MORE PROOF.

At various times we have taken some trouble to disprove the charges recklessly urged by a partisan press, that the American party was a mere affiliation of Freesoilers and Abolitionists. The evidence by which this senseless allegation has been rebutted is no complete and satisfactory, that the Pierce journals are reduced to the necessity of crying out "abolition," cuckoo like, without a particle of proof to sustain their assertions. We have shown that the strongest abolition paper in the Union are the deadliest foes to the American organization, reviling it without stint, and attacking steadily to weaken, or overthrow its influence. We have quoted freely from the N York Tribune, the Boston Atlas and the Washington New Era—all of which look upon the Know-Nothings as the most inveterate enemies of the anti-Slavery cause. These sheets are edited by men of rank political sagacity, sound shrewdness, and considerable talent. Does any one imagine that HORACE GREELEY would denounce the American party with such unmitigated fierceness, if he did not instinctively feel that this Order would cripple his fanatical schemes of a war upon the South? Would so astute a personage, in political craft, as THURLOW WEED, abuse and vilify the American party, if he imagined he could draw from it the slightest aid and comfort in his darling design of building up a sectional party, and making WM. A. SEWARD President? Would DR. BAILEY, the clever, courteous, but ultra fanatical editor of the New Era, deprecate the existence of the American party, and in another column, declare that it was discreet always to in the instance the ascendency of an Order which is bound by its inherent nature and principles to stranle sectionalism, and strengthen and perpetuate the Union? Rely upon it, these men know what they are about. They scoff the danger from afar. They feel instinctively that the treasonable projects will be annihilated, if the new organization continues to spread and conquer, and hence they abuse with frenzied zeal to render it odious, by representing it as proslavery, when in fact it neither seeks to propagate nor oppress southern institutions.

We give to-day, without further comment, another unqualified piece of testimony in support of these remarks. It is a letter addressed by the Hon EDWARD WARE—an Abolition Senator from Ohio—to Mr. WRIGHT. It is published in the Cincinnati Enquirer, itself an Abolition Democratic paper, and the editor says that Mr. WARE's letter "unquestionably speaks the sentiments of the Abolition Western Reserve, and will be sustained by a majority of his constituents."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15, 1855.

J. R. WRIGHT, Esq.—Dear Sir: I have taken the liberty to forward to you the World's Position Organ, the daily Know-Nothing paper published at this place, and the only one that "nails our colors to the mast" in the cause of the Order. You will see that this great effort is to separate entirely the slave question from politics connected with the Union. The "secret, social" features of the system of KNOW-NOTHINGISM is nothing LIKE WILD FIRE THROUGH THE SLAVE STATES.

The census of 1850 shows that there are three and a half foreigners in the free States to one native in a slave State. The naturalizations annually in the free States are ten times as many as in the slave States. Therefore, either by pro or con, a fairly, and there is no escape from this dilemma.

The increase from this new born anti-foreign element in the slave-holders can be seen only for in not one hypothesis, and that is, their cooperation with that this a free soil party with slavery at the North; and they, the slaveholders, will be in a condition to take the Know Nothing movement under their protection, and so use it as to overthrow the anti-slavery movement in the free States, and thereby fasten state the joint domination of doughfaces and slaveholders.

I have no fears that, among a population so intelligent and so thoroughly imbued with the anti-slavery sentiment as that of the Northern Ohio, this anti-foreign movement can be converted to the base uses of the slavery propagandists. I have not, therefore, participated in the alarm of the National Era and others of our anti-slavery papers on this subject. My confidence in the sagacity and intelligence of the people of the free States is unabated. I am sure that they will not be less than they are prepared to sacrifice their hostility to the real evils and real dangers of the spread of human bondage to the hypocritical and sanctimonious pretensions of the slaveholder and doughfaces against the evils of foreign influence—as if Europe were not ready to furnish us with any interdict that we might desire, but only that of human freedom, and not to this, but under the lead of the new born patriots who are now uttering such anathemas against our liberal institutions and the asylum they afford to the foreigners among us. Free, too, in one sense by that the voting and slave-holding States can defy the crushing weight of the anti-slavery sentiment and intelligence of the free States, and yet not be free from the embarrassments which the presence of foreigners among us produces.

But to return to the foreigners: could it last, and to be sure it has not sustained by a majority of the Union, it would be a fearful element to have been agitating the country for years, before there effects to get up a counter agitation, of such a character as to divide the Union, and thereby cause a severe if not fatal blow to the cause of freedom. Do not let the people of Ohio, or of any other free State, be misled by this movement. Beware how you permit the anti-foreign feeling to be enlisted in favor of the slave power. Do not let the people be misled by the cry of "Know Nothing" and "anti-foreigner" in the slave States, and "anti-slavery" in the free States, that the real danger is from the foreigners among us, and not from the slaveholders
