

Roopi was just a fat lump sitting in a corner until she decided to jump. Little did she know that this jump could and probably would end hundreds of thousands of innocent lives. Why you might ask? That is relatively simple to answer; it caused one of the world's greatest natural disasters. The jumping lump had such a tremendous downward force that it shifted the tectonic plates of the Earth so much that it led to the Haiti earthquake in 2010. Hard to imagine, what kind of lump could cause such a magnitude of force, well the answer is Roopi the fat lump of the kuthees. After the jump, government forces have taken her hostage and concealed her for use as a weapon in the future.