. of the Bible; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227 &c. all read ל"יא plene in Isa. 32 4. Moreover ל"יא defective in Isa. 3 24, is the reading in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2301; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250.

According to the Rubric before us which does not occur in the printed Massorah and which is from Orient. 1474, fol. 186b, on Isa. 3 24, both the Isaiah instances are plene. The great interest, however, which attaches to this orthographical variation consists in the unquestionable fact that the Babylonians read it ל"יא plene and the Palestinians ל"יא defective in Isa. 3 24 and that the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 exhibits the Palestinian reading, thus affording an additional proof that this so-called Babylonian Codex exhibits the Palestinian text.

ל"ב girding, occurs twice. That is, the active participle in contradistinction to the two instances where this trilateral in the same book is the imperative (ל"ב 2 Kings 4 29; 9 1). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 99b, on 2 Kings 3 21. As both instances occur in Kings the heading ought more properly to be ל"ב.

ל"ג girded, occurs three times in the Scriptures, twice defective and once plene. As this participle passive plural masculine, which occurs three times only, is spelt in two different ways, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. The plene instance is in Judg. 18 16.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. 42a, on Exod. 12 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 169a, on Judg. 18 16; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 284b, on Dan. 10 5; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 81b, on Judg. 18 16; (V) the same MS., fol. 372a, on Dan. 10 5; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 82b, on Exod. 12 11, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ל"ד sharp, or Chaddah, occurs five times in the Scriptures. Though this trilateral is a feminine adjective in four instances and in one passage a part of the compound proper name En-Haddah (Josh. 19 21), the Massorah according to its usual method groups them together because it has regard to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in the sense.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 28b, on Isa. 49 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 243b, on Prov. 5 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 18b, on Josh. 19 21; (IV) the same MS., fol. 297b, on Ps. 57 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 337b, on Prov. 5 4; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 158a, on Josh. 19 21, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter is the only List which adds at the end that it is the name of a town in the first instance (קריאת שם קרא).

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this trilateral feminine adjective against the six instances in which it is pointed ל"ד, the feminine of ל"ד, the Chaldee numeral one (Dan. 2 9; 6 18; 7 1; Ezra 5 18; 6 2, 3).

ל"ה — The numeral ל"ה one, which as we have seen in the preceding Rubric, occurs six times, is always written with He at the end, whilst ה the pronoun demonstrative, without and with the prefix Lamed, which also occurs six times (Dan. 4 27; 5 6, 6; 7 3, 3, 8), is always written with Aleph.

This separate Rubric, which prescribes the orthography of these two expressions, does not occur in the printed Massorah. It is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 281b, on Dan. 7 1. See also letter ה, § 12.

ל"ו - § 44.

ל"ו she is sharpened, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 88a, on Ezek. 21 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 180a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. As the three instances in which this Hophal preterite third person singular feminine occurs, are not only restricted to the same book but to the same section, ל"ו ב"ר, in the heading ought more properly to be ל"ו ב"ר. List III, therefore, rightly adds at the end ל"ו ב"ר ע"מ ל"ו ב"ר.

ל"ז and he ceased, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the Keri ל"ז Job 10 20. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 188a, on Ps. 49 9, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 295b, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 106a, on Numb. 9 13, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 49 9. The superfluous וְלִי וְרַחֲמֵיךָ at the end of the Rubric, is simply the addition of the Nakdan to fill up the line.

וְלִי shall I leave, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 25a, on Judg. 9 9, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 137b, on the same passage. As all the three instances are not only restricted to the same book but to the same section, the heading ought more properly to be וְלִי בְּכַתְּבֵנוּ.

It is important to state that this pointing וְלִי with Chateph-Kametz under the Cheth is exhibited in nearly all the Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; Orient. 2210 &c. וְלִי I have found in Orient. 4227 only.

וְלִי cease, or forbear, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this imperative plural occurs and where it is וְלִי (Zech. 11 12), due to its pausal accent. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16; fol. 119a, on Isa. 1 16.

וְלִי = § 47*.

וְלִי and they ceased, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which I have printed in Vol. III, letter n, § 5, p. 347, I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 9b, on Gen. 11 8; (II) the same MS., 37b, on Exod. 9 33; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 11 8, and (V) the same on Exod. 9 33.

וְלִי = § 48.

וְלִי into or simply the chamber, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the two different forms of the noun וְלִי in 2 Sam. 13 10 against being made uniform. As וְלִי without the paragoge He already expresses direction towards, viz. into, to, in the first clause, the Scribe would naturally make the form of the second clause, which expresses precisely the same sense, conformable to the first, viz. וְלִי. By fixing the instances of וְלִי at two, the Massorah precludes such an alteration. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 64b, on 2 Sam. 13 10.

וְלִי Chadad, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 130a, on 1 Chron. 1 30, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 237b, on the same passage.

Not only do these two Lists emphatically state that it is וְלִי with Daleth at the end in both passages, but all the Standard Codices have it so in both instances, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; Add. 21,160 &c. For this reason I have adopted it in my edition of the Bible. The reading וְלִי with Resh, which is exhibited in 4227 in Gen. 25 15, is in conflict with the Massorah Parva of the same MS., on 1 Chron. 1 30, where it remarks on וְלִי with Daleth that it occurs twice (ב). Accordingly the Resh in the heading of this Rubric must be corrected into Daleth, viz. וְלִי and the Rubric ought to follow immediately after § 41.

וְלִי into the chamber, occurs twice. That is, with Segol under the He and Kametz under the Cheth, being in the first instance with the pausal accent Athnach and in the second with Soph-Pasuk, in contradistinction to the other two instances where it is וְלִי (Gen. 43 30; 1 Kings I 15) with the non-pausal accent. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter n, § 18.

וְלִי new, occurs fourteen times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter n, § 22 is doubly incorrect: (1) the heading emphatically states that it occurs fourteen times, yet the Rubric itself records thirteen only.

The catchwords for 2 Sam. 21 16 are erroneously divided into two passages though they represent one instance, and (2) וְלִי occurs altogether seventeen times and not fourteen or rather thirteen and four are omitted, viz. 1 Kings 11 29; Jerom. 31 31; Ezek. 18 31; 36 26.

וְלִי. — In two verses the expression month is absent. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 100b, on Ezek. 26 1. In the first instance (Ezek. 26 1) the absence and presence of this expression is a matter of controversy between the different Schools of textual redactors according to this Massorah, but there is no question about its absence in Ezek. 32 17. As I have not found this variation in any of the Standard Codices to which I have had access, and moreover, as this Massorah is in a Yemen MS., this various reading must have obtained in one of the branches of the Eastern School, unless some expert Massoretic Student can evolve a different sense from this Rubric.

וְלִי month by month, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this phrase occurs and where it is without the suffix (comp. וְלִי 1 Chron. 27 1). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Numb. 28 14.

וְלִי in the month, begins a verse seven times. In the other five instances where it occupies this position it is with the prefix Vav. By fixing the number at seven, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the recension which read it וְלִי without the prefix in Numb. 28 16, as is attested by the Samaritan text.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 69a, on Jerem. 52 6, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 108b, on Levit. 23 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 276b, on 2 Chron. 31 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 360a, on Esther 3 7; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 178b, on Levit. 23 5; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 19 1, and (VII) the same on Zech. 1 1. It is remarkable that Lists V, VI and, VII have the same mistake וְלִי instead of וְלִי, as it is correctly given in the oldest forms of this Massorah.

וְלִי and in the month, occurs five times at the beginning of a verse. That is, with the prefix Vav in contradistinction to the seven instances where it occupies this position without the Vav, recorded in the preceding Rubric. This is one of the few instances where the Massorah safeguards both the minority and majority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118a, on 2 Kings 25 8, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 127b, on Numb. 28 16; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 117b, on the same passage; (IV) Orient. 5404, fol. 116b, also on the same passage; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on 2 Kings 25 8; (VI) the printed Massorah on Numb. 28 16, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 52 12.

וְלִי of the month. In the book of Esther this quadriliteral is uniformly וְלִי with Shevu under the Lamed, whilst in all the other Scriptures it is as uniformly וְלִי with Patach. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Esther 8 12.

וְלִי of the month at even, is four times thus combined. Normally the day of the month alone is specified when any event is to take place. As it is in these four instances only that the evening is added, the Massorah safeguards this emphatic combination.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 42a, on Exod. 12 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 79a, on Levit. 23 32; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 140a, on Josh. 5 10; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 4a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 278b, also on the same passage; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 64a, on Exod. 12 18, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

חח in his or its month, occurs twice. That is, with the suffix third person singular masculine, in contradistinction to the only other instance where it is חח with the suffix third person singular feminine (Jerem. 2 24). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 147a, on Isa. 66 23. Vide supra, § 53, where the Massorah treats of this expression in the peculiar combination of the phrase.

חחח throughout the months of the year, is twice thus combined. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this combination against being made conformable to that of 1 Chron. 27 1 where identically the same meaning is expressed by the phrase חחח חחח.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 41b, on Exod. 12 2, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 82a, on the same passage.

חחח a circle, occurs twice. In the only other instance where it occurs it is with the prefix Vav (Job 22 14). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 135b, on Isa. 40 22, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 229b, on the same passage.

This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter ח, § 70.)

חחח = § 61.

חחח is always written with He at the end except twice where it is written with Aleph . . . and in all other instances it is with He. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Dan. 2 7, is hopelessly corrupt. As far as I can make it out the design of this Massorah is to indicate the orthography of the two Pael forms from the Chaldee root חחח or חחח to declare, to show, which respectively end in ח with Aleph (Dan. 2 4, 24) and the two Aphels which end in ח with He (Dan. 2 7; 5 12). In recording, however, this variation in the spelling, the Rubric specifies the Aleph instances, which it safeguards as the exception, and summarily states that in all other instances which constitute the rule the spelling is with He. As there are four instances only altogether, and as these are evenly divided between the Aleph and the He, it will at once be seen that the artificial wording of this Rubric is misleading. Moreover the catchwords for the two Aleph instances which are given in the printed Massorah, viz. חחח חחח and חחח חחח are corrupt, and ought to be חחח חחח (Dan. 2 4, 24).

חחח the Hivite and the Jebusite, occurs seven times. That is, in contradistinction to all the other six instances where these two gentile names occur together and where both are with the prefix Vav, viz. חחח חחח. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the Codices which exhibit variations in this combination, as will be seen from the notes on Exod. 23 23; 33 2; Deut. 20 17 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 57a, on Exod. 33 2, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 87a; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 77a; (IV) Orient. 5404, fol. 76a, all on the same passage; (V) Orient. 1471, fol. 58b, on Josh. 24 11; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 33 2, and (VII) the same on Josh. 12 8. List VI heads this Rubric חחח and records six only, omitting Exod. 23 23. This is not only contrary to all the MS. Lists which duly give the same seven instances, but to List VII where the printed Massorah correctly heads it חחח and gives all the seven passages. It affords an additional proof of the oft-repeated statement that the number in the heading is frequently altered to agree with the defective number of instances in the List.

חחח she travailed, is three times with the accent on the penultimate. This is due to the fact that in these instances it is the Kal preterite third person singular feminine from חחח, in contradistinction to the nine in which it is the preterite third person singular masculine from חחח (1 Kings 14 1; 15 23; 17 17; 2 Kings 13 14; 20 1, 12; Isa. 38 1; 39 1; 2 Chron. 32 24).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 146b, on Isa. 66 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 310b, on Micah 1 12; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 239a, on Isa. 66 8, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passages. In letter ח, § 57d, the printed Massorah erroneously gives Isa. 66 8, which is one of the three instances, as unique. (Vide supra, p. 288.)

חחח = § 64.

חחח I was brought forth, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 245b, on Prov. 8 24, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 339a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 46g, on Jerem. 23 19, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 326b, on Job 15 20; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 324a, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. In Lists II, III and IV חחח is absent from the heading, whilst List IV alone has חחח which is misleading, since it implies that apart from these two instances it is defective. It ought more properly to be חחח חחח.

חחח occurs twice in two different senses. That is, in Levit. 10 10, where it is defective, it denotes the unholy and in Prov. 27 3, where it is plene, it means the sand.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 255b, on Prov. 27 3, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 346b, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 87a, on Levit. 10 10; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Prov. 27 3; (V) Cambridge Add. 465 on Levit. 10 10; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Prov. 27 3. The heading in List V, viz. חחח חחח is the most accurate. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ח, § 42a.)

חחח occurs twice in two different senses. That is, in Gen. 22 17 it denotes and as the sand and in Job 29 18 and as the phoenix.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 39b, on Gen. 22 17, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 234a, on Job 29 18; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 331a, on the same passage; (IV) my MS. No. 1, Vol. I, fol. 33b, on Gen. 22 17; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VI) the same on Job 29 18.

List V is an important contribution to textual criticism. It states that according to the School of Nehardai or the Easterns חחח with Cholem in Gen. 22 17 is unique, that in Job 29 18 it is חחח with Shurek and is the name of a bird but that according to the Westerns it is חחח with Cholem in both instances.¹

חחח wall, is three times defective in the Pentateuch. In the Pentateuch, where this noun occurs altogether six times, the defective spelling and the plene are evenly divided, the three plene instances are Exod. 14 22; Levit. 25 29, and Deut. 3 5. As, however, the two kinds of spelling are used promiscuously within a few verses of each other (Exod. 14 22, 29; Levit. 25 29, 30, 31) the Massorah safeguards the primitive orthography. Apart from these three defective instances in the Pentateuch חחח does not occur again. Hence the following Rubrics are simply headed חחח without the adjunct חחח and record these three instances only: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 44a, on Exod. 14 29; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 40b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS.,

fol. 70b, on Levit. 25 30, which correctly heads it בְּהֵם בְּקָרָי, and (IV) the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,251, fol. 49b, on 14 29, which not only states בְּהֵם בְּקָרָי, but gives the mnemonic sign בְּהֵם בְּקָרָי לְשׁוּמֵי

And throughout Kings it is likewise defective except in two instances where it is plene. To understand this later expansion of the Rubric it is necessary to remark that unlike the original form which is exhibited in the first part of this Massorah and which is restricted to הָקָה alone without any prefix, this second part includes both הָקָה and הָקָהָה with the prefix He. Without and with the prefix He this noun occurs altogether seven times in Kings. It is defective in five instances (הָקָהָה 2 Kings 3 27; 6 26, 30; 18 26, 27) and plene in two only. Here the defective is the rule and the plene the exception. Hence the Massorah safeguards here the exceptional orthography. Apart from Kings this noun without and with the prefix He is uniformly plene and hence there is no necessity for mentioning any other book.

Of this Rubric in its expanded form, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 80b, on Levit. 25 31, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 111b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 49b, Exod. 14 29; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 89a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

חֹמֶת walls, occurs eight times in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the passages in which this noun terminating in Tav (ת), is the plural and is preceded by Cholem against those instances in which it is the singular in the construct and is preceded by Pathack. Apart from Jeremiah תֹּמֶת the construct, without and with prefixes, occurs altogether twenty-six times¹ and תֹּמֶת the plural, without and with prefixes, eight times only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. The variations in the defective and plene orthography of this plural noun is outside the scope of this Rubric. They are discussed below in §§ 70 and 71.

And throughout Jeremiah it is likewise the plural (תב) except in three instances where it is the construct singular (תב). In this book, however, where the termination of this noun in ת occurs eight times without and with the prefixes, the reverse is the case. Here it is the plural (תב) in five instances (1 18; 39 8; 51 12, 58; 52 14) and the singular construct (תב) in three only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the singular.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated eleven Lists, ten in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 258a, on 2 Kings 25 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 86b, on Ezek. 26 4; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on the same passage; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 129a, on Isa. 26 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 183b, on Ezek. 26 4; (VI) the same MS., fol. 296b, on Ps. 51 20; (VII) the same MS., fol. 356b, on Lament. 2 7; (VIII) the same MS., fol. 380a, on Neh. 2 13; (IX) Add. 15,250, fol. 223b, on Isa. 26 1; (X) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 171, and (XI) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 26 4.

Lists VI, X and XI alone give both parts of this Rubric with both the mnemonic signs. Lists I, III, V and VII give the sign for the second part only, whilst Lists IV, VIII and IX give simply the first part, the latter adding the mnemonic sign, which makes this Rubric unintelligible since the plural, as we have seen, occurs more than eight times if Jeremiah is not exempted. It is remarkable that all the Lists coincide in giving identically the same instances, leaving out Cant. 5 7 which is תֹּמֶת in the received text. The second part of this Massorah is given in a separate Rubric in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 15 20.

¹ Comp. Josh. 6 5; 1 Sam. 31 10, 12; 1 Kings 3 1; 9 15; 2 Kings 14 13; Amos 1 7, 10, 14; 7 7; Zech. 2 9; Lament. 2 8, 18; Neh. 1 3; 2 8, 17; 3 15, 27, 35; 12 27; 2 Chron. 25 23; 26 6, 6, 6; 27 3; 36 19.

חֹמֶת walls, is three times plene. That is, of the ten instances in which this plural noun occurs, without prefixes and suffixes, these three alone are entirely plene. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional orthography. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 164a, on Isa. 26 1, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah, on Ps. 51 20. The addition at the end of List II, viz. וְהָיָה כִּי יִבְרַח הָאֱדוּמִי מִן הָאֶרֶץ וְהָיָה כִּי יִבְרַח הָאֱדוּמִי מִן הָאֶרֶץ, is due to Jacob b. Chayim's misunderstanding the import of § 69.

חֹמֶת. — Walls. On analysing the import of this Rubric it is necessary to remark that though this plural noun occurs altogether fourteen times, without and with the prefixes, the only prefix included in this Massorah, according to § 69, is the Beth (ב). Accordingly we have here to account for the orthography in eleven passages, since in the other three instances the prefixes are respectively He (ה Cant. 5 7); Lamed (ל Neh. 4 1) and Vav Lamed (וּלְמֶה Jerem. 1 18). As it is spelt in three different ways in these eleven instances, the design of this Massorah is to indicate and safeguard the variation in its orthography in the respective passages.

(1) חֹמֶת without the second or plural Vav, is its spelling in five instances, three without and two with the prefix, viz. 2 Kings 25 10; Jerem. 51 12; Lament. 2 7; Neh. 2 13, and Isa. 56 5. As the whole of this Rubric treats of this noun without suffixes, the fifth instance חֹמֶת, with plural suffix first person, is out of place here and is probably the addition of a later Nakdan. This is indicated by the fact that it is against the sequence of the books. We have thus really four only of the eleven instances recorded here. The reference 1 Kings 3 1, which I have given to the first instance in the printed Rubric, should be 2 Kings 25 10.

(2) In three instances it is חֹמֶת entirely plene (Isa. 26 1; 2 Chron. 8 5; Ps. 51 20). These, it will be seen, fully coincide with those recorded in the separate Rubric (§ 70), thus accounting for seven out of the eleven passages.

(3) And the rest are written חֹמֶת. That is, without the first Vav but with the second. According to the above analysis the rest are naturally the four instances, viz. Jerem. 39 8; 51 58; 52 14 and Ezek. 26 4, making up the eleven. That Ezek. 26 4 is included in this number is attested by the best Standard Codices which exhibit חֹמֶת without the first, but with the second Vav, viz. St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201, second hand; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227, as well as by nearly all the old editions, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 262a, on 2 Chron. 8 5.

חֹמֶת thy walls, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. That is, with the suffix second person singular masculine, in contradistinction to the eight instances in which it is with the suffix second person singular feminine (Isa. 49 16; 60 10, 18; 62 6; Ezek. 26 10, 12; 27 11, 11).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 139a, on Deut. 28 52, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 149a, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 138a, also on the same passage. All the three Lists indicate that the Isaiah instance is plene. For the variations on this passage see the notes in my edition of the Bible.

חֹמֶת she shall spare, is four times defective in this form. That is, the future form, third person singular feminine without and with the prefix Vav, is in four instances defective, in contradistinction to the eleven passages in which it is חֹמֶת plene.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 54b, on Gen. 45 20, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 53b, on the same passage. These two Lists coincide in including the two instances with the prefix Vav in the four with Cholem on the Cheth (חֶת). As they are with Kametz (חֶת) in the received text in accordance with the following Rubric, and, moreover, as the Cholem Lists are from the Massorah of Yemen Codices, we have here additional evidence that the Yemen MSS. not infrequently exhibit a different recension from the Palestinian School of textual redactors. The printed Massorah, on Gen. 45 20 heads this Rubric חֹמֶת בְּהֵם בְּקָרָי and simply records the two instances without the prefix Vav.

חֹמֶת and she spared, occurs twice in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is twofold. It is in the first place to militate against the ancient recension which exhibited חֹמֶת in 1 Sam. 24 10, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible, as well as in the Introduction to the Massoretico-

Critical text p. 291 &c. And in the second place it is directed against the School of textual redactors which read חולם with Cholem in both these passages, recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 82a, on Ezek. 20 17, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 179a, on the same passage.

ע"ה = § 75.

ע"ה outside, or in the street, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 136b, on Deut. 24 11, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 135b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Job 31 32.

ע"ו = § 76.

ע"ו without, or from outside, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 142a, on Deut. 32 25.

ע"ז without, abroad, occurs four times, three times plene and once defective. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Exod. 12 46, affords an instructive illustration of the treatment which the Massorah suffered at the hands of later Nakdanim. There are altogether seven such instances and not four. The omission of the three is due to a want of space at the end of the line. This is seen from the sequence of the passages. Chronicles, as is well known, begins the Hagiographa in many of the Standard Codices. After enumerating four of the seven instances the space was manifestly exhausted with the first passage from Chronicles, viz. 2 Chron. 24 8 and hence 2 Chron. 29 16; 33 15; Prov. 5 16 which naturally follow in the regular sequence, the Scribe had to omit. A later Nakdan, however, who found that the Rubric recorded four instances only, altered the original heading ע"ז into ע"ז to agree with the instances given in the incomplete List.

ע"ח = § 78.

ע"ח without, abroad, occurs sixteen times in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to all the other passages where this adverb is חוץ and חוצה, as one of the Lists has it (אשר חוץ חוצה).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 165a, on Judg. 12 9, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 34 21; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 40b, on 1 Sam. 9 26; (IV) the same MS., fol. 259b, on 2 Chron. 5 9; (V) Halle Oehlsh Ve-Ochlah II, § 80; (VI) the printed Massorah on Judg. 12 9, and (VII) the same on 2 Chron. 5 9. List V omits Gen. 39 12 and makes up the sixteen by giving ב"ב ע"ח 2 Sam. 13 18, making the two verses, viz. 17 and 18 uniform.

ע"ט streets, open spaces, is twice defective. That is, without the first Vav apart from Jeremiah. According to this form of the Massorah, this plural noun, without and with the prefixes Beth and Vav Beth, which occurs altogether sixteen times apart from Jeremiah, is in fifteen instances entirely plene or is written with both Vavs and in two only is it without the first Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography in these two passages.

And throughout Jeremiah it is likewise so except once where it is entirely plene. That is, in this book where this noun without and with the prefixes Beth and Vav, occurs ten times, it is in nine instances also without the first Vav (7 17; 11 6, 13; 14 16; 33 10; 44 6, 9, 17, 21) and once only is it with the Vav. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception.

Of this form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 101a, on Numb. 22 39, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 235b, on 1 Kings 20 34; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 95a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 150a, on Jerem. 5 1, and (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 228b, on Numb. 22 39.

List III heads the first part of this Rubric כל קריה חוצה ב"ב and the second part כל קריה חוצה ב"ב, whilst List IV reverses the order of the two parts. It heads the first חוצה חוצה ב"ב and the second כל קריה חוצה ב"ב. With the exception, however, of these minor variations in the wording, all the five Lists record identically the same passages. All these Lists give Numb. 22 39, which is part of a compound proper name, as one of the two defective instances, and all exclude Isa. 5 25, which in some editions is not only defective but is with Dagesh (חוצה), contrary to the Standard Codices, viz. St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201 second hand; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227 &c.

ע"ט streets, open spaces, is twice so written. That is, without the first Vav. Of this form of the Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 108b, on Numb. 22 39, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The difference between this Rubric and the preceding one is not only in the wording but in that it registers the only instance in which this noun plural is without the Vav plural (חוצה 2 Sam. 1 20). On referring to the notes on 2 Sam. 1 20; Jerem. 7 17 and 14 16 in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that the design of the two forms of this Massorah is to militate against the recensions which exhibited variations in the orthography of this noun.

ע"ס = § 80.

ע"ס and streets, occurs twice. That is, this plural noun with the prefix Vav which occurs twice only, is one instance plene (Prov. 8 26) and in one defective (1 Kings 20 34). Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 95a, on 1 Kings 20 34, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 339a, on Prov. 8 26; (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 245b, on the same passage, and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage. The latter rightly heads it ב"ב ע"ס.

ע"ס is three times thus written in this form. That is, the plural form with the prefixes and without and with the suffixes, is in these three instances defective of the second Vav. This plural, without and with the prefixes and suffixes, occurs altogether forty-one times. In thirty-eight instances it is with the second Vav or the plural Vav, and in three only is it without this Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards its abnormal absence.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ezek. 11 6. The second part of this Rubric, viz. כל קריה חוצה ב"ב which is meaningless here, properly belongs to the two forms of the preceding Rubric. It has been added here by a later Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah. When Jacob B. Chayim who quotes this Rubric in the Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 31, states that חוצה חוצה occurs twice only in this form and refers to the Massorah on Ezek. 11 6 for the passages, he means the two instances with the suffixes apart from the one without the suffix (2 Sam. 1 20).

ע"ס a hole, occurs twice in the Scriptures. By fixing the number at two, this Massorah militates against the School of textual redactors which also read it, ח"י with Cholem instead of ח"י with Shurek, in Isa. 11 8 as shown in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 74b, on Ezek. 8 7, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 82. The latter heads it ח"י ח"י which is misleading, since it suggests that it is plene in other passages, whereas it does not occur again. The heading ought properly to be ח"י ח"י.

ע"ס a hole, or Hor, is six times defective in this form. That is, this expression without and with prefixes (ב"ב) which in four instances denotes a hole, and which in two is a part of a proper name of a place (Numb. 33 32, 33), is defective in all these passages, or is without Vav.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated six Lists: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174 on Numb. 33 23, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 131a; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 121a; (IV) Orient. 5404, fol. 120b; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 102b, all on the same passage, and (VI) Orient. 1474, fol. 78a, on Ezek. 8 7.

Not only do Lists II-VI emphatically state in their respective headings that all the six instances are defective (ח ח ח), but they all include Cant. 5 4 as one of the defectives. This is supported by some of the best Standard Codices and early editions. Thus Orient. 2201, which is one of the earliest dated MS. of the whole Bible; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; the editio princeps of the Hagiographa, Naples 1486—87; the third edition of the Bible, Brescia 1494; the Complutensian; and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517, all read חחח without the Vav. Hence חחח plene, which I have adopted in my edition of the Bible in accordance with Harley 5710—11; Orient. 4227; the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the second edition, Naples 1491—93 and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25, must be relegated into the margin as an alternative reading.

Both Lists I and IV add to the catchwords for ח in Isa. 11 8 that there is a difference of opinion (ח) about it in the different Schools of textual redactors. Whether this difference is with regard to its defective or plene spelling (חח or חחח), or whether one School read it חח with Cholem in accordance with the two other instances in which it occurs as recorded in the preceding Rubric, and the other read it חח with Shurek, this Massorah does not explain. Judging, however, from the fact that in the case of all the other five instances which constitute this Massorah, regard is had to the spelling חח defective, in contradistinction to חחח plene, it is natural to conclude that the difference in the Schools referred to the graphic signs חח or חחח in the Isaiah passage, and not to the defective or plene spelling.

חחחח the nobles of Judah, occurs four times. Normally the phrase for the nobles of Judah is חחחח. It occurs no fewer than eleven times, five of which are in Jeremiah (Jerem. 24 1; 26 10; 29 2; 34 19; 52 10; Hosea 5 10; Ps. 68 28; Neh. 12 31; 32; 2 Chron. 22 8; 24 17). As it is in these four instances that this exceptional phrase is used, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard it against being interchanged, which in one instance has actually taken place (comp. Jerem. 39 6 with 52 10).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 27 10, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח, § 118.

חחח Hori, or white, occurs three times in the Scriptures. This trilateral occurs altogether eight times. As it is in five instances with There under the Cheth (חחח Jerem. 27 20; 39 6; Job 30 6; Neh. 6 17; 13 17) being the plural construct of חח and in three with Chirek, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 26b, on Gen. 40 16, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 24a, on Gen. 36 22. The latter heads this Rubric חחח and records the two instances only which occur in the Pentateuch.

חחחח Havran, occurs twice and in the same Section. That is, in contradistinction to the other two instances in which this quadrilateral also occurs twice in another Section where it is pointed חחחח and is part of the compound name Beth Horon (Josh. 10 10, 11). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 465 on Ezek. 47 16.

חחחחח Husham, occurs four times, twice plene and twice defective. As this proper name, which occurs four times only and which is restricted to two books of the Bible, is spelt differently in the duplicate record given in these books, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography against being made uniform.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 130b, on 1 Chron. 1 45, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 314b, on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח, § 35. It will be seen that the two Pentateuch instances retain their primitive defective spelling.

חחחח - § 88.

חחחחחח. — A sign for the orthography of these two names. Throughout Ezra the name is חחחח [Ezra 2 19; 10 33; Neh.

7 22; 8 4; 10 19], and in all the rest of the Scriptures it is חחחח plene [1 Chron. 8 8, 11] except in one instance where it is חחחח defective. This is manifestly the import of this artificial Rubric which I have found in Cambridge Add. 465 only, on Ezra 7 22. Accordingly חחחח as I have printed it ought to be חחחח.

חחחח occurs twice, in two different senses. In the first instance this quadrilateral is a proper name, Hushim and in the second it is the participle passive masculine plural denoting hasty, quick. In the only other passage where the proper name occurs without the prefix it is a trilateral (חחח 1 Chron. 7 12).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 98a, on Numb. 32 17, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 130a, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 120a, also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 46 23.

חחחח a seal, is three times defective. That is, in the same section or connection. This Massorah is based upon the Hellali Codex and militates against the Jerusalem Codex which exhibited חחחח plene in Exod. 28 11. The Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text reads חחחח plene in Exod. 39 14.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 81a, on Exod. 39 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 91a, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 80a, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 47b, on Exod. 28 11, and (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 111a, on the same passage. List IV heads it more correctly חחחח, since in the other three instances where it occurs in the same section or connection, it is חחחח plene Exod. 28 21; 39 6, 80.

חחחחח seal, is always plene except in seven instances where it is defective in this form. That is, the form חחחח without and with prefixes and suffixes, is in seven instances without the Vav.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Exod. 28 11. The expression חחחח in the heading, is due to the fact that this Rubric contains the three instances in which this noun is without any prefix or suffix, recorded in the preceding Rubric, one instance in which it is with the suffix second person singular masculine (חחחח Gen. 38 18), one in which it is with the prefix Beth and the suffix third person singular masculine (חחחח 1 Kings 21 8), one future third person singular feminine with Vav conversive (חחחח) also in 1 Kings 21 8 which is indicated by חחחח and one the feminine noun חחחח with the prefix He (חחחח Gen. 38 25). As the catchwords חחחח על חחחח Exod. 28 21 which Jacob b. Chayim gives for the defective instance, is plene, and moreover as all the Lists give Exod. 39 14, as one of three defectives in the preceding Rubric, it is manifest that the expression חחחח is due to a clerical error. I have, therefore, omitted it.

חחחח - § 92.

חחחחח as a seal, occurs three times and is plene in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to militate against those Codices which read חחחחח with the prefix Vav in Cant. 8 6b, as is the case in Add. 21,161 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 120b, on Hag. 2 23, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 217a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 350b, on Cant. 8 6; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 398a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,160, fol. 301b, also on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah, on Hag. 2 23, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח, § 258.

חחחח see thou, or was seen, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, this trilateral thus pointed occurs as a verb three times. In two instances it is the imperative singular-masculine (Isa. 33 20; 48 6) and in one instance it is the Chaldee Peal passive (Dan. 3 19).

And wherever it is followed by a wave-offering it is likewise so. That is, in this combination when it is a noun in the construct denoting the breast of, which occurs four times (Exod. 29 27; Levit. 7 34; 10 14; Numb. 6 20) this trilateral has the same graphic signs.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 278b, on Dan. 3 19, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 132b, on Isa. 33 20; (III) the same MS., fol. 139b, on Isa. 48 6, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ , § 36. List II heads this Rubric ב ה and gives the two Hebrew imperatives only, whilst List IV omits the second part altogether, which makes the Rubric unintelligible, since ה occurs altogether seven times.

ה I shall see, occurs four times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 177b, on Ps. 17 15, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 237a, on Job 34 82; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 287b, on Ps. 17 15; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 321b, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Job 19 26.

This Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter ו , § 75.)

צ"ה = § 95.

ו and they saw, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 269a, on Lament. 2 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 65b, on Exod. 24 11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 356b, on Lament. 2 14; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 45b, on Exod. 24 11, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ז Hazael, occurs six times plene in the Scriptures . . . and in all the other passages it is defective. This name occurs altogether twenty-three times. In seventeen instances it is spelt ז (1 Kings 19 15, 17; 2 Kings 8 9, 12; 9 14, 15; 10 32; 12 18, 19; 13 3, 3, 22, 24, 25; Amos 1 4; 2 Chron. 22 5) and in six only is it ז with He after the Zayin. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the orthography of the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 243b, on 2 Kings 8 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 162a, on 2 Chron. 22 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 104a, on 2 Kings 8 29; (IV) the same MS., fol. 270a, on 2 Chron. 22 6; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 338b, on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah, on 2 Kings 8 8.

There are two recensions of this Massorah. One is exhibited in the Rubric I have printed (List I), which emphatically states in the heading that there are six such examples and duly records this number, giving 2 Kings 8 28 as the fourth instance. The reading ז is supported by some of the best Codices and early editions, viz. Orient. 2201 second hand; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16 second hand; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488 and the second edition, Naples 1491—93, for which reason I have adopted it in the text of my edition of the Bible.

The second recension of this Massorah is exhibited in Lists II—VI. According to this recension there are five instances only in which this longer form of the name has survived, and 2 Kings 8 28 ז is ז without the He.

The cause which underlies the existence of the duplicate forms of proper names compounded with Divine names is fully set forth in my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical text of the Hebrew Bible p. 367 &c. As to the application of the canon in question to the name before us it is quite obvious. The original name ז may either denote he beheld God, or God beheld him i. e. cared for him. That this regicide, the despoiler of the Temple treasures at Jerusalem, should be distinguished by such an honourable name was intolerable. Hence later redactors of the text eliminated the He and thus disguised the meaning he saw, implying thereby that ז may be a form of ז to lay hold of, to seize, to despoil, i. e. he despoiled God, i. e. God's Sanctuary. (Comp. Levy, Neuhebräisches Wörterbuch &c. s. v. ז .)

צ"ז = § 97.

ח the vision of, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse. That is, both at the beginning of the verse and at the beginning of the book, it is in construct with names of the Prophets who saw the respective visions, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this combination ח occurs, but where it does not begin the verse, being preceded by ח (Nah. 1 1).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 208a, on Obad. 1, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

צ"ח = § 98.

ט to the lightening of, occurs twice in the Scriptures and is plene. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 239a, on Job 38 25.

צ"ט = § 99.

י thou sawest, occurs five times, twice plene and three times defective. As this Chaldee Peal preterite second person singular masculine, which occurs altogether five times and which is not only restricted to the same book, but with one exception to the same section, is differently spelt within a few verses, being in 2 41, 41 with He at the end and in 2 43, 45; 4 17 without the He, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 278a, on Dan. 2 41, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter adds at the end י , defining the two plene instances.

י he was strong, he prevailed, occurs five times with Kametz. That is, under the Cheth, in contradistinction to the seventeen instances in which it is with Chateph-Pathach, being the imperative singular masculine. In the only other instance in which this preterite third person singular masculine occurs, it is י with Kametz under the Zayin, which is due to its pausal accent Soph-Pasuk (2 Chron. 26 15).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 155b, on Judg. 1 28, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 143a, on 1 Chron. 21 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 99b, on 2 Kings 3 26; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 35b, on Gen. 41 57; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 31a; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 40, margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. List III not only states in the heading that there are four such instances only (מסך ד מרע) but records four, omitting 2 Kings 3 26. But as the Massorah is on this very passage, it is evident that the omission is due to the carelessness of the Scribe and that a later Nakdan who found that four instances only are recorded altered the ד in the heading into ד .

י they waxed strong, they prevailed, occurs three times. That is, the Kal preterite third person plural, in contradistinction to י the Piel preterite third person plural, which occurs four times and which is recorded below § 106.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 12b, on Josh. 17 13, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 156b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 20 23. The latter heads it י , which indicates the import of this Massorah.

י be strong and of a good courage, occurs three times in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which I have found in Add. 15,250 only, fol. 113b, on Deut. 31 7, is incorrect, since this phrase occurs seven times and not three. The following four passages are omitted Deut. 31 23; Josh. 1 18; 1 Chron. 22 13; 28 20. It is probably an incipient List which a later Nakdan furnished with a heading, fixing the number to agree with the instances recorded.

י and he waxed strong, occurs fifteen times in the Scriptures. That is, the Kal future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, in contradistinction to the instances in which this quinqueliteral is י , the Piel future, recorded below § 111.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall however, specify the following seven only: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 28b, on Gen. 41 56, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 38b, on Exod. 7 22; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 52 6; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 47a, on 1 Sam. 17 50; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 332a, on 2 Chron. 8 3; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 40, margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 17 50.

The Massorah Parva in several of the MSS remarks against Isa. 39 1, which is one of these fifteen passages, that it is unique (b). This apparent conflict is due to the fact that in this single instance it is with Kametz under the Zayin instead of the normal Pathach, owing to its pausal accent Soph-Pasuk, which is not within the scope of the general Rubric to notice.

קיד = § 104.

תְּחַזְקֶנָּה they shall be strengthened, occurs twice. That is, in Zechariah. Outside this book this future third person plural feminine also occurs three times (Judg. 7 11; 2 Sam. 2 7; Ezek. 22 14). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 314a, on Zech. 8 13. The expression טַח is manifestly omitted in the heading, which is not infrequently the case.

וְחִזְקֵנִי and I will harden or make strong, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 43a, on Exod. 14 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 90a, on Ezek. 30 24; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 87a, on Exod. 14 4, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 30 24. As both these instances begin a verse, List (III) is more properly headed בִּי רַחֵם אֱמִי, only רַחֵם ought to be רַחֵם.

וְחִזְקוּ they have hardened or strengthened, occurs four times in the Scriptures. This quadriliteral with Chirek under the Cheth occurs altogether twelve times. In eight instances it is חִזְקוּ without Dagesh in the Zayin, being the imperative plural masculine (Deut. 31 6; Josh. 10 25; 2 Sam. 13 28; Isa. 35 4; Ps. 31 25; 2 Chron. 15 7; 19 11; 32 7) and in four it is חִזְקוּ with Dagesh, being the Piel preterite third person plural masculine. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 163a, on Judg. 9 24, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 34a, on Jerem. 5 3; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 286b, on Ezra 1 6; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 106b, on 2 Kings 12 7; (V) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 40, and (VI) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 12 7. Lists III and VI head this Rubric וְרַחֵם which indicates its import.

יְהִי עֹז לְךָ be ye strong and of a good courage, occurs three times. That is, in the plural, in contradistinction to the seven instances in which this phrase is in the singular, recorded in § 102.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 132a, on Deut. 31 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 168b, on 2 Chron. 32 7; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 8a, on Josh. 10 25; (IV) the same MS., fol. 277b, on 2 Chron. 32 7; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 113b, on Deut. 31 6; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 141b, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah, also on the same passage.

קיו = § 108.

וְחִזְקֵנִי and to give strength, occurs three times. With the prefix Lamed this Piel infinitive occurs altogether twelve times. In nine instances it is without the Vav conjunctive and in three only is it with the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 83a, on Ezek. 13 22, which I have printed; (II) Cambridge Add. 465 on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Chron. 29 12, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 48.

חִזְקֵנִי be thou strong, to make strong, occurs four times. Though in three instances this expression is the imperative (Deut. 1 38; Nah. 2 2; Neh. 6 9) and in one the infinitive (2 Kings 12 9), yet the Massorah which has regard to the identity of the spelling only, irrespective of the difference in the meaning, in accordance with its usual method groups them together in the same Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 123b, on Deut. 1 38, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 107a, on 2 Kings 12 9; (III) the same MS., fol. 212b, on Nah. 2 12; (IV) the same MS., fol. 382b, on Neh. 6 9; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 205b, on 2 Kings 12 9; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 207b, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Deut. 1 38.

וְחִזְקֵנִי and encourage him, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 203b, on 2 Sam. 11 25, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 63b, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 260a, on Deut. 3 28.

וְחִזְקֵנִי and he encouraged, or strengthened, occurs five times in the Scriptures . . . and wherever it is combined with the Tetragrammaton it is likewise so. This quinqueliteral with Pathach under the Vav occurs altogether twenty-six times. In fifteen instances it is the Kal and in eleven the Piel. As the former have already been safeguarded in a separate Rubric (vide supra, § 103), the Massorah now indicates the instances in which it is the Piel. Of the eleven instances, however, in which it is the Piel six are uniformly combined with the Tetragrammaton (Exod. 9 12; 10 20, 27; 11 10; 14 8; Judg. 3 12) and five are followed by different persons. Hence the Massorah records these exceptions.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 190a, on 1 Sam. 23 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 19b, on Isa. 41 7; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 51b, on 1 Sam. 23 16; (IV) the same MS., fol. 277b, on 2 Chron. 32 5; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 63b, on Exod. 10 27; (VI) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 40, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Neh. 3 19. List V reverses the order of this Rubric in the heading which is as follows: כִּל חִזְקוּ רַחֵם לְאֵמִי בְקַח קֶטֶן וְכֵל בִּי מִהַיָּם הַיָּם וְהַיָּם הַיָּם, thus indicating where it is the Piel and where the Kal. It will be seen that the Tzere is here called small Kametz.

וְחִזְקֵנִי and they strengthened, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 294a, on Neh. 2 18.

וְחִזְקֵנִי and she caught hold, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, two in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 245a, on Prov. 7 13, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 110a, on Deut. 25 11; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (IV) the same on Prov. 7 13, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 51.

וְחִזְקֵנִי to take hold, to hold fast, is six times defective in this form. That is, this Hiphil form with prefixes and suffixes, is in six instances without the normal Yod.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 383a, on Dan. 11 6, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Dan. 11 32. It will be seen that though the List which I have printed emphatically states in the heading that there are six such instances, it records five only. As List II, however, which also states in the heading that there are six, duly enumerates this number, giving קִדְדוּ שְׁמֵי יְהוָה Jerem. 8 21 as one of the six instances, there can hardly be any doubt that its omission in List I is due to the carelessness of the Scribe and to the fact that the immediately preceding instance is וְחִזְקֵנִי Jerem. 6 24.

וְחִזְקֵנִי they shall hold, and they caught hold, is three times defective. That is, the Hiphil future third person plural masculine, is three times without the normal Yod. In one instance it is without the prefix Vav (Dan. 11 32) and in two instances it is with Vav conversive (2 Sam. 2 16; 1 Kings 9 9).

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Dan. 11 32. It will be seen that whilst the preceding Rubric includes two preterites third קכ"ב = § 122.

הזקיקהו Hezekijahu, occurs five times in this book. That is, in Chronicles. Normally when this name ends in Vav it begins with Yod in Chronicles, i. e. הזקיקהו. In this lengthened form it occurs thirty-five times without the prefixes in this book.¹ As it is in these five instances only where it is without the Yod at the beginning, the Massorah here safeguards the exceptions.

And throughout the Prophets it is likewise the shorter form with the Yod except in three instances. In the Prophets the reverse is the case, הזקיקהו without the Yod at the beginning is the rule. Here it occurs about seventy-four times (see the note to the preceding Rubric) and הזקיקהו with the Yod at the beginning occurs three times only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the exception.

Of this popular Massorah I collated ten Lists, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 131b, on 1 Chron. 3 13, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 119b, on Isa. 1 1; (III) the same MS., fol. 156b, on Jerem. 15 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 199b, on Hosea 1 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 239a, on 1 Chron. 3 13; (VI) the same MS., fol. 275b, on 2 Chron. 29 27; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 216b, on Isa. 1 1; (VIII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 41; (IX) the printed Massorah on Isa. 1 1, and (X) the same on 2 Chron. 29 27. Lists II, III, IV, VII, VIII and IX give the two parts of this Rubric in the reverse order, recording the instances of הזקיקהו in the Prophets first and those of הזקיקהו in Chronicles second as I have printed it in letter γ , § 283.

הזקיקהו of, or to Hezekijahu, occurs twice. This Rubric is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 383a, on Neh. 7 21. In the received text 2 Chron. 32 23 is הזקיקהו with Yod after the Lamed. (Vide infra, letter γ , § 285.)

קכ"ד = § 124.

קכ"ה = § 125.

קכ"ז = § 126.

הזקיקהו she has sinned, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, with Kametz under the Teth which is due to its pausal accents, Soph-Pasuk and Athnach, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this preterite third person singular feminine occurs and is הזקיקהו with Sheva (Lament 1 8). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 80a, on Ezek. 16 51.

הזקיקהו they have sinned, occurs three times. That is, with Kametz under the Teth. This preterite third person plural occurs altogether nineteen times. In sixteen instances it is with the normal Sheva and in these three instances only it is with Kametz, which is due to the pausal accents Soph-Pasuk and Athnach. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 89b, on 1 Kings 14 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 329b, on Job 24 19; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 192a, on 1 Kings 14 22, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קכ"ט = 128.

הזקיקהו from sinning, occurs three times, once it is with Teth Aleph at the end, once with Teth Vav and once with Teth Vav Aleph. . . . It occurs once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. As this infinitive construct with the prefix Mem which occurs three times only, is differently spelt in each instance, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 181a, on 1 Sam. 12 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 185a, on Ps. 39 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 42a, on 1 Sam. 12 23; (IV) the same MS., fol. 293a, on Ps. 39 2; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 20 6; (VI) the same on 1 Sam. 12 23, and (VII) the same on Ps. 39 2.

הזקיקהו ye shall sin, occurs twice. That is, with Chateph-Segol under the Cheth and Kametz under the Teth which is due to the pausal or distinctive accents, in contradistinction to the other two instances where this future second person plural masculine occurs and is הזקיקהו (Gen. 42 22; 1 Sam. 14 34).

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 174b, on Ps. 4 5, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 281b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 43b, on Exod. 20 20; (IV) the same MS., fol. 319b, on Ps. 4 5; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 98a, on Exod. 20 20, and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

הזקיקהו sinner, as the sinner, is three times defective. As this participle active masculine which occurs altogether thirteen times without and with the prefixes, is in ten instances plene (Isa. 65 20; Habak. 2 10; Prov. 11 31; 13 22; 14 21; 19 2; 20 2; Eccl. 2 26; 7 26; 9 18) and defective in three only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 354a, on Eccl. 8 12, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 306a, on Eccl. 9 2; (III) Vienna Codex Nr. 85, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Isa. 1 4, and (V) the same on Eccl. 9 2.

הזקיקהו and sinning, occurs three times in this form, twice plene and once defective. That is, this participle which according to this Rubric occurs three times, is twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. But הזקיקהו also occurs in Prov. 13 22; 14 21, and 19 2; whilst הזקיקהו besides Habak. 2 10 also occurs in Prov. 11 31 and in Eccl. 7 26. I have mislaid the reference to the MS. in which this enigmatical Rubric occurs.

ק"ל"ב = § 132.

הזקיקהו is thus written with Segol throughout Ecclesiastes except once, viz. Eccl. 7 26 and in all the other Scriptures it is likewise with Tzere except once where it is with Segol, viz. Isa. 65 20.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 266a, on Eccl. 7 26, which I have printed; (II) Cambridge Add. 465, on the same passage, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 85 also on the same passage. According to this Massorah הזקיקהו Eccl. 7 26 is the only instance where this participle is with Tzere and in all the other four instances where it occurs in this book it is with Segol, viz. 2 26; 8 12; 9 2, 18. That this simply represents one School of textual redactors and that other Schools exhibited variations in the graphio signs of this participle will be seen from the following analysis of the five passages.

(1) Ecclesiastes 2 26.

הזקיקהו with Segol, it is exhibited in Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250, Add. 21,160; Orient. 4227 and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1624—25.

הזקיקהו with Tzere, Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,251 and all the early editions except one, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

(2) Ecclesiastes 8 12.

הזקיקהו with Segol, Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,160; Orient. 4217; the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the second edition, Naples 1491—93; the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1617 and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah.

הזקיקהו with Tzere, none of the MSS., but the third edition of the Bible, Brescia 1494 and the Complutensian.

(3) Ecclesiastes 9 2.

הזקיקהו with Tzere, Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 21,160; the Complutensian and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah.

מקט with Segol, Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227; the first, second and third editions of the Bible, and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible.

(4) Ecclesiastes 9 18.

מקט with Segol, Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227; the first and second editions of the Bible; the Complutensian; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah.

מקט with Tzere, Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250; Add. 21,160, and the third edition of the Bible.

קליג and the sinner, occurs twice and is plene. That is, in Ecclesiastes, since this participle with the prefix Fav and plene also occurs in Habak. 2 10 and Prov. 11 31. The qualifying expression בנש, as is not infrequently the case, is omitted in the heading. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, fol. 267a, on Eccl. 9 18. Though it is מקט with Tzere in the first instance and מקט with Segol in the second, this Massorah does not indicate the variation in the graphic signs.

קליד = § 134.

קליד that sinneth, occurs twice. That is, the participle active feminine with the prefix He, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this quinqueliteral is קליד noun feminine with this prefix. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 178a, on Ezek. 18 20. As the two instances are restricted to the same section, the heading ought more properly to be וכל ובעני.

קליה = § 135.

קליה and thou shalt purge, or cleanse, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 99a, on Ezek. 43 20, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 101a, on Ezek. 45 18; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 195b, on Ezek. 43 20; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 58b, on Exod. 29 36; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (VI) the same on Ezek. 43 20, and (VII) the same on Ezek. 45 18.

קליז and thou hast made to sin, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 90b, on 1 Kings 16 2, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 192b, on the same passage.

List II heads this List ב יחזר, which shows that it is without the Yod in both passages. Accordingly קליז plene which I have adopted in the text in 1 Kings 16 2 in accordance with Orient. 2201; Add. 15,451, first hand; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485-86; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the third edition Brescia 1494 and the Pesaro edition of the Former Prophets, 1511, must be relegated into the margin as a variant and קליז be regarded as the textual reading, as it is in Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,150; Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227; the third edition of the Bible, Naples 1491-93; the Complutensian; the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517, and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-25.

קליז. In eight verses the combination is the sin done. Normally the phrase is קליז or קליז the sin sinned, the verb being of the same root as the noun. In this combination it occurs numerous times (Exod. 32 30; Levit. 4 3, 23, 28, 35; 5 6, 10, 13; 19 22; Deut. 9 18; 19 15 &c.). As it is in these eight instances only that the verb קליז to do, is abnormally combined with קליז, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination. This protection was deemed especially necessary, since the two phrases are not only used promiscuously in the same section, but in two different parts of the same verse (comp. Deut. 9 18, 21; 1 Kings 16 18a, b; Ezek. 18 14, 24).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 87a, on Numb. 5 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 257b, on 2 Kings 24 3; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 194a, on Numb. 5 7; (IV) Orient. 1474, fol. 90b, on Ezek. 18 14; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 128c, on Deut. 9 21; (VI) the printed Massorah on Numb. 5 7, and (VII) the same on Ezek. 18 14. In Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (Lists VI and VII) there are several mistakes: (1) in the catchwords for 1 Kings 15 3 is a mistake for קליז in both Lists; (2) קליז in the catchwords for 1 Kings 16 19 should be קליז in List VI; (3) קליז 2 Kings 24 10; Isa. 53 3 should be קליז in both Lists; (4) קליז in List VI and קליז in List VII should be קליז without קליז Ezek. 18 14.

קליח a sin, occurs four times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 135a, on Deut. 21 22, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 134a, on the same passage. This enigmatical Massorah I cannot understand, since there are altogether fifteen instances and not four in which קליח occurs. The following eleven are omitted Levit. 19 17; 22 9; Numb. 18 22, 32; Deut. 15 9; 19 15; 23 22, 23; 24 15; Isa. 31 7; Hosea 12 9. It may be an incipient List exhibiting the first attempt to collect the instances in which this noun occurs, and which a later Nakdan erroneously furnished with a heading fixing the number to agree with the instances recorded in the fragment.

קליט the sinners, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 44b, on 1 Sam. 15 18, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Numb. 17 3.

קליט and sinners, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 1b, on Isa. 1 28, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 189a, on Ps. 51 15; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 284b, on Ps. 1 5; (IV) the same MS., fol. 296b, on Ps. 51 15; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 10b, on Gen. 13 13; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Ps. 51 5.

קליט and sin, occurs three times in this form. That is, the feminine of קליט without and with the prefixes which is with Pathach under the Cheth and Dagesh in the Teth, occurs three times, in contradistinction to the feminine noun קליט with Chateph-Pathach, which occurs eight times without and with prefixes. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 77b, on Exod. 34 7.

קליט it is a sin offering, occurs four times. The noun קליט is in seven instances followed by the pronoun third person singular. In three instances it is combined with קליט or קליט the feminine (Levit. 5 11, 12; Numb. 19 9) and in four with קליט the masculine. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards this variation. Here we have another of the few instances in which the Massorah, contrary to its usual method, safeguards the majority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 63b, on Exod. 29 14; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 48b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 57b, on Levit. 4 24; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 66b, on the same passage; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 74b, on Exod. 29 14; (VI) the same MS., fol. 84a, on Levit. 5 9, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 29 14. The heading of List VI which is קליט קליט indicates the design of this Massorah, though the wording of it suggests that the combination קליט קליט is the rule and קליט קליט the exception. The headings of Lists II and III are remarkable. Though both these Lists are from the same MS., the former is headed קליט and the latter קליט which is manifestly a mistake for קליט. It proves what I have often stated that the Scribes by mistake not infrequently wrote קליט instead of קליט.

קליט as the sin offering, occurs four times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Levit. 7 7.

קליט = § 144.

קליט the sin offering of, is seven times with Pathach. That is, in these instances it is in the construct. Apart from the Minor Prophets, this noun occurs altogether forty-six times. In thirty-nine instances it is קליט with Kametz under the Teth, being in the absolute, and in seven only is it קליט with Pathach or is in the construct. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

And throughout the Minor Prophets it is likewise so except once. In the Minor Prophets, which the Massorah regards as one book, this noun occurs five times. In four instances it is Pathach or the construct (Hosea 4 8; 10 8; Micah 6 7; Zech. 14 19) and once only is it with Kametz or the construct. Here, therefore, the Pathach instances are the rule and the Kametz is the exception. Hence the Massorah safeguards here the solitary exception.

Of this popular Massorah I collated twenty-five Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 64b, on Levit. 4 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 183b, on 1 Sam. 15 23; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 45b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 298a, on Ps. 59 13; (V) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, § 184; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 30 10, and (VII) the same on 1 Sam. 2 17.

קמ"ד for a sin offering of, occurs six times with Pathach in all the Scriptures. With the prefix Lamed with Sheva, this noun occurs altogether forty-four times. In thirty-eight instances it is with Kametz under the Teth or is in the absolute and in six only is it with Pathach or is the construct. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 152b, on 2 Chron. 6 25, which I have printed in Vol. III, fol. 5, § 144*; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 83b, on 1 Kings 8 36; (III) the same MS., fol. 221b, on Zech. 13 1; (IV) the same MS., fol. 260b, on 2 Chron. 6 25; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 381a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, § 218, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Zech. 13 1.

It is remarkable that though it is in the absolute in Zech. 13 1, not only do the Standard Codices read it here Pathach which, according to the vowel-points, is the normal form of the construct, but Lists III and VII are on this passage, thus showing that the design of this Massorah is to safeguard this very irregularity. Probably the original reading was simply Pathach which was considered a heinous sin.

2 Kings 10 31-15 28 gives nine instances in which both monarchs and people continued to do evil in the sight of the Lord and refused to depart from the sins of their predecessors, and uses in the description of the same conduct five different prepositions with Pathach. In three instances the expression Pathach has the prefix Mem (2 Kings 13 6; 15 9, 24), whilst in the case of the other six no fewer than four different prepositions precede this expression: Thus (1) in connection with Jehu and Menahem (2 Kings 10 31; 15 18) it is Pathach; (2) with Jehu (13 2) Pathach; (3) with Joash and Jeroboam (13 11; 14 24) Pathach; and (4) with Pekah (15 28) Pathach. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation. That it required protection will be seen from the notes on 2 Kings 15 18 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 107a, on 2 Kings 13 11, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 249b, on 2 Kings 15 24; (III) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, § 128, and (IV) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 13 11.

קמ"ו for his sin, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 67a, on Levit. 4 26, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 57b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter n, § 76.

As the Rubric is here given which is the same in all the three Lists, it is incorrect, since Pathach occurs six times. Besides these three instances it also occurs in Levit. 19 22; 2 Kings 21 16 and Ezek. 33 14. Nor does the heading of List II, which is Pathach, solve the difficulty, since one of the three omitted instances is in Levit. 19 22. The design of this Massorah evidently is not to state how many times the form Pathach occurs, but to record the instances in which it is combined with the phrase Pathach in contradistinction to the other three instances in which Pathach follows after Pathach and which occur in this very book (Levit. 4 26; 5 18; 19 22). This is established beyond a doubt by the Massorah recorded in letter n, § 429.

קמ"ז thy sin, or sin offering, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 64a, on 2 Sam. 12 13, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 60a, on Levit. 9 7; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 69b; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 149a, and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

Lists IV and V add at the end that it also occurs once with the prefix Vav. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter y, § 70.)

קמ"ח = § 148.

קמ"ח sins, occurs three times in this form. That is, this plural form, without and with prefixes, is plene in three instances. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the textual reading or the Kethiv Pathach in Dan. 9 24 which is that of some MS., editions and ancient Versions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 107a, on 2 Kings 12 17, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קמ"ט the sins of, is six times defective. This plural construct, without and with the prefixes, occurs altogether twenty-six times. In twenty instances it is plene and in six only is it defective. Hence the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the minority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 87a, on Num. 5 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 257a, on 2 Kings 24 3; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 121b, on Num. 5 6; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 117a, on 2 Kings 24 3; (V) the same MS., fol. 178a, on Ezek. 18 14; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 194a, on Num. 5 6, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

Though List I emphatically states in the heading that there are six such instances, it enumerates five only, omitting Ezek. 18 14; but as it is given in all the other Lists, its omission is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe. List II is not only headed Pathach, but records five. It omits 2 Kings 13 2 and must, therefore, be based upon a recension of the text which had it here plene.

That different Schools of textual redactors differed with regard to the orthography of this expression, is attested by the Massorah of the Madrid Codex No. 1 on 1 Kings 10 31. The Massorah of this magnificent MS. which is No. 59 in my description (comp. Introduction to the Masoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, p. 771 &c.), states Pathach Pathach Pathach Pathach Pathach. Accordingly the Rubric before us, by fixing the number of defectives at six, not only militates against the Eastern recension, but excludes the official reading or the Keri on this passage, which is contrary to the usual method of the received Massorah.

קמ"י the sins of Jeroboam, occurs five times without the son of Nebat. The phrase Pathach Pathach which occurs altogether fifteen times without and with prefixes, is in ten instances followed by Pathach (1 Kings 16 31; 2 Kings 3 3; 10 29; 13 2, 11; 14 24; 15 9, 18, 24, 28) and in five instances only, is this adjunct omitted. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence of this shorter phrase.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 89b, on 1 Kings 14 16, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 193a, on 1 Kings 15 30.

קמ"יא thy sins, is three times plene. That is, without and with prefixes, this plural noun with the suffix second person masculine, is in three instances with Vav after the Aleph. In Micah 6 13, where it is also with Vav it is without the Yod, whilst in all other passages it is uniformly without the Vav, but with the Yod. This is the plain statement of this Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Jerem. 15 13. Considering that with the suffix second person masculine, this plural noun occurs altogether five times and that the orthography of four is here specified, the addition at the end of the Rubric that in all the other passages it is without the Vav, is misleading when there is only one instance left. This, however, is not the only difficulty. The orthography here indicated is in conflict with some of the Standard Codices and early editions and can at best be regarded as exhibiting the reading of one School of Massorites only. This is attested by the following analysis:

(1) Isaiah 43 24.

תְּחַטְּאוּ with Vav, St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,151 second hand; Orient. 4227; the second edition of the Bible, Naples 1491—93; the Lisbon edition of Isaiah 1492; the Pesaro edition of the latter Prophets 1515; the Complutensian; the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Masorah, Venice 1524—25.

תְּחַטְּאוּ without the Vav, Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 originally; Add. 15,451; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1486—86; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488 and the third edition Brescia 1494.

(2) Isaiah 44 22.

תְּחַטְּאוּ without the Vav, St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,251 originally; Add. 15,451; Orient. 4227 and all the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This is the reason why I have it in the text.

תְּחַטְּאוּ with Vav, Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250 and Add. 15,251 second hand, but none of the early editions.

תְּחַטְּאוּ with Vav, Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 1545 and all the early editions except two.

תְּחַטְּאוּ without Vav, St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, with the Massorah on it (תח' בו) expressly stating that it is without Vav; Orient. 4227; the editio princeps of the Prophets and the first edition of the Bible.

(4) Micah 6 13.

תְּחַטְּאוּ both without Vav and without Yod, St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 with the Massorah on it stating that it is entirely defective (תח' ויוד); Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,261.

תְּחַטְּאוּ both with Vav and with Yod, Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,451 and the first edition of the Bible with the Massorah. The readings of the other early editions are given in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

רָחַם thy sins, occurs five times in the Scriptures and is defective in this form. That is, the plural form of this noun with the suffix second person singular feminine, without and with the prefix Beth, which occurs five times only, is uniformly without the Vav after the Aleph.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 51b, on Jerem. 30 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 270a, on Lament. 4 22; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 30 15, and (IV) Orient. 1474, fol. 87b, on Ezek. 16 51. The fact that in two instances it is with Kametz (תְּחַטְּאוּ Jerem. 30 14, Lament. 4 22), which is due to its pausal accent Soph-Pasuk, is not noticed because it is outside the scope of this Massorah. The addition at the end of List III תח' כ' is misleading, since this form does not occur again apart from these five instances.

קָנִי his sins, occurs three times. The design of this Massorah is twofold. It is in the first place to exclude the textual reading or Kethiv which is קָנִי his sin, in the singular in Ezek. 18 21; 33 16 and uphold the official reading or Keri קָנִי his sins, the plural. And in the second place it is to militate against the Eastern recension which has קָנִי the singular also in 1 Kings 16 19, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 91a, on 1 Kings 16 19, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קָנִי = § 154.

קָנִי and our sins, is twice plene. Without and with the prefixes this plural occurs altogether six times with the suffix first person plural. In four instances it is without the Vav after the Aleph (1 Sam. 12 19; Ezek. 33 10; Ps. 79 9; 2 Chron. 28 13) and in two it is with the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 144a, on Isa. 59 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 386a, on Neh. 9 37; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 339b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter מ, § 65.

This Rubric affords another striking proof of my repeated statement that Massorahs in many cases can only be regarded as proceeding from one School of Massorites and that they are based upon Codices which were current in that particular School; that the Massorahs of other Schools vary because they are based upon different Codices which obtained in their Schools and exhibited variations in the text. Though all the three MS. Lists emphatically state that there are two plene instances of the noun which constitutes this Rubric and record precisely the same two passages, yet we are distinctly told that this is according to the Mugah Codex and that according to the Hellali Codex it is תְּחַטְּאוּ defective, in Isa. 59 12, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This explains the various readings in the Model Codices, some of which follow one School and some another School. Thus Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251 and Orient. 4227 read it תְּחַטְּאוּ plene in accordance with the Mugah and with Schools from which this Massorah emanates, whilst St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Add. 15,250 and 15,451 read it תְּחַטְּאוּ defective, in accordance with the School from which the Hellali Codex proceeded. Whether Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List IV) which heads this Rubric תְּחַטְּאוּ and gives 2 Chron. 28 13 as the third instance where it is plene, is based upon another recension, or whether it is a mistake I cannot tell. The MSS. which I have collated have it תְּחַטְּאוּ, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227 or תְּחַטְּאוּ Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451, but all coincide in exhibiting it without Vav after the Aleph.

קָנִי your sins, is four times plene. With the suffix second person plural masculine, this plural noun occurs altogether ten times without and with prefixes. In six instances it is without the Vav after the Aleph (Levit. 16 30; 26 18, 21, 24, 28; Amos 5 12) and in four it is with the Vav. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority. On referring to the notes on Isa. 59 2 and Ezek. 21 29 in my edition of the Bible, the reason for this protection will at once be apparent.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 180b, on Ezek. 21 29, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 102b, on Levit. 16 30; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 74b, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (V) the same on Josh. 24 19. Both Lists II and III state that about the instance in Isa. 59 2 the Massoretic Schools are divided, some reading it plene and some defective (תְּחַטְּאוּ).

קָנִי their sins, occurs three times . . . and wherever it is combined with visit and remember or with the sacrificial slaughter in Pericope Achre Moth it is likewise so. That is, in Jeremiah 14 10; Hosea 8 13; 9 9 where it is preceded by תְּחַטְּאוּ or Levit. 16 16, 21, 34 where it is Pericope Achre Moth in connection with the perforating or slaughtering of animals, thus making in all nine instances where this plural noun with the suffix third person plural occurs.

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this quinqueliteral with Cholem on the Teth which is the plural, against being confused with the same quinqueliteral which is with Kametz and which is the singular (Exod. 32 32, 34; Levit. 10 19; Numb. 5 7; 18 9; Ps. 85 3). This design is plainly indicated in the form of this Massorah on Levit. 16 16 in Orient. 2348, fol. 102a; Orient. 2349, fol. 92a and Orient. 5404, fol. 91a, which is as follows: כָּל אֲשֶׁר יִקְרָא בְּיַד הַכֹּהֵן וְכָל אֲשֶׁר יִקְרָא בְּיַד הַזֶּהֱרֵן כָּל קָנִי תְּחַטְּאוּ כְּמִי תְּחַטְּאוּ.

Of this form of the Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 117a, on Micah 7 19, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 102b, on Levit. 16 34; (III) St. Petersburg Codex on Micah 7 19; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 212b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 308a, also on the same passage; (VI) Halle Oehlah II, § 177, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 16 26.

List V, which heads this Rubric and records the same three instances, affords another striking illustration of the ignorance of later Nakdanim. As here given it is without the addition at the end, which states in an artificial form the other passages where occurs, and which is here omitted for want of space. The Nakdan, however, who remembered that it occurs more than three times came to the conclusion that these three instances are plene and hence inserted in the heading the expression after . Instead of at the end of List I, the oldest forms of this Massorah have .

their sins, occurs nine times. This form of the Rubric, which is a later development and is divested of the artificial arrangement exhibited in the preceding Rubric, states in simple language that occurs altogether nine times. Besides safeguarding it against being made conformable to the same quinqueliteral which is pointed , the design of this Massorah is to exclude the reading with the suffix first person plural in Micah 7 19. That this was the reading in some of the ancient Codices is attested by the Septuagint, the Syriac and the Vulgate. And though it is here rejected by the Massorites on the authority of a later recension which obtained in their particular School, it is demanded by the corresponding expression in the preceding clause and is now accepted as the correct reading by some of the best textual critics. The various reading, as is often the case, is due to an abbreviation. Originally the text was simply or which one School of textual redactors resolved into and another into .

As is usually the case, this form of the Rubric which is not artificial is less popular. I have found only two Lists of it: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 163b, on Levit. 16 16, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Isa. 58 1. The addition at the end states that when it is with the prefix Beth or with Vav Beth it is likewise with Cholem on the Teth i. e. it is also the plural. As it occurs twice only with the prefix Beth (1 Kings 14 22; 16 2) and not at all with the prefixes Vav Beth, the expression which is at the end of both Lists is superfluous.

their sins, occurs ten [nine] times. This form of this Rubric is from Add. 15,251, fol. 74b, on Levit. 16 16. Unlike the two preceding forms, its design is to indicate the variation in the orthography of this noun. In the Law, where it occurs four times, it is uniformly defective whereas in the Prophets, where it occurs five times, it is as uniformly plene. The importance of this Massorah consists in the fact that it is based upon Codices which obtained in the School of textual redactors in which it was uniformly plene in the Prophets. Though it is once only so written in the received text (Hosea 9 9), yet the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 exhibits three plenes out of the five, viz. Hosea 8 13; 9 9; Micah 7 19.

The in the heading instead of is due to the Nakdan who was misled by the wrong division of the catchwords, which apparently exhibit ten instances and which I have reproduced. He, therefore, altered the original into to agree with what he supposed to be the number of instances recorded in the List, a practice to which the Scribes not infrequently resorted.

a rod, occurs twice in the Scriptures and is defective. Of this Rubric, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 248b, on Prov. 14 3, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 341a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Isa. 11 1.

קני = § 158.

living is Jehovah thy God, i. e. as Jehovah thy God liveth, occurs twice in the Scriptures. The usual formula of this oath is simply as Jehovah liveth. In this form it occurs about thirty-six times. As it is in these two instances only that it is followed by the Massorah safeguards the exceptional formula with this adjunct. This protection is especially necessary since the shorter formula is the rule in Kings, where it occurs seven times (1 Kings 1 29; 2 24; 2 Kings 2 2, 4, 6; 4 30; 5 20), and where a longer formula is used it is either as Jehovah the God of Israel liveth (1 Kings 17 1) or as Jehovah of hosts liveth (1 Kings 18 15; 2 Kings 3 14).

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 193b, on 1 Kings 17 12.

the living. Wherever it is with Athnach or Soph-Pasuk, the He is with Segol and in all other instances it is with Pathach. As adjective with the prefix He this trilateral is in three instances with Segol under the He which is due to its pausal accent, Soph-Pasuk (Levit. 16 20; 1 Kings 3 23) and Athnach (1 Kings 3 22) and in eleven instances, where it is without these pausal accents, it is with Pathach (Exod. 21 35; Levit. 13 15, 16; 16 21; 1 Kings 3 22, 23, 25, 26, 27). It will be seen that these two different graphic signs not only occur interchangeably within two verses (Levit. 16 20, 21), but in the same verse (1 Kings 3 22, 23, 25). The Massorah, therefore, indicates where the Segol should be and where the Pathach.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 465 on Levit. 16 20.

life, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse. That is, in contradistinction to the six instances in which it ends the verse (Gen. 7 15; 27 46; Prov. 2 19; 4 10, 23; 9 11).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 288b, on Ps. 21 5, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 350a, on the same passage.

to the life of, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, three in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 375b, on Ezra 6 10, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 418b, on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 7 11; (V) the same on Dan. 12 2, and (VI) the same on Ezra 6 10.

thy life, is always plene, except once. As this noun with the suffix second person singular masculine, which occurs altogether thirteen times, is plene (תני) in twelve instances and defective in one instance only, the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception. This anomalous form, however, is due to a mistake, as will be seen from the following analysis. The form of the oath in which and as thy soul liveth or and as thou livest, is the second part is uniformly preceded by as Jehovah liveth, not only in this book but wherever it occurs (1 Sam. 20 3; 25 26; 2 Kings 2 2, 4, 6; 4 30). With therefore, in the first part, the formula is contrary to the unus loquendi. Moreover as it now stands it is useless tautology, since תני is precisely the same as תני. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that originally the text was simply תני, which is an abbreviation of תני as Jehovah liveth, and that this School of textual redactors wrongly resolved it into תני, just as they wrongly resolved the abbreviation תני in Micah 7 19 into תני instead of תני recorded above in § 156b.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Gen. 47 8, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

his life, is in four instances defective in the Scriptures. That is, in these four passages where the textual reading is with one Yod i. e. תני the official reading is with two Yods i. e. תני.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 70a, on Jerem. 52 33, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118b, on 2 Kings 25 30; (III) the same MS., fol. 353a, on Eccl. 5 17; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 369a; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 304b; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35, all on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 25 30. Though one of the instances is with the prefix Beth (תני 2 Sam. 18 18), yet none of the Lists have the adjunct תני in the heading after the .

This Rubric affords another striking proof that the Massorahs are based upon different Codices which obtained in the different Schools of textual redactors and that the attempt to harmonise them is to destroy the evidence of various readings. Though the seven Lists coincide in stating that there are four such instances and in recording the same four passages of which Jerem. 52 33 is one, yet the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 not only reads it here plene, but the Massorah on it expressly states that it is here plene בתי. For variations on the other passages which constitute this Rubric I must refer to the notes in my edition of the Hebrew Bible where, however, תי should be in the text in 2 Kings 25 30 with the note on it קתי in accordance with this Rubric.

חיה her life, during her life, occurs three times in this form, twice plene and once defective. That is, the form חיה without the prefix and also with the prefixes Beth and Vav Yod occurs altogether three times. It will be seen that in the two plene instances, the one without the prefix (Prov. 31 12) and the other with the prefix Beth (Levit. 18 18), it is the noun with the suffix third person singular feminine, whilst the third instance, which is with the prefixes Vav Yod and is defective (2 Sam. 12 3) is the Piel future third person singular masculine with the suffix third person singular feminine and Vav conversive. The Massorah, however, has regard to the form חיה alone irrespective of the difference in the sense and hence groups them together into one Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 75*b*, on Levit. 18 18, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 63*b*, on 2 Sam. 12 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 348*b*, on Prov. 31 12; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 166*b*, on Levit. 18 18; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (VI) the same on 2 Sam. 12 3, and (VII) the same on Prov. 31 12. As the three instances respectively occur in the Law, the Prophets and the Hagiographa some of the Lists add בתי א בתי א בתי א or simply אבתי.

חיות הארץ the beasts of the earth, occurs ten times in this form. That is, without and with prefixes. In describing the wild beasts, two forms are used, viz. חיות הארץ the beasts of the field and חיות הארץ the beasts of the earth. The former phrase occurs about twenty-two times and the latter ten times only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710 11, Vol. I, fol. 186*a*, on 1 Sam. 17 46, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 89*a*, on Ezek. 29 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 47*a*, on 1 Sam. 17 46; (IV) the same MS., fol. 189*a*, on Ezek. 34 28; (V) the same MS., fol. 323*a*, on Job 5 22; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement, fol. 132*a*, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 746.

Though Lists I and II, like the other five Lists, state in their respective headings that there are ten such instances only they both record eleven, giving Gen. 1 26 as one of the instances. These Lists therefore are based upon a recension of the text which exhibited here ויקרא instead of ויקרא. This reading has also been preserved in the Syriac and is now accepted by some of the best critical expositors as preferable. Lists III and V omit Gen. 1 30, whilst List VII omits Ezek. 32 4. But these omissions are manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribes. All these Lists alike militate against the reading ויקרא instead of ויקרא in Gen. 1 24, which is exhibited in the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

חיותם their beasts, or their life, occurs three times without and with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 122*a*, on Numb. 35 3, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 121*a*, on the same passage. It is remarkable that both Lists give identically the same three instances only and omit חיותם Job 36 14.

קטי = § 167.

חיות living creatures, beasts, is always plene. That is, in all the five instances where it occurs, either as an adjective (Levit. 14 4) or as a substantive feminine plural, it is invariably with Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex Nr. 35, on Levit. 14 4.

קטי = § 168.

חיה and thou shalt live, occurs twice, once it is written without He at the end and once with it. As this preterite second person masculine with Vav conversive, which occurs twice only, is spelt in two different ways, in the one case where it is without the He it is written with two Yods (Deut. 30 16) and where it is with the He it is with one Yod (Jerem. 38 17), the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. Here again this Rubric represents the orthography of one School of Massorites only, as is attested by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, which has חיה as the Kethiv in Jeremiah 38 17 with the Massorah against it חיה making it conformable to Deut. 30 16.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 132*a*, on Deut. 30 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 173*a*, on Jerem. 38 17, and (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 18.

חיה and she shall live, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 9*c*, on Gen. 12 13, which I have printed, and which alone gives the two parts of this Massorah; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 10*b*, on the same passage; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 18, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 12 13.

חיה and they shall live, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to eight instances where this quadrilateral is pointed, חיה being the Kal imperative plural recorded below § 172.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 86*a*, on Numb. 4 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 125*a*, on Zech. 10 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 220*b*, on the same passage; (IV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 18, and (V) the printed Massorah, on Zech. 10 9. As this preterite third person plural also occurs once with the prefix Vav, this Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice with this prefix and once without it. (Vide supra, letter א, § 71.)

חיה living, is in four instances written with Vav. As this infinitive absolute, which occurs altogether eleven times, is in seven instances with He (חיה 2 Kings 8 10, 14; Ezek. 18 9, 17, 19, 21; 33 13) and in four only with Vav, the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. For the discussion on this duplicate orthography see letter ה, § 47 and § 48. I have here to add that though the seven instances with He have survived in the text, the official reading with Vav is in each case given in the margin, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible and that with regard to the four instances which constitute this Rubric, the School of textual redactors who have adopted this orthography have not altogether succeeded in carrying through this innovation. This is attested by some of the best Codices. Thus in Ezek. 18 28 Cambridge Add. 465 reads חיה. In Ezek. 33 15 both Cambridge Add. 465 and Harley 5720 have חיה, whilst in Ezek. 33 16 not only do the same MSS. exhibit חיה, but the Model Codex Harley 5710—11, which has חיה in the text has חיה against it in the Massorah Parva.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 188*a*, on Ezek. 33 15, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 3 21 (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 271*b*; (IV) Orient. 1474, fol. 73*b*, and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

חיה and live ye, occurs eight times. That is, the imperative plural masculine, with the prefix Vav, in contradistinction to this quadrilateral, pointed חיה recorded in § 170.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 110*b*, on Amos 5 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 47*b*, on Gen. 42 18, and (III) the printed Massorah on Amos 5 4.

חיה he shall live, occurs eighteen times. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the two instances in Jerem. 21 9 and 38 2 where the textual reading or Kethiv is also חיה for which the official reading or Keri substitutes קרי. (Vide infra, letter v, § 15.)

And wherever it is preceded by קרי or קרי the infinitive absolute it is also קרי the Kal future third person singular masculine. As this Kal future third person singular, which occurs altogether thirteen times in Ezekiel alone, contributes four instances only to the eighteen, this part of the Massorah adds the qualifying statement that in the combination with the infinitive it is also the future; that is in the other nine instances it is קרי קרי (Ezek. 3 21; 18 9, 17, 19, 21, 28; 33 13, 15, 16). Divested of its artificial wording the import of this Massorah is that קרי, which occurs altogether twenty-seven times apart from the two Kethiv passages, is in eighteen instances without the infinitive and in nine the combination is קרי קרי.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 21a, on Gen. 31 22, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 145a, on Numb. 24 23; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 18 9; (IV) the same Codex on Ezek. 33 19; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 57a, on 2 Sam. 1 10; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 18, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ר, § 79. The latter alone heads this Rubric קרי קרי which manifestly denotes that in these eighteen passages קרי stands by itself without קרי.

קרי let him, or he shall live, occurs twice . . . and wherever it is followed by the expression King it is likewise so. That is, this apocopated future third person singular masculine, which occurs altogether eleven times, is in these two instances only not followed by מלך. In all the other eight passages where it occurs it is קרי מלך (1 Sam. 10 24; 2 Sam. 16 16, 16; 1 Kings 1 25, 34, 39; 2 Kings 11 12; 2 Chron. 23 11).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 2:9a, on Ps. 22 27, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 18, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ר, § 86. Both Lists II and III give as the first of the two passages קרי ראובן Deut. 33 6 instead of קרי ראובן 1 Kings 1 31. It will be seen that whichever passage we accept, there are three instances and not two in which קרי is not followed by מלך. Yet this Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Yod which respectively occur twice. (Vide infra, letter v, § 11.)

קרי and he shall live, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, with Vav conjunctive, in contradistinction to the thirty-eight instances in which this apocopated future third person masculine is קרי with Vav conversive.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 195a, on Ps. 72 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 295b, on Ps. 49 10; (III) the same MS., fol. 300b, on Ps. 69 33; (IV) the same MS., fol. 301b, on Ps. 72 15; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 327b, on Ps. 49 10; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 18, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 69 33. As all the three instances are restricted to the same book, the heading ought more properly to be קרי.

קרי and such a person lived, is five times with Makeph and Zakeph-Gadol in the record of the ten Generations. In recording the lives of the families constituting the ten generations, the expression קרי precedes the several names in thirty-two instances. And though the combination is the same, yet the phrase in question has six different accents, as will be seen from the following analysis. In thirteen instances where קרי has no separate accent but is joined by Makeph to the proper name, this phrase has three different accents. In five the proper name is with Revia (Gen. 5 19, 30; 11 11, 17, 19); in three it is with Tipecha (Gen. 9 28; 11 18, 26), whilst in five it is with Zakeph-Gadol. It is the latter which the Massorah safeguards here. The accents of the remaining nineteen instances are discussed in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 31b, on Gen. 5 6, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 30b; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 5a, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. These four Lists exhibit two recensions of this Massorah. The first recension, which is that of Lists I and II, embraces both Sections, viz. Gen. 5 3—30 and 9 28—11 26. The second recension which is that of List III is restricted to one Section, viz. Gen. 5 3—30. Hence it is headed קרי קרי and accordingly records the four instances only which occur in this Section, and omits the instance in Gen. 11 16 which is outside this Section. The printed Massorah (List IV) is a confusion of the two recensions. It is headed קרי קרי which belongs to the second recension, and not only gives the mnemonic sign קרי קרי which consists of the initial letters of the five instances but duly records the same five given in the first recension.

קרי and such a person lived, occurs three times with the accent. That is with Munach and Zakeph-Katon. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 40a, on Gen. 5 15, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 31b, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 30b, also on the same passage.

In these remaining nineteen instances in which קרי precedes the several proper names in these two Sections, it is not only without Makeph, but has two different accents, whilst the proper name with which it is combined has three different accents. Thus in three instances the phrase is with Mercha Tipecha (Gen. 5 9, 12; 11 22); in eleven it is with Munach Revia (Gen. 5 3, 7, 10, 13, 16, 26; 11 13, 15, 21, 23, 25) and in five it is with Munach Zakeph-Katon. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority in which Munach is followed by Zakeph-Katon against the majority in which it is followed by Revia.

It is to be borne in mind that the Massorah, both in the Rubric before us and in the preceding Rubric, deals exclusively with the phrase in question in the two Sections which embrace Gen. 5 3—30 and 9 28—11 26. Hence not only are the two instances not discussed in which this combination is Mehupach Pashta (Gen. 47 28; Job 42 16) and the two in which it is Pashta-Mehupach (2 Kings 14 17; 2 Chron. 25 25) but even Gen. 50 22, where it is with Munach Zakeph-Katon, because it is outside these Sections.

קרי she shall or let her live, occurs twice . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these two instances of the apocopated future third person feminine against being mistaken for the more frequent apocopated future קרי, since the ו and the ו are almost identical in the oldest Codices, and more especially since the two forms קרי and קרי respectively begin a verse in close proximity (Ps. 119 173, 175).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 235b, on 1 Kings 20 32, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 95a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 371b, on Ps. 119 175, and (IV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 18. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter v, § 70.)

קרי = § 180.

קרי and she shall live, is three times Raphe. That is, with conjunctive Vav. The design of this Massorah is the same as that of Rubric 179 i. e. to safeguard this apocopated future with the prefix Vav against being mistaken for the more frequent apocopated future Vav recorded in letter ו, § 199.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 38a, on Gen. 19 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 142b, on Isa. 55 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 173a, on Jerem. 38 20; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 6a, on Gen. 19 20; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 18; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 19 20, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 38 20.

אָפּוּקאָפּט פּאַר - § 181.

אָפּוּקאָפּט I shall live, occurs four times. That is, to distinguish it from אָפּוּקאָפּט which is of frequent occurrence. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 824a, on Job 7 16, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 841b, on Ps. 118 17; (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 119 17, and (IV) the same on Job 7 16. In both Lists (III and IV) the printed Massorah adds at the end that it is once with the prefix Vav אָפּוּקאָפּט וואָס איז געווען = Ps. 119 144. But as it occurs twice more with the prefix Vav (Ps. 119 77, 116) there can hardly be any doubt that this addition is either due to the carelessness of a later Nakdan or to Jacob b. Chayim.

קָמִיב they shall live, occurs seven times in the Scriptures. That is, to distinguish it from קָמִיב which it resembles and which is of such frequent occurrence.

Of this popular Massorah I collated twenty Lists. I shall however, specify the following eight only, four in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 143b, on Josh. 9 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 82a, on Ezek. 20 25; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 231a, on Job 21 7; (IV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 18; (V) the printed Massorah on Josh. 9 21; (VI) the same on Ezek. 20 25; (VII) the same on Zech. 1 5, and (VIII) the same on Job 21 7.

קָמִיב ye shall live, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, to distinguish it from קָמִיב which occurs seventeen times.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 56a, on Jerem. 35 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 111a, on Amos 5 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 170b, on Jerem. 35 7; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 260a, on Deut. 4 1; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 125a, on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 35 7.

קָמִיב ye shall live, occurs twice and is plena. That is, with Vav after the Yod. As this future second person plural masculine, which occurs altogether five times, is three times without the paragogic Nun, recorded in the preceding Rubric and twice with it, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 117a, on Deut. 8 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 170b, on Jerem. 35 7; (III) Vienna Codex No. 85, on Deut. 5 30, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קָמִיב and we shall live, occurs three times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ו, § 94, and which I have printed in Vol. III, p. 5, letter ו, § 184, is incorrect, since this future first person plural with Vav conjunctive, occurs five times. The following two instances are omitted Gen. 42 2; Hosea 6 2.

The design of this Massorah is twofold. In the first place it is to safeguard קָמִיב against being confused with קָמִיב, since the two expressions occur in the same verse (Gen. 47 19), and in the second place to protect it against its being mistaken for this quinqueliteral which is pointed קָמִיב the Piel, recorded below in § 189.

קָמִיב thou hast kept me alive, or thou hast quickened me, occurs twice, once with Pathach and once with Kamets. As this Piel preterite second person singular masculine with suffix first person singular, which occurs twice only, is differently pointed, owing to the pausal accent Soph-Pasuk in Ps. 119 93, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its graphic signs.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 85 on Ps. 119 93, which I have printed, and (II) Cambridge Add. 465 on the same passage.

קָמִיב to let live, to preserve alive, occurs seven times in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this Piel future third person singular masculine against this quadriliteral which is pointed קָמִיב and which is the Kal, recorded above § 173.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 194a, on 1 Sam. 27 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 54b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 95a, on 1 Kings 20 31; (IV) the same MS., fol. 333b, on Job 36 6; (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 20 31; (VI) the same on Isa. 7 21, and (VII) the same on Ezek. 18 27. It is remarkable that both Lists V and VII head this Rubric קָמִיב, though they duly record seven instances only. There can, therefore, be no doubt that the ו is a clerical error which Jacob b. Chayim overlooked.

קָמִיב thou shalt or she shall preserve alive, occurs three times . . . twice in the Law and once in Ecclesiastes. That is, in contradistinction to the nine instances in which this quadriliteral is pointed קָמִיב being the Kal future. It will be seen that though it is in two instances the future second person singular masculine (Exod. 22 17; Deut. 20 16) and in one instance the third person singular feminine (Ecc. 7 12) yet the Massorah according to its method, groups the two forms in the same Rubric because they are written alike.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 124b, on Deut. 20 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 265b, on Eccl. 7 12; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 353b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 101a, on Exod. 22 17; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 18; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 22 17, and (VII) the same on Deut. 20 16.

קָמִיב they shall preserve alive, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the seven instances in which this quadriliteral is קָמִיב the Kal, recorded above § 182.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 10b, on Exod. 12 12, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 9a; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 84b, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. List III indicates the design of this Massorah by the addition at the end, viz. קָמִיב.

קָמִיב and we shall preserve life, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, the Piel in contradistinction to the five instances in which this quinqueliteral is pointed קָמִיב being the Kal, recorded above § 184*.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 233a, on 1 Kings 18 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 6b, on Gen. 19 32; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 38a; (IV) Orient. 5404, fol. 37a, and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

קָמִיב he preserved alive, occurs six times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ו, § 80. It will be seen that after the catchwords וַיִּשְׁמַע = 2 Kings 8 5 it is here emphatically stated that קָמִיב occurs twice only in this verse (בְּבִשְׁמֵר), whereas it occurs three times in the received text. Hence it would appear that this Rubric is based upon a recension of the text which divided this verse into two verses and that וַיִּשְׁמַע began a separate verse. This derives support from the fact that וַיִּשְׁמַע וַיִּשְׁמַע which are in the middle of the verses in the textus receptus, are given as the catchwords for the sixth instance, which is contrary to the usual method of the Massorah. The catchwords normally begin the verse and this is the case in all the other instances recorded in this very Rubric.

קציב to preserve alive, is twice defective. This Hiphil infinitive with the prefix Lamed which occurs altogether six times, is differently spelt. In four instances it is plene (Gen. 6 20; 19 19; 2 Sam. 8 2; Isa. 57 15) and in two it is without the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. This protection is all the more necessary since the two different spellings occur in two consecutive verses (Gen. 6 19, 20).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 63a, on Gen. 50 20, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 6 19. The latter heads it ב' במס' ד' since it is plene in the other two instances in Genesis.

קציג and to preserve alive, is three times plene in the Scriptures. With the prefixes Vav and Lamed this Hiphil infinitive occurs altogether three times only, and as it is plene in all the three passages, the heading ought more properly to be ב' בקרי' וכלי. The design of this Massorah is to indicate that whilst with the prefix Lamed but without the Vav conjunctive, this infinitive is both defective and plene, without this conjunctive it is uniformly plene.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 30b, on Gen. 45 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 36a, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 143b, on Isa. 57 15; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 53b, on Gen. 45 7; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 18 margin; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 45 7, and (VII) the same on 2 Kings 5 7. List III heads this Rubric ב' וכלי' and records two only, omitting 2 Kings 5 7. As this Rubric is in one of the Standard and most carefully written Codices it is most probable that it is based upon a recension of the text in which the Kings instance was defective.

קציה and he shall live, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 198a, on Ezek. 47 9. This Rubric I cannot understand since the first of the two instances is with Pathach under the Cheth which occurs five times (comp. ח' Gen. 3 22; Levit. 18 5; Ezek. 20 11, 13, 21) and the second which is with Kametz owing to the pausal accents, occurs no fewer than twelve times (comp. ח' Exod. 33 10; Numb. 21 8, 9; Deut. 4 42; 5 21; 19 4, 5; Jerem. 38 2; Ezek. 18 13, 24; 47 9; Neh. 6 11). It cannot denote that in these two instances only is this trilateral with a special accent, since it is with Munach in the Leviticus instance which is also the case in Ezek. 20 11, 13, 21; and the Ezekiel instance which is with Zakeph-Katon is unique. The only solution which I can suggest is that this Rubric does not refer to ח' alone, but to the phrase ח' ח' which occurs once in the Pentateuch, viz. Levit. 18 5 and once in the Prophets, counting all the three instances in Ezekiel (20 11, 13, 21) as one, in accordance with the artificial method of the Massorah. If this be the correct solution, then the catchwords אש' ורמ' ח' ל' אש' יבא' Ezek. 47 9 are a mistake for אש' ורמ' אבות' רמ'. Wrong catchwords are not infrequent in Rubrics.

קציו strength, power, is four times with Kametz. Without the pausal accents this noun occurs about 70 times. In 66 instances it is with Pathach and in these four instances only, is it with Kametz. Hence the Massorah safeguards the abnormal graphic signs.

And wherever this noun is with Athnach or Soph-Paruk it is always with Kametz. With the pausal accent Athnach ח' occurs sixteen times (Deut. 8 18; Judg. 3 29; 2 Sam. 22 33; 1 Kings 11 28; Ezek. 28 4; Ps. 18 33; 33 16; 60 14; 84 8; 108 14; Prov. 31 29; 1 Chron. 7 9; 12 29; 26 7; 2 Chron. 26 13; 28 6) and sixteen times with Soph-Paruk (ח' Numb. 24 18; Deut. 3 18; Judg. 20 44, 46; 1 Sam. 2 4; 9 1; 2 Sam. 13 28; Ps. 73 12; 118 15, 16; Job 21 7; Neh. 11 6; 2 Chron. 13 3; 14 7; 17 16; 26 17). As there is no exception in the instances where this noun is with these pausal accents, the simple statement of this fact suffices without specifying the passages.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 146b, on 1 Chron. 26 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 163a, on 2 Chron. 25 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 255b, on 1 Chron. 28 1; (IV) the same MS., fol. 272a, on 2 Chron. 25 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 273a, on 2 Chron. 26 12; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 188, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 2 Chron. 25 6. Lists IV, V and VI omit the second part of this Rubric which makes this Massorah unintelligible.

קציו strength, rampart, is four times defective in the Scriptures. That is, in four instances is the noun ח' without and with the prefixes Beth and He, without the Yod. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading ח' in 1 Kings 21 23 which is exhibited in the Chaldee, the Syriac and the Vulgate and which is now accepted as the better reading as is attested by 2 Kings 9 36. As is often the case this variation is due to an abbreviation. The original text was ח' which one School of textual redactors rightly resolved into ח' whilst another School regarded it as complete.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, two in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 212a, on 2 Sam. 20 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 96a, on 1 Kings 21 23; (III) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 20 15; (IV) the same on 1 Kings 21 23, and (V) the same on Lament. 2 8. As this Rubric includes the forms of this noun with the prefixes, Lists III, IV and V head it more correctly ח' ח' ח'. It is remarkable that whilst the instances with the prefixes Beth and He are included, not only is ח' (Isa. 26 1) with the prefix Vav excluded, but the official reading or Keri ח' in Ps. 10 10, which is contrary to the general method of the Massorah.

קציה by the rampart of. Throughout the Scriptures it is in the portion of Jezreel, except once where it is by the rampart of Jezreel (1 Kings 21 23). This Rubric, which is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 237a, on 1 Kings 21 23 emphasises more emphatically that ח' is not an abbreviation but a complete word, being based upon the text of the predominant School. Seeing that ח' ח' occurs three times only according to the textus receptus and that all the three instances are not only restricted to the same book, but to the same Section (2 Kings 9 10, 36, 37) the expression ח' ח' is somewhat misleading.

קציה = § 199.

קציה my strength or power, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 235b, on Job 31 25, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 204b, on Joel 2 25; (III) the same MS., fol. 214b, on Habak. 3 19; (IV) the same MS., fol. 331b, on Job 31 25; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 354b, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 298a, on Joel 2 25, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Habak. 3 19.

ר = § 200a.

ר the outer, exterior, is three times so written. That is, without the Yod. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ezek. 40 31, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 290a, on Ezek. 42 7, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Lists II and III head it ח' ח' which expresses the import of this Massorah more explicitly. It is to be remarked that the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 has it ח' ח' with the Yod in all the three instances. But no sober critic will maintain that it therefore constitutes a difference between the Babylonians and Palestinians.

ר = § 200b.

ר, — A sign for the spelling of this expression. As this feminine adjective with the prefix He which occurs altogether twenty times, is spelt in four different ways, the design of this Massorah is to indicate the respective passages in which these variations occur.

(1) In three instances it is החזקת without the Yod but with the Vav. These are also given in the preceding Rubric.

(2) In two it is החזקת with the Yod but without the Vav Ezek. 10 5 and Neh. 11 16.

(3) In one instance it is entirely defective, that is החזקת both without Yod and without Vav Ezek. 42 9.

(4) And in all the other instances which are fourteen in number, it is החזקת entirely plene, that is with both Yod and Vav, viz. 2 Kings 16 18; Ezek. 40 17, 20, 34, 37; 42 1, 3, 14; 44 19, 19; 46 20, 21; Esther 6 4; 1 Chron. 26 29.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 193*b*, on Ezek. 40 17, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 387*a*, on Neh. 11 16.

ח"י bosom, is four times defective. This noun without and with the prefixes and suffixes, occurs altogether thirty-seven times. In thirty-three instances it is with the Yod after the Cheth and in four only is it without the Yod. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 338*a*, on Prov. 5 20, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 325*b*, on Job 19 27; (III) the printed Massorah on Prov. 5 20, and (IV) the same on Eccl. 7 10. As two of the instances are respectively with the prefixes Beth and Mem and another one is not only with the prefix Beth, but with the suffix Yod (ח"י Job 19 27) Lists II, III and IV properly head this Rubric ח"י בליש.

ח"י Hiram, is three times plene in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 220*a*, on 1 Kings 5 24, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 80*a*, on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 318, and (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 5 24.

As ח"י occurs altogether three times only, and is plene in all the three instances, Lists II and III more properly head this Rubric ח"י בליש. The addition ח"י בליש at the end of the Rubric which I have printed, is manifestly due to a careless Scribe, since ח"י does not occur at all in Chronicles. It is, therefore, rightly absent in all the other four Lists.

ח"י is in three instances in the text with Yod and ought to be with Vav. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ח, § 33. The three instances in which the textual reading or Kethiv is ח"י with Yod and the official reading or Keri is ח"י with Vav are 1 Chron. 14 1; 2 Chron. 4 11 and 9 10. (Vide infra, letter י, § 26.) It is, therefore, manifest that the catchwords attached to the first and third instances which refer to 1 Kings 5 15; 7 40 are due to the carelessness of the Nakdan.

ח"י and the palate, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 236*b*, on Job 34 3, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 332*b*, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Job 12 11. As the two instances are restricted to the same book, the heading ought more properly to be ח"י בנבט.

ח"י my palate, or mouth, occurs three times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ח, § 105.

ח"י to my palate, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 315*b*, on Ps. 119 103, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 342*b*, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 371*b*, on Cant. 2 3, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 119 103.

ח"י with a hook, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed:

(I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 240*b*, on Job 40 25, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 335*b*, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah, also on the same passage.

ח"י occurs twice, once with audible He and once with silent He. That is, in one instance it is a noun with the suffix third person singular feminine denoting her palate or mouth (Prov. 5 3) and in the other it is the Piel preterite third person singular masculine denoting he had waited (Job 32 4).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 387*a*, on Prov. 5 3, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the eleven words which respectively occur twice, once with audible He at the end and once with silent He. (Vide supra, letter ה, § 38.)

ח"י Hachilah, occurs three times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ח, § 107. It is designed to militate against the recension of the text which exhibits ח"י with Beth instead of Caph in all the three instances, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

ח"י and wise, occurs four times. That is, the adjective with Vav conjunctive, in contradistinction to the other four instances in which this quadriliteral is ח"י the imperative (Prov. 6 6; 13 20 Kethiv; 23 19) or ח"י the construct of ח"י with the prefix Vav (Isa. 3 3).

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 52*a*, on Gen. 41 33, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 27*a*, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 366*b*, on Prov. 29 11; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 30*b*, on Gen. 41 33; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 45*b*, on the same passage; (VI) the same MS., fol. 303*b*, on Eccl. 4 13; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 41 33, and (VIII) the same on Prov. 29 11.

ח"י the wise, occurs twice . . . and once it is with the Vav conjunctive. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 59*a*, on Exod. 36 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 150*a*, on 2 Chron. 2 6, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 79*a*, on Exod. 36 4.

ח"י wisdom, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, with Kametz under the Cheth, in contradistinction to the other two instances in which it is with Pathach, recorded below in Rubric 215.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 188*a*, on Ps. 49 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 336*b*, on Prov. 1 20; (III) the same MS., fol. 345*a*, on Prov. 24 7; (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 49 4, and (V) the same on Prov. 9 1. The heading of List V ח"י קצין indicates the design of this Massorah.

ח"י Hachmonite, is twice plene in all the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 147*b*, on 1 Chron. 27 32. As the two instances are restricted to the same book the heading ought more properly to be ח"י בנבט.

ח"י Sheva, occurs throughout the Scriptures it is ח"י with Beth except in one instance, viz. 1 Chron. 28 21, whilst throughout Ecclesiastes it is ח"י with Pathach under the Beth except once, viz. Eccl. 2 21.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 256*a*, on 1 Chron. 28 21. It records the peculiar phenomenon that a form which is normal throughout all the books of the Scriptures is unique in one single book and vice versa, a form which is normal in this particular book is unique outside this book. Thus ח"י with Sheva under the Beth which occurs ten times outside Ecclesiastes (comp. Exod. 31 3; 35 26, 31; Ps. 104 24; Prov. 3 19; 24 3; 28 26; 31 26; Job 4 21; 38 37), occurs once only in Ecclesiastes; whilst ח"י which occurs three times in Ecclesiastes (1 13; 2 3; 7 23) is unique outside this book. This Rubric forms part of the List of words which exhibit this phenomenon. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 249, Vol. II, p 227.)

רמז = § 215.

הַקְמָוֶת is twice with Pathach. In one instance it is an adjective plural feminine of הַקָּמָה (Judg. 5 29) and in the other a noun feminine singular for הַקְמָוֶת (Prov. 14 1). The Massorah, however, which has regard to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in the sense groups them together in one Rubric.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 248b, on Prov. 14 1, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 399b, on the same passage.

רמז = § 216.

הַקְמָוֶת is in two instances with Pathach and in four with Kametz. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 465 on Ps. 49 4. It is a combination of § 212 and § 215 and shows how differently the different Massoretic Schools arranged the same materials.

הֶלֶה Helah, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 132a, on 1 Chron. 4 5. As the two instances not only occur in the same book but are restricted to the same section, the heading ought more properly to be בִּבְעֵינָא.

הֶרְאָהָה her rust, occurs three times. That is, with Dagesh in the He. In the only other instance where this quinqueliteral occurs it is הֶרְאָהָה Raphe (Ezek. 24 6).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 182b, on Ezek. 24 11, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage. List I gives the catchwords בִּרְאֵי אֶשֶׁר הֶלְאָהָה Ezek. 24 6 as the first of the three instances. But this evidently is a mistake, as is attested by the text itself of this very MS. which has it here הֶרְאָהָה Raphe. List II rightly gives it הֶרְאָהָה Ezek. 24 11. We have seen that the Nakdanim not infrequently furnish the respective instances with wrong catchwords.

הַחֶלֶב and milk, occurs three times in the Scriptures . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. That is, in contradistinction to the four instances in which this quadriliteral is הַחֶלֶב denoting and fat (Levit. 7 24, 24; Isa. 1 11; 43 24).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 26a, on Isa. 55 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 261b, on Cant. 4 11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 849b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 12b, on Gen. 18 8; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 12a; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 5a, and (VII) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. It is remarkable that List III not only heads this Rubric ב but records two instances only, omitting Isa. 55 1 and that the Massorah Parva of this MS. also has ב against הַחֶלֶב Cant. 4 11.

מִחֶלֶב from milk, occurs three times. This quadriliteral occurs altogether ten times. In seven instances it is pointed מִחֶלֶב denoting from fat, recorded in Rubric 222, and in three only is it מִחֶלֶב. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 57a, on Gen. 49 12, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 13a, on Isa. 28 9; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 375a, on Lament. 4 7, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Isa. 28 9. As the three instances occur respectively in the three divisions of the Bible, List II adds at the end וְהָיָה בְּיָמֵינוּ הַחֶלֶב בְּיָמֵינוּ הַחֶלֶב בְּיָמֵינוּ הַחֶלֶב one is in the Law, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa.

חֶלֶב the milk occurs twice . . . and once it is with Vav conjunctive. That is, in the construct.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 28b, on Isa. 60 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 144b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 347a, on Prov. 27 27; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 237a, on Isa. 60 16, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ר, § 113, which alone gives the mnemonic sign. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 70).

מִחֶלֶב from or than the fat, occurs eight [seven] times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ps. 73 7 is incorrect. In Isa. 35 5 to which the catchwords מִחֶלֶב refer as the fifth passage, מִחֶלֶב does not occur. These catchwords are manifestly a mistake for מִחֶלֶב which precede מִחֶלֶב Isa. 34 7. The ignorant Nakdan who not only wrongly divided the long catchwords into two separate passages, but misquoted the first part, altered the original ו in the heading into ר, to agree with the supposed eight instances.

הֶלְבֵּן their fat, occurs twice in the same section. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 59b, on Levit. 8 16, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Levit. 8 25. As this noun with the suffix third person plural feminine not only occurs twice in the same hook, but is restricted to the same section, the heading בִּבְעֵינָא of List II is more accurate.

הֵלֵה he is sick, occurs eight times. That is, with Segol under the Lamed, being the participle masculine, in contradistinction to the instances in which it is with Kametz (הֵלֵה) the feminine. By fixing the number at eight, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the reading הֵלֵה hath compassion, which is exhibited in the Septuagint (κονῶν) and which is now generally adopted as the original reading.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 162a, on 2 Chron. 22 6, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 48b, on 1 Sam. 19 14; (III) the same MS., fol. 89a, on 1 Kings 14 5; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 284b, on 2 Kings 8 7; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 58b, on Gen. 48 1; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah Supplement, fol. 132a, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 48 1. All the seven Lists not only state emphatically in their respective headings that it occurs eight times, but six (II-VII) coincide in saying that it is defective in seven instances and plene in one passage (מִחֶלֶב and giving Neh. 2 2 as the plene instance).

הֵלֵה הֵלֵה. Throughout Ecclesiastes it is הֵלֵה with Kametz under the Lamed, whilst throughout the other Scriptures it is הֵלֵה with Segol. That is, in Ecclesiastes where it occurs twice (5 12, 15) it is in both instance a noun feminine and is never the Kal participle, whilst in all the other books where it occurs eight times, as recorded in the preceding Rubric, it is invariably הֵלֵה or הֵלֵה the participle.

This Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ecclesiastes 5 12. It is part of the List of words which are respectively restricted to one book of the Scriptures, whilst in all the other books of the Bible they exhibit a different form. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 247, Vol. II, fol. 22a.)

רמז = § 226.

הֵלֵה הֵלֵה the sick, occurs twice. That is, a noun with the prefix He, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this quinqueliteral occurs with Segol under the Lamed, being the participle (Mal. 1 13). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 188b, on Ezek. 34 4. As the two instances are not only in the same book but are restricted to the same section, the heading ought more properly to be בִּבְעֵינָא or בִּבְעֵינָא.

הֵלֵה occurs twice in the Scriptures, in two different senses. In the first instance it denotes he made sick (Deut. 29 21) and in the second he besought (2 Chron. 33 12).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 169b, on 2 Chron. 33 12, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 140a, on Deut. 29 21, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217.)

רביח = § 228.

רביח I have besought, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 42b, on 1 Sam. 13 12.

רביט = § 229.

רביט and he besought, occurs four times. That is, in contradistinction to the nine instances in which this quadriliteral is pointed רביט recorded below § 251.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 56a, on Exod. 32 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MSS., Vol. I, fol. 247b, on 2 Kings 13 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 88a, on 1 Kings 13 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 107b, on 2 Kings 13 4; (V) the same MS., fol. 163b, on Jerem. 26 19; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 119b, on Exod. 32 11, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ריל cakes, is three times plene in this book. That is, in Leviticus. This plural noun occurs altogether five times in this book. As it is defective in two instances (Levit. 7 12, 13) and plene in three the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. This protection in the more necessary since the two kinds of spelling not only occur in two consecutive verses but in the same verse (Levit. 7 12, 13). It will be seen that the Massorah, contrary to its usual method, safeguards here the majority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 66b, on Levit. 7 12, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 85b, on Levit. 2 4; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 69b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 145a, on Levit. 7 12; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 82b, on Levit. 2 4; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Levit. 24 5. Lists II, III, IV, V and VII head this Rubric ריל. As it occurs three times plene altogether the heading ought more properly to be ריל or ריל.

רליב in the dream, is twice defective in this book. That is, in Genesis. This noun with the prefix Beth occurs altogether eight times. It is plene in six instances and defective in two only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 5404, fol. 44b, on Gen. 31 24, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 45b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ר, § 134. All the three Lists coincide in giving רליב Gen. 20 3 as the catchword for the first instance. As List III gives the longer catchwords רליב it precludes the hypothesis that it refers to the instances in connection with the second passage in which this expression occurs with regard to רליב, viz. Gen. 20 6. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that this Rubric is based upon a recension of the text which read it defective in Gen. 20 3. This is confirmed by Add. 15,251 first hand; Add. 21,160; Orient. 4227; the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488 and the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25, which has against it רליב in the Massorah Parva.

The dominant recension, however, gives רליב in Gen. 20 6 as the first defective instance. This reading is exhibited in Orient. 4445; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11, with the Massorah Parva on it רליב; Add. 15,250, with the same Massorah; Add. 15,251 also with the same Massorah; Add. 21,160; Orient. 4227; the editio princeps of the Pentateuch Bologne 1482; the third edition of the Pentateuch Ixar 1490; the first, second and third editions of the Bible (Soncino 1488; Naples 1491—93; Brescia 1494); the Complutensian; the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah Venice 1524—25.

רליג as a dream, occurs three times in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to indicate that whilst with the prefix Beth this noun is both plene and the defective, with the prefix Caph it is uniformly plene in all the three instances.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 13b, on Isa. 29 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 195b, on Ps. 73 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 302a, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Isa. 29 7. The heading of List II רליג indicates the design of this Rubric.

רליד in my dream, occurs four times, twice plene and twice defective. As this noun with the prefix Beth and the suffix first person singular which occurs altogether four times and which is not only restricted to the same book, but to two consecutive sections, is differently spelt in each section, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 51a, on Gen. 40 9, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 50a, on the same passage.

רליה his dreams, occurs three times, twice defective and once plene. This Rubric I have found in the Massorah only, on Gen. 37 20. It is based upon a recension of the text which read רליה with Vav after the Mem in Dan. 2 2. This is attested by Add. 15,451 and the Complutensian. The predominant School of textual redactors, however, read it רליה defective as in the other two instances and this reading is exhibited in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Orient. 4227 and all the early editions except the Complutensian.

רליז = § 236.

רליז the windows, is three times defective. That is, without the Vav after the Lamed. This plural noun without and with the prefixes, occurs altogether nine times. It is plene in six instances (Ezek. 40 16, 16, 29, 33, 36; 41 16) and in three only is it defective. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority. This protection is all the more necessary since the two kinds of spelling are not only used promiscuously in the same book, but occur in the same verse (Ezek. 41 16, 16). That this Rubric exhibits the orthography of the dominant School of textual redactors and that other Schools read it differently, is attested by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, which has it plene in both clauses of Ezek. 41 16, whilst Harley 5710—11, has it defective in both clauses.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 194a, on Ezek. 41 16, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Cant. 2 9, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ר, § 136.

רליז occurs twice in two different senses. In the first instance it is the proper name Hali, a town in the tribe of Asher with the prefix Vav (Josh. 19 25) and in the second it denotes a necklace, a trinket, with the prefix Vav (Prov. 25 12). In the only other instance where this quadriliteral occurs it is pointed רליז and signifies sickness (Ecol. 6 2).

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Prov. 25 12. It forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ז, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217.)

רליח = § 238.

רליח to or with sickness, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 161b, on 2 Chron. 21 18, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 270a, on the same passage.

רליט = § 239.

רליט like pipes, occurs twice and in the same verse, one is defective and the other is plene . . . the second is plene the first is defective. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 266a, on Jerem. 48 36. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the Eastern recension of the text which reads both instances without the second Yod.

It must, however, not be concluded that because a MS. has this defective reading in the second clause, therefore, it exhibits the Babylonian recension. The fact is that at an early period the Eastern and Western readings were not as yet sharply defined.

Hence defective in both clauses is not only the reading in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, but is exhibited in the following Standard Codices which are admittedly Palestinian: Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,451 and Orient. 1474. Moreover the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,451 emphatically declares that it is defective in both clauses of this verse (כִּי הָיָה יְבֻשָׁתָא); whilst the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,251, also states that according to other Codices it is here defective in both clauses but that the Codex Mugah has it defective in the first clause and plene in the second נִשְׂא בְּחֻלְלִים תְּרִיחֵי הָאֵץ וְכִסְפֵּי טָנָה קִרְמָא הָאֵץ תְּרִיחֵי מַלְּי.

רִמָּה = § 240.

רִמָּה far be it, is three times defective in the Scriptures. This adverb occurs altogether twenty-one times. In eighteen instances it is plene and in three only is it without the Yod. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the abnormal orthography. This protection is specially necessary since the two kinds of spelling occur in the same books (comp. Gen. 18 25 with 44 7, 17; Job 27 5 with 34 10) and since the Samaritan recension has it plene in both instances in Gen. 18 25.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 237a, on Job 34 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 333a, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 37a, on Gen. 18 25; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (V) the same on Job 34 10.

רִמָּא changes, is three times thus written. That is, with Yod defective and Vav plene. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 101a, on 2 Kings 5 22, which I have printed; (II) Cambridge Add. 465, on Gen. 45 22, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The heading in List II רִמָּא חֵי הָאֵץ וְיִשְׂרָאֵל expresses more explicitly the import of this Massorah.

רִמָּא = § 241b.

רִמָּא. — A rule for the spelling of this noun. In Gen. 45 22a it is spelled רִמָּא. In 45 22b and in Judg. 14 12 it is רִמָּא and in all the rest of the Scriptures it is רִמָּא.

This Rubric is an expansion of the preceding Massorah and is designed to safeguard the spelling of this noun in all the passages where it occurs. As it occurs all together ten times and is spelt in three different ways, we are told that it is in the first place without the Yod, but with the Vav and though one instance only is here given for this spelling there are three such passages. They are recorded in the preceding Rubric and the single instance here is simply designed to distinguish it from the other instance in the same verse which is differently spelt. In two instances it is entirely defective, that is, both without Yod and without Vav (Gen. 45 22b; Judg. 14 12), whilst in all the rest of the Scriptures where it occurs five times, it is entirely plene, that is, both with Yod and Vav (Judg. 14 13; 1 Kings 5 28; 2 Kings 5 5; Ps. 55 20; Job 10 17). The necessity for this safeguarding will be apparent when it is borne in mind that the two spellings not only occur in the same book and in the same chapter (2 Kings 5 5, 22, 23), but in the same verse (Gen. 45 22). From the notes on Gen. 45 22 in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that the variation in the orthography in this verse is in accordance with the Hellali Codex and that the Jerusalem Codex exhibits another variation.

רִמָּי = § 242.

רִמָּי occurs three times in this form. For this Rubric see below letter י, § 178, Vol. II, p. 277.

רִמָּי = § 243.

רִמָּי from polluting it, occurs twice and they are in the same section. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 142b, on Isa. 56 2.

רִמָּי = § 244.

רִמָּי profaning, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Twice this Piel participle plural is without the prefix Vav and once with it.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 260b, on 1 Kings 1 40, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 76b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 222b, on Mal. 1 12; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 180b, on 1 Kings 1 40, and

(V) Add. 15,251, fol. 184a, on the same passage. List I emphasises the fact that it occurs twice without the prefix Vav and once with it and as such this Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without and once with this prefix. (Vide supra, letter י, § 70.) Lists II, IV and V head this Rubric בְּרִי לִישׁ, not noticing the instance with the prefix Vav and as such it forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter מ, § 248.)

רִמָּי = § 245.

רִמָּי thou hast begun, occurs twice and is so written. That is, with Vav after the Lamed. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 274a, on Esther 6 13, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 361b, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 125a, on Deut. 3 24. In my edition of the Bible Deut. 3 24 is a mistake and should be רִמָּי plene.

רִמָּי = § 246.

רִמָּי I have begun, occurs twice and is defective. Whilst the Hiphil preterite second person singular which, as we have seen, in the preceding Rubric occurs twice, is plene in both instances, this preterite first person which also occurs twice is, on the contrary, defective in both instances. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 112b, on Deut. 2 31, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 190a, on 1 Sam. 22 15; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 258a, on Deut. 2 31; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 124a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

רִמָּי they began, occurs six times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Esther 9 23, is incorrect, since this Hiphil preterite third person plural occurs seven times and 2 Chron. 20 22 is omitted. Whether this omission and the alteration in the heading of י into ר are due to Jacob b. Chayim, or whether he simply reproduced this faulty Rubric from some MS., it is now difficult to say.

רִמָּי = § 248.

רִמָּי from the beginning of, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 122b, on Deut. 16 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 168a, on 2 Chron. 31 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 277a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 131b, on Deut. 16 9, and (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 132b, on the same passage.

רִמָּי begin thou; or to begin, occurs three times with Kametz . . . and once it is with Pathach. The three Kametz instances consist of two imperatives (Deut. 2 24, 31) and one infinitive (1 Sam. 3 12) from two imperatives (Deut. 2 24, 31) and one infinitive (1 Sam. 3 12) from two imperatives, whilst the Pathach instance is the noun רִמָּי with the prefix He (Obad. 20) from רִמָּי. The latter is given in § 197 as one of the four instances in which רִמָּי is defective, viz. רִמָּי without Yod. The Massorah, however, groups here together homonyms.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 112b, on Deut. 2 24, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 112b, on Obad. 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 36b, on 1 Sam. 3 12; (IV) the same MS., fol. 209a, on Obad. 20; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 257b, on Deut. 2 24; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Obad. 20. In the printed Rubric the reference 1 Sam. 3 12 for the third instance has dropped out.

רִמָּי he shall begin, or hope thou, occurs five times in the Scriptures; in two instances it is with Kametz and in three with Pathach. As usual the Massorah has here grouped together homonyms. In three out of the five instances this triliteral is the Hiphil future third person singular from רִמָּי (Numb. 30 3; Judg. 10 18; 13 5); whilst in two it is the imperative singular masculine from רִמָּי (Ps. 130 7; 131 3).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 165b, on Judg. 13 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 216b, on Ps. 130 7; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 28a, on Judg. 13 5; (IV) the same MS., fol. 317*b*, on Ps. 130 7; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 240*b*, on Numb. 30 3; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Ps. 130 7.

וַיִּחַל and he waited, and he began, or and he was distressed, occurs nine times. The design of this Massorah is simply to safeguard the identity of the graphic signs in all the nine instances in which this quadriliteral occurs without any regard to their radical difference. Hence three of the nine instances are from וַיִּחַל (Gen. 8 10; 1 Sam. 31 3; 1 Chron. 10 3), whilst six are from וַיִּחַל (Gen. 9 20; Numb. 25 1; Judg. 16 22; Jonah 3 4; 2 Chron. 3 1, 2).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient., 16, fol. 30*b*, on Judg. 16 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 56*b*, on 1 Sam. 31 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 209*b*, on Jonah 3 4; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 164*a*, on 1 Sam. 31 3; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 7*b*, on Gen. 9 20; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 8 10, and (VII) the same on 1 Sam. 31 3. Lists II, III, IV, V and VI add at the end of the Rubric that the last two instances denote distress (כִּי בָרַח לִשְׂוֵי חַיִּים), for which reason they are placed at the end. List VII omits 2 Chron. 3 2 which is evidently due to carelessness, since the heading duly states that there are nine such instances. In the List which I have printed the inexplicable reference 1 Sam. 3 12 has crept into the text against the fifth catchwords.

וַיִּתְחַל I will begin, occurs three times, twice with Kametz and once with Pathach. As this Hiphil future first person singular which occurs three times only, is differently pointed, being Kametz under the Aleph in two instances (Deut. 2 25; Josh. 3 7) and in one with Pathach (Ezek. 39 7) the Massorah safeguards this variation in its graphic signs.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 112*b*, on Deut. 2 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 138*b*, on Josh. 3 7; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 95*b*, on Ezek. 39 7; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 2*b*, on Josh. 3 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 192*a*, on Ezek. 39 7; (VI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 2 25, and (VII) the same on Ezek. 39 7. Lists II, III, VI and VII add at the end וַיִּתְחַל, thus defining the Ezekiel instance as being the one with Pathach.

וַיִּתְחַל and they began, occurs four times. By fixing the number at four, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the recension of the text which exhibited וַיִּתְחַל with Vav conjunctive instead of וַיִּתְחַל in Hosea 8 10 as is attested by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 and Add. 21,161. That at a still earlier period other recensions read it here וַיִּתְחַל (= καὶ καταδουσευ) is evident from the Septuagint, the Syriac and the Vulgate.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 33*b*, on Judg. 20 31, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 275*a*, on 2 Chron. 29 17; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 144*b*, on Judg. 20 31; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 342*a*, on 2 Chron. 29 17, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 123. The printed Massorah (List V) not only heads this Rubric וַיִּתְחַל but records three instances only and omits Ezek. 9 6.

וַיִּחְלֵם and the dream, occurs twice. This Chaldee noun emphatic occurs altogether seventeen times in Daniel. In fifteen instances it is וַיִּחְלֵם without the Vav conjunctive and in two only is it with this Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional occurrence. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ט, § 133. It is part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav which respectively occur twice only and which are severally restricted to one book of the Scriptures. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 66.)

רניה = § 255.

וַיִּחְלֵשׁ a flint, is in four instances with Kametz, and they are severally unique . . . and once it is with Sheva. That is, this noun without and with the different prefixes is in all the four instances in the absolute state which in Massoretic terminology is expressed by Kametz under the Lamed and the forms are severally unique, whilst in one instance it is with Sheva under the Lamed or is in the construct. This Rubric I have found in the printed

Massorah only, on Ps. 114 8. Two out of these four instances, viz. וַיִּחְלֵשׁ (Ps. 114 8) and וַיִּחְלֵשׁ (Job 28 9) form part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once without the prefix Beth and once with it. (Vide supra, letter ז, § 10.)

רניז = § 256.

וַיִּחְלֵף he shall pass, change, or flourish, occurs four times and is defective. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 323*b*, on Job 4 15, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 307*a*, on Ps. 90 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 325*a*, on Job 11 10; (IV) the printed Massorah on Isa. 2 18, and (V) the same on Job 4 15. As וַיִּחְלֵף not only occurs four times but is defective in all the four instances, Lists II and IV head this Rubric more properly וַיִּחְלֵף.

רניח = § 257.

וַיִּחְלֶץ occurs twice in two different senses. In the first instance this participle passive denotes armed (Numb. 32 27) and in the second it signifies loosed or drawn off (Deut. 25 10). This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Deut. 25 10, is incorrect. The catchwords וַיִּחְלֶץ לִבְנֵי בְלִיָּהּ which refer to Numb. 32 21 ought manifestly to be וַיִּחְלֶץ לִבְנֵי בְלִיָּהּ Numb. 32 27, since in verse 21 it is וַיִּחְלֶץ the absolute which also occurs in verses 29; whereas the Massorah treats here of the two instances in which this participle passive is in the construct. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ט, § 248, Vol. II, p. 217.)

רניה, = § 258.

וַיִּחְלְדוּ occurs twice in two different senses. In the first instance this preterite third person plural denotes they divided (Josh. 18 2) and in the second they were smooth (Ps. 55 22). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 12*b*, on Josh. 18 2, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Ps. 55 22.

רניהט = § 259.

וַיִּחְלֶד he shall divide, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, the Kal future third person singular, in contradistinction to the three instances in which this quadriliteral is pointed וַיִּחְלֶד being the Niphal, recorded in the following Rubric. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 250*a*, on Prov. 17 2.

ריס = § 260.

וַיִּחְלַק, וַיִּחְלְקוּ it shall be divided, occurs four times in this form. Without and with the prefix Vav the future with Tzere or Segol under the Lamed, occurs altogether twelve times. In eight instances it is pointed וַיִּחְלַק, being the Piel (comp. Gen. 49 27; Isa. 53 12; Micah 2 4; Job 21 17; Dan. 11 39; וַיִּחְלְקוּ Josh. 18 10; 2 Sam. 6 19; 1 Chron. 16 3) and in these four instances only, is it pointed וַיִּחְלַק, being the Niphal. Hence the Massorah safeguards the Niphal which is the minority against being confused with the Piel which is the majority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 35*b*, on Gen. 14 15, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 45*b*, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 34*b*, also on the same passage.

וַיִּחְלְקוּ and he divided them, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 144*b*, on 1 Chron. 23 6, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

The greatest diversity obtains both in the MSS. and early editions with regard to the graphic signs of this sextiliteral: (1) וַיִּחְלְקוּ which I adopted in my edition of the Bible is the pointing in Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16 and Add. 15,251; (2) וַיִּחְלְקוּ is Harley 5710—11 and Orient. 4227; (3) וַיִּחְלְקוּ Add. 15,250, and (4) וַיִּחְלְקוּ Add. 15,451. For the different graphic signs in the editions see the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

ריסב = § 262.

וַיִּחְלְקוּ he that smootheth, or flattereth, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 19*b*, on Isa. 41 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 256*b*, on Prov. 29 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 186*a*, on Isa. 41 7, and (IV) the same MS., fol. 347*b*, on Prov. 29 5.

רס"ג = § 263.

הלק smooth, is three times with Kametz in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the five instances in which it is with Pathach under the Lamed, being the preterite third person singular masculine.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 76b, on Ezek. 12 24, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 346b, on Prov. 26 28; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 276a, on Ezek. 12 24; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 20a, on Gen. 27 11; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (VI) the same on Ezek. 12 24, and (VII) the same on Prov. 26 28. As the three instances respectively occur in the three divisions of the Bible, the addition at the end of the Rubric states that one is in the Law, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa.

רס"ד = § 264.

הלק and portion, or part, is twice in the Pentateuch rendered in the Chaldee by חלק. That is, in the Targum of the so-called Onkelos. It is difficult to divine the import of this Massorah, which is from Orient. 2379, fol. 52b, on Gen. 14 24, since חלק which occurs only once more, viz. Eccl. 9 6, is also rendered by חלק and since this is the normal equivalent for the Hebrew noun חלק.

רס"ה = § 265.

חלק as a part, or portion, occurs twice, and once it is with the prefix Fav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 124a, on Deut. 18 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 195b, on 1 Sam. 30 24; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 132b, on Deut. 18 8; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 133b, on the same passage, and (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage.

This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Fav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter v, § 70.)

רס"ו = § 266.

חלק occurs twice and in two different senses. That is, in the first instance it is Helek the proper name of a son of Gilead with the prefix Lamed (Numb. 26 30) and in the second it is the noun, denoting portion, or part with the prefix Lamed (Job 17 5). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 110b, on Numb. 26 30. It is designed to militate against the various reading חלק in Numb. 26 30, which was exhibited in the Codices of other redactions, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

רס"ז = § 267.

חלקי my portion, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse. As this noun with the suffix third person singular masculine, which occurs altogether six times, is in four instances in the middle of the verse and twice only at the beginning, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional position. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ps. 119 57.

רס"ח = § 268.

חלקים the portions, occurs three times in this form. That is, in Ezekiel this plural noun masculine without and with the prefix He [= בלש]. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 126b, on Ezek. 45 7. The adjunct בלש is omitted in the heading, which is not infrequently the case. This is evident from the fact that חלקים occurs also three times in Joshua (18 5, 6, 9).

רס"ט = § 269.

חלקות smooth things, occurs three times and is plene. That is, the plural feminine of חלקה, in contradistinction to the plural masculine חלקים of חלק, which occurs four times.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 176b, on Ps. 12 3, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 131a, on Isa. 30 10, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 12 3.

רע"א = § 270.

חלקיה Hilkiyah, occurs ten times. That is, apart from Ezra-Nehemiah, where this name occurs altogether twenty-nine times. As it is in nineteen instances the longer form חלקיה Hilkiyah

(2 Kings 18 18, 26; 22 4, 8, 14; 23 4, 24; Isa. 22 20; 36 3, 22; Jerem. 1 1; 1 Chron. 26 11; 2 Chron. 34 9, 14, 15, 18, 20, 22) and in ten only is it the shorter form חלקיה Hilkiyah, the Massorah safeguards the minority. This protection is all the more necessary since in 2 Kings 22 8 the two forms are promiscuously used in the same verse.

