A CASE OF GREAT HARDSHIP.

We have read a copy of the record filed in the Supreme Court of the United States, in the confiscation case of Samuel Miller's executors versus the United States. It embodies all the papers, evidence and pleadings, beginning with the libel or information filed by United States Attorney Russell, of Detroit, Michigan, which laid the foundation for the decree of forfeiture and confiscation subsequently rendered by Judge Ross Wilkins, District Judge of the United States for the Eastern District of Michigan, against the property of Samuel Miller, down to the writ of error allowed in the case by Associate Justice Swayne, of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Several remarkable facts connected with this severe proceeding have particularly arrested our attention, viz:

First—That property of the value of nearly one hundred thousand dollars, belonging to Samuel Miller, was confiscated in the absence of its owner, without a trial before a jury or otherwise, by a person holding a commission as a judicial officer of the United States, upon the ex parte averments of another officer of the United States, viz: the Prosecuting Attorney of the District, the only evidence of the truth of these averments being a written statement of a man in New York, not present in Michigan during any of the proceedings in court, nor cross-examined by any one for the accused—that is to say, upon the mere word of a man who avowed himself to be one of that odious description of persons called "informers."

Secondly—That this property was sold for the sum of twenty-seven hundred and fifteen dollars ($2715), half of which went into the Treasury of the United States and half to the wretch upon whose testimony—if it can be called testimony—Mr. Miller was divested of his property.

Thirdly—That the supreme judicial tribunal of the land, composed of jurists like Nelson, Swayne, Miller, Strong and Bradley, (the other three, Davis, Field and Clifford, dissented), should have affirmed a judgment—no, not a judgment, because a judgment includes three elements absent here—a spoliation so monstrous, in the face of their three decisions rendered during the present and previous sessions:

1. In the Morris cotton case (8 Wallace) a proceeding in rem—that is against the thing and not against the person—that proceedings for the confiscation of property where the seizure was made on land, must be instituted as other actions at common law and the claimants are entitled to trial by jury.

2. In the Dean vs. Nelson case (10 Wallace), where the court decided that Nelson being at the institution of the action and the trial of the suit, within the military lines of the Confederate States, he could not lawfully appear in a court of the United State, nor even lawfully know that suit had been instituted against him. It is true, this was not a proceeding in confiscation.

3. In the McVeigh case (9 Wallace), rendered three weeks ago, when the court decided that McVeigh, who, at the time of the institution and trial of the suit against him, was in the city of Richmond, Va., and within the Confederate States military lines, had a right to be heard before the condemnation of his property was decreed.

Now in the present case of Miller upon which we are commenting, there was no jury, because Miller could not be cited to appear, nor lawfully know of the proceedings against him. For the same reason there was no lawyer or defence made.

We suppose there are really no inconsistencies in these apparently contradictory rulings, but it must be admitted that law is a very wonderful and a very mysterious science, when parties, who have all the same legal status, viz: enemies of the United States, within the jurisdiction of the Confederate States, have treatment so different meted out to them.

The astonishment is greater when we find that McVeigh and Nelson, who had voluntarily abandoned their homes within the United States and joined the armed forces of the enemies thereof, have had their property restored to them, while an aged and bed-ridden old man of admitted union sentiments and anti-confederate, like Mr. Miller, who never left his home, nor gave aid directly or indirectly to the Confederate authorities, should be divested of his property, simply because his residence was in Virginia and within the Confederate military lines. It may be law—but it is not justice and no Government whatever, pretending to rule according to justice, which punishes a man true in his heart to it, simply because his home is in the enemy's country, can escape the condemnation of history. There is no precedent which forms any justification for it. We are living in 1871 not in 1771.

