

THE BEE.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY DAY BY

JEROME PAYON.

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE STATE AND CITY.

"THE UNION must be preserved."

THURSDAY MORNING, JULY 2, 1825.

CHARLES DREDGE Esq. has without doubt been re-elected Senator for the parish of Jefferson, where the election had continued for the past three days. All the districts heard him; give him a majority of 40; and all have been heard from, except Batogue, which is expected to give him a large majority. His majority in LaFayette was forty—a strong proof of the popularity of his bill concerning the parish court of Jefferson.

The True American of yesterday has given another of its interpretations concerning this gazette, with the usual reckless and effrontery. It says—"The Bee has sprung a leak! It extracts all its charges against the collector and even goes so far as to deny them!" Indeed! We were not before aware of that. No doubt the Bee does—and still denies—having made the charge as misrepresented by its adversaries; but certainly it did not and does not retract one iota of what it had adduced against the collector and for the infamy of those charges that gentleman is wholly indebted to the courtesy of the conductors of the American and News, as well as his own.

On reading the article in the last American, we were tempted to sign our statements or charges; but we refrain for the present. Yet instead of retracting, we may reiterate our arguments. Mr. BREWER was Mexican consul when appointed collector; and was ineligible to the appointment. He is a commission merchant, and should not be continued collector. He was appointed chiefly on the belief of his being a supporter of the administration; but he has apostatized. He has unequivocally given his personal and official support to the opposite party; and has proscribed the adherents of the administration. He has deserted the ranks of the republican party and opposed the candidates nominated by them at the general convention—in order to aid the whigs and nullifiers in their support of the pretensions of Judge White. Has he, or any one denied these statements?

From his supposed predictions in favor of the administration having been appointed a responsible officer of the general government—however ineligible to such appointment from his former and present pursuits, and his mental dispositions—it became his duty to support the administration in every respect consistent with propriety; and when he changed his political principle, he should have had the prudence or policy not publicly to have displayed his recency, or supporting those that he wished the executive and opposed the administration.

As he proscribed others on account of their adherence to the political principles and party which he formerly favored—at least in appearance, it cannot be considered unjust that they should proscribe him; particularly as he now generously and ungrudgingly supported those who were loudest and longest in their criminations and calumnies against his predecessor, solely on account of political preferences. He cannot and should not forget the course of the editor of the True American (when conducting the Advertiser) against Martin Gordon; yet has he given his official advice and advertisements to that journal, in preference to those papers which supported that gentleman; and when it is known that it was chiefly if not wholly on the recommendation of Mr. Gordon, that Mr. Brewey was appointed collector—what shall we say of the generosity and gratitude of the latter?

Blow, blow, where winter wind!

Thou art not seen unkni-

n. As man's ingratitude.

Our efficient and energetic mayor was singularly complimented by the city council on Tuesday last; he was authorized to enforce ordinances that have been passed during the past 6 months!! The member from the 5th ward specifically enumerated 6 resolutions relative to improvements in business, which have not yet been enforced. Messrs Caldwell and Baldwin brought their light dragoons to aid the infantry of Mr. Allard, to receive the 6th and 7th wards; and Mr. Gaillard brought his corps of recruits to cover the whole city.

A city is not a mere machine for a mayor to state thus publicly and unequivocally to his fellow citizens, that he had neglected his duty in every part of the city. Would it not be satisfactory for the mayor in sufficient to veto the whole proceeding? What right has the council to pass resolutions for the improvement of the city? and what right to admonish the mayor of his neglect of duty? We are almost afraid that the members of the city council will at length hearken to some complaints of their constituents.

THE CITY GUARD.—On account of the apathy of the city council, we are again induced to notice the present inefficient organization of the city guard. Nineteen of our fellow citizens are laid in their coffins against its utter negligence to preserve their property, and protect their lives; yet the members of the city council lead a deaf ear to all the clamors of their constituents. They are aware that private gentlemen have to form patrols parties for protecting their property, yet they smile complacently at the necessity and result of such patrols. They have improved the necessary department of police; and think therefore that they have done enough for glory. What care they for the clamors of their constituents? what for the property or lives of their fellow citizens? Bah! there are tribes beneath their notice.

The city guard consists of:

1 captain annually paid at present	$125	1200
2 lieutenants each	900	1800
2 sergeants each	450	900
4 corporals do	420	1680
94 privates do	360	33840

Annual expenditure $3920

But this statement does not include the lamp-lighters, who are also employed as night police. There are 26 of them receiving monthly about $100—making then our police contributions hundred and twenty nine men, at an annual expenditure of $41,000.

