THE BEE.

PRINTED DAILY, BY P. DELAUP.

THURSDAY, JUNE 12.

Brazil.—The interruption of the British commerce with Brazil seems to excite much discontent in England, and complaints are made of the capture and detention of British property.

In the House of Lords, on the 20th April, Lord Strangford stated the important fact, that upwards of a million and a half in value of British goods were ready to be exported to Brazil, but withheld from fear of capture by one or other of the hostile parties; and that the sum of 2,000,000*l.* sterling in specie, was waiting to be shipped from Rio de Janeiro to Great Britain, but that the merchants were from the same cause afraid to risk the loss of it.

Portugal.—In speaking of the treachery of Don Miguel to the Constitution of Portugal, which he had so recently sworn to support, the Times gives this characteristic anecdote:

Before the blessed Miguel left this country, he wrote, most gratuitously and of his own free will, a letter to the most eminent person in the realm, saying, that if he overthrew the Constitution, he should be a wretch of the deepest oath, and an usurper of his brother's throne; for that it was as easy to him to preserve as to overthrow it."

We learn that seventeen bills of indictment, were found during the present week at Sangamon, against Daniel Pinkinson, formerly a director of the State Bank, for the crime of forgery. The notes said to be forged, were presented to the bank by Parkinson, were discounted, and the money paid over to him, for the use of the supposed drawers.—Illinois Intelligencer.

DANVILLE, May 17.

Mr. John Watson, an old citizen of this place, who for some weeks past has been in a state of mental derangement, on Sunday night last, arose from bed and [illegible] a window in the second story of Mrs. Davenport's house, from which he fell on the front pavement, and was so bruised by the fall that he expired in a few hours after.

The bill to authorize a subscription of a million of dollars to the Ohio and Chesapeake Canal, in the United States, passed the House of Representatives, by a vote of 106 to 71.

The intelligence [illegible] change is no doubt that it will pass the Senate.

SHELBYVILLE, May 16.

A most violent tornado passed through the immediate vicinity of this place on Sunday last. Its general course was from west to east and its breadth two hundred yards. We have not learned where it commenced or where it terminated. It unroofed many buildings in its passage, destroyed many orchards and much timber, and killed some stock. We have not heard that any person was personally injured by its violence.

Among the visiters at present at the Seat of Government is General Plauge, of Louisiana, who distinguished himself during the late war with Great Britain, as well by his patriotism in the councils of his native State as by his conspicuous gallantry in the field of battle.

We were glad to meet, also, yesterday, (May 5) with Beaufort R. Watts, Esq. for some years past Charge des Affaires of the United States at the Republic of Colombia, who has recently returned to the United States.—Nat. In.

Hoaxes.—The publishers of the Pennsylvania Gazette offer a reward of fifty dollars for the detection of a scoundrel who procured an account of the death of Mr. Samuel Wetherell to be inserted in their paper. Mr. W. is in good health. Our neighbors of the Evening Bulletin were recently imposed upon by some one, who sent a notice of a fictitious marriage to them. They have offered a reward of one hundred dollars, for the detection of the mischievous blockhead who takes delight in such tricks.

A case.—Of all the instances of folly and ignorance which ever came under our notice, that which is in the following case is the most ridiculous. A laborer of the Western section of the Pennsylvania canal, who had been blessed by nature with a strong healthy crop of red hair, had, it seems, become tired of its colour, in consequence of the nickname which his fellow labourers had given him, on that account. His employer informed him, that he had changed the colour of his own, or some other person's hair from red to black, and proposed doing the same office for him, if he would go to Pittsburgh and procure all the articles which his "receipt" called for. So impatient was Sandy of having the metamorphosis effected, that he prevailed upon the employer to use the articles he had on hand. To this the latter consented, and immediately applied to the head of the former a cataplasm of Potash, Spanish whiting, and lime! But much to the to the dismay of both parties, so caustic was the application, the hair, scalp, and integuments, were involved in one general ruin. The poor fellow has for several months, been suffering indescribable tortures from the sloughing of the diseased parts, and is yet not entirely convalescent. A new scalp has been formed in part, and the patient will doubtless soon recover. Whether he will have another supply of hair, of any colour, is perhaps problematical. We understand he intends prosecuting the employer for his agency in the misfortune. The affair should teach a salutary lesson to those who are so officious as to meddle with substances, of which they know not the nature or effects, as well as cause a disposition in all to be content with what nature has done for them, without vainly attempting to alter what is fixed and immutable.