And throughout Ezra it is likewise so. In this book, where this name occurs altogether five times, it is uniformly the shorter form חלקיה (Ezra 7 1; Neh. 8 4; 11 11; 12 7, 21). Hence the simple statement of the general fact suffices without specifying the instances. For the reason of this duplicate form of the name see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, p. 386 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 113a, on 2 Kings 18 87; which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 241a, on 1 Chron. 5 39; (III) the same MS., fol. 241b, on 1 Chron. 6 30; (IV) the same MS., fol. 280a, on 2 Chron. 35 8; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 254b, on Jerem. 29 3, and (VI) the printed Massorah on 2 Chron. 35 8. All the MS. Lists emphatically state in their respective headings that there are ten such instances of this shorter form apart from Ezra-Nehemiah and record identically the same ten instances. Jacob b. Chayim's Rubric (List VI), however, heads it י"א, but records nine only. It omits Jerem. 29 3, which is due to carelessness on the part of the Scribe. Moreover בן יהויה ought to be לעם ישראל 1 Chron. 9 11 and לעם יהויה ought to be לעם ישראל 2 Chron. 35 8. It also omits the second part of this Massorah, viz. חלקיה חלקיה: which all the MS. Lists give and without which the Rubric is unintelligible, since, as we have seen, חלקיה occurs five times in this book alone, thus yielding fifteen instances altogether and not eleven. The note which Jacob b. Chayim adds only explains how he concluded that the catchwords חלקיה חלקיה refer to 2 Kings 12 12' and not to 2 Kings 23 4.

חלקיהו הבהן Hilkiyah the priest, occurs five times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ה, § 142 is incorrect, as will be seen from the following analysis: (1) The import of this Massorah apparently is to record the instances in which the longer form חלקיהו is followed by הבהן, in contradistinction to the shorter form חלקיה, as the two combinations חלקיהו הבהן and חלקיה הבהן are used promiscuously within a few verses of each other (comp. 2 Kings 23 4, 8, 14 with 22 10, 12). But (2) as this longer phrase occurs altogether eight times and not five and as the three instances which are here omitted are in Chronicles (2 Chron. 34 9, 14, 18), it is evident that the design of this Massorah is to record simply the instances in Kings and that the adjunct חלקיהו has been omitted in the heading, which ought to be ה' במלכים. And (3) though this lengthier phrase actually occurs five times in Kings, those recorded in this Rubric are incorrect, since the third instance here given, viz. חלקיה הבהן 2 Kings 22 12 is the shorter form חלקיהו הבהן and 2 Kings 23 24 where the longer form חלקיהו הבהן occurs, is entirely omitted. It is remarkable that though the eight instances in which the longer form describes חלקיהו as priest, exhibits two different combinations, being in four instances simply חלקיהו הבהן Hilkiyah the priest (2 Kings 22 14; 23 24; 2 Chron. 34 14, 18) and in four חלקיהו הבהן הגדול Hilkiyah the high priest (2 Kings 22 4, 8; 23 4; 2 Chron. 34 9) and though these two phrases are used promiscuously within a few verses of each other, yet I have not found a Massorah which safeguards the respective combinations.

חלישה to prostrate, to discomfit, or to be prostrate, to be weak, occurs three times in this form, once defective and twice plene. That is, three forms occur of the root חלש, one is חלש future third person singular masculine with Fav conversive which is defective (Exod. 17 13), one חלישה noun feminine (Exod. 32 16) which is plene and one חליש participle which is also plene (Isa. 14 12).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 67b, on Exod. 17 13, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 66b, on the same passage. Both Lists omit חלש Job 14 10 and חלש Joel 4 10.

רע"ד = § 273.

חם occurs twice, once with Pathach and once with Kametz. That is, with Kametz this biliteral is an adjective and denotes hot (Josh. 9 12) and with Pathach it is preterite third person singular masculine and signifies he was hot (Ps. 39 4).

And wherever it is a proper name it is likewise with Kametz. As a proper name this biliteral occurs thirteen times (Gen. 5 32; 6 10; 9 22; 10 1, 6, 20; Ps. 78 51; 105 23, 27; 106 22; 1 Chron. 1 4, 8; 4 40) and as it is invariably קָם with Kametz the simple mention of the fact suffices without specifying the number.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, of which there are two Lists: (I) on Ps. 39 4, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ק, § 143, which incorrectly heads it קָמַץ.

רָעִיד about the heat, or in the heat, occurs four times and is defective. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the textual reading or Kethiv רָעִיד with Beth in 1 Sam. 11 9 and include the official reading or Keri רָעִיד with Caph.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 37a, on Gen. 18 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59b, on 2 Sam. 4 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 126a, on Isa. 18 4; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 166b, on 2 Sam. 4 5; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 11b, on Gen. 18 1; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 5a, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. List VI adds at the end that in one instance it is with the prefix Beth (רָעִיד קָדֵר), viz. Isa. 18 4. List VII, which has also this addition, states that it is the second instance in Isa. 18 4 which is with Beth בְּרָעִיד, but which ought more properly to be רָעִיד בְּרָעִיד.

רָעִיד desired, occurs twice in the Scriptures. In the only other passage where this Niphal participle singular masculine occurs it is with the prefix Vav (Gen. 3 6). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 252b, on Prov. 21 20, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

רָעִיד = § 276.

רָעִיד the desire of, or that is desirable in, occurs four times. By fixing the number at four of the singular noun in the construct, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the ancient reading רָעִיד the plural in Hag. 2 7, which is exhibited in the Septuagint (ἐὰν ἐσέλθῃ) and which is now accepted by some of the best textual critics as preferable and agreeing with the plural verb רָעִיד.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 281b, on 2 Chron. 36 10, which I have printed; (II) Cambridge Add. 465 on Dan. 11 37, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ר, § 147.

רָעִיד desires. This plural noun, which occurs altogether nine times, without and with the prefixes, is spelt in four different ways. In one instance it is entirely defective (Gen. 27 15), that is without both Vavs. In one instance it is entirely plene (Dan. 9 23), that is with both Vavs. In one it is partly plene and partly defective (Ezra 8 27), that is with the first Vav but without the second; whilst in six instances it is רָעִיד without the first Vav but with the second (Dan. 10 3, 11, 19; 11 38, 43; 2 Chron. 20 25). As the latter is the normal orthography, the Massorah safeguards the three spellings which are severally unique.

Of this Massorah I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 377b, on Ezra 8 27, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 27 15, and (III) the same on Dan. 9 23. List II is incorrect, רָעִיד ought to be רָעִיד רָעִיד Ezra 8 27, whilst רָעִיד רָעִיד ought to be רָעִיד רָעִיד.

רָעִיד wrath, fury, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this plural noun, which occurs twice only, is spelt differently in each passage the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 253a, on Prov. 22 24, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 391b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 76 11.

רָעִיד = § 279.

רָעִיד an ass, is five times defective in the Pentateuch in this form. That is, in five instances in the Pentateuch is the form רָעִיד without and with the prefixes, without the Var. Without and with the prefixes this noun occurs altogether about fifty times. It is plene in forty-six instances and defective in four or five. Hence the Massorah safeguards the abnormal orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 33b, on Gen. 49 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 55a, on Exod. 13 13; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 32a, on Gen. 49 14; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 135a, on Deut. 22 10; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 86a, on Exod. 13 13; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 135b, on Deut. 22 10, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 49 14.

It will be seen that List I, which I have printed, emphatically states in the heading that there are five such defective instances and gives Numb. 16 15. It is probable that the School of textual redactors from which this Rubric proceeds included this instance in the defectives to emphasise the fact that it is here רָעִיד and not רָעִיד, which is one of the alterations designedly introduced into the Text made for King Ptolemy recorded in the Talnuud (see my Introduction p. 302 &c.) and which is exhibited in the Septuagint and in the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text. None of the other MS. Lists, however, give this passage. List VII, which also states in the heading that there are five such defectives (רָעִיד רָעִיד), gives רָעִיד Judg. 15 16 as the fifth instance. But this is plene in all the Standard Codices and is rightly absent in all the MS. Lists of the Rubric. Not only is List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, headed רָעִיד which is also the heading of Lists III, IV, V and VI, but they all coincide in recording identically the same four instances only. As all the defectives occur in the Pentateuch, the heading ought more properly to be רָעִיד or simply רָעִיד as it is in Lists II—VI.

רָעִיד asses, is six times plene. Without and with the prefixes this plural noun occurs altogether twenty-one times. It is defective in fifteen instances and plene in six only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. It will be seen that whilst in the singular the normal spelling of this noun is the plene as recorded in the preceding Rubric, in the plural the plene orthography is the abnormal.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 133a, on 1 Chron. 5 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 139a, on 1 Chron. 12 41; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 404b, on 1 Chron. 5 21; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Judg. 19 10. As these six instances include this noun without and with the prefixes, Lists III, IV and V head this Rubric more correctly רָעִיד.

רָעִיד to their asses, is three times plene in this form. That is, this plural form with the pronominal suffixes. With the pronominal suffixes, and without and with the prefixes this plural noun occurs altogether nine times. As it is defective in six instances (Gen. 34 28; 42 26; 43 18, 24; 44 3; 2 Kings 7 7) and plene in three only, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 143a, on Josh. 9 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 6b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 39b, on 1 Sam. 8 16; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 121b, on Josh. 9 4; (V) the same MS., fol. 149b, on 1 Sam. 8 16; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 151a, on Josh. 9 4, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

רָעִיד the fifth, is always plene in the Pentateuch. That is, in this division of the Bible where this ordinal masculine singular, without and with the prefix He, occurs altogether five times (Gen. 1 23; 30 17; Numb. 7 36; 29 26; 33 38) it is invariably plene with the Yod after the Mem.

And throughout the Prophets and the Hagiographa it is likewise plene except in three instances. In these two divisions, where it occurs altogether twenty-three times, eleven times in the Prophets and twelve in the Hagiographa, it is plene in twenty instances and defective in three only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. By fixing the number at three, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the School of textual redactors which exhibited רָעִיד in Zech. 7 3, as is attested by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11 &c

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 89a, on Numb. 7 86, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 123b, on Zech. 7 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 219a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 278b, on Ezek. 20 1; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 86b, on Numb. 7 36; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Zech. 7 3. Several of these Lists simply head this Rubric החמישי or still more simply ה. In the List which I have printed the catchword למטה in the MS. is manifestly a scribal error for למעלה, as is attested by all the other MS. Lists.

החמישי the fifth, is three times plene in the Scriptures. That is, the ordinal feminine. As it occurs altogether five times only and is defective in two instances (Levit. 27 19; 1 Kings 6 31), the Massorah here, contrary to its usual method, safeguards the orthography of the majority. It will be seen that the two different spellings not only occur in the same book, but within a few verses of each other (Levit. 27 15, 19).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 32b, on Gen. 47 24, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 82b, on Levit. 27 15; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 296a, on Neh. 6 5; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 382b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 39b, on Gen. 47 24; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Levit. 27 15. החמישי 1 Kings 6 31 which is in my edition with Dagesh in the Shin, in accordance with Van der Hooght &c. ought to be החמישי Raphe as it is in the Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 &c. &c. Harley 5710—11, in which it is also Raphe, reads it החמישי and it is against this reading which the Massorah militates.

החמישי the fifth, is three times plene in the whole Scriptures. With the prefix He, this ordinal feminine occurs altogether five times. As it is plene in these three instances, the addition at the end of the Rubric which declares that it is without the first Yod in the other instances must necessarily denote the remaining two, viz. Levit. 19 25 and Jerem. 36 9. This form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 156a.

רפי"ה = § 285.

החמישי the fifth, occurs five times. As this ordinal feminine with the prefix He, which occurs altogether five times, is spelt in three different ways, the design of this Massorah is to indicate the passages in which these variations occur. In the Pentateuch, where it occurs once, it is החמישי (Levit. 19 25) with the first Yod, but without the second. In Jeremiah, where it also occurs once, it is החמישי (Jerem. 36 9) without the first Yod, but with the second; whilst in the other three instances it is החמישי (Gen. 47 24; Ezek. 1 2; 2 Chron. 12 2). It will thus be seen that this Rubric exhibits a different recension from the one recorded in the preceding Rubric. According to § 284 this ordinal is spelt in two different ways, whilst following this Rubric it is spelt in three different ways, since according to § 284 Levit. 19 25 and Jerem. 36 9 are spelt alike (החמישי) without the first Yod, and in this recension the Leviticus instance is החמישי with the first Yod, but without the second. On referring to the notes on Levit. 19 25 it will be seen that this Rubric (§ 285) is based on the Jerusalem Codex, that the Hellali Codex reads it החמישי entirely plene, that the Samaritan recension reads it החמישי without the first Yod and that § 284 must, therefore, be based upon the spelling which is preserved in the latter.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 76b, on Levit. 19 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 230b, on 1 Kings 14 25; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 89b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 264b, on 2 Chron. 12 2; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 168b, on Levit. 19 25; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 36 9.

Lists II, III, IV, V and VI add at the end דאורי' החמישיה בתי דאורי' החמישיה בתי which fixes the three different spellings. The heading of List VI דאורי' החמישיה בתי has manifestly been added by an ignorant Nakdan and were incautiously passed by Jacob b. Chayim. A striking illustration of how ignorant Nakdanim corrupted Massorahs from the earliest times, is afforded by the hopeless condition in which this Rubric is given in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 106a, on Levit. 19 25, which I subjoin in the note.¹

החמישיה ג' ויסבוקו האכלו את פרוי ורוי בשנה החמישיה ליהויקום בחמשה לחדש רחבעם וזכורו קדמו' החמישיה תנינו החמישיה ושמי כל.

רפי"ז = § 286.

החמישיה his fifth, or the fifth thereof, is three times thus written. That is, with the first Yod and without the second Yod. This ordinal feminine with the suffix third person singular masculine occurs altogether six times, five times without the prefix Vav and once with it. As it is spelt in three different ways, the design of this Rubric and of the following one is to safeguard the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Levit. 5 16, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 67b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 142b, also on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 183a, on Levit. 27 13, and (V) the printed Massorah on Levit. 5 16. All the five Lists record identically the same three passages and coincide in giving Numb. 5 7 where it is החמישיה with the prefix Vav as the third instance.

החמישיה the fifth thereof, is in two instances so written. That is, the converse of the spelling recorded in the preceding Rubric. In these two instances it is without the first Yod and with the second Yod. On referring to the notes on Levit. 22 14 in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that this Rubric is based upon the recension of the text exhibited in the Hellali Codex and that the Jerusalem Codex reads it here החמישיה with the first Yod but without the second, which relegates it to the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 78b, on Levit. 22 14, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. It will be seen from these two Rubrics, which set forth the orthography of this expression, that three of the six instances are in Levit. 27 and that though they occur within a few verses of each other (Levit. 27 13, 27, 31) they are in each case spelt differently. Hence the oldest form of this Massorah, which is exhibited in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 115a, on Levit. 27 13, is restricted to this phenomenon and gives the sign (כס) for the identification of these variations. It states that in verse 13 it is החמישיה with the Yod and defective of the second, that in verse 27 it is החמישיה entirely defective i. e. without both Yods and that in verse 31 it is החמישיה without the first Yod, but with the second.¹

החמישיה he shall spare, or pity, is four times plene in the Scriptures. As this future third person singular masculine, which occurs altogether eleven times, is defective in seven instances (Isa. 30 14; Jerem. 15 5; 21 7; Mal. 3 17; Job 16 13; 20 18; 27 22) and plene in four instances only, the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the minority. By fixing the number at four, the Massorah militates against the reading החמישיה defective, in Zech. 11 5, which the Codices of other Schools of textual redactors exhibited, as is attested by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Harley 5710—11 first hand; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485—86; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488 and the third edition, Brescia 1494.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 244b, on Prov. 6 34, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 220b, on Zech. 11 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 338b, on Prov. 6 34; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 315a, on Zech. 11 5, and (V) the printed Massorah on Habak. 1 17.

החמישיה I will spare or pity, is five times plene. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 272b, on Ezek. 5 11. As this future first person singular occurs altogether seven times, and as five instances are here specified as plene, the two remaining instances which according to this Massorah are defective, are Ezek. 9 10 and Zech. 11 6. St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, however, which remarks in the Massorah Parva on Jerem. 13 14 די פלי בני, though it does not give the catchwords for the five instances, exhibits them in the text as follows: Jerem. 13 14; Ezek. 5 11; 7 4; 8 18 and Zech. 11 6. Accordingly it makes up the five by omitting Ezek. 7 9 which is defective in this Codex and by giving Zech. 11 6 which it reads plene. It is, however, to be remarked that it also reads plene in Ezek. 9 10 which makes it six, and which is in conflict with the Massorah Parva on Jerem. 13 14 of this very Codex. For other variations see the notes on Ezek. 7 9 and 8 18 in my edition of the Bible.

רצ"ב the sun be warm, occurs three times . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. Normally רצ"ב is preceded by the verb בא (Gen. 15 12, 17; 28 11; Exod. 17 12; 22 25; Levit. 22 7 &c.) or יהוה (Gen. 32 32; Exod. 22 2; Judg. 9 33; Jonah 4 8; Ps. 104 22 &c.). As it is in these three instances only that it is preceded by the verb הָקַם the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 424b, on Neh. 7 3.

רצ"א and he became warm, occurs three times with Pathach . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. As this trilateral occurs altogether six times, three times with Pathach under the Cheth, being the preterite third person masculine and three times with Kametz (Gen. 7 13; 9 18, 18) where it is a proper name, the design of the Massorah is to indicate the passages in which it is a verb.

Of this popular Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 45b, on Exod. 16 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 215b, on 1 Kings 1 2; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 264b, on Eccl. 4 11; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 352b, on the same passage; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 67b, on Exod. 16 21; (VI) Paris Oehlah Ve-Oehlah, Additions § 21; (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 16 21, and (VIII) the same on 1 Kings 1 2.

The mnemonic sign is given in four of the Lists only, viz. II, V, VI and VII. List VIII adds at the end רצ"א וכל בן נה רצ"א which is incorrect. Apart from רצ"א, which ought to be בקריב (Ps. 39 4) as it is in the List which I have printed, an ignorant Nakdan has not only transposed the words which ought to be בקריב, since it indicates the design of the Massorah, but erroneously put רצ"א instead of קריב.

רצ"ד and the sun-images, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Orient. 1474, fol. 153b, on Isa. 17 8. Though it does not notice the fact that in Isaiah the He is with Kametz (רצ"ד) and in Chronicles with Pathach (רצ"ד), the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710-11 on Isaiah states רצ"ד ב' קריב.

רצ"ג = § 293.

רצ"ג my wrong, or violence, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 11b, on Gen. 16 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 11a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (IV) the same on Jerem. 51 35.

רצ"ז = § 294a.

רצ"ז violence, occurs four times. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard 2 Sam. 22 49 against being made conformable to the parallel passage in the duplicate Ps. 18 49 where it is רצ"ז, as well as to protect Ps. 140 2 against being made conformable to verse 12 where the combinations אש רצ"ז and אש רצ"ז are promiscuously used. The variations, as is not infrequently the case, are due to an abbreviation. Originally the text was simply רצ"ז, which one School of textual redactors resolved into רצ"ז and the other into רצ"ז.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, in which there are two Lists: (I) on Ps. 140 2, which I have printed, and (II) on Prov. 4 17.

רצ"ח as the clay, occurs twice. With the prefix Caph this noun occurs altogether five times. In three instances the Caph is with Sheva (רצ"ח Isa. 10 6; 29 16; Job 38 14) and in two only is it with Pathach. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. By fixing the number at two, the design of this Massorah is to mitigate against the reading רצ"ח with Caph in Jerem. 18 4, which is exhibited in some MSS. and by all the early editions except two. The best Standard Codices, however, read it רצ"ח with Beth in accordance with this Massorah, viz. St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; the Complutensian and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517. Jacob b. Chayim's text is in conflict with this Rubric, which I have found in his Massorah only, on Job 10 9. The form in which I have printed it in Vol. III, p. 5, letter ט, § 294*, in accordance with the reading of the early editions, must be corrected. The first two lines which are given as two separate passages exhibit one passage, viz. Jerem. 18 6, and verse 4 is to be cancelled.

רצ"ה for, or into clay, or mire, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 34a, on Gen. 11 3, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 354a, on Job 30 19; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 8a, on Gen. 11 3; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (V) the same on Job 30 19.

רצ"ו = § 296.

רצ"ו heaps, or homers, occurs three times, twice defective and once plene. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 61b, on Exod. 8 10, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 75b; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35; (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Numb. 11 32.

רצ"ז = § 297.

רצ"ז five, is in twenty-eight instances with Kametz. That is, in the absolute, in contradistinction to the forty instances in which it is רצ"ז with Chateph-Pathach being the construct.

This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Exod. 27 1, affords another striking illustration of how later Nakdanim furnished Lists with wrong headings. As this cardinal noun occurs altogether fifty-four times and as this List catalogues twenty-eight instances only, it is evident that it is simply an incipient register, exhibiting the first attempt to collect the instances in which it is in the absolute so as to distinguish them from the construct. The original compiler who succeeded to collect this number only, left it to his colleagues and successors to complete the catalogue; which, however, was left in this incomplete state. A later Nakdan who mistook it for complete, furnished it with the heading fixing the number at twenty-eight in accordance with the instances recorded in the provisional catalogue.

The attempt on the part of Heidenheim to justify this heading on the theory that it refers to this noun without and with the prefix (רצ"ז) in the Pentateuch only, and that the qualifying adjunct נטוריה or נטוריה is omitted (comp. Frensdorff, Massoretisches Wörterbuch, p. 67), is inadmissible for the following reasons: (1) רצ"ז alone without the prefix Vav occurs twenty times in the Pentateuch, whereas the List records ten only even if we take רצ"ז Gen. 5 31 where רצ"ז does not occur, as a clerical error for רצ"ז (Gen. 5 11) and it omits eleven (Gen. 5 6, 15, 21; 11 12; 43 34; 45 11; Exod. 38 1; Levit. 27 5, 6; Numb. 8 24; 31 37). Moreover (2) of רצ"ז with the prefix Vav which occurs six times in the Pentateuch (Gen. 25 7; 45 22; Exod. 26 8; 27 1; 36 10; 38 1) not a single instance is given in the List, thus showing conclusively that it is outside the scope of this Massorah. And (3) the greater part of the List is occupied with the instances outside the Pentateuch, viz. those which occur in the Prophets and Hagiographa of which it records no fewer than eighteen and omits the following sixteen only: Josh. 14 10; 2 Sam. 4 4; 2 Kings 8 16; 13 19; Isa. 19 18; Ezek. 40 7, 21, 25, 30; 41 11; 45 3 Kethiv; 1 Chron. 3 20; 4 32; 11 23; 2 Chron. 3 15; 6 13.

רצ"ט = § 299.

רצ"ט and five hundred, occurs three times at the end of the verse in this section. That is, in the case of these three tribes, viz. Reuben, Ephraim and Asher, the verses which record their numbers respectively end with and five hundred in the Section which comprises Numb. 1 21—48, in contradistinction to the case of the four tribes, viz. Issachar, Zebulun, Benjamin and Naphtali where the verses which record their number respectively end with and four hundred in this Section (Numb. 1 29, 31, 37, 43).

And in all the other Scriptures it is likewise so. In the other parts of the Bible, where this phrase ends the verse eleven times (Numb. 2 11, 19, 28; 3 22; 26 18, 22, 27; 31 36, 43, 45; Neh. 7 69), no such safeguarding is needed. Hence the simple mention of the fact without specifying the number is sufficient. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 6710—11, Vol. I, fol. 83b, on Numb. 1 21.

וּבְרֵאשִׁית יוֹם וּבְרֵאשִׁית עֶשְׂרִים and in the fifteenth day, occurs three times in the beginning of a verse in the Pentateuch. This phrase occurs altogether eleven times. In eight instances it is without the prefix Vav and is in the middle of the verse (Exod. 16 1; Levit. 23 34, 39; Numb. 33 8; 1 Kings 12 32, 33; Ezek. 32 17; 45 26) and in three only is it with this prefix and begins the verse. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 173b, on Levit. 23 6, which I have printed; (II) Harley 6710—11, Vol. I, fol. 105a, on Numb. 29 12; (III) the printed Massorah on Levit. 23 6, and (IV) the same on Numb. 29 12. As there are altogether three instances with the prefix Vav and moreover as they are restricted to the Pentateuch, the heading ought more properly to be גַּי וְיִשְׂרָאֵל וְיִשְׂרָאֵל. The addition at the end of the List which I have printed, viz. וְכִלְמָהּ מִכִּי יִרְבֵּי and wherever it occurs in the middle of the verse it is likewise so, refers to this phrase apart from the prefix Vav, which as we have seen, occurs eight times in the middle of the verse.

הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים וְיִמְאִתִּים two hundred and fifty, occurs six times. That is, in the Pentateuch. Apart from this division of the Bible it occurs five times (Ezek. 48 17, 17, 17, 17; 2 Chron. 8 10).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 110b, on Numb. 16 17, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 97b, on Numb. 26 10, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 166. As the List which I have printed includes the solitary instance in which this combination is with the prefix He (Numb. 16 35), the heading ought more properly to be הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים וְיִמְאִתִּים וְיִמְאִתִּים. List II, which excludes this instance because of the prefix, is correctly headed הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים וְיִמְאִתִּים. The printed Massorah (List III) heads this Rubric הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים וְיִמְאִתִּים and not only omits Numb. 16 35, which is also omitted in List II, but Numb. 26 10 which is manifestly due to a clerical error and is the cause of the alteration in the heading הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים וְיִמְאִתִּים into יִמְאִתִּים.

הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים the fifty, occurs eight times. That is, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this cardinal noun plural is without the prefix He. By fixing the number at eight, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard 1 Kings 1 10 against being made conformable to verse 13 of the same chapter where the same phrase occurs without the prefix He, viz. הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים which is the reason why three of the Lists are on this passage.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 6710—11, Vol. I, fol. 80a, on Levit. 25 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 238b, on 2 Kings 1 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 97b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 79a, on Levit. 25 10; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 177b, on the same passage; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35, on 2 Kings 1 10, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 16 35.

ש"ג = § 303.

וּבְרֵאשִׁית and fifty, ends a verse four times, and they are in the Pentateuch. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2449, fol. 99b, on Numb. 1 25. It is not correct, since it also ends the verse in Ezra 8 3. It may be that originally the heading of the Rubric was simply וּבְרֵאשִׁית and that a later Nakdan added וְיִמְאִתִּים because the six instances recorded are all in the Pentateuch.

ש"ד = § 304.

הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים his fifty, occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 98a, on 2 Kings 1 12. The first of the three instances (2 Kings 1 9) is הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים in the received text with the prefix Vav. As this Massorah is from the very accurate Standard Codex, it is probable that it emanates from a School of textual redactors which read it here הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים as in verse 10 instead of הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים.

הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים armed, in battle-array, occurs four times, without and with the prefaces. That is, with Shurek under the Mem, being the participle passive plural, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which it is הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים fifty, with Chirek under the Mem the noun cardinal plural.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 6710—11, Vol. I, fol. 139a, on Josh. 4 12, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 55a, on Exod. 13 18; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 1b, on Josh. 1 14; (IV) the same MS., fol. 3a, on Josh. 4 12; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 86b, on Exod. 13 18; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Josh. 1 14. List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, indicates its design by the addition at the end שְׂמַרְתָּ הַמִּשְׁפָּחִים.

ש"ו = § 306.

וְהִנֵּה he encamped, occurs twice. With Kametz under the Nun, this trilateral occurs altogether eleven times. In nine instances it is with Pathach under the Cheth being the proper name Hannah the mother of Samuel (comp. הִנֵּה 1 Sam. 1 2, 5, 8, 9, 15, 19, 20; 2 1, 21) and in two only is it the preterite third person singular. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 53b, on 1 Sam. 26 6.

ש"ז = § 307.

וְהִנֵּה and I will encamp, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 6710—11, Vol. II, fol. 124b, on Zech. 9 8.

ש"ח = § 308.

וְהִנֵּה is twice plene in this form. That is, this infinitive which occurs twice only, and which is in one instance from הִנֵּה to encamp (Judg. 19 9) and in one from הִנֵּה to be merciful (Ps. 77 10), is in both instances with Vav plene.

It will be seen that as in § 306 the Massorah has no regard to the fact that one form is without the Dagesh and that in the other it is with the Dagesh, or that in one instance this quadrilateral is with Chateph-Pathach under the Cheth and that in the other it is with Pathach. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ט, § 169.

וְהִנֵּה encamp ye, or abide ye, occurs twice. This trilateral occurs altogether five times. In three instances it is with Kametz under the Cheth, being the preterite third person plural (comp. הִנֵּה Numb. 2 34; 1 Sam. 4 1; 13 16) and in two it is with Chateph-Pathach, that is, the imperative plural masculine. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 6710—11, Vol. II, fol. 67b, on Jerem. 50 29, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 92a, on Numb. 31 19, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

וְהִנֵּה and he encamped, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 6710—11, Vol. I fol. 22b, on Gen. 33 18, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 167.

This Rubric again affords a striking illustration of the ignorant manner in which later Nakdanim treated the Massorah. This apocopated future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, occurs ten times and not four and the following six instances are omitted: Josh. 10 31; Judg. 9 50; 1 Sam. 11 1; 2 Sam. 17 26; 2 Kings 25 1; 2 Chron. 32 1. It is, therefore, evident that it simply exhibits the first attempt to collect these instances. As is often the case, the original compiler began with the passages in the Pentateuch only, and left the completion from the Prophets and the Hagiographa to his colleagues and successors. This is attested by List II, which is headed וְהִנֵּה and duly records the three instances only which occur in the Pentateuch. It is, therefore, evident that List I also recorded the three instances only which are in this division of the Bible. From the fact that a fourth instance follows which is outside this division, it is clear that other Massorites completed the List. The space, however, allotted to the Massorah in Bible MSS. being exhausted made the Scribe curtail the catalogue, which is often the case. This is evident from the regular sequence of the absent passages. An ignorant Nakdan who mistook the List for complete, finding that it recorded four instances, not only altered the heading into ד to correspond with the number in the fragment, but furnished it with a mnemonic sign answering to these four passages. As List II records the three instances only which occur in the Pentateuch its heading ought properly to be ג, but this qualifying adjunct is frequently omitted.

החלים and those that encamped. With the prefix He and without and with Vav conjunctive, this participle masculine plural, occurs altogether nine times. As it is spelt in three different ways, the design of this Massorah is to indicate and safeguard the respective variations. In one instance החלים is with Vav plene, but with Yod defective (Numb. 2 12). In one it is entirely plene, that is, both with Vav and Yod (Nah. 3 17), whilst all the other seven instances are without the Vav, but with the Yod (Numb. 2 3, 5, 27; 3 38; 10 5, 6; 1 Kings 16 16). As the normal spelling is without Vav and with Yod, the simple mention of the fact without specifying the passages suffices.

Of this form of the Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 213b, on Nah. 3 17, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 100b, on Numb. 2 12, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter is incorrect. It heads it ד and gives Numb. 2 12 and Nah. 3 17 as the two instances in which it is with Vav but without Yod, whereas the Nahum instance is entirely plene.

החלים is always without Vav but with Yod except once where it is with the Vav and without the Yod [Numb. 2 12] and once it is entirely plene [Nah. 3 17].

This form of the Rubric, which is the oldest and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is given in Orient. 4445, fol. 117a, on Numb. 2 12.

ש"ב = § 312.

החלים encamping, occurs twice and is defective. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 182b, on Ps. 34 8, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 18 5, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ד, § 168.

ש"ג = § 313.

החלים gracious and merciful, occurs eight times. That is, in contradistinction to the three instances in which these two expressions are reversed in this combination and which are recorded in letter ד, § 302. (Vide infra, Vol. II, p. 575.)

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Joel 2 13, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Ps. 111 4.

ש"ד = § 314.

החלים and their spears, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this plural noun with the suffix third person plural masculine, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt in identically the same parallel passages, being with the Vav in Isa. 2 4 and without it in Micah 4 3, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. Though this variation is supported by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251, yet it simply exhibits the reading of one School of Massorites. Another School of almost equal importance read it defective in Isa. 2 4, as is attested by the following Standard Codices: Orient. 2201 which is one of the oldest dated MSS. of the whole Bible; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,451; Orient. 4227 and several of the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 119b, on Isa. 2 4.

ש"ה = § 315.

החלים and they dedicated, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists:

(I) Add. 15,250, fol. 187a, on 1 Kings 8 63, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on 2 Chron. 7 5.

ש"ו = § 316.

החלים is three times defective in this form. That is, the form with Chateph-Pathach under the Cheth is in three instances with Cholem on the Nun, being without the Vav. In the first instance it is the proper name Enoch (חֵנוֹךְ), which occurs altogether sixteen times without and with the prefixes Vav and Lamed and which is plene in all the other fifteen instances (Gen. 4 17, 17, 18; 5 18, 19, 21, 22, 23, 24; 46 9; Exod. 6 14; Numb. 26 5; 1 Chron. 1 3, 38; 5 3). In the second instance it is the patronymic the Henochite which occurs this once only and is without the Vav, whilst in the third instance it is חֵנוֹךְ the imperative singular masculine and denotes train thou which also occurs once only.

Of this popular Massorah I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 102b, on Numb. 26 5, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 344b, on Prov. 22 6; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 314a, on 1 Chron. 1 33; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 16a, on Gen. 25 4; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Prov. 22 6. The heading of List III חֵנוֹךְ indicates the import of this Massorah.

החלים to be gracious. Forms of this root which respectively occur once only. These nine expressions exhibit the first attempt to collect the unique forms of this root. Its incipient nature will be apparent when it is stated that there are altogether about forty such unique forms. This fragmentary List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 281b, on Dan. 6 12.

ש"ח = § 318.

החלים and I will be gracious, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading חֵנוֹךְ plene in Job 19 17, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 328a, on Job 19 17, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 51a, on Exod. 33 19; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 60b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. List II heads this Rubric חֵנוֹךְ.

החלים be gracious unto me, quicken thou me. From Ps. 1 to 118 it is be thou gracious unto me and from Ps. 119 to 150 it is quicken thou me, except in three instances where it is be thou gracious unto me.

To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that these two homonymous imperatives occur altogether twenty-seven times in the Psalter and that one prevails in one part and the other in the other part. From Ps. 1 to 118 where the imperative occurs fifteen times, ten times without the prefix Vav and five times with it, it is invariably חֵנוֹךְ (4 2; 6 3; 31 10; 41 5, 11; 51 3; 56 2; 57 2, 2; 86 3; חֵנוֹךְ 22 18; 26 11; 27 7; 30 11; 86 16). As there is no exception to this rule, the simple statement of the fact without specifying the number suffices. From Ps. 119 to 150, however, the case is different. Here, where this imperative occurs altogether twelve times, חֵנוֹךְ is the rule. It occurs in nine instances (119 23, 37, 40, 88, 107, 149, 154, 156, 159) and חֵנוֹךְ without and with the prefix Vav three times only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the exception.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 215a, on Ps. 119 182, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 314b, on Ps. 119 29, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 119 58.

החלים be gracious unto me O God, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. This imperative is eight times combined with the Divine name. In five instances it is the Tetragrammaton (יהוה) which either follows (Ps. 6 3; 31 10; 86 3) or precedes חֵנוֹךְ (Ps. 41 5, 11) and in three only is the combination with אֱלֹהִים. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 188b, on Ps. 51 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 190a, on Ps. 57 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 297b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 329a, also on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Ps. 51 3.

הַיְיָ be gracious unto us, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, the imperative singular with the suffix first person plural, in contradistinction to the twelve instances in which it is הַיְיָ with the suffix first person singular.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 15a, on Isa. 33 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 215b, on Ps. 123 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 132a, on Isa. 33 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 316b, on Ps. 123 3, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

שכיב = § 322.

הַיְיָ he will be gracious unto thee, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 29b, on Gen. 43 29, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 28b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 225b, on Isa. 30 19, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 43 29. List II heads this Rubric ב. קצב. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Yod which respectively occur twice. (Vide infra, letter י, § 11.)

שכיב = § 323.

הַיְיָ favour shall be shown, occurs twice in the Scriptures and is defective. That is, the Hophal future third person singular masculine, in contradistinction to the only other instance in which this trilateral occurs where it is הַיְיָ the Kal future third person singular masculine (Deut. 28 50).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 255a, on Prov. 21 10, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 344a, on the same passage.

שכיב = § 324.

הַיְיָ Hananjah, occurs three times. Without and with the prefixes this proper name occurs altogether twenty-nine times. In twenty-six instances it is the shorter form הַיְיָ Hananjah (Jerem. 28 1, 5, 10, 11, 12, 18, 15, 17; 37 13; Dan. 1 6, 7, 11, 19; 2 17; Ezra 10 28; Neh. 3 8, 30; 7 2; 10 24; 12 12, 41; 1 Chron. 3 19, 21; 8 24; 25 4), and in three instances only, is it the longer form הַיְיָ Hananjah. Hence the Massorah safeguards the now exceptional spelling which exhibits the original orthography. For the cause of this duplicate form see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, p. 386 &c.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 254a, on 1 Chron. 25 23, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 918, on Jerem. 36 12; (III) Vienna Codex No. 86, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 177. In the oldest form of this Massorah (List II) הַיְיָ has dropped out of the text and the heading is simply יַיָּד which denotes that יַיָּד the first instance (Jerem. 36 17) begins a verse.

וְהִתְחַלְּתָּ and she defiled, occurs twice. The Kal future third person singular feminine of חָטְא occurs altogether four times. In two instances it is with Vav conversive, but in two in which it is without this Vav, one is with the normal Pathach under the Nun (Jerem. 3 1) whilst the other is with Kametz, which is due to the distinctive accent Zakeph-Katon. (Mijah 4 4). Hence the Massorah, which records the two instances with Vav conversive, safeguards in the addition at the end of the Rubric, the variation in the graphic signs of the two instances in which it is without the prefix Vav.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ט, § 178.

וְהִתְחַלְּתָּ and mercy, occurs five times. That is, with Kametz under the Vav, in contradistinction to the four instances in which it is with Sheva (Zech. 7 9; Ps. 103 17; Prov. 14 22, 34). It will be seen that the Massorah, contrary to its usual method, safeguards here the majority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 289a, on Ps. 23 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 359b, on Esther 2 17; (III) the same MS., fol. 379b, on Neh. 1 5; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 350b, on

Ps. 23 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 421b, on Neh. 1 5; (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 23 6, and (VII) the same on Prov. 21 21.

Lists I, IV—VII give the mnemonic sign with the catalogue. Without the catalogue, the sign alone is given Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 344a, on Prov. 21 21 and also three times in the printed Massorah, viz. on Job 10 12; Esther 2 17; Neh. 1 5.

שכיב = § 327.

תְּחַנְּנֵנִי thy mercy, or kindness, occurs twice. That is, with Tzere under the Daleth and Sheva in the Caph, being with the suffix second person singular feminine, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this quadriliteral is תְּחַנְּנֵנִי or תְּחַנְּנֵנִי with the suffix second person singular masculine.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Cambridge Add. 1147, on Gen. 20 13, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

וְחַסְדֵי הַיְיָ his mercies, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ט, § 185. It affords a striking illustration of how Jacob b. Chayim's great work was handled by successive editors. In the editio princeps (Venice 1524—25) this Rubric is headed וְחַסְדֵי הַיְיָ which is perfectly correct; since this is in accordance with the Eastern recension which has וְחַסְדֵי as the textual reading or Kethiv or וְחַסְדֵי as the official reading or Keri in Lament. § 32. This Eastern recension is also exhibited in Orient. 2201 first hand; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,251 and Add. 21,160 second hand. The other defective, as the Massorah calls it, is in Ps. 106 45, where the textual reading or Kethiv is וְחַסְדֵי and the official reading or Keri is וְחַסְדֵי. This is attested by Orient. 2201 second hand; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 15,250; Add. 15,261 second hand; Add. 15,451 second hand and Add. 21,161, also second hand. As the design of this Massorah is simply to record these two defectives, the Isiah instance which is וְחַסְדֵי plene (Isa. 63 7) is outside its scope and is, therefore, naturally excluded from this Rubric.

In the second edition of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible, however, from which I have printed, and in the following editions, the heading of this Rubric has been altered from וְחַסְדֵי into וְחַסְדֵי which is incorrect: (1) according to the official reading or Keri, which our recension follows, occurs three times and not twice, as is evident from Isa. 63 7. And (2) the instance in Ps. 106 45, which is here described as plene, is one of the two וְחַסְדֵי defectives in the Kethiv according to the above-specified Standard Codices. According to our or Palestinian recension of the text, the heading ought to be וְחַסְדֵי and the catchwords וְחַסְדֵי וְחַסְדֵי Isa. 63 7 should be the first instance.

וְחַסְדֵי to flee to, to trust, is eight times Raphe in this form. That is, a verb of the root or form וְחַסְדֵי and a noun derived from it are in eight instances with Chateph-Pathach (וְחַסְדֵי) instead of Sheva (וְחַסְדֵי). These eight instances respectively consist of (1) the noun וְחַסְדֵי which occurs altogether eight times and is וְחַסְדֵי with simple Sheva in five instances (Isa. 25 4; Ps. 61 4; 104 18; Prov. 14 26; Job 24 8); of (2) the same noun with the suffix first person singular which also occurs eight times and is וְחַסְדֵי with simple Sheva in six instances according to this Massorah (Ps. 62 8; 73 28; 91 2, 9; 94 22; 142 6), and of (3) the Kal infinitive with the prefix Lamed which occurs altogether three times and is וְחַסְדֵי with Chateph-Pathach in all the three instances, whereas in the only other instance where it is with the prefix Vav it is וְחַסְדֵי with the simple Sheva (Isa. 30 2).

Of this form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 108b, on Joel 4 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 205a, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 15,251 also on the same passage. Though all the three Lists emphatically state in their respective headings that there are eight such instances only and record eight, they vary in making up this number. Lists I and III give identically the same passages though in different sequence. List II, however, omits וְחַסְדֵי Ps. 46 2 and makes up the eight by giving וְחַסְדֵי Ps. 73 28, which is omitted in Lists I and III. But neither List II nor III mentions the instance outside this Massorah which the following recension gives, viz. Isa. 14 32.

וְחַסְדֵי is eight times with Chateph-Pathach in this form. This recension of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 314a, on Ps. 118 8. The first part, which records the eight instances, is identical with List II of the preceding Rubric which is from the same MS. It omits Ps. 46 2 and gives Ps. 73 28, thus making up the eight passages. The new part consists of the additions at the end in which we are told (1) that the future first person singular of this verb is with Chateph-Segol (תִּקְוֶה) instead of Sheva except in one instance. As this form of the future occurs altogether four times and is תִּקְוֶה in one instance only (Ps. 57 2), it follows that it is תִּקְוֶה in 2 Sam. 22 3; Ps. 18 3; 61 5.

And there is one instance apart from this Massorah. That is, outside the single exception recorded in this Massorah there is another instance where the future third person plural is תִּקְוֶה with Sheva instead of תִּקְוֶה with Chateph-Segol (Isa. 14 32). This important addition shows beyond doubt that the Massorah does not restrict the expression תִּקְוֶה to the first person future alone, but denotes by it the future generally, including תִּקְוֶה (Ps. 34 9) and תִּקְוֶה (Ps. 91 4).

שָׁכַח is nine times with Chateph-Pathach in this form. Of this recension, which emphatically states in the heading that there are nine such instances and duly records this number, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Cambridge Add. 465 on Jerem. 17 17, which I have printed and which alone has the mnemonic sign; (II) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 142, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 62 9. All the three Lists coincide in recording identically the same nine instances. It is remarkable that Lists I and III which record שָׁכַח Ps. 57 2 as one of the nine with Chateph-Segol, give it again in the addition as the solitary exception where it is with Sheva. List II avoids this contradiction by not having this addition. There can, therefore, be no doubt that either this part of the Massorah or the ninth instance has been added by an ignorant Scribe who mistook its import. The alternative Massorah which Jacob b. Chayim gives at the end of List III, viz. that שָׁכַח occurs three times, twice with Dagesh and once Raphe (Joel 4 16; Ps. 46 2; 62 9), is still more puzzling, since this noun occurs altogether eight times, five times with Dagesh and three times Raphe. (Vide supra, § 329a.)

On a careful collation of the three Recensions it will be seen that (1) there are actually nine such instances consisting of שָׁכַח three times; שָׁכַח three times and שָׁכַח three times; that (2) Recensions I and III omit one שָׁכַח (Ps. 73 28) which is duly given in Recension II; that (3) Recension II omits one שָׁכַח (Ps. 46 2) which is duly recorded in Recensions I and III, and that (4) Recension III omits one שָׁכַח (Ps. 73 28) which, as we have seen, is also omitted in Recension I but given in Recension II.

It will be seen that Recensions I and III record the instances in accordance with the three groups, viz. שָׁכַח, שָׁכַח and שָׁכַח, whilst Recension II gives the passages according to the order of the books. The three groups are also recorded in separate Massorahs. (Vide infra, letter ט, § 300, and letter ז, § 289 and § 290.) For the use of Raphe to denote Chateph-Pathach or Chateph-Segol, and Dagesh to denote Sheva see letter א, § 1020, and my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible p. 122 &c.

1 מסורה אחרת מסתמך ב' ב' דגש' וא' דגש' וימי' חיים מסתמך למה, אלהים לנו מסתמך, ואלהים מסתמך לנו אלה.

שָׁלַח = § 330.

שָׁלַח to trust, occurs three times in the Scriptures. This Rubric forms part of the nine instances from the root שָׁלַח which are with the Chateph-Pathach under the Cheth, recorded in the preceding Massorah.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 211b, on Ps. 118 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 259a, on Ruth 2 12; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 314a, on Ps. 118 8; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 369b, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VI) the same on Ruth 2 12.

שָׁלַח = § 331.

שָׁלַח I will trust, is so written throughout the Psalms except once. As this future first person singular which occurs three times in the Psalter, is in two instances תִּשְׁלַח with Chateph-Segol (Ps. 18 2; 61 5) and in one instance only תִּשְׁלַח with Sheva, the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception.

This Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ps. 57 2.

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the variation in the orthography of this quadriliteral in the Psalter only, and hence 2 Sam. 22 3 where it also occurs is not noticed. This Rubric forms part of the Massorah recorded above in § 329.

שָׁלַח = § 332.

שָׁלַח is twice defective. That is, in two instances where the textual reading or Kethiv is שָׁלַח his saint, in the singular, the official reading or Keri substitutes for it שָׁלַח his saints, the plural. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ט, § 186.

שָׁלַח = § 333.

שָׁלַח a stork, occurs three times. In the other three instances where it occurs it is twice שָׁלַח with the prefix He (Levit. 11 19; Zech. 5 9) and once שָׁלַח with the prefixes He and Vav (Deut. 14 18). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ט, § 187.

שָׁלַח = § 334.

שָׁלַח thou shalt or she shall lack, occurs three times, twice with Kametz and once with Pathach. As this quadriliteral which is in one case the future second person masculine (Deut. 8 9) and in the other two future third person singular feminine (1 Kings 17 14; Prov. 13 25), is differently pointed, the Kametz being due to the pausal Athnach and Soph-Pasuk, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard this variation.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 117a, on Deut. 8 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 282b, on 1 Kings 17 14; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 248b, on Prov. 13 25; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 92a, on 1 Kings 17 14; (V) the same MS., fol. 341a, on Prov. 13 25; (VI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 8 9, and (VII) the same on Prov. 13 25. As these three instances occur respectively in one of the three divisions of the Bible, some Lists add at the end בְּכִי אֵי בְּכִי אֵי בְּכִי אֵי.

שָׁלַח wanting, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the ten instances in which it is שָׁלַח the construct.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 232b, on 1 Kings 17 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 86b, on 1 Kings 11 22; (III) the same MS., fol. 92a, on 1 Kings 17 16; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 189a, on 1 Kings 11 22, and (V) the printed Massorah on Eccl. 6 2.

חֲסוּרִים. — The following words are defective in this book. That is, in Job. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 465 on Job 37 15. It will be seen that שָׁלַח Job 6 26 is here given as defective. This is the spelling in Orient. 2201 first hand; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251, which has a Massorah against it לִי תִשָּׁא; and Add. 21,160. As it is שָׁלַח plene, in Orient. 2201 second hand; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,250 and Orient. 4227 it is evident that the different Schools of textual redactors spelt it differently and that the apparently conflicting Massorahs emanate from these different Schools. The fact that the defectives in the book of Job are here recorded shows beyond a doubt that similar Lists were compiled of this phenomenon in other books. This is plainly indicated in the heading of the following Rubric. These Lists, with the exception of the one referring to the Pentateuch, I have as yet not been able to find.

שָׁלַח = § 337.

חֲסוּרִים. — The following are the defectives and plenes which are found in the books of the Agadah where they are explained. Most of these are in the Massorah. I have arranged without the explanation, those of the Pentateuch alone so that they may easily be found without any trouble.

In this heading the compiler of this Rubric indicates the sources whence he derived his materials for this List, which I have printed from Add. 27,200—27,201, § 518, Vol. II, fol. 198b—199a.

Since the publication of Vol. I of my edition of the Massorah in 1880 the Machsor itself has been edited by S. Hurwitz, Berlin 1889, where this List occurs on page 656 &c. The Midrash from which the compiler of this Rubric extracted his materials, is most probably the one published by the erudite Dr. Berliner in Pletath Soferim pp. 36-45, Breslau 1872.

The spelling here recorded is simply that of the predominant School of textual redactors. Other Massoretic Schools exhibit different readings. This is not only attested by the passages which I have marked with asterisks in this Rubric but by the extensive Lists of variations recorded from the Standard Codices, which I have printed below § 618-673 and in Volume III, p. 106-185.

חֹסֶר וּמְלֵא. — Eight words respectively occur twice in Exodus, defective in the first instance and plene in the second. For this Rubric see letter z, § 400, Vol. II, p. 214.

שִׁלִּי = § 339.

יָכֹוּר they covered, occurs three times. The design of this Massorah is twofold. In the first place it is to safeguard the two expressions יָכֹוּר the preterite third person plural and יָכֹוּר the participle passive which are used in the two clauses of the same verse (2 Sam. 15 30) against being made uniform; and in the second place to militate against the reading יָכֹוּר with the prefix Yav in Jerem. 14 4, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 156a, on Jerem. 14 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,260, fol. 387a, on Esther 7 8, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter z, § 192.

שִׁי = § 340.

יָכֹוּר he covered, or overlaid, occurs five times in this form. That is, the Piel form without and with prefixes and suffixes. As the two Piel forms יָכֹוּר and יָכֹוּר are promiscuously used not only in practically the same sense but in identically the same three forms in the same description (comp. יָכֹוּר 2 Chron. 4 9; יָכֹוּר § 4; יָכֹוּר § 6), the Massorah safeguards them against being interchanged.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 258b, on 2 Chron. 3 9, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,260, fol. 419a, on 2 Chron. 3 5.

שִׁי = § 341.

יָכֹוּר in haste, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 64a, on Exod. 12 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 141b, on Isa. 52 12; (III) Add. 15,260, fol. 105b, on Deut. 16 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 234b, on Isa. 52 12; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 234b, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 12 11, and (VII) the same on Isa. 52 12. Lists II, III, V and VI, add וּמְלֵא and plene after z in the heading.

יָכֹוּר he desired, or delighting, occurs five times . . . and throughout Esther it is likewise so. That is, the preterite third person masculine, or adjective masculine, in contradistinction to the fifteen instances in which this trilateral is יָכֹוּר a noun denoting delight, pleasure.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 108b, on Numb. 14 8, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 107b, on the same passage. Though both Lists coincide in stating that there are five such instances apart from Esther and record identically the same five passages, there can hardly be any doubt that in its present form this Rubric is simply a fragment, since יָכֹוּר occurs altogether twenty-five times outside Esther and the following twenty passages are omitted; Gen. 34 19; Judg. 13 23; 1 Sam. 2 26; 18 22; 19 1; 2 Sam. 20 11; 22 20; 24 3; 1 Kings 9 1; 10 9; 21 6; Isa. 42 21; 62 4; Ps. 18 20; 22 9; 109 17; 112 1; 115 3; 135 6; 2 Chron. 9 8. The original List manifestly recorded the complete number, as is attested by the addition at the end וּמְלֵא אֶת־הַמִּסְפָּר (Esther 2 14; 6 6; 7 9, 9, 11). As is not infrequently the case owing to the marginal space allotted to the Massorah being exhausted, the Scribe was obliged to curtail the List. A later Nakdan, however, who mistook the fragment as exhibiting all the passages, altered the heading יָכֹוּר into יָכֹוּר, dropping the z in accordance with the number recorded in this fragment.

יָכֹוּר who is willing, or desiring, occurs three times. Apart from Ezek. 18 23, where it is יָכֹוּר the infinitive with the prefix He, this quadrilateral occurs six times. As it is in three instances יָכֹוּר an adjective with the prefix He and in three יָכֹוּר a noun with the same prefix, the design of the Massorah is to indicate the passages in which they respectively occur.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 291b, on Ps. 34 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 292a, on Ps. 35 27; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 352b, on Ps. 34 13, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

יָכֹוּר the pleasure, or desire, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the three instances in which this quadrilateral is יָכֹוּר an adjective, recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 188b, on 1 Sam. 15 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 231b, on Job 22 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 45a, on 1 Sam. 15 22; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (V) the same on Job 22 8.

יָכֹוּר thy desires, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 27b, on Isa. 58 13.

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these two instances in which this noun with the suffix second person singular masculine is in the plural, against the other two instances in which it is יָכֹוּר the singular (1 Kings 5 22; 58 13b). The protection of these two forms was deemed especially necessary since they are used in the two clauses of the same verse (comp. Isa. 58 13a and b). The reading of יָכֹוּר in Isa. 58 13a, is exhibited in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201 first hand; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,451; Orient. 4227; the third edition of the Bible, Brescia 1494; the Complutensian and the Pesaro edition of the Latter Prophets, 1515.

Another School of textual redactors, however, read it יָכֹוּר without the Yod in Isa. 58 13a. This is the reading in Orient. 2201 second hand; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,260; Add. 15,251; the editio princeps of the Prophets, Soncino 1485-86; the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the second edition, Naples 1491-93; the Lisbon edition of Isaiah 1492; the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1624-25, for which reason I have adopted it in my edition of the Bible.

יָכֹוּר occurs twice, once plene and once defective . . . and in two different senses. That is, in Deut. 23 14 it is with He at the end and denotes and thou shalt dig; whilst in Job 11 18 it is without the He and signifies and thou art ashamed or and thou shalt search. The variation in its orthography, however, is that of the predominant School of textual redactors, as will be seen from the notes on Deut. 23 14 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 127b, on Deut. 23 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 1879, fol. 353a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter z, § 197.

יָכֹוּר to dig, to search out, occurs three times and is defective. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 137b, on Josh. 2 2, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 2a; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 146a, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. As it occurs three times altogether and is defective in all the three instances, Lists II and IV head this Rubric more properly יָכֹוּר.

It will be seen that the Massorah regards יָכֹוּר in Isa. 2 20 as a separate word i. e. יָכֹוּר the construct of יָכֹוּר a digger, a mole or raf, with the prefix Lamed. As three of Kennicott's MSS. read it one word, most textual critics read it now one word.

שחח and he searched, is twice with the accent Zakeph-Gadol. This Piel future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, which occurs altogether three times, is in the third instance with Mercha (Ps. 77 7). Hence the Massorah indicates the variation in the accents. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 44 12.

שחח - § 349.

שחח free, occurs five times. Normally שחח, the adjective singular without and with the prefix Lamed, is combined with the verb am or shu to denote to go free or to set free (comp. Exod. 21 2, 5, 26, 27; Deut. 15 12, 18, 18; Jerem. 34 14; Job 39 6). As it is in these five instances only that the plural שחח follows the verb shu, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

This Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I have found in the St Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 only, on Jerem. 34 9.

שחח digged out, occurs twice plene. That is, the participle passive plural, in contradistinction to the participle active plural which occurs three times and is defective (1 Chron. 22 2, 15; 2 Chron. 24 12).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 116a, on Deut. 6 11, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 426a on Neh. 9 25. As it occurs twice only and is plural in both instances, the heading ought more properly to be ב. ובלשון ג.

שחח - § 351.

שחח and he divided, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 160b, on Judg. 7 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 23b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 142b, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 81b, on Gen. 33 1; (V) Orient. 2849, fol. 46b, on Gen. 32 8; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח, § 200.

שחח - § 352.

שחח and they were divided, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 198b, on 2 Kings 2 8, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage. As the two instances not only occur in the same book, but are restricted to the same section, the heading ought more properly to be ב. והערך ג.

שחח - § 353.

שחח in the middle of the night, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets, and once in the Hagiographa. In the only other instance where this combination occurs it is שחח (Exod. 11 4).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 167a, on Judg. 16 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 259b, on Ruth 3 8; (III) Orient. 4446, fol. 58b, on Exod. 12 29; (IV) Add. 15,260, fol. 89a, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 818b, on Ruth 3 8; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 12 29, and (VII) the same on Ruth 3 8. Lists I and VI alone have the mnemonic sign.

שחח half, or part thereof, occurs five times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ח, § 199.

שחח - § 355.

שחח in Hamsan, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this part of the proper name, which occurs twice only, is in each case spelt differently, in the first instance it is without the Vav and in the second with it, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 268b, on 2 Chron. 20 2, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 14 7, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח, § 203.

שחח - § 356.

שחח trumpets. A sign for its spelling. This plural noun without and with the prefix Beth, occurs altogether nineteen times. As it is spelt in three different ways, the Massorah here indicates the passages in which the variations respectively occur. In one instance it is שחח with the first Vav, but without the second (Numb. 10 2). In three instances it is שחח without both Vavs or entirely defective (Numb. 10 9, 10; Hosea 5 8), whilst in all the other fifteen instances it is שחח without the first Vav, but with the second (viz. Numb. 10 8; 2 Kings 11 14; 12 14; Ps. 98 6; Ezra 3 10; Neh. 12 35, 41; 1 Chron. 15 24; 16 6, 42; 2 Chron. 5 12, 13; 13 14; 23 13; 29 26). It will thus be seen that the spelling with the second Vav alone is the rule and without it the exception. Hence the Massorah safeguards the abnormal orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 91b, on Numb. 10 2, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 106b; (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 105b, and (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage. The first שחח Numb. 10 2 in List I is manifestly a clerical error for שחח without the second Vav, as is attested by Lists II, III and IV.

It is important to remark that these four Lists emanate from different Massoretic Schools and countries far apart. This is not only attested by the MSS. from which they are taken, but by the forms in which they are cast, as will be seen when the List which I have printed is compared with the one given in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List IV). Now all these Lists coincide in giving Hosea 5 8 as one of the three passages in which it is שחח entirely defective. It is, therefore, evident that the Codices on which this Massorah is based exhibited שחח the plural in Hosea 5 8 and not שחח the singular, which is the reading of the received text. The different reading may either be due to the similarity between the ח and the ח, or to an abbreviation. The text may originally have simply been שחח which one School of textual redactors resolved into שחח and the other into שחח.

התחנה ג' חסרים ד' וס' וכו' תבאן הדברים, תקנו שחח. עשה לך התחנה כתיב חס' ו' בתרא והשאר התחנה כתיב חס' ו' קדמא.

שחח my courts, occurs twice. That is, with Kametz under the Resh which is due to its pausal accent and which is in Isa. 1 12 Soph-Pa'ut and Zech. 3 7 Athnach. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the School of textual redactors who put the pause in Isa. 1 12 at שחח and connected שחח with שחח of the following verse i. e. Tread my courts no more, which is preserved in the Septuagint (πατευσθε εἰς ἀνάστη μου οὐ πατευσθε εἰς εἰς) in accordance with the rhythm, and which is now accepted by many textual critics as preferable. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 85 on Zech. 3 7.

שחח - § 358.

שחח and their villages. Throughout Joshua it is שחח with one exception where it is שחח and in all the rest of the Scriptures it is שחח.

Without and with the prefixes this plural noun occurs altogether thirty-three times with the suffix third person plural. Apart from Joshua, where it occurs six times, this suffix is uniformly masculine (שחח Gen. 25 16; Neh. 11 30; 1 Chron. 4 32, 33; 9 22, 25), whilst in Joshua, where it occurs twenty-seven times, it is always the feminine (שחח) with one exception only. Hence the Massorah safeguards this solitary exception in Joshua in the first part of this Rubric and simply states in the second part that outside Joshua the use of the masculine suffix is without any exception. On referring, however, to the notes on Josh. 13 28 in my edition of the Bible, it will be seen that some Massoretic Schools do not admit this solitary exception.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 10b, on Josh. 13 28, which I have printed, and (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 147a, on the same passage. The mnemonic sign at the end of the Rubric I cannot explain. The second part of this Rubric in List II is manifestly a clerical error for the Hezronite, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this patronymic, which occurs twice only and within a few verses of each other, is spelt differently in each passage, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard the variation in its orthography. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb 26 6. The heading ought properly to be the villages, or Hazeroth, occurs four times defective in this form. To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that it includes both the plural noun denoting villages and the proper name Hazeroth, a station of the Israelites after leaving Sinai. The former, which occurs five times without and with the prefixes, is in four instances plene (Ezek. 9 7; 42 6; 46 22; 1 Chron. 23 28) and once defective (Exod. 8 9); whilst the latter, which occurs six times without and with the prefixes, is in three instances plene (Numb. 11 36, 35; 12 16) and in three defective. Altogether, therefore, this expression which occurs eleven times, is in seven instances plene and in four only defective. Hence the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the exceptional passages.

§ 859. שניט

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 109b, on Numb. 33 17, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4446, fol. 49a, on Exod. 8 9; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 76b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 253b, on Deut. 1 1; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Exod. 8 9, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Numb. 33 17.

a statute and an ordinance, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. In the only other instance in which this combination occurs it is (1 Sam. 30 25). Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 154b, on Josh. 24 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 290b, on Ezra 7 10; (III) Orient. 4446, fol. 48a, on Exod. 15 25; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 18a, on Josh. 24 25; (V) the same MS., fol. 876a, on Ezra 7 10; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 80b, on Exod. 15 25, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As these three instances occur respectively in the Law, the Prophets and the Hagiographa, Lists IV and VII add the sign a statute for ever, occurs five times. The phrase denoting a statute for ever, is normally the feminine noun in the construct. In this form it occurs about sixteen times (Exod. 12 14, 17; 27 21; 28 48; Levit. 3 17; 7 36; 10 9; 16 31; 17 7; 23 14, 21, 31, 41; 24 3; Numb. 15 15; 18 23). As it is in these five instances only that the masculine precedes, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 75b, on Exod. 30 21, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 85b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, Vol. 49a, also on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Jerem. 5 22, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

a statute for ever, occurs eleven times in this form. This Rubric is simply an expansion of the preceding Massorah and records all the instances in which this phrase occurs both without and with the prefix Lamed. The expression is preceded by statute, thirty-three times. In twenty-two instances this noun is feminine construct, viz. and in eleven only is it the masculine, viz. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed:

(I) Add. 15,451, fol. 105a, on Numb. 18 8, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4446, fol. 71b, on Exod. 30 21; (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 54a, on Exod. 29 28; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 114b, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 30 21.

§ 864. שס"ד

by a statute for ever, occurs six times. That is, in these instances the phrase is preceded by the prefix, whereas in all the other Scriptures it is without this prefix as recorded above, § 382. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 85b, on Levit. 7 34, and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 96a, on the same passage. The latter heads it and duly enumerates the six passages.

§ 865. שס"ה

the carved, occurs three times in this form. This is, the Pual participle without and with the prefix He. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 184a, on 1 Kings 6 35.

As to the pointing of Add. 15,251 has it the Raphe, but with the Massorah on it. Add. 15,451 and Orient. 4227 have it also Raphe. But Orient. 2201, which is one of the oldest dated MSS. of the whole Bible, Harley 5710-11, Arund. Orient. 16 and Add. 15,250 which are the best Standard Codices, have it with Dagesh for which reason I have adopted it in my edition and given the other in the notes.

§ 866. שס"ו

one statute, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 106a, on Numb. 9 14, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 79a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. As by itself occurs twice only, List III heads it simply. The heading ought properly to be, since both instances are restricted to the Pentateuch.

§ 867. שס"ז

a statute for ever unto their generations, occurs twice. Normally is followed by for your generations, with the suffix third person plural. In this combination it occurs eight times (Levit. 3 17; 10 9; 23 14, 31, 41; 24 3; Numb. 15 15; 18 23). As it is in these two passages only that it is with the suffix second person plural, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional phrase.

Of this Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, I collated two Lists: (I) on Exod. 27 21, which I have printed, and (II) on Levit. 7 36. The latter adds at the end which indicates the design of this Massorah.

for a statute of judgment, occurs twice. In the only other instance where the two nouns are combined it is for a statute and a judgment or ordinance (1 Sam. 30 25).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 117a, on Numb. 27 11, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 108b, on Numb. 35 29, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage. As the two instances are restricted to the Pentateuch, the heading ought to be.

§ 869. שס"ט

ordinances, occurs nine times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 35a, on Jerem. 5 24, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 99a, on Ezek. 43 18; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 46 14; (IV) the same Codex on Micah 6 16; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 334b, on Job 33 33; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 283, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter n, § 206. These seven Lists exhibit two different recensions which emanate from two different Massoretic Schools.

Recension I. — According to this recension, which is exhibited in Lists III and IV and which is the oldest form of this Massorah, all the nine instances are plene. This is emphatically stated in the respective headings of both Lists, viz. and in the addition at the end of the Rubric ובל בהקרא מוקדו which can only mean that wherever this plural noun is with the prefix Beth or Mem it is likewise plene. It will be seen that this second part of the Massorah is also given in List I, which I have printed, thus showing that it also exhibits this recension. Though Lists II, VI and VII simply state in their respective headings that it occurs nine times (תקרא), yet as they do not indicate that there is any variation in its orthography, it is to be presumed that they most probably belong to the same recension.

Recension II. — This recension is exhibited in List V which is headed תקרא מל' אה' מל' אה' מל' אה' מל' אה' מל' אה'. According to this recension, therefore, the solitary defective is Jerem. 31 35. This reading is followed in Harley 5710-11 with the Massorah on it מ' ו' ל' אה'; Arund. Orient. 16 with the Massorah on it ל' אה'; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 with the Massorah on it מ' ו' ל' אה' and Add. 15,451 with the Massorah on it ל' אה'. It is remarkable that though Lists III and IV, which as we have seen are from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, declare that all the nine instances are plene, yet the Codex itself exhibits תקרא defective in Jerem. 31 35. But such conflicts between the Massorah and the text are not infrequent. According to the addition at the end of Recension I of this Rubric this noun with the prefix Beth, which occurs five times (Levit. 20 23; 1 Kings 3 3; 2 Kings 17 13, 19; Ezek. 33 15), is תקרא plene in all the five, whereas it is תקרא defective in Levit. 20 23 in the received text תקרא is five times defective in this form. The design of this Massorah is simply to record the instances in which this plural form, without and with the prefixes and suffixes (בלש), is without the Vav before the Tav, apart from those with the suffix first person singular recorded in § 371.

This Rubric is from Orient. 1879, fol. 228a, on Levit. 20 3. Though it emphatically states in the heading that there are five such instances, it records three only. My object in printing it is twofold. In the first place it shows that the number given in the heading is in conflict with the number of instances recorded in the Rubric itself, thus proving the accuracy of my oft-repeated statement with regard to this occurrence. And in the second place it shows that according to some Massoretic Schools this Rubric consisted of five instances and thus explains the heading of the corrupt Rubric in the printed Massorah on the same passage.

Recension I. — According to this recension, which is exhibited in Lists I and III, the fourth instance is וְלֹא שָׁמַר i. e. Jerem. 33 25 and the second part is וְלֹא תִקְרָא דָבָר and wherever it is with the suffix third person singular it is likewise defective. That is, both in all the seven instances in which it is תקרא without the prefix Vav (Numb. 9 8; Deut. 6 2; 10 13; 1 Kings 2 3; 2 Kings 23 3; Ezek. 43 11, 11) and in the eight instances in which it is תקרא (Deut. 8 11; 11 1; 28 15, 45; 30 10, 16; 2 Sam. 22 23; Ps. 18 23), the Vav is absent before the Tav.

Recension II. — According to this recension, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah and is represented in Lists II, IV, V, and VI, the fourth instance is not Jerem. 33 25, but וְלֹא תִקְרָא דָבָר Jerem. 31 35 and with the exception of List II the second part is וְלֹא תִקְרָא דָבָר and wherever it is with the suffix first person singular it is likewise defective. That is, in the Pentateuch where this form occurs ten times, it is always without the Vav before the Tav except in one instance, viz. Gen. 26 5.

As to the printed Massorah (List VII) which is headed תקרא, it makes up the five instances by giving the four which constitute Recension I and by adding תקרא Levit. 26 8. But this is manifestly the addition of a later Scribe who mistook the import of the Massorah. This is not only attested by the fact that it is absent in all the MS. Lists, but by the fact that תקרא with the suffix first person singular without and with the prefixes is always defective in the Pentateuch except once. Besides תקרא occurs twice in the Pentateuch and is defective in both instances (Levit. 26 8, 15). It is remarkable that Lists IV, V and VI also head this Rubric תקרא though they respectively record the same four instances only which are given in Recension II. It may be that this heading belongs to a List which embodied the five instances of both recensions.

תקרא my ordinances or statutes, is nine times defective. The design of this Rubric is to record the instances in the Prophets and Hagiographa in which this plural noun with the suffix first person singular (תקרא) without and with the prefixes (בלש), is without the Vav before the Tav and in this respect it differs from the design of the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 221a, on 1 Kings 6 12, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 80b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 306b, on Ps. 89 32; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 335b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 17b, on Gen. 26 5; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 44 10.

In the Prophets and Hagiographa, where this plural noun with the suffix first person singular occurs altogether twenty-six times without and with the prefixes, the plene spelling is the rule and the defective the exception. The former occurs seventeen times (1 Kings 11 38; 2 Kings 17 13; Ezek. 5 6, 6, 7; 18 9, 17, 19, 21; 20 11, 13, 16, 19, 21, 24; 37 24; 2 Chron. 7 19) and the latter nine times. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

And throughout the Pentateuch it is likewise defective except once. In this division of the Bible, where it occurs altogether twelve times, the reverse is the case. The defective orthography is the rule and the plene the exception. The former occurs in eleven instances (Levit. 18 4, 5, 26; 19 19, 37; 20 8, 22; 25 18; 26 8, 15, 43) and the latter is in one instance only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception.

That this Massorah represents the orthography of one School of textual redactors only, and that other Schools exhibited variations is attested both by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 which is defective in Ezek. 5 6, 7; 18 17, 19, 21; 20 24; 37 24; and by the early editions which also have it defective in Ezek. 20 16, 19, as will be seen from the notes on all these passages in my edition of the Bible.

תקרא — In six instances my statutes precedes my commandments. That is, in contradistinction to the passages where the reverse is the case my commandments comes first. (Comp. Gen. 26 5; 1 Kings 9 6; 11 54; 2 Kings 17 13: vide infra, letter ב, § 689.) The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this phrase when these two nouns are with the suffix first person singular. Hence תקרא וְלֹא תִקְרָא דָבָר his statutes and his commandments, (Deut. 6 2 &c.) is excluded.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 212, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 112b, on Levit. 26 15, and (III) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 279.

ש"ע = § 373.

תקרא בְּשֵׁמֹתַי בְּמִצְוֹתַי his statutes, his ordinances, his commandments. In six verses these three words respectively occur in different order. The variation in the sequence is indicated by the mnemonic sign at the end of the several catchwords which consist of the initial letters.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) the printed Massorah on Deut. 30 16, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 116, and (III) Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 276. Lists II and III point out that the order in Deut. 26 17 and 1 Kings 2 8 is alike and give the mnemonic sign תקרא for both and that the order in Deut. 30 16 and 1 Kings 8 58 is also the same and hence give the sign תקרא for both.

ש"ע = § 374.

תקרא הַקּוּפָּה Hakupha, occurs twice and is written with Aleph in both instances. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Neh. 7 58.

ש"ע = § 375.

תקרא when he appointed, occurs twice and is Raphs. That is, without Dagesh in the Coph in both instances. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 339a, on Prov. 8 27.

שעי decrees of, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard שעי in Judg. 5 15 against being made conformable to שעי which occurs at the end of the next verse to which it corresponds.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 123a, on Isa. 10 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 218b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 219.

שעי = § 377.

שעי found out, or ascertained, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 185b, on 1 Kings 7 47.

שעי = § 378.

שעי she shall be waste, or desolate, occurs twice, once with Pathach and once with Kametz. As this future third person singular feminine which occurs twice only, has different graphic signs in each passage, the Kametz being due to the distinctive accent, the Massorah safeguards this variation. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ט, § 228.

שעי = § 379.

שעי they were dry, occurs twice in the same verse. For this Rubric see letter ט, § 485, Vol. II, p. 223.

שעי = § 380.

שעי they were dried, occurs twice. That is, the Pual preterite third person plural, in contradistinction to the instances in which this quadriliteral is שעי the Kal with the same signification. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 30a, on Judg. 16 8. As the two instances not only occur in the same book but in two consecutive verses, the heading ought more properly to be שעי.

שעי dry, occurs three times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. The design of the Massorah is to indicate that in these instances this quadriliteral is an adjective, in contradistinction to the passages where it is either the noun שעי dry land (Ezek. 30 12), or שעי desolation (Levit. 26 31, 33; Jerem. 27 17; 44 2; Ezek. 25 13; 35 4).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 379b, on Neh. 2 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 342b, on Prov. 17 1; (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 293b, on Neh. 2 3; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 394b, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Prov. 17 1. This Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter ט, § 73.)

שעי the desolate, occurs twice. This sextiliteral occurs four times. In two instances it is שעי with Kametz under the Resh (Ezek. 33 24; 36 33), being a noun feminine plural of שעי desolation, and in two it is with Tzere, an adjective feminine plural of שעי desolate, waste. Hence the Massorah indicates the passages in which it is the adjective, thus safeguarding it against being confused with the noun. This protection was deemed necessary, since all the four instances are not only restricted to the same book but the adjective and the noun are used within a few verses of each other. (Comp. Ezek. 36 33, 35, 38.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190b, on Ezek. 36 38.

שעי a sword upon, occurs four times. Normally שעי is followed by the preposition שעי without and with the prefix Vav. In this combination it occurs ten times. (Jerem. 50 35, 35, 35, 36, 36, 37, 37, 37, 37, 38.) In these four passages, however, it is followed by the homonymous preposition שעי. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination. This protection is necessary, since in Jerem. 50 35 the two prepositions are used interchangeably.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah but which does not occur in the printed Massorah,

I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 64b, on Jerem. 50 35, and (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 25 29. Both these Lists record identically the same four passages and omit Zech. 11 17; 13 7.

שעי by the sword, by famine, is eight times thus combined in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the instances in which this phrase is without the Vav conjunctive before the second noun and thus to militate against the School of textual redactors who read it שעי, as will be seen from the notes on Jerem. 27 13; 29 18; 42 22; 44 12, in my edition of the Bible. It will be seen that with the exception of Jerem. 44 12 they are followed by שעי and by pestilence, thus forming a triverbal phrase.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 62b, on Jerem. 44 12, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 21 9; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 27 13; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 164b, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 172b, on Jerem. 38 2; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 140, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 38 2.

To the variations noted on the respective passages which constitute this Massorah, I add the following collation from the ancient Codex St. Petersburg of A. D. 916. It will be seen that its text exhibits no fewer than five deviations from the eight instances: (1) Jerem. 21 9 is שעי. This the Nakdan not only altered into שעי but contrary to the received text, included it in the eight instances with the Vav and put the Massorah on this passage; (2) Jerem. 27 13 is שעי which the Nakdan altered into שעי and remarks against it in the margin שעי eight times without the Vav; (3) Jerem. 29 18 is שעי which he again altered into שעי and remarks against it שעי; (4) Jerem. 42 17 is שעי which he again altered into שעי and remarks against it שעי whilst (5) in Jerem. 42 22 where the text has שעי he has not cancelled the Vav, though it is one of the eight instances without the Vav according to our Massorah. This is probably due to the fact that the Nakdan included Jerem. 21 9 as one of the eight passages.

שעי by the sword, and by the famine and by the pestilence, occurs five times. This phrase occurs altogether twelve times. In seven instances the second of the three nouns is שעי without the Vav conjunctive (vide supra, § 384) and in five it is with the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. By fixing the number at five this Massorah militates against the School of textual redactors which read שעי without Vav in Jerem. 21 9, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 19a, on Jerem. 14 12. It will be seen that in one of the instances each of the three nouns is with the prefix He (Jerem. 32 24) though in all the other eleven instances which constitute the preceding Rubric and this Rubric, they are with the prefix Beth.

שעי with a sword, is eight times Raphe. With the prefix Beth this noun occurs altogether seventy-two times. In sixty-four instances it is שעי with Pathach under the Beth which is Massoretically called Dagesh and in eight only is it with Sheva which denotes Raphe. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional passages. This protection is needed, since the two forms occur in the same verse (2 Sam. 12 9).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 185b, on 1 Sam. 17 45, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 47a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 159b, on Jerem. 20 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 217a, on Hag. 2 22; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 166a, on 1 Sam. 17 45; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 280a, on Jerem. 20 4, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 17 45.

שעי like, or as a sword, is three times Raphe. That is, with Sheva under the Caph. In the only other instance where it occurs it is שעי with Pathach (Ps. 64 4).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 337b, on Prov. 5 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 359a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Isa. 49 2. It will be seen that the Massorah here, contrary to its usual method, records the majority.

שפ"ח = § 388.

הַרְבוּתֵיהֶם their swords, occurs twice in the Scriptures, once defective and once plene. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 295a, on Neh. 4 7, which is plene in this MS. The Massorah Parva on it also remarks בִּי הָרַח מִלִּי הָרַח מִלִּי. The following Standard Codices, however, read it הַרְבוּתֵיהֶם defective, Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 and Orient. 4227. There can therefore hardly be any doubt that this Massorah proceeds from a School of textual redactors which read it plene in Neh. 4 7 and we have here another example of conflicting Massorahs which is due to different Massoretic Schools.

הַרְבַּח drought, occurs sixteen times. That is, without and with the prefixes and with Segol under the Resh, in contradistinction to the sixteen instances in which it is הָרַב with Tzere and is a proper name, Horeb.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 46a, on Gen. 31 40, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 45a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 29a, also on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Isa. 61 4, and (V) the same on Job 30 30. As the sixteen instances include five with the prefixes Caph (Isa. 25 5) Lamed (Jerem. 36 30; 49 19), and Mem (Isa. 4 6; 25 4), the heading ought properly to be בִּי בְלִישׁ־וּ. The adjunct מִמֶּנּוּ in the heading of Lists V and VI is due to the fact that the proper name Horeb with which it is contrasted, is not always defective (comp. הָרַב Exod. 33 6), whilst the expression מִלְשׁוֹן with the accent on the penultima in the heading of List VI, distinguishes it from the proper name which is מִלְשׁוֹן or with the accent on the ultima.

שצ"א = § 390.

לְהַרְבֵּה לְשָׂמָה a desolation, an astonishment, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is twofold. It is in the first place to militate against the reading לְהַרְבֵּה וְלִשְׂמָה in Jerem. 25 11 which is exhibited in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 first hand and in the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. And in the second place it is to safeguard this phrase without the prefix before the second noun against being made conformable to Jerem. 44 6, where it is לְהַרְבֵּה לְשָׂמָה.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 162b, on Jerem. 25 11, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

בְּדִבְרֵי הַבְּתִיחַ in the deserts, occurs twice. That is, with Kametz under the Beth, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this plural noun feminine occurs and is בְּדִבְרֵי הַבְּתִיחַ with Segol (Ezek. 33 27).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 273b, on Ezek. 13 4, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 1474, fol. 82b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Isa. 48 21. The latter heads it more properly בִּי קָצַב and has the mnemonical sign. This Rubric forms part of the List recording sixteen words which respectively occur twice only with Kametz. (Vide infra, letter ג, § 617, Vol. II, p. 313.)

שצ"ג = § 392.

הַרְבוּתֵיהֶן her desert places, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this plural noun with the suffix third person singular feminine which not only occurs twice, but is restricted to the same book, is differently spelt, being plene in the first instance and defective in the second, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 141a, on Isa. 51 3, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 222. As the two instances occur in the same book and as one is with the prefix Vav (Isa. 44 26), the heading ought more properly to be בִּי בְלִישׁ־וּבְבֵטִי.

וַיִּתְרַד and he trembled, occurs three times. The design of this Massorah is to record those instances only in which וַיִּתְרַד is followed by the proper name of the person who trembled, which is the case in these three instances, viz. Isaac, Ahimelech and Boaz. Hence the other three instances in which וַיִּתְרַד occurs and where it is respectively the predicate of כָּל־הָעָם all the people (Exod. 19 16); כָּל־הַרְבֵּי the whole mountain (Exod. 19 18) and לִבּוֹ his heart (1 Sam. 28 6) are excluded, being outside the scope of this Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1879, fol. 75a, on Gen. 27 33, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

שצ"ה = § 394.

וַיִּתְרַדְוּ they shall be afraid, occurs twice. That is, with Kametz under the Resh which is due to its pausal accent Athnach, in contradistinction to the other two instances in which this future third person plural masculine occurs with Sheva (Ezek. 16 18; Hosea 11 11). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 136a, on Isa. 41 5.

שצ"ו = § 395.

לֵךְ הַרְבֵּה לָךְ it has angered thee, or thou art angry, is twice thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, with Kametz under the Lamed which has the accent. This is due to הָרַב having the accent on the penultima, in contradistinction to the other two instances where this combination occurs and where it is הָרַב לָךְ. Here the accent is on Caph and הָרַב has in one case the accent on the ultima (2 Sam. 19 43) and in the other הָרַב is joined by Makeph to לָךְ (Jonah 4 9).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 114a, on Jonah 4 4, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 31a, on Gen. 4 6; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (IV) the same on Jonah 4 4.

שצ"ז = § 396.

וַיִּתְרַדְוּ he shall be kindled, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 56b, on Exod. 32 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 188a, on 1 Sam. 20 7; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 49a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 1520, fol. 50a, on Exod. 32 11; (V) the same MS., fol. 157b, on 1 Sam. 20 7; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 119b, on Exod. 32 11, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 20 7.

שצ"ח = § 397.

וַיִּתְרַדְוּ wrath, occurs three times in the Scriptures. This noun occurs altogether twenty-five times. In twenty-two instances it is with Chateph-Patach under the Cheth, or is in the construct, and in three only is it with Kametz, which in Massoretic terminology denotes the absolute. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 74a, on Ezek. 7 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 190b, on Ps. 58 10, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 7 12. The latter indicates the design of this Massorah in the heading which is גִּי קָצַבִּין.

הַרְבֵּי הָרֹחַן Horon, is three times thus written. To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that הָרֹחַן enters into composition with בֵּית i. e. Beth-horon in fourteen instances and is spelt in four different ways. In five instances it is הָרֹחַן with the first Vav but without the second (Josh. 10 10, 11; 16 3, 5; 21 22); in three it is הָרֹחַן without the first Vav but with the second (Josh. 18 13, 14; 1 Sam. 13 18); in five it is הָרֹחַן with both Vavs or entirely plene (1 Chron. 6 53; 7 24; 2 Chron. 8 5, 5; 25 13) and in one solitary instance it is הָרֹחַן without either Vav or entirely defective (1 Kings 9 17). As the Massorah Parva on 1 Kings 9 17 safeguards the entirely defective and on 1 Chron. 6 53, protects the five entirely plene (בְּתֵי הָרֹחַן) which are restricted to Chronicles, eight only remain to be Massoretically treated. The normal spelling of these is with the first Vav only, which as we have seen, is the case in five instances; whilst the spelling without the first Vav, but with the second is the exception. Hence the Massorah in the Rubric before us safeguards the orthography of the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 18a, on Josh. 18 13, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 34. The references in the Rubric which I have printed should be Josh. 18 13, 14 instead of Josh. 16 5; 18 14.

מְסֻמָּיִם magicians, without and with the prefixes is always plene except twice. This plural noun occurs altogether eight times, is in six instances with the Yod (Gen. 41 24; Exod. 8 3, 14; 9 11; Dan. 1 11; 2 12) and in two only is it without it. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography, which is necessary since the two different spellings occur in the same verse (Exod. 9 11, 11).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 40a, on Exod. 9 11, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 76a, on Exod. 8 15, and (III) the printed Massorah on Exod. 9 11. The defective spelling, however, is that of one School of textual redactors only, and is exhibited in the Jerusalem Standard Codex, whilst another School reads it plene which is attested by the celebrated rival Hellali Standard Codex, as will be seen from the notes on Exod. 8 15 in my edition of the Bible.

בְּחַרְיָאֵי in fierce anger, is five times thus combined in the Scriptures. Normally the phrase to denote fierce anger is חַרְיָאֵי (Numb. 25 4; 32 14; Jerem. 4 8; 25 37; 30 24; Zeph. 2 2; Ezra 10 14; 2 Chron. 28 11). As it is in these five instances only that this phrase is used, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, four in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 268b, on Lament. 2 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 164a, on 2 Chron. 25 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 272b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 356a, on Lament. 2 3; (V) the printed Massorah on Isa. 7 4; (VI) the same on Lament. 2 3; (VII) the same on 2 Chron. 25 10, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח, § 686. The latter is erroneously headed ח and records four instances only, omitting 1 Sam. 20 34.

חָמָה to destroy, or destroy thou, occurs three times. That is, without and with the prefix Vav. Here again we have one of those artificial modes of reckoning to which I have not infrequently referred. חָמָה occurs altogether six times and not three, five times without the prefix Vav (Deut. 3 6; 7 2; 13 16; 20 17; Josh. 11 11) and once with it (Jerem. 50 21). Because four of the six instances occur in the Law alone, and two only apart from this division of the Bible, the Massorah counts all the Pentateuch instances as one and thus obtains the number three. (Vide supra, letter ח, § 360.)

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 124b, Deut. 3 6, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 123b, on the same passage. As one of the instances is with the prefix Vav the heading ought properly to be חָמָה.

חָיִב he shall be utterly destroyed, or devoted, occurs three times in the Scriptures, twice with Pathach and once with Kametz. As this Hophal future third person singular masculine, is differently pointed, being in two instances with Pathach under the Resh and in one with Kametz which is due to its pausal accent Athnach (Exod. 22 19), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its graphic signs.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 292b, on Ezra. 10 8, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 378b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 81a, on Levit. 27 29; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 101a, on Exod. 22 19; (V) the same MS., fol. 184a, on Levit. 27 29; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 22 19; and (VII) the same on Ezra 10 8. Lists III, IV, V and VI add at the end קָיָם קָיָם, thus defining the Exodus instance as the one with Kametz.

חָרָ Charan, or Haran, occurs twice . . . and wherever it is the name of a place it is likewise so except twice. That is, as the proper name of a person it occurs twice only with Cheth, whilst as the name of a place it is always חָרָ with Cheth (Gen. 11 31; 2 Kings 19 12; Isa. 37 12; Ezek. 27 28) except in two instances where it enters into composition with חָרָ and where it is חָרָ with He. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard these two similar names against being interchanged, since the חָ and the חָ are almost identical in the MSS. and as the two forms occur in one and the same verse (Gen. 11 31).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 181a, on 1 Chron. 2 46, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 238b, on the same passage; (III) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 145, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח, § 274. See also letter ח, § 403, p. 319.

חָרָה to Haran, occurs twice. That is, with paragogic or He local. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 43b, on Gen. 27 43.

חָרָה = § 405.

חָרָה and winter, occurs twice. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 8 22.

חָרָה = § 406.

חָרָה reproaching, or reproacheth me, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the participle singular masculine with the suffix third person singular against being confused with חָרָה the noun with the same suffix, which denotes my autumn or ripeness (Job 29 4).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 314b, on Ps. 119 42, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter heads this Rubric חָרָה and gives ברָחֵי יְקָרֵי חָרָה as the third instance with the remark חָרָה חָרָה חָרָה, which is manifestly a later alteration and does not indicate the design of this Massorah.

חָרָה to shame, or for reproach, occurs twice. Normally to shame, or for reproach is חָרָה the singular (Isa. 30 5; Jerem. 6 10; 20 8; 24 9; 49 13; Joel 2 17; Dan. 9 16). As it is in these two instances only that the plural with the prefix Lamed is used, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional expression.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 300b, on Ps. 69 11, which I have printed, and (II) Cambridge Add. 465, on Dan. 12 2.

חָרָה = § 408.

חָרָה the diligent, occurs three times. That is, with Kametz under the Cheth, in contradistinction to חָרָה the participle passive (Job 14 5) which denotes decided, determined.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ח, § 236. Though it takes no cognizance of the variation in the spelling of this expression, yet it is certain that in Prov. 13 4 it is חָרָה defective. This is attested by the following Standard Codices as well as by the Massorah Parva; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16 with the Massorah on it חָרָה חָרָה; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 with the Massorah on it חָרָה חָרָה. (Vide supra, letter ח, § 128.) Accordingly the heading ought properly to be חָרָה חָרָה חָרָה, since all the three instances occur in the same book.

חָרָה = § 409.

חָרָה and determined, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 123b, on Isa. 10 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 130a, on Isa. 28 22; (III) the same MS., fol. 872a, on Dan. 9 27; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 382b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 414b, also on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Isa. 10 23.

List II heads this Rubric חָרָה and records two only, omitting Dan. 9 27. But this apparent discrepancy is manifestly due to the fact that the Massorite simply designed this Rubric to record the instances which occur in the same book and a later Nakdan omitted from the heading the qualifying adjunct חָרָה after the חָ.

חָרָה occurs twice in the Scriptures. And in two different senses. In Isa. 58 6 it denotes tight bands and in Ps. 73 4 gangs.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 195b, on Ps. 73 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 301b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 286a, on Isa. 58 6, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 73 4 which alone emphasises the fact in the heading that it not only occurs twice but in two different senses חָרָה חָרָה.

ת"י"א = § 411.

תְּרַשְׁתֶּם occurs twice. And in two different senses. In the first instance it denotes ye have plowed (Judg. 14 18) and in the second ye have sown (Hosea 10 13).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 202*b*, on Hosea 10 13, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter heads this Rubric בִּי בְרִי לִישׁ, thus emphasising the fact that it denotes two different things. As it occurs twice only, the heading ought to be בִּי וּבְכִי לִישׁ as it is in the preceding Rubric. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses and it also forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in the same sense. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 427 and § 428, Vol. II, p. 217.)

ת"י"ב = § 412.

יִרְדֹּשׁ he shall plow, is twice plene. This future third person singular masculine occurs altogether four times. As it is spelt differently, being in two instances defective (Isa. 28 24; Prov. 20 4) and in two plene, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ר, § 239.

ת"י"ג = § 413.

תִּתְּנֶה thou shalt plow, or thou shalt devise, occurs twice and is defective. This Kal future second person singular masculine occurs altogether seven times. In five instances it is תִּתְּנֶה (Ps. 28 1; 35 22; 39 18; 83 2) or תִּתְּנֶה (Ps. 109 1) and in two only is it pointed תִּתְּנֶה. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional graphic signs.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 126*a*, on Deut. 22 10, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As it is in both instances combined with אֶל־, the printed Massorah (List II) which heads this Rubric בִּי לֹא תִרְדֹּשׁ is incorrect. It is to be remarked that in the five instances in which it is differently pointed it denotes not listening to and answering prayer or keeping silence. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 428, Vol. II, p. 217 &c.)

ת"י"ד = § 414.

תִּתְּנֶה he kept silence, is three times defective in this form. As the Hiphil form of the preterite third person, which occurs altogether six times, is in three instances with the Yod after the Resh with Chirek (Numb. 30 5, 8; 2 Kings 18 86) and in three without it; and, moreover, as this diversity of its spelling occurs within a few verses of each other, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard it against being made uniform.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 106*a*, on Numb. 30 15.

ת"י"ה = § 415.

תִּתְּנֶה. — The Hiphil form is seven times defective in the Scriptures. Whilst the preceding Rubric is restricted to the three instances in which the preterite is defective, this Massorah records all the Hiphil forms, whether past, present or future, in which the normal Yod is absent.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 59*a*, on Jerem. 38 27, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 151*a*, on Numb. 30 12; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 150*a*, on Jerem. 4 19; (IV) the same MS., fol. 173*a*, on Jerem. 38 27; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 32, margin; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 34 5, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 38 27.

ת"י"ו = § 416.

תִּתְּנֶה and he kept silence, is twice defective in the Pentateuch. As this Hiphil preterite third person singular masculine with the prefix Vav, which occurs altogether four times, is plene in two instances (Numb. 30 5, 8) and defective in two and, moreover, as these different spellings promiscuously occur in the same chapter, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard this variation in its orthography. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 22*b* on Gen. 34 5.

ת"י"ז = § 417.

תִּתְּנֶה to keep silence, or be thou silent, occurs six times. Though it is the infinitive in three instances (Numb. 30 15; Job 13 5; Esther 4 14) and imperative singular masculine in three (Judg. 18 19; Job 33 31, 33), yet the Massorah which has regard to the identity of the spelling only, groups these six instances together under one Rubric in accordance with its usual method.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 31*b*, on Judg. 18 19, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 151*a*, on Numb. 30 15; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 143*a*, on Judg. 18 19, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Job 13 5.

תִּתְּנֶה ye shall be silent, occurs twice in the Scriptures, once defective and once plene. As this future second person plural masculine which occurs twice only, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 43*a*, on Exod. 14 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 325*b*, on Job 13 5; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 40*a*, on Exod. 14 14; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 87*b*, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

תִּתְּנֶה an engraver of, is three times with Pathach. This noun occurs altogether thirteen times. In ten instances it is with Kametz under the Resh and in three instances only is it in the construct which is Massoretically called Pathach. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional instances.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 21*a*, on Isa. 44 12, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on the same passage which gives the mnemonic sign only; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 138*a*, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 57*a*, on Exod. 28 11; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 111*a*, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Isa. 44 12. With the exception of Lists I and V all the Lists give the mnemonic sign.

ת"י"כ = § 420.

תִּתְּנֶה artificial works, or craftsmen, occurs three times. This quinqueliteral noun with Kametz under the Resh occurs altogether six times. In three instances it is תִּתְּנֶה with Kametz under the Cheth, being the plural of תִּתְּנֶה engraver (Hosea 13 2; Zech. 2 3; 1 Chron. 29 5), and in three it is with Chateph-Pathach, the plural of תִּתְּנֶה. Hence the Massorah indicates the variation in the graphic signs of the first letter.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 239*b*, on 1 Chron. 4 14, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 315*b*, on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ר, § 242.

ת"י"כ"א = § 421.

תִּתְּנֶה deaf, is three times with the accent on the ultima . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. That is, when it denotes deafness, this trilateral is not only with Tere but with the accent on the Resh.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 93*b*, on Levit. 19 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 92*b*; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 67*a*; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 82*b*, and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

ת"י"כ"ב = § 422.

תִּתְּנֶה deaf, is three times Milra . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav . . . and twice it is Milél. In the two instances in which it is with the accent on the penultima this trilateral is תִּתְּנֶה with Segol. This expanded form of the Rubric is from Add. 21,160, fol. 167*b*, on Levit. 19 14. It will be seen that it comprises both the preceding Rubric and the following one.

ת"י"כ"ג = § 423.

תִּתְּנֶה occurs twice in two different senses. In the first instance it is an adverb denoting silently, secretly (Josh. 2 1) and in the second it is a proper name Haresh (1 Chron. 9 15).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 125*b*, on Josh. 2 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 244*a*, on

1 Chron. 9 15; (III) Add. 15,461, fol. 146a, on Josh. 2 1, and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 86, on 1 Chron. 9 15. List II heads this Rubric בַּיּוֹם הַזֶּה, simply emphasising the fact that it is with the accent on the penultima. Lists I and IV, which head בַּיּוֹם לִישׁוֹ, do not notice the position of the accent, but confine themselves to its difference in the sense; whilst List III, which is headed בַּיּוֹם הַזֶּה בְּהִשָּׁבֵת הַלַּלְלִים הַזֵּה, points out both these characteristics. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in the same sense (vide infra, letter ב, § 427) and of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses (vide infra, letter ב, § 428), as well as of the alphabetical List of trilateral words which respectively occur twice. (Vide supra, letter א, § 283.)

תכ"ד - § 424.

חָשַׁב אֵל. Normally the verb חָשַׁב to think, to meditate, especially when used in a bad sense, is combined with the preposition עָלַי against. (Comp. 2 Sam. 14 18; Jerem. 18 18; Micah 2 8; Nah. 1 11; Esther 8 8; 9 25). As it is in three instances only that it is combined with עָלַי, the Massorah safeguards this abnormal combination.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 212b, on Nah. 1 9, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 49 20, and (III) the same on Jerem. 50 46.

תכ"ה - § 426.

וְחָשַׁב and to devise, occurs twice in the Scriptures. By fixing the number at two, the design of this Rubric is to militate against the reading לִישׁוֹ without the prefix Vav in Exod. 35 32, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 150a, on 2 Chron. 2 13.

תכ"ז - § 427.

וַיַּחְשְׁבֶיהָ and he thought her, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 25b, on Gen. 38 15, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 173a, on 1 Sam. 1 18; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 146a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 152a, also on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 15 6; (VI) the same on Gen. 38 15, and (VII) the same on 1 Sam. 1 13. List I alone gives the mnemonic sign.

תכ"ח - § 428.

וַיַּחְשְׁבוּ they shall devise, occurs twice. This future third person plural masculine with Sheva under the Shin from חָשַׁב, occurs altogether five times. In one instance it is וַיַּחְשְׁבוּ the Niphal (Deut. 2 11), in two instances it is וַיַּחְשְׁבוּ the Piel recorded below, § 430, and in two it is the Kal. As the two Piel instances are protected in a separate Rubric, the Massorah here safeguards the two Kal passages. As in the only other instance in which this Kal future third person plural masculine occurs it is וַיַּחְשְׁבוּ with Cholem on the Shin, which is due to its distinctive accent (Isa. 13 17), and not with Sheva, it is excluded, being outside the scope of this Massorah.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 41 8, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

וּמְחַשְׁבֵי devising, is always defective with one exception. This participle occurs altogether fourteen times. It is defective in thirteen instances and plene in one passage only. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the solitary exception. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 138a, on Exod. 39 8.

תל"ב - § 429.

וְנִחְשְׁבוּ we are counted, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 294b, on Ps. 44 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 327b, on Job 18 3; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 21a, on Gen. 31 15; (IV) the same MS., fol. 327a, on Ps. 44 23; (V) the same MS., fol. 361a, on Job 18 3; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 897b, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah on

Gen. 31 15. The addition at the end of List II which states that one occurs in the Law, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa (א ב כ) is incorrect, since two are in the Hagiographa and none in the Prophets. It has manifestly been added by an ignorant Scribe to fill up the line.

ת"ל - § 430.

וְיַחְשְׁבוּ they shall reckon, or devise, occurs three times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ר, § 245, is incorrect. This Piel future third person masculine occurs twice only, as is attested by the Massorah itself (vide supra, § 427) where Dan. 11 25, which is here wrongly given as Piel, is rightly recorded as one of the Kal instances. It is the addition of an ignorant Scribe who, as usual, altered the original heading ב into י in accordance with this mistaken passage.

תל"ג - § 431.

וְיַחְשְׁבוּ invention, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 286a, on Eccl. 7 29.

תל"ד - § 432.

וְיַחְשְׁבוּ hold ye your peace, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 98a, on 2 Kings 2 3, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 198b, on the same passage.

תל"ה - § 433.

וְיַחְשְׁבוּ being still, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 169a, on Judg. 18 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 297b, on Neh. 8 11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 96a, on 1 Kings 22 3; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 199a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Judg. 18 9.

תל"ו - § 434.

וְיַחְשְׁבוּ uncovered, or Hasupha, occurs three times, twice it is with Aleph and once with He. In the two instances in which it ends in Aleph it is the proper name Hasupha (Ezra 2 43; Neh. 7 46); and in the one instance in which it ends in He it is the participle feminine (Ezek. 4¹-7). The Massorah, which has regard to the identity of the sound, irrespective of the difference in the sense, groups them together in one Rubric because they are homonyms.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 373a, on Ezra 2 43, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 388b, on Neh. 7 46; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 389a, on Ezra 2 43, and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage.

All the four Lists, however, simply record the fact that in the two instances in which it is a proper name it terminates in Aleph and that the participle ends in He; and though none of them indicate any difference in the orthography of the proper name, it is certain that in Ezra 2 43 it is חָשְׁפָה plene and that in the parallel passage Neh. 7 46 it is חָשְׁפָה defective. This is attested by the best Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11, Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251, &c. Accordingly חָשְׁפָה at the end of this Rubric should be חָשְׁפָה.

תל"ז - § 435.

וְיַחְשְׁבוּ occurs twice, and is defective. For this Rubric see above, letter ח, § 89.

תל"ח - § 436.

וְיַחְשְׁבוּ darkness, occurs four times in this form, twice plene and twice defective. That is, this feminine noun singular, without and with the prefixes (בְּ), which occurs altogether four times, is differently spelt. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 11b, on Gen. 15 12, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 2a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ר, § 250. The heading בְּ in the List which I have printed, is manifestly wrong and ought to be ... This is not only evident from the addition ... after the last catchwords which describe this single instance as plene, but is attested by List II, which is headed ... and which has at the end ... viz. Ps. 139 12. The printed Massorah (List III) is simply headed ... using ... as synonymous with ... and entirely ignores the variation in its orthography.

תליז = § 437.

השקל he was dark, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, with Shin in contradistinction to קשקש the preterite third person singular masculine with Shin recorded below, § 439.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 36, on Isa. 5 30, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 229b, on Job 18 6; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 5 30; (IV) the same Codex on Ezek. 30 18, where it is given as the contrast to § 439; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 121a, on Isa. 5 30; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 271, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Job 18 6. On Lament. 4 8, where the printed Massorah simply mentions this Rubric and refers for the List to Job 18 6, the design of this Massorah is indicated in the heading, viz. בלישן it occurs four times denoting darkness, in contradistinction to the passages where it is קשקש.

תליח = § 438.

השקל and darkness, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the other two instances in which it is קשקש with Shin and Tzeret, the participle of קשקש to withhold (Prov. 10 19; 11 24).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 1a, on Gen. 1 2, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 384b, on Job 38 19, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 1 2.

תליט = § 439.

השקל he withheld, occurs seven times. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this preterite with Shin against its being mistaken for the preterite קשקש with Shin recorded in § 437.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 209b, on 2 Sam. 18 16, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 30 18; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59b, on 1 Sam. 25 39; (IV) Add. 16,451, fol. 28b, on Gen. 39 9; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 41b, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 270, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 39 9. List II heads this Rubric קשקש חסר וקרי בשקל חסר. Like all the other Lists it records identically the same seven instances, since קשקש is manifestly a clerical error for קשקש 1 Sam. 25 39. List VII heads it קשקש חסר thus indicating the design of the Massorah. The mnemonic sign I have found in the printed Massorah only, where it is given twice without the List, once on Ezek. 30 18, and once in the Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 253.

תליז = § 440.

השקל thou hast withheld, is three times written with Shin in this form. That is, this quadriliteral is here the preterite second person singular masculine with Shin, in contradistinction to the only other instance where it occurs and where it is קשקש a noun in construct with Shin (Ps. 18 12). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 10b, on Gen. 22 12.

תליא = § 441.

השקל thou shalt not withhold, or spare, according to the Easterns is twice plene . . . but according to the Westerns the second is plene and the other is defective.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 254a, on Prov. 24 11. Though we are expressly told that the Babylonians read it קשקש plene in both instances, yet the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 or the so-called Babylonian Codex, has it קשקש defective in Isa. 58 1 in accordance with the Standard Palestinian Codices viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 16,250; Add. 16,251; Add. 16,451 &c. The glossator, however, as is not infrequently the case in this MS., deliberately altered the original reading by placing a Vav over the word and remarked against it in the margin מל כתיב to make it conformable to the Babylonian reading. From the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that the earliest editions exhibit the Eastern reading.

תמיב = § 442.

השקל a sign for. This noun, whether it denotes amber as the Authorised Version has it, or electrum (ηλεκτρον) as the Septuagint, the Vulgate and the Revised Version margin render it, occurs altogether three times and is restricted to Ezekiel. And though it is in all the three passages preceded by exactly the same construct קשקש like the appearance of, yet it exhibits in each case a different form. In the first instance it is with the prefix He i. e. קשקש השקל (Ezek. 1 4); in the second it is without this prefix i. e. קשקש השקל (Ezek. 1 27); whilst in the third instance it is not only with this prefix, but is with the paragogic He, i. e. קשקש השקלה (Ezek. 8 2). Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation against its being made uniform.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ezek. 1 27.

השקל יהוה Jehovah delighted, occurs twice. The phrase which denotes the love, delight or pleasure of Jehovah for, or in any persons, people or things, is normally קשקש יהוה (comp. Jerem. 14 10; Hosea 8 13; Micah 6 7; Ps. 40 14; 85 3; 119 108; 147 11; 149 4; Prov. 16 7). As it is in these two instances only that the verb קשקש is combined with the Tetragrammaton, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 127b, on Deut. 7 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 126b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 270a, on Deut. 10 15, and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage. The latter rightly heads this Rubric ב' ובה' since the two instances occur in the same book.

השקל and their fillets, is twice plene. As this noun which occurs altogether eight times, is defective in six instances (Exod. 27 10, 11; 36 38; 38 10, 11, 19) and plene in two only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This protection is all the more necessary, since the two different spellings are promiscuously used not only in the same chapter, but in alternate verses (Exod. 38 11, 12, 17, 19).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 60b, on Exod. 38 12, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 80b, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 79b, also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 36 38. The latter heads this Rubric חסר בשקל חסר וקרי בשקל חסר.

השקל occurs twice, once with Pathach and once with Kametz. Though this trilateral is in the first instance the preterite third person singular masculine denoting he is broken (Jerem. 50 2) and in the second is a noun signifying terror, the Kametz being due to its pausal accent Soph-Pasuk (Job 41 26), the Massorah, as usual, groups them together because they are homonyms. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ט, § 254.

תמיז = § 446.

תמיז = § 447.

השקל the Hittites, occurs five times in the Scriptures. That is the plural, in contradistinction to the thirty-one instances in which it is השקל the singular.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 243a, on 2 Kings 7 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 149b, on 2 Chron. 1 17; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 19a, on Judg. 1 26; (IV) the same MS., fol. 102b, on 2 Kings 7 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 257b, on 2 Chron. 1 17; (VI) Add. 16,251, fol. 188b, on Judg. 1 26, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תמ"ח to seal up, is four times plene [in this form]. That is, in the form terminating in ט. There are altogether twelve instances in which the different tenses of this verb end in ט. In eight it is ט without the Vav (1 Kings 21 8; Jerem. 32 10; Job 9 7; 33 16; Esther 8 10; Dan. 9 24, 24; 12 4) and in four it is ט with the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 169a, on Jerem. 32 44, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 362a, on Esther 8 8; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 407a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 318a, also on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Isa. 8 16.

תמ"ט son-in-law of, occurs four times in the Scriptures... and once it is with the prefix Vav. This trilateral noun occurs altogether fourteen times. In ten instances it is with Kametz or in the absolute, which is Massoretically called with Dagesh, and in four only it is with the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 37a, on Exod. 4 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 167a, on Judg. 15 6; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 244a, on 2 Kings 8 27; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 29b, on Judg. 15 6; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement fol. 132a; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 4 25, and (VII) the same on 2 Kings 8 27. List II heads this Rubric with דרשתי, thus showing that דרשתי is used to denote the construct; whilst the Massorah in Cambridge Add. 465 on Judg. 15 6 heads it with דרשתי which, as we have seen, is Massoretically used to denote the same. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter ט, § 75.)

ת"ט = § 450.

ת"ט he shall be broken, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 191b, on Isa. 31 4. It is incorrect, since this Kal future third person singular masculine occurs altogether five times. In four instances it is from ת"ט to be broken (Isa. 7 8; 30 31; 31 4; Job 39 22) and in one instance it is from ת"ט to descend (Jerem. 21 13). As it is three times with Pathach under the Cheth (Isa. 7 8; 30 31; Jerem. 21 13) and twice with Kametz, which is due to its distinctive or pausal accent (Isa. 31 4; Job 39 22), it is evident that the design of this Massorah is to record the two Kametz instances. This is established beyond a doubt by the Massorah Parva in Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250 and Add. 15,251, which remarks on ת"ט Isa. 31 4 ק, thus showing that the two instances are those with Kametz. When the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710-11 and Harley 5720 remarks on the same passage ל וק קמץ, it simply denotes that with Zakeph-Kametz it is unique, since in the other passage where it occurs with Kametz it is ת"ט with Soph-Pasuk. This explains the apparently contradictory printed Massorah Parva on Isa. 31 4, which states that with Zakeph-Kametz it is unique and that other Massorahs notice the two instances with Kametz (ת"ט ל סא נחט ב), the one with Zakeph-Kametz which is unique and the other with Soph-Pasuk and Kametz which is also unique. From this analysis it is evident that the catchwords למחר ולמחרת Isa. 31 4 in this Rubric are a mistake for למחרת למחרת Job 39 22, which is the second Kametz instance.

תנ"א = § 451.

תנ"א thou shalt be dismayed, is twice with Zakeph. That is Zakeph-Katon. With Kametz this future occurs altogether eight times. In four instances it is with the pausal accent Soph-Pasuk (Deut. 1 21; 31 8; Jerem. 31 6; 1 Chron. 22 13) and in two with the pausal accent Athnach (Josh. 1 9; Ezek. 2 6). As it is in these two instances only that it is simply with disjunctive Zakeph, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional accent. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 5b, on Josh. 8 1. The accent here is Zakeph-Katon as I have given it.

תנ"ב = § 452.

תנ"ב Variations throughout the Scriptures. The variations exhibited in the following Lists which the Massorites have compiled, constitute some of the most important materials for textual criticism. These duplicates disclose deliberate orthographical alterations, dialectical changes, changes to safeguard Divine names and sacred things, changes for the sake of euphemy not systematically carried through, variations arising from the different solution of abbreviations by different Schools of textual redactors, condensations, expansions, ditographs, omissions due to homoeoteleuta and other scribal errors. In their earlier efforts to record these variations the Massorites collected single groups, contrasting the deviations in two, three or four similar passages only. These single links they formed into separate Rubrics, generally with the heading ט"ט a sign or Nota Bene. In this form I collected a number of these Links from different MSS. and have given them in letter ט, §§ 194-484, Vol. II, pp. 341-360 and in Vol. III, §§ 13-112, pp. 367-371.

תנ"ב-תצ"ה = §§ 452-495.

The Pentateuch.

The basis of the List of variations in the Pentateuch is from Orient. 4227, fol. 275b-278a, which has the following heading ושלמו הלוי החרה ודמיון חלוקה פסוקי החרה ודמיון. Being the first attempt on the part of the Massorite to collect the scattered materials and to arrange them in one long List it is simply incipient. I have, therefore, endeavoured to complete it as far as possible by incorporating in it the absent instances given in the separate סימנים of other MSS. which I was able to find. These I inserted in their proper places in accordance with the sequence of chapter and verse. To render the variations more apparent I have printed the chapter and verse of the first passage with which the variation is contrasted, in thicker type.

תצ"ו-תק"א = §§ 496-500.

תק"א-תקס"ז = §§ 501-567.

תק"א Judges-Malachi. — The Lists which exhibit the variations in these books are from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 225b-233b. These Lists I have also supplemented from the סימנים given in the MSS.

תקס"ח-תקע"א = §§ 568-571a.

תקס"ח the Psalms. — The List which gives the variations in the Psalter itself and those between the Psalms and other Scriptures, is from Orient. 2212, fol. 230b-231a. I have supplemented it from the different סימנים in the MSS.

תקע"א = § 571b.

תקע"א the Psalms and Chronicles. — This List of variations between the Psalms and Chronicles is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 235b. I have reproduced it exactly as it is in the MS. so as to give the student some idea of the difficulty in deciphering these Lists and furnishing the respective catchwords with chapter and verse.

תקע"ב = § 572.

תקע"ב Proverbs. — Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 235b, and (II) Orient. 2212, fol. 231a. I have incorporated into it the additions from the different סימנים.

תקע"ג = § 573a.

תקע"ג Job. — The Job List of variations marked § 573a is from Orient. 2212, fol. 231a, which I have completed from the different סימנים in the MSS.

תקע"ד = § 573b.

This List is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 235b. I have reproduced it as it is in the MS. for the reason given above in § 571b.

תקע"ד-תקע"ה = §§ 574-578.

תקע"ד the Five Megilloth. — Of these Rubrics, which respectively exhibit the variations in Canticles, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes and Esther, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 235b-236a, and (II) Orient. 2212, fol. 231a-b, supplemented by additional instances given in the סימנים in the MSS.

תקע"ט-תקס"ט = §§ 579-580.

תקע"ט Daniel. — Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 236a, and (II) Orient. 2212, fol. 231b. As in the case of the other Lists I supplemented it with the additional instances given in the ספרים in the MSS.

תקפ"א-תקפ"ב = §§ 581—583.

עזרא ונחמיה Ezra and Nehemiah. — As has already been stated, these two books are treated as one in the Massorah and in the MSS. of the Bible. Of this Rubric, which records the variations in Ezra alone as well as the one which exhibits the variations in the duplicate records, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 286a, and (II) Orient. 2212, fol. 292a.

תקפ"ג = § 584.

היהוש הראשון the First Register. — Of this Rubric, which records the families who returned from Babylon unto Jerusalem, contained in Ezra 2 9—10 1, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 286a—b, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2212, fol. 282a.

תקפ"ד-תקפ"ה = § 585—586.

היהוש השני the Second Register. — Of this Rubric, which is given in Nehemiah 7 8—8 1, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 286b, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2212, fol. 282b.

תקפ"ו = § 587.

לכרי הימים. — Thirty six verses exhibit variations in Chronicles. As in the parallel passages of the other Scriptures certain forms of words are used from which those in Chronicles differ, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard these variations against being made uniform.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 287b, on 1 Chron. 1 42. It will be seen that though the heading states that there are thirty-six such expressions, the Rubric itself records thirty-two only. Moreover the variations alone are given without the alternative readings in the parallel passages with which these readings are contrasted. I have, therefore, compiled § 587b exhibiting the words from which those in the List before us (§ 587a) differ. But even the List of thirty-six words must be regarded as incipient, since more than ten are omitted, as will be seen by comparing this List with r, § 464, which records the variations between Genesis and Chronicles. These two Lists supplement each other.

לכרי הימים. — This Rubric, which is from Orient. 1212, fol. 229a—230b, I have reproduced as it is in the MS. as an exercise for the Massoretic student in deciphering the Massorah.

תקפ"ח = § 589.

הבדלים שבין בן אשר ובין בן נפתלי the Differences between Ben-Asher and Ben-Naphtali. As I have fully discussed the rise and development and character of the differences between these two rival redactors of the Hebrew text, I must refer the student to this description in my Introduction to the Massoretic-Critical Edition of the Bible, chap. X, p. 241 &c.

Genesis. — Of the differences recorded in Genesis I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 8b—4a, which gives fifty-four of these instances; (II) Orient. 2201, fol. 110a, which records forty-two; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 1a, which gives fifty-one; (IV) Orient. 4227, fol. 272a, which records fifty-four and which are more clearly indicated; (V) the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible by Felix Pratensis, Venice 1517, where the List is for the first time printed at the end of the last volume without any indication whatever in what these differences consist, and (VI) the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah by Jacob b. Chayim, Venice 1524—25, at the end of Vol. IV which records fifty-two variations. Though differing in their respective numbers, all the six Lists coincide in giving precisely the same instances as far as they go and manifestly exhibit the same recension.

לישנא אדרינא Another recension. — This Rubric I printed from the Mukaddimat or Liturgical Introduction to the Pericopes by Samuel Ha-Rophè, Orient. 2482—84, fol. 36a &c. I have here given it in Hebrew, but the Arabic original I printed in the Massorah Vol. III, p. 6—14. It will be seen that the twelve Pericopes into which Genesis is divided exhibit, according to this recension, thirty-nine variations between Ben-Asher and Ben-Naphtali. The Summary of these I have given at the end of each Pericope in my edition of the Bible.

תקצ"א = § 591.

Exodus. — Of this recension I have collated six Lists, four in the same MSS. as those which give the instances in Genesis and two in the same editions. Though the List which I have printed contains forty-six instances, List II which is from Orient. 2201, fol. 100a—b; and List V, which is in the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, record forty-two; List III which is in Add. 15,250, fol. 1b, gives forty-one; List IV which is in Orient. 4227, fol. 272a—b gives forty-three, whilst List VI which is in the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, records thirty three instances.

לישנא אדרינא Another Recension. — This List, the Arabic original of which I have given in Vol. III, p. 7, § 592, is from the Mukaddimat, Orient. 2482, fol. 190a &c. According to this recension the eleven Pericopes into which Exodus is divided exhibit twenty variations only. With this the Massoretico-Grammatical Treatises in the Yemen MSS. fully coincide (comp. The Massorah, Vol. III, § 592b, p. 8—9).

תקצ"ג = § 593.

Leviticus. — Of this recension of the Rubric which records twenty-four instances I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed in the same Codices and editions as the preceding Rubric. In the List which I have printed Levit. 25 44 ought to be 23 44.

תקצ"ד = § 594.

לישנא אדרינא Another Recension. — This recension is from Orient. 2483, fol. 64b &c. In this recension, Leviticus which consists of ten Pericopes exhibits sixteen points of difference only. With this number the Massoretico-Grammatical Treatises in the Yemen MSS. agree (comp. The Massorah, Vol. III, § 594b, 9—10).

תקצ"ה = § 595.

Numbers. — For this recension, which exhibits fifty-seven points of difference, I collated the same four MSS. and the two editions.

תקצ"ו = § 596.

לישנא אדרינא Another Recension. — Whilst the preceding recension records no fewer than fifty-seven instances, this recension exhibits twenty-four only in the ten Pericopes into which the book of Numbers is divided. This List is from the same MS., viz. Orient. 2483, fol. 283 &c. The Massoretico-Grammatical Treatises in the Yemen MSS. give only twenty-one differences, and even these vary in four Pericopes. Thus for instance in Pericope No. 4 or שלח = Numb. 13 1—15 41 the Yemen Treatise gives five instead of seven, omitting 15 14 and 24. In Pericope No. 5 or קרח = Numb. 16 1—18 32 it gives one instead of two, omitting 16 28. In Pericope No. 7 or בלק = Numb. 22 2—25 9 it gives one more, viz. לך 24 7; whilst in Pericope No. 10 or מנעו = Numb. 33 1—36 13 it has one less, omitting 36 1 (comp. The Massorah, Vol. III, § 596b, p. 14).

תקצ"ז = § 597.

Deuteronomy. — Of this recension of the Rubric, which records fifty instances, I collated six Lists, four in the same MSS. specified in the preceding Lists and two printed. In Felix Pratensis' Bible Deuteronomy has no heading and follows the Esther List.

תקצ"ח = § 598.

לישנא אדרינא Another Recension. — In Deuteronomy, which is divided into eleven Pericopes, this recension records nineteen differences only against the fifty given in the former recension. The Massoretico-Grammatical Treatises in the Yemen MSS. give eighteen only, omitting Deut. 26 19 (comp. The Massorah, Vol. III, § 598, p. 14).

תקצ"ט = § 599.

Joshua. — Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 233b—234a, in which the points of difference are not indicated; (II) Harley 1528, fol. 3a, which records twenty-two instances, giving minutely the points of variation which I have printed in Vol. III, § 599, p. 15; (III) my own MS., No. 1, fol. 7b, which records the same twenty instances, also minutely marked; (IV) the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25, at the end of Vol. IV, and (V) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 9, which is identical with Jacob b. Chayim's (List III), giving exactly the same thirty instances with precisely the same points of difference.

תרי = § 600.

Judges. — Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 234a, which records twenty-seven instances and which I have printed; (II) my own MS., No. 1, fol. 8a, which records twenty-two, omitting the following five Judg. 8 6; 10 6; 17 10; 18 11, 29; (III) Harley 1528 giving nineteen only, which I have printed in Vol. III, § 600, p. 15; (IV) the printed Massorah in Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible at the end of Vol. IV, and (V) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 10. The latter is simply a reproduction of List IV giving identically the same thirty-six instances.

תרי"א = § 601.

Samuel. — Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 234a, which records thirty-eight instances and which I have here printed; (II) my own MS., No. 1, fol. 8a, which records thirty-four instances, omitting the following four 1 Sam. 18 17; 22 17; 24 11; 25 25; (III) Harley 1528, fol. 3b—4a, which records forty-nine and which I have printed in Vol. III, § 601, p. 15 &c.; (IV) the printed Massorah in Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible at the end of Vol. IV, which records nineteen only, and (V) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 10, which as usual, gives identically the same number.

תרי"ב = 602.

Kings. — Of this Rubric I have collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 234a—b, which records forty-six instances and which I have printed; (II) my own MS., No. 1, fol. 8a—b, which records thirty-five instances only, omitting the following eleven 1 Kings 8 4; 9 3; 13 4; 1 Kings 7 2, 13; 9 2, 27; 13 2; 16 1; 19 27, 28; (III) Harley 1528, fol. 4a, which records thirty-two only and which I have printed in Vol. III, § 602, p. 16 &c.; (IV) the printed Massorah in Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible at the end of Vol. IV which records forty-two, and (V) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 10, which gives identically the same number.

תרי"ג = § 603.

Isaiah. — Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 234b, which records thirty-one instances and which I have printed. The additional six marked MS. are as follows: (1) Isa. 1 6; (2) Isa. 1 18; (3) Isa. 1 20; (4) Isa. 29 24 these are from the Massorah Parva in Harley 5720 on the respective passages; (5) Isa. 28 4 is from the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710—11, and (6) Isa. 30 23 which is one of the few instances in which Ben-Asher and Ben-Naphtali differ in their readings of the consonantal text, is from the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,251 on this passage; (II) my own MS., No. 1, fol. 8b, which records thirty-three instances, omitting the following four Isa. 19 24; 30 23; 40 18; 44 26; (III) Harley 1528, fol. 4a, which records thirty-six instances and which I have printed in Vol. III, § 603, p. 17; (IV) the printed Massorah in Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible at the end of Vol. IV which records thirty-five, and (V) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 10, which gives identically the same as List IV.

תרי"ד = § 604.

Jeremiah. — Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 234b—235a, which records forty instances and which I have printed. The additional Jerem. 27 19 instance marked MS. is from the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,251 on this passage and exhibits one of the rare instances in which Ben-Asher and Ben-Naphtali differ in their readings of the consonantal text; (II) my own MS., No. 1, fol. 8b—9a which records thirty-five instances, omitting the following six, Jerem. 22 1; 25 29; 27 19; 34 16; 35 15; 38 14; (III) Harley 1528, fol. 4b and continued on 9a, which records fifty-one instances and which I have printed in Vol. III, § 604, p. 17 &c.; (IV) the printed Massorah in Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible at the end of Vol. IV which records thirty-five, and (V) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 10, which reproduces the same thirty-five instances.

תריה = 605.

Ezekiel. — Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 235a, which records fifty-nine. Ezek. 14 6 marked MS., which I have added is from the Massorah Parva on this passage in Add. 15,251. It exhibits one of the rare instances in which Ben-Asher and Ben-Naphtali differ as to the order of the words in the text; (II) my own MS., No. 1, fol. 9a, which records fifty-three instances, omitting the following seven; Ezek. 4 4; 5 15; 14 16; 16 10; 21 18; 23 36; 45 5; (III) Harley 1528, fol. 9a—b which records forty-eight instances, and which I have printed in Vol. III, § 605, p. 18 &c.; (IV) the printed Massorah in Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible at the end of Vol. IV which records fifty-four, and (V) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 10—11, which gives identically the same fifty-four instances.

תריז = § 606.

The Minor Prophets. — Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 235a—b, which records twenty-eight instances and which I have printed; (II) my own MS., No. 1, fol. 9b, which records twenty-six instances, omitting the following two יא וזחור יד which does not occur and which is, therefore rightly omitted and Jonah 1 16; (III) Harley 1528, fol. 9b, which records thirty-two and which I have printed in Vol. III, § 606, p. 19 &c.; (IV) the printed Massorah in Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible at the end of Vol. IV which gives twenty-nine, and (V) Walton's Polyglot Vol. VI, p. 11, which reproduces the same twenty-nine instances.

תרי"ז = § 607.

The Psalms. — Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) my own MS. No. 1, fol. 9b—10b, which I have printed and which records 194 instances only. The following twenty instances I have added from later editions Ps. 18 30; 25 5; 35 10; 39 7; 51 2; 58 7, 7; 59 6; 61 1; 66 4; 69 1; 81 1; 83 13; 85 1; 107 32; 119 94, 124; 121 8; 122 4; 132 12; whilst two which are in this List, viz. Ps. 83 13 באשרו and Ps. 107 32 באיירומתו בני ירושלה and Ps. 107 32 באיירומתו בני ירושלה I have inadvertently omitted; (II) Harley 1528, fol. 9b—10a, which I have printed in Vol. III, § 607, and which is simply a fragment, breaking off with Ps. 58 7; (III) the printed Massorah at the end of Vol. IV which, like List I, also records 194 instances, but varies somewhat in the examples, and (IV) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 11—12, which is a reproduction of Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (List III).

תריח = § 608.

Proverbs. — Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) my own MS., No. 1, fol. 11a—b, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah in Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible at the end of Vol. IV, and (III) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 12—13. Both these Lists give identically the same thirty-one instances only, and omit באיירומתו בני ירושלה Prov. 1 11 which I have also inadvertently omitted.

תריט = § 609.

Job. — Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) my own MS., No. 1, fol. 10b—11a, which records fifty-nine instances and which I have printed. The following ten instances I have added; two from the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710—11 marked MS., viz. Job 33 11; 40 11 and eight from later editions, viz. Job 5 4; 6 5; 21 19; 30 1, 8, 26; 34 25; 38 3; (II) the printed Massorah at the end of Vol. IV which also records fifty-nine only, and (III) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 12, which reproduces Jacob b. Chayim's List. Though the List which I have printed records fifty-

I have printed in Chwolson's Festschrift, p. 153; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 34b—35a at the end of Judges; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 10a; (IV) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 7a; (V) the printed Massorah Finalis at the end of Vol. IV, and (VI) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 14.

In analysing these six Lists it is necessary to remark that List I, as usual, omits to record both the variation with regard to the orthography of קֶרֶבֶל, of which there are nine instances in this book (Judg. 1 22, 23; 4 5; 20 18, 26, 31; 21 2, 19, 19; vide supra, § 618) and of the difference in the graphic signs affecting קָטָה when it denotes from us, of which there is one instance (Judges 21 1, vide infra, letter ז, § 549), and that the other five Lists follow this קָטָה.

List I. — This List records x instances altogether. They are as follows: (1) Judg. 1 21 which the Palestinians read יָשָׁב the singular and the Babylonians have it as יָשָׁב as the Kethiv and יָשָׁב as the Keri; (2) Judg. 8 3 the Palestinians read קֶרֶבֶל and the Babylonians have it as the Kethiv and קֶרֶבֶל as the Keri; (3) Judg. 9 33 the Palestinians read קֶרֶבֶל and the Babylonians קֶרֶבֶל; (4) Judg. 13 17 the Palestinians have קֶרֶבֶל as the Kethiv and קֶרֶבֶל in the text; (5) Judg. 20 36 the Palestinians read קֶרֶבֶל and the Babylonians קֶרֶבֶל, and (6) the same in Judg. 20 42 the Palestinians read קֶרֶבֶל and the Babylonians קֶרֶבֶל.

