THE NATIONAL TICKET.

Letter of Acceptance.

Sergeant's

He Has Opinions.

He Does Not Conceal Them.

A Statesman in the Field.

A Strong and Luminous Statement of the Issue.

The New York Journal of Commerce, in this city, publishes the following correspondence in full between the Democratic candidate for the Presidency and a committee of the Democratic party, which waited upon him to announce his nomination. It will be remembered that the Democratic party was very much divided in its choice of candidates, and that the nomination which received the preponderance of votes was not the first choice of many of the delegates. The letter of acceptance, however, is a manly and patriotic document, and will be read with interest by the friends of the Democratic party throughout the country.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

The Committee appointed by the Democratic Convention to notify Gen. Seymour of his nomination for the Presidency, consisted of the following gentlemen:

Hon. Horatio Seymour, of New York, Chairman.
Hon. Samuel J. Tilden, of New York.
Hon. Augustus Schell, of New York.
Hon. Daniel Dougherty, of Pennsylvania.
Hon. Thomas Ewing, of Ohio.
Hon. Francis P. Blair, of Missouri.
Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks, of Indiana.
Hon. Joseph E. McDonald, of Indiana.
Hon. Augustus Brown, of Kentucky.
Hon. Joseph E. Brown, of Georgia.
Hon. Reverdy Johnson, of Maryland.
Hon. Frank Blair, of Missouri.
Hon. Wilson Carey Nicholas, of Virginia.
Hon. Augustus C. Dodge, of Iowa.
Hon. Augustus C. French, of Illinois.
Hon. Charles O'Conor, of New York.
Hon. Henry Clay Dean, of Iowa.
Hon. Lyman Trumbull, of Illinois.
Hon. Samuel S. Cox, of New York.
Hon. Asahel W. Hubbard, of Connecticut.
Hon. Henry Watterson, of Kentucky.
Hon. Wm. H. Barnum, of Connecticut.
Hon. Wm. H. Hunter, of Rhode Island.
Hon. Wm. Bigler, of Pennsylvania.
Hon. Wm. Allen, of Ohio.
Hon. Wm. Preston, of Kentucky.
Hon. Wm. Pinkney Whyte, of Maryland.
Hon. Wm. Wallace, of Pennsylvania.
Hon. Wm. Bigler, of Pennsylvania.
Hon. Wm. Allen, of Ohio.
Hon. Wm. Preston, of Kentucky.
Hon. Wm. Pinkney Whyte, of Maryland.
Hon. Wm. Wallace, of Pennsylvania.

THE SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

In this lists were contemplated by the action of the Democratic party in the nomination of their candidates, I may with propriety speak of the soldiers and sailors who were in the service of the country during the late war. The Democratic Convention has strongly indorsed the action of the Democratic party in the nomination of their candidates, and with the remains of which the soldiers were associated was held in New York, on the 4th inst., in honor of the memory of the late Gen. Meade. The Democratic Convention has strongly indorsed the action of the Democratic party in the nomination of their candidates, and with the remains of which the soldiers were associated was held in New York, on the 4th inst., in honor of the memory of the late Gen. Meade. The Democratic Convention has strongly indorsed the action of the Democratic party in the nomination of their candidates, and with the remains of which the soldiers were associated was held in New York, on the 4th inst., in honor of the memory of the late Gen. Meade.

Democracy of the United States, adopted by the Democratic National Convention assembled.

PLATFORM OF THE

Democracy of the United States, adopted by the Democratic National Convention assembled.

The Democratic party of the National Convention assembled, in the midst of the calamities entailed upon the country by the unnatural revolution and flagrant usurpations of the powers of the Federal Government, hold as the first principle of their political faith, and the first object of their political organization, the preservation of the States and the rights reserved to them in the Constitution of the United States. Deeply convinced that the destruction of either is inseparable from the consolidation of power in the general government, to which the other is subordinate, they regard as the highest duty of the citizen and the most sacred trust of the statesman, the preservation of the former as the indispensable condition of the latter. To the accomplishment of this object they now invite the co-operation of their fellow-citizens, united in opinion on the great issues involved in the present canvass.

I. We hold that the Federal Government is a government of limited powers, derived solely from the Constitution, and the grants of power therein enumerated, and that it has no rightful authority to enforce principles of government, or to administer public affairs within the States, not granted by the Constitution, or forbidden by its limitations. That the Constitution does not confer upon the General Government the power to establish negro supremacy in the South, or to control the reserved rights of the States in regulating their domestic institutions, exclusively belonging to them; that the power to do so was not granted by the people who adopted that instrument, is conclusively proved by the fact that it was not granted to those who framed it, and who subsequently amended it; that the right to do so was not asserted, but, on the contrary, was expressly disclaimed, during the first seventy years of the government, during which period the States were admitted into the Union as fast as they presented themselves, and that the right is now for the first time asserted, after nearly a century of inviolate peace, has been fully established by the general acquiescence of the States, and the whole civilized world, for the full period of human life.

