THE DAILY BEE.

TUESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 8.

NEW YORK.

The New York election takes place to-day, and in view of its importance the result will be awaited with marked anxiety. As this is the first contest in a non-slaveholding State which will follow the Harper's Ferry conspiracy, we shall be enabled in some measure to ascertain the amount of influence exerted by that occurrence upon public sentiment. The almost universal impression has been that the Democratic party will be greatly strengthened by the affair of Harper's Ferry. It seems nearly impossible that it can be otherwise. There must be a very large proportion of Northern citizens who have hitherto sustained the Black Republican party, rather from an abstract feeling of opposition to slavery, than from any predominant wish to precipitate a conflict between the North and South, much less to foment servile insurrection. Upon the minds of such persons the incendiary effort at Harper's Ferry must have made a profound impression. They are warned by this abortive conspiracy of the danger of affiliating with a faction which holds desperadoes and rectifiers in its pay; which continually advocates doctrines utterly at variance with the preservation of the peace and harmony of the country; and which, if its tenets were faithfully carried into effect, would novel and riot in a saturnalia of blood and rapine. Hence the inference that the Black Republicans will lose a considerable portion of their strength.

Another circumstance which will operate materially in determining the result is the policy pursued by the American party of New York. At the election last year they polled some sixty thousand votes—or about one-eighth of the entire number cast. On the present occasion they refrained from placing any of their own candidates in nomination, but selected from the tickets of the two opposing parties such respectable, popular and honest candidates. Their ticket is made up expressly for the purpose of breaking down clique influence on either side. The precise object of this compromise ticket, or half the Republican and half the Democratic State ticket, is to show to both these parties that there is a balance of power standing between them capable of spoiling the calculations of both in all cases where the claims and demands of this balance of power are not sufficiently respected. It is the opinion of some of the shrewdest observers in New York that this ticket is destined to triumph. There is a yearning on the part of thousands of citizens to rebuke the Black Republicans for their violence, their fanaticism and their sectional proclivities: and to punish the Democrats for their cowardice, their corruption and their cowardice. Both these objects are likely to be subserved by the success of the compromise ticket; and we should not be at all surprised at its triumph.

It is possible on the one hand that the Black Republican organization may be more formidable than is imagined, or on the other that the Democrats may have gained since the last election. In either of the two party tickets will be defeated, we are satisfied, however, that the Democrats and Locofocos will lose—whether successful or not—the victory to their antagonists will be seen. The endorsement of [illegible] would be equivalent to the [illegible] Wm. H. Seward, and would undoubtedly [illegible] bolden those who, with hated [illegible] whispering forbearance expressed [illegible] bation of Brown and his Harper's Ferry raid. In fact, if the Black Republicans [illegible] the day, we shall begin to believe that fanaticism is powerful enough to overcome all adverse influences.

He and his brother, Thomas Parker, the son-in-law of Pool, had been at variance with the latter for some time, which misunderstanding it is supposed led to the fatal destruction of Pool. Robert Parker is still at large. Pool was killed with a shot gun. Thomas Parker and wife were brought before G. W. Jelks, J. P., on the charge of being accessories to the murder, on Thursday last, and are now undergoing a thorough investigation, the result of which will be given in our next issue.

Snow on the Sea.—A spot of remarkable size is now visible on the surface of the sea, more than 30,000 miles in circumference, or eight times the diameter of the earth. It can be seen without difficulty with the aid of an opera glass, the light of the sun being reflected by a screen. The snow is occasioned by the disturbance of the sun's surface in the form of three thousand millions of square miles, some fifteen or sixteen times the whole surface of the earth. As the spot was first seen on Saturday, the 15th, it will be visible for some days yet.—Charleston Cour.

Drink or Sea Rises.—This question is often asked, where do sea birds obtain fresh water to slake their thirst, but we have never seen it satisfactorily answered till a few days ago. An old skipper with whom we were conversing on the subject, said that he had frequently seen these birds at sea, far from any land that could furnish them water, hovering around and under a storm cloud, the latter evidently for a short day at a time, and drinking in the drops of rain as they fell. They will smell of rain equal a hundred miles or even further off, and need for it with unmistakable footsteps. How long sea birds can live without water is merely a matter of conjecture, but probably their powers of enduring thirst are fearcended by habit, and possibly they go without it for many days, if not for several weeks.

