NEW YORK, Dec 7.

Coffee—The market has been rather unsteady, with a moderate demand from the trade, prices appear to incline downwards.

Cotton—The demand for the last few days has been entirely confined to manufacturers, shippers having partially suspended operations in anticipation of lower rates. Without varying our former quotations, we remark that buyers have generally had the advantage.

Flour the receipts of western continue very large, and the stock of this description must now be very considerable. Little desire is evinced to effect purchases, and although we continue our quota tions at $8 9.25 for sweet, the rates is nominal. Sales of New York City and Troy may be quoted at 9. In Southern no material change has occurred.

Sugar—The market continues extremely inactive and the decline of 1/4 a cent noticed last week has been increased to about the same amount favoring a decline of 1/4 cent per lb. in ten days with a very limited inquiry.

CHARLESTON, Dec 9.

Cotton—The business of the week has been fair, a good demand having existed, and the article brought up about as fast as it reaches the market. The rivers however are low which retards the receipts, but we have had some rain, and hope from [illegible] that considerable had fallen in the country, which will doubtless enable the planters to send in their crops with more facility, and we may look for increased supplies during the present month. Upwards of [illegible] bales have been brought down via the Rail Road, during the month of November, and more Cotton, we believe, has reached town by wagons, than during the same period in any preceding season for a series of years. Bay street is literally lined with wagons throughout the day, and such has been the case for two or three wks past. We give below the particulars of the transactions that have taken place since our last weekly review, amounting to about 5,000 bales: [illegible] 10 at 7¼, 141 at 8, 69 at 8¼, 138 at 8½, 105 at 9, 28 at 9½, 139 at 9¾, 106 at 9¾, 29 at 9¾, 54 at 9¾, 922 at 10, at 10¼, 205 at 10½, 32 at 10¾, 994 at 10¾, 373 at 10¾; 14 at 10¾, 1431 at 11, 1,295 at 11¼, 370 at 11½, 30 at 11¾, 1949 at 11¾ 113 at 11¾, 382 at 11¾, and 286 at 12.

Beef and Mances but little business has been transacted. We heard of the sale of 36 bales of the former at 27 at 28c, 9 mess do at 15 and 16 bales Sinews at 28c. It seems within our knowledge that some 70 bales more of Sea Islands and Maines were disposed of but at prices not made known.

Rice—The inquiry for Rice continues good, and all that reaches the city, is readily sold at rates varying but little from our rates of the preceding week. The total amount sold is upwards of 900 tierces [illegible] tierces at 3¾; 30 at 3 18¾, 116 at 3¾; 129 at 3 [illegible] 3.49; 30 at 3¾, 150 at 3.95; 631 at 3¾, 104 at 3.98¾, [illegible] 38; 4 at 3 81½; and 27 at 3.87½.

NEW ORLEANS:

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 12, 1837.

House of Representatives.

Saturday's proceedings the principal occupation before the hall from the opening [illegible] in the Address of the Clergy of Connecticut. He said that on reading the hands and seeing that the author of the resolution denominated the words "An Address to the Legislature of Louisiana," he thought that no electioneering was [illegible] to lay it before the house.

The speaker also says that the words "stupidity of the planter" were not used by him, but by some other member.

REMEDIES FOR THE TAKING UP CONSUMPTION.—All the French ships in the harbor of New Orleans will take their leave this day, and a salvo of artillery will be fired at 12 o'clock precisely, on board the Bretonnier, in the middle of the river, in commemoration of the victory achieved by the French Army before Constantine, and the taking of that important fortress.

Beginning at 12 o'clock, the ranks of vessel will fire a gun every quarter of an hour, as a sign of the regret felt by the French squadron in the city, for the death of the brave General Damremont, killed during the assault of the 13th inst.

☞ The first lecture on Mercantile Law by Randall Hunt, Esq. will take place at the Commercial Library Room, this evening at 7 o'clock. The public are respectfully invited to attend.

The United States and Mexico.

From an authentic source we have obtained the information that the Mexican Polacra Maleta, commanded by Mossen Casaile, Lapeyre, & Co. of this city, and which was taking in cargo for Campeachy, was discharged yesterday by the Mexican Consul, and has not sail for Tampico in ballast, with despatches from the Chargé d'Affaires from Mexico to Washington.

The merchants of New Orleans as well as those interested in our foreign policy, appear not without reason, to attach considerable importance to this fact. The question naturally presents itself, What is the nature of these despatches? What are the communications which the Mexican Consul transmits on hurried by to his government? Many persons, reflecting upon the stern, and almost menacing tone assumed by the President in his Message, towards Mexico, and the decisive character of his suggestions to Congress, thought it not improbable that this movement, on the part of the Mexican Consul, was the result of some unexpected and momentous tidings. They imagined that he perceived most probably that the gauntlet was about to be hurled at Mexico, and with a view of preparing his country for the coming contest, he had hastened to lay before her the latest information.

With regard to ourselves, we can see nothing in the message indicative of a desire to come to actual hostilities with Mexico. The President is perfectly convinced that the present government of Mexico is not guilty of the oppressive acts perpetrated on American citizens by the former ruler, and that the ardent wish of General Bustamente is to bring about an amicable arrangement, and repair the injury committed in an equitable and honorable manner to both nations. As the message then does not adequately explain the causes of this precipitate transmission of despatches, we are forced to conclude, that it is the consequence of something that has been transacted with closed doors in the Cabinet at Washington, or of measures adopted by Congress relatively to that part of the Presidents message which treats of Mexico.

