NEW-ORLEANS BEE

OFFICIAL STATE PAPER. HENRY JOHNSON, MONDAY MORNING, MARCH 16, 1841.

The Northern mail from beyond Mobile yesterday, for the third successive time, should we be permitted to say, has disappointed our readers.

Great Britain could overrun the United States with her navy, and could hold possession of her Indian possessions, and could buy the American seaboard at less cost than the capture of St. Jean d'Ac.

Mr. Fitzwilliam's benefit on Saturday evening, was a perfect gem. Sir is engaged at the American.

The Mobile Advertiser seems surprised at the enthusiasm of the press at Fanny ELLIOTT'S dancing.

We hope she will play Mobile a visit, only for the sake of gratifying our childish curiosity.

The Caldwell benefit at Mobile went off finely yesterday evening. The most brilliant audience yet seen within the walls of the new Theatre was assembled.

The character of Mr. Robert BENTON, who "all ways went to what was right—in the eyes of the law," is fictionally depicted and shows how an extreme change from the conventional course of a career.

The Detroit papers say that the failure of the Pennsylvania Bank of the United States will be a severe blow to Michigan.

The loss of the schooner Liberty, or, Philadelphia, Captain Burroughs, late of the above named firm, is a matter of considerable interest.

Miss GUYARD, the daughter of Alexander Hamilton, is the point of discussion here.

The condition of the working class and negroes in England, requires no comment.

NIGHT AND MORNING—BY E. L. BROWN

The great advantage of a work from the pen of the author of "Night and Morning," is that it will be read, and create a sensation similar to that which was wont to herald the splendid emanations of the GREAT BROWNS.

Night and Morning is replete with those sublime and exquisite passages peculiar to the writer, which every now and then startle the reader with their depth of thought and profound knowledge of human nature.

The portrait of Philip BENTON, the hero of our tale, is powerfully delineated. It is a character not frequently met with in the every day life of our country.