Trial of the Impeachment.

Charlestown, Va., Nov. 2.—Messrs. Russell and Leasel, attorneys from Boston, reached here to day. Cook was brought before the Magistrate' Court, but waived an examination. He was committed for trial.

Coppoe's trial was resumed. No witnesses were called for the defence. Mr. Harding opened the argument for the Commonwealth, and Hoyt and Green followed for the defendant. Mr. Hunter closed for the prosecution. The speeches were of marked ability. Mr. Griswold asked for several instructions, which were all granted by the Court. The jury then retired. Brown was then brought into the Court House, which was immediately thronged.

The Court gave its decision on the motion to arrest judgment, overruling the objections made. Of the objection that treason cannot be committed against a State except by a citizen, it ruled that wherever allegiance was due, treason may be committed. Most of the States have passed laws against treason. The objections as to the form of the verdict rendered, were regarded as insufficient. The clerk then asked Brown whether he had any thing to say why sentence should not be pronounced, when Brown stood up, and in a clear and distinct voice said:

"I have, may it please the Court, a few words to say. In the first place, I deny every thing but what I have all along admitted. The design, on my part, to free the slaves I intended, certainly, to have made a clean thing of that matter as I did last winter when I went into Missouri, and there took the slaves without the snapping of a gun on either side. I moved them through the country, and finally left them in Canada. I designed to have done the same thing again, on a larger scale. That was all I intended. I never had any design against the life of any person, nor any disposition to commit treason, or excite the slaves to rebel, or make any general insurrection. I never engaged any man to do so, but always discouraged any idea of that kind. Let me say now in regard to the statements made by some of those who were pretended to be my friends, but proved themselves otherwise, that I never have stated to any of them that I indorsed them to join me, but the contrary is true. I do not say this to injure them, but as regretting the rash action they have taken in this matter, on their own account, and the greater part at their own expense. A number of them I never saw, and never had a word of conversation with, till the day they came to me, and that was for the purpose I have stated. Now I have done."

While Brown was speaking, perfect quiet prevailed. When he had finished, the Court proceeded to pronounce the sentence. After a few preliminary remarks by the Judge, in which he said no reasonable doubt could exist as to the guilt of the prisoner, he sentenced him to be hung in public, on Friday, the second day of December.

Brown received the sentence with composure. The only demonstration made was with the clapping of hands by one man in the crowd, who was not a resident of Jefferson county. This was promptly suppressed, and much regret was expressed by the citizens at its occurrence.

After being cut out an hour, the jury in the case of Coppoe returned with a verdict declaring him guilty on all the counts of the indictment. His counsel gave notice of a motion to arrest judgment, as in Brown's case.

The Court then adjourned.

The Riots in Baltimore.—The dispatches sent from Baltimore relative to the tumults and disturbances during the election laid the blame exclusively on the American party. Whether these statements are true or not if more than one sat. To give an idea of the opposite character of the reports, we subjoin a paragraph from the Patriot and another *from the Americ*an of the afternoon of the 2d inst.—the former being an American and the latter a Reform organ:

[From the Patriot.]

The day thus inaugurated by the Know Nothings in this city we are sorry to say, was opened with [illegible] misdeeds. There were [illegible] several of the wards they exercised to take possession of the polls, and [illegible] ward became fully resisted. The excitement when we last heard from [illegible] pitch, and the responsibility [illegible] of the deeds on the shoulders of the Reformers is every one.

[From the American.]

We give below the [illegible] grave of the election in the different wards up to [illegible] 4 o'clock. It will be seen that a majority of the polls are in the possession of the Reform Clubs, who, by the most brutal violence and fraud in the purchasing and [illegible] thing like a fair expression of [illegible] sentiment through the ballot-box.

Mr. J. P. Sturges, of the Louisiana Club, acted as umpire. The scorers were Jas. Dalton for the Magnolias, and J. Hicks for the Southern Club. H. P. Harper was Captain of the Southern Nine, and F. Borge was Captain of the Magnolias. After the game, the Southern gave three cheers for their victors, which were heartily returned.

