The ship Tully-ho had arrived at New York with London dates of the 7th and Liverpool of the 8th of May. We transfer the summary and extracts from the English papers by this extival, of the New York Evening Post, to our col-

The New York papers contain a notice signed by one and fifty of the most respectable citizens, without distinction of party, for a meeting of those "who feel that an arrangement of the tariff question, on principles of mutual concession and embracing such modifications as may allay discontent and restore harmony, is absolutely necessary for the prescreation of peace and union." The deepest sollcittude is apparently fest upon this subject in New York. The Evening Post and the American, belonging to opposite political parties, express themselves in the strongest terms. The Post says, a heavy weight of responsibility is upon the votes of those who represent that state in congres -It trusts that they will duly consider the immesse importance of their consider that it is better to give up something of the tariff, than sacrifice the Union

The American is still more cornect; it expresses its meslected, will never secur. It may be, that these now United States will never again have the opportunity of considering it; and although as adverse as any one to acting under the impulse of apprehension, it does strike us as a duty paramount pulse of apprenension, is now sectace us as a unity paramount to any other, that all who love the Union—who desire to do justice to the great interests of the nation, and to remove from the path of our presperity an ever-recurring obstacle -should put their shoulder to the wheel, and, by friendly counsel and co-operation, aid and excite the action of congress." This is thrilling language. Let us hear and heed

We promised some remarks upon the affairs of Mexico; but before proceeding to fulfil our engagement to investigate the causes of the late prononciamiente at Vera Cruz, it is necessary to take a brief retrospect of some anterior

In 1827, when the law depriving the Spaniards of all of fices, lest in their hands they might be used as the meanwiff promoting their own ambitious views, was snacted, it occurred to many perfidious Mexicans, imbued with principles of the rankest aristocracy, to unite their efforts with those of the Spaniards, in combatting with the true patriots of the republic; but their culpable designs being penetrated, the patriots, in every part of the republic, joined themselves to-gether as if by inspiration, with 'the praiseworthy intention of breaking down the machination of the unhallowed co lation, and saving the country from the youe that had beth repared for it.

Such was the origin of what has been called "Father. sircnas' conspiracy, either because he was the means of its discovery, or because it was accertained by the result of his trial that he was one of the principals charged with the execution of the vast interprise. Those who had conceived it, still more obstinate, were indefatigable in their exertions to save him; and to effect this object, the most shameless falsehoods and the grossest calumnies ever resorted to, in order to pursuade the government and the Yorkines (a mine which they gave to the Mexican patriots, but which could not disgrace them) that the whole affair was nothing but a farce! The preud is written in the multitude of publications which the occasion called forth, and in which the sons of the soil willingly discredited the country that gave them

But it was not in the power of one of the most able and ardent of those among the partizans of hierarchial distincindeed they must have been very conclusive and irrefraga-"The crime is plainly proved." The cossequence was the which parliament recommanded its session death of Aramon, he being sentenced to be shot. *

his apathetic character, was over burdened by the affairs of will be seen, was upon a motion of Earl Grey to poststate, for which he had never any aptitude, & lacked that energy which was necessary to the exertion of all those energies with which the federal constitution had invested upon an amendment, it seems to have been considered him, and which were requisite to put a stop to the angry contest that was prevailing between the two parties which were in open hostility to each other. This censurable incriness, on the part of the president, was the source of many evils, and so doubt gave birth to those bloody scenes which signalized the last days of December 1828.

The Mexican people, in the end, triumpheds but not without suffering those misfortunes that are insperable from contest, by a sovereign people, with those who seek to chain them down with the manacles of serviced; they arrival of the Tally Ho fir ishes little intelligence triumphed, and would not suffer Pedraza, the president elect of the aristocratic and Spanish faction, to assume his seat; but when that same faction afterwards triumphed temporari', over the ruins of the republic, Bustamante ignominiously shut the doors of the country against the presnominiously shut the doors of the country against the president who was the choice of his own party! Such was the 2,515—of deaths 508. In Cork, on the 3d, new cases abominable conduct of the famous Anastasio Bustamente towards General Manual Gomez Pedraza.

Searcely had the unfortunate eigenmetances, of which we have spoken, been accomplished, when congress without luss of time, engaged itself in assuring the legality of the executive power, general Pedrana having laid upon the table affexpress tenunciation, spontageous and reiterated, of the chair to which he had been called by this same faction, and by which he irrevocably relinquished it. They saw -they examined -they discussed, - and they finally resolved, conformably to the fundamental laws of the republic, that the citizen-general, bene merite of the country, Vincente Guerrero, should be called upon to assume the vacant chair of state, inasmush as he united a majority of the legislative votes. It was under such auspicea that this brave patriot-this unfortunate hero-this Varon of his country, sok pessession of the executive power, with the firm intention of eacrificing himself for the action which he had this important question, having now arrived at that contributed, not only by the part which he took in her batties, but in those toils, the object of which was to secure its liberty, sovereignty and independence, to elevate to the wounds which time had not yet contined, and which were yet blooding when his cruel and barbarous enemies conducted him to the obscure scaffold, where he met his fate!

Who could dony, in such a low and desperate condition, that an ordinary man, and without merit, conducted the heroic Munican nation?
