[COMMUNICATION.]

IN THESE DAYS OF PATENT QUACKERY, WHEN a scheme every hour brings forth some sovereign cure for "all the ills that flesh is heir to," it is a subject of congratulation that a medicine possessing real merit has been able to make its way into popular favor and that the ablest men in the medical profession have stamped it with their cordial approval. The proprietors and manufacturers of HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS can appeal with perfect confidence to physicians and citizens generally of the commercial metropolis of the South, because the article has attained a reputation heretofore unknown. A few facts upon this point will speak more powerfully than any language or assertions or blazoning puffery. The consumption of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for the last year amounted to over a half a million bottles, and it is manifest steady increase for times past, it is evident that during the coming year the consumption will exceed three or four million bottles. The immense amount could never have been sold but for the rare medical properties contained in the preparation, and the satisfaction of the most intelligent evidence in those sections of the country where the article is best known, who not only recommend the bitters to their neighbors, but are ready and willing to give testimonials to its efficacy in all cas s of stomachic derangements and the diseases resulting therefrom.

That in so short a time it has been introduced by extraordinary efforts in the way of trumpeting the qualities of the bitters, but a solid estimation of an individual's intrinsic worth, which is destined to be an enduring as time itself.

During the summer and fall the vicinity of most of our Atlantic streams are rendered unusually unhealthy by the deadly miasma. In the south and West this is especially the case; to say nothing of the dreary prostration and debility which these miasmatic affections are equally prevalent. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters have proved a God-send to regions where fever and ague and other malarious bilious complaints have counted their victims by hundreds. Testimonials unanswerable have been given establishing the fact that the bitters are a safe and certain remedy for the miasma less fatal; by strengthening the digestive organs and through them the whole system and thus arresting the development of the disease in its incipient stages. The summer in all parts of the Union brings with it certain diseases of the stomach and bowels which greatly increase the lists of mortality. Not only will persons who are apparently disabled with health indulge to an undue extent in fruits of various kinds, but will be exposed to dysentery, but the best of it is, they will find it operate upon the system of those who are safe rely upon it, and consequently in preventing that disease a sure to follow. The bitters have been found a speedy and certain remedy for affections of this description, and when used regularly during warm weather a positive preventative against sickness. Taken in time, and this wholly on account of its tonic properties while it is particularly efficacious in cases in diarrhea and dysentery, that Hostetter's Bitters has achieved such a wide reputation; hundreds of persons have been restored to health by the timely use of this remedy, when all others known to the profession have failed. It operates upon the stomach, liver and other digestive organs, mildly but powerfully, and soon restores them to a healthy condition, and to the healthy discharge of the functions of nature. As a cure for diarrhea and dysentery, there is nothing that can be compared with it. Those who have suffered for years from the above complaints, and have tried every variety of nostrum known to the profession, of sedentary habits are often driven to the use of intoxicating liquors by both, as a restorative, but the fact is known to many that a occasionally or daily wine-cup to the infection, that will be arrested from the system, and normal assimilation is sufficient quantity to ripen into disease. Hence it is even more valuable for protection than cure, and few will ever suffer from intermittents if they avail themselves of the protection this remedy affords.
