The truth of the metter is, that the Polk party to Massachusetts have mean'y buriered their principles, for the chance of delesting their op ponents. They have passed over a dozen of their able and well tried champions—hard cur-rency men, free traders and advocates of the Sab-Treasury to fight under the col condidate, they can make the war the great is sue of the contest. With a popular war cry, they think they can smuggle over to their side hailed by all the party presses, as a Locofoco victory.

The crowning cunning of Locofoco tactics in this affair, is that they have nominated a candidate without previously ascertaining his willingness to accept the candidature, and whose reply cannot possibly be communicated to them until after the election. However, we suppose that with the "party," the end justifies the means. Our own impression is that the non-ination will prove perfectly harmless, and as
