THE BEE.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED DAILY, BY JEROME BAYON.
STATE PRINTER.
THE UNION IS MOST RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 15, 1833.

FOR GOVERNOR:

J. B. DAWSON.

We have been requested to announce JAMES BRADFORD Esq. as a candidate to represent the second district of this state in congress.

We learn from the sexton of the catholic cemetry, that there were only 25 interments in that burying ground yesterday: which fact proves unquestionably that the cholera is decidedly on the decrease.

We have received by yesterday's mail New-York papers of the 1st instant—whether brought to Charleston by the David Brown, or brought by some new arrangement of the postmaster general, we are, at present, not able to say. They however contain nothing of importance. From the other cities we have regular dates.

BLACK HAWK.—The Philadelphia Herald states that the president has determined not to detain this personage a prisoner, and that he is to pass through that city in the course of next week, on his way to the west.

A letter from Key West, of the 15th ult: says: "I am sorry to say that the Cholera is again here, though there are very few persons for it to operate upon."

FOR THE BEE.

If the individual, who penned the editorial paragraph of the 11th instant, in the Louisiana Advertiser, in relation to the MARINE HOSPITAL actually supposes that, that institution stands in need of the assistance of "the public authorities" he is mistaken.

If he intends to insinuate that the American seamen, who are located in that establishment are suffering from professional neglect, he lays himself open to a charge of falsehood and calumny.

If he had taken the trouble to inquire at the Marine Hospital he would have discovered, that besides the visiting physician, there is also a resident physician who remains on duty on the premises.

It is production is intended to tear asunder the lacerated feelings which have hardly healed since the wanton persecution of November last, by which my name was reverberated with horror from shore to shore of the United States to the astonishment if his present production is intended as a repetition or renewal of that persecution, he is a monster. If the individual who fomented that persecution had not permitted his son's name to proceed to Washington on that occasion, as a candidate for the office which I have the honor of filling under the general government, perhaps his chimerical fantasies and absurd ravings, might have been misunderstood at Washington, for the effervescences of enthusiastic, but genuine benevolence, and his son might have superceeded me in office.

If, as I believe, that paragraph was intended for the meridian of Washington to create an impression there, that the American seamen in this city are not properly treated, if, in other words the production was dictated or written by some personal enemy of mine, for the purpose of backing the effort now making to induce the president of the United States, to remove the seamen from their present location, and to deposit them in the charity hospital; then the editor of the Louisiana Advertiser is not worthy to control a public journal.

I appeal on this point with perfect confidence to that benevolent and humane catholic clergyman, the Reverend Mr. Yindley, who took his life in his hand, and hastened from Philadelphia to this city, during the awful visitation in November last, and who has ever since that period, not hesitated to enter within the livid circle of disease and death, but has for months past visited every hospital in this city, and there at the bedside of the sick and dying patients ministered the soothing sympathies of humanity, and the benign consolations of religion. I appeal with confidence to that benevolent gentleman whether the patients in the marine hospital, are not more happily situated than the patients in the charity hospital.

I think that his testimony may possibly differ from the opinions of the editor of the Louisiana Advertiser, as to the relative condition of the two institutions.

As a proof the said editor, knew nothing of the facts of which he was pretending to enlighten the public authorities; I have only at present to state that there at present only eighteen American seamen in the United States Marine Hospital, and that but twelve of that number have been received since the first day of June, as the books of the collector at the custom house will testify.

If the citizens of New-Orleans feel any solicitude on this subject, let them visit the marine hospital, and they will witness a scene of content, serenity, confidence and happiness, which can hardly be equalled by any other portion of our suffering city.

J. S. M'FARLANE.

Col. WHITE, of Florida.—It is with great pleasure we learn that this gentleman has been again elected the delegate to Floriday. His majority over gen. Call, the administration candidate, exceeds five hundred, and may be seven hundred.