Recently we suggested an easy and efficient plan of organizing a city guard. We did not care so much about the Americans, indeed it would not be easy to find a sharp, a whole world and that a new off; if not spick and span fresh from nature, certainly teaming with novel and bold forms of life. After all however there is nothing more difficult than to find a nation in which the people are all well enough in their way; but the outlandish lingo spoken there if they do not altogether separate them from our system—and nothing can do that with such cæsarean force as the language of the United States. The language of the United States and the leading state bank—“as then; but by the warning instructions of the leading state banks alone. The bank of the United States, now seeks to cause a calamity, which it becomes the special duty of the leading state banks to make an examination, and which are condemned by its own members.

The writer of the article called, “Pikkin’s Asses,” in the last Quarterly Review of Walsh, after testifying the highest encumbrance upon the Bank, gives the amount of increase of its discounts during the month of March last, were, $1,25,811 dollars—and then remarks: “that such an increase prudent in the bank, will tend to subserve the general interest.” We would only urge upon its directors, their moral responsibility they accumulate upon their hands in thus endangering the public, which must so soon be wholly withdrawn.”

Now, what will this writer think of the weight of moral responsibility, which the direction of the bank is accumulating upon their hands when he is informed, that the bank increased its loans during the month of April, $1,819,209 And during the month of May, 1,723,221

Making an increase of loans, since he doubted the propriety of the increase, which had then taken place, of upwards of three millions and a half of dollars!!

Who will uphold and defend the bank after this?—Globe.

FROM BLACKWOOD’S MAGAZINE.

We have always respected any admired America and the Americans. Indeed it would not be easy to find a sharp, a whole world and that a new off; if not spick and span fresh from nature, certainly teaming with novel and bold forms of life. After all however there is nothing more difficult than to find a nation in which the people are all well enough in their way; but the outlandish lingo spoken there if they do not altogether separate them from our system—and nothing can do that with such cæsarean force as the language of the United States. The language of the United States and the leading state bank—“as then; but by the warning instructions of the leading state banks alone. The bank of the United States, now seeks to cause a calamity, which it becomes the special duty of the leading state banks to make an examination, and which are condemned by its own members.

The writer of the article called, “Pikkin’s Asses,” in the last Quarterly Review of Walsh, after testifying the highest encumbrance upon the Bank, gives the amount of increase of its discounts during the month of March last, were, $1,25,811 dollars—and then remarks: “that such an increase prudent in the bank, will tend to subserve the general interest.” We would only urge upon its directors, their moral responsibility they accumulate upon their hands in thus endangering the public, which must so soon be wholly withdrawn.”

Now, what will this writer think of the weight of moral responsibility, which the direction of the bank is accumulating upon their hands when he is informed, that the bank increased its loans during the month of April, $1,819,209 And during the month of May, 1,723,221

Making an increase of loans, since he doubted the propriety of the increase, which had then taken place, of upwards of three millions and a half of dollars!!

Who will uphold and defend the bank after this?—Globe.

FROM BLACKWOOD’S MAGAZINE.

We have always respected any admired America and the Americans. Indeed it would not be easy to find a sharp, a whole world and that a new off; if not spick and span fresh from nature, certainly teaming with novel and bold forms of life. After all however there is nothing more difficult than to find a nation in which the people are all well enough in their way; but the outlandish lingo spoken there if they do not altogether separate them from our system—and nothing can do that with such cæsarean force as the language of the United States. The language of the United States and the leading state bank—“as then; but by the warning instructions of the leading state banks alone. The bank of the United States, now seeks to cause a calamity, which it becomes the special duty of the leading state banks to make an examination, and which are condemned by its own members.

The writer of the article called, “Pikkin’s Asses,” in the last Quarterly Review of Walsh, after testifying the highest encumbrance upon the Bank, gives the amount of increase of its discounts during the month of March last, were, $1,25,811 dollars—and then remarks: “that such an increase prudent in the bank, will tend to subserve the general interest.” We would only urge upon its directors, their moral responsibility they accumulate upon their hands in thus endangering the public, which must so soon be wholly withdrawn.”

Now, what will this writer think of the weight of moral responsibility, which the direction of the bank is accumulating upon their hands when he is informed, that the bank increased its loans during the month of April, $1,819,209 And during the month of May, 1,723,221

Making an increase of loans, since he doubted the propriety of the increase, which had then taken place, of upwards of three millions and a half of dollars!!