Affray on Bayard Street.—An act of rowdyism was exhibited yesterday on the part of three abandoned women at the corner of St. Peter and Bayard streets, who went into the beer saloon by the side of it and drank. One story is that they refused to pay for their liquor, and another relates that a fight occurred between Parker and the proprietor barrabee for Harper's head, some cause the keeper of the place got to fighting with them, knocked down one, and gave the other damaged eye, and after they turn chopped about the head and face with a bowie-knife by one of the females—the latter, Mary Jane Jackson, also fetched the wretched Parker a severe blow on the head with a pistol. The fight then moved from the bar-room into the street, where some men got out of a cab and helped the women, and the proprietor defended himself with a billet of wood. It stopped the proprietor's new appeared at the upper story and fired into the crowd with a revolver. A man below fired twice at him, but missed the shots. A couple of police officers now appeared and examined the troubled waters by taking away the women. Dr. H. Rouse, who attended the stabbed man, says his wounds are all slight.

Murder.—At six o'clock last evening, two hours after the polls had closed at the Fourth Ward School House, corner of Constance and Girodine streets, Cornelius Sheen, an Irishman, thirty four years of age, was murdered by unknown persons opposite the School House. He had been in his brother's grocery store, corner of Girod and Baronne streets, all day up to three o'clock, when he went out merely to go around and see the polls from motives of curiosity.

Suicide Affair.—Two men who were dining in Madame Fisbet's restaurant, on Bienville, between Bourbon and Royale streets, about three o'clock yesterday afternoon, got into a quarrel, and one stabbed the other in the neck, inflicting a serious but not mortal wound. A physician was sent for, and the man to his residence, but did not learn his name, nor that of the one who stabbed him.

Accidentally Shot.—William Jolly was brought to the Charity Hospital at half-past two o'clock, yesterday morning, dangerously shot in the groin. He says he was in company with a friend at the corner of Bolivar and Gravier streets, when his friend drew a revolver to shoot another person, but shot him by accident.

The Fourth District Imbroglio.—We were misinformed in regard to the cause of arresting Bridget Henry for arson in the Fourth District, the facts are as follows: It will be remembered that the fire which burned the Magazine street market, broke out in Mrs. Marie's residence, on Hunting's row, and was incidentally the work of an incendiary. The row of houses was owned by Dr. Hastings, who lives in the corner house.

Bridget Henry is believed by many persons to be insane, but by others it is thought that she is as sound in mind as any one, but very good and entertaining. Having become possessed of a grudge against Mrs. Marie, on account of a quarrel which she had had with her husband in reference to the latter's refusal to pay her money, &c. The Dooley disclaims any intimacy with her, and indignantly refused giving her any money, threatening her with arrest some over complaint to the police.

She next had an idea that Mlle. Marie was to be married to Dr. Hastings, although such a idea is very far from probability. The idea of her marriage to Dr. Hastings, she then went to see Mlle. Marie, threatening her with murder, and arson. Here likewise she was disappointed in her expectations, as Mlle. Marie met her with arrest if she continued her threats. During the conference the host day the say Dr. Hastings and Mlle. Marie, and she left the house, and went under the impression that they were to be married, gloated over the fact, telling that these had been for it and prayed for it. Under these circumstances it was thought by many she was the incendiary, and Fire Warden Younger arrested her.

In nothing yesterday the attention of the citizens of the building No. 60 Chartres street, was raised that the store was discovered that her old pet clog he stood by some of the [illegible] which [illegible] allegan was stolen from him by his colored servant, one Johnson. The General said he had been informed that Johnson had brought the harness on to this city, and the dog [illegible] it to a livery stable keeper. Detective [illegible] placed himself under the General's orders, and together with [illegible] in search of the [illegible] Keepers.—New York Commercial.

A Madrid letter, in the Brussels Independance, says:

Fifty or sixty persons, hired for the purpose, and placed in little groups in the upper galleries, have renewed, in a more scandalous manner, during a second representation of "Hernani," the present which occurred in the first representation. It was no longer murmurs and whisperings, but groans and noises of all kinds, which completely drowned the voices of Madame Grisi and Mario. The uproar was at its height at the commencement of the duet in the second act. Potatoes were thrown from the upper galleries, falling at the feet of Madame Grisi and Mario, and into the pit. The public in the boxes and other parts of the house rose indignantly to protest against such an outrage, but Madame Grisi withdrew, her feet bleeding. Mario attempted for some seconds to brave the storm, but was obliged to leave the stage. One of the principal of the disturbers undertook forward to announce that the performance would not be continued. Madame Grisi having already sung, overcome with emotion. The authorities were quite impassive.

