It is really time that the wrothed farce of meeting, balleting and adjourning should rease, and in view of the danger of the ultimate success, through the means indicated tower, of the Black Republicans, the Nationsil members of the House owe it to themselves und the country to combine for success.
Every ballot taken has demonstrated the numerical superiority of the latter. The highst vote in a nearly full House received by Banks was 107, while opposed to him were 75 for Richamson. 34 for Priling, and ten or twelve scattering. Of the 233 representatives, the division of parties would be about as follows:
