DANGEROUS TO EAT*RAW PORK.

Serious and Often Fatal Disease,

Trichinosis, Due to This Practice. — Cooking Removes Danger.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1. — Eat no pork or pork products unless they are cooked, if you would be certain of avoiding trichinosis. This is a warning issued by the Bureau of Animal Industry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, especially to those who, around the holiday season are in the habit of eating raw ham or special forms of sausages containing raw pork and made to be eaten uncooked. The records show that the number of cases of trichinosis—a serious, painful, and often fatal disease resulting from trichinae—increases during the holidays, partly because of hog-killing time and partly because farmers frequently make up special forms of sausages which are eaten without cooking.

To avoid trichinosis no form of pork in the raw state, including dried or smoked sausages and hams, should be eaten. All pork used as food should be cooked thoroughly, as trichinae, the minute organisms which cause this deadly disease, die and therefore become harmless when subjected to a temperature of 140 degrees Fahrenheit or higher. The fact that these organisms may remain alive and active in uncooked pork makes the latter, say department meat specialists, a menace to life and health wherever it is eaten.

New Seed Supply Source of Danger.

The necessity of having seed tested for their purity and germinative qualities is more urgent this season than usual, due to conditions arising from the European war, according to Miss Mayme Dworak, specialist in charge of the seed laboratory, Experiment Station, L. S. U. A large percentage of the seed planted in the United States comes from foreign countries. Formerly, most of this supply came from Germany, Denmark and Holland; but these countries are unable to supply the demand at present, and we are getting seeds from other countries. Having new sources of seed supply means running great risks of introducing obnoxious and disease-infected seeds into this country, which might serve as a menace for years. In some cases the demand on these new sources for seed is greater than the supply, and in order to meet this situation old or immature seeds are likely to be added to the bulk, which, of course, means lower viability.

There is, however, another story, and it is that Pennsylvania cast the deciding vote in the Continental Congress for the adoption of the Declaration of Independence; the others being six for and six against and in order to clear up this matter Mr. Hart has written to Mr. C. W. Alexander of Philadelphia, who has taken the matter up with the Pennsylvania Historical Society, and when the true story is obtained, Mr. Hart will give it to the Louisiana Historical Society.

The Keystone State.

The general impression, says Mr. W. O. Hart, of the Louisiana Historical Society, is that Pennsylvania was named "The Keystone State" because it was the keystone of the arch of the thirteen States, being just in the centre for there were six on the North and East, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York and New Jersey, and six on the South and West, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, and this explanation was given in a newspaper article recently published.

There is, however, another story, and it is that Pennsylvania cast the deciding vote in the Continental Congress for the adoption of the Declaration of Independence; the others being six for and six against and in order to clear up this matter Mr. Hart has written to Mr. C. W. Alexander of Philadelphia, who has taken the matter up with the Pennsylvania Historical Society, and when the true story is obtained, Mr. Hart will give it to the Louisiana Historical Society.

était plus simple, mais combien plus humaine. Ce n'est que par une notice de la Chronique de la Société des Gens de Lettres que nous avons appris sa mort; aucun journal n'ayant cru devoir lui réservé dix lignes de nécrologie. Le premier croquant venu en s'adressant à une agence spéciale, qui a affirmé la publicité mortuaire de grands journaux du matin et du soir, peut faire annoncer la perte de ses parents, furent-ils les pires égoïstes ou les plus insignifiants individus. En payant le tarif, n'importe qui sera mentionné dans les deuils parisiens — pour ceux-là on a toujours de la place. Mais une femme de lettres, qui fut une couvainue, une croyante dans la foi laïque et dans l'émanation intellectuelle et dont toutes là vie fut une une existence de probité et de dignité, de celle-là, on ne s'occupe pas. erica." This is the message, apropos of the holiday season, which the Bureau of Education of the Department of the Interior is sending to all those interested in bringing about greater national unity through the Americanization of the immigrant population. The annual decline in attendance of adult immigrants upon evening classes following the holidays is the cause for this unusual appeal. This action is part of the "America First Campaign" begun by the Bureau September 1 to extend the facilities provided for the education of immigrants, and to induce the largest number of immigrants to take advantage of school opportunities.

The National Committee of One Hundred appointed at that time by the United States Commissioner of Education has enlisted the cooperation of chambers of commerce, industries, editors, patriotic societies, and other agencies, both public and private, in all parts of the country. The ready response demonstrated the timeliness of the campaign. Reports from school authorities indicate pronounced interest on the part of the foreigner in learning English and studying about America. Attendance in many cities has doubled as a result of the national movement, and local effort directed along lines suggested by the schedule of standards and methods in publicity recently projected by the Bureau.

With the beginning of the new term after the Christmas and New Year holidays, comes a renewed interest in the foreigner. The Bureau feels that every public-spirited citizen could make a gift of fundamental value to the unity of the nation, by inducing at least one immigrant to acquire the language spoken everywhere in the United States. The large number of non-English-speaking, as well as illiterate, foreigners would soon become one of us in spirit and allegiance.
