We learn that show who visited the property of Mr. R Marigny, have retorned quite satisfied with their journey. They speak highly of the aituation of the land, and we are inclined to believe that on the day of sale, the 24th inst. there will be much competition in purchasing-

Mr. Marigny's bill guaranteeing the faith of the state in the charter of the Citizena Eank has passed the house of re-presentatives, and it is to be hoped that the senate will concun in the same. Mesers. Marigny and Alland, supported the measure by arroyal eloquent addresses, in

An overflowing beens visited the Camp street Theatre last evening, to reward the exercises of Mr. Sinclair, and to witness the fascinating opera of Masaniello. Miss Fisher was inimishle in Fracilla, the damb girl; and the beneficiary and diquined themselves with the eclat neurally attendant upon their exertions. On the whole, the picce was military performed throughout; the music size very fine and have called upon his avocates to fix upon something Merminate to show that their inordinate praises are deerved. They invariably evade doing any thing of the kind; c enguinue to stun our ears with the oft-repeated stories of worth. It is strange, may it is passing strange, that a man toul have merit, without doing some service, or rendering muses conspicuous for talentiand solities. People do not usually hide and conceal what redounds to their credit, and the faith; To our friends in Congress, we say, "Be ye firm in the faith;" the people will not forsake you; the virtuou poor, the honest yeomalry, the majority of the American special transfer conduct. And yet his friends require us to be live, all that they choose to advance in his favor, al-though it involve as anomaly or an absurdity!

That the adherents of Mr. White should make themselve merry at the prospects of his rival, General Judge Dauseon, es they are pleased to term him, strikes us as nothing mor for less than a well devised artifice to conceal the chagr n and disappointment which they feel. It would be indeed worthy of, especial remark, were they "candidly to confer the honest convictions of their heart," as the editor of the Louisians once had occasion to do, when speaking of the seems of the very same candidate who has, since his tergiveration, become so extr mely popular. From every indication we should judge that our opponents have got "the tenerisess" rather than ourselves. Not a syllable has esthem through their mouth-piece before this bravado for a considerable time, although they have been attacked at wary point. In fact, such was the peaceful aspect in their man, that we were about to bury the hatchet, anticipating no further use for it. If, however, idle boasting and invidito use we shall prepare ourselves for this new mode of attack, although we must confess, from the samples in the Lou-for the defeat of our candidate, is quite unnatural and out of place. We "opine" that they stand in need of all their sympathies for themselves. "If what we hear be true," a dubians expression in the mouth of our neighbor, we should be need to believe that "the considerable sedative" spoken of will be the does for Mr. White rather than the General by calculating solely upon his probability of success. For of a police jury and it is for this reason that the Charcurpart, if Judge Dawson's prospects were not as flattering ter, granted to this city, should be maintained; and as a class are not as least edges of the corporation to occupy roulting the best interests of the state. In selecting Judge Dawson as our candidate, we were no

o much influenced by his popularity, and the concentration of the public voice upon him, as by the talents and finess which so peculiarly qualified him for the station. This explanation becomes necessary, as some persons whose opin ions of the honesty of the public press is quite dubieus, migh attribute to us the same motives which are so shamefully avowed by the Advertiser.

The Louisians Agreement of the Morning No. Gerdere, and concludes therefrom "that a dependent men will be urned out of office. Dewsen should be made accountable for what an anonymous writer may say, and not only accountable for what he actually says: but for the forced constructions and amplifications that may be placed or drawn from the same is so repagnant to good faith and every principle of justice, that we are amazed that the editor of that print should resort to so pitiful and unmanly ar artifice.

The Louisian and the difficult—impracticable we almost would say, as conversely of sense that Judge Dawson, if cleaning to the gubernant shair, would set upon any but his own suff. His friend and port him because they bebut his own will. His frame to northin because they believe him bleached, it untransed and free from any control whatever. It is saily, and it is idle; for the Louisiana to complete the saily of the warr. Unlike his somewifer r he is saily that of a sail would clavate their candidate meaning to rule through his.

That Judge White would obtain overwhelming mejorities on the coast from the Salize to Baton Rouge, no one, even those the most blindly obposed to him, wast even simple among to original. That in Lagurche, Opeleans, St. Mary's and Nationally he would receive absort in unanimous ville, and that he most of the western parishes he would receive sanjonities, us always believed—but usual lately we had no idea that he was no popular, as we have from the best source lately terred hats. — La dive.

COPIED IN THE MEMOIRS OF

MR. D'JOLIMONT AND MR. PAVILLON PIERARD. COORDING to tradition it appears, that it was towards the year 57, after Jesus Christ, that Sextus I.
Bishop of Renns, caused this Church to be built. We will not attempt to ponetrate into the folds of the observity that envelopes the cradle of this Church: its origin is givan with much uncertainty, by the great number of histori-and who transmitted to us the result of their researches. The Cathedral of Reams is not one of the loss ancient and

This temple, towards the end of the Sth century, became very much decayed, and was rebuilt on a more magnification by Archbishop Bons, isselt to the pontificate in $32, during the reign of Loois the first, ca'ld the Debundarie. Romulus, Architect of that Prince, directed that great work, and insched it about the year $16. It was then one of the most beautiful monum nts. It was in that age, that more than at any other period of time, people were consumed with the seal of the Lood's House; then, in each Province, prevailed the greatest rivality to build on a new model, the most splendid church, the most magn fiest cathedral. Thus the unfortunate disaster of the Church of Reims, could not remain a long time unrestored; they soon set to work, and the treasury, promptly exhausted; was algoritan soon replemished, as by unagic, from the immense products of the slus, and liberal