List II. — This List adds two more instances, viz. (1) Judg. 11 31 which the Palestinians read here קֶרֶבֶל and the Babylonians have קֶרֶבֶל as the Kethiv and קֶרֶבֶל as the Keri and (2) Judg. 19 8 the Palestinians have קֶרֶבֶל as the Kethiv and קֶרֶבֶל as the Keri and the Babylonians read it קֶרֶבֶל in the text. It, moreover, declares that the variation in 20 42 consists in the Palestinians reading here קֶרֶבֶל and the Babylonians קֶרֶבֶל with paragogic He and not in the prepositions קֶרֶבֶל and קֶרֶבֶל.

List III which also records eight, adding the same two instances as List II, differs from it in that it gives the variation in 20 42 as affecting the prepositions just as List I gives it. It differs, however, from both Lists I and II with regard to the variation in 8 3, inasmuch as it states that the Palestinians read here קֶרֶבֶל and that the Babylonians have קֶרֶבֶל as the Kethiv and קֶרֶבֶל as Keri.

List IV is exactly like List II. It declares that the variation in the eighth instance, viz. Judg. 20 42 consists in the Palestinians reading קֶרֶבֶל and the Babylonians קֶרֶבֶל with paragogic He and not in the prepositions קֶרֶבֶל and קֶרֶבֶל.

Lists V and VI record identically the same eight instances. The latter is simply a reproduction of Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah. They however coincide in the third instance, viz. Judg. 8 3 with List III in stating that the Palestinians have here קֶרֶבֶל both as Kethiv and Keri and that the Babylonians have קֶרֶבֶל as Kethiv and קֶרֶבֶל as Keri.

To this Rubric I am able to add from Codex No. 1—3 in the Paris National Library the important fact that Judg. 8 29, 30, as we now have it, constitute two separate verses according to the Palestinians and that according to the Babylonians it is one verse אִישׁ כְּבִישׁוֹ וְלִטְרוֹתָיו חָרַף וְעָרַף לְמַרְיָם.

Samuel. — Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in Chwolson's Festschrift, p. 152 &c.; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 75a—b at the end of Samuel; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 10a—b; (IV) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 7a; (V) the printed Massorah Finalis at the end of Vol. IV, and (VI) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 14.

List I. — As this List exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric and moreover as it is the prototype which the other Lists have copied more or less correctly, I shall subjoin an analysis of its contents. It records ten variations between these two rival Schools of textual redactors, which are as follows in their proper sequence: (1) 1 Sam. 15 6 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians have קָטָה as Kethiv and קָטָה as Keri; (2) 1 Sam. 18 25 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה; (3) 1 Sam. 22 9 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה; (4) 2 Sam. 6 23 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians have קָטָה as Kethiv and קָטָה as Keri; (5) 2 Sam. 13 21 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה without אָתָּה; (6) 2 Sam. 13 32 the Palestinians have קָטָה as Kethiv and קָטָה as Keri and the Babylonians have קָטָה both as Kethiv and Keri; (7) 2 Sam. 13 33 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה; (8) 2 Sam. 14 7 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה; (9) 2 Sam. 14 25 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה, and (10) 2 Sam. 15 3 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה.

List II. — Though this List also records ten instances it makes up this number differently. It omits 2 Sam. 14 25 which is in List I and adds 1 Sam. 4 15 according to which the Palestinians read here קָטָה and the Babylonians have קָטָה as Kethiv as קָטָה as Keri. It states that in 1 Sam. 18 25 the variation consists in the Palestinians reading קָטָה plene and the Babylonians reading it קָטָה defective and not in the absence and presence of אָתָּה. Moreover it reverses the variation in 2 Sam. 13 22. According to this List the Palestinians read here קָטָה and the Babylonians have קָטָה as Kethiv and קָטָה as Keri.

List III which also records ten instances, differs from List I in giving 1 Sam. 4 15 as one of the instances and omitting 2 Sam. 14 25, thus far coinciding with List II. It also coincides with List II with regard to the variation in 2 Sam. 13 22 against List I, but differs from List II and agrees with List I, viz. that the variation in 1 Sam. 18 25 consists in the absence and presence of אָתָּה.

List IV. — The only difference between this List and List III is that unlike this List but like List II, it states that the variation in 1 Sam. 18 25 is with regard to the orthography of קָטָה and not as to the absence or presence of אָתָּה.

List V and VI. — These two Lists fully agree with List III and exhibit the same variations from List I. The result of this comparison of the six forms of the official Lists with each other discloses the fact that they record altogether twelve instances only, in which these two rival Schools of textual redactors vary in Samuel. To these, however, are to be added the following eight from the Massorah in the different MSS. and editions: (1) On 1 Sam. 1 3 the printed Massorah Parva states that the Palestinians read it here קָטָה defective and the Babylonians קָטָה plene; (2) 1 Sam. 7 8 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה; vide infra, letter ז, § 549. (3—6). In four instances, viz. 1 Sam. 7 16; 10 3; 13 2; 30 27 the Palestinians read קָטָה in two words (vide supra, § 618) and the Babylonians קָטָה as one word; (7) 2 Sam. 6 19 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה (vide supra, letter ז, § 442) and (8) 2 Sam. 12 25 the Palestinians read קָטָה as one word and the Babylonians קָטָה as two words. Other variations are also mentioned, but these I could not verify.

תְּרִיבִיז — § 625.

Kings. — Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in Chwolson's Festschrift, p. 152 &c.; (II) 15,251, fol. 10b; (III) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 7a; (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, at the end of Vol. IV, and (V) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 14. In Arund. Orient. 16 the List on this book is unfortunately not given.

List I not only exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, but is the longest. It records twenty-three instances or twenty-four if we reckon both instances of קָטָה (1 Kings 16 1 12), whilst the other four Lists respectively register twenty-one or twenty-two with the two instances of קָטָה.

On collating these four Lists with the prototype we obtain the following results: (1) List I gives three instances more viz. 1 Kings 3 27 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה. In 1 Kings 10 22 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה. In 1 Kings 16 19 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה. (2) It moreover states that the Palestinians in 2 Kings 19 20 read קָטָה plene and the Babylonians קָטָה defective, which List II alone records; (3) it omits the statement that in 2 Kings 10 31 the Palestinians read קָטָה plene and the Babylonians קָטָה defective, which is also omitted in List II but is given in Lists III, IV and V, and (4) it omits the statement that in 2 Kings 10 31 the Palestinians read קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה which is also omitted in Lists III, IV and V, but is given in List II.

Some of the instances, however, which the four Lists have in common with the prototype exhibit differences with regard to the precise nature of these variations. In 1 Kings 17 4 List I emphatically states that the Palestinians read קָטָה with paragogic He and the Babylonians קָטָה, whereas the other four Lists reverse it; they state that the Palestinians read it קָטָה and the Babylonians קָטָה. In 2 Kings 9 15 List I states that the Palestinians have קָטָה as the Kethiv and קָטָה as the Keri and the Babylonians have לָיִד both as Keri, and Kethiv whereas the other Lists say the Palestinians read לָיִד and the Babylonians have לָיִד both as Keri and Kethiv. In 2 Kings 9 37 List I states that the Palestinians read הָיָה and the Babylonians read הָיָה, whereas the other Lists say the Palestinians read הָיָה and the Babylonians read הָיָה. In 2 Kings 17 24 List I says the Palestinians read וְשָׂרְיָה and the Babylonians have וְשָׂרְיָה as the Kethiv and וְשָׂרְיָה as the Keri, whereas List II says the Palestinians read וְשָׂרְיָה and the Babylonians have וְשָׂרְיָה as Kethiv and וְשָׂרְיָה as Keri: In 2 Kings 21 12 List I says the Palestinians have שָׂמְרָיִם as Kethiv and שָׂמְרָיִם as Keri, whereas List II says the Palestinians read שָׂמְרָיִם and the Babylonians שָׂמְרָיִם.

Besides the instances recorded in the official Lists we have to add those which are given in the Massorah of the different MSS. and editions. In this book there are no fewer than twenty instances which affect the orthography of the name בִּרְדָּאָל (1 Kings 12 29, 32, 32, 33; 13 1, 4, 10, 11, 11, 32; 2 Kings 2 2, 2, 3, 23; 10 29; 17 28; 23 4, 15, 17, 19; vide infra, Additions to Vol. II, p. 713, § 618) and two variations with regard to מָנָט (1 Kings 20 23; 2 Kings 6 1, vide infra, letter מ, § 549). In 1 Kings 3 12 the Massorah in Orient. 2626—28 states that the Palestinians read בְּרִדְרִי and the Babylonians בְּרִדְרִי. In 1 Kings 16 81 on the Massorah Parva states that the Babylonians read אֵיזְבֵּל. In 1 Kings 20 33 the Massorah in Orient. 1478 states that the Palestinians have וְהִלְשֵׁתָהּ as the Kethiv and וְהִלְשֵׁתָהּ as Keri and the Babylonians have מָנָט both as Kethiv and Keri (see Introduction, p. 438 &c.). In 1 Kings 20 43 the Palestinians read וְעִלְיָהוּ and the Babylonians have אֶל as Kethiv and אֶל as Keri (comp. The Massorah, letter מ, § 514). In 2 Kings 8 12 the Palestinians read וְעִלְיָהוּ defective and the Babylonians וְעִלְיָהוּ plene (comp. the Massorah in Harley 5710—11 on Ps. 17 14 and the Introduction, p. 213).

וְהִלְשֵׁתָהּ = § 626.

Isaiah. — Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009 which I have printed in Chwolson's Festschrift, p. 154 &c.; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 147a—b at the end of Isaiah; (III) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 9b &c.; (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, at the end of Vol. IV, and (V) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 14.

List I not only exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric but is the longest. It records twenty-three instances, whilst Lists II, IV and V respectively record eighteen and List III records seventeen only. A collation of the four Lists with the prototype discloses the following results: (I) List I records no fewer than five instances which are absent in Lists II, IV and V, viz. Isa. 3 24 which the Palestinians read הָיָה defective and the Babylonians הָיָה plene. In Isa. 14 26 the Palestinians read הָיָה defective and the Babylonians הָיָה plene. In Isa. 31 8 the Palestinians read וְהָיָה il s'enfuit, and he takes flight, the preposition with the suffix third person singular masculine, whereas the Babylonians read וְהָיָה the adverb of negation and construe it with the following i. e. וְהָיָה וְהָיָה and he shall flee, but not from or before the sword &c. In Isa. 56 6, as in 56 3, the Palestinians read וְהָיָה and the Babylonians וְהָיָה and in Isa. 59 6 the Palestinians read הָיָה the plural construct and the Babylonians הָיָה the singular. List III, which records seventeen only, also omits the instance in Isa. 37 9 where the Palestinians read וְהָיָה and the Babylonians וְהָיָה. It is to be remarked that whilst the four Lists omit these five or six instances they do not record a single instance which is not recorded in List I.

In four of the instances, however, which the four Lists have in common with the prototype, they exhibit differences with regard to the precise nature of these variations. On Isa. 23 12, List I states that the Palestinians read הָיָה and the Babylonians read it הָיָה, whilst the four Lists state that the Palestinians have הָיָה as the Kethiv and הָיָה as Keri. In Isa. 44 27, List I states that the Palestinians read וְהָיָה plene and the Babylonians read it וְהָיָה defective, whilst according to the four Lists the reverse is the case, the Palestinians write it defective and the Babylonians plene. In Isa. 46 8, List I simply states that the Palestinians read וְהָיָה and the Babylonians write it וְהָיָה with the prefix Vav, whilst the four Lists state that the Babylonians have וְהָיָה as the Kethiv and וְהָיָה as Keri. In Isa. 56 3, List I states that the Palestinians read וְהָיָה and the Babylonians וְהָיָה, whereas according to the four Lists the reverse is the case, the Palestinians read וְהָיָה and the Babylonians וְהָיָה.

Besides the instances recorded in the official Lists we have to add those which are given in the Massorah of the different MSS. and the editio princeps on sundry passages.

There are first of all three variations with regard to מָנָט (Isa. 59 9, 11; 64 6, vide infra, letter מ, § 549). On Isa. 3 17 the printed Massorah Parva states that the Babylonians read מָנָט with Pathach. According to the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710—11 the Palestinians read מָנָט defective in Isa. 13 16 and the Babylonians מָנָט plene (see my Introduction, p. 213). According to Codex Heidenheim the Palestinians read Isa. 20 2 as one verse and the Babylonians read it as two verses. In Isa. 27 8 the Massorah of Orient. 2201 states that instead of מָנָט which is the Palestinian reading, the Babylonians read מָנָט. According to the Massorah in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 30 32 the Palestinians read here מָנָט and the Babylonians מָנָט. On Isa. 37 36 the Massorah in Orient. 2201 states that the Babylonians read here מָנָט with Kametz. On Isa. 38 14 the Massorah in Codex Heidenheim states that the Babylonians read מָנָט instead of מָנָט. In Isa. 48 14 the Massorah in Orient. 2201 states that the Palestinians read מָנָט, whilst the Babylonians read it מָנָט with Kametz. On Isa. 55 5 the Massorah in Add. 15,251, states that the Palestinians read מָנָט and the Babylonians מָנָט. On Isa. 66 24 the Massorah in Add. 15,251 states that מָנָט is the Palestinian reading and that the Babylonians read it מָנָט. For other variations which I have not adopted because no MSS. are specified where they occur, see my Introduction, p. 215 &c.

וְהִלְשֵׁתָהּ = § 627.

Jeremiah. — Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in Chwolson's Festschrift 155 &c.; (II) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 9b &c.; (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, at the end of Vol. IV, and (IV) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 14 &c. In Arund. Orient. 16 the leaves are missing at the end of Jeremiah where the official List is generally given at the end of the book.

List I. — As is usually the case, this official List which exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric, is the longest. It records forty-two instances, whilst Lists II, III and IV record thirty-four only, and omit identically the same nine instances, which are as follows: (1) Jerem. 4 30 which the Palestinians read מָנָט and the Babylonians have מָנָט as Kethiv and מָנָט as Keri; (2) Jerem. 13 18 where the Palestinians read וְהָיָה plene and the Babylonians וְהָיָה defective; (3) Jerem. 13 20 where the Palestinians have מָנָט as Kethiv and מָנָט as Keri, whilst the Babylonians have מָנָט both as Kethiv and Keri; (4) Jerem. 23 35 the Palestinians read וְהָיָה and the Babylonians וְהָיָה; (5) Jerem. 26 24 the Palestinians read מָנָט and the Babylonians מָנָט; (6) Jerem. 27 19 the Palestinians read וְהָיָה and the Babylonians וְהָיָה; (7) Jerem. 35 11 the Palestinians read וְהָיָה and the Babylonians וְהָיָה; (8) Jerem. 35 17 the Palestinians read מָנָט defective and the Babylonians מָנָט plene, and (9) Jerem. 52 2 where the Palestinians read וְהָיָה plene and the Babylonians וְהָיָה defective. The three Lists, however, give one instance which the prototype has not, viz. Lists II, III and IV record as the thirty-fourth instance that in Jerem. 52 2 the Palestinian read מָנָט and the Babylonians מָנָט which is absent in List I.

In six instances however which the three Lists have in common with the prototype they exhibit differences with regard to the precise nature of these variations: (1) In Jerem. 8 7 List I states that the Palestinians have וְהָיָה both as Kethiv and Keri and that the Babylonians have וְהָיָה as Kethiv and וְהָיָה as Keri, whilst Lists II, III and IV state that the difference consists in the Palestinians reading here וְהָיָה and that the Babylonians have וְהָיָה as Kethiv and וְהָיָה as Keri; (2) in Jerem. 10 18 Lists I and II state that the Palestinians read וְהָיָה plene and the Babylonians וְהָיָה defective, whilst Lists III and IV state that the Palestinians read it וְהָיָה without Vav and the Babylonians וְהָיָה with Vav plene; (3) in Jerem. 29 7 List I states that the Palestinians read וְהָיָה and the Babylonians וְהָיָה defective, whereas List II says that the Babylonians have וְהָיָה as Kethiv and וְהָיָה as Keri, whilst Lists III and IV state that the Babylonians have וְהָיָה as the Kethiv; (4) in Jerem. 33 3 List I states that the Palestinians read וְהָיָה and the Babylonians write it וְהָיָה, whereas List II states that the Babylonians have וְהָיָה as Kethiv and וְהָיָה as Keri, whilst Lists III and IV state that the Palestinians read וְהָיָה and the Babylonians have וְהָיָה as Kethiv and וְהָיָה as Keri, and (5) in Jerem. 42 6, according to List I the Palestinians have מָנָט as the Kethiv and מָנָט as Keri and the Babylonians read מָנָט without Keri, whereas according to Lists II, III and IV the Palestinians simply read מָנָט and the Babylonians מָנָט.

To the instances recorded in the official Lists we have to add the following sixteen which are given in the Massorah of the different MSS. and of the editio princeps on the several passages.

4227, fol. 200a; (III) Codex Bodley No. 179 in Neubauer's Catalogue; (IV) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 7a—9b; (V) the printed Massorah Finalis at the end of Vol. IV, and (VI) Walton's Polyglot, p. 15.

List I. — Here again we find that this List, which exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric, is the longest. It records four instances, whilst all the other five Lists record two only (Cant. 1 9; 7 2) and omit identically the same two, viz. Cant. 3 2 which according to List I the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה plene and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה defective and 4 9 which according to the same List, the Palestinians read וְלִבְבָתֵי plene in the second clause and the Babylonians read וְלִבְבָתֵי defective in both clauses.

Besides the omissions the five Lists vary in the wording of the instances in which they coincide with List I. Thus List I states that in Cant. 1 9 the Babylonians have לִבְבָתֵי both as Kethiv and Keri, whilst Lists II, III and IV simply state that the Babylonians have it as Kethiv without adding the Keri. This is important, since it shows that they use Kethiv to denote write it, spell it and not in the sense of textual reading which has an official marginal reading or Keri. This is corroborated by the wording of the second instance. List I says that the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה the singular in Cant. 7 2 and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה the plural without any adjunct, whilst all the other five Lists state that the Babylonians write it so (וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה) that is, write so, or have it in the text as the substantive reading without any variant.

Ruth. — Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009 which I have printed in Chwolson's Festschrift, p. 162, 163; (II) Orient. 4227, fol. 199b; (III) Codex Bodley No. 179 in Neubauer's Catalogue; (IV) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 7a—7b; (V) the printed Massorah Finalis at the end of Vol. IV, and (VI) Walton's Polyglot, p. 15.

Though these six Lists severally record seven instances only, yet a careful collation of the five Lists with List I and with each other discloses the fact that they actually yield eleven instances, since some of these Registers not only give passages which are absent in the other Lists, but omit some which the others record, as will be seen from the following Table. The numbers in the columns indicate the order in which they are given in the respective Lists.

VI	V	IV	III	II	I
*	*	3	3	3	2	לִבְבָתֵי וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה	Ruth 1 6
3	3	*	*	*	*	לִבְבָתֵי הָאֵל	" 1 6
5	5	5	5	5	3	לִבְבָתֵי וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה	" 1 14
*	*	4	4	4	*	לִבְבָתֵי וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה כֹּל	" 2 7
4	4	*	*	*	*	לִבְבָתֵי וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה כֹּל לִבְבָתֵי וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה הָאֵל	" 2 7
2	2	2	2	2	*	לִבְבָתֵי כֹּל אֲשֶׁר	" 2 11
*	*	*	*	*	4	לִבְבָתֵי קִרְבֵי כֹּל	" 2 20
1	1	1	1	1	1	לִבְבָתֵי כֹּל אֲשֶׁר	" 3 5
6	6	6	6	6	5	לִבְבָתֵי כִנְפֵי הָאֵל	" 3 9
*	*	*	*	*	6	לִבְבָתֵי לִגְאוֹל הָאֵל	" 4 6
7	7	7	7	7	7	לִבְבָתֵי תְּלִיחַת כֹּל לִבְבָתֵי תְּלִיחַת הָאֵל	" 4 18

To these eleven instances in the official Lists are to be added two, viz. Ruth 2 7, which according to the Massorah in Harley 5710—11 the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה plene and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה defective and Ruth 3 13, which according to the printed Massorah Parva, the Palestinians read לִבְבָתֵי with majuscular Nun and the Babylonians לִבְבָתֵי with majuscular Lamed.

As to the differences in the wording of the instances which all the Lists have in common, I shall simply specify those which corroborate my statement in the preceding Rubric with regard to the import of the expression בְּרִיב. In Ruth 1 6 List I states that the Babylonians have וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה both as Kethiv and Keri (בת וקרי) i. e. they read it so without any variation. Now Lists II and III simply state that the Babylonians write it so (וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה). It is therefore evident that the expression בְּרִיב is here synonymous with וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה and is not used in the more restricted sense of textual reading in contrast to the marginal reading or Keri. The same is the case in Ruth 4 18. List I states that the Babylonians write it defective וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה, whilst List II states that the Babylonians have it defective וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה. It will be seen that בְּרִיב in List I is used as the definite reading without a Keri which is denoted by וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה in List II. I shall only mention one more variation in the wording. In Ruth 1 14 List I states that the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה without the Aleph and the Babylonians read it וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה with Aleph; whereas Lists II, IV, V and VI state that the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה. It will thus be seen that according to these four Lists both the Palestinians and Babylonians write it with Yod before the Nun.

Lamentations. — Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in Chwolson's Festschrift, p. 164; (II) Orient. 4227, fol. 200a; (III) Codex Bodley No. 179 in Neubauer's Catalogue; (IV) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 7a—9b; (V) the printed Massorah Finalis at the end of Vol. IV, and (VI) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 15.

Not only does List I exhibit the oldest form of this Rubric, but as usual, it is the longest. It records seven instances, whilst the other five Lists have six only which are absolutely identical and which are given in precisely the same order. List I gives two instances which are not given in any of the other Lists, viz. (1) Lament. 3 32 which the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה as Kethiv and וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה as Keri, and (2) Lament. 4 2 where the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה the singular and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה the plural. It however omits one instance which is in all the other five Lists, viz. Lament. 4 14 where the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה plene and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה defective.

Ecclesiastes. — Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in Chwolson's Festschrift, p. 193 &c.; (II) Orient. 4227, fol. 200a; (III) Codex Bodley No. 179 in Neubauer's Catalogue; (IV) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 7a—9b; (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, at the end of Vol. IV, and (VI) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 15.

As is usually the case, List I which is the oldest form of this Rubric is the longest. It records ten instances, whilst the other five record six only which are identically the same and in precisely the same order. They omit the following four instances: (1) Eccl. 6 10 where, according to List I, the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה or וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה; (2) Eccl. 8 2 where, according to the same List, the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה plene and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה defective; (3) Eccl. 12 12 where, according to the same List, the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה as Kethiv and וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה as Keri, and (4) Eccl. 12 13 where, according to the same List, the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה defective and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה plene.

It will be seen that the catchwords in List I for Eccl. 12 5 are לִבְבָתֵי אֵל בֵּית עִירָה and that I have supplied in brackets after לִבְבָתֵי which makes the variation to consist in the Palestinians reading וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה defective and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה plene as it is in the contrast. But as all the other five Lists emphatically state that the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה, there can hardly be any doubt that this is the variation in the passage before us and that וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה which List I gives here as the Babylonian reading is a clerical error for וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה. If the design of this List had been to record a variation in the orthography of וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה as constituting the difference between these two Schools of textual redactors, וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה would not have been omitted in the first instance.

There is one variation in the description of which the Lists are in conflict as to its precise nature. In Eccl. 4 1 where וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה occurs twice, the Palestinians according to List I, read it plene in the second instance only (וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה) and the Babylonians have it plene in both instances (בִּבְבָתֵי). Whereas according to all the other five Lists the Palestinians read it plene in both instances and the Babylonians defective in both instances.

תרליז = § 637.

Esther. — Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009 which I have printed in Chwolson's Festschrift, p. 1164; (II) Orient. 4227, fol. 200a; (III) Codex Bodley No. 179 in Neubauer's Catalogue; (IV) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 7a—1b; (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, at the end of Vol. IV, and (VI) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 15.

Lists I, II and VI record identically the same six instances in precisely the same order, viz. one in which the Palestinians read וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה and the Babylonians וְאִתְּבַרְבְּרָה (Esther 2 14) and five affecting the orthography of the name Ahasverus which according to the Palestinians is in four instances אַחַשְׁוֵרֶשׁ without the first Vav (Esther 2 21; 3 12; 8 7, 10) and once it is אַחַשְׁוֵרֶשׁ without both Vavs (Esther 10 1); whilst according to the Babylonians they form no exception to the normal orthography, but are written אַחַשְׁוֵרֶשׁ. (Vide supra, letter א, § 331.) List II records five only omitting Esther 8 10, whilst the other Lists record four only; they not only omit Esther 8 10, but also the instance in verse 7 of the same chapter. These omissions are manifestly due to the carelessness of Scribes.

To these six instances I am able to add two from the Massorah in the MSS.: (1) In Esther 2 3 according to Cambridge Add. 465 the Palestinians read אֱלִיָּהּ and the Babylonians אֱלִיָּהּ as in verse 14 of the same chapter, and (2) in Esther 8 4 according to Harley 5710—11, the Palestinians read שְׂרָפָה defective and the Babylonians שְׂרָפָה plene. רַפְּהָה in Esther 9 25 which I have given in the notes on this passage as a Babylonian reading following Dr. Baer is to be cancelled, since it simply exhibits an ordinary variation. (Vide supra, letter ז, § 99.)

תּוֹרָה = § 638.

Daniel. — Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in Chwolson's Festschrift, p. 164 &c.; (II) Orient. 4227, fol. 200a; (III) Codex Bodley No. 179 in Neubauer's Catalogue; (IV) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 7a—9b; (V) the printed Massorah Finalis at the end of Vol. IV, and (VI) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, § 15.

List I, as usual, not only exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric, but is the longest. It records nine instances, whilst the other five Lists record identically the same eight only, in exactly the same order. The additional instance in List I is Dan. 11 44 where the Palestinians read וְשִׁמְשֵׁם plene and the Babylonians וְשִׁמְשֵׁם defective.

But even in the eight passages which the five Lists have in common with the prototype, they differ in no fewer than in four instances as to the precise nature of the variation. Thus (1) in Dan. 3 21 according to List I the Palestinians write it מְשִׁירָהּ or מְשִׁירָהּ and the Babylonians מְשִׁירָהּ. According to List II the Palestinians write it מְשִׁירָהּ and the Babylonians מְשִׁירָהּ. According to List III the Palestinians write it מְשִׁירָהּ and the Babylonians מְשִׁירָהּ, whilst according to Lists V and VI, which agree with List IV, the Palestinians read it מְשִׁירָהּ; (2) in Dan. 3 28 according to List I the Palestinians read it מְשִׁירָהּ, and the Babylonians write it מְשִׁירָהּ; according to Lists II, IV, V and VI the Palestinians read it מְשִׁירָהּ and the Babylonians write it מְשִׁירָהּ, whilst according to List III the Babylonians write it מְשִׁירָהּ; (3) in Dan. 9 7 according to Lists I, II and IV the Palestinians read כִּיִּם and the Babylonians כִּיִּים; according to List III the reverse is the case, the Palestinians read כִּיִּים and the Babylonians כִּיִּים; whilst according to Lists V and VI the Palestinians read כִּיִּים and the Babylonians כִּיִּים, and (4) in Dan. 9 8 according to Lists I, II, III and IV the Palestinians read לְשִׁירֵי without the Vav conjunctive and the Babylonians לְשִׁירֵי with the Vav conjunctive, whilst according to Lists V and VI the Palestinians have simply לְשִׁירֵי and the Babylonians לְשִׁירֵי.

To the nine instances recorded in the official Lists I can add two from the Massorah in the MSS., viz.: (1) In Dan. 8 24 according to the Earl of Leicester's Codex on Levit. 19 2 the Palestinians read it קְרִישִׁים defective and the Babylonians קְרִישִׁים (vide infra, letter ק, § 45), and (2) in Dan. 11 44 according to Codex No. 1—3 in the Paris National Library the Palestinians read קְרִישִׁים with Aleph and the Babylonians קְרִישִׁים with He.

תּוֹרָה = § 639.

Ezra-Nehemiah. — Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in Chwolson's Festschrift, p. 165; (II) Orient. 4227, fol. 200a; (III) Codex Bodley No. 179 in Neubauer's Catalogue; (IV) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 7a—9b; (V) the printed Massorah Finalis at the end of Vol. IV, and (VI) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 15.

List I. — This List, which exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric, is exceptional here inasmuch as it is shorter than Lists II, III and IV. It records seven instances only, which is also the case in Lists V and VI where identically the same seven passages are given in precisely the same order, whilst Lists II, III and IV record eight instances. The additional instance is Neh. 7 15 where the Palestinians read כְּרִי and the Babylonians have כְּרִי as Kethiv and כְּרִי as Keri.

In three of the instances, however, which the other Lists have in common with List I, some of them differ as to the precise nature of the variations. Thus (1) in Neh. 3 37 according to List I with which Lists II, III and IV coincide, the Palestinians read אֶל־עֵינֵי and the Babylonians אֶל־עֵינֵי, whilst according to Lists V and VI the Palestinians also read in this verse אֶל־עֵינֵי without the prefix Vav and the Babylonians אֶל־עֵינֵי with the prefix; (2) in Neh. 6 2 according to List I with which Lists III and IV agree, the Palestinians read כְּכִרִים and the Babylonians have כְּכִרִים as Kethiv and כְּכִרִים as Keri; according to List II the Palestinians read it כְּכִרִים with Caph prefix and the Babylonians have כְּכִרִים as Kethiv and כְּכִרִים as Keri, whilst according to Lists V and VI the Palestinians read it כְּכִרִים and the Babylonians have כְּכִרִים with the prefix Beth as Kethiv and כְּכִרִים with the prefix Caph as Keri, and (3) in Ezra 10 3 according to List I the Palestinians read כְּצָרָה with the prefix Beth and the Babylonians have כְּצָרָה as Kethiv and כְּצָרָה with Caph as Keri with which Lists III and IV agree; according to List II the Palestinians read it כְּצָרָה with Caph and the Babylonians have כְּצָרָה with Beth as Kethiv and כְּצָרָה with Caph as Keri, whilst according to Lists V and VI the Palestinians read כְּצָרָה the singular and the Babylonians have the singular as Kethiv and the plural as Keri.

To the eight instances recorded in the official Lists we have to add four from the Massorah of the different MSS., three which affect the orthography of the name בְּרִיאֵל (Ezra 2 28; Neh. 7 32; 11 31, comp. Appendix to Vol. II, p. 713, § 634*) and one which affects the pointing of כִּשְׁטָה when it denotes from us (Ezra 10 14, vide infra, letter ז, § 550).

תּוֹרָה = § 640.

Chronicles. — Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in Chwolson's Festschrift, p. 160 &c.; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 282a, at the end of Chronicles; (III) Orient. 4227, fol. 299a; (IV) Codex Bodley No. 179 in Neubauer's Catalogue; (V) Codex Merzbacher, fol. 7a—9b; (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, at the end of Vol. IV, and (VII) Walton's Polyglot, Vol. VI, p. 15.

List I. — Here again the form of the List which is the oldest is also the longest. It records fourteen instances, whilst the other six Lists record eleven which are not only identical, but are enumerated in precisely the same order. The three additional instances are as follows: (1) In 1 Chron. 4 20 according to List I the Palestinians have וְהַלֵּל as Kethiv and וְהַלֵּל as Keri and the Babylonians have וְהַלֵּל both as Kethiv and Keri; (2) in 2 Chron. 7 6 according to List I the Palestinians have סְתֻצִים as Kethiv and סְתֻצִים as Keri and the Babylonians read it סְתֻצִים or סְתֻצִים, and (3) in 2 Chron. 17 8 according to List I the Palestinians read אֶרְצָהּ plene and the Babylonians אֶרְצָהּ defective.

As to eleven passages which the six Lists have in common with List I, they differ in no fewer than eight instances with regard to the precise nature of the variations. Thus (1) in 1 Chron. 7 28 according to List I with which Lists VI and VII agree, the Palestinians read עֲרִיקָה in two words and the Babylonians read it עֲרִיקָה as one word, whilst according to Lists II, III, IV and V the Palestinians read it עֲרִיקָה in two words and the Babylonians read it עֲרִיקָה in one word, as in Josh. 15 22; (2) in 1 Chron. 7 36 according to List I the Palestinians read סָהַ and the Babylonians have סָהַ as Kethiv and סָהַ as Keri, whilst according to Lists II, III, IV, V, VI and VII, the Babylonians on the contrary have סָהַ as Kethiv and סָהַ as Keri; (3) in 1 Chron. 10 14 according to List I with which Lists II, III, IV and V coincide, the Palestinians read הַמְּלִיכָה and the Babylonians have הַמְּלִיכָה as Kethiv and הַמְּלִיכָה as Keri, whereas according to Lists VI and VII the Palestinians read הַמְּלִיכָה and the Babylonians have הַמְּלִיכָה as Kethiv and also הַמְּלִיכָה as Keri. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that the first הַמְּלִיכָה which is here given as Kethiv is a mistake for הַמְּלִיכָה; (4) in 1 Chron. 12 3 according to List I the Palestinians have וְיִצְחָק as Kethiv and וְיִצְחָק as Keri and the Babylonians have וְיִצְחָק both as Kethiv and Keri with which List IV agrees, whilst according to Lists II, III, VI and VII the Palestinians write it וְיִצְחָק and no Keri is given; (5) in 1 Chron. 17 6 according to List I the Palestinians have עָקָה without saying whether they have any Kethiv and Keri. With this Lists II, IV, V, VI and VII agree; whereas List III declares that the הַמְבִטֵי they were sunk or settled, occurs twice. That is, with Kametz under the Beth, which is due to the pausal accent Athnach in contradistinction to the only other instance where this Hiphal preterite occurs and where it is with Sheva under the Beth (קָמֶצֶת Jerem. 38 22).

י" = § 14.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 245b, on Prov. 8 25, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 339a, on the same passage, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, also on the same passage.

ט" = § 15.

מְבַעֲתָהּ מְבַעֲתָהּ rings, rings of, or Tabbaoth is seven times plene in this form. That is, without and with the prefixes, whether as a plural noun or as a proper name. Normally this plural noun whether in the absolute or construct, is defective or without the Vav before the Tav. In this defective form it occurs twenty-nine times. As it is plene in seven instances only, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard the exceptional orthography, irrespective of the difference in the sense. Hence it not only includes two instances of this noun in the absolute with the prefix He (הַמְבַעֲתָהּ Exod. 28 23; Isa. 3 21) and three in the construct (מְבַעֲתָהּ Exod. 28 23, 26, 27), but two proper names (מְבַעֲתָהּ Ezra 2 43, Neh. 7 46).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 74a, on Exod. 28 23, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 70a, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 373a, on Ezra 2 43; (IV) the same MS., fol. 383b, on Neh. 7 46; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 417a, on Ezra 2 43; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 111b, on Exod. 28 23, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

List VI rightly adds at the end that in the two last instances it is a proper name (בֵּי בְרֵאשִׁית שֵׁם בֵּי). Lists III and IV, however, arrange this Rubric differently. They head it הַמְבַעֲתָהּ and after recording the five instances in which מְבַעֲתָהּ denotes rings they add at the end וְכֵן שֵׁם אִשֵּׁי הַמְבַעֲתָהּ.

ט"ז = § 16.

הַטְּהוֹרִי the clean, is five times defective. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 91a, on Levit. 14 57, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 153b, on Levit. 11 47; (III) the same MS., fol. 160b, on Levit. 14 57; (IV) the same MS., fol. 176a, on Levit. 24 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 222a, on Numb. 19 19, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 11 47. As all these Lists coincide in including לְטְהוֹרֵי the adjective with the prefix Lamed (Levit. 20 25) as one of the five instances, the heading ought more properly to be הַטְּהוֹרֵי בְלִישׁ.

With the prefix He this adjective occurs altogether eight times. It is plene in four instances (comp. הַטְּהוֹרֵי Gen. 8 20; Levit. 10 10; Zech. 3 5; 2 Chron. 13 11) and defective in four, which equally divides the two kinds of spelling. But with the addition of the instance with the prefix Lamed it gives the defectives the majority. As the defectives are restricted to the Pentateuch, List VI heads this Rubric הַטְּהוֹרֵי בְרֵאשִׁית הַטְּהוֹרֵי which, however, ought more properly to be הַטְּהוֹרֵי בְרֵאשִׁית.

הַטְּהוֹרֵי the clean, is in two instances plene. That is, in the Pentateuch in contradistinction to the four in which this adjective with the prefix He is defective, recorded in the preceding Rubric. By fixing the number at two the design of the Massorah is to militate against the recension which is represented by the celebrated Jerusalem Codex and which reads it הַטְּהוֹרֵי defective in Gen. 8 20, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Levit. 10 10. As is frequently the case, the qualifying adjunct בְרֵאשִׁית is omitted in the heading. We have seen in the preceding Rubric that outside the Pentateuch it is also plene in two instances.

י"ח = § 18.

לְטְהוֹרֵי to the clean, is twice Raphe. That is, with Sheva under the Lamed, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this adjective with the prefix Lamed occurs and where it is with Patach (Levit. 20 25).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181a, on Ezek. 22 26, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 279a, on the same passage.

י"ט = § 19.

טְהוֹרִים clean, occurs twice and is plene. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the recension which reads this adjective plural masculine טְהוֹרִים as it is in Prov. 15 26, where it is with the prefix Vav. This is attested by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 in Ezek. 36 25. The text here was originally טְהוֹרִים plene. The Nakdan, however, not only cancelled the Vav, but put the Massorah against it טְהוֹרֵי, denoting thereby that both the instances which constitute this Rubric and the only other passage where this adjective plural occurs with the prefix Vav are defective.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 93b, on Ezek. 36 25, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190a, on the same passage, and (III) the same MS., fol. 376a, on Ezra 6 20.

כ" = § 20.

טְהוֹרָה clean, occurs five times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. As this adjective feminine, which occurs altogether five times, is defective in three instances (Gen. 7 2, 8; Deut. 14 11) and plene in two (Mal. 1 11; Ps. 19 10), the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the variation in its spelling.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 127a, on Mal. 1 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 178b, on Ps. 19 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 222b, on Mal. 1 11; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 32a, on Gen. 7 2; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal Supplement, fol. 129b; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 7 8; (VII) the same on Mal. 1 11, and (VIII) the same on Ps. 19 10.

The headings in Lists III, V, VI, VII and VIII which state that it is defective in three instances and plene in two (הַטְּהוֹרָה הַטְּהוֹרָה) indicate the design of this Massorah.

כ"א = § 21.

וְיִטְהַרְתֶּם and ye shall be clean, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 106b, on Numb. 31 24, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190a, on Ezek. 36 25; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 92a, on Numb. 31 24, and (IV) the same MS. on Ezek. 36 25.

כ"ב = § 22.

וְיִטְהַרְתֶּם thou shalt be made clean, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 182b, on Ezek. 24 13.

כ"ג = § 23.

וְיִטְהַרְתֶּם וְיִטְהַרְתֶּם and the priest shall pronounce him clean, occurs four times. The phrase "and the priest shall pronounce him clean," occurs five times and is restricted to this section. In the four instances which constitute this Rubric the verb is with the suffix third person singular masculine, viz. וְיִטְהַרְתֶּם, whilst in the fifth instance it is יִטְהַרְתֶּם אֵינִי. The design of the Massorah, by fixing the number at four, is to militate against the ancient reading וְיִטְהַרְתֶּם in verse 34 which was exhibited in the rival School of textual redactors, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 88b, on Levit. 13 6, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 62a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. As all the four instances are restricted to the same section, List II heads this Rubric more correctly בְּעֵינֵי רִי, whilst List III which heads it simply וְיִטְהַרְתֶּם is incorrect, since וְיִטְהַרְתֶּם by itself occurs six times (comp. Levit. 14 7; 16 19).

כ"ד = § 24.

וְיִטְהַרְתֶּם and I have cleansed, or will cleanse them, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this expression occurs and where it is וְיִטְהַרְתֶּם Ezek. 37 23. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 301b, on Neh. 13 30, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 429a, on the same passage.

כיה = § 25.

לְטַהֲרֵם to cleanse them, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb. 8 7, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As the two instances are restricted to the same section the heading ought more properly to be וּבְעֵינֵי.

כיו = § 26.

וַיִּטְהַרְוּ and they cleansed, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the Piel against its being confused with this sextiliteral which occurs in the first clause of the same verse and is pointed קִטְהַרְוּ being the Hithpael. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 388b, on Neh. 13 9.

כז = § 27.

הַמְטַהֵר that is, to be cleansed, occurs eleven times. That is, the Hithpael participle. In the only other instance where this quinqueliteral occurs it is pointed הַמְטַהֵר being the Piel participle. As the two forms occur in the same verse (Levit. 14 11) the Massorah indicates the variation. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 90b, on Levit. 14 11.

כח = § 28.

וְאָמַר and be thou clean, or and clean, occurs three times and is with Kametz . . . and once it is without the prefix Vav. Though it is in two instances the imperative singular masculine with the prefix Vav and Kametz under the He which is due to its pausal accent Soph-Pasuk (2 Kings 5 10, 13) and is in one instance the adjective with the prefix Vav (Job 17 9), the Massorah groups them together under the same Rubric because they have identically the same graphic signs.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, where it occurs twice: (I) on 2 Kings 5 13, which I have printed, and (II) on Job 17 9. It forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times with the prefix Vav and once without it. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 74.)

כט = § 29.

טַהַר purifying, or purification, is in three instances with inaudible He. This quadriliteral occurs four times within a few verses of each other. In two instances it is the masculine noun טַהַר with the suffix third person singular feminine i. e. טַהַרְתָּ which is Massoretically called טַהַרְתָּ (Levit. 12 4, 6), and in two instances the feminine noun indicated by the silent He which is Massoretically expressed by לֹא טַהַרְתָּ (Levit. 12 4, 5). As these two forms not only occur in the same section, but in the same verse (Levit. 12 4), the Massorah safeguards the instances in which the final He is not the suffix, but is the feminine. The third instance (טַהַרְתָּ) which is the preterite third person singular feminine with the prefix Vav (Levit. 12 7), seems only to have been added because of the Chateph-Pathach under the He, approaching as nearly as possible the Chateph-Kametz in טַהַרְתָּ. Hence טַהַרְתָּ in the verse immediately following (Levit. 12 8) which is with Tzere under the He is omitted.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 88b, on Levit. 12 4, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter gives the second part of the Rubric only, which gives the mnemonic sign. As the two Dagesh forms are used in connection with days (ימים Lists 12 4b, 6) and the two Raphe forms in connection with blood (דמים Levit. 12 4a, 5) the sign indicates it by stating that with blood it is concealed [i. e. the He is silent] and with days it is revealed [i. e. the He is audible].

טוב they are good, occurs twice in the Scriptures. For this Rubric see letter ט, § 114.

לא = § 31.

הַטַּיִבָּת thou hast done well, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 83a, on 1 Kings 8 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 260a, on 2 Chron. 6 8; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 206l, on 2 Kings 10 30; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 15, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 16.

As this Hiphil preterite second person singular masculine which occurs three times, is spelt differently, being in two instances without the Vav (הַטַּיִבָּתָה 1 Kings 8 18; 2 Kings 10 30) and in one instance with it (הַטַּיִבָּתָה 2 Chron. 6 8), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. The heading of this Rubric ought more properly to be לֹא טַיִבָּתָה as it is in the Massorah Parva of Add. 15,451, on 1 Kings 8 18 and 2 Kings 10 30. The Massorah Parva of Arund. Orient. 16, on 1 Chron. 6 8, where it is לֹא טַיִבָּתָה with Vav, remarks לֹא טַיִבָּתָה.

ליב = § 32.

טוב good, occurs five times with the accent in Proverbs. That is, with Revia. This adjective, which occurs about fifty-two times in Proverbs, has no less than eight different accents, four pausal and four non-pausal. In twelve instances it is with Soph-Pasuk (טוב Prov. 2 9; 13 21; 14 14, 22; 15 23; 16 29; 19 8; 20 23; 22 1; 24 23, 25; 28 10). In thirteen it is with Athnach (טוב 3 4; 11 23; 12 14; 13 2; 16 20; 17 20, 26; 18 5, 22; 19 2; 24 13; 25 27; 28 21). In three it is with Tipcha (טוב 4 2; 11 27; 13 15); in eleven with Munach (טוב 3 14; 8 19; 12 9, 25; 16 8, 16 19; 19 1; 28 6; 31 12, 18); in three with Mehupach (טוב 15 17; 16 32; 17 1); in three with Mercha (טוב 3 27; 25 7; 27 10); in two it is combined by Makeph to the next word (טוב 15 16; 22 9) and in the five instances which constitute this Rubric it has the pausal accent Revia.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I have collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 247b, on Prov. 12 2, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 389b, on Prov. 13 22, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage. There can hardly be any doubt that Rubrics must also exist which record and safeguard the instances in which this adjective is with some of the other accents in Proverbs, but these I have not as yet been able find in the MSS. to which I have had access.

ליג = § 33.

טוב is twice rendered in the Targum by fitting or suitable in this Pericope. That is in Bereshith = Gen. 1 1-6 8.

ליג = § 33b.

טוב is in five instances rendered in the Targum by befitting or suitable in the Pentateuch. These two forms of the Rubric, the one recording the instances in one Pericope only and the other giving all the passages in the Pentateuch in which the so-called Onkelos Targum renders טוב by תִּקַּח, do not occur in the printed Massorah. They are from Orient. 1379, fol. 35a, on the same passage.

ליד = § 34.

טוב אֶל־הַמֶּלֶךְ good to the King, occurs three times. Normally the adjective is combined with אֶל־הַמֶּלֶךְ. In this combination the phrase occurs ten times. (Vide supra, letter ט, § 585.) As it is in these three instances only that it is combined with the preposition אֶל the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

This Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 267b, on 2 Chron. 18 12.

ליה = § 35.

בטוב in good, is four times Raphe. That is, with Sheva under the Beth, Massoretically called Raphe, in contradistinction to the nine instances in which it is with Pathach called Dagesh, recorded in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 180b, on Ps. 25 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 263b, on Eccl. 2 1; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 265b, on Eccl. 7 14; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 289b, on Ps. 25 13; (V) Halle Ochlal, Ve-Ochlal II, § 15; (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 27 10, and (VII) the same on Ps. 25 13. The latter heads this Rubric בטוב, thus calling Sheva חטף. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 15a; § 24i.)

ליז = § 36.

בטוב in the good, is in nine instances with Dagesh. That is, with Pathach under the Beth, in contradistinction to the four specify the following seven only, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 52b, on Jerem. 31 12, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 36b, on Gen. 45 23; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Hosea 10 11; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 119a, on Isa. 1 19; (V) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 15; (VI) the printed Massorah on Neh. 9 25, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ב, § 7.

וַ = § 56.

וַ in the good, occurs four times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. That is, in contradistinction to the four instances in which this quadriliteral is וַ with Cholem, recorded above in § 35.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 181a, on Ps. 27 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 216b, on Ps. 128 5; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 323b, on Ps. 27 13, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Prov. 11 10. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 75.)

וַ = § 57.

וַ from the good, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 31a, on Gen. 45 23.

וַ = § 58.

וַ my goodness, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 52b, on Jerem. 31 14, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 51a, on Exod. 33 19, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 77a, on the same passage.

וַ = § 59.

וַ his goodness, occurs three times and is plene. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 124b, on Zech. 9 17, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 230b, on Job 20 21; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 315a, on Zech. 9 17; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 294b, on Hosea 3 5; (V) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 15, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Job 20 21.

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the termination וַ which was originally וַ both for the third person masculine and feminine and which later redactors altered into וַ. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 47 and § 48.) In Zech. 9 17 the primitive He yields a better sense. It refers to the immediate antecedent וַ the land, the goodness and beauty of which is shown in the next clause, where it is described as yielding corn and new wine (comp. Deut. 33 38) which make the young men and maidens cheerful. Accordingly it ought to be pointed וַ and וַ (see Nowack, Die kleinen Propheten, on Zech. 9 17).

וַ = § 60.

וַ they span, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 126a, on Exod. 35 25.

וַ = § 61.

וַ they daubed, or plastered, occurs twice, once with Pathach and once with Kametz. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ו, § 34. As it is in one instance with the prefix Vav (Levit. 14 42), this Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once with the prefix Vav and once without it. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 41.)

וַ = § 62.

וַ plastered, occurs twice once plene and once defective. As this Niphal infinitive construct which occurs twice only, is spelt differently within a few verses, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Levit. 14 43, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The heading ought properly to be וַ or וַ, since both instances not only occur in the same book but in the same section.

וַ = § 63.

וַ fillets or phylacteries, occurs three times in this form . . . in Deut. 11 18 it is defective. That is, the plural form with the prefixes Lamed and Vav Lamed which is in all the three instances without the second Vav or the Vav plural, is in two instances with Vav after the Teth and once it is entirely defective or without both Vavs.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 65a, on Exod. 13 16, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 75a, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 64a, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 271b, on Deut. 11 18; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Exod. 13 16, and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

As List IV indicates the orthography of this expression most plainly, I subjoin it in the foot-note.¹ It will be seen that according to this Massorah the instance for which the catchword is וַ with Kametz or the second person singular i. e. Deut. 6 8 is entirely defective, in contradistinction to וַ with Segol or the second person plural i. e. Deut. 11 18 which is וַ with the first Vav. This is attested by the best Standard Codices, as will be seen from the following analysis of the readings in the three passages:

(1) Exodus 13 16.

וַ with the first Vav, Orient. 4445; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,160 second hand; Orient. 2349 &c.

וַ with the second Vav, Add. 21,160 first hand.

וַ without either Vav, Add. 15,451.

(2) Deuteronomy 6 8.

וַ without either Vav or entirely defective, Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11 with the Massorah on it וַ חרם' חרם' מלי' Add. 15,250 with the Massorah on it וַ חרם' מלי' Add. 15,251 with the same Massorah on it that so written it is unique; Add. 15,451 with the Massorah on it וַ חרם' מלי' Add. 21,160 with the Massorah on it by a second hand וַ חרם' מלי'.

None of the MSS. which I have collated exhibit any variation here.

(3) Deuteronomy 11 18.

וַ with the first Vav, Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 second hand; Add. 21,160.

וַ without either Vav, Add. 15,451 first hand.

From the above analysis it would appear that the statement וַ in List I which I have printed and which is also that of Lists II and III describing the passage in connection with the second וַ i. e. Deut. 11 18 as defective, is based upon a recension of the text which is also exhibited in Add. 1545 first hand. It may, however, be that וַ does not refer to the second וַ but to the second of the three passages. The printed Massorah (List VI) does not aid us in the deciding this point, since its language is doubtful. We see from the addition of Jacob b. Chayim at the end that a difference of opinion obtained among the textual authorities with regard to the precise orthography of this expression.²

1 לַמַּסּוֹת וְלַמַּסּוֹת בְּבִי' בְּלִי' וְזוֹ קְרָאָהּ וְאוֹ חָרַם' חָרַם' וְסִבְחָהּ וְקִשְׂרָהּ לְאוֹת עַל יַד וְהִי לַמַּסּוֹת, וְקִשְׂרָהּ אִתּוֹ לְאוֹת עַל. וְהִיא לְאוֹת עַל יְדֵכָהּ קְרָאָהּ חָרַם' חָרַם'.
2 לַמַּסּוֹת וְלַמַּסּוֹת בְּבִי' וְזוֹ לְאוֹת עַל יְדֵכָהּ. וְקִשְׂרָהּ אִתּוֹ, בְּחַרְיָ. וְקִשְׂרָהּ לְאוֹת לַמַּסּוֹת כְּחֹבֵה. וְעֵינֵי פְלִגְמָה דְרִי'.

וַ = § 64.

וַ and I have or will cast out, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 157a, on Jerem. 16 13. As this Hiphil preterite first person singular with the prefix Vav not only occurs twice, but both the instances are restricted to the same book, the heading ought more properly to be וַ בְּכַסְפָּהּ.

וַ = § 65.

וַ he shall be cast, or cast down, occurs three times in the Scriptures . . . twice plene and once defective. This Hophal future third person singular masculine, which occurs three times only, exhibits two variations. In the first place it is plene in two instances (Ps. 37 24; Prov. 16 33) and defective in one passage (Job 41 1). And in the second place it is twice with Kametz (Ps. 37 24; Job 41 1) which is due to the pausal accents Athnach and Soph-Pasuk and once with the normal Pathach (Prov. 16 33). The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to safeguard these variations.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, four in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 184a, on Ps. 37 24, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 292b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 342b, on Prov. 16 88; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Ps. 37 24; (VI) the same on Prov. 16 33; (VII) the same on Job 41 1, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 39. These eight Lists exhibit three recensions of this Massorah.

Recension I. — Lists I, II, III and VI, which exhibit the same recension, are restricted simply to safeguarding the variation in the plene and defective orthography. Hence they head this Rubric יִשְׁלַג בְּגִבְיֵי מַלְאֲכֵי הַשָּׁמַיִם without noticing the variation in the graphic signs, two being with Kametz and one with Pathach.

Recension II. — This Recension, which is exhibited in Lists IV and V, emphatically states that two of the instances are defective and one is plene. Thus List IV gives this Rubric as follows: יִשְׁלַג בְּגִבְיֵי מַלְאֲכֵי הַשָּׁמַיִם וְכִי יִשְׁלַג בְּגִבְיֵי מַלְאֲכֵי הַשָּׁמַיִם לֹא יִשְׁלַג בְּגִבְיֵי מַלְאֲכֵי הַשָּׁמַיִם אֲזַי יִשְׁלַג בְּגִבְיֵי מַלְאֲכֵי הַשָּׁמַיִם. To the same effect is the Massorah of Add. 15,251, which remarks on Prov. 16 3, 88 יִשְׁלַג בְּגִבְיֵי מַלְאֲכֵי הַשָּׁמַיִם וְכִי יִשְׁלַג בְּגִבְיֵי מַלְאֲכֵי הַשָּׁמַיִם לֹא יִשְׁלַג בְּגִבְיֵי מַלְאֲכֵי הַשָּׁמַיִם אֲזַי יִשְׁלַג בְּגִבְיֵי מַלְאֲכֵי הַשָּׁמַיִם. It is, therefore, evident that this recension is based upon Codices which read defective in Ps. 37 24 and this reading is exhibited in the first edition of the Bible, Soncino 1488 and in the Complutensian. It will be seen that this Recension also safeguards the variation in the graphic signs.

Recension III. — This Recension, which is exhibited in List VIII, is headed יִשְׁלַג בְּגִבְיֵי מַלְאֲכֵי הַשָּׁמַיִם. Its design is neither to safeguard the plene and defective orthography of this Hophal future third person singular masculine nor the Kametz and Pathach, but simply the passages in which it is with Dagesh in the Teth. Accordingly it is based upon Codices in which this Hophal future, whether plene or defective, is with Dagesh in Ps. 37 24 as well as in Job 41 1. To this recension of the text belong Orient. 2201, which is one of the oldest dated MSS. of the whole Bible; Add. 15,451; the editio princeps of the Bible, Soncino 1488; the third edition, Brescia 1494 and the Salonica edition of the Psalms &c. 1515 which have it with Dagesh in Ps. 37 24; and Arund. Orient. 16; Orient. 2375; the first second, third and fourth editions, of the Bible which exhibit the Dagesh in Job 41 4.

סוֹרֵי rows of, occurs three times and is plene. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this plural construct against being made conformable to the parallel passages in Exod. 28 17 and 1 Kings 7 12 where precisely the same phrase occurs and where it is sof the plural absolute.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 61b, on Exod. 39 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 221a, on 1 Kings 7 2; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 83a, on Exod. 39 10; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 81a, on 1 Kings 6 36; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 139a, on Exod. 39 10; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on 1 Kings 6 36.

ס"ז = § 67.

סוֹרֵי the piles, hemorrhoids, is in two instances both the Kethiv and the Keri. That is, in contradistinction to the other five instances in which this expression is the textual reading, but for which the official reading or Keri substitutes סוֹרֵי. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 72.) This separate form of the Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ו, § 37.

ס"ח = § 68.

סוֹרֵי in the reins, or inward parts, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 239a, on Job 38 36, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 296b, on Ps. 51 8, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Job 38 36.

ס"ט = § 69.

סוֹרֵי in the mud or mire, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this quadriliteral occurs and is with Sheva under the Beth. (Vide supra, Zech. 10 6.) Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 58b, on Jerem. 38 6, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 259b, on the same passage. The heading of the latter, viz. סוֹרֵי, indicates the design of this Rubric.

ע = § 70.

עוֹרֵי their villages, or castles, occurs three times. That is, this plural noun with the suffix third person plural without and with the prefix, is in two instances without the Vav plural and once with it (עוֹרֵי 1 Chron. 6 39). In the only other instance where this noun is with the suffix third person plural, it is עוֹרֵי the singular (Ps. 69 26). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb. 31 10.

ע"א = § 71.

עוֹרֵי their castles, is three times plene in the Scriptures in this form. That is, the plural form of this noun with different prefixes and suffixes is in three instances with the Vav plural. Whilst the preceding Rubric is restricted to the orthography of this noun with the suffix third person plural, the design of this Rubric is to record the instances in which it is uniformly with the Vav plural.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 86a, on Ezek. 25 4, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 241b, on 1 Chron. 6 39, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 25 4.

ע"ב = § 72.

עוֹרֵי as dew, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This trilateral occurs altogether four times. In two instances it is with Sheva under the Caph and in two with Pathach. The design of the Massorah therefore, is to indicate here and in the following Rubric the variation in its graphic signs. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 217a, on Ps. 133 3.

ע"ג = § 73.

עוֹרֵי as the dew, occurs twice. That is, with Pathach under the Caph, in contradistinction to the two instances with Sheva recorded in the preceding Rubric. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 141b, on Deut. 32 2, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 122b, on the same passage.

ע"ד = § 74.

עוֹרֵי and with the dew, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to Prov. 19 12 where it is עוֹרֵי with Caph. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 367a, on Dan. 4 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 367b, on Dan. 4 20; (III) the printed Massorah on Dan. 4 12, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 38.

ע"ה = § 75.

עוֹרֵי occurs twice. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ו, § 41. Though it denotes lambs in Isa. 40 11, being the plural of עֵי and is a proper name of a place in the tribe of Judah with the prefix Beth in 1 Sam. 15 4, yet this Rubric does not indicate that this expression is used in two different senses nor does it state that the Samuel instance is with the prefix Beth. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once with Beth at the beginning and once without it. (Vide supra, letter ו § 10.)

ע"ו = § 76.

עוֹרֵי and Telem, occurs twice in the Scriptures . . . and in two different senses. In the first instance it is the name of a city in the territory of the tribe of Judah (Josh. 15 24) and in the second the name of one of the porters of the sanctuary (Ezra 10 24).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 292b, on Ezra 10 24, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 40. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 42*.)

ע"ז = § 77.

עוֹרֵי Tulmon, is twice plene in the Scriptures. Without the prefix Vav this name of one of the Levites occurs altogether four times. As it is differently spelt, being in two instances defective (Ezra 2 42; Neh. 7 45), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 300a, on Neh. 12 25. With regard to the solitary instance in which this proper name is with the prefix Vav in 1 Chron. 9 17 and which is not included in this Rubric, there is a difference about its spelling, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

ע"ה = § 78.

טומאה הם to be defiled by them, occurs three times. This phrase occurs altogether six times. In three instances the verb is followed by the longer form טמאו (Levit. 11 43; 18 30; 19 31) and in three it is the shorter form טא. Hence the Massorah indicates this variation. This safeguarding is especially necessary, since the two forms of the phrase are used in the same verse (Levit. 11 43). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1879, fol. 209b, on Levit. 11 43.

ע"ט = § 79.

וטמא שבעת ימים and he shall be unclean seven days, occurs twice. Normally וטמא is followed by ויטהר i. e. and he shall be unclean until the even. In this form the phrase occurs about twenty times (Levit. 11 25, 28, 32, 40, 40; 15 5, 6, 7, 8, 10, 11, 16, 17, 21, 22, 27; 17 15; Numb. 19 7, 8, 10). As it is in these two instances only that וטמא follows ויטהר, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination. This protection is especially necessary since in the two sections where this exceptional phrase is respectively used, the normal phrase occurs eleven times in the first section (Levit 15 5-27) and three times in the second section (Numb. 19 7-10).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 91b, on Levit. 15 24, which I have printed, and (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 73b, on the same passage.

ט = § 80.

וטמא עד הערב and he shall be unclean until the even, he shall be unclean until the even. In the section which embraces Numb. 19 1-22 two forms are used to express the duration of the defilement. In the first part of the section וטמא is twice preceded by ויטהר the preterite with the Vav conversive (Numb. 19 7, 8) and in the second part it is once preceded by ויטהר the future (Numb. 19 21). The Massorah, therefore, indicates by this artificial sign where the respective variations are used.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 112a, on Numb. 19 14, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 85b, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 221a, also on the same passage.

ט"א = § 81.

כל נגיעה וטמא עד הערב by he shall be unclean until the even, except twice. For this Rubric see letter י, § 89.

ט"ב = § 82.

טמאת thou hast been defiled, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 182a, on Ezek. 23 30.

ט"ג = § 83.

טמא he defiled, occurs nine times. That is, in contradistinction to the two instances in which it is טמא with Pathach under the Teth, being the infinitive recorded below in § 85.

Of this Rubric, I collated three Lists, one printed and two in MSS.: (I) the printed Massorah on Gen. 34 5, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 116b, on 2 Kings 23 13, and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 213a, on the same passage. It is remarkable that both the MS. Lists not only head this Rubric טמא but give identically the same three instances only, viz. Gen. 34 5, 13, and 2 Kings 23 13 and omit the other six passages, which I cannot explain. In Jacob b. Chayim's Rubric (List I) וטמא is a mistake for ויטהר 2 Kings 23 13 and I have accordingly corrected it.

ט"ד = § 84.

טמאו they have defiled, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed:

(I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 23a, on Gen. 34 27, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 85a, on Ezek. 23 38; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 198b, on Ps. 79 1; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 182a, on Ezek. 23 38; (V) the same MS., fol. 304a, on Ps. 79 1; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 34 27, and (VII) the same on Ps. 79 1.

As these three instances respectively occur in the Law, the Prophets and the Hagiographa Lists II, VI and VII add ארר נבא בטעם - ארר. Moreover as this Piel preterite third person plural also occurs once with the prefix Vav (Ezek. 43 8) this Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter י, § 78.)

ט"ה = § 85.

טמא to defile, is twice with Dagesh. That is, with Pathach under the Teth, in contradistinction to the four instances in which it is with Sheva recorded below, § 91.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 169a, on Levit. 20 3, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 96b, on Levit. 13 44; (III) the same MS., fol. 105b, on Levit. 20 3; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 82b, on Levit. 13 44; (V) the printed Massorah on Levit. 20 3, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 42. As the two instances occur in the same book, the heading ought not simply to be ב. דיש בכשרי, which is that of List IV, but ב. בכשרי.

ט"ו = § 86.

טמאו they shall defile, occurs twice. As this quinqueliteral, which occurs altogether six times, is in these two instances only with Sheva under the Yod being the Piel future, the Massorah safeguards it against the four instances in which it is the Hithpael future and which are recorded below in § 89 and § 89.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 87a, on Numb. 5 3, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 195a, on Ezek. 43 7. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Yod which respectively occur twice. (Vide infra, letter י, § 11.)

ט"ז = § 87.

טמא he shall defile himself or be defiled, occurs five times in the Pentateuch. This future third person singular masculine occurs altogether thirty-nine times. In thirty-four instances it is the Kal טמא and in five only is it ויטמא the Hithpael. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 88a, on Numb. 6 7, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 94b, on Levit. 21 1. As there is no other instance outside the Pentateuch, the heading ought more properly to be ויטמא.

ט"ח = § 88.

טמאו they shall defile themselves or be defiled, occurs twice. That is, in these two instances this Hithpael future third person plural masculine is with Sheva under the Mem, in contradistinction to the other two instances in which it is with Kametz, recorded in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 175a, on Ezek. 14 11, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter is headed ב. בחירק תחת יוד which is incorrect, since it occurs four times with Chirek under the Yod, as will be seen from the following Rubric. The design of this Massorah is not to record the Chirek but the Sheva under the Mem and to safeguard these two instances against being confused with the two with Kametz recorded in the following Rubric. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Yod which respectively occur twice. (Vide infra, letter י, § 11.)

ט"ט = § 89.

טמאו they shall defile themselves or be defiled, occurs twice. That is, with Kametz under the Mem instead of Sheva which is due to its pausal accents, Soph-Pasuk in Ezek. 44 25 and Athnach in Hosea 9 4. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 126a, on Ezek. 44 25.

ט"י = § 90.

טמאו ye shall defile yourselves, or be defiled, occurs three times in the Scriptures. This Hithpael future second person plural masculine occurs altogether six times. In three instances it is with the normal Sheva under the Mem (Levit. 11 43; 18 24, 80) and in three with Kametz which is due to the pausal accent, Athnach in Levit. 11 24; Ezek. 20 7 and Soph-Pasuk in Ezek. 20 18. Hence the Massorah records the instances with the pausal accents.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 81b, on Ezek. 20 18, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter heads it קטז : which indicates the design of this Rubric.

טמא unclean of, occurs four times. That is, with Sheva under the Teth, being the construct, in contradistinction to the forty-two instances in which it is the absolute טק with Kametz.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 78a, on Levit. 22 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 3b, on Isa. 6 5; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 120b, on Hag. 2 18; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 121a, on Isa. 6 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 216b, on Hag. 2 18; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 172a, on Levit. 22 4, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

ט"ב - § 92.

טמאת unclean of, occurs twice. That is, the adjective feminine construct, in contradistinction to the masculine recorded in the preceding Rubric. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 180b, on Ezek. 22 5, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 181a, on Ezek. 22 10. As the two instances are not only restricted to the same book but to the same section, the heading ought properly to be טמאת.

ט"ג - § 93.

טמאתה the uncleanness, occurs twice in all the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 166b, on 2 Chron. 29 16, which I have printed; (II) Add. 16,261, fol. 341b, on the same passage, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage.

ט"ד - § 94.

טמאתה as the uncleanness of, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this feminine noun construct with the prefix Caph against its being confused with the two instances in which it is with the prefix Beth (Levit. 5 3; 7 21), as these two letters are almost identical in many MSS. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190a, on Ezek. 36 17.

ט"ה - § 95.

טמאתה and his uncleanness, occurs twice. As this feminine noun with the suffix third person singular masculine which occurs seven times altogether, is in five instances without the prefix Vav (Levit. 5 3; 15 3, 3; 22 5; Numb. 19 13) and in two only is it with this prefix, the Massorah records the minority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 229b, on Levit. 22 3, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage. במיש דמיה at the end of the Rubric, denotes that the instance occurs in the verse following the catchwords.

ט"ו - § 96.

טמאתה in their uncleanness, occurs twice. That is, to distinguish it from the only other instance in which this noun with the suffix third person plural occurs with the prefix Caph (Ezek. 39 24) which it resembles. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 378a, on Ezra 9 11. On Levit. 15 31 the Massorah in Add. 15,250 remarks ל"י בק"י which is manifestly a mistake for ב"ר.

ט"ז - § 97.

מלין בליש' טמן forms of words from the root טמן to hide, which respectively occur once only. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 62a, on Jerem. 43 9. Though this List registers not only the different forms of the verb which are unique but also the derivative טמן treasure, it simply exhibits the first attempt to collect these unique forms. Hence no fewer than seven expressions which belong to this List are absent: (1) טמן Jerem. 43 10; (2) טמן Jerem. 13 7; (3) טמן Jerem. 13 6; (4) טמן Jerem. 13 5; (5) טמן Josh. 7 21; (6) טמן Isa. 2 10; (7) טמן Isa. 45 3.

טמן hidden of (Deut. 33 19) and טמן the hidden treasures of (Isa. 45 3) are both plene. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1879, fol. 372a, on Deut. 33 19. It must be based upon Codices which exhibited טמן plene in Isa. 45 3, since in the Standard Codices to which I have access and in the early editions, it is טמן defective.

ט"ט - § 99.

טמן his taste, occurs four times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 64b, on Jerem. 48 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 50a, on 1 Sam. 21 14; (III) the same MS., fol. 291b, on Ps. 34 1; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 99a, on Numb. 11 8; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 205a, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 21 14, and (VII) the same on Ps. 34 1.

This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it (Vide supra, letter ו, § 75.)

ק' - § 100.

טמנים accents. — For the Rubrics which treat on the different accents see below § 106 &c.

ק"א - § 101.

ובטרם and before, occurs three times. In all the other thirty-six instances where this adverb occurs with the preposition Beth it is without the prefix Vav.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 81a, on Jerem. 1 5, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 918, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 147b, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 38b, on Gen. 37 18; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VI) the same on Jerem. 1 5.

ק"ב - § 102.

ותרף and he teareth, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 115b, on Micah 5 7, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Deut. 33 20, and (III) the printed Massorah on Micah 5 7.

ק"ג - § 103.

תרף is twice with Kametz. That is, under the Resh. Though it is in the first instance an adjective denoting fresh, newly plucked off i. e. leaf (Gen. 8 11) and in the second instance is the preterite third person singular masculine signifying he has torn (Hosea 6 1), the Massorah as usual groups them together because they are spelt alike.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 201a, on Hosea 6 1 which I have printed; (II) Add. 2201, fol. 101b, in the Massorah Finalis at the end of the Pentateuch; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 8b, on Gen. 8 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 298b, on Hosea 6 1; (V) Add. 15,451, fol. 7a, on Gen. 8 11; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 78. List II has the mnemonic sign טמן טמן healing in its mouth.

This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of trilaterals which respectively occur twice (vide supra, letter ט, § 298), as well as of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ט, § 428.)

ק"ד - § 104.

ותרף to tear, occurs three times. That is, with Cholem on the Resh, being the infinitive, in contradistinction to the preceding trilateral which is with Kametz.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 108a, on Gen. 44 28, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,260, fol. 29a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 101a, on Exod. 22 12, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 75. As all the three instances are restricted to the Pentateuch and are defective, List II heads this Rubric בְּחֵטִי, which ought more properly to be בְּחֵטִי, and List IV heads it חֵטִי.

קיה = § 105.

תֵּרֵן tearing, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, with Cholem on the Teth and Tzere under the Resh, being the participle, in contradistinction to the instances in which this trilateral is Cholem on the Teth but with Patach or Kametz under the Resh, being the Pual preterite third person (Gen. 37 33; 44 28).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 6710—11, Vol. II, fol. 84a, on Ezek. 22 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 179b, on Ps. 22 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181a, on Ezek. 22 25; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 133a; (V) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 22 25; (VI) the same on Nah. 2 13, and (VII) the same on Job 18 4.

קז = § 106.

תַּעֲמִים The Accents.

As the whole Massoretic Corpus is arranged alphabetically, I have deemed it more convenient for reference to arrange also the different Rubrics alphabetically which treat on the several accents and which are scattered throughout the MSS. The names according to which they are thus alphabetically arranged are those by which they are designated by the Massorah in the respective Rubrics. The scientific arrangement according to Pausal or Distinctive Accents, called by later Jewish grammarians מְלִיץ or קִיָּים Kings or Dominating Accents and Non-Pausal Accents called מְשֻׁבְּבִים servi, and the different ranks as well as the subordinate positions which they severally occupy in this so-called Realm, are outside the scope of the early Massorah. They are discussed and developed in superfine theories and systems in separate Treatises by later Nakdanim.

Gaya. — Of this Rubric, which formulates the rules for the employment of Gaya, I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) the Massorah Finalis of Orient. 2212, fol. 232b—233a, which I have printed; (II) the Treatise in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in Appendix II in my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, p. 983 &c.; (III) the Massorah Finalis of Add. 15,251, fol. 446b; (IV) the Treatise at the end of the editio princeps of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517, and Treatise Dikduke Ha-Teamim edited by Baer and Strack, p. 30 &c., Leipzig 1879.

The artificial extent to which later Nakdanim have developed the use of the Gaya, here indicated, may be seen from the elaborate manner in which the erudite Professor Kautzsch has propounded in the Gesenius-Kautzsch Hebrew Grammar, translated by Collins and Cowley, § 16, p. 62 &c. Oxford, the Clarendon Press 1898. In the oldest MSS. of the Bible, however, the Metheg or Gaya, is very rarely used even with vowels before a composite Sheva or with long vowels which are followed by a Sheva mobile preceding the tone-syllable, as will be seen in my Introduction to Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, p. 474 &c.

קז = § 107.

Joshua. — This Rubric, which records the Gayas in Joshua, I compiled from the Massorah Parva in Orient. 1471 on the respective passages. It will be seen that the Gaya here is sometimes placed after the graphic sign and sometimes outside it. The Gayas in Judges I have not found indicated in the Massorah of the MSS.

קיה = § 108.

Samuel. — This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva in Add. 21,161 on the respective passages. The MS. is unfortunately defective and begins with 1 Sam. 20 24b. Though the text itself exhibits Gayas, yet they are not indicated in the Massorah Parva till 1 Sam. 22 12. Here, however, the MS. reads מִכָּה with Mercha, whilst the received text has it מִכָּה with Makeph. For a description of this MS. see my Introduction &c., p. 632 &c.

קז = § 109.

Kings. — This Rubric, which records the Gayas in Kings, I compiled from the Massorah Parva of Add. 21,181, on the respective passages. In 2 Kings 24 14 this MS. reads וְהָיָה קְלִי־הַיָּרֵם with Kadma Ve-Azla, whilst thereceived text has וְהָיָה קְלִי־הַיָּרֵם with Gershayim.

קיי = § 110.

Isaiah. — This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same MS. on the respective passages. It is greatly to be regretted that this portion is defective. It begins with Isa. 41 17b and the Massorah indicating the Gayas begins with Isa. 41 26.

קיא = § 111.

Jeremiah. — This Rubric, too, I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same MS. on the respective passages. As Jeremiah is complete, we have here a complete record of the Gayas in this book according to this important Codex.

קייב = § 112.

Ezekiel. — This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same MS. on the respective passages. The MS. here is incomplete. All after Ezek. 11 19a is wanting, so that we cannot judge of the number and position of the Gayas in this book.

קייג = § 113.

The Minor Prophets. — This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same MS. on the respective passages. As this part is complete we see that the Gayas Massoretically recorded in the Minor Prophets are eighteen in number.

קייז = § 114.

The Psalms. — This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same MS. on the respective passages. As the Psalter is complete, it will be seen that according to this Massorah there are upwards of 180 instances in which Gaya is used in this book. By the asterisks I have indicated that עַי Ps. 72 12, which is plene in this Codex is defective in the textus receptus; that this MS. reads עַי Ps. 119 149 and the received text עַי and that in Ps. 152 4 this MS. reads עַי not only with Gaya but with Dagesh in the Lamed whilst the received text has it עַי both without Gaya and without Dagesh.

קטז = § 115.

Proverbs. — This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same MS. on the respective passages. Fortunately the MS. is here also complete and we thus see that according to this Massorah there are fifty-four instances in which the Gaya is used in this book. In Prov. 8 12 this Codex reads עַי and the received text עַי without Makeph and with Munach.

קטז = § 116.

Job. — This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same MS. on the respective passages. This book also is complete and we thus see that Job has forty-eight instances with Gaya according to this Massorah. It will be seen that this Codex reads עַי plene in Job 24 13.

קטז = § 117.

Canticles. — This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same MS., viz. Add. 21,161 on the respective passages. According to this Massorah, Canticles exhibits two instances only with Gaya.

קיה = § 118.

Ruth. — This book according to the Massorah of the same MS. has one instance only with Gaya.

קיש = § 119.

Lamentations. — Lament. also has one instance with Gaya according to the Massorah of this MS.

קיב = § 120.

Ecclesiastes. — This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same MS. on the respective passages. It will be seen that this book has six instances of Gaya.

קיא = § 121.

Esther. — This Rubric also I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same MS. on the respective passages. The MS. here is incomplete and up to § 11 it exhibits four instances of Gaya. In § 11 which is the last Gaya instance this MS. reads עַי without Dagesh in the Coph.

קבי = § 122.

Daniel. — This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same MS. on the respective passages. It will be seen that according to this Massorah there are six instances of Gaya in Daniel.

קבי = § 123.

Ezra-Nehemiah. — This Rubric also I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same MS. on the respective passages. The MS. here is defective and though it begins with Ezra 2 69 and wants 8 24b-Neh. 1 25b only, the Massorah Parva does not record a single Gaya instance in Ezra, and, as will be seen from this Rubric, gives six instances for Nehemiah. In Neh. 6 10 this Codex reads not only with Dagesh in the Shin but with Chateph-Patach under the Ayin; whilst in 7 32 it has with Patach under the Ayin.

קבי = § 124.

Chronicles. — This Rubric also I compiled from the Massorah Parva of Add. 21,161 on the respective passages. The MS. here is unfortunately incomplete. It ends with 1 Chron. 19 6b. It will be seen that up to this part it records seven Gaya instances.

On comparing the above Lists with the rules propounded by Professor Kautzsch (Hebrew Grammar, p. 62, § 18) it will be apparent that this fine-spun system is a development of later purists: (1) That there were several Schools of such purists; (2) that they in many instances are in dire conflict with each other as to the actual position of the Gaya; (3) that it is very rarely exhibited in the oldest MSS. of the Hebrew Bible and is of doubtful authority, and (4) it ought, therefore, not to burden the present recension of the Hebrew text.

דגא ומכא כפולה. — Fourteen are with the accent. That is, in fourteen instances in the Scriptures is the accent Darga followed by Mercha-Kephulah. The accent Tipcha is as a rule preceded by the one servant Mercha. As it is in these fourteen instances only, preceded by the two servants Darga and Mercha-Kephulah, the Massorah safeguards these exceptional instances.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty-five Lists. I shall, however, specify the following ten only, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 68b, on Levit. 10 1, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 154b, on 2 Chron. 9 2; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 290b, on Ezra 7 25; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 182a, on Numb. 14 3; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 85a, on 1 Kings 10 3; (VI) the same MS., fol. 96a, on Numb. 20 29; (VII) the same MS., fol. 175a, on Ezek. 14 4; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 32 42; (IX) the same on Habak. 1 3, and (X) the same on Neh. 8 38.

From the heading in Lists I, II, IV and VI which is simply יד בוצ, nothing definite can be obtained except by looking at the accents in the text on which the respective Rubrics are given. Lists III, V and VII are headed יד בקיה דגא ומכא כפולה which emphasise the fact that the accent Darga is abnormally followed by Mercha-Kephulah instead of Tevir; whilst the headings of Lists VIII, IX and X alone indicate the import of this Rubric, viz. יד פטי בבעט תרין חוטרין. פי והפואו כד דגא לשולם לא ישרתה כלום מרוב. אך כיד בקומה ישרתה דגא עם כי מרובת הנקראו תרין חוטרין. It will be seen that the Double-Mercha is also called two rods (תרין חוטרין) because of its resemblance to a double rod. This Double-Mercha, however, remains a conjunctive accent like the simple Mercha. Hence, when a word beginning with one of the מרובת letters is preceded by a word which ends with one of the מרובת letters and which is with Mercha-Kephulah, it does not take the Dagesh. Comp. Exod. 5 15 and Ezek. 14 4.

In accordance with this rule 1 Kings 20 29, which is נקד with Mercha in Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 &c. and which I followed in my edition of the Bible, ought to be נקד with Makeph as it is in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16 &c.

Zakeph Gadol and Tevir. — Eleven words respectively occur twice, once with Tevir and once with Zakeph-Gadol. This Rubric is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 78b, on Levit. 23 12. Though it emphatically states in the heading that there are eleven such pairs, the Rubric itself records four only. It is, therefore, evident that the Nakdan omitted the seven instances because the prescribed space allotted in the margin to the Massorah did not suffice for the completion of the Rubric. This, as we have already seen, is often the case.

From the four instances, however, which are recorded we distinctly see that the design of this Massorah is restricted to those words only which respectively occur once with Zakeph-Gadol and once with Tevir and that the remaining seven must, therefore, exhibit the same characteristic. Six of these are actually to be gathered from the conflicting Lists which have a similar design but which have been confused and rendered obscure by the additions of later Nakdanim, as will be seen from Rubric 127b. The six instances which belong to the Rubric before us are as follows: (1) קלקים and קלקים Exod. 38 14, 15; (2) ונה and ונה Levit. 26 40 with verse 39; (3) ונה and ונה Josh. 13 32; 14 1; (4) ונה and ונה Judg. 1 5, 10; (5) ונה and ונה Ezek. 4 16 with verse 11, and (6) ונה and ונה Habak. 1 7; Zech. 10 4. The mnemonic sign is in dire conflict both with the design of this Rubric and with the instances recorded therein. It has manifestly been added by a later Nakdan who misunderstood the import of this Massorah.

Four groups vary in the accents. — That is, in these four groups which severally consist of similar phrases occurring in the same section, the second member differs in its accents from the first. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation. It will be seen that two of the pairs, viz. the second and third, vary with regard to the Zakeph-Gadol and Tevir. They form part of the preceding Rubric; whilst two, viz. the first and fourth vary with regard to Zakeph-Katon and Tevir. The fourth pair form part of the following Rubric which, as we shall see, is a development of this Rubric.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 27a, on Gen. 41 9, which I have printed, and (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 137 margin. Another form of this Rubric is given in the Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 229 as a contrast to the following Rubric. In the Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal this Rubric is headed ונתן חר חר חר ונתן חר חר חר and three instances only are recorded. It omits the second and fourth pairs and makes up the three by giving ונתן חר חר חר Numb. 3 20, 21 which are part of the following Rubric.

קבי = § 127b.

Thirteen words or combinations respectively occur twice varying in the accents, once with Zakeph and once with Tevir.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, two in MSS. and three printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 95b, on Levit. 23 12, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 105b, on the same passage; (III) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 228; (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 6 9, and (V) the same on 1 Chron. 18 3.

This Rubric is an expansion of the preceding Rubric. It gives a longer List of variations not only with regard to Zakeph-Gadol and Tevir, but includes Zakeph-Katon and Tevir and thus differs from § 126 which is restricted to Zakeph-Gadol and Tevir. In the process of expansion, however, later Nakdanim added instances which are contrary to the scope of this Massorah and not only obscured its import, but produced irreconcilable contradictions, as will be seen from the following analysis of the five Lists:

Lists I and II. — These two Lists are absolutely identical. They not only emphatically state in their respective headings that there are thirteen instances only of such pairs, but duly record the same thirteen in precisely the same order. It will be seen that these thirteen pairs comprise seven which are in connection with Zakeph-Gadol and Tevir and six in which it is in connection with Zakeph-Katon and Tevir. On comparing this List with § 126 it will be seen that one only of the four pairs recorded there is included here. This is due to the fact that this Rubric is restricted to the variations which occur in the same or a similar section or connection, whilst § 126 is not so restricted.

List III. — This List as emphatically states in its heading that there are eleven such pairs, and records eleven only. It omits five pairs which are given in Lists I and II, viz. (1) ונה ונה Exod. 26 8; 1 Kings 6 25; (2) ונה ונה Exod. 30 14, 15; (3) ונה ונה Numb. 3 20 21; (4) ונה ונה Josh. 13 32; 14 1, and (5) ונה ונה Judg. 1 5, 10, and makes up the eleven by the addition of the following three which are not given in Lists I and II: (1) אָהַרְיָהוּ Josh. 1 1; Judg. 1 1; (2) וַיִּשְׁלַח and וַיִּשְׁלַח 2 Sam. 6 7; 1 Chron. 13 10, and (3) וַיִּשְׁלַח and וַיִּשְׁלַח 2 Kings 21 8; 2 Chron. 33 8. It will be seen that two of the three new instances here given are contrary to the scope of this Massorah which is to record the variations of Zakeph and Tevir, whilst in the pair which exhibits Josh. 1 1 and Judg. 1 1 the variation consists in Pashta and Tevir and in the pair represented in 2 Sam. 6 7 and 1 Chron. 13 10 the variation is Mercha and Tevir.

List IV. — This List distinctly states in the heading that there are sixteen such pairs וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה and duly records sixteen. These sixteen are made up as follows: (1) by the retention of twelve of the pairs given in Lists I and II, omitting one pair only, viz. אָהַרְיָהוּ Exod. 26 8; 1 Kings 6 25 which is also omitted in List III: (2) by the inclusion of the three pairs which are also given in List I, viz. אָהַרְיָהוּ Josh. 1 1; Judg. 1 1; וַיִּשְׁלַח 2 Sam. 6 7; 1 Chron. 13 10; וַיִּשְׁלַח 2 Kings 21 8; 2 Chron. 33 8, and (3) by the addition of הַמְּשָׁקִים Gen. 40 9; 41 9 which is one of the pairs given in § 127a.

At the end of this List Jacob b. Chayim states that some Codices add two other pairs: (1) וַיִּשְׁלַח Levit. 4 16 and וַיִּשְׁלַח Numb. 6 13, and (2) וַיִּשְׁלַח Gen. 46 18 and וַיִּשְׁלַח Gen. 46 25; It will thus be seen that not only are the two irrelevant additions in List III repeated here, but that the two pairs imported by later Nakdanim are even more vicious. They do not consist of words which respectively occur twice, neither do they exhibit variations with regard to the accents Zakeph and Tevir. Moreover though the heading of this List emphatically states that there are sixteen such pairs and the Rubric itself records sixteen apart from the additions, the mnemonic sign which is identical with the one given in § 126 represents eleven pairs only and answers to the instances recorded in List III. It is also to be remarked that the catchwords וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה are wrong and ought simply to be וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה without וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה 1 Chron. 8 3.

List V. — Though this List is headed וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה it records fourteen instances. The only differences between it and List IV are in the heading וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה and in omitting the two pairs וַיִּשְׁלַח Gen. 40 9; 41 9 and וַיִּשְׁלַח Exod. 38 14, 15, making up the sixteen of List IV. At the end of this Rubric Jacob b. Chayim's addition is different from that in List IV. He simply states that he also found another pair, viz. וַיִּשְׁלַח and וַיִּשְׁלַח Gen. 46 18, 25 (עַד מַצְרַיִם אֵלֶּה בְּנֵי בְלָחָה רִיבֵשׁ) being one of two pairs mentioned in List IV. As this List has the same mnemonic sign and the same irrelevant passages, the strictures passed on List IV equally apply to this List. וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה denotes the Tevir which stands under the word in contradistinction to the Zakeph which is above the word and hence is called erect, or upright, above or קָמִים.

וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה יבואו אחר דבאר וס'י כשיה לוסה גבויר למעלה אלה בני בלחה ריבש.

Zakeph. — Seven are with the accent in this section. That is in Numb. 36 12-44 seven of the tribal names are with the accent Zarka. For this Rubric see letter ב, § 354.

קִבְיָה = § 129.

Two verses are misleading in the same section, one is with Chateph and one with Gaya. In Ps. 105 20 where וַיִּשְׁלַח he sent, precedes וַיִּשְׁלַח king, it has no separate accent, but is combined by Chateph or Makeph with וַיִּשְׁלַח i. e. וַיִּשְׁלַח; whilst in verse 28 where it precedes וַיִּשְׁלַח darkness, it has not only its own accent, but Gaya. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in the accents in these two verses.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 810b, on Ps. 105 28, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter adds the mnemonic sign וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה the messengers of the King are swift, the messengers of darkness are slow. That is, the verb וַיִּשְׁלַח (messengers) in combination with וַיִּשְׁלַח King is read quickly or together with the following word, whilst in combination with וַיִּשְׁלַח darkness it is pronounced slowly or has a separate accent.

This Massorah, however, is based upon the recension of one School of textual redactors. Other Schools had the two verses alike. This is attested by most of the Standard Codices, which exhibit וַיִּשְׁלַח in Ps. 105 20 as it is in verse 28, viz. Orient 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,261 and by nearly all the old editions, as will be seen in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. The reading וַיִּשְׁלַח with Makeph I have found in Arund. Orient. 16 only. The interesting part of this Massorah, however, consists in the fact that the reading of one School of textual redactors is designated מַטְעָן by another School.

קִיל = § 130.

These three expressions are with the accent Dechi and those who say that they are with Munach are mistaken. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 209a, on Ps. 109a.

קִילִיא = § 131.

This Kal infinitive construct precedes the accent Dechi three times. In two passages וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה has no separate accent but is joined by Makeph to the expression with Dechi (וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה Ps. 51 2; Prov. 18 3) and in one instance it has its normal servant Munach (וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה Ps. 54 2). Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its accents.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 250b, on Prov. 18 3. But though the Rubric declares that there are two Makeph instances, viz. Ps. 51 2; Prov. 18 3, the text of this MS. has one Makeph instance only, viz. Prov. 18 3 and gives the two Psalm passages with Munach.

Mercha Revia Mugrash. According to the Tiberian School of textual redactors, where Revya Mugrash has one servant, it is always Mercha. Hence they point the four instances which constitute this Rubric וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה Ps. 1 4; וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה Ps. 58 12; וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה Ps. 68 7; וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה Ps. 68 19; whilst according to the School represented by the celebrated Codex called Great Machsor this servant has Mehupach and the instances in question are וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה &c. The MSS., however, do not consistently follow either of these two Schools, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 193a, on Ps. 68 7. For the Great Machsor see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 435 &c.

קִילִיג = § 133.

Five pairs or combinations which respectively occur twice in the same section or connection vary in their several accents. As I have indicated the variation of these accents in the text of this Rubric, I need not repeat it here.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 79a, on Exod. 36 9, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 89a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 107a, on Exod. 26 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 127a, on Exod. 36 9; (V) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh I, § 55, margin; (VI) Paris Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh, § 222, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 36 9.

As four of these groups occur in the Pentateuch, List V heads this Rubric וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה and records the four only. Lists III, IV, V, VI and VII give the mnemonic sign, which however is mutilated in List V.

קִילִיד = § 134.

Three verses have respectively two words with two different accents. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Deut. 4 25, is incorrect since וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה in Ezra 1 10 has in both instances the same accent Mehupach. The וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה on Deut. 4 25 ingeniously suggests that it does not refer to the accent itself, but to its position and that the design of this Massorah is to record that in these three verses the same word respectively occurs twice, once with the accent on the penultima and once on the ultima and that the editor has wrongly put the Rubric on וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה Deut. 4 25a instead of וּזְנַן מִתְחַלְפִין בְּחַד עֵינֵי חַד וְזָקָף לְרוּמָה, which occurs in the second part of the same verse and is Milēl in the first part of the verse and Milrā in the second. In the case of the other two expressions, however, which occur twice in the verse, they have the accents on the ultima first and on the penultima second.

§ 135. = קליה

Three instances are with the accent. That is, with Tarcha and Munach before the pausal accent Soph-Pasuk or Athnach. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,161, fol. 142b, on Ps. 38 1. The reference to the catch-words מיהב in the Rubric which I have printed should be Ps. 107 43 and not 108 1 and the words שיר מבור which I have supplied in brackets must be cancelled.

§ 136. = קלי

The accents in connection with Soph-Pasuk in the three Poetical books. When the Soph-Pasuk has two servants, the first is Tarcha and the second Munach. From the notes, however, on Ps. 9 21; 12 8 in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that the different Schools of Nakdanim differed with regard to the second servant whether it is to be Munach or Mercha.

This Rubric is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 176b, on Ps. 9 21. This rule is more fully set forth in the Dikduke Ha-Teamim given in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in the Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, p. 993, § 24; see also p. 282 where it is compared with other recensions of the same Treatise.

ויראו כיבודו and they shall exalt him, is plene without the accent [Ps. 107 32]; ויראו כיבודו and he shall exalt thee, is plene with the accent Munach [Ps. 37 34]. As this Piel future third person with the prefix Vav which occurs twice, is both with Dechi and Munach in the singular and with Dechi without the Munach in the plural, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its accents. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 208b, on Ps. 107 32.

§ 138. = קליח

This Rubric is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 218b, on Ps. 138 2. The two passages which constitute the Rubric are Paser clauses, which have respectively two servants. In the text of this MS. the first servant is Munach and the second Galgal. The Nakdan therefore states in the Massorah that in the celebrated Great Machsor Codex the first servant is Kadma which is the usual accent in such clauses and which is exhibited in the Standard Codex Arund. Orient. 16, without Pasek. Orient. 2201, however, which is one of the oldest dated MSS. of the entire Bible and which has also Kadma as the first servant has Munach as the second instead of Galgal, but likewise without Pasek.

§ 139. = קליט

Thou shalt not bow &c. is with the old accent. That is, according to the old or Palestinian system the first part of this verse is with Mercha Tipcha, viz. לאישתתיה ליהם, in contradistinction to that of the Babylonian according to which it is with Munach Zarka, viz. לאישתתיה ליהם; whereas in the second part of this verse beginning with ויגבר, both systems have the same accents (מעט אהר). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 52b, on Exod. 20 5.

That the Massorah Parva in the MSS. by its remarks on the respective passages of the Decalogue with the double accents indicates the alternative single accents of the Palestinian School, which it denotes by the expression קריב קריב, is attested by Harley 5773 on Exod. 20 3. In this MS, which has the double accents, the Massorah states קריב קריב לאישתתיה ליהם which denotes the alternative single accents of the Palestinian School. On verse 4 the Massorah remarks קריב קריב לאישתתיה ליהם, which is the same as in the Rubric I have printed from Add. 15,251. Here again the single accents given in the Massorah are those of the Palestinian system. On verse 7 the Massorah states קריב קריב, and on verse 10 קריב קריב. These alternative accents are given in the Massorah itself and it need hardly be said that the expressions are simply the catchwords for the whole verse.

The double accents and the double graphic signs in some parts of the Decalogue are due to the fact that the Babylonian School of textual redactors had a different verse-division from those of the Palestinian School (Comp. the Massorah, Vol. IV, p. 343, § 109), that the former divided the Decalogue into ten verses and the latter into thirteen and that the two systems both of accentuation and vowel-points are here exhibited in a combined form. In this combined form the text of the Decalogue is given in the oldest MSS. and in all the early editions; in Orient. 4445; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Add. 21,160; Add. 15,451; Orient. 4227; Orient. 2451; Add. 9401; Add. 15,251; the editio princeps of the Pentateuch, Bologna 1482; the first, second and third editions of the Bible (Sonsino 1488; Naples 1491—93; Brescia 1494); the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 and the editio princeps of the Rabbinic with the Massorah, Venice 1524—25.

The Babylonian recension, however, with its verse-division and with its single accents and vowel-points, is given in Arund. Orient. 2; Add. 27,167; Orient. 1379; Orient. 1468; Orient. 1466; Orient. 2348; Orient. 2349; Orient. 2365; Orient. 4838; Orient. 5404, and Orient. 5956.

In order to enable the student to decipher the puzzling peculiarities of the text, which are due to the combination of the two systems, I subjoin (I) the Palestinian Recension with its separate accents and vowel-points; (II) the Babylonian Recension with its separate accents and vowel-points, indicating in larger type the passages in each Recension which are combined in the double system, and (III) the Recension which exhibits the two systems combined into one.

אלוהיך אל קדש ואנכי הנה אלוהיך אל קדש
אלוהיך אל קדש ואנכי הנה אלוהיך אל קדש

On comparing the two separate Recensions with the combined form it will be seen that קָמֵץ in verse 2 which has both Kametz and Pathach under the Nun, the Kametz form exhibits the Palestinian Recension, where this expression ends the verse and hence has Soph-Pasuk and that the Pathach form exhibits the Babylonian Recension where it has Reviv and is in the middle of the verse. The same is the case with קָמֵץ in verse 3 which has both Kametz and Pathach under the Tav, the one is due to the pausal accent Athnach in the Palestinian Recension and the other to the conjunctive accent Azla in the Babylonian Recension. The same is the case with קָמֵץ in verse 12 which has both Pathach and Kametz, the former exhibits the Palestinian Recension and the latter the Babylonian. By this process of comparison all the anomalies and apparent contradictions will easily be solved.

That the Palestinian and Babylonian Recensions of the text frequently exhibit different verse-divisions which necessarily involve a difference in the accents and vowel-points will be seen from the notes in my edition of the Bible on Gen. 35 22; Deut. 32 35, 39; Judg. 8 29, 30; Ps. 22 5; 52 1; 53 1; 90 1; 120 5 &c. In some instances, as in the case of Gen. 35 22 and in the Decalogue, this variation in the verse-division is designed for liturgical purposes and public reading and in some it is due to a different view of the import of the text. (Comp. my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 76.)

The expressions קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים upper accents and קָמֵץ עַל מִסְפָּרִים lower accents, by which grammarians and expositors designate the two systems because in the longer verse-division a larger proportion of the accents are placed above the words whilst in the shorter verse-division a larger number are below the words, I have not found in the Massorah. In the Massorah, as we have seen, the Palestinian accents of the Decalogue are called קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים because the longer division with its accents was regarded as the older of the two.

קָמֵץ = § 140.

Sixteen passages are with the accents Yerech ben Yomo and Karnè Parah. As these two accents, which always occur together, are of the rarest in the Scriptures, the Massorah records the passages in which they are to be found. Besides, the Yerech ben Yomo has invariably also the Munach as its servant. In four instances these inseparable accents are preceded by one Munach (Numb. 35 5; Neh. 5 13; 13 5; 2 Chron. 24 5); in five by two Munachs (2 Kings 10 5; Jerem. 38 25; Esther 7 9; Neh. 13 16; 2 Chron. 35 7), in three by three Munachs (2 Sam. 4 2; Jerem. 13 13; Neh. 1 6); in two instances they are preceded by four Munachs (Josh. 19 51; 1 Chron. 28 1) and in two by five Munachs (Ezek. 48 21; Ezra 6 9). It will be seen that these accents mostly occur in the later books. In the Pentateuch there is one instance only, whilst in Esther, Ezra-Nehemiah and in Chronicles, there are no fewer than nine instances.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated sixteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following ten only, seven in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 109b, on Numb. 35 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 103a, on Ezek. 48 21; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 157a, on Numb. 35 5; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59b, on 2 Sam. 4 2; (V) the same MS., fol. 198b, on Ezek. 48 21; (VI) the same MS., fol. 388b, on Neh. 13 5; (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 250a, on Numb. 35 5; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 48 21; (IX) the same on Esther 7 9, and (X) the same on Neh. 13 5. The addition בְּמִקְוֵי הַיָּם at the end of List VIII refers to the two instances in Ezek. 48 21; Ezra 6 9 and בְּ is a mistake for בְּ.

It will be seen that though List I, like all the other Lists, coincides in stating in the heading that there are sixteen such instances, yet it records fifteen only. But as all the other Lists duly give sixteen, there can hardly be any doubt that the omission of Neh. 5 13 is due to the carelessness of the Scribe.

The names of the two accents given in the heading of this List, vary in the other Lists. Though the name קָרְנֵי מִסְפָּרֵי הַקֶּזַב cow horns, from its resemblance in the MSS. to the horns of this animal, is also the name given to the pausal or distinctive accent in Lists VII, VIII and IX, yet in Lists IV and VI it is called קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים Great Pazer, because its form in the MSS. is somewhat like an enlarged form of the ordinary Pazer. Its inseparable servant, which is here called קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים the moon a day old, from its fancied resemblance to this luminary and which is also its name in the headings of Lists VIII and IX, is for the same reason called קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים wheel, in Lists IV, VI and VIII.

קָמֵץ = § 141.

Eleven instances in the Scriptures are with the accent. That is, with the accent Yethiv before the accent Pashta instead of after it.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 40b, on Jerem. 14 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 88a, on Levit. 5 2; (III) Add. 15,451, fol. 71a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 141b, also on the same passage; (V) Orient. 1474, fol. 19b, on Jerem. 14 14; (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 5 2, and (VII) the same on Dan. 2 10.

List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, like List I is simply headed קָמֵץ without stating what the import of this Rubric is. Lists III and IV are headed קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים which evidently denotes that the accent Pashta is after the Yethiv, as is attested by the clumsy heading of List V, viz. קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים and by the more explicit headings of Lists VI (קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים) and VII (קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים), thus plainly indicating the design of this Massorah. List VI omits קָמֵץ Levit. 5 2 and makes up the eleven by giving קָמֵץ Jerem. 29 32. But this is manifestly due to the ignorance of a later Nakdan. This is not only attested by all the MS. Lists which coincide in excluding Jerem. 29 32 and including Levit. 5 2, but by the second List (VII) in the printed Massorah itself. List V alone has the isomonic sign.

Four instances are with the accent at the beginning of the verse. That is, in four instances Legarmeh, which is normally a disjunctive accent and precedes Munach, is abnormally subordinated to Gerech or Azla with Kadma intervening, and respectively occurs at the beginning of the verse.

That Legarmeh is an accent is attested by the Massorah on Exod. 30 13 which expressly states that the demonstrative הַ is in three instances with the accent Munach before Legarmeh. (וְהָיָה לְפָנֶיךָ vide supra, letter ו, § 31.) To the same effect is the declaration of Levita the eminent expositor of the Massorah. In his Massoreth Ha-Massoreth he says "the accent which is called Legarmeh" (הַשֵּׁם הַקָּרוֹא לְפָנֶיךָ), p. 210, ed. Ginsburg and comp. Japhet וְהָיָה לְפָנֶיךָ p. 116).

Of this Rubric, which in this separate form does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 165a, on 2 Chron. 26 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 172b, on Jerem. 38 11; (III) the same MS., fol. 216b, on Hag. 2 12, and (IV) the same MS., fol. 278b, on 2 Chron. 26 15.

In eleven verses the accent Gerech follows Legarmeh, but it does not follow the accent Azla. Whilst the preceding Rubric records the four instances only which commence the verse, this Rubric registers all the passages in the Scriptures in which this accent is thus abnormally used irrespective of its position in the verse.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, one in MS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 18a, on Gen. 28 9, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (III) the same on Jerem. 4 19, and (IV) the same on Hag. 2 12. Lists III and IV are headed קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים which expresses the import of this Massorah in different language.

In two of the instances the Standard Codices vary with regard to the accent preceding the Legarmeh. In 1 Sam. 14 3 it is קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים with Tetisha Ketanah in Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 25,251 and Add. 15,451; whilst it is קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים with Munach in Orient. 2201 and Add. 15,250. The same is the case in 2 Kings 18 17: It is קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים in Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,451 &c. and קָמֵץ עַל פְּסָקִים in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251.

קָמֵץ = § 143.

Legarmehs through the Scriptures.

This perpendicular short line which normally follows the accent Munach, is carefully marked in the margin of the MSS. with the Massorah, against the respective passages which exhibit this accent. The Legarmehs in these MSS. are thus given as part of the Massorah Parva. With the exception of Deuteronomy I have not found any separate Lists of the Legarmehs in the respective books of the Scriptures. I have, therefore, compiled the following Rubrics from the Massorah Parva in the MSS. which carefully indicate them in the margin by the abbreviation $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$.

Genesis. — This Rubric I compiled from Orient 19,776 and Codex Bedell 8 Vols. fol. 10, dated A. D. 1286 in Emmanuel College, Cambridge. Accordingly Genesis has no fewer than fifty-nine Legarmehs. Fifty-two of these are the normal Munach Legarmeh i. e. they are not only preceded by Munach, but are followed both by Munach and Revia. Five are followed by Revia alone (Gen. § 15; 17 14; 19 9; 23 6; 29 9); one is followed by Kadma Ve-Asla (Gen. 28 9, vide supra, § 142b) and one by Darga (Gen. 31 29).

Exodus. — This Rubric too I have compiled from the same MSS. It will be seen that Exodus has sixty-three Munach-Legarmehs. One of these only is followed by Revia alone (Exod. 30 13, vide supra, letter ז , § 31).

$\text{קמ"ה} = \text{§ } 145.$

Leviticus. — This Rubric I have compiled from the same sources. Accordingly Leviticus has altogether forty-one Legarmehs or rather Munach-Legarmehs. Two only are not followed by Munach Revia, viz. 10 6 and 21 10 both of which are followed by (Mehupach) Pashta. (Vide infra, § 183.)

$\text{קמ"ו} = \text{§ } 146.$

Numbers. — This Rubric, which exhibits fifty-three Legarmehs in Numbers, I compiled from the same sources. The twelve instances which affect $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$ (Numb. 7 13, 19, 25, 31, 37, 43, 49, 55, 61, 67, 73, 79) and which have no second Munach before the Revia, ought properly to belong to the Pasek category, since they end with the same letter with which the next word begins. The Massorah, however, regards them as Legarmehs, as is attested by the fact that they are excluded from the List of Paseks in Numbers. (Vide infra, § 203.) Besides these there are also three other instances in which the Legarmeh is not followed by Munach (Numb. 10 29, 35; 20 21).

$\text{קמ"ז} = \text{§ } 147.$

Deuteronomy. — This Rubric, which exhibits fifty-five Legarmehs in Deuteronomy, I compiled from the same sources. It was, however, first published by Felix Pratensis at the end of the second volume of his edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517, with the heading $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$. Not only are the Legarmehs and the Paseks mixed up in this List, but it records four less of the former (Deut. 2 14; 3 10; 13 7; 28 13) and gives the following six which are not in my List, Deut. 4 47; 14 20; 16 16b; 26 5; 31 8; 32 9. The analysis of the Paseks is given below in § 204. It will be seen that in three instances there is no second Munach before the Revia (Deut. 1 33; 5 4, 22).

$\text{קמ"ח} = \text{§ } 148.$

Joshua. — This Rubric I compiled from the Massorah Parva of Codex Bedell in Emmanuel College, Cambridge where the Legarmehs are given against each instance as an integral part of the Massorah. Of the forty-nine instances which occur in this book, six only have not the Massoretic remark $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$ against them (Josh. 2 4; § 4; 14 6; 15 18; 21 32; 22 16), though the text itself has Legarmeh. For this reason the expression $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$ is omitted against these passages in this Rubric.

It will be seen that though there is no second Munach before the Revia in Josh. 5 14 and 9 12 yet the Massorah marks them as Legarmehs. (For Josh. 9 12, see letter ז , § 31.) That Josh. 2 4 and 14 18, which have also no second Munach, belong to the Legarmeh category is attested by the fact that they are expressly excluded from the List of Paseks in Joshua. (Vide infra, § 205.)

Judges. — This Rubric, which exhibits forty-five instances of Legarmeh in Judges, I have compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same Codex. It will be seen that five (Judg. 11 40; 16 2; 18 7; 20 31; 21 19) though marked by the Massorah with $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$, have no second Munach and that two of these (Judg. 11 40; 21 19) are in parallel passages (1 Sam. 1 8; 2 19) given as Paseks in § 207.

Samuel. — This Rubric, which records 109 Legarmehs in Samuel, is from the Massorah Parva in Add. 21,161 and Codex Bedell in Emmanuel College, Cambridge on the respective passages where they are indicated by the expression $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$, except in the following six instances here duly noted: 1 Sam. 9 12; 13 5; 14 3, 6, 47; 2 Sam. 13 32. Three of these (1 Sam. 14 3, 47; 2 Sam. 13 32) constitute part of the eleven instances in which Legarmeh is abnormally used. (Vide supra, § 142.) Though marked by the Massorah with $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$, ten of the instances (1 Sam. 9 9; 16 5, 7, 20 25, 31; 26 16; 2 Sam. 12 23; 15 12, 20, 30) have no second Munach.

$\text{קמ"א} = \text{§ } 151.$

Kings. — This Rubric, which records 143 Legarmehs in Kings, I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same two MSS., viz. Add. 21,161 and Codex Bedell in Emmanuel College, Cambridge. With the sole exception of three (1 Kings 15 5; 2 Kings 17 36; 20 5) they are all marked by the Massorah with the usual expression $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$. One of the instances forms part of the Rubric which records the abnormal occurrence of Legarmeh, viz. 2 Kings 16 17 (vide supra, § 142) and one (2 Kings 2 12) is included in the Pasek Rubric (vide infra, § 208), whilst seven of the instances marked by the Massorah with the usual expression $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$ (1 Kings 6 23; 7 23; 19 4; 2 Kings 5 22; 7 8; 18 17; 25 16) have no second Munach.

$\text{קמ"ב} = \text{§ } 152.$

Isaiah. — This Rubric, which records seventy-three Legarmehs in Isaiah, I compiled from the same materials, viz. Codex Bedell in Emmanuel College, Cambridge and Add. 21,161 in the British Museum, where they are duly indicated in the Massorah Parva on the respective passages by the expression $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$. It will be seen that in eight instances which the Massorah marks by $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$ there is no second Munach before the Revia (Isa. 9 16; 19 16; 21 8; 22 2; 37 6; 42 5; 49 21; 64 3) and that in one instance the Munach-Legarmeh is not followed by Revia, but by (Darga) Tevir (Isa. 36 2). Though the Massorah in the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 42 5 emphatically states that it is here Pasek, this Massorah as emphatically marks it here $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$. The instances in which the phrase $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$ is with Legarmeh in this book form a separate Rubric. (Vide infra, letter ז , § 62.)

Jeremiah. — This Rubric, which records 134 Legarmehs in Jeremiah, I compiled from the Massorah Parva of Add. 21,161 and Codex Bedell in Emmanuel College, Cambridge, on the respective passages. There are two instances only marked $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$ which have no second Munach (Jerem. 50 34; 52 20), whilst three (Jerem. 4 19a; 38 11; 40 11) form part of the Rubric which records the passages where Legarmeh is abnormally used. (Vide supra, § 142.) It is remarkable that though Jerem. 4 19 is here marked $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$ and is counted in § 142 as one of the eleven instances in which Legarmeh is used exceptionally, yet it is included in the List of Paseks in Jeremiah. (Vide infra, § 210.) The instances in which the phrase $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$ is with Legarmeh in this book are also given in a separate Rubric. (Vide infra, letter ז , § 68.)

Ezekiel. — This Rubric, which records eighty-five Legarmehs in Ezekiel, I compiled from the Massorah Parva of Codex Bedell in Emmanuel College, Cambridge and Add. 21,161 in the British Museum, on the respective passages. There is one instance only marked $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$ which has no second Munach (Ezek. 24 17), whilst Ezek. 9 2 is one of the eleven instances in which Legarmeh is abnormally used. (Vide supra, § 142.)

$\text{קמ"ה} = \text{§§ } 155—165.$

The Minor Prophets.

The Minor Prophets. — This Rubric I compiled from Codex Bedell in Emmanuel College, Cambridge and Add. 21,161 in the British Museum, where the instances are duly marked by the expression $\text{ל}^{\text{ב}}$ in the Massorah Parva on the respective passages. Accordingly there are altogether fifty-six Legarmehs in the Minor Prophets. But though Codex Bedell has it ... Amos 1 3 and marks it ...

Chronicles. — This Rubric, which records eighty-three Legarmehs in Chronicles, I compiled from the Massorah Parva of the same two MSS. on the respective passage, viz. Codex Bedell in Emmanuel College, Cambridge and Add. 21,161 in the British Museum.

In four instances there is no second Munach before Revia (1 Chron. 3 1; 28 10; 2 Chron. 18 3; 21 19). One of the instances, viz. 2 Chron. 26 15 is part of the Massorah which records the eleven passages with the abnormal Legarmeh (vide supra, § 142), whilst 2 Chron. 28 9 and 34 8 which are here marked ...

קע"ז - § 177.

In eleven instances Mayela is the servant to Athnach. Normally the servant to Athnach is Munach. In these eleven passages, however, the accent Mayela which in form is like Tipcha, abnormally precedes Athnach as its servant. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional accentuation.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following ten only, eight in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 75b, on Ezek. 10 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 258b, on Ruth 1 10; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 160b, on 2 Chron. 20 8; (IV) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 279b, on Dan. 4 18; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 148b, on Jerem. 2 31; (VI) the same MS., fol. 168b, on 2 Chron. 20 8; (VII) the same MS., fol. 367b, on Dan. 4 18; (VIII) Add. 21,160, fol. 538b, on Numb. 23 26; (IX) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (X) the same on 2 Chron. 20 8.

These ten Lists exhibit two Recensions of this Massorah which emanate from two different Schools of textual redactors.

Recension I. — According to this Recension, which is exhibited in Lists I, VIII, IX and X and which I have printed, there are eleven such instances. Hence the heading emphatically states ...

Recension II. — According to this Recension, however, which is exhibited in Lists II, III, IV, V, VI and VIII, there are ten such instances only. This is not only stated in the respective headings, but these Lists enumerate ten and coincide in omitting Ezek. 10 13. Hence the addition ...

קע"ח - § 178.

Five words have respectively two accents. That is, Mayela and Soph-Pasuk. Whilst the preceding Rubric registers the eleven passages in which this exceptional accent abnormally precedes Athnach, this Rubric records the five instances in which the same phenomenon is exhibited in connection with the accent Soph-Pasuk.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 4b, on Isa. 8 17, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 131b, on 1 Chron. 2 53; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 122b, on Isa. 8 17; (IV) the same MS., fol. 239a, on 1 Chron. 2 53; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement, fol. 134a; (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 21 4, and (VII) the same on Hosea 11 6. List IV heads this Rubric ...

Two words have respectively Mercha with Athnach and Mercha with Soph-Pasuk in the Psalter. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 207b, on Ps. 106 29. Though these two expressions are most distinctly marked in the Rubric itself with Mercha i. e. with the line turned to the left in each case, yet not only all the Standard Codices, but the text of this MS. itself, have a perpendicular line. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that the Massorah here, as is not infrequently the case, uses the term Metheg to denote Metheg. The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to indicate that Metheg, which is with Athnach in the first instance (Ps. 106 29) and with Soph-Pasuk in the second (verse 39), is with Metheg in both verses and thus to militate against Ben-Asher's recension which exhibits it without Metheg in the first instance, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Six phrases respectively occur twice with different accents, once they are with Mercha and once with Darga. As the same words and in the same connection have in one instance Mercha which is the normal servant to Tevir and in one the abnormal servant Darga, the Massorah safeguards this variation in the accents. On referring to the notes in my edition of the Bible, on Gen. 18 18, 1 Kings 22 34; 2 Chron. 18 33, it will be seen that this Massorah is designed to militate against the rival recension of the text represented by Ben-Naphtali.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest forms of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 151b, on Levit. 11 12, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 94b, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 68a, on 2 Sam. 17 17; (IV) the same MS., fol. 97a, on 1 Kings 22 34; (V) the same MS., fol. 268a, on 2 Chron. 18 33; (VI) Paris Oehliah Ve-Ochliah § 221, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Levit. 11 12.

List II, which exhibits this Rubric in its incipient state, records simply three of these groups without any heading and without fixing the number. Lists III, IV, V and VI record identically the same six groups, only that some put occasionally the Darga instances before the Mercha passage. The printed Massorah (List VII) is corrupt. It gives erroneously Mercha (Exod. 21 35) as the contrast to Darga, whereas this passage does not belong to this Rubric at all and ought to be Mercha (Isa. 39 8).

דמיון זהו בין המסורה לחבר
הוא שכל אחד או שני המסורה דמיון זהו בין המסורה לחבר

ק"ט = § 180b.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, three in MSS. and four printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 990, § 17; (II) the Massorah Finalis of Add. 15,251, fol. 445a, which I have printed below, letter u, p. 654, § 6; (III) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 18, margin; (IV) Felix Pratensis who printed it for the first time in his Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 at the end of the last Volume; (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 21 35; (VI) the same at the end of Vol. IV under מסורה, and (VII) the same in the Massorah edited by Dukes, p. 52 &c. Tübingen 1846.

Though all these seven Lists coincide in stating that there are thirteen such instances, they each omit one or two instances, which is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribes.

Thus List I, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah omits two, viz. the expression מסורה, which denotes the second instance in Josh. 8 an expression frequently omitted and מסורה 2 Sam. 20 6 which is also absent in Lists II, IV and VII.

List II gives 12 instances only. It not only omits the instance in 2 Sam. 20 6, but adds after phrase מסורה (Eccl. 9 10) that textual redactors are divided in their opinion whether it is Darga or Mercha.

List III records eleven instances only, omitting Isa. 19 25, which is also omitted in Lists V and VI, and 2 Chron. 18 13 and adds after מסורה that the textual redactors are divided in their opinion whether it is the passage in 1 Kings 22 34 or 2 Chron. 18 33 which has the Darga (מסורה על המסורה).

List IV, like Lists I, II and VII, omits 2 Sam. 20 6 and like List II adds after מסורה (Eccl. 9 10) that textual redactors are divided in their opinion whether it is Darga or Mercha.

The printed Massorah (List V), which gives in the heading the import of this Rubric, is corrupt. It omits two instances, viz. 1 Sam. 30 17 which is given in all the preceding four Lists and Isa. 19 25 which is given in Lists I, II and IV. It gives מסורה as two, viz. for 1 Kings 22 34; 2 Chron. 18 33 and records Hosea 10 14 twice.

List VI, likewise in the printed Massorah, is also corrupt. It erroneously states that Levit. 7 33 contains two instances (מסורה וסלוקים ב' ב'). Like List V it gives מסורה and like this List omits 1 Sam. 30 17. It also omits מסורה = Josh. 8 12 like List I and Isa. 19 25 like Lists III and V.

List VII, like V gives מסורה and like Lists I, II and IV omits מסורה 2 Sam. 20 6.

According to the rules of accentuation laid down by the Massorah when Tevir is separated from its preceding servant by one syllable only or by none at all, the servant is normally Mercha. In the thirteen instances, however, which constitute this Rubric, the servant is abnormally Darga, though it is separated by one syllable only. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional accentuation.

On comparing this form of the Massorah with the preceding one it will be seen that all the instances with Darga-Tevir recorded in it are part of this Rubric. The limited selection of six passages in § 180a from the thirteen instances which exhibit this peculiarity, is due to the fact that the Massorites designed to illustrate the abnormal use of the Darga by parallel instances of the same phrase with the normal Mercha in § 180a, whereas in this Rubric the design of the Massorah is to record all the abnormal instances without illustrating them by parallel normal accentuation.

Seven are with the accent in the Scriptures. Normally when one conjunctive accent or one servant precedes Zarka it is Munach. In these seven passages, however, this servant is Mercha. Hence the design of the Massorah is to safeguard this variation in the accentuation.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 148b, on 1 Chron. 29 7. It is to be remarked that this Recension of the Massorah is based upon Codices which exhibit this limited number of exceptions.

ק"ס = § 181b.

Ten verses are with the accent Mercha Zarka. That is, in these ten verses one servant preceding Zarka is abnormally Mercha instead of the normal Munach.

Of this expanded Recension of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 75a, on Exod. 30 12, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 992, § 20; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 446a, which I have printed below, letter u, p. 654, § 13; (IV) Orient. 5404 fol. 73a, on Exod. 30 12; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 116b, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement, fol. 132a; (VII) Felix Pratensis who printed this List for the first time in his Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 at the end of the last Volume; (VIII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 6 6, and (IX) the same at the end of Vol. IV under מסורה.

Lists I, III, IV, VI, VII and IX emphatically state in their respective headings that there are ten such instances and record identically the same passages in almost the same order. Even List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric and which is headed מסורה, gives these ten passages in precisely the same sequence. List V, however, which like Lists I, II, IV, VI, VII and IX, is headed מסורה, enumerates eleven adding מסורה 1 Chron. 29 7 as the eleventh instance. And though no other List of this longer Recension has this passage, the shorter Recension (§ 181a) gives it. List VIII alone heads this Rubric מסורה and gives 2 Sam. 5 20, the parallel passage to 1 Chron. 14 11, as the eleventh instance (מסורה). But this is against the import of this Massorah, since in the Samuel passage the Zarka is preceded by two servants. It is also to be remarked that in this List מסורה 1 Chron. 5 18 is given twice. On referring to the notes on Ruth 4 4; 1 Chron. 14 11 and 29 7 in my edition of the Hebrew Bible it will be seen that the different Schools of textual redactors varied with regard to the number of these exceptional passages. Hence the two Recensions of this Massorah. It will be seen that the accents Mercha and Zarka are called מסורה in the heading of the List which I have printed. These are also the expressions in the heading of List IV.

ק"ס = § 182.

Eight words are respectively with two accents. That is, in these eight instances only, Mercha precedes Tipcha in the same word whereas normally it is Melthag instead of Mercha.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 79a, on Levit. 23 21, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 444b, fol. 109a, on the same passage; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 8 18; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 109a, on 2 Kings 15 16; (V) the printed Massorah on Levit. 23 21; (VI) the same on Ezek. 36 26, and (VII) the same on Cant. 6 5.

The mnemonic sign of eight letters, viz. חמשה עשר at the end of the Rubric consists of the initial letters of the eight expressions which constitute this Rubric. The enigmatical heading of List III, viz. חמשה עשר חמשה עשר is manifestly a corruption. חמשה ought to be חמשה and is the second part of this mnemonic sign, the first part having been omitted by the Scribe. The interest, however, which attaches to this List consists in the fact that it yields another proof that this so-called Babylonian Codex exhibits the Palestinian Recension, since this Massorah is unquestionably Palestinian.

קס"ג = § 183.

Three verses have respectively Mercha, Munach, Legarmeh, Mehupach Pashta. That is, in these three verses, Munach Legarmeh is abnormally followed by (Mehupach) Pashta instead of the normal Revia.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 150a, on Levit. 10 6, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 298a, on Ruth 1 2. The latter is simply headed חמשה עשר.

קס"ד = § 184.

Three words have respectively Mercha Tevir under the same word with a half-vowel intervening. Normally when Tevir is preceded by a compound Sheva it is with Metheg (comp. קמח Gen. 27 4; Exod. 30 19). In these three instances, however, it is abnormally with Mercha, though the words are with Chateph Pathach.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 157a, on 2 Chron. 13 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 168a, on 2 Chron. 31 9; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 1009, which I have printed in my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 291, § 18; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 276b, on 2 Chron. 31 9; (V) Add. 15,261, fol. 445a, which I have printed below letter ט, p. 655, § 8; (VI) Felix Pratensis who printed this List for the first time in his Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 at the end of the last Volume, and (VII) the printed Massorah at the end of Vol. IV under חמשה עשר.

קס"ה = § 185.

Five words have respectively Mehupach Pashta. When Mehupach is the servant to Pashta it is normally separated by a word of one or more syllables e. g. חמשה עשר (Gen. 1.9); חמשה עשר (Esther 3 6). In these five instances, however, compounded with ט, Mehupach abnormally appears in the same word with Pashta. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional accentuation.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 265a, on Eccl. 7 10, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 261a, on Cant. 3 4. The latter is headed חמשה עשר and has at the end the mnemonic sign חמשה עשר which with the exception of ט = חמשה, exhibits the third letter of the respective words constituting this Rubric.

קס"ו = § 186.

For this Rubric see above, letter ט, § 357.

קס"ז = § 187.

Six are with the accent Pasek. That is, in six instances Pasek stands between two words, the first of which is with Mehupach and the second with Pashta.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,261, fol. 59a, on Exod. 30 34, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Deut. 8 15. The latter heads it חמשה עשר which is all the information we have for this exceptional accentuation.

קס"ח = § 188.

לעיל ולתת. This Rubric, which gives the rule for Leil and Lera and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 179b, on Ps. 22 14.

קס"ט = § 189.

מלרע ועיל ומופח. — This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 209b, on Ps. 109 16. It tells us that (1) the irregular accentuation in the three passages (Ps. 4 7; 109 16; Prov. 8 13) is that of the celebrated Codex called the Great Machsor: whereas R. Phineas and the textual redactors of Tiberias do not exhibit this exception, that (2) the seven words given as an example and those which in a similar position precede Tarcha are not only with Makeph, but with Gaya and not with Munach and that (3) the pronoun אף forms no exception, being always both with Gaya and Munach.

ק"צ = 190.

מלרע ומלרע. — The following words respectively occur once only with the accent on the penultima, whilst in all the other Scriptures they are with the accent on the ultima.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, two in MSS. and three printed: (I) the printed Massorah Finalis of Add. 15,261, fol. 343b which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach II, § 112 margin; (III) Paris Ochlach Ve-Ochlach § 372; (IV) Felix Pratensis who first printed this List in his Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517 at the end of the last Volume, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis at the end of Vol. IV.

Lists I and IV are alike. They respectively record identically the same thirty-six instances though not in the same order. List II records twenty-eight. And though it contains twenty-five only which coincide with those in Lists I and IV, it gives three new instances, viz. קמח Numb. 21 5; חמשה Isa. 32 11 and חמשה Ruth 4 15. Jacob b. Chayim's List (List V) records thirty-eight instances. It omits three instances, two of which are also absent in List II, viz. חמשה Prov. 17 19; חמשה Ruth 1 21 and חמשה (Prov. 10 10) which is given in all the other four Lists, and has two, viz. חמשה (1 Sam. 30 6) and חמשה (2 Kings 3 11) which are absent in Lists I, II and IV. The 14th instance in this List, viz. חמשה is a clerical error for חמשה (Ezek. 19 14), as is evident from the catchwords חמשה חמשה.

The List in the Paris Ochlach Ve-Ochlach (List III) exhibits the latest development of this Rubric. Not only are the passages here for the first time arranged in the order of the books of the Bible, but the compiler of this List succeeded in collecting no fewer than fifty-five instances besides the one at the end (חמשה Isa. 60 1) which is described as outside this Massorah (חמשה חמשה). Besides the Isaiah instance the following nineteen are new: (1) חמשה Levit. 25 21; (2) חמשה Numb. 27 21; (3) חמשה Josh. 2 3; (4) חמשה 2 Sam. 3 15; (5) חמשה 2 Sam. 9 10; (6) חמשה 1 Kings 16 24; (7) חמשה Ezek. 27 5; (8) חמשה Isa. 45 7; (9) חמשה Jonah 2 3; (10) חמשה Mal. 2 3; (11) חמשה Ps. 37 20; (12) חמשה Prov. 31 11; (13) חמשה Job 15 13; (14) חמשה Job 23 5; (15) חמשה Job 24 1; (16) חמשה Job 29 7; (17) חמשה Dan. 5 13; (18) חמשה Neh. 2 9, and (19) חמשה Neh. 9 7.

ק"צ"א = § 191.

An alphabetical List of words with the accent thrown back (חמשה חמשה). That is, words which have respectively become Milal to avoid the collision of two words in juxtaposition which would otherwise be Milra. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah but which is kindred to the preceding Rubric, is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 28 20. Professor Strack fully discussed this Rubric in his notes on this passage. It will be seen that five of the letters in this alphabet, viz. ב, ג, ד, ז, ח and ק represent words which form part of the preceding Rubric.

ק"צ"ב = § 192.

Two verses in the Pentateuch in which the same word occurs twice, with the accent on the penultima in the first place and on the ultima in the second place. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the Paris Ochlach Ve-Ochlach § 226.

ק"צ"ג = § 193.

מלרע ומלרע. — A List of words which respectively occur once only with the accent on the ultima and which are with the accent on the penultima in all the other Scriptures.

correctly given ... Though Lists II and III do not specify in their respective headings the number of Pasesks in this book they duly enumerate twenty-two, only that the printed Massorah (List III) by omitting ... after ... and not printing it ... might be taken as giving two instances instead of three for Josh. 8 33.

§ 208.

Judges. — In Judges there are nine Pasesks. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 34b, on Judg. 21 25, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 6b, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter a, § 139.

