LATE FROM ENGLAND.

NEW-YORK, September 17.

London papers to the 7th August, per John Jay, from Liverpool, have just reached us.—Time and our limits admit only of brief remarks and extracts. The Russians had concentrated their forces, and the next intelligence (says the London Courier of the 6th) will bring us the news of the attack upon Shoomla, the only defence of the Balkan mountains. Another article we copy from the Courier speaks of negotiations as probable, under the auspices of all the powers. Don Miguel, in Portugal, was exercising despotic sway, imprisoning ad libitum. The cheief interest in England was, in regard to the corn crops, which it was found had been materially damaged by storms. The funds were affected by this apprehension, and fine wheat had been sold at 74s per quarter of 8 bushels, equal to 2 dollars 6 cts. per bushel.

The extract from the Morning Herald, of August 7, which gives the city news of the preceding evening, will show how much anxiety was felt on the subject of the crops. The weather in France and on the Continent seems to have been alike tempestuous.

The plague which had raged at Bucharest was subsiding. Rumours of negociation between Russia and the Porte was numerous.

City, Wednesday evening, Aug. 6.—Consols for money and the account opened at 87—but afterwards gradually declined to 86 5-8 buyers. The heavy stocks have been very steady to-day.

(From Bell's Weekly Messenger of August 3.)

The domestic interests of the week is principally directed to the harvest, for which we refer our readers to our front article, as well as to several scattered paragraphs in our paper of this day. The funds seem to feel the shock occasioned by the inevitable deficiency in corn, a scarcity of which is apprehended from the late tempestuous weather in the agricultural counties.

The French papers of Thursday contain the following proclamation from the President of Greece, announcing that he had received an official copy of the Declaration issued by the Emperor of Russia before he passed the Danube, and a pecuniary aid which would furnish the Greek government with the mean of providing the most pressing wants of the army, the fleet, and other branches of the public service. He also expresses a confident expectation of receiving a similar succour from the kings of England and France, and states that it is granted on condition that it will be used with the greatest economy.

From the Courier, August 5.

One of the Paris papers which possesses an official character (le Messager des Chambres) affords a complete confirmation of the assertion we made last Wednesday upon the best authority, "that the French expedition to the Morea was undertaken with the entire concurrence and aprobation of the British government."

"It is not," says the Messager, "in opposition only of the Allies, but in concert with them that France has its generous expedition to the Morea—it is in consequence and the execution of the treaty of July 6. The conquest of Atheus is no part of the upright intentions of the French cabinet. The object of the expedition is no mystery to the Cabinet of his Most Christian Majesty."

The Prince of Hesse Homburg, the Austrian ambassador, left Vienna on the 11th of last month, and lord Heytesbury on the 15th, to proceed to the Russian head quarters.

An article from Vienna, in the German papers, which arrived this morning, adds, that his Lordship's mission relates, among other things, to the nature of the guarantee and the indemnity which Russia requires from the Porte. The Austria ambassador is said to be bearer of a document explanatory of the policy which Austria means to pursue under the present circumstances. The French demi-official paper thinks that "if the Russians occupy Constantinople it will be to the Emperor no more than a means of again manifesting the moderation and magnanimity which he has shown under circumstances."

We expect, however, that some attempt at negociation will be made previously, in which case the ministers of Great Britain, France [illegible], who will be on the spot, will [illegible] interposition to put an end to the [illegible] in conformity with the declaration of his majesty's speech, that "he will omit no effort of friendly interposition to restore peace."

The Sun of Saturday 3d August, commences its leading observation with the following startling paragraph:—

"There will be a general War in Europe before Christmas. England avoids the struggle for the present, but will evidently be dragged in with an expence greater in proportion to the delay which the evasion in asserting the [illegible] and amusing an attitude becoming her moral power and national glory."

The Liverpool Mercury states that Lord Heytesbury has been sent "to the Emperor Nicholas chiefly on account of a communication made to the Duke of Wellington, that when Constantine relinquished the Crown of Russia; an agreement was entered into, that Nicholas should invade Turkey, and, sooner or later, make his brother Sovereign of all European Turkey."

