The New Orleans Bee.

Office, 73 Camp street. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 29, 1862. Vol. XVII—New Series. Vol. XXXIV.—Whole No. 12,347.

BY TELEGRAPH.

[TRANSMITTED TO THE NEW ORLEANS BEE.]

From Richmond.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Richmond, March 28.—Congress has adopted a resolution to adjourn on the first Monday in April.

The Senate has passed a bill allowing the President four additional aids on staff. The defeat on the bill was of such a minor extent to warrant the conclusion that the President is considering.

Disbanded this morning in Governor Letcher's encampment, say Lieut. Judkin Williamson and Capt. Morrison from Loudon, pursuant to Wise order.

Confederate prisoners were sent to Baltimore.

The enemy's total loss is 3000 killed and wounded. They are depressed and badly wounded. Our loss: Killed and wounded 600. Every one of our wounded is doing well, and is reported convalescent. All are in hospitals. 9 o'clock this morning Col. Ashby had a little brush with the enemy and drove them back. Pope, Generals Gaines, Sumner and Hamilton Quade yesterday; good authority; also the statement that Sumner was killed. Jackson's force was altogether 6000, one regiment in reserve, and 1500 which did not come up in time.

Our Government is satisfied with the result.

The Secretary of War has issued a general order all furloughed men to return to duty immediately.

[NIGHT DISPATCHES.]

From Hooker.

Hooker, March 26.—Heavy fought at Winchester, four miles above Fort Craig. The fight began yesterday morning and lasted all day. The enemy's force engaged was about 20,000 regulars and 4000 New Mexican volunteers, including 120 Fire Zouaves. The enemy first attempted to turn our left flank, but were repulsed by Major Lodbridge. They then moved our whole line and were repulsed there. The enemy then concentrated on our centre and forced our troops to fall back with the exception of a battery of guns over the river. Three more regulars and 400 New Mexicans then charged this battery and took it at the point of the bayonet and revolvers by a desperate struggle. The enemy fled with great slaughter, retreating across the river. We pursued a heavy fire into them, slaughtering them terribly.

The contest was one of the most deplorable on record. The Confederate loss 56 killed and 104 wounded. The enemy's loss in killed and wounded over 500.

Major Lodbridge and Capt. Van Hoosed were killed. Lieut. W. L. Rhodes slightly wounded.

In the beginning of the fight a shell exploded in the midst of Kit Carson's regiment, killing and wounding twenty. The regiment fled in a panic for two hours.

Twenty-five hundred of the enemy returned to Fort Craig; the balance are missing.

We have been completely surrounded. They must fight us.

The battle is regarded decisive of the fate of New Mexico.

We took a field battery of seven splendid guns, 500 carbines, many prisoners, and spiked their forges. We have them at our mercy.

Col. Green commanded our forces. Gen. Sibley was not on the field.

Col. Canby commanded the Federals.

From Richmond.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Richmond, March 27.—The Yankee prisoners who left this city during the 24th, 25th and 26th, numbered 1200, and were all exchanged, except 50 sick.

Jackson's force was altogether 6000, one regiment in reserve, and 1500 which did not come up in time.

Our Government is satisfied with the result.

The Secretary of War has issued a general order all furloughed men to return to duty immediately.

[NIGHT DISPATCHES.]

From Hooker.

Hooker, March 26.—Heavy fought at Winchester, four miles above Fort Craig. The fight began yesterday morning and lasted all day. The enemy's force engaged was about 20,000 regulars and 4000 New Mexican volunteers, including 120 Fire Zouaves. The enemy first attempted to turn our left flank, but were repulsed by Major Lodbridge. They then moved our whole line and were repulsed there. The enemy then concentrated on our centre and forced our troops to fall back with the exception of a battery of guns over the river. Three more regulars and 400 New Mexicans then charged this battery and took it at the point of the bayonet and revolvers by a desperate struggle. The enemy fled with great slaughter, retreating across the river. We pursued a heavy fire into them, slaughtering them terribly.

The contest was one of the most deplorable on record. The Confederate loss 56 killed and 104 wounded. The enemy's loss in killed and wounded over 500.

Major Lodbridge and Capt. Van Hoosed were killed. Lieut. W. L. Rhodes slightly wounded.

In the beginning of the fight a shell exploded in the midst of Kit Carson's regiment, killing and wounding twenty. The regiment fled in a panic for two hours.

Twenty-five hundred of the enemy returned to Fort Craig; the balance are missing.

We have been completely surrounded. They must fight us.

The battle is regarded decisive of the fate of New Mexico.

Confederate prisoners were sent to Baltimore.

The enemy's total loss is 3000 killed and wounded. They are depressed and badly wounded. Our loss: Killed and wounded 600. Every one of our wounded is doing well, and is reported convalescent. All are in hospitals. 9 o'clock this morning Col. Ashby had a little brush with the enemy and drove them back. Pope, Generals Gaines, Sumner and Hamilton Quade yesterday; good authority; also the statement that Sumner was killed.