Lists II and III do not specify the number of Pasesks in this book in their respective headings though they give the catchwords for the nine instances. By the omission, however, of ... after the catchwords ... (Judg. 11 17) in List II and the omission of ... after ... (Judg. 20 25) it might be taken that they respectively record seven only. But the omission of these expressions on the part of the Scribe is of common occurrence.

It will be seen that this Rubric excludes the Pasesk in ... Judg. 6 24. This is confirmed by some of the oldest and best Standard Codices. Thus Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; Orient. 1474 &c. all have it ... The accents therefore in my edition of the Bible are to be altered accordingly. In the Rubric which I have printed the catchwords ... are to be corrected into ... with Aleph.

Samuel. — This book has forty-four Pasesks. The List which I have printed I collected from the Massorah Parva of various MSS. where ... is recorded in the margin against the respective passages. With these instances I collated four separate Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 177a-b, on 1 Sam. 7 14; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 74a-b, on 2 Sam. 24 25; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 6b, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter a, § 140.

It will be seen that the List, which I have compiled from the MS. Massorahs, records forty-six Pasesks if we correct ... into ... after ... 1 Sam. 18 10. We shall therefore take this List as the standard and collate the four separate Lists with it.

List I. — This List is headed ... and though it thus fixes the number at forty-seven it records forty only. It omits 1 Sam. 1 3; 2 16; 7 10; 20 21; 26 7; 2 Sam. 3 12; 10 14; 16 7 and adds one which is not in the compiled List, viz. ... where ... is manifestly a clerical error for ... 1 Sam. 14 3. There is also a clerical error in the catchwords for 2 Sam. 14 32. Instead of ... it should be ...

List II. — This List which is headed ... and thus fixes the number at forty-nine, records forty-six only. It omits four which are in the compiled List, viz. 1 Sam. 3 8; 7 10; 2 Sam. 10 14; 16 7 and has one which is not in the compiled List, viz. ... 1 Sam. 14 3, but which is also given in List I.

List III. — This List is simply headed ... and hence does not fix the number of Pasesks in this book. It records forty-four of which three are Legarmehs (1 Sam. 9 12; 26 16; 27 1, vide supra, § 150), one which is not in the compiled List (1 Sam. 14 3), but which is also given in List I and omits five viz. (1) 1 Sam. 3 8, which is also omitted in Lists II; (2) 1 Sam. 7 10 also omitted in Lists I and II; (3) 1 Sam. 11 7; (4) 2 Sam. 10 14 also omitted in Lists II and III, and (5) 2 Sam. 16 7 also omitted in Lists I and II.

List IV. — Like List III, this List is simply headed ... and does not fix the number of Pasesks in this book. It records forty-nine instances. Eleven of these are Legarmehs (1) ... 1 Sam. 9 12 also given in List III; (2) ... 1 Sam. 16 5; (3) ... 1 Sam. 16 7; (4) ... 1 Sam. 20 25; (5) ... 1 Sam. 26 16 also given in List III; (6) ... 1 Sam. 27 1 also given in List III where it is ... (7) ... 2 Sam. 12 23; (8) ... 2 Sam. 15 12; (9) ... 2 Sam. 15 30, and (11) ... 2 Sam. 24 17. (Vide supra, § 150.) Moreover it omits 1 Sam. 3 8; 7 10; 11 7; 2 Sam. 10 14; 16 7, being the same five instances which List III omits. It gives however ... which is also given in Lists I, II and III.

The result of the above collation of the four Lists with the one which I have compiled from the MS. Massorah and which I have printed, is that we have to deduct three instances which are not given in the official Lists (1 Sam. 7 10; 2 Sam. 10 14; 16 7) and have to add one, viz. ... 1 Sam. 14 3 which is given in all the official Lists and which I adopted in my edition of the Bible. We thus obtain forty-four Pasesks for Samuel, thirty-three for 1 Samuel and eleven for 2 Samuel. In the printed List the Pasesk is by mistake put after ... 1 Sam. 3 9 whereas it ought to be after ... In my edition of the Bible it has inadvertently dropped out of the text. ... 2 Sam. 13 32 which Jacob b. Chayim (List IV) gives as Pasesk is one of the eleven instances where Legarmeh is abnormally subordinate to Asla. (Vide supra, § 142b.)

§ 208.

Kings. — This book has forty-two Pasesks. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118b, on 2 Kings 25 80; (II) Add. 21,161, fol. 67a, on 1 Kings 1 36; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 6b, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter a, § 141. The List which I have printed and which records forty-four Pasesks in Kings, I compiled from the Massorah Parva of various MSS.

List I. — This List is headed ... thus fixing the number of Pasesks in this book at forty-six. It rightly omits three which are in the compiled List, viz. 1 Kings 11 22a, 23; and 2 Kings 3 25; it gives one not given in the compiled List, viz. 1 Kings 17 16 and emphatically states that in 1 Kings 7 25 are two Pasesks (in ...). (Vide supra, § 142b.)

List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, is headed ... But though it fixes the number at forty it records thirty-seven only. Like List I it rightly omits the three instances which are given in the compiled List (1 Kings 11 22a, 23; 2 Kings 3 25) and gives two for 1 Kings 7 25 (2 Kings 11 22; 12 32, 32; 2 Kings 12 22; 18 17), it is impossible to say which three of these five originally made up the requisite number forty. Being the oldest form of the Rubric I give it in the note.

List III. — This List is simply headed ... without specifying the number. It records forty-five or one more than the compiled List. In collating it however with the compiled List the following variations are disclosed; it omits the same three instances which are absent in List I (1 Kings 11 22a, 23; 2 Kings 3 25), gives the same new instance recorded in List I (1 Kings 17 16), and besides giving the two for 1 Kings 7 25 has two which are Legarmehs, viz. ... 2 Kings 2 12, and ... 2 Kings 25 16. (Vide supra, § 151.)

List IV. — Like List III, this List is simply headed ... and does not fix the number. It however records forty-eight instances. It omits five instances which are in the compiled List, three of which are also rightly absent in Lists I and II, viz. 1 Kings 11 22a, 23; 2 Kings 3 25 and two which are given in List I in harmony with the compiled List, viz. 2 Kings 13 14; 18 17. The latter is also omitted in List II. Like Lists I and II it gives 1 Kings 7 25 as containing two instances. It moreover includes ten instances which are Legarmehs and not Pasesks, viz. (1) ... 1 Kings 6 29; (2) ... 1 Kings 3 15; (3) ... 1 Kings 14 21; (4) ... 1 Kings 7 22; (5) ... 1 Kings 19 4; (6) ... 1 Kings 16 7; (7) ... 2 Kings 2 12, and (10) ... 2 Kings 25 16. The two last, as will be seen, are also given in List III. All of these are duly recorded as Legarmehs in § 151.

The result of the above collation of the four Lists with the one which I have compiled from MSS. and which I have printed, is that we have to cancel the three instances which are not given in the official Lists (1 Kings 11 22a, 23; 2 Kings 3 25) and to add ... after ... 1 Kings 7 25. We thus obtain forty-two Pasesks for Kings, twenty-four for 1 Kings and eighteen for 2 Kings. It will be seen that ... 1 Kings 11 14, which I have adopted in my edition of the Bible, is not given in any of these official Lists. Accordingly the Pasesk is here absent in the best Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,451; Add. 15,251 Orient. 2626-28 &c.

Isaiah. — This book has twenty-seven Pasesks. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 26-3a, on Isa. 5 19; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 147a, on Isa. 66 24; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 8a, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter a, § 150. These four Lists I shall compare with the one which I have compiled from the MS. Massorah on the respective passages, which I have printed and which exhibits twenty-six Puseks in this book.

List I. — This List is headed אילן מסקת רבם וכן כיה. But though it gives the number as twenty-five it records twenty-three only. It omits three which are in the compiled List, viz. Isa. 10 26; 24 3, 3 and gives one which is not in the compiled List, viz. אמר האל יהוה Isa. 42 5 which is the only instance in which Pusek is immediately followed by Revia. Hence the Massorah Parva in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 safeguards it by remarking against it 'a.

List II. — This List states in the heading that there are twenty-six Puseks in this book (מסקתו עשרים ושש) and duly records twenty-six. It however omits Isa. 10 14 which is given in the compiled List and makes up this number by giving the exceptional instance in Isa. 42 5 which, as we have seen, is also given in List I.

List III. — This List is simply headed ששיר and does not specify the number of Puseks in the book, but records twenty-nine passages. It makes up this number by including the exceptional instance in Isa. 42 5 and by erroneously mixing up with it three Legarmehs, viz.: (1) תלו הדורים Isa. 7 26; (2) חקד ויחוד Isa. 19 16, and (3) עלי מצבה ארני Isa. 21 8.

List IV. — This List is still more corrupt. Like List III it is simply headed ששיר and though it does not fix the numbers it records thirty-one. It makes up this number by including the exceptional passage in Isa. 42 5 which is also given in the other three Lists, by giving one which is not recorded in the other Lists, viz. וישלח מלך אשור ואת-הדבשקה Isa. 36 2 and by inserting four Legarmehs, the three given in List III and בלגזו Isa. 22 2. By the addition of Isa. 42 5 to the compiled List which is given in the official Lists I, II and III we obtain twenty-seven Puseks for Isaiah.

It will be seen that the Pusek in Isa. 58 2, viz. יתחיות which I have adopted in my edition of the Bible in accordance with Add. 15,451 and the Massoretic Rubric (vide infra, letter ' , § 224), is not only excluded here from the official Lists, but is not exhibited in the best Standard Codices, viz. St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251.

ר"י = § 210.

Jeremiah. — This book has thirty-one Puseks. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 36b, on Jerem. 8 11; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 8a; (III) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 50 29, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter a, § 151. On comparing these four Lists with the one which I have printed and which I compiled from the Massorah in the MSS. on the respective passages, the following facts are disclosed:

List I. — This List is headed אילן מסקת רבם ירמיה וכן ליה. But though it thus fixes the number at thirty-one it records thirty-two by the addition of בן בן after מתי Jerem. 4 19. But this addition is manifestly due to an ignorant Nakdan, since the first is Legarmeh and the second only is Pusek. (Vide supra, § 142b.)

List II. — This List which is simply headed ירמיה and which also records thirty-two Puseks in Jeremiah, is incorrect inasmuch as it leaves out two, viz. חבורי = Jerem. 8 11 after שלום שלום = 6 14 and חזיריך = 21 7 and makes up the thirty-two by inserting two Legarmehs, viz. ער שמי נקרא Jerem. 44 26 and ער שמי ער 52 20 which are duly marked ל' in the List of Legarmehs. (Vide supra, § 153.)

List III. — This List is headed חד מן בני מסקת רבמיה and duly records twenty-six only. It omits the following four (1) בן בן after Jerem. 4 19; (2) ברל ברל Jerem. 15 12; (3) מלכים ושרים Jerem. 17 26, and (4) יהוה גרדקו Jerem. 38 16 which is a mistake for חקד ויחוד Jerem. 41 10.

List IV. — Like List II, this List is simply headed ירמיה and like Lists I and II, records thirty-two instances, but it makes up this number differently, as will be seen from the following analysis. It omits בן בן in Jerem. 4 19 and 21 7 both of which are also omitted in List II, and erroneously inserts three Legarmeh instances, viz. (1) אשור-המבוא Jerem. 40 11; (2) בל בל ער שמי נקרא: בל Jerem. 44 26, and (3) המגדלים ושרים Jerem. 52 20. It will be seen that two of these (Jerem. 40 11; 44 26) are also given in List II.

ר"י = § 211.

Ezekiel. — This book has twenty-five Puseks. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5740-11, Vol. II, fol. 72a, on Ezek. 3 27; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 199a, on Ezek. 48 35; (III) Add. 21,161; fol. 97a, on Ezek. 8 3; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 8a; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezek. 8 3, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter a, § 152. A comparison of these six Lists with the one which I have printed and which I have compiled from the Massorahs in the MSS. on the respective passages discloses the following facts:

List I. — This List is headed אילן מסקת רבסרי יחוקאל וכן בני and duly records twenty-three only, omitting the following four which are in the compiled List: (1) עקו טריל Ezek. 1 4; (2) רחובים רחם עקו טריל Ezek. 7 11; (3) אמרי ליהם Ezek. 36 5 and (4) מקבשים Ezek. 39 11.

List II. — This List is headed מסקתו עשרים וששה and though, like List I, it thus fixes the number at twenty-three, it makes up this number somewhat differently from that List. It omits (1) עקו טריל Ezek. 36 3; (2) בן בן after האתקיים: בן בן Ezek. 41 16, which are in List I; (3) עקו טריל Ezek. 1 4, and (4) מקבשים Ezek. 39 11 which are also omitted in List I.

List III. — This List is headed מסקת רבסרי כיה. But though it states that there are twenty-four Puseks in this book it records twenty-three only. It omits the following three which are in the compiled List: (1) עקו טריל Ezek. 1 4 which is also omitted in Lists I and II; (2) עקו טריל Ezek. 36 3, which is also omitted in List II and (3) עקו טריל Ezek. 39 11 which is omitted both in Lists I and II. Like the compiled List it has at the end וכל מביב רבי מסק. As it is probably the oldest official List extant I give it in the note.

List IV. — Like the compiled List which I have printed, this List records twenty-six instances, though it fixes no number in the heading which is simply יחוקאל. It, however, makes up this number differently. It includes two Legarmehs, viz. (1) רחובי ורחם Ezek. 24 17, רחובי ורחם אלו-ארץ-מסוכתו Ezek. 38 8; (2) it omits two, viz. עקו טריל Ezek. 1 4 which is also omitted in Lists I and II and עקו טריל Ezek. 36 3 which is also omitted in List II, and (3) it records Ezek. 35 12 twice. Like the compiled List and List III it has at the end וכל מביב רבי מסק.

List V. — This List is headed מסקת רבסרי כיה and thus, like Lists I and II, fixes the number at twenty-three. It however records twenty only, and omits the following six: (1) עקו טריל Ezek. 1 4 also omitted in Lists I, II, III; (2) עליהם והואכלו Ezek. 33 25 which is recorded in Lists I, II, III and in the compiled List; (3) עקו טריל Ezek. 36 3 also omitted in Lists II and III; (4) עקו טריל Ezek. 39 11 also omitted in Lists I and II; (5) רחובי ורחם Ezek. 47 16 and (6) רחם ירחם Ezek. 48 35. Like Lists II, III and the compiled List, it has at the end וכל מביב רבסרי כיה.

List VI. — Like List III, this List is simply headed יחוקאל and does not fix the number, but records twenty-seven and makes up the number as follows: (1) It gives one, viz. רחובי ורחם Ezek. 9 2 which is one of the abnormal Legarmehs recorded in § 142; (2) It includes the same two Legarmehs (Ezek. 24 17; 38 8) recorded in List IV; (3) Like the latter it gives Ezek. 35 12 twice, and (4) it omits two instances, viz. עקו טריל Ezek. 1 4 which is also omitted in the other Lists and עקו טריל 36 3 which is also omitted in Lists II, III and IV. Like Lists II, III and IV it has at the end וכל מביב רבסרי כיה.

If we deduct Ezek. 1 4 which is rightly omitted in all the official Lists as is attested by the best Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,451; Add. 15,251 &c. we obtain twenty-five Puseks for this book. It is however to be remarked that the Pusek in עקו טריל Ezek. 36 3 given in List I is not only absent in the other five official Lists, but in the text of Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16, Add. 15,451; Add. 15,251. Hence I have not adopted it in my edition of the Bible.

מסקת רבסרי כיה וס' חסותם ב' בו חסותם בוציעת חסמי כותב יחידת היום זאני נאזוקין מנרש חסותם והחילום ישרוק ונהל ב' בו בחתה ונפק לבוא חסות וחנות' בו בו פוס וכל סוכב סוכב רבסרי מסק.

ר"י = § 212.

The Minor Prophets. — In the twelve Minor Prophets which are treated by the Massorah as one book, there are eight Puseks. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 106a, on Hosea 9 1; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 224a, at the end of the Minor Prophets; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 8b, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter a, § 153.

Both Lists I and II emphatically state in their respective headings, that the Minor Prophets have eight Puseks; the former heads it מסקתו עשרה ואילן מסקת רבסרי רבסרי ויהי עשר רבסרי מסקתו עשרה ואילן מסקת רבסרי רבסרי ויהי עשר רבסרי and both record identically the same eight in exactly the same order as the compiled List. But Lists III and IV which are simply headed רבסרי עשר, respectively record ten instances and make up this number by including the same two Legarmehs, viz. (1) Hag. 2 12, which is one of the eleven verses where Legarmeh is abnormally subordinate to Geresh (vide supra, § 142b) and (2) Zech. 6 15, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

רי"ג - § 213.

Psalms. — The Psalter has forty-three Paseks. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, fol. 174b, on Ps. 5 2; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 430a; (III) Orient. 2626—28, Vol. III, fol. 179a, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter a, § 159.

List I. — This List is simply headed פסקי תהלים. Apart from the addition at the end, viz. וכל דאן דאמאן אמן רבי, which all the Lists have in common, it records thirty-eight or rather thirty-seven instances. On comparing it with the compiled List, which, as will be seen contains fifty-one, this List omits the following fourteen: Ps. 37 7; 50 1; 55 20; 59 6; 68 19, 36; 72 19; 84 4; 86 1; 89 3; 108 4; 118 27; 137 7; 143 9.

List II. — This List is headed פסקי תהלים א and though, like List I, it does not fix the number, it records forty, or two more than that List and eleven less than the compiled List. These eleven consist of eight, which are also omitted in List I, viz. Ps. 37 7; 50 1; 55 20; 68 19; 72 19; 86 1; 89 3; 118 27 and three which are both in the compiled List and List I, viz. Ps. 9 17; 110 4; 117 2.

List III. — Though this List is simply headed פסקא דהרין ספר without stating in the heading the number, it fixes it at thirty-seven in the addition at the end, viz. וכל דאן דאמאן אמן רבי. It, however, records thirty-five only, all of which are in the compiled List. The variations from that List and Lists II and III, are as follows: It omits eight instances which are in the compiled List, but which are also omitted in Lists II and III, viz. Ps. 37 7; 50 1; 55 20; 68 19; 72 19; 86 1; 89 3; 118 27; two which are also omitted in List II (Ps. 9 17; 117 2); three which are also omitted in Lists I and II (Ps. 20 7; 67 4; 78 65) and two which are also omitted in List I (Ps. 84 4; 108 4).

List IV. — This List which is simply headed תהלים records forty-one or rather forty, since it gives Ps. 108 5 twice, once as אהרן [= 108 4] after אידך בעמים [= Ps. 57 10] and then again separately אידך בעמים Ps. 108 4. These forty instances are all in the compiled List. The eleven which are omitted consist of eight which are also omitted in Lists I, II and III, viz. Ps. 37 7; 50 1; 55 20; 68 19; 72 19; 86 1; 89 3; 118 27, and three which are also omitted in Lists II and III, but which are not only in the compiled List, but in List I, viz. Ps. 9 17; 110 4; 117 2.

If we, therefore, deduct the eight instances which all the four official Lists coincide in omitting, the number of Paseks in the Psalter is forty-three and not fifty-one as exhibited in the compiled List. These do not include the two reduplicates, viz. אהרן which occurs three times (Ps. 35 21; 40 16; 70 4) and אמן אמן which also occurs three times (Ps. 41 14; 72 19; 89 59). As these are invariably with Pasek, the Massorah in accordance with its usual method, states this fact summarily at the end of the Rubric without giving the catchwords or specifying the number. Arund. Orient. 16 states in the Massoretic Summary at the end, of the Psalter that it has forty Paseks (תקצרתיהו) without giving the List. This shows that there were variations in the different Schools of textual redactors with regard to the number of Paseks.

רי"ד - § 214.

Proverbs. — This book has eight or nine Paseks. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 430a; (II) Add. 2626—28, fol. 180a, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter a, § 161. Though all the three Lists record identically the same eight instances only, in identically the same order, and omit Prov. 4 7 yet Add. 21,161 has not only קקק with Pasek in the text, but has against it in the Massorah Parva פ. We have, therefore, here another proof that the different Schools of textual redactors had different traditions with regard to the number of Paseks. It is remarkable that Arund. Orient. 16 states in the Massoretic Summary at the end of this book (fol. 348b) that it has no fewer than thirteen Paseks (תקצרתיהו שלשה עשר). But as this MS. unfortunately does not give the List, it is impossible to say in which other four passages these textual redactors had the Pasek.

רי"ה - § 215.

Job. — This book has seven Paseks. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 430a, which is simply headed אב without specifying the number; (II) Add. 2626—28, Vol. III, fol. 179b, which is headed פסקא דהרין ספר, but does not specify the number, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter a, § 160.

Lists I and III are identical and record the same six instances only, and in precisely the same order, leaving out the first instance, viz. Job 7 20. List II records five instances. Besides omitting Job 7 20 it also omits Job 38 1, which is manifestly due to a clerical error arising from the fact that the catchwords for this passage are similar to those for 40 6, which follow immediately.

Though all the three Lists coincide in omitting Job 7 20, it is perfectly certain that this is due to the textual redactors of one School only and that another School had here Pasek. This is not only attested by the best Standard Codices, but by the text of all the three exemplars from which I have taken this Rubric. Thus Add. 21,161; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Add. 2626—28 and the editio princeps of Jacob b. Chayim's Rabbinic Bible have in the text אטעלולך with Pasek. It will be seen that the two last MSS. and the printed Massorah are those which have preserved this Rubric. Hence the Massoretic Summary at the end of Job in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 336a, emphatically states פסקא שבעה. It is remarkable that the Massorah Parva remarks against Job 7 20 ל, which is the reason for its position in § 168.

רי"ז - § 216.

The Five Megilloth.

Canticles. — This book has eight Paseks. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 430a, which is simply headed שיר השירים, without fixing the number; (II) Add. 2626—28, Vol. III, fol. 180a, which is headed פסקא דהרין ספר, also without specifying the number, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter a, § 163, which has the same heading as List I and like it does not fix the number.

On comparing these three Lists with the compiled List from the Massorah Parva in the MSS. which I have printed, the following variations are disclosed:

List I. — This List apparently gives seven instances only but practically records nine. As is often the case, the Scribe inadvertently omitted אהרן after תערוך 2 7 which occurs twice more, followed by Pasek, viz. 3 5; 8 4. By supplying it we obtain nine. Eight of these are identical with the compiled Rubric, which I have printed, whilst the ninth, viz. נד וישרם Cant. 4 14 is Legarmeh, and is given as such in § 169.

List II. — This List is identical with List I. Like it, it omits the expression אהרן after תערוך and like it, it gives the same Legarmeh instance as one of the Paseks.

List III. — Jacob b. Chayim's List is still more incorrect. It records ten instances which are made up by giving תערוך twice only (Cant. 2 7; 3 5), omitting Cant. 8 4 and inserting the following three Legarmehs: (1) נד וישרם which, as we have seen, is also given in Lists I and II; (2) קל ורדו רוקם 5 2, and (3) אהרן 8 14, all of which are duly recorded in the Legarmeh Rubric. (Vide supra, § 169.)

רי"ח - § 217.

Ruth. — This book has one Pasek, as is correctly stated in the Massoretic Summary at the end of Ruth in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 284a (פסקא דהרין), where the single instance is given as I have printed it.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 430a, where it is simply headed רות without fixing the number; (II) Add. 2626—28, Vol. III, fol. 180a, where it is headed פסקא דהרין, also without specifying the number, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter a, § 162, which is headed like List I.

List I records four instances. Besides the one given in the compiled Rubric it gives three which are Legarmehs: (1) שרבינו Ruth 1 2 which the Massorah gives as one of the three instances where Munach Legarmeh is abnormally followed by (Mehupach) Pashta in Rubric 183; (2) הילך וישרם Ruth. 1 13, and (3) אהרן Ruth 3 3. (Vide supra, § 170.)

List II records five instances. Besides the one given in the compiled Rubric it inserts four Legarmehs, the three given in List I and אהרן Ruth 3 13, all of which are duly recorded in the Rubric of Legarmehs, as will be seen in § 170.

List III. — This List is identical with List I; it records the same four, viz. the three Legarmehs and the one Pasek in precisely the same order.

רי"ח = § 218.

Lamentations. — This book has eight Paseks. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 480a; (II) Add. 2626—28, Vol. III, fol. 180a—181b, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter e, § 165.

List I which is simply headed איה, without fixing the number, records seven only; it omits Lament. 2 1, which seems to agree with the Massoretic Summary at the end of this book in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 358a, which states that it has seven Paseks (שבעת פסוקי).

List II which as usual, is headed מסקתא דספרא דרין. It records nine instances which are made up by omitting one given in the compiled List, viz. Lament. 2 8 and inserting two Legarmehs למה רב איה ויבילא Lament. 1 1 and קומי רתי בלילא 2 119.

List III correctly records the same eight instances as the compiled List which I have printed, and in precisely the same order.

רי"ט = § 219.

Ecclesiastes. — This book has two Paseks. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 430a, which is simply headed קדלת without specifying the number, but which records the same two as the compiled List, which I have printed; (II) Add. 2626—28, Vol. III, fol. 180a, which is headed מסקתא דספרא דרין and which records six. Besides the two in the compiled List it records the following four: (1) Eccl. 1 13; (2) Eccl. 2 12; (3) Eccl. 5 17, and (4) Eccl. 6 2. These are Legarmehs and are duly recorded as such in § 172. And (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter e, § 164. Like List I Jacob b. Chayim's List is simply headed קדלת, but unlike it, the printed Massorah (List III) records three instances, giving as a third instance הרוע בכל אזור Eccl. 9 3 which is Legarmeh in the received text and which is recorded as such in § 172. But as the Massoretic Summary in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 355a at the end of Ecclesiastes emphatically states that this book has three Paseks (שלושה פסוקי) we must conclude that we have here also a variation with regard to the number of Paseks which obtained in the different Schools of textual redactors.

רי"ז = § 220.

Esther. — This book has fifteen Paseks according to the compiled List, which I have printed and this is confirmed by the emphatic statement in the Massoretic Summary at the end of this book in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 363b, viz. מסקתא דספרא דרין. The two separate Lists, however, which I have collated, the one in MS., Add. 15,251, fol. 431a and the one in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter e, § 166, and which are identical, record fourteen only. They omit the first instance בתאבדיל לרד מרדכי Esther 2, 15. As the absence of the Pasek here is supported by Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 21,160; Add. 21, 161; Add. 15,251 &c., we must conclude that it exhibits another instance of the different traditions which obtained in the different Schools of textual redactors with regard to the number of Paseks.

רי"א = § 221.

Daniel. — This book has nine Paseks. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 279b, on Dan. 4 9, which is headed מסקתא דספרא דרין; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 430b, which is simply headed ריאל; (III) Add. 2626—28, Vol. III, fol. 280b, which as usual is headed מסקתא דספרא דרין; and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter e, § 167, which is headed simply ריאל like List II.

It will thus be seen that none of the Lists fix the number in their headings. Lists I, II and III record eight only and coincide in omitting the first instance, viz. למאשרימיא Dan. 3 2. List IV, however, records all the nine, thus agreeing with the compiled List, which I have printed.

רי"ב = § 222.

Ezra-Nehemiah. — Ezra and Nehemiah which are one book in the MSS. in accordance with the Massorah, have sixteen Paseks, counting Ezra 6 9 as exhibiting three.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 389a, at the end of the book; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 430b, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter e, § 168.

List I records identically the same sixteen instances as the compiled List, which I have printed where ב' בסוקא Ezra 6 9 should be ; as it is in this List. We have in this List a striking illustration of the oft-repeated statement that the Scribes frequently altered the headings to agree with the apparent number of instances recorded in the Rubric. The catchwords in the List are wrongly divided so that they apparently yield nineteen though according to the proper division of the lines there are really sixteen only. The Scribe, however, who took this division as correct appended a number to each line so that the last line is actually marked with י"ט, and he accordingly altered the heading into מסקתא דספרא דרין to agree with his numbering.

Lists II and III are identical. They respectively record the same fifteen instances only, in practically the same order. Both coincide in omitting תרין רבין Ezra 7 17, which is one of the six instances where Pasek stands between Mehupach Pashta, recorded above in § 187. It will be seen that all these Lists coincide in excluding Neh. 12 44. This is confirmed by the best Standard Codices which have no Pasek after למאשרי, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Orient. 2626—28 &c.

רי"ג = § 223.

Chronicles. — Like Ezra-Nehemiah, the MSS. and the Massorah treat Chronicles as one book, which has sixty Paseks according to the compiled List which I have printed.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 282a, at the end of Chronicles; (II) Add. 21,161, fol. 245b, on 1 Chron. 1 1; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 9b; (IV) Orient. 2626—28, Vol. III, fol. 178a, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter e, § 158. On comparing these five Lists with the compiled List, which I have printed, the following variations are disclosed:

List I. — This List not only states in the heading that Chronicles has sixty-one Paseks (ששים ואחד פסוקי), but appends to the catchwords of each Pasek the number. It omits two which are in the compiled List, viz. (1) the second instance in 2 Chron. 10 16, and (2) לרדכי 2 Chron. 20 8; whilst it gives one, דבכר 1 Chron. 3 1 which is Legarmeh in the received text. (Vide supra, § 176.)

List II. — This List is headed רי"ח מסקתא דספרא דרין, thus fixing the number at fifty-eight, and though it apparently gives fifty-eight catchwords it records really fifty-six only, since two are given twice, viz. 1 Chron. 27 12 is once denoted by הרנתי and once by רנתי. This is also the case with 1 Chron. 29 23, which is once denoted by למך and once by רנתי. It omits three which are in the compiled List, viz. the two instances in 1 Chron. 21 15, 15 and 2 Chron. 8 14, and adds no new instance, since all the others are identical with those in the compiled List. As this List, which exhibits the oldest form of the Rubric, illustrates the difficulty of deciphering the Massorah I give it in the note.¹

List III. — This List, which is simply headed ריה without fixing the number, records sixty-five. These are made up by including seven Legarmeh instances, viz. 1 Chron. 3 1; (2) ריאל 1 Chron. 28 10; (3) לשון דיקה אלה 2 Chron. 2 3; (4) ענילו מלביב 2 Chron. 4 2; (5) קדשי דרין אבין 2 Chron. 5 1; (6) דיקה אלה ישראל 2 Chron. 6 16, and (7) לימים שנים 2 Chron. 21 16; by giving 2 Chron. 18 7 twice; by omitting three instances which are in the compiled List (1 Chron. 6 8; 2 Chron. 8 14; also omitted in List II and 2 Chron. 10 6) and by giving one instance which is not in the compiled List, viz. לרדכי שבת 1 Chron. 9 32.

List IV. — As usual this is headed מסקתא דספרא דרין without specifying the number. It, however, records fifty-five only, omitting seven which are in the compiled List, viz. 1 Chron. 6 13; 9 44; 15 18; 17 22; 2 Chron. 1 11; 8 14; 10 16, three of which are also omitted in List III, viz. 1 Chron. 6 13; 2 Chron. 8 14; (also in List II) and 10 16, and including three of the Legarmehs which are given in List III, viz. 2 Chron. 2 3; 5 2; 6 16.

List V. — This List is simply headed דברי הימים and records sixty-four instances which are made up (1) by the inclusion of רבי = § 227.

Three verses are alike in differing from their fellows. That is, these three instances coincide in having Azla abnormally taking the place of Metheg in the same word with Mercha, and thus differ from the other passage where the two servants to Zarka are on two separate words.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 34b, on Judg. 21 21, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 75a, on Levit. 10 12; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 150b, on the same passage; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 45, on Judg. 21 21; (V) The Treatise of Ben-Asher called Dikduke Ha-Teamim, which I have printed, below p. 655, § 13; (VI) the same Treatise, which I have printed in my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 992, § 20, and (VII) the printed Massorah, on Levit. 10 12.

List II is simply headed במקום רבי whilst List IV is headed רבי. As the three instances respectively occur in the three divisions of the Bible, Lists II and III add at the end רבי = אשר נבא כתיב. Lists I and II alone give the mnemonic sign.

רביח = § 228.

Throughout the Pentateuch it is Munach Zarka except in eighteen instances which have Mercha between Kadma and Zarka. Normally the second conjunctive accent or the one between the Kadma and Zarka is Munach, except when the word with Zarka has Metheg or when Pasek precedes the word with Zarka. In that case Mercha takes the place of Munach. This is the case in these eighteen instances, they are with Mercha between Kadma and Zarka because the Zarka word has Gaya.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 19b, on Gen. 30 16, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 114a, on Exod. 29 21; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb. 5 18; (IV) Codex Tzufut Kale No. 17, which I have printed in Vol. III, p. 278, § 50; (V) Codex Tzufut Kale No. 15, which I have printed in Vol. III, p. 302, § 40; (VI) Paris Oehlrah Ve-Oehlrah § 374; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 30 16, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finlisis, letter p, § 64.

All the eight Lists respectively state that there are eighteen such instances in the Pentateuch. When the List, therefore, which I have printed records seventeen only and omits אשר נבא Numb. 5 21 which is duly given in Lists VI, VII and VIII, this omission is manifestly a clerical error which is due to the similar catchwords of the preceding passage.

It will be seen that in two of the eighteen instances the Zarka word is without Gaya or Metheg in the textus receptus, viz. אשר נבא Numb. 30 15, and אשר נבא Deut. 19 5. These anomalies are fully discussed in Japhet's able Treatise on the accents, p. 69 &c. The enumeration of the different headings of this Rubric given in the eight Lists will materially aid in ascertaining the precise import of this difficult Massorah. They are as follows: that of List I I have printed; List II is רביח; List III במקום רביח; List IV רביח; List V רביח; List VI רביח; List VII רביח; List VIII רביח. List II records five only, omitting 2 Sam. 4 8; 1 Chron. 14 1, but this omission is manifestly due to an oversight on the part of the Scribe, since the heading emphatically states that there are seven such instances. To the same cause is due the omission of רביח i. e. 1 Chron. 14 1 in List IV.

רביח = § 229.

Seven verses are alike in their accents. That is, these seven instances are alike in that the word between the Kadma and Zarka is Mercha though the Zarka word is neither with Metheg nor is it preceded by Pasek.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59b, on 2 Sam. 4 8, which I have printed; (II) Ben. Asher's Treatise called Dikduke Ha-Teamim which I have printed in my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 991, § 20; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 445b, which I have printed below, p. 658, § 13, and (IV) Oxford Codex of the Pentateuch No. 2325, in Neubauers Catalogue, fol. 199b, on Deut. 19 5. List II records five only, omitting 2 Sam. 4 8; 1 Chron. 14 1, but this omission is manifestly due to an oversight on the part of the Scribe, since the heading emphatically states that there are seven such instances. To the same cause is due the omission of רביח i. e. 1 Chron. 14 1 in List IV.

Though the import of this Rubric is explicitly stated in the heading of List IV, viz. עשר במיח במיח במיח במיח במיח במיח במיח במיח במיח במיח yet it must be regarded as the rule of one School of Nakdanim only. This is attested by the Standard Codices and apparently conflicting Massorahs. Thus Deut. 19 5 which is given in the preceding Rubric (§ 228) as one of the eighteen Zarka words with Gaya is given in this Rubric as one of the seven instances of the Zarka word without Gaya. 2 Sam. 4 6 which according to this Rubric is אשר נבא with Mercha, has this accent in Add. 15,251, and Orient. 2626-28 only, whilst it is אשר נבא with Munach in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451; Orient. 1471. The same is the case in 2 Sam. 5 11. Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,451 have אשר נבא with Mercha, whilst Orient. 2201; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 have it אשר נבא with Munach.

רבי = § 230.

Two verses are with the accent. That is, in these two verses only, has Legarmeh two servants Kadma and Mercha. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional accentuation.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 156b, on 2 Chron. 12 13, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 265a, on Eecl. 6 2.

רביח = § 231.

Six words are respectively with two accents. That is, with Kadma and Mehupach on the same word. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 179a, on Levit. 25 46, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 87b, on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb. 20 1, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Levit. 25 46.

רביח = § 232.

Twenty-seven words are with Revia in this alphabet. That is, in the 119th Ps., which consists of § 176 verses, the accent Revia abnormally takes the place of the normal Athnach in twenty-seven instances.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,161, fol. 165, on Ps. 119 2. It will be seen that in the Massoretic terminology of this ancient Codex the accent Revia (רביע) is called Pazer (פזר).

In the List itself the single catchwords arranged alphabetically which constitute the second column, are alone given. The first column exhibiting the Revia words I have added, in which the following four mistakes are to be corrected: (1) עיריך Ps. 119 14 should be אשרי; (2) in verse 57 רביח should be אשרי; (3) Verse 65 ought to be 68 and the Revia word is במיח and (4) in verse 144 the Revia word is לעול and not עיריך. It is, however, to be remarked that this accentuation exhibits the traditions of one School of textual redactors only, and that other Schools had different traditions, as will be seen from the notes on the respective passages in my edition of the Bible.

רביח = § 233.

Eight words are with Revia and Pathach. That is, though in these eight instances Revia takes the place of the pausal accent Athnach, the words are with Pathach instead of Kametz. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,161, fol. 138b, on Ps. 22 1. The Rubric, which is from the same ancient MS. as the preceding Massorah, exhibits the accentuation of this particular School only, as will be seen from the notes on the respective passages in my edition of the Bible.

רביח = § 234.

Eleven words or phrases respectively occur twice in the same section or connection, in the first instance with the accent Revia and in the second with Zakeph. Hence the Massorah indicates and safeguards this variation.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, three in MSS. and three printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Hag. 2 2, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 67b, on Levit. 8 15; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 147a, on the same passage; (IV) Paris Oehlrah § 227; (V) the printed Massorah on Levit. 8 15, and (VI) the same on Hag. 2 2.

Though five of the Lists coincide in stating that there are seven such pairs, List III records the first five only. The omission of the last six is due to the fact that with the fifth pair the four lines assigned to the Massorah in the lower margin of this MS., are exhausted. We have thus here another proof of the oft-repeated statement that long Lists were often curtailed to accommodate them to the prescribed amount of space. By the omission of בחר ענינו in the heading of List V the import of the Rubric is obscured. List II not only states in the heading that there are twelve such pairs, but gives בני משי 1 Chron. 23 23; 24 30 as the twelfth pair. But these have both Zakeph in the received text.

As ישום occurs three times in this section (Levit. 8 15, 19, 23) and as it is the only pair in the List, which I have printed without catchwords, it is difficult to say whether by the second instance Levit. 8 19 or 23 is meant. Three of the six Lists, however, viz. IV, V and VI give the catchwords ירקו משה which unquestionably denote Levit. 8 23. Hence I have given this reference in accordance with these three Massoretic Lists. It is remarkable that List III, which is from a Codex with a most accurate Massorah, gives for the second instance the catchwords ירקו משה Levit. 8 19 which is with Athnach in our text. To add to this difficulty ישום Levit. 8 23 is given in § 236 as one of the seven words with Shalshaleth. These conflicting Massorahs, as is not infrequently the case, must, therefore, be due to different Massoretic Schools.

When Shalshaleth occurs in the first part of the verse it is a conjunctive and when it is in the second part it is with Legarmeh or is disjunctive except once.

To understand this Rubric it is necessary to remark that (1) it refers to the accent Shalshaleth in the three poetical books only, viz. Psalms, Proverbs and Job; that (2) in these three books it occurs about twenty-nine times, twenty-two times in the Psalms, twice in Proverbs and five times in Job; that (3) it occurs three times only in the first part of the verse (Ps. 65 2; 68 15; 72 3); that (4) its normal position is in the second part where it occurs twenty-six times and where it is followed by Legarmeh or is disjunctive in twenty-four instances (Ps. 7 6; 10 2; 12 8; 13 2, 3; 20 8; 44 9; 50 6; 52 5; 66 7; 67 5; 77 4; 89 2, 3; 94 17; 131 1; 143 6; 146 3; Prov. 1 9; 6 10; Job 15 23; 32 7; 37 12; 40 23) and that (b) in one instance only does it stand in the second part of the verse without Legarmeh (Ps. 3 3). Hence the statement of the Massorah that when Shalshaleth is in the first part of the verse it is invariably conjunctive (מקשר) or is without Legarmeh and that when it is in the second part it is normally followed by Legarmeh or is disjunctive, except in one solitary instance which this Massorah safeguards. (Vide infra, § 237.)

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 174a, on Ps. 3 3. It is important to notice that מריח is used in the Massorah to denote the accent Shalshaleth.

Seven are with the accent Shalshaleth. As this accent, which occurs twenty-nine times in the three poetical books both with and without Legarmeh, never begins a verse (vide supra, § 235) and moreover as outside these three books it occurs seven times only and invariably at the beginning of a verse and is uniformly followed by Pasek, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional occurrence.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twelve Lists, nine in M.S. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 109a, on Amos 1 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 289b, on Ezra 5 15; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 13 8; (IV) the same Codex on Amos. 1 2; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 124a, on Isa. 13 8; (VI) the same MS., fol. 205a, on Amos 1 2; (VII) the same MS., fol. 875a, on Ezra 5 15; (VIII) Orient. 2349, fol. 40a, on Gen. 24 12; (IX) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 132b; (X) the printed Massorah on Levit. 8 23; (XI) the same on Amos 1 2, and (XII) the same on Ezra 5 15.

It is important to notice that Lists I and VIII in their respective headings simply refer to the fact that these seven words are with Shalshaleth (מריח) and that Lists II, V and VIII have a still shorter heading, viz. מלי בשע and בשע. These five Lists, therefore, emphasise the Shalshaleth alone and do not notice the Pasek. The headings of Lists VI, IX, X, XI and XII alone mention in their respective headings that these seven words have Shalshaleth and Pasek (מריח ומסקן). This accounts for the fact that though all the MSS. coincide in furnishing these seven words with Shalshaleth, some Codices do not exhibit the Pasek. The absence and presence of the Pasek in these instances must, therefore, have constituted one of the many differences between the rival Schools of textual redactors. Hence the St. Petersburg Codex (List III) not only describes the contents of this Rubric (List IV), but exhibits no Pasek in the text in the two passages which occur in the Prophets (Isa. 13 8; Amos 1 2). That מריח (Gen. 19 16), which is here given with Shalshaleth, is in Rubric 234 given with Zakeph has already been pointed out. The heading of List VIII alone states that this Rubric treats of the books apart from Psalms, Proverbs and Job (וי משי בשע בבא פסרים מריח).

§ 237. רליה

In the Great Machsor אורח in Job 32 7 and זום 37 12 are with Shalshaleth and Pasek. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 238b, on Job 37 12.

As Shalshaleth occurs altogether five times in Job and moreover as it is four times followed by Legarmeh (comp. Job 15 23; 32 7; 37 12; 40 23), the safeguarding of these two instances alone must be due to variations in other Codices against which the Great Machsor militates in the Rubric before us. In the other or first instance in which Shalshaleth occurs it is simply אורח without Legarmeh (Job 11 6). This is attested by some of the best Codices, viz. Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 9402 &c. רליה with Legarmeh is exhibited in Orient. 2201 and Add. 15,251. For the Great Machsor see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 435 &c.

§ 238. רליח

Three words are with the accent. That is, these three words whose first radical is with Chateph-Pathach have respectively the same accent Tevir. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 2a, on Gen. 2 12, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 3b, on the same passage, and (III) the same MS., fol. 87b, on Levit. 25 34. List II is headed מלי בשע ראי מריח which is incorrect, since מריח in Dan. 6 23 is in the middle of the verse.

§ 239. רליח

Tevir when with its servant Mercha or Darga. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 334a, on Deut. 11 15, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 128b, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 128b, also on the same passage. With the exception of the addition at the end בני הי בקרית (Ezra 6 2) in Lists II and III all the three Lists are identical.

§ 240. ריח

Rule when Tevir has its servant Darga or Mercha. Of this Rubric, which is an expansion of the preceding Rule, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 316b, on Deut. 2 16, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 124a, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 123a, also on the same passage. Before איש יבליח is to be added בני and after בירך in the last line but one, otherwise the Rubric is an exact reprint of this Rubric as it is exhibited in the Massorah of the three specified MSS.

§ 241 a-b. ריחא

For these two forms of this Rubric, which I have printed from Orient. 2349, fol. 134b and Orient. 1379, fol. 348b, on Deut. 20 9, see above, § 184.

§ 242. ריחב

Five words have respectively the double accent Telisha-Gedolah and Gershayim. In four of these it is Telisha and Gershayim and in one Gershayim comes before Telisha, viz. זום Zeph. 2 15. The sign ב תבלי לשע (Deut. 26 12) at the end of the Rubric where Gershayim precedes Telisha-Gedolah indicates that as in this passage the accent Gershayim is rendered before Telisha in public reading of the Scriptures, so in these five instances the musical sound of Gershayim is to be given before that of Telisha though it is second in the order.

Of this Rubric, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 5b, on Gen. 5 29, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 102b, on Ezek. 48 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 111a, on 2 Kings 17 13; (IV) the same MS., fol. 198b, on Ezek. 48 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 215b, on Zeph. 2 15; (VI) Halle Oohlal Ve-Oohlal, Supplement, fol. 132b; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 5 29, and (VIII) the same on Levit. 10 4.

It will be seen that the Rubric which I have printed emphatically states that in Zeph. 2 15 the accent Gershayim stands first and Telisha second, viz. ra. This is not only supported by the text of this splendid Codex, viz. Add. 15,451, but by Add. 15,250. The other official Lists, however, do not state that the two accents are reversed in Zeph. 2 15 and some of the best Standard Codices exhibit in the text Telisha Gershayim as it is in the textus receptus. This is the case in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251. These conflicting Massorahs, therefore, afford another proof that they are based upon different recensions of the text.

At the end of List II, the Nakdan after indicating how the Gershayim is sounded first and the Telisha second expresses his opinion that as Telisha which is a pausal or disjunctive accent occupies its normal position it should be sounded first and that although Gershayim is also a pausal or disjunctive it is not in its normal position.¹ The chief interest which attaches to this note, however, is due to the fact that it gives us the name Hezekiah as the glossator of this important MS. which forms the basis of my edition of the Massorah. (See my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 478 &.

1 קורא המסג הראשון זה ותשני זה, אך לל חוקי שיש להפסיק חזקה החלטה גרובה כי היא במקומה ומלך ואע"פ שהגורשים הוא מלך כמו בן אינה במקומה כמו החלטה על כן יש להפסיקה החלטה.

רמ"ג - § 243.

Five words have respectively two accents. That is, Telisha-Gedolah and Gershayim. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 34a, on Gen. 49 28. It is an important contribution to the study of the Massorah, inasmuch as it proves beyond the shadow of a doubt that the different Rubrics not only emanate from different Massoretic Schools, but are based upon different recensions of the text.

On comparing it with the preceding Rubric it will be seen that the five instances are made up as follows: (1) It records one passage (Gen. 49 28) which is absent in § 242. (2) It omits one (Zeph. 2 15) which is given in § 242. This is probably due to the fact that according to some recensions of the text Gershayim, as we have seen, precedes Telisha in the Zephaniah passage. And (3) it also records another recension of this Massorah which includes both Zeph. 2 15 and Gen. 49 28.

In seven instances in the Scriptures is Telisha followed by Pasek. Normally Telisha Ketanah is subordinated to Gereah, being a conjunctive accent. In these seven instances where it is abnormally followed by Pasek it would seem to impart to it a kind of disjunctive value. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional accentuation and thus militates against the School of rival redactors, as will be seen from the notes on Ezek. 39 11 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 171b, on 2 Chron. 35 21, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 41b, on 1 Sam. 12 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 95b, on 1 Kings 21 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 280b, on 2 Chron. 35 21; (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 12 3, and (VI) the same on 2 Chron. 35 21.

With the exception of List I, all the Lists not only head this Rubric במסר רשען ופסקן, but coincide in recording eight such instances and add 1 Chron. 28 1. This yields an additional proof that the different Schools of textual redactors had different traditions about these passages.

רמ"ה - § 245.

Four words have the accent Telisha-Ketana and are respectively followed by Kadma [Ve-Azla] on the same expression. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter מ, § 56. The expression מ Azla has manifestly dropped out from the heading in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah.

In the present recension of the text there is a fifth instance where Telisha-Ketana is followed by Kadma Ve-Azla on the same word, viz. 2 Chron. 11 4 which is the parallel passage to 1 Kings 12 24. As this accentuation is exhibited in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,251; Orient. 2626—28; Orient. 2212 I have adopted it in my edition of the Bible. It is, however, to be remarked that this is according to one School of textual redactors only. According to another School the accents here are לא תקלי ולא תקלמי with Kadma Ve-Azla on two separate expressions. This is exhibited in Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451; whilst in Arund. Orient. 16 and Orient. 4227 it is לא תקלי ולא תקלמי. The variations in the early editions I have given in the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

רמ"ו = § 246.

The Treatise on the Accent which Aaron Ben-Asher compiled. This Treatise is from Add. 15,251, fol. 445b—448a. For a detailed account of this Treatise and its relation to the other recensions of it I must refer to my Introduction to the Massoretic-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, pp. 278—286. I have here to add (1) that Jacob b. Chayim gives § 3 in the square which encloses the word ואלה at the beginning of Exodus in his edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah; (2) that § 4 he gives in the square which encloses the word ויהי at the beginning of Joshua and (3) that § 5 he gives in the square which encloses the word אשרי at the beginning of the Psalms.

Letter Yod.

י = § 1.

— The first part of this Rubric, which registers the number of times Yod occurs in the Bible, is from the celebrated Poem given above, letter א, § 224. The second part which records the number of times Yod occurs in the Pentateuch, is from a MS. in my possession. For a description of this remarkable MS. see my Introduction to the Massoretico-Critical edition of the Hebrew Bible, Part. 1, chap. VII, pp. 110, 111.

י = § 2.

— This Rubric, which records the number of times Yod is with one Täg in the Pentateuch, I compiled from the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710—11 on the respective passages.

י = § 3a.

— The twelve instances in which Yod is curved in the Pentateuch I collected from the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710—11 on the respective passages.

י = § 3b.

— Of this Rubric, which registers eighty-three instances in which the Yod is below like Caph, I collated two Lists: (I) from the Sepher Tägîn in the Vitry Machsor Add. 27,021, Vol. II, fols. 209a—215a, which I have printed in letter ר, § 25, and (II) the Sepher Tägîn, p. 10 ed. Barges, Paris 1866. When the cipher II follows the expression which is thus distinguished it denotes that the word in question occurs in List II only.

י = § 4.

Words beginning with Yod which respectively occur once only. This List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 178a, on Ezek. 18 7. It exhibits the first attempt to collect the unique words which begin with Yod. Hence this fragment records fourteen such expressions only out of the 2011 which commence with Yod which are unique. Hence too it is as yet without a heading, which I have supplied, and without alphabetical order. Contrary to its usual method, the Massorah includes in this fragment the Kethiv י 1 Sam. 4 13.

י = § 5.

An alphabetical List of unique words which respectively begin with Yod. This Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 10 12. It will be seen that the examples here selected from the numerous instances of unique expressions to constitute this alphabet, are restricted to the Prophets and Hagiographa. As א is the only letter not represented I supplied it by י from other Lists and indicated it by 11.

י = § 6.

An alphabetical List of unique words which respectively begin with Yod. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 28 27. It will be seen that whilst the preceding alphabet is restricted to the Prophets and Hagiographa, this alphabet extends to all the three divisions of the Bible.

י = § 7.

An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur once only beginning with Yod. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Micah 2 6.

Two letters are not represented in this alphabet, viz. ב and ז, whilst יוד Lament. 1 16 which represents Vav is יוד without Vav in the received text and is probably a mistake for יוד 1 Sam. 9 27 or יוד Prov. 7 27. That the Scribe of this Massorah was careless is evident from the fact of his writing יוד to represent ר, which is manifestly a clerical error for יוד. On comparing this Rubric with the preceding alphabet it will be seen that nine letters only are represented in the two alphabets by the same examples, viz. ב, ו, ה, ט, י, כ, ע, ש and ר.

An alphabetical List of words beginning with Yod which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 422a, on Ps. 92 15, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 87a, on Levit. 4 10; (III) the same MS., fol. 108b, on Levit. 23; (IV) Halle Ochlâh Ve-Ochlâh I, § 68; (V) Paris Ochlâh Ve-Ochlâh § 67, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 4.

List I. — With the exception of ב and ז each letter is represented by one word only in this alphabet, and there can hardly be any doubt that this was the original design of this Rubric, and that later Nakdanim added the duplicates. It is remarkable that the two expressions which are here given to represent the letter Teth are both contrary to the principle of this Rubric which is to exhibit the alphabetical order in the second letter of each word, whereas in יוד and יוד the second letter is Yod and the third is Teth. It is true that in exceptional cases when no word exists to make up an alphabetical List, the Massorites have sometimes taken the nearest expression to complete the alphabet. But in the case of this List there is no such emergency, since there are no fewer than twenty-four unique words which respectively begin with Yod and of which the second letter is Teth, as will be seen from § 10. There can, therefore, hardly be any doubt that in the original alphabet it was יוד defective for יוד 1 Sam. 24 4, that some Scribe wrote it plene and that the Nakdanim, as is not infrequently the case, added the wrong catchwords to it which properly belong to the plene form. Later Nakdanim, however, who were not certain about this passage added an alternative expression with other catchwords which are equally against the design of this alphabet.

List II. — In this List, which exhibits the oldest form of this alphabet, twenty-one letters of the alphabet are represented. The only letter absent is Teth which is probably due to the fact that the compiler could not find the defective form יוד and hence gives יוד only. (Ezra. 7 18.) It is, however, important to notice that in this original form of the alphabet each letter is represented by one example only. Hence יוד and יוד which are duplicate of Yod and Shin in List I are here absent. In this early form there are as yet no catchwords. Each example is simply followed by יוד unique; and the List ends with יוד.

List III. — This List, which is from the same ancient Codex, exhibits the whole alphabet and like List II is strictly confined to one example for each letter. It, however, differs from List II in giving יוד as representing letter Yod which, as we have seen, two instances, it is certain that their omission is due to the carelessness of the Scribe.

The textual (Kethiv) and official readings (Keri) given in this Rubric, however, must be regarded as exhibiting the redaction of the predominant School. Other Schools have the Keri in the text and others exhibit the Kethiv without a Keri. This is the case in Zech. 14 6. Lists II, III, V—IX emphatically state that the reading קָטַן or קָטָן is disputed by the celebrated textual redactor R. Nachman (קָטַן מֵלֵךְ דְּרַב נַחְמָן). The St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 has קָטַן in the text (Jerem. 6 21) without any Keri.

For other variations I must refer to the notes in my edition of the Bible on the several passages which constitute this Rubric. For the second part of this Massorah, which records the instances exhibiting the reverse of this phenomenon, see letter ו, § 6.

ז"ט = § 15b.

Fifty-six words are defective of Yod in the middle of the word. That is, they are without the plural Yod before the Vav or the suffix third person singular masculine.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 52a, on Exod. 27 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 41a, on 1 Sam. 10 21; (III) the same MS., fol. 57b, on 2 Sam. 1 16; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 109b, on Exod. 27 11; (V) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah I, § 112; (VI) Paris Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah § 128, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 12.

The design of this Massorah is to record those words which are defective of the plural Yod before the suffix Vav and which occur once only. Hence דָּרַב which occurs twice (vide ז, § 212); הִסִּיר which also occurs twice (vide ז, § 332); יָרָו which occurs five times (vide ז, § 94); מָצְרוּ which occurs three times (vide ז, § 691); עָרַי which occurs eight times (vide ז, § 350) and others are excluded. As to הִסִּיר, which occurs twice defective of Yod 2 Sam. 23 9, 11, it is rightly omitted in Lists II, III, IV, V, VI and VII. הִסִּיר also occurs twice in the present text (Exod. 16 13; Numb. 11 32), but the catchwords in all the six Lists show beyond doubt that the instance in Numb. 11 32 is the only one which exhibited this orthography and that the Exodus passage was differently spelt by different textual redactors, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. The Lists which rightly omit הִסִּיר make up the fifty-six by giving עָרַי as the second instance in verse 10 of 1 Sam. chap. 2.

On a close examination of the fifty-six instances which constitute this Rubric, it will be seen that in fifty-one the Yod officially supplied before the Vav is not only the plural Yod, but that the Vav is invariably the suffix third person singular masculine. The five instances, therefore, which are at the end of this Rubric and in which the Vav is not the pronominal suffix are manifestly contrary to the scope of this Massorah. As is not infrequently the case, they are due to a later Nakdan who mistook the design of this Rubric. This is moreover attested by the fact that whilst the fifty-one instances strictly follow the order of the books, these five instances are quite out of their place. It is only in the later redaction of the Paris Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah (List VI) that they are dispersed and significantly made to occupy their proper sequence, thus obliterating the traces of their being a separate addition.

ז"ט = § 16.

The following words are defective of Yod in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient 1879, fol. 163a, on Exod 27 11, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 78a, on the same passage.

This incipient List exhibits the first attempt to collect the words which according to the Massorites are without the plural Yod and which the preceding Rubric exhibits in its development. It is of importance, inasmuch as it proves beyond doubt that the additions were made gradually and that though the Massorites themselves made their additions strictly in accordance with the design of the Rubric, the additions of later Nakdanim are contrary to its scope.

ז"י = § 17.

Sixteen words are defective of the first Yod. That is, in these instances the Hiphil participle plural is without the first Yod which is normally the characteristic of the Hiphil. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 172a, on Levit. 22 2.

ז"י = § 18.

The following words are defective of Yod in this form. That is, the Hiphil future first person singular without and with the prefix Vav (בְּלִיָּו) is in these instances abnormally without the characteristic Yod.

This separate Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah and of which I have mislaid the reference to the MS, forms the second part of the following Rubric.

ז"י = § 19.

The following words are defective of Yod. This List, which only partially occurs in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Levit. 14 41.

The twenty-two defectives which this Rubric records consist (1) of twelve Hiphil futures third person masculine singular and (2) of ten Hiphil futures first person singular with and without the prefix Vav. Of the first part of the Rubric there are two Lists in the printed Massorah. The first List is on Levit. 14 21 which is headed יָקַע מִן מַלְאָךְ הַדְּבָרִים יָרָו and which simply records the first six examples and gives one, viz. יָרָו Levit. 27 28, which is not in the List which I have printed. יָרָו the seventh instance is manifestly an abbreviation for יָקַע Ezek. 46 18 in our List. The printed Massorah states at the end of the fragment that all the instances are duly recorded in Levit. 20 26 (יָקַע בְּמִצְוַת יָרָו). The second List is on Levit. 20 26 where it is headed יָרָו (בְּמִצְוַת יָרָו). יָרָו which is incorrect since the instances it records are the third person and not the first. It manifestly belongs to the second part of the Rubric which I have printed and which does not occur in the printed Massorah. In this second List the printed Massorah registers fourteen examples, or one more than is recorded in the MS. List which I have printed, viz. יָקַע Job 35 16, which is incorrectly printed יָקַע. Moreover יָקַע should be יָקַע Ezek. 46 4 and יָקַע should be יָקַע Isa. 42 23. The more serious part in the printed Massorah is the heading of the two Lists which distinctly describes these defectives as unique (יָקַע), whereas יָקַע occurs twice (2 Kings 19 24; Isa. 37 25) and יָקַע occurs twice (Ezek. 39 23, 24) and are so described in § 18. There can hardly be any doubt, therefore, that this conflict is due to a later Nakdan who added the obnoxious expression יָקַע which does not occur in the MS. Lists.

ז"י = § 20.

Six words have respectively a superfluous Yod in the middle. That is, these nouns are written in the text as plurals which the official Keri by cancelling the Yod, makes into singulars. In this respect, therefore, they are the converse of those recorded above in § 16.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 232a, on 1 Kings 16 26, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., on the same passage; (III) the Massorah Finalis in Add. 15,251, fol. 438a; (IV) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah I, § 113; (V) Paris Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah, § 129, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 15.

Though the four MS. Lists as well as List V, emphatically state that there are six such instances only and record identically the same six words, yet List VI which also heads this Rubric records seven. Jacob b. Chayim adds יָרָו Prov. 21 29 which he says he found himself (הִנֵּי אֲנִי מֵצֵא) where יָרָו is manifestly a mistake for יָרָו. This variation is confirmed by some of the best Standard Codices. Thus Harley 5710—11, Add. 15,251 and the printed Massorah Parva have on Prov. 21 29 יָרָו; whilst the Massorah Parva in Arund. Orient. 16 not only has the same remark on this passage, but distinctly adds יָרָו יָרָו יָרָו יָרָו יָרָו יָרָו. The Rubric, therefore, which records seven such instances and includes Prov. 21 29 must emanate from a different School of Massorites.

Three words have respectively a superfluous Yod in the middle. This heading is not strictly correct, since the Keri does not cancel the Yod in יָרָו, but simply transposes it and places it before the Tav, viz. יָרָו, converting it into Hiphil preterite second person plural masculine. Hence it constitutes one of the List of sixty-two in which the letters are transposed (vide infra, letter ב, § 480). As is not infrequently the case, the Kethiv and Keri are simply a selection of two alternatives from other various readings which obtained in olden times, but which are not recognised by the predominant Schools of textual redactors and have only survived in the ancient Versions. Thus instead of התחת the Septuagint exhibits ἐπισημασθε (= ἐπισημασθε) and instead of התחת it has ἐπισημασθη (= ἐπισημασθη).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 212b, on 2 Sam. 21 9, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 279a, on 2 Chron. 34 5; (III) the Massorah Finalis in Add. 15,251, fol. 438a; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 116; (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, § 132; (VI) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 21 9, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 14.

With the exception of List VII all the Lists state in their respective headings that there are three such instances and record identically the same three words. List VII, however, though like List VI, it is in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah, is not only headed בבצעת תיבתו ולא קריין, but records four, giving א-ב-ב-ב 2 Sam. 12 6 as the first of the four. None of the MSS., however, to which I have access exhibit here a Keri.

It may be that in List VII we have the dim survival of a text which had not this unique expression, but the normal שקנת which is preserved in the Septuagint (ἐκκαταστίονα) and which is now accepted as the preferable reading.

In List I we have another instance of two forms of the same Rubric being combined into one. (Vide supra, letter י et infra, letter י, § 144.) As all the three instances which constitute this Rubric end in תם, List II is headed בן יתני לם.

כ"ב = § 22.

The following words have a superfluous Yod in the text which is cancelled in the official reading. That is, according to the Kethiv these Chaldee expressions exhibit the plural suffix, whilst according to the Keri which cancels the Yod they are in the singular. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 278b, on Dan. 5 23.

כ"ג = § 23a.

The following respectively occur once only with Yod. That is, with Yod after the graphic sign Chirek. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 86a, on Gen. 32 31, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 47a, on the same passage. This List, which records twenty-one such instances, exhibits the first attempt to collect the expressions which belong to this category. Hence it is still without a heading, which I have supplied, and without catchwords. The design of this Massorah is discussed in the following Rubric which is its advanced development.

כ"ד = § 23b.

Twenty-nine words are respectively written with Yod, whereas in all other Scriptures they are reversedly written with Vav. Accordingly, as set forth in the heading, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard these twenty-nine expressions which are abnormally written with Yod in one single instance and which in all other passages of the Scriptures are on the contrary written with Vav.

Of this developed form of the preceding Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 248b, on 1 Chron. 16 38, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 163; (III) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 214, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 23.

List I. — Though this List states in the heading that there are twenty-nine such instances and duly records this number, yet the incipient List which constitutes § 23a, and which records twenty-one only, contains one which neither this developed List nor any of the other Registers gives, viz. ימיר Prov. 29 4.

List II. — This List is headed ששה מן בני רבל חר וחר ליה רבתי but records twenty-eight. It makes up this number by omitting יני Deut. 32 30 which is in List I, and giving יני Jerem. 18 16 instead of יני in the same verse. Instead of יני which List I gives in the heading to indicate the import of this Massorah, this List has it יני which is manifestly a clerical blunder for יני.

List III. — This List is headed בבצעת תיבתו ולא קריין, thus stating the design of this Massorah more explicitly. The twenty-seven instances are made up by omitting יני Deut. 32 30 which is also omitted in List II and יני Neh. 8 2 which is not only recorded in Lists I and II, but in the incipient List (§ 23a). Like List II it gives יני Jerem. 18 26 instead of יני in the same verse, recorded in List I.

List IV. — The heading of this List differs from that of the other Lists and is as follows: בין מלך רבתי, thus simply emphasising the fact that the graphic sign Chirek precedes the Yod. But though this heading also states that there are twenty-seven such instances only, the List itself records twenty-eight. Like Lists II and III it omits יני (Deut. 32 30) and gives יני (Jerem. 18 16) instead of יני in the same verse.

An analysis of the twenty-nine or thirty instances discloses the following facts: That (1) no fewer than eight are with Vav according to the Kethiv for which the Keri substitutes Yod (Numb. 14 36; Jerem. 8 7; 18 16; Ezek. 48 14; Zeph. 2 7; Ps. 85 2; 1 Chron. 16 38; 2 Chron. 13 19). In these instances, therefore, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard the official Keri; that (2) יני with Yod Gen. 32 31 also occurs with Yod in 1 Chron. 8 25 and though its spelling is left in the former passage the Keri cancels the Yod in the latter and substitutes Vav. Thus, here also, the design is to safeguard the official Keri in 1 Chron. 8 25 by declaring that the Genesis orthography is unique. The same is the case with יני Ps. 55 4 and יני Ps. 57 7. By declaring them unique the Keri in Ps. 140 11 and Jerem. 18 22 is safeguarded, and (3) יני with Yod Deut. 32 15 is designed to militate against the recensions which exhibit it without Yod, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

The difficulty, however, is in יני Jerem. 37 12 which is not only יני without Yod in the best MSS. and on which the Massorah itself remarks לי יני, but that its converse (יני) Neh. 13 18 is also without Vav; that the Massorah on Ps. 26 7 expressly has it יני with the remark לי יני and has it יני without Yod in Ps. 55 22 with the remark לי יני; that יני Isa. 57 8 has no converse (יני) with Vav, viz. יני; and that יני with Yod 2 Sam. 22 50 is the Kethiv, whereas the official reading is יני with Vav, which is contrary to the scope of this Massorah. It is, therefore, evident that this Massorah is based upon Codices which exhibited different readings in some of the passages and that the expressions יני and יני in the headings of Lists I, II and III do not properly indicate the scope of this Rubric and are the additions of later Nakdanim.

An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur once written with Yod in the middle and are read with Vav. That is, these words are in the text, or Kethiv with Yod for which the official reading or Keri substitutes Vav in the margin. The design of this Massorah is to record those words only which occur once with Yod instead of Vav. Hence the words which occur more than once exhibiting the same peculiarity are here excluded. They are given in separate Rubrics. (Vide infra, § 25 and § 25.)

Of this Rubric, which is the converse of the alphabet given above in letter י, § 143, and which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following eight only, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 215a, on 2 Sam. 24 18, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 11b, on Josh. 15 53; (III) the same MS., fol. 24a, on Judg. 7 21; (IV) the Massorah Finalis, in Add. 15,251, fol. 432b; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 71; (VI) the editio princeps, of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1517, Vol. II, at the end; (VII) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 81, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 5.

The variations in these eight Lists are as follows:

List I adds one more instance, viz. יני Eccl. 5 10 which is omitted in List I and which is due to the immediately preceding יני.

List III not only gives יני twice (Isa. 42 20; Eccl. 5 10) but gives יני 2 Sam. 20 5 which is neither in List I nor in List II, and omits יני 2 Sam. 24 18 which the two preceding Lists give.

List IV. — This List records sixty-one instances only and though it gives both יני and the second יני which are not in List I, it omits five examples in letter י (1 Kings 16 34; Isa. 10 6; Job 33 19; Isa. 49 6; Dan. 2 22) and the only representative for י is 2 Kings 23 36, all of which are given in List I. It is remarkable that this List gives יני Ezek. 30 16 as the second example for י instead of יני, which occurs in the same verse and which the

2 Kings 4 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 184a, on Ezek. 27 3; (IV) the Massorah Finalis in Add. 15,251, fol. 437; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 111; (VI) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 127, and (VII) the printed Massorah in the outer square enclosing the first word of Kings.

It will be seen that though List I emphatically states in the heading that there are forty-three such instances, it records thirty-nine only. On collating it with Lists V, VI and VII we see that it omits the following four: כרס the second instance in 2 Kings 4 7; דשברו Jerem. 10 17; דדדד the second instance Ezek. 16 31 and גזז Ezek. 36 13. The absence of two (2 Kings 4 7; Ezek. 16 31) is due to נבמט, which is frequently omitted by the Scribes. The omission of one (דשברו Jerem. 10 17) arises from its being followed by the same expression; whilst גזז (Ezek. 36 13) is absent because its orthography is treated in a separate Rubric. (Vide supra, letter א, § 1483.) הלכתי the thirty-sixth instance in this List, is simply the catchword for the Kethiv גזז in 2 Kings 4 23, and ought to be followed by גזז and not by הלכתי. The latter, which also occurs in the same verse, has already been given as the sixth instance.

Though List VII is headed כרס it records forty-three only. It, however, makes up this number somewhat differently from the other Lists. It omits two which are in the other Lists, viz. דדדד Ezek. 16 43 and דשברו Jerem. 10 17 and gives two which are not recorded in the other Lists, viz. דדדד as a second instance in 1 Sam. 25 34 with the remark כרס כרס and כרס also as a second instance in Judg. 17 2. The last instance in this List, viz. דדדד, is manifestly a clerical error for דדדד Ezek. 36 13 and refers to the Kethiv דדדד.

Twelve words are without Yod at the end and are read with it. That is, in the text or Kethiv they are without this letter which the official reading or Keri supplies.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 155b, on Judg. 1 27, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 7 22; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 83b, on 1 Kings 8 48; (IV) the same MS., fol. 152a, on Jerem. 7 22; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 110; (VI) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 126, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Job 7 1. It will be seen that though the List which I have printed states in the heading that there are twelve such instances, it records eleven, omitting דדדד Ps. 140 13. As all the other Lists give it, there can hardly be any doubt that its omission is a clerical error which is due to its being preceded by the same expression, viz. דדדד Job 42 2. This is also attested by § 112.

כרס - § 29.

Six words are written with Yod at the end and are read with He. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 208a, on 2 Sam. 16 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 13b, on Josh. 18 24; (III) the Massorah Finalis in Add. 15,251, fol. 437a; (IV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 100; (V) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah § 116; (VI) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 21 21, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 7.

List II heads this Rubric דדדד דדדד and records four only, omitting דדדד 2 Sam. 21 21, and דדדד Eccl. 11 9. Lists III, IV, VI and VII not only record the same six instances as List I, but add at the end the same expression in Jerem. 37 19 as constituting a point of controversy in the different Schools of textual redactors with regard to its orthography. In the List which I have printed we have another instance of two separate forms of the same Rubric being combined into one. (Vide supra, letter א, § 144, letter א, § 21 &c.)

לי - § 30.

Twenty-four words are written with Yod at the end and are read with Vav. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 214a, on 2 Sam. 23 9, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 279a, on 2 Chron. 34 9; (III) the Massorah Finalis in Add. 15,251, fol. 440a; (IV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah; § 121; (V) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 137; (VI) the printed Massorah in the inner square enclosing the first word of Jeremiah, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 17.

Though all the seven Lists emphatically state in their respective headings that there are twenty-four such instances, three alone, viz. Lists I, III and V record this number. Lists II, IV, V and VII give twenty-two only and coincide in omitting the two instances in Jerem. 13 20, viz. דדדד and דדדד. The reason for this omission is that these four Lists are based upon the Babylonian recension of the text which has דדדד and דדדד the plural without any variation, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible (comp. letter א, § 527). Later Nakdanim, however, altered the original כרס in the heading into כרס to agree with the Palestinian heading and, as is not infrequently the case, produced a conflict between the super-cription and the contents of the Rubric.

ליא - § 31.

Six words are with Chirek followed by Yod which respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric, which I have not found in the MSS. I collated two Lists: (I) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 208, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 26.

List II is headed דדדד דדדד דדדד דדדד and records four only. It omits three which are in List I; viz. דדדד Ps. 7 5; דדדד Ps. 55 14 and דדדד Job 16 9 and has one which is not given in List I, viz. דדדד Ps. 55 14. The two Lists together, therefore, record seven instances.

As to the design of this Rubric, an analysis of its contents and especially of the absence and presence of some of the expressions in the respective Lists, may probably disclose it. It will be seen that four of the seven expressions are in the singular with the suffix third person singular. In this form they are unique, that is with Chirek. But each of these occurs again in the plural and hence is with Pathach before the Yod. Comp. דדדד Ps. 31 12; דדדד Job 22 3; דדדד Job 19 14 and דדדד Ps. 13 5; 27 2. As to the remaining three expressions they have no such contrasts, since דדדד and דדדד with Pathach before the Yod do not occur. They are, therefore, rightly omitted in List II. Moreover as דדדד also does not occur, it is properly omitted in List I. The original Rubric, therefore, must have consisted of the four instances only and was designed to safeguard these unique forms with Chirek against being confused with the Pathach instances. Later Nakdanim who, as is not infrequently the case, mistook the import of this Massorah added the other forms of Yod with Chirek and thus obscured the design of this Rubric.

לכ - § 32.

An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur once only. That is, ending in Yod. This limited alphabet, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 38 12. The subscription which states that each of these expressions is unique is not strictly correct, since דדדד occurs twice (Jerem. 4 28; Ps. 17 3) and דדדד occurs twice (Ps. 119 40, 174). Though the former may be explained as being due to the fact that the Jeremiah instance is the Kal preterite or Mil'el and in the Psalms דדדד is the Piel infinitive or Milra, this explanation does not apply to דדדד. As each of the letters throughout this alphabet is uniformly represented by one example only, it is more than probable that א originally formed no solitary exception to this rule and that דדדד, the last instance, is the addition of a later Nakdan.

ליג - § 33.

Eight words respectively occur once only with Pathach and everywhere else they are with Chirek. That is, they end in Yod preceded by Pathach and thus are the converse of the instances which constitute Rubric 31.

Of this Rubric, which I have not found in the MSS, I collated two Lists: (I) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, § 209, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 26. The remark in the heading of List I, viz. דדדד דדדד, is incorrect. With the solitary exception of דדדד, the other seven expressions neither occur with nor do they admit of Chirek at the end. Though List II states in the heading that there are seven such instances, it records six only and omits דדדד Exod. 7 4 and דדדד Ezek. 45 8. Its heading, however, indicates more correctly the import of this Massorah, since it simply states that there are seven words which respectively occur once only with Yod at the end and Pathach (דדדד דדדד דדדד דדדד דדדד דדדד דדדד) without the vicious phrase דדדד דדדד. But even the eight instances simply exhibit the first attempt to collect the unique expressions which belong to this category. This is evident from the following alphabetical Lists, in which five of the eight examples respectively represent letters κ , τ , λ , χ and ψ .

ל"ד = § 34.

An alphabetical List of words which respectively occur once only with Pathach. That is, they end in Yod preceded by Pathach or Kametz. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 45 8. The alphabet is incomplete, the letter ψ is not represented because this letter yields no example of a word ending in Yod preceded by Pathach or Kametz; χ occurs twice (Hab. 3 16; Ps. 38 4) and is, therefore, incorrectly recorded here as unique.

ל"ה = § 35.

Twenty-five words are written with Yod in this book. That is, in Daniel these words which end in Yod are preceded by Tzere.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 364b, on Dan. 2 51, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the same on Dan. 7 25. Though List I states in the heading that there are twenty-five such instances in Daniel (κ in the heading is a misprint for τ), it records twenty-six. I have to point out the following mistakes in the List χ Dan. 2 39 should be τ Dan. 2 29, 45; χ as it is in the MS., Dan. 7 28 should be τ with the prefix Vav Dan. 2 30; χ Dan. 2 48, as the MS. has it, is manifestly a mistake for τ Dan. 3 5 &c. and χ Dan. 3 14 should be pointed τ Dan. 5 4.

List II states in the heading that there are twenty-eight such instances (κ) and records twenty-seven. But the one which it gives and which is not in List I, viz. τ does not occur. Moreover it has the following five mistakes χ Dan. 2 35; τ for τ Dan. 3 5 &c. being the same mistake as in List I; τ for τ Dan. 4 6; τ for τ Dan. 4 32 and τ for τ Dan. 5 4.

List III, like List I, states in the heading that there are twenty-five instances (κ) and like that List records twenty-six. It, however, makes up this number differently. It gives τ which is also given in List II as one of the instances and which does not occur, and omits χ Dan. 7 13 which is given both in Lists I and II. It is remarkable that it contains the same five mistakes as List II.

ל"ו = § 36.

An alphabetical List of words ending in Yod which respectively occur once only. In the MSS. which I have collated I found examples of the following nine letters only, belonging to the alphabetical List of words ending in Yod which respectively occur once. But there can hardly be any doubt that examples of the remaining unique expressions which belong to this category are to be found dispersed in sundry Codices. As is usually the case, these fragmentary Lists simply exhibit the first attempt to collect the separate links which belong to the alphabet. Hence they are without headings.

τ . — This incipient List, which records ten expressions ending in Yod preceded by Cheth, does not occur in the printed Massorah. It is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 350a, on Cant. 4 16. That it is simply a fragment is attested by § 45, where it will be seen that there are no fewer than eighty-six such expressions. Of the unique words ending in Yod preceded by Teth, of which there are thirty instances (vide infra, § 45), I have found no List.

ל"ז = § 37.

τ . — This fragmentary List, which records four unique words ending in Yod preceded by Yod and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 104a, on Hosea 3 3. There are altogether about sixteen such expressions. (Vide infra, § 45.)

ל"ח = § 38.

τ . — This incipient List, which records eight unique words ending in Yod preceded by Kaph and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 88a, on Gen. 19 21. There are altogether about twenty-two such expressions. (Vide infra, § 45.)

ל"ט = § 39a.

τ . — This fragmentary List, which records eight unique words ending in Yod preceded by Lamed with Chtrek and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 57a, on Gen. 49 12. There are altogether about ninety-one such expressions. With and without this special graphic sign there are 181 words ending in Yod preceded by Lamed. (Vide infra, § 45.)

ל"י = § 39b.

τ . — Of this fragmentary List, which records thirteen words ending in Yod preceded by Lamed with Chtrek and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 116b, on Numb. 16 31, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 114b, on the same passage. From List II it is evident that the tenth instance in List I, which is illegible and which I read τ , leaving it without vowel-points and without affixing to it any reference, is τ . This is most probably intended for τ Zech. 11 15.

It will be seen that seven of the thirteen instances which constitute this Rubric are patronymics which not only end with τ , but are with the prefix He. When it is borne in mind that there are twelve such instances altogether which respectively occur once only, and that with the exception of three, viz. τ (Numb. 3 2), and τ (1 Chron. 2 17; 27 30), they all occur in the same Section (Numb. 26 12-48), it will readily be conceded that the design of the original Massorites was to collect those instances only which belonged to this category and which occur in Numbers and that later Nakdanim mistaking the import of this Massorah, added the instances simply because they too ended in τ , though they are not patronymics with the prefix He. The two patronymics in this Section which occur once only and are absent in this Rubric are τ and τ (Numb. 26 12, 21).

In the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 146a there is another recension of this Rubric in the Massorah on Numb. 26 31 which is as follows: τ לית כחה השואלי לית כחה האראלי לית כחה החובלי לית כחה הרעלי לית כחה החוללי לית כחה השמעי לית כחה האוני כחה השמרי לית כחה השירי לית כחה הרברי לית כחה

The two important points which this recension establishes are (1) that this Rubric is designed to record the patronymics in Numb. 26 alone which respectively occur once only and (2) that these patronymics not only end in τ , but are invariably with the prefix He. It, however, differs from the preceding recension in this respect. It does not restrict the ending to τ alone. Of the eleven names which this List records five only end in τ . But in these five are included τ and τ (Numb. 26 12, 21), the two which are absent in the preceding recension, whilst τ which this recension describes as unique, occurs also in Josh. 21 4 and is rightly omitted in the preceding Rubric.

τ . — Since the publication of the first volume of the Massorah I have found in the ancient Codex Orient 4445, fol. 147b, on Numb. 26 40, the following List of words ending in Yod preceded by Mem which respectively occur once only.

החורסי ל	1 Chron. 11 35	השואפי ל	Numb. 26 39

It will be seen that this ancient List records twenty such expressions, whereas there are no fewer than 125. (Vide infra, § 45.)

ל"י = § 40a.

τ . — This fragment, which records five words ending in Yod preceded by Nun which respectively occur once only, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 319a, on Ps. 139 1.

ל"י = § 40b.

τ . — The following words are with Yod preceded by Nun. That is, they respectively occur once only with the suffix τ .

This List which records twenty-nine such instances, I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ך, § 4. From § 45, it will be seen that there are altogether about 787 words ending in ך, and that more than half of them are ך or with the suffix first person singular.

כ. — Though there are about twenty-eight words ending in Yod preceded by Samech (vide infra, § 45), I have hitherto been unable to find any List which records the expressions which belong to this category.

כ"א - § 41.

כ"א. — This fragmentary List, which records twelve unique expressions ending in Yod preceded by Ayin and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 116b, on Numb. 26 31. From § 45 it will be seen that there are about 105 such words. Of ך preceded by ך, ך and ך I have not found any Lists.

כ"ב - § 42.

כ"ב. — Of this incipient Rubric, which records the unique words ending in Yod preceded by Resh and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 143a, on Exod. 15 6, which registers eleven instances and which I have printed; (II) Orient. 444b, fol. 56b, on the same passage which records fifteen, and (III) the same MS., fol. 146b, on Numb. 26 9, which registers eighteen such words. As these three Lists greatly vary and moreover as Lists II and III exhibit the earliest attempts to collect the expressions which belong to this category, I subjoin them in the note so that they may be collated by the student of the Massorah. From § 45 it will be seen that there are about 259 such expressions.

- List II is as follows: ...
List III is as follows: ...

כ"ג - § 43.

כ"ג. — This fragment, which records three unique words ending in Yod preceded by Shin with Pathach and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 196b, on Ezek. 45 9. There are altogether sixteen such instances. (Vide infra, § 45.)

כ"ד - § 44a.

כ"ד. — Of this incipient Register, which records nine unique words ending in Yod preceded by Tav with Chirek, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 371a, on Deut. 32 41, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 142b, on the same passage.

כ"ד - § 44b.

כ"ד. — Words ending in Yod preceded by Tav. That is, with the suffix first person singular. This expanded List, which records thirty-one instances, I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ך, § 10. It is incorrect, since ך is not unique; it occurs four times (Exod. 16 4; Jerem. 26 4; 44 10; 2 Chron. 6 16), neither is ך unique: it occurs twice (Gen. 31 7, 41). The catchwords for ך should be ך Ezek. 31 15 and not ך.

On comparing this expanded List with the incipient one recorded in § 44a, it will be seen that one only of the nine examples registered in the short List given, is in this lengthier List, viz. ך Jerem. 2 23, and that the two Lists combined yield thirty-nine examples, whereas there are 729 words ending in Yod preceded by Tav most of which are with Chirek. (Vide infra, § 45.)

כ"ד - § 44c.

כ"ד. — Since the publication of the first Volume of the Massorah, I have found the following incipient List of words ending in Yod preceded by Tav with Pathach or Kametz in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 137b, on Numb. 18 8:

Table with 3 columns: Word, Reference, Word. Rows include: תיבתי, Ps. 69 5; תיבתי, Ps. 69 6; תיבתי, Job 17 11; תיבתי, Exod. 9 14; תיבתי, 1 Chron. 4 14; תיבתי, Num. 18 8; תיבתי, Ps. 144 1; תיבתי, Exod. 3 20; תיבתי, Job 7 4; תיבתי, Lament. 1 22.

כ"ה - § 45.

An alphabetical List of words ending in Yod which respectively occur once only. This List I compiled myself. As the earliest forms of the Registers which record unique expressions, generally consist of single words without any catchwords or indication where they occur, the importance of this Alphabet will easily be appreciated, especially when the Massoretic student attempts to decipher the Lists which I have given above in the notes on Rubrics 4 and 42 from the ancient Codex Orient. 4445. This alphabetical List contains about 8144 words ending in Yod which respectively occur once only, as follows:

- כ"ה 75; כ"ב + 146; כ"י 21; כ"ד 135; כ"ה 51; כ"ו 46; כ"ז 31; כ"ח 86; כ"ט 30; כ"י 16; כ"כ 72; כ"ל 181; כ"מ 126; כ"נ 737; כ"ס 28; כ"פ 105; כ"צ 70; כ"ק 34; כ"ך 63; כ"ש 259; כ"ט 108; כ"י 729 = 8144.

In this number I include the following omissions: קתל Ezra 10 28; חתל Judg. 1 10; חתל 2 Sam. 23 30; the Kethiv חתל or חתל 2 Sam. 21 21, and חתל 1 Chron. 25 31. חתל 1 Chron. 6 10 is to be cancelled, since this quadriliteral also occurs in 2 Kings 4 7 though not as a proper name and חתל 1 Chron. 6 10 is to be corrected into חתל 1 Chron. 6 20. The enormous labour in finding and arranging 8144 expressions which belong to this category alone must be my plea for indulgence.

כ"ו § - 46.

Nine words which respectively occur twice and with Yod in one instance and with Vav in the other. With the solitary exception of one pair, viz. חתל (Ps. 45 11) in which the Yod is the feminine singular of the Hiphil imperative and חתל where the Vav is the masculine plural of the Hiphil imperative, the design of this Massorah is to record the words which respectively occur twice only and which are in one instance with the suffix first person singular and in one with the suffix third person singular masculine.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS., two printed; (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 206b, on 2 Sam. 15 8, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 256b, on 1 Chron. 29 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 297a, on Ps. 55 14; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal I, § 54; (V) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal § 53, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך § 2. All the six Lists record exactly the same nine pairs including the disturbing two imperatives.

כ"ז - § 47.

In eight verses there are respectively two words, the first ends in Yod and the second begins with Vav. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ך § 58.

It will be seen that Jacob b. Chayim, in the note appended to this Massorah rightly remarks that this statement is not correct with regard to many of the verses according to the recension of our Codices, and that he modestly remarks that it may be due to his not understanding its import. In analysing the eight verses which constitute this Rubric, we see that four only coincide with the statement in the heading, viz. חתל וחתל (Isa. 38 20) בעתל ובעתל (2 Sam. 16 12) חתל וחתל (Zeph. 3 14) and חתל וחתל (Ps. 66 20) and that in the other four verses, viz. Isa. 16 3; Ps. 32 3; Job 31 30, 31 no such two words occur, the first of which ends in Yod and the second begins with Vav.

Frensdorff will have it that חתל in the heading is a printer's mistake for חתל. He accordingly declares that this Rubric records eight verses in which the suffix varies in two words. In the first instance a word in each verse ends with Yod or the first person singular and in the second instance a word ends with the suffix Vav, being the first person plural or the third person singular.

Against this hypothesis, however, is the fact the חתל is in the editio princeps which Jacob b. Chayim edited himself (Venice 1524—25) and that the note which he appended is only applicable, to the import of this Massorah in accordance with this expression, since it is חתל which makes half of the instances in conflict with the received text. Moreover the very first of the eight instances shows that the two words intended by this Rubric are in close proximity, the first ending in Yod and the one next to it beginning with Vav. It is the close resemblance of these two letters, especially in the oldest MSS., thus coming together that this Massorah is designed to safeguard lest they should be confused.

On the printer's error hypothesis or the two suffixes theory, according to which the two words in question occupy two different parts of the same verse, the Vav suffix וַיִּשַׁב (Isa. 38 20) is twice preceded by the suffix Yod, thus making it three words instead of two, as stated in the heading. The same is the case in קָלְקָלָה (2 Sam. 16 12) and in וַיִּשַׁב (Job 31 30). In Pa. 32 3 קָלָה is not only preceded by the suffix Yod, but is followed twice by it and in Pa. 66 20 the suffix Vav in וַיִּשַׁב is both preceded and followed the suffix Yod. The conflict between the four verses (וַיִּשַׁב וַיִּשַׁב) and the received text, which Jacob b. Chayim has already pointed out, is due to the additions of later Nakdanim who, as is not infrequently the case, mistook the import of this Massorah.

וַיִּשַׁב = § 48.

וַיִּשַׁב Jaazanjah, occurs twice . . . and once it is Jezanjah. That is, without the Aleph. According to the Massorah this proper name which, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether six times, is spelt in three different ways. In two instances, which are recorded in this Rubric, it is the shorter form ending in jah; in two which are registered in the following Rubric, it is the longer form ending in jahu and in two, one belonging to the shorter form and one to the longer, it is without the Aleph, viz. וַיִּשַׁב (Jerem. 42 1) and וַיִּשַׁב (Jerem. 40 8). As these three forms are promiscuously used in the same books (comp. Jerem. 35 3; 40 8; 42 1; Ezek. 8 11; 11 1), the Massorah safeguards the variation in the orthography of this proper name. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 30.

וַיִּשַׁב = § 49.

וַיִּשַׁב and Jaazanjah, occurs twice. That is, the longer form. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118b, on 2 Kings 25 23, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 31. It will be seen that, according to the Rubric which I have printed, the two longer forms with Aleph occur in the two parallel passages. This Massorah must, therefore, be based upon a recension of the text which exhibited וַיִּשַׁב with Aleph in Jerem. 40 8. The printed Massorah, however (List II) gives the catchwords וַיִּשַׁב = Ezek. 8 11 as the second instance and adds at the end וַיִּשַׁב, which fixes the reading without Aleph of the longer form for the Jeremiah passage. For the cause of the variation in the orthography of this name, see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 386 &c.

וַיִּשַׁב = § 50.

וַיִּשַׁב they have become foolish, occurs twice. In the only other instance in which this Niphal preterite third person plural occurs and where it is with the prefix Vav, it is defective, viz. וַיִּשַׁב being in pause. As the Septuagint exhibits וַיִּשַׁב, it may be that this Rubric is designed to militate against the recension which has this reading. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 160a, on Jerem. 5 4.

וַיִּשַׁב = § 51.

וַיִּשַׁב he begins or has consented, occurs three times and is plene. The design of this Rubric is to militate against the reading וַיִּשַׁב defective, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew on Deut. 1 5.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS, and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 111a, on Deut. 1 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 180b, on 1 Sam. 12 22; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 201a, on Hosea 5 11; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 298b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 253b, on Deut. 1 5; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Hosea 5 11, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Deut. 1 5. All the Lists emphasise the fact in their respective headings that all the three instances are plene.

וַיִּשַׁב = § 52.

וַיִּשַׁב consent thou, or be thou content, occurs four times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS, and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 61b, on 2 Sam. 7 29, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 101a, on 2 Kings 5 23; (III) the same MS., fol. 101b, on 2 Kings 6 3; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 143b, on Judg. 19 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 168b, on 2 Sam. 7 29;

(VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 203a, on 2 Kings 5 23, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Judg. 19 6.

Though in two of the four instances of this Hiphil imperative singular masculine, the Aleph is with Segol (Judg. 19 6; 2 Kings 6 3) and in two it is with Tzere (2 Sam. 7 29; 2 Kings 5 23), yet none of the Lists notice this variation in the graphic sign. It is, however, indicated in the order in which the passages are recorded, where the two Segol instances are given first and the two Tzere second, as will be seen from the List which I have printed.

וַיִּשַׁב = § 53.

וַיִּשַׁב and he was content, occurs seven times in the Scriptures, five times plene and twice defective. As this Hiphil future third person singular masculine with the prefix Vav which occurs altogether seven times, is differently spelt, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS, and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 35b, on Exod. 2 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 156a, on Judg. 1 27; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 43b, on Exod. 2 21; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 19a, on Judg. 1 27; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 68a, on Exod. 2 21; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 38, margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 2 21.

As six of the instances are with Pathach under the Vav, being conversive and one is not only with Sheva being conjunctive, but with Tzere under the Aleph, viz. וַיִּשַׁב, List IV emphasises this fact by the addition at the end of the Rubric וַיִּשַׁב = Job 6 9; whilst the other Lists simply distinguish the plenes from the defectives.

וַיִּשַׁב river, flood, without and with the prefixes is always defective except in six instances. Without and with the prefixes this singular noun occurs altogether about forty-six times. It is defective in forty instances and plene in six only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This protection was deemed necessary since this different spelling not only occurs in the same section, but in the same verse (comp. Isa. 23 3, 10; Amos 8 8).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS, and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 43b, on Gen. 41 1, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah, Supplement, fol. 130b, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 41 1. List II states in the heading that there are five such instances (חמש) and records five only. It omits the third instance in Isa. 19 7, declaring that there are two defectives in this verse (שני) and not three.

Of the forty-six instances in which this noun occurs in the three divisions of the Bible, twenty-eight are in the Pentateuch. In this division it is uniformly defective, whilst in the Prophets and Hagiographa, where it occurs eighteen times, it is twelve times defective and six times plene. This fact will explain the heading of List III which is as follows: וַיִּשַׁב כל ארבעה עשר ושלש עשרים ושלשה.

וַיִּשַׁב = § 55.

וַיִּשַׁב no hope, desperate, occurs four times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS, and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 224b, on Job 6 26, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 57 10; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 18 12; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 143a, on Isa. 57 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 158a, on Jerem. 18 12; (VI) the same MS., fol. 323b, on Job 6 26, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 18 12.

This Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter ך, § 75.)

וַיִּשַׁב = § 56.

וַיִּשַׁב increase, occurs three times. That is, in this exceptional form without the suffix. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ך, § 35.

וַיִּשַׁב = § 57.

וַיִּשַׁב her increase, occurs eight times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. That is, in contradistinction to the exceptional instances in which it is without the suffix recorded in the preceding Rubric. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Levit. 26 4.

ז"ה = § 58.

ז"ה her increase, occurs four times. That is, without being preceded by ה"י the sign of the accusative, after the verb נתן to give or to yield. In combination with this verb ז"ה occurs altogether seven times. In three instances it is ז"ה (Levit. 26 20; Deut. 11 17; Zech. 8 12), and in four which constitute this Rubric, it is without ה"י. Hence the Massorah indicates the passages in which this variation occurs. This safeguarding was deemed necessary since this variation not only occurs in the same book, but in the same section. (Comp. Levit. 26 4, 20.)

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 289b, on Ezek. 34 27, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 805b, on Ps. 85 13; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 180a, on Levit. 26 4; (IV) Orient. 2348, fol. 108a, on the same passage; (V) Orient. 2849, fol. 98a, also on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 34 27, and (VII) the same on Ps. 67 7.

ז"ו = § 59.

ז"ו they shall bring, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. . . the first instance is plene. As this Hiphil future third person plural masculine which occurs twice, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ps. 76 12. It is remarkable that the Massorah here does not advert to the fact that this Hiphil third person plural masculine occurs a third time where it is not only defective, but is with paragodic Nun (comp. ז"ו Zeph. 3 10 and see the note on it in my edition of the Bible).

ז"ז = § 60.

ז"ז he shall be brought, is twice with Zakeph-Kametz. This future third person singular masculine occurs four times with Kametz. In two instances the Kametz is normal, being due to the pausal accent Soph-Pasuk (Hosea 12 2) and Athnach (Job 21 82). In the two instances, however, which constitute this Rubric the accent Zakeph-Katon has in a similar manner changed the normal Pathach into Kametz. Hence the Massorah safeguards these instances.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 142a, on Isa. 53 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 202a, on Hosea 10 6, and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 289b, on the same passage. The List which I have printed is incorrect, the heading ought to be ז"ז, since there are two such instances only. Jerem. 17 8 is the addition of a Nakdan who mistook the import of this Massorah. It is rightly omitted in List II, which is from the same MS., and List III.

ז"ח = § 61.

ז"ח is in six instances with Pathach. For this Rubric see letter ת, § 49.

ז"ט = § 62.

ז"ט his sister-in-law, occurs three times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 127b, on Deut. 25 7. As the three instances occur not only in the same book, but in the same section, the heading ought more properly to be ז"ט.

ז"י = § 63.

ז"י the Jebusite, is in five instances defective of Vav. Without and with the prefixes this gentile name occurs altogether forty-one times. It is plene in thirty-six instances and defective in five only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 143b, on 1 Chron. 21 18, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 167a, on 2 Sam. 5 8, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As one of the five instances is without the prefix He (ז"י 2 Sam. 5 8), the heading in Lists II and III, viz. ז"י is more correct. In accordance with this Massorah ז"י 2 Sam. 5 8 in my edition of the Bible ought to be ז"י defective.

ז"כ = § 64.

ז"כ he dried up, is four times plene. Of this Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, I collated two Lists: (I) on Josh. 4 23, which I have printed, and (II) on Joel 1 10. Both Lists, which record the same four instances in identically the same order, are incorrect as will be seen from the following analysis.

Apart from Isa. 30 5 where the Kethiv is ז"כ and the Keri ז"כ, this Hiphil preterite third person singular masculine occurs altogether thirteen times and is plene in seven instances and defective in six. This is attested by the best Standard Codices.

- (1) Joshua 2 10 plene; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 and ז"כ defective in Add. 15,250.
- (2, 3) Joshua 4 23 twice in the same verse ז"כ plene; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 and ז"כ defective in none of these Codices.
- (4) Joshua 5 1. — ז"כ plene; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 and ז"כ defective in Add. 15,250.
- (5) Ezekiel 19 12. — ז"כ plene; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 and ז"כ defective in none.
- (6) Joel 1 10. — ז"כ plene; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, and ז"כ defective in none.
- (7) Zechariah 9 6. — ז"כ plene, Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,451 and ז"כ defective, Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916.

The six defectives are exhibited in the following instances

- (1) Jeremiah 10 14. — ז"כ defective, Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451. The leaf in Orient. 2201 is missing and ז"כ plene Harley 5710-11; St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916.
- (2) Jeremiah 48 20. — ז"כ defective, Orient. 2201; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 (the leaf in Arund. Orient. 16 is missing) and ז"כ plene, Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,451.
- (3) Jeremiah 50 2. — ז"כ defective, Orient. 2201; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 (the leaf in Arund. Orient. 16, is missing) and ז"כ plene Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,451.
- (4) Jeremiah 51 17. — ז"כ defective, Orient. 2201; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 (the leaf in Arund. Orient. 16 is missing) and ז"כ plene Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,451.
- (5) Joel 1 12. — ז"כ defective, Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, and ז"כ plene Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,451.
- (6) Joel 1 17. — ז"כ defective, Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,250; St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 second hand with the Massorah against it ז"כ and ז"כ plene Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,451.

The remarkable part in connection with the orthography of this expression is that some of these Standard Codices which consistently exhibit the seven plenes and six defectives have conflicting Massorahs against several of the passages. Thus Arund. Orient. 16 has against Josh. 2 10; Ezek. 19 12 and Joel 1 10 in the Massorah Parva ז"כ or ז"כ. Add. 15,250 has against Ezek. 19 12 ז"כ; Add. 15,251 and Add. 15,451 like Arund. Orient. 16, have respectively against Josh. 2 10 ז"כ and ז"כ; whilst Add. 15,250 has against the same passage ז"כ.

וַיִּבֶשׂ and shall be dried up, occurs five times. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 205 a, on Amos 1 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 307 a, on Ps. 90 6; (III) the same MS., fol. 326 a, on Job 14 11; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 302 a, on Amos. 1 2; (V) the same MS., fol. 350 b, on Job 14 11, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 90 6.

It is remarkable that List II emphatically states in the heading that this expression occurs twice only (וַיִּבֶשׂ) and records the following two לַעֲרִיב יִשְׁלַל רִבְשׁ, viz. Isa. 19 5 or Job 14 11 and Ps. 90 6. The Massorah Parva also on the latter (Ps. 90 6) remarks בִּי. It is most probable that the qualifying expression בְּכַתְּבֵי, as is not infrequently the case, has been omitted in the heading and that the design of this form of the Rubric is simply to record the two instances in which וַיִּבֶשׂ occurs in the Hagiographa, i. e. Job 14 11 and Ps. 90 2.

ס"ו = § 66.

וְהָיָה they were ashamed, is twice defective. That is, doubly defective (וְהָיָה), being both without Vav after the He and without Yod after the Shin. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 152 b, on Jerem. 8 9.

This expression, which occurs altogether six times, is spelt in three different ways. In one instance it is וְהָיָה entirely plene (Jerem. 6 15); in three instances, two being preterite third person plural (Jerem. 2 26; 50 2) and one imperative plural (Joel I 11), it is וְהָיָה partly defective and partly plene, and in the two instances which constitute this Rubric, it is entirely defective. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. This Rubric, however, is based upon Codices of one School of textual redactors. The MSS. of other Schools exhibit different variations. Though Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 and Add. 15,451 support Arund. Orient. 16 in reading it וְהָיָה in these two passages entirely defective, yet St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Harley 5710-11 &c. have it וְהָיָה partly defective and partly plene in both instances. Hence the conflicting Massorahs in the different Standard Codices. Whilst the Massorah Parva on Jerem. 8 9, 12 in Arund. Orient. 16 emphatically remarks בִּי הָיָה וְהָיָה בִּי הָיָה, the Massorah on Jerem. 8 9 in Add. 15,451 as distinctly states that this is the only instance in which the entirely defective spelling occurs (וְהָיָה לִי בְּכַתְּבֵי). For other variations exhibited in the early editions see the notes on the respective passages in my edition of the Hebrew Bible ס"ז = § 67.

וַיִּבֶשׂ drying up, occurs twice once plene and once defective. As this infinitive absolute, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt in each instance, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 177 a on Ezek. 17 10, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 251 a on Zech. 11 17. In the latter the Scribe has omitted ו before בל.

ס"ח = § 68.

וַיִּבֶשׂ and it dried up, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. This future third person singular masculine, which occurs altogether three times, is differently spelt. In the Prophets, where it occurs twice, it is with both Yods, whilst in the Hagiographa, where it occurs once, it is with one Yod. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its spelling. It will be seen that though in one of the plene instances the Beth is with Kametz (וַיִּבֶשׂ Jonah. 4 7), which is due to the pausal accent Soph-Pasuk, the Massorah does not indicate this variation in its graphic signs. In St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 the Jonah instance is also defective (וַיִּבֶשׂ), but the Nakdan remarks against it בל.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 309 a on Ps. 102 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 337 b on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 302 b on Jonah 4 7; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ps. 102 5; (V) the printed Massorah on Jonah 4 7, and (VI) the same on Ps. 102 5.

ס"ט = § 69.

וַיִּבֶשׂ and they or it shall wither, or dry up, is four times defective in this form. That is, the future form third person masculine with and without the prefix Vav and once without the plural suffix Vav, is defective of Yod.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 136 a on Isa. 40 24, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 325 b, on Job 12 15; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 229 b, on Isa. 40 24; (IV) the same MS., fol. 250 a, on Job 12 15; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 832 b, on the same passage; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Isa. 40 24, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 41. Though List I, which I have printed, emphatically states in the heading that there are four such instances, it records three only. It omits וַיִּבֶשׂוּ מַתָּרַן Job 18 16. This is probably due to the fact that it is without the prefix Vav which the other three instances have. The other six Lists, however, give it as the fourth instance.

ע = § 70.

וְהִבְשִׁיתָ thou hast ashamed, or dried up, occurs twice once plene and once defective. This Hiphil. preterite second person singular masculine which occurs twice, is in each passage differently spelt. In 2 Sam. 19 6, where it denotes thou hast put to shame, it is without the Vav after the He and in Ps. 74 15, where it signifies thou hast dried up, it is with the Vav. The Massorah therefore safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 302 a, on Ps. 74 15, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 332 b, on the same passage, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ט, § 408.)

ע"א = § 71.

וַיִּבֶשׂ Jabesh, is six times defective in this form. That is, without and with the prefix Beth. This name, which occurs nineteen times without the prefix Beth and once with it, is spelt in two different ways. It is plene (וַיִּבֶשׂ) in fourteen instances (Judg. 21 12; 1 Sam. 11 1, 1, 3, 5, 9, 9, 10; 31 11; 2 Sam. 2 4, 5; 21 12; 2 Kings 15 14; 1 Chron. 10 11) and defective, that is without the Yod, (וַיִּבֶשׂ) in six only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the minority. This protection is necessary, since the two different spellings are promiscuously used in the same section (Judg. 21 9, 10, 14 with verse 12; 2 Kings 15 10, 13 with verse 14; 1 Chron. 10 12 with verse 11).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 34 a, on Judg. 21 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 244 b, on 1 Chron. 10 12; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 145 b, on Judg. 21 9, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. With the exception of List II, which heads this Rubric וְהָיָה and gives five instances only, omitting וְהָיָה בְּכַתְּבֵי 2 Kings 15 13, all the other Lists are headed וְהָיָה בְּכַתְּבֵי and record identically the same six instances in precisely the same order. The expression וְהָיָה in the heading denotes that one of the six instances is with the prefix Beth (וַיִּבֶשׂ), viz. 1 Chron. 10 12. According to this Massorah, the text and the margin in Judg. 21 12 in my edition of the Bible must change places.

And wherever וַיִּבֶשׂ occurs it is likewise so. That is, in all the three instances where the Kal preterite third person plural is with Tzere under the Beth, viz. וַיִּבֶשׂוּ (Jerem. 30 38; Ezek. 19 12; Joel 1 12) which is due to its pausal accent, there is also no Yod after the Beth.

ע"ב = § 72.

וַיִּבֶשׂ Jabesh, occurs three times. That is, with paragogic He. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the instance in 1 Sam. 31 13 against being made uniform with the parallel passage in 1 Chron. 10 12 b.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 57 a, on 1 Sam. 31 12, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As it is with the prefix Beth in one instance, the heading ought more properly to be וְהִבְשִׁיתָ בִּי. It is remarkable that the Massorah does not notice the fact that it is plene (וַיִּבֶשׂ) in one instance (2 Chron. 10 12).

ע"ג = § 73.

וְלִבְנֵיהֶם and for husbandmen, occurs twice. The design of this Rubric is to militate against the Babylonian recension of the text which exhibits וְלִבְנֵיהֶם as the Kethiv and וְלִבְנֵיהֶם as the Keri, whilst the Palestinian have וְלִקְרִיב both as Kethiv and Keri. This is emphatically stated in the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,251, fol. 215 b, on 2 Kings 25 15, which has וְלִקְרִיב in the text with the Massorah on it לִמְנוּחַ לִמְנוּחַ וְלִמְנוּחַ. The conflicting printed Massorah on Jerem. 52 12, which states that וְלִקְרִיב does not occur again and that it is one of the List of words beginning with וְלִ which respectively occur once only (וְלִיָּנִים לִי הָיָה חֵדֶן מִלִּין) (דְּרִישׁוֹהוּן לִי), is based upon the Babylonian recension.

ע"ר = § 74.

וְלִקְרִיב he afflicted, is three times Raphē... and once it is with Dagesh. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 212 a, on 2 Sam. 20 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 269 b, on Lament. 3 82; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 71 b, on 2 Sam. 20 13; (IV) the same MS., fol. 357 a, on Lament. 3 82; (V) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 20 13, and (VI) the same on Lament. 3 82. As it is defective in the first instance, the other Lists head this Rubric בְּאֵת הַיּוֹם וְכִי מָלַי.

ע"ה = § 75.

וְיִגְבְּהוּ and Jogbehah, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 24 a, on Judg. 8 11, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 120 b, on Numb. 32 35.

ע"י = 76.

וְיִגְעוּ her labour, occurs twice in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the official reading וְיִגְעָה which is exhibited as Keri in Jerem. 20 5 in the rival School of textual redactors. This is attested by the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710—11 on this passage.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 44 a, on Jerem. 20 5, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 159 b, on the same passage.

ע"ז = § 77.

וְיִגְעוּ and they shall labour, is three times defective in this form. That is, the future third person plural with and without the prefix Vav (וְ) is in these three instances with one Yod only. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the recension which exhibits the plene reading וְיִגְעוּ in Isa. 65 23 and which is preserved in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 and in some of the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 229 b, on Isa. 40 30.

ע"ח = § 78.

וְיִגְעוּ I have feaved, occurs four times in the Scriptures and is defective. That is, in contradistinction to the participle which occurs twice and is plene (וְיִגְעוּ Jerem. 22 25; 39 17).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 212 b, on Ps. 119 39, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 314 b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 322 b, on Job 3 25; (IV) the same MS., fol. 324 b, on Job 9 28; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 110 a, on Deut. 9 19; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Job 9 28.

ע"ט = § 79.

וְיִגְעוּ by the hand of Moses and Aaron, occurs twice. Normally וְיִגְעוּ is followed by מִפְּנֵי alone. In this combination it occurs twenty-four times.¹ As it is in these two instances only that Aaron follows מִפְּנֵי, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex, No. 35, on Numb. 33 1.

¹ Comp. גִּידְעָה Exod. 9 35; 34 29; 35 29; Levit. 8 36; 10 11; 26 40; Numb. 4 37, 45, 49; 9 23; 10 13; 15 23; 17 5; 27 23; 36 13; Judg. 3 4; 1 Kings 3 53, 56; Neh. 8 14; 9 14; 10 30; 2 Chron. 33 8; 34 14; 35 6.

ע"י = § 80.

וְיִגְעוּ with an high hand, is three times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the phrase וְיִגְעוּ with or by a mighty hand, which occurs twelve times (Exod. 3 19; 6 1; 13 9; Deut. 5 15; 6 21; 7 8; 9 26; 26 8; Ezek. 20 33, 34; Ps. 136 12; Dan. 9 15). As it is in these three instances only that וְיִגְעוּ is combined with מִפְּנֵי, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional phrase.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 108 b, on Numb. 33 3, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 40 a, on Exod. 14 8; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 214 a, on Numb. 15 30; (IV) the same MS., fol. 247 a, on Numb. 33 3; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 110 a, on Numb. 15 30, and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As all the three instances occur in the Pentateuch, the heading ought more properly to be בְּרִשְׁמֵי וּבְאִירֵימָה. Both on Numb. 15 30, where Jacob b. Chayim gives this Rubric, and on Numb. 33 3 where he simply mentions it, he refers to Exod. 14 8 where he says he has also recorded it (וּבְמִסְדֵּי בְּשִׁלָּה). But on this passage it is not even mentioned.

ע"כ = § 81.

וְיִגְעוּ is the hand of, occurs twice. This trilateral occurs altogether six times. In four instances the prefix He is the article and the Yod is both with Dagesh and Kametz, being in the absolute, whilst in these two instances only is the He with Chateph-Pathach and the Yod with Pathach, being in the construct. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 206 b, on 2 Sam. 14 19, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 66 a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 41,250, fol. 80 a, on Numb. 11 28, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the Alphabetical List of words beginning with He which respectively occur twice. (Vide supra, letter ה, § 19.)

ע"ג = § 82.

וְיִגְעוּ and the hand of, occurs twelve times... and three times it is with Kametz. As this noun with the prefix Vav, which occurs altogether fifteen times, is in twelve instances in the construct and in three in the absolute, the Massorah indicates the respective states by the names of the graphic signs, the Pathach denoting the construct and the Kametz the absolute. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 123 a, on Deut. 17 7.

Of the second part of this Massorah, which is given in a separate Rubric, I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Ezek. 21 24; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 180 a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 117 a, on Deut. 23 13; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 126 a on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 37 22; (VI) the same on Deut. 23 13, and (VII) the same on Ezek. 21 24. Lists I, II, III, IV and V give the mnemonic sign. The sign alone is also given in Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 126 b, on Deut. 23 13.

ע"ד = § 83.

וְיִגְעוּ and the hand of Jehovah, occurs three times. This phrase occurs altogether twenty-three times. In twenty instances it is without the prefix Vav¹ and in three only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 93 b, on 1 Kings 18 46, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 188 a, on Ezek. 33 22; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 149 b, on 1 Kings 18 46, and (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 197 a, on the same passage. The latter indicates the import of this Massorah by the addition at the end of וְיִגְעוּ בְּלֵאָה.

¹ Comp. וְיִגְעוּ Exod. 9 3; Deut. 2 15; Josh. 4 24; Judg. 2 15; 1 Sam. 6 9; 7 13; 12 15; 2 Kings 3 15; Isa. 19 16; 25 10; 41 20; 59 1; 66 14; Ezek. 1 3; 3 22; 37 1; 40 1; Job 12 9; Ruth 1 13.

ע"ה = § 84.

וְיִגְעוּ and into the hand of the army of the king of Babylon, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 34 21. As this combination is without the prefix Vav in the second instance, the heading ought more properly to be בְּבִלְשִׁי.

ע"ו = § 85.

וְיִגְעוּ according to the hand, or state of, occurs eight times in the Scriptures. That is, with the prefix Caph in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which it is with the prefix Beth. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this exceptional prefix against its being mistaken for the normal one which it so strikingly resembles in the MSS.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 290 a, on Ezra 7 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 290 b, on Ezra 8 18; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 298 b, on Neh. 2 8; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 376 a, on Ezra 7 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 377 a, on Ezra 8 18, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ezra 7 6.

י"ד - § 86.

יָד הַמֶּלֶךְ according to the hand or state of the king, occurs three times. This noun in the construct with prefix Caph, which occurs altogether eight times, is in five instances followed by a Divine name, whilst in these three instances it is combined with a human potentate. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 359 b, on Esther 2 18, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 226 a, on 1 Kings 10 18, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 85, on Esther 2 18.

י"ה - § 87.

יָד הַאֱלֹהִים from the hand of the God, occurs three times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter u, § 460. From the fact that one instance only is with the prefix Mem and that the other two are without any prefix, it is evident that the design of this Massorah is to register the passages in which יָד הַאֱלֹהִים without and with prefixes occurs. Accordingly the heading ought properly to be יָד הַאֱלֹהִים.

Normally where the construct u is followed by a Divine name it is the Tetragrammaton, viz. יְהוָה. As it is in these three instances only, apart from Ecclesiastes, that it is followed by יָד הַאֱלֹהִים, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

And throughout Ecclesiastes it is likewise so, i. e. what is the exception in all the other parts of the Scriptures is the rule in this book. Here u is normally followed by יְהוָה and not by the Tetragrammaton (comp. Eccl. 2 24; 9 1).

י"ו - § 88.

יָדוֹ and his hand, occurs three times. By fixing the number at three, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the textual reading or Kethiv which is also יָדוֹ the singular, both in Ezek. 1 8 and in Job 5 18 and for which the official reading or Keri substitutes the plural.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 7 b, on Isa. 14 27, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 16 a, on Isa. 34 17; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 17 a, on Gen. 25 26; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 17 a; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 42 a, and (VI) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

י"ז - § 89.

יָדוֹ and in his hand, occurs three times. This expression, which occurs altogether seven times, is normally with Tipcha. With this accent it occurs four times as follows; יָדוֹ Isa. 6 6; Jerem. 34 8; Amos 7 7; Zech. 2 5. In one instance, however, it is with Revia (יָדוֹ 2 Sam. 8 10) and in two instances it is with Mercha (יָדוֹ 1 Kings 8 15; 2 Chron. 26 19). The Massorah therefore safeguards the exceptional accents. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter v, § 67.

י"ח - § 90.

יָדְךָ your hand, occurs three times . . . and throughout Deuteronomy it is likewise so. Of the seven instances in which this singular with the suffix second person plural masculine occurs, three only are outside Deuteronomy. Hence in these parts of the Bible it is the exception, whilst in Deuteronomy where it occurs four times (11 18; 12 6, 7, 11) it is the rule. The Massorah, therefore, records the minority. This safeguarding is especially necessary, since in two of the three instances the ancient recensions exhibited variations, as will be seen from the notes on Exod. 32 29, and Levit. 8 33 in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 56 b, on Exod. 32 29. As six of the seven instances occur in the Pentateuch and hence יָדְךָ is unique outside this division of the Bible, and moreover as in the only instance in which this noun with the suffix second person plural masculine occurs in the Pentateuch it is יָדְךָ the plural (Deut. 31 29), the Massorah on 2 Chron. 29 31 in Vienna Codex No. 85 formulates this Rubric as follows: יָדְךָ לִי וְלִי וְלִי וְלִי דְּבַרְךָ בְּמִצְוֹת לְהַשְׁמִיעַ.

י"ט - § 91.

יָדוֹ and the hands of, occurs four times in the Scriptures. By fixing the number at four, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the textual reading יָדוֹ in Ezek. 1 8, and to include the official reading יָדָיו.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 46 a, on Exod. 17 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 38 a, on Jerem. 10 9; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 1 8; (IV) the same Codex on Ezek. 7 27; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 158 b, on Jerem. 10 9; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 17 12, and (VII) the same on Ezek. 1 8.

י"י - § 92.

יָדָיו my hands, occurs twenty-two times. That is, one of these instances being with the prefix Vav. This trilateral with Kametz under the Yod occurs altogether 95 times. In seventy-four instances the suffix is with Chivek, being the singular with the suffix first person singular, and in twenty-one only it is with Pothach or when with the pausal accent (Deut. 9 15, 17; Dan. 10 10; Neh. 6 9) with Kametz to indicate the dual with the suffix first person. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. With the prefix Vav these two forms occur three times. In two instances it is יָדָיו with Chivek (1 Sam. 24 12, 18) and once only is it יָדָיו (Cant. 5 5), for which reason the latter forms the end part of this Rubric. By fixing the number at twenty-one this Massorah militates against the recensions of the text which have יָד in Neh. 6 9, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 178 b, on Ps. 18 21, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 29 28; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 72 b, on 2 Sam. 22 21; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 282 a, on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochlaf Ve-Ochlaf II, § 219; (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 18 21, and (VII) the same on Ps. 144 1. In the List which I have printed, one of the instances, viz. 2 Sam. 22 21 is omitted. But this omission is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Nakdan, as is attested by the fact that it is recorded in all the other Lists. Some of the Lists are more properly headed יָדָיו . . . יָדָיו.

יָדָיו thy hands, is eleven times plene. That is, in these passages it is with Yod after the Daleth with Segol, indicating that it is the dual, in contradistinction to the numerous instances where it is יָדָיו also with Segol, but without Yod, because it is the singular and the Segol is due to the pausal or disjunctive accent. By fixing the number at eleven, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the three instances of the textual reading or the Kethiv which are יָדָיו and for which the official reading or Keri substitutes יָדָיו (1 Kings 22 34; Prov. 3 27; 2 Chron. 18 38), and the recensions which read יָדָיו in Josh. 10 6, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

And throughout the Psalms it is likewise plene except in five instances. In the Psalter, where the form with Segol under the Daleth occurs altogether twelve times, the reverse is the case. The plene is the rule. It occurs seven times (Ps. 8 7; 92 5; 102 26; 119 78; 138 8; 143 5; 144 7) and the defective five times only. Here, therefore, the Massorah on the contrary, safeguards the defectives.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists, but I shall specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 122 b, on Deut. 16 15, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 57 a, on Exod. 15 17; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 7 b, on Josh. 10 6; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 122 a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 89 a, on Exod. 15 17; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 186, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Job 14 15. List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, does not give the second part of the Rubric which makes it unintelligible since, as we have seen, there are altogether eighteen plene instances. The five plenes in the Prophets are given as a separate Rubric in the Massorah of Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 221 b, on Zech. 13 6 with the heading דיד ה' מלי בנבוא'.

יד his hand, is five times defective. That is, the noun יד without and with prefixes, is in these five instances יד his hand, the singular with the suffix third person singular in the text or Kethiv, for which the official reading or Keri substitutes ידד his hands, the plural.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 74 b, on Levit. 16 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 224 a, on Job 5 18; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 195 b, on Ezek. 43 26; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 120 a, on Exod. 32 19; (V) the same MS., fol. 149 b, on Levit. 9 22; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 32 19, and (VII) the same on Levit. 9 22.

List IV adds another striking proof of my repeated statement that many of the Rubrics are based upon the textual recension of one School of Massorites and are designed to militate against the rival recensions of other Massoretic Schools. Thus after enumerating the five instances which constitute this Register in accordance with the number given in the heading, this Rubric adds at the end a sixth instance, viz. in Ps. 95 5, with the remark that it forms a difference between the Massoretic Schools יבשת יד יצו ברוח מלכות. This explains both the text and the Massorah in Add. 21,161 which reads יד in the text in Ps. 95 5 with the Massorah on it ידד.

ידד and his hands, occurs four times in the Scriptures. By fixing the number at four, this Massorah militates against the textual reading יד and includes here the official reading or Keri ידד in Job 5 18.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 122 b, on Zech. 4 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 230 b, on Job 20 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 218 a, on Zech. 4 9; (IV) the same MS., fol. 328 a, on Job 20 10; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 161 b, on Levit. 15 11; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Job 20 10.

ידד = § 96.

ידד in her hand, occurs three times and is plene. With the prefix Beth and the suffix third person singular feminine, ידד occurs altogether ten times. In seven instances it is in the singular, without the Yod after the Daleth (ידד in her hand Gen. 39 12, 13; Exod. 15 20; Deut. 24 1, 3; Judg. 4 21; Isa. 51 18), Massoretically called defective, and in three only is it in the plural (ידדד in her hands) with Yod after the Daleth, which the Massorah calls plene. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptions.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 58 b, on Exod. 35 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 248 b, on Prov. 14 1; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 268 b, on Lament. 1 17; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 341 a, on Prov. 14 1; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 126 a on Exod. 35 25; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Prov. 14 1.

ידדד our hands, occurs six times plene. That is, with Yod after the Daleth, being the plural, in contradistinction to the two instances in which it is ידד defective, being the singular (Deut. 32 27; Neh. 5 5). By fixing the number at six, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the recension which exhibits ידד in Deut. 32 27 preserved in the Samaritan Hebrew text, and against the reading ידד the plural in Neh. 5 5, which is that of Harley 5710-11; Add. 21,161 &c., as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 4 a, on Gen. 5 29, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 203 a, on Hosea 14 4; (III) the same MS., fol. 307 a, on Ps. 90 17; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 116 a, on Deut. 21 7; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 186 margin; (VI) the same II, § 219 margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 5 29. The heading of this Rubric in List IV viz. י' מלי ב' מלק ברוח, more pointedly controverts the Hebrew recension of the Samaritan text.

ידד = § 98.

ידד in their hands, occurs three times. That is, with the suffix third person plural feminine. This noun dual, with the suffix third person plural without and with prefixes, occurs altogether about forty-three times. In forty instances the suffix is masculine and in three only is it feminine. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ezek. 23 37. As two of the three instances are with the prefix, and moreover as they not only occur in the same book but are restricted to the same section, the heading ought properly to be בידדד נ' בלש' ובעני'.

ידד = § 99.

ידד tenons, parts, stays, or arms, is three times defective. Without and with prefixes this plural occurs altogether twelve times. As it is plene in nine instances and defective in three only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography, and thus militates against the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, which reads both instances in the Pentateuch plene.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 85 b, on 1 Kings 10 19, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 80 a, on Exod. 36 22; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 39 b, on Gen. 47 24; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 58 a, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 128 a, on Exod. 36 22, and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As two of the three instances are with prefixes, Lists IV, V and VI head this Rubric more correctly ידדד.

ידד = § 100.

ידד they cast, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16 fol. 204 b, on Joel 4 3, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. As it also occurs once with the prefix Vav (Lament. 3 53), this Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times three times without the prefix Vav and once with it (vide supra letter v, § 75).

ידדד = § 101.

ידדד to give thanks, is four times plene in the Scriptures. This Hiphil infinitive without and with the prefix Vav occurs altogether fourteen times. It is defective in ten instances (Ps. 92 2; 106 47; 122 4; 1 Chron. 16 7, 35, 41; 23 30; 2 Chron. 5 18; 7 6; 31 2) and plene in four only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 218 a, on Ps. 119 62, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 370 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalist, letter v, § 72. As one of the four instances is with the prefix Vav (1 Chron. 16 4), List III is more properly headed ידדדד.

But though all the three Lists coincide in describing these four instances as plene and hence in excluding the same ten as defective, this Massorah, as is not infrequently the case, must be regarded as being based upon the recension of one School of textual redactors only. That the text of rival Massoretic Schools exhibited variations is attested by some of the best Standard Codices and early editions. Thus (1) Ps. 92 2 is ידדדד plene in Orient. 2201; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451; (2) Ps. 106 47 is ידדדד in Orient. 2201; Add. 21,161; Add. 15,250; (3) Ps. 122 4 is ידדדד in Orient. 2201; Add. 21,161; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451, and (4) 1 Chron. 16 53 is ידדדד in Harley 5710-11.

ידדדד to give thanks to Jehovah for his mercy endureth for ever, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. Normally ידדדדד for his mercy endureth for ever, is preceded by the full phrase ורדו ליהודו ידדדדד give thanks unto Jehovah for he is good. This is the form in which it occurs about eleven times (Jerem. 33 11; Ps. 100 5; 106 1; 107 1; 118 1, 29; 136 1; Ezra 3 11; 1 Chron. 16 84; 2 Chron. 5 18; 7 8). In these three instances, however, the intervening for he is good, is abnormally absent. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 133 a, on 2 Chron. 7 6, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 269 a, on 2 Chron. 20 21; (III) Vienna Codex No. 85 on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 59. Lists II and III indicate the import of this Massorah by the addition of ה in their respective headings. List IV heads this List ה and gives two only, leaving out 2 Chron. 7 6; whilst List V which rightly heads it ה, is corrupt, it not only omits 2 Chron. 7 6, which as we have seen is also omitted in List IV, but gives for the third instance ה = 1 Chron. 16 7, which is without ה and hence does not belong to this Rubric. Without this adjunct ה occurs twice (Ps. 92 2; 2 Chron. 5 18).

and to give thanks, occurs three times. This Hiphil infinitive occurs altogether fourteen times. In eleven instances it is without the prefix Vav and in three only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ק, § 71. As all the three instances occur in the same book, the heading ought more properly to be ק. Though one of the instances is plene (ק 1 Chron. 16 4) and two are defective the Massorah does not advert to the difference in the orthography of this expression.

קיד - § 104.

she shall praise thee, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 135 a, on Isa. 38 18, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah, on Ps. 76 11.

קיה - § 105.

and he shall confess, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 58 a, on Levit. 5 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 65 a, on Levit. 16 21, and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 67 a, on Levit. 5 5. As the two instances occur in the same book, List II heads this Rubric קיה, which ought more properly to be קיה. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav He, which respectively occur twice. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 68.)

קיו - § 106.

and they shall confess, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 82 a, on Levit. 26 40, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 71 b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah, on Numb. 5 7.

List II affords a striking example of how the Massorah has been corrupted by ignorant Nakdanim. It is not only headed קיו but after giving the two instances which are recorded in Lists I and III, it adds as a third instance קיו = Levit. 22 16, which is in the received text קיו. Besides, the second instance, which it rightly records, is not in Leviticus (קיו) but in Numbers. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Vav He, which respectively occur twice. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 68.)

to my beloved, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 89 a, on Jerem. 11 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 120 b, on Isa. 5 1, and (III) the same MS., fol. 154 b, on Jerem. 11 15.

קיא - § 108.

love, lovely, occurs twice. As it is defective in the first instance and plene in the second, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 305 a, on Ps. 84 2, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 85, on Ps. 45 1, and (III) the printed Massorah, on Ps. 84 2. List I in which קיא is absent in the heading, emphasises the fact that the graphic elgin in these two instances is Cholem, in contradistinction to the only other instance where it is Yod Jerem. 12 7, whilst Lists II and III, which have it in their respective headings, safeguard the plene and defective orthography.

Jeduthun, is in three instances in the Scriptures written with Yod. That is, in these three passages the textual reading or Kethiv is Jedithun for which the official reading or Keri substitutes Jeduthun. By fixing the number at three, the design of this Massorah is to exclude the only other instance where this proper name occurs and where according to the Massoretic School from which this Rubric emanates, it is ק"ט both in the Kethiv and Keri (1 Chron. 16 88).

