D. F. RAWLS, A. P. M.

The Mobile Register of Friday says, "It is apprehended that the great mail which is reported to have been lost in crossing Crooked Creek, said to be a considerable stream in South Carolina, was that which left this office on the 5th instant. Should this prove to have been the fact, some conbarrassments may grow out of the accident, as we understand large reguttances were made on that day.

All the papers we receive, concur in representing the storm that has deluged some parts of Virginia and North Caroli na, as being one of the most severe that has been experienced for several years. Brooks and rivulets have swollen min rivers, overflowing their banks, carrying away bridges, and rendering the causeways entirely impassible. Until they subside it will be impossible for the mails to be trans-

The union party in South Carolina appear to the in a great state of agitation. Meetings have been held throughout the state denou leing the military bill and test oath as unconstitutional, null and void.

At a late bonvention of that party held at Greenville, a proposition to send a committee to Washington to demand from the president and congress, "a republican form of goveroment," was negatived by the general committee, to vitom it had been referred, as inexpedient to be considered at the present time. If the nullifiers do not recode, we are apprehensive that there wal be weirif if not a servile war.

The millifying prints in Charleston appear to feel quite sore at Mr. Clav's declaration that he would have sustained the fir to bill had he been in his seat in the senate, and the disposition he still manifests to retain the judicial portion of it, Withstanding the cloquent amenia of his late. is other in arms, Calhoun. The Charleston Post has some buter and sarcustic reflections upon him of Ashfield, depicting him as "a polished and polite cur-throat," one with whom the South Carolina delegation should no longer hold

This looks like the brewing of a storm, and would seem to indicate that the political league existing between the two most influential members of the triumvirate is drawing to a close. The honely adage may, in that case, well apply "that when rognes fall out honest men get their rights."

A witte writer says, "as all mankind live in masquerade, whoever presumes to come among them barefaced, must expect to be abused by the whole assembly."

The N. Y. Standard says, "that the late treaty concluded with Spain, is the last of the series of successful negotiations which have distinguished the administration over all that have preceded it. The secret of the success obtained by all the foreign ministers appointed under Gen. Jackson, has heen, that they have preferred a plain, straight-forward, manly course, to the old fashioned tricks and turnings of diplomacy. Who are now the perish commerce, perish credituarty? Under Gen. Jackson's administration a prompt and satisfactory reckoning has been had with every foreign power that has committed spoilations on our commerce. Have our merchants no gratitude?"

So much for a friend to the administration. Now let us hear the opinion of one politically opposed, as to the credit due thus negotiation. "Whatever difference of opinion (observes the Charleston Patriot, an anti-Jackson paper) may prevail as to the merits of Gen. Jackson's administration, in conducting that part of the domestic concerns of the country which relate to the currency, there can be none as to the pre-eminent success of that administration in our foreign affairs. The conclusion of a treaty with Spain, by which long unacknowledged and unadjusted claims have been admitted; forms a brilliant sequel to that series of threasures by which our merchants have been by skilful nefortunen, re-instated in their rights. Let not party spirit Le so unjust as to withhold the credit due for bringing to a sausfactory settlement claims so long unadjusted, and which by their megn twie and complexity were constant impediments to a good understanding with foreign powers."

Mr. McDoffie in his late speech on the Deposite question of farms of that clause of the Constitution which declares that "the Executive power shall be vested in a President of the Constitution which declares that "the Executive power of the Constitution of the Constitut le an Executive with the title of President of the Unite! States." The introductors expressions used in the Constitution, where the powers of the three departments of the government are described, run in the same way precisely. "All Legislative power (says the first section of the 1st article of the constitution) where the powers of the triple grantent. "The Judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court and in such inferior Courts as the Congress may from time to time ordein and establish." Now would Mr McDuffie say, in the first case, that it was intended merely to declare that the title of Congress of the United States should be possessed by the body exercising legislative power, and in the last case, that the title of Supreme Court merely was meant to be conveyed and not judicial power. This comes of hinting after novelties in the Constitution. It might be conceded to Mr McDuffie that the general grant would have been useless without the special enumerations. Lut this does not prove that the words conveying the former are without meaning.—[Char. Pat.
