The Legislature of Tennessee is now in sension, having here convoked by Governor Jones in the settlement of various important matters. The accessity of adopting relief laws, by which the interease potuniary embarrassement which afflicts the people of that State may be alleviated, was one of the chief inducements to an extra usesion. The apportionment of the State both for congressional and legistrative elections, constitutes another and an arduous duty to be performed by the present legislature. But above all, and orer-shadowing in its nature and consequences both these momentous subjects, is the election of two United States Senators. Our readers need scarcely be informed that the State of Tenness constitutes which it confidence its adverse and an adverse in the second of the treaty at Washington by the Senate, has been for more than a year utterly unrepresented misgivings which were entertained in our country to migrivings which were entertained in our country to making the Universe of Tenness and the seasof those who represent the effect of the seasof the seasof those who represent the effect of the seasof those the effect of the seasof the seasof the seasof the seasof people of that State may be alleviated, was one of the chief inducements tea an eartra section.
