

THE BEE.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED DAILY, BY
JEROME RAYON,
SAVANNAH, GEORGIA.
THE UNION.—A BUREAU PRESERVED.

TUESDAY MORNING, NOV. 26, 1834.

The mayor of the city has issued a proclamation appealing to the citizens to abstain from all kinds of violence and disorder upon the arrival of the Rev. Joe Parker, who is daily expected with his family.

The domestic citizens of Spring Garden (Philadelphia), celebrated by a public dinner on the 27th inst., the recent glorious triumph of republican principles. The assembly (says the Sentinel) comprised the democratic citizens of all ages—from the revolutionary patriot to the young and ardent enthusiast of liberty. Among the invited guests and several speakers were Col. Samuel B. Davis, General Robert Patterson, Henry Horn, James Page, Henry T. Wilson, William Duncan, Peter Wagner and Alexander Dimity, former editor of that paper.

Letter from Liverpool—Direct.

The fast sailing ship Ambassador, Union master, from Liverpool, whence she sailed on the 30th October, brings up to the day of her sailing, which we have been politely informed with, together with a valuable commercial circular to the 1st. The continental news has been anticipated by the British at this port. We refer our readers for mercantile advices, showing an animated demand for cotton, to our commercial head.

PROCEEDINGS.—EXTRA SESSION.

The city council met yesterday at one o'clock. Present the Recorder, aldermen McFarlane, Peleguez, Laham, Burmard, Dixon, Montague, Caldwell, Mercer, McCready, and Munro. The regular order of the former sitting having been read, Mr. Mercer moved, after having stated, that the council had been convened for a special session, the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the ceremony for the reception of the bust, in bronze, of the Empereur Napoleon, presented by Dr. Andreau, and the Society of Friends, to make the necessary arrangements for this ceremony in due season."

"Further resolved, That the members appointed on this subject, remain invested with the same powers that were conferred upon them on the day of their appointment."

Mr. Mercer moved, that the committee of the rules, in order to adopt a foreign resolution—agreed.

Mr. Burmard proposed an amendment to the resolution of Mr. Mercer, disengaging the committee appointed to make the necessary arrangements for the ceremony, to one o'clock.

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

It seems that gentlemen are disposed to resort to every means to give the ceremony proposed a pomp not according with the system of government. It was intended to render honor to a man, a Consul, even an emperor; but, Mr. President, I think readily enter into the spirit of your resolution; but, Mr. President, it is designed to take advantage of a general review of our militia, and with the help of a military parade to constrain to a will of a majority of the council, citizens, among whom are those who are opposed to the ceremony, and the honor to be rendered to the memory or the cause of the Empire, and the like. Sir, I demand, that the law does not impose such restraint."

Mr. Burmard's amendment was put to vote, and lost—The resolution, as originally proposed, was agreed to, and, accordingly, a committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements for the ceremony, to one o'clock.

Mr. Burmard voted for the resolution, and that Messrs. McCready, Dixon, and Burmard had voted for the adjournment.

The resolutions of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."

Mr. Burmard said, that he thought the council had ought to sit on Saturday, as it was a restraint to law, that the committee should sit with making the necessary arrangements he had done enough; and that, moreover, the laws were ordered out upon that day, and as a captain of one of the companies, he was going to be present.

The resolution of Mr. Mercer being under consideration, Mr. Burmard rose and said,

"I demand, that the demand made upon us a question which involves such importance, will the council hold any extra session next Sunday? Does the law permit such proceeding? I think not."