That strong hopes are entertained of an early war until the rewace, and that they are based on the reinstation leged by respectable journals that some of the friends and agents of the ex-President have given a peate esurances of the willing accs of SANTA ANNA to bring hout a peace. This reasoning is plausible erough, but one impor-This reasoning is plausible erough, but one important link in the argument is omitted. We do not doubt the good understanding presumed to exist between Santa Anna and our Government, neither are we inclined to question his wijingness to obtain a peace on the best possible terms. But in effecting such a measure he will have to consult tho 3 who overthrew the administration of Parrines and restored the fallen Dictator to power. Santa Anna has chimbed once more to eminence by the popular will, and that instrument must be the guide of his future policy. Let no one imagine that he will be moved one meltby any considerations of particoism, or any one meleby any considerations of patriotism, or any anxiety for the future welfare of his country. He knows but one rating motive, one dominant parsionthe just of power. To gratify this, to mi ambition, rapacity and self-shness, he will take especial care to adopt the policy that seems best calcuated to promote this end. If the people who preunced for him want peace, he will be but too happy open negotiations; but if, with the obstinacy and tock, they clamor for war, Santa Anna would no more dream of jeoparding his ascendancy by thwart noble and disinteres ed action. Whatever force reaches Monterey first, will, in my o sinton, have little difficulty in entering the place. Notwithstanding the continual reports of the concentration of the enemy's forces there, I incline to the belief that not a life will be lost in taking the place. The few troops there, at the last reliable accountmot over 800—have, no doubt, left for Saitillo long since, and on this side of the mountains, I do not believe General Maria could raise over 1000 men, if that number.

The idea of the buglers of the regiment hanging their horns over their shoulders while a negro fiddler did up the music of a triamphant entre, is so perfectly ludierious that it would bother a saint to keep from laughter.

The third regiment of Indiana volunteers have received orders to march down to the mouth of the Rio Grande. I cannot conceive what the nature of their orders are, but should not be suprised if it related to the expedition I spoke to you of, as about being sent towards Tampico. It may be that they are sent to guard the mouth, but I cruntot deneries that they are destined for that service.

where Mr. C. had arrived in twenty-four and a half days from Santa Fe.

Mr. Colburn left Santa Fe on the 3d of August. There were only 450 Mexican soldiers stationed there, but the authorities stated they had 7A. 3 men ready to meet Gen. Kearney, and 2,000 were expected from the lower country. Mr. Kennedy, who had just arrived from Sonora, reported that they had there only 32 soldiers, 32 3 at Chibushus, and 40 at El Passo.

When Mr. C. left Santa Fe, nothing had been heard of General Kearney's movements for fifteen days previous. It was not then known that General Wool was moving against Chibushus. About 22 miles on his route home, he met with eight Mexican Dragoons who had been watching the movements of the American forces under Gen. Kearney. They said they had not seen the troops although they had been in sivint of Bent's Fort and to the Simarone.

Mr. Co.burn represents trade as been extremely dull at Santa Fe. There was a heavy storm of know in the mounta ns on the 15th of June, and on the 10th June, there was a banks of snow. On the 2th of June, there was a tremendous hail storm on the St. Charles: some of the stones measured nine inches, and he saw one house which had holes cut through the roof by it.

and he saw one house which had holes cut the roof by it.

The corn crop was very poor. Mr. C. expressed the opinion, that the horses of the mounted men must suffer severely during the winter, as there was but little surplus grain in the country. The Navajo Indians were committing depredations on the Mexicans. They killed one man and wounded another, on the 2d uit, within twelve miles of Santa Fe, and were almost daily ranning off their stock.

Mr. Alvares, American Consul at Santa Fe, was in feeble health. Mr. C. records the death, in March last, at Santana, of Dr. Henry Masure, brokher of Dr. P. A. Mazure, of this city, who has been for many years in that country.