II. That the Constitution of the United States is a compact between the people of the several States, who formed it, and of the States which have since been admitted into the Union upon the same footing as the original States, each State retaining its own sovereignty, freedom and independence, and the whole people of each State, in all cases not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, are entitled to the same rights, privileges and immunities as the people of every other State, and the latter have no more right to withhold them than they have to withhold the rights of citizens of foreign countries; that the observance of this principle is of the highest importance to the preservation of our Federal Union, and the maintenance of fraternal feelings among the people of the several States; that its violation by the Federal Government has destroyed the equilibrium between the three coordinate departments of the government, has prostrated the barriers which protect the rights of the people against the encroachments of power, has placed the liberties of the country in imminent peril, and unless arrested at once, must speedily end in the establishment of a central despotism, as the only alternative of anarchy.

III. That the Federal Government has no rightful power to impose and collect taxes except for the purpose of paying the expenses of the Federal Government, economically administered, including the pensions, bounties and services for the payment of the public debt, and in relief of the people burdened with taxation, which, by the system now prevailing, are unjustly laid upon the labor of the country, to build up the fortunes of favored classes, and monopolies, and to foster sectional interests, to the impoverishment of the people and the prostration of the business of the country.

IV. That the power to lay duties on imports is a power to be exercised for revenue only, to the end that the burden of taxation may be equalized and lightened, and that the credit resulting from the imposition of duties on foreign imports should be fostered by the protection of the industry of the country, but that the system of protection which has been fastened upon the country in time of peace, for the benefit of the few at the expense of the many, by the unjust discrimination of duties, is unconstitutional, and ought to be abolished.

V. That the Federal Government has no rightful power to make anything but gold and silver a legal tender in payment of private debts, and that the power conferred upon Congress to borrow money on the credit of the United States was intended to authorize loans in good faith, to be paid in the money of the world, according to the standard established by the States, and not to coerce the people to accept, in payment of their property or their labor, any currency which should not be equally receivable for imports.

VI. That the right of free speech and a free press are conditions upon which alone constitutional government can be maintained, and an unbridled license of the press, subjecting the reputation of every man to the tongue of slander, the establishment of arbitrary arrests, espionage and all the machinery of despotism, and the retention of power by military force alone, is subversive of the first principles of civil liberty, and the creation of sentiment suitable to the establishment of a military despotism.

VII. That the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed by any legislation whatever, and that the authority given to the President to make military arrests in time of peace, and the extension of military jurisdiction over States in which the civil laws are unobstructed and in full force, are dangerous usurpations, calculated to destroy the liberties of the people.

VIII. That the habeas corpus is the writ of right for the personal liberty, and that it should be held inviolate by the Federal and State authorities; that no person should be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law; that private property should not be taken for public use without just compensation; that the right of asylum is inherent in every free government, and that the right of foreign-born citizens to the full and equal enjoyment of this right, at home and abroad, must be respected, and that no citizen should be denied the equal protection of the laws.

IX. That the right of trial by jury should be preserved intact, and that no change is necessary in the organization or existing jurisdiction of the courts, and that the provisions of the Constitution defining treason against the United States should be strictly adhered to, and that no person should be convicted without the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or upon confession in open court.

X. That the right of suffrage is inherent in the citizens of the several States, and that the limitations and conditions upon which it is allowed by the Constitution of the United States can not be prescribed by Congress, but belong exclusively to the States.

XI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXXI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXXII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXXIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXXIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXXV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXXVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXXVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXXVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XXXIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XL. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XLI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XLII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XLIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XLIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XLV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XLVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XLVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XLVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XLIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

L. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXXI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXXII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXXIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXXIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXXV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXXVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXXVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXXVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

LXXXIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XC. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XCI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XCII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XCIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XCIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XCV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XCVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XCVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XCVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

XCIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

C. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXXI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXXII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXXIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXXIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXXV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXXVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXXVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXXVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXXXIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXL. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXLI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXLII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXLIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXLIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXLV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXLVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXLVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXLVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CXLIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CL. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLVII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLVIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLIX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLX. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLXI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLXII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLXIII. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLXIV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLXV. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and that the most severe penalties should be imposed upon those who violate the purity of the ballot-box, or who attempt to control the votes of electors by force, fraud or bribery.

CLXVI. That the right of suffrage should be protected by the strictest laws, and