St. Louis Institute.

213 Dauphin street. Between Ursulines and Hospital.

MRS. DERON tenders her thanks for the confidence reposed by parents in her Institute, which she has found in the same prosperous condition; and she hereby renews the assurance of her zeal and devotion to the welfare of their children. Mrs. Deron has been enabled, by her residence in Paris, to bring to her pupils a perfect knowledge of the French language; she has visited the most renowned Academies, and intends to adopt for her establishment a plan superior to any which exists in the Seminary.

Mrs. DERON wishes that modest and elegant manners be imparted to her pupils whilst receiving a solid instruction based upon morality and religion; in a word, a complete education, which will enable them to fill with grace their future station in life. She hopes that her motives will be appreciated by intelligent mothers, who prefer profound studies to a brilliant success in a public exhibition. The award of premiums in the St. Louis Institute, following a serious examination, will then always be a family fete, but none but parents feeling an interest in the progress of the pupils will be admitted.

Besides the usual course of instruction, (which will not interfere with the latter,) will be carefully and constantly attended to. Mrs. Deron has engaged in France, for her establishment, a professor of an Italian lady, who is an excellent professor and most talented singer. The course of solfeggio and singing cannot fail to be most successfully taught by Mrs. TACCANNI TASCA, whose splendid voice will always be admired by her scholars; and the pupils in this city can be taught by Mrs. Tasca at the Institute.

NOTICE.

Mrs. DERON having often been applied to for private lessons by young ladies who could not follow the regular classes, a French class, on the plan of Messrs. Noel Le Tac, in Paris, will be opened on the 1st of January next, three times a week, in the establishment, and be divided into a primary and superior course. The pupils of the establishment will, of course, be the first admitted to the same, and will double their time of study in the absence of the newcomers by exciting a general emulation.

Mothers may attend the course, should they choose to do so. de21 15d

Young Ladies' Literary Institute, NEW YORK.

MRS. & MRS. PAUL ARPIN have opened in New York, 64 Irving Place, near Union Park, a Literary Institute for Young Ladies.

The establishment is planned on an entirely new plan, embraces scientific, literary and artistic studies of all kinds.

The Lectures, which are given by distinguished professors, whose services have been secured, are entirely separate from each other, thus enabling young ladies to select those which suit them best, without being compelled to follow the other lectures.

These lectures form, besides, the most complete and progressive instruction that can be found. They are divided into three departments

Literature, Science, English, Spanish, Italian and German languages and literature.

Theoretical and practical Elocution, in the above languages.

Reading of classic pieces.

Political and literary History.

Economical and other most useful sciences; Geography, Astronomy, Natural History, Chemistry, Physic, &c.

Fine Arts—Vocal and instrumental Music, Composition and Harmony, Drawing and Painting, Dancing, &c. &c.

The building occupied by Mr. and Mrs. ARPIN is located in one of the most elegant and respectable portions of the city of New York. The excellent boarding house in Union Park places it in direct communication with the passenger depot of railroads and steamboats running through the city. The excellent location of apartments for the various lectures, which are given simultaneously, enables moreover Mrs. Arpin to receive a number of boarders, and to offer the advantage of residing in New York for the purpose of continuing their education, or spending any length of time in the metropolis, without any trouble with all the voyages of a life at home.

Young ladies received by Mrs. Arpin will enjoy all the privileges of following the lectures they choose and the right to board, for instance, for the preliminary course, or to attend those professors who are the favorite.

They will not therefore be contented as most boarding school establishments of the country, to receive a certain number of pupils, and to keep them all the year round, without any change in the professors.

For particulars, apply to Mr. or Mrs. ROTIER, Canal street, between Bourbon and Burgundy. d21

EDUCATION.

...ORLEANS FEMALE INSTITUTION,

No. 140 Canal street, between Carondelet and Burgundy streets.

MR. CHARLES, founder of this establishment, the only one in New Orleans, under the control of the Author, has the honor to inform the public that he has made considerable improvements in the course of studies, and in other respects particularly salubrious. The range of studies which now forms the system of this Institution, extends over all the branches of learning which are necessary to a useful, polite and finished education; from primary instruction to the more abstruse subjects, which are especially the province of a collegiate course. The elementary studies are attended to with close scrutiny and care, while the more advanced pupils will find the Institution affords the definitive influence which they exercise over the other branches of instruction. Discipline, which must not be separated from assiduous study, nor from a good education, is combined with solicitude. It is always observed in connection with the age and character of the students, and is managed so as to give them an accurate idea of duty and good behavior.