The affidavit upon which this old man's property was taken and which formed the only testimony in the case either oral or written reads thus:

U. S. of America, Southern District of New York, City, County and State of New York:

Be it remembered that on this 24th day of March, 1864, I George F. Butts, a Commissioner duly appointed by the Circuit Court of the United States, for the Southern District of New York, in the Second Circuit, under and by virtue of the acts of Congress, Feb. 26, 1853, March 1, 1817, and Sep't. 24, 1789, did call and cause to be said person duly sworn before me at my office, 41 Chambers street, in the city of New York, JOHN M. HATCHER, to testify and the truth on the part and behalf of the United States, in a certain suit and matter of controversy now depending and commenced in the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Michigan at Detroit, wherein the United States are plaintiffs against all stock, bonds, coupons and dividends in the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad Company, and the Detroit, Monroe and Toledo Railroad Company, and the monies due thereon, the property of SAMUEL MILLER, a PUBLIC ENEMY; and the said John M. Thatcher, being about the age of 46 years, and having been by me first cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, [as if any credence could be given to such a villain as he,] the whole truth and nothing but the truth in the matter of controversy, I did carefully examine the said John M. Thatcher, and he did thereupon depose and testify and say as follows:

I reside in New York City. I know Samuel Miller; he resides 16 miles south of Lynchburg, in the State of Virginia. I do not know of any agent or attorney that he has in the city of New York; nor do I believe that he has any in the Northern States. I saw him about the last of July, 1861, at his house near Lynchburg, Virginia. I had a conversation with him the last time. He told me he was the owner of about $100,000 Indiana State bonds. He also said no interest had been paid on them since the 1st of January, 1861, and when interest was demanded of the agent in New York he declined to pay it, saying the bonds and interest belonged to the acts of Congress been confiscated to the Government of the United States. He also said to me in that conversation, that he approved of the acts of the Confederate Government, and that their ultimate success was so certain as it was for the sun to rise in the morning, although the sacrifice he knew would be great, that he would be very willing to bear the sacrifice when it came; and that he was then giving one-tenth of all income for the support of the army of the Confederate Government, and was also contributing independently of the regular taxes, special to support the wives and children of the soldiers in arms, and other special objects of almost daily occurrence. He also avoided to keep matters moving about as everything as much for the wives and children of the soldiers as all the rest of the people.

JOHN M. HATCHER.

Sworn to before me this 24th day of March, 1864.

GEO. F. BUTTS, Commissioner.

This affidavit was the only proof offered to the court in support of the confiscation of seven-eighths of Samuel Miller did not appear. What could he? What the only notice or citation in the case was given through two insertions in a Detroit newspaper which, among ing to the Supreme Court of the United States, it was unlawful for Mr. Miller to see. Upon this miserable abortion of proof, the stock was sold.

Now what did Mr. Miller do when he heard of all this? He presented a petition to Judge Wilkins, the same who pronounced the decree, setting forth all the facts of the case, alleging the fulfillment against him to be groundless, that the testimony of Hatcher utterly false, alleging also, that he had never forfeited his allegiance to the United States, had never given aid or comfort to the Confederate States, that he was 73 years of age, and had been for the last two years so feeble and infirm, as to be unable to travel more than six miles per day, and that he had been pardoned by the President of the United States, (as unnecessary act, but believed to be one of precaution.) His prayer was that the judgments and decree be opened and set aside, because the whole proceeding was founded on false and void affidavit which was supported by nine additional and respectable men, living near Lynchburg.

The Judge of the District Court refused the prayer: writ of error was asked for to the Circuit Court with the same result, and then a writ of error to the Supreme Court of the United States was taken.

This is the case of Miller's confiscated property decided in Washington a week ago, adversely to the executors. We suppose the decision will astonish the bar of the United States, if they could be astonished at anything.

MISSION SCHOOLS.—The festival for the benefit of the Mission Schools connected with the First Presbyterian Church (Rev. Dr. Palmer's) commences this, Wednesday, evening, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

We acknowledge receipt of invitations and badges.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

Acknowledgment.—Thanks are gratefully tendered to the division of S. W. M. marshaled by M. A. Calougne, Esq., for the compliment with which they honored the BEE yesterday.

The Seven Wise Men.—The Heptasophs, or Seven Wise Men, yesterday celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of the order, the first organization of which was in this city, on the 11th April, 1852. At three o'clock in the afternoon a procession was formed on Canal street, consisting of the Grand and Subordinate Conclaves, and which moved down divisions through the lower part of the city, as far as Elysian Fields street, and through the upper part as high as St. Joseph street. The procession was admirably arrayed, Mr. O. S. Babcock, Inspector General, officiating as Grand Marshal, assisted by a large number of aids; Mr. M. A. Calongne acting as Marshal, and E. A. Ducrot Assistant Marshal of the Second Division, Mr. L. A. Wiltz, as Marshal, and J. L. Gantier, Assistant Marshal of the Third Division, and Mr. C. O. Gerlein, as Marshal, and Dr. Dyer, Assistant Marshal of the Fourth Division.