The talents of Col. White are of the highest order. In addition to his knowledge of the general laws of his country, he is profoundly read in the civil code, and his accurate acquaintance with the colonial laws of Spain, enable him to be eminently useful to his constituents, whose land titles are principally derived from the Spanish crown. As the delegate from Florida, Col. White has always been a faithful and vigilant sentinel over the interests of that district, and of his constituents. It may be safely said, that almost all the provisions of our statutes, by which the claims to lands in Florida have been investigated and established, have either been drafted by him, or much improved in their progress through congress.

As the decided and zealous friend of internal improvement, Col. White has proposed many valuable plans for canals and roads, in the territory he represents, which have had the sanction of the able engineers of the United States, who have explored them. When the "constitutional scruples" which now check the purpose of uniting our country in eternal bonds by canals and roads, shall pass away, as pass away they must, these projects will be carried into prosperous execution. The Mississippi and the Gulf of Florida will then have a direct steamboat communication; the harbors of Florida will be made capacious and deep, and the whole country will be intersected with good, solid roads. Then will honor be given to him to whom honor is due. As an advocate, Col. White is distinguished for ability and learning. In the Supreme Court of the United States, he maintains a most respectable position, always bringing to the investigation of his causes all the knowledge and industry required for their support.

It is understood that Col. White proposes to pass the summer and autumn in France and Spain, on business of a professional character. Our country will be well represented by a gentleman of such urbane and polished manners and his perfect acquaintance with the languages of both these nations, will give him great advantages.—U. S. Gaz.

William Teller, one of the persons concerned in the recent murder of the guard, in the state prison at Weathersfield Connecticut, and who is now under sentence of death, has petitioned for a commutation of his punishment. We extract the following sentences from his supplication—

"Your petitioner under his present sentence, stands on the verge of another world into which he must be hastened unprepared, unprepared. The loss of life, and the ignominy of losing it on the scaffold, are beyond the conception of any one not in my situation; but great as this is, it is nothing compared with the interests which lie beyond this execution. I pray for life—for life in a dungeon if I must be—for it, any where, but for life—for life. I beg for some melioration of my sentence, from those who alone can decide upon my fate—for some change of the awful judgment. Place me where you will; impose restraints and deprivations on me as you will—all this I must expect; and in the judgment of my fellow men deserve—but oh, spare my life. Can my death be needed? May not the justice and the policy of life be sustained by still wiping me a lengthened life in a solitary cell? I offer to society all my days, and every consideration which endears life to my fellow men? May not this suffice? Life, life, spare me this, is the last prayer of a most wretched prisoner, but yet a human being.

—Hartford, May 21, 1833. WM. TELLER.

GERMANY.

The Diet has availed itself of the pretence afforded by the riot at Frankfort on the 3d of April, to introduce the system of Austria into that city, to keep the inhabitants under closer surveillance. Prussia, too, which is always on the alert to enforce the principles and decrees of despotism, has ordered a body of troops in the environs. Measures are said, to be in agitation by the Diet to suppress, still more additionally, any miscarriage of the press.

The senate of the city of Frankfort issued a proclamation to the inhabitants on the 13th of April, in which they allege that the Diet regards the tumult of the 3d, as an attack on the public tranquility of the whole German confederation, and for that cause were about to station a corps of Austrian and Prussian troops on both sides of the Maine, not to endanger the freedom of the city, but to guard it against any attack from without! "It will be the chief care, nay, the sole endeavor of the senate," say that body, "that no measures called for by the above mentioned melancholy events, may not interrupt trade and business—that the rights and liberties of the citizens, and of the inhabitants of the city and territory, may not be endangered, but, on the contrary, be secured against every attack."

On the next day after the proclamation was issued the measures announced were carried into effect. The following is an extract of a letter from Frankfort dated on the 15th:—

"At five o'clock this afternoon, the Austrians took possession of a part of the military posts. The palace of the Diet is guarded by centinels from the Austrian and Frankfort troops. The bridge which unites the town and suburbs is in the keeping of the Austrians. Two sentinels are stationed at each end, and two in the middle, and they are in possession of the guard house. In the Teutonic House, beyond the bridge, and at the entrance of Schasenhausen, and in the private houses of that suburb, 800 Austrians are posted. The environs of the town are also occupied by the Austrian troops; and the troops of Electoral Hesse have placed advanced posts within ten minutes march of the first barrier of our frontier. The Prussians did not halt in the town. A part of them marched on, without entering Frankfort, to Rodesheim, to Hesse Darmstadt, a league from hence, and the rest, to the number of about 500, only passed through our town, and took up their quarters at Bornheim, within our territory. On their arrival at Bornheim, they were received with unanimous murmurs, and several severe quarrels took place between the soldiers and the inhabitants in public houses. The citizens of Frankfort loudly express their dissatisfaction.

