YELLOW FEVER.

...ress of accumulation ...ive and offensive to the ...at this time in our city, its ...s a subject of special con... might conclude from the evi... that the unobstructed medi... ...ve, in the connection between ..., after all, worthy of little ... mean, are absolutely controverted ... present state of public health. It is a ... fact, which the experience of every per... resident of New Orleans will enable ... corroborate, that while the Crescent ... has enjoyed a reputation for cleanli... and while the constant complaint has been ... the ordinances requiring the removal of ... and other sources of pestilence, are sys... ...ly disregarded. Year after year wit... ...progressive and fatal improvement in ... health. Hence, the summer of 1847, was ... the visitation of an epidemic. ... ...have been spared the visitation of an epidemic. ... their the extreme heats of July and August, ... the strangers have been attacked by acclimating disorders, which the quidnuncs of the Faculty, ever anxiously on the look out for the advent of genuine cases of Yellow Fever, have pronounced to be sporadic illustrations of the disease. Whether they can be properly so designated, we will not pause to enquire; but we are entirely certain that in the form of an epidemic the dread and horror of the stranger Yellow Fever has not appeared among us for ... successive years.

Now we believe that it is likely ever to appear in that form. We are well aware that the presence of this terrible scourge is com... ...ly associated with heat, moisture, crowded ...tions, ill ventilated thoroughfares and ... presence of animal and vegetable matter in a state of decomposition. We are equally aware that all these morbific conditions have ... ...ly existed in our city, without ... epidemic. It cannot, therefore, be ... asserted that Yellow Fever is the neces... ...and inevitable consequence of the presence of the agents referred to. Though with a view ... the general salubrity of any town, it is of ... consequence that it should be kept free from filth, that coolness and evaporation should be promoted by frequent sprinkling of its streets, that accumulations of organic matter should be speedily removed, and that the most well approved hygienic regulations should be steadily enforced, it is manifest that the particular epidemic in question must depend upon some cause superadded to these, since the neglect of the ordinary preventive measures has not been succeeded by Yellow Fever. We will give but a single example to illustrate our argument. During the disastrous overflow of 1849—by which one third of New Orleans was for six weeks completely inundated—the physicians and the people concurred in the belief that the subsidence of the waters, leaving exposed an immense substratum of mud impregnated with vegetable mould and decaying animal matter, would infallibly generate a terrible pestilence. In twenty-four hours from the closing of the crevasse, the water had disappeared—the mud however was there, and the dwellings which had been undermined by the flood were dripping with exudations, and emitting fresh streams of vapor under a burning ...mmer sun. The Councils took some ... precautions it is true. They caused lime ... be thrown into the recently overflowed streets, thereby absorbing the superfluous moisture.—But if ever favorable conditions existed for the breaking out of a frightful epidemic, it was then ... at all other favorable conditions existed for the breaking out of a frightful epidemic, it was then ... that the summer passed away without the ... of the disease. This is a pregnant fact. ... may be asked why Yellow Fever has ceased to afflict New Orleans? It is sometimes much easier to overthrow a fallacy, than to discover a truth. Our observation has taught us that we have not escaped Yellow Fever, because New Orleans is a much healthier city than formerly was; for there is really but little appreciable difference between its condition in that respect in 1847 and the subsequent years. We are inclined to think that the gradual extension of our city in the rear, and filling up the swamps and lakes, has effected a material beneficial change in its general health. The breadth of New Orleans is now ... nearly double what it was ten years ago, its marshy region is thus thrown back considerably, and if miasmia really possess any power to engender disease, they must travel over some distance, and may be reasonably supposed to lose ... ...ir virus, ere they reach the densely populated quarters, where the subjects of epidemics reside. And yet we cannot attach much weight to this hypothesis, when we reflect that Yellow Fever annually ... Havana—a city built upon calcareous ... ...plentifully free from the vicinity of ... with a splendid mountainous ... from its spires. To confess ... physicians themselves have not yet ... the occult germ of the pestilence. It is to them a marvel and a mystery. Given the single condition of excessive heat and accumulated residences, and all other conditions may exist, or be absent without producing the disease, and without preventing it.

Let us therefore cease speculating on the subject, and like honest SANCHO, not look the gift horse in the mouth, but rather thank Providence with due gratitude, that whatever may be the secret cause of this great foe to our progress and prosperity, it seems to have disappeared, as if the design of Heaven had been to remove the last obstacle to the glorious future that awaits us.

WHIGS

RALLY! RALLY!! RALLY!!!

The Whigs of the Sixth Representative District are requested to meet on SATURDAY, July 2d, at half past seven o'clock, for the purpose of forming a Club and to nominate Delegates to the Baton Rouge Convention. The meeting will be held at the corner of St. Phillip and Royal streets.

(For list of 120 signers, see the French side)

SOUTHERN BANK.—It will be seen by our advertising columns, that this new institution has organized by the election of a Board of Directors. The gentlemen selected are well known in our community, for their integrity, experience and enterprise, and their superintendence of the Southern Bank furnishes a strong guarantee that its affairs will be judiciously and properly conducted.

