—His Majesty has declared Venice to be a Free Port.

Commercial Policy of France.—There is perhaps no nation on the globe which has adopted the system of cherishing and protecting its own manufactures, that has received greater benefits therefrom than France. By means of this system French manufactures of cotton, linen, wollen and other branches in which other nations had formerly the decided advantage, have grown up with astonishing rapidity, and wealth thereby acquired has restored the nation from depression incident to the wars of Napoleon and the immense exactions levied by the allied powers upon France, to unexampled prosperity. The amount of cotton alone annually manufactured in France has increased to about 250,000 bales, yielding a profit to the nation of at least 50 millions of dollars.

It cannot be expected that the English should view the prosperity of manufactures in France otherwise than with jealousy and uneasiness. We find therefore that every effort has been used by British statesmen to induce the French to adopt their ideas of reciprocity, or in other words to admit British manufactures for consumption in France. The French however understand their own interest too well to risk the rivalry of manufactures backed by the accumulated capital of centuries. It has probably occurred to the enlightened Statesmen of France that an admission of Foreign manufactures into competition with their own might extend the exportation of French wines and other agricultural products, but they well know that no advantage resulting to the agricultural interests from such an exchange could compensate the nation for the destruction of her manufactures by foreign rivals.

It is the policy of the English writers it would seem to make it appear that no other nation in the world but Great Britain can manufacture to advantage. Their writings have but little effect on their French neighbors, but in these U. States there are unhappily many to be found who can be duped by them.

The last Foreign Quarterly Review has an article on the subject of the wine trade of France, which has been greedily caught up by the New York Evening Post, and that paper of 30th ult. introduces with doleful lamentations for French agriculture, the following extracts from the article in the Review, to show the falling off in the foreign demand for French wines.

"Dantzic, which formerly drew from Bordeaux alone an annual supply of 6000 tons of wine, brandy, &c. now only draws from that port all the other ports of France, 400 or 500 tons." The importation of French wines into Prussia has declined from 15,000 to 4,000 tons; and into Holland in about the same proportion. Hamburg, Bremen, and Lubec; formerly imported 40,000 tons while they do not at present import more than 15,000. The imports into Sweden formerly amounted to 7,000 tons; but as their cost was wholly defrayed by the Swedish iron sent to France, they ceased entirely the moment it was excluded so that only 100 tons are now imported for the consumption of the court. The imports into Denmark and Norway have been reduced from 5,000 tons to 1,000; and those into Russia, which has so vastly increased in wealth and population, have declined from 12,000 to 4,000 tons."

"This extraordinary decline in the foreign demand has been accompanied by a corresponding glut of the home market, a heavy fall of price, and the ruin of a great number of merchants and agriculturalists. It is estimated that there were in April last, 600,000 tons of wine in the department of the Gironde, for which no outlet could be found; and the glut in other departments is said to have been proportionably great. When such is the case, we cannot wonder at the fall that has taken place in the price of vineyards, the bulk of which has become quite unsaleable, and the severe check given to agricultural industry throughout the whole of France."

Admitting this statement to be true, which by the way is somewhat doubtful considering the authority from whence it is derived, let us see the loss sustained in a national point of view from the want of markets for a part of their wine in the north of Europe.

The deficiency of exports amounting to 60,000 tons as stated above may be valued at 50 dollars per ton, (a large allowance in France of 240 gallons) or three millions of dollars. Now let us look at the Iron manufacture alone of France, of which the Quarterly Review speaks in such contemptuous terms. The quantity of Iron made from the French mines is known to exceed 200,000 tons per annum, which, at 50 dollars per ton, amounts to 10 millions of dollars, sufficient to pay for the loss in the wine trade, and leaving a balance of seven millions of dollars to be added to the stock of national wealth. We shall resume the subject.—N. Y. Mor. Herald.

Shocking Depravity.—We have just received a letter from a friend in Sussex country, which furnishes a detail of a shocking case of murderous deeds which have been carried on near the Delaware and Maryland line, for some years past. A person residing on a farm belonging to one Patty Cannon, having cleared off some brush from a low piece of ground, was engaged in ploughing it, when his horse sunk into a grave, and upon removing the earth a coffin was found, in which was discovered the bones of a human body. The news soon spread abroad, and some of those who heard of the affair having recollected that an individual who was in the neighborhood some years ago, had suddenly disappeared in a mysterious manner, it was immediately suspected that he had been murdered, and that these bones were his. A suspicious individual, who had formerly been an inmate in the family of Patty Cannon, and who for some time past has been residing in Maryland, was soon after apprehended in our State, and underwent an examination before a magistrate at Seaford, when he acknowledged that will he resided with Patty Cannon, she and the famous Jo. Johnson, and his brother Ebenezer, murdered the individual in question, and buried the body in the chest in the place where the late discovery has been made. He stated, moreover, that the same individuals had committed various other murders, and accompanied the officer to the places where he said the bodies had been interred, and upon removing the earth, human bodies were found buried in the manner he had described the bodies to have been deposited.—Patty Cannon has been apprehended, and is now confined in the jail at Georgetown, but Jo. Johnson is said to be at this time residing in the State of Alabama, and his brother in Mississippi. The individual whose bones have been discovered, is said to have stated a few days before he was missed, that he had with him thirty-five thousand dollars, with which he designed to purchase negroes; and it is supposed that the murder was committed for the purpose of obtaining the money.—Del. Watchman.
