THE FAREWELL CONCERT of Madame BISHOP.—A fair audience attended last night at the Opera House the second and last grand farewell concert given by Madame Anna Bishop, who displayed her characteristic grace, and culture in the execution of a series of songs and ballads with a felicity well calculated to sustain the eminent reputation which she so early won and has so long held in the musical world of both Europe and America.

Mr. Lucciles, the assistant of Madame B as pianist and vocalist, has a very pleasant voice, varying from light tenor to baritone, capable of nice modulation, exceedingly clear and often highly sympathetic in tone, and finely in keeping with the range of musical selections, comprising the comic, the sentimental and the amatory. Condition of Atlanta After its Evacuation.

LETTER OF GEN. SLOCUM.

To His Excellency Judge E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

ATLANTA, GA., Dec. 2, 1864.—In obedience to orders of November 20th, in respect to the State property in Atlanta, and having made a careful search for the same, I have the honor to make the following report. Without a moment's delay I proceeded to the Court House, and in the basement found what was supposed to be the public archives of the State, and also the records of the Superior Court of Fulton county. These were all destroyed by fire, but a vast deal of valuable matter remains in the ruins. These fragments of the books and papers, and whatever else may be worth preserving, I shall order sent before leaving Atlanta. I failed to find any of the State officers, or any person who could be designated as their successor. The property of the State Road, running to Chattanooga, and leased to the Western and Atlantic Railroad Company, was turned over to Colonel Wm. Wright, the President of the latter company, who is now in charge of the road. All the locomotives, cars, machine shops, depots, &c., belonging to the road, are in good order, and will be used by the Government. The property of the Georgia Railroad, and that leased to it by the Macon and Western Railroad, was found in charge of Colonel Wm. Wellman, the President of the Georgia Railroad, who was also in charge of the property of the Macon and Western Railroad. I found no property belonging to the State of Georgia, except the Western and Atlantic Railroad, and that leased to the Georgia Railroad. I have turned over to Colonel Wellman, President of the Georgia Railroad, all the property of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, and have directed him to run the road for the present, and to report to me. I have also directed him to repair the road from Atlanta to Chattanooga, and to put on such trains as may be necessary for the transportation of troops and supplies. I have also directed him to run the road from Atlanta to Augusta, and to put on such trains as may be necessary for the transportation of troops and supplies. I have also directed him to run the road from Atlanta to Macon, and to put on such trains as may be necessary for the transportation of troops and supplies. I have also directed him to run the road from Atlanta to Macon, and to put on such trains as may be necessary for the transportation of troops and supplies. I have also directed him to run the road from Atlanta to Macon, and to put on such trains as may be necessary for the transportation of troops and supplies.

Supreme Court—Judge Lea.—The case of Pierre Lafranois who called up for trial yesterday, was continued by consent, with a view to amicably dealing in Government property. The evidence for the prosecution was, that a month ago these men, as police officers, were on the Mexican road, beyond Bruja, at 10 o'clock at night, and were accosted twice with a query, At whose order to halt he time to escape. The party fired at him and he was wounded. The evidence for the prosecution is to the effect that the shots in question were fired by persons who hooked L. C. Duchamp and only engaged counsel during the trial.—He claims to have purchased the property in question, though his title is from Mr. Dorsey.

The case was continued for further evidence.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

Newsboys who has lived and yesterday in performing the additional duty of subscribing cents to their punishments at the new district. He made it a point that every culprit should know before the rising of the sun next day.

The late boys, mentioned as having been found guilty of having stolen a dozen of hats from an importing house on Magazine street received a severe lecture. To one a year in jail, to others three each to prison and the others to the House of Refuge.

Th. Looney, who recently cut Mr Hawkins with a bowie knife, in revenge of former quarrels, was fined $50 and to two years hard labor and imprisonment.

Henry Williams, the colored mariner who robbed Dr. Knapp and Dominique during both a treaty perhaps for 5 years, was sentenced to one year hard labor in the Penitentiary.

Dedrick Lewis and the other convicts in the penitentiary, who made an attempt to escape, were sentenced to one year imprisonment.

On the corner between Hunter street continuing to the city Hall running east, and McHenry, in street, running south, all the cows were destroyed by the fire and fishermen were forced to seek other quarters. The Hunter Hotel, formerly a resort for the Cow Boys City Hotel, running on to 3d street, were burned. All the hotels, except the Globe, were burned, and the Mansion House escaped, and found all the burned houses standing. The cause of the fire is not definitely known. Nothing can be left of the Globe, except the walls, and these are much damaged.

Could I have arrived an hour earlier, with a crowd of some hundred men, I could have saved the Stanley and City's southern dollars.

There were about two hundred and fifty wagons in the city on my arrival, loading with colored plunder, planters, factors, turpentine, cloth, flour, beef, bacon in immense numbers, and to incalculable amount of other stores, very valuable at the present time. This exportation of stolen property had been going on ever since the place was besieged by Sherman. Rail-whackers, robbers and deserters, and others from the surrounding country for a distance of fifty miles have been engaged in this dirty work.

Many of the Rebel troops, mysteriously left unfurnished, are filled with the finest furniture, pianos, pictures, mirrors, etc., and occupied by gentlemen and ladies, in the most fashionable style. About fifty families fugitated during the occupancy of the city by the enemy, and about the same number were returned since its evacuation. From two to three thousand dead carcasses of animals remain in the city limits.

Horses were turned loose in the cemetery to graze upon the grass and shrubbery. The ornaments of grave, such as marble tombs, granite statuary, monuments, and crystal lamps, are broken, and scattered around. The crowning act was committed in removing the dead from the vaults in the cemetery and robbing the coffins of all the silver mountings and plunging, and depositing their corpses in the lowest vaults.

I have the honor to be, respectfully, your obedient servant, W. P. HOWARD

The Bronzed Statue Safe Arrived.

(From the Cincinnati Gazette of December 21.)

There is certain uncertainty in writing now, on days, of the military operations in front, telegrams are received, but no one comes to receive dispatches up to 9 A. M., there is not much time after that to engage in the pleasing task of enlightening our readers.

But we think it safe to despise that the sensation dispatch, which appeared in the Times yesterday afternoon, was manufactured in New York for the stock market. It is not likely the rebels are essentially concealing the records of a battle. They have not found that much any occasion.

But we think it safe to conclude
