DAYING CAIN Those who remember the aplanded production of this Master, which was exhibited and commanded such universal admiration amongst us, a few years since,-we refer to "the coronation of Napoleon,"-should not omit seeing this later painting. The same extraordinary genius is equally displayed in both; and the ages, hand is traceable. It is not often that paintings of such high repute as "David's Cain," wat "West's Christ rejected," arrive among us. The latter closed its exhibition on sday, and we understand, that "Cain" will remain here but a week longer. We hope for &c. the tests and credit of our city that it will be well attended during its short stay.

LATE FROM FRANCE.

New York, March 14. The Havre packet ship Francis 1st, capt. Skiddy, arrived from that port on Saturday, having sailed Feb. 3d. The affairs of Poland presented nothing worthy of particular notice.
The Belgian question had not been settled. The Chartes were still occupied respecting the elec-tion of a Chief of the State. On the 29th of are selling their plate, to send their product to January the Protocol drawn up at a conference of the Ambaseadors of the five Powers, held in London on the 10th of January, was read in the congress. The document will be found below. It defines the limits of Belgium and Holland, and guarantees that the furmer shall be a perpet-ual neutral State, pledging themselves at the rame time for the inviolability of its territory. The reading of the Protocol occasioned great a gitation both among the members of the congress andiar the gulleries. It was censured as depriving Belgium of a part of its proper territory, ricularly the left bank of the Scholdt, and a portion of Limberry and Luxembourg. It would fullow that the deputies returned by Luxembourg, and the other provinces which it Avan attempted to detach, could no longer sit in Congress. One of the members moved that a nittee should be appointed to draw up a protest against the conduct of the five Powers, and the proposal was adopted by a large majority.

From the New-York Standard. What little news these dates afford us, relate to no events of moment upon the continent; but the reports are big with the chances of war. The Beline congress had not elected a chief; but we should be disposed to consider the choice as definitely settled in the minds of the deputies. In she mitting of the 28th, M. Leon reported a project upon the mode of election, which requires that had advanced to the environs of Maestricht that an absolute majority of all the votes is neessary to a choice; and in the event of neither of avoid for the future all causes for hostility.

The congress will then proceed to the of ensuring to the citadel of Maestricht the full choice of one of these two. No blanks will be liberty of communication it ought to enjoy, and allowed. The successful candidate will then be not doubting that on his side his majesty the declared "King of the Belgians," and will then proceed to take the prescribed oath to support ecution of the protocol of January 9; having to 3 centimes lower. This is not telling the Belgians that they shall elect the Duke de Nemours, but it is equivalent to it; for it is saying that they shall not elect any other. The correspondent of the Journal du Havre, who is remarkably accurate in all his statements, adds:-"It was not without discussion that the council of the King had so determined, and they pretend the august will, which has hitherto shown itself so inflexible, has suffered hadf to be influenced, and at length settled upon the Welltion: The ministers were not unani-
