Guantanamo Bay Holds POW/MIA Recognition Service

Color Guard member Hospital Corpsman Seaman Tanganyikia Gray prepares to raise the National Ensign as part of the National POW/MIA Recognition Day service held at the base POW/MIA memorial, Sept. 21. This year's ceremony was themed "Until They Are Home," and emphasized the suffering of the families of missing U.S. military service men and women.

Key leaders at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba held a Prisoners of War/Missing in Action (POW/MIA) remembrance ceremony, Sept. 21.

The ceremony was held in conjunction with the DoD nationwide National POW/MIA Recognition Day services themed "Until They Are Home," emphasizing the patient suffering of the families of missing U.S. military service men and women.

"The ceremony allowed us to take time out of our busy day to reflect upon those that were POWs or still MIA," said NS Guantanamo Bay Equal Opportunity Advisor Chief Master-at-Arms Ricky Carter. "Hopefully everyone will continue to remember, not only the POW/MIA, but also keep the family members of those who still have loved ones MIA in their prayers, in the hopes that one day they are returned."

According to DoD officials, the Navy has over 33,000 unaccounted-for Sailors from World War II through the Persian Gulf War. Each year, the Navy's POW/MIA section assists with repatriating Sailors and returning them to their loved ones for burial services on U.S. soil.

"It is because of those service men and women that sacrificed everything that we can say we are truly a free nation," said Carter.

During the service, a 21-gun salute was rendered from NS Guantanamo Bay's honor guard consisting of Sailors attached to the installation's Weapons department and Marines attached to base Intelligence. The National Ensign was raised by color guard members Hospital Corpsman Seaman Edward Bell and Hospital Corpsman Seaman Tanganyikia Gray.

NS Guantanamo Bay Commanding Officer Capt. J.R. Nettleton read from the National POW/MIA Recognition Day Presidential Proclamation which states "On September 21, the stark black-and-white banner symbolizing America's Missing in Action and Prisoners of War will be flown over the White House; the United States Capitol; the Departments of State, Defense, and Veterans Affairs; the Selective Service System Headquarters; the World War II Memorial; the Korean War Veterans Memorial; the Vietnam Veterans Memorial; United States post offices; national cemeteries; and other locations across our country. We raise this flag as a solemn reminder of our obligation to always remember the sacrifices made to defend our Nation."

Iconic GTMO Site Receives Facelift

Seabees at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, completed a renovation project to an iconic base location, recently.

More than 300 hours were spent repainting, fabricating, and installing upgrades to the historical North East gate, separating the installation from communist Cuba, reinforcing structural integrity to the high-visibility area.

“This project was important to us because we have been working on the planning and execution for more than 30 months,” said NS Guantanamo Bay Public Works department (PWD) (Self Help) Equipment Operator 2nd Class Eric Battease. “This site has a high-visual impact to many visitors to the island and the Marines that are entrusted to watch over it.”

Four Seabees attached to Naval Facilities Engineering Command (NAVFAC) Southeast Public Works department and Naval Mobile

Construction Battalion (NMCB) 23 assisted with the renovation project.

“This project returned the gate to its original prestige,” said Battease. “The high visibility and importance of the anti-terrorism/force protection requirements in that area served as the main reason for the construction. Given that it’s a high-traffic area for photos, having a good curb appeal or aesthetic look helps too.”

Along with Battease, Builder 1st Class Steven Byers, Builder 3rd Class Kyle Kennison and Builder 3rd Class Jose Gastelum removed more than 90 tons of rotted wood and debris, installed 30 cubic yards of concrete and 35 concrete planters, painted and sealed the guard shack, and removed, sanded, painted and clear coated the U.S. Marine Corps sign that sits atop the guard shack before re-installing it at the gate.

“The project started June 26 and was completed July 6,” said Battease. “Approximately $70,000 went into to renovations, which saved the government approximately $50,000.”

As of August 1, PWD has been renamed to Engineer Service Team.

Bremcor Holds Vehicle Safety Stand Down At Guantanamo

Naval Station Guantanamo Bay facility maintenance contracting company Bremcor held an all-hands training, Sept. 15.

A safety stand-down was held with a focus on preventing vehicle accidents at the installation.

“The stand-down was a chance to pause and review safety requirements,” said Bremcor Project Manager Gary Knowlton. “It’s a way to get the message out to all our employees that they need to use good, sound judgement when on the roads in GTMO.”

Nearly four hundred company employees attended the mandatory session at the downtown Lyceum which covered the topics of inattentive driving, safe reverse driving using the buddy system, defensive driving, and when not to drive.