THE PRESIDENT of the United States has officially recognized ROBERT W. WEIMAR, as Vice Consul of Hamburg, for the port of Key West.

BARNUM'S ILLUSTRATED NEWS.—The next number of this excellent periodical is rich in embellishments. It contains amongst other illustrations, fine portraits of Armesteros and Aguero—two noted Cuban patriots

LOUISIANA ITEMS.

We find the following in the last Opelousas Register:

THE WEATHER AND CROPS.—It has been excessively hot and dry for the last ten days, and the planters are now complaining very much of the drought. The cotton, however, of which we allowed to judge by the newspaper articles from the different sections of the cotton growing country—looks much better here than elsewhere. This, however, must be attributed to the adaptation of the soil, as the season has been very backward and unpropitious.

COTTON BLOOMS.—On Saturday last Mr. James Ray exhibited to us a stock of cotton that grew on his plantation adjoining this place on which there were fifty formed squares. We think this bids very fair, considering the stock was not half grown and had not probably reached one-tenth of its expansion.

COTTON BLOOMS.—The cotton blooms we have seen this season were sent us on the 13th inst by Mr. James H. Stevens, from his plantation on the Island.

OUTRAGES IN NEW YORK.—William Young, a quiet citizen, was badly beaten and cut about the head and face, as he was passing through Mulberry street in New York, on Sunday evening, by some unknown ruffians, who fled at the approach of the Sixth Ward Police. ... ELOPEMENT.—On Wednesday night last, says the Louisville Courier, Miss Emily B. Majors, an accomplished and beautiful young lady, of 17 or 18 years of age, and Mr. E. Myers of Hopkinsville, took it into their heads to abandon the "life of single blessedness" and accordingly left that place for Tennessee, contrary to the young lady's parents wish, to get married. Miss Majors was attending school at Hopkinsville and was about to be removed by her father, in order to see of the military between the two Al's, who had gentlemen was a little too late.—

OPELOUSAS RAILROAD.

We presume it is scarcely necessary to do more than refer the public, and capitalists especially, to the advertisement of the New Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Railroad Company, announcing that proposals will be received until the 15th September, for the purchase of 1930 bonds of $1000 each. The advertisement itself sets forth so concisely and clearly the manner in which the bonds are to be taken, the liberal amount of interest, and (what unmixed men look to most keenly) the complete and undoubted security offered, that editorial comment becomes nearly superfluous. It may, however, be well to add a word or two for the consideration of those who are seeking a safe and profitable investment for their funds.

The abundance of capital in America and Europe, arising from the undiminished supply of the precious products of California and Australia, has lowered the rate of interest so materially, that four per cent. in Europe, and five to six per cent. in America, are regarded as handsome returns for well guaranteed pecuniary outlays. Such rates are even difficult to be obtained, and vast amounts of solid cash are lying idle in the hands of the opulent, purely because they cannot be gainfully employed. Now the Opelousas Railroad Company presents to capitalists an opportunity, such as is rarely met with, if they understand their own interests, they will eagerly embrace. The bonds sought to be negotiated bear SEVEN per cent. interest, payable semi-annually, and are secured by special pledges of the subscription to the capital stock by the city of New Orleans, equal to the sum upon the face of the bonds; which subscriptions are in their turn secured by the entire landed estate of New Orleans—amounting to nearly one hundred fold the value of the proposed loan.

It is impossible to conceive of an investment more certain in its character, and upon which the interest allowed is more liberal. We are satisfied that the bonds will be speedily taken, and should not be surprised at their command ing a handsome premium

New Hampshire Democracy

The faithful in the Granite State are getting into a row. Mr. BURKE, the author of "Buncombe," formerly a member of Congress, and hornstone a most determined and active anti-supporter of the powers that be, is gradually waxing cold. He it was, it may be remembered, that presented certain resolutions in the New Hampshire Democratic Convention, censuring President PIERCE for his appointments. It appears that he has since addressed a letter to the Democrats of that State in answer to an article which appeared in the Patriot. Mr B says, in reference to the committee reporting the resolutions, that he does not believe a single gentleman composing it wished or designed to attack the Administration.

He further remarks—"He did not, and presumes others did not, but I candidly acknowledge that I did wish to have the Democracy of New Hampshire present a clean and straight forward record to the world to stand on the National Platform on the third resolution as it reads unchanged; and that if the true Democracy had been overlooked, and Free Soilers, Conservationists, and Disunionists, had been taken too much into favor, the Democracy of New Hampshire were not responsible for it."

Mr. B. concludes by asserting that he shall not war upon the Democratic party principles, usages or candidates, but he shall upon the contemptible little cabal at the capitol, who, sheltering under the shield of the Democratic party, are willing to hazard its unity to success and gratify a personal dislike to one or more members of the party.