Considering that the greatest part of the members of the order in the city was so engaged that they cannot, without making a sacrifice, turn out on week days, the numbers in the pageant was surprisingly large, and the pageant was greatly admired by the crowds who gathered upon the streets to witness it. Few were aware of the strength of the order before this admirable turn out. Flags were suspended from several buildings, in compliment to the order, and as a manifestation of regard for it the New Lusitanos Benevolent Association participated in the demonstration. The order, as we have already mentioned, was instituted in this city, and has grown in popular favor every where, there being now conclaves in twenty-eight States of the Union. Among the guests in the procession yesterday, besides the orator of the day, Alexander Dimitry, Esq., we observed Gen. John L. Lewis, Commodore Hunter, and other highly esteemed citizens.

The closing exercises took place at the Lyceum Hall. A superb gold watch was presented there to Mr. Eugene May, Archon of Aurora Conclave No. 14, as a compliment from the members of the Conclave. That ceremonial over, the oration was delivered by Professor Dimitry, who gave a historical sketch of the institution of the Order, of which he was one of the founders, and absorbed the attention of his audience, a great part of whom were ladies, by one of those masterly efforts for which he is so famous.

The City Council.—The Board of Administrators met at the usual hour last night, a quorum present and the Mayor in the chair.

An ordinance to organize the Department of Commerce passed its second reading.

A number of petitions were referred to the appropriate committees.

The Mississippi and Gulf Canal injunction was read to the Board.

Mr. Bouzano said that the injunction had been sued out by the Ship Island Canal Company. The junction pending, the Council is restrained from taking any action upon the ordinance on the subject.

The Administrator of Commerce reported on the petition of butchers regarding cleanliness in the markets. Ordered printed.

A resolution was adopted appointing a committee of two, to report on the expediency of buying the property of P. Luny, on Esplenade street, for a lunatic asylum.

Adopted.

Charges against Recorder Staes were referred to a special committee—Lewis, Delsanise and Remick.

The ordinance relative to increasing the amount of bonds for repairing the wharves was adopted.

On motion of Mr. Shaw, the City Attorney was instructed to oppose the injunction on the city respecting drainage.

The Board then adjourned.

The Alleged Fraudulent Journal of the House of Representatives.—We, yesterday, briefly noticed the testimony of Mr. Vigers, Clerk of the House of Representatives, in regard to the charge of Governor Warmoth, in the suit pending in the Eighth District Court, that the Journal of the House for the last day of the session falsely represented that certain resolutions involving charges upon the contingent fund, had been passed, and that the speaker, Mr. Carter, had coerced the clerk to make the fraudulent record. No evidence was taken in the case yesterday.

The following abstract of all the testimony given on Monday is made from the notes of Colonel Tounison, the Stenographer of the Court, to whose courtesy the press are indebted for the synopsis:

Henry Burch, of East Baton Rouge—This witness swore that this resolution to pay Frank Alexander, offered by him, did pass:

E. W. Dewees, sworn—Remembers that the Senate notified the House at 10:30 P. M. that it had adjourned. As soon as this information was received several members insisted upon the adjournment of the House also. The resolution authorizing the Committee on Charitable Institutions to sit during recess viz: then read and adopted.

Mr. Faulkner, of Caldwell, called up then a resolution about a special joint committee, which was passed. Mr. D. objected to its being declared passed, but the Speaker declared it so. These two were the only resolutions which passed after the Senate adjourned, but the latter was a joint resolution and should have been read three times, but was read only once. He does not believe that any other resolutions were passed, and he was at that time within a few feet of the clerk's desk. There were a great many resolutions filed upon the Clerk's desk, and some one grabbed up a handful of them, saying, "it is too late to have them passed."