The [illegible] now truly alarming, and if a change does not take place within a few days, the wheat throughout the country will be greatly injured. We are told, however, that the accounts to-day from the country are favorable, that there is little wheat lodged, and that it has not sustained much damage. This may be true as respects some districts; but we apprehend it is not generally so, at least with regard to the crops being lodged; where they are not lodged they must be light both in the straw and in the ear, or otherwise the late heavy rains would have certainly knocked them down. Where, however, the wheat be lodged or not lodged, cutter uncut, every one who has sense enough to distinguish a sheaf from an apple tree must know that, if the present warm rains continue, the grain will grow in the ear, to say nothing of the mildew, and thus become unfit to be manufactured into flour suitable for the making of bread. The accounts from Germany, as regards the weather and the prospect of good crops, are very gloomy. We have seen letters received from the Rhine to-day, which represent the rains as being incessant there. In France there is already a scarcity of grain; and, in short, throughout the Continent, a partial failure of the grain harvest is anticipated. Notwithstanding, however, this state of things, there does not appear to be any thing like an extensive speculation in grain going on. This fact is accounted for on the supposition that ministers will throw open the ports without regard to the present system of averages, provided there is any real danger of scarcity to be apprehended.

A very heavy gale of wind was experienced on the coast of France on the 20th July, from the W. in which several French vessels with their crews were lost.

IRELAND.

A paragraph from Sligo, August 1st. says:—Mr. O'Connell left this at two o'clock to-day, for Boyle. I have just had authentic intelligence of the organization of a plan in that town for the purpose of assassination that gentleman. Particulars immediately.'

The Lord Lieutenant has ordered a return to be made forthwith, of the number of Yeomen enrolled throughout Ireland in each corps, and of the amount of the arms and amunition in their possession.

Love the Perfection of Human Reason.

A bill was lately introduced into parliament, by which it was directed that a penalty of fifty pounds was to be levied for the commission of a certain offence—which penalty it was provided, should be equally divided between the informer and the Churchwarden of the parish in which the offence might arise. When the bill was committed, the penalty of fifty pounds was changed to transportation for seven years; but the other parts of the bill remaining unaltered, it now enacts, that the said penalty of transportation for seven years shall be equally divided between the Church warden and the informer.

Dublin Mer. Adv.

The French minister to Brazil has concluded a convention with the latter power, by which Brazil is to pay to France 25 millions of francs, as an indemnity for vessels and cargoes seized and condemned by Brazil. The first instalment is payable immediately, and the second and last to be paid in London on the 31st of December, 1830. A large French fleet is at Rio.

It is stated in the Fredericksburg Herald that the Commissioners under the Treaty of Ghent, closed their business in Washington on Saturday 6th Sept. The fund received from Great Britain, and paid into the Treasury of the United States was:—

$1,204,960 00

And the amount of awards to the different claimants for slaves and other property lost during the war, 1,197,422 18

Leaving a balance of $7,537 82

Which the Commissioners have awarded to be divided among the several claimants. The said balance will produce between 62 and 63 cents for each $100 in addition to the 25 per cent. which have been retained.

Suicide.—We learn from the Edenton Gazette, that Mr. SAMUEL E. [illegible], Cashier of the Branch Bank of North Carolina in that town, put period to his existence, on Monday morning last, by shooting himself through the head with a pistol. From previous indications it is supposed that he was in a state of mental derangement when he committed the rash and deplorable act. He left a letter in which he stated that all his affairs with the bank were perfectly straight.—Norfolk Herald.

Law.—In the Court of King's Bench, last week, 750*l*. damages were given against the proprietors of the Symond's wharf, Tooley street, the injuries received by a young man passing their warehouse, from a bag of wool being thrown from an upper room into the street and falling upon him.

An action was brought last week in the Court of King's Bench, by the Royal College of Physicians, against Mr. Harrison, a surgeon, to recover a penalty of 5*l*. for his having acted as a physician, by attending a young lady in a spinal complaint, and writing a prescription, contrary to the charter of the College. The jury returned a verdict for the defendant.