Quarters for Rent.—A green, good negro-boy, money-making, no country fellow, speaks English, French and Spanish, understand, and struck up a bargain for most reasonable terms. Having no particular regard for appearances, the parties have it in contemplation to employ a not over-wise country justice to put up the tackling. He commenced the ceremonies by asking the parties if it was necessary on such occasions to commence with prayer. Both believed he would omit that. After tying the knot, he said "it was customary to give the bride a couple some advice; but he believed he would omit that. It was unnecessary, too, to kiss the bride, but he believed he would omit that also." The ceremony being over, the bridegroom took the initiative in the matter, and stepping his finger on his nose, said: "Squire, it's customary to give the magistrate his perkis—but I'll have I'll omit that."

"Gen. Tom Thumb" at Police Headquarters.—A Richard Croker of Tammany Hall.—This morning, the diminutive individual known as "Gen. Tom Thumb" made his appearance at police headquarters, and stated that he had just arrived from Bridgeport, Connecticut, where he resides, and that he had been robbed of the sum of $800 in bank bills, by some person unknown. The amount was principally in $100 bills, and the loss was discovered on the cars. He was referred to the detective department, and left the building.

Shortly afterwards, a dozen of the New York detectives made their appearance, and among them was Richard Croker, the celebrated "Dick" of the Five Points. Croker, it is said, exchanged a few words with the diminutive Thumb, and then left the building. Soon afterwards, the Thumb proceeded to the office of the Superintendent of Police, and stated that he had been informed that Croker had stolen the money, and that he had come to make a complaint against him. The Superintendent informed the Thumb that he could not interfere in the matter, as it was a private affair, and that he must apply to the Police Court.

Subsequently, Gen. Tom Thumb and Richard Croker, Esq., were seen walking arm in arm down Broadway, and the latter was observed to hand the former a roll of bills, which the latter counted, and then put in his pocket. The Thumb then left in a carriage, and Croker returned to the Police Office.—New York Herald.

Nicholas Looking up Among the Girls.—Why shouldn't we have schools for the physical development of young ladies as well as young gentlemen? That's the question now being agitated among the strong-minded. Mrs. Gage, writing to the N. Y. Tribune, says:

Any one not fossilized by conventionalism, who will visit Englewood School, near Perth Amboy, N. J., may see a sight that will do his heart good. There, in the midst of young ladies from upper tendom, daughters of learned professors, retired merchants and first 1-millies of Fifth avenue, dressed in the short dress, trimmed with the scarlet, reaching only below the knee; pants of the same; meeting high boots with scarlet tops, taking part with the young gentlemen in boating, leaping the fence, "Hop, Jump," upon their shoulders and walking off with a quarter of a mile to the shores of the Raritan, there launching it upon the water, waving their hands to the gentlemen with the said, meaning it (the captain was Miss Maria-ning) with as merry a crew as ever set sail. Ah, it gave one high hope for the future to see these bright-eyed girls, a dozen of them, toss back their curls under their bonting hats, put their ungloved hands to the oars, and bear away with steady sweep into the current that flowed by. "Now, dear miss out and three miles back," as the captain said, with no complaint of weariness. These girls can swim, lift weights, play ball, ride and run, and, what is more, have time to study Greek and Latin, and read Shakspeare, and advance equally with those who are fitting for Cambridge and Yale.

The report of the Controller-General of Georgia shows an increase of 11,240 slaves in that State during the year just past. The total number of slaves in 1858 was 452,184, and in 1859, 443,364. The average value of each slave in 1858, was $526 39, and in 1859, $561 67. The aggregate value in 1858 was $237,628,027, and in 1859, $261,620,466. It will be seen that, while the increase is in the number of slaves, it is 11,240, the increased value is $44,161,478.

Suppose Affair.—Two men who were dining in Madame Fisbet's restaurant, on Bienville, between Bourbon and Royale streets, about three o'clock yesterday afternoon, got into a quarrel, and one stabbed the other in the neck, inflicting a serious but not mortal wound. A physician was sent for, and the man to his residence, but did not learn his name, nor that of the one who stabbed him.

