Few people in this age of tight Boots and diminutive shoes, says the Mobile Advertiser, are free from the annoyance of corns, and many are seriously and painfully afflicted with these ungainly and unwelcome pedal expressences. The prevalence and severit of these enemies to personal comfort hav of these enemies to personal comfort have excited the ingenuity and cupidity of a large class of persons who, from time to time, traverse the country, professing to possess the information and means necessary to produce a radical oure of corns, bunions, stc., with remarkable celerity, and without causing the least pain. For so philambropic and excellent, a service, the chiropodial, angice corn doctor, seprets a handesome fee, and excellent as service, the chiropodial, angice corn doctor, seprets a handesome fee, and excellent as grass impositions are frequently practiced upon people in this regard, and a great deal of money is expended, not only without benefit, but to the actual detriment of the sufferer. In this view of the matter, we believe we shall do our readers a service by copying from that excellent and well informed publications, Hall's Journal of Health, simple, cheap and efficacious repedy for

OTTY INTELLIGENOE.

New Yean's Day.—The clear skies and the genial sunshine which usbered in and crowned the first day of the new year—clearer and brighter by the contrast to the gloomy weather of the week preceding—seemed to put every body, as if by magic, in the best of spirits; cheerful faces and pleasant words were to be seen and beard on every side, and early in the day it was very evident that the function which it has been dedicated would be well bonored—not "in the breach," but in the observance." Until inglatial, and after, the streets were enlivened by innumerable troops of gay callers; in evidence of the Inverse Servel—such as Finz. Commitment to company direction carriages freighted with visitors were to be seen "on the wing," while the "ename was legion" of those who preferred the less arislocratic mode of helf conveyance, in spite of the mud which cumbered the crossings; and the wayfaring man, though a fool, could perceive that a very spirited and happy time was in progress. The laddes generally were at home "on the pitable thoughts latent," and with their radiant faces and kind words made a sunshine whether and chearing as that had head to be seen the pitable thoughts intent," and with their radiant faces and kind words made a sunshine whether and chearing as that had a sunshine whether and chearing as the shad as a sunshine whether and chearing as the shad as a sunshine whether and chearing as the shad as a sunshine whether and chearing as the shad as a sunshine whether and chearing as the shad as a sunshine which and chearing as the shad as a sunshine whether and chearing as the shad as a sunshine whether and chearing as the shad as a sunshine whether and chearing as the shad as a sunshine whether and chearing as the shad as a sunshine whether and chearing as the shad as a sunshine whether and chearing as the shad as a su OITY INTELLIGENCE.

ARCEMENTS.—Our, amusement managers had a good time of it on New Year's day—noon and evening—if crowded houses will justify that inference. Every place we looked into and heard from was overflowing, and the gesilus of enjoy ment seemed to have full sway. OLD JORDAN.—Among the incidents of New Year's day, it should be mentioned that old Jordan, the veleran drummer, with his band, called upon a number of his many friends, in addition to the fine music which he gave them, he was often called out by complimentary music, to which he responded in a si-tal that showed him antitled to as much in this cornedy, and she is no small acquisition to the company.