All Bremcor employees were trained on how to inspect vehicles to ensure all signals and safety features are in good operation. Bremcor has a fleet of 190 vehicles used base-wide providing maintenance and construction projects for commands and tenant commands at the installation.

Chaplain’s Corner

My Brother’s Keeper

Chaplain Tung Tran

NS Guantanamo Bay Chaplain Services

According to a legend, on the site where Jerusalem was built, there lived two brothers, one with many children and the other alone and single. One day, they gathered their harvest and put the wheat in two piles in the vegetable garden. One night the single brother thought, “My brother has a large family and needs more wheat than I do; I will put some of my sheaves on his pile.” One hour later the married brother woke up and thought, “My brother lives alone and doesn’t have anyone to help him till the land; something must be done.” And taking some of the sheaves from his pile, he carried them to that of his brother. Next morning, they were both surprised to see that both piles were still the same.

It’s a story about brothers caring for one another. The brothers can be substituted by shipmates, comrades, colleagues, fellow countrymen, and residents of GTMO. The point is that how wonderful it would be if we all looked out for one another’s well-being. In the Bible it says when brothers live in unity, it is like precious ointment running down from the head of Aaron, running down on his beard and garment, or like dew that descends on the dry desert. To those who live in peace, God commanded blessing and life forever more. May you and your family be well, wherever they may be, and may you enjoy peace and good health.

Marine Corps Security Force Company (MCSFCO) at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, held a Change of Command ceremony, Sept. 27.

MCSFCO Commanding Officer Capt. Jesus Mendez turned over command to the newly appointed Commanding Officer Maj. Mark Cameron as he was ceremoniously passed the organizational colors.

“This ceremony not only showcases Marine Corps traditions and customs for our junior guys, but also shows the proper respect for the outgoing commanding officer,” said MCSFCO First Sgt. Jonathan Martin. “We show respect for the leadership and knowledge the outgoing commanding officer provided for the Marines at GTMO and we welcome the oncoming commanding officer with the same amount of respect for the knowledge and leadership he will provide.”

Several key leaders attended the morning service at the MCSFCO headquarters including NS Guantanamo Bay Commanding Officer Capt. J.R. Nettleton and Command Master Chief Ross Cramer.

Selected to deploy as Battalion Operations Officer in support of Operation Enduring Freedom, Cameron attended the Marine Air-Group Task Force Integration Course and received his Operations and Tactics Instructor certification. He deployed in August 2011 and served as Task Force Belleau Wood, II Marine Expeditionary Force Headquarters Group Security Forces Battalion Operations Officer, Camp Leatherneck in the Helmand Province of Afghanistan. Cameron served as Company C, First Battalion, Twenty-Fifth Marines 4th Marine Division Inspector-Instructor prior to reporting to NS Guantanamo Bay.

Considerations For The Separated, Divorcing And Dating

Naval Legal Service Office Southeast

NS Guantanamo Bay

Legal assistance clients often ask when they can start dating before their divorce is completed. There is a lot at stake with such a question, especially those whose divorce will involve children. Such extramarital relationships can affect your military career as well as your divorce case.

The bottom line is that dating before a final divorce is not recommended for several reasons. First and foremost, military personnel could be subject to a prosecution for adultery, which is an offense under the UCMJ. No matter how hard you may try to hide your new relationship, social media such as Facebook may compromise the secret of your new relationship and provide evidence of your crime. Such relationships are not worth the possibility of losing your career (whether by court-martial, Article 15/Non-judicial punishment, or administration separation).

The new relationship may also cause an ugly fallout with your spouse and give your spouse ammunition to gain an advantage against you in the divorce proceeding. For military and civilians, if you have any children and/or property with your spouse, a pending divorce could get very ugly quickly if the other party finds out that you have a new relationship when the divorce is not even final yet. The spouse may then be motivated to fight over issues that you thought were resolved as your spouse tries to find a way to lash out in any way that he or she can. All of a sudden, your soon-to-be-ex may try to prevent visitation with your children because of your new boyfriend or girlfriend and disagreements over whether it is in the best interests of the children for them to be exposed to your extra-marital affair. Such a relationship before the marriage is concluded could alter the complexion of the divorce proceedings and cause problems.

All branches of the military provide that a service member has a duty to provide financial support to his or her spouse and family until an agreement is constructed and/or until a court finally issues a support order of some kind. A spouse who may be looking at getting less support than anticipated or no support may have a bigger incentive cause problems and reinvigorate the spouses support claims if your spouse becomes spiteful over your new relationship.

