Youre, truly, JAMES II. HACKETT, Eeq. Launch of Privater Bark Jeft, Davis—Strength of the "Dixie Line" at Liverpool,

On Thursday another addition was made to the "Davie" line of vessels, by the launch of the bark Jeff. Davis. She was built by Mr. John Robinson, in his yard, south side of Dake's Dock, and her launch of the bark Jeff. Davis. The she was built by Mr. John Robinson, in his yard, south side of Dake's Dock, and her launch, which took place on Thursday afternoon, is remarkable for several reasons—the noveity of her construction, the extraordinary expedition with which she has been built, and its peculiarity of the mode of launching. Mr. Robinson, in building the "Dixis" thes, which is o called in compliment of course to the Confederate States of America, has certainly exhibited 'counderable enterprise and has introduced a new feature with Liverpool ship building. The "Dixis" line consists of vessels of almost identical character, and now number three barks—namely, the Bichmond, the Virginia and the just launched Jeff Davis. We have already described in detail the two first vessels, and it is therefore only necessary to [Fiom the Liverp of Journal, September 5] She, like her consort, is dat bottomed, three keels, all her timbers are straight arranged diagonally, and she has been designith the view of combining cheappears construction with strength and large earrespacity.
