RECENT IMPORTATION: The Hydrocotyle, or Rain Bath. EVERY thing connected with the cleanliness of the body; every thing which may be a preventative of disease, belongs to the province of the hygienic medicine, which Mr. Steinhilber has lately enriched with the precious discovery of his Hydrocotyle.

The importation into France by Mr. Wale, of the apparatus necessary to the application of this new mode of baths, has obtained for him the approbation of the society of practical medicine in Paris, to whom he has submitted his process, and entered him, from the public's general use of this new apparatus, a just reward for the services which he has rendered to humanity.

These baths, the usefulness of which is generally acknowledged in France, both in a medical light, and marked in that of public salubrity, present advantages, no numerous not to be particularly mentioned, in order to recommend to the public of New Orleans, the apparatus lately imported by Mr. Giguere.

The liquid contained in a reservoir above the bath, and which is of the weight of water, is forced to the bottom of the bath, by two smaller tubes, fixed in a variety of ways, so as to issue through a great number of capillary apertures, which project in the form of a water spout on the surface of the whole body, or on one, or the other of its parts, according to the direction of the capillary aperture.

Simple or complex, natural or artificial waters, decoctions, aromatic infusions, spirituous distillations, can be made use of in the Hydrocotyle, and the apparatus may be employed, not only in rain but also in shower baths, whether with a liquid or with steam, as applied to the head, trunk, or limbs of the body.

In practical medicine, the use of this bath, from the various modes of its application, has produced the happiest results; physicians have already obtained signal success in a variety of cases, such as: great obstructions, glandular affections, catarrhs of the stomach, gastritis, indigestion, weakness, exhaustion, of every sort; rheumatism and Catarrhs, obstructions, eruptions of every species, even the worst kind; nervous weakness, and in a number of diseases in which it is equally necessary to employ animal economy.

Considered in the light of a powerful hygienic auxiliary, the use of the Hydrocotyle is not only salutary, but produces a plentiful flow, a development of strength, which by no means results from the bath by the ordinary process; the permanent washing of the different parts of the body, by the means of the capillary sprinkling, the movement produced on the skin by this constant sprinkling, the general tone and activity, which are the consequences of the agreeable sensations, which attend the facility of transpiration, contribute to the health, and the vigor of the system, and all of these are qualities of hygiene, too well known to require further explanation on the subject.

The rain bath differs from the immersion bath, in this respect, that in the use of the latter, the pressure exercised by water on the body frequently produces a very great difficulty of breathing; a tendency of blood to the head, and hence headaches and vertiges.

The bath by aspersion, on the other hand, produces quite a contrary effect; the water falling on the whole surface of the body in small drops more or less tepid, assists perspiration; a gentle effluvia is experienced in every part of the body; the process of respiration is regular; it gradually expands, the pulse acquires liveliness without losing its regularity; and if the expression be allowed, the artful person, become more vigorous, for that feeling of weakness, even after a storm, is banished by the use of the Hydrocotyle.

In conclusion, the discovery of the Hydrocotyle, may be considered as an additional luxury to domestic life, as well as a means of the pleasure and satisfaction, which it creates, as the immense advantages of cleanliness, so very salutary to the body.

Baths with Mr. Wale's apparatus can be taken warm, cold, or only as also indicated, anemias, rheumatism, exanthema, and other diseases, the usefulness of which is very great though generally disregarded on account of the high expenses and injudicious care attending the establishment of steam baths at hotels.

This new apparatus independently of the little space, which they take up in a room no ways interferes with the service of a household; and the mere trifling details are taken into consideration, as saving of time, fuel and water. Manufactured in the shape of sundry moveables, this same apparatus can adorn a dressing room, a parlor, or the most modest tenement in the form of a book case or a press; it may be found an indispensable desideratum in a household.

Applied into the secret of the process, Mr. Giguere will take upon himself the setting up of the apparatus after the form and manner, which may be pointed out to him, and which will be the public will be admitted to an inspection on the 1st of May next, at the establishment of the Hydrocotyle, No. 170, between St. Anne and Maine streets, may 21.
