MR. PARKER'S PORTRAITS -- We passed a si2 in Dieasant hour vesterday in the studio of Mr. s α Parker, the portrait painter, No 79 Canal areet. His collection of original productions is ample portraits are boldness and fidelity, accuracy of they are invariably fine, and yet this merit so to is a fancy piece, and represents a Greek girl, of surpassing loveliness, held in bondage, by a Turkish slave dealer, who is chaffering with another turbaned son of Ishmael, about the amount of her purchase money. The piecan be more graceful; than the second, nothing The Committee of Arrangements, more touching and pathetic. The subordinate touching and pathetic. The subordinate details of the tableau are admirable—the cunsing hard featured master, the curious, piercing look of the hayer, the imploring glance of one grief of the other are all rendered with a power and vividness that prove the painter a close and nice observer of human nature. Mr. Parker tells as that this is but a sketch which he inand completing.

University of Louisiana.-The preparator school of the University is now open and in readiness to receive pupils. All the branches of a liberal and comprehensive education, in-cluding the classics, modern languages and mathematics—are taught. If our actors are deserving, they should be noticed, not however by taleons flatter,—frieddipping, or hired criticism, which like the handle of a pitcher, is all on one side—but by fair, open, and housest structure. Puff durect in ceineure in disquise, the policious actor leels passed when he finds himself extolled for that which has own good serves left him was undewered. The ignorant uponare by a little sly policy gre's a line in a leading logarnat and he deems himself a Booth, neglecut his business and stands but for higher wages, and higher parts in consequence of it. Such journals, acting themselves up a criticis, or rather as acristors of stars, have done more mischief so the stage, and act more artificial isomisaries in the dramatic firmament than will ever "have leave to abline," in the legitimite "mimic world." We can mans endering good stock actions who have, by these foolish system, been seduced away from their position, and trusting their feeble efforts to these berrowed lights, have failen so low that they are now totally unfit to appear again in their original spheres. "So fades a sunniger cloud away."