Wm. Vigers, Clerk of the House—The journal, as printed, is all correct and straightforward, unless the resolution offered by Mr. Faulkner might be considered informal. That resolution had been omitted from the journal in the first instance by an oversight. When my attention was called, remembered that Mr. Faulkner got up on his desk and offered the resolution. A few moments afterward heard the Speaker's gavel fall, and hear the Speaker say, "adopted." When my attention was called to the oversight, Speaker Carter, Messrs. Faulkner, Stevens, and other members of the House, assured me upon their honor that it had passed. Speaker Calvez furnished me with a copy of the overlooked resolution, which I inserted.

H. J. Hyams, of West Baton Rouge—The resolution purporting to have been introdneed by me, as reported in the journal of the House of the last day, was not introduced by me, and it was never passed.

John Gartschalup, of Jefferson, was informed that some resolution would be perpetrated during the closing hours of the House under the cover of the confusion usually incident to such a time. Prepared myself for the emergency, watched and took notes of everything that transpired. The resolutions reported in the Journal as having been offered by Messrs. Matthews and Thompson, and the one by Faulkner were never passed or read.

Matthew Carr, ex-Speaker of the House—Was not incorporated in the main body of the resolutions, and swore that the resolution offered by himself in regard to the contingent fund was not regularly passed. Mr. Carter, who, although a republican, was a fair and honorable man, would not have been guilty of such a fraud. Mr. Faulkner had been appointed by the Speaker to take his services, and Mr. Stevens began his report to the House. The consolidation will be facilitated by both being adversaries quitting the field, both contemplating the resignation of offices. Both are old, and have served court to the during the last decade. Gen. von Steinwehr began his campaign a fighting, and earned what he wanted—a good pay, by lessons, or literary work, as some of the first Blad. All that he wanted to acquire became his restaurant late, private sons for violating State laws without any interference by the Constitution or laws of the United States. Gen. Sheridan will bring dangers consequent upon an unnecessary and unjustifiable suppression of the habeas corpus. Mr. Carter opposed the bill. No vote was reached.

Wilmington, N. C., April 11.—Last night, at the Mowat train from Raleigh, a man who gave his name as Daniel attempted to enter this expedition, with the supposed intention of robbery, when he was shot and dangerously wounded by the express messenger, named Archer. Daniels was left in Goldsboro', in the care of a physician.

Commodore Chauncey is dead.

WEATHER REPORT—PROBABILITIES.

Washington, April 11.—It is probable fresh, variable winds from the lower and northwest will prevail Wednesday in the upper and lower lakes, with clearing up weather, also in the Middle States, with fresh winds on the Gulf and South Atlantic. Cloudy and failing weather on the Southern States, followed by clearing up weather Wednesday night. Probably heavy weather of dimensions, but of short duration, appears to threaten the country from West Virginia to Connecticut.

MISCELLANEOUS INTELLIGENCE.

Hartford, Ct., April 11.—The Board of Canvassers have postponed the election for Governor, State officers and members of Congress until the 1st of April.

Albany, N. Y., April 11.—At the charter election the Democrats elected their ticket by about their usual majority of from 5,000 to 6,000.

Staunton, Va., April 11.—Thomas Hodges, a noted horse thief and desperado, who shot and fatally wounded Mr. Whitlock, on Friday night last, was taken from the jail at this place, about one mile from it, by a scouring and hanged, about one and a half miles from town. The Jailor and Ex-Sheriff McCutcheon were both in the jail and refused them the keys, when they broke open the doors and took Hodges out. None of the men who entered the jail were disguised, yet they were not recognized by either the Jailor or Ex-Sheriff, being strangers to him. Hodges had shot and killed a man previously to coming to this locality. This, the first act of lynching in this community, is universally condemned.

Lexington, Ky., April 11.—Immigration to this State is large. Many Northern people, especially to Southern Kansas. The Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad Company is now running its cars to Parsons, in Labette county, 20 miles from the Territory, and their contract requires them to have the line to the Texas line to connect with the State south, which, it is expected, will reach 150,000 by next fall. Many settlers were driven to Kansas last season by grasshoppers.

Chicago, Ill., April 11.—In Polk County, Iowa, alone, the damage caused by Saturday's storm amounts to about $100,000. Similar devastation prevailed throughout a large portion of Illinois.

Cincinnati, April 11.—A heavy snow storm commenced at Sioux City, Iowa, on Sunday, and raged fortunately till last night. The roads are blocked, and travel impeded. Much damage resulted.