Of this Rubric I have collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 196 b, on Ps. 77 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 387 a, on Neh. 11 17; (III) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah I, § 180; (IV) Paris Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah, § 148, and (V) the printed Massorah on Ps. 77 1. The latter adds at the end of the Rubric ק"ט and ק"ט, thus emphasising the fact that in 1 Chron. 16 88 there is no various reading. This, however, affords another striking proof that many of the Rubrics proceed from different Massoretic Schools and are based upon different recensions of the text. This is attested by the two important Codices Add. 21,161 and Harley 5710-11, which have not only ק"ט with Vav as Kethiv in 1 Chron. 16 88, but have a Massorah on it ק"ט which is in dire conflict with the recension of the Rubric before us.

ק"י - § 110.

occurs twice, once with the vowel-point below and once with it above. That is, in one instance the Lamed is with Kametz, which is below = Milra, being the proper name ק"י (Idlah Gen. 22 22) and once the Lamed is with Cholem which is above = Milal, being the future third person singular masculine (ק"י Eccl. 10 18). This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 22 22, forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice, once with the graphic sign below or in the middle and once with it above. (Vide supra, letter ל, § 606.) For the expressions Milra and Milal denoting the position of the graphic signs, see letter ב, § 11. I have also given this Rubric under letter ר, § 170.

ק"יא - § 111.

Words from the root ק"י which respectively occur once only. This fragmentary List, which exhibits the first attempt to record the unique forms of this verb and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah I, § 7. Its incipient nature may be seen from the fact that there are altogether about 100 such forms.

ק"יב - § 112.

I know, is twice in the Kethiv ק"יב thou knowest. That is, the textual reading in these two instances is the second person, for which the official reading is the first person.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 241 a, on Job 42 2, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 219 a, on Ps. 140 18. The latter adds at the end that both these instances are at the beginning of a verse and they are unique (ק"יב). This Rubric forms part of the twelve instances which are without Yod at the end and which the official Keri supplies. (Vide supra, letter י, § 28.)

ק"יג - § 113.

he knew her, occurs twice. This quadrilateral occurs altogether seven times. In five instances it is pointed ק"יג (Judg. 11 39; 21 12; Jerem. 8 7; Hosea 2 10; Prov. 9 18), being the preterite third person singular feminine, and in these two instances only is the He the suffix third person singular feminine (ק"יג). Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional form. This Rubric I found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 24 16. As וְיָדָעַתְּ is in both instances preceded by וְ, other Massorahs record it under this combination. (Vide infra, letter ו, § 94.)

וְיָדָעַתְּ - § 114.

וְיָדָעַתְּ knowest thou, occurs five times. That is, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this second person singular masculine occurs without the interrogative He.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 98 a, on 2 Kings 2 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 372 b, on Dan. 10 20; (III) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 2 3, and (IV) the same on Dan. 10 20.

וְיָדָעְתְּם - § 115.

וְיָדָעְתְּם thou knowest them, is four times with Kametz. This quinqueliteral occurs altogether fifteen times. In eleven instances it is וְיָדָעְתְּ with Segol under the Tav, being the second person plural masculine and in four only is it with Kametz, being the second person singular. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional form.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 28 a, on Isa. 48 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 54 b, on Jerem. 33 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 169 a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 187 a, on Ezek. 32 9; (V) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah II, § 7; (VI) the printed Massorah on Isa. 48 6, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 33 8. The latter alone gives the mnemonic sign. The sign is also given in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 77, without the List.

וְיָדָעְתְּ - § 116.

וְיָדָעְתְּ and thou shalt know, occurs seven times. This preterite second person singular with the prefix Vav occurs altogether twenty times. In thirteen instances it is pointed וְיָדָעְתְּ being the masculine, and in seven only is it וְיָדָעְתְּ the feminine. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181 a, on Ezek. 22 16, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 16 62; (III) the same MS., on Ezek. 22 16; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 281 b, on Ezek. 22 16; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 294 b, on Hosea 2 22; (VI) the same MS., fol. 309 a, on Zech. 2 15, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 22 16.

וְיָדָעוּ - § 117.

וְיָדָעוּ they knew, is in five instances with Kametz. That is, with Kametz under the Daleth instead of the normal Sheva. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ו, § 107, is corrupt since this form of the preterite third person plural with Kametz under the Daleth occurs thirteen times and the following eight are omitted 2 Kings 4 39; Isa. 56 10; 59 8; Jerem. 4 22; 8 12; 14 18; 22 28; Hosea 5 4.

As these thirteen instances exhibit four different accents, an analysis of them may help us to rectify the corruption. Five of the instances are וְיָדָעוּ with Soph-Pasuk (2 Kings 4 39; Jerem. 4 22; 14 18; 22 28; Hosea 5 4). One is וְיָדָעוּ with Athnach (Job 9 5). Six are וְיָדָעוּ with Zakeph-Katon (Isa. 42 16 a; 56 10; 59 8; Jerem. 4 22; 6 15; 8 12) and one is וְיָדָעוּ with Typcha (Jerem. 9 2). As the five instances with Soph-Pasuk are normally with Kametz which is due to the pausal accent, the original design of this Rubric must have been to record the Kametz instances apart from these. This is confirmed by the fact that not one of them is included in the Rubric. We are thus confined to the examination of the remaining eight. Of these, as we have seen, six are with Zakeph-Katon, one is with Typcha and one with Athnach. As the Zakeph-Kametz instances are frequently registered in the Massorah, it is natural to suppose that the design of this Rubric was primarily also to record them in the case with regard to וְיָדָעוּ. This was especially deemed necessary as in the other six instances where it occurs with Zakeph-Katon, the Daleth is with Sheva. (Comp. וְיָדָעוּ Gen. 42 29; Judg. 3 1; 20 34; 2 Kings 17 26; Jerem. 8 7; 9 15). With Typcha this preterite occurs altogether ten times. It is with Sheva in nine instances (comp. וְיָדָעוּ Exod. 16 15; Numb. 31 18, 35; 1 Sam. 2 12; 20 39; 2 Sam. 15 11; Isa. 44 18; 56 11 b; Hosea 11 9) and in one instance is it with Kametz (comp. וְיָדָעוּ Jerem. 9 2), for which reason it is safeguarded here. The same is the case with the Athnach וְיָדָעוּ Job 9 5. This too is unique and hence is safeguarded in this Rubric. But though this analysis accounts for the five instances which are recorded in the Rubric, it also discloses the fact that it omits three Zakeph-Kametz instances (Isa. 56 10; 59 8; Jerem. 8 12) which the original Massorite designed to record, and that a later Nakdan erroneously supplied the heading וְיָדָעוּ because the Rubric gives five instances only. It may, however, also be that the original Rubric contained all the eight, that, as is not infrequently the case, the three were omitted for want of space and that the Scribe who saw that it registered five only altered the ו into וְ.

וְיָדָעוּ - § 118.

וְיָדָעוּ and they shall know, is four times with the accent at the beginning of a verse in this book. That is, with Typcha in Ezekiel. This preterite third person plural with the prefix Vav which occurs altogether thirteen times at the beginning of a verse, exhibits five different accents. In one instance it is וְיָדָעוּ with Gershayim (Ezek. 17 24); in two וְיָדָעוּ with Munach (36 26; 39 23), in two וְיָדָעוּ with Revia (34 20; 39 28); in four וְיָדָעוּ with Pashta (21 10; 29 6; 37 28; 39 22) and in four instances which constitute this Rubric it is וְיָדָעוּ with Typcha. The Massorah, therefore, indicates the passages in which it is with this special accent. It was specially needed to safeguard this accent since it is normally with this preterite when the phrase ends the verse. (Com. Ezek. 6 14; 7 27; 12 16; 24 27; 25 11; 26 6; 28 23; 30 19 &c. &c.)

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 85, on Ezek. 6 10. The reference to the catchwords וְיָדָעוּ וְיָדָעוּ should be Ezek. 33 29 and not 32 15.

וְיָדָעוּ - § 119.

וְיָדָעוּ and they shall know that I Jehovah have spoken, occurs four times. This Rubric, which is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 5 18, is incorrect. It refers to the combination of the phrase וְיָדָעוּ וְיָדָעוּ alone without וְיָדָעוּ. This is attested by the fact that two of the four instances are without it (Ezek. 21 37; 26 14). For this Rubric in its correct form, see letter ו, § 143.

וְיָדָעוּ - § 120.

וְיָדָעוּ they knew, occurs twice. Apart from the thirteen Kametz instances (vide supra, § 117), this preterite third person plural occurs forty times. As it is וְיָדָעוּ without the paragoge Nun in thirty-eight instances and with it in these two only, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography, and thus militates against the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, which exhibits the normal spelling in both passages.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 101 a, on Deut. 8 8. As the two instances are not only restricted to the same book but to the same section, the reading ought more properly to be וְיָדָעוּ.

וְיָדָעוּ - § 121.

וְיָדָעוּ know ye, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 169 a, on Judg. 13 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 236 b, on 1 Kings 22 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 31 b, on Judg. 13 14; (IV) the same MS., fol. 96 a, on 1 Kings 22 3; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 27 b, on Gen. 29 5; (VI) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah II, § 7, and (VII) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 29 5.

וְיָדָעוּ - § 122.

וְיָדָעוּ and ye shall know that I am the Lord Jehovah, occurs three times. Normally the declaration with which the verse ends in Ezekiel and which is registered in the following Rubric, is simply וְיָדָעוּ without וְיָדָעוּ. As it is in these three instances only that וְיָדָעוּ precedes the Tetragrammaton, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination. This Massorah is designed to militate against the recension of the text in which וְיָדָעוּ was absent in these passages, as is attested by the Septuagint. In St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 it is added above the line in Ezek. 13 9.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 182 b, on Ezek. 23 49, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 318 a, on Ezek. 24 24.

וידעתם כי אני יהוה and ye shall know that I am Jehovah, occurs eleven times at the end of a verse in Ezekiel. This formula occurs altogether twenty-one times in Ezekiel. In five instances it is at the beginning of a verse (6 13; 11 12; 20 42, 44; 37 18) and in five it is in the middle of the verse (7 9; 15 7; 17 21; 22 22; 37 14). The Massorah therefore registers the passages in which it ends the verse, in contradistinction to the longer formula which also ends the verse and which is recorded in the preceding Rubric. The addition of כני in the heading is due to the fact that outside this book this formula also ends a verse twice (Exod. 10 2; 1 Kings 20 28).

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter מ, § 165. Though the heading states that there are eleven such instances, the Rubric itself records ten only. The missing instance is Ezek. 14 8.

And in two instances it is וידעתן. That is, in two other instances in which this formula also ends the verse, the verb and ye shall know is in the feminine.

קניד - § 124.

וידעתם כי אני יהוה אלוהיכם and ye shall know that I Jehovah am your God, occurs three times. As this formula, which occurs altogether twenty-six times, is in twenty-three instances without the adjunct אלוהיכם (vide supra, § 123) and in these three passages only, is it with it, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional phrase. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 72 a, on Exod. 6 7.

קניה - § 125.

וידעתן and ye shall know, is twice with Nun . . . and once it is without the prefix Vav. That is, this preterite plural second person, which occurs altogether fifty-two times (twelve times without the prefix Vav and forty times with it) and is in forty-nine instances with the suffix Mem or in the masculine, is in two instances only with Nun the feminine where it is twice with the prefix Vav and in one instance without this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards this rare form. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ezek. 13 21. As it is in both instances followed by וידעתם it is also part of Rubric 123.

וידוע occurs three times in the Scriptures. As this infinitive with the prefix He or the sign of interrogation which occurs three times, is differently spelt, being in the first instance plene (Gen. 43 7) and in the other two passages defective, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 39 b, on Jerem. 13 12, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 155 b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 174 a, on Jerem. 40 14; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 36 b, on Gen. 43 7; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 49 a, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 13 12. Lists II, III, V, VI and VII more correctly head the Rubric כי ב' ה' ה' מ' ל' which sets forth the scope of this Massorah, whilst List V adds קניז, thus indicating that the plene instance is in Gen. 4 37.

וידעת and to know, occurs five times in the Scriptures. That is, with the prefix Vav, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this infinitive with the prefix Lamed is without the conjunctive Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 198 b, on 2 Sam. 3 25, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59 a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 83 b, on 1 Kings 8 43; (IV) the same MS., fol. 260 b, on 2 Chron. 6 33; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 189 b, on 1 Kings 8 43; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 187 a, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah, on 2 Sam. 3 25.

קניח - § 128.

ידע he shall know, or he knoweth, occurs nineteen times, six with Kametz and thirteen with Pathach. That is, with There under the Yod, being the future third person, in contradistinction to the fifty-four instances in which it is with Kametz, being the preterite third person.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 61 a, on Jerem. 40 15, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 8 4; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 36 19; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 49 a, on 1 Sam. 20 8; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 7; (VI) the printed Massorah on Eccl. 9 12, and (VII) the same on Ps. 92 7.

Though six of the nineteen instances are with Kametz under the Daleth, which is due to the pausal accent, yet List I alone not only mentions this fact, but specifies these instances; and though List III is headed וידעתם, it leaves us without any indication which or how many of the instances are with Pathach and how many with Kametz; whilst all the other Lists do not even mention the fact.

וידע and he shall know, is three times with Sheva under the Vav. This future third person singular masculine occurs altogether twenty-one times. In eighteen instances it is with Vav conversive and hence with Pathach which is Massoretically called Dagesh, and in three instances only it is with Vav conjunctive or with Sheva which is Massoretically denoted by Raphc. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional passages.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 241 b, on 2 Kings 5 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 235 a, on Job 31 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 101 a, on 2 Kings 5 8; (IV) the same MS., fol. 326 b, on Job 21 19; (V) the same MS., fol. 331 b, on Job 31 6; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 7; (VII) Paris Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement, § 7, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 5 8. List II alone notices the fact that two of the instances are with Pathach under the Daleth (וידע 2 Kings 5 8; Job 31 6) and one with Kametz (וידע Job 21 19), viz. כי מנין מהוהו קני. Five of the Lists (III, V, VI, VII, VIII) give the mnemonic sign.

קיל - § 130.

ודעת dost thou know, occurs twice in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 238 b, on Job 37 15. As the two instances are not only restricted to the same book but to the same section, the heading ought properly to be ודעתו.

קליא - § 131.

ודעת and thou shalt know, occurs twice. With Pathach under the Daleth, this future second person singular masculine occurs altogether twenty-three times. In twenty-one instances it is without the prefix Vav and in two only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 151 b, on Jerem. 6 27, which I have printed, and (II) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 7.

קליב - § 132.

ואדע and I shall know, occurs six times. That is, with paragogic He. By fixing the number at six, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the textual reading ודע without the He in Ruth 4 4 and to defend the official reading or the Keri. That other Schools of textual redactors must also have exhibited the shorter form in other passages is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, which has ודע in Numb. 22 19.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 53 a, on Gen. 42 34, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 33 a, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 315 b, on Ps. 119 125; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 86 a, on Gen. 42 34; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 121 b, on Exod. 33 5; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 7, and (VII) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 42 34.

קליג - § 133.

ואדע and I knew, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, the future first person singular with Kametz under the Vav

i. e. Vav conversive and without the paragogic He in contradistinction to the two instances where it is with the paragogic He (Jerem. 11 18; Neh. 13 10).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 75 a, on Ezek. 10 20, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 50 7; (III) the same Codex on Ezek. 10 20; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 140 b, on Isa. 50 7; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 274 b, on Ezek. 10 20; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 7, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 32 8.

Lists II and III, which are headed וְיָשָׁר, indicate thereby that it is with Vav conversive. The heading in the printed Massorah (List VII) וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר is incorrect, since two instances only are with Zakeph-Gadol (Jerem. 32 8; Ezek. 10 20), whilst the Isaiah instance is וְיָשָׁר with Tipcha.

קליד they shall know, occurs twelve times. The plural third person with Sheva under the Daleth, occurs altogether fifty-two times. In forty instances it is קליד with Kametz under the Yod, being the preterite and in twelve only is it קליד with Tzere i. e. the future. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 79 b, on Levit. 23 43, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 22 a, on Isa. 45 6; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 20 26; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 89 a, on 1 Kings 14 2; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 7; (VI) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 31 34, and (VII) the same on 2 Chron. 6 29.

קליה = § 135.

קליה and they shall know, occurs eleven times in the Scriptures. By fixing the number at eleven, the design of the Massorah is to exclude the textual reading קליה in Ps. 119 79.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 186 a, on 1 Sam. 17 46, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 9 a, on Isa. 19 12; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 37 20; (IV) the same Codex on Isa. 41 20; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 186 a, on 1 Sam. 17 46; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 7, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 59 14.

Lists III and VII head this Rubric וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר, which denotes that the Vav is with Sheva or is conjunctive, in contradistinction to the instances in which it is with Pathach, Massoretically called Dagesh, recorded in the following Rubric. The addition at the end of the Rubric which I have printed (List I), affords another striking illustration of the fact that the language in which the Massorahs have been transmitted is not always that of the original Massorites and that Rubrics are sometimes expanded or contracted so as to fill up the number and the length of the lines allotted to this corpus in the margins of the MSS. As this Rubric, which constitutes all the Massorah belonging to the text of this folio in the MS., did not suffice to fill up the prescribed three lines, the Nakdan completed the third line by declaring that he had not found any Massorah to finish it.

קליז and they knew, occurs six times in the Scriptures. That is, with Vav conversive, in contradistinction to the instances recorded in the preceding Rubric, which are with Vav conjunctive.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 175 a, on 1 Sam. 4 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 125 a, on Zech. 11 11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32 b, on Judg. 19 25; (IV) the same MS., fol. 59 a, on 2 Sam. 3 37; (V) the same MS., fol. 382 b, on Neh. 6 16; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 4 a, on Gen. 3 7, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

The catchwords וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר = Neh. 4 9, which the MS. gives for the sixth instance and which I have duly reproduced, yields another proof of my oft-repeated statement that later Nakdanim not infrequently affixed wrong catchwords. The sixth instance occurs in Neh. 6 16 and not in 4 9. But as both these verses begin with וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר, the Nakdan mistook the former for the latter and accordingly gave the continuation of Neh. 4 9 instead of 6 16.

קליז they shall know, occurs four times. This future third person plural masculine occurs altogether sixteen times. In twelve instances it is normally spelt קליז, which are duly recorded above in § 134, and in these four instances only it is with paragogic Nun. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 138 b, on Josh. 3 7, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 83 b, on 1 Kings 8 38; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Josh. 3 7; (IV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 7; (V) the printed Massorah on Josh. 3 7; (VI) the same on 1 Kings 8 38, and (VII) the same on Prov. 10 32. List III heads this Rubric וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר, thus describing the paragogic Nun as plene. In the List which I have printed (List I) the first וְיָשָׁר וְיָשָׁר is to be cancelled, having inadvertently crept into the text.

קליח ye shall know, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Normally this future second person plural masculine is קליח. In this form it occurs eleven times, and once it is, in pause קליח (Isa. 6 9). In these four instances, however, it is abnormally with paragogic Nun. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional spelling. In thus safeguarding these instances the Massorah militates against the recension of those Schools which exhibited קליח the singular in Exod. 11 7, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text and the Septuagint.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 41 b, on Exod. 11 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 96 b, on Numb. 16 28; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 52 b, on Exod. 11 7; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 328 a, on Job 19 29; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 7; (VI) the printed Massorah on Numb. 16 28, and (VII) the same on Job 19 29.

קליט we shall know, occurs three times. That is, in the Pentateuch. With Pathach under the Daleth this future first person plural occurs altogether five times, once in the Prophets (Jerem. 13 12), once in the Hagiographa (2 Chron. 20 12) and three times in the Law. The Massorah here safeguards its occurrence in the Pentateuch. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 41 a, on Exod. 10 26. By the omission of the qualifying expression וְיָשָׁר from the heading the Rubric is made unintelligible. This Rubric militates against the reading קליט the Niphal participle in Deut. 18 21, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew.

קליז = § 140.

קליז and we shall know, occurs five times in the Scriptures. That is, with the prefix Vav and Sheva under the Daleth, in contradistinction to the two instances in which it is with Kametz under the Daleth, which is due to the pausal or distinctive accent (Isa. 5 19; 41 26). About the sixth instance, viz. Hosea 6 3, there is a difference of opinion amongst the rival Schools of textual redactors, whether it is with the prefix Vav or without it.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, which gives two Lists of it: (I) on Isa. 41 22, which I have printed, and (II) on Jonah 1 7. Both Lists are alike.

קליז knowing, is ten times plene. This participle, which occurs altogether forty-five times, is plene in thirty instances and not in ten, and defective in fifteen. But instead of simply stating this fact and safeguarding the minority, the Massorah artificially arranges the variation in its orthography in accordance with the several parts of the Scriptures in which the one or the other spelling prevails.

As there is no variation in its spelling in the Pentateuch, Joshua and Kings, where it occurs five times and uniformly retains its primitive defective form (comp. קליז Gen. 3 5; 25 27; 33 13; Josh. 22 22; 1 Kings 5 20), these books required no protection and hence are not mentioned.

The case, however, is different with the other books. In seven of these it occurs seventeen times and in the two spellings. Here it is seven times defective (comp. קָרַן 1 Sam. 16 18, 18; 23 17; 2 Sam. 7 10; Ps. 44 22; 74 9; 94 11) and ten times plene. Hence the Massorah, though contrary to its usual method, indicates the plenes which are the majority.

And throughout the Minor Prophets, Chronicles, Proverbs and Ecclesiastes it is likewise plene except three times. In these four books, where it occurs altogether twenty times, the plene spelling is the rule and the defective the exception, for which reason these four books are grouped together separately. Here seventeen of the twenty instances are plene and three only are defective (comp. קָרַן Joel 2 14; Jonah 1 12; 3 9; Zeph. 3 5; 2 Chron. 2 11, 12, 18; Prov. 12 10; 14 10; 17 27; 24 22; Eccl. 2 19; 3 21; 6 8, 12; 8 1 12; 9 1; 11 5, 6). Hence the Massorah properly safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 54 a, on 1 Sam. 26 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 64 a, on 2 Sam. 12 22; (III) the same MS., fol. 180 b, on Isa. 29 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 284 b, on Ps. 1 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 292 b, on Ps. 87 18; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 162 a, on 1 Sam. 26 12; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 174 b, on 2 Sam. 22 12, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 26 12.

With the exception of the printed Massorah (List VIII), all the Lists coincide in giving the same ten plene instances outside the four books which constitute the second part of this Massorah, and all including List VIII give קָרַן the Keri with prefix He as one of the ten, though they exclude the three defectives with the prefix Vav, viz. קָרַן given below § 144. The printed Massorah alone omits 2 Sam. 12 22 and makes up the ten by giving קָרַן Ps. 74 9, קָרַן being manifestly a scribal error for קָרַן. That this exhibits the orthography here of one School of textual redactors is attested by several of the best Standard Codices. Thus קָרַן plene is in Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451 &c. for which reason I have adopted it in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. However, as all the other seven Lists coincide in excluding Ps. 74 9 from the plene instances and as it is קָרַן defective in Orient. 2201 second hand; Arund. Orient. 16, second hand; Add. 15,251 &c. there can hardly be any doubt that we have here another instance of a various reading and a conflicting Massorah, which are due to the different Schools of textual redactors.

קָרַן knowing, is twice defective in this book. That is, in Proverbs. This participle, which occurs six times in Proverbs, is plene in four instances (vide supra, § 141) and in two only is it defective. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography in one and the same book.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Prov. 28 2, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Prov. 12 10, and (III) the same on Prov. 28 2. The heading of List II, viz. קָרַן כל מי שמעו בו indicates the design of this Massorah. This Rubric forms part of the preceding Massorah.

קָרַן אֱלֹהִים God knoweth, occurs three times in this form. Normally when the verb קָרַן in its different forms is the predicate of the Deity, the Divine name is the Tetragrammaton e. g. קָרַן יְהוָה Jehovah knew him Deut. 34 10; קָרַן יְהוָה Jehovah knoweth Ps. 1 6; 37 18 &c. As it is in these three instances only that the verb קָרַן is combined with אֱלֹהִים, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 45 b, on Gen. 41 39, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 3 5, and (III) the same on Gen. 41 39. As all the three instances are restricted to the Pentateuch, the heading ought properly to be קָרַן בְּמִשְׁנֵי הַתּוֹרָה.

קָרַן - § 144.

קָרַן and knowing, occurs three times in the Scriptures and is defective . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. As this participle, which occurs altogether forty-eight times in forty-five instances without the prefix Vav, and moreover, as without the prefix Vav its orthography varies, being sometimes plene and sometimes defective (vide supra § 141), and when with this prefix is uniformly defective, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional occurrence.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 116 b, on Nah. 1 7, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 918, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 258 a, on 2 Chron. 2 6; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 281 a, on Numb. 24 16; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 7; (VI) the printed Massorah on Numb. 24 16, and (VII) the same on 2 Chron. 2 6.

קָרַן - § 145.

קָרַן they knowing, is four times plene . . . and they occur all in the Hagiographa. That is, in contradistinction to the other two instances where this participle plural occurs and where it is defective (2 Kings 17 26; Esther 4 11).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists, one in MS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 150 a, on 2 Chron. 2 7, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finals, letter י, § 97. Though these two Lists coincide in recording the same four instances, yet this Rubric emanates from one School of textual redactors only, and is based upon recensions which read קָרַן defective in Esther 4 11. This reading is supported by Orient. 2201 second hand; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,160, for which reason I have adopted it in my edition of the Hebrew Bible. The recension of the rival School of Massorites, which reads קָרַן plene in Esther 4 11, is exhibited in Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16, which has a Massorah on its קָרַן; Add. 15,250. For the early editions which follow one or the other of these two Schools see the note on this passage in my edition of the Bible. Here again we have a various reading and conflicting Massorahs which are due to rival recensions of the text.

קָרַן - § 146.

קָרַן they having knowledge of, is four times plene in the Scriptures. This participle plural construct, which occurs altogether twelve times, is defective in eight instances (Gen. 3 5; 1 Kings 9 27; Isa. 51 7; Jerem. 48 17; Ps. 89 16; Esther 1 13, 13; Dan. 11 32) and plene in four only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. By fixing the number at four, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the Babylonian recension which reads קָרַן plene also in Isa. 51 7. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 154 b, on 2 Chron. 8 18.

קָרַן - § 147.

קָרַן the knowing, occurs three times and is defective . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. The masculine form of this participle is not only of frequent occurrence but is sometimes plene and sometimes defective, whilst this feminine form is both rare and does not vary in its orthography. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional instances.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 172 a, on Judg. 21 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 219 a, on Ps. 139 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 34 b, on Judg. 21 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 319 a, on Ps. 139 14; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 242 b, on Numb. 31 17; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 7, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 31 17.

קָרַן and known, occurs twice. That is, participle passive plural, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this sixlitteral occurs and is קָרַן (Job 34 2), the participle active plural. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 7, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS. II, § 342.

קָרַן - § 149.

קָרַן and she is known, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed; (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 88 b, on Levit. 4 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 147 a, on Isa. 66 14; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 57 a, on Levit. 4 14; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 140 b, on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 7, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 4 14. List III is inexplicably headed . . .

קני - § 150.

he is being known, is three times with Kametz in the Scriptures.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 196 b, on Ps. 76 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 265 b, on Eccl. 6 10;

The List which I have printed (List I) coincides with Lists II, III, IV and VII. The Ochlah Ve-Ochlah List, however (List V), exhibits quite a different recension. It is as follows:

Ps. 76 2 בודדה נרע בודדה אלהים נרע
Nah. 3 17 מקומו מנוחך סארה וספריך

The List records one instance only given in the preceding recension. The reading נרע with Kametz in Ps. 9 17 is that of Ben-Naphtali, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible, and נרע with Kametz in Nah. 3 17 is exhibited in Harley 5710-11. List VI is headed קבצן . . .

קניא - § 151.

my trusted friends, occurs twice. In the only other instance in which this Pual participle plural with the suffix first person singular occurs, it is with the prefix Vav (Job 19 14).

קניב - § 152.

show me or make me to know. A sign for its orthography. This Hiphil imperative singular masculine with the suffix first person singular, which occurs altogether six times, is spelt in three different ways.

קניב - § 153.

thou hast made known to me, occurs twice. Though it is in the first instance the Hebrew preterite second person singular masculine with the suffix first person singular (Exod. 33 12), and in the second the Chaldee Aphel (Dan. 2 23), yet the Massorah which has regard to the identity of spelling only, groups them together in the same Rubric.

קניד - § 154.

and I will make known, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 179 a, on 1 Sam. 10 8.

קניה - § 155.

he shall make known to him or teach him, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 185 b, on Isa. 40 18.

קניז - § 156.

they making known, or teaching, occurs twice, once without and once with the prefix Vav . . . It is defective in the first instance and plene in the second. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 197 a, on Isa. 47 18.

This Rubric affords another striking illustration of the fact that conflicting Massorahs are due to rival recensions of the text which obtained in different Massoretic Schools. Nothing can be more emphatic than the declaration of this Massorah that in Isa. 47 18 the reading מרעם is defective. This reading is not only exhibited in the text of the MS. in which this Rubric is given (Orient. 1474), but in Orient. 2201 first hand; Arund. Orient. 16; which has a Massorah on it מרעם; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 &c. Yet Harley 5710-11; St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 4227 &c. read it מרעם plene. There can therefore be no doubt that the two readings are based upon two different recensions.

to make known unto me, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. As this Aphel infinitive with the suffix first person singular, which according to this Rubric occurs altogether three times, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this form of the Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 279 b, on Dan. 4 15, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter emphatically declares that the defective instance is in Dan. 5 15. It is remarkable that both these Lists omit Dan. 2 28, where it also occurs and is defective. A second form of this Rubric escapes this difficulty by simply heading it מרעם and recording the two plene instances only, viz. Dan. 4 15; 5 16. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 387 a, on Dan. 4 5, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Dan. 5 16.

There is a third form of this Rubric which registers the four instances with Vav after the Ayin and which is headed מרעם מרעם מרעם and is as follows: (1) ארדן דן Dan. 2 5; (2) ארדן דן Dan. 4 15; (3) ארדן דן Dan. 5 16, and (4) ארדן דן Ezra. 5 10. Of this form I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ezra. 5 10, and (II) the printed Massorah on Dan. 4 15.

a wizard, occurs four times, three times defective and once plene. By fixing the number at four in which this singular occurs without and with the prefixes, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the recension which exhibits the plural מרעם in 1 Sam. 28 9 and the singular מרעם in 2 Kings 21 6, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. In both these instances the ancient recension is more in harmony with the usus loquendi than the present Massoretic recension, for normally the singular מרעם is preceded by the singular ארעם, viz. ארעם מרעם (Deut. 18 11; 2 Chron. 33 6) and the plural מרעם by the plural ארעם, viz. ארעם מרעם (Levit. 19 8; 20 6; 1 Sam. 28 8; 2 Kings 23 24; Isa. 8 19; 19 8).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 124 a, on Deut. 18 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 169 b, on 2 Chron. 33 6; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 106 b, on Deut. 18 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 484 b, on 2 Chron. 33 6; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 170 b, on Levit. 20 27; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 94 b, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

With the exception of the printed Massorah (List VII) all the Lists coincide in stating that this singular occurs four times and that 2 Chron. 33 6 is the only plene instance. The printed Massorah, however, as emphatically declares that it occurs five times, that it is defective in all the five instances (ה' חס) and that 2 Kings 21 6 is one of the five instances in which it is singular in the singular, just as it is in the parallel Chronicles passage (חברו דדיה). This Rubric must therefore have been based upon the recension which exhibited the singular in 2 Kings 21 6, as indicated in the preceding part of this Massorah.

יה, Jah, is in four instances with Dagesh. As this monosyllabic Divine name which, according to all the different Schools of textual redactors, occurs twenty-two times for the fuller form יהוה and as it is in these four instances alone not only with the normal Dagesh in the He (see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 375 &c.), but abnormally also with Dagesh in the Yod, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional occurrence.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 203 b, on Ps. 94 7, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 307 b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 314 a, on Ps. 118 5; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 341 a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 365 a, on Ps. 94 7; (VI) the same MS., fol. 369 b, on Ps. 118 5, and (VII) the printed Massorah, on Ps. 94 7.

In none of these Lists do the Massorites hint at the reason why יה is thus distinguished in these four instances only. The speculations of later Grammarians to account for the Dagesh in the Yod in these passages are simply ingenious failures to unravel this mystery. Of all the explanations vouchsafed, that given by Graetz is the most feasible, viz. the point or dot is the survival of the primitive mark which obtained prior to the introduction of the present system of accentuation, to indicate the principal tone on the monosyllable יה to which the preceding word though consisting of several syllables is to be subordinated and which was afterwards regulated by the distinctive accent and Makeph. (Comp. Monatschrift, Vol. XXXVI, p. 374 &c. Krotoschin 1887.)

קיס = § 160.

יה, — The following words which end in יה are without Dagesh in the He. That is, according to the Palestinian School of textual redactors from which this Massorah emanates, the monosyllabic Divine Name, which is normally with audible He, is in these instances with an inaudible one and is to be joined to the preceding expression so as in each case to constitute one word.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) the printed Massorah on Exod. 17 16, which I have printed, and (II) MS. No. 1—3 in the National Library Paris, on the same passage, where this Rubric is as follows:

Table with 4 columns: Verse reference, Hebrew text, Verse reference, Hebrew text. Includes references to Jerem. 2 31, Ps. 104 85, Cant. 8 6, Exod. 17 16, Josh. 15 28, Ps. 118 5, and 1 Chron. 4 18.

In this Rubric we are told that the deprivation of the monosyllable יה of its separate existence for יהוה in these instances is due to the Palestinian redactors and that the Babylonians still retained it as a distinct word, thus recognising its divinity as denoting the Tetragrammaton. It will also be seen from this recension of the Rubric that the number of instances which constituted the differences between the Palestinian and Babylonian redactors is here given as eight, whilst in List I twelve are specified. This only shows that the process of depriving יה of its primitive equivalent for יהוה was a gradual one and was carried on in one School more rapidly than in the other. As I have fully discussed the cause of the absorption of this monosyllabic Divine Name and the effect it produced in the redaction of the text in my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 375 &c., I must refer to that discussion.

יהוה in Jah, occurs twice. That is, this shorter form for Jehovah is in these two instances only with the prefix Beth. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 129 a, on Isa. 26 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 350 a, on Ps. 68 5, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

קסיב = § 162 a.

ביה שמו. — The Sopherim ordained that the following six words which respectively begin with one of the letters constituting the mnemonic sign ביה שמו יהוה his name is Jah (Ps. 68 5) are to begin a column or folio.

Of this Recension of the Rubric, which is not in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 57 a, on Gen. 49 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 141 b, on Deut. 31 28; (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 135 b, at the end of Deuteronomy, which I have printed in letter c, § 172, and (IV) Orient. 5404, fol. 56 a, on Gen. 49 8.

ביה שמו. — The following words constituting the mnemonic sign his name is Jah (Ps. 68 5) are respectively to begin a column. Of this Recension of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 85, on Exod. 14 28, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 49 b, on the same passage.

It will be seen that though in the preceding, Rubric it is emphatically stated to be an ordinance of the Sopherim, this Rubric differs with regard to two words which are to commence the column. It prescribes שני השערים Levit. 16 8, for ש instead of שער Deut. 12 28 and מן מן נחמ. 24 5 for מ instead of מנחם Deut. 23 24. Here again therefore we see that the different Massorahs are due to the different Schools of textual redactors and are based upon different traditions. Jacob b. Chayim in the first edition of his Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah follows in Deut. 23 24 the first Recension in accordance with Codex Mugah. Though he too describes it as an ordinance of the Sopherim, he nevertheless recognises that there are conflicting opinions about it and refers to the remarks of Maimonides in his Treatise Sepher Thorah.

הבאים. — This Rubric, which is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 44 a, on Exod. 14 28, not only prescribes that the expression הבאים is to begin the column, since its initial letter ה is one of the mnemonic sign Jah is his name, and that the Song of Moses (Exod. 15 1—19) is to be written in the form in which it is in the ritual Scrolls of the Law, but enjoins that the five lines which precede this Song and the five lines which follow it are also to begin with certain words. The five preceding lines, according to the Massorah, are respectively to begin as follows:

הבאים אתהים עם לא ישאר קום עד אחר: וכן ישראל לקום
ביקשה בתוך הים והמים להם חקם מימים ומשאלים: וישע
יהוה ביום היום ויהוה את ישראל מיד מצרים וראו ישראל אתמצרים
פת עלישפת הים: וראו ישראל אתיהוה הגולה אשר עשה יהוה
במצרים ויראו הים אתיהוה ויאמנו ביהוה ונקמה עבדיו:

The rule for the five following lines is thus laid down in the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,251, fol. 50 a, on Exod. 15 20:

הלן צריכי למהי ברשי ששה וחקק אחריה עם ויצא רבא
Hence the Standard Codices are written in this form. Thus Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,160; Orient. 2349, Orient. 5404 &c.

קסיד = § 163.

הב give, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Though this biliteral is the Hebrew Kal imperative in the first two instances and the Chaldee Peal imperative in the third passage, yet the Massorah, as usual, groups them together because they are spelt in identically the same way.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 280 b, on Dan. 5 17, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 368 b, on the same passage.

קסידא = § 164 a.

יהואש Jehuash, occurs four times. This Rubric, which is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 106 b, on 2 Kings 12 3, is incorrect. This lengthened form of the name which is restricted to Kings, occurs seventeen times in this book and not four. Nor would it solve the difficulty if we were to assume that the qualifying adjunct וְבֵית, as is not infrequently the case, has been omitted from the heading, since this name occurs seven times in this Section or chapter (12 1-22) and the following three instances are omitted 2 Kings 12 1, 5, 19.

קסד = § 164b.

יְהוֹשָׁעַ וְיֹשְׁבֵי יְרוּשָׁלַם Jehoshah, Joash, a sign indicating the passages where the longer and shorter forms of this name occur. To understand the import of this artificial Massorah it is necessary to remark that this proper name, which occurs altogether sixty-four times, is in seventeen instances the longer or original form יְהוֹשָׁעַ and is invariably without any prefix; whilst in forty-seven it is the altered or shorter form יֹשָׁעַ. In this form it is forty-one times without any prefix, once it is with the prefix Vav (וְיֹשָׁעַ 1 Chron. 12 3) and five times with the prefix Lamed (לְיֹשָׁעַ Judg. 6 11; 2 Kings 13 1, 10; 14 1; 1 Chron. 4 22). But as the longer form is the rule in some sections and the shorter in other sections, the Massorah here indicates the several parts of the Scriptures where the one or the other form prevails and in each case safeguards the exceptional orthography.

From 2 Kings 12 1 to verse 19 it is יְהוֹשָׁעַ. In this part, where this name occurs seven times, it is uniformly the longer or the primitive form Jehoshah (comp. 2 Kings 12 1, 2, 3, 5, 7, 8, 19). Here, therefore, there is no exception to safeguard and the simple mention of the fact suffices without specifying the instances.

From 2 Kings 12 20 to 14 7 it is יֹשָׁעַ with the exception of two instances. In this part, where this name occurs fifteen times, it is Joash the shorter form in thirteen instances (comp. 2 Kings 12 20, 21; 13 1, 9, 10, 12, 13, 14, 25b; 14 1, 1, 3) and the longer form יְהוֹשָׁעַ in two instances only. Here the reverse is the case, the altered form is the rule and the primitive one is the exception. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the two exceptional instances and simply mentions the rule without specifying the passages. This protection is deemed all the more necessary since the two forms are promiscuously used in the same verse (2 Kings 13 25). In this artificial division 2 Kings 11 2, where it is also the shorter form, יֹשָׁעַ does not seem to fit in.

From 2 Kings 14 8 to verse 17 it is likewise יֹשָׁעַ except once. In this division, where this name occurs nine times, the longer form is the rule and the shorter the exception. Jehoshah occurs eight times (2 Kings 14 8, 9, 11, 13, 15, 16, 17b) and יֹשָׁעַ once only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the solitary exception and simply mentions the rule without specifying the passages. It is remarkable that in this division too the two forms of the name are used promiscuously in the same verse (2 Kings 14 17). For the cause of this duplicate form of the name, see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.

And in all the other Scriptures it is likewise so. That is, in the rest of the Bible, where it occurs altogether thirty-three times, it is uniformly the shorter form יֹשָׁעַ (comp. Judg. 6 11, 29, 30, 31; 7 14; 8 18, 29, 32, 32; 1 Kings 22 26; 2 Kings 11 12; 14 23, 23, 27; Hosea 1 1; Amos 1 1; 1 Chron. 3 11; 4 22, 12 3; 2 Chron. 18 25; 22 11; 24 1, 2, 4, 22, 24; 25 17, 18, 21, 23, 23, 25, 25). Here, therefore, there are no exceptions to safeguard and the simple mention of the rule suffices.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 109a, on 2 Kings 14 23, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,161, fol. 83b, on 2 Kings 11 20; (III) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah 11, § 63, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 108. All the four Lists exhibit precisely the same artificial arrangement. In the printed Massorah (List IV) the catchwords לְיֹשָׁעַ בְּלִי רֵשֶׁת are a mistake for לְיֹשָׁעַ בְּלִי רֵשֶׁת (2 Kings 11 20) which are rightly given in the other three Lists. For another form of the Massorah, which registers יֹשָׁעַ alone, see below, § 218.

קס"ה = § 165.

לְיֹשָׁעַ וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם Judah and in Jerusalem, is three times thus combined. Normally the phrase is יְרוּשָׁלַם וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם without the Beth after the Vav in יְרוּשָׁלַם. In this form this phrase occurs more than twenty times. As it is in these three instances only that it is with Beth, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination. By fixing the number at three the Massorah not only militates against the normal combination יְרוּשָׁלַם וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם in Jerem. 27 18 which is exhibited in several MSS. of Kennicott and de Rossi and in the earliest editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible, but against the recension which has יְרוּשָׁלַם וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם in Neh. 13 16 (comp. Ezek. 21 25), as is attested by the ancient Codex Add. 21,161 second hand and by the Syriac, Vulgate and the early editions.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 50a, on Jerem. 27 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 301b, on Neh. 13 16; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 116b, on 2 Kings 23 24; (IV) the same MS., fol. 164b, on Jerem. 27 18; (V) the same MS., fol. 389a, on Neh. 13 16; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 280a, on 2 Kings 23 24, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 27 18.

קס"ו = § 166.

יְרוּשָׁלַם וְיֹשְׁבֵי יְרוּשָׁלַם Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, occurs eight times. This phrase occurs altogether about seventeen times. As it is preceded by וְיֹשְׁבֵי in the other nine instances (comp. 2 Kings 23 2; Jerem. 4 4; 11 2, 9; 17 26; 18 11; 32 32; Dan. 9 7; 2 Chron. 34 30), the Massorah safeguards the passages in which it is absent. That the protection of these two phrases is due to variations in the ancient Codices is attested by the Septuagint which has no וְיֹשְׁבֵי before יְרוּשָׁלַם in Jerem. 17 20, has וְיֹשְׁבֵי before יְרוּשָׁלַם in Jerem. 19 3 and omits it before יְרוּשָׁלַם in 2 Chron. 34 30.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 278a, on 2 Chron. 32 33, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 269a, on 2 Chron. 20 18, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 115. Lists I and III indicate the import of this Massorah by the addition at the end that in all other instances this phrase is preceded by וְיֹשְׁבֵי. The catchwords לְיֹשְׁבֵי יְרוּשָׁלַם in the List, which I have printed (List I) and which are without a reference, are manifestly a corrupt duplicate of the immediately preceding catchwords and are rightly absent in Lists II and III.

וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם and in Judah, occurs five times in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to thirty-nine instances in which this proper name is with the prefix Vav alone without the prefix Beth. By fixing the number at five the design of the Massorah is to militate against the School of textual redactors which have וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם in Jerem. 52 3, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 257b, on 2 Kings 24 20; which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 126b, on Zech. 14 21; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 117b, on 2 Kings 24 20; (IV) the same MS., fol. 222a, on Zech. 14 21; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 316a, on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah, on 2 Kings 17 13. The addition of וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם after the catchwords בְּלִי רֵשֶׁת in List VI is due to the fact that this recension of the Rubric is based upon the Codices which exhibited וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם in Jerem. 52 2 in accordance with the parallel passage which records the same event, viz. 2 Kings 24 20. The last meaningless line וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם is by a later Scribe.

וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם and Judah, begins a verse in two instances. This proper name begins a verse altogether five times. In three instances it is without the prefix Vav (Gen. 49 8; 1 Kings 4 20; Neh. 12 84) and in two it is with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 298b, on Joel 4 20, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 302a, on the same passage.

קס"ט = § 169.

לְיֹשָׁעַ וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם to Judah and to Jerusalem, occurs four times. In the only other instances where this phrase occurs the two names are inverted (Neh. 7 6). Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 133b, on Isa. 36 7, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 116. In the List which I have printed, the expression וּבֵית יְרוּשָׁלַם denoting the parallel passage, i. e. 2 Kings 18 22, as is not infrequently the case, is omitted.

קיע = § 170.

and the Jews, occurs three times. This gentile noun plural with the prefix He occurs altogether forty-nine times. In forty-six instances it is without Vav conjunctive and in three only is it with this Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional occurrence. By fixing the number at three this Massorah militates against the textual reading or Kethiv in Esther 9 18. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter , § 119.

קעיא = § 171.

the Jews, is in six instances written so in this book. As this gentile noun plural which occurs thirty-seven times in the book of Esther is normally spelt and as it is in these six instances abnormally written the Massorah cancels the second Yod and thus makes them conformable to all the other instances.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 274 b, on Esther 8 13, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 363 a, on Esther 9 18; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 407 b, on Esther 8 13; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 312 b, on Esther 8 1, and (V) the printed Massorah, on Esther 8 13. In the List which I have printed the catchword to which I have affixed the reference Esther 8 11 is manifestly a scribal error for Esther 9 18, which is given in all the other Lists and which is absent in List I.

Judith or in Jewish, occurs seven times in the Scriptures. It will be seen that though this expression is in one instance the proper name of the wife of Esau (Gen. 26 34) and in the other six instances an adverb denoting Judaic, i. e. in the Jews language, yet because it is spelt alike, the Massorah in accordance with its usual method, puts all the passages under the same Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 252 b, on 2 Kings 18 26, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 112 b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 133 b, on Isa. 36 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 389 a, on Neh. 13 24; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 227 b, on Isa. 36 11; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 19 b, on Gen. 26 34, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 18 26. List III heads this Rubric which is probably due to the fact that the proper name Jehud, Josh. 19 45, is conversely defective.

Jehovah. — Three verses respectively begin and end with the Tetragrammaton. Without and with the prefixes, the Tetragrammaton begins a verse altogether about 124 times, viz. without any prefix ninety-three times; with the prefix Vav twenty-nine times; with the prefix Lamed once and with the prefix Mem once. As it is in these three instances alone that this Ineffable Name not only begins a verse, but also ends it, the Massorah safeguards this phenomenon.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 193 b, on 1 Sam. 26 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 18 a, on Isa. 38 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 135 a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 121 b, on Deut. 31 3; (V) the same MS., fol. 229 b, on Isa. 38 20; (VI) Orient. 2349; fol. 140 b, on Deut. 31 3, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

The expression ארצה ארצה which is given in the headings of Lists I, II and IV or ארצה as List VII has it, Massoretically denotes the Tetragrammaton and is never used to denote any other divine Name. It is based upon the declaration יהוה ארצה in Exod. 3 15. In the headings of Lists III, V and VI it is denoted by קודשא.

קעיר = § 174.

Jehovah. — Two verses in the Scriptures exhibit the Tetragrammaton in the initial letters of four consecutive words. This Rubric is from the printed Massorah on Esther 5 4. In some MSS. the letters in question are written longer to indicate the Ineffable Name, as will be seen from the notes on Esther 5 4 in my edition of the Bible.

קעה = § 175.

Four verses in which the Tetragrammaton respectively occurs four times . . . and one verse in which it occurs five times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 91 a, on Numb. 9 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 55 a, on Jerem. 33 11; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 157 b, on 2 Chron. 14 10; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 106 b, on Numb. 9 23, and (V) Orient. 5404, fol. 105 b, on the same passage.

קעיז = § 176.

Jehovah is in eight instances with this accent. That is, with Mehupach Legarmeh at the beginning of a verse in the Psalms. Though the Tetragrammaton begins a verse in the Psalter no fewer than sixty-two times, it is in these eight instances only that it is with Mehupach Legarmeh. The only other instance where it is with this accent is in the middle of the verse (Ps. 131 1), whilst in Psa. 8 2, where it is with Mehupach at the beginning of the verse, it is without Legarmeh.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 201 a, on Psa. 89 9. Accordingly Ps. 41 3, which is in my edition of the Bible ought to be יהוה. This is corroborated by Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11, which has a Massorah on it בנש; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251.

קעז = § 177.

This incipient List of words combined with the Tetragrammaton which respectively occur once only, is from Cambridge Add. 1174, on Deut. 32 6. It will be seen that this Rubric follows the Nehardai School of textual redactors, reading Deut. 32 6 יהוה in two words (vide infra § 204). The fourth instance in this fragmentary List, viz. יהוה, I cannot find and therefore left it without a reference. For the Lists of words beginning with Vav which are combined with the Tetragrammaton and which respectively occur once only, see letter , § 81.

קעה = § 178.

Jehovah the Lord, is five times thus written in the Scriptures. The combination of these two Divine Names occurs altogether 296 times. In 291 instances אלה precedes the Tetragrammaton, which always takes the graphic signs of אלה whether preceded or followed by אלה, with the solitary exception of Ps. 16 2. In this combination, i. e. אלה אלה it occurs (1) four times in the Pentateuch recorded above, letter א, § 116; (2) 284 times in the prophets, viz. Joshua 1; Judges 2; Samuel 6; Kings 2; Isaiah 23; Jeremiah 11; Ezekiel 216; Amos 20; Obadiah 1; Micah 1; Zephaniah 1, and (3) three times in the Psalter and once with the prefix Beth (vide supra, letter א, § 116) As it is in these five instances only, that the order of the two Divine Names is inverted, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 118 b, on Habak. 3 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 198 b, on Ps. 68 21; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 219 a, on Ps. 140 8; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 214 b, on Habak. 3 19; (V) the same MS., fol. 300 a, on Ps. 68 21; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 289 a, on Habak. 3 19; (VII) Halle Ochlach Ve-Ochlach I, § 152, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 140 8.

List II heads this Rubric אלה יהוה, which is due to the fact that in this combination the Tetragrammaton not only takes the graphic signs of אלה, but is pronounced so; whilst the Tetragrammaton is pronounced אלה which it indicates here. List VI is headed יהוה אלה, which indicates the import of this Massorah, i. e. that in these five instances the order of the two Divine Names is inverted.

Jehovah our Lord, occurs three times. Normally the phrase is יהוה אלהי יהוה אלהי, which in this combination the Tetragrammaton occurs innumerable times. As it is in these three instances only that it is followed by אלהי our Lord, the Massorah safeguards the abnormal phrase. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 285 b, on Ps. 8 2, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

§ 180. - קים

Jehovah God, is five times thus written in the Prophets. In the Prophets, where the two Divine Names occur together, יהוה precedes the Tetragrammaton, i. e. יהוה and in this combination it occurs about 284 times in this division of the Bible: (Vide supra, § 178.) As it is in these five instances only that the phrase varies, the Massorah safeguards this abnormal departure. Of this separate Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 201 a, on 2 Sam. 7 25, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 61 b, on the same passage. This Massorah forms one of the links in the artificial concatenation recorded above, letter x, § 116 c.

Jehovah the God, is ten times thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which it is simply יהוה without the prefix He. By fixing the number at ten, this Massorah militates against the reading יהוה ואי יהוה in Josh. 22 34 which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 153 a, on Josh. 22 34, which I have printed; (II) the same MS. Vol. I, fol. 176 b, on 1 Sam. 6 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 16 b, on Josh. 22 34; (IV) the same MS., fol. 93 a, on 1 Kings 18 21; (V) the same MS., fol. 251 b, on 1 Chron. 22 1; (VI) the same MS., fol. 384 a, on Neh. 8 6, and (VII) the printed Massorah, on Josh. 22 34. In the List which I have printed (List I) the catchwords יהוה אלהים are manifestly a clerical error for יהוה ראיהם, 1 Kings 18 21. It is remarkable that all the Lists coincide in giving יהוה אלהים Dan. 9 8 as one of the ten instances, contrary to the received text which is יהוה ראיהם.

Jehovah, God of, occurs four times. This Rubric, which is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 274 a, on 2 Chron. 28 6 I cannot understand, since this phrase occurs innumerable times. It may be that the design of the compiler is to state that in these four instances it has different accents in each case. In the first instance it is יהוה אלהי (Gen. 24 7); in the second it is יהוה אלהי (Deut. 1 11); in the third יהוה אלהי (2 Chron. 28 6) and in the fourth instance יהוה אלהי (2 Chron. 30 6).

§ 183. - קמ"ג

Jehovah God of their fathers, occurs four times. For this Rubric see letter x, § 669.

§ 184. - קמ"ד

Jehovah God of hosts, occurs twelve times. That is, in contradistinction to the innumerable instances in which it is simply יהוה without the intervening אלהי, and apart from the three instances in which it is יהוה אלהי with the prefix He (Hosea 12 6; Amos 3 13; 6 14).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 306 a, on Ps. 89 9, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Amos 5 14.

It will be seen that the List which I have printed (List I) omits Jerem. 5 14, which is יהוה אלהי in the received text and which is duly given in List II and makes up the twelve by giving instead יהוה אלהי Amos 6 14, which is in the textus receptus יהוה אלהי with the prefix He. These two conflicting Massorahs, as is usually the case, are based upon two different recensions of the text. The one is based upon the text which exhibited יהוה אלהי in Jerem. 5 4 and יהוה אלהי in Amos 6 4 in accordance with the other five instances in this book; whilst the other is based upon the recension which exhibited יהוה אלהי in Amos 6 14 and יהוה אלהי in Jerem. 5 14. From the note of Jacob b. Chayim in the Massorah Finalis, letter x, § 177, it appears that some Massorahs were based upon Codices which exhibited יהוה אלהי without the prefix He in both Jerem. 5 14 and Amos 6 14 and hence headed this Rubric יהוה אלהי.

§ 185. - קמ"ה

Jehovah God of hosts, God of Israel, occurs three times. Normally this formula is simply יהוה אלהי ישראל. In this form the phrase occurs in Jeremiah alone about thirty-two times. As it is in these three instances only that this lengthened phrase is used, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Amos 5 4. For the variation which Jacob b. Chayim mentions at the end of the Rubric, see the note on the preceding Rubric. It is remarkable that in no fewer than twenty out of the thirty-two instances in which יהוה אלהי ישראל occurs in Jeremiah, the Septuagint has simply יהוה without יהוה אלהי ישראל (comp. Jerem. 7 21; 25 27; 28 14; 29 8, 21, 25; 31 23; 32 14, 15; 35 13, 18, 19; 42 15, 18; 43 10; 44 11; 46 25; 48 1; 50 18; 51 33). Even in the three instances which constitute this Rubric and in which the longer formula occurs in the received text, the Septuagint simply exhibits יהוה in Jerem. 35 17 and 38 17; whilst in 44 7 it exhibits יהוה אלהי.

Jehovah the God of heaven, is six times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the other three instances in which the supreme Being is called אלהי השמים the God of heaven without its being preceded by יהוה (Neh. 1 4; 2 4, 20). This safeguarding is especially necessary, since the two phrases are used promiscuously in two consecutive verses (comp. Neh. 1 4, 5).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 113 a, on Jonah 1 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 286 b, on Ezra 1 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 281 b, on 2 Chron. 36 23; (IV) the same MS., fol. 379 b, on Neh. 1 5; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 23 b, on Gen. 24 7; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 12 b, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. The latter is headed יהוה אלהי השמים six times in this form which is due to the fact that in one instance this phrase is with the prefix Beth (Gen. 24 3).

Jehovah my God, occurs eight times. Of this form of the Rubric which emphasises the fact that the Tetragrammaton precedes the Divine Name אלהי with Kametz and the accent Zakeph, I collated three Lists: (I) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 152, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 142 a, on Num. 22 18, and (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 100 b, on the same passage.

As List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, is headed יהוה אלהי, thus not only emphasising the fact that יהוה precedes אלהי in all the eight instances, but that in this combination אלהי is with the accent Zakeph and, moreover, as List III also lays stress upon this fact, it is evident that the compilers of this Rubric regarded the two out of the eight instances in which this phrase is with Revia or Revia Mugrash (2 Chron. 2 3; Ps. 35 24) as being equivalent to Zakeph. Accordingly by fixing the number at eight, the design of this Massorah is to indicate that in the five instances in which this phrase has the same accents, viz. the two with Zakeph (יהוה אלהי Zech. 14 5; Dan. 9 20); the one with Revia (יהוה אלהי 1 Chron. 20 13) and the two with Revia Mugrash (יהוה אלהי Ps. 18 29; 30 13) it is יהוה אלהי with Pathach. The alternative view is discussed in letter x, § 678 where the import of the majority of the Rubrics is registered which simply dwell upon the expression יהוה אלהי alone.

Jehovah thy God, is six times thus combined in the Prophets. Normally the phrase is יהוה אלהיך with Segol under the He and Kametz under Caph, being the suffix second person Tetragrammaton is followed by this Divine Name with the suffix second person singular feminine, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 28 a, on Isa. 60 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 120 a, on Zeph. 3 17; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 144 b, on Isa. 60 9; (IV) the same MS., fol. 148 b, on Jerem. 2 17; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 287 a, on Isa. 60 9; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 152, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 2 17.

And whenever it is at the end of the verse it is likewise so except once, or as this part of the Rubric is in List II וכל לשי' and whenever it is the feminine and at the end of the verse it is likewise so except once. That is, apart from the above six instances in which it is abnormally אלהיך when it is preceded by the Tetragrammaton i. e. יהוה אלהיך, this Divine Name is normally אלהיך wherever it is with the feminine suffix, i. e. Ps. 146 10; 147 12, or ends the verse, i. e. Isa. 51 20; 52 7; 54 6; 62 3, 5; 66 9 with the solitary exception of Amos 9 15, where it is אלהיך at the end of the verse. All the Lists with the sole exception of List VI have this second part of the Rubric. The expression בניי in the heading of Lists I, II, III, IV and V ought properly to be בניא, since this phrase is restricted to the Prophets. The heading of List VI, which is simply יהוה אלהיך, is more correct, since this phrase thus pointed only occurs six times altogether in the Scriptures, which is rightly stated in the heading of List VII, viz. יהוה אלהיך ו' רמב"ב בקרא'.

יהוה אלוהיו עמו Jehovah his God is with him, occurs five times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 280 a, on Numb. 23 21, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 281 b, on 2 Chron. 36 23, and (III) Cambridge Add. 465, on 2 Chron. 1 1.

It will be seen that these three Lists emphatically include Ezra 1 8 as one of the five instances in which the phrase אלהיך עמו is preceded by the Tetragrammaton. They must therefore be based upon a recension of the text which exhibited יהוה in Ezra 1 8 as it is in 2 Chron. 36 23 which records the same event instead of יהוה. The conflicting readings in these two parallel passages was felt to be so glaring that in some of the Codices and early editions the passage in Chronicles was actually made conformable to the Ezra passage, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. There is a separate Massorah which registers the exceptional phrase אלהיך עמו without any regard to its being preceded by the Tetragrammaton. (Vide supra, letter א, § 680.)

ק"ץ - 190.

יהוה אלהינו | יהוה Jehovah our God, is in three instances with Pasek between them. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 127 a, on Deut. 6 4, which I have printed, (II) Cambridge Add. 1147, on the same passage and (III) Hamburg Codex No. 1 also on the same passage.

In accordance with this explicit Massoretic rule, Orient. 2349 exhibits the Pasek between these two Divine Names, viz. יהוה אלהינו and not between יהוה אלהינו as it is in the received text; whilst Orient. 2348; Orient. 5404 and the Hamburg Codex have it in both places, viz. יהוה אלהינו יהוה אלהינו. As the current official Lists have not the Pasek between יהוה אלהינו in these three instances (vide supra, letter א, §§ 204; 210; 223), we have here another proof of the oft-repeated fact that the conflicting Massorahs are due to their being based upon the different recensions of the text which obtained in the different Massoretic Schools.

יהוה אלהיהם Jehovah their God, occurs eight times. As it is in every instance preceded by יהוה, thus forming one phrase, I have given this Rubric in letter ב, § 142.

קצ"ב - § 192.

יהוה יהוה Jehovah and Jehovah, are three times combined in the Scriptures. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 213 b, on 2 Sam. 22 29. The catchwords for the third instance in the MS. are יהוה יהוה Isa. 49 14. In the Rubric as I have printed it, has inadvertently crept into the text.

This Rubric affords another illustration of the fact that the variations of some Massorahs from the textus receptus are due to their being based upon a different recension of the text which obtained in other Massoretic Schools. Thus we are here emphatically told that in the duplicate Psalm the reading in both instances is the same, viz. יהוה יהוה, whereas according to the present text this reading is in 2 Sam. 22 29 only, and in the parallel passage Ps. 18 29 is יהוה אלהי. Moreover according to this Massorah Isa. 49 14 is יהוה יהוה which, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible, is supported by some MSS. and early editions, whereas it is יהוה אלהי according to the current Massorah. (Vide supra, letter א, § 117.)

קצ"ג - § 193.

יהוה יהוה שמו Jehovah is his name, occurs four times. Normally the phrase is יהוה אלהי שמו יהוה Jehovah of hosts is his name (comp. Isa. 47 4; 48 2; 51 15; 54 5; Jerem. 10 16; 31 35; 32 18; 46 18; 48 15; 50 34; 51 19, 57). As it is in these four instances only that the adjunct אלהי is absent, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 66 a, on Exod. 15 3, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Amos 5 8; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 256 b, on Jerem. 33 2; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 89 a, on Exod. 15 3, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter א, § 98. The latter is corrupt. It is not only wrongly headed יהוה שמו, but the passages are wrongly divided to make up this number. Amos 5 8 and 9 6, which constitute two of the four instances, are respectively divided into two so as to yield six.

קצ"ד - 194.

ביהוה by or against Jehovah, occurs twice. This Rubric, which is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 18 b, on Judg. 1 1, I cannot explain since the Tetragrammaton with the prefix Beth occurs more than 100 times. Yet the Massorah Parva also in the same MS. has it ביהוה.

קצ"ה - § 195.

ויהוה and in Jehovah, occurs twice. Though with the prefix Vav alone the Tetragrammaton occurs about 96 times, yet with Vav and Beth it occurs twice only. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional occurrence. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 16 a, on Josh. 22 19, which I have printed, and (II) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 152.

קצ"ו - § 196.

יהוה and Jehovah, occurs five times at the beginning of a verse in Genesis. In the only two other instances in which the Tetragrammaton with the prefix Vav occurs in this book it is in the middle of the verse (Gen. 24 1, 56). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter א, § 99. Why the Massorah should have selected the instances in Genesis only, where יהוה occupies this position, when it occurs also twenty-six times at the beginning of a verse in the other books of the Bible, it is difficult to divine. It may be that Lists may still come to light which register the passages in the other books.

¹ Comp. Exod. 12 26; 13 21; Deut. 4 21; 26 16; 31 8; Josh 23 5; 1 Sam. 9 15; 26 25; 1 Kings 5 26; 14 5; Isa. 63 10; Jerem. 10 10; 11 17, 18, 20; 20 11, 12; Hosea 12 6; Joel 2 11; 4 16; Jonah 1 4; Habak. 2 20; Zech. 9 14; Ps. 9 8; Job 42 10, 12.

יהוה and Jehovah, is in three instances with this accent at the beginning of the verse. This Rubric is from Add. 21,160, fol. 14 a, on Gen. 24 35. It affords another illustration of the fact that Nakdanim fixed the number in the headings to agree with the instances which they happened to find in the Lists. This Rubric is manifestly in an incipient state. It exhibits the first attempt on the part of the Massorite to collect the passages in which the Tetragrammaton with the prefix Vav has the accent Gershayim at the beginning of the verse. A later Nakdan, however, mistook it for complete and finding that it contained three instances only, forthwith put into the heading ג' ראשי בשמ'.

יהוה and Jehovah, occurs eight times with this accent at the beginning of a verse. This Rubric is the complete development of the incipient one given in the preceding List.

Of this Massorah I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 42b, on Exod. 12 36, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 142a, on Isa. 52 10, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter \aleph , § 94. The printed Massorah (List III) heads this Rubric יהוה בנעם without the adjunct רא רב which is incorrect, since there is a ninth instance of יהוה with this accent in the middle of the verse, viz. Isa. 31 3.

קצ"ח = § 198.

יהוה and Jehovah, is six times with this accent in the Scriptures... and all are at the beginning of the verse. Of this Rubric I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 241 a, on Job 42 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 11b, on Gen. 19 24; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 80 a, on 1 Kings 5 26; (IV) the same MS., fol. 209 a, on Jonah 1 4; (V) the same MS., fol. 336 a, on Job 42 10; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 152 margin; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 19 24; (VIII) the same on 1 Kings 5 26, and (IX) the same on Job 42 10.

An analysis of these nine Lists shows that they are based upon different recensions of the text.

Thus Lists I, IV, VI and IX record the same six instances though the latter is headed יהוה בנעם .

List III is headed יהוה בנעם רא רב and duly records eight. Besides the six given in Lists I, IV and IX, it gives יהוה בנעם Exod. 12 36 and יהוה בנעם Deut. 26 18 both of which are registered in the preceding Rubric as being with Gershayim.

Lists II, VII and VIII are respectively headed יהוה בנעם and duly record seven such instances. Besides giving the same six which are recorded in Lists I, IV and IX, these three Lists give יהוה בנעם 2 Kings 7 6 as the seventh instance. As the received text has here יהוה בנעם with Gershayim, it is evident that the Lists in question are based upon a recension of the text which had it here יהוה בנעם , the Tetragrammaton with Revia.

יהוה אלהים and Jehovah God, occurs four times. That is, with the prefix Vav in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which it is simply יהוה אלהים . This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 14 b, on Jerem. 10 10. It is remarkable that this is the only passage in the received text where this combination occurs; in the other three instances it is יהוה אלהים .

ר = § 200.

יהוה as, or like Jehovah, occurs four times in the Scriptures. In the other three instances where the Caph is prefixed to the Divine Name to indicate similarity, it is יהוה אלהים . (Vide supra, letter \aleph , § 666.)

Of this popular Massorah I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 39 a, on Exod. 8 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 210 b, on Ps. 113 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 35 b, on 1 Sam. 2 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 313 a, on Ps. 113 5; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 152; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 8 6; (VII) the same on Deut. 4 7, and (VIII) the same on Ps. 113 5. List VII is wrongly headed יהוה אלהים , since followed by יהוה אלהים it occurs three times only. In 1 Sam. 2 2 it is simply יהוה אלהים .

רי"א = § 201.

יהוה . — Three words are exceptionally followed by the Tetragrammaton with the prefix Lamed. Normally these three verbs are followed by יהוה אלהים . Comp. יהוה אלהים Ps. 27 14, 14; 37 34; יהוה אלהים Deut. 9 26; 1 Sam. 7 5; Jerem. 32 16; יהוה אלהים Exod. 14 10; Josh. 24 7; Judg. 4 3. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional construction. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Paris Ochlah Ve-Ochlah § 258.

רי"ב = § 202.

יהוה מנחה . Throughout the Scriptures it is an altar to Jehovah except once where it is to Jehovah an altar. Normally the phrase is יהוה מנחה . In this form it occurs about sixteen times (comp. Gen. 8 20; 12 7, 8; 13 18; Deut. 27 5; Josh. 8 30; Judg. 6 26; 1 Sam. 7 17; 14 35; 2 Sam. 24 21, 25; 1 Kings 18 32; Isa. 19 19;

1 Chron. 21 18, 22, 26). As it is in this solitary instance that the order is inverted, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. This protection was necessary, since the two phrases are used promiscuously within a few verses of each other (comp. 2 Sam. 24 18, 21, 25).

This Rubric forms part of the List of phrases which are respectively inverted in one instance only. (Vide infra, letter \aleph , § 448 b.)

רי"ג = § 203.

יהוה אלהינו to Jehovah, our God, is nine times thus combined. By fixing the number of the instances at nine where the Tetragrammaton with the prefix Lamed is followed by יהוה אלהינו , the Massorah adopts the Eastern reading יהוה אלהינו in Dan. 9 9 instead of the Western יהוה אלהינו . This Eastern reading is also exhibited in the text of Add. 15,251 first hand.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 41 a, on Exod. 10 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 33 b, on Jerem. 3 25; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 371 b, on Dan. 9 9; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 414 a, on the same passage; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 62 a, on Exod. 8 22; (VI) Orient. 2348, fol. 72 a, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 3 18. The latter is incorrect. It omits יהוה אלהינו Exod. 8 22 and makes up the seven by giving יהוה אלהינו which does not occur.

יהוה אלהינו . This Rubric, which records the variations of the orthography of the Tetragrammaton with the prefixes in Deut. 32 6 which obtained in the different Massoretic Schools of textual redactors, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on this passage.

רי"ה = § 204b.

יהוה אלהינו . Of this recension of the Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 122 b, on Deut. 32 6, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The expression יהוה אלהינו before יהוה אלהינו has inadvertently dropped out of the text in the Rubric which I have printed.

רי"ו = § 205.

יהוה אלהינו and to Jehovah, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, with its normal graphic signs, in contradistinction to the only instance where the Tetragrammaton with the prefixes יהוה אלהינו and where it is pointed יהוה אלהינו with the graphic signs of יהוה אלהינו , because it is followed by יהוה אלהינו (Ps. 68 21).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 252 b, on Prov. 21 31, which I have printed, and (II) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 152.

רי"ז = 206.

יהוה אלהינו from Jehovah, occurs three times. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter \aleph , § 100 affords another striking illustration of the oft-repeated statement that the Nakdanim through ignorance frequently misrepresented the import of the Massorah. The Tetragrammaton with the prefix Mem occurs about twenty-four times and not three as here stated in the heading. The Rubric simply exhibits the first attempt on the part of the Massoretic School to collect these instances, and this fragment was manifestly used originally, as is not infrequently the case, to fill out the remaining space in the line of the marginal Massorah. A later Nakdan, however, who mistook these three as exhibiting all the instances, affixed a heading with the number corresponding to the recorded passages. This is attested by the absence of the following twenty-one instances: Gen. 18 14; Numb. 32 22; 1 Sam. 1 20; 24 6; 26 11; 1 Kings 21 3; Isa. 29 15; 40 27; Jerem. 51 5; Zech. 10 1; Ps. 33 8; 38 23, 39; Prov. 8 35; 12 2; 18 22; 20 24; Lament. 2 9; 3 18; 2 Chron. 20 4; 26 18.

רי"ח = § 207.

יהוה אלהינו and from Jehovah, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Normally the Tetragrammaton is with the prefix Mem alone. In this form it occurs twenty-four times, whilst in four only it is also with the prefix Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional instances.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 249 b, on Prov. 16 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 342 a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 390 a, also on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 391 a, on Prov. 19 14; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah I, § 152 margin; (VI) the printed Massorah on Prov. 16 1, and (VII) the same on Prov. 29 26. As all the four instances are restricted to Proverbs, the heading ought more properly to be בְּכִיבָרֵי instead of בְּקִיבָרֵי.

יְהוֹזָבָד Jehozabad, occurs four times. That is, in these four instances only has this name preserved the primitive longer form, in contradistinction to the shorter form with the He eliminated, viz. יְזָבָד which occurs ten times. For the cause of the duplicate form see my Introduction of the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 267 a, on 2 Chron. 17 18, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 123. The latter is corrupt. The passage in 1 Chron. 26 4 is given twice, viz. לְעִבְרֵי אֲדָמָה בָּנִים and לְעִבְרֵי אֲדָמָה בָּנִים, whilst אֲדָמָה הַמַּחֲקִירִים 2 Chron. 24 26 is omitted. Moreover וְעַל דְּוֵי הַדְּבָרִים is a scribal error on the part of Jacob b. Chayim for וְעַל דְּוֵי דִּבְרֵי 2 Chron. 17 18.

יְהוֹחָנָן Jehochanan, occurs four times. To understand this artificial Massorah it is necessary to remark that this proper name, which occurs altogether thirty-three times, is spelt in two different ways. In twenty-four instances it is the shorter form יְחָנָן with the He eliminated and in nine only has it retained the original longer form יְהוֹחָנָן. As fifteen of the thirty-three instances occur in Kings and Jeremiah, and moreover as all these uniformly exhibit the shorter form יְחָנָן, there is no variation to safeguard in these two books. They are, therefore, excluded from this Rubric. The case, however, is different with the remaining eighteen instances. Not only are nine of these the shorter form and nine the longer, but the two forms occur in the same two books, viz. Ezra-Nehemiah and Chronicles. In Chronicles the two forms occur altogether ten times. As six of these are יְחָנָן the shorter form (1 Chron. 3 15, 24; 5 35, 36; 12 4, 12) and four only are יְהוֹחָנָן the longer form, the Massorah in the first part of this Rubric safeguards the orthography of the minority.

And throughout Ezra [-Nehemiah] it is likewise יְחָנָן the longer form except in three instances. In Ezra-Nehemiah where, as we have seen, the two forms occur eight times, the reverse is the case. Here the longer form is the rule. It occurs five times (Ezra 10 6, 28; Neh. 6 18; 12 13, 42) and the shorter form three times only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the shorter form. This part of the Rubric also occurs as a separate Massorah. (Vide infra, § 221.) For the cause of this duplicate name see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 254 a, on 1 Chron. 26 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 267 a, on 2 Chron. 17 15; (III) the same MS., fol. 274 a, on 2 Chron. 28 12; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 336 a, on 2 Chron. 17 15; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 62, and (VI) the printed Massorah on 1 Chron. 26 3.

רִיז = § 210.

יְהוֹיָכִים Jehoiakim, is twice defective. This proper name, which occurs altogether forty-one times, is spelt with Yod after the Coph in thirty-nine instances and in two only is it without the Yod. Hence the Massorah safeguards this abnormal orthography. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 52 2. From the notes on these two passages in my edition of the Hebrew Bible, it will be seen that the design of this Massorah is to militate against the Eastern recension of the text which exhibits the normal orthography.

רִיח = § 211.

יְהוֹנָתָן Jehonathan, a sign indicating the passages where it is the longer form Jehonathan and where it is the shorter form Jonathan.

As this proper name, which occurs 98 times in Samuel, is spelt in two different ways and moreover as the orthography which is the exception in one part of the book is the rule in the other part, the Massorah here indicates in which parts the respective spellings are abnormal and thus safeguards the minority in each case.

From 1 Sam. 1 1 to 17 55 it is יְהוֹנָתָן the shorter form with the He eliminated except in two instances. In this part of the book, where this name occurs altogether thirty times, יְהוֹנָתָן the shorter form is the rule. It is so written twenty-eight times (1 Sam. 13 2, 3, 16, 22, 22; 14 1, 3, 4, 12, 12, 13, 13, 14, 17, 21, 27, 29, 39, 40, 41, 42, 42, 43, 43, 44, 45, 45, 49) and in two instances only is it יְהוֹנָתָן the longer form. Hence the Massorah, in this part of the Rubric, safeguards the exceptional orthography.

And from 1 Sam. 18 1 to 2 Sam. 24 25 it is יְהוֹנָתָן except once. In this part of the book, where it occurs altogether sixty-eight times, the reverse is the case, יְהוֹנָתָן the longer form is the rule. It is so written sixty-seven times (1 Sam. 18 1, 1, 3, 4; 19 1, 2, 4, 6, 7, 7, 7; 20 1, 3, 4, 5, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 16, 17, 18, 25, 27, 28, 30, 32, 33, 34, 35, 37, 37, 38, 38, 39, 40, 42; 21 1; 23 16, 18; 31 2; 2 Sam. 1 4, 5, 12, 17, 22, 23, 25, 26; 4 4, 4; 9 1, 3, 6, 7; 15 27, 36; 17 17, 20; 21 7, 7, 12, 13, 14, 21; 23 32), and in one instance only is it יְהוֹנָתָן. Here, therefore, the Massorah on the contrary safeguards the shorter form which is the solitary exception.

And throughout Ezra it is likewise יְהוֹנָתָן except once. In Ezra-Nehemiah, where it occurs altogether seven times, the reverse again is the case. יְהוֹנָתָן is the rule. It is so written six times (Ezra 8 6; 10 15; Neh. 2 11, 11, 14, 35) and once only is it the longer form. Here, therefore, the Massorah on the contrary safeguards the longer form which constitutes a solitary exception. For the cause of the duplicate forms see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.

Of this form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 43 a, on 1 Sam. 14 6, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 181 b, on the same passage, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35, also on the same passage. Lists II and III do not contain the third part of this Rubric. They simply record the orthography in Samuel. For an expanded form of this Massorah see below, § 267.

רִיב = § 212.

יְהוֹרָם Jehoram, Joram.

From 2 Kings 8 16 to verse 29 it is יְהוֹרָם except in three instances. In this section this proper name occurs altogether twelve times. In nine instances it is יְהוֹרָם with the He eliminated (2 Kings 8 16, 21, 23, 24, 25, 28, 28, 29, 29) and in three only is it יְהוֹרָם the longer form. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the exceptional spelling. By fixing the number at three, the Massorah militates against the Eastern recension of the text which reads יְהוֹרָם in 2 Kings 8 16, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

This form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 103 b, on 2 Kings 8 16. For a more expanded form of this Rubric see below § 271 and for the cause of this duplicate form of the name see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.

רִיג = § 213.

יְהוֹשֻׁעַ Joshua is twice plene. As this proper name, which occurs 196 times, is in these two instances only with Vav after the Shin, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional orthography. By fixing the number at two, the Massorah militates against the Eastern recension of the text which has יְהוֹשֻׁעַ plene twice in Judg. 2 7.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 113 a, on Deut. 3 21, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 19 b, on Judg. 2 7; (III) Add. 21,180, fol. 259 b, on Deut. 3 21; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 62, margin; (VI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 3 21, and (VII) the same on Judg. 2 7.

Lists I, II, III, VI and VII do not indicate whether it is the first instance in Judg. 2 7 which is plene or the second in the same verse. List IV, however, emphatically states that according to the Westerns whose text we follow, it is the second in the verse which is plene, whilst according to the Easterns both are plene.¹ As List V heads this Rubric וַיְהִי and gives all the three instances, it is evident that it is based upon the Eastern recension of the text. In the List which I have printed the catchwords אשר ראוי יום are not those in Josh. 24 31, but in Judg. 2 7.

רי"ד = § 214.

וַיְהִי and Joshua, occurs five times at the beginning of a verse. With the prefix Vav this proper name, which occurs altogether seventeen times, is normally in the middle of the verse. Hence the Massorah safeguards its exceptional position in these instances. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 129 a, on Josh. 8 21. There is a sixth instance in the received text where it begins the verse, viz. Josh. 13 1, which is absent in this Rubric.

רמ"ו = § 215.

וְהָרְלָם and a sardonyx, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 88 a, on Ezek. 28 18, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 70 a, on Exod. 28 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16 fol. 185 a, on Ezek. 28 18; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 57 a, on Exod. 28 13; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 133 a, on Exod. 39 11; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 81 a, all on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 28 18.

The fact that Lists IV, V, VI and VII head this Rubric וְהָרְלָם shows that it militates against a recension which exhibited it plene.

וְהָיָה and to Joab, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this proper name with the prefixes Vav and Lamed which not only occurs twice but in the same section, is differently spelt, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography, and thus militates against the recension of the Massoretic Schools which had it plene in both instances. This is attested by the fact that Add. 21,161 first hand which is one of the oldest MSS.: Orient. 2201; Orient. 2627; Paris National Library Codex No. 1—3 first hand and several of the earliest editions have וְהָיָה plene in 1 Kings 1 19.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 77 a, on 1 Kings 2 22, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 125. To the catchwords of the first instance in the Rubric which I have printed and which is the plene, the reference should be 1 Kings 2 22 and to the second 1 Kings 1 19.

רי"ז = 217.

יְחֹאָזָח Joachaz, occurs four times. This proper name occurs altogether twenty-four times. In twenty instances it has retained its primitive orthography יְחֹאָזָח (2 Kings 10 35; 13 1, 4, 7, 8, 9, 10, 22, 25, 25; 14 8, 17; 23 30, 31, 34; 2 Chron. 21 17; 25 17, 23, 25; 36 1) and in four only has the shorter form been substituted. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional spelling. By fixing the number at four, this Massorah militates against the recension of the text, in which יְחֹאָזָח the longer form has survived in 2 Kings 14 1, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 279 a, on 2 Chron. 34 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 281 a, on 2 Chron. 36 4, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 126.

רי"ח = § 218.

יְהוֹשָׁע Joshua, occurs sixteen times in this book. That is, in Kings. In Kings this proper name without the prefixes occurs altogether thirty-three times. If, therefore, it is sixteen times יְהוֹשָׁע as this Massorah states, it must be יְהוֹשָׁע the longer form in seventeen instances. This would account for the former being safeguarded because it exhibits the minority. This safeguarding was necessary, since the two forms occur several times in the same verse. (Comp. 2 Kings 13 10, 25; 14 17.)

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 107 b, on 2 Kings 13 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 271 a, on 2 Chron. 24 2, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 127.

Though Lists I and III coincide in stating in their respective headings that יְהוֹשָׁע occurs sixteen times only in Kings, List III alone records this number. It will be seen that the List which I have printed (List I) records fifteen only. It omits וְיָשָׁא or one of the two instances in 2 Kings 13 18 which Lists II and III have. As this expression is frequently omitted in the Massoretic Lists, it is evident that its absence here is due to a scribal error. List II is still more defective. Though it states in the heading that there are fifteen such instances in Kings, it records thirteen only and omits the following three: 2 Kings 12 20; 13 9, and 14 17, which is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe. It is important to remark that the three instances in Kings in which it is יְהוֹשָׁע with the prefix Lamed (2 Kings 13 1, 10; 14 1) are excluded from this Massorah because יְהוֹשָׁע the longer form with which it is contrasted does not occur with this prefix.

And throughout Judges, the Twelve Minor Prophets and Chronicles. That is, in these three books, where it occurs altogether twenty-five times, nine times in Judges (6 11, 29, 30, 31; 7 14; 8 13, 29, 32, 32), twice in the Minor Prophets (Hosea 1 1; Amos 1 1) and seventeen times in Chronicles (1 Chron. 3 11; 4 22; 1 23; 2 Chron. 18 25; 22 11; 24 1, 2, 4, 22, 24; 25 17, 18, 21, 23, 23, 25, 25) it is uniformly יְהוֹשָׁע the shorter form. There is, therefore, no variation in its orthography and nothing to safeguard. Hence the simple mention of the fact suffices without specifying the passages. List II reverses these two parts of this Rubric which is headed here בְּל שְׁמַיָא דְּרִי עֲשָׂרָה דְּרִי הַיָּמִין וְכֹל מַלְכֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל כְּפִלְיָא יְהוֹשָׁע. For a different definition of this Massorah with regard to the occurrence of this duplicate form of the name see above, § 164 and for its cause compare my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.

יְהוּבֵל the jubile, is three times plene. Without and with the prefixes this noun occurs altogether twenty-three times. It is defective in fifteen instances (Exod. 19 13; Levit. 25 28, 30, 31, 33, 40, 50, 62, 64; 27 17, 18, 18, 21, 23; Numb. 36 4) and plene in eight only. The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to safeguard the exceptional orthography. Instead, however, of simply stating the number of, and recording the passages in which this exceptional orthography occurs, the Massorah artificially declares that it is plene three times only instead of eight. It obtains this number by counting all the six instances in Levit. 25 10—28 as one; Levit. 27 24 as the second and Josh. 6 5 as the third passage.

Of this artificial form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 82 b, on Levit. 27 24, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 4 a, on Josh. 6 5, and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 120 a, on the same passage.

יְהוּבֵל יְהוּבֵל jubile, without and with the prefixes, is eight times plene. This is the oldest form of the Rubric. It too does not occur in the printed Massorah. I collated three Lists of it: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 79 a, on Levit. 25 15, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 111 a, on Levit. 25 10, and (III) Halle Ochlch Ve-Ochlch II, § 110 margin.

Though unlike the preceding form of the Rubric, it states in the heading that there are eight plene instances, it still summarily gives Levit. 25 10—28 as one. The explanatory addition וְקָרַע יְהוּבֵל תְּיָבֵרָה וְיְהוּבֵל, as well as יְהוּבֵל after וְיָצָא בְּיְהוּבֵל is absent both in the ancient Massorah of Orient. 4445 (List II) and in List III.

רי"ט = § 219 c.

יְהוּבֵל the jubile, is eight times plene. That is, this noun without and with the prefixes. Of this simple but less popular Rubric, which states in plain language without any artificial garb, that in the eight instances distinctly recorded this noun is exceptionally plene, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 183 b, on Levit. 27 24, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Levit. 25 15.

The importance of exhibiting the several forms of the same Massorah, consists in the fact that it affords another proof that the Massoretic Corpus which has come down to us is not homogeneous and that it is a compilation of materials emanating from different Massoretic Schools.

ר"ב = § 220.

יְהוֹכָח and Jocha, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this proper name, which occurs twice only and in the same book, is spelt differently in each passage, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its spelling. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 135 b, on 1 Chron. 8 16. Accordingly 1 Chron. 11 45, which is plene in my edition of the Bible, should be יְהוֹכָח defective as it is in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251.

ר"בא = 221.

יְהוֹכָח Jochanan, occurs three times in this book. That is, in Ezra-Nehemiah. For this Rubric see above, § 209.

ר"ב"ב = § 222.

יּוֹם day, begins a verse in nine instances. This noun, which occurs numerous times, is normally in the middle of the verse. As it is in these nine instances only that it begins the verse, the Massorah safeguards its exceptional position.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 113 b, on Deut. 4 10, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 125 a; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 135 a, and (IV) Orient. 5404, fol. 124 a, all on the same passage.

It will be seen that though the heading of the List which I have printed (List I) emphatically states that there are nine such instances, the Rubric itself records eight only. The absent instance is Zeph. 1 16. But this is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe. It is remarkable that Lists II, III and IV head this Rubric יּוֹם יַרְשָׁם and record seven only. All the three Lists coincide in omitting the two Zephaniah instances.

ר"ב"ב = § 223.

יּוֹם day, is in fourteen instances rendered in the Targum days. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 62 a, on Gen. 50 3. It will be seen that though the heading states that there are fourteen such instances, the Rubric itself records ten only. It is, however, difficult to say why the Massorah registers these passages only, since the Targum renders יּוֹם by the plural in many other instances.

ר"ב"ד = § 224.

יּוֹם יּוֹם day by day or daily, is seven times thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the phrases יּוֹם יּוֹם (Ezra 3 4; Neh. 8 18; 1 Chron. 12 23; 2 Chron. 30 21) and יּוֹם יּוֹם (Esther 2 11; 3 4) which denote the same thing.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 45 a, on Exod. 6 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 191 b, on Ps. 61 9; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 246 a, on Prov. 8 30; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 339 b, on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 14 margin; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 39 10, and (VII) the same on Prov. 8 30.

The printed Massorah alone (List VI) heads this Rubric יּוֹם יּוֹם and thus emphasises the fact that not only does this phrase occur seven times, but that it has Pasek in all the seven instances. This statement, however, as well as the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,451 on Ps. 61 9; 68 30, must be based upon the recension of one School of textual redactors only, since the best Standard Codices have no Pasek in Isa. 58 2. (Vide supra. letter u, § 209.)

ר"ב"ה = § 225.

יּוֹם יּוֹם day day, is in two instances without Pasek. Because in these two passages the first יּוֹם is separated from the second by a disjunctive accent and they thus differ from the instances recorded in the preceding Rubric where the reduplication is one phrase. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 39 10, where it is given as the second part of § 224.

ר"ב"ו = § 226.

יּוֹם יּוֹם — In two verses the expression יּוֹם day, respectively occurs three times. By fixing the number at three, the Massorah militates against the recension of the text which had יּוֹם יּוֹם once only in Numb. 14 34, as is attested by the Septuagint, Syriac and Vulgate and several of De Rossi's MSS. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 94 b, on Numb. 14 34.

ר"ב"ז = § 227.

יּוֹם אֶחָד one day, occurs ten times... and once it is with the prefix He. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 43 b, on Gen. 27 45, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 209 b, on Jonah 3 4; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 306 a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 32 a, on Gen. 33 13; (V) the same MS., fol. 293 a, on Zech. 14 7; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah Supplement, fol. 130 b, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 27 45. The latter adds that it ends the verse in two instances (ב' יום) and gives Gen. 1 5; 27 45 as the two passages, which is incorrect since it also ends the verse in Isa. 9 13.

ר"ב"ח = 228.

יּוֹם לְשָׁנָה יּוֹם לְשָׁנָה day for a year, a day for a year, occurs twice. This Rubric militates more emphatically than § 226 against the recension of the text which exhibits one יּוֹם לְשָׁנָה only in Numb. 14 34.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah is from Orient. 2349, fol. 109 a, on Numb. 14 34.

ר"ב"ט = § 229.

בְּיוֹם in the day, begins a verse five times in the Pentateuch. With the prefix Beth and Sheva this noun occurs altogether ten times at the beginning of a verse in this division of the Bible. In five instances it is with Van conjunctive (Levit. 13 14; Numb. 9 15; 10 10; 28 9, 26). The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the passages in which it is without the conjunctive.

And throughout the Prophets and the Hagiographa it is likewise so except in five instances. That is, בְּיוֹם without the prefix Van. In these two divisions of the Bible where this noun with the prefix Beth and Sheva occurs altogether fourteen times at the beginning of a verse, it is nine times בְּיוֹם without the Van (Isa. 17 11; Obad. 11; Hag. 1 15; Zech. 1 7; Ps. 77 3; 86 7; 138 3; Eccl. 7 14; Esther 9 17) and five only with it. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 89 b, on Numb. 7 72.

בְּיוֹם אֶחָד לַחֹדֶשׁ in the first day of the month, occurs three times. Normally the phrase for the first of the month is simply בְּיוֹם אֶחָד, which occurs about fifteen times. (Comp. Exod. 40 2, 17; Levit. 23 24; Numb. 1 1, 18; 29 1; 33 38; Deut. 1 3 &c.) As it is in these three instances that the longer phrase is used, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. This Massorah militates against the recension of the text which had the normal phrase also in Hag. 1 1, as is attested by the Septuagint.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 307 b, on Hag. 1 1, which I have printed, and (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on the same passage. The catchwords יִבְנֶנּוּ כָּל אֲנָשֵׁי יְהוּדָה Ezra 10 9 are manifestly a clerical error for בני הַטֵּיבָה verse 16 of the same chapter. List II rightly gives ר"ב"ה = Ezra 10 16 as the catchwords.

ר"ל"א = § 231.

בְּיוֹם מָחָר in or of to-morrow, occurs twice. The only other instance where מָחָר to-morrow is preceded by יּוֹם day, it is without the prefix Beth (Isa. 56 12).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) the printed Massorah on Gen. 30 33, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 45 a, on the same passage.

רליב = § 232.

ביום הקהל in the day of the assembly, occurs three times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter י, § 165. In Jacob b. Chayim's edition the Rubric is incorrect. The catchwords for the first instance are ורן לבם את ברוח, which do not occur. As it is manifestly a mistake for ורן ירן דיה אלי Deut. 9 10 I have corrected it. It will be seen that the phrase is restricted to Deuteronomy. Hence the heading ought properly to be ויבארוהו or ויבארוהו.

רליז = § 233.

ביום add in the day, occurs five times at the beginning of the verse in the Prophets and the Hagiographa. For this Rubric see above, § 229.

רליד = 234 a.

ביום וביום. — A sign to indicate where ביום combined with the numerals at the beginning of a verse is without the prefix Vav and where it is with this prefix.

Whenever it precedes הראשון the first, at the beginning of a verse it is always ביום without the prefix Vav except once. With this ordinal ביום begins a verse four times. In three instances it is without the Vav (Levit. 23 7, 35; Numb. 28 18) and once only is it with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception. This safeguarding militates against the recension of the text which reads it without Vav also in Exod. 12 16, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

In combination with השני the second, it also occurs four times at the beginning of a verse. But here the reverse is the case. The exception in the preceding phrase is here the rule. It is in this combination three times with the Vav (Numb. 29 17; Ezek. 43 22; Neh. 8 13) and once only is it without this prefix. Hence the Massorah here safeguards the reverse combination.

In combination with השלישי the third, it begins a verse three times. It is in two instances without the Vav (Gen. 22 4; Numb. 7 24) and once only is it with this prefix. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the Vav instance.

With הרביעי the fourth, it begins a verse four times. Here again the reverse is the case. It is with Vav in three instances (Numb. 29 23; Ezra 8 33; 2 Chron. 20 26) and once only is it without this prefix. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the absent Vav instance. This part is given as a separate Rubric. (Vide infra, § 240.)

With החמישי the fifth, הששי the sixth, and השביעי the seventh, it is ביום with the prefix except in four instances.

This part of the Rubric is very artificial and meaningless. In combination with these three numerals ביום occurs altogether eight times at the beginning of a verse and the instances without and with the prefix Vav are equally divided. Thus with החמישי it occurs twice only, once without the prefix Vav (Numb. 7 36) and once with it (Numb. 29 26). This is the case with הששי which also occurs twice only, once without the Vav (Numb. 7 42) and once with it (Numb. 29 29) and the same is the case with השביעי which occurs four times, twice without the Vav (Numb. 7 48; Esther 1 10) and twice with it (Numb. 28 25; 29 32). The statement, therefore, that with these three numerals ביום is the rule and ביום the exception is misleading.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Numb. 7 18, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 53 a, on Exod. 12 16, and (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 89 a, on Numb. 7 18.

רליז = § 234 b.

ביום וביום. — Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 358 b, on Esther 1 10; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 199 a, on Numb. 7 30, and (III) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 14.

This recension of the Rubric is an expansion of the preceding one. Whilst § 234 a ends with השביעי this Rubric not only continues with השמיני, but registers the presence and absence of the Vav in this phrase when it stands in the middle of the verse.

And wherever it is combined with השמיני the eighth, it is ביום at the beginning of the verse except in three instances where it is without the prefix Vav.

This phrase occurs altogether eight times at the beginning of a verse. In five instances it is ביום with the Vav (Levit. 12 3; 14 10; 15 14, 29; Numb. 6 10) and in three only is it without the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. By fixing the number at three, the Massorah militates against the textual recension which exhibits ביום in Numb. 29 35 and 1 Kings 8 66, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible. This part of the Rubric is also given as a separate Massorah. (Vide infra, § 239 and § 241.)

And wherever it is in the middle of the verse it is likewise so. In the middle of the verse this phrase occurs altogether eight times. As it is without the prefix Vav in six instances (Exod. 22 29; Levit. 9 1; 14 23; 23 36; Ezek. 43 27; 2 Chron. 7 9) and twice only with the Vav, the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. Here again the design of the Massorah by fixing the number at two, is to militate against the School of textual redactors which read ביום with the prefix Vav in Exod. 22 29, and Levit. 23 36, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

ביום in the day, occurs three times. That is, with Pathach under the Beth, Massoretically called Dageah, for which the extra-official reading in these three instances is ביום with Sheva or Rophe.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Prov. 12 16, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 389 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Eccl. 12 3. The two headings, viz. in List I, which is simply ביום and in List II which is ביום, are misleading, since ביום occurs upwards of 300 times. It is the heading of List III, viz. ביום רמשען ביום, three times with Dageah that are misleading, which indicates the import of this Massorah. For רמשען as the condemnatory expression instead of רמשען the extra-official reading see above, letter מ, § 729, § 742.

ביום הקהל on this day, occurs six times. That is, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which the phrase is ביום היום.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 5 a, on Gen. 7 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 180 a, on 1 Sam. 11 13; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 92 b, on Levit. 8 34; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 16 a, on Gen. 7 11; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 95 b, on Exod. 19 1; (VI) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 14, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 7 11. Some of the Lists add at the end that in one instance it is with the prefix Vav, viz. 1 Kings 2 26 (אחר וביום היום).

רליז = § 237.

ביום השביעי on the seventh day, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse. In the other two instances where this phrase occurs at the beginning of a verse it is with the prefix Vav. (Vide supra, § 234 a.)

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 89 a, on Numb. 7 48, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 271 a, on Esther 1 10; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 77 b, on Numb. 7 48; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 86 b, on the same passage; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 104 b, also on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Esther 1 10. List III indicates the import of this Massorah by the addition at the end of וביום השביעי, whilst List V heads this Rubric ביום היום.

רליה = § 238.

ביום השלישי on the third day, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse in the Pentateuch. This phrase occurs altogether sixteen times in the Pentateuch. In fourteen instances it is in the middle of the verse (Gen. 31 22; 34 25; 40 20; 42 18; Exod. 19 11, 16; Levit. 7 17, 18; 19 6, 7; Numb. 19 12, 12, 19; 31 19) and in two only does it begin a verse. Hence the Massorah safeguards its exceptional position. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 22 4.

רל"ט = § 239.

בַּיּוֹם הַשְּׁמִינִי on the eighth day, begins a verse three times. By fixing the number at three, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the recension of the text which reads וַיָּקִים with the prefix Vav in Numb. 29 35 and 1 Kings 8 66, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

And wherever it is in the middle of the verse it is likewise so except in two instances. The whole of this Rubric is part of § 234 b where I have discussed it.

Of this separate Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 89 a, on Numb. 7 54, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 105 b, on Numb. 29 35; (III) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 224 b, on 1 Kings 8 66; (IV) Arundt Orient. 16, fol. 84 a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 86 b, on Numb. 7 54; (VI) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 14, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 7 54. Lists II, IV and V give the first part of this § 234 b Rubric only.

ר"ט = § 240.

וּבַיּוֹם הָרִבְעִי and on the fourth day, begins a verse three times. The only other instance in which this phrase begins a verse it is without the prefix Vav (Numb. 7 30).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 105 b, on Numb. 29 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 161 a, on 2 Chron. 20 26; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 291 b, on Ezra 8 33; (IV) Arundt Orient. 16, fol. 269 a, on 2 Chron. 20 26; (V) the same MS., fol. 377 b, on Ezra 8 33; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 240 a, on Numb. 29 23, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ezra 8 33. This Rubric forms part of § 234

רמ"א = § 241.

וּבַיּוֹם הַשְּׁמִינִי and on the eighth day, is twice thus combined in the middle of the verse. It will be seen that this Rubric is the same as § 238, only that it is reversed. It is of importance, inasmuch as it shows that the different Massorites formulated the same materials differently.

Of this form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 298 a, on Neh. 8 18, which I have printed; (II) Arundt Orient. 16, fol. 384 b, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 225 a, also on the same passage. Lists II and III omit the second part of the Rubric.

רמ"ב = § 242.

וּבַיּוֹם and the day, begins a verse twice. With the prefix He this noun begins a verse eight times. In six instances it is (חֵמֶס) without the Vav conjunctive (Exod. 13 4; Deut. 2 25; 26 16; 1 Sam. 17 46; 22 15; Job 3 4) and in two only is it with the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptions. This Rubric is part of the List of fourteen words beginning with Vav which respectively occur twice only. (Vide supra, letter v, § 63.)

רמ"ג = § 243.

וּבַיּוֹם הַזֶּה about this day, is four times thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, apart from Ezra-Nehemiah.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 63 a, on Jerem. 44 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 178 a, on 1 Sam. 9 13; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 44 22; (IV) Arundt Orient. 16, fol. 40 a, on 1 Sam. 9 18; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 267 b, on Deut. 6 24; (VI) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 14, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 39 11.

And throughout Ezra it is likewise so. This expression occurs altogether eight times. Four of the eight instances respectively occur once only in four separate books of the Bible. Hence these unique occurrences in the several books are safeguarded in the first part of this Rubric. The case, however, is different with the remaining four. All these occur in one book (Ezra 9 7, 15; Neh. 5 11; 9 10). Here, therefore, there is no exception to safeguard. Hence the simple mention of the fact suffices without specifying the passages.

There are two recensions of this Massorah, based upon different redactions of the text. Lists I and VI emphatically state that the phrase וּבַיּוֹם הַזֶּה occurs four times in this combination (חֵמֶס) apart from Ezra-Nehemiah. This clearly implies that it is in the present text. Moreover the second part of this Rubric equally implies that וּבַיּוֹם הַזֶּה is also the reading in Neh. 5 11.

In the second recension, which is represented by Lists II, III, IV, V and VII, this Rubric is headed וּבַיּוֹם הַזֶּה denoting that this Massorah registers וּבַיּוֹם הַזֶּה alone, without any reference to its combination with וּבַיּוֹם הַזֶּה. Considering, however, that it is the combination וּבַיּוֹם הַזֶּה in six instances and that in two only is it וּבַיּוֹם הַזֶּה by itself, the Rubric would more properly have been worded וּבַיּוֹם הַזֶּה if the design of this Massorah had simply been to register the occurrence of וּבַיּוֹם הַזֶּה alone and not the combination of the phrase.

בַּיּוֹם as the day, occurs ten times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. This quadriliteral occurs altogether forty-one times. In thirty-one instances it is בַּיּוֹם with Pathach under the Caph, Massoretically called Dagesh, and in ten only is it בַּיּוֹם with Sheva, which the Massorah calls Raphe. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. By fixing the number at ten, this Massorah militates against the reading בַּיּוֹם in Ezek. 30 9, which is that of the rival School of textual redactors, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 269 a, on Lament. 2 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 144 a, on Josh. 10 13; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Zech. 14 3; (IV) Arundt Orient. 16, fol. 200 a, on Hosea 2 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 356 b, on Lament. 2 7; (VI) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 14, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 131.

As the Massorah includes in this Rubric the one instance in which it is בַּיּוֹם, some of the Lists vary in their respective headings in indicating this fact. The List which I have printed (List I) is the simplest in its heading. Lists II, VI and VII head it בַּיּוֹם and include בַּיּוֹם without taking notice of the Vav. The same is the case with Lists III and V which head it בַּיּוֹם. They simply emphasise the fact that in these eleven instances, ten without the prefix Vav and one with it, the Caph is Raphe i. e. with Sheva, and though List IV also heads it בַּיּוֹם and adds at the end בַּיּוֹם, yet it includes this Vav instance in the eleven. But though they thus differ in the wording of their respective headings, all the seven Lists coincide in omitting Ezek. 30 9 from this number.

רמ"ה = § 245.

לְיוֹם אַחֲרָיו for the latter day, or time to come, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the other three instances where the future is expressed by the phrase לְיוֹם אַחֲרָיו (Ps. 48 14; 78 4; 102 19).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arundt Orient. 16, fol. 131 a, on Isa. 30 8, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Prov. 31 25.

רמ"ו = § 246.

לְיוֹם to, or for the day, is twenty times with Dagesh in the Scriptures. With the prefix Lamed לְיוֹם occurs altogether forty-six times. As it is Raphe or לְיוֹם with Sheva in twenty-six instances and with Dagesh or לְיוֹם with Pathach in twenty, the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall, however specify the following eight only, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 99 a, on Ezek. 43 25, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 72 a, Exod. 29 36; (III) the same MS., fol. 124 a, on Numb. 7 11; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 37 21; (V) the same on Ezek. 45 23; (VI) the same on Mal. 3 17; (VII) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 14, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 130.

It will be seen that though the List which I have printed states in the heading that there are twenty such instances, it records nineteen only. This is manifestly due to a clerical error. The Scribe, as is not infrequently the case, has omitted the expression לְיוֹם after the catchword לְיוֹם = 1 Chron. 26 17 where לְיוֹם occurs twice in the same verse.

מיום אל יום from day to day, is twice thus combined in the Scriptures. In the other two instances where this phrase occurs it is מיום ליום (Ps. 96 2; Esther 3 7). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on 1 Chron. 16 23

רמ"ח = § 248.

למיום from the day, occurs three times. Normally the formula denoting the day from which up to the time when a certain event has taken place, is simply וְעַד or עַד... מִיָּמַי. In this form the phrase occurs thirteen times (Exod. 10 6; 12 15; Levit. 23 15-16; 1 Sam. 8 8; 29 3, 6, 8; 2 Kings 8 6; Isa. 38 12, 13; Jerem. 36 2; Ezek. 23 15; Neh. 5 14). As it is in these three instances only that it is abnormally לְמִיָּמַי with the prefix Lamed, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional expression. By fixing the number at three, the design of the Massorah is to guard the Scribes against making the abnormal phrase in 2 Sam. 7 6 conformable to the normal formula in the parallel passage in the same book (comp. 1 Sam. 8 8). For the alternative formula or עַד... לְמִיָּמַי see letter מ, § 541 and § 542.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 150 a, on Judg. 19 30, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

רמ"ט = § 249.

מיום מיום from the day, occurs three times. Normally from the day is מִיָּמַי. In this form it occurs twelve times (Numb. 15 23; 1 Kings 8 16; 2 Kings 21 15; Ezek. 39 22; Hag. 2 15, 18, 19; Dan. 10 12; Neh. 4 10; 8 18; 1 Chron. 17 5; 2 Chron. 6 5). As it is in these three instances only that it is מִיָּמַי, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 47 b, on 1 Sam. 18 9. As the three instances are restricted to Samuel, the heading ought properly to be מִיָּמַי שְׁמוּאֵל.

יומים two days, occurs five times, three times plene and twice defective. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 92 b, on Numb. 11 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 48 b, on Exod. 21 21; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 107 b, on the same passage; (IV) Cambridge Add. 465, on Exod. 16 29; (V) the same MS., on Numb. 9 22; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 16 29, and (VII) the same on Numb. 9 22.

The heading of the List which I have printed (List I) is in the MS. הַיּוֹמִים הַזֵּה. This is evidently a mistake for הַיּוֹמִים הַזֵּה, as is attested by Lists III, VI and VII. The two defectives are Numb. 9 22 and Hosea 6 9. But this must be regarded as based upon the text of one School of textual redactors only, since Lists IV and V, which are from a model Codex, emphatically state in their respective headings הַיּוֹמִים הַזֵּה and הַיּוֹמִים הַזֵּה, thus declaring that this dual is plene in two instances and defective in three. As one of the instances is מִיָּמַי with the Mem, List VI is rightly headed הַיּוֹמִים הַזֵּה. Though two of the instances are with Pathach under the Mem (Exod. 21 21; Numb. 9 22) and three with Kametz (Exod. 16 29; Numb. 11 19; Hosea 6 2) which is due to the pausal accent Athnach, yet none of the Lists advert to this fact.

ימים days, begins a verse three times. ימים occurs altogether forty times at the extreme part of the verse. In thirty-seven instances it is at the end of the verse (Gen. 29 14; 42 17; Exod. 10 22; Levit. 13 4, 21, 26, 31, 50; 14 8, 38; 23 40; Numb. 11 21; 19 11, 14, 16; 29 12; Deut. 22 7; Josh. 6 3, 14; Judg. 14 14; 1 Sam. 31 13; 1 Kings 17 15; Jerem. 6 11; Jonah 3 3; Zech. 8 4; Ps. 23 6; Prov. 28 16; Job 15 10; 29 18; 42 17; Lament. 5 20; Dan. 10 2, 3; 11 33; 1 Chron. 10 12; 2 Chron. 7 9; 35 17), and in three only is it at the beginning. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional extreme.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Pa. 61 7.

ימים רבים many days, occurs twice. This Rubric is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on 1 Kings 2 38. As this phrase occurs twenty-three times and not twice and moreover as the following twenty-one are omitted, Gen. 37 34; Levit. 15 25; Numb. 9 19; 20 15; Deut. 1 46; 20 19; Josh. 11 18; 22 3; 24 7; 2 Sam. 14 2; 1 Kings 3 11; 18 1; Jerem. 13 6, 32 14; 35 7; 37 16; Hosea 3 3, 4; Esther 1 4; 1 Chron. 7 22; 2 Chron. 1 11, it is evident that we have here simply a fragment of the original Rubric which registered all the twenty-five instances, and that it was merely intended to fill out the line. The Nakdan in this instance, as is not infrequently the case, mistook it for a complete register and supplied it with the erroneous heading.

רנ"ג = § 253.

במים האלה in these days, occurs five times. Normally במים with the prefixes is followed by הָיָה or הָיָהוּ which is recorded in the following Rubric. In these five instances, however, it is combined with הָאֵלֶּה. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 219 a, on Zech. 8 9, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the same on Esther 1 5. It will be seen that not only does the List which I have printed, emphatically state in the heading that there are five such instances only, but the Rubric itself records five only, omitting Esther 9 26. As this is corroborated by Cambridge Add. 465 on Zech. 8 9, which heads it הַיּוֹמִים הַזֵּה, it seems that this Massorah is based upon a recension of the text which reads הָיָה הָיָה in Esther 9 27 without הָאֵלֶּה. Lists II and III, however, head this Rubric הַיּוֹמִים הַזֵּה and include Esther 9 27 as one of the six instances. They must, therefore, be based upon a recension which had הָאֵלֶּה in this passage. The expression במים in the heading of Lists II and III, is due to the different prefixes; in Esther 1 5 it is הָיָה; in 9 26 הָיָה and in 9 28 הָיָה.

במים הרבה in those days, is eight times thus combined. This phrase occurs altogether about thirty-eight times. In thirty instances it is במים without the paragogic He (Gen. 6 4; Exod. 2 11, 23; Deut. 17 9; 19 17; 26 3; Josh. 20 6; Judg. 17 6; 18 1; 19 1; 20 27, 28; 21 25; 1 Sam. 3 1; 28 1; 2 Sam. 16 23; 2 Kings 10 32; 15 37; 20 1; Isa. 38 1; Jerem. 31 29; 33 15, 16; 50 20; Ezek. 38 17; Zech. 8 6; Esther 1 2; 2 21; Dan. 10 2; 2 Chron. 32 21) and in eight only is it with the He. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional instances. By fixing the number at eight, this Massorah militates against the Eastern recension of the text, which reads במים הרבה in Jerem. 50 20.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 108 b, on Joel 4 1, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 3 16; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 50 4; (IV) the same Codex on Joel 3 2; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 150 b, on Jerem. 5 18; (VI) Halle Oehlch Ve-Oehlch II, § 14, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 3 16.

Lists II, III and IV head this Rubric הַיּוֹמִים הַזֵּה and give Jerem. 50 20 as one of the nine instances. They are, therefore, based upon the Eastern recension of the text. List II adds at the end הַיּוֹמִים הַזֵּה, thus indicating the design of this Massorah.

במים as in the days, occurs four times. That is, with Pathach under the Caph, Massoretically called Dagesh, in contradistinction to the one instance where it is במים Raphe (Gen. 29 20).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 118 b, on Deut. 10 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 124 a, on Zech. 8 11; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 275 b, on Esther 9 22; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 219 b, on Zech. 8 11; (V) Halle Oehlch Ve-Oehlch II, § 14, margin; (VI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 1 46, and (VII) the same on Esther 9 22. List II is headed הַיּוֹמִים הַזֵּה which indicates the import of the Massorah.

רנ"ו = § 256.

למים for or to the days or years, is five times with Dagesh. That is, with Pathach under the Lamed. With the prefix Lamed this plural noun occurs altogether sixteen times. It is Raphe or with Sheva under the Lamed in eleven instances (Gen. 7 4; Deut. 4 32; Ezek. 12 27; Job 30 1; 32 4, 6; Dan. 8 26; 12 12; 2 Chron. 21 19, 19; 29 17) and with Pathach in five only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 206 a, on 2 Sam. 14 26, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 84 a, on Ezek. 22 14; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 275 b, on Esther 9 26; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 66 a, on 2 Sam. 14 26; (V) the same MS., fol. 181 a, on Ezek. 22 14; (VI) the same MS., fol. 363 b, on Esther 9 26, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 22 14.

רנ"ז = § 257.

מִיָּמִים יוֹמָם from year to year, or yearly, is five times thus combined in the Scriptures. Normally yearly, or annually is denoted by יוֹמָם. It is so used in eleven instances (Levit. 25 53; Deut. 15 20; 1 Sam. 1 7; 7 16; 1 Kings 5 25; 10 25; Zech. 14 16, Neh. 10 35, 36; 2 Chron. 9 24; 24 5). In these five instances, however, מִיָּמִים יוֹמָם is used to express the same idea. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination. This protection is necessary since the two phrases are used promiscuously in the same connection (comp. 1 Sam. 1 3, 7, 16).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 43 a, on Exod. 13 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 273 b, on 1 Sam. 2 19; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 54 b, on Exod. 13 10; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 27 b, on Judg. 11 40; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 14; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 13 10, and (VII) the same on Judg. 11 40.

יְמֵי הַמִּשְׁתָּה the days of the feast, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this combination occurs and where it is מִשְׁתָּה without the prefix He (Esther 9 22). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 29 a, on Judg. 14 12.

רנ"ט = § 259.

יְמֵי שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי the days of the years of the life of, occurs five times. Normally the phrase describing the duration of a man's life, is either simply יָמַי (Gen. 5 4; 11 32; 35 28 &c.) or קְלִימַי חַיֵּי without and with pronominal suffixes (Gen. 3 14, 17 &c.). In these five instances, however, the expression שְׁנֵי intervenes between יָמַי and חַיֵּי. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptionally longer phrase.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 70 b, on 2 Sam. 19 35, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 179 b, on the same passage; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 47 8, and (V) the same on 2 Sam. 19 35.

All the three MS. Lists head this Rubric יָמַי שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי and record identically the same five instances. They not only coincide in giving יִשְׁמַעֵאל = Gen. 25 17 as one of the five where the textus receptus has simply שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי without יָמַי, but give יָמַי שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי Gen. 47 9 a as one of the instances (בִּי רִחֵם) and exclude יָמַי שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי Gen. 47 8. The reference to the catchwords בִּיחֵם should be Gen. 47 9 a and 9 b and not 47 8.

The two printed Lists in Jacob b. Chayim's Massorah (Lists IV, V) are respectively headed וְיָמַי שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי without the triliteral חַיֵּי. Accordingly their design is simply to record the instances where the phrase יָמַי שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי occurs. The first List or List IV is as follows: יִשְׁמַעֵאל יִצְחָק יַעֲקֹב יַעֲקֹב יִשְׁמַעֵאל יִצְחָק יַעֲקֹב (1) Gen. 25 7; (2) Gen. 47 8; (3) Gen. 47 9 a; (4) Gen. 25 17, and (5) 2 Sam. 19 35. It omits two instances, viz. Gen. 47 9 b, and 47 9 c. But like Lists I, II and III it gives יִשְׁמַעֵאל Gen. 25 17, where the received text has no יָמַי.

The second printed List (List V) is as follows: וְיָמַי שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי וְיָמַי שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי וְיָמַי שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי וְיָמַי שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי וְיָמַי שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי. But though this List duly gives the two instances which are omitted in the preceding List, yet like Lists I, II, III and IV it also records יִשְׁמַעֵאל Gen. 25 17, where the textus receptus is simply שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי without יָמַי. As all the five Lists, which manifestly belong to different Massoretic Schools, concur in giving Gen. 25 17 where יָמַי שְׁנֵי חַיֵּי occurs, they must be based upon the recension of texts which exhibited this reading.

ר"ס = § 260.

וַיָּבֵר and the days of, occurs twice. That is, with the prefix Vav, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this plural construct is without this prefix.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 130 a, on Deut. 11 21, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 140 a, on the same passage.

רס"א = § 261.

לְמִיָּמִי from the days of, occurs twice. That is, with Chirek literal occurs it is לְמִיָּמִי with Tzere, being the construct of יָמִים (Dan. 12 6, 7).

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 223 a, on Mal. 3 7.

רס"ב = § 262.

וַיּוֹמַם and day, occurs three times. For this Rubric see letter 5, § 347.

רס"ג = § 263.

יְהוֹנָדָב Jonadab, occurs three times... and throughout Samuel it is likewise so except once where it is יְהוֹנָדָב. Without and with the prefixes this proper name occurs altogether fifteen times. In seven instances it is יְהוֹנָדָב the shorter form and in eight the longer form. As these two forms are restricted to three books and moreover as one of the forms prevails in one book and the other in the other book, the Massorah safeguards the minority in each case. In Jeremiah, where the two forms occur altogether seven times, it is יְהוֹנָדָב the longer form in four instances (35 8, 14, 16, 18) and יְהוֹנָדָב in three. Hence the Massorah safeguards the latter. In Samuel, however, where the two forms occur five times, it is יְהוֹנָדָב the shorter form in four instances (2 Sam. 13 3, 3, 32, 35) and יְהוֹנָדָב the longer form in one instance only. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the longer form. In Kings, where this name occurs three times (2 Kings 10 15, 15, 23), it is uniformly יְהוֹנָדָב the longer form. As there is no variation in its orthography here, there is nothing to safeguard. Hence the Massorah does not mention this book. For the cause of this duplicate form see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 56 b, on Jerem. 35 19, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 919, on Jerem. 35 6; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 35 19; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 170 b, on Jerem. 25 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 171 a, on Jerem. 35 19; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 61; (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 35 6, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter 7, § 166. The latter omits the second part of this Rubric which makes its import unintelligible.

רס"ד § = 264.

כַּיֹּהֵן as a dove, occurs twice. With the prefix Caph this noun occurs altogether four times. In two instances it is כַּיֹּהֵן or with Sheva (Jerem. 48 28; Hosea 7 11) and in two it is with Dagesh or Pathach. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 297 a, on Ps. 55 7.

רס"ה = § 265.

יְנִיבִי my dove, occurs three times and in this book. That is, in Canticles. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Cant. 2 14.

רס"ו = § 266.

יוֹנְקוֹתָיו his branches, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. That is, in the first instance (Ezek. 17 22) it is without the first, but with the second Vav and in the second (Hosea 14 7) it is plene or with both Vavs. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its spelling. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 203 a, on Hosea 14 7.

But though this Massorah is supported by the text of some of the best Standard Codices, for which reason I have adopted its readings in my edition of the Bible, yet it must be regarded as based upon the recension of one School of textual redactors only. This is attested by the variations in the text of other important MSS., as will be seen from the following analysis:

Ezekiel 17 22.

יִקְרָא without the first Vav, but with the second, Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251.

יִקְרָא with the first Vav, but without the second, Add. 15,451.

יִקְרָא without both Vavs; or entirely defective, St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Harley 5710-11.

Hosea 14 7.

יִקְרָא with both Vavs or entirely plene, Orient. 2201 second hand; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,451.

יִקְרָא without the first Vav, but with the second, Orient. 2201 first hand; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251.

יִקְרָא with the first Vav, but without the second, Harley 5710-11.

יִקְרָא without both Vavs or entirely defective, St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916.

רִמ"ז = § 267.

יְהוֹנָתָן Jonathan, occurs seven times. That is, apart from Samuel and Ezra-Nehemiah. In the three books which constitute the first part of this Massorah, viz. Kings, Jeremiah and Chronicles, this proper name in its duplicate form occurs altogether eighteen times. In eleven instances it is יְהוֹנָתָן Jehomathan the longer form (Jerem. 37 15, 20; 38 26; 1 Chron. 8 33, 34; 9 39 40; 20 7; 27 25, 22; 2 Chron. 17 8) and in seven only is יְהוֹנָתָן the shorter form. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. For the second and third parts of this Rubric see above, § 211.

Of this expanded form of the Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 174 a, on Jerem. 40 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 238 b, on 1 Chron. 2 33; (III) the same MS., fol. 244 b, on 1 Chron. 10 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 245 b, on 1 Chron. 11 34; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 42; (VI) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 40 8, and (VII) the same on 1 Chron. 10 2.

יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט and Joseph, occurs three times at the beginning of a verse.

With the prefix Vav this proper name occurs altogether nine times, which are duly registered in the following Rubric. As it is in these three instances only that it stands at the beginning of the verse, the Massorah safeguards its distinguished position. By fixing the number at three this Massorah militates against the Massorites who exhibited five instances in which this quinqueliteral begins a verse. This is attested by the Nakdan in the Massorah Parva of Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 28 a, on Gen. 41 6, which is as follows: יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט י"ב נ' מטה רא' משי וראוי במסור וקנה ממנו רא' משי.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 26 a, on Gen. 39 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 27 b, on Gen. 41 6, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 39 1. As all the three instances occur in the same book, the heading ought properly to be יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט or יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט וְיֹסֵף.

This Rubric forms part of the Lists of twelve words beginning with Vav which respectively occur three times at the commencement of a verse. (Vide supra, letter v, § 72.)

רִמ"ט = § 269.

יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט occurs ten times, in nine instances it is the proper name and Joseph and once it is the Hiphil future third person singular masculine with the prefix Vav of יָקָם denoting and he shall add.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated nine Lists, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 214 b, on 2 Sam. 24 3, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 32 a, on Gen. 42 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 74 a, on 2 Sam. 24 3; (IV) the same MS. 253 b, on 1 Chron. 25 2; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 415 a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 25; (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 42 6; (VIII) the same on 1 Chron. 25 2, and (IX) the printed Massorah Finalis letter v, § 169.

There are two forms of this Massorah. The first form, which is the older, is represented by Lists I, II, VI, VII, VIII and IX. These are headed יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט. They record the nine instances in which this quinqueliteral with Shera under the Vav and Tzere under the Samech is a proper name, and the one instance in which the Hiphil future third person singular is with the prefix Var. The second form is represented by Lists III, IV and V which are either headed יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט or יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט וְיֹסֵף or simply יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט. They record not only the nine instances in which it is a proper name, but the three instances in which it is the future, the one with Tzere under the Samech (2 Sam. 24 3) included in the first form of this Rubric and the two instances with Segol under the Samech (Prov. 1 5; 9 9) which are not given in the first form. The three Lists of the second recension have at the end לְמַעַן לְבַלֵּשׁ הַמִּטְבֵּחַ הַזֶּה מִלְּבַשׁ הַמִּטְבֵּחַ הַזֶּה, thus describing the Tzere instance as Milra and the two Segol instances as Milcl.

רִי"ע = § 270.

יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט to Joseph, occurs eight times. That is, in contradistinction to the twenty-one instances in which it is יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט (Gen. 37 13; 39 7, 10; 40 16; 41 15, 17, 39, 41, 44, 55, 57; 45 17; 46 28, 30; 47 5, 15, 17; 48 3, 11, 21; 50 16).

Of this Rubric, I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 145 b, on 1 Chron. 25 9, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 58 a, on Gen. 48 1; (III) Vienna Codex No 85 on 1 Chron. 25 9, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 37 16.

And in two instances it is יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט and to Joseph. This part is also given as a separate Rubric in (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 28 a, on Gen. 41 50; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 52 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah, also on the same passage.

רִע"א = § 271.

יְהוֹרָם Joram, occurs eleven times one of which is defective, viz. 1 Chron. 26 25. This proper name in its duplicate form, which occurs altogether forty-nine times without and with the prefixes and which is confined to three books, viz. Samuel, Kings and Chronicles, is in twenty-nine instances יְהוֹרָם Jehoram and in twenty only is it יְהוֹרָם Joram. But as one of the two forms is the rule in one part of these books and one of the forms is the rule in the other parts, the Massorah safeguards the exceptions in each case. In Samuel, Kings, apart from 2 Kings 8 16-29, and Chronicles, this proper name occurs altogether thirty-seven times. In twenty-six instances it is יְהוֹרָם (1 Kings 22 51; 2 Kings 1 17, 17; 3 1, 6; 9 15, 17, 21, 21, 22, 23, 24; 12 19; 2 Chron. 17 8; 21 1, 3, 4, 5, 9, 16; 22 1, 5, 6, 6, 7, 11) and in eleven only is it יְהוֹרָם. As the longer form is here the rule and the shorter form the exception, the Massorah safeguards the minority in this part of the Rubric. This safeguarding is necessary since the two forms occur in the same verse (2 Chron. 22 5, 7). By fixing the number at eleven the Massorah militates against the reading יְהוֹרָם in 2 Sam. 8 10, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

And from 2 Kings 8 15 to 11 1 it is likewise יְהוֹרָם except in three instances. Here, where this proper name occurs altogether twelve times, the reverse is the case. יְהוֹרָם is the rule. It occurs nine times and יְהוֹרָם, which occurs three times only, is the exception. Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards יְהוֹרָם. This part of the Rubric is given in a separate Massorah in § 212, where the instances are discussed. For the cause of this duplicate form see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on 2 Kings 8 16.

רִע"ב = § 272.

יְהוֹשֻׁפָּט is seven times plene in this form. That is, with Cholem and with Tzere, without and with the prefixes (בְּלִישׁ), this expression has in seven instances Vav after the Yod, in contradistinction to the five instances in which it is defective. (Ecl. 2 15; 6 11; 7 11; 12 9, 12).

It will be seen that these seven instances include three Hiphil futures third person singular masculine without and with Vav conversive (Exod. 16 19; 2 Sam. 8 4; 1 Chron. 18 4), one Kal participle with the prefix He (1 Sam. 15 15), one noun (Ecl. 6 8) and two adverbs (Ecl. 7 16; Esther 6 6). This, as we have often seen, is in accordance with the method of the Massorah which has regard to the identity of the spelling only, irrespective of the difference in sense.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated eleven Lists, eight in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 45 a, on Exod.

16 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS. Vol. I, fol. 183 a, on 1 Sam. 15 15; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 273 b, on Esther 6 6; (IV) Orient. 4445, fol. 58 a, on Exod. 16 19; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 44 b, on 1 Sam. 15 15; (VI) the same MS., fol. 61 b, on 2 Sam. 8 4; (VII) the same MS., fol. 249 b, on 1 Chron. 18 4; (VIII) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 131 a; (IX) the printed Massorah on Exod. 16 19; (X) the same on 1 Sam. 15 15, and (XI) the same on Eccl. 7 16. These eleven Lists represent three recensions of this Massorah.

Recension I. — This recension is the most popular. It is represented in Lists I, II, III, V, VI, VII, X and XI for which reason I have printed it. They all record identically the same seven instances.

Recension II. — This recension is represented in List IV, which is the oldest form of this Massorah. Though it is headed ויתר יתור giving the same number as the preceding recension, yet it makes up this number differently. It omits the two Hiphil futures with Vav conversive, viz. 2 Sam. 8 4 and 1 Chron. 18 4 and records in their stead ויתר עצה Eccl. 12 9, and ויתר ערבה Eccl. 12 12, both of which are defective in the received text in accordance with recension I. This recension must, therefore, be based upon MSS. in which 2 Sam 8 4 and the parallel passage in 1 Chron. 18 4, were defective and the two Ecclesiastes passages (12 9, 12) were plene.

Recension III. — This recension, which is represented in List IX, makes up the seven instances by omitting ויתר ויתרוס אל Eccl. 7 16 and giving in its stead ויתר לראי השמש Eccl. 7 11. That this is not a mistake, but that it exhibits another recension is attested by the first editor of the Massorah. At the end of List XI Jacob b. Chayim distinctly declares that another Massorah records Eccl. 7 11 instead of 7 16, viz. ויתר ויתרוס אל ויתרוס ויתר. ויתר לראי השמש. This Massorah must, therefore, be based upon Codices which read it ויתר defective in Eccl. 7 16 and ויתר plene in Eccl. 7 11.

