The New-Orleans Bee.

No. 610, VOL. VIII.—NEW SERIES. / VOL. XXII.—WHOLE No. 5729.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF GENERAL COUNCIL AND FIRST MUNICIPALITY.——NEW-ORLEANS, MONDAY MORNING, JULY 17, 1848.

WAGNE & WEISSE, PROPRIETORS. / No. 62 Chartres and 13 Camp streets.

TERMS OF THE BEE.

[illegible]

The New-Orleans Daily Bee.

WHIG NOMINATIONS.

FOR PRESIDENT,

ZACHARY TAYLOR,

OF LOUISIANA.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

MILLARD FILLMORE,

OF NEW YORK.

[illegible]

Monday Morning, July 17, 1848.

The Game of Fraud.

[illegible]

Congressional.

[illegible]

Correspondence of the Bee.

WASHINGTON, July 7, 1848.

Though Mr Hunnegan affected great indignation in the Senate, when Mr. Magnum exposed the fraud that had been practised by his party, of publishing two different lives of Gen. Cass—one for the North and the other for the South—and denounced it as the act of a villian, there is very good reason to believe that Gen. Cass himself was apprised of this infamous deception, if he was not instrumental in causing it to be practised.

It is now understood, upon the authority of a member of the House, from one of the North-Western States—a democrat and a supporter of the nominee—that General Cass was informed through him of the objectionable feature in the first edition of the "Sketch." It occurred in this way. Being at the office of Blair & Rives to procure documents for circulation among his constituents, this "Life" was presented to him for sale. Upon examination, he discovered the extract from the Nicholson letter, accompanied by the comments of the biographer, and designed to operate on the South. He declined distributing the document on the ground, that his people were averse to slavery in every respect, and would not support Gen. Cass if they believed he entertained such sentiments.

At an interview with Gen Cass, which occurred shortly afterwards, the General interrogated him as to the effect of his letter to the Chicago Convention, to which the member replied that he did not think it had done much harm, and wished all his other letters had been as brief. He then referred to the Nicholson letter and told General Cass that it was bad enough to write it at all; but to publish it in a sketch of his life, was calculated to produce the most ominous effect on the prospects of the party in the Free States. This hint was evidently not lost upon the wily and watchful candidate, for a few weeks ago the same member had occasion to be at the printing office of Blair & Rives, when one of the clerks informed him that a new life of Gen. Cass had been published which would suit his district remarking that the first edition had been prepared to secure the nomination, and the last to secure the election.

This statement was subsequently to the member conversing with distinguished Whig Senator, immediately after the debate in which the exposure of the fraud was made, and it can be substantiated to the last extent, if questioned by any responsible authority.

From the signs, we may see to what strategems Locofocism will resort, and that even the disgraceful act, at the office of the Congressional Globe in pampering eight pages, a Sketch of the Life and Public Services of Gen. Lewis Cass—revised to the circulated throughout the country and prepared on purpose to aid his election—is to be sent from Washington, under the franks of members of Congress, into every part of the United States. And in order to [illegible] reserve seen on the vote to be presented Gen Cass to the people of the South, as a very different light from that in which he would appear before the North—they have published, and are now circulating, in the Southern States, a [illegible] one for the South and another for the North. In the former, page [illegible]

[illegible] Mr. Calhoun gave [illegible] Mr. Webster [illegible] Mr. Clay [illegible] Mr. Benton [illegible] Mr. Cass [illegible] Mr. Buchanan [illegible] Mr. Dallas [illegible] Mr. Woodbury [illegible] Mr. Marcy [illegible] Mr. Wright [illegible] Mr. Walker [illegible] Mr. Bancroft [illegible] Mr. Bibb [illegible] Mr. Rives [illegible] Mr. Hayne [illegible] Mr. Forsyth [illegible] Mr. Grundy [illegible] Mr. Ewing [illegible] Mr. Crittenden [illegible] Mr. Preston [illegible] Mr. Berrien [illegible] Mr. Mangum [illegible] Mr. Badger [illegible] Mr. Bell [illegible] Mr. Clayton [illegible] Mr. Corwin