LAW INSTITUTION OF HAVARD UNIVERSITY.

THE exercises in the law school, for the Spring term, will commence on Monday, the 1st of May. The design of this institution is to afford a complete course of legal education for gentlemen intended for the bar in either of the United States; and relinquishing for good reason the present system of private instruction by attorneys, and of qualifying themselves either for public life, or for commercial business. The course of instruction embraces Blackstone's Commentaries, Public and Constitutional Law, Admiralty, Maritime, Equity, and Common Law, with occasional illustrations of Foreign Jurisprudence.

The school is under the immediate superintendance and direction of Mr Greenleaf, Royall Professor of Law in the University. Mr Justice Story, of the Supreme Court of the United States, is Dane Professor of Law in the University, and participates equally in the active labors of the institution, when not engaged in judicial duties. His course includes the principal branches of Maritime, Equity, Commercial, and Constitutional law. The Royall Professorship gives instruction in the Common Law, and in all the other judicial branches. Every week of the term is divided into exercises of recitation, and moot courts, and actual practice in the courts of justice are carefully and judiciously made. At which students are examined in their respective studies, and their attendance and progress noted. Public testimonials are given to those who have distinguished themselves by their attainments, which also he will keep a record of, which may have the very essence of the evidence.

No previous examination is necessary for admission—but every student is expected to produce satisfactory testimonials of his good moral character, and to attend to such regulations as may be established by the Corporation of the University.

The degree of Bachelor of Laws is conferred by the University upon students who have completed the regular course of legal and general studies required by the laws and rules of the Society, which they belong, and have sustained exercises being passed in the Law School and in the University.

By order of the Corporation,