To this the Pierce organ in New Hampshire replies with great bitterness in an article of four columns. The Patriot charges that Mr BURKE'S statements are malignant falsehoods and threats against the administration, and accuses him of cowardice, and as being a bully, an assassin &c., which traits the Patriot thinks he exhibited when he attacked the President through the Committee in the Democratic Convention, and that said body correctly failed to sustain them. The Patriot also says that BURKE'S course is owing to his failure to secure a lucrative office.

All this is both dignified and decent, and proves that the Democracy of Concord are rather discordant.

NEW MEXICO.

The San Antonio papers contain some further intelligence from New Mexico. The Ledger, says:

"We learn from Rife, the mail conductor that Trias, has taken possession of the Mesilla Territory, which commences about thirty five miles above El Paso, on the Rio Grande. It seems he will not give it up without a fight although he affirms that the Americans will dagellate him in the event of a collision. EUROPE

The steamer Humboldt, arrived at New York on the 21th inst., with dates from Europe to the 8th inst. Among her passengers are W. Cullen Bryant, of the New York Evening Post, Mrs. Col. Fremont and family, R. Schleiden, Special Envoy from Bremen, B. Brigham, Consul General from the English Government to Caracas, N. Brown, late American Consul at Rome, and R. W. Sykes, bearer of Despatches from the Mexican Legation at Paris.

Lord Lucy—It is announced that the split in the English cabinet between Lord John Russell, and the Irish members, holding office had been healed up. Mutual explanations having taken place between the three gentlemen (Messrs. Monsell, Keogh and Sadlier, who had resigned the offices they filled) and the Earl of Aberdeen, their resignations had been withdrawn.

The weather in England was very generally most favorable for the growing crops.

When the Humboldt left, Commodore Vanderbilt's steamship yacht, the North Star, was exciting great attention at Southampton. She had been thrown open to public view. Crowds of people availed themselves of the facility, and appeared greatly gratified by the sight of this magnificent specimen of naval American architecture. The Daily News states that "the Mayor of Southampton had brought before the municipality of that town the propriety of some public manifestation toward Mr. Vanderbilt, on account of his having honored Southampton by selecting it as the rendezvous of his gigantic steam yacht.

THE WAGES MOVEMENT IN LIVERPOOL.—The agitation for increased remuneration for labor still continues in Liverpool. On Monday the cotton porters, who had made an unsuccessful application for an advance of 6d a day, struck work, and have expressed their determination to remain out until their demand is conceded, and, further, until the masters sign an agreement to pay them 4s. a day, instead of the old price, 3s. and 6d. They have also come to the resolution not to work for any one who employs any who are not members of the Cotton Porters' Association, a society which numbers upwards of 700 members. The movement meets with the co-operation of the dock labourers, upwards of 700 strong, who have also struck work. The result threatens to be very detrimental to the trade of the Mersey, unless a speedy compromise between employers, however, seemed determined to resist the claim, and, although the majority would be willing to grant the increase pay, they are resolved to break down a combination which would prevent them from employing men who are not members of a certain association.—Yesterday only one shop in the port was at work, and at a monster meeting held by the menat the west side of George's Dock, it was intimated that measures would be adopted to "put a stop" to the few laborers or porters who were employed at it. The letter carriers of Liverpool have petitioned the Postmaster General for an advance of wages, on the ground that 20s. a week is inadequate to their comfortable support, owing to the high price of provisions, &c. This application had met a decided negative from Viscount Canning.

The exports for the month of May exceeded those of the same month last year £2,300,000.

The Patent Delta Dock Works at London had been burnt, involving a loss of £100,000.

The screw steamer Titania, a Dublin and Liverpool packet, with 300 passengers on board, had a burst, her boilers, by which nine persons were killed and many frightfully scalded.

SWITZERLAND.—The forces of Berne has been declared null but the government of Friburg having at once, submitted it to be so, there was no reason to adopt a formal resolution on that head.

M de Fenelon, the French Minister, has used his good offices to bring about an understanding between Switzerland and Austria. He is understood to have advised an amnesty in favor of the persons implicated in the Friburg affair.

THE TURKISH QUESTION.—The fact which we are enabled, to state in a third edition, that a courier had been despatched from St Petersburg to Constantinople with a demand that Prince Menschikoff's last proposal should be accepted by the Porte within eight days, is of several importance, and it is, we think, less unfavorable to a pacific solution of this dispute than it might at first sight appear to be.

The despatch of another courier is a fresh proof that the system of temporization and hesitation which Prince Menschikoff had begun to act pursued by Emperor Nicholas himself. But it appears further, that this courier is to insist on the acceptance of Prince Menschikoff's last proposal. That proposal, we believe, is identical with the convention so haughtily intended on the 5th of May on the conditions subsequently to that date, and just before we left Constantinople, the Russian Embassy addressed a last communication to Redschid Pasha considerably less objectionable in form though still not acceptable to the Turkish Government in substance.

It, after all, no demand made upon the Porte can be satisfied by a declaration of peaceful words all the Christian subjects of the Sultan, a declaration be addressed, not to Russia, but to the great Powers assembled in Paris for the welfare of the east there is no ... and ... ...