Finally, rushing into a new relationship while your old relationship is still not resolved may not be the best idea from a psychological standpoint. It may be advisable to give yourself time to heal from the broken relationship before engaging in a new relationship. A new relationship has a better chance of success if you aren't still involved in a bitter divorce proceeding. An individual should take the time to get the necessary counseling required to improve the chances of a more successful relationship in the future.

This general article was drafted by LT G-T, Naval Legal Service Office Southeast for general informational purposes only. This article is not a substitute for individual legal advice and readers are advised that they should consult a lawyer in the state where they are divorcing.

NEXCOM Improves Its Customer Return Policy

Kristine M. Sturkie

NEXCOM Public Affairs Specialist

The Navy Exchange Service Command (NEXCOM) is making improvements to its return policy.

Merchandise purchased at a NEX or from myNavyExchange.com can be returned to any NEX store within 45 days of purchase for a refund or even exchange.

"We made this improvement to our return policy to make it more convenient for our customers," said Richard Dow, NEXCOM's Senior Vice President Store Operations. "By extending our return policy to 45 days, it gives our customers more time to bring back an item to our store. In today's busy world, that's important to our customers."

The standardized 45 day return policy on merchandise eliminates the previous exclusions including the 14 day return policy on certain items, such as computers, software and digital cameras. Now, the only exception to the 45 day NEX Customer Return Policy are pre-paid cards, such as financial, music, phone and gift cards, which are not returnable.

"By extending our return policy to 45 days, it gives our customers more time to bring back an item to our store. In today's busy world, that's important to our customers."

The refund will be processed in the same payment form as the original purchase. A return without a receipt will be issued on an NEX Gift Card at the item's current NEX price. Re-funds made without a receipt can only be made at the NEX's Customer Service desk.

Finally, diamond jewelry returns may be subject to an IGI appraisal prior to issuing a refund.

The Navy Exchange Service Command (NEXCOM) oversees

100 Navy Exchange (NEX) facilities and nearly 300 stores worldwide, 40 Navy Lodges, Ship's Stores, the Uniform Program Management Office, the Navy Clothing Textile and Research Facility and the Telecommunications Program Office. NEXCOM's parent command is the Naval Supply Systems Command.

NEXCOM's mission is to provide authorized customers quality goods and services at a savings and to support quality of life programs for active duty military, retirees, reservists and their families. NEXs and Navy

Lodges operate primarily as a non-appropriated fund (NAF) business instrumentality. NEX revenues generated are used to support Morale, Welfare, and Recreation (MWR) programs. In FY11, $2.7 billion in sales were generated with $42.8 million in dividends provided to Navy MWR programs.

Revised Marine Professional Reading List at GTMO Library

Rusty Baker

NS Guantanamo Bay Public Affairs Officer

Marines stationed at NS Guantanamo Bay have 37 ways to expand their knowledge while advancing their professional military education.

Numerous literary works listed on the Marine Corps' Professional Reading Program are available at the base library, with more titles on the way.

The Commandant of the Marine Corps announced a major revision to the Marine Corps Professional Reading Program List with the signing of ALMAR 027/11. The move was aimed at maintaining the reading list's relevance and as an overall revitalization to the aging program. Effective upon the signing of the all-hands message, commanding officers are to incorporate the new lists into command and unit Profession Military Education programs.

Each Marine is required to read the Commandant's Choice, "First to Fight: An Inside View of the U.S. Marine Corps," by Lt. Gen. Victor H. Krulak, USMC (Ret.) and "The Marines of Montford Point, America's First Black Marines," by Melton A. McLaurin. Additionally, each Marine is charged to read a minimum of one book in his grade per year.

The commandant strongly encouraged Marines to discuss and debate the issues raised by the books on the new list to broaden their perspectives and to benefit from the experiences of others. By that design and proper implementation, professionally conducted book discussions are to unite Marines of varying ranks by providing a common literary frame of reference.

Completion of these new requirements are to be noted on individual Marine's Proficiency and Conduct remarks or Fitness Reports Section I comments. How each Marine demonstrates his completion of the annual requirement is at the discretion of his command.

"I plan to have at least three or four more titles available in each grade group, particularly some of the books that are suggested for multiple groups," said Amy Roumell, MWR Librarian for the installation. "I also plan to order multiple copies of the two Commandant's choice required books."

Traditional mainstays like Elbert Hubbard's, "A Message to Garcia," and E.B. Sledge's, "With The Old Breed," as well as many other juggernauts of Marine Corps doctrine from previous commandants' reading lists, have endured the comprehensive book review board; however several literary classics and contemporary works relevant to a decade of combat operations will now have opportunity to enlighten and influence the combat mindset of today's Marine.

Listed below are the Marine Corps' Professional Reading Program's books now available at the base library.