Another letter of the same date says—

The whole of the corps of 2500 men, with half a brigade of artillery, destined to occupy the neighboring country, is now at its several posts.

The Frankfort Gazette of the 11th contains the following:—"Our town remains perfectly quiet, but the posts are still doubled, in order to prevent any further disturbances. Screens have been fixed to all the windows of the prison which look towards the street since the confinement of the political prisoners. This will not deprive them of light or air, but will only prevent their being seen from without."

From the Liverpool Courier of April 24.

FRANCE.—Paris has been in a state of excitement and alarm throughout the week, not only from their imitation created by the proceedings in the chamber of deputies against the Tribune newspaper, but from an apprehension of a general rising of the republicans to attempt the overthrow of the Orleans tyranny by force. The city has appeared as if in preparation for a siege, such has been the influx of troops and artillery, and the crowds of police and disguised spies in all the streets and public places. Up to the date of the latest arrivals no insurrection had taken place.

Lunatics.—Extract of a letter a letter to the editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer, dated "Williamsburg, (Pa.) May 22

"A man, said to be from Balt more, of very respectable appearance, arrived in this village a few days since, an entire stranger, and took lodgings at one of the inns. He excited some attention from the singularly wild expression of his eyes and the earnest look of anxiety which marked his countenance. He drank freely, and to-day became extremely excited as to lose all control over his actions, attacking first about him with the fury of a madman. The first person against whom he directed his madness, was a boy employed in the house, and whom he beat without evidence, throwing him down and leaving him senseless. The citizens for help assisted the inmates, who when he left him and made his way into the kitchen in search of a knife, where he soon succeeded in finding a large butcher's knife, with which he threatened to destroy any who should oppose his modest him. He furnished himself with desperate energy, wounding several, when the alarm became so great that the neighbors, who had by this time assembled in considerable numbers, attempted to disarm and arrest him, but he succeeded in breaking from them, and running from the house, secreted himself in a barn. He was followed hither by a crowd, none of whom were armed, the courage to enter, until one of the oldest citizens of our town and notwithstanding the hostile array of the monomaniac, and the fact of his still retaining the possession of the knife, made an attempt to strike his arm, intending either to disable it, or knock the knife from his hand; in so exceeding in this, the maniac sprung upon him, knife in hand, and would soon have laid his assailant a corpse at his feet, but at this moment a son of the old gentleman, sensing the extreme danger of his father, forced his way in, and with a heavy yard folk struck the maniac. The folk came in contact with his head, and with such violence as to break off one of the prongs, which, however, did him much apparent injury. This enabled the former to overpower and handily bound. At the moment of my arrival, he was foaming with rage and he was placed in a wagon bound hand and foot his way to the next Easton.—He looked pale and haggard, and evidently under which he had labored with such terrific violence as to in a measure subsided. His countenance could also be described, but I have not space. To the above facts may add that the numerous evidences of insanity occasionally occasioned by rum.

Dog Cheap—A [illegible] Hampshire, called at a butchers shop near the auction store. He would have his hair cut in the latest manner and be shaved as clock as a whistle. Which was soon done. What do you ax? says Jonathan. Nineteen cents, says the barber. I haint but only just three cents, says Jonathan. Do you suppose that I would shave and cut hair for nothing? I guess I can't help it if I haint got nothing but three cents. The barber considered that a penny saved was better than nothing so took Jonathan's three cents—led him to the door gave him a kick which sent him sprawling into the street. Jonathan gathered himself up and said to those standing by—"What barbers have you got! I was shaved, had my hair cut and kicked out of the shop all for three cents, aint that dog cheap by gum?