יצחאיה Izzachjah, without and with the prefix Vav, occurs three times. This is one of the few proper names in which the primitive termination jah or Jehovah has not been altered into jahū (see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.). The same is the case with the kindred name צרצחיה Zarachjah which occurs five times (Erza 7 4; 8 4; 1 Chron. 5 32, 32, 36). The design of this Massorah is not only to safeguard this primitive termination, but to protect the minority of instances in which the name begins with Yod against being made conformable to the majority without the Yod.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 406 a, on 1 Chron. 7 3

יצרעל Jezreel, occurs four [seven] times. Without the prefixes this expression is the name of a place altogether twenty times. In thirteen instances, apart from the two in which it is the proper name of a person (Hosea 1 4 a; 1 Chron. 4 3), it is simply יצרעל. (Comp. Josh. 17 16; Judg. 36 3; 1 Sam. 29 11; 2 Sam. 2 9; 1 Kings 21 23; 2 Kings 9 10, 36, 37; 10 1; Hosea 1 4, 5; 2 2, 24) and in seven it is יצרעל with the paragogic He. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this form of the Rubric I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 104 a, on 2 Kings 9 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 104 b, on 2 Kings 9 30, (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 203 b, on 2 Kings 9 16, and (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 135 a, on Josh. 19 18. Though these four Lists coincide in recording identically the same six instances, they differ in their respective headings. Lists I and II head this Rubric יצרעל ר, but register six. List III is headed ר, but records six only, whilst List IV is headed ו or ו and also registers the same six. As all these four Rubrics omit Josh. 19 18, though List IV is on this very passage, they must be based upon Codices which did not exhibit the paragogic He in this instance. For this reason I printed this form of the Rubric separately.

יצרעל to Jezreel, occurs seven times. Of this form of the Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 105 a, on 2 Kings 10 6, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 173. The latter is incorrect. It is headed יצרעל ר and Jacob b. Chayim makes up the eight by giving the catchwords ויתר ויתרוס רע"ג for the first instance and the catchwords ויתרוס ויתרוס רע"ג for the second, whereas the two are one instance, viz. Josh. 19 18 wrongly divided.

רע"ה = § 275.

הצערעלית the Jezreelitess, occurs five times, twice without the Yod. This feminine patronymic with the prefix He which occurs altogether five times, is in three instances with Yod after the Lamed (1 Sam. 30 5; 2 Sam. 2 2; 1 Chron. 3 1) and in two this Yod is absent (1 Sam. 27 3; 2 Sam. 3 2). As this variation in its spelling is thus promiscuously used in the same book, the Massorah safeguards the respective orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 54 b, on 1 Sam. 27 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 239 a, on 1 Chron. 3 1, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 174. The two instances which are defective of Yod are also given in a separate Rubric in Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 57 a, on 2 Sam. 2 2.

הצערעלית the Jezreelitess, is twice defective. That is, in these two instances it is without כ after the ו. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 57 b, on 2 Sam. 2 2. It will be seen that though these two are part of the five instances in which the patronymic occurs and though the two without Yod are duly stated in the preceding Rubric, no indication whatever is there given that in the other two the Aleph is absent. This is due to the fact that the preceding Rubric follows the official reading or Keri which directs us to read these two instances with Aleph, being part of the List of words in which Aleph is to be supplied. (Vide supra, letter כ, § 14.) Whereas this Rubric is based upon the Kethiv or textual reading.

הצערעלית. — As this patronymic which occurs five times only, is spelt in three different ways, this Rubric indicates the variation in its orthography. It declares (1) that in two passages viz. 1 Sam. 27 3, and 2 Sam. 3 2 it is without the Yod after the Lamed; (2) that in two instances, viz. 2 Sam. 2 2 and 1 Sam. 30 5, it is without Aleph after the Ayin, and (3) that in 1 Chron. 3 1 it is both without Aleph and without Yod.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 239 a, on 1 Chron. 3 1, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 174 where it is given at the end of the preceding Rubric. It is remarkable that List I emphatically states that in 1 Chron. 3 1 it is יצרעל, thus showing that this Rubric is based upon Codices which exhibited it doubly defective. List II, however, as emphatically declares that it is here יצרעל entirely plene, which is in accordance with the received text. In List I מצורו is a clerical error for יצרעל 1 Chron. 3 1 and in List II יצרעל is a mistake for יצרעל 2 Sam. 2 2.

That these Lists, however, exhibit the readings of one School of textual redactors only, and that other Massoretic Schools had different traditions with regard to the orthography of this expression, is attested by the following analysis:

- (1) 1 Samuel 27 3. — יצרעל without Yod, but with Aleph, Orient. 2201 second hand; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251. יצרעל with both Aleph and Yod, Orient. 2201 first hand; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451.
- (2) 1 Samuel 30 5. — יצרעל without Aleph, but with Yod, Orient. 2201 second hand; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250 second hand; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 second hand. יצרעל with both Aleph and Yod, Orient. 2201 first hand; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,250 first hand; Add. 15,451 first hand.
- (3) 2 Samuel 2 2. — יצרעל without Aleph, but with Yod, Orient. 2201 second hand; Harley 5710—11 first hand; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 second hand. יצרעל with both Aleph and Yod, Orient. 2201 first hand; Harley 5710—11 second hand; Add. 15,451 first hand.
- (4) 2 Samuel 3 2. — יצרעל with Aleph, but without Yod, Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451.

with both Aleph and Yod, Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,251.

(5) 1 Chronicles 3 1. —

with both Aleph and Yod, Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451.

without Aleph, but with Yod, Arund. Orient. 16.

For the variations in the early editions I must refer to the notes on the respective passages in my edition of the Hebrew Bible.

The different spellings of this name and its abnormal vowel-points, as exhibited in the five Rubrics, viz. § 274 a-§ 276 b are due to the endeavour on the part of the textual redactors to obliterate the Divine name אל. The name is a compound of ע and אל denoting God planted. Accordingly it ought to be pointed עֲרֵאֵל. The infamous and bloody deeds, however, perpetrated in Jezreel and the fact that the final overthrow of the Kingdom of Israel took place here (comp. 1 Kings 20 1-16; 2 Kings 9 23-37; Hosea 1 4) made the redactors of the text disguise the Divine name as part of its composition. Hence they pointed it עֲרֵאֵל with Segol under the Ayin and silenced the Aleph altogether. In the patronymic, the Tzere which belongs to the Aleph is put under the Ayin and the Aleph is again exhibited without any vowel-points, viz. עֲרֵאֵלִי. Some Schools of textual redactors were not satisfied with simply silencing the Aleph, but actually went so far as to eliminate it altogether in two instances, as is attested by Rubric 276 a. For this process of safeguarding the different Divine Names in compound names of persons and places see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.

רע"ז = § 277.

רע"ז thou shalt or she shall be united, occurs twice. Though this trilateral is in one instance the future second person masculine and in the other third person feminine, yet the Massorah according to its method, which has regard to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in the sense, groups these expressions under one Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 125 a, on Isa. 14 20, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 32 a, on Gen. 49 6; (III) the same MS., fol. 220 a, on Isa. 14 20, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 49 6.

רע"ח together, is three times plene. This adverb occurs altogether about ninety-two times. In eighty-nine instances it is defective and in these three instances only is it plene. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 46 12, which I have printed; (II) the same Codex on Jerem. 46 21; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 265 b, on Jerem. 46 12; (IV) Add. 15,151, fol. 269 b, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. Accordingly רע"ח Jerem. 46 12, which I adopted in my edition of the Bible following St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 and Orient. 2201, should be רע"ח plene as it is in Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451. It is remarkable that though the Massorah of St. Petersburg Codex, as we have seen, has two Rubrics emphatically declaring that it is three times plene, yet in the text itself all these three instances are defective. Add. 15,451 which reads רע"ח in Jerem. 49 3 has a Massorah on it רע"ח ק'. As all the three instances are in Jeremiah, the heading ought more properly to be רע"ח ב' ירמיהו.

רע"ט and together, occurs three times. Normally this adverb is without the prefix Vav. In this form it occurs about ninety-two times. As it is in these three instances only that it is with this prefix, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. By fixing the number at three, the Massorah militates against the recension of the text which exhibited רע"ט without the prefix Vav both in Exod. 26 24 and in the parallel passage Exod. 36 29, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew. Hence the Massorah Parva in Codex Leicester fol. 37 b, on Exod. 36 29 which supports the received text, remarks רע"ט ב'.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed:

(I) Orient. 2349, fol. 73 v, on Exod. 36 29, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 80 a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 53 a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 56 a, on Exod. 26 24; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 108 a, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Exod. 36 29.

ר"ס = § 280.

ר"ס Ezekiel, occurs twice. The only other instance in which it occurs it is למֵד with the prefix Lamed (1 Chron. 24 16). Here again the text exhibits another instance of the effect produced by the Massorites in their effort to disguise the Divine name אל. The name ר"ס is a compound of ר"ק and אל denoting God maketh strong. In their anxiety, however, to obliterate the sacred name אל, the Massorites put the Tzere which belongs to the Aleph under the Coph and left the Aleph itself without any vowel-points, thus reducing it to silence. For this process of disguising the Divine Names on the part of the redactors and the effect which this treatment has produced upon the text see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 183 a, on Ezek. 24 24, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 270 b, on Ezek. 1 3; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 285 a, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (V) the same on Ezek. 24 24.

ר"ס"א = § 281.

ר"ס"א Hezekijah, occurs three times. This proper name occurs altogether forty-four times. In forty-one instances it is the longer form ר"ס"א Yechizkijahū and in three only is it this primitive shorter form. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. For the cause of the duplicate form see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.

ר"ס"ב = § 282.

ר"ס"ב Yechizkijahū, occurs three times in the Prophets . . . and throughout Chronicles it is likewise so except in five instances where it is ר"ס"א Hezekijahū. For this Rubric see letter ר, § 122.

ר"ס"ג = § 283.

ר"ס"ג. — Four forms of the same name are respectively unique. That is (1) the longer form of ר"ס"ג ending in jahū with the prefix Vav occurs once only, viz. ר"ס"ג 2 Chron. 28 12; (2) the shorter form ר"ס"ג ending in jah with the prefix Vav occurs once only, viz. ר"ס"ג 1 Chron. 3 23; (3) the longer form of ר"ס"ג ending in jahū with the prefix Lamed occurs once only, viz. ר"ס"ג Isa. 38 9, and (4) the shorter form ending in jah with the prefix Lamed also occurs once only, viz. ר"ס"ג Ezra 2 16.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 40, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ר, § 58. The reference to the catchwords בני אשר לחזקת קרני should be Ezra 2 16 and not to the parallel passage Neh. 7 2. ר"ס"ג is a clerical error for ר"ס"א.

ר"ס"ד = § 285.

ר"ס"ד. — Three forms of this name respectively occur twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 40. The third pair are given as a separate Massorah in § 281.

ר"ס"ה = § 286.

ר"ס"ה Jechieli, occurs twice in the Scriptures. In 1 Chron. 23 8, where the first register is recorded, this proper name is ר"ס"ה Yechiel, whilst in the duplicate register in 1 Chron. 26 21 it is the patronymic form ר"ס"ה Yechieli. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in the parallel passage. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 146 b, on 1 Chron. 26 21.

Here again we see that the changes to which this compound name has been subjected are due to the anxiety on the part of the redactors to obliterate the Divine Names. Originally this name was ר"ס"ה Jehovah liveth. The ineffable Name יה Jehovah, however, was deemed too bald. Hence it was obliterated. But the process of obliteration was gradual. In one single instance only has it escaped the redactors, viz. 1 Chron. 15 24. In all the other passages הָ is changed into the less sacred name בָּ and the compound became הָבָּאֵל which, apart from the Keri in 1 Chron. 29 14, occurs thirteen times (comp. Ezra 8 9; 10 2, 21, 26; 1 Chron. 15 18, 20; 16 5; 23 8; 27 32; 29 8; 2 Chron. 21 2; 31 13; 35 8). The protection, however, which was primarily accorded to הָ was in many instances also accorded to בָּ. Hence הָבָּאֵל became הָבָּאֵל in the two instances which constitute this Rubric, though this gave rise to the variation between the two parallel passages. (Comp. my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 369 &c.)

רָפַי = § 287.

רָפַי I have hoped, occurs five times and in the same section. That is, in the same Psalm, in contradistinction to the only instance where this Pie' occurs in the 119th Psalm and where it is רָפַי the second person singular with the suffix first person singular (Ps. 119 49).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 213 a, on Ps. 119 74, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 314 b, on Ps. 119 43, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 119 74.

רָפַי = § 288.

רָפַי and they hoped, or caused to hope, occurs twice in the Scriptures. As this Piel preterite third person plural with Vav conjunctive which occurs three times altogether, is in two instances with Chateph-Pathach under the Cheth and once with Tzere and Dagesh in the Lamed (רָפַי), which is due to its pausal accent Athnach, and moreover as the two forms occur within three verses (comp. Job 29 21, 23), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its graphic signs.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 234 b, on Job 29 23, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 331 a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 275 b, on Ezek. 13 6, and (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 273 b, on the same passage.

The graphic signs רָפַי in the two instances which constitute this Rubric are according to Ben-Asher, and are so given in the MSS. which I have collated. According to Ben-Naphtali, however, they are pointed רָפַי, as will be seen from the notes on the respective passages in my edition of the Bible.

רָפַי = § 289.

רָפַי hope thou, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. That is, in two instances it is with Yod after the Cheth (רָפַי Ps. 42 12; 43 5) and once it is without the Yod (רָפַי Ps. 42 6). As the plene and defective occur in the same Psalm (42 6, 12), the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 186 a, on Ps. 42 6.

רָפַי = § 290.

רָפַי I will hope, or wait, is three times plene in the Scriptures. This Hiphil future first person singular occurs altogether five times. In two instances it is not only with paragogic He, but varies in its spelling, being once defective according to the Keri (רָפַי 2 Sam. 18 14) and once plene (רָפַי Micah 7 7); whereas in the three instances which constitute this Rubric it is both uniformly plene and without the paragogic He. Hence the Massorah safeguards its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 269 b, on Lament. 3 21, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 102 a, on 2 Kings 6 33; (III) the same MS., fol. 351 a, on Lament. 3 21; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 204 a, on 2 Kings 6 33; (V) the same MS., fol. 403 a, on Lament. 3 21; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ט, § 127.

As רָפַי occurs three times altogether and is plene in all the three instances, Lists II, III, IV and V head this Rubric more correctly רָפַי.

רָפַי = § 291.

רָפַי occurs three times in the Scriptures in three different senses. That is, as stated at the end of the Rubric (1) in 2 Sam. 18 14 it denotes to tarry; (2) in Jerem. 4 19 to be in pain, and (3) in Micah 7 7 to pray.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 33 b, on Jerem. 4 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 209 b, on 2 Sam. 18 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 69 a, on 2 Sam. 18 14; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 178 b, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Micah 7 7.

As this expression is not only used in different senses, but varies in its spelling, some of the Massorahs emphasise one fact and some the other characteristic. Thus whilst List I adverts to its different significations both in the heading and at the end of the Rubric, Lists III and V emphasise its different spelling. Hence List V not only heads this Rubric באריתון (על ג' ו' ו' ו' ו'), but adds at the end קרבא ארולה כרבב חניינא ארולה כרבב חלית ארולה כרבב חניינא.

רָפַי = § 292.

רָפַי he shall be hot, occurs twice, once with Kametz and once with Pathach. As this Kal future third person singular masculine which occurs twice only, varies in its graphic signs, being in one instance with Pathach (Deut. 19 6) and in one with Kametz which is due to its pausal accent Soph-Pasuk (Ecl. 4 11), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its graphic signs.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 264 b, on Ecl. 4 11, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 303 b, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 134 a, on Deut. 19 6. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice only, once with Pathach and once with Kametz. (Vide infra, letter ג, § 600.)

רָפַי = § 293.

רָפַי and the fallow deer, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 112 b, on Deut. 14 5, which I have printed; and (II) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 334.

רָפַי = § 294.

רָפַי he shall be good or well, is three times defective. Normally the Kal future third person singular masculine without and with Vav conjunctive, is plene. In this form, viz. רָפַי and רָפַי it occurs twenty times. As it is defective in these three instances only, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional spelling.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 95 b, on 1 Kings 21 7, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 24 5, and (III) the same on 2 Kings 25 24.

רָפַי = 295.

רָפַי doing good, well, is twice plene. This infinitive used adverbially is normally written רָפַי without the second Yod. In this defective form it occurs nine times. In these two instances, however, it is abnormally plene. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Jerem. 7 5, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. The addition רָפַי at the end of Rubric II explains the import of this Massorah. As the two instances are in Jeremiah, the heading ought more properly to be ג' מ' רָפַי.

רָפַי = § 296.

רָפַי ye have done well, occurs twice. This sexteliterai occurs altogether five times. In three instances it is the imperative plural masculine (Jerem. 7 3; 26 13; Ps. 33 3) and in two the preterite third person plural. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 2349, fol. 126 b, on Deut. 5 25.

רצ"ה = § 297.

art thou or doest thou well, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 302 b, on Jonah 4 4. As the two instances in which this Hiphil infinitive with the prefix He interrogative used adverbially are restricted to the same book, the heading ought more properly to be ב. יבשע.

This Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with He which respectively occur twice. (Vide supra, letter ה, § 19.)

רצ"ח = § 298.

רצ"ח. — Ten forms of the Hiphil of the verb יצב are defective. Normally the Hiphil has Yod after the Teth with Chirek. As the Yod is abnormally absent in these instances, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 140 a, on Deut. 30 5, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 53 a, on 1 Sam. 25 31; (III) the same MS., fol. 348 a, on Prov. 30 29; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 161 a, on 1 Sam. 25 31; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 166 a, on the same passage; (VI) Add. 15,451, fol. 126 a, on Deut. 8 16; (VII) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 15 margin, and (VIII) the printed Massorah, on Ezek. 33 32.

With the exception of List I, all the Lists head this Rubric with יצב and excepting List VIII all record identically the same nine instances. They all coincide in omitting 2 Kings 9 30. It is, however, more than probable that List I is based upon Codices which exhibited here יצב with Chirek instead of the exceptional form יצב with Segol. List VIII rightly adds after the catchwords יצב יצב יצב = Prov. 30 29 (תרייט רבנות) that it is the second in the verse, since this expression occurs here twice; and gives לב שמה יצב Prov. 17 22 instead of לב שמה יצב Prov. 15 13, which, as will be seen from the following Rubric, is in accordance with another Massorah. The heading of List VI, viz. יצב יצב יצב, indicates the design of this Massorah, which is to register the Hiphil forms without the second Yod. Hence no notice is taken of the fact that one of the instances is also without the first Yod (comp. יצב Ezek. 33 32). It is remarkable that in some of the Massoretic Schools the absent Yod was officially supplied. This is attested by the Standard Codex Harley 5710-11. In Jerem. 2 33 the textual reading in this MS. is יצב entirely defective and the Massorah on it is יצב entirely plene.

יצב it shall please, or make merry, is twice defective. This Hiphil future third person singular masculine with Tzere under the Yod and Chirek under the Teth, occurs altogether seven times. It is plene in five instances (Numb. 10 32; Judg. 17 13; 1 Sam. 2 32; Zeph. 1 12; Prov. 17 22) and in two only is it defective. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. It is to be remarked that even in the one instance where it is with Sheva under the Yod and the one where the Teth is with Tzere (comp. יצב Prov. 24 21; יצב 1 Kings 1 47), this future is plene.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 49 a, on 1 Sam. 20 13, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 89 a, on Numb. 10 32, and (III) the printed Massorah on Prov. 17 22. These three Lists, however, are based upon different recensions of the text, as will be seen from the following analysis:

List I, which I have printed, gives Prov. 15 13 as the second defective. This reading is supported by seven Lists of the preceding Massorah, since this separate Rubric forms part of the nine or ten defective instances.

List II gives Numb. 10 32 as the first defective and 1 Sam. 20 13 as the second, thus omitting Prov. 15 13 altogether. List III like List I, gives 1 Sam. 20 13 as the first defective, but unlike this List and also unlike List II, gives Prov. 17 22 as the second defective. This is supported by the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-25, which not only exhibits יצב defective in the text, but the Massorah on it states that it is one of the two defectives (ב. תמ).

ש = § 300.

וּשְׁמַר and doing good, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this Hiphil participle with the prefix Vav which occurs twice only, is differently spelt, being in the first instance entirely defective (Ezek. 33 32) and in the second without the first Yod (Ps. 119 68), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. In the only other instance where this participle singular occurs and where it is without the prefix Vav, it is יצב with both Yods (1 Sam. 16 17).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 188 b, on Ezek. 33 32, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 285 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ע, § 4.

ש"א = § 301.

יִמְבַּחַר Jolbathah, occurs three times in this form. That is, without and with the prefixes. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 129 a, on Deut. 10 7, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 139 a, on the same passage.

ש"ב = § 302.

יִטְוַר, Jetur, occurs twice plene . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 130 a, on 1 Chron. 1 31, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage. As this proper name, which occurs twice only, is plene in both instances, the heading of List II ב. יטל is more correct.

This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter י, § 70.)

ש"ג = § 303.

יִיַּן and wine, begins a verse five times . . . and once it is without the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 95 a, on Numb. 15 10, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 133 b, on Numb. 15 5; (III) the printed Massorah on Numb. 15 10, and (IV) the same on Ezek. 44 21.

ש"ד = § 304.

יִיַּן and wine, occurs thirteen times. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter י, § 180. As is often the case in the printed Massorah, the Rubric is incorrect. In the first place, though the heading emphatically states that there are thirteen such instances, the Rubric itself records twelve only, since Judg. 13 14 is given twice, once by the catchwords כל אשר יין ושכר אל תשתו as the third and again by the catchwords יין ושכר אל תשתו as the ninth. Both these are two clauses of the same verse. And secondly יין occurs sixteen times and not thirteen and the following four instances are omitted Jerem. 49 33; Hosea 4 11; 1 Chron. 12 41 and 2 Chron. 2 9.

That this corruption is not due to Jacob b. Chayim, the first editor of the Massorah, is evident from the note which he appended to this Rubric. There can hardly be any doubt that originally the Rubric was complete and that the limited space assigned to the Massorah in the MSS. of the Bible, made the Scribe leave off with the twelfth instance. A later Nakdan, however, mistook the List for complete and hence not only repeated one instance twice, but as is not infrequently the case, altered the number in the heading into thirteen to agree with the passages recorded in the List.

יִיַּן and wine, occurs seven times. That is, with Kametz under the Vav, in contradistinction to the sixteen instances in which it is with Sheva, recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the most popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 8 b, on Gen. 14 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 269 a, on Lament. 2 12; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 284 b, on Dan. 10 3; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32 b, on Judg. 19 19; (V) the printed Massorah on Isa. 5 12; (VI) the same on Neh. 5 15, and (VII) the same 2 Chron. 11 11.

It will be seen that three of the seven instances are not only with Kametz under the Vav, but also with Kametz under the Yod which is due to the pausal accent, being in two passages with Athnach (Gen. 14 18; Lament. 2 12) and once with Soph-Pasuk (2 Chron. 11 11). Lists I, IV, V, VI and VII leave this fact unnoticed. But List II, which is headed הַיָּוֹד הַזֶּה מְבִינֵנוּ, emphasises this variation in the graphic signs.

יָוֹד = § 306.

וַיִּין וְשָׂרָה and wine and strong drink, occurs three times. This phrase occurs altogether six times. In three instances it is יָוֹד without the prefix Vav (Levit. 10 9; Judg. 13 4, 7) and in the three which constitute this Rubric, it is with the prefix. Hence the Massorah indicates the variation. This safeguarding is necessary, since the two forms are used promiscuously in the same section. (Comp. Judg. 13 4, 7, 14.)

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 181 a, on Deut. 29 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 146 a, on 1 Sam. 1 15; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 152 a, on the same passage; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 139 a, on Deut. 29 5, and (V) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 1 15.

יָוֹד = § 307.

וַיִּין and wine of, occurs ten times in this form. That is, the construct form without and with prefixes, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this noun is in the absolute. By fixing the number at ten, this Massorah espouses the abnormal reading יָוֹד the construct against the normal absolute יָוֹד in Cant. 7 10. It is, however, remarkable that the Massorah Parva both in Arund. Orient. 16 and Add. 15,251 remarks against it (יָוֹד ל) that it is unique. This cannot refer to the construct, which according to the present received text occurs twice (Hosea 14 8; Cant. 7 10), but to the absolute יָוֹד, which does not occur again.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 337 b, on Prov. 4 17, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 115 b, on Deut. 32 38; (III) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 18 margin; (IV) the printed Massorah on Amos 2 8, and (V) the same on Esther 1 7.

It will be seen that though the heading of this List emphatically states that there are ten such instances, the Rubric itself records nine only, omitting יָוֹד Dan. 1 8. But as all the other Lists give it, there can hardly be any doubt that its omission is due to the carelessness of the Scribe.

שִׁיב = § 308.

The following words are defective and respectively occur once only. The Hiphil forms of the verb יָבִיל with Cholem and Chirek are normally doubly plene, that is both with Vav and Yod. In six instances, however, they are not only abnormally defective, but vary with regard to the absence of either the Vav or Yod. Hence the Massorah here indicates their respective variation. Thus two of the forms are with Vav, but without the Yod (Gen. 21 25; Job 5 17), two on the contrary are without the Vav, but with the Yod (Gen. 24 44; Job 22 4); whilst two are both without Vav and Yod. (Gen. 24 14; Jerem. 2 19.)

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 14 b, on Gen. 24 44, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 323 b, on Job 6 25; (III) the same MS., fol. 329 a, on Job 22 4, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 184.

Apart from the fact that Lists II and III give the heading of List I at the end of the Rubric and that List IV is the only one which fixes the number of these instances at six in the heading, viz. שִׁבְעַת הַמַּעֲשִׂים הַבְּלִיגִים, all the four Lists record the same six expressions in practically the same order. They, however, agree in the orthography of three only of the six words, viz. יָבִיל Gen. 21 25; יָבִיל Gen. 24 44 and יָבִיל Job 5 17, and exhibit the greatest variations with regard to the other three. Thus in Gen. 24 14 Lists I, II and III read יָבִיל and List IV reads it יָבִיל. In Jerem. 2 19 List I reads יָבִיל entirely defective, Lists II and III read it יָבִיל with Vav plene, whilst List IV has it יָבִיל entirely plene. In Job 22 4 List I reads יָבִיל with the remark that it is without Vav, but with Yod, and this is also the reading in List II, but List III reads it יָבִיל entirely defective, whilst List IV has it יָבִיל entirely plene. The addition at the end of the List in the printed Massorah (List IV), viz. בְּחִסְדֵּי יְהוָה הַזֶּה only increases the puzzle. That the differences here disclosed are not the only ones and that the several Schools of textual redactors exhibited other variations, will be seen from the notes on the respective passages in my edition of the Bible.

שִׁיב = § 309.

The Hiphil יָבִיל is in three instances without Yod. Whilst the preceding Rubric registers the defectives of the Hiphil both with regard to the Vav and Yod this Rubric is restricted to the Hiphil in which the Yod only is absent. Hence it simply records the three instances of the preceding Rubric which exhibit this characteristic. This form of the Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah on Gen. 21 25.

שִׁיב = § 310.

יָבִיל reproving, occurs five times in the Scriptures . . . and once the infinitive is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 227 b, on Job 13 10, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 326 a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 341 b, on Prov. 15 12; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 168 a, on Levit. 19 17; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (VI) the same on Job 6 25, and (VII) the same on Job 15 3.

List IV heads this Rubric יָבִיל, which emphasises the fact that it is plene in all the five passages. This would imply that the design of the Massorah is to militate against the recensions in which some of the instances are defective.

שִׁיב = § 311.

יָבִיל and he will reprove or plead, occurs twice in the whole Scriptures. This Hiphil future third person singular masculine with the prefix Vav, occurs altogether five times. In three instances the Vav is with Pathach, being conversive (comp. יָבִיל Gen. 31 42; Ps. 105 14; 1 Chron. 16 21) and in two it is with Sheva, being conjunctive. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 138 b, on 1 Chron. 12 17 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 246 a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 327 a, on Job 16 21, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

As one of these two instances begins a verse and the other ends a verse, Lists II, III and IV head this Rubric יָבִיל אֵלֶיךָ. This Rubric forms part of the Massoretic List of words which respectively occur twice only, once at the beginning and once at the end of the verse. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 425.)

שִׁיב = § 312.

יָבִיל he can, or was able, is four times plene. Normally this preterite third person singular masculine, or infinitive absolute is defective. In this form it occurs nine times as preterite (Gen. 32 26; 45 1; Exod. 40 35; 2 Sam. 3 11; 1 Kings 5 17; 13 4; 14 4; Isa. 7 1; 1 Chron. 21 30) and once as infinitive (1 Sam. 26 26). As it is plene in these four instances only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 108 b, on Numb. 13 30, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 107 b, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 37 b, on 1 Sam. 4 15, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Numb. 13 30.

Lists I and II are restricted to the quadriliteral or the three preterites and the infinitive. Hence they are properly headed יָבִיל. Lists III and IV include the infinitive with the prefix He (יָבִיל 2 Chron. 32 13). Hence they are headed יָבִיל and List III duly records the three plene preterites and the two infinitives, the one without the prefix given in Lists I and II and the one with the prefix. The printed Massorah (List IV), however, which is manifestly designed to exhibit the same form of the Rubric, is corrupt. It gives יָבִיל 1 Kings 5 17 as the third passage, which is defective and is rightly absent in the other Lists, and omits 2 Chron. 7 7 which is plene and is duly given in the three Lists.

שִׁיב = § 313.

יָבִיל I was able, or prevailed, occurs three times and is defective. As the preterite third person is exceptionally plene, which is recorded in the preceding Rubric, the design of this Massorah is to show that the preterite first person is without exception plene.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 161 a, on Judg. 8 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 185 a, on Ps. 40 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 24 a, on Judg. 8 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 293 b, on Ps. 40 13; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 30 8; (VI) the same on Judg. 8 3, and (VII) the same on Ps. 40 13.

Lists II, III and VII emphasise the fact in their respective headings that it is plene in all the three. But as each of the three instances occurs in one of the three divisions of the Bible, Lists III, V and VII add. א ברה א בבה א or simply the abbreviation אב.

היכול occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this Kal infinitive absolute with the prefix He which occurs twice only, is differently spelt in each instance, being היכול defective in Numb. 22 38 and היכול plene 2 Chron. 32 13, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. By fixing the number at two, the Massorah militates against the recension which exhibited היכול the Hophal future third person singular masculine, in Numb. 22 38, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 169 a, on 2 Chron. 32 13, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 114 b, on Numb. 22 38, and (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 113 b, on the same passage.

שטיץ = 315 a.

ותהביל and thou hast prevailed or been able, occurs twice at the end of a verse. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 22 a, on Gen. 32 29, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 30 a, on the same passage.

שטיץ = § 315 b.

ותהביל and thou hast prevailed or been able, occurs three times in the Scriptures. With Kametz under the Caph, this Hophal future third person singular masculine, occurs altogether eight times. In five instances it is without the prefix Var (1 Sam. 26 25; 1 Kings 22 22; Habak. 1 13; Job 42 2; 2 Chron. 18 21) and in three it is with the prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 44 b, on Jerem. 20 7, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 31 a, on Gen. 32 29; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (IV) the same on Jerem. 3 5. The latter heads this Rubric ג קמץ. As it occurs three times altogether and is in all the three instances with Kametz, the heading ought properly to be ג קמץ.

ותהביל thou shalt be able or prevail, occurs twice. That is, the future second person singular feminine occurs twice only, in contradistinction to the many instances in which the second person masculine occurs. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 139 b, on Isa. 47 12. As the two instances are restricted to two consecutive verses, the heading ought more properly to be ב ובעתי ב.

שייך = § 317.

יובל they shall be able, occurs eleven times in the Scriptures. By fixing the number at eleven, the Massorah militates against the textual reading יובל in Josh. 15 63 and supports the Keri יובל.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall, however, specify the following eight only, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 209 a, on 2 Sam. 17 17, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 6 10; (III) the same Codex on Hosea 8 5; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 143 a, on Isa. 56 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 148 a, on Jerem. 1 19; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 33; (VII) the printed Massorah on Josh. 7 12, and (VIII) the same on Jerem. 1 19.

Lists IV and V properly head this Rubric א ב חטט מלי א, since two of the instances, viz. Josh. 7 12 and Ps. 18 39, are אב defective, thus excluding the Eastern recension which also reads אב defective in Lament. 4 14, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. The printed Massorah (List VIII) which also notices the fact that two of the eleven instances are defective by the addition of אב at the end of the Rubric, gives Jerem. 1 19 as one of the passages. But this is incorrect. The Jeremiah passage which heads the List, is manifestly out of order. The two defective instances ought to begin the List as they are in the MS. List, which I have printed and indeed they are so in Jacob b. Chayim's first List in the printed Massorah, viz. List VII.

יובל is four times defective in this form. That is, four forms with Kametz under the Caph are preceded by Kibbuz (י) instead of Var with Shurek (י). It will be seen that two are Hophal future of יובל (Jerem. 20 11; Hosea 12 b), one is Pual participle of יובל (Exod. 3 2) and one is supposed to be a proper name (Prov. 30 1). As they are alike in being without the Var, though consisting of different forms, the Massorah according to its usual method, groups them together under the same Rubric.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 26 a, on Jerem. 20 11.

יובל they shall be able, occurs twice plene in the Pentateuch. That is, abnormally with paragogic Nun, in contradistinction to the eleven instances in which it is without it and which are recorded in § 317.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 53 b, on Gen. 44 1, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 52 b, on the same passages. As the two instances are restricted to the Pentateuch, the heading ought more properly to be ב ובעתי ב.

שייך = § 320.

יובל she bare thee, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Cant. 8 5, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., on Jerem. 22 26. Neither of the two Lists notices the fact that it is with Pathach in one instance (Jerem. 22 26) and with Kametz in the other (Cant. 8 5), which is due to its pausal accent Soph-Pasuk.

שטיץ = § 321.

ללדה to bear, or to be born, occurs four times. By fixing the number at four, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard the number at four in Eccl. 3 2 against being made conformable to the parallel passage ללדה in Job 39 1, as well as to protect the normal phrase ללדה in Isa. 26 17 against being made conformable to the abnormal phrase or Scribal error ללדה in 1 Sam. 4 19.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, two in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 129 a, on Isa. 26 17, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 17 b, on Gen. 25 24; (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 4 2; (IV) the same on Gen. 25 24, and (V) the same on Eccl. 3 2.

It is remarkable that List II, which is from a very carefully written MS. with the Massorah, states in the heading that there are two such instances only (ללדה ב) and gives Gen. 25 24 and Eccl. 3 2 as the two passages.

שייך = § 322.

ותהביל and she bare him a son, occurs twice. Normally ותהביל is followed by אב with the proper name of the child. In this form the phrase occurs about thirteen times (Gen. 25 2; Exod. 6 20, 23, 25; 1 Kings 11 20; 1 Chron. 2 19, 21, 24, 29, 35; 4 6; 2 Chron. 11 19, 20). As it is in these two instances only that ותהביל is followed by אב and not the proper name, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional phrase. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 63 b, on 2 Sam. 11 27. The place for the second instance is left blank in the MS.

שייך = § 323.

ותהביל and she bare and called. For this Rubric see above, letter ה, § 357.

שכ"ד = § 324.

יָלַד he beareth, is twice defective in the Scripture. That is, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this Kal participle active occurs in the textual reading or Kethiv and where it is יָלַד plene.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 51 b, on Jerem. 30 6, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 166 a, also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Prov. 17 21.

שכ"ה = § 325.

יָלְמָה and she bearing, is twice defective. By declaring that it is defective in both instances, this Massorah militates against the School of textual redactors which read this feminine participle יָלְמָה in Jerem. 31 8, as is attested by the Standard Codex Harley 15,251; Add. 21,161 and several of the early editions.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 38 b, on Jerem. 31 8.

שכ"ו = § 326.

יָלְמָה and she bearing, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, instead of the normal form יָלְמָה recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 165 b, on Judg. 13 7 which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 28 a, on Judg. 13 5; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 146 b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 3 a, on Gen. 16 11; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 36 a, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Judg. 13 5.

As all the three instances are defective, Lists II and IV head this Rubric more properly ג. The latter adds at the end of the Rubric א. This is due to the fact that some of the ancients regarded יָלְמָה as preterite and not as participle, which is attested by Rashi on Gen. 16 11 and Heidenheim ב. on this passage.

שכ"ז = § 327.

נִקְרְרוּ they were born, occurs twice and is plene. That is, with Shurek and euphonic Dagesh instead of the normal form נִקְרְרוּ. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex 35, on 1 Chron. 3 5.

שכ"ח = § 328.

יָיָד he shall be born, is three times so written in the Pentateuch. This Niphal future third person singular masculine without the prefix Vav, occurs altogether six times, three times in the Prophets and Hagiographa (Isa. 66 8; Prov. 17 17; Job 11 12) and three times in the Law. As the instances in which it is with the prefix Vav are restricted to the Pentateuch, the design of the Massorah is to distinguish those with the prefix from those without it in this division of the Scriptures in which alone the two forms occur.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 36 b, on Gen. 17 17, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 46 b, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 5404, fol. 35 b, on the same passage.

וַיָּלֶד and there was born, occurs three times. That is, with Vav conversive, in contradistinction to the other three instances in which this Niphal future third person singular also occurs in the Pentateuch and is without the prefix Vav, recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 104 a, on Numb. 26 60, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 33 b, on Gen. 46 20; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 31 a, on Gen. 4 18; (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (V) the same on Numb. 26 60. As all the three instances are restricted to the Pentateuch and severally begin a verse, the heading ought more properly to be ג. List V, which is headed ג, is misleading. It implies that it also occurs elsewhere without beginning the verse. It should be ג.

ש"ל = § 330.

וַיִּוָּלְדוּ and there were born, occurs five times. By fixing the number at five, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the textual reading וַיִּוָּלְדוּ in 2 Sam. 3 2.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 60 a, on 2 Sam. 5 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 66 a, on 2 Sam. 14 27; (III) the same MS., fol. 321 b, on Job 1 2; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 17 a, on Gen. 10 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 170 a, on 2 Sam. 3 2; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Job 1 2. As two of the instances have the accent on the penultima (2 Sam. 5 13; Job 1 2), List IV adds at the end ב. The additions at the end of Jacob b. Chayim's two Lists, viz. וַיִּוָּלְדוּ לָהֶם in List VI and וַיִּוָּלְדוּ לָהֶם in List VII, are both wrong, and should be וַיִּוָּלְדוּ לָהֶם Deut. 23 9. That is, as Frensdorff rightly suggests, this future occurs five times with Vav conversive and once without it. (Comp. Massoretisches Wörterbuch, p. 81, note 2). This Rubric forms part of the Lists of words which respectively occur once only in one book, whilst they always occur several times in all the other books. (Vide infra, letter ה, § 449.)

ש"ל"א = § 331.

נִוָּלְדָה is born, is three times with Kametz in the Scriptures. This quadriliteral occurs altogether ten times. In seven instances it is with Pathach, being preterite third person singular masculine (comp. נָחַל Eccl. 4 14; 1 Chron. 2 3, 9; 3 1, 4; 20 6; 26 6) and in three only is it with Kametz, being the Niphal participle singular masculine. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional graphic signs, or the Kametz by which it denotes the participle.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 144 a, on 1 Chron. 22 9, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 88 a, on 1 Kings 13 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 289 a, on Ps. 22 32; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 190 b, on 1 Kings 13 2; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 360 b, on Ps. 22 32; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 195, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 13 2.

ש"ל"ב = § 332.

נִוָּלְדוּם who were born, occurs twice. That is, the plural participle with the prefix He instead of וַיִּוָּלְדוּ (comp. Gen. 36 5). Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 56 a, on Gen. 48 5, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348 a, fol. 66 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. The latter heads this Rubric ב. which is misleading, since it implies that apart from these two instances it is defective. It ought to be ב, as it only occurs twice altogether and is plene in both instances.

ש"ל"ג = § 333.

וַיִּוָּלְדָה was born, occurs nine times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 306 a, on Ps. 87 6, which I have printed, and (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 28 a, on Gen. 41 50. List II is headed וַיִּוָּלְדָה בְּכִי וְרִיב and duly records five only. It omits five which are in List I, viz. Gen. 10 21, 25; Judg. 18 29 (which is plene); Ps. 87 4, 6 and gives one which is absent in List I, viz. Isa. 9 5.

In the received text, however, this Pual preterite third person singular masculine, occurs altogether seventeen times, fifteen times defective (vide infra, § 335) and twice plene (vide infra, § 334). Accordingly List I omits the following seven instances; Gen. 4 26; 35 26; 46 22; 2 Sam. 21 20; Isa. 9 5; Jerem. 20 15; 1 Chron. 1 19 and gives one plene, viz. וַיִּוָּלְדָה Judg. 18 29; whilst List II omits no fewer than ten, viz. Gen. 4 26; 10 21, 25; 35 26; 46 22; 2 Sam. 21 20; Jerem. 20 15; Ps. 87 4 6; 1 Chron. 1 19.

The conflict between the two Lists and the received text is due to the fact that the ancient recensions exhibited variations in many of the passages with regard to the Pual future. Some read it וַיִּוָּלְדָה the singular and some וַיִּוָּלְדוּ the plural. These conflicting Lists, therefore, are based upon different Codices. This is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text. Of the seven passages in which this expression occurs in Genesis alone in the received text, the Samaritan Hebrew exhibits variations in no fewer than five instances. In four it reads וַיִּוָּלְדוּ the plural (Gen.

10 26; 35 26; 41 50; 46 27) and in one יִקְרָה, Kal preterite third person singular feminine (Gen. 46 22). In referring to the notes on the several passages in my edition of the Bible it will be seen that the variations are supported by some MSS. and ancient Versions.

שָׁלִיךְ was born, is three times plene. This Pual preterite third person singular, which occurs altogether seventeen times, is normally without the Var. In this form it occurs fifteen times. In two instances, however, it is abnormally with Var. plene. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional orthography. It will be seen that in the first of the three instances (Judg. 13 8) it is יִשְׁלִיךְ the Pual participle for יִשְׁלִיךְ. But as it exhibits the same anomalies as the preterite, being both plene and with Dagesh after the Vav, the Massorah in accordance with its method, includes it in the same Rubric which safeguards this abnormal form.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 323 a, on Job 5 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 52 a, on Gen. 41 50, and (III) the printed Massorah on Job 5 7. List II heads this Rubric יִקְרָה בְּלִי כְּשֵׁם בְּשֵׁם בְּשֵׁם and duly records the two plene preterites only, whilst List III, which is headed יִקְרָה בְּלִי כְּשֵׁם בְּשֵׁם בְּשֵׁם, emphasises the fact that the three instances are with Dagesh and plene. As the Rubric includes יִשְׁלִיךְ, the headings of Lists I and III ought properly to be יִשְׁלִיךְ בְּלִי כְּשֵׁם בְּשֵׁם בְּשֵׁם. It is remarkable that though two of the instances are with Kametz under the Lamed (Judg. 13 8; Job 5 7) and one is with Pathach (Judg. 18 29), the Massorah does not advert to this variation in the graphic signs.

שָׁלִיחַ was born, occurs seventeen times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,461, fol. 240 b, on Ps. 87 4. Being based upon the textus receptus its design is to safeguard all the instances in which the Pual preterite and the participle occur in the present text. Hence it includes the three abnormal plenes which constitute the preceding Rubric and all the normal forms. But even this expanded List omits Gen. 35 26 which is one of these disputed readings.

שָׁלַיִךְ - § 386.

שָׁלַיִךְ were born, occurs five times. In the only other instance where this Pual preterite third person plural occurs it is יִשְׁלַיִךְ with Kametz under the Lamed (Ps. 90 2), which is due to its pausal accent. Whilst the orthography of the Pual preterite singular varies, being both defective and plene (vide supra, § 384; § 335), the plural is uniformly defective. It will be seen that though the Massorah in the case of the singular ignores the variation in the graphic signs, yet in the plural it excludes the Kametz instance.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 57 b, on Gen. 50 23, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 57 b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. The line יִשְׁלַיִךְ (2 Sam. 3 6) has inadvertently dropped out of the text.

שָׁלַיִךְ he begat, is twelve times defective. This Hiphil preterite third person singular masculine, which occurs altogether about 96 times, is normally entirely plene, that is יִשְׁלַיִךְ with both Var. and Yod. In this form it occurs 84 times. In one instance, however, it is exceptionally יִשְׁלַיִךְ with Vav, but without Yod (Numb. 26 58); whilst in eleven instances it is יִשְׁלַיִךְ without Vav, but with Yod. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. This protection is all the more necessary since the different spellings not only occur in the same book, but are promiscuously used in the same verse. Thus in 1 Chron. 2 36 where it occurs twice, it is יִשְׁלַיִךְ defective in the first part of the verse and יִשְׁלַיִךְ plene in the second part. In 1 Chron. 2 41, where it also occurs twice, the reverse is the case. Here it is יִשְׁלַיִךְ plene in the first instance and יִשְׁלַיִךְ defective in the second. The same is the case in 1 Chron. 5 30.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 104 b, on Numb. 26 58, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 131 a, on 1 Chron. 2 39; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 483 a, on the same passage;

(IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 814 b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 825 a, on Numb. 26 58; (VI) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah II, § 318 margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 26 58.

These seven Lists exhibit several forms of the Massorah. Thus Lists I and V are simply headed יִשְׁלַיִךְ. The latter, however, adds at the end יִשְׁלַיִךְ בְּלִי כְּשֵׁם בְּשֵׁם בְּשֵׁם (יִשְׁלַיִךְ) that in the first instance it is יִשְׁלַיִךְ without Yod (Numb. 26 58) and that in the other eleven instances it is יִשְׁלַיִךְ without Vav.

Lists II and III are headed יִשְׁלַיִךְ and record the eleven instances only which are without Vav excluding the unique instance in Numb. 26 58 which is with Vav, but without Yod.

List IV is headed יִשְׁלַיִךְ and records seven only. It omits 1 Chron. 2 39; 4 2, 2; 5 30 as well as Numb. 26 58, which as we have seen, is also omitted in Lists II and III. This List, therefore, must be based upon Codices which exhibited seven instances only with Vav defective.

List VI is headed יִשְׁלַיִךְ and records thirteen instances. It makes up this number by including Numb. 26 58, which is contrary to the heading since it is here with Var. and by giving both the instances in 1 Chron. 2 41 (יִשְׁלַיִךְ בְּלִי כְּשֵׁם בְּשֵׁם).

List VII. — After stating that the orthography in Numb. 26 58 is unique, this List is headed יִשְׁלַיִךְ. But though it thus emphatically states that there are eleven instances only without Var., it records twelve and makes up this number by giving both instances in 1 Chron. 2 38 as defective. The addition at the end of the Rubric which I have printed, ought properly to be יִשְׁלַיִךְ בְּלִי כְּשֵׁם בְּשֵׁם plene, thus indicating the design of the Rubric.

שָׁלַיִחַ is five times defective in this form. This Rubric, which I have found in the printed Massorah only, letter י, § 197, I cannot understand. From two of the examples which constitute the Rubric, viz. יִשְׁלַיִחַ (Jerem. 16 3) and יִשְׁלַיִחַ (Ezek. 47 2) it would seem that the design of the Massorah is to register the forms of the root יִשְׁלַיִחַ which are abnormally without Yod. But the other three forms which are Kal preterite with the suffix are normally without Yod. Perhaps some Massoretic student who is a better expert will be able to explain its import.

שָׁלַיִחַ - § 389.

שָׁלַיִחַ they begat, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this Hiphil preterite third person plural which occurs twice only, is differently spelt, being in one instance with Yod after the Lamed (Levit. 25 46) and in the other without it (Ezek. 47 22), the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 81 a, on Levit. 25 46, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 198 a, on Ezek. 47 22; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 57 b, on Levit. 25 46, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

שָׁלַיִחַ and he begat, is invariably plene and is always with the accent except once. The expression יִשְׁלַיִחַ followed by בָּנָיו וּבָנוֹתָו which occurs altogether eighteen times, is not only plene, but is always normally with the accent Mercha and בָּנָיו is with Tipecha i. e. יִשְׁלַיִחַ בָּנָיו. In this form the phrase occurs seventeen times (Gen. 5 4, 7, 10, 13, 16, 19, 22, 26, 30; II 11, 18, 15, 17, 19, 21, 23, 25), and in one instance only, is it with Tipecha Mercha, viz. יִשְׁלַיִחַ בָּנָיו (2 Chron. 24 3). Hence the Massorah safeguards this solitary exception in its accents. This recension of the Massorah is from the printed Massorah on Gen. 5 4, and represents one School of textual redactors.

שָׁלַיִחַ - § 340 b.

שָׁלַיִחַ and he begat sons and daughters, is with these accents throughout the Scriptures except twice where it is יִשְׁלַיִחַ בָּנָיו וּבָנוֹתָו. This recension of the Rubric is from Add. 15,451, fol. 5 a, on Gen. 5 10. It is based upon MSS. which had this accentuation not only in 2 Chron. 24 3, but also in Gen. 5 10.

שָׁלַיִחַ - § 341.

שָׁלַיִחַ was born, occurs three times, twice defective and once plene. As this Hophal infinitive which occurs three times is not only differently spelt, but the difference occurs in two consecutive verses (Ezek. 16 4, 5), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. By so doing its design is to militate against the recension of the School of textual redactors which reads וְיָקָרָה plene in all the three instances. This is attested by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, which exhibits וְיָקָרָה plene in the two consecutive verses.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 26 b, on Gen. 40 20, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 16 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 175 b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 26 a, on Gen. 40 20; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 274 b, on Ezek. 16 4; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 43 b, on Gen. 40 20, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. It is remarkable that though the headings of the several Lists state that it is twice defective, the Rubric in the ancient Codex (List II) is simply headed וְיָקָרָה without stating that it is defective, which agrees with its readings.

וְיָקָרָה and a child or son, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 3 b, on Gen. 4 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 30 a, on Gen. 44 20; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 29 a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 52 a, also on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 4 23, and (VI) the same on Gen. 44 20. As both instances occur in the same book, List II heads this Rubric בְּנֵי חַיִּים. It is remarkable that the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew reads it וְיָקָרָה in Gen. 44 20. Perhaps this is the reason which suggested this Massorah.

שָׁמַיִם - § 343.

וְיָקָרָה and the children, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, with the prefix Vav, in contradistinction to the seventeen instances in which it is without this prefix.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 5 a, on Isa. 8 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 276 b, on Dan. 1 17; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 364 b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 388 a, on Neh. 12 43; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 219 a, on Isa. 8 18, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 205.

וְיָקָרָה his children or sons, occurs three times in the Scriptures. By fixing the number at three, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the textual reading or Kethiv וְיָקָרָה in Job 38 41 as well as against the reading וְיָקָרָה exhibited in the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text in Gen. 32 23.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 13 b, on Isa. 29 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 239 b, on Job 38 41; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 130 b, on Isa. 29 23; (IV) the same MS., fol. 384 b, on Job 38 41; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah Supplement, fol. 180 b; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 32 23, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 203.

As the Job instance is defective, Lists IV and VI head this Rubric וְיָקָרָה בְּנֵי חַיִּים. Moreover as the three instances respectively occur in the three several divisions of the Bible Lists I, II and VI have at the end וְיָקָרָה בְּנֵי חַיִּים.

שָׁמַיִם - § 345.

וְיָקָרָה that is born, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 64 a, on 2 Sam. 12 14, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 1 22. As it is plene in both instances the latter emphasises this fact in the heading, viz. בְּנֵי חַיִּים וְיָקָרָה and thus militates against the reading וְיָקָרָה defective in Exod. 1 22, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

שָׁמַיִם - § 346.

וְיָקָרָה that are born, occurs three times in the Scriptures, twice defective and once plene. The design of the Massorah, therefore, is to safeguard this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 200 a, on 2 Sam. 5 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 41 b, on Jerem. 16 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 3 b, on Josh. 5 5; (IV) the same MS., fol. 60 a, on 2 Sam. 5 14; (V) the same MS., fol. 157 a, on Jerem. 16 3; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 247 a, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Josh. 5 5.

שָׁמַיִם - § 347.

וְיָקָרָה the children of, is twice defective. Without and with the prefixes this plural noun construct occurs altogether eight times. It is וְיָקָרָה plene in six instances (Gen. 14 14; 17 23; Numb. 13 22; Josh. 15 14; 2 Sam. 21 16; 1 Chron. 20 4) and defective in two only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. As this variation in its spelling not only occurs in the same book, but in the same section (comp. Numb. 13 22, 28; 2 Sam. 21 16, 18), the protection is necessary and is designed to militate against the reading וְיָקָרָה plene in Numb. 13 28, which is exhibited in the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 108 b, on Numb. 13 28, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 209 a, on the same passage.

לָלֶכֶת to go, a sign. Throughout the Scriptures it is always וְיָקָרָה whether it is in the middle of the verse with Athnach or at the end of the verse with Soph-Pasuk, except in one instance.

This Kal infinitive with the prefix Lamed occurs altogether about 84 times. In 83 instances it is וְיָקָרָה with Segol under the Lamed, though it is five times with the pausal accent Athnach (Exod. 8 24; Judg. 19 5, 7; 1 Sam. 15 27; Ezek. 1 20) and in one instance with Soph-Pasuk (Ps. 78 10). In the only other instance, however, where it is also with Soph-Pasuk it is וְיָקָרָה with Kametz under the Lamed. Hence the Massorah safeguards this solitary exception.

And throughout the Scriptures it is וְיָקָרָה with two exceptions. In the six instances, however, where this infinitive occurs without the prefix Lamed the graphic signs are normal. Thus the four which are neither with Athnach nor with Soph-Pasuk are וְיָקָרָה (2 Sam. 19 25; 1 Kings 11 10; Micah 6 8; Ruth 3 10), and the two which have Soph-Pasuk are וְיָקָרָה. Here, therefore the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 45 b, on Exod. 8 24, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. The latter gives the first part only of this Massorah.

לָלֶכֶת בכל־דרכיו to walk in all his ways, occurs four times thus combined. Without and with the prefix Vav this phrase occurs altogether nine times. In five instances וְיָקָרָה is simply followed by וְיָקָרָה in his ways (Deut. 8 8; 19 9; 26 17; 30 16; 1 Kings 2 8) and in four by וְיָקָרָה in all his ways. Hence the design of the Massorah is to safeguard these two forms against their being made conformable to each other especially as they are promiscuously used in the same book.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 129 a, on Deut. 10 12, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 128 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 8 58. As one of the instances is with the prefix Vav (Josh. 22 5) the heading ought more properly to be וְיָקָרָה בְּכָל־דְּרָכָיו.

וְיָקָרָה and to walk, occurs four times. This infinitive occurs altogether 88 times. In 84 instances it is without the prefix Vav and in four only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. By fixing the number at four, the Massorah militates against the reading וְיָקָרָה without the prefix in Deut. 19 9, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 124 a, on Deut. 19 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 152 a, on Josh. 22 5; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 237 a, on Job 34 8; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 15 b, on Josh. 22 5; (V) the same

MS., fol. 882 b, on Job 34 8; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 115 a, on Deut. 19 9, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Job 34 8.

שניא - § 851 a.

בְּלִכְתָּן in their going, occurs three times. That is, this infinitive with the prefix Beth and the suffix third person plural feminine. With the suffix third person plural this infinitive with the preposition Beth occurs altogether nine times. In six instances the plural suffix is masculine, viz. בְּלִכְתָּם (Ezek. 1 17, 21, 24; 10 11, 11, 11) and in three only is it the feminine. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ה, § 185.

שניא - § 851 b.

בְּלִכְתָּן בְּלִכְתָּם. — A sign to indicate where the suffix is feminine and where masculine. As all the nine infinitives with both the feminine and masculine suffixes are restricted to the same book and moreover as six of the instances not only occur in the same section, but two of the different genders are promiscuously used in the same verse (Ezek. 1 17) the Massorah indicates the passages where it is בְּלִכְתָּן the feminine and where בְּלִכְתָּם. This form of the Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ezek. 1 9. But these forms of the Rubric, are based upon the Codices of one School of textual redactors. Other Schools varied in their readings, as is attested by the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916. This ancient Codex has בְּלִכְתָּם the masculine both in Ezek. 1 9 and 12 which the Nakdan altered, remarking against both passages in the margin ב בנת.

שניב - § 852.

לְךָ וְאָמַרְתָּ go and tell, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. Normally לְךָ is followed by the imperative וְאָמַרְתָּ, viz. לְךָ וְאָמַרְתָּ go tell. In this combination it occurs five times. (Deut. 5 27; 1 Kings 18 8, 11, 14; 2 Kings 8 10). In these three instances, however, it is followed by the preterite with the Vav conversive. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 200 b, on 2 Sam. 7 5, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 61 a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 121 a, on Isa. 6 9; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 68 a, on 2 Sam. 7 5, and (V) Add. 15,251, on the same passage.

לְךָ and go, occurs eleven times in the Scriptures . . . and they are all with There except one which is with Segol. This form of the imperative singular with the prefix Vav occurs altogether sixteen times. In eleven instances the Vav is with Sheva which in some of the headings is Massoretically called Raphc and in five instances it is with Kametz. Hence the Massorah in this Rubric and in the following one registers the passages in which this variation in the graphic signs obtains.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, five MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 71 b, on Ezek. 3 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 31 b, on Judg. 18 19; (III) the same MS., fol. 45 a, on 1 Sam. 16 1; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 22 b, on Gen. 22 2; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah, Supplement, fol. 130 a; (VI) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 14 21, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ה, § 183. It is important to remark that in the List which I have printed, There is Massoretically called Kametz.

לְךָ and go, occurs five times. That is, with Kametz under the Vav which is due to its pausal accent, in contradistinction to the eleven instances in which it is with Sheva recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 241 a, on 2 Kings 4 29, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 100 a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 171 b, on Jerem. 36 14; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 18 b, on Gen. 12 19; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 34 b, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on 2 Kings 4 29.

שניה - § 855.

לְךָ go, or come, occurs seven times in this Pericope. That is, in Numbers 22 2—25 9. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 200 b, on Numb. 22 6, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 95 b, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

From the following analysis it will be seen that these three Lists exhibit two recensions which are based upon different redactions of the text. Without and with the paragogic He and without and with the prefix Vav this imperative occurs altogether ten times in this Section.

List I. — According to this List, which fixes the number with paragogic He at seven, viz. five לְךָ without the prefix Vav (Numb. 22 6; 23 7 a, 18, 27; 24 14) and two וְלָךְ with the prefix (Numb. 22 17; 23 7 b), there are three instances of the imperative without the paragogic He in this Section, viz. לְךָ Numb. 22 11, 20, 25. It is to be remarked that the reading וְלָךְ in 23 13 is in accordance with וְלָךְ in 22 6.

Lists II and III. — These two Lists are respectively headed וְלָךְ and וְלָךְ and they severally record six instances only with paragogic He. They omit Numb. 23 18, which agrees with the textus receptus which exhibits לְךָ without the paragogic He. It is, however, remarkable that like List I they also omit Numb. 22 11, which shows beyond doubt that these Lists are based upon a recension which had לְךָ without the paragogic He in this passage. That other variations obtained with regard to the reading of this imperative is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, which has לְךָ without the paragogic He both in Numb. 23 27 and 24 11. As two of the instances are with the prefix Vav (Numb. 22 17; 23 7), the heading ought more properly to be וְלָךְ or וְלָךְ.

לְךָ go, or come, is three times defective in the sense of going. With Sheva and Kametz this imperative singular masculine is normally לְךָ with paragogic He. In this form it occurs about thirty times, twenty-six times without the prefix Vav and four times with it. In these three instances, however, it is abnormally without the paragogic He though it has the same graphic signs. Hence the Massorah safeguards these rare exceptions, one of which occurs in the Law, one in the Prophets and one in the Hagiographa. By fixing the number at three the design of this Massorah is not only to militate against the School of textual redactors which read לְךָ in Numb. 23 18 as recorded in the preceding Rubric, but to exclude the official לְךָ in Judg. 19 13.

And wherever it is לְךָ to thee, without and with the prefix Vav it is likewise so except four times. The reverse is the case when it is the preposition Lamed with the suffix second person singular. Though it is with Sheva and Kametz, it is normally without the paragogic He in all the numerous instances in which it occurs. Its presence after these graphic signs is to be found in four instances only. Hence the Massorah here safeguards the reverse phenomenon; that is, the presence of the paragogic He.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following eight only, four in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 170 a, on Judg. 19 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 210 a, on 2 Sam. 18 22; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 120 a, on Isa. 3 6; (IV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah I, § 102; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 27 37 (VI) the same on Numb. 23 13; (VII) the same on Judg. 19 13 and (VIII) the same on 2 Chron. 25 17.

שניח - § 857.

לָךְ go thou, occurs three times. This imperative singular feminine occurs altogether fourteen times. In eleven instances it is לָךְ with Sheva and in three only is the Lamed with Tzere which is due to its pausal accents, being in the first instance Athnach (Exod. 2 8), the second Zakeph-Katon (Judg. 11 38) and in the third Soph-Pasuk (2 Sam. 13 15). Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 58 a, on Exod. 2 8, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 27 b, on Judg. 11 38; (III)

Add. 15,250, fol. 189^b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 2 8.

שנייה = 358.

לכו go ye, occurs three times. This imperative plural masculine occurs altogether about 68 times. It is לכו with Sheva in 65 instances and in three instances only is it with Tzere which is due to its pausal accents. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in its graphic sign. It is remarkable that the same three accents which the three instances of the imperative singular feminine severally have, as recorded in the preceding Rubric, are exhibited in this imperative plural.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 179^a, on Ezek. 20 19.

שנייה - § 359.

לכו עבדו go, serve, occurs twice . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 79^b, on Exod. 10 8. The heading not only states emphatically that there are two such instances only, but the Rubric itself records two, omitting Exod. 10 24. That variations obtained with regard to this phrase is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, which reads לכו ועבדו in Exod. 5 18 as it is in 10 11.

ש"ם - § 360.

ולכו and go ye, occurs three times. That is, with Kametz under the Vav and Tzere under the Caph which is due to its pausal accents, being in two instances with Soph-Pasuk (Gen. 42 38; 1 Sam. 29 10) and once with Athnach (Exod. 12 32), in contradistinction to the eleven instances in which this imperative plural with the prefix Vav is לכו.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 55^b, on 1 Sam. 29 10, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 168^b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 38^a, on Gen. 42 38; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 48^b, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VI) the same on 1 Sam. 29 10.

לכו go ye, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this imperative plural feminine, which occurs twice only within a few verses, is differently spelt, being in one instance with He and in one without it, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 258^b, on Ruth 1 8, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 282^b, on the same passage. This Massorah, however, emanates from one School of textual redactors only. Other Schools had no variations in its spelling, as is attested by the ancient Codex Add. 21,161, which has לכו in both instances, whilst others which exhibit לכו in the text as Kethiv have in the margin לכו.

לכו he shall go with thee, occurs twice. The future לכו is four times followed by the preposition with the suffix second person. In two instances it is the preposition אך, viz. לכו אך (Judg. 7 4, 4) and in the two which constitute this Rubric it is עך, viz. לכו עך. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation. This protection is necessary, since the two phrases are promiscuously used in the same verse (Judg. 7 4).

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 65^a, on 2 Sam. 13 28.

וילך and he went, occurs seven times. That is, with Pathach under the Lamed which is due to its pausal accents, being in three instances Soph-Pasuk (Gen. 24 61; Numb. 12 9; Ps. 34 1) and in four Athnach (Gen. 25 34; 1 Sam. 21 1; 2 Kings 5 11; Job 7 9), in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, is וילך with Segol.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 93^a, on Numb. 12 9, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 50^a, on 1 Sam. 21 1; (III) the same MS., fol. 101^a, on 2 Kings 5 11; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 42^a, on Gen. 25 34; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 19 margin; (VI) the same II, § 326, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 61.

וילך and a man went, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to וילך and the man went with the prefix He, which is recorded in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 282^b, on Ruth 1 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 65^a, on Exod. 2 1; (III) the same MS., fol. 298^a, on Ruth 1 1, and (IV) the printed Massorah, on Exod. 2 11. This Rubric forms part of the Massorah which records five words which respectively occur twice followed by אך. (Vide supra, letter א, § 420.)

ש"ם = § 365.

וילך and the man went, occurs twice. That is, with the prefix He, in contradistinction to the two instances without this prefix, recorded in the preceding Rubric. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 19^a, on Judg. 1 28.

ש"ם - § 366.

וילך בקל-הדרך and he walked in all the way, occurs three times. In describing the sinful ways which the respective Kings followed, the normal phrase is וילך בדרך and he walked in the way of &c. This formula occurs eight times. (1 Kings 15 28, 34; 22 58; 2 Kings 8 18, 27; 16 3; 2 Chron. 20 32; 21 6.) In the case of these three monarchs, however, this longer formula is used. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation, especially since in the case of one of these sovereigns where his conduct is given in the parallel passage, the shorter formula occurs (comp. 1 Kings 22 48 with 2 Chron. 20 32).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 91^b, on 1 Kings 16 28, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The second part of this Massorah, which gives the two exceptions where it is not וילך and which is absent in List II, I cannot understand. The first instance may mean that in 1 Kings 16 31 it is וילך instead of וילך בדרך, but the second instance, viz. Ezek. 8 17 is inexplicable. It will be seen that וילך בקל-הדרך with the prefix He (2 Kings 21 21) is excluded from this Rubric.

וילך and he went thither, is twice thus combined in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the seven instances in which it is וילך (Gen. 26 17; Judg. 1 11; 1 Sam. 22 1, 3; 1 Kings 19 19; 2 Kings 2 26; 10 15). By fixing the number at two the design of the Massorah is to exclude the ancient reading אך in 1 Sam. 19 23, which is preserved in the Septuagint (αυτιδεν) and which is now accepted as preferable.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 292^b, on Ezra 10 6.

וילך shall I go, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 35^a, on Exod. 2 7, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 51^a, on 1 Sam. 23 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 96^a, on 1 Kings 22 6; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 42^a, on Exod. 2 7; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 65^a; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 58^a, and (VII) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

וילך and I will go, occurs twice in the Scriptures . . . and once it is without the prefix Vav. This future third person singular with paragogic He, occurs altogether twenty-one times, with and without the prefix Vav. In eighteen instances the Lamed is with Sheva and in three instances only is it with Tzere, which is due to its distinctive accents. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional graphic signs.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 193b, on 2 Sam. 3 21, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 59a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 30 26. This Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice with the prefix Vav and once without it. (Vide supra, letter v, § 71.)

וַיֵּלְכוּ = § 370.

וַיֵּלְכוּ and they went the way, is three times thus combined in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 108b, on Numb. 33 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 69a, on Jerem. 52 7; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 166b, on 2 Sam. 4 7; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 247a, on Numb. 33 8; (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 110, and (VI) the same letter v, § 176.

שָׁעִיא = 371.

וַיֵּלְכוּ כָּל־הָעָם and all the people went, occurs three times. This phrase occurs altogether four times and is in the singular in one instance, viz. וַיֵּלֶךְ כָּל־הָעָם (2 Sam. 6 19). As the two forms are not only used promiscuously in the same book (comp. 1 Sam. 11 15 with 2 Sam. 6 19), but in the two parallel passages (comp. 2 Sam. 6 19 with 1 Chron. 16 43), the Massorah by fixing the number at three, safeguards them against being made uniform.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 156b, on 1 Sam. 11 15, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 161. For the erroneous catchwords וַיֵּלֶךְ which the MS. List exhibits the printed Massorah (List II) rightly gives וַיֵּלְכוּ Neh. 8 12.

וַיֵּלְכוּ = § 372.

וַיֵּלְכוּ and they shall go, is twice Raphe in the Scriptures. This future third person plural masculine with Vav conjunctive occurs altogether four times. In two instances the Lamed is with its normal Sheva (2 Kings 6 22; 17 27) and in the two instances which constitute this Rubric, it is with Tere which is due to the pausal accents, being in one instance Soph-Pasuk (1 Sam. 30 22) and in the other Athnach (Job 38 35). Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in the graphic signs.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 195b, on 1 Sam. 30 22.

שָׁעִיב = § 373.

וַיֵּלְכוּ they shall go, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, with paragogic Nun, in contradistinction to the nineteen instances in which this future third person singular occurs with Tere under the Lamed and is without the Nun.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 108a, on Joel 2 7, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

שָׁעִיד = § 374.

וַיֵּלְכוּ ye shall go, occurs twice in the Scriptures. With Tere under the Lamed this future second person plural masculine occurs altogether twelve times. In ten instances it is simply וַלְכוּ and in two instances only it is with the paragogic Nun. Hence the Massorah safeguards its exceptional orthography. It is important to remark that it only applies to this future with Tere under the Lamed. Hence וַלְכוּ with Sheva in Deut. 6 14 is excluded from this Rubric. In the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text it is וַלְכוּ with paragogic Nun in both instances in Exod. 3 21, whilst in Deut. 6 24 it is without the Nun.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 59a, on Exod. 3 21, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 68a, on the same passage.

שָׁעִיה = § 375.

וַיֵּלְכוּ and I shall cause to walk, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190a, on Ezek. 36 12. In the received text, which is in accordance with most of the MSS., both instances are plene. In St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, however, it is וַיֵּלְכוּ defective in Isa. 42 16, which is corrected into וַיֵּלְכוּ by a second hand, whilst Cambridge Add. 465 has וַיֵּלְכוּ defective in the text in Ezek. 36 12.

שָׁעִי = § 376.

וַיֵּלְכוּ take away, is unique and is plene. That is, with Yod after the He. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 42a, on Exod. 2 9, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter heads this Rubric וַיֵּלְכוּ and gives as the second instance וַיֵּלְכוּ I will go (Micah 1 8) which is also with Yod plene from the root וַלְכוּ.

שָׁעִיז = § 377 a.

וַיֵּלְכוּ he shall lead, occurs twice. That is, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this Hiphil future third person singular masculine occurs and where it is the apocopated form וַלְכוּ.

This Rubric, which is designed to safeguard the two forms of this Hiphil future and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 267a, on Eccl. 10 20. As וַיֵּלְכוּ occurs twice only (Jerem. 39 7; Ezek. 12 13) and as וַלְכוּ does not occur in either of the two passages, it is manifestly a clerical error for וַיֵּלְכוּ Jerem. 32 5.

שָׁעִיז = § 377 b.

וַיֵּלְכוּ he shall lead, occurs twice, once defective, and once plene. Whilst the preceding Rubric distinguishes between the normal and apocopated forms of this Hiphil future, this Rubric safeguards the variation in the orthography of the normal form itself. In Jerem. 32 5 it is וַיֵּלְכוּ without the Yod, whilst in Eccl. 10 20 it is וַיֵּלְכוּ plene.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 167b, on Jerem. 32 5, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 355a, on Eccl. 10 20.

שָׁעִיח = § 378.

וַיֵּלְכוּ and he led, occurs four times in the Scriptures. As this Hiphil future third person singular masculine with Vav converse which occurs altogether four times, is differently spelt, being in three instances defective (2 Kings 6 19; 25 20; Jerem. 52 26) and once plene (Exod. 14 21), the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 43a, on Exod. 14 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 258b, on 2 Kings 25 20; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 102b, on 2 Kings 6 19; (IV) the same MS., fol. 118a, on 2 Kings 25 20; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 268a, on Jerem. 52 26; (VI) the printed Massorah, on Exod. 14 21, and (VII) the same on 2 Kings 25 20.

Lists III, IV, V and VII head this Rubric more correctly קָדַם בְּלִי וַיֵּלְכוּ, whilst List II has also at the end וַיֵּלְכוּ, thus specifying the first instance viz. Exod. 14 21 as plene. With the exception of List VI, which has at the end וַיֵּלְכוּ (Lament. 3 2) the other Lists take no notice of this instance with Pathach under the Lamed. When the Massorah Parva in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 52 26 remarks וַיֵּלְכוּ it includes the Lamentation instance.

שָׁעִיט = § 379.

וַיֵּלְכוּ and he led me, occurs three times and is defective. That is, without the characteristic Yod after the Lamed. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 292b, on Ezek. 40 24, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah, on Ezek. 47 6. As all the three instances occur in the same book, the heading ought properly to be וַיֵּלְכוּ.

שָׁעִיפ = § 380.

וַיֵּלְכוּ I will cause to go, or flow, occurs twice. That is, the normal form without being apocopated. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 187a, on Ezek. 32 14.

שָׁעִיא = § 381.

וַיֵּלְכוּ and I led or caused to go, occurs four times. This Hiphil future first person singular occurs altogether six times.

In two instances which constitute the preceding Rubric it is without the prefix Vav and has retained its normal form, whilst in the four instances with Vav conversive which constitute this Rubric, it is apocopated. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 181 a, on Deut. 29 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 109 b, on Amos 2 10; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 112 b, on Levit. 26 13; (IV) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 918, on Amos 2 10; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 17 b, on Josh. 24 3; (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 26 13, and (VII) the same on Josh. 24 3.

שׁוֹבֵי leading, or causing to go, begins a verse three times. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 325 b, on Job 12 17, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah, on the same passage. As this Hiphil participle occurs altogether three times only, and moreover as it begins the verse in each instance, the heading ought more properly to be שׁוֹבֵי בְּ.

שׁוֹבֵי - § 383 a.

שׁוֹבֵי. Followed by שׁוֹבֵי reed, sedge or Red it is always with Pathach because it is combined by Makeph viz. שׁוֹבֵי Red sea. In all other instances it is שׁוֹבֵי with Kametz. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Exod. 13 18.

שׁוֹבֵי - § 383 b.

שׁוֹבֵי sea, is always with Kametz except when it is in combination with שׁוֹבֵי. That is, whether in the absolute or construct this noun is always with Kametz under the Yod except when it is joined to שׁוֹבֵי. This form of the Massorah gives the same rule which is laid down in the preceding Rubric in different language. It too, does not occur in the printed Massorah and is from Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 8 9.

שׁוֹבֵי - § 384.

שׁוֹבֵי אֶרֶץ one sea, occurs twice. שׁוֹבֵי is four times followed by this cardinal number. In two instances which are recorded in the following Rubric, שׁוֹבֵי is with the prefix He, whilst in the two passages which constitute this Rubric, it is without the He. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Jerem. 52 20.

שׁוֹבֵי - § 385.

שׁוֹבֵי הַיָּם the one sea, occurs twice. On comparing the two instances which constitute this Rubric with the two recorded in the preceding Massorah, viz. 1 Kings 7 44 with 2 Chron. 4 15 and 2 Kings 25 16 with Jerem. 52 20, it will be seen that this variation in the same phrase occurs in the parallel passages. Hence the need for safeguarding them.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 118 a, on 2 Kings 25 16. It will be seen that whilst one School of Massorites safeguarded the passages in which this phrase is without the prefix He another School registered the instances in which it is with the prefix. In the Rubric which I have printed, the reference Jerem. 52 20 after the second instance, viz. שׁוֹבֵי הַיָּם should be 2 Kings 25 16.

שׁוֹבֵי and the sea, occurs six times in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the numerous instances where it is simply שׁוֹבֵי without the prefix Vav. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, where it occurs twice: (I) on 1 Kings 7 25, which I have printed, and (II) on Neh. 9 11.

Though both Lists emphatically state in their respective headings that there are six such instances only, there are seven. The first List omits 1 Kings 7 25 and the second records five only, omitting Josh. 23 4 and 1 Kings 7 25.

שׁוֹבֵי and the sea, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 116 b, on Micah 7 12, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 299 a, on Ps. 65 6, and (III) the printed Massorah, on Job 28 14.

שׁוֹבֵי - § 388.

שׁוֹבֵי like the sea, is four times with Dageah in the Scriptures. The design of this Rubric is to safeguard this trilateral with the preposition Caph and Pathach, against being mistaken for this trilateral with the preposition Beth and Pathach which occurs twenty-two times, since the two letters are almost identical in many MSS.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 67 b, on Jerem. 50 42, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 269 a, on Lament. 2 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 161 b, on Jerem. 6 23; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 242 b, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 210.

שׁוֹבֵי מִיָּם מֵיָּם from sea to sea, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 301 b, on Ps. 72 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 220 a, on Zech. 9 10, and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 311 a, on the same passage.

It is remarkable that List II emphatically states in the heading that this phrase occurs twice only, (ב) and records two only, omitting Amos 8 12 which according to this Massorah is שׁוֹבֵי מִיָּם.

שׁוֹבֵי - § 390.

שׁוֹבֵי to the sea, occurs seven times in this book. That is, in Joshua. With the local He, this noun occurs altogether twenty times in Joshua. In thirteen instances it is שׁוֹבֵי without the prefix He (5 1; 12 7; 15 4, 8, 10, 11; 16 3, 3, 8; 18 12, 15; 19 34; 22 7) and in seven only is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This protection is designed to safeguard the variations in the parallel passages where the two forms are promiscuously used. (Comp. 16 6 with 18 15; 16 8 with verse 3 &c.) as will be seen from the notes on different readings in 16 3, 6 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 148 a, on Josh. 15 12, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 12 a, on Josh. 16 6, and (III) the printed Massorah on Josh. 24 6. The latter heads this Rubric שׁוֹבֵי אֶרֶץ and records six only, omitting 15 12. But as this instance is given in both MS. Lists, its omission in the printed Massorah (List III) is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe.

שׁוֹבֵי and to the sea or westward, occurs three times. With the Vav conjunctive this noun with the local He occurs altogether six times. In three instances the Vav is with the normal Sheva (comp. שׁוֹבֵי Ezek. 48 10, 17, 21) and in the three which constitute this Rubric it is with Kametz which is due to the pausal accent. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in the graphic signs.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 148 b, on Josh. 15 46, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 126 a, on Zech. 14 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 11 b, on Josh. 15 46; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 312 a, on Zech. 14 4; (V) Orient. 2849, fol. 35 a, on Gen. 13 14, and (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

שׁוֹבֵי in the seas, is five times with Dageah in the Scriptures. That is, with Dageah in the Mem, in contradistinction to the forty-nine instances in which this quinqueliteral is שׁוֹבֵי, being the plural of ם.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 90 b, on Ezek. 32 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 217 b, on Ps. 135 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 187 a, on Ezek. 32 2;

(IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 288 b, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 1 22; (VI) the same on Levit. 11 9, and (VII) the same on Ezek. 32 2.

שָׁעִיר is twice defective in this form. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 36 24. It would seem that the Massorah regards both these instances as defective plurals of שָׁעִיר and that שָׁעִיר simply refers to the Tzere under the Yod in the first instance and to the Kametz in the second. The Rubric, however, emanates from one School of Massorites only. According to other Schools the reading in Numb. 6 5 exhibits the normal form שָׁעִיר plene, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. It is remarkable that the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew reads שָׁעִיר the Emim or giants, which is supported by Onkelos and the so-called Targum Jonathan.

שָׁעִיר = § 394.

שָׁעִיר the right, occurs seven times and is plene. That is, preceded by שֵׁנֶי שֵׁנוֹת shoulder. For this Rubric see below, letter ש, § 290.

שָׁעִיר = § 395.

שָׁעִיר Imla, occurs twice. This proper name occurs altogether four times. In two instances it ends with He (1 Kings 22 8, 9) and in the two which constitute this Rubric it is with Alpsh. As the two different spellings occur in the duplicate records, the Massorah safeguards this variation.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 96 b, on 1 Kings 22 8.

שָׁעִיר = § 396.

שָׁעִיר and I will place, or leave, occurs three times. By fixing the number at three, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading שָׁעִיר and I will blow, in Ezek. 22 20 which was the original reading and which is demanded by the context, as is shown in my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 294 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190 b, on Ezek. 37 14, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 22 20, and (III) the same on Ezek. 37 14.

שָׁעִיר and they placed, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, twice without the prefix Vav (1 Sam. 6 18; Amos 5 7) and twice with it (Ezek. 44 19; Ps. 17 14).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II. fol. 100 a, on Ezek. 44 19, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 38 b, on 1 Sam. 6 18; (III) the same MS., fol. 206 b, on Amos 5 7; (IV) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 6 18, and (V) the same on Ps. 17 14. Lists I, III and V alone give all the four instances. List II records the two only which are without the prefix with a separate heading and List V the two with the prefix Vav also with a separate heading.

שָׁעִיר = § 398.

שָׁעִיר and ye shall leave, occurs twice. That is, with Segol under the Tav, being the second person plural masculine, in contradistinction to this sexteliteral with Kametz under the Tav, viz. שָׁעִיר (Numb. 17 19) which is the second person singular masculine with the suffix third person plural masculine. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 126 a, on Josh. 4 3.

שָׁעִיר = § 399.

שָׁעִיר and lay, or place thou, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the apocopated form of this Hiphil imperative against the reading of the full form שָׁעִיר which is still preserved in the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text in Exod. 16 33. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 51 a, on Exod. 16 33, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 167 a, on Judg. 6 20.

תָּ = § 400.

תָּ leave, or let thou, occurs twice. That is, the imperative singular masculine with paragogic He. In the only other instance where it occurs without the prefix Vav, it is the apocopated form תָּ (Hosea 4 17). The two instances with the prefix Vav are recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 76 b, on Exod. 32 10, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 119 a, on the same passage.

תָּ = § 401 a.

תָּ and he left, is seven times with Dagesh. That is, with Puthach under the Yod, which is Massoretically called Dagesh, in contradistinction to the six instances in which it is תָּ with Kametz under the Yod. For this Rubric, see below, letter ת, § 136.

תָּ = § 401 b.

תָּ and he put him, occurs twice defective. The only other instance in which this Hiphil future third person singular with the suffix third person singular masculine with Vav conversive occurs, it is תָּ plene (Exod. 16 34).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 80 a, on Gen. 2 15, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 89 a, on 1 Kings 13 29.

תָּ = § 402.

תָּ. — Seven forms of the Hiphil are defective. That is, are without the characteristic Yod after the Nun. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 67 b, on 2 Sam. 16 11, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 174 a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah, on Levit. 24 12, and (IV) the same on 1 Kings 13 29.

Though all the four Lists coincide in stating that there are seven such defective instances, Lists I and II alone give identically the same expressions. Lists III and IV, however, which are also identical, make up this number differently. They omit Josh. 6 23, and give in its stead Levit. 24 12.

With regard to the omission of Josh. 6 23 in Lists III and IV this is supported by the best Standard Codices, which have it תָּ plene. So it is in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251, which has a Massorah on it תָּ. Still as Lists I and II, though emanating from different Schools and countries far apart, coincide in stating that it is defective, it is evident that these Lists are based upon a recension of the text which exhibited תָּ defective. Hence the conflicting Massorahs.

Though most of the MSS. which I have collated exhibit תָּ with the characteristic Yod after the Nun in Levit. 24 12 (so Orient. 4445; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251), yet Add. 21,160 not only reads תָּ without the Yod but has a Massorah on it תָּ, counting it as one of the seven defectives and it thus emphatically supports Lists III and IV. We have here again another instance of conflicting Massorahs which are due to their being based upon different recensions of the text.

תָּ thou shalt leave, occurs three times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. It will be seen that in the three instances without the prefix Vav it is the future second person singular masculine and that the one with the Vav conversive is the third person feminine. The Massorah, which has regard to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in sense, groups them together under one Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 853 b, on Eccl. 7 18, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 371 a, on Eccl. 10 4, and (III) the printed Massorah on Eccl. 7 18. The latter is headed תָּ which Massoretically denotes Puthach, in contradistinction to the two instances in which it is תָּ with Kametz under the Tav (Gen. 8 4; Numb. 11 26), being Kal future third person singular feminine from תָּ. This Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter ת, § 73.)

ת"ד = § 404.

ת"ד. — The Hiphil of נָדַד to such, occurs altogether fourteen times. In nine instances it is either without the first or second Yod and in these five instances it is with both Yods. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. By fixing the number at five, the Massorah militates against the recension which exhibits נָדַד with one Yod in Lament. 4 3, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 24a, on Isa. 49 23, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 22a, on Gen. 21 7; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 8a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 317b, on Lament. 4 3, and (V) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 21 7.

ת"ה. he founded her. occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, the Kal preterite singular masculine with the suffix third person singular feminine, in contradistinction to the only other instance where this quadriliteral occurs with this suffix and where it is ת"ה the Piel (1 Kings 16 34).

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 10b, on Isa. 23 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 112b, on Amos 9 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 128a, on Isa. 23 13; (IV) Add. 13,251, fol. 301a, on Amos 9 6; (V) the printed Massorah, on Isa. 23 13, and (VI) the same on Ps. 78 69.

ת"ו. thou hast founded them, occurs twice with Kametz. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 214b, on Ps. 119 152, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 316a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

ת"ז = § 407.

ת"ז. he hath founded, occurs four times. That is, with Chivch under the Yod, being the Piel preterite third person singular masculine, in contradistinction to this trilateral with Shurek under the Yod which is the Pual, and which also occurs four times, recorded in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 7b, on Isa. 14 32, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 244a, on 1 Chron. 9 22; (IV) Cambridge Add. 465, on Isa. 28 16; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Esther 1 8; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 277, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 222. Lists III and V give the first mnemonic sign and List IV gives the second.

ת"ח = § 408.

ת"ח. it was founded, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, with Shurek under the Yod, being the Pual preterite, in contradistinction to ת"ח the Piel recorded in the preceding Rubric. Though one of the instances ת"ח with Kametz under the Samech (Ezra 3 6), which is due to its pausal accent Soph-Pasuk, the Massorah leaves this variation in its graphic signs unnoticed since its design is simply to separate the Pual from the Piel.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS., and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 221b, on 1 Kings 6 37, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Hag. 2 18; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 217a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 417a, on Ezra 3 6; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 276, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 220. It is remarkable that Lists IV and V give here the first mnemonic sign which Lists III and V of the preceding Rubric give for that Massorah.

ת"ט = § 409.

ת"ט. — The nouns נָסַח counsel, and יְסֻד foundation, as well as the infinitive of נָסַח to found, without and with the prefixes and suffixes, are in six instances without the Vav after the Samech. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 49 6.

By fixing the number at six, this Massorah militates against the recension of the text which reads יְסֻד plene in Ezek. 13 14, as is attested by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916. It moreover excludes the reading יְסֻדֵי without the Vav after the Samech in Ezek. 30 4, which is that of another recension and which is exhibited in Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Orient. 2626—28 and in several of the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

ת"י = § 410.

ת"י. occurs twice in the Scriptures and is plene and in two different senses. That is, in the Psalms (137 7) it denotes the foundation, whilst in Chronicles (2 Chron. 23 5), according to the Massorah which embodies the ancient traditional sense, it signifies the departure, as it is called in the parallel passage of the duplicate record in 2 Kings 11 6. This ת"י = ת"י according to tradition, is the eastern gate which was so called because those who were ritually defiled were here bidden to go back or depart and not enter the temple.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 218b, on Ps. 137 7, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 162b, on 2 Chron. 23 5.

ת"יא = § 411.

ת"יא. her foundation, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 270a, on Lament. 4 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 185b, on Ezek. 30 4; (III) the same MS., fol. 357b, on Lament. 4 11, and (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 283a, on Ezek. 30 4.

Though Lists I and IV do not mention any variation in the orthography of the two instances which constitute this Rubric, yet Lists II and III not only state in their respective headings that one is plene and one defective (כִּי אֵין מֵלֵךְ אֵין מֵלֵךְ), but List III declares that the Lamentation instance is defective (חִי מֵלֵךְ). This is in harmony with § 409 where it is given as one of the six defectives. Hence it is יְסֻדֵי in Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,160. According to another recension, however, it is יְסֻדֵי. This is exhibited in Harley 5710—11, Add. 15,250, thus conflicting with the statement in § 409.

The MSS. vary still more in the reading of the Ezekiel instance. It is יְסֻדֵי with both Vavs plene in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Add. 15,451. יְסֻדֵי without the first Vav, but with the second in Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 and יְסֻדֵי with the first Vav, but without the second, in Harley 5710—11. For the variations in the early editions see the notes on Ezek. 30 4 in my edition of the Bible.

ת"יב = § 412.

ת"יב. and he shall add, occurs six times. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 82b, on Levit. 27 15. As all the six instances are restricted to the Pentateuch, the heading ought more properly to be וְיָבִיא.

ת"יג = § 413.

ת"יג. thou hast increased, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I have collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 11b, on Isa. 26 15, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 154b, on 2 Chron. 9 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 129a, on Isa. 26 15; and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on 2 Chron. 9 6.

ת"יד = § 414.

ת"יד. and he shall be added, occurs three times in the Scriptures. By fixing the number at three, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the reading ת"יד the feminine in Numb. 36 3 in harmony with the parallel passage in the following verse, as it is the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

Of this Rubric, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 247a, on Prov. 11 24, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 340b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 361a, also on the same.

passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 64 a, on Exod. 1 10; (V) the same MS., fol. 252 a, on Numb. 36 3; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 1 10, and (VII) the same on Prov. 11 24. The addition at the end of the List, which I have printed (List I), viz. ב מטרק פה ירד קמץ ב מטרק פה ירד קמץ is manifestly a clerical error for קמץ פה ירד קמץ two are with Pathach under the Samech and one with Kametz, as the other Lists give it. The Kametz instance (Prov. 11 24) is the participle.

וּמְסַפֵּחַ = § 415.

וּמְסַפֵּחַ and I will add, or have added, occurs four times. Of the four instances in which this Hiphil pretorite with the prefix Vav occurs, the Vav is in two conversive and hence the accent is on the ultima (2 Kings 20 6; Ps. 71 14) and in two the Vav is conjunctive and hence the accent is on the penultima (Eccl. 1 16; 2 9). Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in the accents, which indicates the difference in sense.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 254 a, on 2 Kings 20 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 194 b, on Ps. 71 14; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 263 a, on Eccl. 1 16; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 114 a, on 2 Kings 20 6; (V) the same MS., fol. 351 a, on Eccl. 1 16; (VI) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 20 6, and (VII) the same on Ps. 71 14. List III records the two Milal instances only in Ecclesiastes with a separate heading, viz. ב בנתי. List VI, which enumerates the two Ecclesiastes instances first and the Kings' and Psalms' instances second, describes the two latter as Milal (ב בנתי מליל). But this is manifestly due to the erroneous inversion of the catchwords in the Rubric, which is not only attested by the MS. Lists, but by the second List which Jacob b. Chayim himself gives in the printed Massorah (List VII).

וּמְסַפֵּחַ he shall add, is sixteen times entirely plene. This Hiphil future third person singular masculine occurs altogether thirty-three times. To these are to be added the two instances in which it is the Kal participle (vide infra, § 418), thus making in all thirty-five. It is spelt in three different ways, viz. (1) וּמְסַפֵּחַ entirely plene, that is, both with Vav after the Yod and Yod after the Samech; (2) וּמְסַפֵּחַ with Vav after the Yod, but without Yod after the Samech, and (3) וּמְסַפֵּחַ without Vav after the Yod and with Yod after the Samech. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. In this Rubric the Massorah registers the sixteen instances in which this Hiphil is entirely plene.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,451, fol. 225 a, on 1 Kings 2 23, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 229. The latter which heads this Rubric וּמְסַפֵּחַ ירד מלי is corrupt. For though it duly records fourteen instances, it omits five which are given in List I, viz. 1 Sam. 3 17; 2 Sam. 7 20; Isa. 10 20; 52 9; Lament. 4 22, and makes up the fourteen by giving two which are defective (Prov. 16 23; Ruth 1 17) and one which is וּמְסַפֵּחַ with the prefix Vav (Eccl. 1 18 a). There are, therefore, eleven instances only in this List which are identical with those in List I.

וּמְסַפֵּחַ he shall add, is fourteen times thus written. That is, without the Vav after the Yod. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 316 b, on Ps. 120 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 342 a, on Prov. 16 21; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 362 b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 3 35.

Though Lists I and II emphatically state in their respective headings that there are fourteen such instances, they record thirteen only, omitting Job 34 37, which is duly given in List IV. The catchwords וּמְסַפֵּחַ ירד מלי, which I have queried and for which I have given no reference are evidently a scribal error and ought to be וּמְסַפֵּחַ ירד מלי 2 Sam. 3 35. It is remarkable that the same mistake occurs in List II. Though List III is also headed וּמְסַפֵּחַ ירד מלי it records ten only. It omits all the three instances in Samuel as well as Job 34 37. The latter as we have seen, is also omitted in Lists I and II. There is, however, another instance of this Hiphil future third person singular masculine which is neither recorded in the List of plenes nor in that of the defectives, viz. Ruth 1 17. In Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 and Add. 21,160 it is וּמְסַפֵּחַ plene, whilst in Orient. 2201 second hand and Harley 5710-11 it is וּמְסַפֵּחַ defective. Is this the reason why it is excluded from both Rubrics?

Throughout the Law it is וּמְסַפֵּחַ except twice. In the Pentateuch where this Hiphil future third person singular masculine occurs ten times it is in eight instances the apocopated form with Tzere under the Samech (Gen. 30 24; Exod. 8 25; Levit. 5 16, 24; 27 81; Numb. 5 7; 22 19; Deut. 1 11) and in two instances only is it the regular form. Hence the Massorah safeguards here the full form.

And throughout the Prophets and Hagiographa it is likewise the full form וּמְסַפֵּחַ or וּמְסַפֵּחַ with Chirek under the Samech except in four instances where it is וּמְסַפֵּחַ the apocopated form with Tzere. In these two divisions of the Bible the reverse is the case. Here where this Hiphil future occurs altogether about thirty-six times the full form is the rule and the apocopated form the exception. The former occurs about thirty-one times and the latter five times only. Here therefore the Massorah safeguards the apocopated form.

This part of the Rubric is given in Lists I, II and III but not in the printed Massorah (List IV). It is also given as a separate Massorah. (Vide supra, § 419.)

וּמְסַפֵּחַ = § 418.

וּמְסַפֵּחַ is five times so written. That is, without Yod after the Samech. Though two of the instances are the Kal participle (Isa. 29 14; 38 5) and three the Hiphil future, yet they are grouped together under one Rubric because the Massorah, according to its usual method, has regard to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in the sense.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 130 b, on Isa. 29 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 135 a, on Isa. 38 5; (III) the same MS., fol. 340 a, on Prov. 10 22; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 288 b, on Isa. 38 5; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 388 b, on Prov. 10 22; (VI) the printed Massorah on Isa. 29 14, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 239.

All the seven Lists give identically the same five instances and thus include 1 Sam. 14 44, which is given in § 416 as one of the instances which are וּמְסַפֵּחַ entirely plene. Moreover both the Isaiah instances are plene in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 and it is only against the second instance that a later Nakdan remarked וּמְסַפֵּחַ הוּא בנתי. We have here, therefore, another instance of conflicting Massorahs which are due to different recensions of the text.

וּמְסַפֵּחַ = § 419.

וּמְסַפֵּחַ he shall add, is always so in the Pentateuch except twice &c. This Rubric constitutes the second part of § 417 where it is duly explained. Of this separate form I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 137 a, on Deut. 25 3, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 211 a, on Ps. 115 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 313 b, on the same passage; (IV) Orient. 2348, fol. 147 a, on Deut. 25 3; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 25, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 239.

וּמְסַפֵּחַ = § 420a.

וּמְסַפֵּחַ he shall add, is twice plene ... once in the Law and once in the Hagiographa and wherever it is a proper name it is likewise so. This apocopated future occurs altogether eleven times. (Vide supra § 417.) According to this Rubric it is וּמְסַפֵּחַ defective in nine instances and plene in two only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. By fixing the number at two, and moreover by emphatically declaring that one occurs in the Pentateuch and one in the Hagiographa, this Massorah excludes the instance in the Prophets, viz. Joel 2 2, which is plene in the received text.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 84 b, on Levit. 5 16, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 94 b, on the same passage. Both Lists coincide in stating that there are two such instances only and both give identically the same passages. וּמְסַפֵּחַ בנתי at the end is a clerical error for בנתי.

וּמְסַפֵּחַ = § 420b.

וּמְסַפֵּחַ is three times plene denoting to add. That is, as apocopated Hiphil future third person singular masculine apart from the 143 instances in which this quadriliteral is a proper name.

Of this form of the Rubric I collated five Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 65 b, on Levit. 5 16, which I have printed;

(II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 204 a, on Joel 2 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 251 a, on 1 Chron. 21 3; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 67 b, on Levit. 5 16, and (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 142 b, on the same passage. As all these Lists coincide in stating that there are three plene instances and not only give Joel 2 2 as one of the three, but as List II is on this very passage, it is evident that here again the conflicting Massorahs are due to their being based upon different recensions of the text.

תכ"א = § 421.

תכ"א occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, the plene form of the apocoped future. This Rubric with the mnemonic sign is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 108 a, on Joel 2 2. It is another form of § 419 and serves to show how differently the same materials were formulated by the different Massoretic Schools.

תכ"ב = § 422.

תכ"ב he shall add, is five times defective in the sense of adding. That is, in contradistinction to the instances in which this apocoped future first person singular masculine is תכ"ב with Vav plene recorded in § 420 b and § 421.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 20 a, on Gen. 30 24, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 22 a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 43 a, on Exod. 8 25, and (IV) the same MS., fol. 376 a, on Joel 2 2. This apocoped future occurs altogether twelve times, eleven times without the prefix Vav and once with it. According to the second part of Rubric 417 as well as § 419 it is four times plene including the solitary instance with the prefix Vav. This leaves eight defectives, whereas the Lists before us emphatically state in their respective headings that there are five only and all the four Lists coincide in recording identically the same five instances. They not only omit four instances, viz. Levit. 27 31; Numb. 5 27; Deut. 1 11; Ps. 115 14 but record one, viz. Joel 2 2, which according to those Lists is plene. These conflicting Massorahs must, therefore, be due to their being based upon different recensions of the text.

תכ"ג he shall add, occurs eleven times, three times plene and eight defective. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 65 a, on Levit. 5 16, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 89 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 30 24.

Whilst § 420 records the plenes of this apocoped future and § 422 the defectives, this Rubric gives the number of times it occurs altogether throughout the Scriptures. List I, which I have printed and which fixes the number at eleven, emphatically declares that three only are plene and eight defective, וְהוֹסֵף יֵשׁ עָלָיו is manifestly a clerical error for וְהוֹסֵף, though it records ten only. As the other two Lists duly record eleven it is evident that the omission of the eleventh instance, viz. 1 Chron. 21 3, which the other Lists give, is due to the carelessness of the Scribe. From its fixing the number of defectives at eight it is evident that this Rubric is based upon the recension of the text which exhibited this number. From the same recension is List III which is headed וְהוֹסֵף יֵשׁ עָלָיו אֲשֶׁר נִמְנָה וְהוֹסֵף יֵשׁ עָלָיו and which gives Levit. 5 16 twice, once by the catchwords וְהוֹסֵף יֵשׁ עָלָיו which ought to be וְהוֹסֵף יֵשׁ עָלָיו וְהוֹסֵף יֵשׁ עָלָיו and once וְהוֹסֵף יֵשׁ עָלָיו.

List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, is simply headed וְהוֹסֵף יֵשׁ עָלָיו and though it records identically the same eleven instances as Lists I and III it takes no notice whatever of the fact that some are plene and some defective. Hence it is impossible to say on which recension of the text this Massorah is based.

תכ"ד is defective throughout the Law, except once. As this apocoped future which occurs altogether eight times in the Pentateuch is in seven instances defective (Gen. 30 24; Exod. 8 25; Levit. 5 24; 27 31; Numb. 5 7; 22 19; Deut. 1 11) and once only plene, the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the solitary exception. This Rubric is based upon the same recension as the preceding one. According to the recension exhibited in § 422 there are four plene instances in the Pentateuch, viz. Levit. 5 16; 27 31; Numb. 5 7; Deut. 1 11.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 45 a, on Gen. 30 24, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 55 a, on the same passage.

תכ"ה = § 425.

תכ"ה occurs ten times, nine times it is the proper name Joseph with the prefix Vav and once it is the Hiphil future third person masculine with the prefix Vav denoting and he shall add. This Rubric illustrates once more the carelessness of the Scribes. Though the heading emphatically states that there are altogether ten such instances, the List itself records seven only, omitting three, viz. Gen. 41 46; 42 6; 44 4. For a correct form of this Rubric see above § 269.

תכ"ו = § 426.

תכ"ו and he shall add, or increase, occurs three times, twice with the accent on the penultima and once on the ultima. With the accent on the ultima it is תכ"ו with Tzere (2 Sam. 24 3) and on the penultima it is תכ"ו with Segol (Prov. 1 5; 9 9).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 336 a, on Prov. 1 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 74 a, on 2 Sam. 24 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 339 b, on Prov. 9 9; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 358 a, on Prov. 1 5, and (V) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 24 3. Lists II and III form the second part of Rubrics 269 and 426 under the general heading וְהוֹסֵף יֵשׁ עָלָיו.

תכ"ז and he added, or again, is seven times plene. This Hiphil future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, occurs altogether twenty-nine times apart from the Keri (1 Sam. 18 28). It is defective in twenty-two instances and plene in seven only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. By fixing the number at seven the Massorah militates against the recension of the text, which exhibits תכ"ז plene also in Isa. 8 5 in conformity with 7 10, as is attested by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 101 a, on Numb. 22 26, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 142 b, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 27 a, on Judg. 11 14; (IV) the same MS., fol. 51 a, on 1 Sam. 23 4; (V) the same MS., fol. 274 b, on 2 Chron. 28 22; (VI) the printed Massorah on Numb. 22 26, and (VII) the same on 1 Kings 16 33. List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric, indicates its design by the addition at the end, viz. וְהוֹסֵף יֵשׁ עָלָיו כְּחֵן.

תכ"ח and he added, or again, is twenty-six times defective. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,451, fol. 222 a, on 2 Sam. 24 1. We have seen in the preceding Rubric that this Hiphil future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive occurs altogether twenty-nine times. The statement, therefore, in the heading of this Rubric that it is twenty-six times defective leaves three plenes only. This is not only in conflict with all the Lists of the preceding Rubric, but against the Rubric in this very MS. which emphatically states fol. 171 b, on Judg. 11 14 that there are seven plenes and gives identically the same seven instances recorded in the seven Lists of the preceding Massorah. There can, therefore, be no doubt that the design of this Massorah is to record all the twenty-nine instances in which this Hiphil forms occurs, including both the plenes and defectives. This moreover is corroborated by the fact that with one exception it includes all the plenes which constitute the preceding Massorah. As is not infrequently the case an ignorant Nakdan added in the heading the vicious expression וְהוֹסֵף יֵשׁ עָלָיו. It will be seen that this Rubric records twenty-six instances only instead of twenty-nine and that it omits the following three 1 Sam. 9 8; Isa. 8 5 and Dan. 10 18. But the omission of several instances in long Lists is of common occurrence and is due to the exhaustion of the prescribed number of lines for the Massorah. The instructive part, however, connected with the heading is the fact that a later Scribe who found that the List recorded twenty-six instances only, altered the original כְּחֵן into כִּי to agree with the recorded number.

תבש thou shalt, or she shall add, or increase, is three times without the Yod. This Hiphil future, which is both second person singular masculine and third person singular feminine and which occurs altogether thirteen times, is spelt in four different ways: (1) תבש entirely defective, that is, without Vav after the Tav and without the characteristic Yod after the Samech; (2) תבש with Vav, but without the Yod; (3) תבש without the Vav, but with Yod, and (4) תבש entirely plene, that is, both with Vav and Yod. Hence this Rubric safeguards one of the several spellings.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 253 b, on Prov. 23 28, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 190 a, on Ezek. 36 12; (III) the same MS., fol. 845 a, on Prov. 23 28; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah, on Ezek. 36 12. Accordingly Job 20 9, which is תבש without Yod in my edition of the Bible, is not one of these three instances and ought to be תבש as it is in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 21,160.

תיל occurs thirteen times. Of this Rubric, which records all the thirteen instances, I have found two Lists only, one in MS. and one printed: (I) the printed Massorah, on Exod. 11 6, which I have printed, and (II) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, § 25, margin.

List I from which the fourth line, viz. קר מה תבש = Job 38 11, has inadvertently dropped out of the text, is hopelessly confused. According to Frensdorff's emendation of it (Massoretisches Wörterbuch p. 84, Note 5) תבש is in its wrong place and belongs to the three תבש instances, תבש, which is also in the wrong place should be after תבש and תבש refers to the three instances which follow תבש. This yields one instance in which it is תבש entirely defective (Exod. 11 6); three instances in which it is תבש with Vav plene and Yod defective (Ezek. 36 12; Prov. 19 19; 23 38), seven in which it is תבש with Vav defective and Yod plene (Deut. 28 68; Isa. 24 20; Amos 5 2; Ps. 61 7; Prov. 10 27; Job 20 9; 38 11) and two in which it is תבש entirely plene (Amos 7 13; 1 Chron. 22 14). This emendation, however, is in conflict with the following Massorah, which emphatically states that there are three instances only where it is תבש. Moreover it does not account for Ezek. 36 12 being given twice by two different catchwords.

List II, which is also headed תבש, records twelve only omitting 1 Chron. 22 14. But this omission is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe. It makes no reference whatever to the variations in its orthography.

תליא is three times thus written. That is, with Vav defective and Yod plene. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 190 b, on Deut. 28 68.

It is by the combination of this Rubric with § 429 that we are enabled to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion with regard to the precise passages in which the several variations occur. We have seen that the thirteen instances of this Hiphil future exhibit four forms: (1) תבש Exod. 11 6, which is entirely defective and about which there is a unanimity in the MSS.; (2) תבש with Vav, but without Yod of which there are three instances duly safeguarded in § 429, and (3) תבש without Vav, but with Yod recorded in the Rubric before us. This accounts for seven out of the thirteen instances. As these seven exhaust all the possible variations in the orthography of this Hiphil future, it is evident that the remaining six exhibit the normal form (4) תבש, viz. Amos 5 2; 7 13; Ps. 61 7; Prov. 10 27; Job 20 9; 1 Chron. 22 14. This shows the corruption of Jacob b. Chayim's printed Massorah as exhibited in the preceding Rubric and the untenableness of Frensdorff's emendation.

תליב = § 432.

תליב thou shalt add, increase or gather, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, with Tere under the Samech. Though two of these instances are the apocopated future Hiphil of תבש (Gen. 4 12; Deut. 13 1) and one is the Kal future of תבש instead of תבש (Ps. 104 29), yet the Massorah which has regard to the identity of the spelling only, irrespective of the difference in the sense, according to its method groups them together in the same Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 206 b, on Ps. 104 29, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 310 a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 338 b, also on the same passage; (IV) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, § 25; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 386 b, on Ps. 104 29; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 31 a, on Gen. 4 12; (VII) Paris Ochl. Ve-Ochl. supplements, and (VIII) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 4 12. Lists IV, V and VII alone give the mnemonic sign. The printed Massorah (List VIII) heads this Rubric תבש תליב, calling Tere Milra.

תליג thou shalt add, increase or gather, occurs three times. This Rubric, which is another recension of the preceding one and which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 81 a, on Exod. 10 28.

On comparing it with the preceding Rubric it will be seen that whilst the former gives Deut. 13 1 as one of the three instances in which the Samech is with Tere this Rubric gives Exod. 10 28. These two conflicting Massorahs must therefore be due to their being based upon different recensions of the text.

תליד = § 434.

תליד thou shalt add, or increase, is three times plene in this form. That is, this apocopated Hiphil future is three times plene with three different graphic signs and with the accent on the penultima. In Exod. 10 28 it is תליד with Tere under the Samech according to the preceding Rubric. In Deut. 3 26 it is תליד with Segol and in Prov. 30 6 it is תליד with Sheva. תליד Job 40 32, which is another plene instance also with a different graphic sign, is omitted because it is with the accent on the ultima. תליד, in the heading denotes here the variations in the graphic signs.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 259 b, on Deut. 3 26, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 10 28, and (III) the same on Deut. 3 26.

By declaring that all the three instances are plene, this Massorah not only defends the plene reading תליד in Exod. 10 28 which is still preserved in the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, but militates against the School of textual redactors which exhibit תליד defective in Deut. 3 26 and against the Eastern reading תליד in Prov. 30 6, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

List II is headed תליד תליד תליד תליד. It is thus restricted to the two instances in the Pentateuch and emphasises the fact that they are both with the accent on the penultima and that one is plene and one defective. But though it does not state which of the two instances is defective, it is evident that the first, viz. Exod. 10 28 is the defective. The conflict between this Rubric and the preceding one, as usual, is due to their being based upon two different recensions of the text.

List III is headed תליד תליד תליד תליד and gives Deut. 3 26 and 13 1 as the two plene instances. It not only omits Prov. 30 6, but gives Deut. 13 1, which is defective in the textus receptus and is with Tere, as one of the two instances.

תליה and she added, is three times plene. That is, in contradistinction to the other two instances in which this Hiphil future third person singular feminine with Vav conversive occurs where it is defective, recorded in the following Rubric. Here the Massorah, contrary to its usual method, safeguards the majority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated seven Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 187 a, on 1 Sam. 19 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 84 b, on Ezek. 23 14; (III) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 274 b, on Esther 8 3; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181 b, on Ezek. 23 14; (V) the same MS., fol. 382 a, on Esther 8 3; (VI) Add. 15,250, fol. 282 a, on Ezek. 23 14, and (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 312 b, on Esther 8 3. None of these Lists notice the fact that all the three instances begin a verse.

התוסף and she added, occurs five times at the beginning of the verse, it is three times plene and twice defective. Whilst the preceding Rubric simply safeguards the plene instances, this Rubric emphasises the fact that all the five instances, the three plenes as well as the two defectives, begin a verse.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, where it occurs twice: (I) on Gen. 38 5, which I have printed, and (II) on Ezek. 23 14.

תוסיפי thou shalt add, or increase, occurs twice. That is, with the accent on the ultima. In the other two instances in which this Hiphil future second person singular feminine occurs the accent is on the penultima (Isa. 23 12; 51 22). As all the four instances occur in the same book, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its accents. Even in the solitary instance in which the defective form of this Hiphil future occurs outside Isaiah, it is also with the accent on the penultimate (Zeph. 3 11). This makes the ultimates in the minority which is an additional reason why they are here safeguarded.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 139 a, on Isa. 47 1. By the omission of the qualifying expression מליז from the heading, this Rubric is apparently obscure. But the Massorah on this passage in this very MS. remarks against it, ב. בבעי. Still more explicit is the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 which is מליז and the printed Massorah Parva on Isa. 47 5, viz. ב. בבעי מליז ובעני.

אסף I will add, is three times defective. This Hiphil future first person singular, which occurs altogether nineteen times, is spelt in three different ways: (1) אסף entirely defective, that is, without both Vav and Yod; (2) אסף without Vav, but with Yod, and (3) אסף entirely plene that is, with both Vav and Yod. The third is the normal spelling. In this form it occurs ten times, viz. Josh. 7 12; Judg. 2 21; 10 13; Hosea 1 6; Amos 7 8; 8 2; Jonah 2 5; Prov. 23 85; Job 40 5; 2 Chron. 10 11. The entirely defectives which constitute this Rubric are three only. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional orthography and thus militates against the recension of the text in which all the three instances are אסף with Vav, but without Yod, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 41 a, on Exod. 10 29, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 81 a, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 8 21, and (IV) the same on Exod. 10 29. As all the three instances are restricted to the Pentateuch, the heading ought more properly to be י. י. י. ויבאר.

אוסף I will add, is seven times defective in all the Scriptures. That is, partially defective, being without the Vav, but with the Yod. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated seven Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 155 b, on 2 Chron. 10 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 87 b, on 1 Kings 12 11; (III) the same MS., fol. 114 b, on 2 Kings 21 8; (IV) the same MS., fol. 263 b, on 2 Chron. 10 11; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 213 a, on the same passage; (VI) the same MS., fol. 333 a, on 2 Chron. 10 11, and (VII) Add. 21,160, fol. 81 a, on Exod. 10 29.

The List which I have printed (List I), which is headed י and which records seven such instances includes יוסף the one with the prefix He (Judg. 20 28). The other Lists are headed י and are restricted to the six instances without this prefix. They all omit the parallel passage, 2 Chron. 10 11, which I have given with 1 Kings 12 11 to רעבים. In my edition of the Bible, however, I have אסף without Vav in 2 Chron. 10 11 in accordance with the following Standard Codices: Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 though it is not included as one of the defective instances in this Massorah.

אסיה is six times so written. That is, without Vav after the Aleph. This recension of the Rubric is from Orient. 1471, fol. 191 b, on 1 Kings 12 11. It registers both kinds of defectives, the one registered in § 437 and the six defectives recorded in the preceding recension. It emphatically excludes 2 Chron. 10 11. By the addition יוסף it indicates the design of this Massorah.

It is remarkable that the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 52 a, on Exod. 10 29 heads this Massorah יוסף and records the complete List of the nineteen instances in which this Hiphil future first person singular occurs without the slightest reference to the fact that any of them are differently spelt.

תליט - § 439.

האוסף shall I add, or again, occurs twice . . . plene in the first instance and defective in the second. Though with the prefix He this Hiphil future first person singular occurs altogether twice only, yet it varies in its spelling within a few verses, being in the first instance entirely plene, that is, both with Vav and Yod and immediately after without the Yod. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. This Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 33 b, on Judg. 20 23.

תליט - § 440.

אסף I will add, or again, occurs three times in the Scriptures. This Hiphil future first person singular occurs altogether twenty-two times. In nineteen instances it is with the normal Chirek under the Samech (vide supra § 437) and in three only is it with Tere being the apocopated form אסף. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional form.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following eight only, four in MSS. and four printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 73 a, on Ezek. 5 16, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 114 b, on Deut. 18 16; (III) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 25; (IV) the same MS. II, § 291; (V) the printed Massorah on Deut. 18 16; (VI) the same on Ezek. 5 16; (VII) the same on Hosea 9 15, and (VIII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 238. The mnemonic sign is given with Lists V in the Massorah Parva; VI and VII and without the List in Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 106 a, on Hosea 9 15, and the Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 661.

The MS. Lists do not state that there is any variation in the orthography of this form of the Hiphil. It is the printed Lists (V, VI, VII, VIII), which emphatically declare in their respective headings that two are defective, viz. Deut. 18 16; Ezek. 5 16 and that the third, viz. Hosea 9 15 is plene. This, however, represents the recension of one School of textual redactors only, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, which reads אסף in Deut. 18 16; by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, which has אסף in Ezek. 15 16 and אסף in Hosea 9 15 first hand, with the Massorah against it by a later Nakdan and by the Standard Codex Harley 5710-11, which reads אסף in Ezek. 5 16. Lists VI, VII and VIII indicate the Tere under the Samech in their respective headings by the expression מליז (ב. ב. ב. ב.), as in § 432.

יוסף they shall add, or increase, is four times so written. This Hiphil future third person plural masculine, which occurs altogether ten times, is spelt in five different ways: (1) יוסף entirely defective, that is, both without Vav and without the characteristic Yod; (2) יוסף with Vav but without Yod; (3) יוסף with Vav and without Yod but with paragoric Nun; (4) יוסף without Vav but with Yod, and (5) יוסף entirely plene, that is both with Vav and Yod. Though the spelling יוסף, which is here indicated by No. 2, occurs four times and thus constitutes the majority, yet the Massorah, contrary to its usual method, safeguards the rule in this Rubric.

Of this Rubric, which simply records the instances without the characteristic Yod and which does not occur in this form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 107 a, on Hosea 13 2, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 357 b, on Lament. 4 15.

Like many other Massorahs, however, this Rubric is based upon the recension of one School of textual redactors only. This is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, which reads יוסף entirely plene in Deut. 13 12 and by Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250; Add. 21,160, which are some of the best Standard Codices and which read יוסף entirely plene in Lament. 4 15.

יִשְׁפַּע is four times thus written. That is, with Vav plene and Yod defective. This Massorah is an expansion of the preceding one. It safeguards four of the five variations in this Hiphil future third person singular masculine. The one variety not indicated is the solitary instance with paragodic Nun (יִשְׁפַּע 1 Kings 19 2) marked by me as No. 3 in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 131 a, on Deut. 13 12, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 141 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 20 10. Lists I and II coincide in giving the same instances in identically the same order. They are based upon the same recension of the text as § 441 a. The printed Massorah, however, (List III) is different. Though it registers the same four instances for יִשְׁפַּע without Yod, it gives two for יִשְׁפַּע without Vav, but with Yod (2 Sam. 7 10; Jerem. 31 12) instead of one (2 Sam. 7 10) and two only for יִשְׁפַּע entirely plene (1 Chron. 17 9; Prov. 3 2). It will thus be seen that the Jeremiah instance which the other two Lists give as one of the three plenes, is in this List given as one of two without Vav.

יִשְׁפַּע is four times thus written. That is, with Vav, but without Yod. This Rubric, which is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 208 a, on Hosea 13 2, exhibits the same recension as Lists I and II in § 441 b. It is of importance to the study of the Massorah inasmuch as it demonstrates that the different Massoretic Schools elaborated the same materials differently. Like those two Lists, it does not include the solitary instance with the paragodic Nun (1 Kings 19 2), but unlike the two Lists it adds at the end (ישא יסמו), that in all the Scriptures apart from the passages recorded it is doubly defective. The addition, however, which is also given at the end of List III in § 441 b, is misleading since it implies that this form occurs several times, whereas it is unique and is rightly given as such in the preceding form of this Rubric. יִשְׁפַּע after the catchwords לראובן ענה should be יִשְׁפַּע, indicating the only instance in which it is without Vav, but with Yod.

תמ"ד = § 442.

יִשְׁפַּע is three times plene. That is, entirely plene, being with both Vav and Yod. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 256 a, on Jerem. 31 12, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Prov. 3 2.

On comparing this separate List with the latter part of § 441 b and § 441 c, where it forms a constituent part of those Rubrics and where the three plenes are also recorded, it will be seen that there Prov. 3 2 is given as one of the three plenes, whereas here 2 Sam. 7 10 is given in its stead. These conflicting Massorahs again show that they are based upon different recensions of the text.

The printed Massorah (List II) is remarkable. Though it emphatically states in the heading that it is plene in two instances only, in accordance with the recension of § 441 b as printed by Jacob b. Chayim himself, it records three. Jacob b. Chayim adds here Jerem. 31 12, which in that recension is expressly given as one of two instances where it is יִשְׁפַּע with Vav defective. He says that the recension which he printed on 1 Kings 20 10 appears to him incorrect, because all the MSS. which he had seen state יִשְׁפַּע is three times plene and that they include Jerem. 31 12 as one of the three. He, however, leaves the heading of the Rubric and the contents to contradict each other.

ויסמו ב' מל' ויסמו ולא יסמו בני עולה דר"ת. ולא יסמו לראובן. כי אך יסמו. ועין במלכים א' ט"ז ב' כי יש נראה טעות כי בכל הספרים כתיב יסמו ב' מל' דמל' ויש נסמו כי ונסמו ולא יסמו לראובן ענה אותם התפרים וי"ו ע"ש.

תמ"ה = § 443.

יִשְׁפַּע and they added, is in two instances so written. That is, with Vav plene and without the characteristic Yod. This Hiphil future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, occurs altogether eleven times. The full List of these passages is duly given in the printed Massorah on Gen. 37 5. These eleven instances, however, exhibit no fewer than four variations in the orthography of this expression, viz. (1) יִשְׁפַּע entirely defective that is, without Vav after the Yod and without the characteristic Yod after the Samech; (2) יִשְׁפַּע without Vav but with Yod; (3) יִשְׁפַּע with Vav but without Yod, and (4) יִשְׁפַּע entirely plene, that is both with Vav and Yod. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its spelling. The Rubric before us states that יִשְׁפַּע with Vav but without Yod, which I have marked as variety No. 3, occurs twice.

In this separate form this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 24 b, on Gen. 37 5.

יִשְׁפַּע is four times so written. That is, without Vav but with the characteristic Yod, which is marked by me as variety No. 2.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 139 b, on 1 Chron. 14 13, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 26 b, on Judg. 10 6; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 188 b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 87 b, on Gen. 37 5, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 280.

List I. — It will be seen that this List gives the orthography of three varieties, viz. יִשְׁפַּע without Vav but with Yod which occurs four times; יִשְׁפַּע with Vav but without Yod, which occurs twice and which constitutes the preceding separate Massorah, and יִשְׁפַּע the solitary instance which is entirely plene. As for the remaining four instances, it summarily declares that they are יִשְׁפַּע, that is, entirely defective. They are Judg. 3 12; 4 1; 20 22; 2 Sam. 8 34. In the last line יִשְׁפַּע should be יִשְׁפַּע without Yod.

List II. — This List emphatically declares in the heading that יִשְׁפַּע without Vav but with Yod, occurs three times only, and records three, omitting 2 Sam. 5 22. As it gives the same two for יִשְׁפַּע (Gen. 37 5, 8) and the same one for יִשְׁפַּע (Ps. 78 17), thus accounting for six of the eleven instances, and declares (ישא יסמו) that the others are יִשְׁפַּע, it follows that according to this recension of the Massorah there are five entirely defective instances and not four, as stated in List I and that 2 Sam. 5 22 is one of the five.

List III. — Though this List gives the first part only of Lists I and II, safeguarding the instances alone in which it is יִשְׁפַּע without Vav but with Yod, it is important, since like List II it not only declares in the heading that there are three such instances, but the List itself records three. Like List II it omits 2 Sam. 5 22.

List IV. — This List exhibits another recension of this Massorah. It is headed יִשְׁפַּע ב' מל' that is, with Vav plene and without Yod. Besides giving Gen. 37 5, 8 which are recorded in Lists I and II as the only instances thus written, it gives as a third instance 2 Sam. 5 22. The three for יִשְׁפַּע without Vav but with Yod, are the same as those in Lists II and III, but for יִשְׁפַּע entirely plene, which Lists I and II describe as unique, this List gives two examples, viz. Ps. 78 17 which the other Lists record and Prov. 9 11. The latter is יִשְׁפַּע with Vav conjunctive in the received text and not Vav conversive. It will thus be seen that apart from Prov. 9 11, which is outside the scope of this Massorah, this List accounts for seven instances which are partially or entirely plene, and describes the rest (ישא יסמו) as entirely defective, the four being Judg. 3 12; 4 1; 20 22; 2 Sam. 3 34. With respect, therefore, to the entirely defectives this List agrees with List I and not with List II according to which the defectives are five.

List V. — With the exception of giving the same two entirely plenes as List IV, the printed Massorah (List V) coincides with List II. It records the same two for יִשְׁפַּע and the same three only for יִשְׁפַּע as List II. Like the latter it accounts for six only which are partially or entirely defective and leaves the same five for the entirely defectives. יִשְׁפַּע after ישא יסמו in the last line should be יִשְׁפַּע entirely defective.

יִשְׁפַּע — A sign to indicate the variations in the orthography of this expression. This Rubric, which is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 60 a, on 2 Sam. 5 22, affords another example of the different ways in which the respective Massoretic Schools elaborated the same materials. By indicating the specific variation against the several passages, this form of the Rubric is more explicit. With the exception of the omission of Gen. 37 8, which is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe, it accounts for six partially or entirely plenes only, and leaves five for the entirely defectives, thus coinciding with Lists II and V of § 444a. after ... in the last line should be entirely defective.

חמ"ד = § 444c.

A sign indicating the variations in the spelling of this expression. Of this form of the Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 247b, on 1 Chron. 14 13, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 37 5.

On comparing this form of the Rubric with the preceding one, the following differences are disclosed: (1) the expressions ... Gen. 37 8, which are carelessly omitted in the former are here duly given; (2) the former gives every variant against each passage separately, whilst here the variations are given after each group as in § 444a, and (3) like Lists I V and V this Rubric gives two entirely plenes, viz. ... Ps. 78 17 and ... Prov. 9 11. As the Proverbs instance is with Vav conjunctive it is outside the scope of this Massorah, which records the variations in the eleven instances with Vav conversive. It will be seen that apart from the Proverbs instance, this Rubric accounts for six partially or entirely plenes and leaves five for the entirely defectives, thus agreeing with Lists II and V of § 444a and with § 444b, against § 444a.

ye shall add, is twice entirely defective. That is, both without Vav after the Tav and the characteristic Yod after the Samech. This Hiphil future second person plural masculine, which occurs altogether eight times, is spelt in four different ways: (1) entirely defective, that is both without Vav and without Yod; (2) entirely plene, that is both with Vav and with Yod; (3) without the Vav and without the Yod but with paragogic Nun, and (4) with Aleph after the Tav, without Yod but with paragogic Nun. In this Rubric the Massorah safeguards the two entirely defectives. By fixing the number at two, the Massorah militates against the recension which reads ... in Exod. 14 13 and ... in Deut. 4 2, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

This Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 260a, on Deut. 4 2.

ye shall add, occurs twice defective and twice plene. Without the paragogic Nun this Hiphil future second person plural masculine occurs altogether four times. As the two instances in the Pentateuch are differently spelt from the two in Isaiah, the former being entirely defective and the latter entirely plene, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only where it is given twice (I) on Exod. 14 13, and (II) the Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 248.

חמ"ז = § 445c.

occurs four times. That is, this Hiphil future second person plural masculine with paragogic Nun. Whilst the preceding Rubric protects two of the four varieties in the orthography of this Hiphil future, this Rubric safeguards the other two. It declares that the four instances with the paragogic Nun exhibit two varieties, three with this Nun are entirely defective, that is both without Vav and without Yod (Gen. 44 28; Exod. 9 28; Deut. 17 16) and one is with Aleph plene (Exod. 5 7). By fixing the number at four this Massorah not only militates against the recension which exhibits a fifth instance with paragogic Nun (Exod. 14 13), but against reading Exod. 5 7 without the Aleph, thus obliterating the fourth variety altogether, as well as against reading all the instances entirely plene. This is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 60a, on Exod. 5 7. As I omitted it from the text of the Massorah I subjoin this Rubric in the note.

לחת תבן בת"י מלי אלה.

חמ"ח = § 446.

he appointed, or betrothed her, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 48a, on Exod. 21 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 64a, on Jerem. 47 7; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 212a, on Micah 6 9; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 304a, on the same passage; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 98b, on Exod. 21 8; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 47 7.

חמ"ט = § 447.

and I will meet, does not occur again as defective. This Niphil preterite third person singular with Vav conversive, which occurs altogether twice only and in the same book, is spelt in two different ways. In Exod. 25 22 it is entirely plene and in 29 43 it is defective. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 85, on Exod. 29 43, and (II) the printed Massorah on Exod. 25 22. The latter gives this Rubric more fully, viz. ... קריה מל. It is remarkable that the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text has ... in Exod. 29 43 instead of ...

חמ"י = § 448.

and they met together, or made an appointment together, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 8b, on Josh. 11 5, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. The latter is corrupt. It heads this Rubric ... and gives as the second of the three instances ... Jerem. 41 10 where ... does not occur.

Jeiel, is four times written Jeuel. That is, in these four instances the textual reading is ... with Vav after the Ayin for which the marginal reading or Keru substitutes ... with Yod.

Without and with the prefix Vav this proper name occurs altogether fourteen times. In nine instances it is written ... (Ezra 8 13; 10 43; 1 Chron. 5 7; 15 18, 21; 16 5, 5; 2 Chron. 20 14; 35 9) and in five it is ... In four of these five the official reading substitutes ... with Yod in conformity with the majority of its spelling. By fixing the number at four this Massorah not only excludes 1 Chron. 9 6 where it is also ... with Vav, thus leaving a solitary example of this orthography, but militates against the recension which has ... as the Kethiv and ... as Keru in Ezra 8 13, as is attested by the printed Massorah Parva in Jacob b. Chayim's edition of the Rabbinic Bible, Venice 1524-25.

Of this Rubric I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 136b, on 1 Chron. 9 35, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 166b, on 2 Chron. 29 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 245b, on 1 Chron. 11 44; (IV) the same MS., fol. 273a, on 2 Chron. 26 11; (V) the same MS., fol. 275a, on 2 Chron. 29 13; (VI) Halle Oohliah Ve-Oohliah I, § 128; (VII) Paris Oohliah Ve-Oohliah § 146, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on 1 Chron. 9 35. Lists I, II and VI, like List VIII, give ... as the catchword for 1 Chron. 26 21.

חמ"יב = § 450.

