THE DAILY BEE. MONDAY MORNING, JANUARY 10

We noticed some days since the attacapt of certain well-meaning conservative politicisms to organize an opposition party against the loss of mutual condensation and compromies, and entared fito a five considerations designed to prove the ulast impossibility of the success of the scheme, the first impossibility of the success of the scheme, the first impossibility of the success of the scheme, the first impossibility of the success of the scheme, the first impossibility of the success of the scheme, the first impossibility of the success of the scheme that it is its imprescipation of the fundamental and fatal objections of the dimerically apposite opinions entertained by those whom it is proposed to combine it is its imprescipation of the fundamental and fatal objections desired and the first impossibility of the success were any thing else but radically irreconcileable by those whom it is proposed to combine it is its imprescipation of the contemplated organization, union for practical purposes is whelly attended to the scheme of the first impossibility of the scheme of the first impossibility or scheme; but the Quaker City and the first impossibility or scheme; but the Quaker City and the first impossibility or scheme; but the Quaker City and the first impossibility or scheme; but the Quaker City and the first impossibility or scheme in the first impossibility of the scheme in the first impossibility or scheme in the first imposs which the new party must pledge itself dopt and observe. A passage or two an article in that journal of the lat last exemplify the truth of our remarks. The Further on the Tribina professes, to be anxious for the votes of the hat a million of Americans who statianted fitting to make the present while the strength of the strict of utmost cordiality, and be allowed quality of the privileges with all others, if we only agree to surrender our rights, interests, preriogs, survey, each freeprect and independence, and units with the North in a crussed against slavery. Really we are almost overpropered by the interainty of our Northern brethron. They ask of us only to give up every thing, and they will graceously permit us to assist in electing an abelition President in 1800, remning their aid and co-operation even if the aaid Abolitionist should happen to have first seen the light in the South. We are included to the belief that the terms proposed are slightly unequal, and will hardly be acceded to anywhere south of Maryland; and consequently that the new conservative of coganization which certain members of Congress appears solicitous of framing will not be looked to be seen the conservative and the control of the same of the conservative states of the same of the conservative states of the conservative states of the same of the conservative states of the conservative states.

Arrived at the Square, which was surrounded on all sides by an immense concourse the old warrior was conducted to the pistferm in the centre, which was soon crowded by those who had the privilege, and where the oration was to delivered by our gallion and eloquent young oitizen, Charles D breux. The gates were then opened for the multitude, who had till then been kept dut, and the loud hooming of the Washington Artillery's can noo gave note that all was ready for the oration of the day to discharge his duty, who was brought forward and introduced by Mr. Delabarre, the Grand Marshal. The scene here was an imposing and interesting one. The form of the old commander, who had spent so many years of a long life in the service and to the glory of his country, was the cynonier of all eyes, and was of itself enough to make every heart seel with patriotic pride; while our own "old veterans," their tattered and decaying that had the associations of the occasion, make "the scena tone grand and touching."

The young crates himself decayed the service of the Cammon Council; the Jackson Benevo of the Common Council; the Backson Benevo o

One of the Grand Marshal's aid, Mr. H. L. Clarke, though on horseback, was hotive enough to catch the fragment and to keep it from trailing on the ground. Delivaring his trophy to the President on the leastnat, an piece of it was torn off and handed back to him, with the admonition never to part with it, but to cherish it as a memento of one of the greatest of his country's conflicts.

It was expected that Gen. Boott would liend the attraction of his presence to that of the Huguesofs at the upers in the evening, but he was not there. His suite, however, consisting of the Mayor, Col. Lay, Gen. Ed. P. Boott, (the only nephew of Gen. Boott, and now traveling with his quoie) Aid deman Whitney and Charles Dirux, made their appearance in the boxer reserved for the city's guest, and were received with considerable enthusaem, many, we presume, taking it for granted that Gen. Boott was one of the party. The audience was very jurgestly compensated for the absonce of the "bravest of the brave" by the ravishing with his smiles and as captivating as were should be a strength of the fair "Mare Gorder, whose bright face was as eloquent with its smiles and as captivating as were should be a strength of the fair who was compelled to decline their polite invitation. The ball was, however, well attended, and when we looked in upon them after midnight, they seemed to be in "the full tide of successful" enloyment.