However this may be, it is highly probable that these documents are of an important character, but we do not credit the rumors of war between the two nations; were this the case, the Mexican consul would have demanded his passports, and set out for Mexico.—The mail mail will probably solve the mystery.

The Presidency.

Mr. Clay is the declared candidate of the opposition party for the presidency at the next election. He has not only been nominated here and in the western states by his most influential partisans, but his name has been announced in unequivocal terms at Lexington, by a paper that is supposed to be entirely under his control. If the party can get no abler and stronger candidate than Mr. Clay, why let them adhere to him to the end of the [illegible]. We shall not quarrel with their choice and we do think him the very strongest candidate they can select. We wish them to go ahead with him, and ascertain whether he will be more successful on the fourth trial, than on those of previous years. We fancy the democrats will show the United States Bank party that their champion is the same and that they are the same as in 1824, 28, 32 and 36. The democracy only asks a fair field and no favours.

The Banks.

The bill introduced into the senate is regarded with great anxiety by all descriptions of our fellow citizens, and obviously for different and opposite reasons. It seems to have been elaborated with great care, and to be the result of intense reflection of men who are doubly and practically conversant with the subjects of finance and banking. It contains some provisions of a novel character, calculated to startle those who have become hackneied in the abuses of the system as it is now conducted—but they are not the less suspicious on that account to the stability and utility of the banks or to the public welfare. It is our intention to enter into a detail of the provisions of this bill—and we shall content ourselves with laying it before our readers as soon as practicable. Those who framed that bill (we presume) are not so blinded by parental instinct as to believe it unexceptible of amendment. On the contrary, their only object being to correct a monstrous and growing evil, and to exact securities against its recurrence, they can entertain no desire but to adapt it as completely as possible to accomplish the end in view without endangering or compromising the interests of the whole community.

We know not how far this bill is regarded by a majority of the directors of the suspended banks. We cannot conceive that an opposition can be raised against it by banks which are not irrecoverably insolvent, for surely this time allowed them for preparing for the resumption of cash payments, is so ample that it would be gratuitous in the extreme to ask for more. The great feature of the bill is the Board of Control which it establishes, with authority to examine under certain restrictions the affairs of the banks and to restrain their issues. The creation of this board, it is an assertion of the supreme power of the legislature over the banks—a power, which, however it may be regarded in other states, is clearly and undeniably given to the sovereign authority of Louisiana by her fundamental laws. We were happy to observe that this power was recognized in its full extent by Governor White in his late message—in fact to deny it would be to contradict positive written law. The Board of Control, contemplated in this act, will exercise functions similar in some respects to those of the committees appointed by the two branches of the legislature at every session, to examine and report on the affairs and condition of the banks Generally speaking, and until last winter, the appointment and duties of these committees were matters of mere form. The proceedings of last session on this matter, will be remembered as an era in the financial action of the legislature.

Fortunately, there was then, as there is now, among the representatives of the city of New Orleans, a gentleman who with a profound knowledge of the theory, derived from long and assiduous study, united much practical acquaintance with finance and banking—that gentleman was Mr. E. J. FORSTALL; he was a member of the investigating committee at last year and the consequence was that the examination of the banks was conducted in a systematic and rigorous manner—that admitted of no concealment or evasion, and the Report was drawn up with a clearness and amplitude of elucidation, that would have done honour to any financial officer of any country. That Report contained original views of the nature of money, and the operations of banks; and it may be worth while to remark that similar ideas have been expressed in the articles on currency, &c. that have subsequently appeared in some of the British periodical publications.

It is fortunate for the people of this state that the legislature comprehends several very able men, who like Mr. F. have become intimately acquainted with these subjects both by study and by practice—and it is still more fortunate that they have all united to provide a remedy and have agreed upon what the remedy ought to be; that is to cure the evils with which the finances and trade of this state are afflicted.

The President's Message.

This document is now before the people—it is their province to decide upon the justice of its views, the firmness of its tone, and the consistency of its principles. Every intelligent man who reflects for himself, and neither borrows his opinions from Whig or Democratic officious, will examine the arguments and peruse the statements contained in the message with an impartial understanding, & will determine for himself whether to believe or reject. Whatever may be our sentiments in relation to the ability, integrity, and intelligence, with which it is written, we ask no one to subscribe to them without prior investigation; we wish no pandering and blinded advocacy of Democracy; at the same time we ask in fairness, that the public should not suffer themselves to be swayed by the idle denunciations of the opposition journals. The reception of the President's message by the Whig presses, might have been readily predicted long before its arrival. The intolerant opinions of party is too well known to question its resentment against them. They were prepared with fiery anathemas, sharp ridicule, and specious argument for months before the appearance of that State paper, and for weeks to come we may reasonably anticipate an uninterrupted shower of misdenomination. Whatever might have been the character of the message, they were ready for censure. A bold fearless, and independent tone would have been termed dictatorial and despotic; conciliatory, undecided and dignity, would have been styled cringing and cowering. Nay had the President on the fourteenth his prejudices so to have epoximized the views of both parties, and contained the very messages, he a few months since unanimously repudiated, still, true to the first article of their political creed, they would have been equally prompt in denouncing and defaming. The opposition is most emphatically, the children of destruction party, and it is the very essence of their views to oppose every thing that emanates from the Pre-