Who will uphold and defend the bank after this?—Globe.

FROM BLACKWOOD’S MAGAZINE.

We have always respected any admired America and the Americans. Indeed it would not be easy to find a sharp, a whole world and that a new off; if not spick and span fresh from nature, certainly teaming with novel and bold forms of life. After all however there is nothing more difficult than to find a nation in which the people are all well enough in their way; but the outlandish lingo spoken there if they do not altogether separate them from our system—and nothing can do that with such cæsarean force as the language of the United States. The language of the United States and the leading state bank—“as then; but by the warning instructions of the leading state banks alone. The bank of the United States, now seeks to cause a calamity, which it becomes the special duty of the leading state banks to make an examination, and which are condemned by its own members.

The writer of the article called, “Pikkin’s Asses,” in the last Quarterly Review of Walsh, after testifying the highest encumbrance upon the Bank, gives the amount of increase of its discounts during the month of March last, were, $1,25,811 dollars—and then remarks: “that such an increase prudent in the bank, will tend to subserve the general interest.” We would only urge upon its directors, their moral responsibility they accumulate upon their hands in thus endangering the public, which must so soon be wholly withdrawn.”

Now, what will this writer think of the weight of moral responsibility, which the direction of the bank is accumulating upon their hands when he is informed, that the bank increased its loans during the month of April, $1,819,209 And during the month of May, 1,723,221

Making an increase of loans, since he doubted the propriety of the increase, which had then taken place, of upwards of three millions and a half of dollars!!

Who will uphold and defend the bank after this?—Globe.

FROM BLACKWOOD’S MAGAZINE.

We have always respected any admired America and the Americans. Indeed it would not be easy to find a sharp, a whole world and that a new off; if not spick and span fresh from nature, certainly teaming with novel and bold forms of life. After all however there is nothing more difficult than to find a nation in which the people are all well enough in their way; but the outlandish lingo spoken there if they do not altogether separate them from our system—and nothing can do that with such cæsarean force as the language of the United States. The language of the United States and the leading state bank—“as then; but by the warning instructions of the leading state banks alone. The bank of the United States, now seeks to cause a calamity, which it becomes the special duty of the leading state banks to make an examination, and which are condemned by its own members.

The writer of the article called, “Pikkin’s Asses,” in the last Quarterly Review of Walsh, after testifying the highest encumbrance upon the Bank, gives the amount of increase of its discounts during the month of March last, were, $1,25,811 dollars—and then remarks: “that such an increase prudent in the bank, will tend to subserve the general interest.” We would only urge upon its directors, their moral responsibility they accumulate upon their hands in thus endangering the public, which must so soon be wholly withdrawn.”

Now, what will this writer think of the weight of moral responsibility, which the direction of the bank is accumulating upon their hands when he is informed, that the bank increased its loans during the month of April, $1,819,209 And during the month of May, 1,723,221

Making an increase of loans, since he doubted the propriety of the increase, which had then taken place, of upwards of three millions and a half of dollars!!

Who will uphold and defend the bank after this?—Globe.

FROM BLACKWOOD’S MAGAZINE.

We have always respected any admired America and the Americans. Indeed it would not be easy to find a sharp, a whole world and that a new off; if not spick and span fresh from nature, certainly teaming with novel and bold forms of life. After all however there is nothing more difficult than to find a nation in which the people are all well enough in their way; but the outlandish lingo spoken there if they do not altogether separate them from our system—and nothing can do that with such cæsarean force as the language of the United States. The language of the United States and the leading state bank—“as then; but by the warning instructions of the leading state banks alone. The bank of the United States, now seeks to cause a calamity, which it becomes the special duty of the leading state banks to make an examination, and which are condemned by its own members.

The writer of the article called, “Pikkin’s Asses,” in the last Quarterly Review of Walsh, after testifying the highest encumbrance upon the Bank, gives the amount of increase of its discounts during the month of March last, were, $1,25,811 dollars—and then remarks: “that such an increase prudent in the bank, will tend to subserve the general interest.” We would only urge upon its directors, their moral responsibility they accumulate upon their hands in thus endangering the public, which must so soon be wholly withdrawn.”

Now, what will this writer think of the weight of moral responsibility, which the direction of the bank is accumulating upon their hands when he is informed, that the bank increased its loans during the month of April, $1,819,209 And during the month of May, 1,723,221

Making an increase of loans, since he doubted the propriety of the increase, which had then taken place, of upwards of three millions and a half of dollars!!