Accidentally Shot.—William Jolly was brought to the Charity Hospital at half-past two o'clock, yesterday morning, dangerously shot in the groin. He says he was in company with a friend at the corner of Bolivar and Gravier streets, when his friend drew a revolver to shoot another person, but shot him by accident.

The Fourth District Imbroglio.—We were misinformed in regard to the cause of arresting Bridget Henry for arson in the Fourth District, the facts are as follows: It will be remembered that the fire which burned the Magazine street market, broke out in Mrs. Marie's residence, on Hunting's row, and was incidentally the work of an incendiary. The row of houses was owned by Dr. Hastings, who lives in the corner house.

Bridget Henry is believed by many persons to be insane, but by others it is thought that she is as sound in mind as any one, but very good and entertaining. Having become possessed of a grudge against Mrs. Marie, on account of a quarrel which she had had with her husband in reference to the latter's refusal to pay her money, &c. The Dooley disclaims any intimacy with her, and indignantly refused giving her any money, threatening her with arrest some over complaint to the police.

She next had an idea that Mlle. Marie was to be married to Dr. Hastings, although such a idea is very far from probability. The idea of her marriage to Dr. Hastings, she then went to see Mlle. Marie, threatening her with murder, and arson. Here likewise she was disappointed in her expectations, as Mlle. Marie met her with arrest if she continued her threats. During the conference the host day the say Dr. Hastings and Mlle. Marie, and she left the house, and went under the impression that they were to be married, gloated over the fact, telling that these had been for it and prayed for it. Under these circumstances it was thought by many she was the incendiary, and Fire Warden Younger arrested her.

In nothing yesterday the attention of the citizens of the building No. 60 Chartres street, was raised that the store was discovered that her old pet clog he stood by some of the [illegible] which [illegible] allegan was stolen from him by his colored servant, one Johnson. The General said he had been informed that Johnson had brought the harness on to this city, and the dog [illegible] it to a livery stable keeper. Detective [illegible] placed himself under the General's orders, and together with [illegible] in search of the [illegible] Keepers.—New York Commercial.

Base Ball.—The great return match of base ball between the Southern and Magnolia clubs, in which so much interest has been felt in circles of the kind, for the last week, played on Sunday afternoon at the Lafayette ground, before a large number of spectators, resulted in their favor. The match, the Southern Club was considered victorious, but though beaten the second time, the playing of the Magnolias was very fine, and their gentlemanly manner in which they sustained their defeat won the esteem of every one. The day was a fine one and the field presented a lively appearance. The refreshment department was conducted on the usual liberal and excellent scale in which these things are done. The following is the score:

Borge was Captain of the Magnolias. After the game, the Southern gave three cheers for their victors, which were heartily returned.

Affray on Bayard Street.—An act of rowdyism was exhibited yesterday on the part of three abandoned women at the corner of St. Peter and Bayard streets, who went into the beer saloon by the side of it and drank. One story is that they refused to pay for their liquor, and another relates that a fight occurred between Parker and the proprietor barrabee for Harper's head, some cause the keeper of the place got to fighting with them, knocked down one, and gave the other damaged eye, and after they turn chopped about the head and face with a bowie-knife by one of the females—the latter, Mary Jane Jackson, also fetched the wretched Parker a severe blow on the head with a pistol. The fight then moved from the bar-room into the street, where some men got out of a cab and helped the women, and the proprietor defended himself with a billet of wood. It stopped the proprietor's new appeared at the upper story and fired into the crowd with a revolver. A man below fired twice at him, but missed the shots. A couple of police officers now appeared and examined the troubled waters by taking away the women. Dr. H. Rouse, who attended the stabbed man, says his wounds are all slight.

Murder.—At six o'clock last evening, two hours after the polls had closed at the Fourth Ward School House, corner of Constance and Girodine streets, Cornelius Sheen, an Irishman, thirty four years of age, was murdered by unknown persons opposite the School House. He had been in his brother's grocery store, corner of Girod and Baronne streets, all day up to three o'clock, when he went out merely to go around and see the polls from motives of curiosity.

Suicide Affair.—Two men who were dining in Madame Fisbet's restaurant, on Bienville, between Bourbon and Royale streets, about three o'clock yesterday afternoon, got into a quarrel, and one stabbed the other in the neck, inflicting a serious but not mortal wound.