Jaaser, is twice plene in this form. That is, without and with the prefix Beth. Without and with prefixes this proper name occurs altogether thirteen times. As it is without the Yod after the Zayin in eleven instances (Numb. 21 32; 32 1, 3, 35; Josh. 13 25; 21 37; 2 Sam. 24 5; Isa. 16 8, 9; Jerem. 48 32 32) and with it in two only, the Massorah safeguards this abnormal orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 146b, on 1 Chron. 26 31, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 134b, on 1 Chron. 6 66.

חמ"יג = § 451.

Jesh, is three times the textual reading for which the official reading in Jeush. This proper name occurs altogether nine times. In six instances it is with Vav after the Ayin (Gen. 36 18; 1 Chron. 1 35; 8 39; 23 10, 11; 2 Chron. 11 19) and in three only is it with Yod. Hence the Massorah makes the exceptional spelling conformable to the normal orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 48b, on Gen. 36 5, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 224b, on 1 Chron. 7 10; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 32a, on Gen. 36 14, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 263. This Rubric is part of the Register of two words which respectively occur three times written with Yod in the middle but read with Vav, recorded above, letter v, § 264.

תניב Jaalah, occurs twice in the Scriptures, once it is written with Aleph and once with He. This proper name, which occurs twice only and which is restricted to two duplicate Registers, is in the first Register written with He at the end (Ezra 2 56) and in the second with Aleph (Neh. 7 58). Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in the parallel records and thus militates against the recension of the text in which the spelling is uniform, as will be seen from the notes on Neh. 7 58 in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 297 a, on Neh. 7 58, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תניז because, is three times with the accent. That is, Zakeph-Gadol. Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 128 b, on Deut. 1 36, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 186 b, on Ezek. 31 10; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 105 a, on Deut. 1 36; (IV) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 308; (V) the printed Massorah on Deut. 1 36, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 257.

תניד - § 454.

תניד because and even because, occurs twice. That is, with Vav conjunctive repeated to impart emphasis. In the only other instance where it is thus repeated it is תניד תניד without the Vav. By fixing the number at two the Massorah militates against the reading תניד תניד without the copula in Levit. 26 43, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Vienna Codex No. 35 on Ezek. 13 10.

תניה weariness, or wearied, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this Hiphal participle which occurs twice only is differently spelt in each passage, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 284 a, on Dan. 9 21, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 372 a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 218 a, on Isa. 8 28, and (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 414 a, on Dan. 9 21. List III states that the Daniel instance is defective (בגרות הים).

תניו - § 456.

תניו he took, or gave counsel, he devised, is three times with Kametz. That is, under the Ayin, which is due to its pausal or distinctive accent. This preterite third person singular masculine occurs altogether fifteen times. In twelve instances it is with the normal Pathach under the Ayin and in these three only is it with Kametz. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional graphic signs.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 226 a, Isa. 32 7, which I have printed, and (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 14 27. List I is incorrect. It omits Isa. 32 8, which the Massorah in all the best Standard Codices marks as one of the three Kametz instances and gives instead Isa. 23 8, which is not only with a conjunctive accent and Pathach (תניו) in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251, but in Add. 15,250 the very MS. where this faulty Massorah occurs. This is fully confirmed by List II, which correctly gives the three instances. As all the three occur in Isaiah, the heading ought properly to be בגרות הים.

תניז - § 457.

תניז they counselled him, occurs three times and is defective. That is, without Vav after the Tvadi. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 192 a, on 1 Kings 12 13.

תניח - § 458.

תניח I will counsel thee, occurs three times. That is, with the suffix second person singular masculine, in contradistinction to the only other instance where it occurs and where it is תניח with the suffix second person feminine (1 Kings 1 12).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 173 a, on Jerem. 38 15, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 88 a, on Numb. 24 14; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 52 a, on Exod. 18 19; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 259 b, on Jerem. 38 15; (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 18 19; (VI) the same on Numb. 24 14, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 38 15.

תניט counsellors, is four times defective in this form. That is, this participle without and with prefixes and suffixes is in four instances both in the singular and plural, without the Vav after the Yod, in contradistinction to many instances in which it is with the Vav.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 377 b, on Ezra 8 25, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 308 b, on Nah. 1 11; (III) the printed Massorah, on Ezek. 11 2, and (IV) the same on Nah. 1 11. Lists III and IV rightly add at the end of the Rubric that it is also defective wherever it is the plural participle construct (תניט תניט), viz. Isa. 19 11; Job 3 14, whereas Lists I and II without this qualifying addition make this Rubric unintelligible.

תניס and his counsellors, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this participle plural masculine with the suffix third person singular masculine and with the prefix Vav, which occurs twice only and which is restricted to the same book, is in the first instance תניס (Ezra 7 28) with Vav plene and in the second תניס (Ezra 8 25) without the Vav, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 291 a, on Ezra 7 28, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 377 a on the same passage. The heading ought properly to be בגרות הים, since the two instances occur in the same book. This qualifying expression, however, as we have seen, is not infrequently omitted.

תניס - § 461.

תניס ye are counselling, occurs five times. That is, the plural participle masculine and is always with Vav plene.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 227 b, on 1 Kings 12 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 155 b, on 2 Chron. 10 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 87 a, on 1 Kings 12 6; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 192 a, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VI) the same on Prov. 13 10.

תניס - § 462.

תניס Jacob, is five times plene. Without the prefixes this name occurs altogether 278 times. It is תניס without the Vav in 268 instances and in five only is it תניס with the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards this abnormal orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 82 a, on Levit. 26 42, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 118 b, on the same passage; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 51 19; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 257 a, on Jerem. 33 26; (V) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 45 margin; (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 26 42, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 30 18.

This Rubric, however, represents one School only of textual redactors. Other Schools differed with regard to this abnormal orthography. This is not only attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, which has the normal spelling תניס in Levit. 26 42, but by the declaration of the Massorah itself. Thus List IV after recording the four instances as they are given in the other Lists, emphatically states that there is a difference of opinion with regard to the fifth instance תניס לא יאמר חלק תניס.

תָּוּ = § 468.

Six verses in which in Jacob, in Israel respectively occur without a parallel. That is, with the prefix Beth before both these names, in contradistinction to the many instances in which these two names are synonymously used in the two clauses of the same verse either without or with other prefixes. (Isa. 14 1; 29 28; 41 8; 42 24; 43 1, 22; 44 1, 21, 28; 45 4; 46 8; 48 1 &c.) This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 101 b, on Numb. 23 23.

וַיַּעֲבֹד and Jacob, occurs fourteen times. That is, with the prefix Vav, in contradistinction to the 278 instances in which it is without the prefix.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 15 b, on Gen. 25 27, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 17 b, on Josh. 24 4; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 208 b, on 2 Kings 13 28; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 376 a, on Ps. 105 28; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 67 b, on Exod. 3 18; (VI) Halle Oohlah Ve-Oohlah Supplement, fol. 180 a, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 268. It is remarkable that though four of the instances begin a verse (Gen. 25 34; 32 2; 33 17; 34 5) none of the Lists notice this fact.

תָּוּ = § 465.

תָּוּ fair, is five times with Segol. This adjective, which occurs altogether seventeen times in the absolute without the prefixes, is in twelve instances with Kametz under the Pe, being in the feminine (Gen. 12 14; 2 Sam. 13 1; 1 Kings 1 8, 4; Prov. 11 22; Cant. 1 15, 15; 4 1, 1, 7; 6 4, 10) and in five only is it with Segol Massoretically called Pathach, being the masculine. Hence the Massorah safeguards the graphic signs of the minority. This protection is especially necessary since the two forms occur in close proximity (Comp. Cant. 1 15, 16).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 206 a, on 2 Sam. 14 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 90 a, on Ezek. 31 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 66 a, on 2 Sam. 14 25; (IV) the same MS., fol. 349 a, on Cant. 1 16; (V) the same MS., fol. 352 a, on Eccl. 3 11; (VI) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 31 9, and (VII) the same on Eccl. 5 17.

תָּוּ = § 466.

תָּוּ in his beauty, occurs twice. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ezek. 31 8.

תָּוּ = § 467.

תָּוּ her beauty, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 271 a, on Esther 1 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 338 a, on Prov. 6 25, and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 404 a, on Esther 1 11.

תָּוּ = § 468.

תָּוּ he hath shined forth, or shine thou forth, occurs three times in the Scriptures. It will be seen that though in two instances it is the Hiphil preterite third person masculine (Deut. 33 2; Ps. 50 2) and in one it is imperative singular masculine, (Ps. 94 1) yet the Massorah which has regard to the identity of the spelling only, irrespective of the difference in the sense, groups them together under the same Rubric. In the only other instance in which the imperative occurs it is תָּוּ with paragogic He (Ps. 80 2) which is the reason for its exclusion from this Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 203 a, on Ps. 94 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 296 a, on Ps. 50 2; (III) the same MS., fol. 307 b, on Ps. 94 1; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 116 a, on Deut. 33 2; (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage; (VI) the same on Ps. 50 2, and (VII) the same on Ps. 94 1. As תָּוּ also occurs once with the prefix Vav (Job 37 15), this Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter v, § 71.)

תָּוּ = § 469.

תָּוּ thy beauty, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 185 a, on Exod. 26 7, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As the two instances not only occur in the same book, but are restricted to the same section, the heading ought properly to be תָּוּ.

תָּוּ = § 470.

תָּוּ occurs three times in the Scriptures, twice with Kametz and once with Pathach . . . once it is the name of a town, once it is the name of a person and once it denotes to open.

Of this popular Massorah I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 2710—11, Vol. I, fol. 164 a, on Judg. 11 1; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 228 b, on Job 11 5, which I have printed; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 11 b, on Josh. 15 48; (IV) the same MS., fol. 26 b, on Judg. 11 1; (V) the printed Massorah on Judg. 15 48; (VI) the same on Job 11 5, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter v, § 268. The marks a and b against the lines in the printed Rubric denote that the two parts are from Lists I and II, whilst the c denotes that the mnemonic sign is from Lists VI and VII where alone it occurs. The two with Kametz form part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter v, § 428.)

תָּוּ = § 471.

תָּוּ — Forms of the root אָוּ to go forth, which respectively occur once only. That is, hapaxlegomena both of the verb and its derivatives. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists all in a more or less fragmentary state. I shall, however, specify the following nine only, eight in MSS. and one printed:

List I. — This List is in the ancient Codex Orient. 4445, fol. 44 a, on Exod. 3 10. It exhibits the oldest form of this Register. It is as yet without a heading or catchwords and records twenty such instances only. They consist of three categories (1) fifteen are different forms of the verb itself, all of which are in the longer Lists (2) three are derivatives of אָוּ; viz. אָוּ Ps. 75 7; אָוּ Ezek. 4 12 and אָוּ Deut. 23 14. These also are in some of the later Lists, and (3) two are of different roots, viz. אָוּ the Kethiv for which the Keri is אָוּ Ezek. 47 11 from אָוּ and אָוּ Ps. 119 162 from אָוּ.

This ancient attempt to collect these hapaxlegomena furnishes the clue to the fuller Lists. It shows beyond doubt that the design of the original Massorah was not simply to collect the verbs and derivatives of the trilateral אָוּ, but to include the unique expressions which exhibit two identical letters of this trilateral, viz. אָוּ.

List II. — This List, which I have printed, viz. § 471 a, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 25 b, on Gen. 38 25. It is still without a heading or catchwords and records fifty-nine such instances. These fifty-nine or rather fifty-eight, since אָוּ 2 Sam. 18 22 is given twice, consist of (1) forty-two verbs, (2) twelve derivatives which are nearly all given at the end, and (3) four from the root אָוּ, viz. אָוּ 2 Sam. 18 22; אָוּ Ps. 119 162; also given in List I; אָוּ Cant. 8 10 and אָוּ Isa. 57 10. These four represent אָוּ. It is important to remark that this List records אָוּ the Kethiv imperative (Gen. 8 17) and not the Keri which occurs five times (Gen. 19 12; Levit. 24 14; Judg. 6 30; 19 22; 2 Kings 10 22). I make this List the standard with which I shall compare the seven Lists.

List III. — This List I printed from the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 15 1. Though it has already a heading in which it is emphatically stated that there are sixty-two such hapaxlegomena, it records thirty only. Twenty-five of these are identical with those recorded in the Standard List and are practically enumerated in the same order, whilst of the remaining five, three are new, viz. אָוּ (Judg. 9 20) אָוּ (Judg. 9 29) אָוּ (Gen. 34 26) and two are given in the ancient fragment or List I, viz. אָוּ (Exod. 9 29) and אָוּ (Ezek. 47 11). It will be seen that this List also records the Kethiv forms, viz. אָוּ and אָוּ and not the Keri.

An analysis of these thirty instances shows that they comprise the same three categories as Lists I and II. The oft-repeated statement that long Lists are frequently left off in the middle in the Massorah for want of space in the margin, in spite of the number given in the heading and irrespective of the conflict thereby produced between the heading and the Register itself, is here strikingly confirmed.

List IV. — This List, which is marked § 471 c, I printed from St. Petersburg Codex A. D. 916, on Jerem. 37 4. Like List III, this List states in the heading that there are sixty-two such unique expressions, but unlike its companion in the same Massorah, it records twenty-three instances only and adds the expression בלישׁא after the סב. Usually this expression denotes different forms of the same root. Here, however, it must be taken in a wider sense, since as we have seen, these Lists include other roots also containing the two letters sz.

Though the heading states that there are sixty-two such hapaxlegomena, the List itself records twenty-three only, as the space assigned to the Massorah in the margin of the Biblical text does not admit of continuing the Register. Unlike its companion List in the same Massorah (List III), however, which gives no notice that it is incomplete, this List adds at the end וי עתה and so forth up to the end or &c. With the exception of giving עתה Ezek. 24 6, which is absent in § 471 b, but which is also given in the Standard List, this fragment (List IV) as far as it goes is identical with List III. The variations, therefore, in List III from the Standard List obtain also here.

List V. — This List, which is marked § 471 d, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 38 22. It records sixteen instances only, but adds at the end that they are part of the sixty-two words of the same form which respectively occur once. Thirteen of these are identical with those in the Standard List. Of the remaining three, one is new, viz. בנצח (Neh. 6 19). It is neither in the Standard List nor in Lists III and IV; one, viz. עתה (Ezek. 47 11) is also given in Lists I and III and one, viz. עתה (Exod. 9 29) is recorded in List III.

List VI. — This List, which is marked § 471 e, I printed from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 38 8. It records seventeen instances only, fifteen of which are identical with those in the Standard List. Those absent from the Standard List which are given here, viz. one עתה (Judg. 9 20) is also given in Lists III and IV, whilst the other, viz. עתה (Ps. 135 7) is not to be found in any of the preceding five Lists. It will be seen that the subscription here also describes this fragmentary List as forming part of the Rubric which registers sixty-two such hapaxlegomena.

List VII. — This List, which is marked § 471 f, I printed from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Zech. 5 4. Unlike its companion Lists, viz. III, IV, V and VI, which are from the same Codex and which declare either in Superscription or Subscription that they are part only of a Register containing sixty-two such hapaxlegomena, this List does not indicate at all that it is simply a fragment. Of the twenty-four instances which it records, twenty are identical with those in the Standard List and are enumerated in practically the same order. As to the remaining four which are not in the Standard List, one, viz. עתה (Judg. 9 20) is also given in three of the preceding Lists (III, IV, VI), one, viz. עתה (Ps. 135 7) is given in List VI and two, viz. עתה (Gen. 34 26) and עתה (Judg. 9 29) are also given in Lists III and IV.

List VIII. — This List is in Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 2, fol. 76 a. It exhibits the most developed form of this Massorah. It is not only furnished with a heading which states that there are sixty-three such hapaxlegomena (חרן סני רכל חר ליה רדו) but with lengthy catchwords. But though it emphatically states in the heading that there are sixty-three such instances, it records sixty only.

As to its relation to the Standard List, it records the following seven instances which are not recorded in that List: (1) עתה (Judg. 9 20), which is given in Lists III, IV, VI, VII; (2) עתה (Gen. 34 26) also given in Lists III, IV, VII; (3) עתה (Judg. 9 29) also given in Lists III, IV, VII; (4) עתה (Exod. 9 29) also given in Lists III, V; (5) עתה (Ps. 31 5) which is new; (6) עתה (Gen. 32 20) which is also new, and (7) עתה (Josh. 2 3). This List, however, omits the following four instances which the Standard List records: (1) עתה (Jerem. 37 4) which is also given in Lists III, IV, VI, VII, IX; (2) עתה (Job 28 11) which is recorded in the Standard List only (3) עתה (2 Chron. 1 10) which is also given in Lists III, IV, VII, and (4) עתה (Isa. 57 10) which is new.

List IX. — This List is in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter , § 804. It exhibits the latest developed form of this Massorah. Like List VIII, it states in the heading that there are sixty-three such hapaxlegomena, but unlike it and all the other Superscriptions and Subscription it introduces the expression עתה into the heading (חרן סני רכל חר ליה רדו) which is in conflict with the import of this Rubric, since it embraces instances not from the verb עתה. Moreover, though it states in the heading that there are sixty-three such instances, it records sixty-four.

With the exception of four instances which this List records and which are absent in List VIII, the two Lists absolutely coincide. The instances have not only the same catchwords, but are enumerated in the same order. Of these additional four two are new, viz. עתה 2 Chron. 15 5 and עתה Isa. 4 4, whilst of the other two one is in the Standard List, viz. עתה Jerem. 37 4 and one, viz. עתה Judg. 9 29, though not in the Standard List, is given in Lists III and IV. The Standard List, however, has two instances which are absent in this latest developed List, viz. עתה Isa. 57 10 and עתה Job 28 11.

All these Lists, however, are more or less fragmentary and the headings and Subscriptions are the additions of later Nakdanim. This is attested by the absence of numerous hapaxlegomena which belong to this category, as will be seen from the following List in which the words in question are arranged alphabetically.

עתה he went out, or rose, is in three instances the textual reading for which the extra-official reading is עתה she went out, or rose . . . once it is in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 65 b, on Jerem. 48 45, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 48 45; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 371 a, on Dan. 8 9; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 2; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 19 28; (VI) the same on Jerem. 48 45, and (VII) the same on Dan. 8 9.

This Rubric affords a striking confirmation of the fact that the expression עתה is used interchangeably for עתה (vide supra, letter , § 729; § 742 and my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 770). Hence the Sevir עתה is the textual reading in the ancient Codex Add. 21,160 and in Orient. 2201 in Jerem. 48 45 which a later Nakdan altered. Hence too some of the early editions have it in the text both in Jerem. 48 45 and Dan. 8 9.

עתה he went out, he shall go. A sign to indicate where this trilateral is with two Kametses or with two Twerees throughout the Scriptures, that is the preterite or future third person singular masculine. As the one form is in the majority in one part of the Scriptures and the other in another part, the Massorah divides this Rubric into five links and in accordance with its usual method safeguards in each case the minority.

Throughout Genesis it is with two Kametses except once. In this book, where the two forms occur altogether nine times, it is עתה in eight instances (10 11; 19 28; 24 50; 25 26; 27 30; 38 28, 29, 30) and once only is it עתה. Hence the Massorah here safeguards the solitary exception.

And throughout the rest of the Pentateuch it is likewise so except twice. In these four books, where the two forms occur altogether ten times, the reverse is the case. It is עתה in eight instances (Levit. 21 12; 25 30, 31; Numb. 11 20; 27 17; 33 54; 35 26; Deut. 24 5). Here, therefore, the Massorah safeguards the two exceptional instances in which it is אָפּ.

And throughout the Prophets with the exception of the Minor Prophets it is also אָפּ, except nineteen times where it is אָפּ. Though the heading exempts the Minor Prophets only it is evident that Ezekiel also is excluded from this List. Apart, therefore, from the Minor Prophets and Ezekiel these two forms occur altogether forty-seven times. It is אָפּ, the preterite in twenty-eight instances (Josh. 19 17, 32, 40; Judg. 3 24; 4 14; 11 36; 14 14, 14; 1 Sam. 23 15; 24 15; 26 20; 2 Sam. 5 24; 16 11; 19 20; 20 8; 1 Kings 11 29; 20 39; 2 Kings 9 11; 19 9; 20 4; Isa. 37 9; 45 23; 51 5; Jerem. 4 7; 22 11; 37 5; 44 17; 48 45) and אָפּ the future in nineteen instances only. Here, therefore, the Massorah conversely safeguards אָפּ which is in the minority. It will be seen that though the heading here emphatically states that there are nineteen instances in this part of the Prophets, the List itself records seventeen only apart from the inexplicable catchword אָפּ. The two instances omitted are Isa. 55 11; 62 1. That this omission is due to the carelessness of the Scribe is evident both from the separate Lists of these nineteen instances given below, § 485 and from the two other Lists of this artificial Massorah.

And throughout the Minor Prophets and the Hagiographa apart from Ecclesiastes it is likewise so except in eleven instances. Apart from Ecclesiastes the two forms occur altogether thirty-four times in this division of the Bible. Here the reverse is the case, the rule is אָפּ and the exception אָפּ. The former occurs twenty-three times (Hosea 6 5; Joel 2 16; 4 18; 5 1; Habak. 1 4, 4, 7; Zech. 10 4; Ps. 17 2; 41 7; 104 23; 109 7; Job 5 6; 28 5; 31 40; 37 2; 38 8; 39 21; 41 12, 13; Esther 1 17, 19; 2 Chron. 6 34) and the latter eleven times only. Hence the Massorah conversely safeguards אָפּ. It will be seen that though the heading here states that there are eleven such instances in this division, the register records ten only. The missing instance, viz. Job 38 29, is duly given in the other two Lists of this Massorah.

And throughout Ecclesiastes it is likewise so except once. That is, in this book where the two forms occur three times, it is אָפּ in two instances (Ecc. 4 14; 4 14) and אָפּ in one instance only. Hence the Massorah here reversely safeguards the solitary form with the two Tzere's.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 362 b, on Esther 8 15, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 2, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter z, § 269. Lists II and III have not the mistake which I have pointed out in discussing List I.

תָּעַר = § 474.

תָּעַרְתָּ מֵאֶרֶץ מִצְרַיִם thou camest forth out of the land of Egypt, is twice thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the other two instances where this phrase occurs and where it is simply תָּעַרְתָּ מֵאֶרֶץ מִצְרַיִם thou camest forth out of Egypt (Exod. 23 15; 34 18). Moreover by fixing the combination of these two instances with תָּעַרְתָּ second person singular, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the ancient reading תָּעַרְתָּ the plural, in Deut. 9 7 as it is in Exod. 13 3. This is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, the Septuagint and the Syriac. (Vide infra, § 477.)

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, 122 a, on Deut. 16 3, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 109 b, on Deut. 9 7.

תָּעַי = § 475.

תָּעַי they went out, is eight times with Kametz. This Kal preterite third person plural occurs altogether forty-three times. It is with its normal Sheva under the Tzadi in thirty-five instances and in eight only is it with Kametz, which is due to its distinctive accent. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional variation in its graphic sign. This protection is especially needed, since תָּעַי occurs three times in two consecutive verses with the same accent Tipcha. In 1 Kings 20 17 it is תָּעַי with the accent on the ultima and with Sheva, whilst in verse 18, where it occurs twice, it is תָּעַי with the accent on the penultima and with Kametz.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 2 a, on Josh. 2 5, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 48 1; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 9 2; (IV) the same Codex on Ezek. 15 7;

(V) the same Codex on Ezek. 36 20; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 2, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Josh. 2 5. Lists III, IV and V, which exhibit the oldest form of this Massorah, are headed הַ בְּתָרִין קָמֶץ and thus indicate more clearly the import of this Rubric.

תָּעַו = § 476.

תָּעַוּ and they shall come, or go out, occurs seven times. That is, with Sheva under the Vav, being conjunctive, in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which this quinqueliteral is with Pathach, viz. תָּעַו being Vav conversive.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 141 b, on Josh. 8 6, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 59 a, on Exod. 17 6; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 9 7; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 6 a, on Josh. 8 6; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 99 a, on Exod. 21 22; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 2, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 17 6. List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah and which is headed ז' רַבִּינַן = seven times with Sheva, shows that its design is to contrast it with the instances where it is תָּעַו with Pathach. The same is the heading of List VII.

תָּעַז = § 477.

תָּעַזְתָּ ye came forth, or went out, occurs twice . . . and twice it is with the prefix Vav. By fixing the number at two, this Massorah militates against the reading תָּעַזְתָּ the plural instead of תָּעַזְתָּ the singular in Deut. 9 7, as is attested by some of De Rossi's MSS.; the Minchath Shai; the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, the Septuagint and the Syriac. (Vide supra, § 474.) This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Exod. 13 3.

תָּעַח = § 478.

תָּעַח going, occurs seven times, three times plene and four defective. As this infinitive absolute, which occurs seven times altogether, is not only spelt in two different ways but the two spellings occur in the same books (Gen. 8 7 with 27 30; 2 Sam. 16 5 with 18 2), the design of this Massorah is to safeguard these variations against their being made uniform and thus to militate against the recension of the text exhibited in the Samaritan Hebrew where the three Pentateuch instances are uniformly defective, which is undoubtedly the original orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 33 a, on Gen. 8 7, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 157 b, on Numb. 35 26; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 38 17; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 21 a, on Gen. 27 30; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 2; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 8 7, and (VII) the same on Numb. 35 26.

תָּעַי = § 479.

תָּעַיָהּ as goeth forth, occurs three times. That is, with the prefix Caph, in contradistinction to the nine instances in which this infinitive construct is with the prefix Beth. As these letters are almost identical in the MSS. the Massorah safeguards the exceptional prefix.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 57 a, on Exod. 33 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 159 a, on Judg. 5 31; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 76 a, on Exod. 33 8; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 22 a, on Judg. 5 31; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 98 b, on Exod. 21 7; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 2, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 21 7. So important was the safeguarding of these exceptional instances deemed that some Massoretic Schools formulated a mnemonic sign for them. Thus in Orient. 2451, fol. 103 a, on Exod. 33 8 the Massorah gives this Rubric as follows: בְּשֵׁם הַשָּׁמַיִם תָּעַיָהּ בְּשֵׁם הַיָּרֵיחַ וְבְשֵׁם הַשֶּׁמֶשׁ without the Register of the catchwords.

תָּעַפּ = § 480.

תָּעַפּ after going out of, occurs three times. This infinitive construct with the prefix Lamed occurs altogether twelve times. In nine instances it is תָּעַפּ with Kametz under the Lamed which is due to its not being followed by a genitive (Deut. 31 2; Judg. 20 14, 28; 1 Sam. 23 13; 2 Sam. 13 39; 2 Kings 24 7; Jerem. 11 11; 38 21; 2 Chron. 26 20) and in three only is it with Sheva because it is followed by a genitive. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional graphic sign.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 220 b, on 1 Kings 6 1, which I have printed: (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 60 b, on Exod. 19 1; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 80 a, on 1 Kings 6 1; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 95 b, on Exod. 19 1; (V) Orient. 5404, fol. 67 b, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 2, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 19 1. Lists I and V alone give the mnemonic sign.

לְצֵאתָם מֵאֶרֶץ מִצְרַיִם after their coming out of the land of Egypt, is three times thus combined. That is, in contradistinction to the other three instances where the phrase is לְצֵאתָם מֵאֶרֶץ מִצְרַיִם (Exod. 19 1; Numb. 33 38; 1 Kings 6 1).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 44 b, on Exod. 16 1, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 201 b, on Numb. 9 1

תפ"ב = § 482.

וָיָא and go, occurs twice. This imperative singular masculine occurs altogether seventeen times. As it is without the prefix Vav in fifteen instances and with it in two only, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional form.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 67 b, on Exod. 17 9, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 18 a, on Gen. 27 3; (III) the same MS., fol. 42 a, on Exod. 17 9; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 93 a, on the same passage; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 2, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 27 3.

תפ"ג = § 483.

וָיָא go ye forth, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Normally this imperative plural masculine is וָיָא with Sheva under the Tsadi. In this form it occurs ten times. In these three instances, however, it is with Terec which is due to its pausal or distinctive accent, being in two instances Athnach (Jerem. 50 8; Ezek. 9 7) and in one Zekaph-Katon (Isa. 49 9). Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in its graphic sign. By fixing the number at three, the Massorah includes the official reading וָיָא in Jerem. 50 8 and thus militates against the textual reading וָיָא.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 23 b, on Isa. 49 9, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 2, and (III) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 9 7.

תפ"ד = § 484.

וָיָא he shall go forth, occurs four times in this book. That is, in Kings. This Rubric, which is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 112 a, on 2 Kings 18 7, affords a striking illustration of the manner in which later Nakdanim altered the Massorah. There are altogether six instances of וָיָא in Kings and not four. This is attested by the fuller List of the Massorah in this very MS. given in the next Rubric. The space, however, assigned to the Massorah in the margin of fol. 112 a is exhausted so that the catchwords for four instances only could be accommodated and the last two, viz. 2 Kings 12 13 and 18 7 had to be omitted, as is not infrequently the case in such an emergency. As the List was thus reduced to four instances, the Nakdan forthwith altered the ו in the heading into י to make it coincide with the instances in the imperfect List, though the Massorah itself is on one of the two absent passages.

תפ"ה = § 485.

וָיָא he shall go forth, occurs nineteen times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 104 a, on 2 Kings 9 15, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 107 a, on 2 Kings 12 13. It is the third part of the Rubric which registers the different divisions of the Scriptures in which וָיָא and וָיָא respectively prevail and which is given in § 473.

From § 473 we see that the full title of this link of the concatenation ought to be וָיָא וָיָא וָיָא וָיָא and that the Minor Prophets alone are here excluded. As to Ezekiel, which is not mentioned, though וָיָא occurs in it five times according to the present text, this is probably due to the uncertainty of the textual readings. This is shown in the notes on Ezek. 44 3; 46 8, 9 in my edition of the Bible. The theory that the omission of Ezekiel is due to the carelessness of the Scribe is impossible when it is borne in mind that Ezekiel is not mentioned in all the three Massoretic Lists which emanate from different Massoretic Schools and countries far apart.

תפ"ו = § 486.

וָיָא and he went out from Pharaoh, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the other two instances where it is וָיָא מִצֵּרַרְרָה (Exod. 8 26; 9 5a). By fixing the number at three, the Massorah militates against the recension of the text which also exhibits וָיָא מִצֵּרַרְרָה in Exod. 10 18. This is attested by some MSS. of the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew, the Septuagint and the Syriac.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 63 a, on Exod. 10 18, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 73 a, on the same passage.

תפ"ז = § 487.

וָיָא and a fire went out, occurs three times . . . and once it is with Vav conjunctive. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 68 b, on Levit. 10 2.

תפ"ח = § 488.

וָיָא and he shall go forth, is three times Rophe. This future third person singular masculine occurs altogether about 126 times. In about 123 times the Vav is וִי־ Pathach being Vav conversive Massoretically called Dagesh and in three instances only is it with Sheva being Vav conjunctive Massoretically termed Rophe. Hence the Massorah safeguards these rare exceptions.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, six in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 118 b, on Habak. 3 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 252 b, on Prov. 22 10; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 12 12; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 214 a, on Habak. 3 5; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 2; (VI) the same Codex II, § 322; (VII) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 12 12, and (VIII) the same on Habak. 3 5. List I alone gives the mnemonic sign.

תפ"ט = § 489.

וָיָא thou shalt go forth, occurs three times. By fixing the number of this future second person singular feminine at three, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the textual reading וָיָא in Jerem. 6 25 and to defend the official reading וָיָא.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 32 b, on Jerem. 2 37, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 283 b, on Ruth 2 22; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 299 a, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Micah 4 10.

ת"י = § 490.

וָיָא they shall go forth, occurs fourteen times. With Sheva under the Tsadi this quadriliteral occurs altogether forty-nine times. In thirty-five instances the Vav is with Kametz i. e. וָיָא, being the preterite third person plural and in fourteen only is the Vav with Terec, being the future third person plural. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority, just as in § 473 the Massorah alternately safeguards וָיָא the preterite singular and וָיָא the future singular.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty-five Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 9 a, on Gen. 15 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 148 b, Numb. 27 21; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Isa. 39 7; (IV) the same Codex on Ezek. 30 9; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 185 b, on Isa. 39 7; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 2, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 17 19. The mnemonic sign is given in Cambridge Add. 465 only, where it occurs three times, viz. on Numb. 27 21; Isa. 39 7 and Ezek. 21 24.

תצ"א they shall go forth, occurs four times . . . and once it is with Vav conjunctive and once with Vav conversive. Normally this future third person plural, is תצ"א with Sheva under the Tzadi. In this form it occurs fourteen times, as recorded in the preceding Rubric. In these four instances, however, it is with Tzere which is due to its pausal accent Soph-Pasuk. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in its graphic sign. By fixing the number at four, the Massorah militates against the textual reading תצ"א both in Jerem. 50 8 and Ezek. 46 9, substituting for the former תצ"א and the latter תצ"א, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 86 b, on Gen. 17 c, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 46 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 197 a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 277 b, also on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 17 c; (VI) the same on Gen. 35 11, and (VII) the same on Ezek. 46 10. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vile supra, letter י, § 75.)

תצ"ב = § 492.

תצ"ב and they went out, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, the future third person plural feminine with Vav conversive. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 239 b, on 2 Kings 2 24.

It is remarkable that though in one of the three instances it is תצ"ב without the He in the present text (Exod. 15 20) the Rubric does not advert to the fact that there is any variation in its orthography, but gives it with the He in the catchwords for this passage. This shows that the Massorah here is based upon a recension of the text which exhibited uniformly תצ"ב in all the three instances, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text which reads תצ"ב with He.

תצ"ג going, is throughout the Pentateuch defective except in three instances. This participle occurs altogether forty-one times. It is defective twenty-nine times and plene twelve times only. Instead, however, of simply registering the exceptional twelve, the Massorah artificially allocates the plenes and defectives according to their respective minorities in each of the three divisions of the Bible. In the Pentateuch this participle occurs altogether twenty-nine times. As it is defective in twenty-six instances and plene in three only, the Massorah safeguards here the exceptional orthography.

And throughout the Prophets it is likewise so except in six instances. In this division it occurs altogether seventeen times. It is defective in eleven instances (Judg. 9 48; 1 Sam. 9 14; 11 7; 17 55; 2 Sam. 16 5; 1 Kings 5 13; 15 17; Isa. 26 21; Micah 1 3; Zech. 2 7, 7) and plene in six only. Here too, therefore, the defectives are the majority. The register of the minority, however, is not given, but is contained in the following recension of this Rubric.

And throughout the Hagiographa it is plene except once. In this division, where it occurs altogether four times, the reverse is the case, the plenes are the rule and the defectives are the exception. The former occur three times (Dan. 10 20; 2 Chron. 16 1; 25 5) and the plene orthography occurs once only. Here, therefore, the Massorah, on the contrary, safeguards the solitary defective.

Of this form of the Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 88 b, on Numb. 1 28, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תצ"ד is nine times plene. This recension, which exhibits the oldest and more popular form of the Rubric, is less artificial. It groups the Pentateuch and the Prophets together. In these two divisions, where this participle occurs thirty-seven times, it is plene in nine instances only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This protection is necessary since the two kinds of spelling occur in the same verse (2 Sam. 16 5, 5). Moreover by fixing the number at nine the Massorah militates against the less dominant School of Massorites which read תצ"ד plene in 1 Kings 15 17, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this form of the Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 140 a, on Josh. 6 1, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 49 a, on Exod. 8 16; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 19 a, on Judg. 1 24; (IV) the same MS., fol. 47 b, on 1 Sam. 18 16; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 76 a, on Exod. 8 16; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, II, § 2 margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 298. List II omits the second part of this Rubric which makes the import of this Massorah unintelligible.

תצ"ה that goeth forth, is four times plene in the Prophets. Without and with the Vav conjunctive this participle with the prefix He occurs altogether nine times in the Prophets. It is defective five times (Josh. 5 4; 1 Sam. 17 20; 1 Kings 8 19; Jerem. 37 7; 38 2) and plene in four instances. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 164 b, on Judg. 11 81, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 27 b, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 160 a, on Jerem. 21 9, and (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 145 b, on Judg. 11 81. List II adds at the end תצ"ה תצ"ה, denoting thereby the three instances in Nehemiah (3 25, 26, 27). The Pentateuch is not mentioned because there is no orthographical variation to record. The five instances which occur in this division of the Bible (Numb. 21 9, 18; 22 11; 30 8; Deut. 14 22) are uniformly defective.

תצ"ו they going forth, is four times plene in the Scriptures. This participle plural without and with the prefix He occurs altogether twenty-six times. It is defective in twenty-two instances and plene in four only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This protection is especially needed since the two forms are promiscuously used in the same phrase within a few verses. (Comp. Ezek. 47 1, 8, 12.)

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 102 a, on Ezek. 47 8, which alone gives the mnemonic sign and which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 218 b, on Zech. 6 8; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 318 b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ezek. 14 22. As one of the instances is with the prefix He, List III heads this Rubric תצ"ו תצ"ו which is more correct.

תצ"ז they going forth of, is four times plene in all the Scriptures. Normally this participle plural construct is defective. In this form it occurs ten times (Gen. 9 10; 34 24, 24; 46 26; Exod. 1 5; Judg. 8 30; 2 Kings 11 7, 9; 1 Chron. 5 18; 7 11). In these four instances however it is abnormally plene. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography, especially as the two different spellings are promiscuously used in the same book. (Comp. 1 Chron. 5 18; 7 11 with 12 33; 36.)

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 139 a, on 1 Chron. 12 33, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 138 b, on 1 Chron. 12 36; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 246 b, on 1 Chron. 12 33; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 480 b, on 2 Chron. 26 11, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 289. The reference 2 Kings 11 9, which I have given to the catchwords תצ"ז תצ"ז should be 2 Chron. 23 8, which is the parallel passage.

תצ"ח she going forth, is four times defective in the Scriptures. In the only other instance in which this participle feminine occurs it is תצ"ח plene (Pa. 144 14). As this quadrilateral, which occurs within a few verses of the same section, is in one instance תצ"ח the plural and in two instances תצ"ח the participle singular (comp. Gen. 24 13, 15, 45), the Massorah by fixing the number of the latter at four, guards against the confusion of the two forms. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 48 a, on Jerem. 25 32.

הציה she going forth, is always defective except five times. Whilst the preceding Rubric safeguarded the quadriliteral form of the participle, this Rubric indicates its orthography whether without or with the prefixes. Apart from Deut. 28 57, where it is without the Aleph, this participle occurs altogether twelve times without and with the prefixes. It is defective or without Vav in seven instances (Gen. 24 15, 43, 45; Judg. 11 34; Jerem. 25 32; Amos 5 3; 1 Chron. 27 1) and plene in five. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 122 b, on Zech. 5 3, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 219 a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 320 a, on Ps. 144 14; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 309 b, on Zech. 5 3; (V) Halle Oehlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 2 margin; (VI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 28 57, and (VII) the same on Amos 5 3.

הצית and that went out, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this participle with the prefix He and Vav conjunctive, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt, being plene in the first instance (Amos 5 3) and defective in the second (1 Chron. 27 1), the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. This is necessary, since in the first instance of the same verse in Amos 5 3 הצית is plene and in the second הצית is defective.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 237 b, on Amos 5 3.

הצית - § 500.

הצית they going forth, is twice plene. This feminine participle plural, which occurs altogether five times, is spelt in three different ways; once it is entirely defective or without both Vavs (Gen. 24 13); twice it is without the first Vav but with the second (1 Sam. 9 11; Zech. 6 1) and twice it is with both Vavs. As the different spellings occur within a few verses of the same section (comp. Zech. 6 1, 5), the Massorah safeguards the variations against being made uniform.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 218 b, on Zech. 5 9, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 13.

הצית - § 501.

הצית and bring me out, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 160 a, on 2 Chron. 18 33, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 51 a, on Gen. 40 14. The latter is headed והצית and gives ברוח Job 10 18 as the third instance, which is without the prefix Vav in the textus receptus. It may, however, be that this form of the Rubric is designed to record all the three instances in which this Hiphil preterite second person singular masculine with the suffix first person singular occurs, both with and without the prefix Vav, and that the qualifying expression בליש is omitted after the ו, as is not infrequently the case.

הקייב - § 502.

הקייב is always plene except three times. That is, the Hiphil, without and with prefixes and suffixes has always Vav after the He with the exception of the three instances recorded in this Rubric, for which reason they are safeguarded. According to this Massorah, Jerem. 51 44 which is וקייב ought to be וקייב plene as it is in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916. Other Standard Codices, however, have it וקייב defective. Thus Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250 and Add. 15,251 which has a Massorah on it בליש. We have here, therefore, another instance of conflicting Massorahs which are due to their being based upon different recensions of the text.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 71 b, on Exod. 6 6.

הקייב - § 503.

הקייב. — The following words are without Yod in the Hiphil of the verb קייב. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, two in MSS.

and three printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 212 a, on Numb. 14 37, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 328 b, on Job 28 11; (III) the printed Massorah on Numb. 14 37; (IV) the same on Ezek. 28 18, and (V) the same on Numb. 14 37.

List I. — Though this List does not fix in the heading the number of these defectives, it records ten only which are without the characteristic Yod after the Tzadi with Chivek. It is manifestly based upon a recension of the text which differed from the textus receptus. This is attested (1) by the reading וקייב without Yod in Deut. 22 19, and (2) by reading וקייב in Jerem. 39 14 which is supported by Add. 21,161, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. The catchwords אלהים וקייב ought to be אלהים וקייב as they are in the MS.

List II. — This List is headed וקייב בליש. It not only fixes the number at ten but records ten which are identical with those given in List I. Like List I it reads וקייב defective in Deut. 22 19 and וקייב instead of אלהים in Jerem. 39 14.

List III. — This List is headed וקייב בליש. Though like List I this List does not fix the number of these instances, it has in the heading the addition of וקייב. But this expression, which generally not only denotes forms which are abnormal in one instance only but which occur again in their normal form, is here to be taken loosely since the List includes expressions which do not occur again in a normal form, e. g. וקייב Numb. 14 37. It is to be observed that instead of וקייב in Deut. 22 19 which is given in Lists I and II, this List gives וקייב Deut. 22 14. As is not infrequently the case in the printed Massorah, this List contains a serious error. Thus וקייב are incorrect catchwords for 2 Kings 10 26 which is already given. This repetition, which ostensibly makes the List to record eleven instances, has given rise to the headings א.

List IV. — With the exception of וקייב instead of וקייב, the heading in this List, like that of List III does not fix the number of the instances, but like the other three Lists it records the same ten, with exception of Deut. 22 14 which it gives instead of Deut. 22 19, thus coinciding with List III against Lists I and II. This List, however, is also incorrect. (1) It has וקייב which should be וקייב Jerem. 34 13; (2) this error is followed immediately by the catchwords וקייב which is simply a repetition of the preceding passage, and (3) וקייב ought to be וקייב Job 8 10.

List V. — This List is still more remarkable. It is headed וקייב and accordingly records six only. Four of these are in Lists III and IV, viz. Numb. 14 37; Deut. 22 14 (instead of 22 19 given in Lists I and II); Ezek. 28 18; and Job 28 11: One is not in any of the four other Lists, viz. וקייב Job 38 32 which, however, is וקייב with Yod in the Standard Codices, viz. Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251, and the catchwords of one which do not occur in the Bible, viz. וקייב.

As the design of the Massorah is to record the Hiphil instances which occur once only without the characteristic Yod, those which occur twice are omitted, irrespective of the fact that one of the duplicates is with the Vav and one without, which apparently renders them unique. Hence not only are וקייב (Exod. 13 9; Deut. 7 19) and וקייב (Exod. 4 6, 7) omitted, but וקייב (Deut. 4 37; 5 15) and וקייב (Numb. 20 16; Deut. 26 8).

The headings of Lists I, III and IV plainly show that the Massorists did not put forth this Register as complete. As is not infrequently the case, they left it open to be completed by their colleagues. This not only accounts for the absence of וקייב (Jerem. 34 13) and וקייב (Gen. 19 16); וקייב (Jerem. 38 23), but affords another illustration of the manner in which the Massorah has been treated by later Nakdanim. As the List records ten instances only, a Scribe mistook it for complete and hence inserted this number in the heading to correspond with the given passages. This is still more evident from List V. As this incipient List records six only, another Nakdan mistook it also for complete and therefore provided it with a heading in which he fixed the number at six. Hence the contradiction between the headings of Lists II and V and hence the conflict between the instances recorded and the additional passages.

הקייב - § 504.

הקייב I brought thee out, occurs three times and is plene. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Exod. 20 2, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 52 b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 97 a, also on the same passage; (IV) the same

MS., fol. 268 b, on Deut. 5 6, and (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 20 2.

תק"ה = § 505.

וּבְאֵתָם I brought them out, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 20 14. As it is in the first instance without the prefix Vav (Ezek. 20 14) and in the second with it (Ezek. 34 13) and moreover as the two instances are restricted to the same book, the heading ought properly to be ב' בליש' ובסימ'

תק"ו = § 506.

וְהוֹצִיאָהּ and they shall bring him out, or and bring ye him out, occurs six times. Though three are the preterite third person plural with Vav conversive (Deut. 21 19; 22 15, 21) and three the imperative plural (Josh. 6 22; 10 22; 2 Chron. 29 5), yet the Massorah which has regard to the identity of the spelling only, irrespective of the difference in the sense, groups the six instances together under one Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 125 b, on Deut. 22 15, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 166 a, on 2 Chron. 29 5; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 4 b, on Josh. 6 22; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 122 b, on Josh. 10 22; (V) the same MS., fol. 431 b, on 2 Chron. 29 5; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 135 b, on Deut. 22 15, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Josh. 6 22.

כִּדְרֵי־אֵל when I brought out, occurs three times in the Scriptures. In the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text it is קִרְיָא with-out Yod after the Tzadi both in Exod. 16 32 and in Levit. 23 43. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 82 b, on Ezek. 20 41.

תק"ח = § 508.

כִּדְרֵי־אֵל when thou broughtest out, occurs twice plene. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 59 b, on Exod. 3 12, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 84 a, on 1 Kings 8 55, and (III) the printed Massorah on Exod. 3 12.

As this Hiphil infinitive with the prefix Beth and the suffix second person singular masculine occurs twice altogether and is plene in both instances, Lists II and III are more properly headed ב' וסל' ב.

תק"ט = § 509.

כִּדְרֵי־אֵל when they brought them out, occurs twice. This rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 18 b, on Gen. 19 17.

תק"י = § 510.

וְהוֹצִיאָהּ he brought forth, or bring thou forth, begins a verse in two instances. Normally this quinqueliteral, which is seventeen times the preterite third person singular masculine and once the imperative singular masculine, occupies the middle of the verse. As it is in these two instances only that it begins the verse, the Massorah safeguards its exceptional position. It will be seen that in one instance it is the imperative (Isa. 43 8) and in one the preterite (Jerem. 51 10). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 137 a, on Isa. 43 8.

תק"יא = § 511.

וְהוֹצִיאָהּ bring thou forth, occurs five times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. In fixing the number at five the design of this Massorah is to militate against the textual reading וְהוֹצִיאָהּ the imperative in Gen. 8 17, which is also exhibited in the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 160 a, on Judg. 6 30, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 110 a, on Levit. 24 14; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 105 b, on 2 Kings 10 22; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 176 b, on Levit. 24 14; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 3, margin; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 19 12, and (VII) the same on 2 Kings 10 22.

תק"יב = § 512.

וְהוֹצִיאָהּ bring ye her forth, occurs three times in the Scriptures and is plene . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa.

Of this Rubric, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 23 b, on Isa. 48 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 140 a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 271 a, on 2 Chron. 23 14; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 40 b, on Gen. 38 24; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 2; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 38 24, and (VII) the same on Isa. 48 20.

תק"יג = § 513.

וְהוֹצִיאָהּ and he brought forth, is four times thus written. That is, without the characteristic Yod.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 114 a, on Deut. 4 20, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 246 b, on 2 Kings 11 12; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 303 b, on Ps. 78 16; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 261 b, on Deut. 4 20; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 2; (VI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 4 20, and (VII) the same on Ps. 105 43. Lists IV, VI and VII alone give the mnemonic sign.

תק"יד = § 514.

וְהוֹצִיאָהּ and he brought forth, is twelve times plene . . . and thirteen times defective. As this apocopated Hiphil future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, which occurs twenty-five times altogether, is partly plene and partly defective and moreover as the two kinds of spelling are promiscuously used in Kings, Jeremiah and Chronicles, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard the variation in the orthography of this expression.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated thirty Lists. I shall, however, specify the following nine only, six in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 9 a, on Gen. 15 5, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 137 a, on Numb. 17 23; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 20 3; (IV) the same Codex on Jerem. 50 25; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 2; (VI) the same Codex II, § 2; (VII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 17 24; (VIII) the same on Judg. 6 19, and (IX) the same on Ps. 136 11.

List I, as will be seen, records all the plenes and defectives in one register, and though it states in the heading that there are twelve plenes, it enumerates eleven only, omitting Jerem. 20 3. But as this passage is duly given in the other Lists, it is evident that its omission here is due to the carelessness of the Scribe. The other eight Lists give the twelve plenes and the thirteen defectives in separate Rubrics. Thus Lists IV, VIII and IX record the twelve plenes; whilst Lists III, V and VII give the thirteen defectives.

תק"ט"ו = § 515.

וְהוֹצִיאָהּ and he brought me out, is three times plene. This Rubric, which is from Orient. 1474, fol. 128 b, on Ezek. 46 21 is inexplicable, as this Hiphil future third person singular with the suffix first person and Vav conversive, occurs altogether five times and is plene in all the five instances in the received text. Not only are Ezek. 37 1; 42 1 and 47 2 omitted, but Micah 7 9 is given which is without the prefix Vav. If we assume that this Massorah is based upon a recension in which these three instances alone were plene, the heading ought to be ב' בליש' וסל' ב. This qualifying expression, as we have seen, is frequently omitted.

תק"ט"ז = § 516.

וְהוֹצִיאָהּ and he brought thee out, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. That is, in one instance it is entirely defective, being both without Vav and Yod (וְהוֹצִיאָהּ Deut. 5 15) and in one וְהוֹצִיאָהּ with Vav plene, but still without Yod (Deut. 4 37).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 126 b, on Deut. 5 15, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 264 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

This Rubric again shows that the different Massoretic Schools based their respective Massorahs upon different recensions of the text. Thus whilst Lists I and III emphatically declare that one of the two instances is without Yod only, and one is both without Yod and without Vav (אֵלֶיךָ בְּהַצִּיִּיךָ, List II as emphatically declares that both the instances are entirely defective (בְּהַצִּיִּיךָ). Not only is the Massorah Parva in this Standard Codex against Deut 5 15, but against Deut. 4 37, where the Scribe put with Vav in the text and the Massorite cancelled it and affixed the Massorah against it.

הָיָה = § 517.

and he brought us out, occurs three times. This Hiphil future third person singular masculine with suffix first person plural, which occurs altogether three times, is in each instance spelt differently. Once it is entirely defective, that is both without Vav and without Yod (Numb. 20 16); once it is without Vav, but with Yod (Deut. 6 21) and once with Vav, but with Yod (Deut. 26 8). Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. This Massorah, however, is based upon one recension of the text. Other recensions did not exhibit these variations. This is not only attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, which uniformly reads entirely plene in all the three instances, but by the express declaration that it is the Hellali Codex which reads defective in Numb. 20 16 and that the Jerusalem Codex has it plene, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 116 a, on Deut. 6 21; which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 223 a, on Numb. 20 16; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (IV) the same on Deut. 6 21.

הָיָה = § 518.

and she shall bring, or and thou hast brought forth, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. . . once it is in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. The Massorah, which as usual, has no regard for the difference in the sense, but simply regards the similarity of spelling, has here grouped together two futures third person singular feminine (Gen. 1 12; Ruth 2 18) and one future second person singular masculine with Vav conversive.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 1 b, on Gen. 1 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 53 b, on Jerem. 32 21; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on the same passage; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 283 a, on Ruth 2 18; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 299 a, on the same passage; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 2, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 1 12. The mnemonic sign is from Cambridge Add. 1174, on Gen. 1 12, where alone it occurs.

and I brought out, occurs three times. As this future first person singular with Vav conversive, which occurs three times only, is differently spelt, being in two instances with the normal Yod after the Tzadi (Josh. 24 6; Judg. 6 8) and in one instance without it (Ezek. 28 18), the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Josh. 24 6, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter , § 293. The latter is not only headed בְּיָמֵי מֶלֶךְ אֱדֹמִי, but has, at the end against the catchwords for Ezek. 28 18 בְּיָמֵי מֶלֶךְ אֱדֹמִי, which more properly indicates the design of this Massorah. The Ezekiel instance is one in the List of Hiphils which are abnormally without the characteristic Yod recorded above in § 503.

הָיָה = § 520.

I will bring out, occurs twice. That is, with paragogic He, in contradistinction to the other two instances in which this future first person singular occurs without the He (Exod. § 11; Ezek. 20 38). In fixing the number at two, this Massorah militates against the reading without the He in Gen. 19 9, which is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32 b, on Judg. 19 24.

הָיָה = § 521.

they shall bring out, occurs four times defective. In fixing the number of this Hiphil future third person plural masculine at four, the design of the Massorah is not only to militate against the textual reading with the prefix Vav in Jerem. 8 1, but against the reading the Kal future third person plural in 1 Kings 10 29, which is exhibited in the Septuagint and which is now accepted as preferable.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 86 a, on 1 Kings 10 29, which I have printed; (II) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 2, and (III) the printed Massorah on Job 8 10. List I emphatically states that it is defective or without the Yod in all the four instances. As two only are without it in the textus receptus (1 Kings 10 29; Job 8 10), this Massorah must be based upon a recension of the text in which the other two were also defective. Lists II and III do not advert to any variation in its orthography.

and they brought forth, is three times plene. The three forms of this Rubric exhibited in § 522 a-c are of importance to the study of the Massorah, inasmuch as they show how the same materials were elaborated by the different Massoretic Schools. This future third person plural masculine with Vav conversive, which occurs altogether twelve times, is spelt in three different ways. In seven instances it is entirely plene, that is, with both Vav after the Yod and Yod after the Tzadi (Levit. 24 23; 1 Sam. 12 18; Jerem. 26 23; 1 Chron. 19 16; 2 Chron. 1 17; 23 11; 29 16). In four it is without the Vav but with the Yod (Numb. 13 32; 15 36; Josh. 6 23; 10 23), and in one instance it is entirely defective, that is, both without the Vav and without the Yod.

From this analysis it will be seen that in the Pentateuch and the Prophets, which constitute the first part of this Massorah, it occurs altogether eight times. Here it is defective in five instances and plene in three only. Hence the Massorah here safeguards the minority.

And throughout the Hagiographa it is likewise so. In this division of the Bible, which is represented by Chronicles, it occurs four times and is uniformly plene. Here therefore, there is no exception to safeguard and hence the simple mention of the fact suffices. As the solitary instance in Kings, which is one of the five defectives in the first part of this Rubric, is doubly defective and thus exhibits a unique form, it is here separately indicated.

And all the others are without the Vav but with the Yod. That is, the remaining four instances are . These I have given in the analysis.

Of this form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 80 a, on Levit. 24 23, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 1379, fol. 235 a, on the same passage, and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 96 b, also on the same passage.

הָיָה = § 522 b.

and they brought forth, is seven times plene. This form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1471, fol. 160 a, on 1 Sam. 12 8. It is not so artificial as the preceding form and the seven plenes as well as the unique abnormal defective coincide with those given in the analysis. Contrary, however, to the usual method of the Massorah, the instances safeguarded are the majority.

הָיָה = § 522 c.

and they brought forth, occurs twelve times. This is the oldest and popular form of the Massorah. I collated fifteen Lists of it, but shall specify the following seven only, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 95 b, on Numb. 15 36, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 110 b, on Levit. 24 23; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 26 23; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 8 a, on Josh. 10 23; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 2; (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 24 23, and (VII) the same on Numb. 15 36.

Lists IV and V emphatically declare in their respective headings that it occurs eleven times (אֵלֶיךָ בְּהַצִּיִּיךָ) and record eleven only.

They coincide in omitting Josh. 10 23. They must, therefore, be based upon Codices which had not וַיֵּצֵא here, though it is now impossible to say what reading these Codices exhibited. The other five Lists, however, give this passage.

With the exception of the printed Massorah (Lists VI and VII), none of the MS. Lists advert to any variation in the orthography of the twelve instances which constitute this Rubric. In the first of the two printed Lists, however, the variations are mentioned in the heading, where it is stated that four of the twelve are plene וַיֵּצֵא יְהוָה אֶת יִשְׂרָאֵל מִיַּד פַּרְעֹה, but the register itself does not indicate which of them are so written. Besides, this is in dire conflict with the preceding two forms of this Rubric, which state that seven of the twelve are plene. The second printed List (VII) notices the variation in its orthography in the following addition at the end of the Rubric וַיֵּצֵא יְהוָה אֶת יִשְׂרָאֵל מִיַּד פַּרְעֹה כְּכֹל מַעֲשָׂיו, which denotes that in Jerem. 26 23 and in the Hagiographa (1 Chron. 19 16; 2 Chron. 1 17; 23 11; 29 16) in these five passages it is וַיֵּצֵא entirely plene, that in 2 Kings 10 26 it is וַיֵּצֵא entirely defective and that in all the other six passages it is וַיֵּצֵא (Levit. 24 23; Numb. 13 22; 15 36; Josh. 6 23; 10 23; 1 Sam. 12 8). But this too is in conflict with the express statement in the preceding two forms of this Massorah, where Levit. 24 23 and 1 Sam. 12 8 are given as plenes.

תקניו - § 523.

וַיֵּצֵא and they brought him forth, occurs three times, twice it is entirely defective and once plene. This Hiphil future third person plural masculine with the suffix third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, which occurs altogether three times, is spelt in two different ways. In Gen. 19 16 and 1 Kings 21 13 it is וַיֵּצֵא entirely defective, that is both without Vav after the Yod and without Yod after the Tzadi, whilst in 2 Kings 12 12 it is וַיֵּצֵא entirely plene, that is with both Vav and Yod. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography which occurs in the same book.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 107 a, on 2 Kings 12 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 95 b, on 1 Kings 21 13; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 196 b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 19 16.

This Rubric affords an instructive confirmation of the oft-repeated statement that conflicting Massorahs are due to their being based upon different recensions of the text. Thus we are distinctly told that the first of the two is entirely defective according to the Hellali Codex whilst according to the Jerusalem Codex it is entirely plene, as will be seen from the notes on Gen. 19 16 in my edition of the Bible. 1 Kings 21 13, which according to this Massorah is entirely defective, is so in Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251. But in Orient. 2201, which is one of the oldest dated MSS. of the entire Bible, and in Add. 15,451 it is וַיֵּצֵא with Yod after the Tzadi, for which reason I have adopted it in my text of the Bible. The third instance, viz. 2 Kings 12 12, which according to the Massorah is וַיֵּצֵא entirely plene, is supported by the reading in Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451. But here again Orient. 2201 reads וַיֵּצֵא without Vav and Add. 15,250 reads it with Vav, but without Yod. This explains the otherwise inexplicable Massorahs in the same MSS. Thus the Massorah Parva in Add. 15,451, fol. 13 a, on Gen. 19 16 is וַיֵּצֵא, whilst the Massorah Parva in the same superb MS., fol. 255 a, on 2 Kings 12 12, is וַיֵּצֵא.

תקניו - § 524.

וַיֵּצֵא and that bringeth forth, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As the Hiphil participle singular masculine, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt being in the first instance with Yod after the Tzadi (Isa. 54 16) and in the second without it (Prov. 10 18), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (1) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 340 a, on Prov. 10 18, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 388 b, on the same passage. The Proverbs passage is one of the ten instances which are abnormally defective, recorded above, § 503.

תקניה - § 525.

וַיֵּצֵא ye bringing forth, occurs twice . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Like the singular recorded in the preceding Rubric, the plural participle, which also occurs twice only without the prefix Vav, is differently spelt in each case. In the first instance it is וַיֵּצֵא without the characteristic Yod after the Tzadi (Jerem. 38 23) and in the second it is וַיֵּצֵא with the Yod (Neh. 6 19). Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 173 a, on Jerem. 38 23. Though not expressed in the heading, the text on which this Rubric is has וַיֵּצֵא without the Yod. Though this reading is supported by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, the Massorah Parva of which describes this defective as unique Add. 16,250 and Add. 15,251, it simply represents the recension of the text which obtained in one School of Massorites. Not only do other recensions exhibit variations, but the different Massorahs safeguard the respective readings. Thus Harley 5710—11, reads וַיֵּצֵא entirely plene in Jerem. 38 23; Add. 15,451 reads it וַיֵּצֵא entirely defective, whilst Add. 21,161, which is one of the oldest Codices extant, reads it וַיֵּצֵא the Hophal as it is in the preceding verse. Hence the conflicting Massorahs. Thus the Massorah in the Cambridge Model Codex Add. 465 on Jerem. 38 23 is וַיֵּצֵא and in Harley 5710—11, which is also a Model Codex, the Massorah on Neh. 6 9 is וַיֵּצֵא.

תקניו - § 526.

וַיֵּצֵא that are found, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 175 b, on Ezek. 14 22. I have had occasion to advert to the fact that later Nakdanim not infrequently furnished the original Massorahs, which consisted of single words representing the respective passages, with wrong catchwords. This Rubric yields a convincing proof of it. The Nakdan mistook the unique form וַיֵּצֵא the Kal participle plural (Numb. 15 33) for וַיֵּצֵא the Hophal participle plural and hence supplied it with the catchwords אִתּוֹ מִקְדָּשׁ, though the Massorah is on the right passage which is thus omitted, viz. Ezek. 14 22. As the two instances occur in the same book, the heading ought properly to be וַיֵּצֵא.

תקניו - § 527.

וַיֵּצֵא he shall stand, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, with Kametz under the Tzadi which is due to its pausal accents, being Athnach in one instance (Prov. 22 29) and Soph-Pasuk in the other (Job 44 2). As this Hiphil future third person singular masculine, which occurs altogether nine times, is וַיֵּצֵא with Tzere in seven instances, the Massorah safeguards the variation in these two exceptional instances, since the two forms occur in close proximity in the same verse (Prov. 22 29).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 240 b, on Job 41 2, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 344 b, on Prov. 22 29.

In this Rubric we have again a conflict between the Massorah and the text. On Prov. 22 29 the Massorah in Arund. Orient. 16 emphatically remarks that both instances are וַיֵּצֵא with Patach under the Tzadi (ב), the Massorah evidently designing it as a correction of the text which the Nakdan has pointed with Kametz. But it is also with Kametz in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251, and in all the early editions of the Bible, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. Moreover, in the second instance, viz. Job 41 2, both the MSS. and the editions have it with Kametz. Accordingly the text and the margin in Prov. 22 29 must change places in my edition of the Bible.

וַיֵּצֵא and they stood, or presented themselves, occurs five times . . . and once it is Vav conjunctive. As the verb is וַיֵּצֵא in parallel phrases (comp. וַיֵּצֵא Josh. 24 1 with Levit. 9 5; וַיֵּצֵא Josh. 3 17 with 1 Chron. 11 14), the design of the Massorah is to safeguard the respective verbs against being made uniform.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 68 b, on Exod. 19 17, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 17 a, on Josh. 24 1; (III) the same MS., fol. 32 b, on Judg. 20 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 245 a, on 1 Chron. 11 14; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 180 b, on Josh. 24 1; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 19 17, and (VII) the same on Deut. 31 14. The solitary instance with Vav conjunctive constitutes one of the forty-eight expressions beginning with Vav Yod which respectively occur once only. (Vide supra letter י, § 15.)

תקניט - § 529.

תקניט and he put, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 144a, on Judg. 8 27, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Gen. 30 38.

תקיל - § 530.

תקיל and the oil, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 200a, on Hosea 2 10, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 85 on the same passage.

Both these Lists declare in their respective headings that תקיל occurs three times only and the Lists themselves record identically the same three instances, and yet it occurs six times and both Lists omit the same three, viz. Neh. 5 11; 10 40; 13 5. The absence of these three instances is simply due to the artificial manner of counting which the Massorah not infrequently adopts. It will be seen that four of the six instances occur in Nehemiah. These four are counted as one which is represented by the last instance and which with the two in the Minor Prophets yield the three.

תקליא - § 531.

תקליא and Isaac, occurs five times. In the only other instance in which this quinqueliteral occurs with Kametz under the Cheth it is תקליא the future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive (Gen. 17 17) denoting and he laughed.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 41a, on Gen. 24 62, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 17a, on Gen. 25 26; (III) the same MS., fol. 59a, on Gen. 48 15, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 62. As all the five instances occur in the same book, the heading ought properly to be תקליא or תקליא.

תקליב he is spread, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 7a, on Isa. 14 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 360a, on Esther 4 3, and (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 310b, on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Yod which respectively occur twice. (Vide supra, letter י, § 11.)

תקליג - § 533.

תקליג he cast them, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 257a, on 2 Chron. 4 17.

תקליד - § 534.

תקליד and they laid, or placed them, occurs twice in this form and is defective. This Hiphil future third person plural masculine with Vav conversive without and with the suffix (= תקליד) which occurs twice, is in both instances without the characteristic Yod after the Tzadi. Hence the Massorah safeguards them against being mistaken for the Kal (comp. 2 Kings 4 40).

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 5 b, on Josh. 7 23.

תקליה he shall be poured out, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 94 b, on Levit. 21 10, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 96 b; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 67 b; (IV) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah, on Job 22 16.

Here again the Massorah is conflicting. Whilst List III emphatically states that one is plene and one defective (תקליה), List IV as emphatically says that they are both plene (תקליה). The two conflicting Massorahs must therefore be based upon two different recensions of the text.

This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Yod which respectively occur twice. (Vide supra, letter י, § 11.)

תקליז - § 536.

תקליז molten, occurs twice. This Hophal participle occurs altogether six times. It is plene in four instances (1 Kings 7 23, 33; Job 37 18; 2 Chron. 4 2) and defective in two. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography, since the two different spellings are used in close proximity (comp. 1 Kings 7 16, 23).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 81 b, on 1 Kings 7 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 325 a, on Job 11 15, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. But though all the three Lists state in their respective headings that it is defective in both these passages, yet Orient. 2201 first hand and Add. 21,161 have it תקליז plene in Job 11 15. For the early editions which exhibit this plene reading, see the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

תקליז - § 537.

תקליז and he formed, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. This Kal future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, occurs altogether five times. In three instances it is תקליז with Tzere under the Yod (vide infra, § 541) and in two with Chirek. Moreover the two with Chirek which occur in the same section are differently spelt, one is תקליז with two Yods (Gen. 2 7) and the other תקליז with one Yod (Gen. 2 18). Hence the design of the Massorah is not only to safeguard the variation in its graphic signs, but to protect the difference in its orthography. The latter was especially necessary since some recensions exhibited תקליז with one Yod in both instances, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 465 on Gen. 2 7.

תקליח creating, is four times defective. This participle singular masculine, which occurs altogether sixteen times, is in twelve instances תקליח plene and in four only is it without the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

This Rubric is of importance inasmuch as it shows that when it was compiled the Eastern and Western recensions of the text were not as yet so sharply divided as they are now. All the official Lists which record the variations between these two recensions emphatically state that the Palestinians read it תקליח plene in Isa. 45 18 and that the Babylonians read it defective. (Vide supra, letter ח, § 626.) Yet not only does this Massorah include it as one of the four defectives, but Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 and all the early editions exhibit the Babylonian reading, contrary to the usual practice. This conclusively shows that when a MS. has a Babylonian reading it must not be concluded that its text exhibits the Babylonian recension. The fact, therefore, that the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 has תקליח defective does not prove that its text as a whole is the Babylonian text. It only shows that it has this reading in common with the unquestionably Palestinian MSS. and all the early editions which follow the Palestinian recension. For further evidence see my Treatise. On the relationship of the so-called Codex Babylonicus of A. D. 916 to the Eastern Recension of the Hebrew text in the Festschrift zu Ehren Prof. Chwolson's p. 149 &c. Berlin 1899. As we ordinarily follow the Palestinian recension and moreover as this reading is exhibited in the Splendid Codex Add. 15,451, I have adopted it in my edition of the Bible and given the Babylonian reading in the margin.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 138 b, on Isa. 45 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 214 a, on Habak. 2 18; (III) the same MS., fol. 307 b, on Pa. 94 9; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Habak. 2 18, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ח, § 307. All these Lists coincide in giving Isa. 45 18 as one of the four instances.

תקליט - § 539.

תקליט and he that formed thee, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 137 a, on Isa. 43 1, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 281 a, on the same passage, and

(III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. As all the three instances are restricted to the same book, the heading ought to be בְּכִסְּוֵי.

תְּקִיָּה = § 540.

תְּקִיָּה his work, or imagination, occurs twice. This quadrilateral with the suffix third person singular masculine, occurs altogether four times. In two instances it is תְּקִיָּה with Cholem on the Yod, being the participle (Isa. 45 9; Habak. 2 18) and in two it is תְּקִיָּה with Chirek (Deut. 31 21; Habak. 2 18), being the noun תְּקִיָּה with the suffix. As the two forms occur in the same verse (Habak. 2 18), the Massorah safeguards them against being made uniform.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 118 a, on Habak. 2 18.

תְּקִיָּה = § 541.

תְּקִיָּה and he was troubled, or distressed, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, with Tzere under the Yod, in contradistinction to the two instances in which this Kal future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive has Chirek under the Yod recorded above, § 537.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 21 b, on Gen. 32 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 204 b, on 2 Sam. 13 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 19 b, on Judg. 2 15; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 46 b, on Gen. 32 8; (V) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah II, § 310; (VI) Paris Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah Supplement, § 9, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 32 8. Lists II, IV and VI alone have the mnemonic sign. The sign without the List is also given in the printed Massorah both on Judg. 2 15 and 2 Sam. 13 2.

תְּקִיָּה and she was troubled, or it was a trouble, occurs twice. Normally when the third person singular is used impersonally, especially when followed by וּ or ל, it is in the masculine. Three instances of this combination with the verb in question are recorded in the preceding Rubric. As in the two instances which constitute this Rubric, the verb is changed from the masculine to the feminine, the Massorah safeguards this variation.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 26 b, on Judg. 10 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 56 a, on 1 Sam. 30 6, and (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

תְּקִיָּה = § 543.

תְּקִיָּה and I will kindle a fire, occurs six times. That is, in contradistinction to the phrase תְּקִיָּה and I will send a fire, which occurs eight times (Ezek. 39 6; Hosea 8 14; Amos 1 4, 7, 10, 12; 2 2, 5). As the two phrases are used promiscuously in the same book (Amos 1 12, 14 &c.), the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 205 b, on Amos 1 14, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 17 27; (III) the same Codex on Jerem. 21 14; (IV) the same on Jerem. 43 12; (V) the same on Jerem. 50 32; (VI) the same on Amos 1 14; (VII) Add. 15,251, fol. 265 a, on Jerem. 49 27, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 21 14. The first reference in the List which I have printed should be Jerem. 21 14 and not 21 1; the 4 has inadvertently dropped out of the text.

תְּקִיָּה she, or it shall be burning, occurs five times and is plene. By fixing the number of this Hophal future third person singular feminine at five, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the Kethiv, or textual reading of the Eastern recension which is תְּקִיָּה the Kal future both in Jerem. 15 14 and 17 4, as will be seen from my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 223 &c.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 143 b, on Levit. 6 2, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage. It is remarkable that though both the Jeremiah instances are with Kametz under the Coph which is due to their being with the pausal accent Soph-Pasuk, neither of the two Lists adverts to this variation in the graphic signs.

תְּקִיָּה = § 545.

תְּקִיָּה living thing, occurs three times. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 119 a, on Deut. 11 6, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 271 a, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 32 b, on Gen. 7 23; and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage. As all the three instances are restricted to the Pentateuch, the heading ought properly to be בְּפָתַח.

תְּקִיָּה = § 546.

תְּקִיָּה a fowler, occurs twice in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to exclude the only other instance where this noun occurs and where it is תְּקִיָּה with Cholem (Hosea 9 8). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 244 a, on Prov. 6 5.

תְּקִיָּה = § 547.

תְּקִיָּה hard, noble, occurs twice, once with Aleph at the end and once with He. As this adjective, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt in each case, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 363 b, on Dan. 2 11, which I have printed, and (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 288 b, on Ezra 4 10. This Rubric is part of the List of words which respectively occur twice, once with Aleph at the end and once with He. (Vide supra letter ק, § 23.)

תְּקִיָּה = § 548.

תְּקִיָּה and he awoke, is three times defective in the Scriptures. This Kal future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, occurs altogether eight times. In five instances it is תְּקִיָּה (Gen. 28 16; 41 4, 7; Judg. 16 14) or תְּקִיָּה with Segol under the Coph (Gen. 9 24) with two Yods, and in three it is with one Yod. Hence the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the minority, especially as the two different spellings are promiscuously used in the same section (Judg. 16 14, 20). In thus fixing the number of the defectives at three, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the recension of the text which exhibited the reading תְּקִיָּה in all the four instances in which it occurs in Genesis, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, which reads it uniformly defective and which is the primitive orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 219 a, on 1 Kings 3 15, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 30 b, on Judg. 16 20; (III) the same MS., fol. 78 b, on 1 Kings 3 15; (IV) the same MS., fol. 304 a, on Ps. 78 65; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 148 a, on Judg. 16 20; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 44 a, on Gen. 28 16, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 78 65.

תְּקִיָּה she shall be precious, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 98 a, on 2 Kings 1 18. As the two instances occur in two consecutive verses, the heading ought properly to be בְּכִסְּוֵי or בְּכִסְּוֵי.

תְּקִיָּה = § 550.

תְּקִיָּה and he shall be precious, occurs twice. As this future third person singular masculine with Tzere under the Yod and the prefix Vav which occurs twice, is differently spelt, being תְּקִיָּה with one Yod in the first instance (Ps. 49 9) and תְּקִיָּה with two Yods in the second (Ps. 72 14), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. In the only other passage in which it occurs it is תְּקִיָּה (1 Sam. 18 30) with Vav conversive.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Halle Ochl'ah Ve-Ochl'ah I, § 382, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 72 14. The latter indicates the import of this Massorah by its more correct heading, viz. בְּהִדְּמֵי.

תְּקִיָּה = § 551 a.

תְּקִיָּה and honour, treasure, occurs twice in the Scriptures and in Chaldee it is always so. This quadrilateral occurs altogether four times, twice in the Hebrew Scriptures which are duly recorded in the following Rubric, and twice in Chaldee (Dan. 2 6; 7 14). This Rubric, which has regard to the Hebrew alone, declares that though it occurs twice only in Hebrew, in Chaldee it is always so without, however, specifying the number of the instances.

This form of Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 275 c, on Esther 8 16.

תקניא = § 551 b.

תקניא occurs twice. That is, in Hebrew. In Chaldee as we have seen, it also occurs twice. The omission to state this fact makes this form of the Rubric obscure. It, however, affords another illustration of the fact that the different Schools of Massorites elaborated differently the same materials.

Of this form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 181 a, on Ezek. 22 25, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 362 b, on Esther 8 16.

תקניב = § 552.

תקניב and for the honour, occurs twice, once it is with Kametz and once with Pathach. As this quinqueliteral, which not only occurs twice, but within a few verses of each other, varies in its graphic signs, having in the first instance Kametz under the Coph (Dan. 4 27) and Pathach in the second (verse 33), the Massorah safeguards this variation.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 411 a, on Dan. 4 27.

תקניג = § 553.

תקניג and honour, occurs three times, twice it is written with Aleph and once with He. This Chaldee noun emphatic with the prefix Vav which occurs three times, is not only spelt differently, being in two instances with Aleph at the end (Dan. 2 37; 5 18), and once with He (Dan. 5 20), but as this difference occurs within two verses (Dan. 5 18, 20), the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 364 b, on Dan. 2 37, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 368 b, on Dan. 5 20; (III) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

תקניד to fear God, occurs seven times in this form. Normally when אלהים is combined with a Divine Name and denotes fearing, or reverencing the Supreme Being it is the Tetragrammaton, viz. יהוה. In this combination the phrase occurs about twenty-two times (Exod. 14 31; Josh. 22 25; 24 14; 1 Sam. 12 14, 18, 24; 1 Kings 18 3, 12; 2 Kings 4 1; 17 25, 28, 32, 33, 34, 41; Jerem. 26 19; Hosea 10 3; Jonah 1 16; Ps. 34 10; 112 1; Prov. 3 7; 24 21), apart from the passages where יהוה is followed by אלהים with different suffixes (comp. Deut. 6 2, 13, 24; 10 12 &c. &c.). As it is in these seven instances only that יהוה is combined with אלהים, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 47 b, on Gen. 42 18, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 400 a, on Eccl. 5 6; and (III) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 42 18. The latter heads this Rubric יהוה אלהים which is misleading, since יהוה אלהים without the accusative אלהים, occurs more than seven times (comp. Gen. 22 12; Deut. 25 18; 2 Kings 17 7 &c.).

תקניה = § 555.

תקניה she feared, occurs twice. That is, with Sheva under the Resh in contradistinction to the only other instance where this preterite third person singular feminine occurs with Tzere, which is due to its pausal accent Athnach (Gen. 18 15). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ps. 76 9.

תקניז = § 556.

תקניז and thou shalt fear. Wherever the accent on תתירא is a servant תתירא is with Dagesh and wherever the accent is a prince it is Raphe.

To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that תתירא, which occurs altogether five times, is in each case followed by תתירא and that it is in two instances with a servant = the conjunctive accent Mercha (Levit. 19 14, 32) and in three with a prince or the distinctive accent Typcha (Levit. 25 17, 36, 43) Hence the Massorah lays it down that in two instances with the servile accent or conjunctive the Mem in תתירא is with Dagesh, whilst in the case of the three instances with the dominant or disjunctive accent the Mem is Raphe.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 236 a, on Levit. 25 17, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 107 a, on the same passage; and (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 97 a, also on the same passage. Lists II and III omit the expression תתירא after תתירא which renders the import of the Rubric obscure, otherwise the three Lists are identical.

תקניז = § 557.

תקניז ye feared, occurs three times. That is, with Tzere under the Resh, in contradistinction to the solitary instance where this preterite second person plural masculine is תתירא with Kametz.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated eight Lists, five in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 75 b, on Ezek. 11 8, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 131 a, on Numb. 12 8; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 272 b, on Ezek. 11 8; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 207 b, on Numb. 12 8; (V) the same MS., fol. 263 b, on Deut. 5 5; (VI) Paris Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, § 5; (VII) the printed Massorah, on Numb. 12 8; and (VIII) the same on Deut. 5 5.

Lists V and VI add at the end תתירא, which indicates the design of this Massorah. With the exception of List II all the Lists give the mnemonic sign. The mnemonic sign alone is also given in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 11 8; in Harley 5710-11, on Numb. 12 8, and in the printed Massorah on Ezek. 11 8, as well as in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter, § 317.

תקניח and to fear, occurs twice. This infinitive with the prefix Lamed occurs altogether fourteen times. In twelve instances it is without the Vav conjunctive and in two only is it with this Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional instances.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 128 a, on Deut. 8 6, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 100 b, on the same passage, and (III) the same MS., fol. 420 b, on 2 Chron. 6 33.

תקניט = § 559.

תקניט fear thou, occurs four times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 254 a, on Prov. 24 21, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 337 a, on Prov. 3 7; (III) the same MS., fol. 345 b, on Prov. 24 21; and (IV) the printed Massorah, on Prov. 3 7. The mnemonic sign, which I have printed, is given in Harley 5710-11, on Eccl. 5 6 without the register. It is also given without the register in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter, § 316.

תקיס = § 560.

תקיס fear ye, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, with silent Aleph instead of י, thus distinguishing the Kal imperative plural of י from י the Kal future third person plural masculine form י, which occurs twenty-five times.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 180 b, on 1 Sam. 12 24, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 17 b, on Josh. 24 14; (III) the same MS., fol. 42 a, on 1 Sam. 12 24; (IV) the same MS., fol. 291 b, on Ps. 34 10; (V) the printed Massorah on Josh. 24 14, and (VI) the same on Ps. 34 10.

תקיסא he shall fear, without and with the prefix Vav is three times plene. To understand this highly artificial Massorah it is necessary to remark that this preterite third person singular masculine without and with Vav conversive, occurs altogether sixteen times. Without the prefix Vav, which occurs four times, it is always יתירא with both Yods (Amos 3 8; Ps. 27 3; 112 7, 8), whilst with the prefix, which occurs twelve times, it is וַיִּירָא plene or with both Yods in six instances (Gen. 18 17; 32 8; Exod. 2 14; 1 Sam. 12 18; 28 20; 1 Chron. 13 12), and וַיִּירָא defective or with one Yod in six (1 Sam. 18 12; 21 18; 28 5; 2 Sam. 6 9; Jerem. 26 21; 2 Chron. 20 3)

It will be seen from this analysis that there are six plenes in the Pentateuch and the Prophets, one without the prefix Vav and five with it. Yet this Massorah declares that there are three. The three are obtained (1) by reckoning all the instances in the Pentateuch as one; (2) all the instances with the prefix Vav in the Prophets as one, and (3) the solitary instance without the prefix Vav in this division of the Bible as one.

And throughout the Hagiographa it is likewise so except once. In this division of the Bible, where as we have seen, it occurs altogether nine times, three times without the prefix Vav and six times with it, it is plene in eight instances and defective in one only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 313 a, on Ps. 112 7.

תקס"א = § 561 b.

וַיִּירָא is defective throughout the Prophets except twice. This Rubric exhibits the same artificial Massorah as the preceding one in an inverted form. It shows how the same materials have been formulated by the different Massoretic Schools. It is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 268 b, on 2 Chron. 20 3.

תקס"ב = § 562.

וַיִּירָא and he feared, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse. That is, the plene form with two Yods. In the third instance, where it occupies this distinguished position, it is וַיִּירָא with one Yod (1 Sam. 18 12).

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 21 b, on Gen. 32 8.

תקס"ג = § 563.

וַיִּירָא and he feared, occurs twelve times. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 58 b, on Exod. 2 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 47 b, on 1 Sam. 18 12; (III) the same MS., fol. 55 a, on 1 Sam. 28 20; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 161 b, on 1 Sam. 18 12; (V) Halle Ochlah Ye-Ochlah II, § 30; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 32 8, and (VII) the same on 1 Sam. 28 5.

It is remarkable that though some of the Lists (II, III &c.) notice in their respective headings that six of the twelve instances are in Samuel and six in the other Scriptures (וּבְיַמֵּי שְׁמוּאֵל וּבְיַמֵּי הַנְּבִיאִים), yet none of them mention the variation in its orthography. The two artificial forms of this Massorah alone, recorded in § 561 a-b, when properly deciphered disclosed that it is וַיִּירָא plene in six instances and וַיִּירָא defective in six. Though this is confirmed by some of the Standard Codices, yet this Massorah must be regarded as representing one School of textual redactors only. It is now certain that the text of other Schools exhibited variations. This is attested by the fact that on וַיִּירָא in 2 Sam. 6 9, which is one of the six defectives, the Massorah in Harley 5710-11 remarks וַיִּירָא; that Add. 21,161, which is one of the oldest Codices extant, had it originally plene and that Orient. 2201, which is one of the earliest dated MSS. of the whole Bible, has it actually וַיִּירָא plene in the text.

The conflict which later Nakdanim produced by affixing duplicate Massorahs on the same expression, one emanating from one School and based upon one recension of the text, and the other belonging to another School and based upon a different recension, is here strikingly illustrated. Whilst one Massorah in one handwriting on 2 Sam. 6 9 is וַיִּירָא, thus declaring that the Keri, or official reading is plene, another Massorah in another hand by its side declares וַיִּירָא, according to which all the twelve instances are defective.

Another proof of this contention is afforded by Jerem. 26 21. This instance too, is one of the six defectives, according to some Standard Codices and the artificial Massorahs recorded in § 561 a-b. Hence it is וַיִּירָא in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251. Yet St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 has it וַיִּירָא plene and so it was originally in Add. 21,161, and is so still in the model Codex Add. 15,451. In the ancient Codex Add. 21,161 the Nakdan not only altered the original reading וַיִּירָא but put against it the Massorah וַיִּירָא, thus declaring that it is defective thirteen times. This Massorah, therefore, emanates from the same School of textual redactors as the second Massorah in Harley 5710-11, on 2 Sam. 6 9.

List I, which I have printed, records eleven instances only, though the heading emphatically states that there are twelve. As all the other Lists not only state in their respective headings that there are twelve but register this number, the omission of 1 Sam. 28 5 in List I is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe.

תקס"ד = § 564.

וַיִּירָא and I was afraid, occurs three times. This future first person singular occurs altogether twelve times. In nine instances it is without Vav conversive and in three it is with the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 3 a, on Gen. 3 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 286 a, on Job 32 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 332 a, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ' , § 323.

וַיִּירָא and they shall be afraid, occurs five times in the Scriptures, four times plene and once defective. This future third person plural masculine with the prefix Vav occurs altogether twenty-seven times. In twenty-two instances the Vav is conversive and in five only is it conjunctive, Massoretically called Raphe. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional occurrence.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 173 a, on Ps. 67 8, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 144 a, on Isa. 59 19; (III) the same MS., fol. 212 b, on Micah 7 17; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Deut. 2 4; (V) Halle Ochlah Ye-Ochlah II, § 30; (VI) the printed Massorah on Deut. 2 4, and (VII) the same on Micah 7 17. The headings in Lists VI and VII, viz. וּבְיַמֵּי הַנְּבִיאִים indicate the design of this Massorah. The mnemonic sign with the List is given in List IV only, without the List it is given in Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 28 a, on Ps. 59 19 and fol. 116 b, on Micah 7 17.

As to the one defective which the headings of five Lists mention, two only, viz. Lists IV and VII indicate the passage where it is so written. But these two Massorahs are in dire conflict. Thus List IV emphatically states that Ps. 67 8 is defective (וּבְיַמֵּי הַנְּבִיאִים) and this reading is supported by Add. 15,250; whilst List VII as emphatically declares that Micah 7 17 is the defective (וּבְיַמֵּי הַנְּבִיאִים). This is supported by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Add. 21,161; Harley 5710-11 (with a Massorah on it וּבְיַמֵּי הַנְּבִיאִים); Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; but opposed by the splendid Codex Add. 15,451 which reads it וַיִּירָא plene. Other MSS. again take the solitary defective to be Isa. 59 17. Thus Harley 5710-11 and Arund. Orient. 16, read it here וַיִּירָא defective and the printed Massorah Parva expressly remarks on it that it occurs five times, four times plene and that this one is defective (וּבְיַמֵּי הַנְּבִיאִים). These different readings and conflicting Massorahs, therefore, can only be explained by the fact that they are based upon the different recensions of the text which obtained among the different Massoretic Schools, as is not infrequently the case.

תקס"ו = § 566.

וַיִּירָא is four times defective denoting and they shall fear. Normally this quinqueliteral with identically the same graphic signs is the future third person plural masculine with Vav conversive of וַיִּירָא and signifies and they saw. In this sense וַיִּירָא occurs about thirty-one times, apart from Samuel. As it is in these five instances only that וַיִּירָא denotes and they feared and stands for וַיִּירָא with one Yod defective, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional defective form.

And throughout Samuel it is likewise so except once. In Samuel, however, the reverse is the case, the defective form is the rule and the plene the exception. The former occurs five times (comp. וַיִּירָא 1 Sam. 4 7; 7 7; 17 1; 2 Sam. 10 19; 12 18) and the latter is the exception. Here, therefore, the Massorah on the contrary safeguards the solitary plene exception.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Josh. 4 14, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ' , § 318. The latter gives וַיִּירָא as the second of the four instances, but this passage does not occur and is evidently a mistake for וַיִּירָא 1 Kings 3 28.

תקס"ז - § 567.

וַיִּירָאוּ and they shall fear, occurs seven times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 19 a, on Isa. 41 5, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 189 a, on Ps. 52 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 188 a, on Isa. 41 5; (IV) the same MS., fol. 296 b, on Ps. 52 8; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 114 a, on Deut. 17 18; (VI) the same MS., fol. 280 a, on Isa. 41 5, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

The headings of the several Rubrics show that the different Massoretic Schools had different designs in the compilation of this Massorah. Thus List IV is headed קָצַב ד' חסו' ו' ב' ל' showing that its design is to distinguish between the instances with Kametz under the Resh which is due to the pausal or distinctive accents and the five instances in which this future though also with Vav conjunctive, is with the normal Sheva under the Resh (Deut. 2 4; Isa. 59 19; Micah 7 17; Ps. 67 8; 102 16). The heading of List VII, however, which is ו' רש' בקריא' shows that its design is to safeguard these six exceptional instances with Sheva under the Vav being conjunctive, against the twenty-two instances in which this future is with Pathach under the Vav being conversive.

It will be seen that the heading of List IV emphatically states that four of the six instances are וְיִירָאוּ defective and two only are וַיִּירָאוּ, whereas in the textus receptus the three instances in Deuteronomy alone are defective and the other three are plene. In the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text all the three Deuteronomy instances are וַיִּירָאוּ plene. Though the heading of the List which I have printed states that there are seven such instances, the List itself records six only. This is due to the omission at the end of וַיִּירָאוּ Gen. 42 35 for want of space which is given in Lists III, VI and VII and which, though with Vav conversive, is also with Kametz under the Resh.

וַיִּירָאוּ they shall fear thee, occurs four times, three times plene. As this future third person plural masculine with the suffix second person singular masculine, which occurs altogether four times, is spelt in two different ways, being in the first instance וַיִּירָאוּ with one Yod (1 Kings 8 40) and in the other three instances וַיִּירָאוּ with two Yods, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 128 b, on Isa. 25 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 301 b, on Ps. 72 5; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 228 a, on Isa. 25 8; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 189 b, on 1 Kings 8 40; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 80, margin, and (VI) the printed Massorah, on Isa. 25 8. Lists IV and VI declare that it is the Kings instance which is defective (קרי' חס').

וַיִּירָאוּ ye shall fear, occurs twice and is plene. The future second person plural masculine with Sheva under the Resh, occurs altogether twenty-three times. In twenty-one instances it is the normal form וַיִּירָאוּ and in these two instances only is it with paragoric Nun. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 85, on Deut. 1 29, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 51 a, on Exod. 9 30, and (III) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 111 b, on Deut. 1 29.

תקע - § 570.

וַיִּירָאוּ and terrible, occurs seven times and is plene. Of this Rubric, which is one of the popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 117 a, on Deut. 7 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 210 a, on Ps. 111 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 204 a, on Joel 2 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 218 b, on Habak. 1 7; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 864 a, on Ps. 89 8; (VI) Add. 21,160, fol. 289 a, on Deut. 7 21; and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 318.

It will be seen that though the List which I have printed (List I) states in the heading that it occurs seven times, it records six only and omits Ps. 89 8. But as this instance is duly given in all the other Lists and moreover as List V is on this very passage, it is evident that its omission is due to the carelessness of the Scribe. The printed Massorah (List VII) again affords an instructive example of the manner in which later Nakdanim altered the headings to agree with erroneous registers. Instead of giving וַיִּירָאוּ - Habak. 1 7 as one instance and וַיִּירָאוּ - Joel 2 11 as another which yield the required number seven, the editor wrongly joined them and thus obtained six only and hence altered the heading into ך = 6.

תקע"א - § 571.

וַיִּירָאוּ terrible things. A sign indicating its spelling. This Niphal participle plural feminine, which occurs altogether nine times without and with the prefixes and one of which is with the suffix second person singular masculine, is spelt in three different ways: (1) twice it is with the first Vav, but without the second, viz. וַיִּירָאוּ Deut. 10 21 and וַיִּירָאוּ Ps. 145 6; (2) twice it is וַיִּירָאוּ without the first Vav, but with the second 2 Sam. 7 28 and 1 Chron. 17 21; and (3) five times it is וַיִּירָאוּ with both Vavs Isa. 64 2; Ps. 45 6; 65 6; 106 22; 139 14. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. As the defective spelling is in four instances and the plene in five, the Massorah, according to its usual method, specifies the passages of the minority, alone, and simply states that all the others are with the normal two Vavs without giving the catchwords or mentioning their number.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 15,251, fol. 110 b, on Deut. 10 21, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,451, fol. 127 b, on the same passage. As is not infrequently the case, this Rubric emanates from one School of Massorites and is based upon the recension of the text which obtained in that School. That the text of other Schools exhibited variations will be seen from the following analysis:

(1) Deuteronomy 10 21, which according to this Massorah is וַיִּירָאוּ without the second Vav, is in the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew וַיִּירָאוּ with both Vavs. In the splendid Codex Add. 15,451 it is וַיִּירָאוּ without the first Vav, but with the second which a later Nakdan altered; whilst in Add. 21,160 it is וַיִּירָאוּ without both Vavs.

(2) 2 Samuel 7 28, which is here וַיִּירָאוּ without the first Vav, but with the second, is וַיִּירָאוּ with both Vavs in the ancient Codex Add. 21,161 and in Harley 5710-11.

(3) Psalm 145 6, which is here וַיִּירָאוּ without the second Vav, is וַיִּירָאוּ entirely plene not only in the same ancient Codex, viz. Add. 21,161 second hand, but in the first edition of the Hebrew Bible with the Massorah, Venice 1524-25.

(4) 1 Chronicles 17 21, which is here וַיִּירָאוּ also without the first Vav, is not only וַיִּירָאוּ entirely plene in Add. 21,161; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,451, but in all the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible, for which reason I have adopted it in the text and given in the margin the alternative וַיִּירָאוּ, which is the reading in Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250 and Add. 15,251.

וַיִּירָאוּ ye shall fear them, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this future second person plural masculine with the suffix third person plural masculine, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt, being in the first instance וַיִּירָאוּ without the Vav and in the second וַיִּירָאוּ with it, the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography and thus militates against the recension which reverses the spelling, having the plene in Numb. 14 9 and the defective in Deut. 3 22, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 108 b, on Numb. 14 9, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 182 b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 210 a, also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah, on Deut. 3 22. As both instances are restricted to the Pentateuch, the heading ought properly to be וַיִּירָאוּ.

תקע"ג - § 573.

וַיִּירָאוּ he that feareth, occurs twice. That is, the adjective with the prefix He, in contradistinction to the fourteen instances in which it is without this prefix.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 124 b, on Deut. 20 8, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 107 b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 78 a, on Exod. 9 20, and (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 62 b, on the same passage.

תקעד = § 574.

ירא אלהים fearing God, occurs four times. The adjective ירא is nine times in construction with the Divine Name. In five instances it is followed by the Tetragrammaton, viz. ירא יהוה fearing Jehovah (Isa. 50 10; Ps. 25 12; 128 1, 4; Prov. 14 2) and in four it is in combination with אלהים. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 319 b, on Job 1 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 353 b, on Eccl. 7 18; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 23 a, on Gen. 22 12; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 10 b, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 319 b, on Job 2 3; (VI) Vienna Cod. No. 35, on Job 1 8, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 22 12. List IV adds at the end that in one instance this combination also occurs with the prefix Vav, viz. וירא אלהים Job 8 1.

יראיהם they, or ye fearing God, occurs four times. Normally the adjective masculine plural construct is followed by the Tetragrammaton, i. e. יראיהם יהוה. In this combination it occurs seven times (Mal. 3 16; Ps. 15 4; 22 24; 115 11, 13; 118 4; 125 20). In these two instances, however, it is followed by אלהים. Hence the Massorah safeguards this abnormal phrase.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174, on Exod. 18 21, which I have printed, and (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 46 b, on the same passage.

יראת אלהים the fear of God, is three times thus combined . . . once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. This feminine noun יראת is seventeen or eighteen times in construct with the Divine name. In fourteen or perhaps fifteen instances it is the Tetragrammaton, viz. יראת יהוה, as will be seen in the following Rubric, and in three only is it in construct with אלהים. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination. By fixing the number at three, the Massorah militates against the more probable reading יראתיהם which is exhibited in some MSS. and early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 214 a, on 2 Sam. 23 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 295 b, on Neh. 5 15; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 73 a, on 2 Sam. 23 3; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 7 b, on Gen. 20 11; (V) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah I, § 153; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 20 11, and (VII) the same on 2 Sam. 23 3.

This Rubric forms part of the List of nine words which respectively occur three times followed by אלהים. (Vide supra, letter מ, § 554.)

תקעיו = § 577.

יראת יהוה the fear of Jehovah, occurs twelve times. That is, in contradistinction to the instances in which יראת is followed by אלהים recorded in the preceding Rubric.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 386 a, on Prov. 1 7. It will be seen that though the heading states that there are twelve such instances, the Rubric itself records eleven only and that one of these is יראתיהם in the received text (Job 28 28). Apart from this various reading, which is due to the not infrequent substitution of this expression for the Tetragrammaton, as has already been shown (vide supra, letter מ, §§ 114 and 115), this Rubric omits the following four instances in which this phrase occurs in the textus receptus: Isa. 33 6; Ps. 19 10; 34 12 and Prov. 31 10. It may therefore be that this Massorah is based upon a recension of the text in which יראתיהם was also the reading in these absent passages. Hence their omission from this Register and hence the conflict between this Massorah and the Massorahs recorded above in letter מ, §§ 109, 112, 113, 115.

תקעיה = § 578.

יראת יהוה and the fear of Jehovah, is twice thus combined. In the only other instance in which this noun with the prefix Vav is in construct with a Divine name the phrase is ויראתיהם and the fear of the Almighty (Job 6 14).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 6 6, on Isa. 11 2, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 123 b, on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the List of nine words beginning with Vav which respectively occur twice followed by the Tetragrammaton. (Vide supra, letter ו, § 83.)

תקעיש = § 579.

יריאה Jirijah, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 172 a, on Jerem. 37 13, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

This proper name of the captain of the guard in the time of Zedekiah affords another striking illustration of the endeavour on the part of the textual redactors to safeguard the ineffable Name. Normally the graphic signs for this quinqueliteral are יריאה whom Jehovah looks upon. To disguise, however, the name יריאה the Massorites not only removed the Kametz from the second Yod to the first, but furnished the first Yod with a Dagesh, thus silencing the second altogether and precluding its being regarded as the biliteral for the Tetragrammaton. For the reason of this shyness to pronounce this name see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 375 &c. and for the endeavour to disguise its orthography, the notes on Jerem. 37 13 in my edition of the Bible.

תקיס = § 580.

מלין במיחרין בליש ירידה. Forms of the verb ירד to go down, which respectively occur once only. This List, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 58 7. It exhibits the first attempt to collect the hapax legomena of the verb ירד. Its fragmentary character will be seen when it is stated that there are about seventy-five forms of this root which occur once only, that this List records fifteen expressions, that three of these belong to different roots, viz. (1) ירדו (Isa. 58 7) is the participle plural of ירד; (2) ירדנה (Lament. 1 13) is the future third person singular masculine with the suffix third person singular feminine and Vav conversive of ירד, and (3) ירד (Hosea 12 1) is the preterite third person singular masculine of ירד, and that the fourteenth instance, viz. יר, if I have properly deciphered it, is given twice. Deducting, therefore, the four this Register omits about sixty-four.

We have here another illustration of the fact that in recording the hapax legomena of the forms of a certain root, the Massorah not infrequently incorporates in the List words which contain two letters only, which are to be found in this root, though the forms themselves belong to different roots. (Vide supra, § 371.) The two letters which underlie the principle of this List are רד.

ירידה מקרים. Normally the phrase denoting to descend into Egypt is ירד מקרים. In this form it occurs nine times (Gen. 12 10; 26 2; 37 25; 39 1; 46 3, 4; Numb. 20 15; Deut. 10 22; 26 5). In these four instances, however, the verb ירד is exceptionally combined with מקרים without the local He. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination and thus militates both against the recension of other Schools of textual redactors and against the extra-official reading which exhibit מקרים in these instances, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible and from the Rubric מקרים recorded in letter מ, § 700.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 53 b, on Gen. 43 15, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 130 b, on Josh. 24 4; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 50 a, on Gen. 43 15; (IV) Orient. 2348, fol. 63 b, on the same passage; (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage; (VI) the same on Josh. 24 4, and (VII) the same on Isa. 31 1. All these Lists coincide in excluding Isa. 52 4 because מקרים here precedes ירד.

ירידה על. — Normally the verb ירד is combined with על except in eight instances. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 102 a, on Ezek. 47 8, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 53 a, on Exod. 2 5.

This Rubric is in dire conflict with the following Massorah. The hypothesis that it simply exhibits the first attempt to collect these instances and that a later Nakdan who mistook this incipient List as complete, furnished it with a heading fixing the number to agree with the register, which as we have seen is not infrequently the case, is very problematical. The two Lists which are identical, are from MSS. of different Schools and from countries far apart. The more probable explanation is that this Rubric is based upon the recension of a text in which the two prepositions על and על were not as yet definitely separated. This is not only attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text which reads אל in Exod. 19 11, but by the many instances in which these two prepositions occur interchangeably in the different Schools of Massorites. (Comp. letter א, § 514; letter פ, § 352.)

תקפ"ב = § 582 b.

ירידה על. — The verb ירד in different forms, is in seventeen instances combined with the preposition על. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter י, § 334.

This Rubric manifestly exhibits a different recension and is based upon Codices in which this combination occurred more frequently. But it too must be regarded as incomplete judging by the textus receptus. Though it states in the heading that ירד combined with על occurs seventeen times, it records fourteen only. But even this number, which accords with the number given in the heading in Judg. 3 16, where the printed Massorah mentions the Rubric and refers to the Massorah Finalis for the enumeration of the passages (כל לשון ירידה אל בים ירד על וסימ בטסרי רבתי), is not only incomplete but contains several instances which are against the scope of this Massorah, as will be seen from the following analysis.

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the instances in which the different forms of the verb ירד are followed by the preposition על without any prefix or suffix against being confused with the homonymous preposition אל. This verb altogether is followed by these two prepositions about fifty-two times. According to the textus receptus it is followed by אל about thirty-five times (Gen. 37 35; Exod. 19 25; Josh. 16 3; 18 16, 16; Judg. 74 5, 10, 11; 14 10; 15 11; 1 Sam. 21 14; 25 1; 26 2, 6; 30 15, 15; 2 Sam. 5 17; 11 9, 10; 1 Kings 1 33; 18 40; 21 16; 22 2; 2 Kings 1 15; Isa. 14 15, 19; 38 18; Ezek. 26 20; 31 18; 32 24; Joel 4 2; Jonah. 1 5; Ps. 30 10; Prov. 7 27; 2 Chron. 18 2) and by על seventeen times only (Gen. 15 11; 24 18; Exod. 2 5; 19 11, 20; Numb. 11 9; Josh. 3 16; Judg. 11 37; Isa. 31 4; Jerem. 36 12; Ezek. 47 8; Micah 1 3; Ps. 72 6; 133 2, 2, 3; 1 Chron. 11 15). Hence the Massorah records the minority.

By fixing the number at seventeen the Massorah rightly excludes the reading על-תצא (2 Sam. 5 17) which is exhibited in Add. 15,451 second hand, but which is against the Standard Codices, viz. Add. 21,161; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 and all the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. It also excludes the reading על-יון in 1 Kings 1 33 which is exhibited in Orient. 2201 first hand with the Massorah on it אל-יק; in Harley 5710-11 first hand and in Add. 15,451 first hand, but which is rightly על in the ancient Codex Add. 21,161; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 with the Massorah on it על כל כח אל-יק and in the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. It moreover militates against the Eastern recension of the text, which reads על in Isa. 14 19.

It will be seen that though this recension (List II) rightly states in the heading that there are seventeen instances, which harmonises with the textus receptus, it records fourteen only. From this number, however, two must be cancelled since they are contrary to the scope of this Massorah: (I) Neh. 9 13, which is not only על with the prefix Vav but precedes the verb ירד. In such cases the phrase is not counted (vide supra, § 581). For this reason even Isa. 34 5, which is על without the prefix is excluded. And (2) 2 Chron. 20 16 where it is על-יה with the suffix third person plural masculine. The instances in which על is with suffixes are excluded. Hence not only are ירד על Exod. 19 18;

Numb. 11 9 and ירד על Deut. 28 24 excluded, but ירד על which occurs again in Exod. 9 19.

The above analysis discloses the following facts: (1) that the homonymous prepositions אל and על were at first promiscuously used; (2) that they were gradually separated in the several Massoretic Schools; (3) that the conflicting Lists simply exhibit the progress of this separation made by the respective textual redactors, the limited Lists representing the earlier stages and the more expanded the later stages; (4) that the heading of List II indicates the latest development which agrees with the textus receptus though the contents of the List itself are faulty, and (5) that according to this latest development, where the two faulty instances are eliminated, the following five passages which with the twelve remaining ones make up the seventeen are to be added; Exod. 19 11; Isa. 31 4; Ezek. 47 8; Ps. 72 6 and a second in Ps. 133 2.

The vicious attempt to reduce to uniformity conflicting Massorahs which faithfully represent the different recensions of the text on which they are based is due to the fact that the harmonisers are not aware that several recensions obtained in the different Schools of Massorites.

תקפ"ג = § 583.

ירידה שקמה. — To go down thither, occurs three times. That is, with paragogic He, in contradistinction to the other three instances in which this combination occurs and where the adverb is without the He, i. e. ירד קם (Numb. 11 17; 2 Sam. 17 18; 1 Kings 21 18). By fixing the number at three the Massorah militates against the reading קם in Gen. 39 1, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah on Gen. 39 1, thus safeguarding the very instance which exhibited the variation.

תקפ"ד = § 584.

ויירדתי and I will come down, occurs three times. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the textual reading or Kethiv in Ruth 3 8. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 423 b, on Neh. 6 3.

תקפ"ה = 585.

ויירדתי and they shall come down, is seven times Raphe in the Scriptures. This future third person plural with the prefix Vav occurs altogether twenty-six times. In nineteen instances the Vav is with Pathach, being conversive which is Massoretically called Dogesh and in seven only is it with Sheva or Raphe being the conjunctive. Hence the Massorah safeguards the graphic signs of the minority.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall, however, specify the following eight only, seven in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 41 b, on Exod. 11 8, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 136 a, on Numb. 16 30; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 26 16; (IV) the same Codex on Ezek. 27 29; (V) the same Ezek. 47 8; (VI) the same on Hag. 2 22; (VII) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 240, and (VIII) the printed Massorah on Numb. 16 30. List III heads this Rubric ירד קם, thus emphasising the fact that in these seven instances the Yod is with Kametz, in contradistinction to the nineteen instances in which it is ירדו with There.

תקפ"ו = § 586.

באתה when he came down, occurs four times . . . and once it is with the prefix Vav. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 243 b, on 2 Kings 7 17, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 58 a, on Exod. 34 29; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 78 a, on the same passage, and (IV) Orient. 2348, fol. 88 a, also on the same passage.

It is remarkable that in the catchwords for 2 Chron. 7 3, the List which I have printed (List I) reads קם קם instead of קם קם. This Rubric is not included in the alphabetical Register of words which respectively occur five times, four times without the prefix Vav and once with it to which it properly belongs. (Vide supra, letter י, § 75.)

תקפ"ז = § 587.

תקפ"ז come down, occurs twice. Normally this imperative singular masculine is תק. In this form it occurs twelve times and in four instances only is it with paragodic He. With this He, however, it is twice תקה with Sheva and twice תקה with Tzere, which is due to the pausal accent Soph-Pasuk. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography, as well as the variation in its graphic signs in this and the following Rubric, thus distinguishing it from the only other instance in which this trilateral with Sheva under the Resh but with Tzere under the Daleth, is also the imperative (Ps. 110 3), being of the root תקה to rule.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 187 a, on Ezek. 32 19, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 287 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah on Gen. 45 8.

תקפ"ח = § 588.

תקפ"ח occurs twice. That is, with Tzere under the Resh, in contradistinction to the two instances in which it is with Sheva, recorded in the preceding Rubric. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 97 b, on 2 Kings 1 11. As the two instances are restricted to the same section, the heading ought properly to be תקפ"ח.

תקפ"ט = § 589.

תקפ"ט and he came down, is three times with [Kametz =] Pathach in the Scriptures. This future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive occurs altogether forty-four times. In forty-one instances it is תקט with Segol under the Resh and in these three only it is with Pathach Massoretically called Kametz, which is due to its pausal or distinctive accents, being in two instances Athnach (2 Sam. 22 10; Ps. 18 10) and in one instance Pazer (Prov. 30 4). Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional variation in its graphic signs.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 218 b, on 2 Sam. 22 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 177 b, on Ps. 18 10; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 72 b, on 2 Sam. 22 10; (IV) the same MS., fol. 348 a, on Prov. 30 4; (V) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 22 10; (VI) the same on Ps. 18 10, and (VII) the same on Prov. 30 4. The mnemonic signs which are respectively the initials of שמשל and ששלי, the three books in which these three instances occur, I have found with List I only.

תקצ they shall come down, occurs five times in the Scriptures. This quadrilateral with Sheva under the Resh from the root תקצ, occurs altogether twenty times. In fifteen instances it is תקצ with Kametz, being the preterite third person plural and in five only is it with Tzere, being the future. The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to safeguard the future tense which is the minority against being mistaken for the preterite.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 67 a, on Jerem. 50 27, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 42 b, on 1 Sam. 13 12; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 265 b, on Jerem. 50 27; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on 1 Sam. 13 12, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Ps. 55 16.

תקצ"א = § 591.

תקצ"א let us, or we will go down, occurs three times in the Scriptures. That is, the future first person plural with paragodic He, in contradistinction to the only other instance in which this future without the prefix Vav occurs and without the He. As the two forms occur in two consecutive verses (Gen. 43 3, 4) the Massorah safeguards them against being made uniform.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, fol. 182 b, on 1 Sam. 14 36, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 44 a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 9 b, on Gen. 11 7; (IV) the same MS., fol. 28 a, on Gen. 43 4; (V) the printed Massorah on Gen. 11 7; (VI) the same on Gen. 43 4, and (VII) the same on 1 Sam. 14 36.

Lists III and IV which, as we have seen, are from the same MS., afford an instructive example of my oft-repeated statement that the Scribes not infrequently mistook the expression תקצ for תקצ. Thus List III is headed תקצ which is manifestly incorrect since one of the instances occurs in Samuel, whilst List IV is correctly headed תקצ.

תקצ"ב = § 592.

תקצ"ב coming down, is in two instances plene in the Scriptures. As this active participle singular masculine, which occurs six times altogether, is differently spelt being in four instances תקצ defective and in two plene, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography in the exceptional passages. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 224 b, on Job 7 9.

תקצ"ג = § 593.

תקצ"ג is three times defective. Whilst in the singular the plene orthography of this participle is the exception, in the plural construct the reverse is the case. The plene spelling is the rule and the defective the exception. Of the eighteen instances in which it occurs it is fifteen times תקצ plene and three times only תקצ defective. Hence the Massorah here safeguards the abnormal defective spelling. This is especially necessary since the two different spellings occur in the same section. (Comp. Ezek. 32 18, 24, 25 with verse 29.)

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 91 a, on Ezek. 32 29, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 211 a, on Ps. 115 17; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 320 a, on Ps. 143 7, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Ps. 115 17.

תקצ"ד bring down or put off, occurs three times. That is, the Hiphil singular masculine, in contradistinction to the two instances in which this quadrilateral is תקצ the Hophal preterite third person singular masculine, recorded below, § 600.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 160 b, on Judg. 7 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 190 a, on Ps. 56 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 297 b, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,451, fol. 187 b, on Judg. 7 4; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 121 b, on Exod. 33 5; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Ps. 56 8. As the three instances respectively occur in the three divisions of the Bible, Lists V and VI add תקצ = once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa.

תקצ"ה and they shall bring down, is twice defective. In the only other instance in which this Hiphil preterite third person plural masculine occurs it is תקצ with Yod plene (Gen. 44 31). By fixing the defective instances at two, the design of the Massorah is to militate against the Codices which read all the three instances uniformly plene, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 88 a, on Numb. 4 5, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 107 b, on Deut. 21 4; (III) Orient. 2349, fol. 101 b, on Numb. 4 5; (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Deut. 21 4; and (V) the printed Massorah, on Numb. 4 5.

תקצ"ו = § 596.

תקצ"ו they brought him down, or bring ye him down, occurs twice defective. The design of this Massorah is to militate against reading these two instances תקצ with Yod plene which is exhibited in the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, and is still the reading in the Model Codex Add. 15,451. It will be seen that though it is the preterite third person plural with the suffix third person singular masculine in one instance (Gen. 39 1) and the imperative second person plural with the same suffix in the second (Gen. 44 22), yet the Massorah which has regard to the identity of the spelling only, irrespective of the difference in the sense, groups them together in the same Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 26 a, on Gen. 39 1, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תקצי"ד and he brought down, occurs six times, twice defective and four times plene. As this Hiphil future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive occurs altogether six times and is in two instances תקצי"ד defective, the Massorah safeguards it against being mistaken for תקצי"ד with Tzere under the Yod which is the Kal future with Vav conversive and which occurs many times. (Vide supra, § 589.) Moreover, by fixing the number of defectives at one (Prov. 21 22), the design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading תקצי"ד defective also in Joel 2 23, which is still preserved in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2210, fol. 81 a, on 1 Sam. 21 14, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 108 a, on Joel 2 23; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 23 b, on Judg. 7 5; (IV) the same MS., fol. 50 b, on 1 Sam. 21 14; (V) the same MS., fol. 204 b, on Joel 2 23; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 142 b, on Judg. 7 5, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

These seven Lists represent two recensions of this Massorah which are based upon two different recensions of the text.

Recension I. - According to this recension this Hiphil third person singular masculine with Vav conversive is in two instances תקצי"ד defective, once in Joel 2 23 which is attested by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, and once in Prov. 21 13 which is expressly stated to be so written in Lists V and VII, viz. עלה עומה יורד עומה.

Recension II. - This recension is represented in Lists III, IV, V, VI and VII which are respectively headed תהיה תהיה, the one defective being Prov. 21 22. This recension is the one followed in the textus receptus and is exhibited in Add. 21,161; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451 and Add. 15,251. List II is simply headed יורד ו בקרי without adverting to the fact that any of the six instances exhibit a variation in the orthography.

תקציה and she sat down, occurs three times, twice defective and once plene. As this Hiphil future third person singular feminine with Vav conversive which occurs three times only, is differently spelt being in two instances defective (Gen. 24 18; 1 Sam. 19 12) and once plene (Gen. 24 46), the design of the Massorah is to safeguard the variation in its orthography. This protection is all the more necessary since the different spellings occur within a few verses. (Comp. Gen. 24 18, 26.) In fixing the number of defectives at two the Massorah militates against the recension of the text which reads תקציה plene in both the Genesis passages, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 15 a, on Gen. 24 18, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 48 b, on 1 Sam. 19 12; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 50 b, on Gen. 24 18; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 40 a, on the same passage; (V) Vienna Codex No. 85, on 1 Sam. 19 12; (VI) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah Supplement, fol. 130 a, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 24 18.

תקצי"ט they shall take down, occurs twice, once it is entirely plene and once entirely defective. That is, in Numb. 1 51 it is תקצי"ט both with Vav and Yod and 1 Kings 5 23 it is תקצי"ט both without Vav and without Yod. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its spelling.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 100 a, on Numb. 1 51, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תיר - § 600.

תיר he was brought down, occurs four times, without and with the prefix Vav. That is, the Hophal preterite third person singular masculine, in contradistinction to the three instances in which the graphic signs are תיר the Hiphil imperative singular masculine recorded above, § 594.

Of this Rubric, which registers all the four instances, the two without the prefix Vav (Gen. 39 1; Isa. 14 11) and the two with the prefix (Numb. 10 17; Zech. 10 11), which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 50 b, on Gen. 39 1, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 60 b, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 88 b, on Numb. 10 17. The two תיר instances are given in a separate Rubric in (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 41 a, on Gen. 39 1, and (II) in the printed Massorah on the same passage; whilst the two תיר instances are given as a separate Rubric in (I) Add. 15,250, fol. 79 a; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 88 b; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 204 a, on Numb. 10 7, and (IV) in the printed Massorah on Zech. 10 11.

תרי"א and the Jordan, occurs three times. That is, with both the prefixes Vav and He, in contradistinction to the 142 instances in which it is תרי"א with the prefix He alone.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 113 a, on Deut. 3 17, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 106 a; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 259 a; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 124 b, all on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 338.

תרי"ב - § 602.

תרי"ב to Jordan, occurs four times. Normally to Jordan after the verbs of motion is תרי"ב (comp. Josh. 3 1, 15; 2 Sam. 19 16; 2 Kings 6 2; 7 15) or simply תרי"ב (Josh. 16 7; 1 Kings 2 8). In these four instances, however, it is expressed by the local or paragogic He. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional form.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 161 a, on Judg. 8 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 239 a, on 2 Kings 2 6; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 156 b, on Numb. 34 12; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 101 b, on 2 Kings 6 4; (V) Halle Ochlah Ve-Ochlah II, § 87; (VI) the printed Massorah on Numb. 34 12, and (VII) the same on 2 Kings 2 6.

תרי"ג - § 603.

תרי"ג to shoot, occurs twice. As this infinitive which occurs twice only is differently spelt, being in one instance לירה with Vav plene (Ps. 11 2) and in one לירה without the Vav (Ps. 64 5), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 286 a, on Ps. 11 2, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 299 a, Ps. 64 5. The latter is headed ב"א מל"א ח"ט. The defective reading in Ps. 64 5 is supported by Harley 5710-11, on which the Massorah Parva remarks ב"א מל"א ח"ט; Arund. Orient. 16 which has the same Massorah and Add. 15,251, the Massorah Parva of which remarks ל"א ח"ט. This reading, however, exhibits the text of one School of redactors only. Other recensions read both instances לירה plene. Thus Add. 21,161 which is one of the oldest Codices extant, reads לירה in Ps. 64 5; so also Orient. 2201 second hand; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451 and all the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

תרי"ד - § 604.

תרי"ד the archers, occurs twice. This participle with the prefix He, which occurs twice and in the same book, is in each instance spelt differently. In 1 Chron. 10 3 it is תרי"ד with Vav plene and in 2 Chron. 35 23 it is תרי"ד without the Vav. The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to safeguard the variation in its orthography.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Cambridge Add. 466, on 1 Chron. 10 3. The Massorah Parva in Harley 5710-11 remarks on the defective instance in 2 Chron. 35 23 תרי"ד ב"א ח"ט ור"מ מל"א ח"ט.

תרי"ה - § 605.

תרי"ה and I will teach, occurs twice. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 42 a, on 1 Sam. 12 23, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 85, on Exod. 4 15, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. Lists II and III head this Rubric ב"א ח"ט, thus emphasising the fact that it is plene in both instances.

תריז = § 606.

תריז and I will teach thee, occurs twice in this form, once plene and once defective. That is, the Hiphil preterite first person singular with the suffix second person singular without and with the Vav conversive (בליש) which occurs twice only, is differently spelt. As it is in one instance with Vav after the He (Exod. 4 12) and in one without this Vav (Prov. 4 11), the Massorah safeguards the variation. This reading, however, which is supported by Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16 and Add. 15,251, must be regarded as that of one School of textual redactors only, as will be seen from the following collation; Add. 21,161, which is one of the oldest MSS. reads Prov. 4 11 תריז with the Vav after the He, but without the first Yod; Orient. 2201, which is one of the oldest dated MSS. of the whole Bible reads it תריז without both the Vav and the first Yod; whilst Add. 15,250 and Orient. 4227 read it תריז with both Vav and Yod, as it is in Exod. 4 12. For the variations in the early editions, see the notes on Prov. 4 11 in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 59 a, on Exod. 4 12.

תריז and to teach, occurs twice. In the other two instances in which this Hiphil infinitive occurs it is without the Vav (Gen. 46 28; Levit. 14 57). In all the four instances, however, it is without the second Vav and hence this Massorah militates against the recension exhibited in the Samaritan Hebrew which reads it תריז in both the instances which constitute this Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Cambridge Add. 1174, on Exod. 35 34, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the same on Levit. 10 11. The headings of Lists II and III emphasise the fact that both the instances are תריז without the second Vav.

תריז and he shall teach us, occurs three times. As this Hiphil future third person singular masculine with the suffix first person plural which occurs three times only, is differently spelt, being in two instances תריז with Vav after the Yod (Judg. 13 8; Micah 4 2) and in one instance תריז without the Vav (Isa. 2 3), and moreover, as this variation in its orthography occurs in the two parallel passages (Isa. 2 3 with Micah 4 2), the Massorah safeguards this striking phenomenon.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed; (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 2 a, on Isa. 2 3, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Micah 4 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 119 b, on Isa. 2 3; (IV) the same MS., fol. 211 a, on Micah 4 2; (V) Vienna Codex No. 35, on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. Lists III and IV rightly head this Rubric תריז בליש.

תריז occurs twice in two different senses. In the first instance it denotes I will shoot (1 Sam. 20 20) and in the second I will teach (Job 27 11).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 188 a, on 1 Sam. 20 20, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 233 a, on Job 27 11; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 49 b, on 1 Sam. 20 20; (IV) the same MS., fol. 330 a, on Job 27 11, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur twice in two different senses. (Vide infra, letter ט, § 428.)

תריז = § 610.

תריז is in six instances defective in this form. Normally the forms of the Hiphil future third person without and with the prefixes and suffixes, as well as the Kal participle both in the singular and plural with the prefix He of the root תריז, are with a Cholem Vav between the Yod and the Resh. As this Vav is abnormally absent in these instances and the Yod has the Cholem, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard the exceptional spelling.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 63 b, on 2 Sam. 11 20, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 280 b, on 2 Chron. 35 23; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 170 a, on 2 Sam. 11 20; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 174 a, on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

As Lists II, III, IV and V emphatically state in their respective headings that there are seven such instances, though they record the same six only, and moreover, as there are two consecutive instances in 2 Chron. 35 23, viz. תריז תריז, there can hardly be any doubt that they are intended to count for two and that תריז is omitted after the catchwords, which is not infrequently the case. It is remarkable that the two instances תריז 2 Kings 17 27 and תריז Prov. 4 4, which are not only defective in the textus receptus, but in the Standard Codices, viz. Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251, are excluded from this Rubric. It may be that this Massorah is based upon a recension of the text in which these two are plene. This supposition receives support from the fact that Orient. 2201, which is one of the oldest dated MSS. of the whole Bible, had תריז plene first hand in 2 Kings 17 27 and that the ancient Codex Add. 21,161 reads it תריז plene in Prov. 4 4.

תרי"א = § 611.

תרי"א they shall teach thee, occurs three times. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 133 a, on Deut. 17 10, and (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 106 a, on the same passage. The latter is headed תרי"א, thus emphasising the fact that it is plene in all the three instances.

תרי"ב = § 612.

תרי"ב. — For this Rubric see letter ט, § 770.

תרי"ג = § 613.

תרי"ג thy teachers, occurs twice plene. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 225 b, on Isa. 30 20. As it occurs twice only and is plene in both instances, the heading ought properly to be תרי"ג. In the catchwords the Tetragrammaton is here given instead of תרי"ג as it is in the textus receptus.

תרי"ד = § 614.

תרי"ד Jerushah, occurs twice, once it is written with Aleph and once with He. The mother of King Jotham, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt in the duplicate records. In the first instance the name is written with Aleph at the end (2 Kings 15 33) and in the parallel passage it is with He (2 Chron. 27 1). Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 165 a, on 2 Chron. 27 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 109 b, on 2 Kings 15 33, and (III) the same MS., fol. 278 b, on 2 Chron. 27 1.

This Massorah, however, emanates from one School of textual redactors only. Other Schools read this name with He in both instances. This is attested by the ancient Codex Add. 21,161 which has תרי"ד with He in 2 Kings 15 33 and Harley 5710—11, first hand. For the early editions which also exhibit this reading, see the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric is part of the List of eleven words which respectively occur twice, once with Aleph at the end and once with He recorded above, letter ט, § 23.

תרי"ה Yerushalayim or Jerusalem, is five times plene in this form in the Scriptures. Apart from the twenty-six instances in which it occurs in the Chaldee portions of the Bible where it is invariably written תרי"ה Yerushlem, this proper name with the different prefixes, occurs about 635 times in the Hebrew Scriptures. In 630 instances it is תרי"ה defective, that is, without the Yod after the Lamed, but with Chirek after the Pathach. And though it is so written it is pronounced as if the Yod were present. In five instances, however, is it תרי"ה with the Yod. The Massorah, therefore, safeguards the abnormal spelling.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 49b, on Jerem. 26 18, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 168b, on 2 Chron. 32 9; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 26 18; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 277b, on 2 Chron. 32 9; (V) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 185, margin; (VI) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 26 18, and (VII) the same on 2 Chron. 25 1.

All the Lists coincide in giving 1 Chron. 3 6 as one of the five plenes. This is confirmed by Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251, all of which not only read it קָמֶטֶץ plene, but remark in the Massorah Parva against it הוּ מַלְי. Hence the reading קָמֶטֶץ defective which I have adopted in my edition of the Bible in accordance with Add. 21,161 first hand; Add. 15,451 and Orient. 4227 must be relegated to the margin and קָמֶטֶץ plene is to be substituted for it. The expression בְּלִי in the heading of the List which I have printed (List I) denotes that the form of this name has different prefixes. The puzzling headings of Lists II and VI, viz. יְרוּשָׁלַם הוּ דִּי הוּמִי מַלְי denote that of the five instances four are without the paragogic He (הוּ) and one is with it (הוּ מַלְי), i. e. 2 Chron. 32 9.

תְּרִיט = § 618.

יְרוּשָׁלַם is eight times with Kametz in the Scriptures. That is in these passages the Lamed is abnormally with Kametz instead of Pathach, not having the pausal accent Athnach or Soph-Pasuk. Hence the Massorah here safeguards the exceptional Kametz.

And wherever it is with the accent Athnach or Soph-Pasuk it is likewise with Kametz except once. Normally when this name has either of these two accents the Lamed is always with Kametz, with the exception of one solitary instance. Here, therefore, the Massorah reversedly safeguards the Pathach.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 37a, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 198b, on Ps. 79 3; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 304a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 246a, on Jerem. 13 13; (V) Orient. 15,451, fol. 418b, on Ps. 79 3; (VI) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah II, § 185, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 73 9.

יְרוּשָׁלַם and in Jerusalem, occurs twenty-one times. The design of this Massorah in fixing the number at twenty-one, is to militate against the recension of the text which reads יְרוּשָׁלַם in Jerem. 27 18 and יְרוּשָׁלַם in Neh. 13 16 instead of יְרוּשָׁלַם, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible, as well as from the Rubric recorded in letter י, § 165.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 223a, on Mal. 2 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 243a, on 1 Chron. 9 3; (III) the same MS. fol. 257a, on 1 Chron. 29 27; (IV) the same MS., fol. 378a, on Ezra 9 9; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 280a, on 2 Kings 23 24; (VI) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Neh. 11 4, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 350.

יְרוּשָׁלַם and to Jerusalem, occurs eight times in the Scriptures. By fixing the number at eight this Massorah militates against the ancient recension which reads יְרוּשָׁלַם in Jerem. 4 3 in accordance with the following verse. This is attested by six of Kennicott's MSS. and the ancient versions and is now accepted as the preferable reading, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 252b, on 2 Kings 18 22, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 264a, on 2 Chron. 11 14; (III) the same MS., fol. 277b, on 2 Chron. 32 12; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 210a, on 2 Kings 18 22; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 280b, on Isa. 41 27; (VI) the same MS., fol. 241a, on Jerem. 4 3, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 4 10.

תְּרִיט = § 619.

יְרוּשָׁלַם to Jerusalem, occurs five times in the Scriptures, four times with Pathach and once with Kametz, it is four times defective and once plene. That is, in four instances it is with the usual Pathach under the Lamed and once this Lamed is with Kametz which is due to its pausal accent Athnach (2 Kings 9 28).

