Of its practicability we entertain very little there san be but one epinion. Liverpool may be a preferable market for setton, on account of its contiguity to the extenseries in the porthwest of England, and south. estland; but almost all other articles of our agri--each as tobacco, sagar, hides etc, would and a cuese ready and more lucrative market in London ;secides the articles of import necessary for our domestic ation could be obtained on more reasonable terms

And if a direct intercommunication with London from New York is preferable to one with Liverpool, much more se would one from New Orleans or Charleston-where foreign manufactures and goods may be more required; and with which it is more necessary to establish a mart with which it is more necessary to the south. Charleston has therefore suspect the delay was acquire the assistance suspect the delay was acquired the control of the contr is this respect; and has resolved on astablishing a line of purches with Liverpoot. This is well; but it would have hets greatly preferable had the line been projected with London-particularly as New York is already so much in processing of the Liverpool market, as to held sway there.