Who will uphold and defend the bank after this?—Globe.

FROM BLACKWOOD’S MAGAZINE.

We have always respected any admired America and the Americans. Indeed it would not be easy to find a sharp, a whole world and that a new off; if not spick and span fresh from nature, certainly teaming with novel and bold forms of life. After all however there is nothing more difficult than to find a nation in which the people are all well enough in their way; but the outlandish lingo spoken there if they do not altogether separate them from our system—and nothing can do that with such cæsarean force as the language of the United States. The language of the United States and the leading state bank—“as then; but by the warning instructions of the leading state banks alone. The bank of the United States, now seeks to cause a calamity, which it becomes the special duty of the leading state banks to make an examination, and which are condemned by its own members.

The writer of the article called, “Pikkin’s Asses,” in the last Quarterly Review of Walsh, after testifying the highest encumbrance upon the Bank, gives the amount of increase of its discounts during the month of March last, were, $1,25,811 dollars—and then remarks: “that such an increase prudent in the bank, will tend to subserve the general interest.” We would only urge upon its directors, their moral responsibility they accumulate upon their hands in thus endangering the public, which must so soon be wholly withdrawn.”

Now, what will this writer think of the weight of moral responsibility, which the direction of the bank is accumulating upon their hands when he is informed, that the bank increased its loans during the month of April, $1,819,209 And during the month of May, 1,723,221

Making an increase of loans, since he doubted the propriety of the increase, which had then taken place, of upwards of three millions and a half of dollars!!

Who will uphold and defend the bank after this?—Globe.

FROM BLACKWOOD’S MAGAZINE.

We have always respected any admired America and the Americans. Indeed it would not be easy to find a sharp, a whole world and that a new off; if not spick and span fresh from nature, certainly teaming with novel and bold forms of life. After all however there is nothing more difficult than to find a nation in which the people are all well enough in their way; but the outlandish lingo spoken there if they do not altogether separate them from our system—and nothing can do that with such cæsarean force as the language of the United States. The language of the United States and the leading state bank—“as then; but by the warning instructions of the leading state banks alone. The bank of the United States, now seeks to cause a calamity, which it becomes the special duty of the leading state banks to make an examination, and which are condemned by its own members.

The writer of the article called, “Pikkin’s Asses,” in the last Quarterly Review of Walsh, after testifying the highest encumbrance upon the Bank, gives the amount of increase of its discounts during the month of March last, were, $1,25,811 dollars—and then remarks: “that such an increase prudent in the bank, will tend to subserve the general interest.” We would only urge upon its directors, their moral responsibility they accumulate upon their hands in thus endangering the public, which must so soon be wholly withdrawn.”

Now, what will this writer think of the weight of moral responsibility, which the direction of the bank is accumulating upon their hands when he is informed, that the bank increased its loans during the month of April, $1,819,209 And during the month of May, 1,723,221

Making an increase of loans, since he doubted the propriety of the increase, which had then taken place, of upwards of three millions and a half of dollars!!

Who will uphold and defend the bank after this?—Globe.

FROM BLACKWOOD’S MAGAZINE.

We have always respected any admired America and the Americans. Indeed it would not be easy to find a sharp, a whole world and that a new off; if not spick and span fresh from nature, certainly teaming with novel and bold forms of life. After all however there is nothing more difficult than to find a nation in which the people are all well enough in their way; but the outlandish lingo spoken there if they do not altogether separate them from our system—and nothing can do that with such cæsarean force as the language of the United States. The language of the United States and the leading state bank—“as then; but by the warning instructions of the leading state banks alone. The bank of the United States, now seeks to cause a calamity, which it becomes the special duty of the leading state banks to make an examination, and which are condemned by its own members.

The writer of the article called, “Pikkin’s Asses,” in the last Quarterly Review of Walsh, after testifying the highest encumbrance upon the Bank, gives the amount of increase of its discounts during the month of March last, were, $1,25,811 dollars—and then remarks: “that such an increase prudent in the bank, will tend to subserve the general interest.” We would only urge upon its directors, their moral responsibility they accumulate upon their hands in thus endangering the public, which must so soon be wholly withdrawn.”

Now, what will this writer think of the weight of moral responsibility, which the direction of the bank is accumulating upon their hands when he is informed, that the bank increased its loans during the month of April, $1,819,209 And during the month of May, 1,723,221