To understand this Massorah it is necessary to remark that to Jerusalem is normally יְרוּשָׁלַם without the local He. In this sense and preceded by בָּא, which is the verb used in combination with it in four out of the five instances constituting this Rubric, it is of frequent occurrence. Thus it is וּבָא יְרוּשָׁלַם and he came to Jerusalem (2 Sam. 10 14); וּבָא יְרוּשָׁלַם they came to Jerusalem (2 Sam. 16 15); וּבָא יְרוּשָׁלַם and they brought him to Jerusalem (Judg. 1 17), and in many other places. Even the first instance of this Rubric where it is preceded by the verb שָׁלַח, the combination in other passages is יְרוּשָׁלַם without the local He; e. g. וַיִּשְׁלַח יְרוּשָׁלַם and the angel stretched out his hand to Jerusalem (2 Sam. 24 16); וַיִּשְׁלַח יְרוּשָׁלַם and he sent . . . to Jerusalem (2 Kings 18 17). As it is in these five instances only where יְרוּשָׁלַם is with paragogic He, viz. יְרוּשָׁלַם, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional form. In fixing the number at five the Massorah militates against the Babylonian recension, which has יְרוּשָׁלַם as the textual reading or Kethiv in Ezek. 8 3.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed; (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 16a, on Isa. 36 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 168b, on 2 Chron. 32 9; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 36 2; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 85a, on 1 Kings 10 2; (V) the same MS., fol. 133a, on Isa. 36 2; (VI) the same MS., fol. 277b, on 2 Chron. 32 9, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Isa. 36 2.

Lists I, II, VI and VII state in their respective headings that four of the instances are defective, that is they are without Yod after the Lamed which, as we have seen (vide supra, § 615), is normally the case when this proper name is without the paragogic He. This, however, can only be according to one School of textual redactors, since the MSS. exhibit great variations in its orthography, as will be seen in the following analysis:

(1) 1 Kings 10 2.—

יְרוּשָׁלַם defective, is Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451.

יְרוּשָׁלַם plene, is Orient. 2201, which is one of the oldest dated MSS. of the whole Bible; whilst the ancient Codex Add. 21,161 has יְרוּשָׁלַם in the text with the Massorah on it יְרוּשָׁלַם, thus officially directing us to read it plene.

(2) 2 Kings 9 28.—

יְרוּשָׁלַם defective, is Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451.

יְרוּשָׁלַם plene, is Orient. 2201; Add. 21,161 first hand.

(3) Isaiah 36 2.—

יְרוּשָׁלַם defective, is St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451.

יְרוּשָׁלַם plene, is Harley 5710—11, first hand; whilst Hahn and Baer have it יְרוּשָׁלַם defective in the text with a Massorah on it יְרוּשָׁלַם which I adopted in my edition, but which I cannot find in the MSS.

(4) Ezekiel 8 3.—

יְרוּשָׁלַם defective, is St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251.

יְרוּשָׁלַם plene, is Harley 5710—11 first hand; Add. 15,451 first hand; whilst the ancient Codex Add. 21,161 which has יְרוּשָׁלַם defective in the text has the following Massorah on it בְּבִלְי יְרוּשָׁלַם בְּבִלְי יְרוּשָׁלַם הוּ בְּבִלְי יְרוּשָׁלַם הוּ, thus stating that this is one of the differences between the Babylonian and Palestinian recensions. In the note on this passage in my edition of the Bible יְרוּשָׁלַם should be בְּבִלְי יְרוּשָׁלַם without the paragogic He.

(5) 2 Chronicles 32 9.—

יְרוּשָׁלַם plene, is Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251.

יְרוּשָׁלַם defective, is Add. 15,451.

Lists III, IV and V are simply headed יְרוּשָׁלַם without adverting to its exhibiting any variation in the orthography, which may be due to the uncertainty of the spelling as disclosed in the foregoing collation. This Rubric, therefore, furnishes another instructive proof of the fact that the conflicting Massorahs are due to their being based upon different recensions of the text which obtained in the several Schools.

תְּרִיט = § 620.

יְרִיחַ and the moon, occurs nine times in the Scriptures. In fixing the number at nine, the Massorah safeguards the three instances in which this noun is simply יָמִים with Vav conjunctive (Josh. 10 13; Isa. 13 10; Ps. 121 6) instead of יָמֵינוּ as is normally the case when it follows הַשֶּׁשֶׁשׁ הַיָּמִים the sun (comp. Gen. 39 7; Joel 3 4; Eccl. 10 2). It, moreover, militates against the reading יָמִים in Isa. 13 10 which is exhibited in the celebrated Hellali Codex, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Ezek. 32 7.

א תרכ"א = § 621.

יָרַח יָמִים a month of days, or a full month, occurs twice. This idiom occurs altogether five times. In three instances the combination is with the synonym חֹדֶשׁ (Gen. 29 14; Numb. 11 20, 21) and in two with יָרַח. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2849, fol. 135 a, on Deut. 21 13, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 109 a, on 2 Kings 15 13, and (III) the printed Massorah on Deut. 21 13.

ב תרכ"ב = § 622.

בְּיָרַח in the month, occurs four times. That is, instead of its more frequent synonym בְּחֹדֶשׁ with which it is used interchangeably and which occurs in the same section, as is the case in 1 Kings 6 1 and 37 where it is in the first instance בְּחֹדֶשׁ and in the second בְּיָרַח. The design of the Massorah, therefore, is to safeguard these variations against being assimilated.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 81 a, on 1 Kings 6 37, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 220 b, on Zech. 11 8, and (III) the printed Massorah on 1 Kings 6 37.

ג תרכ"ג = § 623.

חֹדָשִׁים months, occurs four times in the Scriptures. The plural denoting months occurs altogether thirty-three times. In twenty-nine instances it is חֹדָשִׁים and in four only is it חֹדָשִׁים. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence of the synonym. This safeguarding is especially needed, since in one instance where it is preceded by שלשה חֹדָשִׁים three, the phrase is normally שלשה חֹדָשִׁים (2 Sam. 6 11; 24 13; Amos 7 4; 1 Chron. 13 14; 21 12) and not חֹדָשִׁים.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 35 a, on Exod. 2 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 223 a on Job 3 6; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 334 b, on Job 39 2; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 124 a, on Deut. 33 14; (V) Halle Oehlah Ve-Oehlah, Supplement, fol. 132 a; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 2 2, and (VII) the same on Job 39 2.

יָרַח, יָרַח, יָרַח. — a sign to indicate its different spellings. To understand this and the following two Rubrics, it is necessary to remark that this name of the celebrated city of Palestine which occurs altogether about fifty-seven times without and with prefixes, is spelt in three different ways: (1) יָרַח, without the Yod after the Resh and with Tzere. In this form it occurs twenty-two times; (2) יָרַח with Yod after the Resh and with Chirek which occurs thirty-four times, and (3) יָרַח with Yod and Chirek but with He at the end instead of Vav which is unique. As one of these spellings predominates in one division of the Bible and one in the other division, the Massorah, according to its usual method, safeguards in each case the minority against being made conformable to the majority.

Throughout the Scriptures it is יָרַח except in Joshua and Kings where it is יָרַח with one exception. Apart from these two books, this name occurs twenty-two times and is with the solitary exception in 2 Kings 25 5 uniformly written יָרַח Yerēcho without Yod and with Tzere, viz. Numb. 22 1; 26 3, 63; 31 12; 33 48, 50; 34 15; 35 1; 36 13; Deut. 32 49; 34 1, 8; 2 Sam. 10 5; 2 Kings 25 5; Jerem. 39 5; 6 63; Ezra 2 34; Neh. 3 2; 7 36; 1 Chron. 52 8; 19 6; 2 Chron. 28 15.

In declaring that with one solitary exception it is always יָרַח throughout the Scriptures apart from Joshua and Kings, this Massorah must be regarded as being based upon the recension which obtained in one School of textual redactors only, since both in 2 Sam. 10 5 and Jerem. 39 5 it is יָרַח in some of the best Codices. Thus יָרַח is the reading in 2 Sam. 10 5 in the ancient Codex Add. 21,161, in Orient. 2201, which is one of the oldest dated MSS. of the whole Bible, in Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251 and Add. 15,451; whilst the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 and Add. 21,161 read it יָרַח in Jerem. 39 5.

This Rubric, which does not occur in this form in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,251, fol. 103 a, on Numb. 34 12. The following one is simply an inverted form of it and is based upon the same recension of the text and serves to show how the same materials were differently formulated in the different Massoretic Schools.

יָרַח Yerēcho, does not occur again in this book. That is, in Kings where this name occurs altogether six times, it is spelt יָרַח with Chirek and Yod in five instances (2 Kings 2 4, 4, 5, 15, 18) and in one instance only is it יָרַח. Hence the Massorah safeguards the solitary exception. This is designed to militate against the recension of the text which makes no exception in the orthography of this name here, as is attested by Orient. 2201 first hand; Harley 5710—11 second hand; Arund. Orient. 16 first hand, and Add. 15,451.

And throughout Joshua and Kings it is יָרַח except the one. That is, the one mentioned, viz. 2 Kings 25 5. In Joshua, where it occurs twenty-nine times (2 1, 2, 3; 3 16; 4 13, 19; 5 10, 13; 6 1, 2, 25, 26; 7 2; 8 2; 9 3; 10 1, 28, 30; 12 9; 13 32; 16 1, 1, 1, 7; 18 12, 21; 20 8; 24 11, 11), it is uniformly with Yod and Chirek under the Resh; whilst in Kings, where as we have seen it occurs six times, it is once יָרַח.

And throughout the Pentateuch it is יָרַח. In this division of the Bible, where it occurs altogether twelve times as given in § 624 a, it is uniformly without Yod and with Tzere. This is designed to militate against the recension which reads it יָרַח plene and with Tzere, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew which uniformly reads יָרַח in the eleven out of the twelve passages, as Deut. 34 3 does not exist in this recension.

And in all the other Scriptures it is יָרַח. That is, in the Prophets in which, as we have seen, it occurs four times and in the Hagiographa where it occurs six times (vide supra, § 624 a), it is with Yod and Tzere under the Resh, except the solitary Kings instance. This is indicated by the mnemonic expression יָרַח Jerem. 17 6 in which the first is with Tzere without being followed by Yod and which denotes that in the first division of the Bible or the Pentateuch it is spelt יָרַח and in the other Scriptures it is יָרַח. This, however, is incorrect since it is also יָרַח in the Prophets and Hagiographa with the exception of Joshua and Kings.

And all are written with Vav at the end except one which is יָרַח with He. That is, whether it is defective or plene it is always with Vav except the solitary instance in 1 Kings 16 8.

And throughout Joshua it is without Yod except once, viz. Josh. 18 21. This is absolutely incorrect, since it is uniformly יָרַח with Yod in Joshua. It may probably be a Scribal error for יָרַח, but even since this is incorrect since it is against the best Stand. Codices and all the early editions. This is attested by Orient. 2201; Harley 5710—11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; Orient. 4227, all of which read it יָרַח plene. For the early editions, which also exhibit this reading, see the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

This elaborate Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on 2 Kings 25 5. As none of the MSS. to which I have access give this form of it, I cannot say whether the mistakes which it contains and especially whether the latter part of it is due to a later Nakdan or to Jacob b. Chayim.

ו תרכ"ו = § 625.

יָרִיבֵי my adversaries, occurs twice, once with Kametz and once with Pathach. As this noun plural masculine with the suffix first person singular, which occurs twice only, is in one instance with Kametz and in one with Pathach, though it is in both instances with the pausal accent, being in Jerem. 18 19 יָרִיבֵי with Soph-Pausal and in Ps. 35 1 יָרִיבֵי with Athnach, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its graphic signs.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 158 b, on Jerem. 18 19, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 291 b, on Ps. 35 1, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תרכיז = § 626.

יְרִימוֹת Jerimoth, occurs seven times and is plene. Without and with the prefixes this proper name occurs altogether thirteen times. In six instances it is with Tzere, five of which are without Yod after the Resh, viz. יְרִימוֹת (Ezra 10 26, 27; 1 Chron. 8 14; 23 28; 25 26) and once it is יְרִימוֹת with the Yod (1 Chron. 7 8); whilst in the seven instances which constitute this Rubric it is not only uniformly with Chirek, but with Yod after the Resh. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation. This protection is needed, since the two spellings not only occur in the same section (1 Chron. 25 4, 22), but are used interchangeably to denote the same person in the parallel passage of the same book (comp. 1 Chron. 23 23 with 24 30). The Tzere instances are safeguarded in a separate Rubric which is recorded below, § 629.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter י, § 358. It is incomplete since יְרִימוֹת is manifestly a mistake for יְרִימוֹת 1 Chron. 7 7, whilst יְרִימוֹת וּבְעֵלֶיהָ 1 Chron. 12 5 is omitted. These mistakes I have corrected, and indicated the corrections in brackets.

תרכיז = § 627.

יְרִיעוֹת curtains, or Jerioth, is five times plene in this form. Without and with the prefixes (בלישׁ) this plural noun occurs altogether twenty-eight times. It is normally spelt without the characteristic Vav. In this form it is twenty-three times without the Vav and in five instances only is it with the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the abnormal orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 25 b, on Isa. 54 2, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 79 b, on Exod. 36 14, and (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage. List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah, indicates its design by the addition יְרִיעוֹת at the end of the Rubric. It will be seen that though in one of the passages יְרִיעוֹת is a proper name (1 Chron. 2 18) yet the Massorah which has regard to the identity of the spelling, irrespective of the difference in the sense, includes it in the five instances. The term בלישׁ in the heading strictly refers to the prefixes only. Hence יְרִיעוֹת with the suffix, which is also plene (Jerem. 10 20), is excluded from this Rubric.

יְרִיעוֹתַי my curtains, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this plural noun with the suffix first person, which occurs twice only and is restricted to the same book, is differently spelt, being defective in the first instance (Jerem. 4 20) and plene in the second (Jerem. 10 20), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 150 a, on Jerem. 4 20.

תרכיז = § 629.

יְרִימוֹת Jeremoth, occurs four times in the Scriptures. That is, with Tzere under the Resh and apart from Ezra, in contradistinction to the seven instances in which it is with Chirek recorded above, in § 626.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 135 a, on 1 Chron. 7 7, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 357. The design of this Massorah is set forth in § 626.

תרייל = § 630 a.

יְרִימָה Jeremijah, occurs four times without and with the prefix Vav. In this and in the following two Rubrics we have again an instructive illustration both of the highly artificial manner and the different methods in which the same materials have been elaborated in the different Massoretic Schools. This proper name, which occurs altogether about 147 times without and with the prefixes, is spelt in two different ways. In about 130 instances it exhibits the longer form יְרִימָה Jeremijahū and in seventeen only is it the shorter form יְרִימָה Jeremijah. Instead, however, of recording this exceptional orthography in accordance with its usual practice the heading simply states that it occurs four times only in this form apart from Jeremiah 27 1—29 21 and Ezra-Nehemiah.

And from Jeremiah 27 1 to 29 21. That is, in this small section of Jeremiah extending from 27 1 to 29 1, where it occurs eight times (27 1; 28 5, 6, 10, 11, 12, 16; 29 1), it is uniformly יְרִימָה the shorter form, whereas in all the other portions of this book, where it occurs about 128 times, it is as uniformly יְרִימָה the longer form. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional section.

And throughout Ezra it is likewise so. In Ezra-Nehemiah, where it occurs five times (Ezra 1 1; Neh. 10 3; 12 1, 12, 34), it is also uniformly יְרִימָה the shorter form. As there is no exception here, the Massorah simply states the fact without specifying the passages. The reason why the two instances in Kings in which יְרִימָה the longer form occurs (2 Kings 23 31; 24 8) are not indicated is that this Massorah simply treats of the shorter form.

This form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 240 b, on 1 Chron. 5 24.

יְרִימָה Jeremijah, occurs twice. The apparent conflict between this Rubric and the former one which states that it occurs four times, is due to the fact that § 630 a includes the two instances in which it is יְרִימָה with the prefix Vav (1 Chron. 5 24; 12 4), whereas this Rubric is restricted to the simple name without any prefix. The rest of the Rubric is the same as § 630 a and hence need not be discussed again.

Of this form of the Rubric which is the more popular one, I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 371 b, on Dan. 9 2, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 382 a, on the same passage; (III) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 60, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 361. List III omits וּבְלִי עֵרָא רִבִּי, which makes this Rubric unintelligible, since יְרִימָה the shorter form also occurs four times in Ezra-Nehemiah. In List IV וּבֵן בְּרֵאשִׁית מַמְלַחְתּוֹ = Jerem. 26 1 is a mistake for וּבֵן בְּרֵאשִׁית תֵּימָה = 27 1 as the other Lists correctly give it.

יְרִימָה Jeremijah, occurs six times. This Rubric is from St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 on Jerem. 27 1. It, therefore, exhibits the oldest form of this Massorah. It will be seen that it is even more artificial than the preceding two Rubrics, inasmuch as it emphatically states in the heading that יְרִימָה the shorter form, occurs six times. It obtains this number by counting all the eight instances in the section extending from Jerem. 27 1 to 29 1 as one, and the five instances in Ezra-Nehemiah (Ezra 1 1; Neh. 10 3; 12 1, 12, 34) as one. The three instances in Chronicles are counted separately which with the solitary instance in Daniel are thus reduced to yield six. For the cause of the two forms of this name, see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 375 &c.

תריילא = § 631.

יְרִימָה and Jeremijahū, begins a verse in two instances. That is, with the prefix Vav. In the only other instance where it begins a verse it is without the Vav conjunctive (1 Chron. 12 13).

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 172 a, on Jerem. 36 32, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

יְרִיבָה he shall spit, or a green herb, occurs three times, it is twice defective and once plene. It will be seen that though this expression is a verb in two instances denoting to spit (Levit. 15 8; Numb. 12 14) and is a noun in one passage signifying a green herb (Job 39 8), yet the Massorah groups them together because they are with the same graphic signs, and only safeguards the variation in the orthography by stating that the Job instance is יְרִיבָה with Vav plene.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 78 a, on Levit. 15 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 239 b, on Job 39 8; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 80 b, on Numb. 12 14; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 161 a, on Levit. 15 8; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 108 a, on Numb. 12 14; (VI) the printed Massorah on Levit. 15 8, and (VII) the same on Job 39 8. List V alone is headed יְרִיבָה רִבִּי לֵישׁ, thus indicating that it is used in two different senses, whilst Lists IV, V and VII state that the Job instance is plene (בְּרֵאשִׁית).

וְיָרְשׁוּהָ and they shall possess, or inherit him, occurs four times in the Scriptures. In the only other instance in which this sexteliteral occurs it is וְיָרְשׁוּהָ and they possessed him, the future with Vav conversive (Josh. 21 41).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 30 a, on Isa. 65 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 194 b, on Ps. 69 36; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 132 b, on Isa. 34 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 146 a, on Isa. 65 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 301 a, on Ps. 69 36; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 227 b, on Isa. 34 11, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Isa. 65 9.

הרליד = § 634.

רָשָׁה inherit, or possess thou, occurs three times, twice defective and once plene. The design of this Massorah is twofold. It in the first place safeguards the Tzere under the Resh against its being made conformable to the other two instances in which this imperative singular masculine occurs with Kametz, viz. רָשָׁה due to its pausal or distinctive accent (Deut. 2 24, 13). And in the second place it is to protect the Tzere of the homonym רָשָׁה in Dan. 7 1, thus militating against its being read ראש with Cholem as in the parallel Hebrew phrase in Ps. 119 160. It will be seen that the Massorah describes the presence of the Aleph in the third instance as plene.

And wherever it denotes poverty it is likewise so. That is, when this trilateral denotes poverty it is also ראש with Tzere (comp. Prov. 30 8).

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 95 b, on 1 Kings 21 15, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 196 b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 254 b, on Dent. 1 21, and (IV) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

Considering that the trilateral ראש denoting poverty is unique, the second part of this Massorah, which declares that wherever it has this meaning it is also with Tzere (ובכל לשון מסכתו), is very unnatural, even if ראש with the suffix which is also unique (Prov. 6 11) were forcibly added to it. It is, therefore, far more natural to suppose that the original form of this Massorah was as follows:

		וב' ראש קמץ וסוסי		ראש נ"ב חס' וא' מל וסוסי
Deut.	2 24	חזל ראש	Deut.	1 21
"	" 31	וחזרו	1 Kings	21 15
		ובל לשון מסכתו רכז	Dan.	7 1

That is, wherever this biliteral denotes poverty it is also ראש with Kametz. As ראש to be in want, to be poor, the participle of ראש occurs no less than twelve times (1 Sam. 18 23; 2 Sam. 12 1 Keri; Prov. 14 20; 18 23; 19 1, 7, 22; 23 8, 6; 29 13; Eccl. 4 14; 5 7), this not only imparts to וכל לשון מסכתו its natural sense, but safeguards the variation in the graphic signs in the imperative which is the main object of this Massorah. That parts of Rubrics have not infrequently been omitted has repeatedly been shown in the course of this work.

הרליה = § 635.

וְיָרְשׁוּהָ and he shall inherit, or possess, is seven times defective in this form. Normally the Kal future third person, with and without the prefix Vav and without and with suffixes, is with two Yods. In this form it occurs about thirty-three times. As it is in these seven instances only that it is with one Yod, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. By fixing the number at seven this Massorah militates against the recension which obtained in other Schools of textual redactors and which reads it וְיָרְשׁוּהָ plene in Jerem. 32 23. This is attested by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 and Harley 5710-11 first hand.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 13 b, on Gen. 22 17, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 15 b, on Josh. 21 41; (III) the same MS., fol. 209 a, on Obad. 20; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 15 a, on Gen. 22 17; (V) the same MS., fol. 129 a, on Josh. 21 41; (VI) the printed Massorah on Josh. 19 14, and (VII) the same on Josh. 21 41.

הרליז = § 636.

וְיָרְשׁוּהָ and they possessed, is four times defective. This future third person plural masculine with Vav conversive occurs altogether eleven times. It is וְיָרְשׁוּהָ plene in seven instances (Numb. 21 35; Deut. 4 47; Judg. 3 13; 11 22; Neh. 9 22, 24, 25) and defective in four only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the minority. By fixing the number at four this Massorah militates still more emphatically against the recension of the text which reads וְיָרְשׁוּהָ with two Yods in Jerem. 32 23, as is shown in the preceding Rubric of which this separate Rubric forms part.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 146 a, on Josh. 12 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 111 a, on 2 Kings 27 24; (III) the same MS., fol. 163 a, on Jerem. 32 23; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 124 a, on Josh. 12 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 209 a, on 2 Kings 17 24; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 131 a, on Josh. 12 1, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תרליז = § 637.

וְיָרְשׁוּהָ they shall possess, or they possessed, occurs three times... it is plene in the first instance and defective in the second and third instances. This future third person plural masculine without and with the Vav conversive, but with the suffix third person plural masculine, not only occurs three times, but is restricted to the same section. Yet within a few verses of each other it is spelt differently, being once וְיָרְשׁוּהָ with the characteristic Vav after the Shin (Deut. 2 12) and twice וְיָרְשׁוּהָ without the Vav (2 21, 22). Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography and thus militates against the recension which has it uniformly plene in all the three instances, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 112 a, on Deut. 2 21.

וְיָרְשׁוּהָ possessing, inheriting, is four times defective in this form. This participle both in the singular and plural, without and with prefixes and suffixes (בליש), occurs altogether eleven times. As it is plene or with Vav after the Yod in seven instances, and defective in four only, the Massorah, according to its usual method, safeguards the orthography of the minority. This Massorah, however, must be regarded as being based upon a recension of the text which obtained in one School of textual redactors only and is designed to militate against the recension current in other Schools, as is attested by the fact that in Jerem. 49 2 Add. 21,161, which is one of the oldest MSS. extant; Orient. 2201 second hand; Harley 5710-11 and Add. 15,250 read וְיָרְשׁוּהָ plene; whilst in Micah 1 15; Add. 21,161, and Harley 5710-11 first hand read וְיָרְשׁוּהָ.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 110 b, on Numb. 36 8.

הרליט = § 639.

וְיָרְשׁוּהָ thou shall come to poverty, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 251 b, on Prov. 20 13, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 343 b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 301 a, also on the same passage; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 54 b, on Gen. 45 11, and (V) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

הרלימ = § 640.

וְיָרְשׁוּהָ and ye shall dispossess them, take possession of them, or cause them to possess, occurs twice. That is, in the Pentateuch. In the only other instance in which it occurs, it is וְיָרְשׁוּהָ with Kametz, being second person singular which is also in this division of the Bible (Deut. 9 3).

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Bible, I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 121 b, on Numb. 33 52, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 155 b, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ' , § 367.

These four Lists exhibit two forms which are apparently in conflict with each other. The form which I have printed and which is that of Lists I, II and III is designed to safeguard the Segol instances in the Pentateuch alone, because the Kametz instance occurs in this division of the Bible. Hence it is headed וְיָרְשׁוּהָ and omits Josh. 8 7 and Ezra 9 12 which are outside the Pentateuch. The design of the second form which is that of List IV is to safeguard all the Segol instances in the Scriptures. Hence it is headed וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ and duly registers all the four. The absence of the qualifying expression בְּמִדְבָּר in the headings of Lists I, II and III, which gives rise to this apparent conflict, is due to the fact that the older form is part of the original Massorah on the Pentateuch alone and hence בְּמִדְבָּר was not needed in the heading.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ = § 641.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ and to drive out, occurs twice. That is, without Yod after the Resh. In the only other instance in which this Hiphil infinitive with the prefix Vav occurs it is וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ with Yod (Judg. 1 28). I have mislaid the reference to the MS. from which I have printed this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ = § 642.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ and he drove out, is twice defective. According to the official reading. This Hiphil future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, occurs altogether six times. It is in four instances וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ with Vav after the Yod (Numb. 21 32; 32 39; Josh. 23 9; Judg. 1 20) and in two instances without the Vav. As the two different spellings not only occur in the same book (Josh. 15 14 with 23 9), but in two consecutive verses (Judg. 1 19 with verse 20) the Massorah safeguards the variation in the orthography of this expression.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 15,250, fol. 181 b, on Judg. 1 19.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ = § 643.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ the Hiphil of וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ is seven [five] times defective in the Scriptures. That is, in three instances is it without the characteristic Yod after the Resh with Chirek. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 124 b, on Zech. 9 4.

It will be seen that though the heading states that there are seven such defectives, the Rubric itself records five only. As these coincide with the textus receptus which has no more, it is probable that the וְ in the heading is a clerical error for וְ. But even these five must be regarded as representing the recension of one School of textual redactors only. That the text of other Schools exhibited variations will be seen both from the notes on the following Rubric and on Job 20 15 in my edition of the Bible. It is to be remarked that the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew reads Numb. 14 12 which is one of the five defectives וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ plene.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ he will inherit, or cast her out, occurs twice. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 220 a, on Zech. 9 4, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 133 a, on Numb. 14 24.

According to this Rubric, which is part of the preceding Massorah, this expression is defective in both instances. This reading, however, represents the text of the Jerusalem Codex only which was followed in one School of Massorites. The celebrated Hellali Codex which was current in another School read it וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ plene in Numb. 14 24, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible. This accounts for the conflicting Massorahs which alternately remark on this expression that it is defective in both instances and that it is once plene and once defective.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ a possession, is always defective and with Dagesh. That is, in the seven instances in which this noun occurs without the prefixes and suffixes it is uniformly without the Vav after the Resh and with Dagesh in the Shin, in contradistinction to the two instances in which it is a proper name and is both with Vav and without Dagesh (vide supra, § 614). This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Deut. 2 5.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ = § 646.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ the inheritance of, occurs twice in the Scriptures. In fixing the number of this noun in the construct at two, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the recension of the text which is exhibited in the Septuagint and which reads וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ (= ἔδωκεν ἀληθοσπομύλον τοῖς φοβουμένοις) in accordance with Deut. 2 19.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 191 b, on Pa. 61 6.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ = § 647.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ and there is, occurs five times at the beginning of a verse. Normally when this expression begins the verse it is without the prefix Vav. In this form it occurs thirteen times (Gen. 31 29; Prov. 11 24; 12 18; 13 7; 14 12; 16 25; 20 15; Eccl. 1 10; 4 8; 5 12; 6 1; 8 14; 10 5). In five or six instances, however, it is with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, three in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 106 a, on Numb. 9 20, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 116 a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 203 a, on the same passage; (IV) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (V) the printed Massorah on Neh. 5 3.

Lists II and III emphatically state in their respective headings that there are five such instances only, and duly record identically the same five, omitting Neh. 5 2; whilst Lists III, IV and V not only declare in their respective headings that there are six, but record six including Neh. 5 2. Lists I and II must, therefore, be based upon the recension of a text which exhibited וְ without Vav conjunctive in Neh. 5 2.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ and there is, occurs three times in the Pentateuch. In this division of the Bible, where this expression occurs altogether twenty times, it is in seventeen instances without the prefix Vav (Gen. 18 24; 23 8; 28 16; 31 29; 33 9, 11; 39 4, 5, 5, 8; 42 1, 2; 44 20, 26; Numb. 22 29; Deut. 29 17, 17) and in three instances only, is it with this prefix. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence. By fixing the number at three the Massorah militates against the recension of the text which reads וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ in Gen. 47 6 and which is preferable, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 32 a, on Gen. 47 6.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ he is, occurs four times. This abnormal expression which is taken to be וְ with apenthetic Nun and suffix third person singular masculine is very problematical, since in other places where it is followed by similar objects it is simply וְ. With Deut. 29 14 the first which constitutes this Rubric is to be compared 1 Sam. 21 9; 2 Kings 10 23. For 1 Sam. 14 39 and 23 23, the second and third instances, see 1 Sam. 20 8 and 2 Sam. 14 32 and with Esther 3 8, the fourth instance, compare 1 Kings 18 10. There can hardly be any doubt that this peculiar form was suggested by the first instance where it occurs, viz. Deut. 29 14. The termination וְ was here added to וְ in the first clause to correspond to וְ in וְ in the second clause so that וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ should correspond in sound to וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ. This is not infrequently the case in other passages where anomalous forms are chosen for the sake of consonance. A striking illustration of it we have in Cant. 3 11. Hence the design of the Massorah is to safeguard these abnormal forms and thus to militate against the recension which exhibited a various reading in 1 Sam. 14 39, as is attested by the Septuagint וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ instead of וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 131 a, on Deut. 29 14, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 272 a, on Esther 3 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 44 a, on 1 Sam. 14 39; (IV) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal, Supplement, fol. 131 a; (V) the printed Massorah on Deut. 29 14; (VI) the same on 1 Sam. 14 39, and (VII) the same on Esther 3 8.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ = § 650.

וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ — In six instances in the Scriptures the verb וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ to sit, is combined with וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ . . . and in all the other passages it is וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ. Normally the phrase to sit in the house is וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ with the prefix Beth before וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ or וְהִרְשֵׁתָּ, as will be seen from the following examples with the same forms of the verb corresponding to those which constitute this Rubric and which I give in the same order as they are given in the Rubric: (1) with the imperative 1 Chron. 25 9; (2, 4 and 5) with the future third person singular feminine 2 Chron. 8 11; (3) with the future third person singular masculine and Fav conversive Judg. 8 29; 2 Kings 15 5; 17 28, and (6) with the participle 1 Kings 13 11; 2 Kings 6 32; Ezek. 8 2. The design of this Massorah, therefore, is to safeguard this abnormal combination, and thus to militate against the recension of the School of textual redactors which exhibits the normal phrase in the extra-official marginal reading or Sevir.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, four in MSS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 50 a, on Gen. 38 11, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 60 a; (III) Add 21,160, fol. 40 a; (IV) the Paris Codex in the National Library No. 1—3; (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 36 22.

These six Lists exhibit two recensions of this Rubric which emanate from two different Massoretic Schools of textual redactors.

Lists I, II, III and VI exhibit one recension. They simply state in their respective headings that this anomalous phrase occurs six times and coincides in recording identically the same six instances. None of them, however, allude to the fact that there are differences in other Massoretic Schools with regard to the readings.

List IV represents another recension and is as follows:

יְשַׁבֵּת בֵּית דַּמְסוֹרֵת בְּנִיתוֹ ה' וְסָב
2 Kings 15 5	הַחֲשֵׁשִׁית	2 Sam. 13 20
2 Chron. 26 21	הַחֲשֵׁשִׁית	Jerem. 36 22
		Gen. 38 11
		2 Sam. 6 11

It will be seen that it omits שָׁבַת בֵּית the first of the two instances in Gen. 38 11 and makes up the number six by giving יְשַׁבֵּת בֵּית 2 Kings 15 5 without the prefix Beth which, though contrary to the textus receptus, is in harmony with the parallel passage in the duplicate record in 2 Chron. 26 21 where it is יְשַׁבֵּת בֵּית.

List V is a combination of the two recensions. It retains the first instance in Gen. 38 11 a, but also gives the two parallel passages, viz. 2 Kings 15 5 and 2 Chron. 26 21 (הַחֲשֵׁשִׁית וְסָבֵת בֵּיתוֹ ה' וְסָב). Hence it is headed יְשַׁבֵּת בֵּיתוֹ ה' וְסָב.

There are other instances in which the prefix Beth is omitted before the expression בֵּית and where the extra-official reading is with this prefix. They are combined with different verbs and hence are recorded in letter ב, § 247.

יָשָׁב he sat, occurs twenty times, five of them are with Kametz. In a trilateral of verbs the first radical of which is Yod (י) and in which both the preterite and future third person singular masculine are distinguished by the graphic signs only, the Massorah in accordance with its usual method, indicates the different tenses by safeguarding the minority. As the trilateral in question is in thirty-two instances יָשַׁב or יִשָּׁב the future and in twenty only, or rather in eighteen only יָשַׁב or יִשָּׁב the preterite, the Massorah safeguards the minority. For a similar treatment of a verb belonging to this category, see above § 472.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 8 a, on Gen. 13 12, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 11 b, on Gen. 19 29; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 21 b, on Judg. 5 17; (IV) the same MS., fol. 54 b, on 1 Sam. 27 7; (V) the same MS., fol. 70 b, on 2 Sam. 19 33; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 3, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 371. These Lists give all the twenty instances.

יָשַׁב is five times with Kametz. The Rubric with the five Kametz instances alone exhibits the earliest form of this Massorah. Of it I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 65 b, on Jerem. 49 1, which alone has the following mnemonic sign אָבֵל סָבֵבָה צִמְרָתָא בִּירוּשָׁלַם אֲזַנְתָּם; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 181 a, on Ps. 29 10; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 49 1; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 284 b, on Ps. 1 1; (V) the same MS., fol. 290 b, on Ps. 29 10; (VI) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 49 1, and (VII) the same on Ps. 29 10.

Though two of the five Kametz instances are the apocopated future of שָׁב to return (2 Sam. 19 38; Dan. 9 16) yet not only do all the general Lists include them in their respective Registers, but all the special Lists which exhibit the older form of this Massorah coincide in giving them as two of the five Kametz instances. This is in accordance with the method of the Massorah which has regard to the identity of the spelling irrespective of the difference in the sense. Hence the remark of the Nakdan at the end of this separate List in Cambridge Add. 465 on 2 Sam. 19 38 לֹא בִּהּ הַמְסוֹרָה לְלַמְּדוֹ הַקְּרִיאָה אֲךָ הִיא אֵלֶּה הַתִּקּוּד the design of the Massorah is not to teach us the meaning of the words, but the vowel-points.

הַרְנִיב = § 652.

יִשְׁבּוּ and they shall inhabit, or abide, occurs twice. That is, in this book. The qualifying expression בְּמַסְרָא, as is not infrequently the case, is omitted in the heading, as יִשְׁבּוּ with Kametz under the Shin also occurs in Isa. 65 21, in contradistinction to the fourteen instances in which this preterite third person plural masculine with Fav conjunctive is יִשְׁבּוּ with the normal Sheva under the Shin. The design of the Massorah in safeguarding the two instances in the Minor Prophets alone, is to militate against the recension of the text which is exhibited in the Septuagint in one of the two passages, viz. Micah 5 3, and which is here יִשְׁבּוּ without the prefix Fav. Accordingly the passage ought to be יִשְׁבּוּ בְּתַהֲלֵי שֵׁם יְהוָה וְיִבְנִיאוּ שָׁם יְהוָה וְיִשְׁבּוּ בְּתַהֲלֵי שֵׁם יְהוָה and in the majesty of Jehovah your God they shall dwell which is preferable, since the reading יִשְׁבּוּ by itself as it now stands is meaningless.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 211 b, on Micah 5 3, the very passage which required safeguarding.

תְּרִינִי = § 653.

בְּשֹׁכֶתָּהּ when, or while he was dwelling, occurs twice. . . and once it is with the prefix Caph. As this infinitive with the prefixes Beth and Caph are practically indistinguishable in most of the MSS., the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the passages in which the respective forms occur, and thus to militate against the recension which obtained in rival Schools of textual redactors where variations were exhibited.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 27 b, on Judg. 11 26, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 191 b, on Ezek. 38 14.

תְּרִינִי = § 654.

בְּשֹׁכֶתָּהּ when he was sitting, occurs twice. That is, the infinitive with the prefix Caph in contradistinction to the one instance in which it is with the prefix Beth (Ezek. 38 14). This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 358 a, on Esther 1 2. It will be seen that it is in dire conflict with the preceding Rubric. As is not infrequently the case, this conflict is due to the fact that it is based upon a different recension of the text. The former is based upon a recension which reads Judg. 11 26 בְּשֹׁכֶתָּהּ with Beth, whilst this Rubric emanates from a Massoretic School whose text exhibited בְּשֹׁכֶתָּהּ with Caph. We have here another instructive warning against the vicious practice of altering apparently contradictory Massorahs so as to make them uniform and thereby obliterate the traces of their being based upon different recensions of the text.

תְּרִינִיָּה = § 655.

לְשֹׁכֶתָּהּ to the dwelling of, occurs twice. With the prefix Lamed this infinitive occurs altogether forty times. In thirty-eight instances it is לְשֹׁכֶתָּהּ with Kametz under the Lamed, which is due to its not being followed by a genitive, and in two only is it with Sheva. Hence the Massorah safeguards this rare exception.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 36 a, on Gen. 16 3, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the same on Numb. 21 15. List II adds that both these exceptional instances occur in the Pentateuch (אֵינָם בְּאֵרֵי).

תְּרִינִי = § 656.

לְשֹׁכֶתָּהּ for thy dwelling, occurs three times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 223 a, on 1 Kings 8 13, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 152 a, on 2 Chron. 6 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 82 b, on 1 Kings 8 13; (IV) Add. 21,161, fol. 89 b, on Exod. 15 17; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 3; (VI) the printed Massorah on Exod. 15 17, and (VII) the same on 1 Kings 8 13.

As these three instances respectively occur in the three divisions of the Bible, Lists III, IV and V add אֲנִי בְּבֵית אֱלֹהִים אֲנִי בְּבֵית אֱלֹהִים אֲנִי בְּבֵית אֱלֹהִים.

הַרְנִיז = § 657.

הַרְנִיז when he sitteth, occurs twice in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the only other instance in which this infinitive with suffix third person singular masculine occurs where it is אֲנִי with the prefix Beth (Prov. 31 23).

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 231 b, on 1 Kings 16 11, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 91 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

הַרְנִיז = § 658.

אֲבִידֶיךָ abide ye, occurs five times in the Pentateuch. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 3, margin, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 10 a, on Gen. 22 5; (III) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (IV) the same on Gen. 34 10.

In the printed Massorah (List III) the catchwords שְׁבוּ נָא בְּהַרְנִיז ought to be שְׁבוּ לֵבְכֶם בְּהַרְנִיז Exod. 24 14.

וַיֵּשֶׁב and she sat, occurs twelve times in the Scriptures. The design of this Massorah is to safeguard this quadriliteral which is future third person singular feminine with Vav conversive of יָשָׁב against being taken for the quadriliteral וַיָּשָׁב the future with Vav conversive of שָׁב, which occurs about the same number of times. Hence in fixing the number at twelve the Massorah militates against the recension of the text which actually read it וַיָּשָׁב instead of וַיֵּשֶׁב in Ruth 2 23, as is attested by the Vulgate, viz. וַיָּשָׁב אֶל-בֵּית אֲמִילֹנָה.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 12 b, on Gen. 21 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 34 a, on Gen. 49 24; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 35 b, on 1 Sam. 1 23; (IV) the same MS., fol. 77 b, on 1 Kings 2 19; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 3; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 38 14, and (VII) the same on 2 Sam. 13 20.

Lists II, III, IV and V emphasise the fact that six of the twelve instances occur in Genesis and six in the other Scriptures (יְהוָה בְּבֵית אֱלֹהִים). It will be seen that the List which I have printed omits Gen. 38 11 and gives Josh 6 25 and 1 Sam. 1 23 twice. The omission of Gen. 38 11 is manifestly a scribal oversight, since it is given in all the other Lists, whilst the repetition of the two instances at the end of the Rubric is due to an ignorant Nakdan and serves to show how the Massorah was treated by later Nakdanim.

הַרְנִיז = § 660.

וַיֵּשֶׁב and I will sit, occurs twice. With the prefix Vav this future first person singular, occurs altogether seven times. In five instances it is וַיֵּשֶׁב with Kametz, which is due to the Vav being conversive, duly recorded in the following Rubric and in two only is the Vav with Sheva. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 331 a, on Job 29 25.

הַרְנִיז = 661 a.

וַיֵּשֶׁב and I sat, occurs four times. Of this Rubric, which is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 118 a, on Deut. 9 9, there are several forms which are respectively based upon different recensions of the text. This is attested by the end of the important Rubric which has inadvertently dropped out of the text and which is as follows: וַיֵּשֶׁב בְּבֵית אֱלֹהִים וַיֵּשֶׁב בְּבֵית אֱלֹהִים וַיֵּשֶׁב בְּבֵית אֱלֹהִים. In Ezek. 3 15 a the textual reading is וַיֵּשֶׁב and it constitutes a difference of opinion among the Schools of textual redactors whether there are two instances of וַיֵּשֶׁב in this verse. In the heading of this Rubric, however, as well as in its register, the Massorah definitely follows the School which read it וַיֵּשֶׁב.

Of the other recension which cancels the textual reading וַיֵּשֶׁב and follows the Keri וַיֵּשֶׁב and hence heads this Rubric וַיֵּשֶׁב I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 223 a, on 1 Kings 8 20; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 72 a, on Ezek. 3 15; (III) Arund. Orient. 16; fol. 83 a, on 1 Kings 8 20; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 430 a, on 2 Chron. 6 10;

(V) Add 15,251, fol. 330 b, on the same passage; (VI) Orient 2349, fol. 128 b, on Deut. 9 9, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage. In accordance with this recension וַיֵּשֶׁב Ezek. 3 15 a forms part of the List of five words which are respectively written three times alike in the text, but for which the official reading substitutes in each case a different word. (Vide infra, letter ב, § 481.)

הַרְנִיז = § 661 b.

וַיֵּשֶׁב and I sat, occurs three times. This recension of the Rubric is from Orient. 2211, fol. 87 a, on Ezek. 3 15. It will be seen that it not only emphatically declares in the heading that there are three such instances only with Kametz, but records three, omitting 1 Kings 8 20 and 2 Chron. 6 10. It, moreover, has the addition at the end that in all the other passages it is וַיֵּשֶׁב with Sheva (וַיֵּשֶׁב בְּבֵית אֱלֹהִים), thus indicating the design of this Massorah. This conflicting Massorah, therefore, as is not infrequently the case, is based upon a recension of the text, which read וַיֵּשֶׁב with Sheva in the parallel passages. We have here again an instructive instance of the pernicious practice resorted to by some Scholars to reduce conflicting Massorahs to uniformity by altering their contents, and obliterating the traces that the apparent contradiction is due to different recensions of the text.

הַרְנִיז = § 662.

וַיֵּשֶׁב they shall dwell, occurs twenty times. With Sheva under the Beth, this quadriliteral occurs altogether fifty-two times. In thirty-two instances it is וַיֵּשֶׁב with Kametz, being the preterite and in twenty only is the Yod with Tzere because it is the future. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. In fixing the number at twenty this Massorah militates against the recension of the text which reads וַיֵּשֶׁב, the preterite in Ezek. 31 6, as is attested by the Model Codex Harley 5710-11.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest and popular parts of the Massorah, I collated twenty Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 32 a, on Gen. 47 4, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 38 a, on the same passage; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 50 39; (IV) the same Codex on Hosea 3 4; (V) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 334 b, on Job 38 40; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 3, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 23 33.

הַרְנִיז = § 663.

וַיֵּשֶׁב they shall dwell, occurs three times in the Scriptures... and once it is with the prefix Vav. That is, with Tzere under the Beth which is due to its distinctive and pausal accents, being in two instances Zakeph-Katon (Ezek. 26 16; Zeph. 1 13) and in two Soph-Pasuk (Ecl. 10 6; Ruth 4 2), in contradistinction to the twenty instances in which it is with the normal Sheva recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 87 a, on Ezek. 26 16, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 118 b, on Zeph. 1 13; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Ezek. 26 16; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 183 b, on the same passage; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 401 a, on Ecl. 10 6; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 3, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Zeph. 1 13. List III heads this Rubric וַיֵּשֶׁב וַיֵּשֶׁב וַיֵּשֶׁב as if all the four instances were without the prefix Vav.

The Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur four times, three times without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter י, § 73.)

הַרְנִיז = § 664.

וַיֵּשֶׁב and they shall dwell, occurs four times in the Scriptures. This future third person plural masculine with the prefix Vav occurs altogether about fifty-eight times. In fifty-four instances the Vav is with Pathach being conversive and in four only is it with Sheva or Rophe, being conjunctive. Hence the Massorah safeguards this rare occurrence.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 23 a, on Gen. 34 21, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 261 a, on 2 Kings 17 27; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 111 b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 183 b, on Ezek. 33 31; (V) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 3; (VI) the printed Massorah on Gen. 34 21, and (VII) the same on Ezek. 33 31. Lists II and IV are headed וַיֵּשֶׁב, which indicates the design of this Rubric.

הַרְסִיָּה = § 665.

וַיִּשְׁבוּ וַיֹּאכְלוּ and they sat down and did eat, occurs twice at the beginning of a verse in this form. וַיִּשְׁבוּ occurs altogether eleven times at the beginning of a verse. In this prominent position it normally denotes and they abode or dwell and with the exception of Gen. 43 33; 1 Kings 22 1; Job 2 13 is followed by the name of the place which they occupied or inherited. (Comp. Ezra 2 70; Neh. 7 72; 11 1; 1 Chron. 4 38; 5 16; 2 Chron. 20 8.) In these two instances, however, וַיִּשְׁבוּ which is thus distinguished is followed by the verb אָכַל to eat. Hence the Massorah safeguards this exceptional occurrence.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, fol. 169 b, on Judg. 19 6.

תְּרִיסָא = § 666.

וַיִּשְׁבוּ and we abode, occurs three times in the Prophets and Hagiographa. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Jerem. 35 10. This future first person plural with Vav conversive, occurs four times in these two divisions of the Bible and not three. (Comp. Josh. 7 7.) In the first division or the Pentateuch it occurs twice, viz. Numb. 20 15 and Deut. 3 29.

הַרְסִיָּה = § 667.

וַיִּשְׁבוּ dwelling, is seventeen times plene in the Pentateuch. Without and with the prefix Lamed, this participle occurs altogether twenty-nine times in the Pentateuch. It is defective in twelve instances and plene in seventeen and the Massorah contrary to its usual method safeguards here the plenes. This inversion of its usual practice is manifestly directed against the recension which retained the primitive defective orthography in these instances, as is attested by the Samaritan recension. This recension reads ישב defective in no fewer than in thirteen of the seventeen passages which are registered as plene in the Rubric before us, viz. Gen. 24 3, 62; Exod. 18 14; Numb. 13 19, 29, 29 29; 14 25; 21 34; Deut. 1 4, 4; 3 2; 4 46 and the only four plenes are ישב Gen. 50 11; Numb. 14 14 and לישב Ezek. 34 12, 15. It is remarkable that in all the twelve instances in which the Massoretic text has retained the primitive defective orthography the Samaritan Hebrew uniformly exhibits this spelling.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 57 b, on Exod. 34 12, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 61 a, on the same passage; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 62 b, on Gen. 50 11; (IV) the same MS., fol. 208 b, on Numb. 13 19; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 61 a, on Exod. 34 12; (VI) Halle Ochlāh Ve-Ochlāh II, § 3 margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 50 11. As two of the instances are with the prefix Lamed, the heading ought properly to be ישב לישב or ישב בלישב. Moreover as this participle occurs twice in Numb. 13 19 and is defective in the first instance and plene in the second, תריסא ought to follow the catchwords אשר הוא ישב בהנה.

List V. — Though this List is headed ישב יי מלי בתי, which ought to be ישב לישב יי, it records ten instances only and omits the following seven Exod. 34 16; Numb. 14 14, 25; 21 34; Deut. 1 4, 4; 4 46. Moreover the catchwords אשר הוא ישב בהנה ought to be אשר הוא ישב בהנה.

List VI. — This List alone is properly headed ישב יי מלי בתי. But though it fixes the number at seventeen it records fifteen only. It omits Numb. 14 14, 25 two of the instances also omitted in List V. It moreover omits after the catchwords תריסא Numb. 13 19 the expression תריסא to indicate which of the two instances in this verse is plene. The remarkable feature in this List is the fact that it gives the catchwords ישב יי מלי בתי Deut. 2 31 where ישב does not occur, instead of אשר הוא ישב בהנה Deut. 3 2. The mistake, as is not infrequently the case, is due to both verses, viz. Deut. 2 31 and 3 2 beginning alike with אשר הוא ישב בהנה which a later Nakdan confused. However, a scribe wrote under this mistake the correct catchwords אשר הוא ישב בהנה.

List VII. — This List is headed ישב יי מלי בתי and accordingly records sixteen only. It omits Numb. 14 26. Like the other Lists it does not state which of the two instances in Numb. 13 19 is plene. The instructive part, however, connected with this List or the printed Massorah is that like List VI it gives the erroneous catchwords ישב יי מלי בתי Deut. 2 31 instead of אשר הוא ישב בהנה Deut. 3 2, which is due to the same cause.

הַרְסִיָּה = § 668.

וַיִּשְׁבוּ is four times plene in this book. That is, in Judges where it occurs altogether eleven times, it is ישב defective in seven instances (1 21, 27; 3 3, 20; 10 1; 16 9, 12) and plene in four only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority. This is specially needed since the two spellings are promiscuously used in the same section. (Comp. 1 9, 17, 21, 27.)

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 18 b, on Judg. 1 9, which I have printed; (II) Cambridge Add. 465 on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. List II adds at the end וכל שאר ספר הכהן, which indicates the design of this Massorah.

וַיִּשְׁבוּ is eight times plene in the book of Samuel. In this book, where it occurs altogether seventeen times, this participle is ישב defective in nine instances and plene in eight. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 77 b, on Exod. 34 12, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 5404, fol. 76 b, on the same passage; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 43 a, on 1 Sam. 14 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 48 b, on 1 Sam. 19 9; (V) the same MS., fol. 60 a, on 2 Sam. 5 6; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 178 b, on 2 Sam. 18 24, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 2 Sam. 19 9.

Though all the seven Lists coincide in stating in their respective headings that there are eight such plene instances in this book, they differ greatly with regard to the passages in which these plenes occur. Lists II and III give identically the same instances. Lists III, IV and V omit the second instance in 2 Sam. 7 2 (= ב: =) and make up the eight by תריסא = 1 Sam. 14 2 which is absent in Lists I, II and VI. As to the printed Massorah (List VII) though it too states in the heading that Samuel has eight such defectives, six alone are certain which coincide with Lists III, IV and V, since it begins with תריסא which does not occur. It may be a corrupt confusion of two separate catchwords, viz. תריסא 1 Sam. 14 2 and תריסא 1 Sam. 22 6. These conflicting Massorahs again show that they are based upon different recensions of the text which obtained in the several Massoretic Schools. This is, moreover, confirmed by the fact that though the Massorah Parva in Harley 5710-11; Harley 5720; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251, remarks on 1 Sam. 19 9 ישב יי מלי בתי, yet none of these Lists include this passage in their number.

תְּרִיעָא = § 670.

וַיִּשְׁבוּ is twice plene in this book. That is, in the Psalter where this participle occurs altogether eight times, it is in six instances ישב defective (9 12; 17 12; 69 26; 80 2; 91 1; 99 1) and in two only is it plene. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 174 a, on Ps. 2 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 15,250, fol. 319 b, on the same passage; (III) the printed Massorah on Ps. 22 4, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 383.

הַרְסִיָּה = § 671.

וַיִּשְׁבוּ is twice plene in this book. That is, in Proverbs. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 251 b, on Prov. 20 8, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 383. As this participle occurs altogether twice only in this book and is plene in both instances, the heading ought properly to be י.

הַרְסִיָּה = § 672.

וַיִּשְׁבוּ is five times defective in this book. That is, in Isaiah. Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 123 b, on Isa. 10 24, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 134 a, on Isa. 37 16, and (III) the printed Massorah on Isa. 6 1.

Though these three Lists coincide in stating in their respective headings that there are five such defectives in Isaiah, they make up this number differently. Lists I and II record identically the same five instances, whilst the printed Massorah (List III)

הרעיה = § 678.

יֹשְׁבֵי they dwelling, is ten times plene. That is, this participle plural occurs altogether about sixty-six times without and with the prefixes He, Vav and Vav He. It is plene or with Vav after the Yod in fifty-six instances and in ten only is it without the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This safeguarding is specially necessary, since the two different spellings not only occur in the same section (Jerem. 44 13, 26), but are promiscuously used in the same verses (Ezek. 3 15; 2 Chron. 18 9).

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists, four in MSS. and one printed; (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 167b, on 2 Chron. 31 6, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 171 a, on Jerem. 36 12; (III) the same MS., fol. 243 b, on 1 Chron. 9 2; (IV) the same MS., fol. 276 b, on 2 Chron. 30 25, and (V) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 396.

Though all the five Lists coincide in stating in their respective headings that there are ten such plenes, they differ with regard to the particular passages in which they occur. Thus List II gives as the first instance the catchwords וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי, which do not occur and omits 2 Chron. 30 25. List III, which omits the incorrect passage in List II, is identical with List I; whilst List IV, which like Lists I and III also omits the spurious catchwords, records nine only. Like List II it omits 2 Chron. 30 25 and makes up the ten by giving וְהָיָה שֶׁכָּל הַיְּשֻׁרִים Jerem. 36 12 twice. The printed Massorah (List V) is corrupt. It omits two passages, viz. Jerem. 44 13 and 2 Chron. 31 6 and makes up the ten by giving the spurious catchwords וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי, which as we have seen, are also given in List II and וְהָיָה שֶׁכָּל הַיְּשֻׁרִים Neh. 11 21, which is defective and is rightly absent in all the MS. Lists.

הרעיה = § 679.

יֹשְׁבֵי that dwell, is twice plene. With the prefix He this participle plural occurs altogether thirty-five times, and is normally יֹשְׁבֵי without the Vav. In this form it occurs thirty-three times. As it is with the Vav in two instances only, the Massorah safeguards the abnormal spelling.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 1474, fol. 57b, on Jerem. 44 13. It will be seen that these two instances are part of the ten plenes recorded in the preceding Rubric.

הרעיה = § 680.

יֹשְׁבֵי and that dwell, occurs three times, it is twice plene and once defective. As this participle plural, which occurs twice only with the prefixes Vav and He, is spelt in two different ways, being in the first instance יֹשְׁבֵי defective (Jerem. 24 8) and plene in the other two passages, the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 136 a, on 1 Chron. 9 2, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 167b, on 2 Chron. 30 25; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Jerem. 24 8; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 162 a, on the same passage; (V) the same MS., fol. 243 b, on 1 Chron. 9 2; (VI) Add. 15,251, fol. 318 a, on the same passage, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 24 8. The two plenes are part of the Rubric which records the ten plene instances. (Vide supra, letter י, § 678.)

הרעיה = § 681.

יֹשְׁבֵי the dwellers of, or they that dwell, is thirty-four times plene. This participle plural construct without and with the prefixes Vav, Lamed and Mem, occurs altogether about 175 times. It is defective, viz. יֹשְׁבֵי, יֹשְׁבֵי or יֹשְׁבֵי in about 141 instances and plene in thirty-four only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This protection is needed, since the two different spellings occur in the same verse (comp. Judg. 1 31).

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed; (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 12 a, on Josh. 15 63, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 158 b, on Jerem. 18 11; (III) the same MS., fol. 200 b, on Hosea 4 1; (IV) the same MS., fol. 243 a, on 1 Chron. 8 13; (V) the same MS., fol. 270 a, on 2 Chron. 22 1, and (VI) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 387.

Lists I, IV and V are identical with the sole exception that List IV omits Ps. 84 5, but gives וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי Judg. 21 12 and hence records thirty-three instances. The omission of Ps. 84 5 is manifestly due to a clerical oversight. List III, which also states in the heading that there are thirty-four defectives, omits two, viz. Judg. 1 11 and 1 Chron. 8 6, which is due to the same cause, but gives וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי Judg. 21 12 which is also given in List IV. List II, however, is the most imperfect. Like all the other Lists, it emphatically states in the heading that there are thirty-four plenes and records twenty-seven only, omitting Isa. 38 11; Amos 9 5; Nah. 1 5; Zeph. 1 4; Zech. 8 21; 1 Chron. 8 6, 13; 2 Chron. 22 1.

The printed Massorah (List VI) is also headed לִיד מַלְיָא, but records thirty-two only or rather thirty-one, since it gives Jerem. 18 11 twice, once as No. 14 with the catchwords וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי and once as No. 16 with the catchwords וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי. It omits the וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי Judg. 1 27, which is given in all the MS. Lists, emphatically declaring that this verse contains two instances only כַּיְהוֹדוּ, as well as 1 Chron. 32 26, which is due to a scribal oversight, since it is given in all the MS. Lists. Like Lists III and IV it rightly gives וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי Judg. 21 12 (vide infra, § 686), but unlike these Lists it gives two for 1 Chron. 8 13 (כַּיְהוֹדוּ) counting לִיד מַלְיָא in the first part of the verse, which is in accordance with the MS. Lists and יֹשְׁבֵי in the second part of the verse which is contrary to the MS. Lists. The catchwords וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי which it gives in one line ought to be divided into two lines, viz. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי Hosea 4 1 and וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי Joel 1 2. In the List which I have printed the reference Judg. 11 1 should be 1 11.

This Massorah affords an instructive example of the oft-repeated statement that some of the Rubrics were compiled when the variations between the Babylonian and Palestinian recensions were not as yet definitely separated, that the readings which obtained in one School of textual redactors are not infrequently found in the Codices of the rival Schools and that it is, therefore, unsafe to conclude from these readings that the whole text of certain MSS. belongs to the Eastern or Western recension. Though it is officially stated that in Jerem. 35 17 the Palestinians read it defective and the Babylonians יֹשְׁבֵי plene (vide supra, letter י, § 627) yet according to this Massorah not only does the St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 read it plene, but Add. 15,251 which is admittedly a Palestinian text exhibits the same reading, whilst Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Add. 15,250 and Add. 15,451 which are Model Codices read it יֹשְׁבֵי defective contrary to this Massorah.

Ezek. 32 15, which is in my edition of the Bible יֹשְׁבֵי defective in accordance with the Model Codex Add. 15,451, should be יֹשְׁבֵי plene as it is in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250 and Add. 15,251. Hosea 4 1 which is in my edition יֹשְׁבֵי defective, is the reading in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 with the Massorah on it יֹשְׁבֵי, but in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 and Add. 15,451 it is יֹשְׁבֵי plene which is in accordance with this Massorah.

הרעיה = § 682.

יֹשְׁבֵי הָאָרֶץ. For this Rubric. see letter מ, § 1270.

הרעיה = § 683.

יֹשְׁבֵי הָאָרֶץ הַזֹּאת the inhabitants of this land, occurs three times. Normally the phrase is simply יֹשְׁבֵי הָאָרֶץ without הַזֹּאת. In this form it occurs about twenty-eight times. As it is in these three instances only that this phrase is followed by הַזֹּאת, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 19b, on Judg. 2 2, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. As one of the instances is לִיד מַלְיָא with the prefix Lamed, Lists II and III head this Rubric more properly לִיד מַלְיָא. In the printed Massorah, however (List III), the catchwords וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי are incorrect and ought to be וְיִשְׂרָאֵל יֹשְׁבֵי 2 Chron. 20 7, as they are in the MS. Lists.

וּבְיִשְׁבֵי and among the inhabitants of, occurs three times. That is, this participle plural in the construct state is in these three instances preceded by Beth without or with the Vav conjunctive.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 15 b, on Jerem. 11 9, which I have printed, and (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on the same passage. The latter which is headed לִיד מַלְיָא not only declares that it is with Vav after the Yod, but the Nakdan corrected the text which was defective (Jerem. 11 9) into וְיֹשְׁבֵי פְלֵנֵה. As the Rubric ends with בְּתַרְסָּנִי שֶׁלִּי, declaring that the last instance only is plene, viz. 2 Chron. 20 23, the superscription and sub-superscription are in dire conflict.

וְיֹשְׁבֵי and to the inhabitants, is three times defective. As this participle plural construct with the prefix Lamed without and with Vav conjunctive, which occurs altogether eight times, is in five instances plene and in three only defective, the Massorah safeguards the orthography of the minority. By fixing the number at three, this Massorah militates against the recension of the text which reads it וְיֹשְׁבֵי defective also in Jerem. 35 13. This is attested by Orient. 2201 second hand; Harley 5710-11 and Add. 15,451, for which reason I have adopted it in my edition of the Bible. The plene reading וְיֹשְׁבֵי is exhibited in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201 first hand; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250 and Add. 15,251.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35 on Jerem. 50 34, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 382. As two of the instances are with Vav conjunctive (Zech. 13 1; Dan. 9 7) and one is without it, the heading ought properly to be וְיֹשְׁבֵי בְּתַרְסָּנִי. This qualifying adjunct, however, is often omitted.

תרס"ו = § 686.

מִיֹּשְׁבֵי from the inhabitants of, occurs three times, twice plene and once defective. Though the three instances not only occur in the same book, but are restricted to the same narrative, yet they exhibit variations in the spelling. In the first instance this participle is מִיֹּשְׁבֵי without the Vav (Judg. 20 15) whilst in the second and third instances it is מִיֹּשְׁבֵי with the Vav (21 9, 12). Hence this Massorah safeguards the difference in the orthography. By fixing the plenes at two, this Massorah militates against Lists I, II and V of § 681 which exclude Judg. 21 12 from the thirty-four instances in which this participle plural construct is exceptionally plene. This is supported by the Model Codex Add. 15,451 which reads it here מִיֹּשְׁבֵי defective. The plene reading מִיֹּשְׁבֵי, however, which is set forth in this Rubric is that of Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 and Orient. 4227. It is remarkable that Orient. 2201, which is one of the oldest dated MSS. of the whole Bible, reads it מִיֹּשְׁבֵי defective in Judg. 21 9, the first of the two plenes according to this Massorah.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 34 a, on Judg. 21 9, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 34 b, on Judg. 21 12, and (III) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 395. As the three instances occur in the same book, the heading ought more properly to be וְיֹשְׁבֵי בְּתַרְסָּנִי מִיֹּשְׁבֵי.

תרס"ז = § 687.

וְיֹשְׁבֵי and to the inhabitants thereof, is twice plene. Without and with the prefixes Vav Lamed, this plural participle with the suffix third person singular masculine occurs altogether six times. In four instances it is וְיֹשְׁבֵי defective (2 Kings 22 16, 19; 2 Chron. 34 27, 28) and in two only is it plene. As this variation in its orthography occurs in the parallel passages in Kings and Chronicles, the Massorah safeguards this difference in the spelling. It is remarkable that St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 reads וְיֹשְׁבֵי in Jerem. 19 12 which the Nakdan altered and put against it in the margin בְּתַרְסָּנִי.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Jerem. 19 12, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 248 b, on the same passage. As one of the instances is with prefixes, the heading ought to be וְיֹשְׁבֵי בְּתַרְסָּנִי.

וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן her inhabitants, is twice plene in the Pentateuch. This Rubric is from Add. 15,250, fol. 81 b, on Numb. 13 32. In Levit. 25 10 all the MSS. read it וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן defective, as in 18 25 so that Numb. 13 32 is the only instance in the Pentateuch where it is וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן plene. The Samaritan recension of the Hebrew, however, has it plene in all the three instances. It may, therefore, be that this Massorah is based upon a recension in which these two only were thus written and the third alone was defective. However, as this expression, which occurs altogether ten times, is according to the textus receptus, eight times defective and twice plene, once in the Pentateuch (Numb. 13 32) and once in Ezekiel (26 17), this Rubric may originally have been headed וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן בְּתַרְסָּנִי, that the ך dropped out from the heading and that a careless Nakdan substituted לְבַל יִשְׁבֵהּ, the catchwords for Levit. 25 10 to agree with the defective heading instead of the catchwords לְבַל יִשְׁבֵהּ Ezek. 26 17.

וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן and her inhabitants, occurs five [four] times in the Scriptures. Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 46 a, on Jerem. 23 14, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 135 b, on Isa. 40 22; (III) the same MS., fol. 141 a, on Isa. 51 6; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 229 a, on Isa. 40 22; (V) the same MSS., fol. 233 b, on Isa. 51 6; (VI) the printed Massorah on Isa. 40 22, and (VII) the same on Micah 6 12. These seven Lists exhibit two recensions of this Massorah which are based upon two different recensions of the text.

Recension I. — This recension is exhibited in Lists I, II and IV. According to this recension there are four such instances only. But though all these three Lists coincide in recording four only they differ with regard to one of the four. List I, which is headed וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן and which is manifestly a clerical error for ך, as is not only attested by the contents of the Rubric, but by the two Lists which belong to this recension, gives Micah 6 16, as one of the four instead of Isa. 51 6, whilst Lists II and IV which are headed וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן give Isa. 51 6 and omit Micah 6 16. Accordingly the four instances are Isa. 40 22; 51 6; Jerem. 23 14 and Ezek. 26 17.

Recension II. — This recension is exhibited in Lists III, V, VI and VII. These Lists are respectively headed וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן and they duly record six such instances. They give Isa. 51 6, which is omitted in List I, but not in Lists II and IV, and give two in Micah, viz. 6 12, 16 one of which is given in List I (Micah 6 16) and both of which are omitted in Lists II and IV. This recension, therefore, agrees with the textus receptus.

It is, however, to be remarked that the shorter recension does not imply that וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן altogether occurs four times only. This plural participle with the suffix third person singular feminine occurs altogether seventeen times without and with the Vav conjunctive and the design of both the recensions is to safeguard the minority with this prefix. According to the first recension which is based upon the text of one School of redactors this minority consists of four instances with this Vav conjunctive, whilst according to the text of the other School it consists of six. This duplicate Massorah affords another instructive warning against the vicious practice of altering conflicting registers so as to make them uniform, thereby obliterating the evidence that they are respectively based upon different recensions of the text. The reference to Micah 6 1 in the Rubric which I have printed should be 6 16 the 6 having dropped out from the text.

יֹשְׁבֵיהֶן sitting, is eight times defective. This feminine participle occurs altogether about twenty-four times. It is וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן plene in sixteen instances and defective in eight only. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography. This protection is necessary since in the duplicate record, where precisely the same phrase is used, this participle is וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן plene. (Comp. 2 Kings 22 14 with 2 Chron. 34 12). It is remarkable that in Zech. 1 11, where it is rightly וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן defective in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, the Massorah against it is בְּתַרְסָּנִי.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 73 b, on Levit. 15 23, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 121 a, on Zech. 1 11; (III) Add. 21,160, fol. 162 a, on Levit. 15 23; (IV) Halle Ochlaf Ve-Ochlaf II, § 3 margin; (V) the printed Massorah on Levit. 15 23; (VI) the same on Jerem. 48 18; and (VII) the same on Zech. 7 7.

Lists II, III and V are headed וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן and they duly record nine instances. But this is due to the fact that these Lists include the Keri וְיֹשְׁבֵיהֶן with the prefix He (Ezek. 27 3), and thus indicate that in Isa 47 8 this participle with the prefix He is plene. List VI (the printed Massorah) is incorrect. The addition to this List, viz. יָשְׁבוּ וּבְחוּמֵיהֶם יֹאמַר יְהוָה = Josh. 2 15, which is designed to indicate that in one of the eight instances this participle is יֹשְׁבֵי with Kametz instead of the normal Segol, ought to be בְּחֹדֶר עִמֵּי אֲנֹכִי יֹשְׁבָה 2 Kings 4 13.

§ 691. תְּרִיצוּ

יֹשְׁבוֹת they are sitting, occurs four times, three times plene and once defective. As this participle feminine plural, which occurs four times only, is differently spelt, being in three instances with the characteristic Vav and once יֹשְׁבוֹת without it (1 Kings 3 17), the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 54 b, on 1 Sam. 27 8, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 78 b, on 1 Kings 3 17; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 182 b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 278 b, on Ezek. 8 14; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 185 b, on 1 Kings 3 17; (VI) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, § 3, and (VII) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 27 8.

§ 692. תְּרִיצוּ

הוֹשִׁיבֵנִי he has made me to dwell, occurs twice. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 219 b, on Ps. 143 8.

§ 693. תְּרִיצוּ

הוֹשִׁבוּתִים or הוֹשִׁבוֹתִים, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 168 b, on Jerem. 32 37, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah, on the same passage. Both the Lists coincide in giving identically the same two passages, though the Zechariah instance is הוֹשִׁבוּתִים and I will bring back, the Hiphil of שָׁב, whilst in Jeremiah 32 37 it may either also be הוֹשִׁבוּתִים or הוֹשִׁבוֹתִים and I will cause them to dwell the Hiphil of יָשַׁב, since the two forms occur in the same verse. The Zechariah instance, therefore, determines it that הוֹשִׁבוּתִים is here intended. This, however, is in conflict both with the heading of the Rubric and with the fact that this Hiphil form occurs altogether eight times and is spelt in three different ways. Besides Jerem. 32 37 it is (I) הוֹשִׁבוּתִים entirely defective in Jerem. 24 6; 27 22; 34 22; (2) הוֹשִׁבוּתִים without Vav, but with Vav apart from the Zechariah instance given in this Rubric, also in Jerem. 16 16, and (3) הוֹשִׁבוּתִים with Vav, but without Vav in Jerem. 12 15. The difficulty would be solved if we assume that the catchwords מִצִּירֵי הַזְּבֻדִים Zech. 10 10, which are given both in the MS. List and in the printed Massorah, are wrong and ought to be מִצִּירֵי הַזְּבֻדִים על בְּרִיתָם Hosea 11 11. This is supported by the fact that this Hiphil form of יָשַׁב actually occurs twice only, that it is הוֹשִׁבוּתִים defective or without Vav in one instance (Jerem. 32 37) and הוֹשִׁבוּתִים plene or with Vav in the other instance (Hosea 11 11), which fully coincides with the statement in the heading of this Rubric. That wrong catchwords are not infrequently supplied by later Nakdanim is shown below in § 718.

§ 694. תְּרִיצוּ

לְהוֹשִׁיב to cause to dwell, or to marry, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this infinitive, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt, being in one instance with Vav (1 Sam. 2 8) and in the other without it (Neh. 13 27), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 301 b, on Neh. 13 17.

§ 695a. תְּרִיצוּ

וַיֹּשֶׁב and he caused to dwell, or placed, occurs five times in the Scriptures. This form of the Rubric is from Harley 5710-11, fol. 32 a, on Gen. 47 11. Though the heading emphatically states that there are five instances of this Hiphil future third person singular masculine, the Rubric itself records three only. As the omission of the two instances is due to the fact that the three complete the line, this incomplete Rubric affords another proof of the oft-repeated statement that the conflict between the super-description and the List itself is frequently due to the exhaustion of space. I have, therefore, given it as an instructive illustration of this fact.

§ 695b. תְּרִיצוּ

וַיֹּשֶׁב occurs four times in the Scriptures . . . and once it is with the accent on the ultima. Of this complete Massorah I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 250 b, on 2 Kings 17 6, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 158 b, on 2 Chron. 8 2; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 262 a, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 812 a, on Ps. 107 36; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 57 a, on Gen. 47 11; (VI) Halle Ochl. Ve-Ochl. II, § 3, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Gen. 47 11.

To understand the different headings of these seven Lists it is necessary to remark that the five instances which constitute this Massorah exhibit the following three varieties: (I) In one instance, viz. Gen. 47 11, it is יֹשְׁבֵי the apocopated form with the accent on the ultima or is מִירָה and in the other four passages (2 Kings 17 6, 24; Ps. 107 36; 2 Chron. 8 2) it is with the accent on the penultima or is מִירָה. Hence Lists I and V, the design of which is to safeguard the variation in the accents alone, notice this fact only, and the latter is more distinctively headed מִירָה וְיֹשְׁבֵי וְיֹשְׁבֵי מִירָה and has the addition at the end מִירָה מִירָה, without any regard to the variation in the orthography. List II, which is headed מִירָה מִירָה, the מִירָה being a clerical error for מִירָה, is no contradiction, since it is designed to safeguard the three plene instances only which it duly records. List IV, which is headed מִירָה מִירָה מִירָה, is designed to safeguard both the three plenes and the two defectives without any regard to the variation in the accents, whilst List VI, which is simply headed מִירָה מִירָה, is designed to record the fact that this form occurs five times only, in the Scriptures, without regard either to the variation in the accents or orthography. This printed Massorah (List VII) is corrupt. It is headed מִירָה מִירָה מִירָה מִירָה מִירָה for though it apparently records six instances, there are really five only since it gives 2 Chron. 8 2 twice, once with the catchwords שָׁמַע אֱלֹהֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל as the second instance and once with the catchwords אֲשֶׁר נָתַן חַיִּים as the sixth instance.

§ 696. תְּרִיצוּ

וַיִּשְׁיבוּ and they caused them to dwell, occurs twice. The design of this Massorah is twofold. In the first place it is to safeguard the variation in the spelling of this Hiphil future third person plural with the suffix third person plural with Vav conversive which not only occurs twice, but is restricted to the same book and is יִשְׁיבוּ plene in the first instance (1 Sam. 12 8) and יִשְׁבוּ without the characteristic Vav in the second instance (1 Sam. 30 21). And in the second place in fixing the number at two it militates against the ancient reading וַיִּשְׁיבוּ and he caused them to dwell, the singular the preferable form which is now accepted by textual critics and is attested by the ancient versions, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on 1 Sam. 30 21.

יִשְׁעָה salvation, is six times defective in this form. That is, the two synonymous nouns יִשְׁעָה and יִשְׁעָה derivatives of יָשַׁע without and with prefixes and suffixes are thus written without Vav after the Shin. Normally these two nouns, which occur altogether about 112 times, are written יִשְׁעָה and יִשְׁעָה with Vav. In this form the former occurs 73 times and the latter 33 times. As it is in these six instances only that they are without the Vav, viz. יִשְׁעָה five times and יִשְׁעָה once, the Massorah safeguards the abnormal orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 69 b, on 2 Sam. 19 3, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 292 a, on Ps. 35 3; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 325 a, on the same passage; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 382 a, on Job 30 15; (V) the printed Massorah, on Deut. 32 15; (VI) the same on 2 Sam. 19 3, and (VII) the same on Job 30 15. The printed Massorah on Ps. 53 7, where this Rubric is mentioned, but the register is not given, is as follows: יִשְׁעָה לִית כְּרִיב כִּן חֵם יְרִי קִרְמָה חִבְרִי קִרְמָה דָּא חֵם רְחֵם וְנִמְהָ עִם דְּרִיזוּ חֵם בְּלִישׁ. This is incorrect, since according to this Ps. 14 7 יִשְׁעָה is entirely defective, whereas it is here יִשְׁעָה not only with Vav after the Shin, but with Pathach under the Ayin.

יִשְׁעָה salvation, occurs three times. In contradistinction to its sexteliteral synonym יִשְׁעָה which also occurs three times (Judg. 15 18; 2 Sam. 19 8; Prov. 21 31) and with which it is reckoned in the same Rubric. (Vide supra, § 697.)

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 44 a, on 1 Sam. 14 45, which

I have printed: (II) Add. 15,251, fol. 220 b, on Isa. 12 3, and (III) the printed Massorah on 1 Sam. 14 45.

הרצ"ט = § 699.

ישועה: salvation, occurs twice. Without prefixes and suffixes, this noun occurs altogether nine times. In seven instances it is יְשׁוּעָה and in two only is it with paragogic He. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, but which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated five Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 209 b, on Jonah 2 10, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on the same passage; (III) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 174 a, on Ps. 3 3; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 319 b, on the same passage, and (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 292 b, on Jonah 2 10. The latter is headed יְשׁוּעָה וְהָאֵלֶּיּוֹן it occurs twice and with the accent on the penultima, that is in contradistinction to the seven instances without the paragogic He, which are Milra or with the accent on the ultima.

ה"ש = § 700.

ישועת: the salvation of, is five times with Pathach in the Scriptures. That is, in the construct state. In fixing the number at five and in adding the expression קָרַמְתָּ after the catchwords מִי יִתֵּן מַצִּיּוֹן (= Ps. 14 7) the design of this Massorah is to militate against the reading יְשׁוּעָה instead of יְשׁוּעָה in the parallel passage in Ps. 53 7, which is that of other textual redactors, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the popular parts of the Massorah, I collated fifteen Lists. I shall, however, specify the following seven only, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 43 b, on Exod. 14 13, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 308 b, on Ps. 98 3; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 321 a, on Ps. 14 7; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 234 b, on Isa. 52 10; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 87 b, on Exod. 14 13; (VI) Halle Ochlal Ve-Ochlal II, § 251, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 14 13.

תשי"א = § 701.

ישועות: salvations, or salvation, is seven times plene. This plural noun which occurs altogether twelve times, is spelt in three different ways: (I) In one instance it is יְשׁוּעוֹת without the first Vav but with the second, Ps. 53 7; (2) in four instances it is יְשׁוּעוֹת with the first Vav, but without the second (Isa. 26 18; 33 6; Ps. 42 12; 43 5), and (3) in the seven instances which constitute this Rubric it is יְשׁוּעוֹת with both Vavs or entirely plene. The Massorah here, contrary to its usual method, safeguards the orthography of the majority. In the addition of קָרַמְתָּ after the catchwords מִן הַתְּהוֹמוֹת (= Ps. 42 6) the design of the Massorah is to protect it against reading here יְשׁוּעוֹת defective as it is in the parallel passage Ps. 43 5. From this analysis it will be seen that all the three different spellings occur in the Psalter.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 288 a, on Ps. 18 51, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 290 a, on Ps. 28 8; (III) the same MS., fol. 362 a, on Ps. 74 12; (IV) Add. 15,250, fol. 326 b, on Ps. 42 6; (V) Add. 15,251, fol. 344 b, on Ps. 44 5; (VI) the same MSS., fol. 369 a, on Ps. 116 13, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

תשי"ב = § 702.

ישיהו: Yishai, or Jesse, is in two instances with Zakeph and Kametz in the Scriptures. Normally where this proper name is with Kametz under the Shin this letter is either with the pausal accent Athnach which is the case in five instances (1 Sam. 16 19; 17 20; 22 13; 25 10; Isa. 11 1) or with Soph-Pasuk which is also the case in four instances (Ps. 72 20; 1 Chron. 2 10; 10 14; 2 Chron. 11 18). When it is with the accent Zakeph-Katon it is יְשִׁיָּהוּ with Pathach which is the case in seven instances (1 Sam. 16 10 b; 17 12; 20 30; 22 8, 9; 2 Sam. 20 1; 1 Chron. 12 19). As it is in these two instances only that the Zakeph is abnormally with Kametz the Massorah safeguards the exceptional occurrence.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 149 a, on 1 Chron. 29 26, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 260 b, on Ruth 4 22, and (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 284 a, on the same passage.

ישׁוּבָן a desert, a wilderness. A sign to indicate the variation in its spelling. Without and with the prefixes Beth and He this noun, which occurs altogether thirteen times, is spelt in three different ways: (1) In one instance it is יְשׁוּבָן (Deut. 32 10) both without Yod and Vav or entirely defective; (2) In five instances it is יְשׁוּבָן (Numb. 21 20; 23 28; 1 Sam. 26 1, 3; Isa. 43 20) with Yod, but without Vav, and (3) in seven it is יְשׁוּבָן (1 Sam. 23 19, 24; Isa. 43 19; Ps. 68 8; 78 40; 106 14; 107 4) both with Yod and Vav or entirely plene.

From this analysis it will be seen that the several spellings are the rule in one part of the Bible and the exception in the other. Hence this artificial form of the Rubric registers the variations according to the Law, the Prophets and the Hagiographa.

The Pentateuch. — In the Pentateuch, where this noun occurs three times, it is יְשׁוּבָן with the Yod, but without the Vav in two instances, and once only it is יְשׁוּבָן entirely defective. Hence the Massorah here safeguards the solitary exception.

The Prophets. — In this part of the Bible, which is represented by Samuel and Isaiah and in which it occurs altogether six times, twice in Isaiah and four times in Samuel and where the two different spellings are used in two consecutive verses in the former (Isa. 43 19, 20), the plene instance is safeguarded, whilst in the latter where the two different spellings occur in parallel passages (1 Sam. 23 24; 26 1) they are both safeguarded against being made uniform.

The Hagiographa. — In this part, which is represented by the Psalter and in which it occurs four times, it is uniformly יְשׁוּבָן. The simple mention of the fact, therefore, suffices without specifying the number or giving the catchwords.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Add. 21,160, fol. 225 a, on Numb. 21 20.

הישׁוּבָן the waste, the wilderness, is twice plene. With the prefix He this noun occurs altogether five times. הִישׁוּבָן is without the Vav three times (Numb. 21 20; 23 28; 1 Sam. 26 3) and plene in two. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this form of the Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 51 b, on 1 Sam. 23 19, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage. The addition at the end, viz. וְכֹל בְּתוֹרַת הַיְשׁוּבָן does not refer to the noun with the prefix He but to the plene spelling generally and omits the instance in the Prophets (Isa. 43 19).

הישׁוּמוֹת jeshimoth, occurs four times. This expression, which is the second part of the compound proper name בֵּית הַיְשׁוּמוֹת Beth-Hajeshimoth [= house of desolation], and which occurs four times, is spelt in three different ways: In the Pentateuch, where it occurs once, it is היְשׁוּמוֹת (Numb. 33 49) entirely defective, i. e. without Yod after the Shin and without Vav after the Mem; (2) In Joshua, where it occurs twice, it is היְשׁוּמוֹת (12 3; 13 20), whilst in Ezekiel, where it occurs once, it is היְשׁוּמוֹת with Yod, but without the Vav. Hence the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 109 b, on Numb. 33 49, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 146 a, on Joshua 12 13; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 154 b, on Numb. 33 49; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 9 b, on Josh. 12 3; (V) the same MS., fol. 183 a, on Ezek. 25 9; (VI) the printed Massorah on Numb. 33 49, and (VII) the same on Ezek. 25 9.

These seven Lists exhibit two recensions of this Massorah which emanate from two different Schools of Massorites. In the oldest form of it, which is that of Lists I, III, IV, the reading in Ezek. 25 9 is היְשׁוּמוֹת with Yod, but without Vav; and this reading is supported by Orient. 4445 first hand; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250 and Add. 15,251. According to the second recension, which is that of Lists II, VI and VII, the reading in this passage is היְשׁוּמוֹת entirely plene and this is supported by St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Orient. 2201 second hand; Harley 5710—11 and Add. 15,451 for which reason I have adopted it in my edition of the Bible. That the variations are due to different recensions of the text the Massorites themselves declare. On Numb. 33 49

we are told that the reading הַשִּׁנָּה entirely defective is according to the Hellali recension and that according to the Jerusalem recension it is הַשִּׁנָּה with Yod after the Shin, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible, whilst the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew reads it הַשִּׁנָּה without Yod, but with Vav. The הַשִּׁנָּה after וַיִּרְאוּ in Lists VI and VII is the addition of an ignorant scribe and must be cancelled.

תִּשְׁחָךְ - § 705

תִּשְׁחָךְ Yischach, is four times written with Shin in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to 108 instances in which the name of this patriarch occurs and is תִּשְׁחָךְ. Hence the Massorah safeguards this abnormal spelling, thus precluding the instance in Ps. 105 9 being made conformable to the parallel passage in 1 Chron. 16 16.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 55 a, on Jerem. 33 26, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Amos 7 9; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 310 b, on Ps. 105 9; (IV) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 252; (V) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 33 26; (VI) the same on Amos 7 9, and (VII) the same on Ps. 105 9.

תִּשְׁבַּח - § 706.

תִּשְׁבַּח she will be desolate, occurs twice, once with Kametz under the Shin and once with Patach. Hence the Massorah safeguards the variation in the graphic signs.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 32 a, on Gen. 47 19, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2349, fol. 56 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage. List II adds at the end (וְהָיָה) that it also occurs once with the prefix Vav. This Rubric forms part of the alphabetical List of words which respectively occur three times, twice without the prefix Vav and once with it. (Vide supra, letter v, § 70.)

תִּשְׁבַּח - § 707.

וְיִשְׁמַעְלָהּ and to Ishmael, occurs twice, once at the beginning of the verse and once in the middle. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 36 b, on Gen. 27 20, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 270 b, on 2 Chron. 23 1. For the cause of the Tzere being under the Ayin instead of the Aleph and for disguising the Divine name אל, see my Introduction to the Hebrew Bible, p. 397 &c.

תִּשְׁמַעְלָהּ - § 708.

וְיִשְׁמַעְלָהּ the Ishmaelite, is in all its forms with Aleph, except once. It will be seen that in this instance the redactors of the text were not satisfied with simply transferring the graphic sign from the Aleph to the Ayin, but elided the Divine name altogether. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 147 b, on 1 Chron. 27 30.

תִּישְׁנוּ - § 709.

וַיִּישְׁנוּ and they shall sleep, occurs three times in the Scriptures. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only on Jerem. 51 57.

תִּישָׁן - § 710.

וַיִּישָׁן and he slept, occurs three times, twice with Kametz and once with Patach. As this variation in its graphic signs is due to the pausal or distinctive accent which is Athnach in one of the Kametz instances (Gen. 2 21) and Zakeph-Gadol in the other (Gen. 41 5), the Massorah safeguards the respective vowel-signs.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, two in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 2 b, on Gen. 2 21, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 93 b, on 1 Kings 19 5; (III) the printed Massorah, on Gen. 2 21, and (IV) the same on Gen. 41 5

תִּישָׁן - § 711.

וַיִּישָׁן asleep, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. That is, once without Yod after Shin and once with it. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 78 b, on 1 Kings 3 20, which I have printed, and (II) the same on Cant. 5 2.

It will be seen that the List which I have printed emphatically states that the Canticles instance is תִּישָׁן plene and hence 1 Kings 3 20 is תִּישָׁן defective. Yet the official Lists of the variations between Easterns and Westerns declare that according to the Palestinians the Kings instance is תִּישָׁן plene and the Canticles is תִּישָׁן defective. (Vide supra, letter n, § 625.) And though the textus receptus professes to follow the Palestinian or Western recension, both the MSS. and the early editions which are admittedly Western exhibit תִּישָׁן defective in 1 Kings 3 20. Thus Add. 21,161; Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451 and all the early editions. As to the Canticles instance, which the Rubric before us says is תִּישָׁן plene, this reading is exhibited in the ancient Codex Add. 21,161 only, whilst Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250 and Add. 15,251 read it תִּישָׁן defective. This Massorah, therefore, affords another proof of the fact that when it was compiled the variations, between the Palestinian and Babylonian recensions were not as yet definitely separated.

תִּישָׁן - § 712.

וְנִשְׁתַּחֲוּתָם and ye shall be saved, is twice plene. This Rubric, which is from Add. 15,250, fol. 79 b, I cannot understand. This Niphal preterite second person plural masculine with Vav conversive occurs once only in the textus receptus and in Deut. 4 25 it is וְנִשְׁתַּחֲוּתָם from נָשָׂא to be weary. It may be that the Massorite designed artificially to couple together these two Niphal forms which are respectively unique and are both plene because they are similar in sound or are homonyms.

תִּישָׁן - § 713.

וְנִשְׁתַּחֲוּתָם saved, occurs four times, one of these is with the prefix Vav, two are with Patach and two with Kametz. Though the Patach instances are the preterite third person singular masculine (Deut. 33 29; Isa. 45 17) and the two with Kametz, the one without the prefix Vav (Ps. 33 16) and the one with it (Zech. 9 9) are the participle, yet the Massorah groups them together because its design is to safeguard the variation in the graphic signs without regard to the difference in the senses.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 182 b, on Ps. 33 16, which I have printed; (II) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 45 17; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 188 b, on the same passage; (IV) the same MS., fol. 291 b, on Ps. 33 16; (V) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 251 margin; (VI) Codex Leicester on Deut. 33 29, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Isa. 45 17.

List II, which exhibits the oldest form of this Rubric, is simply headed תִּישָׁן and records the two Patach instances only. Lists V and VII alone give the mnemonic sign which I have printed, whilst List VI is headed תִּישָׁן and gives the following sign תִּישָׁן. The two Patach instances form part of the alphabetical Lists of words which respectively occur twice with this graphic sign. (Vide infra, letter s, § 539.)

תִּישָׁן - § 714.

וְנִישָׁן and he shall save, occurs twice, once plene and once defective. As this Hiphil preterite third person singular masculine with Vav conversive, which occurs twice only, is differently spelt, being in the first instance with Yod after the Ayin (1 Sam. 9 16) and in the second תִּישָׁן without the Yod, the design of this Massorah is to safeguard the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 40 a, on 1 Sam. 9 16, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., fol. 221 a, on Zech. 12, 7.

תִּישָׁן - § 715.

וְנִישָׁן and he saved them, occurs twice. In the only other instance in which this Hiphil preterite third person singular with the suffix third person plural masculine occurs, it is תִּישָׁן without the prefix Vav. (Isa. 63 9.)

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 220 a, on Zech. 9 16.

תִּישָׁן - § 716.

וְנִישָׁן and saveth, occurs twice, once defective and once plene. As this infinitive absolute with the prefix Vav, which occurs twice in the same section is differently spelt, being in the first instance וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ with Vav after the He (1 Sam. 25 26) and in the second וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ (25 23) without the Vav, the design of the Massorah is to safeguard this variation.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 53 a, on 1 Sam. 25 33, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 11 12. As the design of List I is to safeguard the variation in the spelling which occurs within a few verses of each other, the adjunct בְּעַד or בְּעַדְּךָ ought properly to follow the ו in the heading. But, as we have seen, this qualifying adjunct is not infrequently omitted. List II is headed וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ and the Rubric duly registers three instances, adding Jerem. 11 12. Its design is to record all the passages in which this infinitive occurs, irrespective of the one defective, in contradistinction to one instance in which וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ is a proper name (Deut. 32 44). For a different recension of this Rubric, see Vol. III, letter ו, § 48.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ = § 717.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ save thou, occurs twice in the Scriptures. The Hiphil imperative singular masculine occurs altogether ten times. In eight instances it is וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ with paragogic He (2 Sam. 14 4; 2 Kings 6 26; Ps. 12 2; 20 10; 28 9; 60 7; 108 7; 118 25) and in two only is it without the paragogic He. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional form. This protection is specially necessary, since the two forms are used in the same phrase (comp. Jerem. 31 with Ps. 28 9).

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 200 b, on Ps. 86 2.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ = § 718.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ and help thou, occurs twice. That is, this imperative with the prefix Vav in contradistinction to the eight instances in which it is without this prefix. This Rubric, which is from Add. 15,251, fol. 350 a, on Ps. 20 9, is corrupt. It is manifestly designed to record the only two instances in which this imperative occurs with the prefix Vav. Yet a later Nakdan has not only given the wrong catchwords וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ - Ps. 118 25 for the second instance instead of וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ - Ps. 20 9, but placed the Rubric on this passage. This is attested by the Rubric which I have printed in Vol. III, letter ו, § 47. A similar instance of wrong catchwords supplied by later Nakdanim will be found above in § 693.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ = § 719.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ he will save, occurs twice and is plene. Normally this Hiphil future third person singular masculine is יִשְׁעֵךְ. In this contracted form it occurs eight times, six times plene (Isa 45 20; Zeph. 3 17; Ps. 34 19; 69 36; 72 4, 13) and twice יִשְׁעֵךְ defective, which are given in the following Rubric. In these two instances, however, it is not only the uncontracted form, but unlike the contracted, which is differently spelt in both instances plene. Hence the Massorah safeguards the abnormal form.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 47 a, on 1 Sam. 17 47.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ = § 720.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ he will save, is twice defective in the Scriptures. As this contracted form, which as we have seen in the preceding Rubric, occurs altogether eight times, is six times plene and twice only defective, the Massorah safeguards the exceptional spelling.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 270 a, on Lament. 4 17, which I have printed, and (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 282 a, on Job 22 29.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ = § 721.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ and he saved, is four times defective in this form. This Hiphil future third person singular masculine with the prefix Vav occurs altogether twelve times. In eight instances it is וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ with Vav plene and in four only is it defective, three of which are וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ with Vav conversive and one is וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ with Vav conjunctive (Prov. 20 22), which is denoted by the term בְּלִישׁ. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, four in MSS. and three, printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 190 b, on 1 Sam. 23 5 which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 224 a, on Job 5 15; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 61 a, on 2 Sam. 8 6; (IV) the same MS., fol. 323 a, on Job 5 15; (V) the printed Massorah on Exod. 14 30; (VI) the same on 2 Sam. 8 6, and (VII) the same on Job 5 15. Apart from List I all the other Lists head this Rubric וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ...

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ = § 722.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ and he will save us, occurs three times, once defective and twice plene. Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 37 a, on 1 Sam. 4 3, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

Though both these Lists emphatically declare in their respective headings that it is plene in two instances and defective in one only, yet this is to be regarded as the reading of one School only of textual redactors. According to List I, which describes the Isaiah instance as entirely plene, viz. וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ 1 Sam. 7 8 which is the second plene can only be partially so. This may either be וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ with Yod plene and with Vav defective as it is in Orient. 2201; Arund. Orient. 16 and Add. 15,451 or וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ with Vav plene and Yod defective as it is in Harley 5710-11. It is, however, to be remarked that the Massorah Parva in Arund. Orient. 16, on 1 Sam. 4 3 emphatically states that it is defective in two and plene in one ('נִיב רַבִּי אֵי מַלְי'). It is in accordance with this Massorah, that Add. 15,250 and Add. 15,251 read it וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ defective, also in 1 Sam. 7 8. It is remarkable that 1 Sam. 4 3, which is the first of the two defectives and which is so, viz. וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ in Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250 and Add. 15,251, it is וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ entirely plene in Orient. 2201, one of the oldest dated MSS. of the whole Bible. As to the third instance, viz. Isa. 25 9, all the MSS. coincide that it is וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ entirely plene (מְלִי דַמְלִי).

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ and he saved them, occurs four times in the Scriptures. As this Hiphil future first person singular masculine with the suffix third person plural masculine with Vav conversive, which occurs altogether four times, is differently spelt, being in three instances entirely plene and once וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ without the Vav (Judg. 3 9), the Massorah safeguards the variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 249 a, on 2 Kings 14 27, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 207 b, on Ps. 106 8; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 108 b, on 2 Kings 14 27; (IV) the same MS., fol. 311 a, on Ps. 106 8; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 389 a, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah on 2 Kings 14 27, and (VII) the same on Ps. 106 8.

This Massorah, however, emanates from one School only of textual redactors, as is attested by the fact that though it emphatically states that the reading in Judg. 3 9 is וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ without Vav and though Harley 5710-11 and Arund. Orient. 16 support this reading, yet Orient. 2201, which is one of the oldest dated MSS. of the whole Bible: Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 first hand, and Add. 15,451 read it וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ entirely plene and this reading is exhibited in all the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ salvation, occurs five times in this form. Without and with the prefixes (= בְּלִישׁ), this noun occurs altogether ten times. In five instances it is וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ with Tzere under the Yod (Ps. 12 6; 20 7; 50 23; Hab. 3 13, 13) and in five it is with Segol. Hence the Massorah safeguards the Segol instances against being confused with the Tzere.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 228 b, on Job 5 11, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 22 a, on Isa. 45 8; (III) St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916, on Isa. 61 10; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 138 b, on Isa. 45 8; (V) the same MS., fol. 145 a, on Isa. 61 10; (VI) the same MS., fol. 323 a, on Job 5 11, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Isa. 45 8. Lists II, IV and VII are headed וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ, which is the Massoretic term for Segol, comp. letter ה, § 132.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ = § 725.

וַיִּשְׁעֵךְ and jasper, occurs three times. Both the MSS. and early editions are divided with regard to the graphic signs of his expression. The earliest undated MS. extant, viz. Orient. 4445, reads it תָּשַׁרְתָּ with Tzere, so it is in all the three instances in Orient. 2201, which is one of the earliest dated MSS. of the whole Bible, and in the model Codex Arund. Orient. 16; whilst תָּשַׁרְתָּ with Segol is the reading in Harley 5710-11; Add. 21,160; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251 and Add. 15,451. The Massorah Parva in Add. 15,251 both on Exod. 39 13 and Ezek. 28 13, however, remarks against it תָּשַׁרְתָּ for which reason I have adopted it in my edition of the Bible. For the variation in the early editions see the notes on the respective passages in my edition.

Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 111 b, on Exod. 28 20, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 133 a, on Exod. 39 13; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 185 a, on Ezek. 28 13, and (IV) the printed Massorah on Exod. 39 13.

תָּשַׁרְתָּ = § 726.

תָּשַׁרְתָּ he was right, is three times with Pathach under the Shin. That is, it is the preterite third person singular masculine, in contradistinction to the eighteen instances in which it is תָּשַׁרְתָּ with Kametz, being an adjective or noun.

Of this Rubric I collated six Lists, five in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 43 a, on Jerem. 18 4, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. II, fol. 139 a, on 1 Chron. 13 4; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 158 a, on Jerem. 18 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 164 a, on Jerem. 27 5; (V) the same MS., fol. 247 a, on 1 Chron. 13 4, and (VI) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 27 5. Lists I and VI alone have the mnemonic sign. The sign is also given without the List in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ו, § 416.

תָּשַׁרְתָּ = § 727.

תָּשַׁרְתָּ he, or it will be right, is three times plene. By fixing the instances at three, this Massorah excludes the reading תָּשַׁרְתָּ plene in the parallel passage in 1 Sam. 18 20, which is exhibited in Orient. 2201 first hand; Harley 5710-11 first hand; and Arund. Orient. 16.

Of this Rubric I collated five Lists four in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 68 a, on 2 Sam. 17 4, which I have printed; (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 280 b, on Numb. 23 27; (III) Orient. 2348, fol. 125 a; (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 115 a, and (V) the printed Massorah, all on the same passage.

It will be seen that the List which I have printed gives Jerem. 18 4 as the third plene instance in which this future occurs, and which is in the textus receptus תָּשַׁרְתָּ the preterite. As all the other Lists coincide in giving 2 Chron. 30 4 as the third passage, and moreover, as Jerem. 18 4 is given in the preceding Rubric as one of the three instances in which it is תָּשַׁרְתָּ the preterite, we must conclude that we have here another instance of wrong catchwords. List II heads this Rubric more correctly תָּשַׁרְתָּ תָּשַׁרְתָּ since two of the instances are with Vav conversive (2 Sam. 17 4; 2 Chron. 30 4).

תָּשַׁרְתָּ he shall make straight, occurs twice. That is, the Piel future third person singular, in contradistinction to the only other instance in which this quadrilateral occurs, where it is תָּשַׁרְתָּ the Kal future recorded in the preceding Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 337 a, on Prov. 3 6, which I have printed, and (II) the printed Massorah on Prov. 15 21. As both the instances occur in the same book, the heading ought properly to be תָּשַׁרְתָּ. The Massorah takes no notice of the variation in the graphic signs being in one instance תָּשַׁרְתָּ with Tzere (Prov. 3 6) and תָּשַׁרְתָּ with Segol in the other (Prov. 15 21) which is due to the Makeph.

This Rubric is part of the alphabetical List of words beginning with Yod which respectively occur twice. (Vide supra, letter י, § 11.)

תָּשַׁרְתָּ = § 729.

תָּשַׁרְתָּ they shall make straight, or sing, is four times defective in this form. That is, the form תָּשַׁרְתָּ is in four instances without Yod after the Shin. It will be seen that though one of the four only is the Hiphil future third person plural masculine of תָּשַׁרְתָּ (Gen. 31 27) and the other three are the plural of the noun תָּשַׁרְתָּ a song from תָּשַׁרְתָּ to sing, yet the Massorah according to its artificial method, groups them together in the same Rubric, simply because they exhibit the same peculiarity of being without the Yod between the Shin and the Resh.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 888 a, on Prov. 4 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., fol. 346 a, on Prov. 25 20; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 22 b, on Gen. 31 27; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 29 a, on the same passage; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 45 b, also on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah on Prov. 4 25, and (VII) the same on Prov. 25 20.

תָּשַׁרְתָּ, which is here given as the second instance, occurs twice, viz. Ezek. 26 13 and Amos 5 23 and without any other catchwords may denote either of the two passages. Lists VI and VII, however, give the fuller catchwords תָּשַׁרְתָּ תָּשַׁרְתָּ, which leaves it beyond the shadow of a doubt that Ezek. 26 13 is according to this Massorah the defective, and this is supported by the fact that Amos 5 23 is תָּשַׁרְתָּ plene in Arund. Orient. 16 first hand and Add. 15,451. Lists VI and VII must, therefore, be based upon a recension of the text which read תָּשַׁרְתָּ defective in Ezek. 26 13. It is remarkable that in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 תָּשַׁרְתָּ was omitted altogether in Ezek. 26 13 and was added by the Nakdan. However, as most of the MSS. read תָּשַׁרְתָּ defective in Amos 5 23, I have given the Rubric which records it as the second instance in letter ש, § 373. Though List VII is headed תָּשַׁרְתָּ it records three only, omitting the last instance, viz. Prov. 25 20, which is manifestly due to the carelessness of the Scribe.

תָּשַׁרְתָּ = § 730.

תָּשַׁרְתָּ and in uprightness, occurs twice. In the only other instance where this noun with the prefix Vav Beth is combined with תָּשַׁרְתָּ (1 Kings 3 6), the feminine of תָּשַׁרְתָּ.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 128 b, on Deut. 9 5.

תָּשַׁרְתָּ = § 681.

תָּשַׁרְתָּ to the upright, occurs three times. That is, in contradistinction to the two instances where it is תָּשַׁרְתָּ which are interchangeably used in the same book (Ps. 11 2; 36 11).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 182 a, on Ps. 33 1, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 291 a, on the same passage; (III) the same MS., fol. 313 a, on Ps. 112 4; (IV) the same MS., fol. 336 b, on Prov. 2 7; (V) Add. 15,250, fol. 340 b, on Ps. 112 4; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 199, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Ps. 33 1.

תָּשַׁרְתָּ = § 732.

תָּשַׁרְתָּ Israel, is in eighteen instances preceded by a word or words which in this combination respectively occur once only. Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 341, which I have printed, and (II) Orient. 4445, fol. 77 b, on Exod. 34 27. Though List I states in the heading that there are eighteen such unique combinations it records nineteen. List II, which exhibits the oldest attempt to collect these instances, is as follows:

Isa. 41 8	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	Ezek. 37 22	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	Exod. 34 27	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל
1 Kings 22 10	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	Hosea 6 10	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	Levit. 9 1	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל
Ezek. 37 18	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	1 Chr. 12 38	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	Deut. 27 9	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל
		Ezek. 27 17	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	1 Sam. 1 17	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל

On comparing this ancient List with the one which I have printed it will be seen that (1) it omits the following eight instances; Numb. 18 23; Josh. 9 6; 10 4; 2 Kings 17 8; Ezek. 12 24; 37 16; Zech. 9 1; Ezra 5 11; that (2) it gives תָּשַׁרְתָּ 1 Kings 22 10, which does not occur again in Kings and against which some Massorahs remark תָּשַׁרְתָּ but which occurs again in 2 Chron. 18 9, 34 instead of תָּשַׁרְתָּ (Ezra 5 11) with the prefix Lamed, which is contrary to the scope of this Massorah, and that (3) it has no heading fixing the number, but simply describes each phrase as unique (י). It is, therefore, evident that List I is a further development of this Register though it also is still incomplete. This is moreover attested by the fact that there are many more such unique combinations, of which the following are some:

Numb. 25 5	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	Josh. 14 10	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	Numb. 20 14	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל
Deut. 33 28	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	Judg. 6 6	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	Deut. 33 29	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל
Numb. 23 7	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	Numb. 20 21	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	Gen. 25 22	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל
Josh. 7 11	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	21 24	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל	Josh. 7 15	תָּשַׁרְתָּ יִשְׂרָאֵל

As is not infrequently the case, a later Nakdan mistook the tentative List for complete. Hence he furnished it with the superscription which fixes the number at eighteen in accordance with the instances therein recorded and a still later editor added the last instance which is not only against the import of this Massorah, but is in dire conflict with the number given in the heading. After ישראל of the artificial heading the words ויהי have dropped out of the text. Besides the words ויהי and ולל which I have supplied in brackets before the fourth and eighteenth instances in accordance with Frensdorff (comp. Massoretisches Wörterbuch, § 377, note 3), I have corrected in the List which I have printed, the catchwords for the sixth instance, viz. ישראל into ישראל Josh. 9 6 and the catchwords ישראל for the eleventh instance into ישראל Ezek. 37 19.

ישראל — Instances in which words preceding ישראל respectively occur twice in this combination. Whilst the preceding Rubric is restricted to unique phrases in connection with this proper name, the design of this Massorah is to register duplicate instances. This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 84a, on Numb. 1 52.

The absence of any heading, which I have supplied in brackets, clearly shows that it exhibits the first attempt to collect these passages.

§ 734. תשל"ד.

ישראל איתו Israel with him, occurs twice. Normally when this proper name is followed by the preposition with the suffix third person singular masculine it is איתו, viz. ישראל איתו. In this form it occurs about eleven times (Josh. 10 15, 29, 31, 34, 36, 38; 2 Sam. 17 14; 1 Kings 8 62, 65; 2 Chron. 7 8; 11 1). As it is in these two instances that it is in combination with איתו, the Massorah safeguards this exceptional combination.

This Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, is from Orient. 2349, fol. 117b, on Numb. 27 21.

§ 735. תשל"ה.

ישראל הם Israel they, occurs three times. This proper name is eight times followed by the personal pronoun third person plural masculine. In five instances the pronoun is הם with paragogic He (Numb. 13 3; 2 Sam. 21 2; 1 Kings 9 20; Ezek. 37 11; 2 Chron. 8 7) and in three only is it without this He. Hence the Massorah safeguards the minority.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 83a, on Numb. 1 16, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 373a, on Ezra 2 59; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 389b, on the same passage, and (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 184b, on Numb. 1 16. List II indicates the design of this Massorah by the addition at the end ישראל הם.

ישראל הנה occurs twice. That is, the personal pronoun third person plural feminine, in contradistinction to the five instances in which this proper name is followed by הנה the masculine given in the preceding Rubric. By fixing the number at two this Massorah militates against the reading הנה in Judg. 19 12, which is exhibited in Harley 5710—11 first hand, and in Add. 15,451 and which is now accepted as preferable.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 32a, on Judg. 19 12, which I have printed, and (II) Vienna Codex No. 35 on the same passage.

§ 737. תשל"ז.

ישראל and in Israel, occurs three times. That is, with both the prefix Vav and Beth in contradistinction to the thirty-three instances in which it is with the prefix Vav alone, recorded in the following Rubric.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed; (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 168a, on Jerem. 32 20, which I have printed; (II) Vienna Codex No. 35, on Ps. 78 71, and (III) the printed Massorah on Jerem. 32 20. The latter is headed ישראל which has no meaning, and the expression ישראל must have been added by an ignorant Nakdan.

ישראל and Israel, occurs thirty-three times. That is, with Vav conjunctive in contradistinction to the numerous instances in which it is without this Vav.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 16a, on Josh. 22 22, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., 46a, on 1 Sam. 17 3; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 144b, on Numb. 24 18; (IV) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 21a, on Isa. 44 21; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 281b, on Numb. 24 18; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 29 margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter י, § 419.

Though the printed Massorah (List VII), like all the other Lists, states that there are thirty-three such instances, it records thirty-one only. It omits three which the other Lists give, viz. 2 Sam. 11 11; Isa. 48 12; 2 Chron. 16 11 and gives two for Isa. 44 21 (כ. ה). This is not only supported by List VI, but by the model Codex Arund. Orient. 16, which reads ישראל in both clauses of this verse and by the first edition of the Rabbinic Bible by Felix Pratensis, Venice 1517, which exhibits it in the margin. It is to be remarked that the catchwords for Josh. 22 22, which are here (in List VII) wrongly divided into two lines, represent one instance.

ישראל and unto Israel, occurs six times in the Scriptures. That is, in contradistinction to the thirty-three instances in which it is with the prefix Vav alone without the Lamed recorded in the preceding Rubric. By fixing the number at six the design of this Massorah is to militate both against the recension which reads ישראל instead of ישראל in Exod. 32 13, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, and against the reading ישראל in 2 Chron. 16 11, as is shown further on.

Of this Rubric, which is one of the oldest parts of the Massorah, I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 153b, on 2 Chron. 7 10, which I have printed; (II) the same MSS., Vol. I, fol. 224b, on 1 Kings 8 66; (III) Orient. 4445, fol. 59b, on Exod. 18 1; (IV) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 84a, on 1 Kings 8 66; (V) Add. 21,160, fol. 93b, Exod. 18 1; (VI) Halle Ochliah Ve-Ochliah II, § 29 margin, and (VII) the printed Massorah on Exod. 18 1.

With the exception of the printed Massorah (List VII) all the other Lists are not only headed ישראל, but record identically the same six instances. List VII, however, states in the heading that it occurs seven times (ז) and registers seven, giving ישראל 2 Chron. 16 11, as the seventh instance. But though this passage is given as one of the thirty-three instances in which it is ישראל with Vav alone and is so in the textus receptus, yet as the printed Massorah expressly omits it from that Rubric (§ 738) and includes it here among the instances which are with both the prefixes Vav and Lamed, it is probable that these two Rubrics are based upon a recension of the text which exhibited ישראל in 2 Chron. 16 11.

ישראל and from Israel, occurs twice in the Scriptures. Normally when this proper name is with the prefix Mem it is ישראל without the Vav conjunctive. In this form it occurs about thirty-two times. As it is in these two instances only that it has the Vav, the Massorah safeguards this rare occurrence.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 292b, on Ezra 10 25, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 108a, on Numb. 32 22; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 379a, on Ezra. 10 25, and (IV) Orient. 2349, fol. 120b, on Numb. 32 22.

§ 741. תשל"יא.

ישורן Jeshurun, occurs twice. That is, without prefixes. In the other two instances where it occurs it is once ישורן with the prefix Beth (Deut. 33 5) and once ישורן with the prefix Vav (Isa. 44 2).

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 142a, on Deut. 32 15, which I have printed, and (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. I, fol. 133b, on the same passage. The latter is headed ישורן which militates against the Hellali recension, as will be seen from the notes on these passages in my edition of the Bible.

חַסְמִיב = § 742.

אֲבִיָּוָה and fatherless child, occurs five times. By fixing the number at five, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the ancient recension of the text which exhibited אֲבִיָּוָה also in Deut. 24 12, as is attested by the so-called Jerusalem Targum and the Septuagint (comp. Geiger, Jüd. Zeitschrift IV 101; Urschrift 473). Moreover in combination with אֲבִיָּוָה widow, אֲבִיָּוָה not only precedes אֲבִיָּוָה, but is without the Vav conjunctive, viz. אֲבִיָּוָה. In this form it occurs six times (Deut. 10 18; 27 19; Jerem. 22 3; 7 6; Ezek. 22 7; Ps. 146 9); whereas in three of the five instances which constitute this Rubric, not only is the order reversed, but אֲבִיָּוָה is with the Vav conjunctive, viz. אֲבִיָּוָה (Exod. 22 21; Zech. 7 10; Mal. 3 5).

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, six in MSS. and one printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 199 b, on Ps. 82 3, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 219 a, on Zech. 7 10; (III) the same MS., fol. 223 a, on Micah 3 5; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 101 a, on Exod. 22 21; (V) the same MS., fol. 329 a, on Job 29 12; (VI) Orient. 2349, fol. 70 b, on Exod. 22 21, and (VII) the printed Massorah on the same passage.

אֲבִיָּוָה fatherless children, is twice defective. This plural noun, which occurs altogether nine times, eight times without the prefix Vav and once with it, is אֲבִיָּוָה plene in seven instances and in two only is אֲבִיָּוָה defective. Hence the Massorah safeguards the exceptional orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this form in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Orient. 1379, fol. 155 a, on Exod. 22 23, which I have printed, and (II) Add. 21,160, fol. 101 b, on the same passage. There are two instances in which this plural noun with the pronominal suffixes is also defective viz. אֲבִיָּוָה Isa. 9 16 and אֲבִיָּוָה Jerem. 49 11. This explains the form in which the Rubric is given in the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ך, § 449, which is headed אֲבִיָּוָה חַסְמִיג בְּלִישׁ. It records the two defectives without the suffixes and the two with the suffixes. It is, however, to be remarked that the Isaiah instance is אֲבִיָּוָה plene in St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916; Add. 15,451 and several of the early editions, as will be seen from the notes on this passage in my edition of the Bible.

אֲבִיָּוָה his fatherless children, occurs twice. With the suffix third person singular masculine and without and with the prefix, this plural noun which occurs twice only, is differently spelt in each instance. In Isa. 9 16 it is אֲבִיָּוָה defective, whilst in Ps. 109 12 it is אֲבִיָּוָה plene. Hence this Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated two Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11; Vol. II, fol. 5 a, on Isa. 9 16, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 312 b, on Ps. 109 12. The latter is headed אֲבִיָּוָה חַסְמִיד בְּלִישׁ which indicates the design of this Massorah. This Rubric, however, must be regarded as based upon the recension of the text which obtained in one School of Massorites only, since the text of other Schools had אֲבִיָּוָה plene in Isa. 9 16, as shown in the preceding Rubric.

חַסְמִיה = § 745.

אֲבִיָּוָה and he was left, occurs twice. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah only, on Gen. 44 20. As this Niphal future third person singular masculine with Vav conversive also occurs in Judg. 9 5 and moreover as the two instances which constitute this Rubric occur in Genesis, it is evident that the qualifying expression אֲבִיָּוָה is omitted from the heading, which is not infrequently the case. The design of this Massorah is to distinguish between this quinqueliteral here which is the Niphal and the two instances in which it is אֲבִיָּוָה the Hiphil (2 Sam. 8 4; 1 Chron. 18 4).

חַסְמִיז = § 746.

אֲבִיָּוָה remaining, is three times in this form... once in the Law, once in the Prophets and once in the Hagiographa. That is, three expressions of the root אֲבִיָּוָה which are alike with Cholem (בליש) are without Vav after the Nun. By fixing the number at three, the design of this Massorah is to militate against the recension of the text which reads אֲבִיָּוָה plene in 1 Kings 9 21, as is attested by the ancient Codex Add. 21,161; Orient. 2201 first hand and Add. 15,451. Moreover the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text reads אֲבִיָּוָה plene in Exod. 12 10.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, two in MSS. and one printed: (I) Orient. 2349, fol. 64 a, on Exod. 12 10, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 2348, fol. 74 a, on the same passage, and (III) the printed Massorah also on the same passage.

חַסְמִיז = § 747.

אֲבִיָּוָה that were left. This Niphal participle plural with the prefix He, which not only occurs twice within a few verses, but is used in the same phrase, is in the first instance אֲבִיָּוָה (Levit. 10 12) and in the second אֲבִיָּוָה without the characteristic Yod plural (Levit. 10 16). Hence the Massorah safeguards this anomalous variation and thus militates against the recension in which the two instances are alike plene, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text.

This Rubric in its separate form is from the printed Massorah on Levit. 10 16.

אֲבִיָּוָה that remain, occurs three times in the Scriptures, twice defective and once plene. As this Niphal participle plural feminine with the prefix He, which occurs three times only, is in two instances אֲבִיָּוָה without the second Vav (Gen. 30 36; Levit. 27 18) and in one instance אֲבִיָּוָה with it (Jerem. 34 7), the Massorah safeguards this variation in its orthography. It will be seen that in the Pentateuch the primitive defective spelling is retained. It is, however, to be remarked that St. Petersburg Codex of A. D. 916 first hand reads also the Jeremiah instance אֲבִיָּוָה defective and that the Nakdan put the Vav above the word, remarking in the margin against it. It is always plene (מלי בש).

Of this Rubric, I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. II, fol. 55 b, on Jerem. 34 7, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 170 b, on the same passage; (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 258 b, also on the same passage; (IV) Add. 21,160, fol. 26 b, on Gen. 30 36; (V) Orient. 2349, fol. 45 a, on the same passage; (VI) the printed Massorah also on the same passage, and (VII) the same on Jerem. 34 7.

חַסְמִיט = § 749.

אֲבִיָּוָה to cause to abound, to let remain, is four times defective in this form. That is, the Hiphil form is in four instances without the characteristic Yod after the Tav.

Of this Rubric I collated three Lists, one in MS. and two printed: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 91 a, on Exod. 16 20, which I have printed; (II) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (III) the same on Deut. 28 11.

List II is headed אֲבִיָּוָה חַסְמִיט and gives אֲבִיָּוָה Levit. 10 16 as one of the five instances. But this is against the design of the Massorah, which is to record and safeguard the exceptional Hiphil instances without Yod after the Tav, whereas in אֲבִיָּוָה it is the Yod plural which is absent after the Resh. Though List III is simply headed אֲבִיָּוָה חַסְמִיט without fixing the number of these exceptional instances, it records the same five. It is, therefore, evident that a later Nakdan, as is not infrequently the case, who mistook the import of this Massorah, added this instance simply because it also was without the Yod.

חַסְמִינ = § 750.

אֲבִיָּוָה and leave, is three times plene. As this infinitive absolute with the prefix Vav occurs altogether three times only, and is uniformly with Vav after the He, the heading ought properly to be אֲבִיָּוָה.

Of this Rubric I collated seven Lists, five in MSS. and two printed: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 59 a, on Exod. 36 7, which I have printed; (II) the same MS., Vol. I, fol. 241 b, on 2 Kings 4 43; (III) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 277 a, on 2 Chron. 31 10; (IV) Add. 15,251, fol. 202 b, on 2 Kings 4 43; (V) Vienna Codex No. 85, on Exod. 36 7; (VI) the printed Massorah on the same passage, and (VII) the same on 2 Kings 4 43. As these three instances respectively occur in the three divisions of the Bible, List V adds אֲבִיָּוָה חַסְמִינ חַסְמִינ חַסְמִינ.

חַסְמִינא = § 751.

אֲבִיָּוָה and they left, is twice without the Yod in the Scriptures. That is, without the characteristic Yod after the Tav. The design of this Massorah is to militate against the recension of the text which exhibited plene in Exod. 16 20, as is attested by the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I have collated three Lists: (I) Harley 5710-11, Vol. I, fol. 45 a, on Exod. 16 20, which I have printed; (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 106 b, on 2 Kings 4 44, and (III) Add. 15,250, fol. 41 b, on Exod. 16 20. This Rubric forms part of the four instances in which the Hiphil form is without the characteristic Yod after the Taw, recorded in § 749.

תשני = § 752.

תשני the Hiphil form of תש is three times without the Yod. Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah in this form, I collated two Lists: (I) Add. 21,160, fol. 299a, on Ruth 2 18, which I have printed, and (II) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 283 a, on the same passage.

On comparing it with § 749 it will be seen that it exhibits a different recension. According to this Rubric there are three Hiphil instances only which are defective of the characteristic Yod and the first תשני in Deut. 28 11, like the second in the parallel passage 30 9, is plene. Hence it is not only excluded from the register, but the addition at the end of the Rubric emphatically declares (תשני אנה) that these three defectives respectively occur in the three divisions of the Bible and that the Pentateuch contains one of the three, viz. Exod. 16 20.

It is therefore evident that this Rubric is based upon a recension of the text which read תשני in both instances, viz. Deut. 28 11 and 30 9. This reading is not only preserved in the Samaritan recension of the Hebrew text, but in Add. 15,451 first hand and Orient. 2696.

תשני and the rest of, is five times with the accent in this book. That is, in Kings. In the narrative of the forty sovereigns who ruled from Solomon to Zedekiah, or up to the captivity, given in the book of Kings, the annalist supplements the record of thirty-four by referring to other archives for more detailed information. These references are introduced by the same formula והנה רבתי and the rest of the words or acts of &c., which uniformly begins a verse and immediately precedes the names of the respective rulers. This formula is restricted to thirty-four out of the forty sovereigns. But though the phrase occupies the same position, yet it has different accents or sets of accents. It is however, three of these accents alone which the Massorah safeguards and which occur in connection with twenty-four of these sovereigns only. The Rubric before us deals with one of the three accents, which is exhibited in connection with five of the monarchs.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in the printed Massorah, I collated four Lists: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 90 b, on 1 Kings 16 5, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 1478, fol. 42 a, on the same passage; (III) Orient. 2210, fol. 147 b, on the same passage, and (IV) Vienna Codex No. 35 also on the same passage.

The design of this Massorah is to safeguard the five instances in which תשני is with Kadma before the accent Tevir. But though all the four Lists coincide that there are five such instances, they differ with regard to the names of the Kings who have the Tevir, as will be seen from the following analysis:

List I. — This List gives תשני as the second of the five with Tevir. In the Standard Codices, however, which I have collated it is with Pashta. Thus it is רבתי אבום in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; Orient. 1478; Orient. 2091 &c. and is given as one of the five instances in which תשני precedes Mehupach Pashta, viz. רבתי אבום in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; Orient. 1478 and Orient. 2091. But as Add. 15,250 has it תשני רבתי יהושפט and moreover as this is actually the accentuation in the parallel passage in 2 Chron. 20 34, there can hardly be any doubt that this List is based upon a recension of the text which exhibited these accents, in both the parallel records. This is strengthened by the fact that תשני is also omitted in Lists II and III.

Lists II and IV. — These two Lists are identical. They both omit תשני 1 Kings 16 27, which is given as the second instance in List I, but they also omit תשני which is absent in List I.

They, however, make up the five by giving תשני 1 Kings 16 27 as the fifth instance which, however, is תשני רבתי עמל in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,451; Orient. 1478; and Orient. 2091. Though List II has simply תשני רבתי as the fifth instance, yet the fact that it is absolutely identical with List IV, both in the catchwords and in the order of enumerating the passages, makes it certain that the name to be supplied is תשני.

List III. — This List alone is based upon the recension exhibited in most of the Standard Codices. It is as follows: תשני רבתי ה' בשעמי במפר' וסמתי שלמה בעש' יהושפט דוד דמיון. Accordingly, the five instances with Kadma before Tevir are 1 Kings 11 41; 16 5; 22 46; 2 Kings 10 34 and 13 8.

תשני is five times with the accent in Kings. This Rubric I have found in the printed Massorah Finalis only, letter ז, § 541. Its design manifestly is to safeguard the five instances in which תשני is with Kadma followed by Mehupach Pashta. The List, however, is incorrect. For though some of the MSS. differ about the accent of תשני רבתי יהושפט 1 Kings 22 46, there is no difference about תשני רבתי יהושפט 1 Kings 16 5, which is rightly given as one of the five Tevir instances in the preceding Rubric. The List is, therefore, to be corrected in accordance with the following Standard Codices: Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; Orient. 1478 and Orient. 2091, all of which exhibit תשני רבתי יהושפט as the five sovereigns. That is; 1 Kings 15 7; 16 27; 2 Kings 13 12; 20 20; 21 17 are the five passages in which תשני with Kadma is followed by Mehupach Pashta.

תשני = § 754.

תשני is fourteen times with the accent Tevir. That is, in Kings. Of this Rubric I collated four Lists, three in MSS. and one printed: (I) Arund. Orient. 16, fol. 91 a, on 1 Kings 16 14, which I have printed; (II) Orient. 1478, fol. 41 b, on 1 Kings 15 31; (III) Orient. 4227, fol. 116 b, on the same passage, and (IV) the printed Massorah Finalis, letter ז, § 450.

List I. — Though this List emphatically declares in the heading that there are fourteen such instances, it records thirteen only.

List II. — This List is headed תשני רבתי בטעי במפ' and duly records thirteen instances which are identically the same as those given in List I, with the sole exception of the fourth instance, which is here רבתי יהושפט and which is manifestly a clerical error for רבתי אבום 2 Kings 1 18.

List III. — This List is also headed תשני רבתי חבין במפ' and records identically the same thirteen instances as in Lists I and II avoiding, however, the scribal error of List II.

List IV. — This List is simply headed תשני רבתי טעם במלכיה without specifying the number. It, however, records fifteen. The third instance, viz. תשני רבתי יהושפט 1 Kings 15 7, is wrong, since it is here with Kadma and is with this accent in all the Standard Codices (vide supra, § 753 a) and is rightly absent in all the MS. Lists. No. 8, however, which this List alone gives, viz. תשני רבתי יהושפט 2 Kings 12 20, is תשני with Tevir in Orient. 2201; Harley 5710-11; Arund. Orient. 16; Add. 15,250; Add. 15,251; Add. 15,451; Orient. 4227 and Orient. 2091. This makes fourteen instances and accounts for the heading תשני רבתי of List I, though it is not given in this List nor in the other two MS. Lists.

It will be seen from the above analysis that the three Rubrics, viz. § 753 a-b and § 754, deal with the accents of twenty-four only out of the thirty-four in connection with the rulers recorded in the book of Kings, and that the following ten are absent:

2 Kings 14 18	תשני רבתי אבום	1 Kings 14 19	תשני רבתי ירבעם
" " " 28	תשני רבתי ירבעם	" " 15 23	תשני רבתי אבום
" " " 15 11	תשני רבתי זכריה	" " 16 20	תשני רבתי זכריה
" " " 16	תשני רבתי שלום	" " 22 39	תשני רבתי אבום
" " " 31	תשני רבתי זכריה	2 Kings 14 15	תשני רבתי יהושפט

In the case of three of the sovereigns indicated here in larger type תשני is with Telisha Ketanah. Moreover in 2 Chron. 36 8 in connection with תשני it is also תשני with the same accent. Hence the Massorah on 1 Kings 22 39 in Orient. 4227, fol. 120 a, gives these four instances in a separate Rubric, viz. תשני רבתי יהושפט ויהושפט ויהושפט ויהושפט ויהושפט.

תשניה abundance, or Ithra, occurs twice, once it is written with He and once with Aleph. Though this quadriliteral is in one instance a noun denoting abundance (Isa. 15 7) and in one the proper name Ithra (2 Sam. 17 25), yet the Massorah, which has regard to their being homonyms irrespective of the difference in the sense, safeguards the variation in the spelling.

Of this Rubric, which does not occur in this separate form in the printed Massorah, I collated three Lists: (I) Orient. 1474, fol. 152 a, on Isa. 15 7, which I have printed; (II) Harley 5710—11, Vol. II, fol. 7 b, on the same passage, and (III) Add. 15,251, fol. 221 b, also on the same passage. This Rubric forms part of the List of the eleven words which respectively occur twice, once ending with Aleph and once with He. (Vide supra, letter κ, § 23.)