Diamonds.—Through the politeness of our neighbor, Mr. Brothers Stout, we have examined models, in his possession, of the principal diamonds in Europe. The models represent not only the exact forms but the colours of those precious stones. The shape and sizes are various, though all an almond: no one which is [illegible] as large as the eye of an ox, cut into a conical form, somewhat irregular, and was stolen by a French soldier from the eye of an idol in Hindostan. The colors vary from a pure crystal into a deep sapphire blue. Prince Orloff gave for the great Russian diamond ninety thousand pounds sterling, and an annuity of four thousand pounds with a title of nobility. In 1791 a committee of Jewellers valued the Pitt diamond at above four hundred thousand pounds sterling. It is "the finest brilliant in Europe."

These gems rank, the Brilliant, the Rose, the Table and the Lasques. The smallest flaw or tinge of coloring matter considerably decreases their value. Such is the intense hardness of the diamond that "small particles laid on a new anvil and struck with a hammer will indent both, and in some cases not to be broken." The diamond is invariably found mixed with the alluvial soil. It is not more than a century ago when diamonds were first found in Brazil, and their value unknown, they were then used as counters in playing at cards. The famous diamond mines of Golconda are exhausted and abandoned so that Europe and [illegible] depend on Brazil for its supply of diamonds. The district of Serro de Frio, [illegible] they are found, is of small extent—about [illegible] thousand negroes are constantly employed in washing for them. The whole trade is monopolized by the crown.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.

"Franklin had a great genius—original, sagacious and inventive, capable of discoveries in science, no less than of improvements in the fine arts and the mechanic arts. He had a vast imagination, equal to the comprehension of the greatest objects, and capable of a steady and cool contemplation of them. He had wit at will. He had humor that, when he pleased, was delicate and delightful. He had a satire that was good natural or caustic—Horace or Juvenal, Swift or Rabelais, at his pleasure. He had talents for irony, allegory and fable, that he could adopt with great skill, to the promotion of moral and political truth. He was master of that infantine simplicity, which the French call naivete, which never fails to charm, in Phœdrus and La Fontaine, from the cradle to the grave. Had he been possessed with the same advantages of scholastic education in his early youth, and pursued a course of studies as unembarrased with occupations of public and private life, as Sir Isaac Newton, he might have emulated the first philosopher. Although I am not ignorant that the most of his positions and hypotheses have been controverted, I cannot but think he has added much to the stock of natural knowledge, and contributed largely to the improvement of the human mind, both by his own writings and by the controversies and experiments he has excited in all parts of Europe. He had abilities for investigating statistical questions, and in some parts of his life has written pamphlets and essays upon public topics, with great ingenuity and success.

Irish Negro.—An Irishman with his family landing at Philadelphia, was assisted on shore by a negro who spoke Patrick in Irish. The latter taking the black fellow for one of his own countrymen, asked how long he had been in America—about four months, was the reply. The chop fallen Irishman turned to his wife and exclaimed; "But four months in the country, and almost as black as jet."

SOFT LIPS.

A lady of fashion inscribed on a pane of glass, at an Inn, in Staines, England, "Dear Lord Dorrington! has the softness that ever pressed those of beauty." Foote, coming into the room soon after, wrote underneath—

"Then at like as two ships,
"Met his lips and his lips."

Mr. Randolph in a late speech, after endeavoring for some time to establish a disputed point, declared—

"It is clear—it is clear as—it is rather more clear than—the light of that window—which is not very clear."

"This is about equal to the blending up of a certain lawyer's bunch of eloquence—"My client, may it please your honor," said he, "is all that the mind of man can conceive—he is a patriot—he is a—friend of his country—he is an honest man—he is all that is High, Low, Jack and Game."

The following is copied from [illegible] churchyard in England.

Once ruddy and plump,
Though now a cold lump,
Beneath this old stump,
Lies honest Joe Chump,
Who wished to his neighbours no evil,
Altho' by death's thump
He's laid on his rump,
Yet up he shall jump,
When he hears the last trump.
A triumph o'er Death and the Devil.

PANORAMA EXHIBITION,

The great Panoramic picture of the [illegible] of Paris, the Capital of the Kingdom of France is now exhibiting in the building on the public square of [illegible] street.

The view is taken from the roof of the south end of the palace of the Tuileries; the spectator must therefore imagine himself placed on this elevated situation which commands an extensive prospect over the whole city.

Immediately under the eye of the spectator in a northern direction, is the roof of the King's apartments, and on the right that of the long picture gallery stretching eastward as far as the Louvre; —This gallery bounds the place de Carousel on the south side and the new gallery on the north, in the centre of this square is seen the triumphal arch. On this square Bonaparte was wont to review his battalions previous to their departure for their respective destinations, and here oft the walls resounded with the clang of martial music. On the west side of the palace the spectator looks down on the Garden of the Tueleries, and beyond that in the distance is seen the palace of the Garde des Meubles, and the woods of the Champs Elysees in the distance.

When we consider that Paris has been the theatre of so many great political events which have convulsed Europe for thirty years past, [illegible] subjects of equal interest [illegible] could be offered to the public.

Admittance—50 cents.
